Pampa goodwill trippers will cover a big territory Tuesday advertising the Top O' Texas Fiesta and Coronado Entrada June 13, 14, and 15. The caravan will leave from the city hall at 7:30 a. m., and won't return until 12 hours later. They'll cover about 250 miles on the trip. There's no limit to the number of persons and cars eligible to make the trip according to C. A. Huff, chairman of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce goodwill committee, and Jimmy Dodge, co-chairman of the Jaycee Fiesta steering committee, who will be in charge of the trip. "This trip will be of great benefit to business men of the city," Mr. Huff said. "There should be a representative of every store in the city on the trip. Everyone will be furnished with hat bands, car stickers and Fiesta publicity to be given out at each stop." The trippers will be led by the Pampa Summer Recreation band under direction of A. C. Cox. The band members will meet for rehearsal tonight at 6:45 o'clock in the band room of the red school building. Every boy and girl who can make the big trip tomorrow is urged to attend the practice. An appeal to Pampans to call the Chamber of Commerce, telephone 383, and register for the trip was made today by the chairman. The delegation will be under command of Sheriff Cal Rose with the buses carrying the band members next in line. Car drivers are urged to stay in line. The public address system over which Pampans will tell about the celebration will be furnished through courtesy of V. W. McIntire

Jones May Be Candidate For Reelection

To run for congress again or to accept the nomination as judge of the United States court of claims is the problem now facing Congressman Marvin Jones, according to a report from Washington this afternoon. Jones declined to say whether President Roosevelt asked him to run again as reported this morning. Less than three months ago President Roosevelt appointed Congressman Jones as judge of the claims court, and he accepted. There was an immediate flood of candidates for the office left vacant. With announcement Saturday of Lewis P. Fields of Amarillo, the number of candidates for Jones' seat in congress reached 14. It was rumored in Washington today that President Roosevelt had asked Jones to be a candidate for reelection. When contacted this afternoon, Jones said he would release a statement "later." That led observers to believe that he was considering seeking renomination.

Parade Route To Be Changed This Year

Time and route of the Top O' Texas Fiesta parade will be changed this year. It was revealed today by W. V. Jarratt, parade chairman. He is not ready to announce the changes at present. A plea to spectators to line the entire parade length instead of congregating in a few blocks will be made this year, Mr. Jarratt said. A clear outline of the route from its beginning point to debanding point will be given later so that visitors won't be crowded in downtown blocks.

Paul Schneider, chairman of the band committee, has eight bands lined up for the parade. Jimmy Myers, float chairman, has 30 floats promised and he expects the number to pass the 50 mark. Horses are badly needed and anyone having a horse to loan, rent or give is urged to contact F. O. Gurely, 100 block North Russell street.

I Heard - - -

That Jimmie Howard, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Howard, is taking the credit for breaking the Clovis flinx over the Pampa Oilers. On Saturday night Jimmie went to Manager Grover Setz of the Oilers and informed him that he had a rabbit's foot that would break the flinx. He rubbed Grover's bat with the foot and whether it was the charm or something else the big manager smacked five hits on six times at bat to pace his team to a win.

John Henry (Jack) Boyington, 24, Skelly Oil company clerk for the past six years and son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar L. Boyington of Pampa, was killed, and his companion, Carmen Kempton, Pampa nurse, injured when the coupe in which they were riding overturned 11 miles south of Canadian on U. S. Highway 60 at 2 o'clock Sunday morning.

Boyington suffered a broken back, twisted left arm, and severe head injuries. His companion was a patient today in a local hospital. Her injuries were minor, the attending physician said.

The car rolled over several times after leaving the highway and came to a stop 75 yards from the place where it left the road.

When the accident occurred, the two Pampans were returning from Lake Marvin near Canadian, where they had attended a dance at the opening of the lake for the season.

An automobile in which were riding a Pampa and a White Deer man picked up Boyington and his companion and took them to Canadian.

Sheriff Harry Rathjen of Canadian and Texas Highway Patrolman J. B. Wilkinson of Pampa both investigated the accident.

An examination of the scene of the crash in the daylight, following the investigation made early Sunday morning, led to the belief that a tire on the car had come down shortly before the car left the road, the sheriff said. The automobile was demolished.

Young Boyington moved to Pampa from LeFors in 1930. He graduated from Pampa High school in 1933 and later attended business college in Oklahoma. He was a member of the National Honor society. During his time in high school he was a track star, specializing in long distance running. He was a member of the First Methodist church.

Survivors are the parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Boyington, and two

British Ready For Italy To Enter War

(By The Associated Press) LONDON, June 3.—Britain kept a watchful eye on Italy today as the first phase of the Nazi blitzkrieg in northern France entered the mopping-up stage.

Growing opinion that Italy soon will enter the war was reflected in the Evening Standard, aircraft production minister Lord Beaverbrook's newspaper, which said Italy might be an enemy "within a few days."

This nation's mood of fatalistic confidence was summed up by the standard in these words: "There is no difference between Italy and Britain which cannot be peacefully settled, but if Italy chooses war we are ready to fight back."

The flow of British expeditionary force survivors from across the channel, meanwhile, thinned to a trickle as the Germans, attacking under a punishing bombardment by the Royal Air Force and the allied fleets, slowly closed in on rearguard units fighting to escape from Dunkerque.

Two British hospital ships, the Wartling and Paris, both former cross-channel passenger ships, were bombed and machine-gunned by

War Flashes

BERLIN, June 3. (AP)—The American embassy was assured by the German government today that the United States liner Washington, eastbound to pick up American war refugees, will not be molested by the Nazi navy.

We further urge prompt enactment of other legislation providing instant apprehension and punishment for all native-born or naturalized citizens giving aid and comfort to foreign dictators by carrying on "fifth column" activities here.

We favor immediate passage of laws making it mandatory for all radicals to be catalogued, photographed, fingerprinted, segregated or imprisoned or kept under constant surveillance by federal and local authorities during the period of National defense preparation in time of peace as well as in event of war.

We implore you to legislate these traitorous trouble makers into the penitentiary or back to the country from whence they came. This is no time to temporize with these radical groups.

