Tales Of Jean LaFitte To Be Background For Fete

GALVESTON, May 10 (AP)—The tales of Jean LaFitte, swashbuckling Gulf coast pirate, serve as background for "Galveston's Historical Homes and Oleander Trail" May 17, 18 and 19.

A part of the fete will be a treasure hunt on the site of "Three Oaks," where the freebooter ruled four years.

No one has found the booty which legend says LaFitte stored on the island, but this time the committee in charge guarantees the hunters will uncover treasure.

The treasure will be coins—copies of Spanish doubloons as well as "pieces of eight"—which will be scattered about the place. Finders may exchange them for prizes.

The history of LaFitte's stay on Galveston Island will be recorded at a pageant depicting the progress of Galveston's life.

Jean LaFitte first came to Galveston in 1817, when he was about 40. He set up headquarters with his brother, Pierre, and soon had a flourishing business of piracy going.

LaFitte, who named Galveston in honor of Count Galvez, Governor of the province of Louisiana and viceroy of Mexico, lived like a lord in feudal splendor.

He organized a commune. Its officers were paid salaries and the men at headquarters and aboard ships were paid a pro rata share of the profits from operations.

Some biographers say LaFitte was not a cruel man; that he ordered no one should be killed except in self-defense. Crews of merchantmen who surrendered without a fight were allowed to sail away in their own vessels, after, of course, being relieved of their possessions.

Only Spanish vessels were to be attacked. However, his men, it seems, made no such distinction, and on one occasion, an American vessel was pillaged.

To show his resentment and "patriotism," LaFitte ordered one of his offending ruffians publicly hung on the beach.

In the spring of 1820, the United States government ordered LaFitte out, but the mutinous leader merely changed his operations base from Galveston to the mouth of the Lavaca river.

A United States cruiser bottled him up one day and LaFitte, the legend goes, abandoned ship with a treasure he buried later on his beloved Galveston Island at the site of the "Three Oaks."

No more was heard of this nineteenth century Rhett Butler, and there is no official record of his death or burial.

This year's Oleander Festival, however, is far more than an event to center attraction again on the buccaneer who gave Galveston her name.

The festival has been expanded to include a visit to the island's old homes, monuments, cathedrals, and other places of historical interest.

The Oleander Trail leads, for instance, to these homes:

The Tucker home—framed in Maine in 1837 and taken to Galveston on a sailing boat. The old kitchen is half-buried.

Powhatan house—a famous old colonial home in which Gail Borden invented condensed milk.

The Cradle—a little house formerly a library, in which the Daughters of the Republic of Texas was founded.

Ashton Villa—headquarters for Union forces in Civil War days.

To lend additional color to the festivities, the male gentry of Galveston have formed the order of "Brothers of the Brush," dedicated to the propagation of beards.

An auxiliary organization, the "Sisters of the Brush," has pledged itself to see that the men folks do not shave prior to the fete.

Germany Delivers Bridge, Cattle And Plant To Mexico

MEXICO CITY, May 10 (AP)—Despite the war in Europe, Germany has delivered to Mexico:

Complete sections of what will be the largest bridge in the republic.

All the machinery for a hydro-electric plant, and seventy head of Swiss cattle for breeding purposes.

The imports, disclosed today by the department of national economy, were paid for by shipments of oil to Germany before the war broke out.

FORMER PAMPAN

A former Pampan came back home today as a candidate for Texas Railroad commissioner. He was John P. "Paul" Jones, above, who spent three years as a driller in the Panhandle oil-field, some of the time in and around Pampa.

Mr. Jones spent much of the day visiting with Pampa friends before going to Borger. He was the author of the book, "Borger, the Little Oklahoma," which was widely read.

Mr. Jones is in favor of higher wages for the working man, the taking of politics out of public office, and increasing the load limit of Texas trucks.

Civil Service Exams

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced open competitive examinations for the positions listed below. Applications must be on file in the Commission's office at Washington, D. C., not later than June 3 if received from States east of Colorado, and not later than June 6, 1940, if received from Colorado and States westward.

The salaries given in each case are subject to a retirement deduction of 3 1/2 per cent.

