KING LEOPOLD REPUDIATED BY BELGIANS AFTER ORDERING ARMY TO SURRENDER

Suit Filed Against City Credit Group

Suit for $540 against the Pampa Credit association has been filed by the Texas Unemployment commission in Travis county, members of the association were informed at its annual meeting last night in the Schneider hotel.

The commission has ruled that the local bureau has eight employees which makes it subject to payment of unemployment compensation. It was pointed out by Travis Lively, who presided at last night's meeting, that he as president and Clyde Fatheree as vice-president, are being classed as employees by the Unemployment Compensation commission, yet they receive no salary.

The bureau will file a plea of privilege asking that the suit be tried in district court here.

President Lively discussed the rocky road which the bureau had traveled during the past seven years. He said that members borrowed money to purchase the old bureau, which was privately owned, and that most of the note had been paid off. He said that the bureau had to pay income tax last year which with bank interest and now unemployment compensation tax the rate of interest on the note was 20 per cent.

"But we have progressed," President Lively said. "When we look over the bureau we had 24 members, now we have more than a hundred."

Crawford Atkinson, T. F. Smalling and Lloyd Laird were re-elected directors of the association by acclamation.

Invocation was by the Rev. A. Norris, pastor of the First Christian church. The annual report was made by Walter Daugherty, secretary.

An interesting picture, "Credit, the Life of Business," was shown.

The War Today

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

They say it's always darkest just before the dawn. I wonder.

The amazing surrender of King Leopold of the Belgians to the invading Germans, without warning to his British and French colleagues, is a terrible though not fatal blow to the Allied cause.

Its immediate effect is to increase immeasurably the gravity of two of the most critical situations with which the Allies are contending.

(1) It places the great army of British and French troops, which the Germans have largely surrounded in Flanders, in imminent danger of being crushed.

Half a million or more Allied soldiers in this great sack may have been condemned to death or surrender. At the best they are forced to fight for their lives against a fearful odds.

(2) The King's surrender uncovers the flank of the Allied army on the coast, leaving open to capture the beleaguered army of the north had been depending for supplies.

This hastens Hitler's program for a blow at England itself from the channel coast.

Despite the gravity of the situation, this is not the end of things for the Allies.

Premier Reynaud announced that the Anglo-French army of the north was continuing to fight. Of course they would.

He also said that the Belgian government, in opposition to the King's orders, would continue to function and would try to raise another army.

Whether the government succeeds, or whether it doesn't, matters little now in the military sense, though the effort will give a lift to the Allied morale.

As a matter of fact, had Leopold not quit without warning in the midst of a crucial battle, the Allies could have continued without Belgian military support. The Belgians have been fighting heroically, but the Anglo-French forces

Four Pampans Will Attend Boys' State

Pampa will have four boys at the Lone Star Boys' State in Austin, June 10-15, if the applications mailed yesterday are accepted.

The four boys are Wayne Fade, Humble camp, sponsored by the Pampa Lions club; Billy Mounts, 310 N. Chrysler, by the Kiwanians; Ross Buzzard, 515 N. Somerville, Rotary; and John Tom McCoy, 1400 N. Russell, by the American Legion.

At Austin, in Prather hall, University of Texas, "boys state" citizens will have a period of intensive training in practical state government. They will be educated in the duties, rights, and responsibilities of American citizenship.

Sponsored by the American Legion, Department of Texas, this is the first "boys state" to be held within Texas. The American Legion, Department of Illinois, started a boys state in 1935. In September of that year the national convention of the Legion adopted a resolution approving the movement as "an essential part of the national Americanism program."

Most of the states now have boys state during the summer months. Dr. W. J. Danforth of Fort Worth submitted the idea to the department executive committee and department committee in 1939 when he was department commander.

Dumas Trippers Invite Pampans To Rodeo

Pampans this afternoon welcomed Dumas goodwill trippers and the 40-piece Dumas High school band. The visitors invited everyone to their big rodeo and old settlers reunion to be held in Dumas Friday and Saturday.

Frank Culerson of the Pampa Board of City Development, who responded to the welcome, said that Pampa would not only send a large delegation to Dumas on Friday but that the Pampa Summer Recreation band, under direction of A. C. Cox, would also make the trip.

The Pampa group will stop for visits at White Deer, Panhandle and Amarillo enroute to Dumas and at Stinnett and Borger on the return when they will advertise the Top O' Texas Fiesta and Coronado Entrada to be presented here on June 13, 14 and 15.

Everyone who can make the trip to Dumas Friday is asked to call the chamber of commerce and register. Hat bands, car stickers and publicity on the Fiesta will be available for the trippers to Dumas.

New Breaks Thru French Lines Claimed

BERLIN, May 28. — A new break through French border fortifications "on a broad front" was announced by the German high command today as Belgium's army laid down its arms on command of its king.

The communique reported heavy fighting against the Allies' "embittered resistance" which, it said, was partly broken with Nazi legions advancing within six miles of the Belgian city of Bruges, crossing the Scheldt canal west of Valenciennes and capturing the French towns of Orchies and Douai, south of Lille.

"The big battle in Flanders and Artois has reached a climax," it said.

"Our troops, in a sharp attack, entirely broke the embittered resistance and hemmed in the encircled enemy armies into an ever narrower area into which the airforce also, with strong units, worked destructively."

"The fight continues against the encircled English and French."

Nazi forces had "gained ground rapidly" against the Belgians, the communique said, and "in recognition of its hopeless situation, the Belgian army, under the leadership of its king, in strength of about 400,000 to 500,000 men laid down arms."

Allies Trying To Save Force In Lille Pocket

BERN, Switzerland, May 28 (AP)—Thirty Allied divisions were reported moving into position tonight south of the Aisne river near Bethel for a "now or never" offensive to rescue French and British forces trapped in the Germans' Lille pocket.

Reports reaching here from both sides of the war zone indicated that Allied Generalissimo Maxime Weygand had placed a major part of this force in position before the Belgians surrendered.

Allied divisions range from about 15,000 to 18,000 men—450,000 to 640,000 in the 30 divisions reported massed for attack.

Confusion Reigns At Demo Meeting

WACO, May 28 (AP)—Advocates of the Roosevelt-Garner "harmony" program drew first blood today in the most tumultuous state Democratic convention held in Texas in recent years.

Despite uproarious confusion, they succeeded in electing George Butler of Houston, chairman of the Harris county Garner-for-president organization, temporary chairman of the convention.

But Butler and succeeding speakers could scarcely be heard when they attempted to go on with the business. Fist fights or near fist fights were numerous, and police broke up several, escorting one man from the auditorium.

Mayor Tom Miller of Austin read his keynote speech in spite of the jeering, lauding President Roosevelt and saying Texas would offer Garner, a native son, to the national party convention for president.