Several days ago, County Judge E. C. Randle warned members of the sect not to come to Waxahachie at this time.

At about the same time that the arrests were being made at Waxahachie, 50 members of the same sect were released from jail at Odessa, several hundred miles away. Officials took them to the county line and told them to keep going.

The group at Odessa refused to salute the American flag. Officers rescued them from an angry crowd Saturday night. The week-end disturbances were the latest of several of that nature in Texas in the last two weeks. The first occurred at Del Rio and others have been reported from Brownwood, San Antonio and Harlingen.

The War Today

By DEWITT MACKENZIE This comparative lull in the war is nothing more than a brief respite from the bloody business which we have been witnessing.

Hitler is bound to strike again quickly in order to take advantage of his victory in Flanders and not allow the Allies time to regroup. And there is every indication that he is setting set for another phase of his blitzkrieg.

From the tenor of Allied pronouncements it is clear that they have no delusions regarding the task before them. The Nazis have suffered great losses in men and materials, but we must remember that a military machine such as Herr Hitler constructed doesn't crack up over night.

The Allies know that they are in for more trial by fire, and a lot of it. When that Nazi machine starts rolling again it will be surprising if it doesn't achieve still further victories.

Still, time works for the Allies. Nazidom hasn't the resources for a long conflict. So, if the Anglo-French combine can hold its own in the face of adversity for a bit longer, it will begin to gain rapidly in strength. That explains the Nazi urge for speed.

I can't escape the conviction that Hitler will find the Allies much better prepared for him than before. I don't mean in a material way, for they have suf-

Party For Derby Entrants Set For Tonight At Park

In charge of County Judge Sherman White, general chairman, a party will be given at 7 o'clock tonight for the boys who have made their entries in the Pampa News-Lions Club Soap Box derby to be held here July 13-19.

The party will be held at Central park and the program will include informative talks on the approaching model automobile races. All members of the Lions club who have agreed to sponsor boys in the races, are asked to be at the park so they can select the boys they wish to sponsor.

Already, 108 boys have entered the contest, the second annual derby to be held here, preliminary to the All-American and International event to be held in Akron, Ohio, August 11.

Grand prize at the Akron race is a four-year university scholarship. Hugh Blevins, Jr., represented Pampa in the Akron races last year.

School Children Required To Salute American Flag

WASHINGTON, June 3. (AP)—The Supreme Court held constitutional today a regulation requiring school children to salute the American flag. Justice Frankfurter delivered the 8 to 1 decision that sustained a flag salute requirement by the Minessota, Pa., school board. Frankfurter said that "the wisdom of training children in patriotic impulses by those compulsion which necessarily pervade so much of the educational process is not for our independent judgment. "The court room," he added, "is not the arena for debating issues of educational policy."

JIMMY DODGE PLAYING ROLE OF HARDBOILED 'TONY' MENDOZA

Jimmy Dodge said he was "in character" when the above picture of him was made. Dodge who is vice-president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and co-chairman of the Coronado Top O' Texas Fiesta, will play the role of Antonio de Mendoza, viceroy of New Spain, in the Entrada. Mr. Dodge has his hands full helping shape the big annual Fiesta, and didn't want to be in the Entrada on account of the fact that he had so little time.

Director Mark Hamilton took one look at his whiskers and said it was a shame to waste them. Mr. Dodge will appear in the first and last scenes of the Entrada. Mendoza was the viceroy of Mexico who financed and sent Coronado on the expedition to find the Seven Golden Cities of Cibola. Mendoza was what you might call "rough as a boot" and Jimmy in the above picture is doing his best to emulate the Mendezian glare.

Odus Mitchell Takes Entrada Casting Job

Coach Mitchell of the Pampa Harvesters today accepted appointment as a member of the Coronado Entrada state in charge of casting, costumes and properties.

Coach Mitchell's task will be to round up young people who have signed up to be in the show but who have not been attending rehearsals, and to sign up a couple of hundred persons, chiefly adults, for Indian roles.

Mr. Mitchell will attend all rehearsals. All persons interested in being in the show may call him at 1659W or report at the gym each night at 7:30 o'clock. Rehearsals will be held each night this week.

The only members of the cast now needed are persons at least 5 feet 6 inches tall to play the roles of Indians or soldiers. More Indians than soldiers are needed.

Congratulations—

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Duenkel are the parents of a son, weighing 7 pounds 3 ounces, born yesterday in a local hospital. He has been named Eddie Lynn.

Schenck Indicted For Conspiracy, Income Tax Fraud

NEW YORK, June 3. (AP)—Joseph Schenck, president and board chairman of the 20th-Century-Fox Film Corporation, was indicted by a federal grand jury today on 24 counts of income tax fraud, conspiracy and making false statements to a government investigator.

The indictment resulted from a three-month inquiry. Schenck's bookkeeper, Joseph H. Moscovitz, was named a co-defendant.

Two indictments specified that Schenck had defrauded the government of more than $400,000 in taxes in 1935-37.

Many Injured As Bomb Nearly Hits U. S. Envoy

A roaring swarm of between 250 and 300 German warplanes bombed the Paris area today, killing 45, wounding 149, setting great fires and smashing buildings in an hour-long raid.

PARIS, June 3. (AP)—Forty-five persons were killed and 149 injured in Paris and its outskirts today in the German air attack on the capital, it was officially announced tonight.

The official figures were eight dead in Paris itself, 37 in the outskirts; 54 wounded in the city, 95 in the outskirts. The raiders dropped a total of 1,050 bombs in the Paris area, the announcement said, of which 83 fell in Paris proper and 557 in the nearby outskirts.

Four schools in Paris and four more in the suburbs were bombed, causing casualties, it was announced officially. Windows and doors were blown out of the apartment where the National Broadcasting company has its office. Paul Archibard and Kay Herrick of Bethel, Me., escaped without injury.

Three wounded persons were carried out of another apartment eight stories high after a bomb had ripped through to the second floor and burst.

Subway Struck A subway station was struck, but no one was inside. In the slum district where the three apartment houses began blazing after the incendiary bombs struck, the ambulances were filled as quickly as possible, one roaring off after another to the nearest hospital.

