

Colorful Period Tea Continues Rush Month Activities For Beta Sigma Phi

Picturesque in setting was the period tea given Sunday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Raymond Harrah to continue rush month activities of Upsilon chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority honoring four judges, Mrs. Oscar Hinger, Miss Helen Houston, Miss Evelyn Gregory, and Miss Winifred Wiseman.

Members, pledges, and guests registered in a book which was in the form of an old-fashioned girl with pantaloons and a white chiton gown with a yellow sash. Repeating the colonial theme, this book was placed on an antique marble-topped table, lighted with a hurricane lamp, over which hung a shield-shaped mirror with a wide gold swirled frame.

Tea poured by Mrs. J. B. Massa, director, was served to each guest in a different type cup from the collection belonging to Mrs. Harrah. The yellow tapered silver holders flanked the centerpiece of vari-colored chrysanthemums in colonial figurine vases on a round reflector which decorated the table with a high school cafeteria.

After tea was served, an informal program was presented with Miss Dorothy Jo Taylor in charge. Two songs, "An Old Fashioned Garden" and "You're a Flower From an Old Bouquet" were sung by Mrs. Harrah and Mrs. Charles Vaughn with Mrs. Yoder playing the accompaniment.

Arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Bob Curry, Mrs. E. E. Shelhamer, and Miss Evelyn Barron. Attending the event were Misses J. B. Massa, director, Raymond Harrah, sponsor, Charles Vaughn, E. E. Cobble, E. E. Shelhamer, Bob Curry, Oscar Hinger, Kermit Lawson, and Misses Winifred Wiseman, Evelyn Gregory, Helen Houston, Louise Smith, Johnnie Hodge, Burton Tolbert, Cleora Stannard, Margaret Stockstill, Evelyn Barron, Dorothy Jo Taylor, and Johnnie Davis.

Special guests were Mrs. H. A. Yoder and Miss Roy Riley. Another social affair to be given for members and their guests is a box supper which has been set for Wednesday evening in the city club rooms.

An alligator 11 1/2 feet long was captured recently in Mud creek near Jacksonville, Tex., by two fishermen. The reptile was estimated to be 15 years old and was one of the found in Cherokee county in many years.

'Here, Sir!

The sergeants' voices rattled down the roll like a marble bouncing down a flight of wooden steps.

As the Company D roll progressed, a name suddenly rang like a bell!

"Kilmer!" Clear and strong came the response: "Here, sir!"

A tall, dark, grave-eyed youth of 23 was answering. He was Christopher Kilmer.

Twenty-two years! And Joyce Kilmer's son picks up the rifle that dropped from his father's hands in France 22 years ago.

"You will not need them any more," So wrote Joyce Kilmer of some of his comrades of Company D, dead in the Rouge Bouquet, shortly before he joined them in death.

True, most of the men of Company D, a rifle company almost wiped out in the Rouge Bouquet, had no need for rifles any more.

It was not to be. The world was not ready for that. It turned in less than 20 years back to the rifle.

Kilmer's son, and the sons of thousands of other World War soldiers now find it their turn to become trained defenders of their country.

Never have Americans hesitated, when need came, to answer "Here, sir!"

Their willingness makes all the more sacred the obligation that it shall not be abused.

Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Official Washington is breathing easier about the Far Eastern situation now.

Threat of an embargo on the Japanese silk trade is one of the best of these cards.

The United States right now takes about 85 per cent of Japan's raw silk exports.

For instance: last year Japan's exports to foreign countries (as distinguished from the yen bloc) amounted to 1,828,000,000 yen.

Of this, $42,000,000 ($160,000,000) came from the United States, and silk sales to the U. S. accounted for $18,000,000 yen ($70,500,000).

Stoppage of silk sales, in other words, would knock a good 24 per cent out of Japan's annual intake of vitally needed foreign exchange.

In addition, Japan's whole farm system leans heavily on the silk trade.

