'Chute Jumps To Feature Air Show Today
SKIES AFLAME AS BRITISH BOMB GERMANS

Young Pampa Pilot To Leap 4,000 Feet

Many Interesting Events On Long Flying Program

A 4,000 foot parachute jump by Pascal Massey, Pampian who has completed a civil aeronautics course at West Texas State college, Canyon, is scheduled as one of the two featured attractions at the Top O' Texas Air show today.

The other highlight is the professional leap of Wilson Stiva, Wichita, Kas. Stiva, who took part in the 1939 show here, is scheduled to go up to 10,000 feet, leap, then not pull the rip cord on his 'chute until he is halfway down on the jump.

Due to the high wind, the 'chute leap of Mrs. Wilson Stiva was cancelled from the opening program of the two-day aerial meet at the local airport yesterday. Mrs. Stiva was to make the jump in place of her husband, at her request.

A crowd of 1,000 persons witnessed the opening of the air tourney here yesterday, where spot landing, bomb dropping, stunt flying, speed and altitude races were held. Last night, the BCD was host at a banquet for visiting pilots, their guests, and others at the Schneider hotel, which was followed by a dance at the Southern club.

Planes seen at the airport Saturday ranged in size from the bantam Culver Cadet to the mighty B-1a army plane flown by George Christopher of Dallas, former Pampian.

Registrations late yesterday totaled 65, including pilots and guests, with Wichita, Kas. and Dallas and Hollywood, Calif. the most distant cities represented.

Stunt flying by Art Chase of Lubbock, flying a red Travelair bi-plane, was a feature of yesterday's program. A total of approximately $800 in awards is offered during the two-day air derby.

Saturday Results: Winners Saturday were: Paper cutting, decided on basis of the pilot that could cut a string of paper twice in the shortest time with a plane propeller. George Christopher, Dallas, Taylorcraft, 20 seconds; first; A. V. Muzzey, Lubbock, Taylorcraft, 20 1-5 seconds; second; Wesley Lewis, Pampa, Taylorcraft, 24 seconds; third.

Spot landing: Muzzey, 41 feet from pilot; tail to skid ring; first; Burrell Tibbs, Ft. Worth, Lubbock, 44 feet, 1 inch; second; Al Phillips, Wichita Falls, 68 feet 10 inches; third.

Six-lap race for planes of 65 horsepower (each lap three miles, planes checked for speed but record of time not kept): Tibbs, first; Art Chase, Lubbock, Taylorcraft, second; Muzzey, Taylorcraft, third.

Seven-lap race, 75 horsepower, laps same distance as for 65: Poddy Parrish, Dallas, former Pampian, Culver Cadet, first; Duke Kistler, Hollywood, Calif., Culver Cadet second; Tibbs, third.

Protect The Workers!

The devastating explosion at Kenville, N. J., which took the lives of 47 powder factory workers is a matter of deep concern to every man, woman, and child in the country. It is too early to say whether sabotage had anything to do with it or not. All we know is that in the days of 1915-1916 a large number of such catastrophes were traced to the work of saboteurs directed by foreign sympathizers and in some cases by foreign governments. No pains should be spared to run down the exact cause of this catastrophe.

Design For War

In the midst of war, British architects are busy. They are designing the dwellings of the next war, or of the later stages of this one if it lasts long enough. Houses are without windows—because many bombing injuries are caused by flying glass. The bedrooms, which are in the center of the houses, are built as bomb shelters, the beds in cubicles of resistant construction.

Political Economy In One Lesson

What Is Seen and What Is Not Seen BY FREDERIC BASTIAT

I. The Broken Pane Have you ever witnessed the rage of the worthy citizen Jacques Bonhomme, when his rogue of a son has happened to break a pane of glass? If you have ever been present at this spectacle, assuredly you must have observed that all the bystanders, were they as many as thirty, made haste with one accord to offer to the unfortunate owner this never varying consolation, "It is an ill wind that blows nobody good. Such accidents do good to industry. Everybody must live. What would become of the glaziers, if windows were never broken?"