In another residential district, an Associated Press correspondent found three big bombs had fallen not a hundred yards from his own apartment. His terrified French wife, hardly able to speak for shock, said the planes had come over while she was in the garden. She had thrown herself flat on her face.

Screams Horrible The most horrible part of the experience, she said, was the high piercing and rising scream of the bombs as they came closer to earth. "You hear them coming," she said, "and it gives you time to wonder whether this one is meant for you or for someone else."

Several zones of the city appeared to have been selected by the Nazi raiders and, although the immediate objectives seemed to be military, many bombs had fallen on civilian residents and their homes near these objectives.

Explosive and incendiary bombs hit a factory near the Seine and started a raging fire. Rescue workers said there was virtually no loss of life at the factory as the workers were away at lunch. The few who were injured near the plant were mostly hit by hurtling bricks and flying glass.

In one little cafe chairs and tables were tossed about, but strangely some of the bottles on the bar were still in place. Fifteen minutes after the last alarm sounded, the proprietor was straightening up his place, and doing business as usual outside.

By JOHN LLOYD PARIS, June 3. (AP)—The Germans bombed Paris this sunny afternoon for the first time in nine months of war, killing 35 persons and wounding many.

Unverified reports said one American was killed. Columns of smoke rose tonight from industrial suburbs of the capital where heavy damage was inflicted.

The bombing appeared to have been a reprisal raid following Nazi

Less Brilliance For Office Workers

A liquid to take the shine out of trousers' seats and coat sleeves has been perfected after seven years' research by Carmen A. Battaglia, of East Orange, N. J. "Shiners" developed in less pacifistic pursuit than office work must still be ironed out by that good old standby, a slice of raw beefsteak. Dashed pants and coats need a hot iron, of course. Good irons have been successfully advertised in the Pampa News. In fact, there is nothing we know of that can't be run in the want ads with reasonable results. You will be money ahead if you start running a classified want ad regularly. The number is 88.

More than 200 couples attended the May dance given by the company employees last month. They expect an even larger crowd to hear the Rythm Clowns.

Girl Scout Troop One Honors Mrs. Winston Savage

At a meeting of Girl Scout troop two in the little house, a handkerchief shower was given by Mrs. Winston Savage.

Miss Ethleen Murrell, who was present for the first time will assist the older girls of the troop while Mrs. George Pollard will take care of the younger girls.

The latter part of this week, Mrs. Jack Goldston, captain, will leave for Camp Kiwanis near Amarillo where she will be camp director.

At the close of the meeting refreshments of punch and cookies were served.

PRACTICAL WINDOW TREATMENT

A practical and attractive window treatment is to build a casing of narrow shelves at each side and above the window, with closed closets or long shelves underneath. The shelves might contain books or colorful ornaments; the closets beneath would be a fine storage space for playing cards, score sheets, pencils, extra sashtrays, small incidentals or even extra linens.

DEDICATES COMPILATION

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., June 3—Dedicated to the Coronado Cuarto Centennial, an authentic compilation of New Mexico folk songs, translated from original Spanish lyrics, is on sale throughout the United States for the first time.

The work realizes an ambition of long standing in the heart of Mrs. Ruth Parker Talchert of Santa Fe, who has been fascinated by the melodies and lyrics of traditional Spanish and Mexican music since childhood.

In 1928 she began the compilation which she issued under the title of "Santa Fe Folk Songs." Working in Hollywood, she was afforded finest professional assistance.

The compilation makes a definitely new contribution in the recording of the less commonly known music of old Spain and early New Mexico and in the supplying of words for "La Varsoviana" and "La Raspa," both nationally popular dances.

Nat Vincent of Hollywood wrote the lyrics for "La Varsoviana" and "La Raspa," adding them to a long list of songs that included "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles," "It's Time to Say Aloha," and "When the Bloom is on the Sage."

To her task of compiling the songs, Mrs. Talchert brought a musical education gained in schools in Texas. She has lived in New Mexico twenty years ago, first at Las Vegas, where she met and married her husband, Dan Talchert, and in Santa Fe.

She was aided in the work by Miss Marie I. Sena of Santa Fe, recognized as an authority on Spanish.

Mrs. Ruth Parker Talchert of Santa Fe, New Mexico, above, has compiled a book of authentic New Mexico folk songs dedicated to the Coronado Cuarto

Miss Morehead Becomes Bride Of James Scott

The marriage of Miss Mildred Morehead and James Clifford Scott was solemnized in a single ring ceremony at the First Christian church Saturday evening with the Rev. B. A. Norris officiating.

Annies And Katies Are Inscribed On New Paris Prints

By ALICE MAXWELL
PARIS, June 3—Things in print in Paris that ignore the censor are swank patterns on spring crepes.

Even words get by. A printed crepe has names printed in its stripes. And not French names, either, but Annie, Katie, Florence and others, running along in script. This fabric makes a multi-colored frock to go with a navy wool coat.

In animal prints are black penguins standing on snow white ground. In another, white cats sit on navy ground, half of them nickered with pink, half in blue. Nice motifs scamper over a black crepe, and white birds soar over red.

Among whimsical motifs are red rabbits in pairs printed on black. Bright green motifs scattered through a black and white print, turn out to be wooden shutters attached to black-and-white windows. Castanets in multi-color form a dot pattern, and red cherries sport a checked silk of black and white.

War is briefly touched on in a flag blue crepe frock strewn with thin bugles and fat drums. The pennons of old French regiments printed on silk handkerchiefs are seen on day and evening dresses. The French gob has his pom-pom-ed cap borrowed to pattern a black crepe, the cap in blue and the pom-poms red.

Shells, feathers and flowers are choice motifs for evening stuffs, including crepes, chiffons and organadies. Shells in different sizes and colors spatter soft iridescent tones on evening chiffon. Curly white feathers make a scroll design on navy crepe used for a tailleur evening suit. A white organdie frock is flowered in red, a chateausse organdie in black, girdled with black moire.

For dance frocks are waiting figures on crepe grounds, for all-purpose dress are dot patterns, polka and coin size, in endless variety.