Student physiotherapy aide, and student dietitian, Army Medical Center, War Department, Washington, D. C. The salary for both positions is $420 a year (less deduction of $360 a year for subsistence and quarters). A 1-year course of training is offered students desiring to become graduate physiotherapy aides, and also to those desiring to become graduate dietitians.

Those successfully completing the course will receive certificates of graduation, and, depending upon vacancies and efficiency, will be eligible for retention in the service in the positions, respectively, of physiotherapy aide and dietitian, at a salary of $1,620 a year. For the student physiotherapy aide applicants must have completed a 4-year course leading to a bachelor's degree in an accredited school of physical education or other recognized university or college after having majored in physical education. For the student dietitian applicants must have completed a 4-year college course, which must have included study in certain specified subjects appropriate for the profession of dietitian. However, for both positions, applications will be accepted from senior students under certain conditions. Applicants must have reached their twenty-first, but must not have passed their twenty-eighth, birthday. These age limits will not be waived in any case.

Administrative analyst positions, including the following grades: Chief, $6,500; principal, $5,600; senior, $4,600; analyst, $3,800; associate, $3,200; assistant $2,600. As a general requirement applicants must have had responsible experience, appropriate for the grade, in the general field of administrative and fiscal analysis; and as a special requirement part of this experience must have been in the optional branch, or branches, for which applicants wish to qualify. Optional branches included are: management analysis and constructive accounting for the chief and principal grades, and for the other four grades, two additional branches—budget examining and procedure analysis. Certain study in a recognized college or university, law school, or residence school of accounting or business administration may be substituted for part of the general experience requirement. In addition, certain teaching experience in a recognized college or university may be substituted for not more than one-half of the required special experience. Applicants must not have passed their fifty-third birthday.

Full information may be obtained from Vaughn Darnell, Secretary of the U. S. Civil Service Board of Examiners, at the post office or custom house in this city, or from the Secretary of the U. S. Civil Service Board of Examiners at any first- or second-class post office.

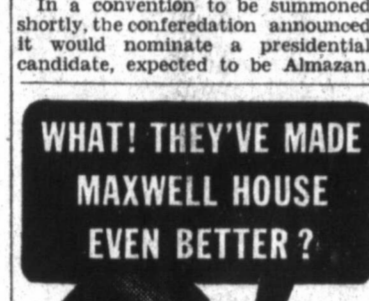

Mexicans Organize 'Spiritual' Party

MEXICO CITY, May 10 (AP)—The confederation of independent parties composed of various groups supporting the anti-government presidential candidacy of General Juan Andreu Almazan, today called upon the Mexican people to assist in the creation of a "new state" in Mexico.

In its proclamation, the confederation said the "new state" would not allow any one class, labor or capitalist, to dominate and would try to bring about a society characterized by "spiritual" rather than "materialist" ambitions.

In a convention to be summoned shortly, the confederation announced it would nominate a presidential candidate, expected to be Almazan.

Oilers Pull Triple Play But Lose To Clovis

Last Game For Week To Be Tonight

The Pampa Oilers pulled one of the record books of the West Texas-New Mexico baseball league last night although they lost a 9 to 5 decision to Clovis. The Oilers made a triple play in the second inning. Tonight the two teams will play the third and last game of the current series and all women wearing slacks will be admitted free.

The league's first undisputed triple killing was pulled by Akers, second baseman, Malvica, shortstop, and Prather, first baseman. And here is how it happened:

Williams opened by drawing a base on balls. Steiner beat out an infield hit, sending Williams to second. Then Schmidt came to bat and he rifled a ball that appeared headed for the outfield. But Akers was on hand to make a stab at the ball and it stuck in his glove. He threw to Malvica and Williams was caught off second. Malvica then whipped the ball to Prather and the throw beat Steiner by inches and the Clovis rally was nipped.

Play Smooth
The play was smoothly executed, not a motion being wasted. Malvica was at second at the right second and his throw to Prather was perfect.

Once more the error jinx cropped up and it proved disastrous to the Oilers, who booted six, Akers, flashy little second baseman, messed up four plays. C. Harrison, Clovis' second baseman, kicked two which might mean that the ground around the sack was responsible for some of the errors.