Speaker after speaker, including former Gov. Pat Neff, attempted to quiet the crowd. The delegates subsided for a moment in response to Neff's appeal, but resumed their shouting when he relinquished the floor.

Roars of bores rocked the auditorium when Elliott Roosevelt, son of the president now living in Texas, mentioned Miller's name in an introduction.

The demonstrations apparently were emanating from elements favoring a Texas delegation pledged outright for the renomination of President Roosevelt.

War Vets Claim Indian Chief Is Trying To Steal Their Soldiers

Privately speaking, Captain Bill Heskew and Lieutenants Joe Roche and L. E. Franks of Coronado's army are slightly worried and uneasy.

Last Thursday night they had more than 100 enlisted men in their forces, but since then, there have been some "desertions," they claim—due to the "glowing promises" being made their followers by Jess Clay, Indian chief, who has promised the soldiers they can shoot bows and arrows and ride horses and hunt lances and spears if they will join the Indian forces tomorrow night.

Today Heskew, Roche and Franks countered with even greater promises. "We'll guarantee that every man will be wearing sufficient armor to protect him from any puny arrows the Indians will shoot," yelled Joe Roche, "and furthermore we guarantee that our men will get a chance to shoot real guns, guns of the kind used 400 years ago, but nevertheless guns."

The world war veterans under Heskew, Roche and Franks are not a bit worried but that they'll win the Indian battle, as they are supposed to, but Chief Clay's Indians are telling it around that the soldiers will win the fray in name only.

Allied Generals Told To Continue Their Campaigns

PARIS, May 28 (AP)—The Belgian army surrendered unconditionally to the Germans today under orders from King Leopold III breaking the back of the Allied armies of the north and bringing the battle of Flanders to its culminating point.

That blow was as heavy as the collapse of the army of general Andre Coraps in the battle of the Meuse May 15, which permitted the Germans to break through France to the English channel and split the northern and central Allied forces.

The French and British remnants of general Blanchard's northern army carried on the Flanders fight, but a military spokesman acknowledged their resistance was "extremely difficult."

The outcome of the war now turns on the central front along the Somme and Aisne rivers and down the main Maginot line defenses.

The Belgians, battered back almost to their western shore by 18 days of blitzkrieg, capitulated before dawn today.

(By The Associated Press)

King Leopold of the Belgians ordered his army of approximately 300,000 men to surrender to the Germans today, was promptly "disowned" by his own government and British Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons that Allied generals had been ordered to continue their campaigns.

The Action of the Refugee Belgian Government, Now in Paris, Means, in Effect, that the Belgian King Has Been Declared Deposed.

Premier Hubert Pierlot announced, contrary to the Monarch's order to lay down arms, that Belgian forces which could be reorganized would continue their fight on the Allies side.

All indications were, however, that the main Belgian army—the Germans said between 400,000 and 500,000 men—had ceased to fight and that only minor units or new levies raised from among the throng of Belgian refugees in France would be at the disposal of the Belgian government.

While Frenchmen in the streets of Paris cried "treason!" at the news of King Leopold's capitulation, Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the House of Commons that the British and French governments would ignore Leopold's action.

The Allies, he said, will carry on with all vigor.

Churchill's statement in effect meant the deposition of the Belgian King, whose father, King Albert, fought staunchly at the side of the Allies throughout the World war.

Churchill was widely cheered as he declared:

"Nothing which may happen to us in this battle can in any way relieve us of our duty to defend the world cause to which we have bound ourselves."

Trapped Army 'Deemed'

The Belgian government in Paris immediately ordered reorganization of the Belgian army and declared it would continue the fight.

With the German high command declaring that the Allied armies "pocketed" in Flanders were doomed, British naval spokesmen hinted that the British expeditionary force

Faithless To Tradition

Poor football of the Shelton, Conn., high school is ascribed by some players to the fact that their cafeteria has for years served nothing but pie. For shame! Apple pie is the ideal food. In sweet embrace it holds proteins, carbohydrates, starch, fruits, fats and vitamins from A to Z. It is the culinary acme, the final test of high-grade cooks. We may discount "Economic Reality," but let us never lose our gastronomic loyalty to pie. Let's be full of it and of loyalty to The Pampa News' classified want-ads, for it is thru them that hundreds of people get satisfying results. Uncle Sam's Navy Grows

U. S. national defense was better off by one submarine when the U. S. S. Trout was launched recently at Portsmouth, N. H. The 147-ton sub, pictured as it left the ways, was sponsored by Mrs. Walter Browne Woodson, wife of the Navy's Judge Advocate General.

250,000,000 GERMANS

For the third time in 70 years, the German legions tramp through Sedan.

The first time, Bismarck came in person to dictate terms of surrender to Napoleon III.

The second time, the German wave swept across it in 1914, and retreated from it in 1918 just before armistice halted the war and advancing Americans graciously stepped aside and gave French troops the honor of reoccupying the torn town.

Now comes the third wave, and again the German columns surge onward through Sedan and into France.

During the preliminaries to the present war, Hitler managed to give the impression that he wanted no more trouble with France.

True, he had written in "Mein Kampf" of "a decisive, active stelement with France," and "our eternal struggle with France." But he seemed to imply that he would forego that if France would stand idly by and see all Europe west of the Rhine subjugated to the German yoke.

His policies, Hitler wrote, would be acknowledged correct if, within a century, today's 80,000,000 Germans have become 250,000,000 Germans on the continent of Europe.

So far the record has been one of complete success. Thirty millions of conquered people have passed beneath the German yoke. They have become helots, condemned to perpetually inferior place by a racial order that considers itself superior.

Conquered Poles have been uprooted and sent to Germany for virtual forced labor, while their fruitful farms are awarded to Wurttembergers plucked with equal ruthlessness from their ancestral homes and sent to consolidate the Polish conquest.

Thus the picture of a Germanized Europe becomes clearer day by day. A central-European German Reich, inhabited by 250,000,000 Germans of a self-designated "superior" race. A cluster of conquered provinces around its edge, inhabited by "inferior" races, who would be ruled politically and economically from Berlin, allowed some fragments of their own culture, perhaps, but never admitted as equals of Germans, economically, politically, or socially.

Such a Europe, once established, could not fail to influence the rest of the world at every point of contact. It would be as though a vast new planet should suddenly be tossed into the midst of the solar system. Its new gravitational pull would affect the course of every body in the system, setting up new influences, paths and orbits. That is why the United States cannot be indifferent to the fate of Europe.

Behind The News

WASHINGTON, May 28.—One of the most significant struggles of the entire rearmament drive is now beginning to take shape over this question:

What part, if any, should the anti-trust laws play in the government's huge war-emergency spending program?

Bernard Baruch, who headed up the famous War Industries Board in the last war, has suggested the President be given emergency powers to suspend these laws whenever they interfere with the production of war-essential commodities.

