

No Damage Seen By Newsmen On Hamburg Visit

(By The Associated Press)

HAMBURG, Germany, Aug. 3—A small group of German, Italian and American journalists rode into Hamburg today on the hard beaches of a military transport plane, but in a swift two and one-half hour trip through the city saw no damage to buildings on shady canals and business in full swing.

The trip was arranged hurriedly by the propaganda ministry in response to British reports quoted by the German press as saying this important shipbuilding center had been "pulverized."

(An authoritative British source, telling yesterday of 3,000 air raids on more than 100 German cities, said the port of Hamburg was "now practically in ruins.")

(This source said that Hamburg, with oil refineries, munitions factories and docks which are in the center of the city, had been "pulverized again and again.")

(It is necessary to bear in mind the distinction between port and city.)

(All attacks, the British source said, had been "planned with studious care with the object of avoiding damage if possible to towns and cities which are non-military objectives.")

On the basis of a two and one-half hour trip through Hamburg, one can hardly claim to be an authority on what has been going on in all parts of this third largest city in Germany, but the correspondents saw no "pulverization."

The trip included a visit to the tower of St. Michaels church, a popular spot for tourists seeking a bird's-eye view of the city. Modern Hamburg, where the British claimed to have caused the most damage, is several miles from the tower.

Docks in the vicinity of the tower were in good order.

Upon arriving at the airport, the correspondents were picked up in police trucks which whizzed out to a hospital at the edge of the city, where workmen were repairing damage to one building which officials said had been hit by a bomb that killed two patients and a nurse.

Near the center of Hamburg, a bomb had fallen in Canal street but no casualties were reported. Four other bombs which caused some damage were reported to have fallen in the neighborhood several weeks ago.

In another section of the city, police said 25 women and children were killed when a bomb fell on an apartment house during a daylight raid July 3.

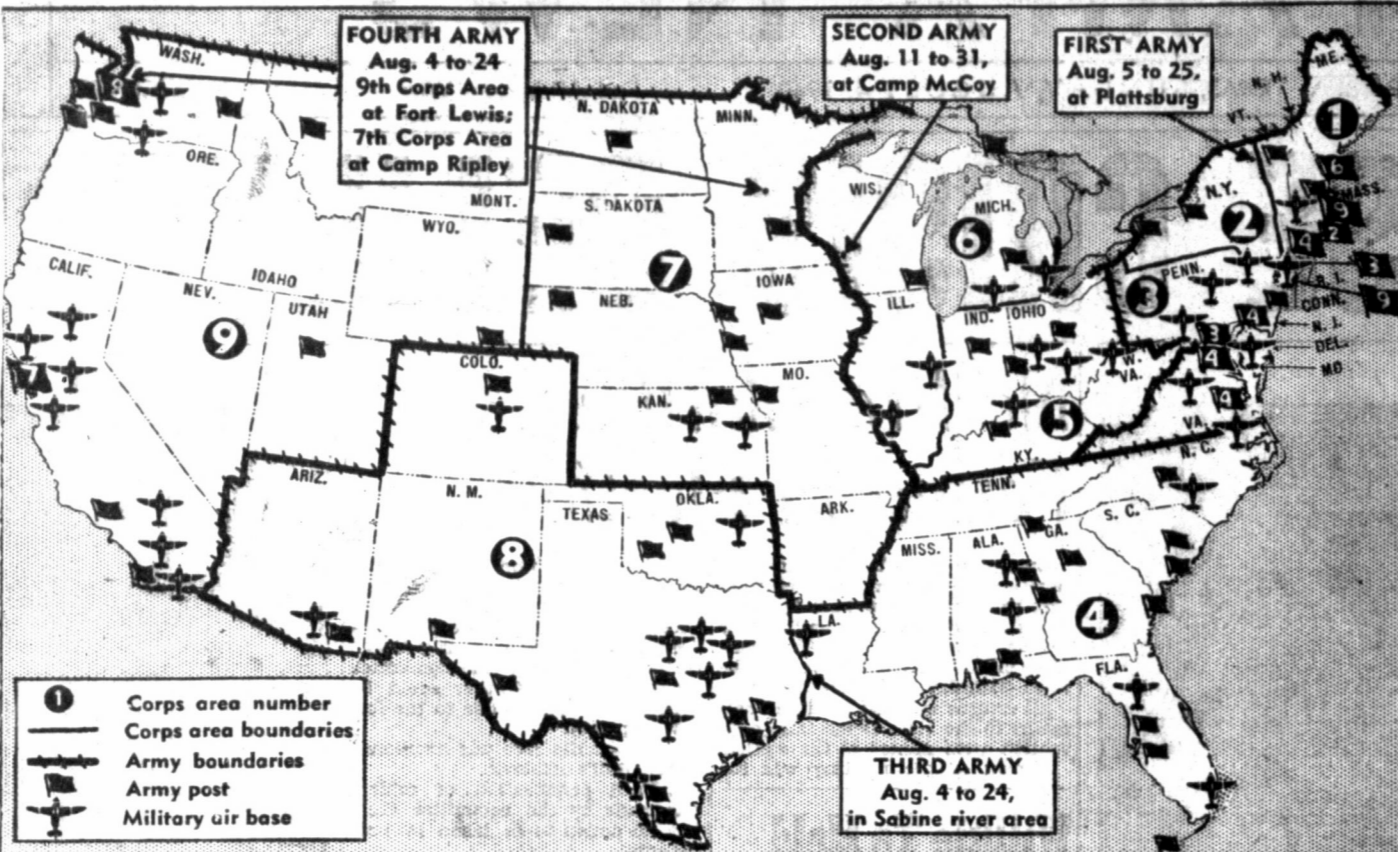

Hamburg police said most of the British bombs were falling in the outskirts of the city because of heavy anti-aircraft fire which forced the planes to leave the area above the city itself.

Twins Named For GOP Willkie

CARTHAGE, Tenn., Aug. 3 (AP)—Meet the Smith brothers, first names—Wendell and Willkie.

Twins, they were born to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Toney Smith of Pleasant Shade, a few miles from Carthage, home town of Secretary of State Cordell Hull, several days ago.

U. S. Troops Learn Blitzkrieg Defense in Maneuvers

Lessons in how to beat blitzkrieg are being served up to regular army and national guard troops in extraordinary four army maneuvers that put all the U. S. armed forces in the field at once for first time since World War II began. Map locates maneuver areas and shows how half the army's forts and a third of its military air bases are clustered along the strategic Atlantic seaboard.

AIR RAID

Lord Halifax gave him no satisfaction.

British sources disclaimed any intention of retaliation for the detention of British nationals in Japan, but this seemed largely a diplomatic, and not a real, disclaimer.

Unconfirmed reports were circulated meanwhile by a British news agency that Japanese ships on the high seas en route to Britain had been ordered to make for Lisbon, Portugal, instead.

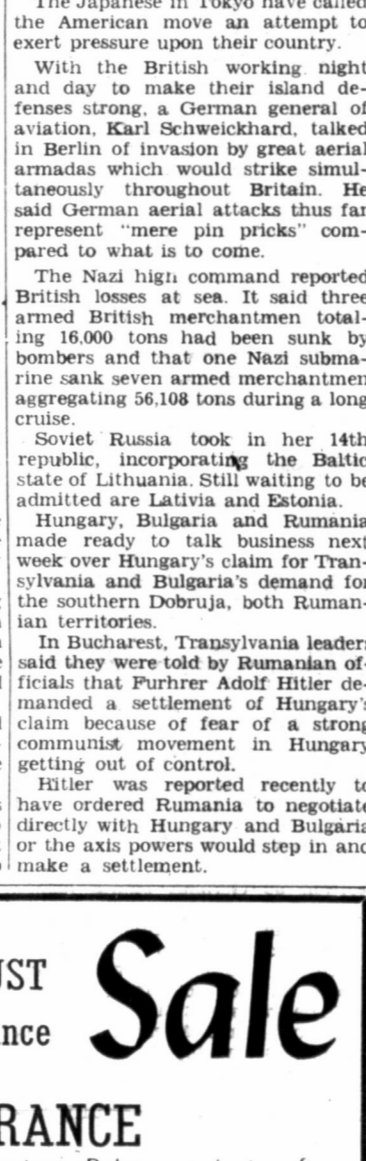

News came from London of fresh attacks by the royal air force on military objectives in France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Germany throughout yesterday. Airdrops and oil tanks were among the targets.

The Germans called "a Churchill lie" British reports that the German city of Lithuania, still waiting to be admitted as Latvia and Estonia, Hungary, Bulgaria and Rumania made ready to talk business next week over Hungary's claim for Transylvania and Bulgaria's demand for the southern Dobruja, both Rumanian territories.

In Bucharest, Transylvania leaders said they were told by Rumanian officials that Fuhrer Adolf Hitler demanded a settlement of Hungary's claim because of fear of a strong communist movement in Hungary getting out of control.

Hitler was reported recently to have ordered Rumania to negotiate directly with Hungary and Bulgaria or the axis powers would step in and make a settlement.

ELECTION

group to have women from each district on the state. Mrs. Braly was named to succeed Mrs. Hal Peck, who moved out of the 31st district three years ago.

A petition signed by voters in 23 of the 26 counties in the district, asking for Mrs. Braly's nomination, has already been circulated, H. C. Coffee, told the convention.

Unit Vote For Gray

Resolution was adopted declaring Gray county's delegates at the state convention, to be held September 10 at Mineral Wells, to vote as a unit.

They are also instructed to vote for the Democratic nominees, state and national, by virtue of another resolution adopted.

Gray county is allowed four votes at the state convention. This is on the basis of one vote for every 300 cast in this county for governor in the last general election.

However, there were 14 persons named to attend the election. This was explained as due to the fact that some of those chosen might not be able to make the trip.

The delegates were also empowered to add other eligibles to their group, if they desire.

Delegates named were W. J. Smith, Walter Rogers, W. J. Ball, Mrs. Clifford Braly, Sr., H. C. Coffee, S. D. Stennis, Sherman White, Reno Stinson, John Carpenter, W. C. Breining, Sam Favors, Mrs. Cleon Pool, Helen Montgomery, and Mrs. Siler Faulkner.

Smith Named Chairman

Members of the nominating committee, choosing the delegates, were Reno Stinson, S. D. Stennis, John Andrews and John Ketter.

