Russia Reported Ready To Support Turkey "Short Of War"

SIX PAMPANS INJURED IN SUNDAY CAR WRECKS

Both Nations To Announce Plan Tonight

Serbs Violently Oppose Joining Axis Partnership

(By The Associated Press) Soviet Russia, No. 1 riddle of the European war, was reported today on the verge of supporting Turkey with a "common declaration of friendship" guaranteeing aid by "every means short of war" if Turkey is attacked by Germany.

Reliable sources in Istanbul said the two nations would publish the declaration simultaneously at midnight tonight.

The declaration, it was said, will contain three points:

1. Denial of "rumors spread abroad that if Turkey enters the war, Russia will stab her in the back."

2. Assurance that if Turkey is obliged to fight, Russia will maintain "benevolent neutrality" toward her;

3. Reciprocal Turkish assurances to the Soviet.

According to this information, it will be based on the Turkish-Russian non-aggression pact of 1936.

Some political sources said it was negotiated by Soviet Premier and Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov and Atay Aliyev, Turkish ambassador to Moscow. They said the declaration would not be limited to a signed agreement and that there were secret clauses specifically mentioning the help to be given Turkey by Russia in case of Turkish conflict with Germany.

A heavy movement of German troops through the Struma River valley in Bulgaria toward the Greek frontier was reported in unconfirmed Balkan dispatches today as Yugoslavia's Prince Paul, overriding angry protests against submission to Germany, prepared to join the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance.

Military experts have said the Struma River valley would be the likely portal for Adolf Hitler's expected attack on Greece.

A Reuters (British news agency) dispatch from Belgrade said large formations of Nazi troops had been seen advancing rapidly southward through that valley since yesterday afternoon.

Official German quarters in Belgrade said Yugoslavia would have to sign up as a partner—just as Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria and Slovakia have done—rather than as merely a passive member.

Presumably, this would give Germany the right to march Nazi troops through the Balkan kingdom via the Vardar valley—a strategic gateway for an invasion of Greece.

A government communique said the Yugoslav cabinet, shaken by a 4-day crisis, had been reformed. A special train carrying government leaders to Vienna to sign the Axis pact was scheduled to leave Belgrade at 4 p. m. eastern standard time.

Appointment Till Renewed By Senator

AUSTIN, March 24 (AP)—Suggesting that the legislature might have to strip the executive or appointive powers, Senator Joe Hill of Henderson today renewed a charge that Governor Lee O'Daniel has ignored constitutional mandates in falling to fill vacancies in certain state boards and commissions.

"I sincerely hope that it does not become necessary," he said in a personal privilege speech, "because I have thought in the past, and I think now this power should be properly lodged in the executive."

Hill declared the governor had failed, in violation of clear and unequivocal constitutional provisions, to choose successors for Highway Commissioner Harry Hines, Labor Commissioner Joe Kunschick and four members of the Texas A. & M. college board of regents, whose terms have expired.

He added the governor is required to immediately submit the name of another person to succeed a nominee who has been rejected by the senate. He referred to rejection 18 days ago of Tom C. King who had been reappointed state auditor.

