

Pay Your Poll Tax If You Want To Vote For School Trustees

Those of you who have abated decided against paying a poll tax this year might give the matter additional thought, because the possibility of a vote on one or more important constitutional changes.

For Pampans, there'll be another reason for paying the tax, or securing a certificate of exemption.

tion, for on the first Saturday in April, the Pampa Independent School district will hold an election to name two members to the board of trustees.

Terms of L. M. McClain and of Roger McConnell expire this year, and it is to either re-elect these two or to name two other trustees that the election is called.

Friday is the last day on which a poll tax can be paid, to make Pampans qualified to vote in the April school election. It is also the last day on which certificates of exemption can be obtained.

It is important that Gray county residents qualify themselves to vote, both for the local election, and for the possible state constitutional changes—and there's only two more days in which this can be done.

It is still too early in the current legislative session to know whether or not there will be a special state-wide election this year.

However, in 1939, a proposed constitutional amendment which would have levied a 2 per cent retail sales tax failed of submission to the people by only six votes in the house.

Many weeks will elapse before the legislature decides whether and when to submit the various constitutional amendments which are being proposed.

Meanwhile, Gray county residents as well as other Texans, would be wise to pay their $1.75 poll tax and make themselves eligible to vote.

Tax Paid Here By 849

In gradually increasing numbers, Gray county residents were obtaining poll tax receipts and exemption certificates the past two days from the office of the county tax assessor collector.

The total of poll tax receipts issued has risen to 849, exemption certificates to 212. Friday is the last date on which poll tax receipts can be issued, or exemption certificates obtained.

A last minute rush, the typical mark of voters custom, is expected this week, before the deadline falls.

The total number of voters qualifying in Gray county to date represents slightly more than one-sixth of the total vote in the county.

Down at Dallas, the tax office is really doing a big business, F. E. Leech, Gray county tax officer, said today. "They are doing a 'jillion' things to vote on down there this year. But at Abilene, where there is about 26,000 votes, the situation is much the same as here, with only a fraction of the total vote qualifying," Mr. Leech said.

NYA Office Not To Be In Auditorium

A proposed plan to locate the National Youth Administration office in the city hall auditorium was discarded by the city commission at its meeting yesterday, following a tour of the building and a discussion by the city officials.

Temporarily, the NYA office has been set up in the Duncan building with Roy Cline as county director. When the commission decides on what is to be done, the office may be moved. A permanent location is due to be made by February 1.

Reason for the abandonment of the plan to utilize the city hall auditorium, which is little used now, was that the commission felt it would mar the appearance of the hall, would be too costly, would require considerable alteration, and would not be worthwhile if the office was not going to be here a long time.

As alternative, the commission thought some arrangement might be worked out for the NYA and recreation project offices to be combined in the basement of the city hall. This space is now occupied solely by the recreation project.

Another suggestion was that some space around the public library might be used.

Both of these alternatives, however, were nullified by Mr. Cline's statement that the offices adjoining the library would not be large enough for a separate office and room for a stenographer; and by the NYA official's statement that his agency wanted to keep itself separate from the recreation project, or anything else.

Commissioner George B. Cree volunteered to work out some sort of arrangement and notify Mr. Cline.

The Gray county commissioners, Mr. Cline told the city commission, have agreed to pay $15 a month toward the rental of an office for the NYA, or to expand that amount to the city for any repairs necessary to fix up an N.Y.A. office in the city hall, until such time as the total expense had been paid.

Reason for the $15 a month plan was to share half of the estimate monthly rental for an NYA office with the city, should the office be located in a private building. Estimated rent for the office was $30 a month.

Large Air Corps Quotas Available

Large air corps quotas, with the applicant having his choice of assignment to various army air fields and schools in Texas, California and Nevada, are now available, according to Harvey M. Gist, who will open the Pampa recruiting station between February 3 and 6 when he will interview applicants.

At the present time Corporal Gist is in Lubbock assisting in the registration and classification of selectees. The local recruiting office has been closed for three weeks.

Quotas now open include: Air corps at West coast school, Kelly field, San Antonio, Las Vegas, Nev., Mather field, Cal., 49th squadron school, San Angelo; and in the 2nd observation battalion and 18th field artillery at Fort Sill, Okla.; finance department, Kelly field.

Two-Day Art Exhibit Will Open Thursday

Cataloguing pictures to be displayed in the art exhibit being sponsored by Upsilon chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority tomorrow and Friday in the city club rooms began today at 1 o'clock.

Throughout the remainder of the afternoon and this evening additional paintings will be received for the exhibit.

All types of work, charcoal, pastels, oils, and ink sketches, which are to be entered in the show by Panhandle artists, will be classified into groups, original and copy work.

The exhibit will be open to the public between 2 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon and 7 and 9:30 o'clock in the evening both days. No admission will be charged.

Prizes will not be awarded but the outstanding pictures will be selected by popular vote.

Since all artists of the Panhandle have been invited to participate in this initial art exhibit, it will be impossible to determine the number who will display their works. Because of this, at least one painting from each artist will be hung, and if possible, more will be used.

Trustworthy pictures will be given by the Rev. R. G. West each evening between 9 and 9:30 o'clock. On Thursday evening he will speak on "The Subtle Power of a Master Painter," and Friday night on "Painting—How to Interpret a Masterpiece."

Beta Delta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Fraternity Will Have Tea

Five chapters of Delta Kappa Gamma in the Panhandle region have held one or more meetings since the regional meeting in Pampa in October.

The first meeting of Beta Delta chapter will be a tea at the city club rooms in Pampa, on Feb. 22, at which Mrs. H. Wagner, first president, will give a book review for the benefit of the scholarship fund. A Christmas party at LeFors was planned but was canceled because of bad weather.

Featured at the meeting of Gamma Kappa chapter at Clarendon, Jan. 18, was a review given by Mrs. Ray Guthrie of "On the Long Tide," by Laura Key. Miss Estia McElrath, president, and Miss Edna Bryan were hostesses at the home of Mrs. D. A. Grundy, and a buffet dinner was served to 22 members and two guests.

Gamma Kappa is the proud possessor of the gavel awarded to the chapter traveling the most miles to attend the regional meeting. Mrs. M. C. Lane, publicity chairman, states that they are going to try to win the candlestick to be presented at the state meeting to the chapter having the highest score in attendance.

The December meeting of Gamma Delta chapter was in the form of a dinner in the Federated club rooms of the Hutchinson county library at Berger. Lovely Christmas decorations and hand painted tables were used. In January 16 members met for a luncheon. Group singing and stunts preceded the business session.

Forty-five members of the Gamma Iota and Alpha Sigma chapters attended a tea in the ballroom of the Hilton hotel at Plainview, with Plainview and Kress members of Gamma Iota as hostesses. Mrs. W. Henderson and Mrs. Charles Dean of Plainview and Mrs. Horace Brooks of Kress presided at the tea table and Mrs. Lee Nowlin state corresponding secretary and president of Gamma Iota, was in charge of the program.

Pi chapter has had three meetings. On Nov. 16 at Canyon, Miss Darthula Walker was in charge of a program on hobbies and during the evening an exhibit of hobbies of the members was on display. Jan. 4, an initiation was held at the Capitol hotel, at which three new members were received: Misses Catherine Chapman and Loula Grace Erdman of Amarillo and Lois McGladin of Hereford. A banquet and social hour followed with Miss Blanche Davidson, president, presiding.

Highlights of the program at the Capitol hotel on Jan. 18, were a discussion on "Employment Status of Women," led by Miss Carmen Ulm; "Methodist Missions in a World of Women's Rights," by Mrs. Gervys Taylor on "The Significant Points of Our Government's Program"; and vocal numbers by Miss Ada V. Clark of Canyon.

Pi chapter has invited other chapters to attend an open meeting at the Country club on March 15, at which Miss Cora M. Martin of Austin, national founder, will be the guest of honor.

Miss Anne McDonald, a member of Pi chapter, has received the

Advance indications were that a majority in both house and senate committees would vote to include these sections—perhaps with tacit white house approval.

Stimson, in his testimony, predicted that Britain would face a crisis this spring and summer. If she survives, he said, "the probability of an ultimate solution in favor of the democracies would be overwhelming."

"The passage of this bill," he interjected, "will go far to stiffen the morale necessary for her to survive that crisis."

Speaking of Axis "vulnerability," Stimson said that "Italy is already in serious straits," and that the German army "is spread out very thin and already in Italy and in Roumania and in Norway we begin to hear the creaks of the strain under which German power is laboring."

The Japanese army, he continued, was spread out even thinner than the German, and the country was economically strained.

If Britain survives the next several months, he said, "the Axis powers cannot indefinitely hold even the European world in slavery" for they would be without seapower and the control of the air would be against them.

Turning to the legal questions, Stimson cited the action of the International Law association in interpreting the Kellogg-Briand pact. The association held that if one signatory to the pact was attacked by another, the other signatories, without any breach of international law, may come to the aid of the attacked nation with money, supplies and even armed forces.

