NAZIS THREATEN DECISIVE BLOWS THIS WEEK

Stranded Whale Soon To Be Just Bad Odor

Approval Given Huge Defense Appropriation

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19. (AP)—The senate appropriations committee approved today a $5,008,169,277 appropriations bill providing funds for beginning construction of a "two ocean" navy and for equipping an army of 1,200,000 men.

The committee acted while on the senate floor there began another week of debate on the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill. Differences between senate and house drafts of legislation authorizing mobilization of the national guard delayed final congressional action on that measure.

The appropriations committee increased by $45,017,320 the direct appropriations and contract authority previously approved by the house in the $5,008,000,000 supplemental defense measure. Of this amount, $34,507,320 was in cash outlays, including an item of $7,000,000 for armor equipment and ammunition for new aircraft.

An additional $15,000,000 in contract authority was made available for plane armament. In the conscription debate, Senator Capper (R-Kans.) declared he was "opposed to military conscription in peace time" because he did not "believe the danger of war is so imminent as to make it necessary."

He said he would support a substitute by Senator Maloney (D-Conn.) which would defer compulsory training until an effort had first been made to obtain men by voluntary enlistment.

Resort to voluntary enlistments instead of compulsory military training, Senator Hill (D-Ala.) told his colleagues, would "place a premium on slackness and a penalty on patriotism."

A joint senate house committee will try to iron out conflicting views on the national guard bill. Chairman Sheppard (Tex.) of the senate military committee told reporters a house change in the wording of the resolution would leave the president without authority to call into service the officers reserve corps of about 125,000 men, the enlisted reserves numbering about 30,000 and about 15,000 men in the regular army reserve. The senate refused to accept this change and others.

Senator Hill urged quick enactment of the compulsory training bill under which men from 21 through 30 years would be required to register for possible military training.

Four Army Generals Held At Acapulco

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 19. (AP)—Dispatches from Acapulco today said four army generals, all prominent directors of the independent presidential campaign of General Juan Andreu Almazan, had been taken into custody by military authorities.

The dispatches caused speculation whether President Cadenas administration had decided to take precautionary moves against Almazan's followers who have been the center of persistent rebellion rumors and reports.

General Alfredo Lezama, former head of the air force and director of Almazan's campaign in Sonora state, and General Jose Domingo Ramirez Garrido, head of the Tamasopo state campaign, the dispatches said, were known to be held incommunicado.

Foreigners In Old Mexico Will Be Watched Closely

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 19. (AP)—The department of the interior was reported today to be intensifying its efforts to keep a close watch on movements of foreigners in Mexico. These reports said:

1—Several foreigners have been held for questioning because their passport or immigration documents did not appear to be in order.

2—The managers of all hotels and tourist homes have been ordered to provide a daily registry of their clients.

For some time the department has been engaged in a campaign against subversive activities.

I Heard . . .

That Coach Odus Mitchell was out today rounding up his football squad so that they wouldn't forget about the watermelon feed at Harvester park tonight at 8 o'clock. He was also looking them over mightily closely seeing if they were in shape. Practice will begin September 2 and it will be practice, not conditioning, the coach has announced.

The War Today

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Hitler's vastly increased pressure of attack on England indicates a purpose of forcing the issue to a quick show-down if possible.

We are in the heat of the fuhrer's great effort to "annihilate" Britain — undoubtedly not at the peak yet, but likely close to it. A dispatch from Berlin this morning said popular belief had it that this was the crucial week.

The most important fact which has grown out of the intensified bombardment during the past week is to my mind that the light little island not only has withstood the shock but continues large-scale offensive operations against the enemy on the continent.

That is significant. There is nothing more certain than that the Nazi leader is all set for immediate invasion if and when England is down and shows marked weakness. That he hasn't leaped yet is proof that his foe's strength has not yet been sapped. Indeed only this morning the British were making a violent attack on German positions along the French coast.

We don't know, of course, what material damage has been done in Britain by the deluge of bombs, any more than we know what hurt the English have inflicted on the Nazis by raids over the continent.

In life and death warfare you don't deliberately show your weakness to the enemy.

The real point, however, is that no matter how we read the rival claims it seems clear that nothing approaching collapse has yet been inflicted on the under-dog, who is up to this writing J. Bull. Moreover, careful analysis of dispatches indicate that the morale of the British people has grown stronger with adversity.

Jury Panel Excused Until August 28

The county court jury panel which reported this morning was excused by County Judge Sherman White until August 28. This week was to have been set aside for criminal cases but none were set.

Judge White told attorneys present that he was sitting with the commissioners court as a board of equalization and that if no pressing cases were to be heard he would like to delay them until next week.

Non-jury cases that will not take much time may be heard during the week, Judge White said.

Local Residence Damaged By Fire

A gas stove too close to the wall was believed responsible for a fire which slightly damaged the home of Mrs. May Mackay, 221 East Francis avenue, at noon today according to a statement made by Chief Ben White.

The fire burned the wall, part of the roof and a door. Smoke caused damage in two rooms of the house. Firemen extinguished the blaze before it could spread to other parts of the house.

"Treason" Shouts Clark

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19. (AP)—Senator Clark (D-Idaho) told the senate today the address of Ambassador William C. Bullitt, predicting a German attack on the United States if Great Britain is defeated, was "very very little short of treason."

British Bomb Nazi Troops On Channel

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Aug. 19.—All of Britain was made a defense area today as the nation already fighting in history's greatest air battle, got set for a life-or-death struggle to defend its soil.

With the Germans apparently nearing the zero hour for their attempt to smash Britain into submission by direct invasion, the British launched a thundering attack against the Nazi-held French coast and claimed their air fighters were parrying Nazi air blows with an increasingly favorable advantage.

The order to make the isles a defense area—subject at a moment's notice to drastic edicts by closely cooperating civil and military authorities—was issued as a "precautionary measure" by the ministry of home security.

Regional commissioners for England, Wales and Scotland will have authority, it is said, "subject to control and direction of the ministry of home security, to issue directions or orders required for the purpose of defense within their respective areas."

Although there were no immediate new restrictions on Britons, the new order authorized "any measures which might become urgently necessary through enemy landing by air or sea to be introduced without delay in any part of the country in which they are required."

Until now, only a 20-mile strip of the eastern and southern coasts from the Scottish border to Portland have been a defense area. Apparently, that air-bomber traffic over the English channel was two-way after a Sunday exchange of raids in which both sides pounded at sources of enemy strength.

But, the British declared, the Nazi achieved little success at great cost, losing planes at a rate of more than nine to one of Britain's.

One German bomber was said to be destroyed.

Stolen Jones Car Found Early Sunday

A car stolen from the 100 block on South Cuyler street about 10 o'clock Saturday night was found by city officers at 4 o'clock Sunday morning on West Craven street where it had been abandoned. It had not been driven far.

The car was owned by Carl Jones who left it for a few minutes while he went across the street. Upon his return the car was missing. Officers started an immediate search but it wasn't until early Sunday morning that they discovered the missing car.

War Flashes

LONDON, Aug. 19. (AP)—The air ministry announced tonight that British planes last night bombed Italian aircraft factories at Milan and Turin, aluminum and chemical works in Germany, Boulogne harbor and airdromes at Freiburg and Hamsheim, Germany.

LONDON, Aug. 19. (AP)—The air ministry announced tonight British fighter planes during the past seven days had shot down 513 German planes.

German Troops Massed At French Channel Ports

(By The Associated Press)

All of Britain's island kingdom was described as a single, coordinated defense area to combat "enemy landings by air or sea" today as authorized Nazis in Berlin indicated the crucial week was at hand in the offensive against England.

Spokesmen in the German capital said the Nazi air force—with three days more of good weather—would strike decisive blows in an intensified assault on the blockaded kingdom.

Nazi troops massed at French channel ports were described as waiting impatiently for the air force to prepare the way for a cross-channel land invasion, confident of swift victory with the end of the war by September.

Nazis Want Only 'Three More Days'

(By The Associated Press)

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—Nazi air scouts were reported ranging the British coasts today as German multiplied signs that she was getting ready to try a decisive blow against Britain.

Two British planes were shot down near Ramsgate, at the mouth of the Thames Estuary, and a third was seen falling in flames to the sea. DNB, official German news agency reported.

But the air fighting apparently was minor as the German fliers carried out what was described as "armed reconnaissance," to check up on the effect of their air siege and, presumably, search for new targets.

German reconnoitering planes, accompanied by fighters, were able to take photographs at low altitude over southern England with little hindrance, DNB declared.

British Spitfires tried to form a barrier to the German planes, it said, but only in a few instances were able to engage them in battle.

Through Swiss diplomatic channels, Adolf Hitler warned the British to treat his parachute troops according to international laws applying to other troops or he would visit reprisals upon British aviators held prisoner.

Aside from this implication that Germany may be about to attempt the landing of men to hold vital land objectives in Britain, authorized spokesmen declared:

"Just give us three days of good weather," intimating that the German military is convinced the air war rapidly achieving its purpose of "softening up" the

British Score Direct Hits On Aluminum Factory

BAZEL, Switzerland, Aug. 19. (AP)—British raiders which caused air raid warnings all over Switzerland during the night scored hits on one of Germany's largest aluminum factories just across the Rhine from the Swiss town of Rheinfelden.

The bombers dropped red flares over the Rhine area about midnight, then dived low to drop their missiles despite heavy fire from German anti-aircraft batteries.

From the Swiss side of the river observers saw wooden sheds around the aluminum factories catch fire and noted hits on new buildings of one of the factories, which have been working day and night since the start of the war.

Although there was no official estimate of the number of raiders engaged, their objectives appeared widespread. Other bombers, one of which dropped a few bombs on a Swiss railway line on the southern shore of Lake Constance, attacked the German industrial district on the northern side of the lake. Reports said the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen were struck.

The fact that air raid warnings were sounded three times during the night at Geneva and Lausanne indicated still more bombers also struck at northern Italy. (Today's Italian communique acknowledged British raids on Milan, Turin and Cuneo in the northern industrial district.)

A 25-car caravan of friends of Max Boyer of Perryton, candidate for state senator from the 21st district, visited in Pampa this morning.

Officers closed traffic in the 100 block on South Cuyler street while Boyer and friends addressed a large crowd.

Boyer is in the second primary runoff with Grady Hazlewood of Amarillo. He led the ticket in the first primary, receiving 42 per cent of the votes cast.

Oil Companies Ask Valuation Slash

Representatives of nearly every oil and gas company and all lines of business allied with the oil and gas industry, appeared before the county commissioners court this morning and asked that valuations be lowered for 1940 taxation.