On top of all that is the fact that the United States could get along without Japanese silk a lot more easily than Japan could get along without the U. S. market.

MARKET BEING WHITTLED AWAY

Silk is used in the United States chiefly for hosiery.

This means that development of synthetic fabrics has made the United States more and more independent of Japanese silk.

Limiting Givers

For the last three decades, we have been limiting, by laws, the gifts that God intended every man to have.

But, when the government interferes with these great geniuses, giving their services to mankind, the workers suffer.

This giving to humanity has been interfered with by taking the tools from the great geniuses.

Around Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON NEA Service Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 21.—Customers who have been inclined to think of Hollywood as a glittering capital of fun and a gathering place for fascinating geniuses and scintillating intellectuals would be amused, I believe, to know how simple are most of the pleasures enjoyed by the reputedly great actors and actresses.

Five years ago, when I came here and began an initial tour of the studios, famous actors and actresses were standing around jiggling short lengths of rope with weights on the free ends. They were doing this between scenes with a strange, strained and silent intensity.

Next came the Handies. They were charades restricted to pantomime, and about the time the fad had run its course some of the studios got around to using Handies in movies. By then, Hollywood was playing Knock-Knock. This was a game requiring dialog, and it was happily participated in by everyone at any time.

The past couple of years there have been no really popular new pastimes. Most of those devised have been too difficult to be funny. As a result, there seems to be more despair, ribbing and double-talk than ever before.

Take Alfred Hitchcock. That physically gross, artistically fine director now is making a picture called "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," with Carole Lombard and Bob Montgomery. Miss Lombard is perpetually exhausted with laughing at Hitchcock, who she says is "but really funny!"

Anyway, Hitchcock has begun playing a ribbing game which might be called "Going to Bakersfield." He approaches some visitor on the set and earnestly asks whether he ever has been to Bakersfield. How far is it? How long does it take to drive? How long by train? Is Bakersfield hot? How hot? What sort of people live there?

The questioning may go on for half an hour, even if the cornered victim never has seen Bakersfield. There's no kicker in the gag. Maybe it's funny, but it seemed to me awfully tiresome.

A GAG THAT BACKFIRE The great director tried another joke which I definitely disliked, and I'm glad it failed. He was talking to another correspondent when the latter noticed and commented on the beauty of Georgia Carroll, newcomer from Broadway. Said Hitchcock: "Beautiful, yes, but not very bright. I'm afraid. Here, I'll show you."

He called over his secretary and dictated a jumble of sentences full of ballet terms and hard-to-pronounce names of ballet masters. It was absolutely meaningless. When it was typed, Hitchcock took it and the newspaperman over to Miss Carroll and introduced the embarrassed girl as a new dialog director who would help her learn this freshly-written dialog for the next scene.

Miss Carroll wasn't dumb enough to chance a row by telling the fact man he and his dialog were crazy. She sat down and memorized the jabberwocky and in a few minutes let it with flawless pronunciation. Hitchcock squirmed when he tried to explain his little joke.

Some say that the ability to perform on a string instrument is the most satisfying hobby of all.

One's athletic days pass quickly enough; one usually lays a horn aside after high school and college days are over for the reason that hands nowadays are made up of young people only.

The War Today

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Fuehrer Hitler has been moving mightily fast in swinging the Balkans into line with the idea of attacking Britain by means of a drive through the Near East, but it strikes me there's no certainty that he has moved fast enough to permit a full offensive before next spring.

The Nazi chieftain's week-end politico-economic accord with Yugoslavia further consolidates the position which the Berlin-Rome axis is creating for the big smash.

But there comes the hitch. These pro-Britain, Turko-Greek allies are the hold-outs—the bad lads of the Balkans—who, possibly with the encouragement of Russia, stand between the Axis and its Near Eastern ambition.

That's a job which can't be done overnight, especially since Britain is bound to fling into the battle every ounce of naval strength which she can spare.