He pointed out that the Axis nations, as well as the United States and Britain signed the pact.

Congress, he said, would be exercising its powers by establishing the national policies in the present situation. "But congress," he added, "can neither consider nor decide each and every transaction that may be necessary successfully to carry out these policies."

"... IN DEFENSE OF OUR HEARTH AND HOME"

Revealing that Great Britain now has 4,000,000 armed and uniformed men "who will play a part in the defense of our hearth and home," Prime Minister Churchill painted an optimistic picture of Britain's readiness for attempted invasion.

Munitions, too, are piling up and flowing to vital defense areas. One such point pictured above—an east coast battery where artillerymen are seen loading a shipment of 9.2-inch shells and trundling them off to the storehouse.

land, said Metaxas died of heart disease. King George's proclamation said the new government would carry on with no change in policy, especially as it affected the war with Italy.

The Greek people, the proclamation added, received "the sad news in calm and with absolute confidence in the king, and the government is decided to carry on the victorious struggle."

Metaxas, a veteran soldier and military genius, had held dictatorial powers in the Greek government with the approval of King George since Aug. 4, 1936, when he engineered the coup d'etat which gave his country an authoritarian regime.

He was proclaimed "premier for life" on July 30, 1938. Military men have given him much of the credit for Greece's successful stand against the Italian invasion, which began last Oct. 28 and was turned into a retreat into Albania.

Early in his career, Metaxas was regarded in some quarters as somewhat "pro-German," but he repudiated any such sympathies in his role as Greece's strong man, and there was no doubt of his British leanings after the European situation flared into open war in September, 1939.

Known as an organizer and an ardent patriot, he had been famed for his driving determination to see his ideas carried through.

The last vestige of opposition to his regime disappeared in February, 1938, when several party leaders favoring a return to constitutional government were banished to Greek islands in the Aegean.

Industrial activity, raising wages and bettering living conditions. Metaxas enjoyed the undivided support of the army and highly-efficient secret police.

Metaxas' determination to pursue the war with Italy to a successful termination with every resource at his country's command was reflected in a statement issued January 4. "Our aim is the free development of Greece and of her moral and material forces—not, of course, at the expense of other peoples," he said.

"We will not tolerate, either, peoples who covet our rights to develop freely. These are the aims of the war which we are fighting and for which we will fight until the end, that is to say the final victory which is x x x to be ours."

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Jan. 29. (AP)—Greece was reported today to have turned to Germany for medical help to save the life of her dictator-premier, General John Metaxas—but too late.

Diplomatic sources here said the Greek government asked the German legation at Athens to send a German specialist to the stricken premier's bedside by plane, but it was too late.

Metaxas was reported here to have chosen his own successor, Alexander Coryzios, who was approved by King George II after the premier's death.

Political circles here said Metaxas' death was the heaviest blow Greece could suffer and that he was almost irreplaceable under the "present circumstances" of the war with Italy.

As Greece's strong man died, inklings appeared that the Aegean kingdom's counter-invasion into Albania may have stalled under increasing Italian pressure.

Since the capture of Klisura in central Albania on Jan. 10, Greek communications have noted only the repelling of fierce Italian counterattacks—without a single notable advance. Again today, a Greek government spokesman said two Pas-chist attacks near Klisura had been driven back with the Greeks inflicting "heavy losses" and taking 70 prisoners.

Premier Mussolini's high command, however, asserted that the Italians had seized "an important position" from the Greeks, along with the capture of prisoners and arms. The high command also reported the bombing of Salonika and the railway line to Athens.

On the Libyan desert front, the daily Fascist war bulletin said a British armored division knifing into the north African colony below Derna was thrown back by Italian troops with "noteworthy losses."

"Our air formations uninterruptedly bombed and fired at armored detachments and motor car columns," the communique said, thus disputing reports that the RAF has won command of the air over the Libyan battlefield.

Dispatches from Cairo, Egypt, said strong British motorized troops were sweeping south and west of Derna, jeopardizing all of Marshal Graziani's remaining troops in eastern Libya.

British Drive Against Derna

(By The Associated Press) CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 29. (P)—With British motorized units so deep within Libya that Italy's hold on the whole eastern part of that colony was reported jeopardized, general headquarters announced today increasing pressure on the coastal strong point, Derna.

Advanced units of Britain's army on wheels and caterpillar treads were said to be operating south and west of Derna, while the main forces maneuvered and massed for an assault on the coastal town, 95 miles west of fallen Tobruk and 175 miles from the Egyptian frontier.

The GHQ communique confined itself succinctly to the report: "Our pressure on enemy forces in the Derna region is increasing." The full picture of the penetration came from unofficial sources.

Almost as briefly as GHQ summed up operations on the east African front, hundreds of miles from Libya's sandy wastelands. Operations in the Agordat-Barentu sector of Italian Eritrea, about 80 miles inside the Sudan border, were said to be "developing" and 73 additional prisoners were claimed in the pursuit of Italians withdrawing from Umm Hagar.

At the same time, "Free French" forces were disclosed last night to have driven more than 200 miles into southwestern Libya from equatorial Africa presented the Italians with the necessity of guarding their rear against attack.

This accomplishment was viewed here as the first real fruits of the raising of the "Free French" flag over French equatorial Africa late last August—a move hailed at the time as of great strategic importance.

There was no indication here of how many men General Charles De Gaulle, "Free French" leader, had thrown into action. But it has been estimated he has assembled altogether some 35,000 troops, and it was believed here a large proportion of these was co-operating in the African campaign.

Although voting for the resolution, Rep. L. W. Harris of Whitney, a former old age assistance worker, called attention to the asserted difficulties under which investigators had labored the past two years.

"If the money had provided more money for old age assistance" Harris said, "the assistance workers could have done a different job, putting more old people on the rolls would have meant a further cut in grants to the 100,000 persons who needed assistance worst. As it was, they had to take a $6 cut so that borrowed money might be repaid."

This Strange, Cold Man, Lindbergh

About Lindbergh—First, he has an undisputed right to be saying his say about the United States and the European war. Let's be clear about that. If he believes what he says it is his duty to say it.

He has been freely given that right—he has been given freedom which would never be granted him under a system whose indefinite extension he views with such complacency.

How much radio time, how long a hearing, does he suppose, would have been given him if as a German he had tried to go to the German people with a public cry against aid to Franco? Yet the very crux and keynote of his testimony is that to him it matters not at all which side wins in Europe.

There are two Lindberghs. One is the aviation expert. He has had unrivaled opportunities for surveying Europe military aviation, and events have all too well justified many of the reports he made before the war broke. On the question whether it is physically possible or feasible to attack the United States by air, Lindbergh's views are worth hearing, though by no means conclusive. He thinks scattered bombing of U. S. cities from Europe is already possible, but not very effective, while the landing of an actual invading force by air is impossible; that aviation makes the United States safer from invasion than it was before the airplane.

This testimony is competent, but not sensational. Few have maintained that the United States is in danger of immediate physical military invasion, no matter what happens in Europe. Those who are deeply concerned by developments look farther ahead.

Now we come to the other Lindbergh, the one who has political philosophy. And here one wonders whether Lindbergh, who feels able to defy direct military invasion, has not already surrendered within himself to a much more subtle attack.

What need for the Nazis to send ships and planes to the Americas if they can without sending them see American minds come to a state which sees no difference to the United States if it should become a mere island of liberty surrounded by world-wide seas of tyranny? If they can see American minds becoming convinced that the Nazis ride some mystic but irresistible wave of the future against which it is futile to swim?

What Colonel Lindbergh says is interesting. What he omits is even more so. If he has ever had a good word for the common man, ever made a gesture of sympathy for plain people less fortunate (yes even less able) than himself, ever made a sign that liberty may be more precious than efficiency—we have not seen it.

Despite streams of writing and speculating about him, this strange, cold man remains a mystery, inscrutable, hard, and somehow aloof from the people.

Behind The News

By BRUCE CATTON

The Pampa News Washington Correspondent WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Nobody paid much attention to Rex Tugwell's return to a New Deal job, but the job itself could turn into one of the administration's most far-reaching experiments.

Tugwell, who is chairman of the New York City Planning Commission, is serving without pay as special adviser to Secretary Ickes. He is heading up a group that will have to put into effect a law which will change the whole economic foundations of the island of Puerto Rico.

Back in 1900, Puerto Rico passed a law forbidding any corporation to own or control more than 500 acres of land. The law had no teeth and never was enforced. Under Ickes' guidance, however, an enforcement act was adopted in 1935, and this law has finally been upheld by the Supreme Court. The island government, with Ickes' aid, is now moving to enforce it.

This could turn Puerto Rico upside down. Upward of 600,000 acres of land in huge sugar plantations could be broken up. One suggestion is to parcel such land out in small tracts for family-sized farming. This, of course, would shift the island away from its present one-crop dependence on sugar and would constitute about the biggest experiment in land-use planning the government has ever undertaken.