Any suspension of the anti-trust laws, however, will occur only over the dead body of Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold, who runs the anti-trust division; and it comes to a showdown, remember that Arnold is very close to Attorney General Robert Jackson and that Jackson is very close to the President.

SUSPENSION OF LAWS HELD UNNECESSARY

Arnold's main point is that no suspension of the anti-trust laws can be necessary, for this reason:

The anti-trust laws bar unreasonable restraints to trade. Whenever the army and navy can show that a certain industrial combination is necessary to the national defense, the reasonableness of that combination is automatically proven and the anti-trust laws do not apply to it.

If, in other words, a production-controlling or price-fixing set-up does become necessary, if it is supported by responsible persons in government and industry, for reasons which can be examined in the open—then it can be had without any suspension of the laws.

On the other hand, the anti-trust division is determined to act against sub-rosa price-fixing schemes as energetically as ever.

CONSUMER PROTECTION NOW BEING PLANNED

The division, furthermore, is anxious to swing into action on a broad program of consumer-protection.

During the last war food prices shot skyward, and an acute housing shortage developed. Arnold is anxious that this be kept from happening again.

His famous building costs campaign is protection against an undue rise in building costs—or would be, if a little more money were at hand to carry it further and keep on with it longer.

Plans are now being laid for a thorough study of food-distribution costs, probably centering in New York and Chicago, in which every combination and all of the big and little rackets which affect big city food costs would be attacked.

This program has been reviewed by Arnold with Mayor La Guardia of New York. La Guardia is strong for it, and will, if necessary, assign New York city lawyers and investigators to work with Department of Justice men on the investigation.

Standing in the way of the program, however, is the anti-trust division's lack of money. Not a great deal is needed; Arnold figures $250,000 would be ample. That money just isn't in sight now. The President could furnish the money from the special $200,000,000 fund he has asked for—if Congress gives it to him, and if he himself can be sold on the importance of the food drive.

Sharing The Comforts Of Life ---

By R. C. Hoiles

PERISH WITHOUT EXCHANGES

A contributor writes, "Why do you contend that if each man attempted to produce all the things he would need, he would perish in a few days? On the contrary, should not his needs become fewer and simpler and is it not reasonable to think that by living a much simpler life he might even live longer?"

If he lived a life in harmony with nature, of course, he would live longer, but nature intended man to harness the forces of nature and use the total wisdom of all the people to lengthen life and have more experiences during life. The additional knowledge we have, resulting from exchanging ideas, has lengthened the average life-span many years.

The contributor infers that I have contended that free exchanges are actually essential to human existence. He points out that there were no over-seas exchanges in America by the Indians before Columbus discovered America and inquires whether it would be logical to conclude that, because they did not exchange with other countries, there were no people in America. It is a clever sophism. We never contended that absolute free trade was essential to existence. We contended that to the degree we have free trade could we live better.

Would the contributor contend that the Indians did not exchange with each other or did not unite to defend themselves against other Indians or to catch game?

They exchanged to a small degree and, consequently, had a very, very low standard of living.

The contributor inquires what wars have tariffs been largely responsible for.

Undoubtedly tariffs and the immigration laws, which is another form of tariffs, are largely responsible for the present war in Europe. The United States is instrumental in bringing the war about by the tariff laws passed under Hoover, that a thousand leading economists petitioned Hoover not to sign. We seem to think that there is danger of foreign attacks, by the recent appropriation of over a billion dollars for armament.

In the war of 1914, undoubtedly our invasion in Europe was a result of interference between free exchanges of different nations.

No, no one has a legal or moral right in every case to say who shall come onto his property or enter his house. We have the law of Eminent Domain that gives the group as a whole the right to take anybody's property and pay him the true value for it.

A tariff strife is force used to prevent individuals from freely exchanging. Certainly tariff is a law. Would the writer contend that all laws were moral and wise and because we had a law we should not attempt to change it or to educate people so they will change it. Certainly all laws require force to make them effective. But if we have wise laws that are based on principle of equality of rights of every man in the world, then there will be many less wars and much less force necessary.

I can see no difference between transactions between individuals in cities, counties and states than I can between nations, as far as benefitting those who exchanged or consumed.

The only possible excuse for laws to interfere with free exchanges between different nations could be to have a permanent supply in case of war. There certainly could be no possible excuse for any restriction or tariffs between the people of different nations on luxuries, or things that could be done without for a considerable period of time, without any danger of weakening the defense of the nation against those, or other nations, who wanted to interfere with free exchanges.

Of course, as stated above, exchanges between nations make nations depend upon each other if they are necessities. A little nation with small natural resources is always in greater danger of being taken over than a big nation with an abundance of natural resources. Possibly we should not have so many small nations so that we can more freely exchange between nations. If little nations use tariff walls to protect themselves, it means poverty and a low standard of living.

No man can live alone. He must be dependent upon other people. And the more he freely exchanges, the more he learns and the higher the standard of living he has. Animals have no confidence in others. Men do; and as they adopt principles and come to have faith, do they prosper.

No, it is not a mirage to believe that freedom and exchanges result in peace and prosperity. England made more progress during the last half of the last century, when they were practicing free trade, than they ever made in their whole history. Since they have been practicing tariffs, they have been in wars and their standard of living has been lower.

THE STRONGEST FIFTH COLUMN

The strongest fifth column in the land is composed of the workers and the politicians and reformers who contend that the employer does not have the right to be his own judge as to whether he may dismiss a man or not.

When an employer has to prove to a government papsucker or labor leader his right to dismiss a man, he can have all kinds of subversive, fifth-columnists in his midst and he is absolutely helpless. Especially is this true when he has to prove to a man like John Lewis, Harry Bridges or Ma Perkins of the National Labor Relations Board or the Minimum Wage and Maximum Hour Committee, that his employees are not satisfactory.

Here is our fifth column that will wreck production, morale, character and the very things our forefathers attempted to establish for us.

WHAT FUN!

Cardinal Hinsley in the Daily Telegraph, London. What an unspeakable blessing for mankind if national and international relations were organized on the plan of association football! What a boon if the game of international politics were played in the spirit of clean, healthy sport—"strife without laughter, and art without malice."

What fun it would be for immense crowds of interested spectators to see the statesmen of the world in jerseys fighting out their league questions in some stadium, say, on Wimbledon Common, if only they agreed to abide by the decision of the referee when he blew his whistle and cried "foul." Hurrah for Mr. Chamberlain as center-forward.

At the Bay of Fundy, where tides reach their maximum height, it is estimated that, twice each lunar day, a hundred thousand million tons of water pour in and out.

French Youths Want To Join The Rangers

The applicant was Raymond Leroy of Doges, France. The letter was written in French and Leroy offered

THIS MUCH WE CAN DO

Around Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON

HOLLYWOOD, May 28.—The Ginger Rogers divorce stories, printed locally, contained the home address of Lew Ayres, and apparently was noted by every salesman, promoter, solicitor and seeker of financial backing in California.