Monday morning quarterback department: Let's hope any more harvesters don't go out there next Friday night and murder each other as Pendleton and Burnett did last P. day night.

Esther Johnson, famous Mozart pianist, is going to give a concert in Little Rock, Ark., tomorrow night, and she is going to drive through in a truck just for the practice. She is deeply sympathetic with the Chinese cause and if it ever comes to the point where Chiang Kai-shek does not have enough truck drivers on the Burma road to Chungking she may volunteer.

As long as there is an idle margin in men and machines, we shall have no inflation.

And when peace comes, remember it will be for us children of today to make the world of tomorrow a better and happier place.

As to ultimate philosophical considerations, I can truthfully say that I was more concerned with them in my youth.

Heart Attack Fatal To El Paso Editor

EL PASO, Oct. 21 (AP)—Hubert S. Hunter, editor of the El Paso Times, a newspaper man whose career was identified with the Southwest since his graduation from Stanford in 1908, died suddenly of a heart attack last night.

All diplomats automatically submit their resignations when a new president is inaugurated and it was reported that Avila Camacho intended to re-appoint few, if any, of the cabinet's present representatives abroad.

It was said one exception might be Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera, ambassador to Washington.

INCENTIVE FOR INVESTMENT OF INCOME By HARLEY L. LUTZ Professor of Public Finance, Princeton University

Recently, in this column, the suggestion was made that the important question to be asked by the income tax collector should be: "What did you do with your income?"

The present tax policy is simply that individuals be given some chance, and some inducement, to invest, before the income tax takes it.

As the investment flow increases, under such a credit, unemployment would decline in so far as taxpayers made investments, the public revenue would be less, but the government's need for revenue to support relief would also be less.

There is no defense for the kind of tax progression now applied in this country. But its outright modification is most difficult while we are under the sway of demagogic finance.

Under the plan here proposed, the full weight of such taxation would not fall upon the part of income which is put back into productive use.

Sectional Grid Leaders Emerge During Week-End

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (AP)—The 1940 college football season is half over, roughly speaking, and for the first time it is possible to approach with some confidence the task of naming those sectional leaders who still are in line for national honors.

The more important teams have followed "form" quite closely for the past few weeks or two in everything but the size of the scores, so there are few, if any, cases of title contenders being upset by low ranking teams or of beaten outfits coming back into the races.

The list of undefeated and untied major teams still is an imposing one but barring form reversals in this week's program of major games it should take in all the candidates for the mythical national championship.

In this category are Boston College, Georgetown, Cornell, Pennsylvania, and Fordham in the east, with such teams as Navy, Penn State, Columbia, Rutgers, Lafayette and Franklin and Marshall still boasting clean slates. In the south are Tennessee, Mississippi and Clemson; Northwestern, Michigan, and Minnesota, the "Big Three" of the Big Ten, and Notre Dame and Detroit in the middle west; Texas Aggies and Texas in the southwest and Stanford on the Pacific coast.

Since the week's games may have important bearings on the outcome of the national race as well as conference contests, here's how the situation shapes up in various sections:

East—Cornell and Pennsylvania, a pair of fine teams that looked better than ever in their conquests of Syracuse by 33-6 and Princeton by 46-28, respectively, invade the national field for the first time when they meet two of the Big Ten's biggest teams.

Cornell plays Ohio State. The Bucks, beaten twice, most recently 13-7 by Minnesota, don't look quite as strong this season as they did last year. Penn tackles Michigan's high scoring team which swept up Illinois 28-0 for its fourth straight win.

Boston College, after a 60-0 walk-over against Idaho, faces little St. Anselm; Georgetown, 46-4 winner over Virginia Tech, meets New York University, 13-7 victim of Holy Cross; and Fordham, 24-12 conqueror of Pitt, meets its favorite Pacific coast enemy, St. Mary's, which beat Loyola of Los Angeles 18-7.