The court sat as a board of equalization but took no action regarding the request. The company representatives explained that their incomes this year have been less than in past years and that a substantial decrease in valuation should be made.

Present proration methods in the field, which have lowered allowances, were blamed for poor condition of the industry. Earnings have decreased alarmingly, the company representatives told the court.

Gray county valuation for 1939 was approximately $30,000,000 of which about 75 per cent was oil property, the oilmen pointed out. The court will meet regularly this week and probably set the valuation and tax rate by Saturday. County Judge Sherman White said.

Willkie Challenge 'Cheap Publicity Stunt,' Says Flynn

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie's suggestion that President Roosevelt meet him in debate was described by Democratic National Chairman Edward J. Flynn today as a "cheap publicity stunt."

Flynn, in his first press conference since he succeeded James A. Farley as chairman, said the Willkie challenge was issued "for pure political effect."

Asked if he thought it was issued in a belief it would not be accepted, Flynn said, "sure."

Charles Michelson, publicity director for the national committee, suggested to Flynn that he point out to the President had said he would have no time for purely political debates during the campaign and Flynn nodded assent.

Absentee Voting Reaches New High

Absentee voting in Gray county reached a new high for any second primary today when the 20th absentee ballot was cast. County Clerk Charlie Thut said. Deadline for casting absentee votes is midnight Wednesday.

Persons who will be out of the city on Saturday are urged to exercise their voting rights by casting absentee ballots. For the benefit of persons who find at the last minute that they will be out of the city, Mr. Thut will remain at home until midnight Wednesday where he will receive calls.

"But I hope everyone will cast their absentee ballots by 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon," the county clerk said today.

Voting Saturday will be between the hours of 8 a. m., and 7 p. m.

Eastern Stars Plan Initiation For Candidates

At the conclusion of the meeting a surprise birthday shower was given for Mrs. E. L. Reece, a member of the local chapter.

Start Pre-School 'Clean-Up' Campaign Well Ahead Of Time

By ALICIA HART

"What in the world will the new teacher think of your hands?" Asking that and similar questions will get mother exactly nowhere toward inspiring the small fry to do something about their appearance before going back to school.

About the best thing she can do—without mentioning school at all—is to try to get the children to follow her own example. Which, is, during late August, to begin thinking in terms of fall clothes and fall activities rather than summer ones.

FINESSE WILL DO THE TRICK

She can, for instance, let small Mary help choose her back-to-school clothes.

And the shopping trip should be accompanied by such remarks as, "Yes, dear, that red is lovely. It will be even more becoming to you when your hair is shiny, and of course your hair will get shiny quickly once you start brushing it regularly again."

Or, "Well, let's get the blue one today. We can come back for the beige later on when your hands look better." Or, "I don't think you had better wear these new school socks until school really starts and you have stopped climbing trees all day long, tearing your socks and scratching your legs."

MOTHER SHOULD SET THE EXAMPLE

Furthermore, while busily reconditioning her own scalp and hair in preparation for a new fall permanent wave, mother can give the children's hair a few pick-me-up treatments. Warm olive oil should be massaged into the hair the night before "shampoo day." And no child will object to this if mother uses warm olive oil on her own hair at the same time.

All of which sounds easy, but probably isn't, I know. Just the same, children like to be grown-ups. So if mother sets a good example, why won't her children be more pliable in matters of grooming for school days?

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By ALICIA HART

The average woman isn't always pressed for time. (I don't see why those who are don't make an effort to reorganize their lives to allow for an occasional free, untroubled hour.)

Now and then, when the average woman does have an hour or two to do exactly what she pleases, she might go in for a more elaborate beauty routine than those quick, almost efficient ones which can be managed in an average busy day.

RELAXATION BOOSTS MORALE

For instance, she may take a leisurely tub bath instead of a hurried shower—making use of some of the cooling, refreshing bath oils or powders that have been on the shelf since last Christmas.

KEEP LOTIONS IN REFRIGERATOR

A cold facial. Face and throat are washed with soap and tepid water. Then rich night cream, which has been in the ice box for a couple of hours, is applied. For 20 minutes the cream stays on and eyelids are covered with ice cold, wet cotton pads that have been dipped in eye lotion. When the cream is removed, face and throat are patted with cold skin tonic.

Incidentally, it's a good idea to keep all of your creams and lotions in the ice box during the summer months. And make sure that the supply includes a bottle of eye lotion for eyelid pads, as well as eye bath.

Black Dresses And Sun-Tan Don't Mix

By ALICIA HART

"Let your first fall dress be black" isn't the best available fashion advice for the darkly suntanned beauty.

If she firmly intends to keep right on taking sun baths as long as the sunshine remains warm and summery, and so retain her coat of tan as long as possible, she'll probably find brown, gray, olive green or a warm yellow a happier choice.

BROWN GOES WELL WITH TAN

Brown ought to be flattering with any shade of tan worth fighting to keep. With it, an orange or yellow scarf and lipstick, and nail polish that are yellow-red rather than blue-red would be chic.

The new "stuffed olive" combination—olive green with pimento red—is perfect for the beige-skinned.

Beige and red, the color combination darling of the hour, is made in order for the suntanned. If you are very young, try a beige corduroy dress or suit about the color of your skin, with a red scarf or a red hat.

POWDER MUST ALWAYS MATCH SKIN

If you're not so young, consider one of the new, rough-surfaced silks or sheer wools in soft beige and brighten it with a dash of scarlet.

Naturally, any chic woman sticks to her dark, summer shade of powder until her skin becomes light again. It's a mistake, simply because you want your first fall dress to be black, to start putting light powder over dark skin in the hope that the suntan won't be noticed. Powder always should match exactly the shade of the skin on which it is applied.

PERSIAN ART INSPIRED IT

Art collections and current events furnish inspiration for American designers just as they always have for the French couturiers. For example, after seeing the recent New York exhibition of Persian art, Madame Pauline made this intricately draped turban of turquoise wool jersey. A gold bar and a vivid red tassel for trimming carry out the exotic Persian motif.

FRIENDS

It is this situation which has led the American Youth commission, a research organization, to recommend that we return to the colonial practice of teaching our young people "useful occupations."

PARENTS SHOULD TAKE INITIATIVE

It takes a long time to make even small changes in an educational system. So you had better assume the responsibility for seeing that your own son doesn't become a white-collar man in a world that has more jobs for men in overalls.

One thing you can do, of course. The isn't going on to college and how signs of having some mechanical ability, is to see that he goes to a commercial high school, where he can get training for a specific job.

Another thing you can do is to encourage him to use the time most young people have to spend working or almost nothing, in a place where he will learn a trade or a skill. Or help him, if you can, to start a small business of his own.

Do anything practical you can think of that will keep him from one day joining the ranks of young people walking from office to office looking for work.

THRIFT IS FUN

"A Girl Scout is thrifty," says the ninth law of Girl Scouting. Careful management of time, energy, and money as a step towards self-reliance, is part of the Girl Scout code. Above, a Senior, one of the fourteen to eighteen year old Girl Scouts, smiles in anticipation of an "I-made-it-myself" dress of Scotch plaid.

Mind Your Manners

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

- When writing on folded letter paper, what is the proper sequence of pages?
- Is "My dear Mr. Brown" a correct beginning for a social note?
- Is it better to write short notes on correspondence cards or small note paper?
- Is it correct for a person in mourning to use writing paper which has a black border?
- Which has the preferred term today, stationery or writing paper?

What would you do if—
You are a hostess telephoning invitations to a formal dinner—
(a) Do not indicate that the dinner is to be formal?
(b) Say something like "The men are wearing black ties?"

ANSWERS

- You may follow any sequence.
- No. "My dear" is too formal a beginning. Use "Dear Mr. Brown."
- On small note paper.
- Yes. But it is also correct today to use plain white.
- Writing paper.

Best "What Would You Do?" solution—(b).

Practices In Use And Selection Of Perfumes Given

You can't go off on any too original tangents when it comes to the point of application for most of your glamour aids.

You put lipstick on your lips, cheek rouge on your cheeks, and eyelash make-up on your eyelashes—and so it goes for most of the many cosmetic complements to feminine beauty.

There is, however, one notable exception to these generally held-around rules of application, according to a famous make-up advisor to Hollywood's film stars.

Perfume applications, he points out, need not be confined in the manner of a majority of the other glamour-bringing accessories.

Among the stellar ladies of Hollywood's flimdom, for instance, we have such modes and locales of perfume application as the following:

Barbara Stanwyck touches her perfume to the ends of her hair and adds a very minute application of it to the inside of her pocketbook.

Joan Bennett applies her scents to the inside of her hat, if she is wearing one. If not, the perfume is touched to the nape of the neck.

Myrna Loy, who almost invariably selects light spice odors, applies them only to such accessories as bags, scarfs, handkerchiefs, or gloves, and very seldom to her own skin or hair.

Rosalind Russell generally favors a touch of perfume to the back of her hands. Joan Crawford applies it over her ears, with just a touch on the crown of her hair.

And Lupe Velez is reported to apply her perfume to her elbows—and knees!

And so it goes. Hollywood's beauties exercise their imaginations and personal preferences when it comes to applying their perfumes, even though they are the most properly orthodox of all persons when it comes to the application of their powder, rouge, and lipstick.

The beauty expert goes on to offer some sound and sensible principles which should govern women's selection and use of perfumes:

It's better to buy a small quantity of a quality perfume than it is a large amount of an inferior one. Glamour, he says, is better served by using no perfume at all than it is by the application of a shoddy one. And a good cologne or perfume-cologne is to be recommended above a "cheap" perfume.

All imported perfumes are not necessarily superior ones. And don't overlook the American perfumes, many of which are decidedly of the best. Actually, Europe's complete supremacy in the art of perfuming vanished nearly two decades ago, even though the false legend of this unchallenged superiority has largely persisted up to today.

No matter how or where you apply your perfume, don't use too much of it. All perfume has a "dramatic character" which should be observed. This, he declares, completely sophisticated feminine types should favor the richer, more heavily fragrant perfume odors, while the more "naive" appearance-types are best complemented by the lighter floral scents.

Mrs. W. L. Heskey, 806 North Frost street, will be hostess to members of the American Legion auxiliary this evening at 8 o'clock.

Because of the absence of the president and vice-president, the meeting is to be held in a member's home rather than in the Legion hall.

At this time a combined regular and social meeting is to be conducted with Mrs. Heskey and Mrs. Hupp Clark on the refreshment committee.

Games of bridge and dominoes will be played during the evening.

Text Of Wilkie's Acceptance Speech

The ceremony of an acceptance speech is a tradition of our pioneer past—before the days of rapid communication. You all know that I accepted at Philadelphia the nomination of the Republican party for President of the United States. But I take pride in the traditions and not in change for the mere sake of overthrowing precedents.