Exposition Postponed By Mussolini

ROME, June 3 (AP)—The Italian government today announced the indefinite postponement of the 1942 Rome exposition, which Premier Mussolini once referred to as proof that Italy was not planning to go to war.

The reason given for the postponement was that several nations had requested more time to repair exhibits.

"Behind the scenes" military mobilization proceeded, with the pink cards which call up reservists being delivered at additional homes every mail.

Chairmen of the provincial committees for the organization of blood donors discussed plans to meet emergency demands for transfusions.

The conference was officially described as having "unusual importance at the present moment."

It was attended also by representatives of the army, navy and air force.

The delegate of the women's section of the Fascist party promised the cooperation of Italian women.

Residents of Italy's big industrial center close to the French frontier, were urged by the press today to depart for country districts as the nation quietly pressed general mobilization plans.

Throughout Italy, the population, convinced the zero hour is not far distant, anxiously awaited word as to where and when the first blow would be struck in behalf of long-anticipated "national aspirations."

"Mobilization is about 30 cents," Giovanni Ansoldo, editor of Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano's newspaper, Il Telegrafo of Leghorn, declared emphatically.

He said "ever stronger contingents" are reaching concentration points.

Some quarters ventured the opinion that some announcement concerning Premier Mussolini's intentions might follow the scheduled meeting of the Italian cabinet tomorrow, but this possibility was scouted by the newspaper Il Resto del Carlino, a leading exponent of intervention.

Il Resto forecast, however, that Italy would move soon.

Some observers believed arrival of the Italian liner Conte di Savoia at Genoa yesterday, after omitting the usual Naples stop, had brought the deadline closer.

Arrival of the vessel coincided with the departure from Genoa of the United States liner Manhattan, homeward bound with 2,000 American and foreign refugees. Steamship agents said at least 1,000 persons who had hoped to sail on the Manhattan were left behind.

The American liners President Harrison and Exambion are due to sail today or tomorrow but they already are booked to capacity.

Farm Income To Be About Same As Last 2 Years

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP)—American farmers started their heavy June chores today under European war clouds which the agriculture department said threaten smaller financial rewards for most producers.

Prices of several important farm products declined sharply in recent weeks under the influence of shrinking foreign markets and military setbacks for the Allies.

Despite these price setbacks, the department forecast a farm cash income of $600,000,000 for June, or about the same as in the last two years.

The department said the effect of lower prices would be felt when the winter wheat crop starts moving to market late this month. Prices of the grain are about 30 cents a bushel lower than a month ago.

The department estimated that the 11,500,000-bale cotton surplus had been reduced about 1,000,000 bales this season, but added that factors on the domestic side have become "increasingly unfavorable."

Domestic cotton mills have been less active since last December, and German invasion of France, Belgium, and Holland normally big buyers of American cotton, has reduced the foreign demand.

Favorable factors for farmers and their 3,000,000 hired hands, federal officials said, include:

An income of $100,000,000 from sheep and lambs.

Sharply increased incomes this month from fruits and vegetables.

Prospects for a record production of milk this summer and for greater consumer demand for dairy products.

Texans In Washington

WASHINGTON, May 31 (AP)—Congress, in the rearmament program, has indulged large sums in its defense appropriation bills for expenditure in Texas.

Large single item provided in these measures for Texas was the establishment of a naval air training school at Flour Bluff, 10 miles from Corpus Christi. So important did the navy consider this project that it adopted unusual procedure in order to get funds to start work immediately. Normally, a project must first be authorized before funds can be appropriated to put it into reality. An exception was made with the Corpus Christi school. While an authorization measure, containing an item for the Texas school among $122,000,000 worth of works, was being drafted, the navy department induced the Senate appropriations committee to put in a then-pending appropriation bill a lump sum provision for $45,000,000 to be used for naval "shore facilities." It was understood by all that the money for the Corpus Christi school would come out of this amount.

The war department appropriations bill provided $900,000 for Keiser Field, and $708,000 for Brooks Field, both at San Antonio; it also provided $500,000 for acquiring a huge tract adjacent to Fort Bliss, El Paso, for army maneuvers. Air corps officers told the House military affairs committee of plans to greatly expand Randolph and Kelly fields, the former also being at San Antonio.

One of the leaders in getting the defense appropriation bills passed through the Senate in record time was Senator Tom Connally. In successful leadership against an amendment by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) to create a congressional advisory group which should advise the president in expending certain sums provided for emergencies, Connally recalled that during the Civil War Lincoln had a war strategy board which he "kicked" out before Union troops made headway.

"In that connection, I am reminded that in the second Manassas campaign, which ended in the Rapidan campaign, there was old General Pope, a flamboyant general, who probably had been approved by the strategy board, and who was constantly boasting of his exploits," declared Connally.

"He always headed his reports, Headquarters in the Saddle. After the second battle of Manassas, when he was in retreat and running as fast as he could to get out of the way, Lincoln observed: 'I am afraid that General Pope had his headquarters where he should have had his hindquarters.'"

When laughter in the Senate floor and galleries subsided, Connally added: "That is the type of performance of boards of strategy."

During consideration of the war department appropriation bill, the House adopted an amendment by Rep. Ed Gossett of Wichita Falls, providing that none of the money authorized under the bill should be used to pay salaries of any Communist or Fascist. This would apply to ordinary unskilled labor employed in constructing drainage ditches at airfields, as well as skilled mechanics or army officers.

Footmaster Pat Hardage of Wichita Falls was guest of Rep. Gossett at the National Press club's annual spring outing, held this year at Charlestown, W. Va., about 70 miles from Washington. A "stag party," the club members and guests made the trip by special train. Horse racing and boxing featured on the program. Like many congressmen, Gossett belongs to the Press club.

Blanchard, Prioux Raised In Rank

A communique from Premier Reynaud's office said that General Blanchard, commander of the Allied armies in northern France, had been raised to the highest rank, the grand cross, in the Legion of Honor.

General Prioux's whereabouts have not been reported for days. (The Germans have claimed him and his staff as prisoners of war.)