Mid-west—Minnesota's triumph over highly rated Ohio State put the Gophers on a par with Michigan and Northwestern, which walloped Wisconsin 27-7, in the Big Ten race. Indiana, triumphant 10-6 over Iowa in its first conference game, likely will go out of the running Saturday when it meets Northwestern. Minnesota plays Iowa and Purdue faces Wisconsin this week. Notre Dame, which just couldn't stop rolling against Carnegie Tech, winning 61-0, plays Illinois.

In the Big Six Nebraska continued to look like the No. 1 team as it overwhelmed Kansas 53-2 but Missouri's Tigers also shone in a 30-14 triumph over Iowa State. They meet in a decisive game Saturday.

While Oklahoma, 14-0 winner over Kansas State, plays Iowa State. Leading "independents" play inter-sectional games as unbeaten Detroit faces Villanova at Philadelphia, Marquette plays Texas Tech and Michigan State encounters Santa Clara.

South—Some of Tennessee's supporters already looking for a Rose Bowl invitation now that the Vols have beaten Alabama by a decisive 27-12, but Tennessee hasn't won the Southeastern conference crown yet. Florida, 19-0 winner over weak Maryland, is next in line. Mississippi still tops the standing. The Rebels, 14-6 winners over Duquesne, play Arkansas in another extra-circuit clash. Georgia Tech, 19-0 winner over Vanderbilt, meets Auburn, which yielded to Southern Methodist 20-13, and Louisiana State, 20-0 winner over Little Mercer, faces Vanderbilt and Kentucky, 24-0 victor over George Washington, plays Georgia in other conference games.

Southwest—The conference race at present is a two-club affair between the 1939 champion Texas Aggies, who trimmed Texas Christian last Saturday, and Texas, 21-0 winner over Arkansas. The Aggies may find a tough customer in Baylor, 7-0 winner over Villanova, but the Longhorns shouldn't have much trouble with the Rice Owls, who lost 15-7 to Tulane.

Big Seven—Utah State's 7-0 upset triumph over Utah left Colorado's Buffaloes and Denver at the top of the standing. The Buffs whipped Colorado State 33-14 while Denver swamped Wyoming 41-4. Colorado gets a crack at Wyoming this week while Denver plays the Utes, who may be very dangerous on the rebound.

Pacific Coast—Stanford's Indians again proved they have what it takes to go to the Rose Bowl when they trimmed Washington State 26-14, but they'll get the supreme test Saturday against Southern California. The Trojans bowled over Oregon 13-0 last week. Washington, 10-0 winner over Oregon State, shares the conference lead with the Indians. The Huskies next meet California, 9-7 victor over U. C. L. A.

Woodrow Wilson To Play Horace Mann Tomorrow

Woodrow Wilson's mighty mites of the Ward School Football League will try to break into the win column Tuesday afternoon at Harvester field when they meet Horace Mann, second ranking team.

On Wednesday afternoon, league leading Sam Houston will battle Baker, the team that showed marked improvement last week in downing Horace Mann.

Games will be played at 4 o'clock each afternoon.

Coaches of the ward school teams have spent some of their time teaching fundamentals but have taken enough time out to instruct their boys in the art of making touchdowns and stopping streak backs and powerhouse drives.

The little fellows use single and double wingback formations like veterans. With the exception of Woodrow Wilson school each has a powerhouse fullback with Horace Mann having the giant, Baker next and then Sam Houston, which relies chiefly on speed and deception, however.

When the youngsters get to the Harvester they should know plenty about the game of football.

Fans are invited to be at Harvester field at 4 o'clock Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons to see the mites in action. It is worth money to see them play but the games are free.

Woodrow Wilson English Club Has Meeting At School

All Southwest Teams But Aggies Hurt By Injuries

By Felix R. McKnight

DALLAS, Oct. 21 (AP)—Injuries and breaks, a shocking batch of them, are just about to shape up the Southwest conference football sprint.