Sam Malvica, back in the Oiler lineup after being pulled last Sunday, bagged two of the Oiler hits. There were only seven and all were singles. Adkins and Steiner each smacked a double and single for the Oilers.

Dilbeck Ineffective
Lefty Rex Dilbeck started for the Oilers but his curve ball failed to work and his control was off. Errors behind him proved mighty costly. Rice relieved in the eighth and fanned four of the seven batters to face him, three of them in a row in the eighth.

Christie went the distance for the Oilers and like Potent, his team-mate of the previous night, he threw curve balls until the Oilers, the fans, and the umpire were all dizzy.

Feller Chokes Yankees As Walters Beats Bees

TEXAS LONGHORN FROM LEFORS

The determined young pitcher who is getting ready to let his smoke ball go is Charlie Still, LeFors boy, who is playing ball for "Uncle Billy" Ditch at Texas university this year. Young Still defeated Texas Christian university 21 to 3 last week but this week he dropped a 6-4 to 5 decision to Oklahoma university. Young Still, son of Mrs. S. C. Ferguson, of LeFors, graduated from LeFors high school in 1935. He was an outstanding athlete, especially in football and track and field.

By JUDSON BAILEY (Associated Press Sports Writer)

Bob Feller is just the kind of a feller who's liable to keep rapping at that no-hit door long enough for it to open again.

He barely was sidetracked yesterday as he shut out the New York Yankees for Cleveland, 4-0, on three hits. He didn't give up a safety until the seventh inning, when with one out Joe DiMaggio finally banged a single off shortstop Lou Boudreau's glove.

After that the tension was off and the 21-year-old speedster let out a single in the eighth and another in the ninth.

The defeat, he slapped on the world champions was their sixth straight.

There were other good pitching shows yesterday—and some that even the Greeks wouldn't have a word for.

One of the best was Bucky Walters' five-hit job on the Boston Bees in the course of a victory at Cincinnati. He pitched his seventh straight no-hit game as the Pirates lost their ninth consecutive game by a 17-6 score to the New York Giants. Frenzied Frankie Frisch used five flingers who gave up 15 hits, ten bases on balls and ten innings before the Brooklyn Dodgers broke through for a 4-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Newel Kimball got credit for the decision, however, because Carleton was removed for a pinch-hitter in the ninth.

The horrible botch in pitching was reached by Pittsburgh as the Pirates lost their ninth consecutive game by a 17-6 score to the New York Giants. Midget Car Racing Will Open In Pampa Tomorrow

The new sport thrill that is sweeping the Southwest will be presented in Pampa Saturday and Sunday afternoons. It is midget automobile racing. Races will be held in front of the grandstand at Recreation park beginning at 2:30 o'clock each afternoon when trials for places will be staged.

Midget racers from Texas and Oklahoma will be here for the event which will consist of between six and nine races each afternoon. Among the outstanding racers scheduled to appear are Red Hodges, and his $8,000 midget racer, the Music brothers, Charlie Cook, and several others.

Delbert Brown, Pampa, who owns two midget racers, will also enter the races. He has been competing against the best in the game at Dallas, San Antonio, and Galveston.

A regulation track, one-fifth of a mile long, has been laid out by the city. Six of the racers were scheduled to arrive this afternoon for trial runs. Six other racers competed in Houston last night and are to arrive here Saturday morning.

The midget cars are anything but perambulators on the track. They reach a speed of between 60 and 75 miles and have been known to make 100 miles an hour.

Drivers will battle for $500 in cash prizes. The races are being sponsored by Joe Berry, Pampa man.

Jenkins And Ambers Battle Tonight At Madison Square

By GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK, May 10 (AP)—It has become customary to crown a new lightweight champion once each week on Friday. Lou Ambers and Lew Jenkins will hook up at Madison Square garden tonight in a 15-rounder that promises to be fully as entertaining as any 135-pound title bout held in recent weeks.

In this one, Ambers will be defending his crown (New York variety) against a lean, hard-hitting young wolf from Texas, who probably has been seriously over-matched.

In last week's feature at Louisville, Sammy Angott captured the National Boxing association's lightweight belt by outscoring Davey Day.

