Ranch Togs Hit The Train To Smartness With The Riding Outfit As Ace Of Wardrobe

Motor across the country to a dude ranch in this type of suit and wear it often while there. It's of sturdy blue denim and is shown with a blue and white plaid gingham shirt. There are denim slacks to match. Ona Munson wears it.

By MARIAN YOUNG NEW YORK—The perfect wardrobe for a vacation at a dude ranch is made up of casual, informal outfits that are in keeping with the background against which they will be worn...

Not that a dude ranch vacation always means roughing it in the Maine-woods-log-camp manner. IT WILL BE MODERN. BUT FAR FROM DRESSY. As a matter of fact, on any ranch you're likely to choose for an August or September holiday...

For riding, look at the smart chamomis suits with divided skirts and belted jackets, such as shown here on Ona Munson, motion picture star, "WESTERNIZE". If you have a riding habit and hate to invest in another just for one vacation, take a breeches you already own and with them denim shirts, a suede bolero and a tennishat with a strap under the chin.

A fringed bolero of pale tan chamomis, appliqued with rust chamomis scrollwork and a divided, rust chamomis skirt, with similar applique touches, make the perfect outfit for the dude ranch vacationist. The boots are of western cowhide with cut-out leaf designs in white.

TWO-WAY TREAT FOR TOTS

Slim or chubby, light or dark, size one or size five, they all look adorable in this sweet little square-necked frock with a bit of bow under the chin. It flares charmingly into inverted pleats from the pretty yoke, and fastens with just one button in the back. Panties are included in the pattern, of course.

This little dress (design No. 8687) can be made to look entirely different, simply by substituting full, open wing sleeves for the balloon-like puffs. Make it of airy dimity or dotted swiss to finish the hot summer; then repeat it in gingham or percale to start kindergarten. It's easy to do, and the simple pattern includes a step-by-step sew chart for the guidance of beginners.

Texan Flays Roosevelt In Keynote Talk

BEAUMONT, Aug. 13 (AP)—Keynoting the Republican state convention, Enoch G. Fletcher of Grand Saline asserted here today the people have had "enough of medicine show campaigns in Texas and quick nostrums in Washington."

He declared they ceased to believe in the curative value of "bromides" administered by the new deal, and desired "a new application of the American spirit of free enterprise."

Temporary chairman of the convention, Fletcher also:

Praised Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, as a "product of the American way of life," termed President Roosevelt one born with a silver spoon in his mouth who "does not know the American way of life because he has never lived it."

Charged that more than 90 per cent of delegates to the national Democratic convention were office holders who by renominating the President and naming Secretary Wallace as his running mate "purged the party in power of the last vestige of democracy."

Said Washington and Jefferson refused third terms and Andrew Jackson favored a constitutional amendment limiting the number of terms a man might serve as president.

Denounced a claimed increase in bureaucratic powers in Washington and the quandering of public wealth.

Declared that when Mr. Roosevelt "took over" the major problems in the country were agriculture and unemployment and after spending $35,000,000,000 (billions) above the ordinary running expenses of government the new deal had failed to solve these problems.

"The people have had enough of broken promises," Fletcher said. "They have had enough of white rabbits pulled from hats. . . . They hope for the return of frugality and honesty in government. They know that a bankrupt government will make paupers of us all."

He told the convention that a man who believes that out of 125 million people he alone is able to run this country can have no regard for tradition.

"He feels that if he is bigger than Washington, Jefferson, Jackson and Lincoln, that this country couldn't exist without him," Fletcher said. "Hitler feels that way about Germany. Mussolini feels that way about Russia. Stalin feels that way about Russia. History has proved to us that any man is dangerous when he begins to think that his services are indispensable."

Never in the history of the country has a national convention been so dominated by corrupt city bosses and office holders as was the Democratic national convention this year, he continued.

"Mr. Roosevelt didn't hear the voice of the people shouting from the house tops," he said, "but the voice of the superintendent of sewers of Chicago speaking from the basement."