They've been swarming around the place, and the other day Ayres put up a stern sign at the front gate warning: "POSITIVELY NO SALESMEN, AGENTS, MAGAZINE PEDDLERS, DEMONSTRATORS, OR CANVASERS."

AYRES MADE AN appointment with his agent, Charles Morrison, at home that afternoon. When Morrison reached the front gate and went back, he turned around and went back. Next day Ayres dropped by the agent's office to ask why Morrison hadn't shown up. On the door was this sign: "POSITIVELY NO ACTORS, PLAYERS, THESPYANS, HAMS, OR PERFORMERS—YOU DOPE!"

GOT A JOB TO EXERCISE John Payne and Anne Shirley are having a swimming pool built behind their house. It's quite a project, and they signed a contract including a penalty clause with a large concern.

Payne decided he needed some real exercise, but that the only way he'd get it would be to assume an actual job as a laborer. So he wangled a temporary union permit, with his wages going to an unemployed man and joining the crew digging his pool.

He did all right the first day, but next morning he was terribly stiff and sore. Besides, although he didn't know it then, he had a case of flu coming on. Toward quitting time in the afternoon the foreman approached him uneasily and said, "I'm sorry, Mr. Payne, but I've got another man coming tomorrow."

"You mean," demanded the actor, "that I can't dig in my own back yard?"

"Yes," said the boss. "You're a little too—ah—slow, Mr. Payne. We've got a contract with you to finish this pool on a certain date, and if it isn't ready then we'll have to pay you a penalty."

MARION DAVES—REMEMBER HER? Robert Buckner, who wrote the screen play for "The Life of Knute Rockne," spent several weeks at Notre Dame doing research and discussing phases of his story with officials of the school. It was rather a ticklish task, trying to please everybody, getting religious details just right, and keeping the material within the scope of a single motion picture.

One day Buckner received a summons to appear immediately before one of the top dignitaries. Most of his work had been completed by then, and he was afraid that some serious difficulty had popped up. There was nothing reassuring in his reception, either.

It was a huge, high-vaulted room, dominated by the figure of a small, aged, parchment-skinned priest who sat behind a large desk and flexed his blue-veined hands. The writer tiptoed forward for what seemed like a mile and silently was motioned into a chair, where he mopped cold perspiration and held his breath.

The venerable man then began the conversation. "Mr. Buckner," he asked, "what in the world ever became of Marion Daves?"

People You Know

The most touching and human role in the entire Entrada of Coronado will be played by Dr. Carl H. Schulkey who is human to the core of his kind soul.

"Father" Schulkey will play the role of Fray Juan Padilla, who set his cross in Quivira, and there, in God's good time, fearless and true, he gave his life and giving took of God the immortality of martyrdom.

For when Francisco Vasquez de Coronado decided to give up his quest for the Seven Golden Cities of Cibola, Fray Padilla decided to go back and convert the Indians. He went back to Quivira, located on Wolf Creek in Lipscomb county, and in a short time was axed to death by the Indian chief. One of Fray Padilla's companions came back to Mexico City and told the story of the martyrdom.

Dr. Schulkey, a member of the Baptist church, is a Boy Scout worker. He was born at Decatur, Tex. The casting committee thought first of Dr. Schulkey when they began to put into words their desire for a scientific vocabulary for the structure and functioning of sex as it operates in marriage, both the man and woman become able to put into words their desire for specific knowledge. Usually one or both have misconceptions, even superstitions, that can readily be cleared up, once they are expressed.

After talking together with the doctor, they are prepared to learn to adjust to each other in their marriage relations, and are able to express themselves rather easily on anything that needs explanation or a compromise of their two different points of view. Through talking together, each becomes more tolerant and understanding of the other.

Also at the time of the visit to the doctor, each is examined for obvious physical abnormalities and the more or less common conditions that would interfere with the marriage role. The doctor can then give appropriate advice, and arrange for remedying anything that calls for slight medical or surgical treatment.

Seeing the man and woman who are marrying, the doctor is in a position to give them individual advice, suited to their special needs. For instance, if one or both seem likely not to be very fertile, he may help them to bring about parenthood if that is possible.

LOVE, COURTSHIP AND MARRIAGE

FRANKNESS LEADS TO UNDERSTANDING IN A MARRIAGE

Today young people who are about to marry make scientific preparation for their new estate.

Several weeks or months before the wedding they go, separately and together, to a careful doctor who is interested in marriage preparation.

If they have a choice of specialists, they go to a gynecologist, a urologist, or an internist.

With the medical authority, they take up any questions upon which they feel the need of information.

With the aid of charts and diagrams they learn much that is helpful about the physical side of mating and reproduction.

Acquiring a scientific vocabulary for the structure and functioning of sex as it operates in marriage, both the man and woman become able to put into words their desire for specific knowledge. Usually one or both have misconceptions, even superstitions, that can readily be cleared up, once they are expressed.

TEX'S TOPIX

IN ORDER to take care of some rumors—no arrests have been made, so far as can be learned, in connection with fifth column activities in the Panhandle. One or two persons have been questioned and then released. Subversive movements can easily break out anywhere, however, and any matters of that nature should be reported to local law enforcement officers who in turn will report them to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

There is little doubt but that Trojan Horse agencies are firmly implanted in this country, and it behooves every American to keep a close watch and to report any un-American activities at once.

You may be doing your country a big favor by taking immediate action on something that appears to you to be suspicious.

On the other hand, there's no need to become hysterical over wild reports. What the country needs at this time is safe and sane precautionary thinking from top to bottom.

THE NEW Citizens Bank & Trust Company had a fine opening yesterday. At the luncheon given for out-of-town bankers who came for the opening, it was good to see the friendly feeling existing between officers and directors of both of Pampa's banks. DeLea Vicars, president of the First National, was an invited guest, and he wished the new bank success. It is healthy for Pampa to have two splendid banks. Working together they can do much to add to fast-improving business conditions in the city.

As several of the luncheon speakers stated, it is highly beneficial to Pampa to see the old and new banks already working together on a friendly basis for the community welfare.

Judge W. R. Ewing, district court, again hit the nail on the head when he hopped on the "honky-tonks" from the bench yesterday. Said the judge: "They are incubators of vice and even though it is claimed patrons spend a lot of money, we don't think that kind of prosperity."

It's worrying about paying the inheritance tax that keeps them meek.

Everytime you jump into the air, you actually move the entire earth. A feat especially noticeable when done by a man named Hitler.

My Personal Opinion Is ...

By JUDD

I always kind of suspected there was something wrong about our Cabinet, but outside of the personal, I couldn't put my finger on the trouble 'til just the other day when I was reading in the papers about the President figuring on forming a new Coalition Cabinet.