Ambers is the normal choice to beat Jenkins—to tie him up, out-box him and generally to shower the challenger with leather.

Jenkins strictly is a puncher. Since coming here less than a year ago he has won 10 straight fights, the last seven by knockouts.

Whatever the outcome tonight, there should be a good crowd, for the fans turn out to watch a boy with a kick in his fists.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK, May 10 (AP)—Sounds strange, but the Yankees are getting more boos at home than they get on the road. We saw 'em yesterday and they looked like a bunch of bums. They've been used to the fat of the land so long, they just can't take it when it comes hard. . . If the Jints are any worse when they come home, the semi-pro bushwicks will out-draw them. . . Manager Oscar Vitt says the only gagabo in the American league who is riding Ken Keltner (he's the poor guy who asked for unemployment insurance) is Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox. . . Poller not only throws as hard as ever, but he's heaps smarter and tells interviewers the big reason is Rollie Hemleig, the ex-playboy. . . At least 1,000 loyal Dodger rooters, led by a brass band, turned out at Floyd Bennett field last night to welcome the club home from the west.

TODAY'S TRUE STORY
A Kingston, N. Y., fan who has been feeling low since the Yankees

BELIEVE-IT-OR-NOT
Here's a fantastic derby story, but it comes from a source that never has been wrong. . . Two of the jocks who rode in the derby sweat Bimelech through his rider, Freddie Smith) was kicked out of winning. . . All day the other jocks rode Freddie unmercifully. . . They began in the jockey room about noon and kept it up—at full speed—until the band began to play "My Old Kentucky Home". . . Even with the horses at the post they didn't let up. . . They say Freddie, riding his first derby mount, witted under the hard and fast ribbing. . . He was pale and jittery as the horses lined up for the start. . . When Smith hopped into the saddle the other jocks knew they had him. . . The two who told the story think Smith's riding mates literally rode Freddie and Bimelech out of the big race.

Sharing The Comforts Of Life

By R. C. Holmes

INCREASE OR DECREASE

As we see Norway being taken over by Germany, and England withdrawing, we cannot help but, at least, speculate as to the cause.

It seems to be a law of nature and biology that what does not increase dies.

Statistician Carl Snyder, contends that before the World War the rate of production per worker in both England and Germany had practically come to a standstill; that other countries' production per worker during that period, had increased. Snyder points out that labor unions are destructive and were more in control of England and Germany than other countries. That this means retarding of production and development.

When Hitler came into possession in Germany, he realized the old adage that he who will not work shall not eat, while England continued with her theory that men need not live by the sweat of their face.

Inasmuch as the United States has not, for ten years, made any growth—and we are afflicted with the same imaginations—that we can create wealth and improve the standard of living by collective bargaining or by fiat, it might be very well for these emotional reformers who have been preaching this fantasy, to take stock as to where they are leading us. We must either grow, as Nature and God intended us to grow, or perish.

And when we come to believe that there are eternal principles or no eternal truths that man need to obey and that we can substitute for these eternal truths, the will of the majority or the will of any individual, then we are out of harmony with natural laws and starting to atrophy.

The cause of our failure, for the first time in our history for any five or ten year period, to progress, should cause every thoughtful American to make a careful study of the cause and try to correct it. It is a serious matter.

The Prime Didn't Work

The so-called "economy drive" in Congress, as the cynics expected, has shot its feeble bolt. The gentlemen of Capitol Hill are attempting to outdo each other in spending the taxpayers' money. For this is a general election year, and it is popular political belief that money makes the mare go when it comes to getting votes.

That may be practical sounding politics, but it is a suicidal economic doctrine. At the moment, the nation is only about $2,500,000,000 short of reaching the present federal debt limit of $45,000,000,000. In other words, as a people, we are some $42,500,000,000 in the hole—and that doesn't include federal guaranteed obligations, which run into several billions more. The bulk of that debt has been created since depression started, despite the highest peace-time taxes in our history.

We've primed the pump until the golden flood ran over—but the prime didn't take. We're obvious to anyone that recovery has not been produced. It is equally obvious that business is more worried about the future now than it was ten years ago. It is obvious that little or no dent has been made in the total of the unemployed. It is obvious that government farm relief, which has cost an incredible sum, has been practically a flop.