The new deal philosophy is not taken from the ant but from the butterfly, he declared, adding it had substituted the practices of the prodigal son for the economy of Poor Richard.

He maintained class hatred has been engendered as never before, business men had been likened to robbers and government agents had infested business.

"In eight years, they have killed king cotton," he said, "and they want four more so they can bury him."

Arguing that Texas should become a two-party state, he asserted "no Texan can become president as long as it remains a one-party state."

"The Republican party has chosen as its leader a man who is a product of the American way of life," Fletcher declared. "Wendell Willkie has faith in our form of government because it has permitted him to reach that goal of success towards which every mother hopefully looks when a son is born."

"Mr. Roosevelt does not know the American way of life because he has never lived it. He was born with a silver spoon in his mouth. When he was young he had a private tutor. When he was older he was sent to Groton academy, an academy for the sons of the rich. From Groton he went with the sons of the rich to Harvard university. When Mr. Roosevelt was spending his vacation on a yacht, Wendell Willkie was working in the wheat fields."

"Mr. Roosevelt learned about war from a swivel chair in Washington reserved for a rich man's son. Wendell Willkie learned about war from actual service in France."

He charged that Roosevelt had mortgaged the future of American children and "we must stop him before he mortgages the future of our children's children."

"It is reported that just before one of the major battles of our revolutionary war George Washington said, 'Thank God, none but Americans are on guard tonight.'" Fletcher concluded.

"When Wendell Willkie is elected president, no Stalin will be recognized in Russia, there will be no Communists on the government payroll, no mistress of the white house will give support to an un-American organization, no Harry Bridges will get succor from a cabinet member, and every mother can tuck her baby in bed with the prayer on her lips, 'Thank God, none but Americans are on guard tonight.'"

Seismographs show that each rise of the tide bends the coastline downward for several miles inland.

Large Influx Of Tourists To Big Bend Park Seen

RUIDOSO, N. M., Aug. 13 (AP)—M. R. Tiltonson, regional national park director, today expressed belief that the proposed Big Bend national park in Texas would soon become a reality and would be followed by a large influx of tourists.

Speaking before the Southwestern Chamber of Commerce association here, Tiltonson said "west Texas will draw tremendous financial benefits after the park has been established."

"All Texas will benefit, too, in going to and coming from the Big Bend, many of the visitors will travel across the entire state. It isn't necessary for me to point out to an organization such as yours that a certain percentage of people who visit a state will decide to take up permanent residence in that state. That works on the same theory as is followed by the retail merchant—if he can get the people into his store, he is certain to 'sell' a certain percentage of them."

Describing Texans as "doers," the speaker said:

"We have given, and are continuing to give, every possible encouragement that we can make this park a reality. Secretary of the Interior Ickes, under the authority given him by congress, is ready to proclaim the park status just as soon as the privately owned lands have been acquired and the area is deeded to the federal government."

He maintained class hatred has been engendered as never before, business men had been likened to robbers and government agents had infested business.

"In eight years, they have killed king cotton," he said, "and they want four more so they can bury him."

Arguing that Texas should become a two-party state, he asserted "no Texan can become president as long as it remains a one-party state."

"The Republican party has chosen as its leader a man who is a product of the American way of life," Fletcher declared. "Wendell Willkie has faith in our form of government because it has permitted him to reach that goal of success towards which every mother hopefully looks when a son is born."

55 Dead In Georgia And S. Carolina

ATLANTA, Aug. 13—The hurricane-tered coasts of Georgia and South Carolina counted at least 55 dead today and millions of dollars of property damage as near-normalcy returned to the stricken area.

The Red Cross reported from Washington that 25 negroes were killed on St. Helena island near Beaufort, S. C., Sunday in the 80-mile-an-hour hurricane that swept out of the Bahamas, and eight other negroes perished on nearby Ladies island.