Oil, Gasoline Shower Killed Twenty Troops

A SOUTHEAST COAST PORT IN ENGLAND, June 3 (AP)—A British sergeant returning from Flanders today said that, so far as he could see, there were very few British troops left in Dunkerque when he departed.

The sergeant, who waited two days on the Dunkerque beaches before boarding a ship for home, said the scene there last night was illuminated by fires that made the night almost as bright as day.

He said German bombers, for some unexplainable reason, kept away from the town but continued to raid the troops on the beach as well as the various rescue ships.

The latest arrivals from Dunkerque, though unshaved, dirty and worn-out, still were cracking jokes.

Members of the crew of one well-known pleasure steamer, which took more than 200 men off the mole at Dunkerque, said they were forced to leave under heavy shell fire and had to leave behind hundreds of others who an hour before had gone back to the beach to dig in, thinking there was no steamer in sight.

Scarcely a ship returns without visible traces of German attack, such as splinter scars and bullet holes.

Many German Planes Lost French Claim

PARIS, June 3 (AP)—German land, sea and air forces renewed savage attacks on Dunkerque today, a military spokesman said, making evacuation of the remaining Allied forces there "increasingly difficult."

The Nazi attacks failed, however, to halt the withdrawal operations, the spokesman declared, largely due to the work of the British and French air forces which covered the exodus successfully.

The Allied planes, it was said, shot down large numbers of German fighters, bombed lines of communication and strafed the swift torpedo-carrying motorboats with which the Germans have been attacking transports.

The land front in France was reported quiet, with only localized activity which resulted in no change of position.

The French spokesman summarized the situation along the southern front this way:

Along the Somme, "almost complete calm."

Along the Aisne, feeble activity of contact units.

Between the Aisne and Chiers river near the northern end of the Maginot line, light artillery fire on both sides without definite results.

Light artillery fire in the Rehel region, approximately 100 miles northeast of Paris.

East of the Moselle river, on the upper end of the Maginot line, two German raids of small size against French outposts were repulsed.

Land Lull Expected

Military commentators expressed belief there would be a lull of between three days and two weeks before the Nazi military machine launches another major drive.

They pointed out that the 40 German divisions which forced the Allied northern army to the sea had suffered tremendous losses on land and in the air and said both the Allies and the Germans had reached "a period of waiting in which each side is preoccupied with preparations."

While the British rescue ships arrived at Dunkerque, took on their passengers and steamed away again, German infantry, wading waist-deep through Dunkerque's flooded marshes, faced a barrage of artillery fire from the Allies covering the retreat and waiting hopefully for the appearance of the last units of the army of General Rene Jacques Adolphe Prioux.

It was General Prioux's tanks and armored cars which played a vital part in covering the 40-mile withdrawal from Lille to the sea after King Leopold III's capitulation exposed the Allied northern flank. The remaining units of the Prioux rearguard early today were reported only 15 miles from Dunkerque.

Germany claims Gen. Prioux and his staff were captured.

Dealing With The 'Fifth Column'

Recently two men in different western States were refused naturalization as American citizens because they had made remarks indicating an admiration for Hitlerism. Ordinarily such sentiments might be passed over as matters of personal opinion, and it is regrettable that they have to be taken into account now.

But with the examples the nation has had of treacherous "fifth column" work abroad, with some recollection of German espionage and sabotage during the World War, and with reports of poisonous propaganda work going on in Mexico, there is ample ground for all reasonable precautions. Deportation is a weapon which may need to be used against some who abuse national hospitality, and citizenship confers immunity from the rather broad powers of deportation; hence some care is in order in bestowing citizenship.

This is not to say that the present deportation laws need be broadened. They already provide for the shipping off of "anarchists or persons who advocate the overthrow of the government."

But the proposals of Robert H. Jackson, Attorney General, that all aliens in the United States be required to register and that fingerprints be taken in connection with passport visas for entry into the United States seem justified and appropriate under present circumstances. Yet it should be recognized that many potential fifth columnists are not aliens but citizens, sometimes natives. The House of Representatives took account of this the other day when it voted to withhold relief funds not only from aliens but also from any others who are Communists, members of Nazi Bund groups, or who advocate overthrow of the Government.

Legally the essential safeguards in the United States against disloyal activities rest in the Espionage Acts of 1917 and 1918. These provide penalties for circulation of matter urging treason or insurrection, for scurrilous or abusive language about the form of government, Constitution, flag, or uniform, for efforts to steal military information, misuse passports, or sabotage production of war materials.

It is worth while for citizens to know these provisions and be alert to possible treachery in their midst. Yet there ought not to be any hysteria, any witch-hunts, or any loose mouthing of mere suspicions, which may either do great injustice or tip off a spy as to his danger. Any information should be turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the gathering of evidence be left to them, and any prosecution be based on facts, not guesses.

The Nation's Press

WASHINGTON, June 3—You can write it down in your book that some change in the Johnson act, to permit war loans to the Allies, will almost certainly be made within—say—six months.

It won't be done right away, and this session of Congress—if it adjourns in mid-June, as per schedule—is not likely to touch it. But if the session continues beyond June or if there is an extra session later in the summer, an amendment is extremely probable.

There has been a great shift of sentiment in Congress. Six months ago any move to lift the ban on loans would have lost overwhelmingly. Today some of the men who were most outspoken against the idea last fall are privately talking in favor of it.

The shift is due to two things: a growing concern over the plight of the Allies, and a feeling that to make the loans would be good for business—especially the agricultural business.

General belief is that the Allies have all the money they need, right now, for planes and munitions, but that they are conserving their funds as far as possible by cutting down on purchases of farm products. Let the farm belt statesmen once get convinced that loans would boom farm exports and you're likely to see action.

Best way to put it is that as of today a majority in Congress is not ready to vote for loans, but is ready to sit down and let somebody try to sell the idea.

SQUALUS DISASTER CAUSED NO SUBMARINE CHANGES

The sinking of the submarine Squalus off Portsmouth, N. H., just over a year ago, was almost unique among U. S. Navy submarine disasters in that it did not lead to far-reaching changes in the design or operation of submarines or their equipment.