And still Congress goes on spending in the same old way. The Treasury still pays out close to two dollars for every dollar taken in, charging the unpaid balance to the debt. And the outlook for a sane and solvent future becomes steadily more bleak.

There is a cure for this—a cure that can come only from the people. When the voters are no longer enticed by lavish deficit-spending—when they stop looking to Washington as the source of all financial blessings—when they turn back to local self-government and self-reliance, as against federal paternalism—when they let it be decisively known that they are weary of having their elected representatives spend them and their children and their children's children into potential bankruptcy—there will be a reduction of government expense. And it won't happen until then.

DEADENING EFFECT OF LABOR UNIONS

On the question of the effect of labor unions, as to their ability to raise wages, Dr. Carl Snyder, in his great book, "Capitalism The Creator", has the following to say:

"What utility can labor unions have? Their influence upon the average rate of wages is for the most part nil. What workers in one industry may force from their employers is paid for by all other workers in the increased price of these particular products. But the effect of labor unions upon industry may be disastrous. Even before the war England and Germany seem to have reached a point approaching industrial stagnation; that is to say, the increase in the product per worker in these countries in the last quarter of a century has been extremely small. This has been obscured by the economic upheavals of the war, and the almost invariable monetary inflation it brought about. But the cause goes beyond these factors, and this is becoming more and more evident. It is there two countries that were the most highly unionized. In this same period, the product per worker in the United States, and the average rate of wages, have risen notably, just as they did in England and in Germany in an earlier time."

Unions Have Deadenning Influence

"The control of industry by labor unions seems to have as its major effect a deadening influence upon enterprise and innovation, and it is to these factors that an increase in product is surely due. The restless drive of business men for greater achievement cannot thrive in an atmosphere of repression. In general, almost from the beginning of the Industrial Revolution, the instinct of the worker has been opposed to innovations; and time after time they have fought bitterly the introduction of labor saving machinery. They see only that machinery replaces workers. Hence their inveterate opposition to new methods and new processes."

The trouble with labor unions and New Dealers and protective tariff Republicans, is that they have the "lump of labor" fallacy, the notion that the amount of work to be done is a fixed amount, for which a "lump" of so many man-hours is required. It follows from this that the cure for many of labor's troubles is shorter hours. Hence, Samuel Gompers declared in 1887: "So long as there is one man who seeks employment and cannot find it the hours of labor are too long." It is this same error that lies behind the practice of stretching the work and similar tactics; and it has led to labor opposition to innovations and scientific management.

Circus Comeback

The circus, at any rate, has recovered from the depression. A few years ago, in mid-season, the big tents were folded up, supposedly for good. The circus was about to pass from the American scene, driven out by high costs and the successful competition of newer forms of entertainment.

The picture is different today. The Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Show which opened in New York about a month ago reports the best business in ten years. It is setting out on a 16,000-mile summer tour with considerable confidence. There is a tradition that a circus never does well in a presidential year, but 1940 is expected to disprove it.

The reasons behind the decline and rise of the circus in these years will make an interesting story when some one writes it. One thing seems clear: the American people have not outgrown their love for the Big Top and three rings.

Behind The News

WASHINGTON May 10—When you compare the money Uncle Sam has been sending out to the states with the money he has been getting back from them you can begin to see where all those deficits come from.

Loans and grants made to and in the states and territories since the start of 1934, covering everything from farm benefits to relief, highways, public works and old age benefits total just a little more than $42,000,000,000.

In the same period, internal revenue receipts from those states and territories ran to just a little less than $25,000,000,000.

From only six states did the government collect more in taxes than it paid out in loans and grants. In our states it distributed more money than the total assessed value of taxable property. Of the $42,000,000,000 it sent out, nearly 27 were in the form of outright grants; the rest, made up of loans, is (presumably, anyhow) mostly recoverable.

FHA IRE

WAY UP

Federal Housing authority officials are irked because a weekly paper stated FHA is getting stuck with too much property on insured mortgages that went sour. Currently, says FHA, its losses on foreclosures are averaging only 16/100 of one per cent. The insurance fund of that covers losses is building up nicely, and is figured capable of standing losses running as high as 10 per cent.