An acceptance speech is a candidate's keynote, a declaration of his broad principles. It can not possibly review the issues in detail. I shall, however, cover each of them frankly during this campaign. Here I give you an outline of the political philosophy that is in my heart. We are here today to represent a sacred cause—the preservation of American democracy.

Obviously, I can not lead this cause alone. I need the help of every American—Republican, Democrat or Independent—Jew, Catholic, or Protestant—people of every color, creed and race. Party lines are down. Nothing could make that clearer than the nomination by the Republicans of a liberal Democrat who changed his party affiliation because he found democracy in the Republican party and not in the New Deal party.

And as the leader of the Republican party let me say this. We go into our campaign as into a crusade. Revitalized and reunited, and joined by millions who share in our cause, we dedicate ourselves to the principles of American liberty, and we shall fight this campaign on the basis of those principles, not on the basis of hate, jealousy, or personalities. The leaders of the Republican party in congress and in the party organization, have made me that pledge. I have given that pledge to them. And I extend it to all who will join in this cause. What we need in this country is a new leadership that believes in the destiny of America. I represent here today the forces that will bring that leadership to you.

Special Reason

There is a special reason why I have come back to Elwood, Ind., to make this acceptance speech. I have an engagement to keep in this town. It was made a long time ago with a young man. The quiet streets, the pleasant fields that lie outside, the people going casually about their business, seem far removed from the shattered cities, the gutted buildings and the stricken people of Europe. It is hard for us to realize that the war in Europe can affect our daily lives. Instinctively we turn aside from the recurring conflicts over there, the diplomatic intrigue, the shifts of power that the last war failed to end.

Yet—instinctively also—we know that we are not isolated from those suffering people. We live in the same world as they, and we are created in the same image. In all the democracies that have recently fallen, the people were living the same peaceful lives that we live. They had similar ideals of human freedom. Their methods of trade and exchange were similar to ours. Try as we will, we can not brush the picture of their destruction from our vision, or escape the profound effects of it upon the world in which we live.

Future Uncertain

No man is so wise as to foresee what the future will be. To lay out a plan for it. No man can guarantee to maintain peace. Peace is not something that a nation can achieve by itself.

It also depends on what some other country does. It is neither practical, nor desirable, to adopt a foreign program—committing the United States to future action under unknown circumstances.

The best that we can do is to decide what principle shall guide us.

For me, that principle can be summed up in one word—democracy.

In the foreign policy of the United States, as in its domestic policy, I would do everything to defend American democracy, and I would refrain from doing anything that would injure it.

We must permit our emotions—our sympathies or hatreds—to move us from that fixed principle.

For instance, we must not shrink the necessity of preparing our sons to take care of themselves in case the defense of America leads us to war. I shall not undertake to analyze the legislation on this subject that is now before congress, or to examine the intentions of the administration with regard to it. I concur with many members of my party, that these intentions must be closely watched. Nevertheless, in spite of these considerations, I can not ask the American people to put their faith in me, without recording my conviction that some form of selective service is the only democratic way in which to secure the trained and competent manpower we need for national defense.

Also, in the light of my principle, we must honestly face our relationship with Great Britain. We must admit that the loss of the British fleet would greatly weaken our defense. This is because the British fleet has for years controlled the Atlantic, leaving us free to concentrate in the Pacific. If the British fleet were lost or captured, the Atlantic might be dominated by Germany, a power hostile to our way of life, controlling in that event most of the ships and shipbuilding facilities of Europe.

Would Be Calamity

This would be calamity for us. We might be exposed to attack on the Atlantic. Our defense would be weakened until we could build a navy and air force strong enough to defend both coasts. Also, our foreign trade would be profoundly affected. That trade is vital to our prosperity. But if we had to trade with a Europe dominated by the present German trade policies, we might have to change our methods to some totalitarian form. This is a prospect that any lover of democracy might view with consternation.

The objective of America is in the opposite direction. We must, in the long run, rebuild a world in which we can live and move and do business as we see fit. The President of the United States recently said: "We will extend to the opponents of the material resources of this nation, and at the same time we will harness the use of those resources in order that we ourselves, in the Americas, may have equipment and training equal to the task of any emergency and every defense."

Criticizes Course

But I cannot follow the President in his conduct of foreign affairs at this critical time. There have been occasions when many of us have wondered if he is deliberately leading us to war. I trust that I have made it plain that in the defense of America, and of our liberties, I should not hesitate to stand for war. But like a great many other Americans, I do not believe that we should go to war in 1941. I know what war can do to demoralize civil liberties at home. And I believe it to be the first duty of a president to try to maintain peace.

But Mr. Roosevelt has not done this. He has dabbled in inflammatory statements and manufactured panics. Of course, we in America like to speak our minds freely, but this does not mean that at a critical period in history our President should cause bitterness and confusion for the sake of a little political oratory. The President's attacks on foreign powers have been useless and dangerous. He has courted a war for which this country is hopelessly unprepared—and which is practically does not want. He has secretly meddled in the affairs of Europe, and he has even unscrupulously encouraged other countries to hope for more help than we are able to give.

Lessons In Tragedy

The free men of France should have been wearing themselves a bigger garment. For in trying to pull the small one around themselves they tore it to pieces.

And in this tragedy let us find our lesson. The foreign policy of the United States begins right here in our own backyard. Our international affairs are to become strong at home. We must regain prosperity, restore the independence of our people, and protect our defensive forces. If that is not done promptly, we are in constant danger. If that is done no enemy on earth will dare attack us. I propose to do it.

Promises Reports

As president, I plan to reverse both of these policies. I should threaten foreign governments only when our country was threatened by them and when I was ready to act; and I should consider our diplomacy as part of the people's business concerning which they were entitled to prompt and frank reports to the limit of practicability.

Candor in these times is the hope of democracy. We must not kid ourselves any longer. We must begin to tell ourselves the truth—right here and right now.

We have been sitting as spectators of a great tragedy. The action on the stage of history has been relentless.

For instance, the French people were just as brave and intelligent as the Germans. Their armies were considered the best in the world. France and her Allies won the last war. They possessed all the material resources they needed. They had wealth and reserves of credit all over the earth. Yet the Germans crushed France like an eggshell.

The reason is now clear: The fault lay with France herself.

France believed in the forms of democracy and in the idea of freedom. But she failed to put them to use. She forgot that freedom must be dynamic, that it is forever in the process of creating a new world. This was the lesson that we of America had taught to all countries.

When the European democracies lost their vision, they opened the way to Hitler. While Germany was building a great new productive plant, France became absorbed in unfruitful political adventures and flimsy economic theories. Her government was trying desperately to merely act in reforming things. It consists also in making things.

The ability to grow, the ability to make things, is the measure of man's welfare on this earth. To be free, man must be creative.

I am a liberal because I believe in our industrial age there is no limit to the productive capacity of any man. And so I believe that there is no limit to the horizon of the United States.

I say that we must substitute for the philosophy of unlimited productivity, I stand for the restoration of full production and re-employment of private enterprise in America.

And I say that we must henceforth ask certain questions of every reform, and every law to regulate business or industry. We must ask: Has it encouraged our industries to produce? Has it created new opportunities for our youth? Will it increase our standard of living? Will it encourage us to open up a new and bigger world?

Living Standard

Of course, if you start like the New Deal with the idea that we shall have many more automobiles or radios, that we can develop many new inventions of importance, that our standard of living must remain as it is, the rest of the argument is easy. Since a few people have more than they need and millions less than they need, it is necessary to redistribute the wealth and turn it back from the few to the many.

But this can only make the poor poorer and the rich less rich. It does not redistribute wealth. It distributes poverty.

Because I am a businessman, formerly connected with a large company, the doctrines of the opposition have attacked me as an opponent of liberalism. But it was a liberal before many of these men had heard of the word, and I fought for many of the reforms of the elder La Follette, Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson before another liberalism adopted—and distorted—liberalism.

Seized Tax Power

It seized upon his taxing power for political purposes. It has levied taxes to punish one man, to force another to do what he did not want to do, to take a crack at a business man some government agency disliked, or to promote the experiments of a brain-trust. The direct effect of the New Deal taxes has been to inhibit opportunity. It has diverted the money of the rich from productive enterprises to government bonds, so that the United States treasury—and no one else—may have plenty to spend. Thus much of the money of the rich is invested in tax-exempt securities.

Proposes Debate

I propose that during the next two and a half months, the President and I appear together on public platform in various parts of the country, to debate the fundamental issues of this campaign. These are the problems of our great domestic economy, as well as of our own national defense; the problems of agriculture, of labor, of industry, of finance, of government's relationship to the people, and of our preparations to guard against assault. And also I would like to debate the question of the assumption by this President, in seeking a third term, of a greater public confidence than was accorded to our President, Jackson, Lincoln, Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, and Woodrow Wilson.

What Hops Do For Beer

Hops are for flavor. They give to good beer and ale their lively, appetizing flavor, their pleasant, aromatic tang.

Brewers select and blend their hops with extreme care. In fact, every step in making beer and ale is conducted with mastery skill—to give you better-tasting, more wholesome beverages.

Now the brewing industry wants to do one thing more. It wants to protect your right to drink good beer and ale—by keeping the places where beer and ale are sold wholesome, too.

Only Strong Free

A reform that can not meet these tests is not a truly liberal reform. It is an "I pass" reform. It does not tend to strengthen our system, but to weaken it. It exposes us to aggressors whether economic or military. It encourages the domination by other groups. We are told that capital hates labor and labor capital. We are told that the different kinds of men, whose task it is to build America, are enemies of one another. And an astute man says that some Americans who have made political capital of that supposed enmity.

Hops are for flavor. They give to good beer and ale their lively, appetizing flavor, their pleasant, aromatic tang.

Brewers select and blend their hops with extreme care. In fact, every step in making beer and ale is conducted with mastery skill—to give you better-tasting, more wholesome beverages.

Now the brewing industry wants to do one thing more. It wants to protect your right to drink good beer and ale—by keeping the places where beer and ale are sold wholesome, too.

Red Army Attacks

Blue In Louisiana

CAMP BEAUREGARD, La., Aug. 19 (AP)—The "red" army attacked at dawn today all along a 30-mile front in the third army war maneuvers.

The second infantry division and the "triangular" regular army division from Fort Sam Houston, Tex., stabled at the "blue" right flank which had been thinly held by the mechanized sixth cavalry regiment.

The 36th infantry division, militiamen from Oklahoma, New Mexico, and Colorado, struck the blue left. There were many Indian troops in the 45th.