Tugwell's committee, which includes Ben Cohen, is made up chiefly of experts from the Agriculture and Interior Departments. It is now beginning to make preliminary surveys, and will go to the island late in February, probably for a two-month stay, to figure out the speed with which enforcement of the law should proceed, what indemnity should be paid the disposed corporations, the size of the farm parcels that should be established, and so on.

MORE WORRIES

Congress is already beginning to worry about what will happen when the program is completed and the enormous stream of government spending dries up. There is now pending in the House and Senate legislation introduced by Congressman Voorhies and Senator Wagner to set up a "post-emergency economic advisory commission" to look into the problem.

This commission would be made up of three senators, three congressmen, and six representatives of the general public. Its duty would be to "study the economic problems likely to confront the nation upon the termination of the present defense emergency" and to draft a complete program for the full utilization of the nation's productive capacity thereafter.

That's a huge mouthful, when you stop to think

Common Ground

By R. C. HOILES

This column contends there can be no satisfactory progress until we measure the share of each man by the common yardstick of the God-given right to create and enjoy anything anyone else has a right to create and enjoy.

MODERN BOOKS VERSUS OLD BOOKS One reason why the defenders of minimum wages, the Wagner law, etc., do not understand their eventual effects, is that they believe only new books can be helpful for them to read.

They seem not to understand that principles are eternal; that the causes of freedom and prosperity and economic growth are the same now as they were a hundred or a thousand or two thousand years ago.

Most of the eternal principles have been explained so thoroughly and clearly years ago that there are few modern books that reiterate these principles.

It would be just as sensible for people to contend that the teachings of Jesus were out of date, because they were advocated nearly two thousand years ago, as it would be for them to contend books on economics and social problems written fifty or a hundred years ago are out of date.

Of course, there are some modern books that explain briefly these eternal, economic principles but few modern books give a very broad view of the various phases of economic, human relations.

Among the modern books written in the last few years that are worth reading are, "The Promises Men Live By" by Harry Sherman on the credit and money subject, written in 1938; "Sharing the Wealth" by John Rustard, written in 1937; "Capitalism the Creator" by Carl Snyder, written and published in 1940.

The masterpieces based on the eternal principles of free enterprise and laissez faire, are to be found in the works of such men as Bastiat, written some 92 years ago.

The advantage of an old book is that it is tested and stands the criticism of time. The fact that they have lasted, is evidence of their worth, just as the fact that the principles of the personality of man, as advocated in the Bible, have stood the test of centuries.

92 YEARS YOUNG One can have an active mind at 92. This was brought to the writer's attention by a card he received from Etta Griffith of Balboa Island. The card called the writer's attention to Walter Lippmann's address on "The Failure of Modern Education" in the Los Angeles Times of January 15. Miss Griffith has been an educator for many years and is still interested in education. Would that more people were interested in education, as is Miss Griffith.

LABOR UNIONS AND PRODUCTION AND WAGES

Those people who claim to be great humanitarians and get great joy out of their claim for so being by contending that the working man is benefited by labor unions, will not, of course, explain by what principle this can be done.

The only way that wage levels can be constantly increased is by furnishing better tools. The only way any man can lift more is to get him a longer lever. How would the labor unions contend that labor unions could enable a man to lift more with the same length of lever?

And if labor unions can raise wage levels, then they must have some way that a man can produce more because in the long run men, as a whole, cannot receive more than they produce any more than a woman can take more bread out of the oven than she put in.

But labor unions and the New Deal laws, instead of furnishing a longer lever, are preventing longer levers from being produced. They, thus, are lowering wage levels, instead of raising them.

MR. WILKIE CHECKS OUT

(Chicago Tribune)

Mr. Wilkie, by prearrangement, was in the Town Hall audience in New York when the debate on war bill 1776, between Dr. Frank Kingdon, head of the New York chapter of interventionists, and Norman Thomas, the socialist, was broadcast. Mr. Thomas opposed the bill and American participation in the war. He did so with arguments which Republicans have made and could indorse.

At the moment which had previously been agreed upon Mr. Wilkie was observed to be in the audience, and was asked to comment. He did so with a complete indorsement of Mr. Roosevelt's war policy, his bill, and the absolute powers it would grant. This is not the position of the Republican party, which is for neither war nor dictatorship.

Mr. Wilkie entered the Republican party as a mysterious stranger, suddenly and to the astonishment of thousands of the party members who didn't recall the face or the name. He may now take his leave, quite as suddenly, still a stranger to the party's principles, although no longer mysterious. Republicans who wondered how he got in will feel relieved when he gets out. His desertion of the party position during the campaign was one of those things that cannot be fully believed at the time they occur. People don't quite grasp the full significance of what they have seen and heard.

It was hard to believe that the Republican convention had been swept off its feet and had nominated a man who should have been running on the other ticket. When Mr. Wilkie tried to tell the people that was just what had happened, it was impossible to believe him. It was impossible not to think that he meant something else, that he didn't mean he was just a yes man to the candidate he was supposed to be opposing, or that he was a fifth columnist opening the gates to the other side.

It is now apparent that the proper place for the Republican nominee was the one the Democratic convention didn't want to give Henry Wallace but very well could have given to Wendell Wilkie. Millions of Republicans now see that they were duped and were, in effect, voting the Democratic ticket.

about it, and you're likely to hear a good deal more about this bill before this Congress adjourns.

TIN SMELTER WAITS ON RFC

Erection of a tin smelter to handle 45,000 tons of ore from Bolivia awaits only a decision from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. A report on the project went to the RFC from the Defense Commission some two months ago, recommending the building of a smelter capable of turning out 18,000 tons of pure tin annually and designed so that it could be expanded substantially in case of need. A privately operated plant built with government money is recommended, and four possible sites have been recommended—but until the RFC reports nobody will know where the sites are.

'THE TIME HAS COME,' THE WALRUS SAID, 'TO TALK OF MANY THINGS'

Around Hollywood

(Second of two articles on Adeline deWalt Reynolds, who started her movie career at 80.)

By PAUL HARRISON NEA Service Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 29.—The movie's new grandniece, Adeline deWalt Reynolds, says she began play-acting at the age of three—which was 77 years ago.

Sarah Bernhardt was 18 then, and Edwin Booth just a young leading man. A kid of 16 named Thomas Edison hadn't even dreamed of inventing motion pictures. And small Miss deWalt, one of 12 children on an Iowa farm, had never even heard of a stage or a theater.

"But even then," she says today, "I believe I knew that acting would be my beloved work."

That phrase, "beloved work," is one used often by Mrs. Reynolds, and it assumes real meaning as she tells about her busy life and the many kinds of work that finally have brought her to her cherished dream. You get a pretty good notion that it was the thing that has kept her so lively and alert all this time.

MOTHERED DIRECTOR I went to see the 80-year-old actress at the small house she has rented. It wasn't any use trying to see her on the set of "Come Live With Me," because people are always hovering around her. They called her Gramma, and she used their character names because, she explained, it was nicer to think of them—in the roles they portrayed than as movie stars.

She always had lunch on the set with Director Clarence Brown, whom she was worried about because he was tired and on the verge of a case of flu. So early each morning, at home, Mrs. Reynolds put up a dunch for herself and Brown and took it to the studio in a brown paper bag. She piled him with fruit juice until it almost ran out of his ears, and after he had eaten she'd make him lie down and rest in her dressing room. He finished the picture feeling fine.

While I munched raisins from a big bowl on a table, Mrs. Reynolds admitted she is something of a crank about food. Vegetarian? "No," she said a little sharply, "I don't like to be labeled. If I want meat, I eat meat; but not often, and not much. Not too much of anything. You know, those bodies of ours are pretty fine things, or could be. I believe we ought to feed 'em at least as carefully as we'd feed a good horse."

At Metro one day, Gramma was to play a scene in a nightclub, and Brown told her to select the kind she liked—any good, warm, old-fashioned nightgown. "But I DON'T like nightgowns," she protested. "How can our bodies breathe at night if they're wrapped in stuffy—ah—?" and her voice trailed off in embarrassment at what she had said.

PLEASE ENCLOSE ENVELOPE

Adeline Reynolds has felt old in her time.

At 40, when her husband died and left her with four children to support, people to whom she applied for office work indicated she was too old. She got so mad she went home and ripped all the birth records from the family Bible, went out and took a business course, and soon was running a stenographic school. She felt old at 46, when the San Francisco earthquake and fire wiped out her business. She felt old at 66, when a few professors tried to discourage her from enrolling as a freshman at the University of California.

People You Know

By Archer Fullingim

Please don't call up and ask for truly this one does not know who Madame Stella had in mind when she wrote this:

MOST MARRIED MAN BY MADAME STELLA Jack was certainly the most married man I ever met. Not happily married, for happily married men quite forget they are married, sometimes Jack never forgot. He had only one child, but it was perfectly amazing the number of functions the father attended with his son. School exercises, church picnics, ball games—

I used to wonder if the mother attended all these things too, but she was never mentioned. . . . What a surprise it was to learn that Jack had no wife, that he had been divorced for a number of years. It seems he had been unhappy with his beautiful and correct wife. At least she was correct in public. At home she nagged his very life away until he could stand it no longer and had simply walked out never to come back. . . . Jack kept all his appointments as no father ever kept them. When invited by neighbors he always accepted.