Only four weeks ago the knowledge was general that Texas A & M, unbeaten last season, Sugar bowl kings and crowded with veterans, would be favored to repeat. But there were challengers, stout challengers in Southern Methodist, Texas and Baylor.

Now, four games rolled off, the Aggies are out there in front and shaking off all pursuers—except Texas.

Over the great 15 game winning streak that started with the opener of 1939, the Aggies have not suffered a major injury. Big John Kinbrough, Jim Thomson, Wild Bill Jeter, Constner, Marshall Robnett, Ernie Pannell, Tommy Vaughn, Charlie Henke, Jim Sterling, Derace Mosier and Marion Pugh, the veteran starters, just don't get hurt.

Kimbrough has been bothered at intervals. Minor hurts induced by the very nature of his play—the rock 'em, sock 'em piling into the mountainous lines. But he has been able to start—and play—every game.

The big Aggie line, the one that has permitted only 17 years as the average net rushing gain against it in four games to date, comes off solid and intact each Thursday. The reserves, peppered with lettermen, are rugged boys, too. That's something that doesn't come under the heading of "That, and you can't disguise it, is sheer luck, made easier by fine conditioning."

But what has happened to Southern Methodist? Quarterback Foster Elder, brains of the team, went out for the season with a fractured pelvic bone received in an automobile wreck.

Sophomore Bill Thomas, the fleet little man who sparked the Methodists, now goes out with a broken leg. End Roland Goss, the best sophomore prospect in the league last year, may be lost with a serious ankle hurt, guard Eddie Blanche is ailing. Second string center McGaffey, a very good boy, left school. So goes Southern Methodist's football team.

And Baylor? Its greatest player, big Jack Wilson, took a full season count on a ruptured kidney in the Denver game. The Bruin offense collapsed; its grand threat gone.

Texas lost a fine guard in V. D. Basy, victim of an unfortunate stabbing in Dallas after the Oklahoma game; Texas Christian is lost without its Kyle Gillespie, magnificent triple-threat, and took another lick when its only able reserve center, Billy Blackstone, went out with a broken leg.

Next Saturday at Waco the Aggies, easy 21-7 winners over TCU, tackle Baylor, mildly surprising in a 7-0 comeback over Villanova at San Antonio, Texas, smooth in a 21-0 licking of Arkansas, meets Rice at Houston, the Owls fell before Tulane, 6-15.

Southern Methodist is idle—and needs the rest—while Texas Christian plays Tulsa and Arkansas plays its annual game against Mississippi at Memphis.

Plainview Will Play At Pampa, Borger At Lubbock

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

Associated Press Staff
The main show starts this week in the far-flung Texas interscholastic league football race.

Each district has important conference games, six of them matching unbeaten teams.

In sixteen outshells the district campaigns shape up like this:
District 1—Plays its first conference games with Plainview at Pampa and Borger at Lubbock. Amarillo, the favorite, has an inter-district tilt with North Side (Fort Worth).

District 2—All teams play championship games with Childress at Wichita Falls as the feature. Graham and Borger at Lubbock. Amarillo, the favorite, has an inter-district tilt with North Side (Fort Worth).

District 3—Midland, the favorite, meets a tough Big Spring team. Co-favorite, Odessa, was toppled unexpectedly last week by down-trodden Abilene.

District 4—El Paso High, the last team to swing into conference play, meets Yaleta. Austin (El Paso) is the favorite.

District 5—Sherman's powerhouse goes against Denison, also unbeaten in conference play.

District 6—Sulphur Springs, with the high hopes of repeating with the title, plays up-and-coming Highland Park (Dallas). Favored Greenville plays impotent McKinney.

District 7—Leading Masonic Home and Arlington Heights do not have conference games. Runner-up Foly plays Paschal.