The first cavalry division, a regular army unit from the Mexican border, which first established contact with the blues, was pulled back as a reserve.

The blues continued on the defensive, trying to hold high ground south of the Calcasieu river.

The 30th infantry division, composed of national guardsmen from Georgia, Tennessee, North Carolina and South Carolina, which had been held in reserve, was moved to the right flank, where the second division was attacking, with orders to hold.

The rest of the blue line was defended by the 31st infantry division, made up from the Alabama, Mississippi, Florida and Louisiana national guard, and the 23rd cavalry division, from Georgia, Louisiana, Alabama, Tennessee, and Texas militiamen.

An Independent Democratic newspaper, publishing the news fairly and impartially at all times and supporting in its editorial columns the principles which it believes to be right and opposing those which it believes to be wrong, regardless of party politics.

Reel Cooperation: The development of Pan American Airways is a saga. Private capital here took spectacular risks for objectives not always purely confined to the balance sheet, but which looked patriotically toward national goals.

The government at all points helped all it could. The magnificent airway which is now opening its latest "branch line" to New Zealand is a spectacular example of the cooperation of private industry and government in furthering the national welfare.

A vast body of knowledge of long-distance flying and navigation has been built up, and a practical experience in how to teach it. Now the government is going to get the benefit of that. Five hundred young flyers are to be taught all Pan American has learned of long-range navigation technique, in classes set up on a non-profit contract basis. It is an example of a privately owned national asset developed through public co-operation, now turned freely to the national service.

WAR PROSPERITY IS FALSE PROSPERITY

In his announcement of the new arrangement intended by next year to supply the British government with 36,000 airplanes annually, Secretary Morgenthau indulged in a little rhapsody on the profitable side of the transaction.

The British, he said, "seem to have plenty of money" the sums involved being "colossal." "For the benefit of American business," he continued, "I believe this is the most important thing with which I have come in contact."

It is more important, in other words, than all of the New Deal's efforts to spend the country to prosperity. That dismal experiment is one with which Morgenthau has had considerable disillusioning contact.

His little rush of enthusiasm over the forthcoming British orders thus was of special significance. It was the first open admission from Washington in a long while of the hope, covertly entertained there, that war may do for domestic prosperity what the New Deal has failed to do.

The last similar slip was the President's much-criticized argument for the "material advantage" of repealing the arms embargo in the neutrality act. An arms trade with warring nations, he said then, would "give employment to thousands."

This is a good time to recall that the argument for retaining the embargo was precisely that, an arms trade would foster in America a false and insecure prosperity based on war. It was felt this would give the country an economic stake in the continuance of war and so, as in 1915-16—according to the embargoists' theory—lead imperceptibly to a willingness to go to war.

The repeal of the embargo opened the way for such a prosperity. It has been slow in developing but now, according to eager Mr. Morgenthau, is just about here.

Further developments will not necessarily have to repeat those of 1917. But an extraordinary public alertness will be needed to avoid it, particularly with an administration at Washington that, unlike President Wilson's, is frankly unneutral, incurably venturesome, and politically interested in hastening a semblance of prosperity by any means at hand.

Behind The News

By MILTON BRONNER, NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The famous question of what the governor of North Carolina said to the governor of South Carolina when they did a bit of elbow bending is as nothing these days to the questions about what Vittorio Bifulco, assistant counselor on emigration at the Italian embassy here, said to prominent Americans in Washington.

It seems established that he wrote to the Italian-American leaders to meet him. It also seems established that the government at Rome sent orders that consular officers all over the United States were to advise their Italian brethren to put the soft pedal on activities of a nature to arouse anti-Italian feeling.

Rome has seen how angry Americans have become over the coverings of the German-American Bund with its swastikas and its "Heil Hitlers." So the men in authority here have decided to slip the word that similar actions on the part of the Italian-Americans are to be avoided. They are not to hold ramblous meetings and are not to flaunt the Italian flag in the faces of the public.

BIFULCO WON'T TALK: Bifulco himself has proved a most elusive personage. Efforts to get his own personal version of what occurred have proved vain. Authorities at the Italian embassy rather deprecated all the publicity and said an American mountain was being made of an Italian molehill. It was insisted that Italian-Americans were and always had been good American citizens and were in no need of tutelage as to how to behave.

Dr. Eugene Forlano, a prominent Italian-American physician and president of the Sons of Italy, was not so reticent. He said he was one of a number of men who had met Bifulco, others being the heads of the Unione Fratellanza and the Loggia Roma.

"We were simply advised," said he, "to avoid international political arguments and not to get mixed up in things which would tend to injure the good will between Italians and Americans."

NEW MARCH OF UNEMPLOYED FEARED: A number of years ago, during the presidency of Herbert Hoover, Washington was invaded by a great

Common Ground

This column contends there can be no satisfactory progress until we measure the shares of each man by the common yardstick of the God-given equal right to create and enjoy anything anyone else has a right to create and enjoy.

THE AMERICAN CANON

A reader of "Common Ground" was kind enough to loan me the new book, "The American Canon" by Daniel L. Marsh. The author intended to make it The American Creed, or The American Bible or What Is Americanism.

He says there are seven documents that qualify as American canon. He lists the seven as follows:

- Mayflower Compact
- The Declaration of Independence.
- The Constitution of the United States
- The Farewell Address of George Washington.
- The Star Spangled Banner
- Lincoln's Second Inaugural Address.
- The Road Away from Revolution, written in 1923 by Woodrow Wilson and published in the Atlantic Monthly.

The author describes the setting of the various articles and then in the appendix of the book gives their text.

Little, of course, needs to be said about most of these instruments attempting to establish justice or equal freedom. The Mayflower Compact is the shortest of all and was entered into 320 years ago. All of the men on the Mayflower signed the covenant, or compact, excepting two who were ill.

All The People: It was truly a government by the consent of all the people; not the majority, but all the able-bodied people. We have had great confusion about a government with the consent of the people, by the people and for the people. We never seem to specify how many of the people the government must be for.

Many people jump at the conclusion that the Ten Commandments are not needed in a government; that the majority can make any rules they want and disregard the eternal principles found by thousands of years of trial and error to be necessary for social progress.

One short clause in the Mayflower Compact is something that we have largely discarded today. The clause was, "and frame such just and EQUAL laws, ordinances and acts" etc. It will be noted that the words "EQUAL LAWS" could not mean that there can be laws discriminating against different individuals in the group, as we have been progressively increasing them for the last three decades.

To me, the book is a masterpiece, with one exception. That exception is the article by Woodrow Wilson, which violates the Commandments, "Thou shalt not covet or bear false witness against thy neighbor." The Wilson article does not seem to differentiate between things that belong to the government and things that belong to God. He would have the government become almost totalitarian in planning the lives of individuals.

Classed First Created Under Wilson: It seems to me that Woodrow Wilson was the President when we really first started to destroy the rest of the American canon of equal laws and equal rights of every citizen. It was under Woodrow Wilson that we passed the income tax law that made classes out of people. It was under Woodrow Wilson that we passed the Clayton Amendment to the Sherman Anti-Trust law that made classes out of people by permitting certain groups to combine for restraint of trade and making it a crime for others to do the identical same thing.

These two laws have done as much as any other two laws ever passed by the United States government to cause ten million people to be out of work.

Of the graduated income tax law, Carl Snyder in his new book "Capitalism The Creator," says it was the worst mistake the American people ever made.

Six Great Documents: Seldom does one find assembled together in one book and properly explained six great documents of American freedom more interestingly and concisely presented. Here are a few gems:

"The way to get rid of an idea is to supplant it with a better one," by the author of the book.

A quotation from Milton—"Give me the liberty to know, to utter and to argue freely according to conscience above all liberty."

Certain kinds of nationalism, such as "my country right or wrong" is "the last refuge of a scoundrel."—Samuel Johnson.

A quotation from Abraham Lincoln, shortly after his second inaugural address, who had given his approbation of the address as follows:

Flattering Men: "Every one likes a compliment. Thank you for yours on my little notification speech and on the recent inaugural address. I expect the latter to wear as well as, perhaps better than, anything I have produced; but I believe it is not immediately popular. Men are not flattered by being shown that there has been a difference of purpose between the Almighty and them. To deny it, however, in this case, is to deny that there is a God governing the world. It is a truth which I thought needed to be told, and as what-ever of humiliation there is in it falls most directly on myself, I thought others might afford for me to tell it."

What we need most now is men who will speak as Lincoln spoke at that time and point out very definitely and specifically, without generalities, the difference of purpose between the Almighty and ourselves.

number of unemployed men who proceeded to live in crude camps and stayed there until the regular army forces were ordered by Hoover to clear them out. Government and Washington city officials are very much afraid there may be another rush of unemployed men to Washington.

The giant rearmament program is the basic cause of this fear. People all over the country have begun speculating how many thousands of new jobs this rearmament program will create. Many of them think the thing to do is to get in on the ground floor when the jobs are dished out and they think the ground floor is right here in Washington.

It is emphasized that the government here will have nothing to do with the task of filling these jobs, nor will senators or congressmen. It will therefore be a waste of time and money to come here job-seeking. Note, just by the way: Many prominent government officials love to eat at one very pleasant roof garden restaurant whose floor has swastikas, not the Hitler version, and it was put there long before Hitler was heard of.

SEASIDE CONVERSATION

Around Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON, NEA Service Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 19.—Behind the screen: Some of the people who evacuated foreign branches of the big movie companies are said to have made a pleasant discovery that it's possible to take money out of Hitler's Europe. A man who claims to have done it told me how:

First he liquidated everything he owned. Then, by paying a premium, he managed to change his marks into U. S. currency. The money was taken to an American diplomatic representative and, after being examined, was burned there by its owner. The official then provided a document saying that to his certain knowledge bills of such-and-such denominations and serial numbers had been completely destroyed while in the possession of Mr. So-and-So. The latter, after returning to this country, presented the document and eventually received new currency.

I asked how about our law against mutilating or defacing U. S. money. Mr. So-and-So said he got around that law by not applying there or maybe that the currency could be considered lost to use and therefore already destroyed before he got hold of it. In any case, he didn't think he'd be prosecuted.

I like Oscar Homolka's story about his negro servant, who has seemed mighty weary and worried lately, and was asked if he was sick. "It's jes' that wife of mine," he said. "All the time she talk, talk, talk. It's drivin' me crazy. I can't get no rest with all that talk."

"What does she talk about?" asked the actor.

"That's the trouble," said the nervous negro. "She don't ever say."

Charlie Chaplin's picture will be titled "The Dictator" or "The Great Dictator," after all the Paramount-owned prior rights to the title and only the other day consented to sell it. According to present plans, the flicker will end with an anti-Nazi speech that's far from comical.

