Causes Of Jelly Failures Explained By Home Economists

Glasses of clear jelly and thick jam cooling on the pantry shelf are a familiar sight in June. But every once in a while there's a batch of red raspberry jelly that looks cloudy—blackberry jelly that doesn't become firm—apple jelly that turns into a gummy mass—or grape jelly with crystals all through it.

Carefully controlled jelly experiments have been made by the federal bureau of home economics to find the reason for these jelly failures. And this is how the home economists explain the jelly problems of perplexed homemakers.

Cloudy jelly is caused by improper straining after the juice is extracted. This cloudiness is not serious. If the jelly is for family use, but straining the juice twice will help to make the jelly clear. For the first straining, let the juice drip and then squeeze the bag. But for the second straining, use a fresh bag wrong out in hot water and do not squeeze.

When the syrup doesn't form jelly, there are a number of different explanations. The fruit itself may not have the proper balance of pectin, acid, and mineral salts that must be present for jelly formation. To make sure there is enough pectin and acid present, it is best to use a mixture of ripe and slightly underripe fruit.

German Agent May Be Ousted From Mexico

MEXICO CITY, June 13 (AP)—Government circles expected the Mexican foreign ministry to announce officially today that Arthur Dietrich, brother of Adolf Hitler's press chief, head of the German legation's press bureau and director of Nazi propaganda in Mexico, had been asked to leave the country.

They said the request was sent to the German legation by the foreign ministry yesterday and that despite reported pressure of the legation to prevent Dietrich's expulsion, reversal of the order was unlikely because of United States interest in the case.

These sources said the action was taken after a painstaking investigation into Dietrich's activities, of which the United States government was kept informed, allegedly had revealed that:

1. Dietrich's office served as a relay point for instructions from Berlin to German ships at sea and to German agents in other American nations.
2. Dietrich organized and directed, from his office here, a number of agents in the United States.
3. Dietrich's offices were headquarters of a propaganda system which spread from Mexico to most of the American republics.

4. The Nazi press chief, through his propaganda and "other activities," sought to influence Mexican internal political developments.

Dietrich, about 40, married and a resident of Mexico off and on for almost 16 years, declined to confirm or deny the expulsion order.

In addition to an elaborate weekly magazine, his office recently began issuing a daily newspaper filled with pro-German items, while daily releases of war news and articles on German affairs poured into Mexican newspaper and government offices in a steady stream.

Nazis Busy In Mexico But Revolt Unlikely

By ROBERT P. DORMAN
(Written for NEA Service)

EL PASO, June 11.—A well-veiled and almost indefinable fifth column exists in Mexico. But the chances of this fifth column bringing on a revolution in the republic on our southwestern border, following the presidential election next month, appear to be remote.

I have just completed a 3,000-mile trip through Mexico, seeking to run down rumors of an active fifth column and forthcoming revolution—rumors that have been circulating in the United States for some time.

It would appear that fifth column objectives are not immediate, but that both Communist and Nazi influences may have to be reckoned with in the future.

There is a definite Mexican Communist movement under the virtual, though not the nominal leadership of Vicente Lombardo Toledano, head of the C. T. M. (Mexican Confederation of Workers). Presumably the Mexican Communists are now working with the Nazis as they are elsewhere.

The C. T. M. publishes a labor daily newspaper, El Popular, similar to the Daily Worker published in New York by the Communist

From "Down Mexico Way" come vague but disturbing rumors of Nazi and Communist fifth column activities.

Will they lead to revolution, after Mexico's presidential election on July 7?

Robert P. Dorman, skilled reporter and observer of Mexican conditions ever since the revolution of 1911, has just completed a 3,000-mile trip through Mexico to get the real answer to that question.

In three stories, written especially for your newspaper and NEA Service, Dorman has summed up the Mexican situation:

1. Communist and Nazi Activities in Mexico and Where They Lead.
2. The Chances for Post-Election Political Revolution.
3. Living Conditions Today, After the Economic Revolution.

Party. Aides of the presidential candidate, Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan, charge El Popular is backed by Russian money.

The same sources claim the Mexico City magazine, El Timon, whose editor is Jose Vasconcelas, is backed by German money.

GERMAN, RUSSIAN "TOURISTS" ARRIVING

Other German activities are directed toward propaganda in the Mexican army. Just recently a new magazine, El Ejército (The Army), was published, 75,000 copies being distributed free to the officers and men of the Mexican army.