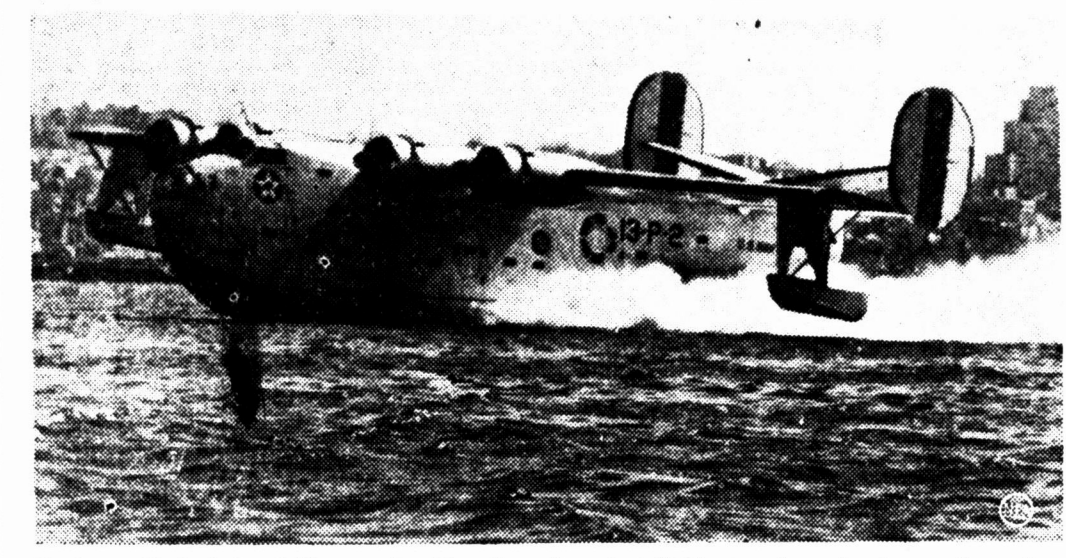

The Henderson member asserted he had no fight to make on any board or commission member who is continuing in office because a successor has not been named. Hines and Kunschick are still serving.

It was Hill's contention that unless the governor names a highway commissioner to replace Hines before the general session adjourns finally the office might become a subject of court dispute.

He declared he had no idea why Governor O'Daniel had delayed submission of certain appointees for senate confirmation and added he had no intention of opposing any one of them who had the essential qualifications of office.

Hill made a similar personal privilege speech last week.

Permits Sought For New Gas Pipe Lines

Applications for permits to construct 3,277 miles of natural gas pipe lines to tap Texas gas fields, mostly in the Panhandle, and open markets in distant states are before the Federal Power commission, according to its annual report to congress, which it made public today.

The total investment proposed was $123,250,000.

Although no definite details of the proposed lines were revealed, the following companies were quoted as seeking permits for the following projects:

Kansas Pipe Line and Gas company, from the Texas Panhandle and Hugoton field in Kansas to Mesaba iron range in Minnesota, 900 miles.

Natural Gas company, from Texas Panhandle to Milwaukee, Wis., 877 miles.

Reserve Gas Pipe Line company, from South Texas to New York City, 1,500 miles, $80,000,000.

The commission set forth in the report that the proposal to tap the Southwestern Reserve and "supply the tremendous markets available in the Northeastern States poses the country with a serious problem of energy resource conservation."

After observing that it was not empowered "to treat fully the serious implications of such a problem," the FPC recommended that Congress immediately amend the natural gas act to broaden the agency's authority.

The commission asserted that at the present rate of consumption known natural gas reserves would last 27 years.

Then questioning the advisability of opening too many markets, the FPC warned that "although for a period of perhaps 20 years, the natural gas could be so picked as to appear to offer an apparent saving in fuel costs, this would mean simply that social costs which must eventually be paid had been ignored."

Restrictions of the use of natural gas by functions rather than by areas was suggested by the commission.

"Thus, it is especially adapted to space and water heating in urban homes and other buildings and to the various industrial heat processes which require concentration of heat, flexibility of control, and uniformity of results," the report read.

"Industrial uses to which it appears particularly adapted include the treating and annealing of metals, the operation of kilns in the ceramic, cement, and lime industries, the manufacture of glass in its various forms, and use as a raw material in the chemical industry. General use of natural gas under boilers for the production of steam, is, however, under most circumstances of very questionable social economy."

Recommendations Set Out

A highly important question in the matter, the commission continued, was whether rapid depletion of the country's natural-gas reserves may not reduce for all time the country's potentially recoverable reserves of oil through reducing well pressure.

The commission recommended:

1. That the natural gas act be broadened to give the commission

House Considers New Agency For Oil Regulation

AUSTIN, March 24 (AP)—A charge that the railroad commission has been a hotbed of politics was made in the House of Representatives today by Rep. Houston McMurry of Henrietta as the house began considering a bill to create a new government agency to regulate the oil and gas industries.

The representatives were pursuing what has become almost a fixed policy of fighting in a fierce floor fight on Monday. Speaker Homer Leonard jokingly suggested that the lower branch perhaps should not begin the week's business until Tuesday.

Rep. Houston McMurry of Henrietta, opening the acrid debate on the oil commission, said that the demand for the measure was not sectional but was statewide in scope.

Rep. Jimmy Phillips of Angleton, uncompromising foe of the proposal, retorted that "this is a fight between the oil gang and the people of Texas."

Phillips' motion to prevent any one from leaving the house until after a final vote on the bill was defeated, 81 to 62, and a motion by Rep. J. K. Hileman of Atlanta, to postpone floor discussion of the bill one week, lost, 76 to 51.