A woman went into a swanky department store, here, a 10 per cent discount and asked the customer's name. "I'm Barbara Hutton," she said. Miss Hutton has taken a house in Beverly Hills and evidently expects to be pretty busy socially. She had 12 telephones installed.

Two husky young men of maybe 16 or 17 have been visiting all the studios by a simple trick. They buy some lumber—usually just one long board—and carry it in one of the side or rear gates. Once on a lot they're able to walk around as long as they like, but they have to leave the lumber there when they go home. Way they were discovered was by nearly being arrested for trying to carry their own board out of a studio.

It's going to be a good season for song-writers and chorus girls. 31 musical pictures are scheduled. Mary Pickford is considering making another picture. She's said to have found a story she likes. Milton Berle, back for a picture, and exhibiting a remodeled nose, now is having his diction straightened by a dramatic coach. Elsie the Oomph Cow, appearing in "Little Men," has been making personal appearances all over town. Bob Hope says Elsie is doing so much night clubbing she's beginning to get bags under her eyes.

Samuel Goldwyn opened a meeting of the Motion Picture division of the Red Cross with this announcement: "From now on, this committee will be run in a democratic way. I'm the boss and what I say goes."

Vincent and two other Pampa boys are now at San Diego, Calif., undergoing their initial training period of seven weeks during which time they will train rigorously, and will not be allowed to leave their barracks. In brief they will be toughened for seven weeks, or long enough to convince their hardboiled Marine officers that they can take it. Are You Superstitious ABOUT CARDS?

By RUTH FARRAR, NEA Special Correspondent

"Unlucky at cards, lucky at love," isn't very consoling to a player whose last ace has just been trumped or whose last nickel is in the pot.

Card players are ordinarily a superstitious lot, says Dr. E. A. Cartwright of the University of Oklahoma, owner of one of the largest collections of superstitions in the world—more than 12,000 of them. Here are some of the things he finds card players believe:

It is lucky for a card player to carry a bone of a dead person in his pocket. You can break bad luck at cards by sitting on a handkerchief. To change your luck at cards, turn the back of the chair to the table and sit astride it. For luck at cards, turn up the bottom of a trouser leg. For luck at cards, "milk" the deck that is, deal a card alternately from the top and from the bottom.

For luck at cards, carry a bone.

To change luck, at cards, change decks. It brings bad luck to fumble the deal. When the ace and the two, three, and four spots make a trick, the winner should kiss the dealer for luck.

You are likely to have bad luck if you gamble under your own roof. It will bring dire calamity to you if you permit a person to put his feet on the rung of your chair during a card game.

It brings good luck to pick up your cards with your left hand. It brings good luck to be the last to take up and look at your cards. It brings bad luck to play cards any place near the spot where a murder was committed.

It brings bad luck to play cards across the grain of a table. Luck runs the way of the grain. Walk around the card table three times to change your luck. For luck at cards, reverse the direction of dealing. For luck at cards, remove a piece of jewelry. It is lucky for a card player to carry the wishbone of a chicken in his pocket. It is unlucky to gamble in a room where there is a woman unless she is gambling, too, says an old superstition. "And it is usually unlucky, anyhow," commented an expert poker player recently. Therein lies the probable explanation for stag parties.

U. S., Canada To Coordinate All Defenses

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 19 (AP)—The destinies of Canada and the United States, in a world wincing from the blows of war, were interlocked more firmly today than ever before by an agreement for permanent coordination of their defenses.

A joint board of defense will meet soon, in accordance with an understanding reached by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada, for "immediate studies relating to sea, land and air problems, including personnel and material."

The decision to set up a permanent board, made up primarily of four or five military experts from each country, was announced yesterday in a joint statement at Ogdensburg, N. Y.

There, on the international border, the President and the Prime Minister had met to discuss "mutual problems of defense" and the safety of their nations. There they made an agreement unique in the annals of American foreign policy.

In effect, it made neutral United States, for purposes of North American defense, an ally of a nation actively at war with Germany and Italy.

If the agreement envisions American involvement should the totalitarian powers attempt to bring their conflict to the dominion, it was nothing more than military men had expected. They have long contended that for the United States to be safe, it must see to it that Canada also is safe.

The terse announcement left unanswered questions about the possible results of conversations also in progress with Great Britain for the acquisition of air and naval bases on British territory in the western hemisphere—bases designed chiefly to bolster the defenses of the Panama Canal.

It also left unanswered such questions as these: Is a definite mutual assistance pact contemplated between the United States and Canada? Will plans be evolved for a unified command of men and fighting equipment? Will the agreement extend to the vital industries which supply the weapons of war?

It did carry a definite implication, however, that this country considers Canada to be completely within the scope of the Monroe Doctrine.

There was the famous tree belt, McCarli said "no." He was summoned to the White House—"Why can't I spend 10 million dollars to plant trees?" "Because Congress has not authorized money to be spent for that purpose."

"You are too technical. You are splitting hairs. The people want to spend their money for anything I see fit."

"You may think so but the people wrote the Constitution which provides that the people's money shall not be drawn from their treasury except as their agents in Congress shall direct."

"I took an oath to support that Constitution as you did. Moreover, I am the agent of Congress and not your agent. Congress has not said that 10 million dollars or 1 dollar shall be used to plant trees. Until they do the answer is 'no.'"

The White House conference ended, as Mr. McCarli told me, with both men pounding the table. He was called to the White House no more. Yes-men were wanted. No-men were not wanted.

In 1937 came the reorganization bill. I debated that issue with Mr. James Roosevelt over the Town Hall of the Air. McCarli filled my powder horn. That bill, drawn by White House "Experts," abolished the Controller General's office. We were told the President would sacrifice anything else in the bill if Congress would abolish the office of watchdog. Congress refused. The next year came the "purge."

After fifteen years as Comptroller General overseeing the spending of billions, John McCarli, patriot, came to one simple and fundamental conclusion: Give this nation a Strong Congress. Get the best men of both parties to run for Congress and the Senate. Elect them and support them against pressure presidents and pressure blocs.

"If you had had a Strong Congress," John McCarli said over and over in recent months, "no court packing bill would have ever been sent to Capitol Hill. When Webster, Clay and Calhoun were in Congress, no President dared also that they surrender the powers the people gave them. This is now the weak point in the armor of our democracy. Make it strong."

STORIES IN STAMPS

Niagara Falls Remains Greatest Tourist Lure: NIAGARA FALLS, pictured on the U. S. 25-cent stamp above, is viewed by more than two million visitors each year. Although not the highest nor the largest waterfall in the world, it is easily accessible, has long been a favorite place for honeymooners.

Niagara is 167 feet high, is approximately a mile wide. The water is free from sediment and its clearness adds to the beauty of the cataract. The scenic value depends upon the volume of water flowing over the falls and upon its distribution in American and Horseshoe Falls. The brink of the falls is receding at an average rate of 2 1/2 feet a year, but scenic beauty of Niagara is to be preserved by cooperation of Canada and United States in checking erosion, insuring even distribution of water.

Pettingill FIFTY YEARS Democratic Congressman From INDIANA

THE MISSING WATCHDOG

The death of John R. McCarli, former Comptroller General of the United States, deserves more than ordinary notice. Within a fortnight a political platform was written at Chicago in which the word "budget" does not appear. It has vanished. And none so poor to do it reverence.

The day Mr. McCarli died I read a statement by the Honorable Dennis Chavez, Senator from New Mexico. The Senator told me reasons he wants Mr. Roosevelt for a third term. Among them is the fact that the New Deal in New Mexico "has built more schoolhouses in the past seven years than were built in the previous eighty-five."

That takes us back to the time gold was discovered in California. Senator Chavez did not say that the New Deal had built more character in children in seven years than the pioneers of the Gold Rush, the covered wagon and the riders of the pony express had built since 1849. The record of juvenile crime would not bear him out.

Schools, if needed, must be had, I suppose, even if built for children neglected by New Mexican parents with money taken from parents of children in Ohio, Massachusetts and other states. Still one wonders if the Senator is not interested in New Mexican contractors as well as children.

I recall a famous hospital built in New Mexico, so it was said, for crippled children. At this point you are supposed to shed a pious tear. But the money that was poured into this hospital indicates it was built for political contractors so they could chip in when new elections must be won.

If spent by private hospital boards, the money would have taken care of three times the number of crippled children, if New Mexico had that number.

Against all this sort of moral rot and political pollution John R. McCarli was inflexibly opposed. He stood for economy in government, honor in politics and fidelity to trust. He stood for work and against waste. He was sired by the kind of people who built this nation.

There was the famous tree belt, McCarli said "no." He was summoned to the White House—"Why can't I spend 10 million dollars to plant trees?" "Because Congress has not authorized money to be spent for that purpose."

"You are too technical. You are splitting hairs. The people want to spend their money for anything I see fit."

"You may think so but the people wrote the Constitution which provides that the people's money shall not be drawn from their treasury except as their agents in Congress shall direct."

"I took an oath to support that Constitution as you did. Moreover, I am the agent of Congress and not your agent. Congress has not said that 10 million dollars or 1 dollar shall be used to plant trees. Until they do the answer is 'no.'"

The White House conference ended, as Mr. McCarli told me, with both men pounding the table. He was called to the White House no more. Yes-men were wanted. No-men were not wanted.

In 1937 came the reorganization bill. I debated that issue with Mr. James Roosevelt over the Town Hall of the Air. McCarli filled my powder horn. That bill, drawn by White House "Experts," abolished the Controller General's office. We were told the President would sacrifice anything else in the bill if Congress would abolish the office of watchdog. Congress refused. The next year came the "purge."

After fifteen years as Comptroller General overseeing the spending of billions, John McCarli, patriot, came to one simple and fundamental conclusion: Give this nation a Strong Congress. Get the best men of both parties to run for Congress and the Senate. Elect them and support them against pressure presidents and pressure blocs.

"If you had had a Strong Congress," John McCarli said over and over in recent months, "no court packing bill would have ever been sent to Capitol Hill. When Webster, Clay and Calhoun were in Congress, no President dared also that they surrender the powers the people gave them. This is now the weak point in the armor of our democracy. Make it strong."

Oilers Only Four Hits As Berger Defeats Dodgers

Two Clubs To Play Final Game Tonight

Failure to hit, especially with men on base, cost the Pampa Oilers a ball game yesterday afternoon in Berger, 6 to 2. Old Wiley Moore smothered the Oilers to death, limiting them to four hits, two of them by Dutch Prather who has been doing most of the hitting the past few games.