District 8—Woodrow Wilson tackles Adamson in a game likely to determine the Dallas title.

District 9—Stephenville and Cisco, two of the teams undefeated in conference play, with the other leader, Brownwood, meeting once-beaten Mineral Wells.

District 10—The state's feature game is scheduled in this district with Bryan and Waxahachie, the only unbeaten teams, swapping touchdowns at Waxahachie.

District 11—Longview and Kilgore, two of the state's undefeated teams, meet at Kilgore. Kilgore has one tie against its record.

District 12—Nacogdoches, one of the three undefeated eleven, meets Jacksonville but the other two, Lufkin and Mexia, do not have conference games.

District 13—Austin and Lamar, who are tied with Jeff Davis for the Houston district leadership, settle their squabble.

District 14—Beaumont, Port Arthur and South Park (Beaumont) are undefeated. South Park rests but Port Arthur plays Orange and Beaumont tackles Goose Creek.

District 15—Neither Austin nor Kerrville, the leaders, have conference games. Brackenridge (San Antonio), beaten by Kerrville last week, tries to get back into the running against Laredo.

District 16—In the north zone Beville plays Kingsville but the top-hands at Corpus Christi have an inter-district tilt with Fort Worth Tech. In the south zone Harlingen and McAllen, two of the favorites, have it out. Unbeaten Brownsville plays Gladewater in an inter-district affair.

Last week's play trimmed the list of the undefeated and untied in the state to 21 teams with Childress and Brackenridge being shooed out.

Those remaining with unsullied records are:
Amarillo, Lubbock, Plainview, Faris, Sherman, Masonic Home (Fort Worth), Woodrow Wilson (Dallas), Stephenville, Bryan, Longview, Lufkin, Jeff Davis (Houston), Lamar (Houston), South Park (Beaumont), Austin, Kerrville, Beville, Brownsville, Corpus Christi, Harlingen and McAllen.

Baugh Connects For 18 Of 24 Passes

CHICAGO, Oct. 21 (AP)—The Washington Redskins and Chicago Bears, employing widely divergent offensive methods, are headed in the same general direction—a split in the playoff for the national professional football championship.

Sammy Baugh passed the Philadelphia Eagles silly, tossing three touchdown passes as Washington won, 24 to 17. Baugh connected for 18 of 24 aeriels for 258 yards.

The Bears, thwarted repeatedly in the first half of their battle with Brooklyn, broke loose in the final periods to carve out a 16 to 7 victory.

SERIAL STORY

NEW YORK JUNGLE

BY WRAY WADE SEVERN

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: Although Gaudin suggests the missing map and intruder theory in his questioning, Marta gives only the facts in her account of counting Adam, then fainting. Barker repeats his story, but adds that outside in the evening, he saw a shadow in the window of Miss Hemphill's room.

THE DOG COMES BACK

CHAPTER XII

IT was after 3 o'clock when the medical examiner departed with his grim burden. Two more troopers had arrived from the state barracks and Plowman had concluded a preliminary investigation. The frightened members of the house party had retired behind locked doors.

Braitwood found sleep impossible. He changed into a dressing gown, put his revolver on the table beside him, and tried to think.

Outside the storm had subsided. Only quiet sounds of the countryside, the drip, drip from still-wet eaves, the low murmur of weary trees, the weird hoot of an owl were audible.

Sidney's thoughts slowly clarified. He could now arrange evidence in an orderly fashion as a lawyer should, despite the fact that all of this concerned the murder of an old friend.

MUCH appeared significant. The broken window in the jungle; the Lilliput gun in the paw of the great ape; the hidden key; the short circuit in one part of the jungle while the lights had been turned off in the other.

Sidney groped for an answer. There was that fact that one could have drawn a straight line from the broken window to the new lioness and from there to the coffee table where a tiny flame had pricked the darkness beneath Pat Langdon's piquant face.