General opinion is that FHA is plenty safe—unless another 1933 comes along. In '32, it is recalled, private lenders got stuck with oodles of real estate on which they'd loaned up to 50 per cent. FHA loans up to 80 and 90.

Although politicians don't see how Wendell Willkie can actually get any important delegate strength, the Willkie camp apparently means business. At any rate, Mr. Willkie is starting to organize his own brain trust.

DEFEND ALASKA

After years of neglect, the government is suddenly realizing Alaska is, or ought to be, highly important in the nation's defense system.

At this moment, the total U. S. defense force in Alaska consists of 260 infantrymen stationed at Chick-cot Barracks, near Skaigway, and half a dozen naval planes at Sitka. If anyone wants to worry about a "Russian menace," strategists point out that Russia has been fortifying various spots within easy striking distance of Alaska, having recently put a submarine base on Berling Island, which is only 280 miles away.

Any hostile force which seized Alaska, it is added, would be within fairly handy bombing range of northwestern U. S.—and, as Delegate Anthony Dimond of HOLLYWOOD, May 10—Short takes: Now that Adele Pearce has several successful roles to her credit and an RKO contract in her safe deposit box, she makes a confession. Her pretty face is the work of a deft plastic surgeon!

Five years ago while driving toward Hollywood, she was involved in an automobile wreck at Petaluma, Calif. She crawled from the wreck with serious neck and face injuries.

Today she's playing her first leading role in RKO's "Thousand Dollar Marriage," but she no longer fears the scrutiny of casting directors. "You can still see the scars on my neck if you look closely," she'll tell you.

Producer Gene Towne tells of the out-of-work actor who said he had just eaten his pet parrot for dinner. "How did it taste?" asked Towne. "Like turkey, chicken, peacock, quab and pheasant," replied the actor. "The bird could imitate anything."

Incidentally, Gene Towne will never let a photographer take his picture hatless. He's afraid if his bald pate shows up in pictures he'll lose his standing as the glamor boy of the Towne-Baker team.

Ordinarily sputtering is an affliction, but Charles Ruggles has made more than just a good living for the past nine years sputtering. His closest rival at hemming and hawing is Frank Morgan and, strangely enough, they both started that particular brand of scene stealing in the same picture.

When twin babies work in the movies they make more money than the highest paid star. 20th Century-Fox discovered the other day.

Carla and Georgia Clarke, six-month-old girl twins, appeared in "Four Sons." Usually infants that age receive $25 a day, but for twins the pay is quadrupled.

They can only remain on the set two hours a day, whether resting or working, and they are not permitted to work under the lights for more than 20 minutes of those two hours and not more than 30 seconds consecutively. That means they make $5 a minute.

Things happen in three in Hollywood, so the superstition goes. Thus, George Bancroft is expecting the worst.

He sprained his back one day on the "Northwest Mounted Police" set. The next day he worked, but his back pained him, so he went up. The make-up was a false nose, cheek bones, a beard and a shoulder-length wig, making him look like a half-breed.

He rang his own doorbell and his wife answered the door. She took one look and slammed the door in his face, breaking off one of her husband's front teeth. Bancroft had to take another day off to go to the dentist.

As a star, Director W. S. Van Dyke, an ardent Democrat, posted William Powell's cast full of Democratic kickers. When Powell finished work and saw the car he refused to drive it out of the studio and told Van Dyke he'd stay in his dressing room all night.

Then dawned on Van Dyke that if Powell stayed at the studio all night it would mean that they'd have to let him off the next day because his contract says he must have at least 12 hours away from the studio between working days.

So Van Dyke had to pay a janitor $5 to remove the stickers from Powell's car.

There's a lesson in Grandpa's diet. He ate it before anyone took anything out of it. Science has gone a long way today to refine foods, but in the process some of the essential elements have been destroyed.

Grandpa got 'em all. So there is something to be said for the old way—and the new. If science has taken something out of some foods it has also told us where to look for it in other foods.

Never was there greater opportunity than today to learn how to eat right—how to beat the heat, this time of the year.