The bill would remove from the electric State Railroad Commission the power to regulate oil and gas production and place such regulation in the hands of an appointive commission named by the governor.

"This is the most important measure which will confront the legislature this session," said McMurry.

O'Daniel Asks Radio Audience To 'Write Down Names' Of Legislators

(By The Associated Press) AUSTIN, March 24 (AP)—The troublesome social security problem, a highly controversial bill creating a separate oil and gas commission, and anti-strike proposals vied for the legislature's attention today as the session entered its eleventh week.

Members carefully studied the reaction to Governor W. Lee O'Daniel's important Sunday broadcast, in which he appealed directly to the voters in a determined effort to revive his bill appropriating an added $26,820,000 a year for social security.

The governor called the roll of house members who had supported the measure directly or indirectly, asking the radio audience to "write the names down."

"The bill is dead," the executive told his vast radio audience, "unless you folks back home remind your representatives that you are a part of this Texas state government and demand proper representation."

Lions Club To Give Minstrel April 1 And 2

The Pampa Lions club is going to roll out the barrel and everybody will have a barrel full of fun next Monday and Tuesday nights, April 1 and 2, in the High school auditorium.

These dates, of course, mark the annual presentation of the civic club's minstrel show, one of the outstanding entertainment features of the year in Pampa.

This year's show, according to Joe Burrow, Lions club president, is going to be funnier than ever—and you know what that means.

Incidentally, it's the club's charity minstrel and all the money goes to aid the underprivileged children of the community.

Art Teed, the lawyer, will be the minstrel interlocutor and the end men will be Dr. Malcolm Brown, Bert Curry, Dr. Calvin Jones, Dr. H. L. Wilder, Hal Lucas, Dr. H. H. Hicks, John Hessey and Bill Browne. There will be a cast of 25 men and 25 pretty girls. The show is under direction of Ken Bennett and has been in rehearsal for the past two weeks.

Another rehearsal will be held in the City auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight. There will be rehearsals there again at 8 o'clock on Tuesday and Thursday nights with a dress rehearsal at the high school auditorium at 2 p. m. Sunday.

Tickets will go on sale shortly by members of the Lions club.

Brinkley Faces Creditors In Del Rio Trial

DEL RIO, March 24 (AP)—Bearded Dr. John Richard Brinkley, the one-eyed goat head specialist and politician, today faced creditors in a federal court bankruptcy hearing which claim he owes $1,625,565.23.

On the Rio Grande, just three miles from the 500,000 watt radio station he erected in Mexico to publicize a hostess, Dr. Brinkley was confronted with claims running from $230 on a linen bill to $121,412.13 in unsecured claims.

Mrs. Minnie Brinkley, wife of the doctor, had been declared an involuntary bankrupt by Referee Lee Cazart in Little Rock, Ark., site of a former palatial Brinkley hospital.

The federal government has an interest in the Del Rio hearing, claiming the man who once rode in yachts, 16-cylinder automobiles and private planes, owed $113,300 on unpaid income taxes.

Dr. Brinkley, the picturesque character whose license to practice medicine was revoked by the state of Kansas several years ago after he started radio advertising from a hospital in Del Rio, told the story of his financial collapse in a statement filed with the bankruptcy court.

The doctor listed among personal property that totaled $46,845.16, six head of horses, 90 head of cattle, one cow, six geese, two guineas, 40 ducks, 50 chickens, 19 turkeys—all located at East Lopot, N. C.—and a harpoon gun.

Briefly, he conducted farming operations at a loss in North Carolina, entered the lumber business at Del Rio, owned a piece in a Texas loan company, owned oil leases, engaged in gold mining ventures in Arizona, operated radio stations; dabbled in advertising with aircraft organizations; was a stockholder in an international advertising agency; served as technician at an advertising corporation.

He once owned a yacht that had belonged to the late Doug Fairbanks, Sr., but sold it to the United States navy for $110,000 to pay off a $75,000 mortgage.

The private airplane he used for traveling went the way of the yacht—for $42,000 to the British purchasing commission. Now it is in the use of the Royal Canadian air force, for training purposes. Money derived from the sale of the plane was used to pay income taxes owed by Dr. Brinkley and his wife, his petition stated.