Two persons died at Savannah, Ga., as the storm swept that city. Governor Burnet E. Maybank of South Carolina said Beaufort county appeared to have been hardest hit. At least 200 homes were destroyed in the county and many others damaged. Maybank said Red Cross aid, chlorine and food was needed for storm refugees in that area.

The city of Beaufort and Parris island, a marine base, were severely damaged, the governor reported, but loss of life appeared confined to negroes on adjacent islands.

Nat C. Wilson, Red Cross official at Charleston, said a survey indicated no large amount of major damage in that city.

Russell McGowan, Charleston attorney, estimated property damage would approximate $1,000,000 at nearby Jolly island, the worst hit in the Galveston section.

Insurance adjusters estimated damage at Savannah would total between $850,000 and $1,000,000.

Beaufort remained without power or communication lines early today. Water waist-deep flooded streets in the business section. Docks were smashed and all except one boat in the harbor sunk.

County Will Buy Water-Cooler For Grand Jury Room

To eliminate the difficulty of providing ice water for jurors, the county commissioners at their regular meeting Monday voted to approve purchase of a $140.05 water cooler for the jury room.

In the past, the frequent exits and entrances of jurors seeking a drink of water and of persons bringing ice and water pitchers to the jury room, has hindered the jury's concentration on its work.

Five Dead Counted In Louisiana Flood

CROWLEY, La., Aug. 13 (AP)—At least five dead were counted today as flood waters began to recede from storm and rain-buffed southwest Louisiana.

Thousands of refugees were being cared for in nearby towns and cities as work crews started burning countless cattle, horses, dogs, cats and other animals drowned or starved.

Oil companies donated crude oil to pour over the animal bodies for burning.

Among the known dead reported yesterday was the six-year-old crippled daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Prosper Broussard, Delcambre. Her body was found in a ditch near her home.

Others drowned included: Ledier Romero, 25, Bell City; Conrad King, 25, Welsh Otis Leblanc, 17, and Maurice Bossier, Carnecro, 17, Gueydan, hardest hit in the flood area, was a ghost town. All but 25 of its 1,213 residents had been taken to safety. The others remained to guard the town.

Twelve railroad freight cars took the last load of 1,200 refugees from Crowley to Lafayette yesterday, making a total of about 6,000 evacuated. Thousands of other refugees are at Opelousas and Lake Charles and more are still being taken to safety.

Wells Scores Politicians In Addresses

WELLINGTON, Aug. 13—The people of Texas have firmly demonstrated one thing during the past two years—the great majority of our people have indicated that they prefer businessmen to politicians in public office," Deskins Wells, leading candidate for congress told cheering crowds at Canadian, Higgins, and Pertyon Saturday.

"As far as qualifications are concerned, I offer my mature judgment which has come from 15 years business experience, and an actual experience with farm problems ever since I was old enough to work in the fields," Wells continued.

Wells, the only native born candidate of the Panhandle, is the son of an old pioneer family of Collingsworth, having been raised on a farm.

An ever increasing number of workers from Wells' home county of Collingsworth, where he received 81 per cent of the total votes in the primary, are covering the entire Panhandle in his interest.

Judge C. C. Bishop, county judge, and Logan Cummings, superintendent of Collingsworth county schools, spoke Saturday for Wells in Quitaque, Silverton, Tulla, Dimmitt, Hereford, and Canyon. Miss Robbie Wells, the candidate's sister, talked in Claude, Groom, Clarendon, and McLean.

The F. F. A. band of Quill and Pete Chandler's string orchestra accompanied the speakers.

Gives Life For Son

LONDON, Aug. 13 (AP)—A young mother gave her life to save her infant son during a German air raid on a southeastern village yesterday. When rescue workers dug their way into the debris of their home, the mother was found crouched protectively over the boy.

She died before reaching a hospital. The boy suffered only slight injuries.

Jackson Restrained In Drilling Case

A temporary restraining order was granted by District Judge W. R. Ewing yesterday in a case styled Gulf Oil corporation vs. Lyman Jackson, and plaintiff's application for a temporary injunction hearing was set for 10 a. m. August 23.