He returned this hospitality with hotel dinners and pleasant gifts. He bent all the way over backward to show the world that there was nothing the matter with him. His wife wended her correct way about the community. She wondered about Jack.

How had the Smiths ever got him to go on a picnic? He hated picnics and the Smiths. He had refused to have anything to do with them when he was married. Now and then she would see him being agreeable at functions she knew he hated and her wonder increased. She knew she had nagged him but still willingly he had fought like a steer. He had forced her to go alone to the New Year parties, and now that there was no one to care he hadn't missed one since they divorced. And all this devotion to little Stevie. How had that come to be? When he was under the same roof he certainly didn't upset his life to take Stevie fishing. . . . Jack's pals from bachelor days had been delighted when he divorced. They remembered all the grand poker parties, the stag dinners, the hunting parties. But Jack was a great disappointment. His family duties and social obligations left him no time winner or summer. "You know Jack, what I think of that guy," said one of his old pals to another. "He had more independence when he was married to the woman. . . . A fellow could see him once in a while. Now he's so busy showing the town what a nice guy he is. . . . He's more married now than anybody. . . . all he lacks is the wife. I wonder why those two don't get back together, then he could take a night off for a poker game."

French, and was able to make a living as a tutor after her savings were wiped out by the depression. By this time, though, nothing could discourage her.

The pet little address is proud of her achievements and perfectly aware her career has been unusual. "A few people have been encouraged by my story to pick up life again," she said.

"Spelling bees" were popular before the end of the 18th century.

BELLS, BATHTUBS, AND LOVE ARE TROUBLES IN QUITO

You can put down Ludwig Bemelmans as probably the world's most unconventional travel writer. And you'll wish there were a great many more like him when you've finished "The Donkey Inside" (Viking; $3), the running account of his three trips to South America. Actually, Mr. Bemelmans confines himself to Ecuador—as a sort of epitome of everything he saw—tosses in four of his characteristic illustrations in color for good measure, but the result is an unforgettable picture of life below the equator, both ornate and poetical and chatty as the following description of Quito and a cafe conversation shows:

"It has been said that Quito that it had one hundred churches and one bathtub. There are more bathtubs now, but the churches are still ahead—and they make themselves heard. Their bells are high and insistent. . . . The deepest gift off a sound below the equator, both ornate and poetical and chatty as the following description of Quito and a cafe conversation shows: . . . Tsk, tsk!"

It is our opinion that the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce is doing the Top O' Texas area a mighty fine service in sponsoring its Americanism speaking contest among Panhandle high school students. . . . The series is heard each Tuesday at a score of high schools. . . . The radio speakers are sent by the various schools following local elimination contests. . . . KPNB's Johnny Welts, a Jaycee'er, is pappy of the idea.

WAYNE Phelps, the ad man, is shopping for a monkey suit for some kind of special occasion. . . . D. L. Parker has a new and timely joke. . . . "Van Vandover will match you for anything you've got. . . . Think Alman reports the Junior C. of C. made $6 on a dance and $19 on a basketball game in the past fortnight. . . . Speaking of the Jaycees again, Joe Key has been named vice president-in-charge-of setting-the-dough for Pampa's projected gymnasium. . . . It'll be a good trick if he can do it. . . . He needs $6,000, and he is asking for it in loans—to be paid back—from you and you and you in any amount up to $500. . . . If the Jaycees raise $6,000, like Sam's NYA, will match it with a like sum, and up goes the gymnasium which Pampa needs.

TEX'S TOPICS

By Tex DeWeese

WE saw in a movie newsreel the other night cameramen working themselves into a lather to get pictures of Winthrop Rockefeller; he is apparent to one of the greatest fortunes in the country, being signed up for the army. . . . And some have worked themselves into quite a state because the 28-year-old oil company employee volunteered before his draft time came. . . . We observed as we saw this newsreel shot that young Rockefeller looked like a pretty regular sort of a chap and no doubt he will make a fine soldier.

However, he did the same admirable thing that many young men right here in Pampa and Gray county have done and are doing. . . . The interesting thing about this was that anybody should think it is remarkable. Young Rockefeller is an American. . . . And, it has been decided that all eligible Americans should render military aid to their country. . . . There should be nothing unusual about the fact that a singularly fortunate young American decided to accept casually and good-humoredly, his plain duty. . . . It would be a bad day for the country if the perfectly normal thing should some day be regarded as a phenomenon.

Keeping a diary is a good way to check up on yourself five years from now. . . . We kept a diary once, but there were so many things we were afraid might some day be used as evidence in a insanity hearing that we finally abandoned the idea altogether. . . . We know people who keep diaries, and we'd give an arm or two to get a peek at some of the entries made. . . . We plan to dance tomorrow night, but other than walk. . . . How about you? . . . The humanitarian purpose behind the dances being held on the President's birthday should add greatly to the evening's pleasure. . . . If you don't dance, buy a ticket anyway. . . . Or at least exchange your dime for one of those little tin fight-infantry-paralysis badges. . . . We listened to an argument about the pronunciation of the word "infantile." . . . It's pronounced "IN-fan-tile," with the accent on the first syllable and a long "I" in the last one. . . . There is no pretense here to be an authority on grammar or pronunciation. . . . We mess up plenty of them.

IF we were to be forced to have to pick out the greatest of all attributes in a person, it has been decided he would say that it is the trait of being human—being yourself—with the best understanding of the other fellow's angle. . . . So many of us go around wrapped in such a heavy cloak of artificiality that it almost smothers us. . . . Let your hair down sometime and see how much better you feel. . . . We got the crystal ball out of the moth balls the other day, and it has been worked overtime lately. . . . Some of the things seen in it have been of such a nature that they have not been set down here for fear they might frighten someone. . . . Since he became president of the Chamber of Commerce, Jimmie Dodge has one of the busiest telephones in Pampa. . . . That reminds us that when speaking of a telephone it is considered highly un-Emly Post to use the contraction, "phone." . . . There are all kinds of phones, but only one telephone. . . . But, in a note he sent to us recently, L. H. Johnson, the telephone man, wrote it "phone."

As regards Albania, I think the Greeks may encounter some hard knocks when the spring comes, unless the British are able to reinforce them heavily meantime. At this critical juncture, Greece has lost one of its mainstays of strength in the death of Dictator General Metaxas.

"Little John" Metaxas was a military genius, trained in the German war college and with much experience on the battle field. When I was in Greece two years ago I found that the public as a whole was a political minded and intensely independent, was irked by the dictatorship. However, while Metaxas was a two-fisted chief, he was an efficient one, as witness the amazing manner in which he has smashed the Fascist forces which tried to invade his country.

Of even more importance than the military operations is the presence in Italy of the famous German economic expert, Dr. Karl Rodius, who is negotiating with the Fascists. . . . He said that Germany, instead of getting supplies from Italy, is to ship essentials of many kinds—oil, minerals, foodstuffs and what not—in an effort to bolster the serious economic position. Many of these supplies must come out of Hitler's own reserves since our supplies aren't anything like sufficient.

This situation, and the serious threat to Britain's supplies through German submarine campaign, emphasize that resources rather than sheer military might are likely to win this war in the long run.

FAMOUS WOMEN

Until the 20th century, the woman's place was generally considered to be in the home, but before that time there were many who played important parts in world events. Here are some of these famous women who can identify themselves.

1. Name the Indian girl who reportedly saved an early American colonist from death.

2. What archduchess of Austria, born in Vienna, married a French king and was later beheaded in Paris?

3. Who was the woman that offered to pawn her jewels to aid an Italian navigator in his business of exploration?

4. What Egyptian woman was executed by two well-known Romanas?

5. Who was the 19-year-old girl that was burned at the stake after leading French troops into battle against the English?

The War Today

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

There is no reason to look with undue suspicion at the Fascist disclosure that Italy and Germany are extending their economic and military cooperation in preparation for an effort to drive the British from the Mediterranean by assaults in Africa and against Greece—all this being preliminary to an attempted invasion of England itself.

Such frankness about military plans does, of course, rather favor of the stage magician who exhibits his sleaves to prove that he has nothing concealed. Still, that program is logical enough (if we allow for a fair amount of window dressing), and we mustn't overlook its important fact.

This information about the hand-in-glove closeness of the Axis partners is intended more for the consumption of the people of Italy than for the benefit of the rest of the world. It is pretty feverish and that Doctor Hitler is trying to keep the temperature down.

So far as the military threat goes, Britain should welcome that. As I have indicated before, the chief weapon which Hitler can bring into operation is air power, and this will tend to weaken his aerial offensive against England. That is a dangerous experiment, for it will give the Britons a chance to get set for the projected Nazi invasion. Therefore it will be strange if Hitler goes very far in drawing on the resources of his western front.