SERIOUSLY INJURED IN CAR CRASH

Mr. and Mrs. Burton "Topsy" Reynolds, popular Pampa couple, were critically injured in a car-truck crash early Sunday morning near Abilene. They are pictured above standing in front of the plane in which they completed their Civil Aeronautics Administration flight instruction, at McMurry college, Abilene, where both are students.

Berlin Raided By RAF Bombers Again

(By The Associated Press) LONDON, March 24—British bombers, striking while a bad weather grounded all but a few German warplanes, raided Berlin last night in an attack described today as "medium heavy" although less intense than the big bombing on the Reich's capital the night of March 12.

While the raiders hit at the capital for the 38th time, other RAF forces were said to have bombed objectives along the flight route across northwestern Germany, and the Nazi-held channel ports.

An announcement from Berlin said most of the raiders aiming at Berlin were checked off the outskirts by the city's anti-aircraft center of the city, bombing from great height. Civilian casualties were reported, but the Germans said only residential districts were hit.

A German radio broadcast reported by CBS said fire bombs fell on Berlin's diplomatic quarter.

This morning, a flight of Messerschmitt 109s was said to have dived-bombed the residential area of a southeast coast town killing a small number of persons, and later flew along the coast, machine-gunning the shore.

Britons were told, meanwhile, that the RAF has started receiving huge four-motored bombers flown across the Atlantic from the United States, and has vast hidden stores of bombers and fighters ready to take a hand in the battle of Britain.

Lord Beaverbrook, minister for aircraft production, said in a radio address yesterday the aircraft service, secreted in "storage houses distributed everywhere" surpassed "anything that has gone before, anything in the history of aviation."

Beaverbrook's ministry disclosed in a communique that the first of the four-motored bombers flown across the Atlantic were "Liberators"—a long-range bomber produced by the Consolidated Aircraft corporation of San Diego, Calif., said to have a speed of 335 miles an hour and a range of 3,000 miles.

It is expected that a change will be made in the Pampa-Amarillo route soon, so that the carrier will leave Amarillo about an hour later. By 1:30 p. m., all connections at Amarillo, including a mail truck from Lubbock and a number of western points, can be made.

Houston Zoo Free Of Vexing 'Jiggs'

HOUSTON, March 24 (AP)—Hans Nagel, head keeper of the Hermann Park zoo here, sought for years to get rid of Jiggs, a giant criminal chimpanzee.

Jiggs harried his keepers constantly. He bit off one man's finger, and almost yanked another man's arm out of its socket.

Nagel announced today he finally had managed to get rid of the vicious beast.

He traded him for a carnival orangutan for another chimpanzee. Nagel said the new zoo inmate, Chico, was more pleasant company.

Republicans Reject Martin's Resignation

WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP)—The Republican national committee today received the resignation of Chairman Joseph W. Martin, Jr., and promptly rejected it unconditionally.

Martin, the house minority leader, told the committee in executive session that when he accepted the resignation it was "with the expectation I would be relieved at the conclusion of the campaign."

Martin earlier declared that the United States was staggering "along in the direction of war" and "face to face with the possibility of national bankruptcy."

Widely-Known Couple Hurt In Abilene Crash

Mr. and Mrs. 'Topsy' Reynolds Victims Of Collision

Six Pampans were injured, two seriously, in automobile accidents Sunday, one near Abilene, the other at the intersection of Brown and Cuyler streets in Pampa.

Seriously hurt in the Abilene crash were Mr. and Mrs. Burton (Topsy) Reynolds. Both are licensed pilots and students at McMurry college.

Mr. Reynolds is a former Harvester and McMurry football and basketball star. Mrs. Reynolds, the former Kathryn Barrett, was a Harvester football queen, one-time "honorary mayor" of Pampa, and prominent in high school dramatics. Both are popular and well-known here.

In the accident here, four persons were injured: H. G. Blackstock, fractured right shoulder; Virgil Eckrodt, injury over eye, cuts and bruises; Tom Parks, minor cuts; Sam Moore, back injury; Moore is of White Deer, the others of Pampa.

The accident occurred, according to police about 5:15 yesterday morning when the sedan in which Blackstock, Parks and Moore had stopped awaiting the "two" signal on W. Brown. The men were en route on a trip to Sayre, Okla.