Nor are all processed foods reduced in food value. The canning industry has so profited by science that scarcely any food value is lost today. In fact, the food in the can is better than something poorly cooked at home. By this is meant over-cooked food, or cooked in soup, or food permitted to stand in water a long time, either before or after cooking.

Cereals seem to have suffered the most in refinement. Whole grains spoil easily, thus they cannot be stored in large quantities. The day is not far off, it is hoped, when whole grain cereal products likely will be as abundantly and as cheaply supplied as the highly milled products. Some progress already has been made along this line.

Whole grain cereals contribute generously to the Vitamin B1 or thiamin quota of the daily diet. The greatest deficiency of the modern diet is in Vitamin B1. Grandpa seems to have had all he wanted. Other foods, such as meat, especially lean pork, contain appreciable amounts but are much more costly than cereals.

Refined sugar has made many a deficient diet. Generally, sweets have high safety value and thus kill the desire for the protective foods which the body really needs. The protective foods supply energy like sugar, but in addition they supply the more vital elements such as proteins, minerals, vitamins, and roughage.

Heroic Swiss Patriot

Caused Austrian Defeat

SWITZERLAND'S greatest victories are commemorated in an issue of four semi-postals honoring the 1940 National Red Cross designated for Red Cross. The battle of Sempach, in 1386, is recalled by the stamp above, picturing the heroic death of Arnold von Winkelried.

The Swiss Confederation was in its infancy when Leopold III of Austria invaded the country, marched on Lucerne with 24,000 men. The Swiss harassed him with guerrilla warfare until he came to Sempach. They attacked Leopold's army there, in wedge formation, and Arnold von Winkelried was in the point of the wedge.

The Austrians were armed with long spears and the Swiss could break through the enemy line. But Von Winkelried cleared the way. He rushed up, gathered an armful of spears to his own chest, dragged a dozen spearmen down as he died. The Swiss plunged through the gap, killed 2700 Austrians, including Leopold.

POLICY AND PERSONALITY THE ISSUE

By GUS W. DYER

Professor of Economics and Sociology, Vanderbilt University

There is danger that the discussion of a question of a third term for President Roosevelt will be the real issue facing the people at this time. That is, the question of a "third term" for the economic policy of the present administration. It is no exaggeration to say that we have never before in our history had an issue so important as this.

In the election of 1932, the voters knew nothing of the New Deal or of New Deal economics. The New Deal party came into power on a Constitutional Democratic platform, pledged to economy in government.

In the election of 1936 the objectives of the New Deal were veiled as "emergency measures" that would pass out with the depression and the return of normal business activities. The results of the wild, socialistic experiments in the name of economic quackery have now been fully demonstrated to those who have the mental capacity to comprehend simple things.

The issue therefore is: Shall the American people endorse and continue radical experiments that have failed miserably or shall they return to economic sanity and constitutional security and thereby lead the country back to the road of economic prosperity and real industrial progress?

This country had eight depressions before the depression of 1929. Some of these depressions were very serious and worldwide in extent. In all of them our government confined its activities to its limited constitutional authority and permitted business leaders to lead business out of the depression. They never failed. In every case, business came out of the depression stronger and more efficient than it had ever been before. In no case did we come out of a depression with an unemployment problem nor a relief problem. In no case was the public debt appreciably increased.

Between 1892 and 1916 the public debt was never as much as two billion dollars. The annual increase of the public debt to keep up the spending program of the New Deal has been between three and four billion dollars. In seven years the New Deal has added 24 billion dollars to the public debt which is now nearly 48 billion dollars. The annual deficit of between three and four billion dollars, the unemployment of from ten to twelve million workers and millions on relief roll seem to be permanent with no solution for the destructive problem in sight. Do the American people endorse this course of chaos and desire its continuance?

The President's words, acts and attitudes seem to show a complete lack of American constitutional government differing from that of the highest authorities who have interpreted our Constitution for one century. The administration down to the present administration. The attempt to subordinate the Supreme Court to the executive, suggests a transfer of supreme authority to interpret constitutional rights from the Court where it is placed by the Constitution to the administration in power. To destroy the authority of the Supreme Court is to destroy the Constitution. The Supreme Court has an independent history down to the liberties of the people is the very substance of the Constitution. The people must also register their opinion on this issue as the question is a vital part of the whole program of economic and social experimentation which the framers of the program, in the days of early promise, proudly dubbed the "New Deal."

it. Tell me after the Derby, Paul! She laughed and before Wharton...