Well, I didn't know just off-hand what coalition meant, and so I decided to look it up before getting something slipped over on us. And I found out that it means a coalescing together of different parties having different interests. And right away you can't coalesce where our whole Cabinet trouble was, there ain't nobody in it but Democrats, a bunch of you can't coalesce there, that way where everybody's already of the same mind, no matter who's mind it is, on account of it don't leave you nobody to coalesce with.

And that's the reason why this proposed Coalition Cabinet of Republicans and Democrats might not be such a bad idea, on account of right now coalescing is the only thing we need more of than bombs and tanks and anti-aircraft guns. We kin turn them things out like pop-corn once we get started at it, but coalescing is different, on account of so many people not believing in it.

The only thing is, if we're going into it at all, we should ought to go into it on a big scale, and not only have a Coalition Cabinet, but we should have a Coalition Congress and Senate, to not say nothing about the relief chislers coalescing a little.

And then if we could jest get the President and the Labor Union to coalesce with industry, we'd have Hitler stopped right there, on account of him probably thinking it ain't no use going over there, that dang country has gone American again.

P. S.—The only thing is, where in heck'll we ever find a Republican that'll coalesce with Ma Perkins?

French, Belgian Premiers Denounce King's Treachery

By ROY P. PORTER
 PARIS, May 28 (AP)—The Belgian army surrendered to Germany today on orders of King Leopold III, leaving the armies of Great Britain and France in an ominously weaker position to resist the Nazi drive toward the English channel.

The Allies lost the military support of about 250,000 men in 18 Belgian divisions and the French port of Dunkerque, where supplies have been reaching the hemmed-in Allied armies, was left undefended.

A German announcement said the Belgian forces "affected by the capitulation may roughly comprise half a million men."

Belgium's unconditional surrender was announced to the startled French by Premier Reynaud in a bitterly sarcastic speech in which he called the action "without precedent in history."

But the French high command declared the Allies would continue to fight and their lines were reported holding solidly along the Somme and Aisne river lines to the Maginot bulwark in the east.

Heavy German attacks along the Meuse river were said to have culminated under fires from French positions.

Although the Belgian army admittedly was an "important force" in the Allied campaign to stop the German advance, Reynaud said it had suffered many casualties and many other Belgian soldiers undoubtedly had been taken prisoner.

Cabinet Opposed Surrender

Cushioning the shock of his announcement, Reynaud declared that France was prepared to hold "on the new line which has just been established on the Somme and Aisne rivers" and thence west to the Maginot line.

The premier said King Leopold had decided to capitulate "in full battle" against the advice of his cabinet.

The cabinet, Reynaud said, had informed the French government of its desire to "raise a new army" to fight with the Allies, and had placed at the service of France all the resources which it still has available.

The radio speech in which Reynaud made his announcement was hastily arranged after an emergency meeting of the French cabinet which lasted until the early hours of the morning.

He said French "faith in victory is still intact," and called upon the nation for a supreme effort.

No attempt was made to hide the fact that King Leopold's order was a distinct setback but it was pointed out the possibility of the loss of the Belgian sector of the battlefield had been taken into account.

It was believed part of the Belgian army, which was understood to number more than 500,000 men before the German invasion, might disregard the king's order and continue fighting with the French and British.

Refugees May Fight

Hundreds of thousands of Belgian refugees are in France and the Pierlot government was expected to draw on these to recruit a new army.

French military circles said they were at a loss to account for King Leopold's decision and expressed "sympathy" for the Belgian army.

At the time Leopold's order was issued, one spokesman said, the Belgians were holding all along the line from Menin, on the French-Belgian frontier, to Ghent.

He declared the French forces on the Belgian right flank had counter-attacked successfully on the Lys river near Menin, with tanks leading the assault.

The spokesman said the situation along the Somme and Aisne apparently was "stabilized," and declared that two heavy German attacks in the Meuse river region had been beaten off.

German losses were described as severe.

On the coast, Calais was reported still holding out against German advance elements driving northward from Boulogne.

Situation Obscure

The exact situation today in the north was obscure. The whereabouts of King Leopold was not disclosed.

In breaking the news of the Belgian capitulation to the French nation, Premier Reynaud said: "I must announce to the French people a grave event. This event occurred last night. France can no longer count on the Belgian army."

"Since 4 a. m. Tuesday (9 p. m. CST) Monday, the French army and the British army have been fighting alone in the north against the enemy."

"You know what the situation was."

"After the rupture of our front May 14, the German army which followed our armies, which found themselves broken into two groups, one to the north and the other to the south."

"On the south it is the French divisions which are holding the new front following the Somme and Aisne rivers and then rejoining intact the Maginot line."

"In the north was a group of three armies—the Belgian army, the British expeditionary corps and several French divisions in which many of us have loved ones.

"This group of three armies was under the command of General Blanchard. It was supplied via Dunkerque. The French and British armies were defending this port on the south and west, the Belgian army on the north."

Sent Call for Help

"It was this Belgian army which has just brusquely capitulated unconditionally on the field of battle on the order of its king without warning their French and British comrades in combat, opening the way to Dunkerque to the Germans."

"Eighteen days ago this same king, who up to that time had seemed to attach the same value to the word of Germany as to that of the Allies, sent us a call for help."

"To this we replied, following the plan which had been established since last December by the Allied general staffs."

"But, in full battle, King Leopold III of Belgium—without warning General Blanchard, without consideration or a word for the French and British soldiers who had come to the help of his country in response to his anguished appeal—King Leopold III laid down his arms."

"It is a fact without precedent in history."

"The Belgian government has told me that the decision of the king was taken against the unanimous sentiment of his responsible ministers. The government added it had decided itself to put at the service of the Allied cause all the forces of its country which were still available, and particularly that it wished to raise a new army and collaborate in the work of arming France."

"It is about our soldiers that we are thinking."

"They can say their honor is intact. They are making a magnificent effort along the whole front. Every day during the 18 days of battle they have given thousands of examples of heroism. Young French generals who have hardly had time to replace their elders have already covered themselves with glory."

"Our leaders and our soldiers form a block in which the country has entire confidence and which tomorrow will draw the admiration of the world."

"We knew that sad days were coming. They have come."

"France has been invaded a hundred times and never beaten. That much our courageous populations in the north must remember. It is from the tests we are awaiting that the new spirit of France will be forged—a spirit which will be greater than that of yesterday."

"Our faith in victory is intact. The strength of every soldier, of every French man and every French woman is increased ten times. Misfortune has always bolstered France. She has never been as united as today."

"On the new line which has just been established by our great chief-in-command, General Maxime Weygand, in full accord with Marshal Petain, on the Somme and on the Aisne, we will hold—and because we have held we will win."

Premier Denounces King

Belgian Premier Hubert Pierlot, broadcasting over the French radio, repeated Reynaud's statement that the Belgian government had decided to continue the fight and had ordered reorganization of Belgian forces in France.

Pierlot said his government had no part in Leopold's decision and declared that the "act of one man does not commit the entire nation."