The Axis partners likely will stage offensives in the Mediterranean, but they must certainly do so with the knowledge that so far as Italy's African empire is concerned, they are trying to close the book after the horse has escaped. What is left of Marshal Graziani's once great Libyan army is shattered and incapable of a serious offensive even if it is rescued.

Air power alone can't do Graziani much good at this late stage. For that matter, it has already happened thus far in the war to demonstrate that warplanes have any mysterious power over surface warships, and British naval experts claim they have little fear of the Axis air assault which has cut Italy's African colonies off from supplies and reinforcements.

The sensational drive of a Free French camel corps from Chad across the burning desert into southwestern Libya to capture the strategic oasis of Fezzan from the Fascists has been a setback which has hit the African war. It adds to Graziani's already overwhelming worries by opening up a new front against him. However, to my mind the moral effect of this operation may be of more value than the military value at this juncture.

As regards Albania, I think the Greeks may encounter some hard knocks when the spring comes, unless the British are able to reinforce them heavily meantime. At this critical juncture, Greece has lost one of its mainstays of strength in the death of Dictator General Metaxas.

"Little John" Metaxas was a military genius, trained in the German war college and with much experience on the battle field. When I was in Greece two years ago I found that the public as a whole was a political minded and intensely independent, was irked by the dictatorship. However, while Metaxas was a two-fisted chief, he was an efficient one, as witness the amazing manner in which he has smashed the Fascist forces which tried to invade his country.

New Political Party Planned In Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 29 (AP)—Plans for a new political party to join the independent groups in one compact organization were reported today by Emilio Madero, who headed the unsuccessful presidential campaign of General Juan Almazan.

The new party, Madero said, would "not be an Almazan party." "We were licked in the Almazan campaign, and not by the government but by Almazan himself," he said.

"There is need for independent political thinking in Mexico. The new party has no quarrel with the government of President Amiel Avila Camacho. In fact, it wants to help him, yet reserving at all times the right to agree or to disagree with his policies.

Canadian And Mobeetie Girls Deliver Americanism Speeches

Continuing their series of programs in the Top O' Texas Americanism contest, members of the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce at their regular weekly luncheon...

Speakers are appearing before the Jaycees by right of contests held in their high schools. There are 25 Top O' Texas schools participating in the contest.

At the end of the series of speeches, the Jaycees will award prizes of $25, $10, and $10 to the first top ranking four, in order. Judges are Dr. C. H. Schulzke, W. B. Weathered, Tex DeWesse, and Joe Kay.

The speeches of the contestants, delivered Tuesday follow, the first by Miss Dunn, the second by Miss Nix.

Miss Dunn's speech on "What I Owe America": "I feel quite sure that all of you who are hearing me speak this afternoon have heard some time or another a person say 'the world owes me a living'...

"These three privileges I still enjoy through the persistence and willingness to undergo the hardships of the pioneers of America. 'I love my country because she gives me opportunities. In what other country in the world does a boy or girl of my age have the opportunity that I have?...

"No, I owe America my life and my service to do as she wishes with it. When I was a babe in my mother's arms, I breathed, I lived, and I grew. I breathed fresh, clean, and wholesome American air; I lived in an American home; I grew on rich and fertile American soil. I must give my country something in return for these. The best that I can give is myself.

"Perhaps the most enlightening and glorious thing of all is that I may be a Jew, Protestant, Catholic, or what have you and still I am an American."

"I may choose the church I wish to belong to, with no fear of criticism from my fellow man. My religion is one that carries me on to a brilliant future. It does not hinder me. 'I may go beyond the knowledge of my ancestors and still be religious. For this I owe America my heart to guide my life and my service.

"It is true; democracy must not die. It must live for me, for you, and for our children. If it dies, we are dead, too. The American people must be free to roam the plains, to climb the mountains, and to swim in the oceans. Without these they could exist, but could they live? True Patriotism. 'All these advantages and yet some still say, 'America owes me many things.' Would this not sound better to say 'I owe America many things?'

"We have all sung patriotic songs, we have all given our pledge of allegiance, and we have used America's emblems; but have we done this because we wanted to or because it was the most popular thing to do? 'In the words of Patrick Henry in combination with our pledge to the flag, 'I know not what course others may take but as for me; I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the republic for which it stands,

Morgenthau Asks For Hike In Debt Limit

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. (AP)—Secretary Morgenthau said today the treasury would run out of borrowing powers in four months, and appealed for an increase in the federal debt limit from $49,000,000,000 to $65,000,000,000.

Testifying in support for a bill to make the increase, the treasury head told the House Ways and Means committee that his department had plans for the sale of "securities attractive to all classes of investors x x x to satisfy the overwhelming desire on the part of nearly every man, woman, and child to make some direct and tangible contribution to the national defense."

Although not describing these securities in detail, he said the bill would permit the treasury to issue small accumulation savings bonds and savings certificates as well as the regular types of securities.

On January 1 Morgenthau said, the treasury had used up all but $87,000,000 of its $450,000,000 general borrowing power and all but $2,784,000,000 of its special defense borrowing authority.

There was no indication in Morgenthau's statement of how long a $65,000,000,000 limit would suffice, but President Roosevelt a few weeks ago estimated that without counting borrowing which may be necessary in expanded aid to England, the debt would rise to $58,367,065,656 by June 30, 1942. At present, the debt is $45,193,549,488.

The secretary also failed to discuss proposals for additional taxes to help pay for the defense program and reduce the budgeted $9,210,093,049 deficit for the next fiscal year. His request for authority to issue savings stamps and certificates was reminiscent of similar securities sold by the treasury during the World War, when children generally bought stamps and certificates while their parents bought bonds in the liberty and victory loan campaigns.

Dallas-Packard Restrained From Violating Law

DALLAS, Jan. 29.—The first court action in the southwest affecting automobile wholesalers and distributors under the Fair Labor Standards act (Federal Wage-Hour law) was taken today when Federal Judge William H. Atwell, U. S. District Court for the northern district of Texas, issued an injunction, restraining Packard-Dallas, Inc., from further violation of the wage, hour and record keeping requirements of the act. Packard-Dallas, Inc., a wholesale and retail distributor of Packard automobiles, and reconditioner of used cars, which are rethierater shipped to interstate commerce, was charged with violating the minimum wage and maximum hour provisions of the law, and with not keeping the records which are required.

Packard-Dallas, Inc., agreed to the injunction, by which the concern is restrained from future violations of the law. About 70 employees, mostly mechanics and office workers, are affected.

South American Firms Asked To Clean Out 'Fifth Columnists'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. (AP)—The United States government, it was learned today, has instituted an aggressive drive to have American firms "house clean" their Latin-American branches of all anti-American or pro-axis personnel.

Confined by confidential reports of widespread subversive activities in most of the twenty American republics, the state department and other vital interested government agencies are applying "diplomatic pressure" to enlist the help of export industries in combating the situation.

The objects of the "house cleaning" fall into two general classes: 1—Employees or agents of United States oil, steel, automobile, electrical supply and other firms in Latin-American who are scattered throughout "fifth columnists" or who have engaged in anti-American or pro-axis propaganda and other activities, often financed by money derived from their American connections.

2—Firms or individuals in South America who are scattered throughout the United States to the Axis powers or any other foreign country that would be unable to obtain the supplies direct from the United States because of export restrictions. (Latin-American countries are able to obtain such supplies because hemisphere nations are specifically exempted from virtually all export embargoes.)

The "house cleaning" campaign, it was learned, already has brought about the discharge of a number of agents and employees suspected of hostile allegiance and operations. Other U. S. firms are now investigating their personnel in Latin-America as a prelude to what was called "de-Germanizing" the staffs. Those ousted will be replaced either by employees from the United States or loyal citizens of the American republic in which the branches are located.

The state department, it was learned, has compiled a list of individuals and firms in the twenty countries who are "suspect" either of anti-American or pro-axis propaganda and activities, or of supplying American materials to the Axis powers. From the U. S. embassy and consulates forwarded a list of approximately 300 individuals and firms, including several against whom there were direct charges of pro-axis activities.

Unique Report Issued By Texas Highway Patrol On Its Activities

Work of the Texas Highway patrol is interestingly told in a recent release from the patrol's state headquarters.

Differing from the usual rambling, dry-as-dust reports customarily associated with state agencies, the patrol tells its story in an alert, intelligent and interesting style.

Pampa is one of the stations of the patrol, with J. C. Reese and Charles Ballard as the patrolmen located here.

There are 234 highway patrol officers and privates over the state. On account of their small personnel they cannot attempt to patrol all of the 22,000 miles of designated highways in Texas, but must concern themselves with areas where experience shows their work will have the greatest possible effect.

The patrol is organized into 14 districts, with a captain in charge of each. The men work variable shifts of from eight to 12 hours, working always in pairs for their own protection.

On special occasions, such as Christmas, July 4, they work almost constantly for as long as 48 hours. Each man, before becoming a probationary patrolman, attends a

Bullets And Speeches
Best description of a highway patrolman is concisely stated in the story:

"The Highway patrolman has a sound mind, a sound body, a good education, specialized training, the pride of working with an outfit that is nationally recognized as one of the best, and the pleasure of serving humanity.