Minutes of precinct conventions, in precincts 2, 10, 14, and 15, were read by Ketter, chairman of the county committee. Credentials of precinct delegates to the county convention, from the precincts named, the only ones reporting, were approved.

Delegates and alternates attending were Noah Kite, Stennis, Stinson, Coffee, Smith, T. B. Solomon, Mrs. Braly.

W. J. Smith was named as chairman of the county convention and Helen Montgomery as secretary.

Reading of the count in the various precincts, from the district attorney's race on down through county and precinct candidates, was by Smith, with Ketter presiding.

Around the table while the canvass was made were seated E. A. Shackleton, Bill Ginn, John W. Andrews, Charles Barrett, Morris Knorr, Kite, C. C. Stockstill, P. C. Ledrick, Smith, Ketter, Stinson, and Breining.

Six Write-Ins

Reading of the reports from the precincts revealed the names of six write-in candidates: Beulah Allred, Elmer Cary, Dick Walker, Ketter, and M. M. Newman.

Some voter had written in the name of Ernest (Sweet Dick) McNeil, Pampa Negro, for one office.

The county convention was perplexed with the absentee vote problem for the run-off election. Absentee voting is to begin today, end August 21, four days before the second primary.

However, since the state organization has not submitted the names of the candidates for state offices to be put on the ballots, this stymies the absentee vote here insofar as state races are concerned, as no official complete ballots can be prepared.

Beyond saying that it would likely be another week before such ballots could be available, the county Democratic organization took no action.

Next regular meeting of the county committee is to be August 31. The committee adjourned, subject to call.

Wichita GOP Names Ticket

(By The Associated Press)

County conventions over the state generally were quiet and harmonious Saturday with the national administration and Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel drawing widespread support among the Democrats.

Republicans gave further indications of making it a race behind Wendell L. Willkie in this state. At Wichita Falls they even named a county ticket and announced both GOP and Democratic Willkie clubs would be organized.

A county ticket for the Republican party is rare in this state.

There was a brief flare-up in the Houston Democratic convention, when a group of O'Daniel leaders booted and held a rump session after O'Daniel forces were defeated by the Roosevelt faction.

Jay A. Phillips, candidate of the O'Daniel faction for chairman, opposed the convention passing a resolution endorsing the Roosevelt-Wallace ticket but third-term advocates rallied behind J. T. Scott, Jr., and elected him.

Both conventions elected slates of delegates to the state Democratic convention at Mineral Wells Sept. 3.

O'Daniel forces were in command at Austin.

Lubbock county Democrats endorsed President Roosevelt and commended his administration.

W. R. Chambers, O'Daniel floor leader in the house last session, got a resolution passed by the Brown county convention endorsing payment of social security obligations with "a reasonable increase" in the tax on natural resources and a tax on luxury items.

Dallas county Democrats who supported opponents of Gov. O'Daniel, in the first primary joined with the governor's friends to make the convention the calmest in Dallas in years. O'Daniel leadership and his administration were approved and the national administration endorsed and congratulated.

In 1939 the average consumption of gasoline by each car was 731 gallons compared with 704 gallons in 1938.

In Missouri, the average asphalt or concrete road lasts about 30 years, the average oil or macadam road 10 years.

House committee, but added that he would accept the judgment of members of that body who had thoroughly studied the problem.

Several Texans, including Representative Luther Johnson of Corsicana, and W. R. Poage of Waco, pondered the idea of intensifying the training high school and college students already receive in the reserve officers' training corps. Pointing out that these youths were of the age group that would be called to the colors in event of war, they asked if it would not be wise and relatively inexpensive to put ROTC enrollees through somewhat more extensive and thorough courses in military science and tactics than they now receive.

nine Britons still in custody in Japan were released something might be done—something without warning, he added—because the Japanese had given no warning of their action.

At that time, an authoritative source had said baldly, although privately, that British-Japanese relations might grow so "impressively worse" that the Japanese might attempt some sort of military pressure against Britain.

Japan, he added, was not likely to take the full step to total war, since that might involve Russia or the United States, but she might try to drive the British from the colony of Hongkong.

Nazi Brags About English Invasion

BERLIN, Aug. 3 (AP)—A German general of aviation talked threateningly today of an invasion of England, not across the tossing channel but with great aerial armadas striking simultaneously in an enveloping and paralyzing movement from the skies.

The pounding of the British Isles by German bombers week after week represents nothing more than "mere pin pricks" set against what is to come, said the general, Karl Schweickhard.

"Our possible positions of takeoff from bases in Scandinavia, from the north sea coast and from the coasts of France," he added, "guarantee the envelopment of England from many sides, with simultaneous arrival of our aircraft at every objective with the heaviest possible bomb loads."

The general, writing in the publication Schiesche Zeitung, asserted Germany had much the better of it in the air, citing England's "greater vulnerability" and the fact that her endangered area was "compressed more closely, compared to German industrial plants spread over a broad territory."

For many days, German strategy apparently has been centered not only in crippling British industrial plants, but in choking Britain's harbors.

During the day, the high command reported new successes against the British at sea. It declared that three armed British merchantmen totaling 16,000 tons had been sunk by bombers yesterday and that a single Nazi submarine in a long cruise had sunk seven armed merchantmen aggregating 56,108 tons.

not conceal their cargo ship losses, even when they reached a safe harbor, that brought England within weeks of famine. In this war they have given out much more detailed statements of such losses than Berlin sponsored figures.

What, for instance, might be the result if the admiralty disclosed that the tide was running so heavily against England in the war at sea that a day could be foreseen when starvation would force capitulation? On the other hand, what would be the result if it became apparent to parliament that the Churchill ministry was misinforming the nation as to the gravity of its plight, and urging it to fight on against hopeless odds?

England is still a democracy, for all the emergency war powers conferred on the prime minister. Parliament could rescind them as quickly as it granted them. For that reason if no other it is probable that Churchill has decreased frankness and accuracy in British official reports on naval or merchant ship casualties, restricted only in so far as naval military exigencies.

And if that is Churchill policy—which Chatterly to tell the British public had news strongly indicates—it is not the British but the German public that is being misinformed as to progress of the battle of Britain. Hitler and his aides need not reckon with German public opinion unless his whole totalitarian house of cards comes down about his ears in the end. In the meantime, offering his own people and the world highly inflated figures on British shipping losses could be deemed good home front propaganda strategy.

A number of bombs fell on southeast England also late tonight but most were said to have landed on wasteland and neither casualties nor damage was reported.

First Suits For Fall Hearing In 31st Court Filed

Three suits were filed in 31st district court as the term drew to a close last week.

Suit on note is cause of action in the case styled Motor Equipment company vs. W. C. Havens and J. F. Hill, in the amount of $1,398.25. Foreclosure of a chattel mortgage lien is also sought. Sturgeon & Sturgeon of Pampa are attorneys for the plaintiff.

Action to set aside an Industrial Accident board award of June 19 of this year is asked in the suit, United Employers Casualty company vs. Emory Dennis.

The ruling was for the company to pay Dennis $926.57 accrued compensation and compensation at $9 a week for 154 4-7 weeks, starting June 17, 1940, for a permanent partial disability of one arm.

Will R. Saunders of Dallas is attorney for the plaintiff.

Damages of $1,000 are asked in the suit styled Paul Revere Fire Insurance company vs. H. F. Wilcox Oil & Gas company.

Action is based on an insurance policy dated April 29, 1939, covering household property on a dwelling on the Wilcox-Combs-Worley lease, nine miles south of Pampa, destroyed by fire and explosion on June 17, 1939.

The policy was in favor of E. E. Cooper. Munning & Shelton of Amarillo are attorneys for the plaintiff.

Expert Explains How Fences To Be Built
Special To The NEWS
COLLEGE STATION, Aug. 3—Well braced and anchored corner posts are to a fence what a good foundation is to a building.

If the end posts of a line of fence are not well braced so that the wire can be stretched tight much of the efficiency of the fence is lost.

Where wires run to a deadman buried at least eight feet back of a corner post will not be in the way, this method of anchoring a corner post is recommended by M. R. Bentley, agricultural engineer of the Texas A. and M. Extension service.

The most important thing is to anchor a post so that it will not rise. A cross bar 16 to 24 inches long, nailed to the bottom of the post on the side opposite to the brace, will keep the post from rising vertically.

Another cross bar near the surface will give greater bearing surface on the post.

Tests have shown that it is better to anchor a corner post down with a cross bar than to depend on the weights of an extremely heavy post or a rough post with rocks packed around it.

Bentley said the most common error found in bracing posts is that the braces are not long enough. These should be nine feet or longer, and of 4 by 4 inch treated lumber or that equivalent in strength and durability in other material.

The most effective braces slope from near the top of the corner post down to near the ground on the brace post.

Political Meetings In Mexico Banned
MEXICO CITY, Aug. 3 (AP)—The federal district department today banned political meetings or demonstrations in an apparent effort to curb any disturbances growing out of the turbulent July 7 presidential election.

The press meanwhile disclosed that the administration party's claimants to congressional posts denounced independent followers of General Juan Andreu Almazan at a secret meeting yesterday and arranged a 24-hour guard around the congressional hall to prevent possible seizure by Almazanistas.

Opening Available For Flying Cadets

Education fitting them for positions as commercial airline pilots at salaries averaging $600 per month await young single men who can qualify as flying cadets.

United States citizens may apply at army recruiting station at Lubbock, Amarillo, Pampa, Childress, or Plainview for particulars and a preliminary physical examination.

Two years college work or an examination in lieu thereof is required. Flying cadets receive $75 per month in cash with all expenses paid during the nine months required to complete the course.

At completion of this training a flying cadet is awarded a commission as a reserve officer in the regular army air corps.

While appropriations are available these reserve officers will be given active duty with the regular army. In addition to extensive flying training the air corps reserve officer is drilled in navigation, engineering, radio and armament. This specialized instruction, coupled with the great amount of flying he will do during his tour of duty, qualifies the reserve officer for executive or administrative positions with civilian airlines as well as positions as pilots or co-pilots.

High school graduates without the necessary college work to become flying cadets are given a preferred position on the list of candidates when they complete their examination after 11 months service as enlisted men in the air corps.

These opportunities and others that will be found in an army career will be explained to all single young men between 18 and 35, without dependent, who inquire at any of the army recruiting stations listed above.