Another sedan, driven by Eckrodt, approached from the west, was in collision with the other vehicle and pushed it clear across the street, police said. Gasoline splashed out and both cars caught fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds had not regained consciousness in an Abilene hospital this forenoon, where they were taken for treatment of injuries suffered in an automobile accident eight miles west of Abilene early Sunday.

Mrs. Reynolds suffered a fractured right arm and it was feared she would lose the use of her right hand. She also suffered critical head injuries, and her husband suffered a fractured pelvis and head injuries and lacerations.

Two other persons also suffered injuries in the crash. They were Finley Barrett, brother of Mrs. Reynolds, and H. R. Harwell, Abilene living instructor. Both have been dismissed from the hospital following treatment for cuts and bruises.

The accident occurred when the Reynolds car, driven by Mr. Reynolds, was in collision with a disabled produce truck. Officers said

Bus Boy's Comedy To Open Saturday On Amarillo Stage

NEW YORK, March 24 (AP)—One of the best bus boys the Fourteenth street automat ever had hung up his white coat for the last time early today, and maybe it's just as well, he was dropping dishes all last night.

For George Batson—pardon, George Donald Batson—who began writing plays 10 years ago when he was 15, is now a full-fledged professional playwright.

His comedy, "Treat Her Gently," starring Ruth Chatterton, opens in Amarillo, Texas, this Saturday and is due on Broadway next season.

Since last November George has hustled dirty dishes for the sum of $15.89 a week and all he could eat. He took the job when a prospective producer for his three-act comedy went bankrupt.

Tall, thin, with a shock of unruly blond hair, George wrote the marionette show, "Time On Your Hands," for the WPA exhibit at the New York world's fair, but the comedy is his first major creation.

George said he was looking forward to meeting Miss Chatterton at Amarillo before the show goes on a six-week tour, and added that he hoped she "isn't going to mind this business about me being a bus boy."

And even if the critics don't treat "Treat Her Gently" gently, George has another comedy up for consideration. Ted Hammerstein has taken a two-week option on George's "Don't Mind the Rain."

"I feel," said George, "pretty good."

I Saw . . .

Mrs. J. H. Hulme walking west on Foster avenue with her dog. When she let him loose, the smart Boston Bull took off down the streets as if he were after him. When he got to Somerville he stopped suddenly, reared up on his hind legs and looked back to see if Mrs. Hulme were coming. She was and he turned the corner and took off again. "He's going to the grocery store," explained Mrs. Hulme. "His knees were going to get some bones."

Refreshments of green punch and small-cakes carrying out the Easter motif were served from a table presided over by Mrs. Morrison. Crystal and silver appointments were used on the table which was centered with a crystal bowl of spring flowers flanked by crystal candelabra holding pink and white candles.

Hines, Alma Phelps; and Misses Mae Blair, Lillian Mullinax, Virde Denton, Lella Clifford, Bernice Lush, Pauline Hall, Loraine Bruce, Ethel Murrell, the hostesses, and honoree.

Damaged Cruiser

BALTIMORE, March 24 (AP)—The Baltimore Sun said today that authoritative sources reported a British warship heading toward the Norfolk, Va., navy yards for repairs.

Heads For Norfolk

The paper said these sources did not disclose the name of the ship, but classed the vessel as a heavy cruiser drawing too much water to be handled at shipyards here.

Official at the Norfolk yards said, when informed of the report, that he had no confirmation of such arrangements.

The first report of a British warship heading toward the Norfolk, Va., navy yards for repairs.

It said a "10,000-ton British destroyer" named The London, had been towed into the American port of Chester, "badly in need of repairs," as a result of a clash with a German submarine. No other details were given.

Effigy Of Hitler Pelted With Chalk

BELGRADE, March 24 (AP)—Pupils in a Belgrade high school set up a picture of Adolf Hitler in their classroom today and pelted it with chalk in a wild demonstration finally broken up by their teacher.

The outburst began as an ovation to the 13-year-old son of Justice Minister Mihajlo Konstantinovic on the basis of widely circulated reports that he opposed alignment with the Axis and had resigned from the cabinet.

While fellow pupils were congratulating the youth and carrying him around the room on their shoulders, his father actually was agreeing to withdraw his resignation, and join the government majority.

No One Injured In Refinery Explosion

PHILADELPHIA, March 24 (AP)—A new refinery still owned by the Gulf Refining company was demolished today by a terrific explosion which shook virtually all of South Philadelphia.