One of its pages bore a full-page ad of the German legation which extolled and was dedicated to the heroes of the Mexican army.

Money for this publication came, according to reliable sources, from the German propaganda agent in the German consulate in Mexico City.

Records of the transportation lines show there has been a considerable influx of German and Russian elements into Mexico this year. While some of these travelers carry passports of their native countries, many of them travel with passports of various Central American republics.

The recent attempt on the life of the exiled former head of the Red army, Leon Trotsky, was, according to him, engineered by newly ar-

Vicente Lombardo Toledano . . . enemies charge he salutes the Communism of Russia while heading the powerful Mexican Confederation of Workers.

Two important elements in the Mexican situation—the military and the peasants. The great mass of Mexican peasants is considered a fertile field for seeds of revolution. The army is a favorite target for Nazi infiltration.

Gladewater Seeks Oil Field Defense

GLADEWATER, June 13 (AP)—Civic leaders today announced plans for organization of a town council in this East Texas oil city "to cooperate with the national government on matters of defense."

First step in the plan will be a two-day town institute, with R. W. Morrison of Dallas as conductor, June 19-20. R. Neil Burney, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said. The council will be formed at the conclusion of the institute.

"We want our town to be the first in Texas to organize itself completely, with the entire citizenship participating," Burney explained. "The town council will deal in normal times with every character of community problem, x x x Our first concern now will be to do our part in preparing our community to shoulder its part to defend the United States, and we will telegraph President Roosevelt as soon as organization is completed. x x x"

"We feel that Gladewater, in the heart of the world's greatest oil field, which is the source of one of the most vitally needed materials of war, should set an example to the nation by preparing ourselves and our community to cooperate with

Egypt Pledges Assistance To Great Britain

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, June 13 (AP)—Egypt placed all her communication systems, air and naval bases and ports at the disposal of Great Britain today and pledged her ally the "greatest possible assistance" in the war against Italy.

Premier Aly Maber Pasha declared the nation would fulfill all her obligations under the Anglo-Egyptian treaty of friendship, but intended to refrain from any offensive action against Italy although diplomatic relations had been severed.

Since the alliance is purely defensive, he continued, the country does not intend to send an expeditionary force with the British if Libya or other colonies were invaded, but means to protect herself from attack.

Alexandria's picturesque thousands of barefoot, white-gowned natives watched the skies apprehensively today, suddenly conscious of enemy bombers after the first raid warning of the war.

When raiders appeared last night and strewed the people ran excitedly to their homes and air raid shelters, clearing the streets almost instantly. No bombs were dropped, and the "all clear" signal came 10 minutes later.

After parliament's vote yesterday to give "all possible aid" to the Allies, informed quarters considered Egypt's entry into the war a matter of days.

The government has requisitioned ships for war purposes. Allied naval squadrons blocking the Suez canal have seized an undisclosed number of Italian ships.

Army General Urges Strong Preparedness

LAREDO, June 13 (AP)—Major General Herbert J. Brees, eighth corps area commander, does not think the United States will go to war in Europe but he thinks the nation should be prepared for any eventuality.

Speaking here yesterday at a Rotary club luncheon, General Brees urged military training for youth similar to that in continental Europe.

"You can't put uniforms on boys, guns in their hands and call them soldiers," he said. "We must train them and not send them over again unprepared."

ure to stop and render aid in alleged connection with an automobile-motorcycle collision east of Pampa last September in which W. D. (Bill) Kelley, Pampa youth, was fatally injured.

Miller and Simpson of Amarillo are attorneys for the defendant.

Regular panel of 40 petit jurors summoned for the fourth week, which opens Monday, are not to be used, District Judge W. R. Ewing said.

Laymen's League Meets In Monthly Session At Church

A group of 50 men attended the Laymen's league monthly meeting at First Christian church Tuesday evening.

The program of the evening was in charge of Fred Lamb. The men's chorus from the First Baptist church of Miami sang two numbers: "Jesus Savior, Pilot Me," and the negro spiritual, "Steal Away." The chorus was composed of the Rev. Cornelison, Messrs. Lowe, Fingersh, Ald, Locke, Haynes, Dunivan, Smith and Newman. Their accompanist was Miss Haynes. The Rev. Cornelison also made an instructive talk on "The Value of Pity."