Openings now are available in the coast artillery corps, at Fort Crockett, Texas; the medical department at William Beaumont General Hospital, El Paso, Texas; Fort Sill, Oklahoma; Fitzsimmons General Hospital in Denver, Colorado; Fort Sam

Houston or Fort Bliss, Texas; the quartermaster corps at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, or Normoyle & M. Depot at San Antonio; the air corps at Lowery Field, Colorado or the field artillery at Fort D. A. Russell, Texas.

THANKS
I sincerely wish to thank all my friends for the fine support given me in the race for Constable, Precinct 2.
I will greatly appreciate your continued support and influence in the run-off primary, August 24.

America Wants The Truth

Whatever history's final verdict on the causes of the collapse of France, we know this: there were many causes. But one of them has not been much stressed up to now. And it is important.

It is simply this: the French people were not told the truth about their situation. The result was that, fed on a diet of "credulity, complacency, and imbecile optimism," they were not prepared for the worst when it began to happen. And so their morale crumbled.

A writer for the Manchester Guardian, formerly its Paris correspondent, has called attention to the havoc wrought by the French censorship on the morale of the people.

The censorship, he said, "did not merely suppress unpleasant truths, but it encouraged pleasant falsehoods." For instance, the censorship would not have passed, he said, any reference to the shortage of sugar in Paris. (Yet every Parisian knew it existed.) All articles suggesting that Italy and Spain might split off from Germany were eagerly passed. Anything that suggested that Italy or Spain were unfriendly to the allies was blue-pencil'd.

The result was that the French people lived in a pleasant fog of self-deception. And when military disaster came, most people were so stunned that they could scarcely believe it, let alone cope with it.

Britain hasn't been making that mistake thus far. From Churchill down, their leaders have cried calamity, preparing people for the worst. The British press has freely criticized the state of Britain's readiness.

The result: Britain has not yet shown any sign of cracking. It should be so in the United States. We are a people accustomed to know the truth. Any attempt to suppress it would have a very bad effect.

In our war equipment out of date and pitifully scant? We want to know it. Are efforts being made to "muscle in" on American hemisphere interests? We want to know it. Precisely what commitments, expressed or implied, has our government made to other nations? We want to know.

The American people is like that. It will not respond unless its leaders take it completely into their confidence. It does not thrive when spoon-fed on a pap of complacency and wishful optimism. It grows strong only on a diet of the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—Sooner or later, the Roosevelt administration is going to be forced to make up its mind whether it considers the anti-trust law an obstacle or an asset to its great rearmament program.

The decision will be forced on it partly, at least, by the energetic official now charged with enforcing that law—Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold, head of the anti-trust division.

Arnold argues that full-capacity high-speed production of essential goods and materials cannot possibly be had until combinations which restrain trade in the interest of stabilized prices and "orderly" marketing are broken up.

He argues, further, that such combinations exist in almost every great industry—with a few important exceptions. Despite a lot of undercover opposition, he is going ahead as fast as the men and money at his disposal permit, his record-breaking oil trust suit being only the most recent move.

At the other pole is the National Defense Committee. ARNOLD DUE TO HIT HARDER. No direct or indirect protest at Arnold's activities has come from top-Committeemen Stettinius or Knudsen.

From lesser lights there has come a good deal of muttering; from various army and navy officers, a good deal more. This is natural enough. The committee's job is to place a lot of orders and get quick delivery, which is also what the army and navy are interested in; in anti-trust suits and investigations make manufacturers jittery and seem likely to cause delay, protests are inevitable.

So far, things have not come to a head. During the next few months, however, Arnold's shafts are going to hit various firms which make essential war materials on government order. Complaints will increase, and the administration will have to choose.

PRICE FACTS AID TO HITLER. Meanwhile, Arnold cites current British experience as bearing out his argument. The ultra-conservative London Economist, in its July 15 issue, remarks that only now is Britain realizing how badly its war effort has been delayed by the network of marketing and production agreements and price-maintenance devices built up in British industry in the last two decades.

The magazine comments that this "is emphatically not a set of ideas that can be expected to yield the maximum of production," and adds: "British industry, by and large, has until recent weeks been making the maximum effort compatible with no disturbance to its customs now or to its profit-making capacity hereafter."

The same sort of thing, says Arnold, is true on this side of the water. He also argues that monopolistic practices in America (and in England) have been of inestimable value to Hitler in recent years. That, as he sees it, works out like this: A given industry "stabilizes" its domestic price structure, limiting its yield to keep prices up. Its surplus is dumped abroad—to fall into Hitler's lap, to the vast benefit of his bolstered economy. Or surplus capital, instead of being invested at home—there's no place

Common Ground

This column contends there can be no satisfactory progress until we measure the shares of each man by the common yardstick of the God-given equal right to create and enjoy anything anyone else has a right to create and enjoy.

WORTHY TROUBLE ONLY A QUESTION OF TIME

The news reports that four of the officers in charge of relief in Los Angeles were taken prisoner for four hours by relief protesters, is a warning of what is bound sooner or later to be a grave situation. It is only a question of time, if we keep on paying such exorbitant pensions, having such arbitrary minimum wages and permitting labor racketeers to establish such arbitrary working conditions and politicians wasting so much of our wealth, that we will have more and more riots, and eventually complete collapse.

When Governor Olson of California contends that the cause of this is the fact that the legislators had refused to add additional taxes and contended this could be done without placing a burden on consumers, farmers and workers, the Governor either believes in magic or he is deliberately trying to fool the public in order to keep himself in power. There never was a more ridiculous statement than that additional taxes can be placed without adding an additional burden to the consumer.

The point we are trying to make is that no state or federal government can continue to teach people to live without work, without eventually losing all their liberty and their property. The sure receiver, that is some dictator, takes control. The suffering and the misery is infinitely greater than it would be if we went back to fundamental principles and contended that each man should live by the sweat of his face.

The very crux of our trouble is the absurd theory that minimum wages can be established without causing unemployment. It is the cause of millions of people being unemployed and billions of dollars worth of wealth not being produced, which is so badly needed.

A TIMELY AND WONDERFUL BOOK

One of the finest books I have read in recent years is the Life, Work and Ideals of Roger Williams by Charles Longacre, (Review and Herald Publishing Association, Takoma Park, Washington, D. C.), dedicated to the cause of civil and religious liberty. Would that every American could read a copy of this book.

I am ordering a copy for each one of my children. If anyone buys a copy of this book which costs $1 and does not think he has his money's worth, if he will mail it to me, I will refund him the money. I do not personally know the author of the book or the publishers.

The author gives Roger Williams credit for creating the desire for equality of freedom through the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution. He points out that after Williams had started the state of Rhode Island and was the first Baptist preacher at Providence, "The Baptists carried that message to Virginia, where they suffered much persecution; and Thomas Jefferson and James Madison became their attorneys and the defenders and champions of their cause for the disestablishment of religion." The ideas of Roger Williams found a rebirth in these two American champions of civil and religious liberty and Thomas Jefferson gave expression to them in the Declaration of Independence, and James Madison in the Constitution of the United States.

The author of the book says, "He (Williams) spoke and wrote of Jesus Christ as the Author of all our liberties and the Deliverer from all our bondage."

As a tribute to Roger Williams, the author has the following to say: "Roger Williams blazed a trail in search of civil and religious liberty, others followed that trail; he plowed the first furrow across a virgin field, others cultivated the plowed ground; he planted the seeds of liberty, others watered them; he sowed, others reaped the harvest; he dug diamonds in the rough out of the mine, others polished them; he cut the original pattern, others copied it; he was as a sun shining in its meridian brightness, all others were as satellites revolving around him; he conceived a republic 'in civil things only' in Rhode Island, others extended it throughout the United States of America; he laid the foundation for a super-structure, others built thereon; he was the architect of a representative democracy, others followed his plans; he separated the church and the state completely, others hewed to that line of demarcation; he set the conscience of the individual above governmental authority; others maintained its supremacy; he gave us a precious heritage of civil and religious liberty, and others have merely defended and preserved it to this day."

It is a most important book at this critical time.

ARMOR AGAIN? (Reno Evening Gazette). Now it is said that despite what has been described as "progress" in the technique of making war there is possibility that modern military leaders may go back to the practice of providing armor for their fighters. British military authorities are reported to be considering adopting an "armor" devised by a New York man. United States officials are also studying the outfit, which is said to resemble an elaborate baseball chest protector.

On improvement on the bullet proof vest, the "armor" protects the back and sides as well as the front. In tests it is said to have stopped bullets from a Thompson submachine gun, and from a German Mauser pistol at a distance of 25 yards. It is composed of thin layers of secret formula steel separated by narrow strips of thin rubber, and the whole covered with khaki canvas.

Major nations have been experimenting with armor for years. They have been balked, however, by the fact that no outfit resistant to high power rifle bullets could be devised weighing less than an impractical 55 or 40 pounds. This new jacket is said to weigh 15 pounds.

DID HE EXPECT THAT? (Daily Oklahoman). No matter what kind of politics the president had in mind when he appointed Knox and Stimson, the appointments made the Republican convention so mad that it nominated a Democrat for the presidency. We wonder if that was the reaction the president was expecting.

for it, because increased production is not wanted—invested in Germany, to increase the production capacity of the German industrial machine.

GETTING TO SLEEP ON A WARM SUMMER NIGHT

World News At A Glance

By PAUL HARRISON. HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 3—The whole town's talking about "The Great McGinty," a robit, punch-packed, sure-fire comedy hit about politics in a big city. Loud, sentimental, and mostly funny in agreeable proportions, it is the nearest job of straightaway entertainment that has come from the film factories in a year.

It was made at less than average cost and in less than average time. "The Great McGinty" has no great names in its cast, and it is the first picture ever directed by Preston Sturges, who also wrote the story. Brian Donley, in the top role, had been playing stereotyped heavies for years and had about despaired of ever getting such a part as this. England's Muriel Angelus, who has the feminine lead, was heartbroken at being dismissed by Paramount shortly before the preview the other night. She feels better now. Every studio in town is bidding for her.

The story probably was the cheapest ever purchased. When Sturges, long an ace screen writer, was given a directorship by Paramount, he asked to be allowed to film this original comedy. Executives said no, that they had another story they liked better and could get cheaper. "Not cheaper," said Sturges. "You can have the McGinty story for nothing if I direct it." So the deal was made, with Sturges getting a check for $10 to make it legal.