"That is why he can, with equal alacrity, exchange bullets with a bank robber in the morning and address a parent-teacher association assembly on traffic safety in the evening."

The relation between the total number of patrolmen and traffic deaths is shown in the report:

"With the increase in patrol personnel to 251 officers and men in 1937 and inauguration of the selective service, enforcement program, the death rate dropped in two years from 14.64 to 10.41. In the fiscal year 1938-39 there were 1,563 traffic deaths in the state.

"In 1939-40 there were 1,654, resulting in an increase in the death rate. It will be observed that deaths decreased when the patrol was increased and that, following the reduction in appropriations at the beginning of 1939-40 which necessitated a reduction in patrol personnel, deaths increased."

Premier Assumes Responsibility For 'China Incident'

TOKYO, Jan. 29. (AP)—Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye was quoted today as personally assuming full responsibility for the "China incident," of which he acknowledged "there is no sign of a solution" despite heavy expenditures of men and money.

Japanese newspapers said members of the house of representatives session applauded spontaneously when the premier added that, because of this responsibility, he was determined to remain in office "so long as I continue to enjoy the confidence of his majesty."

His assumption of full responsibility was interpreted as apparently intended to mollify the fighting services, which he declared blameless for the campaign which began in July, 1937, and to quiet the people. As a scion of one of Japan's five noblest families, the prince is exempt from personal criticism sometimes directed at premiers.

One representative asked, "what is the preparedness of the imperial navy against the offensive of the United States navy through phenomenal expansion and strengthening of Pacific fortifications?"

Admiral Koshiro Okuma, minister of the navy replied that the Japanese navy was prepared for any crisis and advancing toward completion of its own preparations in full consideration of naval expansion by the United States.

"Warship tonnage and number of aircraft are not along the decisive factor," he said. "Quality also plays an important part."

Best Air Force In World Soon Seen By General Brandt

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 29. (AP)—Brigadier General J. C. Brandt, commander of America's "West Point of the air," believes that the United States soon will have the "best air force in the world, barring none."

The general, who is in charge of Randolph Field in Texas, often described as the "West Point of the air," asserted that pilot training was progressing satisfactorily despite an acute shortage of first class planes and other equipment.

"Lack of good fighting and training craft," the general said, "is overcome by doubling up the use of our available equipment. Our students fly all the time—day and night, rain or shine."

New planes are coming off assembly lines daily, he explained, and "the shortage should be made up within several months."

"Expansion in aviation has been remarkable of late," General Brandt added. "We are now training 12,000 pilots a year instead of 7,000 as before, and we are now in the process of opening 12 new civilian air training schools."

"At the rate we're turning out crack airmen, we'll shortly have the best air force in the world, barring none."

The general, accompanied by other officers, came here to inspect the DeGado training school for plane mechanics. He said the number of students in training here at one time would be increased from 150 to 250.

964 Merchant Ships Lost In War, Says U. S. Commission

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. (AP)—The toll of the war at sea was placed at 3,619,624 tons of merchant shipping in a Maritime Commission compilation today which recorded sharply lower losses than German or British figures.

The compilation, covering the period from Sept. 1, 1939, to Dec. 7, 1940, listed 964 merchant vessels reported lost and missing in the war. Because the announcement of some losses are withheld for military purposes, however, the list offered an imperfect basis for comparison with claims of belligerents.

The commission's total included 436 British ships of 1,765,851 gross tons, with the tonnage of two of the vessels unknown; 70 German ships of 396,630 gross tons; and 16 Italian ships of 82,618 gross tons.

The German high command, in a review of the first 14 months of the war at sea, claimed that at least 7,162,200 tons of "enemy shipping or shipping usable by the enemy" had been sent to the bottom.

Unofficial British estimates, covering an additional two months placed combined neutral and British losses at approximately 5,500,000 tons—a total rapidly approaching the record of 7,750,000 tons lost in the 1914-18 World War period.

At the outbreak of the war in 1939, Britain's merchant tonnage was more than 21,000,000. As the conflict progressed, she acquired an additional 8,000,000 tons from allied nations, and launched another 500,000 tons of new shipping during the first year, according to available information.

Two Pampa Teams Will Enter Lists

Special To The NEWS
 CANADIAN, Jan. 29—Last Friday's deadline for entries to the Eleventh Annual Basketball tournament to be held in Canadian today has been met. Thirty-six teams definitely listed for participation in this event to be held here Friday and Saturday of this week.

Coach Mack Gibson and high school principal A. B. Dameron are busy preparing the schedule of games, time and place.

The gym at the high school building and that at the city hall each provide ample room, not only for players, but also for spectators. The gym at the B. M. Baker school, the first inside court for Canadian, will be available for workouts.

Forty-two teams were entered in last year's tournament here, 25 boys' and 17 girls' teams. Ericson's girls and Spearman's boys won in the finals at that time.

The following schools will send boys' teams to play: Panhandle, Quail, Higgins, White Deer, Samnorwood, Mobeetie, Lipscombe, Kirkland, Miami, Spearman, Kelton, Ericson, Fellet, Shamrock, Darronset, Borger, Perryton, Allison, Memphis, Phillips, and Pampa. The last named sending both A and B teams.

These schools have entered girls' teams: Higgins, Quail, Mobeetie, Spearman, Spearman, Kelton, Ericson, Fellet, Shamrock, Darronset, Allison, and Borger.

Canadian has entered a girls' team and a boys' team, making thirty-six entries.

Both the city auditorium and the gym at the high school building will be used each day. Semi-finals and finals will be held at the city hall.

Louis To Kayo Burman By 6th Round, Experts Say

THE INDIVIDUALIST

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
 NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (AP)—Clarence (Red) Burman, a serious student of boxing from Baltimore, should know practically all the methods used so far to beat World Champion Joe Louis.

There aren't many, and unless Red can figure out a new one before Friday his chances of carrying off the title in their 15-round set-to in Madison Square Garden won't be very bright.

The few times Louis has been beaten—or even extended over the full route—has resulted from discoveries of something he didn't quite understand. Max Schmeling, Bob Pastor and Arturo Godoy all managed to catch the Brown Bomber napping once, but they couldn't do it twice.

And the Louis who will face Burman Friday isn't likely to display a very co-operative attitude. He made a weak showing against Al McCoy the last time out, and his pride was somewhat bruised by the experts' comment. On such occasions, he usually comes back with one of his most devastating performances. He'll be bigger than ever, too, scaling perhaps 205 pounds. Joe has been able to do as much rough work as usual up at Greenwood Lake because of the weather, but his handlers point out that six or seven miles through deep snow are just as effective in developing legs as 15 miles over dry footing.

Burman's preparatory studies have been devoted to a number of various Louis fights and of his chief sponsor, Jack Dempsey, against Jess Willard. He and his handlers have picked out flaws they could find in the champion's style and the mistakes that caused the downfall of Joe's opponents.

From these, they have evolved three ideas: (1) For Red to employ a half-crouching, weaving style, something like Dempsey; (2) For him to try the overhead right that was Max Schmeling's surprise weapon after he discovered Louis had a habit of dropping his left shoulder after delivering a jab; and (3) To aim his attack at the champion's body.

"Nobody has worked on Joe's body yet why can't I try it?" Red asked yesterday. "Louis expects guys to stand off and take that jab to the face, then let him cross a right. It won't be like that Friday night."

It's just possible that Burman has figured out a way to surprise the champion, who isn't noted for his quick reaction to unfamiliar tactics. But Joe has some able thinkers around him, as was shown when Schmeling's right, Bob Godoy's deep crouch failed the second time. He won't likely be fooled by borrowed tactics.

Burman, too, has made his mistakes, the worst being that of getting his chin in front of a haymaking in the first round or two. That's the kind of error no one can afford to make against Louis.

The experts are saying that if Red can get past the first five rounds, the fight should go to the sixth, and he probably will be around for the sixth.

Borger Takes Lead In Big Five Battle

Special To The NEWS
 BORGER, Jan. 29—With a heart-stopping stretch drive, the Borger Bulldogs assumed the undisputed leadership of the "Big Five" basketball league with a 26-25 victory over the Amarillo Golden Sandstorm here last night.

After leading 13-12 at the half, and 17 to 16 at the end of the third quarter, the Bulldogs were overtaken in the fourth period. The lead changed hands three times in that fateful fourth quarter. The Sandstoms tied until tonight's game ended with Borger for the league lead, were ahead by three points with only three minutes left to play. The scoreboard stated at that level until all but a minute of playing time had gone. Jack Briggs, forward and leading Borger scorer in past games, stole the ball under the Bulldogs' basket and ran up a two-point. Seconds later Bill Geter pulled the same stunt and put the Bulldogs ahead by one point.

The victory left Borger in top place with a perfect league record of five triumphs and Amarillo in second place with two victories and one loss for a 56.7 percentage.

Amarillo will have an opportunity to better its percentage on Friday and Saturday nights when the Lubbock Westerners and the Plainview Bulldogs visit the Helium City in that order. The Sandstoms already have beaten the Bulldogs and the Westerners in games played at Plainview and Lubbock.