Reason for this is that most peacetime submarine disasters are due to some fundamental defect and teach the navy something important about the use of these tricky boats. The Squalus sinking wasn't in that class; the boat sank simply because of a mechanical failure in an induction valve, and that failure proved fatal because of a simultaneous failure in an indicator which should have given sufficient warning of the mishap.

Changes in the gear in question to keep such accidents from happening again have been made—and that's all there is to it. The Squalus, raised and reconditioned, is back in service again, under the name of Salfish.

NAVY CONSIDERING ANTI-AIRCRAFT CRUISER

If battleships have to be rearmored to make them bombproof, there is a chance that some cruisers also will be re-designed in order to fit them for more aggressive action against airplanes.

All warships carry anti-aircraft guns, of course. But an idea which is beginning to take hold among some U. S. Navy officers is that it would pay to have a new kind of cruiser, definitely classed as an anti-aircraft ship. General idea is to make the vessel fairly bristly with anti-aircraft guns, range and height finders, and so on, so that it could protect the fleet against planes the way a destroyer protects it against submarines.

It's likely that a few experimental ships of this type will be built before long.

Sharing The Comforts Of Life

ROOSEVELT'S MORAL NATIONAL DEFENSE

In Sunday night's radio address, Roosevelt discussed our national defense. In a previous issue, we discussed the inefficiency of the national defense. Today, we want to discuss the debacle of our moral and spiritual defense.

Roosevelt contends there are groups that are setting class against class. If there was ever a man who has been guilty of that and has been successful, it is Franklin Delano Roosevelt. He has destroyed the very foundations on which this government was started. It was started on equality of rights to try and create; that each man was worthy of his hire. But Roosevelt has twisted and distorted that original meaning to mean equality of living standards, equality of income, equality of material things for others but not for himself. Roosevelt has destroyed the eternal principle of equal rights of every citizen to create and enjoy. He has set class against class. He contends that there are people in this country who are disrupting the entire pattern of a people. . . . Certainly there are. And Roosevelt has done it by corrupting, by bribing 12,000,000 of the citizens. So, instead of having government by freedom of choice, we have a government by bribery and corruption. This was entirely foreign to the objectives of the American people. And this kind of special privilege is the weakest part of our national life. When our leaders set up class against class by taking from one and giving to another at their arbitrary will, guided mainly by expediency to preserve themselves in power, then we so stifle initiative and take production out of the hands of the efficient and we become so weak that we are easy prey to another nation that more nearly follows the eternal principle, the eternal law, that each man should live by the sweat of his face.

Roosevelt says that labor will be represented in Washington.

A part of labor has been represented in Washington since Roosevelt has been in control, but those who did not feel inclined to contribute to a collectivist labor group have been disbarred from Washington.

Certainly Harry Bridges, "Ma" Perkins, John Lewis, Bluff and Scallie will be represented in government, but the honest worker who is willing to put more into the world than he takes out, will not be represented in Washington, nor has he been represented during the last seven years.

Roosevelt complains about criticism. He says "the aim of those who deliberately egg on these groups is to create confusion of counsel, public indecision, political paralysis and eventually a state of panic."

When, however, those people who will answer questions and will permit counsel, as Roosevelt never will, can see the unnecessary misery, suffering and poverty that is bound to result from the Roosevelt bottle-neck policy, it becomes their duty to point out to their fellowman what is bound to happen if we continue to follow Roosevelt's whims.

The weakest part of our national defense is moral; and when leaders like Roosevelt use words contrary to their accepted meaning, we can have nothing but confusion. For instance, how can we have free enterprise when Roosevelt says the man who produces efficiently must not receive his full reward? How can we have free enterprise when he says we must have minimum wages and laws that prevent a man from working as long as he wants to?

Roosevelt must believe as all collective bargaining advocates seem to that there is a limited amount of work to be done and that one man's working and producing deprives another man of the right to work and produce. Of course, if there were a limited amount of work to be done, then limiting hours and limiting output would be necessary. But when there is an unlimited amount of wants and thus an unlimited amount of work to be done, any law that prevents a man from working and producing or freely exchanging the products of his labor harms every human consumer, not only in the United States but in the world. And it is immoral, unethical, unjust, uneconomic to pass laws that interfere with the inalienable rights of man to work and create.

Never in the history of the world has any man done as much to corrupt and mislead the people on these moral, social and economic problems of defense and growth and development as Roosevelt in the last seven years. Unless we can abate and recognize the principles of equality of rights to create, instead of equality of income, as Roosevelt advocates, sooner or later we will be taken over by some nation which more nearly recognizes the inalienable rights of every man to work and create and have the fruits of his labor.

WHOSE PRICE FIXING? (Kansas City Star)

In the oil case passed upon adversely by the Supreme court on May 6 the defense of the companies was that they had entered price-fixing agreements "only in a voluntary co-operative effort" to remove "a competitive evil—distress gasoline."

But in the court's majority opinion written by Justice Douglas it was held this could not be done legally. Said Justice Douglas in that recent case: "For more than forty years this court has consistently and without deviation adhered to the principle that price-fixing agreements are unlawful per se under the Sherman act and that no showing of so-called competitive abuses or evils which those agreements were designated to eliminate or alleviate may be interposed as a defense."

Yesterday in another majority opinion written by Justice Douglas it was held that price fixing under the Guffey soft coal act is altogether legal. For, says the Douglas opinion in this case, "It makes a difference, then, as to who does the price fixing. Justice Douglas holds that Congress had the full power to do it through the Guffey act but that if it had been done by the coal industry itself it would have been in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law."

The anti-monopoly drive of the department of justice may continue therefore on the understanding that there is only one good monopoly, the soft coal monopoly, made so by the blessing of Congress.

'WHAT'S IN IT FOR ME?'

Around Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, June 3—The James boys were not what you'd call first-rate citizens, but their fictionalized ghosts have performed some notable benefactions. With a story recently based on the life of Jesse, 20th-Fox made the biggest money grossing picture of 1939. The same picture launched Nancy Kelly on a comfortable flicker career.