BOOM TOWN. Biggest picture soon to hit the screen is "Boom Town," a West Texas oil yarn. This movie also is swell entertainment. "Boom Town" has been fashioned by routine processes, and it stands for everything in the pretentious Hollywood tradition. It's loaded with stars—Claudette Colbert, Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, and Hedy Lamarr, in that financial order. The director, Jack Conway, is a town and oil derrick built on Metro's back lot. Without preliminary title or credits, the first few seconds of the picture seem to promise only a dull commercial short about the oil industry. Long Beach fans who happened to be present during a surprise showing, straightened in astonishment when a barber yanked a steaming towel from the ruggan pad of an oil worker who looked like Spencer Tracy. They yipped with excited comprehension when Clark Gable entered, and a moment later cheered at the sight of the Misses Colbert and Lamarr.

I have no idea how much money the picture cost, except that $1,500,000 is the smallest figure mentioned. People close to the production say that two million dollars is a conservative estimate. The highly paid director, Jack Conway, indulged by the highly paid producer, Sam Zimbalist, did a perfectionist's job in the profligate fashion which only rich Metro can afford.

It cost so much, and is acknowledged to be such an exceptional feature, that M-G-M now is trying it out in five representative cities with the idea of offering it everywhere at advanced prices.

WHY UNIFORM ADMISSIONS? "Boom Town" will be well worth the extra tariff. I see no reason why all pictures should be offered at uniform prices any more than a Kaufman-Hart stage hit should be presented at Minsky-Moron admissions. But I do believe there is a business moral to be drawn by Hollywood between the fantastically expensive, star-studded epic and the unconventional $250,000 "Great McGinty."

The latter will be cherished longer in the memory of the fans, will earn a vastly greater profit, will bring inestimable prestige to worthy players, and will be chalked up as a commercial and artistic triumph.

TEX'S TOPICS

By Tex DeWesse. BY THE time you have had breakfast, got the kids off to Sunday school and have sat down to read your paper, Pampa's 1940 soap derby champion will be on his way to Akron where one week from today he hopes to put Pampa on the map by finishing among the winners in the All-American and International derby. It has been our good fortune to take Mark Bratton, the 15-year-old Pampa champion this year, to Akron where he will drive The Pampa News car down the 1,200-foot course in competition with newspaper cars from more than 125 cities in the U. S., Canada, Mexico, and the Panama Canal Zone.

By dusk this evening, if everything goes well, we will be at the Top O' The Ozarks, some 600 miles east of Pampa. Perhaps on Monday we shall shoot up from Indianapolis just in order to pass through Wendell Willkie's hometown of Elwood, Ind. We shall have a carload of good Democrats with us, so they may get a kick out of visiting the native town of a Democrat who was smart enough to fool the Republicans into nominating him for their president. On Wednesday we expect to pull up at Russell's Point, on Indian Lake in Ohio—as nice an inland summer playground as you will find anywhere. Thursday may find us on Lake Erie, grandest and most treacherous of the five Great Lakes.

IN mid-afternoon of next Friday Champ Bratton will get the thrill of his life. At the city limits of Akron he will be met by a police motor escort and will be taken behind shrieking sirens to downtown Akron where he must meet him. Rubber City's palatial Mayflower hotel to the tune of "The Eyes of Texas." From that moment on up through the afternoon of the big international race there'll be something doing for him every minute. Young Bratton will be treated as a king for three days. He'll be dined and entertained to his heart's content.

Here's something we'd like to have you keep in mind. Mark Bratton is figuring on winning that All-American race and the honors that go with it a week from today. The best part of it is, he probably has a better chance than any other boy at Akron. But, we do not wish to say too much about that now. There can be many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip. But, if everything goes as it should and he doesn't get stage fright or lose control of his car, the Pampa champion is bound to meet him, the Top O' Texas in the national and international spotlight from the standpoint of its greatest of amateur sports events.

THIS All-American Soap Box Derby, now in its seventh year, has grown to such proportions that within a year or two it may be necessary to limit the champions to two in Akron to two boys from each state—winners in each of the two class ranges who would be selected in a state elimination contest. Incidentally, Herman Krieger, KPDN editor for the last night, was endeavoring to make ar-agement to carry the soap box finals from Akron over KPDN. A lot of red tape must be gone through to do this, so at this stage of the game Mr. Krieger said he wasn't sure on how his plans would turn out in that direction.

So much for the derby. Here's a word or two about politics before leaving town. After delving inside and out and in all four directions, hearing this story and that story, The News has come to the conclusion that Gene Worley and Deek Wells in the race for congress both are good men either of whom would get the job done for the Panhandle in Washington. It's a lot easier to ride the fence in a case like that than it is to take sides. Particularly, when the voters of this area have just about come to the conclusion that victory was theirs when Wells and Worley went into the race. Many have told us in the past few days, that no matter which way the wind blows at the second primary, the voters can't lose. So it looks like a landslide. We shall have a carload of good Democrats with us, so they may get a kick out of visiting the native town of a Democrat who was smart enough to fool the Republicans into nominating him for their president. On Wednesday we expect to pull up at Russell's Point, on Indian Lake in Ohio—as nice an inland summer playground as you will find anywhere. Thursday may find us on Lake Erie, grandest and most treacherous of the five Great Lakes.

IN the senatorial race, our preference goes to Max Boyer, of Perryton, who led the field in the July 27 primary. We like Mr. Boyer in having Mr. Boyer down in Austin fighting for this area of the Panhandle, too. Amarillo, naturally, wouldn't feel too anxious about this highway. It is right to assume that an Amarillo candidate might be embarrassed if elected and asked to fight for this road. Mr. Boyer also is on record to do all within his power to keep the Panhandle going industrially. That's a need that may grow more and more imperative within the next year or so.

SHE WAS TRYING. Miss Marie-Marie, you were entertaining a man in the kitchen last night, weren't you? Marie—That's for him to say, man. But I tried my best—Pathfinder.

The Paris museum has on exhibition an emerald taken from the mitre of Pope Julius II, who died in 1531.

This year 1,300,000 trees will be planted in the southwestern "dust bowl."

OUR DEFENSE-- The Size Of Our Defense Program. The President, as commander-in-chief of the army and navy, has requested approximately $100,000,000 to build up our army and navy. The congress was asked to permit the President to raise the limit on 1,200,000 and to provide means for obtaining equipment sufficient to outfit an additional 800,000 men who might be called to the colors. At the present moment we have a force of 500,000 men made up of the regular army, the national guard, and the organized reserves. Under the terms of the new defense program, we will have to provide men and materials to increase our armed forces to 1,700,000. And we have to do it in a hurry. Now that's no simple problem. It's more than just opening the door and announcing, "We would like to hire a million and a half men" and having them step right up and become soldiers. The men have to be trained. They have to become familiar with the complex instruments of modern warfare. In order to do that they have to be equipped with those instruments, and plenty of them. A modern army needs everything from safety pins to locomotives. It needs guns and ammunition to be sure, and those guns and ammunition must be of the most modern type, and be effective. To put a modern army in the field calls for clothes, food, and medical supplies. It also calls for a means of getting to the battle, and means of supply when it gets there. Modern war is total war. We must be fully prepared. The Job Ahead. Accomplishing this task in the face of an emergency requires coordination of our resources of men and materials, and above all coordination of our huge industrial plant that is the backbone of the nation in peace as well as in war. Many of the supplies we are going to need are turned out every day by the nation's industries. These can be procured by the government through normal channels of industry. But many others are special equipment needed only for defense. These must be especially built for us, some in new plants. In making these special instruments, we must minimize interference with normal requirements of the nation. But we have to have them just the same. To see that this operation goes ahead fast and efficiently, the President appointed the National Defense Advisory Commission on May 28, 1940. This commission is composed of men who are particularly qualified by special knowledge of an industry, public utility, of some natural resource, or are otherwise specially qualified for our military task is to translate the defense program from laws on the statute books, from a blueprint, into actual supplies. Their problem rests upon three vital questions. What do we need? Where is it? How do we get it? It perhaps is the greatest unified effort ever undertaken by the American people. It has already started. What We Need. The outlines of the job under way are already clear. On May 16, the President asked congress to provide $1,182,000,000 for defense. On May 31, he again sent a message declaring the incredible events abroad, during the latter part of May, necessitated another $1,277,741,170 to speed up preparation for our military and naval needs. On July 10, due to further drastic changes in the world situation, and because of the united will of the American people to defend themselves against all enemies, foreign and domestic, the President asked for further appropriation of $4,848,171,957 for national defense. This would provide for: Equipping a navy to meet any possible combination of hostile forces. Total equipment for a land force of 1,200,000 men. Reserve stocks of tanks, guns, and artillery ammunition for an additional 800,000 men. 15,000 additional planes for the army and 4,000 for the navy. Manufacturing facilities, public and private to produce essential equipment required for our forces. In order to provide that equipment, we determine what the army and navy need, in terms of uniforms, guns, tanks, planes, and ships. This is broken down into raw materials. Provision is made for processing these raw materials. Plants are provided to convert these materials into the weapons to put into the hands of the troops. The nation is like a gigantic production line. A breakdown at any point along the hundreds of raw materials' lines might stall the whole machine. That must not happen. As fast as the men are ready, the materials must be ready. This series will explain how this is being accomplished.

Method Of Branding Has Never Been Improved Upon

(By The Associated Press)

Texas history ever will be associated with the spring roundup when the stamp of ownership was burned into the hide of countless fledgling steers. Writers of wild west fiction have taught the generations to see only romance in the assembly of the herds, but as a matter of cold fact there was probably little romance in the howling of distressed calves, the odor of burning hair and flesh and sweating cowboys disciplining fractious cattle.

Branding, however, is almost wholly of Texas origin and practice. Before the homesteader and sheepmen came to the plains Texas herds were limited to the amount of range one outfit could pasture, and experience finally established that a brand was the one permanent identification of ownership. The method never has been improved upon. Even today it is used upon herds shrunken by comparison with those of free-range days, within the fences of the remaining large ranches in Texas. Over the years the great number of brands that were devised tell of the ranchman's ingenuity in designs and naming them, and of the frontier blacksmith's skill in realizing the owner's ideas in iron.

Many of these insignia of long-horn ownership long ago were retired from use but their sagas may be read in a collection of brand marks in the museum of the West Texas Historical and Scientific society at Sul Ross Teachers college, Alpine. The collection was started several years ago by Henry T. Fletcher, Brewster county banker and ranchman, who delegated to himself and others who would help the task of assembling old Texas signs of historical interest.