LeFors Cagers To Play Two Games Here Tonight

If and when the Harvesters ever get rid of the injury-illness jinx, they may get to practice together long enough to provide opposition for any teams in this district, including Borger. But their immediate worry will be the LeFors Pirates who will play the Harvesters and the reserves in two games at the local gym tonight.

The first game will start at 7 o'clock and the second at 8. Ed Terrell—who has been out for a week was back in uniform yesterday. ## Young Explains 'Exploitation' Of Grid Stars

By ROBERT MYERS
 LOS ANGELES, Jan. 29 (AP)—Mr. Ab Young, the gentleman from Oklahoma, has the floor, and he's welcome to it.

The usually affable Ab wanted to give rebuttal to a few chosen remarks a week ago by Big Steve Owen, coach of the New York Giants professional football team.

They were directed at the recent pro engagement between some college all-star players and the Los Angeles Bulldogs. Owen charged that the collegians had been unduly "exploited," and deplored the fact that rich talent from the west's campuses had been paid off at a mere $10 a head.

"Barnstorming football," of this type, Owen said, was not good medicine for pro football.

Young takes issue. He used to play football, and play well, back in Oklahoma; he is the athletic director at Black-Boxe Military academy; is an efficient football official; and more timely, was the coach of the college all-stars.

Here's what Young says:

"The players knew they were playing for what they drew at the gate, and had reason to expect it would be more than materialized. They knew, too, that they had to liquidate a $350 bill for uniforms purchased, and then divide the rest, if any.

"Apparently there wasn't much, if any, left, because Young said he saw to it that the boys get at least $10 apiece, and paid from his own pocket, $154.17, to the uniform account.

"I am in possession of the receipt," he added.

McWright, will play their last conference basketball game of the season in the high school gymnasium here Friday night at 7 o'clock when they battle Sam Houston of Amarillo. A second game will be between the Pampa Pee-wees and the Perryton Midgets. Admission to the games will be five cents for students and 10 cents for adults.

The Reapers are undefeated so far this season while Sam Houston has lost only one game, a close struggle to the Reapers. This afternoon in Amarillo the Reapers play Horace Mann while Sam Houston meets Central.

Pampa's Pee-wees, made up of boys of about 100 pounds in weight, have played only two games this season but they have won both of them. Perryton is said to have a strong little team, coached by Otis Burk, former Ranger coach, now principal.

Independents Play Shamrock Tonight, Amarillo Friday

Pampa's independent basketball team has no place to practice at home so they schedule games galore and do their practicing under playing conditions. Tonight they go to Shamrock for a game with the fast faculty team. On Friday night they play the Canadian River Gassers in Amarillo. On Saturday night they go to Adrian for a game.

The team is being coached by Bill Jarrett, former coach at St. Augustine, Fla., and later coach at University of Chattanooga, who has a tall bunch of boys. In fact, the shortest man on the squad tops the six-foot mark. Leading the treetops is Elmer Irving, six feet five and one-half inches, which is only a half inch above Junior Strickland. Then comes Albert Aver, Tom Dean, Claude Heiskell, Orville Heiskell, and Nevin Johnson.

Shamrock's Irish are led by Coaches Forrest Kline and Scott McCall, former TCU stars.

Tex Muncey, coach of the Gassers, will start Bill Murry and Jerry Ericson, forwards; Ed (Sonny) Curry, center; Endon Mahuron and Olen Crews, guards.

Hoppe Still Man To Beat In Tournament

CHICAGO, Jan. 29 (AP)—Aspirants to the world's three-cushion billiards championship today knew the worst—Willie Hoppe still is the wizard of old and the man to beat in the current battle.

The finest players in the world have been competing during the past two weeks in the title tournament while Hoppe was recuperating from an attack of influenza and pneumonia.

Last night he began defense of the championship, although still a bit weak and pale. But the other players and a packed house of spectators saw he had the old touch, regained in three days of practice.

Hoppe ran through young Herb Peterson of St. Louis in 50 minutes for a 59 to 15 victory in 22 innings, tying the meet's "best game" so far.

Pro-Amateur Event Precedes Western Open

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 29 (AP)—Hoping to pick up a little small change while adjusting their sights for the $5,000 Western Open tournament starting two days hence, Phoenix's touring acts opened an assault on par today in a special 18-hole best ball pro-amateur event at the Phoenix Country club.

Upwards of 80 professionals and some 60 or more amateurs took to the tees. The four low scorers among the pros will divide up about $300 made up of Western Open entry fees posted by amateurs.

The two amateurs in each four-some held handicaps of 12 strokes, or less, just to make it less of a rout for the pros.

Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane, Wash., former national amateur king and rated the No. 1 Sonoran-Pure of the meet, was lined up with Tony Penna, Dayton, O., pro who toured the course in five strokes less than par yesterday, in taking on Clayton Heafner, blond pro better from Lincoln, N. C., and John Barnum, Chicago amateur.

Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., pro who carded a 66 a few days ago here, and Gray Madison, former Phoenix pro recently reinstated as an amateur, were bracketed against Jack Grout, Pittston, Pa., pro and Hank Leiber, who takes a hand at golf when he's not outfielding for the Chicago Cubs.

The defending Western Open titleholder, Jimmy Demaret of Houston, Tex., and Jim Bannister, Jr., Phoenix former Southwestern champion, were billed against Ed Dudley, powerful pro, and G. B. Webster, 3rd, Ralph Guldahl, former National Open king and three times winner of the Western, and Jack Trimble, current Arizona amateur titleholder, took on the veteran Scot, MacDonald Smith, and George Shaw.

Price Cagers Beat Gorillas

Price Memorial college basketball teams won two games from Pampa Gorilla quintets last night in Amarillo. The Price Cardinal string won 15 while the Gorilla reserves string won from the Gorilla starters 33 to 16.

The Cardinals have lost only two games out of 11 starts this season. Only teams to beat the Cardinals are the Amarillo Yammigans and the Groom Tigers.

Amarillo jumped into a 9 to 4 lead in the first quarter and stretched it to 17 to 8 at the half of the opening game. In the final tussle the Gorillas played great ball for the first half but were unable to keep up the dizzy pace. The Gorillas were trailing 19 to 12 at the half but in the final stanzas Price started hitting the basket from all angles. Alexander led the Gorillas with six points while the Cardinal John Heyburn was the Price sensation, snagging 19 points.

McLean Boxers To Be In Miami On Friday

Special To The NEWS
 McLEAN, Jan. 29—The McLean Tiger boxers will go to Miami Thursday night at 8 o'clock with the hopes of winning their second match with Miami this season. Last week they fought in the Kellerville gymnasium with the Tigers winning 6 out of 10 bouts.

Most of the McLean boys will fight the same Miami boys they did last week. This boxing match is expected to be plenty tight, for each team will be putting out all they have got to win.

Toby Waggoner Named Referee At Amarillo Boxing Tournament

Special To The NEWS
 LEFORS, Jan. 29—Toby Waggoner, LeFors boxing coach, has been selected to be one of the referees for the Golden Glove Tournament to be held in the Amarillo Municipal auditorium February 6, 7 and 8. This annual affair is sponsored by the Amarillo Globe News. This will be Mr. Waggoner's second year to be referee at this important event.

Champions from the Panhandle of Texas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico will participate in this tournament.

Mr. Waggoner came to LeFors last year from Canadian, and before that time boxing was not an important part of the school sports. In less than six months after his arrival, boxing became one of the chief sports of the school, and now he has one of the best boxing teams in this section.

During the time that boxing has become the major sport, all new equipment has been purchased by the school in order to help carry on the sport.

Shamrock Boxers To Enter Wellington Tournament Friday

Special To The NEWS
 SHAMROCK, Jan. 29—The Shamrock Irish boxing team, which has won more trophies than any other single high school sport in the past year, started training last week under the direction of their new coach, Joe Bailey.

Thirty-five young hopefuls, headed by H. W. Callan, a heavy, stocky-built lad of 165 pounds who fought in the 145 pound class last year; Robert (Chump) Callan, who fought in the 75 pound class last season but has advanced to the 118 pound class; Walter O'Gorman, who was a regular in the 150 pound class last season, although handicapped by an injured right arm, which in June was received in football, will be competing for a place in the 140 pound class. Floyd "Red" Pepper, 115 pounds; Ray Seals, 146 pounds; and Harlan Seals, 155 pounds, complete the lettermen returning, but some of the new boys are showing promise and the team is expected to be fully as strong as last season's.

Since there are several boys trying out for each class and boxing rules in competition limit each school to two entrants in any one class, Coach Bailey will have an elimination contest.

This week-end the team will begin the season's regular engagements by entering the Wellington tournament and at the present are favorites to win the tourney.

STUDEBAKER'S DEFENSE ORDER FOR AIRPLANE ENGINES IS A "PLUS" ORDER

Separate division is being created to expedite production of Studebaker's share of national defense program

WHEN the Government asked Studebaker to build airplane engines on a big scale, it was not the Studebaker plants or facilities that the Government wanted, but rather the Studebaker organization of engineers and production executives.