Could Pat have been the desired target? Had Adam, by chance, been in the direct line of fire? But Adam had been facing in the wrong direction.

What about the ransacked desk and the open windows in Langdon's bedroom and in the drawing room below?

The footprints of the mysterious dog stood by themselves. It was impossible to fit them into any theory.

And who had made a shadow against Marta's window? Silently, carefully, Braitwood reviewed events of the past 12 hours, searching in vain for some careless word, some hidden action, that might give him the answer to this baffling puzzle.

He considered various theories, argued them out, rejected them as impossible. Somewhere, in this house, there was a clue that would solve everything. Could he discover it?

Why had Adam been shot? Was it murder, or accident? An outsider, or an enemy in the room? Gaudin's story of a valuable map had its points, Sidney mentally agreed, but had the professor actually solved the crime with a hit-and-miss story? Who would wish Adam dead?

Craig Gundrum had an age-old motive for the murder. So, for that matter, had Marta. Gundrum could have slipped back into the jungle if he had made quick work of his search of the storeroom, and aided by a flash of lightning, he might have killed Adam.

Most puzzling of all was Adam's reason for standing on the block by the lioness. True, it was in direct line with the door, but he could not have seen anyone enter except in a flash of lightning. Why had he remained there, instead of joining the ladies at the table where he could have reassured them?

ABRUPTLY, Braitwood started. Had he heard steps outside? He slipped his revolver into his pocket and peered into the hall. At Pat's orders the entire house had been left lighted, but he could see no one. Yet the conviction that some person had passed remained.

Nella's room was opposite. Pat's and Adam's divided the front of the house. Then he noticed that Adam's door was slightly ajar. If the thief had returned for whatever it was he had failed to find earlier in the evening, he certainly had courage.

The door opened a little more and Nella peered out. In a long clinging white gown and with dark eyes brilliant as stars, she looked unreal. Had anyone told Sidney that she had sufficient courage to enter the murdered man's room alone, at that hour, he would not have believed it. She saw him then and beckoned. Still without speaking, she motioned him within the room and to a door which connected Adam's room with that occupied by Pat. Then she indicated that he must kneel at the keyhole and listen.

Kneeling, Sidney could see only the back of a divan that blocked the door. He heard two guarded voices.

"YOU should not have come here. It's suicidal, under the circumstances," Pat Langdon was saying.

"Langdon's friends and relatives are all against you, Pat." Craig Gundrum's low, firm tones could not be mistaken. "I had to see you. No one saw me."

"Hush, Craig. Plowman believes we did the murder. I could read it in his eyes." "Don't talk so loudly."

The talk became inaudible then, and in a few moments Pat's door closed softly. Silence followed.

NELLA drew Sidney back to the center of the room. "I couldn't sleep," she whispered. "I decided to go to you. I had hardly opened my door when I heard someone coming softly downstairs. I closed the door, but I saw Mr. Gundrum. Then I heard Pat's door open. I hear so well."

"In my eagerness to know what they had to say to each other, I forgot to be afraid. I came here to listen." She was trembling, but she added, "Suddenly I became afraid again, and I wanted you."

"They have not really condemned themselves, Nella," Sidney reasoned. "Both realize that they are under suspicion; that is all we heard them admit."

"She is after Uncle Adam's money," Nella half sobbed. "But for me, she would have it all. Oh, Sidney, I'm terribly afraid. They may try to put me away, too. That's what made Uncle Adam so queer. He feared her."

"Why should Adam have feared her, Nella? He has faced many dangers without fear." "I don't know why, but I'm convinced that he did," Nella insisted. "Many women marry for money, Nella. Let us not make Pat a monster until we have proof that she is one."

She further said that "next to my own children there is nothing I love as much as Mary Hardin-Baylor college." Mrs. Walker is the widow of Dr. E. L. Walker, who was one of the outstanding business and professional men in northeast Texas, and who was widely known in medical circles.