The brands were registered in a "Brand Book" and the unwritten law made them as inviolable as a copyright. The very swing of western ranch history is recorded in this book. The Half-Circle and Jug, recorded by Miss Katie and J. A. Anderson in 1901 and run around Nine Points Mesa until 1915, is one entry in the Domesday Book of West Texas cattleland.

One of the rarest specimens bears the small letter "s." Made at Marlin

In 1864, it was one of the irons of the Anti-Horse-thief association of Texas. The organization was started about 1860 and comprised two divisions. The southern section branded the "s" on the left jaw of the animals and the north division a "c" on the right jaw, but the latter subsequently was adopted in the south. Gift of the little iron was accompanied by an affidavit of authenticity.

The handle was broken off, the affidavit said, over the head of a horse thief in a fight with officers of the association at a rustler's hangout known as Dark Corner in Falls county. Eight thieves and two officers were killed in this final stand of horse-thieves in that region.

A very fine specimen of the Kokernot brand is believed to represent one of the oldest brands in Texas. The brand was registered at Indianola on the coast in 1838, says Herbert L. Kokernot, "and has been in continuous use since. My great-grandfather, James and four generations of Kokernots have used it." The Kokernot complete brand is "06."

The Kokernot in Jeff Davis, Brewster, Pecos and Reeves counties covers about 600 square miles and is one of the largest in the Trans-Pecos region. Regardless, it is a mere dot in the 15,114 square miles of the four counties.

The "speciale G," one of the most original specimens in the group, was registered in the Jeff Davis county brand book on Aug. 10, 1887, by George McGuire, a Portuguese-Irish soldier at old Fort Davis, who had stacked arms and become a frontier cattleman. It was a five-inch circle with a three-inch letter "G" in the center. McGuire burned it into the calf's hide in two places and connected the impressions with crossed lines.

Originally he used only the "Circle G," but thieves burned the G to another circle and called it "Double Circle," or "wheel-within-a-wheel." Another variation was obtained by putting two or three lines across it and calling it "Wagon Wheel." Only this specimen of the old iron is known to exist. Two-thirds of the handle is gone, but what remains weighs more than five pounds. One brand likely to have lasting

Germans Sinking Less Tonnage In Recent Months

(By The Associated Press)

At their face value, statistics on shipping destroyed by bomb and torpedo in the Reich's 11-month counter-blockade indicated today an actual tapering off at a time when some German officials picture the campaign at full tilt.

Authorized sources in Berlin said that July's toll against merchant shipping amounted to 260,000 tons.

Linking this with the 250,000 tons of claimed damage to merchant shipping during the first 10 months of the war—a figure hooted at in London as a four-to-one exaggeration—averages out to 432,921 tons monthly as compared with 260,000 tons for the 11th month.

German comment in recent days has been picturing the present air and naval pressure on British shipping as sufficient in itself to crack Britain's resistance. Hence, the decline in claims strikes a surprising note.

The estimate of 260,000 tons for July was forthcoming in Berlin in advance of a high command report that a returning submarine had sunk 46,108 tons of merchant ships in an unspecified period.

However, even adding this to the July total would fall far short of the claimed average for the preceding 10 months.

The tabulation of destruction for August has been modest thus far. The high command reported one merchant ship sunk two days ago and three, totaling 16,000 tons, sunk yesterday.

In dropping the July claim to 260,000 tons, the Germans approach the monthly average for the 51 months of the World War—250,000 tons—whereas the claim for the first 10 months of this war represents an average in excess of 406,000 tons monthly average for the 21-month campaign of unrestricted submarine warfare of 1917-18.

Build-Up Of Home Morale Seen In Japanese Threats

(By MAX BOYD)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 (AP)—Japan's announcement that she will pursue a foreign policy designed to bring French Indo-China and the Netherlands Indies under her domain is regarded by some veteran students here of the Far East as designed primarily to bolster morale at home.

They do not dismiss the possibility that Japan might take advantage of Britain's preoccupation with the threat of a German invasion, and of American concern over defenses in the Atlantic, to put the policy into effect by early military action. But, they contended, this would be a difficult undertaking for a nation already supporting 1,000,000 fighting men in China and devoting a large percentage—reportedly one-third—of its national income to the army and navy.

It appears more likely, these analysts said, that Tokyo would attempt to bring Indo-China and the Netherlands Indies within her orbit gradually by a process of economic penetration.

This would include the sending of an increasing number of traders into these countries to get the raw materials which Japan wants from them and to exploit their markets for Japanese goods. The gradual acquisition of plantations in the two regions would be another possible means of peaceful penetration.

What this country would do if Japan undertook to grab the Indies and Indo-China is a matter of conjecture.

The United States obtains rubber and tin, vital to the national defense, and other important imports from the two regions whose homelands have been conquered by Hitler. Japanese domination would not necessarily mean that the flow of these materials to America would be halted, however, although this doubtless would be the case if Japan became allied closely with the axis powers and the United States went to war with them.

Secretary Hull has warned repeatedly that any attempt to change the status quo of Indo-China and the Indies by force would endanger the peace of the entire Pacific. He has emphasized this country's desire to see the principals of international law and order maintained.

This government has already set up an export licensing system which could be used to shut off completely United States exports of scrap metal and petroleum to Japan. The licensing system is now affecting only a fraction of the products upon which it could be brought to bear.

fame is the old "U-up-and-Down," still to be seen on cattle within the shadow of the great McDonald observatory. It was recorded in Jeff Davis county April 29, 1891, by G. S. Locke who founded the old Locke ranch in the hills where the observatory later was established. The insignia was obtained by combining an upright U with the same letter upside down. Another brand resembling a running W was called the Worm Fence brand and was used for many years by a colored ranchman named S. M. Miller.

Reading brands is a knack, old timers say—sometimes a real feat. Mexicans are disposed to make quick unreadable brands and American cattlemen are apt to call them "Queen Sabe" to avoid admitting they cannot read them. It was the practice to identify brands that could not be "read," but regardless, any experienced cowboy will argue himself black in the face that there is only one true "Queen Sabe." It is made by two half circles facing, one a little up and the other a little down.

Panhandle Wells Gauge 3,642 Barrels

12 Locations Staked Last Week In Field

The Panhandle oilfield swung back into the active list last week with 14 new oil wells, one new gas well and 12 new locations. The previous week was exceptionally quiet, especially in first intentions to drill when only three were reported.

The 14 new wells added 3,642 barrels to the field potential while the gas well was good for 10,000 barrels. Hutchinson county paced the field with nine of the new wells. Carson county registered four new locations, Gray and Hutchinson three each and Moore two.

The Texas company's wildcat in Childress county was drilling ahead below 3,300 feet while the Humble wildcat in Hall county was at 4,500 feet.

Slipping Oilers Drop 2 Games To Lamesa Lobos

LAMESA, Aug. 3—In an orgy of base hits, errors, and what have you, Lamesa took their third straight from Pampa tonight 25 to 11. After the sixth inning it was a complete farce, Prather pitching the seventh and eight.

Of the 39 hits, eight were doubles and seven home runs.

Spangler homered in the sixth with the bases loaded.

The Lobos came from behind in the afternoon to win 8 to 6. Force had two bad innings, the second and fifth, but managed to pull thru. However he was relieved by Patterson at the start of the seventh, who retired the Oilers with two singles in the last three frames.

Dutch Prather led an assault on Force with three singles while Potter bagged a double and single.

Dillbeck played sensational defensive ball, starting three double plays but the elongated lefthander showed the strain of too steady mound work. Errors didn't help him any either.

Proof that the lefthander was off was the fact that he walked two and whiffed only two. On his last appearance here he fanned 16 batters, and lost the game because of errors.

Bulla Cards 131 In First Half PGA Open

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 3 (AP)—Coming in with a brilliant second round card of 65 which gave him the year's lowest 36-hole total in a P. G. A. sanctioned tournament, big Johnny Bulla of Chicago captured the half-way point lead in the $5,000-72-hole Milwaukee open golf championship today with a total of 131 strokes, 11 under par for the North Hills course.

Working on an opening round 66, Bulla went out today in 31 shots, four under par, and came home in 94, two under regulation figures. His 36-hole aggregate missed by only one stroke of tying the all-time Professional Golfers association mark of 130, made last year by Byron Nelson in the Phoenix open.

Bulla's remarkable performance, however, gave him only a one-stroke edge over Ed Oliver of Hornell, N. Y., as the field of 60 low scorers and ties headed into tomorrow's 36-hole final. Oliver had a second straight 66 today on nines of 33-33 for a 132 aggregate.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3 (AP)—Kayak II won the $20,000 Sunset handicap at Hollywood park today, defeating Specify in a stretch duel, with Big Flash, third.

Kayak II, redeeming himself for a poor showing a week ago, collared Specify as the field turned into the stretch and won by a head.

The time for the mile and one-half closing feature of Hollywood park was 2 minutes 30 1-5 seconds.

Kayak II, owned by C. S. Howard, was the betting favorite with the crowd of 35,000. The Argentine paid $4.80, $4.00 and $3.40. Specify paid $3.00 and $3.40, and Big Flash $5.00.

Texans Seek More Federal Funds For A. & M. College

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 (AP)—With congress disputing whether conscription is necessary to build up the army and navy, Texans in the national legislature say they wonder why the government doesn't make military training available to all the young men who want it at the nation's largest military school—Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college.

(Not even West Point enrolls as many students in military science and tactics courses as does Texas A. & M.)

The congressman proposes to discuss that problem Tuesday at a luncheon here in the capitol with the school's president, Dr. T. O. Walton, and to take it up with the war department. Most active in the drive here are Representatives Luther Johnson of Corsicana, in whose district A. & M. is located, and W. R. Poage of Waco.

Johnson declared that in the past few years a great part of junior and senior agronomy students have been rejected for further military science courses because the war department had not allocated sufficient funds.

Eight Gray County Boys To 4-H Meet

Gray county will be represented by eight boys at the district 4-H encampment to be held August 8, 9, and 10, at Lake Marvin, when boys from 22 Panhandle counties will gather.

Winners of the trip for Gray county were announced at the county camp held Thursday and Friday at the Edward Gething ranch, six miles south of Laketon. The boys are Roy Dale Andrews, Grandview, Billy Sanders, Alanreed, and Edward Benson, LeFors, 4-H club presidents, Conard Miller, and E. B. Reeves, both of Alanreed, Leo Ferguson, LeFors, Fern Berry, Grandview. The county winner, yet to be chosen, will make the eighth member of the party.