The Studebaker program for producing airplane engines will have no effect, in itself, on Studebaker production of automobiles. The equipment in Studebaker plants is not suitable for the manufacture of airplane engines and therefore separate equipment for that purpose is being provided.

Studebaker production of automobiles will be affected only if defense requirements for materials or labor necessitate a curtailment of production by all automobile plants.

Our country's national defense program creates new problems and new responsibilities for all of us. Studebaker intends to discharge its defense responsibilities in a manner which will add lustre to its name.

SERIAL STORY

CONSCRIPT'S WIFE

BY BETTY WALLACE

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: Bill arrives, accepts Marsha's explanation of the accident. At the hospital, Suzanne Paul about trying to kill his wife in a crash. It is all in fun, however, until Suzanne arrives. She is anxious about Paul's injuries, pays no attention to Marsha. When Bill reminds her Marsha was hurt, too, Suzanne says on a pretense that she had let Paul alone this would never have happened.

FRIENDSHIP ENDS

CHAPTER XXI

"SUZANNE!" Paul Elliott was thundering dangerously. "Suzanne, be quiet!" His free arm shot out, his fingers impressed her arm.

"But it was too late. While Marsha's heart pounded with dread—while Bill stood there, white and stunned and unbelieving—Suzanne Decker pulled away from Paul's grasp and cried furiously. 'Let Bill hear it! It's the truth! He should have heard it long ago! I warned her! I told her to stay away from you, but she wouldn't do it.'

"She didn't care what she did to you, Paul. She's never cared. She killed you once, didn't she? She married him. Why doesn't she stick to him, then? Why did she keep seeing you, after he went into the Army?"

She whirled on Bill, her slender body shaking into the storm of emotion as a tree trembles in a high wind. "It's your fault, Bill Marshall! You're the blind, stupid, you're her husband. Why don't you know what she's doing, where she's going?"

"I went to her, I told her how it looked. She promised to stay away from Paul! And now what happens? She gets him to come all the way out here—and she nearly killed him!"

"Suzanne!" Marsha could bear it no longer. She leaped to the other girl's side, her own legs unsteady, her breath coming fast.

Bill's hands were on Marsha's shoulders, his tone harsh. "Stop! Stop! Marsha's voice. She crumpled, sobbing, against him.

"Suzanne," Paul ordered curtly, "apologize for what you said immediately!"

"Apologize? For what? For telling the truth? Suzanne tried to laugh. It was a ghastly failure. All at once she covered her face with her hands and wailed, 'Oh, Paul, don't be angry with me. I didn't mean to go to pieces, but—'

"I think we'd better go, Marsha," Bill said heavily.

"Bill!" Paul's voice was husky. "Bill, don't be a damn fool! Suzanne was crazy, upset. There's not a word of truth in it. Marsha and I never—Bill!"

"Come on, Marsha," Bill repeated inexorably.

He walked out without a backward glance, without a word to the man who had been his friend for so many years. Helplessly, her heart like a stone inside her, Marsha went with him. There was nothing else to do.

SHE felt stiff and cold, weary with a weariness that dimmed even thought. Suzanne had threatened this, and now she had done it. With a few impassioned words—in a searing moment she had already regretted—Suzanne had brought the whole world tumbling down around their ears. And it had driven a wedge, cruel and all but insurmountable, between Marsha Marshall and the man she loved.

Suddenly the numbness left her. "Bill," she whispered. "Bill, you've got to listen to me. It would hinge on those poisonous words in your mind. Let me explain. Let me tell you—"

"Explain?" How cold his tone was! "What is there to explain?"

"Bill," she said desperately, catching at his sleeve. "Bill, please, listen to me. Everything she said was wrong. It wasn't like that at all. She didn't want Paul to take me out, she didn't want him to come up to the apartment, because she wanted to go with him alone."

"Don't you understand?" "Suzanne" was in love with him, crazy with it. You know she's always been in love with him and he—his nice with her. And when he was not with me—when he just tried to keep me from being lonesome—she imagined things. She came to me, told me that people were talking. I never told you, Bill. I didn't want to worry you."

"Worry me!" he said bitterly. "That's rich, that is."

"Darling, don't. Listen. I'm trying so hard to explain. You must believe me. There was nothing—nothing—"

THEY were still parked at the curb in front of the hospital. People passed, glanced at them. But they were unaware, as oblivious as if there were no one else in all the world but themselves.

"Are you trying to tell me, Marsha, that—that Paul never—never made love to you?"

"Never!" she swore. "Oh, darling, never! Do you think I'd let him? He was just a friend—just your friend—"

"My friend! You were engaged to him when I met you! You were wearing his diamond. I could not afford a lot of things. He lent you his car to come up and see me. The car I bought wasn't good enough."

"But, Bill, you know that meant nothing—the car—"

She fought off the hysteria which was making her talk too fast, too shrilly. She turned squarely on her deck. "Bill, if I cared for Paul, could I pretend like this with you?"

"Oh, darling, darling, there was nothing to dream about! She put her arms around his neck, lifting her eyes proudly to his. "Look at me, Bill. I have nothing to hide. Nothing! I swear to you, Paul never did a single thing, never said a single thing, he couldn't have done or said if you were there!"

Bill Marshall shook his head, like a man in a daze. "I don't know," he groaned. "I don't know what to think. I've always loved you so. I never dreamed—"

"Oh, darling, darling, there was nothing to dream about! She put her arms around his neck, lifting her eyes proudly to his. "Look at me, Bill. I have nothing to hide. Nothing! I swear to you, Paul never did a single thing, never said a single thing, he couldn't have done or said if you were there!"

For a heartbeat, cold fear clutched at her. Was Bill stiffening? His face was drawn. Would he reach up and tear away her clinging arms? Then, with a little cry, she felt his arms tighten. Relief, sharp and unutterable, drove her fear away.

"Bill! Bill, darling!" His arms were fierce, glad, suddenly asserting their possession once more. His mouth came down warm against her own. Long and hard, he kissed her. A kiss that went on and on, a kiss that was like a vow, compounded of love and faith renewed and feeling doubts dispelled.

"Forgive me for even asking have known—it couldn't be true. Not you! Oh, Marsha, you're so sweet, so real, how did I dare—"

But when a man's away from his wife—when you've had nothing but letters and memories—"

She caressed his lean cheek with the palm of her hand. "Hush, darling. Let's never, never speak of it again. Let's forget it ever happened."

BUT it came to her, Sunday night, as she took Bill to his train, that forgetting wasn't so simple a matter as that. For, as they sat together in the quiet station, Bill took her two hands in his. "I want you to promise me something, Marsha."

"What is it?" "I want you to resign from Air Transport. Suzanne was wrong—but one thing she said was true. People are bound to talk. I—I think it'll be better if you don't see Paul again. Marsha, promise me you'll stay with Helen and Eugene. Promise me you'll stay until I get out of the Army."

Employees Not Limited To 40 Hours Per Week

DALLAS, Jan. 29.—The forty-hour work week provision of the Fair Labor Standards act (Federal Wage-hour-law) does not limit any employee of an establishment engaged in interstate commerce or the production of goods for interstate commerce to only forty hours of work per week. It was explained today by Gus C. Strubing, Jr., Dallas, regional director of the Wage and Hour division, U. S. Department of Labor, for Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and New Mexico. "Employees may work as many hours as they and their employer desire, if they are paid time and one-half their regular rate of pay for all hours worked in excess of forty per week," Mr. Strubing continued.

"I emphasize this," he added, "because I find that there are still many persons in the southeast who continue to have the impression that the Fair Labor Standards act says covered employees must not work more than forty hours per week."

"We have constantly tried to make it clear that there is nothing in the act limiting the number of hours a person can work. What the act says is: Any covered employee who does work more than forty hours in seven consecutive twenty-four hour days, must be paid time and one-half for all overtime. For instance, if a person works forty-four hours a week, he or she is entitled to one and one-half times the regular rate of pay for the four hours of overtime."

Some manufacturers are issuing statements insisting that they cannot produce defense material fast enough because they cannot work their employees more than forty hours. They can work them 140 hours a week if they pay for the overtime."

Negro Takes Stand In Assault Trial

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 29 (AP)—Joseph Spell, 31-year-old negro charged with attacking socially prominent Mrs. Eleanor Strubing of Greenwich, denied in superior court today he had used violence or threats because, he swore, "I didn't have any reason to."

On the last December on which Mrs. Strubing charges her butler assaulted her, then hurried her into a lonely reservoir, Spell told the jury he went to her bedroom where, after he had asked for money, he was told by his bathrobed employer: "You can get anything I've got, you've been very nice."

Spell alleged asked for money were not immediately developed.

Strubing, former Princeton athlete and now a New York advertising man, was absent from home on a business trip on the night of the alleged assault.

In her testimony earlier Mrs. Strubing swore that the negro had trusted her, demanded ransom money and threatened her with a knife.