"Sell him? Certainly not! What gave you such a crazy notion?"

CHAPTER XIV "DID I win?" Sherry turned an anxious face to Wharton. He was frowning. "I think—"

SHERRY had gone straight to Grant, as though there had been no coldness between them...

"Not for anything, Sam," she reassured him. "Thank you, thank you, Miss Sherry!"

His words were lost in the wild shouts that rose from thousands who had bet on the favorite.

THE thought struck her: she had to have money instantly, or there would be no next time.

Then she remembered Cousin Ted, and the generous offer of the morning. Too bad, but she'd have to tap Ted for the entire $700.

Wharton whistled, seized her arm. "Know what that means?" he asked.

AS Sherry reached her own ballroom, she found Sam leading the heavily-blanketed Pepper Boy around a cooling-out ring.

Sherry stopped abruptly, in front of the partly-closed door of her tack-room.

"Stop it, stop it!" she said, smiling and then looking away.

"Miss Sherry, he came out of that race sound as a new dollar—an' he didn't draw hard breath.

"Beautiful, was it? Those two inches cost me $700."

Statement To Voters Made By Goodrich

Lewis Goodrich, a candidate for member of congress, submits the following statement for the consideration of the voters of the 18th congressional district.

"I realize that Marvin Jones has set a record for public service in this nation that is, in my opinion probably as great—if not greater—than that of any other man in congress, and I hope that the people of this district will give me the opportunity to attempt to carry on the work that he has been doing for the Panhandle of Texas. I promise to do that to the best of my ability, with my whole heart and all my strength.

Lauds Jones

"Many of us who live in this district would not be here now if it had not been for the great work of Marvin Jones on behalf of the farmer and ranchman. His many years of working, dreaming, planning and studying the problems of the tiller of the soil and his sincerity of purpose has enabled him to convince his colleagues in the congress of the importance of these constituents to the peace and well being of the nation, and has thus brought results in dollars and cents to the basic industry of the country—farming.

"I pledge you my sincere efforts and conscientious service towards a continuation of this program of crop rotation, reforestation, layout plans, lakes and dams and the entire farm program including the artificial irrigation projects, so that we may better combat the inevitable seasons, droughts and wind erosion that you and I of this plains country have spent our lives trying to overcome.

"I believe these programs should be continued and improved from time to time, so that the financial and economic features may be improved and perfected towards the betterment of this great land of ours and to make our home more pleasant places in which to live.

Endorses Administration

"We as Democrats must stand behind the record of this administration if we expect to elect a democratic president in 1940, and it is my sincere hope that we will not cause a fight within our ranks which might cripple the Democratic party and its efforts to complete the many tasks that lie ahead of us during the strenuous years which may mean so much to all peace loving and free people.

"Our nation and our state have both assumed obligations to the elderly people and I want to see them paid in full, and thus get that item out of our political picture and go on with the working out of other necessary social security programs.

"Those of us who saw any service during the last great conflict believe that war should be the last resort in the settlement of international problems. The American Legion and other ex-service organizations have been laboring constantly for those principles which we believe will preserve our nation and promote the cause of peace on earth and good will toward all men and I sincerely approve of these efforts."

"At the same time I believe in the maintenance of a sufficient armed force, for land, air and sea to demand the respect of all other world powers whatsoever. We are living during an age when we are caused to look and point with pride toward our American democracy. Let us continue to teach our posterity these principles, so that they may make the world a better place in which to live. Let us now concentrate our lives to the building of a more stable Americanism.

"I am unalterably opposed to the other "isms" that are being infiltrated into our country and promise to put forth my best efforts to stamp out those poisonous things which tend to undermine sound democratic government.

"Having been a common laborer, tiller of the soil, delivery boy, mercantile clerk, and having performed many of the tasks incumbent upon a poor man to maintain himself I am therefore naturally sympathetic to the cause of labor and the working class of people. I shall look forward with great hope toward being able to have a part in some manner in placing business back upon such a basis that there will again be opportunities for the