Ferguson and Miller were chosen on the basis of their records in raising grain sorghums, Buddy Babcock of Grandview won the dairy cattle judging contest, with W. L. Ferguson of LeFors, second.

Attendance at the camp was 22. Supervision was by County Farm Agent Ralph R. Thomas of Pampa and the sponsors, John R. Spearman, Pampa, Everett Hall, Alanreed, and Jim Babcock, Grandview.

'Deaf' Defendant Hears Case Filed!

NEWTON, Mass., Aug. 3 (AP)—"This makes your 100th time in court," said Judge James Delay today to the man who faced him charged with drunkenness.

The defendant cupped one ear.

"I can't hear you, judge," the defendant shook his head, still cupping the ear. Once again. No luck.

Finally, the clerk murmured to the judge—hardly more than a whisper: "I suggest you place the case on file."

The defendant smiled.

"Thank you," he said.

Cool As A Cucumber Is Cool In Nebraska

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 3 (AP)—Cool as a cucumber means exactly that. With the temperature in the muggy nineties, a group of scientific minded Omahans went out to Edward Bailey's cucumber patch.

Genevieve Albert, a surgical nurse, jotted down the official temperature—96 degrees. She noted the ground temperature—98 degrees. Then she inserted the thermometer into a large, well-formed cucumber. In less than a minute the mercury went down to 78.

Lindbergh, McCarran To Address Peace Gathering

The cymbal is the oldest known musical instrument made of brass. It was used as early as 1047 B. C.

ARMY CADETS STUDY BIG GUNS

Communist Trouble In Hungary Feared

BUCHAREST, Aug. 3 (AP)—Fears of Communist disturbances in Hungary and of Hungarian disorders in Rumanian-held Transylvania complicated the Balkan situation tonight as Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania prepared for an attempt to settle their boundary differences in a manner acceptable to the axis powers.

Transylvanian leaders said they were told by Foreign Minister Mihail Manoilescu that it was fear of the strong Communist movement in Hungary getting out of hand which led Fuehrer Adolf Hitler to demand a settlement of territorial claims without further delay.

Hungary wants the return of Transylvania which she lost to Rumania in the World War; but Hitler's idea of a settlement is reported to involve only partial satisfaction of the Hungarian territorial claims, together with a wholesale transfer of populations to make racial frontiers harmonize with national boundaries.

Hungarians in Transylvania meanwhile are impatiently demanding quick transfer of territory to Hungary, and former Premier Julius Maniu, the Transylvanian peasant leader, said he feared disorders by the Hungarian minority might lead to serious trouble there.

Bulgaria wants the southern Dobruja as its share of the forthcoming Balkan settlement and the arrival in Sofia today of Victor Kadare, Rumanian minister to Yugoslavia, was taken to mean preliminary negotiations for a transfer of territory already are well advanced. It was assumed Kadare would make arrangements for formal negotiations to open in Bucharest next week.

District Court Room Coolest In Building

District Judge W. R. Ewing presided over the 31st district court room one day last week, and was the only person in the room.

He wasn't rehearsing for the September term, or taking a postman's holiday, either.

Due to the heat, Judge Ewing found the court room the coolest place to work, much cooler than his many-windowed office, which reflects all the glare of the late afternoon.

Seated on the bench, the judge was reviewing his docket and preparing orders in connection with the closing of the term.

'Turnabout' To Be Previewed On Thursday Night

A special preview of Thorne Smith's comedy, "Turnabout," a Hal Roach-United Artists picture, with John Hubbard, Mary Astor, and Adolphe Menjou as the principals, will be held at 11:30 o'clock Thursday night at the LaNora.

In keeping with the basic idea of the comedy, the theory of each sex that the other has the best of the bargain in married life, the theater cashier will be attired as a man, the doorman dressed as a woman, and certain couples will be admitted at no charge as guests of the theater.

These couples will be the ones married in Pampa after July 1, 1940, who present their marriage licenses at the theater box office. A special section of the theater seats will be reserved for them.

In addition to couples, the first 12 men who appear dressed as women will be admitted on the same conditions, as will the first 12 girls who come to the theater dressed as men. Slack suits are barred for the latter group.

Burnet Engineer Drowns

Marriage Of Miss McKinney And Ray Evans Solemnized Saturday

Couple To Be At Home Here Following Trip

Miss Maxine McKinney, daughter of Mrs. Birdie E. McKinney, became the bride of Ray Evans in an impressive wedding ceremony solemnized Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, 314 West Francis street.

The Rev. Robert Boshen, minister of the First Presbyterian church, officiated at the ceremony which was read before an improvised altar of white pleated satin topped with a garland of light pink pomposes and gypsophylla in front of which stood a white candelabrum with pink tapers. The setting was completed with Kentia palms and bouquets of pink and white gladioli.

Following the ceremony, Miss Jinxie Seary played "Ode to the Dusk to You" and "Liebestraum." As the bride and groom entered, Miss Seary played Mendelssohn's Wedding March, and as the vows were spoken, "Oh Promise Me" was played softly.

The bride wore a gown of light blue organdy fashioned with a high neck line, puffed sleeves, and a full skirt, falling from a snug midriff. Her only jewelry was a cameo brooch which belonged to her grandmother. Her flowers were pink roses. She wore a matching cluster headpiece and carried a white lace handkerchief.

The couple was unattended. At the informal reception held immediately following the ceremony, the table was laid with a lace cloth over pink satin and centered with a three-tier wedding cake surrounded by Briarcliff roses and pink candles. The bride's sister, Mrs. J. E. Honaker, served the cake and Mrs. Bob Mullen presided at the punch bowl.

The couple left on a wedding trip after the reception. Mrs. Evans chose a navy and light blue ensemble with matching accessories for traveling. After the trip, the couple will be at home at 311 North Faulkner.

Mrs. Kelley Gives Demonstration On Salads For Leaders

"Salads are economical foods because they are essential to the adequate diet," said Mrs. Julia E. Kelley, county home demonstration agent as she demonstrated the making of different salads in her home to club leaders.

"Raw fruits and vegetables are needed to furnish the body with the necessary vitamins and minerals; left-overs may be used to make delicious and attractive salads and when nuts, eggs or cheese are used in combinations and served with an accompaniment, they make an entire meal."

A few salad principles emphasized were: Fruit and vegetables should be clean, fresh and crisp; cold salads should be served cold, and hot salads, hot; garnishes make a salad more appetizing but are not so essential.

One nourishing, inexpensive salad made for the group was diced potato salad made by dicing potatoes, eggs, pickles, celery, and mixing lightly together with minced onion to taste and salt and pepper with just enough dressing to hold lightly together.

Clubs represented included Kingsmill, Bell, Hopkins, Wayside, Bluebonnet, and Eastside.

Designer Revolts Against Dictatorship Over Fashions

Brenda Joyce wears Travis Banton's dinner dress for a week of the year. It's of white crepe with neckline and bracelet of large white wooden beads.

By LUCIE NEVILLE

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 3.—If you're buying dog-day clothes—with the anxious hope that they'll be wearable in the fall, too, maybe you'll like some pointers from a Hollywood designer who doesn't follow the weather. Travis Banton isn't concerned with what Paris used to say, doesn't give a damn whether this year's color card will list red as "poisonous" or "flamingo." He dresses 20th-century stars according to their screen roles, and his ideas of what's most flattering to them.

"Naturally, organdy's for summer and fur coats are for winter," Banton conceded. "But beyond that, colors and fabrics shouldn't be classified according to the season. What's wrong with a gay suit in July, instead of April? Why can't you wear print silks except in spring? Must everybody leap into black silk dresses just because it's the first of September?"

However, if the reason you choose black for your first autumn dress is because you have a grand mahogany sun-tan to show off and aren't just playing follow-the-leader—that's all right. Latin beauties don't have any closed season on black, he pointed out, because it's so becoming to their brunet skins.

As for fabrics, he argues, why is woolen so taboo for hot weather? (I saw a few white frocks, in the resort collections, made of a baby-soft, feather-light wool called "albatross," but only at the ritzier places.) In a sheer weight, it's cooler than silk, doesn't muss as badly as linen. Economy?—a yellow or pink thin wool frock will look as pretty this winter under a fur coat as it does now, worn with white accessories.

LEAPING HYENAS OR GOATS WITH WINGS
Newest suits he has designed for Betty Grable, who'll wear them in "Down Argentine Way," are in "Banton" wool, named for him because he uses it so much. Banton says it tailors as well as it drapes; its reverse side is similar to jersey, the surface close-napped and soft.

One suit is blue, with buttons of inch-long silver shears, its accompanying topcoat a plaid with a blue ground; the other is slate-gray, its short jacket single-breasted, with a collarless neckline, and fastened with dull silver buckles in animal shapes. Mr. Banton calls them leaping hyenas; my guess is that they're goats with wings.

Pockets are conspicuously absent from Banton-designed dresses and suits. If you need one to carry your lunch or a gamsack, he says gloomily, pockets are fine; otherwise, why bulge?

Notice the dolman sleeves and the insets of print—royal blue poppies on black and white striped silk—in the front of the skirt.

Schiaparelli Inspires And Worries United States Designers

By AMY PORTER
NEW YORK, Aug. 3—Madame Elsa Schiaparelli, famous Paris couturier, arrives in this country at a critical time.

This fall, for the first time in history, there'll be "American Fashion Openings," instead of "Paris Fashion Openings."

Designers and manufacturers were nervous and self-conscious in the face of that great event, they'd been feverishly trying to organize themselves to assume the style leadership Paris has lost, when Schiaparelli—one of Paris' greatest names—arrived by clipper plane—tired, hatless, war-weary, but self-assured and full of ideas.

Her arrival sent tremors through the industry. The warm personal welcome she gave her was tempered by the fear that her presence would delay their weaning-from-Paris process.

Where will Schiaparelli fit into the new picture? Will she establish a business and become a part of the new American couture? Or will she keep alive the remembrance of Paris, be a connecting link between that city and America until Paris designers can re-establish themselves as world dictators of style?

Schiaparelli, of course, scarcely is in a position to speak frankly. After all, her shop is still open in Paris, her fellow designers are working there. Anything she says may be used against her—or her friends.