Following pep sing led by B. A. Norris, the men engaged in games of dark ball, indoor horse shoes, and other games.

The supper was prepared by the men under the direction of Bill Taylor, Leonard Bowen, and Eddie Johnson. They served baked ham, beans, cold slaw, potatoes, stewed apricots, rolls, pickles, and coffee.

For their July meeting, the men are planning a watermelon feast and picnic.

Yesterday, district court was inactive with no cases set for today or the remainder of the week.

Members of the jury are to reconvene on June 25.

SERIAL STORY

AN EYE FOR A GAL BY HARRY HARRISON KROLL

Copyright, 1940, NEA Service, Inc.

YESTERDAY: A big league scout is coming to Lincoln to look at Rossy's pitching. Coach Hurd wants Rossy to learn to control his temper. Rossy seeks an answer to his problem. Finally talks to Dr. Tolliver. The president decides to go up into the hills with Rossy.

CHAPTER X

COACH HURD'S ball team worked like horses getting into shape those bright spring days. They played an exhibition game with one of the strong high school teams in the territory, and got a taste of real competition.

Rossy, pitching, held the high school boys to four scattered hits and one run, but he hurt his arm in the last of the fifth and had to retire, after which the high school lads had good grazing. The final score was a close 7 to 6 for the collegiates. The time now was going toward the first real contest between Lincoln and Southern.

"I'm pitching you, remember," Hurd told McAfee. "You nurse that arm like it was one of the quintuplets, bub!"

"I've got it laid up in the incubator, Coach," Rossy said. THE day of the game was as clear and lovely a time in the mountain spring as anybody could ask for. The campus was vastly excited, for the rumor had got out that a big league scout would be in the crowd watching the contest.

The gray, potty man in easy tweeds, with narrow blue eyes with southern sandy light still in them, was Rossy's scout, Ike Hill, the famous scout. Hurd put him in a good seat on the weathered grandstand.

The band was out in gala dress. Hannah Shriver, with the hill music in her bones, had made the band, and now she was a lean, slim, pretty girl out there in her orange-and-white regalia.

Judy Tolliver was one of the cheerleaders. All in white, with bits of orange about her—the college colors—she was doing the cheer section all the personality she had.

Rossy warmed up with old man Leacock. With the hour going toward 2, the noise of warming up sank to a sudden calm. Rossy and the coach came and sat on the bench. For the first time Rossy McAfee knew a curious sense of fear, of impending calamity. It was clairvoyant and indefinable.

"Play ball!"

Rossy walked, with an increasing feeling of uncertainty, out to the mound. The cheer section gave him all a fellow could have asked for, and yet he was nervous, and he suddenly discovered that his pitching arm was faintly sore for no reason he could think.

The first batter for Southern advanced to the plate with three bats. He discarded two and grinned at Rossy, who stood rubbing the ball on his hip.

"No bean-bats, McAfee!" Rossy felt the hot color of fury cross his face. The umpire behind the catcher called again, "Play ball!" Rossy wound up and the first pitch went wild. The batter made an elaborate duck just the same, and the visiting rooters, 200 of them, gave the pantomime a great hand.

Rossy pitched again and the umpire called strike one. But the third pitch was wild again, and so was the fourth. Rossy shot a hard straight ball down the groove for the next strike, and then it was a game of wits and accuracy.

Rossy tried to cut the plate with a low outside curve as the batter tried to crowd the plate for a dodge. The fellow's head was low, his neck stuck out ever so little. Something in Rossy's soul began to itch to bean that head, smash that grin off that gloating face.

He walked the first man to try to save his lost soul.

He walked the next man, too, and for about the same reason. He knew, deep inside of him, they were out to get his goat. The third batter up filled the bases. The man coming up was some remote tribesman of the Tollivers.

Another hillbilly guzzling the gruel of book learning to get to play ball, to have a chance at big time. Sammy Tolliver, and Southern's best batter.

For a short while Rossy was watching his every move. That the scout was also informed of the history of Rossy's father Rossy could not doubt. He knew, too, that all the Southern fans were getting his goat. Everything was stacked to work on his one vulnerable spot—his unstable temper.

"Play ball!" came the cry, and Rossy pitched the first one wild. A roar mingled with a groan.

Tolliver snickered and yelled, in a voice that carried all over the grounds, "Bub, my head's up here!" He tapped it with a long finger.