A fire completed the destruction. Flames shot more than 200 feet into the air. A heavy smoke spread for half a mile around.

No deaths or injuries were reported. The closest residential section was too far from the site to suffer serious damage, but windows in a few houses were shattered.

The still was completed only a few days ago. It was to be used to refine high test aviation gasoline from crude oil. The still consisted of four towers, each 150 feet high.

The cause of the explosion was not immediately determined.

Shanghai Bombings Kill 10, Injure 56

SHANGHAI, March 24 (AP)—U. S. marines in steel helmets and carrying bayonets fixed to their rifles patrolled principal thoroughfares in sections of the International settlement tonight after 10 persons had been killed and 56 injured in Terri-rikt bombings of two banks affiliated with the Chinese government at Chungking.

The marines took up guard of nearby American property immediately after the blasts, withdrew when International settlement authorities called out reserve police, and then reestablished their patrol as a result of new uncertainties in the situation.

Five Per Cent Rise In Texas Traffic Deaths

AUSTIN, March 24—A five per cent increase in traffic fatalities for January and February was announced today by state police statisticians.

With 130 deaths counted for February, the total for the last 14 months was brought to 2,051.

At least 29—or 10 per cent—of the persons killed in January and February were either members of the United States military forces or workmen engaged in defense construction, it was pointed out by Homer Garrison, Jr., state police director.

Tests made by British engineers show that from 200 miles of service on up, the rate of wear on a motor with filtered oil is a third and less the rate of wear with unfiltered oil. Furthermore, the wear increases after 1,000 miles with unfiltered oil, while with filtered oil it levels off.

You Don't Need Fat Purse, Large Yard To Have Outdoor Fireplace

By HENRY FREE
Pampa News Landscape Consultant
Tenth of a Series

The outdoor fireplace has become increasingly popular in the past few years. A simple lunch prepared outdoors tastes better than an elaborate luncheon inside the home. Children especially enjoy having a picnic in the garden.

The yard doesn't need to be large nor the pocketbook fat to have an outdoor fireplace. It can be built as elaborately as you like, but just as much fun can be had with an inexpensive rustic grille. Selecting the right type for your garden is a matter of choosing one to fit the size of the yard and your picnic requirements.

Study the location and design for the fireplace just as you would for a pool or garden house. It is best to select a secluded spot or to develop one. A few shrubs, a hedge, or a trellis will screen the outdoor dining room from passersby and neighbors. If you expect to use wood for fuel, the fireplace will not draw properly should it be located directly beneath a tree, and the smoke and heat will damage the foliage. If charcoal is used, the fireplace can be set almost anywhere. In an area with tall trees and heavy shrubs, a fireplace with a tall chimney enhances the picture. In a more open space, a fireplace constructed along the lines of a rustic grille, with a low chimney or low walls on either side, is more in keeping with the surroundings.

In southern localities where frost doesn't penetrate the ground, a deep foundation is not needed. Tamped ground, cinders, gravel or flat stones set in mortar is all that is necessary. In the north, however, deep freezing must be considered. Frost swells the ground and, when the earth settles again in the spring, the movement is likely to crack the walls of the fireplace and chimney.

A concrete foundation should be built as deep in the ground as the frost penetrates. A fireplace can also be built, provided it is not too large, on a large piece of sawed sand or flagstone laid on cinders. The action of the frost then moves the whole as one piece and no cracking results. The small additional expense for a foundation will be made up by permanence and freedom from repairs.

Fireplaces that draw best are built on a slight rise of ground. Another way to insure a good draft is to arrange to have the fire several inches off the ground.

The fireplace itself, no matter what type, should be lined with firebrick so that regardless of how hot the fire becomes, the fireplace will not be damaged. The same is true for the flue and fueling. To be really successful, a fireplace must have a chimney to carry off smoke and to complete draft circulation. For the most purposes the chimney need be only four or five feet high. The firebox should go back far enough to meet the flue opening or, above the grille, a hole can be made which will carry the smoke and draft into the flue. A high chimney should be capped to prevent down drafts; this however, is not usually necessary with a low one. Metal, tile or cement is usually used for chimney caps.

Iron firebox units, ovens, tops, doors and other accessories, which can insure a foolproof outdoor fireplace, are manufactured especially for this purpose. Even the general appearance of this type of fireplace, however, can be improved by enclosing it with a veneer of stone or brick.