Jesse gave everything he had to that film, dying and being buried even beyond the resurrection miracles of the cinema. So Brother Frank now is coming to bat for who once declared that the stockholders. "The Return (in technicolor) of Frank James" also will serve as an introductory vehicle for another promising young actress. Her name is Gene Tierney.

Your correspondent watched Miss Tierney play her first scene before a camera and then took her to lunch. For me, both experiences were notable. I never have observed greater composure on a set. She talked right up to our Henry Fonda (he's Frank James) and didn't miff a line or piece of business. I asked, "Aren't you scared?" and she said, "No, I love it."

THIS WAS NOT THE OVERCONFIDENCE OR desperate aggressiveness of many newcomers. The green-eyed, interestingly proportioned 19-year-old isn't very sure of anything except that she likes to act.

Her acting career is the outcome of many months of quiet conflict with a wealthy father—Howard S. Tierney, New York insurance broker would answer. "Now, look, Miss Tierney—you're getting your check each week, so what are you complaining about? Why don't you go down to Palm Springs and get a nice suntan?"

Back in New York, her second chance in a play was equally disappointing. Then, though, she was handed the ingenue lead in "The Male Animal," the James Thurber hit that's still going strong. After four weeks of it, though, she had to come here on her 20th-Fox contract. Miss Tierney looks a little like Vivien Leigh and, when she smiles, a little like Deanna Durbin. She writes a little poetry sometimes and reads the war news avidly because she has traveled everywhere in Europe. Once, after watching a newsreel of the German invasion, she rushed home and wrote a long scathing letter to Adolph Hitler.

Coronado and his famous expedition started from Compostela, Mexico, February 23, 1540. They started out to find gold but were not successful.

The governors of all states will receive beautiful scroll invitations from the New Mexico governor to visit New Mexico during Coronado year in 1940.

Pretty Mrs. Coleman Williams was the sensation at the Jaycee skeet shooting range yesterday. It was the first time that she had ever shot at the clay pigeons, and the first 14 times she shot she hit a clay pigeon every time. Today Mrs. Williams' arm was black and blue at the shoulder where the gun kicked, but she was proud, and Coleman who is chairman of the Jaycee skeet committee is prouder of "Baby Girl," as he calls her than anything.

James Gotcher also had to take a back seat yesterday, as far as his wife was concerned. She caught a 19-inch bass out of Buffalo lake that weighed four pounds. If she had caught the fish Saturday she'd have won the prize. James was the hard-luck winner on opening day. He had a string of nine excellent bass, the smallest 15 inches long and the largest weighing some three pounds. "Boys, I'm going out for that tenth bass," he announced. Some 20 feet out in the lake his stringer broke and nine prime bass swam away. James went back to the lake yesterday after the same fish.

Well, Fred Pollard shaved off his whiskers, and this corner is going to make good his threat to single-handedly throw Fred in the tank on courthouse lawn, even at the risk of getting pulled in too. So when you hear that bell-a-ringing you can know that Fred is a pay-in for not letting his whiskers grow, like he said he would when he started growing them. He had a little right but it was not convincing enough. We may change the water in the tank, and again we may not.

Those who seem "out out for marriage," yet fail to achieve it, are the ones who can do most for themselves. They may have been going on year, after year, in the place, or job, or social group, which they happen to have made their own, regardless of the fact that it holds out little hope of their meeting any marriageable person.

Some are too modest—perhaps because over-timid, or afraid to risk having their feelings hurt by laying themselves open to ridicule—to show themselves as they are, and therefore hide the most interesting layers of their personality. Then they wonder why they only attract only mediocre, uninteresting people.

Those who are but a little less shy feel at ease only with those whom they think as inferior.

THOSE WHO MISS WEDDING BELLS CAN BLAME THEMSELVES

Those who look longingly at the wedding bells that ring for others, but not for them, have only themselves to thank. Some where along the road, they have taken one turn after another, leading to single, rather than double blessedness.

Some are very well satisfied with their independent situation. Others at times convince themselves they are in a sorry predicament. This however, may be just a bit of the play-acting that all of us indulge in occasionally, casting ourselves in the leading role, particularly if it be a tragic one.

STAMP NEWS

STEPHEN COLLINS FOSTER captured the heart of a nation and put it into song. The first composer of truly American songs is honored on the 1-cent stamp, above, first of the composers group of the Famous Americans series. Bardonia, Ky., was designated as the place of first-day sale, May 3. It was at Bardonia, in the home of John Rowan, that Foster wrote one of his masterpieces, "My Old Kentucky Home." His "Masses in the Gold, Cold Ground" is dedicated to "Massa" John Rowan, father of his host. Foster was born on July 4, 1826, the 50th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, and the day that President Thomas Jefferson and President John Adams died. He showed an inclination for music at 6, wrote his first composition at 14. Although many mistook his songs for mere arrangements of folk songs, they were actual creations. Foster's songs swept the country. The Forty-Niners moved west to the tune of "Oh, Susanna," Civil War soldiers marched to his tunes. Today, almost a century since they were written, "Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair" and "Beautiful Dreamer" are radio favorites.

You and Your Nation's Affairs

TWO IMPORTANT LESSONS FOR US By WALTER E. SPAHR Professor of Economics, New York University

There are some lessons to be derived from the war and our relation to it that should be very clear by this time.

One is that those people whom we were responsible for this nation not joining the League of Nations, in which we should have used all our power to insure peace by aiding in the creation of an international police force and the disarmament of nations, now have their own money on bootlegging, subsidies, vote buying, and socialistic enterprises.

Unfortunately as it is, the Federal debt limit must be raised so that the President may not be invited or forced to resort to the use of the un-sound and dangerous monetary powers placed in his hands. Experience has shown that men in whom the public (especially businessmen) have confidence, must be put on the job, and the half-baked radical reformers should be sent out where they can devote themselves to enterprises perhaps less harmful to the national welfare.

But for the present that incalculable damage cannot be undone; the world must fight through the present mess to another peace, after which, perhaps, we shall have sufficient sense to squelch any other group of this type which may attempt to prevent enlightened national leaders from setting up the international machinery necessary to insure peace.