Judy broke from the cheerleaders. "Knock his block off, Rossy!"

THAT brought a roar of laughter and applause from Lincoln boys. Rossy took his time getting ready for the next pitch. It was a curious, and yet an appropriate moment to remember the Fourth of July game when his father had been killed in just this way, and by a man who now was president of this college, and a powerful and respected citizen.

Back in those days hate was hate, and a feud was a bloody game where the rules were to kill your enemy. Maybe all that would cause a man to go wild and murder on an open ball diamond. Or perhaps it only made a man so nervous, so mad, so wild, that he could hit a head only by some fascinated mischance. Even now Rossy had the feeling he could have sent down a baffling curve and perhaps have knocked Tolliver to kingdom come.

"Come on, steady there, McAfee," came a solitary powerful voice out of the domed calm.

Rossy turned and looked straight at Dr. Tolliver, sitting next to the man from New York. The light was so clear, and Rossy's eyes were so acutely sensitive, that he verily read the expression on the man's face. It was warm, vital, and a kind of confession in its very understanding.

In that moment, by a mingling of cunning and clairvoyance, Rossy was informed that this man looking at him had pitched the ball that struck Jay McAfee, and was the cause of his death—or murder.

"Steady, son," Dr. Tolliver called. "Take it easy. Just take it easy."

ROSSY drew in a breath. His feelings were strange and deep and without name. He pitched and the sharp curve broke at the plate and the umpire bawled:

"Sit-str-rike one!" Rossy pitched again, knowing the batter would wait him out. "Strike two!"

"That's the old stuff!" came a shout. The cheerleaders swung into action. Rossy grinned. Now his face was cool.

He knew by the way Tolliver took his stance with bat rigid in his hand that now he was through fooling. Rossy wound up with maddening leisure and gave his terrific baffling curve all he could put behind it. He heard the fierce crack of the ball in the catcher's mitt, saw the swirl of the bat that would have blurred in a candid camera at a five-hundredth part of a second's exposure.

"You're out!" umpire squalled. Up went a roar that revived all the despairing manhood in Rossy McAfee. He fanned the next two batters in one-two-three order and had the curious feeling in getting himself out of a hole that he had saved his soul and his reputation at once. But he didn't know.

Paris 'Open City' Premier Reynaud Says

(By The Associated Press)
 PARIS, June 13.—The French declared Paris an "open city" today to save it from the devastation of total war, counter-attacked German forces curving around the north-western suburbs and published an appeal to the United States for all help short of an American expeditionary force.

Premier Reynaud, in a message to President Roosevelt, pledged an unending fight to be carried on, if need be, from the last corner of France.

or from North America or even from French possessions in America.

Reynaud said he was "going to the armies"—apparently meaning he was assuming personal direction of the French forces now battling, with some British support, a German drive across northern France into which 150 Nazi divisions, or about 1,800,000 men, had been thrown.

The French counter-attack in the Beaumont region was reported to have thrust German besiegers back five miles from the center of the capital and only 12 from the northern suburb of St. Denis.

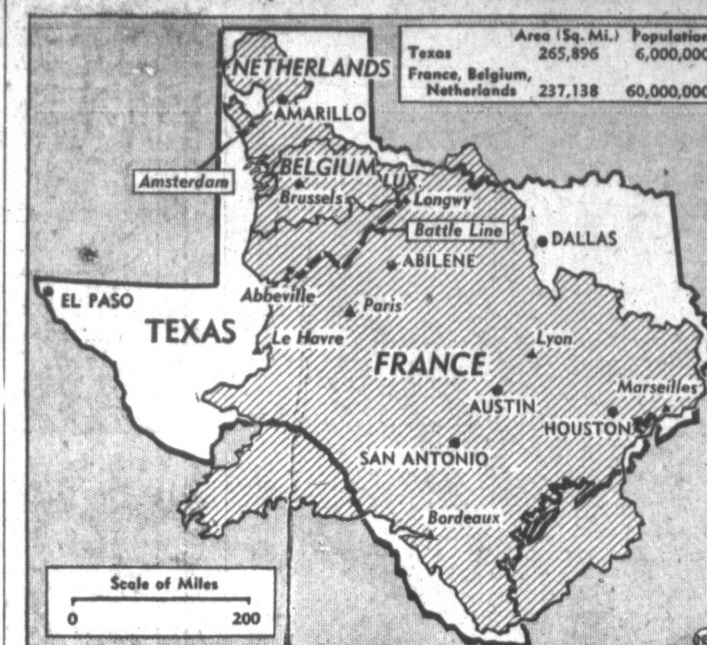

That, however, apparently failed to halt the steady German encirclement of Paris.