Prather homered to open the second for the first hit off Moore. The veteran then pitched hitless ball until the sixth. The other Oiler run came in the seventh when Potter, who has also been doing some nice hitting, singled Prather home. The other Oiler hit went to Lloyd Summers.

Tonight the Oilers and Gassers will play their last game of the season in Berger, unless the two meet in the playoff. Dilbeck is scheduled to hurl for the Oilers tonight, opposed by Cruces, ace of the Berger staff and third leading pitcher in the league. Dilbeck will be seeking his 20th victory of the season.

Berger fans honored their manager, Gordon Nell, on his 33rd birthday. They showered him with hundreds of girls and he responded by bagging a pair of singles which drove in two runs.

John McFarland pitched another good game of ball for the Oilers but his teammates messed up five plays and made only four hits. McFarland limited the Gassers to seven hits, six of them singles.

Amarillo lost of Clovis yesterday which leaves them two games ahead of the Oilers. Lubbock was a winner, creeping a game closer to the lead.

Berger Veterans Defeat Flying Red Horses 12-3

A team of veterans from Berger downed the Magnolia Flying Red Horses of Pampa 12 to 3 in the opening game of the Amarillo Invitational baseball tournament yesterday afternoon at Main park. The game was a lot more exciting than the score indicates.

In the other game of the afternoon, Dumas swamped St. Francis 17 to 0.

Lefty Freshour, veteran of Panhandle baseball teams, limited the Red Horses to 10 hits while A. C. Miller, Mayes, Bailey, Weathered, and Gastineau were being nipped for 16 bingles.

A trip to Puerto Rico again is in store for the winners of the national semi-professional baseball tournament in Wichita, Aug. 16-28, but things won't be so pleasant when they arrive on the tropical Caribbean island.

For LeRoy Paige and the San Juan Guayamas will be waiting for them to defend their world semi-pro championship in a series starting Sept. 21.

The Guayamas beat the American representatives—the Duncan, Okla., Halliburton Cementers—a year ago in the first semi-pro world series. They bagged four of six engagements in a series so tight that only 30 runs were scored by the two clubs.

The Guayamas earned the right to defend the world title by breezing to their second consecutive pennant in the Puerto Rican eight-team major league behind the remarkable pitching of licorice-colored Satchel Paige.

Paige, who trains on fried chicken, hot cakes and warm biscuits, was perhaps the best known and certainly the most colorful semi-pro pitcher in the United States. Thirty-

Dallas Pulls Up Even With Tribe

(By The Associated Press)

The fast-traveling Dallas Rebels finally have pulled up even with Rogers Hornsby's Oklahoma City Indians and it looks as though the Hornsby men yet may be beaten out of a place in the Texas league championship play-off.

This was a blue Monday for the Redskins. While they were dropping two games on their home grounds to Beaumont yesterday, 6 to 5 and 8 to 4, the Rebels were conquering the San Antonio Missions, 5 to 3, for their ninth victory in the last 10 starts.

As a result, Oklahoma City and Dallas are virtually tied for fourth place.

First division clubs meet in the play-off after the close of the season two weeks from next Sunday.

The Rebels seem little doubt, Houston, San Antonio and Beaumont will fill three of the berths. That leaves Dallas and Oklahoma City to fight it out for the other.

Dizzy Dean pitched another reasonably good game for the seventh-place Tulsa Oilers yesterday but beat him in the eleventh inning; 4 to 3. The Oilers then took the second game 3 to 2, behind Hank Nowak's five-hit hurling.

The Shreveport Sports and the Fort Worth Cats divided a twin bill at Fort Worth. The cellar-dwelling Felons pounded out 18 hits in the opener 7 to 2, but the aging Jackie Reid had them on his hip in the nightcap, which the Sports captured, 3 to 1.

Dodgers Coming Again; Reds Need Bats That Hit

Old Home Week for Ex-Panthers

Associated Press Sports Writer

That wasn't an 8-0-8 that broke in on your sitting-up exercises over the radio this morning. It was only an emergency call from Deacon Will McKechnie to rush his Cincinnati Reds some bats without holes in 'em.

The good deacon realizes it's a case of getting some bats loaded with base hits—or else. For the Dodgers of Brooklyn, who apparently didn't read the headlines about the Rhinelanders being "in" with the National league pennant, are on the prowl again.

The Reds' weak hitting has been the big reason they've lost 12 of their last 20 games since the end of July. And so far this month the Dodgers have shaved Cincinnati's league lead down from 7 1/2 to 4 1/2 games.

The "clutch" hitting was missing again yesterday as the Reds lost both games of a doubleheader to the St. Louis Cardinals, 3-1 and 5-4. At the same time Leo Durocher took over the Brooklyn shortstop chores and helped his Dodgers chill the warmed-up Boston Bees twice, 7-2 and 3-1.

In the opener at St. Louis, Bucky Walters just about pitched his arm off, but his mates couldn't hit Mort Cooper effectively. This marked the fifth straight time Bucky has gone the route—and the fourth time he lost. In those 45 innings he has given up only 18 runs, but the Reds have been backed into a corner with only 13.

Bucky and Paul Derringer have been the chief sufferers in this run-making moratorium. Paul has won only one of four starts, yet he has allowed just 10 runs in 35 innings. His pals have scored only eight for him.

Yesterday's nightcap, which boosted the Cards into the first division, saw St. Louis shove two runs across in the eighth, while the Reds were Whit Wyatt tossed him usual neat game in the curtain-raiser at Brooklyn, a seven-hit, Luke The-Hot-Potato Hamlin left his home run ball in his locker and served up the same dish in the nightcap.

Sullivan Finds Himself Behind Bat As Buck Newsom's Target

(By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor)

DETROIT, Aug. 12.—When Detroit traded Cliff Cofman to the St. Louis Browns for William Joseph Sullivan, Jr., last winter, thousands yawned.

Cofman wasn't much of a pitcher, and Billy Sullivan was listed as a run-or-nine catcher.

But like that other baseball migrant, Buck Newsom, his favorite batter mate, Sullivan has won a home for himself in Tiger livery.

He is dividing the Detroit backstopping with Birdie Tabetts, now one of the game's top receivers.

Sullivan picked up with Newsom where they left off in St. Louis. They went on to win 13 straight games.

When young Hal Newhouse started against Red Ruffing and the Yankees the other afternoon,

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—News: The Giants appear to have a fine case of jitters. Long distance prediction: Duke will beat Tennessee at football next fall and the Texas Aggies will not go through the season undefeated. Joe Cambria, Washington's one-man scouting system, who already owns the Springfield (Mass.) club, is dickering for the Shelby (N. C.) franchise. Of the 23 backfield candidates for the Alabama Crimson Tide, not one is a senior.

Hooray For Whizzer

Oklahoma City will stage a "be kind to umpires" night next Friday. Jack Dempsey, more popular than ever, will be the main speaker at the N. B. A. convention at Milwaukee next month. Philadelphia papers say Mike Kaplan of Boston really beat Milt Aron of Chicago the other night although the best he got was a draw. This is straight from the red box: Ace Parker, who was injured playing baseball with Syracuse this summer, may not play a lek for the Brooklyn football Dodgers next fall.

Today's Guest Star
 Prof. John P. Carmichael, Chicago Daily News: "That must have been a strange phenomenon in New York; the rain falling in the Polo Grounds, washing out the Billy Conn-Bob Pastor fight, while right across the Harlem river the Red Sox and Yankees were able to play a doubleheader until darkness intervened."

While his injured finger was mending, Buck Newsom collected $100 and expenses for personal appearances in Michigan State league parks. If Kid Brewer, the old Duke star, doesn't come home a winner in that North Carolina political race, the odds are he'll join the North Carolina U. football staff.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Aug. 19 (AP)—Wonderful, these two-week vacations—just ask Spec Stewart.

Spec went back to work today as a state school tax auditor at Roswell, his annual vacation producing the couple of the Southwest's prized golfing honors—Southwestern and New Mexico amateur championships.

Playing some of the hottest golf that ever swirled on a New Mexico course, Stewart defeated Bob Coldwater of Phoenix, Arizona amateur champion, 11 and 10 to win the Southwestern title yesterday—just a week after he walked off the Las Cruces Country club course with his eighth New Mexico amateur title.

Walter Chrysler, Great Automotive Industrialist, Dies

NEW YORK, Aug. 19 (AP)—Walter P. Chrysler, 65, a one-time locomotive wiper who became one of America's great automotive industrialists, died yesterday at his suburban home here of a cerebral hemorrhage. He had been unconscious 24 hours.

A funeral service will be held Wednesday at 10 a. m. in St. Bartholomew's Episcopal church here. Burial will be in Sleepy Hollow cemetery, Tarrytown, N. Y.

Chrysler's quest for success involved many jobs and many changes in salary. He sacrificed high-paying positions on several occasions to take others which he thought held greater possibilities for advancement. In later years, operating from his 77-story skyscraper in mid-Manhattan and director of 25 plants in five states and three foreign countries, he still referred to himself as "a machinist."

Born in Wamego, Kas., on April 2, 1875, Chrysler attended school in Ellis, Kas., where his family moved in 1878.

He was the son of a locomotive engineer and his interest in the huge driving wheels and the simple old boiler of his father's engine induced him to launch his own career as a simple railroad workman.

From the beginning, Chrysler's ambition and mechanical ability led him far afield. In 1908, with $4,300 in borrowed money and $700 of his own, he purchased an automobile just to take it apart and put it together again to learn its principles. He could not drive yet.

He took the machine apart and re-assembled it 40 times. Four years later he left his managerial post with the American Locomotive company at Pittsburgh to enter the automobile industry as works manager for the Buick company at Flint, Mich.

This was a move from a $12,000 to a $6,000-a-year job but three years later he was getting $25,000.

New York's first fire company was known as "The Rattle Watch." Originated in 1658, it numbered eight men.

A bud has the remarkable power to reproduce every part of a tree: stem, foliage, branches and fruit.

Langtry Offers Haven To 'Jersey Lily's' Daughter

LANGTRY, Aug. 19 (AP)—This Southwest Texas ranch town today offered a haven from German bombs for the daughter and granddaughter of Lily Langtry, English stage beauty for whom it was named.

Postmaster Harold Dodd cabled Lady Ivan Malcolm, daughter of the famous actress of the 90's, that "Langtry's 200 citizens would be glad to have you and Lady Mary Bartles of London."

The cable was sent to Port Aloah, Kilmartin, Argyllshire, England. Dodd recalled that "Our Judge Roy Bean, who was the law west of the Pecos, named the town in honor of your beautiful mother," adding "He would have wanted us to offer refuge to the daughter of the actress he so admired."