Authorized French military sources called the Belgian king's order "personal treason, of which the king alone must support the total responsibility."

Belgian newspapermen in France echoed this charge.

"The king is dead!" they declared, "long live Belgium!"

Senate Votes Restrictions On Comunazis

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—Avoicedly intent on dispersing any "fifth columns" before they are on the march, the senate has voted to bar all communists and Nazi bund members from employment in interstate commerce.

This decision, if the House concurs, will have the effect of prohibiting communist or Nazi bund workers in virtually all industries connected with national defense preparations.

Restrictions of almost equal severity for all non-citizens likewise received senate approval yesterday, when it voted to forbid the employment of more than 10 per cent of alien workers in interstate industry. No exception was provided for aliens who have applied for citizenship.

Both anti-fifth column measures were sponsored by senator Reynolds (D-NC) as amendments to legislation outlawing "oppressive labor practices" which was passed by a vote of 47 to 20.

The labor practices bill, introduced by senator LaFollette (Prog-Wis) after the long investigation by the Chamber's civil liberties committee, would outlaw the use of strikebreakers, industrial spies, and company arms for strike use.

The senate action coincided with a sharp attack on alleged Nazi activities by Rep. Patman (D-Texas) in the House.

He charged that George Sylvester Viereck, a writer, and Carl Byoir, a New York public relations man, "were the real brain trust of Nazi propaganda in America."

"Carl Byoir rode into this country Hitler's first Trojan Horse," Patman asserted.

Byoir, in New York, retorted that Patman was trying to " smear me because I happen to be working against his pet (chain store tax) bill. Byoir said that in the last six years his firm had represented no foreign government except China.

Viereck also dismissed the charges, declaring that he was neither the

Austin Mayor Urges Demos United Front

WACO, May 28 (AP)—Mayor Tom Miller of Austin today called upon Texas democrats to present a "United front to a United nation behind a leadership dedicated to the principle that fire and terror and death shall not prevail over peace and hope and life."

Keynoting the state convention, Miller said "defense of the American way of life was the principal problem facing the American people. The chairman of the Texas Roosevelt third term committee added:

"X X X we meet to affirm our enthusiastic approval of our leader, Franklin D. Roosevelt," and at the same time praised vice-president Garner as the "second workman in this leadership."

Following the harmony note, Miller said further in regard to Garner: "X X X Texas at Chicago probably shall offer its native son to the nation. Should events bring about his nomination, Texas shall enthusiastically support him as a nominee and Texans shall journey throughout the nation to inform all of the forty eight states of our great admiration for his qualities."

Nazis Start New Attack At Narvik

STOCKHOLM, May 28 (AP)—German troops landed from planes were reported today to have crossed Rombakfjord in collapsible boats for an attack on British flanks near the Arctic ore port of Narvik, Norway.

The newspaper Aftonbladet said dispatches from across the border indicated the action was intended to relieve German forces hard pressed at Bjornfjell, near Narvik.

The dispatches said the Germans parachuted from planes a mile east of Narvik and crossed the Fjord "under difficult conditions," protected by fire from their own pursuit planes.

Geologist To Play Coronado Role In Albuquerque Show Tomorrow

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., May 28 (AP)—The son of a former New Mexico Geologist who plays the role of Coronado in the first "Entrada" show at Albuquerque, May 29, is a 20th century explorer, too, but for oil, not gold that brought the Conquistador to New Mexico 400 years ago.

The son of a former New Mexico Governor, Larrazolo is an American of Spanish descent, but has been too busy fighting with the A.E.F. in France, graduating from Notre Dame and hunting for oil in Central and South America to trace the family tree.

Larrazolo was born in El Paso, Tex., as 46 years ago May 15. His father moved to Las Vegas, N. M., the next year, entering a career that lifted him to the governorship in 1918-19.

In 1914 Larrazolo left Las Vegas, entering Notre Dame. He would have graduated in 1917, but enlisted in the 27th Engineers at that time. After a year and three months over seas, he returned to Notre Dame, receiving his degree in 1920 and set out on oil explorations that occupied him until he settled here five years ago.

Former Governor Larrazolo moved to El Paso from El Valle, Chihuahua, Mexico. Larrazolo thinks that his grandfather came there from Spain.

Canadians See Famous Tulips Of Pella, Iowa

Special To The NEWS
 CANADIAN, May 28—Seven dozen gorgeous tulips of immense size decorated the pulpit of the First Methodist church here Sunday morning. These were gathered in Pella, Iowa, one of the two "Tulip Cities of America," last Wednesday by Rev. D. L. McCree, pastor of the church, and brought home by motor. These tulips, kept in the refrigerator during the interim, appeared as fresh and lovely this morning as when first picked.

One naturally thinks of Holland when tulips are mentioned as they have been loved and cultivated there for more than three centuries, introduced into the Netherlands in 1571, and had been grown to some extent in other parts of Europe and Japan as early as 1559.

Hundreds of varieties of tulips have been developed but all are included in four main groups—bizarres, hyblomens, roses and selfs—and there is no part of the world where some of these varieties will not thrive.

For the average gardener, tulips are best raised from bulbs, "in the onion," as florists would say, but they may be grown from seeds by experts and those experimenting. The blooms result in from four to seven years when grown from seed.

Opened in Michigan
 In Holland, Mich., the inhabitants are largely of Dutch descent and hold much to customs of the old country. Their annual tulip festival lasts a full week the middle of May during which time the people all dress in Dutch costumes, have numerous floats, a daily parade, booths where tulips may be purchased. Visitors travel hundreds of miles to witness this wonderful display of flowers in all the colors and color combinations imaginable.

Pella, Iowa, is the other "Tulip

City," and looks like a bit of the Old World set down in our United States. Some old type Dutch windmills, familiar to all through numerous paintings, are to be seen and the architecture of the residences is that of typical Dutch homes.

Pella is a town of about 8,000 inhabitants, and is built around a square much larger than the usual city block. Gigantic trees set there many years ago and innumerable tulip beds make of it a delightful city park where concerts are held and where the people hold their folk dances.

Recently a commodious stage was erected in the center of this park and there will be staged the dramas look like grandmother's patchwork quilt in gay colors, each block a different pattern.

Rev. D. L. McCree and family were visiting relatives in Newton, Iowa, and enjoyed the tulips of Pella en route home last Wednesday.

SERIAL STORY - ROMANCE AHEAD

By TOM HORNER

YESTERDAY: Monnie trails Larry, demands an explanation of his night visits. He tries to leave her home, then confesses he loves her. She loves him, too. He tells her all he knows of the bar-crook ring, of his suspicions that Bentley is the head of the racket. The plane roars again. Larry rushes off, forgetting his carbine.

CHAPTER XI

LARRY noticed the carbine was missing when he stopped at the canyon gate. It was too late to turn back for it now. The plane was almost overhead. In a few seconds the lights of Bentley's landing field would blaze against the sky. Larry knew he'd have to take his chances.