She does say this much: "I see no reason why America cannot build up a couture of its own. I know there's designing talent here, and if it is given encouragement it will develop more and more. Certainly American sports clothes have been the best in the world for years."

But she denies that she intends to stay here. She will start a lecture tour early in September, and create 20 original designs to carry along to illustrate her talks on "Clothes and the Woman."

It will be interesting to see which has the greater effect on style developments—these 20 original Schiaparelli's, or the hundreds of models that will be turned out by talented, but comparatively anonymous, American designers.

Schiaparelli says that when her tour ends in December, she'll return to Paris. If she does, however, it will not be because she didn't have plenty of inducements to stay.

Perk Up Your Potato Salad With Variations

Are you a member of the "cold potato and mayonnaise" potato salad school? Are you aware of the possibilities of potato salad as an appetite-tempter instead of something to "go with" cold cuts during a "heat wave"?

There are variations aplenty to suit every taste and every budget, but first comes the basic recipe for correctly-made potato salad.

Basic Potato Salad
2 cups diced cooked potatoes
1 cup diced celery
1 cup diced cucumber
2 hard-cooked eggs, diced
2/3 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing

1 teaspoon grated onion
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon black pepper
Mix potatoes, celery, cucumber, and eggs in bowl. Blend mayonnaise, onion, salt and pepper. Add to potato mixture. Toss together lightly with fork. Chill thoroughly before serving. Approximate yield: 1 quart salad.

Variations
Anchovy Potato Salad
Omit eggs and salt. Add 2-ounce jar (1/4 cup) chopped anchovies to potato mixture. Proceed as directed in recipe for basic potato salad. Approximate yield: 1 quart salad.

This is a delicious salad to tempt lagging appetites. Anchovies "pep" it up, while cucumber and celery add desirable texture contrast. Serve with sliced tomatoes and deviled eggs.

Potato and Cheese Salad
Omit eggs. Decrease diced cucumber to 1/2 cup. Add 1/2 cup thinly sliced sweet pickles and 1/4 cups coarsely grated American cheese to potato mixture. Proceed as directed in recipe for basic potato salad. Approximate yield: 1 quart salad.

An inexpensive variation of potato salad with cheese, adding a mild or snappy flavor as desired. Excellent for picnic or porch supper, served with baked ham sandwiches, radishes, sweet pickles and raw carrot strips.

Lyons Potato Salad
Omit eggs and onion. Add 1/3 cup thinly sliced shallots and 1/2 cup crumbled Roquefort cheese to potato mixture. Add 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce to mayonnaise mixture. Proceed as directed in recipe for basic potato salad. Just before serving, add 1 1/2 cups (1 bunch) coarsely chopped watercress. Toss lightly together with fork and serve at once. Approximate yield: 1 quart salad.

Adapted to more sophisticated tastes, this is a delicious salad for a buffet supper, served garnished with wedges of ripe tomato and colossal ripe olives. Cucumber gives texture contrast and blends with the flavor of cheese.

Tuna and Potato Salad
Omit eggs and salt. Decrease diced

John Shelton, New Metro Find, Makes Debut In "We Who Are Young," Poignant Big City Love Story, Showing Here Wednesday and Thursday

By BROWNWOOD EMERSON

An adaptation of a Sinclair Lewis story with the beauty of Canadian lakes and woods, filmed in technicolor, a story of amateur boxing, a romance of the War Between the States, and a sprightly story of courtship in the streamlined present, lead off the film bookings at Pampa's four theaters this week.

Milland and Patricia Morison in "Untamed," at the LaNora; Richard Denning and Jean Cagney at the Rex in Golden Gloves; "Virginia City" with Errol Flynn and Miriam Hopkins at the State; and Gene Raymond and Wendy Barrie in "Cross Country Romance" at the Crown.

To the LaNora screen on Wednesday and Thursday comes "We Who Are Young," with Lana Turner and John Shelton, Metro, 79 minutes. Briefly, it is the story of two poorly paid office workers in a big city who take a chance and marry, hoping to be able to keep their jobs until their furniture is paid for and their home established.

Story opens and closes with a narration by an unseen announcer, a clever twist.

Film marks the debut of Metro's newest find, John Shelton.

The film Daily labels the picture a "surprise package" sizes up as one of the years' best releases.

Salient about the picture is this comment also from The Film Daily: "While the screen... both as an art form and an industry... has attained its greatest development... on this side of the Atlantic... its continued progress... has reflected more than native ingenuity and talent... There is a place in the Hollywood sun... for the contributions... of all those... who have something to offer... and that is doubly true today... when the industry... all arms of it... faces a serious economic problem."

The demand in production... in distribution... and in exhibition... is for the fresh approach.

Which makes two new productions... Metro's "We Who Are Young" and Warner's "My Love Came Back"...

of unusual interest... to the entire trade... Both seemingly qualifying as "sleepers"...

they represent the first American efforts... of two Hollywood newcomers... "We Who Are Young" was produced by Seymour Nebenzahl... whose "Mayerling" and "M" created stirs... while "My Love Came Back" was directed by Kurt Bernhardt...

one of Ufa's later maker of bi-linguals in England... These two pictures... have a certain something... which sets them apart.

"We Who Are Young" additionally has... John Shelton, opposite Lana Turner... Mark his personality... and you'll understand... why we have a decided hunch... he's going places... under Metro handling... And don't try to classify Shelton as another Se-and-so... He's John Shelton... and he's good enough to... stand on his own feet.

Hal Roach's "Turnabout" based on the Thorne Smith novel, is a sprightly modern comedy, with the starring cast headed by Carole Landis, John Hubbard, Adolphe Menjou, Mary Astor, Verree Teasdale, Donald Meek, William Gargan and Franklin Pajborn. On the LaNora screen Friday and Saturday.

Its story concerns a young modern couple who complain about their respective lots in life—he is a successful advertising man, she a comely society matron. Their complaints give little god Ram an idea and he acts upon it. He exchanges their personalities and gives them a chance to find out about the other side of the question.

At the State Tuesday is David Selznick's romance "Intermezzo, A Love Story," a tale of a violinist who leaves his family behind in a second quest for youth and beauty. The picture introduces to American audiences for the first time Miss Ingrid Bergman, beautiful blonde actress imported from the continent.

FEATURED IN 'UNTAMED'

Ray Milland in the romantic lead is ably seconded by trouper William Frawley in a charter role in Paramount's "Untamed," which comes today to the LaNora theater. Made in technicolor and with beautiful Canadian lake and mountain country serving as background this is an eye-filling production, says The Film Daily.

Another factor that is pleasing to the eye is decorative and capable Patricia Morison playing the same role that Clara Bow did in 1926. The picture is based on Sinclair Lewis' story, "Man-trap," which was the title of the silent version.

Ray Milland does good work as a New York doctor, who goes to the North to recuperate, but falls in love with the country and Patricia. Akim Tamiroff gives another of his excellent characterizations as trapper and guide, who is married to Patricia. George Archainbaud handled the direction effectively, with Paul Jones functioning as producer. Clem Bevans, J. Farrell MacDonald, Fay Helm, Eily Malvon, Jane Darwell, William Frawley, J. M. Kerrigan and Roscoe Ates are among the important principals.

DEPARTMENT STORE BOXER

Here's that triangle again, and this time the principals are Jean Cagney, Richard Denning and Robert Paige. It manifests itself in Paramount's "Golden Gloves," which is just as soon he wouldn't encourage cauliflower ears. Picture takes its theme from the annual sports event founded in 1927, now held in 200 cities and towns throughout the U. S.

ernoon. The story tells of an amateur boxer whose department store boss sponsors his ring career, and of the tyro's girl friend who'd just as soon he wouldn't encourage cauliflower ears. VALIANT FIGHT FOR DIXIE

Randolph Scott, Errol Flynn, and Miriam Hopkins are shown here in a scene from "Virginia City," which is based on a true episode of American history during the War Between the States. It tells the story of the battle of wits and brawn between Flynn and Scott, as representatives of the North and South, to obtain possession of five million dollars in gold, located at Virginia City, Nev. At the State, today, tomorrow, and Tuesday.

scarcum heroine, make their first appearance together in four years with the showing of "Cross Country Romance," at the Crown today, tomorrow, and Tuesday.

The two popular stars first teamed in "Love on a Bet" for RKO Radio. The same company now co-stars them as a handsome young doctor and a spitfire heiress whose romantic adventures in a trailer during a mad race across the country make for sparkling, hilarious comedy.

Scenes from the ante-bellum plantation life in Dixie with its cotton picking, singing slaves luxury-loving white men, and fine horses are shown in the Principal-RKO Radio picture, "Way Down South," a social drama with music, at the Crown Wednesday and Thursday.

Fine singing by the Hall Johnson choir is a highlight. Bobby Eren is featured in the film. Plot deals with a young heir to an estate preventing a grasping executor from selling a large number of slaves.

Richard Arlen (left), Andy Devine, and Donald Briggs are shown here in a scene from Universal's "Hot Steel," 61-minute picture showing Friday and Saturday at the Rex. The film Daily describes the photoplay: "Richard Arlen is cast as a metallurgist who discovers a new alloy process which is stolen by the two-timing wife of his foreman and turned over to a competing steel firm. Arlen is accused of murder but, with Andy's help, is able to clear himself and recover the formula. Best scenes are Andy Devine's horsey-play comedy around his mother's boarding house.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—The completion of "The Ramparts We Watch," a feature-length motion picture which "reveals how irrevocably the present crisis is linked with the war of a generation ago, shows how and why America fought the first World War, and reviews the folly and miscalculations of the post-war generation which, through lack of courage and foresight, failed to keep the peace," said Louis de Rochemont, producer and publisher of the March of Time.

The film went into production more than a year and a half ago, Mr. de Rochemont explained. It will be premiered for the nation sometime in July and will be released nationally through RKO Radio Pictures, Inc.

"Eighteen months ago, when the events at Munich started the world on another inexorable march to war," Mr. de Rochemont said, "the editors of the March of Time decided that the last war, which had been so thankfully consigned to history, contained vital lessons for an America faced once more with a challenge to her destiny."

True to Life Picture The producer described the film as an exact and dramatic portrayal of this period, employing every art of the motion picture and every technique of journalism to picture the spirit of the people and the crisis they faced in 1914-18.