Judge Bean, who dealt frontier justice during the 1880's and 90's, never saw the Jersey Lily, but he was born on the island of Jersey.

But he corresponded with her and plastered her pictures on the walls of his combination saloon and courtroom.

When Lily Langtry came to America in 1905, she stopped her transcontinental train for a 10-minute visit at Langtry but Judge Bean had died two years before.

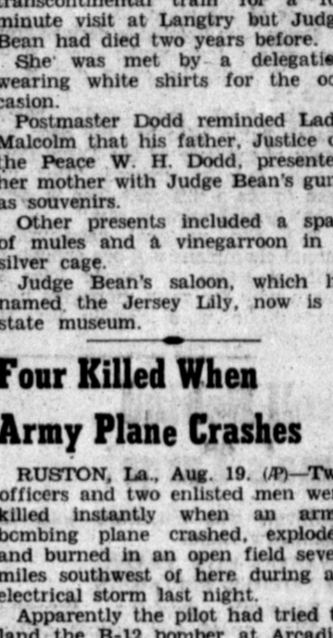

She was met by a delegation wearing white shirts for the occasion.

Postmaster Dodd reminded Lady Malcolm that his father, Justice of the Peace W. H. Dodd, presented her mother with Judge Bean's guns as souvenirs.

Other presents included a span of mules and a vinegarroon in a silver case.

Judge Bean's saloon, which he named the Jersey Lily, now is a state museum.

Bullitt Predicts Attack On U. S. If Britain Goes Down

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19 (AP)—U. S. Ambassador to France William C. Bullitt predicted a German attack on the United States if Great Britain is defeated as he urged the nation last night to adopt conscription and send aid to the British fleet.

His words, broadcast throughout the nation from historic Independence Square, carried the approval of the U. S. State department.

"America is in danger," he said gravely.

"It is my conviction, drawn from my own experience and from the information in the hands of our government in Washington, that the United States is in as great peril today as was France a year ago. And I believe that unless we act now, decisively, to meet the threat we shall be too late."

At one point he asked the 4,000 persons in front of the shrine, "Do you want to see Hitler in Independence Hall making fun of the Liberty Bell?"

"No!" he shouted, and the crowd shouted with him.

"Write and telegraph to your senators and representatives," he urged. "Write to your newspaper. Demand the privilege of being called into the service of the nation. Tell them that we want conscription. Tell them that we back up General Pershing."

(General Pershing, commander of the American Expeditionary Force in the last war, advocated in Washington August 4 that "at least 80" destroyers left over from the World War be made available to the British.)

SERIAL STORY

MURDER INCOGNITO

BY NORMAN KAHL

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY, O'Leary accused the bullet, the intruder in Riggs, the chauffeur. He reads the man in jail, studies the contents of Saylor's... Riggs is an ex-convict, paroled to the attorney... that Harbort had been embroiling Saylor in the partnership and Harbort intended to have him disbarred. O'Leary is not sure Riggs is the murderer.

CHAPTER VIII SERGEANT CARROLL tried painfully to suppress a yawn as he walked through the marble corridors of Central Police Station the next morning. A policeman's lot, indeed, was not a happy one, he reflected. Especially when something like this Saylor murder business came up. With a shrug of his shoulders, Carroll turned into the detective bureau. He nodded curtly to the man at the desk and walked directly to O'Leary's office. The weary sergeant was astonished to see how fresh O'Leary looked after the harrowing experiences of only a few hours ago. Carroll pushed his hat toward the back of his head and sank down into a chair. "Chief, I thought we had that thing cleaned up. What if Saylor did have George Barbour behind the eight-ball because he discovered Barbour had been dipping his fingers into the till? And what if Saylor was going to toss Hazel Leighton overboard because he didn't love her any more? And what if he didn't want young Appleby to get any money because he didn't like the Waters girl? And what if Harbort did owe him some dough on gambling accounts?" O'Leary tapped the desk with a pencil. "You think we ought to forget all that—concentrate on Riggs now?" "Sure," Carroll insisted. "He did the job."

both to pen himself in on that side of the room? Wouldn't it have been much easier just plugging Saylor from somewhere near the library door where the killer would have had to enter? Then he could have made a quick getaway. Carroll didn't have a chance to answer. The door opened, and a lean man, wearing silver-rimmed spectacles, came into the room. "Have you got the report, Murdoch?" O'Leary inquired. Murdoch placed several sheets on O'Leary's desk. "Here it is, Lieutenant."

O'Leary's expression remained unchanged, but Carroll's face fell as he glanced at Murdoch. "Looks like we start all over again," he said to no one in particular. O'Leary swung back in his chair. "Okay. Thanks, Murdoch. Tell Sweeney to bring Riggs in here, will you?" In a few minutes, the swarthy chauffeur was led into the room. His temper had been somewhat subdued during his stay in jail, but a slow-burning anger still pervaded his features. "I'm going to start right off by telling you, Riggs," O'Leary said, "that we're not pinning a murder rap on you. We know you didn't do it. But we're still holding you for attempted murder and larceny. Now to make everything easier, why don't you tell us the whole story?" Riggs sat mutely. At first his eyes darted antagonistically at O'Leary and then at Carroll. "Okay, what do you want to know?" "Why did you want those parole papers?" "I don't know... I thought they'd look bad if you fellows found them." "You didn't like Saylor, did you?" O'Leary asked. "No." "Why did you stay after your parole ran out?" "He wouldn't let me go." "What do you mean? ... He couldn't hold you after the four years were up?" Riggs twisted his lips into a sneer. "Oh, yes he could. Not legally. But he never did anything legally. He told me that if I ever tried to leave him, he'd frame me and get me sent back to the pen. He would have done it, too. He did it to others." O'Leary pondered a moment. "Why did he want you to stay in the pen?" "I knew too much. He needed a chauffeur who could drive him around everywhere and who could run all his dirty errands. I was perfect because I was under his thumb. When my parole was over, I wanted to bust loose and go into the garage business with my brother. He wouldn't let me. I hated his guts. Ever since I got out of jail, he's never paid me a salary. Just a couple of bucks for cigarettes once in a while. That was the fee I had to pay for letting him get me a parole." O'Leary waved his hand toward the officers. The policemen moved forward to take Riggs away. "When O'Leary and Carroll were alone again, the lieutenant said suddenly, "We're going places. Sergeant. We're going visiting. The first thing I want you to do is to call Appleby and tell him to let all his guests go to their homes. They know Riggs was arrested, so they'll think the case is closed. Be back here at 11:30. I think we'll call on Miss Leighton first."

HAZEL LEIGHTON'S face reflected her shock at seeing the two officers at her apartment door. Falteringly, she led O'Leary and Carroll into the living room and asked them to sit down. The lieutenant chose a stern-looking chair near a walnut secretary, placed in the center of a jutting solarium at one end of the room. "We're just checking up on some loose angles," he explained. "Nothing to become alarmed over, Miss Leighton."

Hazel nodded nervous agreement. "Anything I can help you with, Lieutenant..." "You can," O'Leary said abruptly. "That letter on the desk—may I see it?" Hazel sprang to her feet and started for the desk. "No... please, it's personal." Her cheeks were creased with a glow of pink. O'Leary said, "I'm sorry." But he was already reading the letter: "Jed Darling: 'I'm afraid the party is over. Saylor had me cornered and it was the only way out. The rat tricked me and spoiled our game... and now all his little games are over forever. You must know what I mean. You've read it in the papers by now. 'I tried to put the deal across the way we had planned. Honestly, I did, dearest. Saylor was just a little smarter than we figured. Maybe the next time...'" (To Be Continued)

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today accepted the resignation of Henry A. Wallace to secretary of agriculture freeing his vice-presidential running mate to begin active campaigning for the new deal on Sept. 5. The secretary had informed his chief in a letter of resignation that he believed thoroughly in Mr. Roosevelt's "unique capacities to lead the American people in these troublous times when experience and wisdom are so essential." Therefore, he said, he approached the work of the campaign with eagerness. In response, the President asserted: "You and I are content to leave determination of the issues in the campaign this year to the calm judgment of the voters. Under our form of government there is no higher arbitration than the bar of public opinion." Mr. Roosevelt disclosed that Wallace, one-time Republican and the son of a former Republican secretary of agriculture, had been assigned the job of devoting his "time and talents exclusively to an interpretation of your agricultural program to the American people." Thus the burden of carrying other issues to the people apparently will fall on additional cabinet officers and members of the administration, since Mr. Roosevelt has insisted his concern over the defense program would leave him little time for purely political debate. No evidence of any inclination on the part of the chief executive to accept Wendell L. Willkie's challenge to debate campaign issues has become apparent.

Last Week Of Texas Campaigning Begins

(By The Associated Press) Candidates in the run-off for two state offices today began a heavy schedule of speaking, accelerating their drives in the last week of the campaign. Pierce Brooks stopped in Dallas to predict his nomination by a "large majority," and headed for East Texas, where he will speak in Tyler tonight. Olin Culberson, his opponent in the railroad commission race, spoke at Bowie, Henrietta, Wichita Falls, and went on to Electra for a night rally. Culberson tomorrow will campaign in north Texas and Brooks will continue his speaking in east Texas. H. S. Lattimore, candidate for chief justice of the supreme court, campaigned in south Texas at Seguin and Bastrop and was scheduled to be in Austin Tuesday. James P. Alexander, in the same contest, spoke to voters in Mexia, Fairfield, Palestine, Rusk, Jacksonville, Athens, and was scheduled for a night speech in Tyler. There is a Christmas Island in London Bridge carries about 2,400 trains every day.

Tennyson, The Poet, Foresaw Air Battles

By DEVON FRANCIS
Associated Press Aviation Editor

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—From time to time have forecast holocaust for a world which converted the airplane to military uses, and today there are those of conservative opinion who look on the air warfare in the battle of Britain as only a sample of what the future holds.

The Titanic struggle in the air above the British citadel they regard, as poet and military men have said before them, as a harbinger of terrifying things to come.

Tennyson forecast air warfare. Kipling hinted at the boundless possibilities of flight.

H. G. Wells wrote fictionally of a world air-traffic.

General Giulio Douhet, the Italian, wrote a make-believe history of a future war in which whole cities were wiped out by bombs.

General "Billy" Mitchell asserted, "With us air people, the future of our nation is indissolubly bound up in the development of air power."

The chief of the army air corps, General H. H. Arnold, sees swarms of planes flying at 500 miles an hour miles above the earth.

A World War II airplane designer and manufacturer, Maj. Alexander P. De Seversky, believes that tomorrow's air forces will be on the pattern of surface navies—with huge "battleships" and lesser-sized auxiliary craft.