Boy King Pawn In Yugoslavia

(By The Associated Press)
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 24—Powerful forces badgain with the birthright of Yugoslavia's boy king, Peter II.

But Peter must remain secluded with his studies and games, unable to say a word in the negotiations which may decide what sort of kingdom he may rule after his 18th birthday next September 6.

In his quarters in the White Palace, the thin, shy, young monarch is almost within earshot of the nation's statesmen streaming through its halls to confer with his harassed uncle and chief regent, Prince Paul.

Although, supposedly, he will take the helm of government from his uncle next fall, palace attendants say Peter is taking no hand in the talks which have brought Serb, Croat and Slovene leaders and Axis and Allied diplomats tramping up the steps of the suburban palace.

Yet those permitted to meet Peter at small "statecraft" dinners arranged for him as he approaches the age of accession do not doubt that the serious youth, trained from childhood for his kingly duties, is not at least aware of the forces which have embroiled his realm in a heated internal crisis.

Lubin, Luisetti

Head All-America

DENVER, March 24 (AP)—Frank Lubin and Hank Luisetti, stars of the National A. A. U. basketball tournament finalist teams, headed the All-America team picked Saturday night by sports writers and tournament officials.

The first All-America team: Luisetti, San Francisco Olympic club, forward; Ralph Giannini, San Francisco Olympic club, forward; Lubin, center; Carl Knowles, Hollywood Twentieth Century, guard; and Chet Carlisle, Oakland, Calif., Athens club, guard.

Luisetti also was named the tournament's most valuable player. The tournament's second All-America team: Les O'Gara, Hollywood Twentieth Century, and Joe Fortenberry, Bartlesville, Okla., Phillips, forwards; Crady Lewis, Phillips, center; Art Molner, Hollywood, and Bill Martin, Phillips, guards.

Nazis Would Drill For Oil In Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile, March 24 (AP)—German interests have made a competitive offer to prospect for oil in Chile while the Chilean government still is negotiating with a North American survey firm, informed sources said tonight.

The negotiations with the North American firm, in which former President Herbert Hoover's son is interested, were begun last year by Oscar Schnake, minister of development.

Weatherford Still Disgusted With Old Fire Truck

WEATHERFORD, Okla., March 24 (AP)—The folks who have been relaxing since that bond election last fall, thinking that Weatherford's fire wagon troubles were over, will get a big jolt from this:

All the money brought, so far as the truck itself is concerned, was a fresh coat of bright red paint.

The firemen did get some new hose from the money but they're grumbling a bit—and the townpeople are, too, for the new paint doesn't make the fire truck—1924 model—run any better or any faster.

The week the truck, balkier than ever, didn't even make the latest blaze.

Fire Chief Ralph May is disgusted. "What irritates me most," he peevish, "is that during a trial run the old wagon will roar along at sixty miles an hour, never missing a beat. But a real alarm—then she becomes a contrary woman."

Mexico Will Move To Seize Ships Of Axis In Harbor

MEXICO CITY, March 24 (AP)—Senator Tito Lavin Galeana, of Tlaxcala state, today said he would move next week that the senate urge President Avila Camacho to expropriate seven of the 12 German and Italian ships now anchored in Mexican harbors.

The senator asserted millions of pesos worth of oil which Mexico shipped to the Axis powers before the war still remained unpaid for and that seizure of the seven vessels would balance the account.

Spokesmen in the foreign and navy ministries reported yesterday the government was studying the advisability of requisitioning several of the craft, but that no decision had been reached. Similar actions by other Latin-American republics were being analyzed as a possible guide, it was stated.

Nazi Escapes Caught

WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP)—Two German naval officers who escaped from a Canadian prison camp were caught at the border, given a hearing, and denied entry to the United States today and returned to Canadian custody.

The prisoners, Bernhard Gohke and Heinz Rottman, escaped from the camp near Kingston, Ont., late yesterday, fled across the frozen St. Lawrence river near Clayton, N. Y., and were taken into custody by United States immigration officers.

A Great People Changes Its Mind

The mind of a great people is not lightly changed. It does not change because one man says "Go!" or "Stay!" It does not change with the coming of the solstice or the making of a speech. It is not even changed by propaganda except over a long time, and scarcely then if all kinds of propaganda are allowed free interplay. But the constant beating of the waves of events can change it; the relentless impact of a changing world can reverse it utterly.