Action of the plaintiff is designed to prevent Jackson, according to the plaintiff's petition, from allegedly interfering with plaintiff entering a certain tract for the purpose of drilling under an oil and gas lease dated June 26, 1924, with H. H. Merten et al.

Jackson, according to the petition, is a tenant, and the land in question is described as the southeast quarter of survey 88, block 3, 1. & G. N.

Defendant has claimed allegedly unwarranted damages to crops as the result of oil field operations on the property, according to the petition.

W. J. Smith and David W. Stephens are attorneys for the plaintiff.

Dallas Doctor To War On Malaria Near Vera Cruz

DALLAS, Aug. 13 (AP)—A Dallas doctor, Claude E. Watson, leaves today for Mexico City to determine if medicine's war against malaria has been won.

He plans to spend three or four weeks testing a powerful new chemical, protosidin, which he says kills protozoa in less than three minutes when diluted 10,000,000 times. In treating amoebic dysentery and malaria, he uses a 1-10,000 dilution.

Dr. Watson's interest in malaria dates back to 1922. He began experimenting with protosidin in 1930 and "established" it in 1938.

Now, working with the Mexican government's public health department, he hopes to test his chemical under field conditions. Much of his work probably will be done in the low, hot lands near Vera Cruz.

Africa has snowfalls within seven miles of the equator.

SERIAL STORY MURDER INCOGNITO

BY NORMAN KAHL

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY, Martin Saylor invited five guests for dinner. Dale Appleby, his stepson, whose footprints were seen near the door, Rhoda Waters, Dale's sweetheart, whom Saylor has called a gold-digger, Hazel Leighton, in whom Saylor is interested; Winslow Mardell, gambler; a George Barbour, Saylor's law partner. After talking to Barbour, Saylor returns to his study alone. In 20 minutes Hazel goes to the door, finds Saylor dead.

Floor plan of Martin Saylor's home. "X" marks position of Saylor's body in study. His five dinner guests were in the living room at the time.

CHAPTER II
THE still form of Martin Saylor was a thing of hideous fascination. One arm encircled his head, buried partly in the rug. The other came out straight from his body and bent at the elbow. Only the white sleeve of his linen suit seemed stained by the blood that darkened the rug.
The five of them stood for minutes in the doorway. It was Barbour who finally broke the spell. "Well, I'll be— I suppose that had to happen sooner or later."
"Maybe he's still alive," Rhoda suggested.

Dale looked at her, and she thought she recognized a glimmer of something fearful in his eyes. "Let's see," he said. They didn't need to look too closely. As they stood over the body, they could see one side of Saylor's face. His eye was still open—still hard and friendless. There wasn't any question about it. Martin Saylor was dead.
Mardell bent down and put his hand on the dead man's shoulder. "Don't touch him," Dale commanded. "What are you trying to do?"
Mardell straightened. "I was just going to turn him over."
"Well, don't. Don't anybody touch a thing. Not until the police get here."
Hazel stiffened. "The police? Must we?"
Dale turned toward her and said dully, "What do you think?"
From the library, at the other end of the room, a tall, gray-haired man in butler's livery had entered the room and was standing stiffly at attention. "Is there anything I can do, sir?" he asked. Dale turned toward the butler. "Nothing at the moment, Willows. Mr. Saylor is dead."
"Yes, sir, I know." And there was no sorrow in his voice.
"Go back to the kitchen and tell the others to remain there until the police arrive."

Willows retreated. Dale hurried over to the desk in the southeast corner of the room, diagonally across from the doorway through which they had entered to discover the body. He picked up the telephone and asked for police headquarters.
Barbour stood peering out of the heavily curtained French windows that broke the array of bookcases just west of the desk. Dale cautioned him not to touch anything and then he turned his attention back to the instrument in his hand.
"Homicide squad? Who's in charge there now? Lieutenant O'Leary. Thank you, may I speak to him?" A brief pause. "Lieutenant, Dale Appleby is my name. My stepfather, Martin Saylor, has just been shot to death. . . . Yes. . . . I wish you would. Fifteen minutes, then. Yes, everyone will stay here. . . . He gave the address and hung up.