The military governor, General Hering, left Paris to take his army command after posting notices in public that the capital would be "open." Gen. Dentz was left in charge.

As the notices went up, German legions were closing in on the capital from the west, north and east.

This morning's high command communique, although stating the battle for the capital continued with "undiminished intensity," said the situation had changed but little overnight. It said German pressure was continuing "in particular on both sides of the capital."

The Germans smashed forward, with the French exacting huge losses nearly every foot of the way from the west along the Seine, from the north down to the Oise and Ourcq valleys, and from the east along the Marne.

The French announced that the Germans had crossed the Marne, with the French falling back along a line from Meaux to Chateau-Thierry. Meaux is 26 miles from the center of Paris and only about 15 miles from some of the eastern suburbs.

Another German force was acknowledged to be as close as Pacy-Sur-Eure, about 45 miles west of Paris. In stating that the French armies were holding the Germans there at Evreux, a few miles further west, the high command disclosed the Germans were well below the Seine in that sector.

Part of the strong German right wing was driving northwestward toward Caudebec, which is only about 30 miles from the important French port of Le Havre.

A great battle was waged for the cathedral town of Reims, 80 miles northeast of Paris. The French last night said they still held the city, although the Germans claimed its fall yesterday.

"To the northeast of Reims," the high command said last night, "information from numerous prisoners indicates the enemy has suffered heavy losses as a result of counter-attacks by our mechanized units and

Free Air Course To Be Offered 30 WTSC Pilots

Special To The NEWS
 CANYON, June 13.—Names of 30 successful candidates who will receive free instructions under a revised plan for the pilots' training course to be taught at West Texas State college this summer, beginning on June 15, will be released Friday, Virgil Henson, business manager of the college, announced today.

Students must receive the final approval of the Joint College and Amarillo Air Service committee which will meet tomorrow night to consider the candidates who have satisfied the physical requirements. The health examination was given here Monday by Dr. A. E. Wimsatt of Amarillo.

All students accepted for the Civil Aeronautics authority flying course will receive 35 hours of dual and solo flying this summer, which is sufficient to qualify them for private pilot's licenses. Ground school instruction in navigation and meteorology is to be given by the college. Two new planes of increased horsepower are expected to be added this week to the equipment at the West Texas Flying field three miles north of the campus.

This marks the second term of flight instruction at West Texas State college and an increase of 10 students over the allotment for the long session. The program is sponsored by the C. A. A. and the college with the assistance of the Amarillo Air Service, and is administered by a committee composed of Dean R. P. Jarrett, Virgil Henson, Thornton Oxnard, and Fred Smith of English airport in Amarillo.

France Would Move Even To Africa To Continue Struggle

PARIS, June 13 (P)—Premier Reynaud has sent a message to President Roosevelt declaring that the French would withdraw to their African possessions, even their American possessions, to continue the war against Germany if necessary. Reynaud recalled the Roosevelt declaration of Oct. 5, 1937, that the liberty, peace and security of 90 per cent of the world was imperiled by the other 10 per cent.

Reynaud said that "I myself am going to the armies."

The statement was given out in Tours, one of the present seats of the French government.

The message was dated June 10, but not given out until today.

The premier asked President Roosevelt to tell Americans that "we are resolved to sacrifice ourselves in the struggle we are leading for all free men."

He thanked Mr. Roosevelt for "generous aid in arms and aviation."

Fifth Palo Duro Art Colony Opens At WTSC

Special To The NEWS
 CANYON, June 13.—Buffalo Courts, rugged home of the West Texas State college athletes, has gone "arty" for the summer.

Easels, paint brushes, and craft tools replace the familiar sports equipment, and the artist's smock is now the accepted uniform.

The change in role is due to the opening of the fifth annual Palo Duro Art colony with its living and instruction center in the winter sports headquarters.

The opening enrollment stands at 25, according to an announcement of Isabel Robinson, director of the art colony and head of the college department of art.

The school of art is featuring a flexible plan of enrollment whereby students may enter at any time during the 12-week session for as short a period as one week. No college credit is granted for less than three weeks' work.