The black was racing up the canyon at a dead run. Larry saw the sky light up as the landing field lights went on. The plane had come in high, was circling the field now. Larry turned up a trail leading up to the plains.

When he reached the top he was less than a mile from the field. The ship was on the ground, the motor car beside it, both standing out sharply against the lights from Bentley's hangar.

Larry had the binoculars out in a flash, studied the plane and the men beside it. There was Bentley—the one who riding boots—talking to the pilot. They talked for several minutes. Bentley's arm swung in an arc and the lights went off.

The plane's motor roared again, then throttled down. With the headlights of the automobile lighting the way, the pilot taxied up to the hangar. The huge doors swung up. The plane disappeared inside.

"Not taking off right away. That'll give me a chance to take a look at that ship," Larry told the black as he dismounted. He uncoiled his lariat, tied the reins to the loop and fastened the other end to a mesquite bush. Better to have the horse tied in one spot than to let him go grazing around.

He ran on toward the hangar. Each time the airline beacon swung around he dropped flat. No use letting some sharp-eyed look-out catch sight of him, if Bentley had a lookout.

It took him 15 minutes to get within 100 yards of the building. Bentley, the pilot and the others were still inside. The automobile was parked beside the hangar door.

Larry crawled along until he could reach out and touch one of the lights, marking the boundaries of the field. Bentley and the pilot came from a door—on the side of the hangar nearest Larry—got into the car. Two other men followed, jumped on the running boards. Larry waited, holding his breath, while the car sped up the drive toward Bentley's house.

If he could get inside, Larry figured he might find some place to hide, might overhear Bentley and the flyer. He might even discover the crew that would convict Bentley. He decided to risk it.

HE crossed the intervening space to the side of the hangar at a run, paused panting at the door. Then he edged it open. There was a light near the motor of the plane. Larry crossed the mechanic's shoulders hunched over the motor, his feet on the step-ladder beside the plane. The rest of the hangar was in semi-darkness.

Bentley's own ship was nearer. If he could cross to the plane, he could slip inside Bentley's own ship, overhear everything that was said. It would be the last place they'd think of looking for him.

The mechanic climbed down from the ladder, Larry froze against the wall. But the man turned, walked to a bench at the far side of the hangar.

In that moment Larry slipped through the door, closed it softly, and crossed to the cabin plane. Before the mechanic turned around he was crouched in the luggage space behind the pilot's seat. The window at the left was open. He could hear the mechanic whistling softly as he climbed the ladder again.

IT must have been half an hour before the door opened again to admit Bentley and the pilot. "Ship's okay now, Mike," the mechanic called. "Oil line was clogged."

"Good," came Bentley's voice. Then to the pilot: "You tell the 'Little Man' to send the next stuff as scheduled. We're all right here and the east will take all we can handle."

"That trouble we had a while back has all cleared up and no one suspects us around here," he laughed. "Imagine any of these dumb cowmen ever getting wise to the fact that Mike's Bentley's running dope. And even if they did, no one could prove it."

"You keep the stuff coming. You'll get your money, on the line, when you bring it in."

"That's all right by me," Larry heard the pilot answer. "I'll be back next week. You'll get the usual tip. . . Ship's okay now. I'm getting out of here. I'll stop at the usual place for gas."

The hangar doors rattled open. The ship creaked as it was wheeled outside. Larry heard the motor start, settle into a roar, then fade away. The hangar was bright as the field lights went on for the takeoff. Then all was quiet.

He had played in luck. He'd get word to Harris to watch Bentley's mail, check his phone calls. The next time the plane flew north, they'd be waiting for it. Bentley would be caught with the goods.

Now all he had to do was wait until they all left, slip back to his horse and hurry back to the Hayhook—and Monnie.

A voice snapped the stillness. Bentley's. "Where'd you find that horse?"

"Just a ways from the field," another voice answered. "Thought I saw something moving down there when the beacon swung around. I went down to look and found this black, staked out on a lariat. It's a Hayhook horse, Mike."

"Get the rest of the men and circle the field," Bentley snapped his orders. "Here, Bill, come along with me. Bring those guns from the car. We'll search the hangar."

LARRY pulled back into the darkness of the cabin as the hangar doors closed and the room filled with light. Bentley was searching the lockers, slamming doors, cursing.

"Turn on the field lights, all the lights!" Bentley yelled. "Get outside, Bill, see if you can find anything. I'll wait here. We've got to get that fellow. He knows too much."

Bill muttered something, slammed the door as he went out. Larry held his breath, praying that Bentley wouldn't think of his plane. There were few hiding places in the bare hangar, and that meant fewer places for Bentley to search. Larry heard Bentley running up the iron steps to the tower atop the building. He thought of risking a dash out of the hangar, decided against it.

His chance was gone in that second. Bill returned shouting. "Mike—Mike—look what I found!" Bentley came crashing down the steps. "Field glasses! Where did you get those, Bill?"

"Just outside the lights. Almost stepped on them."

"He's either in here, or he's got clear away," Bentley said. There was a pause. Larry could almost feel Bentley's eyes on the cabin plane. Then— "Bill, get that tommy-gun from the locker. Put a row of holes along the side of the cabin there—just behind the seat."

He raised his voice. "Hey, you, inside the plane. Do you want to come out now, or shall we drag you out?"

"I'll come out!" Larry answered. The hangar was bright as

Alien Fingerprint

Bill Given Approval

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—The Senate Judiciary committee approved today legislation to require the fingerprinting of aliens, estimated to total 4,000,000, and to impose severe penalties for "fifth column" activities.

Senator Connally (D-Tex), sponsor of the bill, said it was essential to the new defense program. The bill would also impose fines up to $10,000 and prison sentences up to 10 years for attempts to subvert military forces by the distribution of un-American literature or other means. It also would provide for deportation of all aliens who advocate overthrow of the government by force.

The house has passed similar legislation but its bill did not require fingerprinting of all aliens. It provided for fingerprinting those entering the United States in the future.

Connally said aliens would probably be given four months in which to report to their local postmasters for registration. Besides being required to register, aliens would be compelled to report any change in residence.

Hints Of No New Model Autos Heard

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 28—The demands of national defense were brought home today to the country's citizens by talk of an immediate tax increase and hints of no new model automobiles after this year.

Both houses of congress manifested a growing sentiment for consideration of new taxation before adjournment, to help pay at least part of the $3,000,000,000 preparedness bill.

There were signs that any new levies probably would be coupled with an increase in the national debt limit to permit further borrowing.

Tax discussions were bracketed with an official announcement that served to dramatize the proportions of the rearmament job ahead. Secretary Morgenthau indicated that defense needs might make it necessary for the auto industry to abandon its policy of introducing the usual crop of new models next year.