"The producers made a bold experiment in behalf of authenticity in recreating this spirit," Mr. de Rochemont went on to say. Searching the country for a community containing sections looking just as they had in 1914-18, they found New London, Conn.

This small town of 30,000, which lists its part in the first World War as the major excitement in the 150 years of its history, was peopled with a cast that, except for two actors recruited from the stage, had never had professional acting experience. However, each was selected for a role for which life had fitted him. For more than 10 months, the directors and technicians of the March of Time recorded on film the details of these small town people reliving the four years of the first World War.

As background for this, thousands of feet of hitherto unexhibited film showing America's part in the war and the world construction following it, were reviewed.

Among these was the amazing photographic library of the U. S. signal corps, the most complete pictorial history of the United States in existence, and hitherto unsearched private collections, Mr. de Rochemont said.

The blending of these background shots with the New London scenes so that there was a smooth transition in photographic styles was a problem that required many months of experiment.

"The March of Time is conscious that the physical ramparts of America and their defense are the ones that have received the most attention today," Mr. de Rochemont concluded. "But more than that, 'The Ramparts We Watch' contends that America is not merely composed of lands, factories and cities to be guarded, but is a way of life and a state of mind.

"When this state of mind about America, and the conviction that our national ideals are worth defending breaks down, it is then that the principles of this democracy can be successfully assaulted."

Experts say the age of a rattlesnake cannot be estimated accurately by the number of rattles on his tail because sometimes a snake will acquire three or four buttons, instead of only one, a year, and that a snake seldom attains more than 10 or 12 buttons because added ones usually are broken off.

Fifth Annual XIT Reunion Opens Monday

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS DALLHART, Aug. 3-The vanguard of an expected 40,000 people rolled into Dallhart tonight for the opening ceremonies of the fifth annual XIT reunion tomorrow.

Two events will preface the reunion proper. The first will be unveiling of the Empty Saddle monument by Mrs. John K. Marsh of Miles City, Mont. the woman who two years ago made the suggestion that resulted in the empty saddle tableau, now a part of each reunion. Other major celebrations are beginning to adopt it.

The monument is a large replica of the square-skirted saddle of the 1880's, setting atop a flagstone base. It was designed and made by Bobbo Dyck, Dallhart's cowboy artist, born in what is now Czecho-Slovakia and a direct descendant of Sir Anthony Van Dyck, renowned European portrait painter of four centuries ago. Dyck says he got the "Van" knocked loose while a pugilist in Chicago and that he added the "e" as streamlining.

Alfalfa Bill To Speak The annual XIT memorial service, an hour of tribute to those who lie wrapped in the blankets of the ages, will be held Sunday night at 8 o'clock. Former Governor William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray of Oklahoma, a native Texan who started the practice of law in Fort Worth 45 years ago, will be the speaker.

Business meeting of three old-time organizations in their respective headquarters will open the Monday program. One is the XIT association, parent of the reunion, headed by James D. Hamlin Farwell, and open only to men who actually worked on the 3-million acre XIT range, their wives or widows.

Another is the Texas-New Mexico Oklahoma Cowboys association, headed by Ora Atkinson, Dallhart, who once punched cows with the late Will Rogers, and open to men who rode the western ranges 35 years or more ago.

The third is the Old Trail Trails of the Southwest, headed by Col. Jack Potter, New Mexico legislator of Clayton and Santa Fe. He is an old-time cowboy trail rider, and he and his wife, Bessie, will present the Potter & Bacon trail from Texas to Wyoming in 1883.

There will be special headquarters for all cattlemen, ranchers, livestock and commission men or others connected with the industry. Parades on Two Days Parades will be at 2 p. m. daily. Beutler Bros. stock of Elkhart City, Okla., will be used. Carl Elder of Canadian will announce. This will be the only professional rodeo in the northwest to handle this season; and one of two in the entire Panhandle. The other was at Canadian July 4.

Specialty acts include clown John Lindsey of Wichita Falls, with his trained mule and Hereford bull; Ray and Marvin Ramsey of Tulsa, Okla., and Lloyd and Blanche McFee of Fort Worth, all trick riders and ropers.

Other attractions include the XIX exhibit hall; a tall sale-telling hour of the old West each afternoon; square and round dancing in different halls afternoon and night.

Both Monday and Tuesday nights the XIX reunion and the U. S. Coronado commission will present their dramatized story of "Coronado To The XIX"-a vivid, pantomimic picture of the turbulent roll of the years from the time of the conquest.

SERIAL STORY SUMMER THEATER

BY MILDRED WILLIAMS

Copyright, 1940, NEA Service, Inc.

YESTERDAY, Molly's introduction to the Cape crowd is successful, mainly through Jean's efforts. Jean promises to leave Cape Cod when she knows Molly loves her. Weeks pass and Molly tells her mother, Mrs. Reynolds, the leading man is interested in Molly. Jean also says she is leaving.

CHAPTER VI

JOHNNY busied himself picking up the bits of broken pottery bowl. Jean was leaving for Boston. She said she would leave when she found out Molly loved him. Was she sure of that?

"Did Molly tell you that? Is she in love with me?"

Jean laughed unhappily. "You're bawdy, Johnny. She thinks you're cute as a bug's ear."

Johnny cursed himself for letting Jean see his heart. He spread it out before her and she was sneering.

"Why go home, then? Why not stay here and heckle? Think I can't take it?"

She looked at him, almost with pity. "Oh, Johnny, what's the use? I've tried to like the girl, honestly I have. She's so smooth and beautiful she frightens me to death. And she's a grand actress. But she's ambitious, Johnny."

Johnny snorted. "Ambition isn't any crime. Let me tell you something, my sweet—poisoning my mind isn't going to help. I'd marry Molly tomorrow, if she'd give me."

"I won't be here tomorrow to see that, thank heaven," Jean answered.

She sat down on the sea chest and swung her feet. She was still a little girl, Johnny thought. Brown legs and socks, cardigan buttoned once at the neck, silly little ribbons tucked into her brown curls. Nothing alluring or mysterious about Jean. Just a little girl, hurt and angry because somebody had broken her favorite doll.

"Jean," he said, "I'm sorry, truly I am. Don't think I haven't missed our Cape Cod, the one of our other summers. Sometimes I wish I had laid eyes on Molly. I'd be happier, I suppose, digging quahaugs and sailing with you, not being in love."

"Is it love?" Jean asked with a glimmer of wisdom that hardly belonged to a little girl. "I wonder."

They were silent for a minute, so still that they could hear the clock ticking. It's the perfect moment for me to say, "Let's be friends," thought Johnny. But he said nothing, busy with himself swishing imaginary dust from pine cone parrots.

"What I really came to say," Jean was speaking steadily, as if she had taken a deep breath and it was safe to continue, "is that I've lent my cameo to Molly for her part in the play, and since I won't be here to retrieve it, I want you to send it to me."

"Why, Jean," Johnny gasped, "that's a foolish thing for you to do. The Reynolds cameo is a museum piece. You know that."

He sounded like the stern parent. What was Jean thinking of? The Metropolitan was still negotiating for the Reynolds cameo. It had been made especially in Italy for Jean's grandmother. There were certain peculiarities about its design which made it invaluable.

Jean looked at him intently. "Sure you're not thinking of the legend? It's unlucky if anyone wears it. Reynolds wears it, you know."

"That old legend is pure fiction. I was thinking of the value of the brooch, and what your father would say if he knew you lent it to Molly."

"Oh, she'll take care of it," Jean assured him. "I was wearing it the afternoon she came to tea. She said, 'What a lovely old cameo. I had imagined Mrs. Lyons wearing one just like it at her throat.' Mrs. Lyons, that's who she is in the play."

"And so you took it right off and put it in her hand," Johnny was exasperated. Jean jumped from the chest and came over to where he stood, straightening his desk to hide his annoyance.

"A friend of yours is a friend of mine," she told him, "and I'm not going to embarrass myself by asking her to give it back before the play. Now get over your mad, and kiss me goodby for old times' sake."

Jean was in his arms kissing him as she had never kissed him before. Somewhere in his heart a dormant flurry stirred.

"Johnny, I love you so, and I'll go on loving you forever. I haven't any pride to say it. That's why I can't stay here. When I go where we used to go, walk where we used to walk, it's like stamping on a grave, Johnny. She was crying softly in his arms.

"Stop, dearest," he said, patting her shoulders. He hated himself for what had happened to them, but his feeling for Molly was the same. He couldn't deny that, even with Jean so near to him.

They didn't know that Molly had come in until she spoke. "Am I interrupting? I thought the bell jangled, but I can go back and knock."

Jean jumped from Johnny's arms. They both looked like children caught robbing a cookie jar.

Molly smiled superciliously. "If that's what you meant by kid stuff, I'm sorry you consider me grown up."

"I was simply telling him good-bye," Jean explained. "I'm going back to Boston in the morning."

Molly took a step toward Jean. Her voice was grim with authority.

"You can't go back to Boston. Mr. Earl has you on props, and you wouldn't dare walk out at the last minute like this."

Jean reminded Johnny of a very small kitten spitting at a huge important Angora. "I've got him everything he asked for. I even know where I can find that old oil lamp to hang from the ceiling. Everything will be ready in the wings, and the rest of the committee can do a little work. The theater is not my life. I'll walk when and where I please."

"That's just what I thought would happen," Molly retorted angrily. "Junior Leaguers and society girls, always so willing to help, and then at the last minute something else turns up."

Johnny interrupted then. "Don't talk like that to Jean, Molly," he said quietly. "She's worked like a dog, and if she feels she has to go home now, I don't think any of us should try to stop her."

"So you were trying to stop her with a few kisses? What kind of man are you, Johnny Regan? I don't believe I know your particular type." She had turned on Johnny and was whipping him with her words.

"I'll ask Mr. Earl," said Jean. "He'll tell me whether or not any of his bird-brained apprentices can get the stuff back where it belongs."

She flounced out of the shop. Molly ran after her, calling to her. Jean went into the stage entrance of the theater and slammed the door. Johnny laughed.

"You don't know Jean. The hurricane that hit the Cape in '38 couldn't keep her here. That time it was a good thing she started. Both our cottages were washed out to sea."

Molly wasn't listening. She was staring at the stage door of the theater, her blue eyes boring through its entrance.

"Afraid you wouldn't have a chance to wear her cameo?" Johnny asked idly.

"What on earth do you mean by that? Has Andre Masters seen her?" Molly demanded.