"Can't we wait in the other room?" Rhoda asked.
"I think it would be better," Dale agreed. "The police will be along quickly. Just tell them what you know about this. Lord knows that isn't very much."
THE police weren't long in coming. Dale was standing at the drawing room window when the lights of several cars flashed up the driveway. Dale himself went to the door and admitted two men in civilian attire and three uniformed officers.
Lieutenant O'Leary introduced himself. He was tall and broad-shouldered—a tremendous bulk of a man. But there was a friendly twinkle in his eye.

"This is Sergeant Carroll." He pointed to the shorter man, with fat jowls and unsmiling features. "I suppose you're Mr. Appleby." "Yes," said Dale. "The others are in the drawing room. Nothing's been touched."
O'Leary nodded approval. "Where is it?"
Dale indicated the closed door of the study. O'Leary ordered the uniformed men to wait in the hallway, and then he led the way into the study. When he saw the body, the lieutenant glanced swiftly at his assistant and then at Dale.
"How'd it happen, Mr. Appleby?" he asked.
"I don't know. We were sitting in the drawing room. Saylor had gone back to this room a little before. He wanted to see one of his guests—Miss Leighton. When she came into the room, she found him here—just like this."
"What about the shot?"
"No one heard it."
O'Leary thrust his hands into his hip pockets and stood for several minutes studying the room. It was fully 40 feet long and more than half as wide. The entire floor was covered with heavy carpeting. Three of the walls faced outside. Along the north wall, the room could be entered from both ends—from the library or the reception hall. The entire room was lined with bookcases, windows, several full-length mirrors, and a massive fireplace in the center of the south wall. French windows, that opened nearly to the floor, flanked one side of the fireplace. On the other side of the fireplace, similar windows flanked a doorway that led out onto a broad terrace.
One dim was set directly in front of the fireplace. Another stood on the north wall, opposite, between two long mirrors. A third was placed against the west wall.
O'Leary motioned Dale into a chair near the west doorway. "How long was your stepfather in the drawing room before he went into the study?"
"Just a few minutes. He'd been in this room with Mr. Barbour, one of the guests, and they came out together. He said he would see Miss Leighton in 10 minutes, and then he came in here. Hazel—Miss Leighton waited 20 minutes and then came in here."
"What time was that?"
"Nine-thirty."
"How long was Miss Leighton in the room before the rest of you followed?"

meeting will be one of a series of grassland conferences held in the nation this summer.
Regional problems of seeding, adapting introduced grasses and improving native grasses will be discussed.
Under-Secretary of Agriculture Grover B. Hill is expected to conduct the session devoted to range grass problems and M. L. Wilson, federal director of the Extension Service, will speak on "Grass and Man."

ACA Payments To Be Speeded
Special To The NEWS
COLLEGE STATION, Aug. 13—The sooner a farmer completes his soil-building work under the AAA program, the sooner he will receive his agricultural conservation payment.
Plans are completed for county offices to accept applications for conservation payments in September from those co-operators who have earned their maximum soil-building and range-improvement allowances, according to E. N. Holmgren, state AAA administrator.
Completion of enough soil-building work to earn the maximum allowances before the close of the program will thus enable the co-operator to receive his conservation payment earlier than those who fall short on their improvement work.
Present indications are that payments will begin about a month earlier this year than last, the administrator said. "First ACP payments under the 1939 program were certified October 13, more than two months ahead of the previous year's schedule."
The earlier payment for earlier work plan was first used last year in order to eliminate a pile-up of applications in the offices and to encourage greater use of funds allowed for improving the soil and controlling erosion, the administrator explained.
Many farmers and ranchmen already have exceeded requirements for earning their full allowance and so will be able to get their payments as soon as the necessary forms and instructions are released to county offices.