Other events on the defense front yesterday included:
1. President Roosevelt asked congress for an additional $32,000,000 for the training of civilian pilots. The appropriation would cover instruction of varying types for an estimated 104,000 air students.

2. The White House indicated that Mr. Roosevelt soon would make known his plans for the creation of a national defense council to coordinate and speed up the program.

3. Former President Hoover, in a speech at New York, urged the appointment of a "single-headed administrator" with virtually supreme powers in defense matters. Thomas E. Dewey, a contender for the Republican presidential nomination, recommended a nonpartisan board for the task.

4. The house naval appropriations subcommittee, holding a secret hearing which lasted far into the night, worked on legislation which would give the navy the $250,000,000 in extra money recommended in the president's recent defense message.

Anti-British Song Played By Germans

BERLIN, May 28 (AP)—All German radio stations repeatedly played the anti-British "Engelland" song today in connection with announcements of the capitulation of King Leopold's army.

And after reading of the news that King Leopold had been given a castle in Belgium as a temporary residence, the radio stations played the German anthem "Deutschland Uber Alles."

Nazis Made Grave Error

George Muir, left, British war grave caretaker in France, sits on the tail of a German plane and tells an R. A. F. officer how he captured the craft's five-man crew after it had crashed. At Muir's request, Nazi flyers handed over their arms when they emerged from the wreck.

Lindbergh Ousted From Escadrille

PARIS, May 28 (AP)—Honorary membership in the Lafayette Escadrille conferred on Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh after his 1927 Atlantic crossing was withdrawn today by order of the French and Air association of American Volunteer Combatants in the French army in 1914-18, representing former pilots of the Escadrille.

The association announced its action was the result of Lindbergh's speech of last Saturday, which is classified as "definitely opposed to the spirit of the American volunteers of the Lafayette Escadrille and Foreign Legion who rushed to the defense of France in 1914."

Moffat Will Be Minister To Canada

WASHINGTON, May 28 (AP)—Jay Pierrepont Moffat, descendant of the country's first secretary of state and one of secretary Hull's key assistants, is President Roosevelt's choice for minister to Canada.

At a moment when events in Europe were giving Canada a heightened importance as a neighbor of the United States, Mr. Roosevelt nominated Moffat yesterday to succeed James H. R. Cromwell.

Cromwell, whose pro-ally utterances while minister at Ottawa brought a public rebuke from Hull, resigned last week to accept the democratic nomination for senator from New Jersey.

Moffat, a career diplomat for more than 20 years, has been chief of the state department's European division since 1937. In that capacity he accompanied Sumner Welles to Europe a few months ago on the fact-finding mission for the President.

Moffat represents the sixth generation of his family to be in the diplomatic service. His forebear, John Jay, was America's first secretary of state. His wife is the daughter of Joseph Grew, ambassador to Japan. Born at Rye, N. Y., 43 years ago, Moffat attended Harvard university. In 1917 he became private secretary to the American Minister at the Hague. Later assignments took him to Warsaw during the Bolshevik invasion, to Tokyo during the earthquake, to Turkey in time to see the republic declared, to Switzerland for the disarmament conference, and to Australia.

Moffat's nomination was received with satisfaction in the Canadian capital last night. Particular significance was attached to the fact that he was a career diplomat of wide experience.

Concert Given At WD Ward Graduation

Special To The NEWS
WHITE DEER, May 28—A novel musical program, the culmination of the year's study of folk music, under the instruction of Glenn F. Davis, marked the seventh grade graduation exercises held Wednesday evening at the grade school.

The class was seated on the stage against a background of drawings by Miss Les' Christine Cousins, art teacher, depicting the four divisions of music presented.

Billy White stated the theme; Leatrice Hull discussed cowboy music; Eula Mae Stovall, Indian; Jane McCreary, mountaineer; and Rufus Woods, Negro.

Following each discussion, the class sang songs of that group, including "Whoopie Ti Ti Yo, Git Along Little Dogies," "The Old Chisholm Trail," "Night Herding Song," "Arkansas Traveler," "Sourwood Mountain," "Shortenin' Bread," "Oh, Susanna," and "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot."

Mildred Warminski played a flute solo "Indian Love Call." Nina Lou Miller had the highest average in the class with 93.6-10 and Wilford Urbanczyk was second with 93.3-10.

The American Legion awards were presented by W. J. Stubbelfield to Eula Mae Stovall and Lawrence Hester.

The program was concluded with "God Bless America," sung by the class.

Nurse From Pampa Awarded Fellowship

Miss Edna Mills of Pampa is one of the two graduates this year of St. Anthony Hospital School of nursing, Amarillo, who has been awarded a fellowship by the administrative board of the University of St. Louis school of nursing.

The Pampa girl received her fellowship in nursing education. Winner of the other fellowship was Miss Bobby Dodd of Gehwitt, in the department of public health nursing.

Fellowships are awarded on a basis of scholastic and professional standing and recommendations. Each fellowship is valued at $650 annually, and includes tuition, fees, room, board, and health service.

The two fellowship winners will begin their studies in St. Louis in September.

Three From Pampa In Price Play Cast

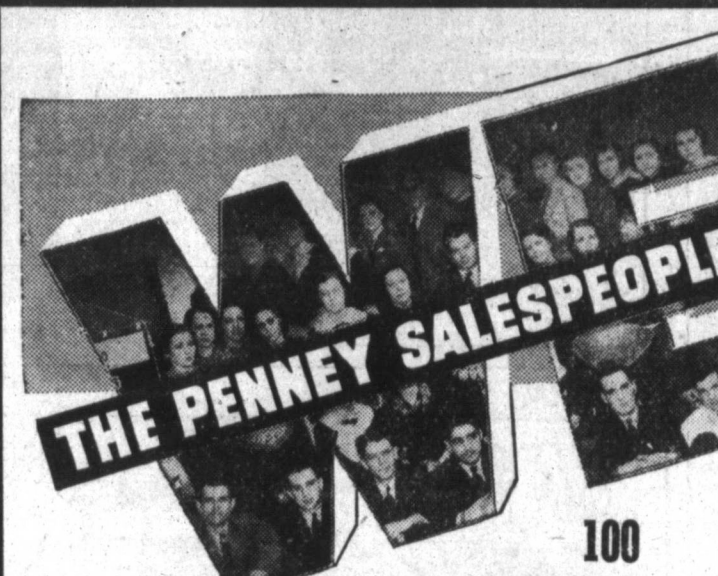

Names of Pampa students appear nine times on a program of the Price Players, Price Memorial college, Amarillo, in connection with two plays presented recently at the college.

In the Price Glee club are Jack Brown, and John Schwind, both of Pampa, and David Davis, a former Pampian.

William Cunningham, Schwind and Davis are members of the Price band, while Schwind, Davis, and Brown, were in the cast of "Monsignor's Hour," a one-act play by Emmett Lavery.

The other play presented the same night was Percival Wilde's "The Traitor."