Now in this formula of condolence there is an entire theory, which it is well to take flagrant delicto in this very simple case, because it is exactly the same as that which unhappily rules the greater part of our economic institutions. Supposing that six francs (five shillings) are required to repair the damage, if it is meant that the accident brings six francs to the glazier, and encourages his industry to the extent of six francs, I grant it readily; the reasoning is just. The glazier comes, he finishes the job, he pockets six francs, rubs his hands, and in his heart blesses the mischievous urchin. This is what is seen. But if, by way of inference, it is concluded, as it is too often, that it is a good thing to break windows, that it makes money circulate, that the result is an encouragement to industry in general, I am obliged to cry halt! Your theory stops at what is seen, it takes no account of what is not seen.

Around Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON NEA Service Staff Correspondent HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 21.—About the nearest I'll get to a circus this year, I guess, is the one which has been assembled on the 20th-Pox lot for "Chad Hanna." Real circuses don't come to Hollywood very often, perhaps because the public here would rather look at movie stars for nothing.

Tall candelabra illuminated the setting and a sunburst bouquet of white gladioli and mums centered the reflector which decorated the mantel.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Dean home where punch and cake were served from a table centered with the three-tiered wedding cake decorated with hearts and flowers in pastel shades. Mrs. Aubra Bowers, sister of the bridegroom, presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. A. L. Prigmore served cake.

SERIAL STORY

THIS COULD BE YOUR STORY

BY MARGUERITE GAHAGAN

All characters, organizations and incidents of this serial are entirely fictitious.

YESTERDAY: While the office searches for the missing order, Sue Mary feels Vera knows about it. Vera does. Miss Grant had given her the order to type, young Ross Clark had come in and she had showed the order aside until morning. She explained to Miss Grant that she had given the order to Vera's self-narrance.

TWO LOVES-NICK AND JOE

CHAPTER XII

"THAT one," Kitty said scornfully, as she was powdering her nose before going home late that afternoon. She stared at Sue Mary in the washroom mirror. "Of course she had that order. I saw you speak to her and I saw her go in the old man's office with those papers. And I can guess just how surprised she was to discover that they were hunting for that one in particular, and how innocent she acted. I bet they ate her alibi up: about her being new and strange here. She's a cool number." Kitty pulled her ridiculous excuse of a hat down over her black curls. "She's smart, but I bet she doesn't make the grade with young Ross Clark."

Sue Mary hid her smile. She was glad Kitty was too engrossed with Vera and young Ross Clark to think more about Vera and the paper. That business had upset her more than she had thought. Her head ached and the walk home seemed twice as long. She didn't want to go out that evening, but Joe called. It had been a week since they had had a date and she couldn't refuse now.

Once with him she found herself swinging back again to the other side. All the problems at the office, all the enthusiasms of the YP group somehow seemed trivial. Joe talked of vacation plans, of the simpler things that had once constituted her whole life.

With the war talk, world problems, and politics on everyone's lips, Joe's plans for a camping trip up north, his attempts to paint the joys of fishing, and the pressure of his hands on hers when he spoke of the week's vacation seemed to give the world a different color.

"Sue Mary," he said, "sometimes don't you get tired of working in that office, and playing around with that crazy outfit? Sometimes don't you think you'd like to get married and have a home of your own?"

"My work is going along swell," he went on earnestly. "Why don't we plan on a wedding and be like other people. We're living alone now and trying to pretend it's fun. Well, I don't think it is. I want you and I hope you want me. Although sometimes—I sort of feel you find me pretty dull—"

"Oh, no, Joe. It's not that. I care for you." Sue Mary pulled his arm tighter about her. "I feel so safe, and sure of things when I'm with you, but then there's a whole week with time on my hands and what happens? I see other people and my own life seems drab. I want something to happen to me. I don't just want to work at the office, come home and sit and read all evening."

"I don't think you're dull. After I'm with you I wonder about the others, because what you say is so so true. And I think I am in love with you—but I'm not sure I want to get married yet, Joe."

"And you'll never be sure as long as you play around with those Reds," he said bitterly. "Something will have to wake you up to the fact that they're all phonies. But I don't know what it will be. You see, Sue Mary, I think you are hunting for adventure. . . . And I think you believe you're half in love with this Nick."

HE was going away for a week, so she wouldn't let anything precipitate a quarrel. But his words echoed in her mind. Hunting adventure, believe you are half in love with Nick. She supposed that was the way it would look, and yet, she told herself, this is more than adventure: working at something that is worth while, helping people my own age who have brains and charm, in a cause they are convinced is right.