However accurate results of their crystal-gazing, the awesome yet poetic quality of their words has been translated into today's momentous events over the British Isles.

Alfred Lord Tennyson: "Heard the nation's air navy grappling in the central blue."

Here is a sentence from a last week's report of DNB, the German news agency: "Like gnats over a swamp, so the fighters dance over grey London."

Rudyard Kipling said of the airplane that the world was at the opening verse of the opening chapter of a book of endless possibilities.

Less poetic, but with a sublime belief in air power, the late Billy Mitchell, leader of the American air forces sent to Europe in the war of 1914-18, asserted:

"The surface ship, as a means of making war, will gradually disappear, to be replaced by submarines that will act as transport for the forces and destroyers of commerce."

He added: "It is probable that future wars again will be conducted by a special class, the air force, as it was by the armored knights in the middle ages."

Even today Germany, England and Italy have accorded their airmen special recognition. Before the war began, Germany and Italy, studiously building up their air power, told their youth that the future of their nations lay in the air.

A tremendous growth in the air forces of world powers is inevitable. Planes will be larger, better-armed, able to withstand assaults by other planes bent on destroying them.

Bomber-destroyers probably will take the form of our heavily armed Bell Alracuda. Bombers themselves will run to tonnage which now seem fantastic. Bombers of 100 tons likely will be built in the next two years. Bombing attacks will occur from altitudes of eight and perhaps ten miles, the crews comfortable in pressurized cabins.

Nearly completed in a west coast factory is a 70-ton plane which will be able to fly 8,000 miles non-stop. Those ranges likely will be stepped up to 10,000 and 15,000 miles.

After that air warfare may be too horrible to contemplate. Perhaps all of mankind will think so, too, and call a halt. Perhaps . . .

Mechanized Cavalry Stars In Maneuvers

By MORTIMER KREGER

CAMP BEAUREGARD, La., Aug. 19 (AP)—In the first of the maneuvers since getting its complete quota of mechanical equipment, the famous "streamlined" sixth cavalry regiment is giving a remarkable demonstration of mobility and scouting teamwork.

In the third army war games the "Panzer" cavalry not only has moved into battle in a fraction of the time of an old-fashioned horse regiment, but also has operated along a 20-mile line of contact, five times as long as that of an entire brigade of mounted troops adjoining its position.

The sixth is holding the long right flank of the "blue" army against the attacking "reds" in the mimic warfare involving 70,000 regular troops and militiamen from 13 southern and western states.

At the height of hostilities over the week-end, as the reds were pushing back the blue left, a red officer said, "the sixth is giving us hell."

In scouting activities the regiment is in contact with observation planes, which give general information about the enemy but cannot spot details. Its motorized troops on the roads and horsemen in the woods investigate reports from the fliers, who then make further observations on information from the ground.

The sixth cavalry, a regular army corps reconnaissance unit based at North Oglethorpe, Ga., advanced on the blues' right flank when fighting began last Friday at midnight.

In a little over two hours the entire regiment made a 40-mile march. That distance is a normal march of seven or eight hours for a horse-mounted regiment. The sixth, carrying its horses in trailers, can go 150 to 250 miles a day without straining.

No person could possess a swan without a license in early England.

Germany Politely Warned To Pass Refugee Transport

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 (AP)—Germany has been advised in formal note that the United States expects her refugee-laden army transport American Legion to complete its voyage home from Petsamo, Finland, without "molestation" by Nazi armed forces.

As the transport with 900 Americans aboard neared waters which Nazis said were fraught with "extraordinary dangers," the state department last night disclosed a formal note which was sent to Berlin, stating the United States "expects that the vessel will not suffer molestation by any action undertaken by the German armed forces."

The American note followed closely the announcement of the German government that it had been advised in advance of the course the ship would follow, and that the German government had stated that the transport did not require a safe conduct, since it was a U. S. army transport, and not a privately owned merchantman.

The American Legion's course, as originally set, was to take her between the British island of North Rona and Cape Wrath, off the northern coast of Scotland.

The transport was believed nearing this zone, but authorized sources declined to reveal her present position.

The United States note expressed the view that the German government had received sufficient advance notice . . . to take every precaution against attack on the vessel by the German combat forces."

British and that the crucial week may be at hand.

German troops were reported at French channel ports, impatiently waiting for the air force to do its worst.

Thousands of German aviators were said to be held in reserve in cores of airports in France, Belgium and Holland to launch a supreme air war at the British.

Declaring the German government is rapidly paving the way for a Nazi peace over London by September, the German high command said 124 British planes were shot down in battles Sunday.

Declaring many airports had been attacked in Britain's "hot" southeast corner, in an apparent effort to destroy the British air force, the high command said 23 other British planes were destroyed on the ground.

Germany acknowledged loss of 36 of her own planes.

Airports near London, to the south and east of there, and near Liverpool had been bombed, as well as armament works in Norwich and Essex, and ports at Havremouth, at Bournemouth and Weymouth on the south and at Milfordhaven in Wales. Fuel stores were attacked last night east of London, the high command said.

The official report of 147 British planes destroyed, marked reduction from the 182 earlier reported by the German radio and other sources.

Thirty-three of Britain's defense balloons were declared shot down, and a 4,000-ton merchant vessel reported sunk.

As a result of the success of these blows, DNB, official news agency, asserted the German air force had been given orders to maintain a constant patrol of Britain's airplane plants, ports and airports.

Reconnaissance craft were sent over Britain again today, but these flights were described as minor operations.

Britain's own raids against Germany were declared by the high command to be ineffective.

(Reports from Switzerland, across Lake Constance from Germany, said British night raiders scored hits on a big German aluminum plant, causing fires, and apparently aimed at widespread objectives.)

Berlin's warning on treatment of parachutists said it would be a violation of international law for civilians to kill these troops, though they might take them prisoner and hold them for military necessities.

(Britain has armed hundreds of thousands of civilians to fight as a "home guard" against parachute or other behind-the-lines invasion. Berlin's warning was similar to one issued in connection with the invasion of the lowlands and France.)

The German warning said that English troops need not necessarily wear regular British uniforms to be classified among the regular armed forces, but that they must have identifying marks.

The semi-official commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland said vessels totaling 170,000 tons had been destroyed in the war on British shipping.

German submarines, it was said, accounted for well over 100,000 tons of this total.

Nazi commentators said imposition of a total blockade on England, formally announced Saturday, had placed Britain in the position in which her leaders hoped to place Germany at the beginning of the conflict.

German Agent Fined

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Aug. 19 (AP)—Dr. Emil Wolff, 52, German chemist, was fined $2,000 and given a suspended sentence of three months in the penitentiary today on a plea of guilty to acting as a foreign agent without registering as such, as required by law.

Dr. Wolff, first arrested on a narcotics charge July 2 when removed from the Japanese ship Yasukuni.

Small bread loaves, in ring shapes, are sun-baked by the women of Bali, who wear the finished product in their ears.

Maru, admitted he had sailed from San Francisco with a trunk containing "diplomatic documents" from the German consul in San Francisco to the consul in Valparaiso, Chile.

Market Briefs

NEW YORK, Aug. 19 (AP)—The stock market virtuoso was on dead center today as many traders stood aside to await more conclusive war developments. The turnover of almost 125,000 shares was the smallest since 1918.

Prices were slightly mixed at the start. The market was not so far apart at the close.

Despite evident reluctance of commission house customers to broaden commitments, the fact that sellers were equally timid was interpreted by analysts as constructive. Business news, good on the whole, appeared to be a negative factor.

Lifesaving Class Will Be Started At Pool Tuesday

A lifesaving and water safety class will be started at the municipal swimming pool Tuesday at 10 a. m. and will continue into next week.

The classes will be held between 10 a. m. and 12 noon under the direction of John Skelly, Red Cross water safety instructor. Mr. Skelly will be assisted by Warren King.

There will be a junior class for youngsters between 12 and 17 years of age, and a senior class for all over 17.

Mr. Skelly and Mr. King took the water safety instructors course recently conducted at Berger by Red Cross first aid and lifesaving field representative of the American Red Cross, St. Louis, Mo.

All of this is not new business. Relief clients with cash incomes allow have been able to buy small amounts from their grocers under company welfare setups. But about 90 per cent of Texas relievers have been obtaining all or part of their food at surplus warehouses. Now they are back in retail circulation with half again as much allowance for food as under the old plan.

Within the next month Plainview and Hale county, Eastland and Eastland county, Lubbock and Lubbock county, Fort Worth and Tarrant county, and Dallas and Dallas county will be added to Texas stamp plan areas.

If no more areas were in operation than today, during a year the gross grocery receipts from Texas stamp-planners would approximate $5,500,000. However, Campbell Loughmiller, director of the Dallas county welfare department, estimates that when Dallas city and county enter the ranks next month, they alone will add an additional million to the state's annual total.

To determine a large portion of the strictly new business by the stamp plan, one should review the amount of blue stamps distributed. Orange stamps given to or purchased by the reliever approximate his former food budget. The blue bonus stamps equivalent to half the value of the client's orange quota are given to him free and represent an absolute increase in his purchasing power.

80,000 Texans Using Food Stamp Plan In Eight Cities, Counties

(By The Associated Press)

Approximately 80,000 will go into Texas retail grocers' tills this month from relief clients of eight Texas cities and counties now operating under the federal government's new food stamp plan.

The month is not yet over, but some 80,000 Texans on relief are using the blue and orange food stamps which have taken them completely away from the queues of surplus warehouses to grocery counters as customers of private enterprises.

Economists of the surplus marketing administration estimate that Texas stamp-planners have been spending about $5.75 per month per person for food. Simple multiplication gives the approximate half-million dollars monthly total.

All of this is not new business. Relief clients with cash incomes allow have been able to buy small amounts from their grocers under company welfare setups. But about 90 per cent of Texas relievers have been obtaining all or part of their food at surplus warehouses. Now they are back in retail circulation with half again as much allowance for food as under the old plan.

Within the next month Plainview and Hale county, Eastland and Eastland county, Lubbock and Lubbock county, Fort Worth and Tarrant county, and Dallas and Dallas county will be added to Texas stamp plan areas.

If no more areas were in operation than today, during a year the gross grocery receipts from Texas stamp-planners would approximate $5,500,000. However, Campbell Loughmiller, director of the Dallas county welfare department, estimates that when Dallas city and county enter the ranks next month, they alone will add an additional million to the state's annual total.

To determine a large portion of the strictly new business by the stamp plan, one should review the amount of blue stamps distributed. Orange stamps given to or purchased by the reliever approximate his former food budget. The blue bonus stamps equivalent to half the value of the client's orange quota are given to him free and represent an absolute increase in his purchasing power.