Again, this damage cannot be undone; we can only profit by the lesson that it should be very clear by this time. One is that those people whom we were responsible for this nation not joining the League of Nations, in which we should have used all our power to insure peace by aiding in the creation of an international police force and the disarmament of nations, now have their own money on bootlegging, subsidies, vote buying, and socialistic enterprises.

SERIAL STORY

AN EYE FOR A GAL BY HARRY HARRISON KROLL

CHAPTER I
ROSSY McAfee laid his bag of baseball bats and ancient telescope grip on the ground and gawped at the wrought-iron arch which ran between the stone gate posts. The iron letters, "Lincoln College," were two feet high.

Rossy stared hungrily at the bronze figure of the Rail Splitter in the drive oval. He had had two ambitions in his gaudy soul—one, to make the big time as a ball pitcher; the other, to find the man who had killed his father and exact an eye for an eye.

Now he was overwhelmed with a third, to become an educated man. Standing there, a Lincolnian figure himself, he seemed to be sleeping across the threshold of a new life.

The campus seemed deserted. He had expected to see hundreds, maybe thousands, of gay students chasing hither and yon. Instead all the life he found was a professor's cow chewing some dead grass.

"Well, I do declare!" Rossy muttered. "Ain't I at the right place?"

HE heard a chattering, clattering roar behind him, faintly at first then increasingly louder. Before he could collect his wits, it was upon him. He whirled around, saw a girl speeding along the sidewalk toward him.

The girl yelled, tried to turn. Steel grated on concrete. Rossy jumped this way and that trying to decide which way she was going. She plunged on toward him, shouting for him to get out of the way.

She turned again, grasping at the air, and Rossy jumped the same way. In another instant they were all piled up—legs, wheels, arms and grip. The girl was yelling and bawling. Rossy heard himself yelling too.

"Hey, what the—?" But he seemed to have helped break the girl's fall. They untangled themselves and he helped her to her feet. She rubbed her bruises. Then she laughed.

"I'm all right. I'm Judy Tollivar. That's what I get for trying to be a kid again. . . . Roller skating. Haven't been on skates for years, but it seemed like a good idea. . . . But you are a you! You're new here, aren't you?"

"I'm Rossy McAfee. I'm a ball player. Pitcher." Well to make it clear at once.

"Ah, I see. You're wanting Coach Hurd. You'll find him at the gym. It's the brick building you see yonder through the trees."

ROSSY gathered up his luggage and walked slowly toward the gym, now and then turning to see if the girl was in sight. She wasn't. He came to the front door of the gym and knocked. No answer. He knocked again, and then tried the latch. It was locked.

"Huh!" he snorted. Removing one of his polished bats, of his own make, he beat on the door, listened, and then began mauling the door angrily. "This is the dumbest place for nobody to stay home—"

"What is it?" People just appeared from nowhere, it seemed. This was a man, in easy old gray suit; he was thick, kindly, and distinguished. His age was perhaps 45. He wore boots—evidently an outdoor man. "Here, here something I may do for you?"

"I'm Rossy McAfee and I come to school and I want to play ball, and where's Coach Hurd at—you ain't him?"

"Rossy McAfee!" the man repeated, and just stood there with a fixed look. He had the same look as the girl, only it was a Rossy jumped this way and that, trying to decide where she was going to hit. . . . In another instant they were all piled up—legs, skates, arms, and grip. Rossy was yelling.

man's look. He moved a slow hand across his eyes and stared again, remembered himself, and smiled. "I see. You're the ball pitcher from Hell'n-Damnation Holler. Coach Hurd told me about you. Come this way. Here—let me help you with your grips." He took the bag of bats and led the way to the rear of the gym. "The athletes were not expected for registration until Monday, but Coach will take care of you all right." They entered by a back door and went through a labyrinth of showers and lockers.

At a door the man knocked. "This is Rossy McAfee, Coach," he said when a sleepy head appeared in the door. "Well, well! How are you?"

"Well, doggone my tintype, so it is!" the coach grinned, shaking Rossy's hand. "Come right in. Don't rush, Prexy." The middle-aged man said he'd be seeing him; and when he was gone, Coach Hurd pulled Rossy in and shut the door. "Well, well! How are you?"

"Who was him?" Rossy asked, jerking his thumb back. "Doc Tollivar, president of Lincoln College."

"Did you say Tollivar?" "It's Tollivar, not Tolliver, as you folks spell it in the hills. Different breed of dogs."

ROSSY's eyes began to gleam. "A or e, a Tolliver's a Tolliver and they air all thieves and rascals. I know 'em. One of 'em killed my pappy long time ago in a ball game with a bean ball, and—why, lands, I bet a cow he was the feller!"

It ran all over Rossy, like a stroke of paralysis from clairvoyance. That man would be about the age of this thick man, too. He stared at the coach.

Then all at once Rossy realized he may have talked too fast and too much. An unwise word might destroy all his chances of a lifetime for revenge, to which he had dedicated his energy and integrity.

He talked fast. "Aw I never meant none of that, Coach. I just drool at the mouth sometimes. My pappy died from a fractured skull."

In his confusion he had picked up his grip, but he dropped it as suddenly, and the cotton cord holding the top broke, spilling red flannel underwear and shirts

Police Sergeant Ed Formby was wounded in the leg and Mrs. T. H. Life of Galveston, a bystander, was lacerated dangerously wounded.

Formby said Weathersbee was shot five times in a pistol fight with two other officers and himself. The policemen went to the hospital. Formby said, in response to a call stating that a man there was threatening to shoot someone.

Shortly after the officers began questioning the man, he drew a pistol and began firing, the police sergeant continued.

Police were told that Weathersbee was not a patient at the hospital but had gone there Sunday to see his wife, who was a patient. They were informed that Weathersbee had had a quarrel after expressing dislike for a nurse at the hospital.

Connecticut Dems Stage Convention WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP)—Connecticut Democrats start the march today toward a final round-up of the delegates that seemed destined to offer President Roosevelt a third term nomination.

The two-day convention will choose 16 of the 284 Democratic delegates to be selected in June. The President already has 561 pledged and semi-pledged delegates—more than enough to renominate him. The Republicans still have eight