And as for Nick—But that always left her confused. She tried to believe his attentions were the same with the others, but she couldn't ignore the look in his eyes, the sound of his voice saying her name, the way he managed to take her home after the meetings.

The next day Sue Mary went to Natalie's after work. It was hot in the studio bedroom and the girls tied back the faded window drapes to catch the slightest possible breath of air.

"I'd like to get out of here," Natalie said in her low, husky voice. She was in her white slip with her thick, taffy-colored hair pinned in a knot high on her head. She wiped beads of water from the pitcher and poured Sue Mary a glass of lemonade.

"I know where there's a grand apartment," she said, slouching in the chair near the window. "Big rooms and real windows—not slits like these, and a view. But I can't afford it alone."

"Sue Mary, why don't you move in with me? Heaven knows we'll be working together enough these next few months, with the election coming along and the YP campaign in full swing. I think it would be a grand idea."

SUE MARY tried to think. She supposed Natalie was right. Her own drab room was simply a place to escape from when one wasn't sleeping.

Yet living with Natalie would be a strange experience. She looked around the room, at the pictures overflowing on the floor, books streaming from the table, clothes shoved in the closet and the door that never shut; the tiny kitchen with dirty dishes ever present on the sink.

Natalie laughed. "Yes, I know what you're thinking. You're so precise, so tidy, that this must bring horror to your next little soul. Well, you can straighten up to your heart's content."

"Why not try it anyway? I mean sharing an apartment. You won't hurt my feelings if you move when you can't take it any longer?"

And so it was arranged. They all had a hand in it: Vera packing pictures, records, papers, books, and Nick making endless trips between Natalie's old room, Sue Mary's, and the new apartment. And before she knew how it had been accomplished, they were settled.

She got a thrill out of being able to move about in a room that was more than a cupboard. The twin beds in the bedroom didn't even crowd the space, and the big shiny bath with the deep tub, the shower with its funny curtain decorated with fantastic fishes, the tiny kitchen with its compact drawers, refrigerator and stove—all enchanted her so that she was content just to stand and stare about her.

"We'll probably never get her out," Natalie told Vera. "She goes around with a dustcloth all evening shining things, and picking up after me. My clothes have never been hung up before and now I can't find anything. Sue Mary has them where they belong."

Entrada Will Be Presented On Las Cruces Grid Field

LAS CRUCES, N. M., Sept. 21—Queenberry field on which the fighting Aggies of New Mexico A. & M. have played good clean football for many years, is going to be the scene of new style line charging October 11, 12 and 13. This was brought out today by the United States Coronado Exposition commission who announced the "Coronado Entrada" would be presented there three nights, as the feature of the Southwest's Coronado Cuarto Centennial celebrations that have been held in New Mexico, Arizona, Texas and Colorado during 1940.

At this moment the ability of the New Mexico A. & M. football team for this fall is of unknown quality, but there is no question about the ability of the Spanish warriors who will battle the Indians on the football field. In the famous Thomas Wood Stevens script, on which the Coronado Entrada show is based, the Spanish warriors win every battle and rout the Indians right out of their pueblos. It's a thrilling show and brings a wide acclaim from the crowd.

In football, guns are not used, but when the Entrada is given real 12 gauge guns will be used but the shells will be blanks. The weapons used by the Indians will, of course, be arrows, but in the big $100,000 Coronado Entrada the arrows are made of rolled paper and will not hurt anyone.

Director Chester Brooks is already here and has a cast rounded up of over 500 people. They will dress in authentic costumes of 1540, the year the famed Coronado expedition came through the southwest in its quest for gold. The costumes cost the United States commission over $18,000 and are the delight of local members in every city where the show is given.

Miami Quail Like Postoffice Walk

MIAMI, Sept. 21—Even the quail are getting patriotic down Miami way. This morning when Postmaster S. E. Fitzgerald came early to the post-office a covey of, perhaps 12 young quail, were waiting on the sidewalk, and would not be scared away. Later, when the paper boys arrived to get their papers for early morning delivery two of the birds were perched on the pile of papers and still wanted to linger in the vicinity of Uncle Sam's headquarters. "They could not be wanting to get on relief," said Mr. Fitzgerald. "There is too much grain near Miami. They must have heard of conscription and decided to enlist."

All day, law-abiding citizens have been hearing the call "bob white, bob white," and have been driving the birds from one part of town to another, fighting down temptation until open season.