This has happened in America. When the present war broke out in Europe, most Americans were not only indifferent, they were bitter toward both sides. Disillusioned by the shattering of the dream of the "War to End War," they wanted no part of this one.

Eighteen months passed. The stand of the United States has taken today is a simple reflection of a change in the mind of the American people that is in itself almost a revolution.

When the Fascist party seized power in Italy, Americans shuddered at the end of representative government, of civil liberty. But they shrugged, "It is Italy's own affair."

When the Nazi party rose to power in Germany, Americans were revolted by the bullying bravos, the concentration camps, the book-burning, the racial swaggering, the war on races and religions. But they shrugged, "It is Germany's own affair."

When Fascist revolution broke out in Spain, and was pushed rough-shod by foreign aid to victory, Americans shrugged again. "They merely beat the Communists to it."

When concession after concession was made to an expanding Germany, even to the immolation of Czechoslovakia at Munich, Americans shrugged "It is better than war."

When war came anyway. It became clear that the Nazi-Fascist regimes had all along been prepared to resort to war the moment they were thwarted in their slightest wish.

Then came the overruling of neutral and peaceful countries on the flimsiest excuse. It became clear that all had been first undermined from beneath by subtle penetration.

Then came the arrogant demand that Americans show loyalty to other countries because of their race or blood.

Slowly, gradually, the realization came—that this was no ordinary war, but a revolution aimed at destruction of the free way of life, not only for a few distant peoples within their own boundaries, but all over the world. Americans began to realize that their very freedom must always be a thorn in the flesh of every kind of totalitarian system; that the Communists were zealous, determined, by propaganda, pressure, fire, bomb, or sword, to force forward their way of tyranny, called new, and yet so old.

Those events—the reaching out of Communism from its own cradles toward all the world, toward our own world—is what slowly changed the mind of America, galvanized it into action, and made it resolve, "We shall help those who fight for their own freedom, and we shall defend to the death our own!"

Behind The News

By PETER EDSON. The Pampa News Washington Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—A three-gun turret attack on the triple problems of (1) building new factories in non-industrial areas where there is surplus labor supply, (2) finding more idle machinery to do the defense production job, and (3) putting idle machines and men to work—that, in brief, is the Knudsen-Hillman Office of Production Management's hope for increasing factory output in the defense preparedness drive.

If the plan works, it may do a lot to spread defense money all over the country instead of concentrating it in the old, established factory areas from Worcester to Bridgeport, from New York to Baltimore, the steel and tool triangle from Pittsburgh to Cleveland to Cincinnati, the automotive area west of Detroit. Furthermore, if it works, it will save a lot of post-war grief, for labor will not have been concentrated in these small factory centers while this defense job is being done, then left to find its way back to the small towns when it's all over.

Chester L. Davis, who is agriculture's representative on the defense commission, is one of the prime believers in this idea of spreading out the industrial area. Breaking ground for a new airplane assembly plant in the middle west Davis spelled out the idea behind putting such plants in Dallas, Tulsa, Omaha and Kansas City. With farm production in excess of demand, there is available in this farm belt a potential labor supply that has not been tapped. Farm mechanics, with their knowledge of tractors and combines, make good shop mechanics now, with a minimum of training. And if these men can be put to work in their own areas, without mass labor migration such as there was to Detroit in the boom times of the roaring 20's, the sad spectacles of mass exodus may be avoided when war production stops.

Housing facilities in the old industrial areas will not be over-taxed, and with new factories established in farm areas, they can be used for post-war production on a part-time basis, permitting labor to continue farm production on part-time basis. This is long-range wishful planning, but it has its merits. WILL COUNT EVERY DRILL.

The second phase of the program, finding more idle machinery to do the defense job, involves making a new industrial survey of practically every machine in the country. Army tackled this job in the '20s and '30s, and compiled a tremendous list of 10,000 plants capable of being converted to war supply production.

The army, however, was interested only in prime

Common Ground

By R. C. HOILES. This column contends there can be no satisfactory progress until we measure the shares of each man by the common yardstick of the God-given equal right to create and enjoy anything anyone else has a right to create and enjoy.

SUPER, SUPER MEDIATION BOARD. As we see strikes growing and those who are responsible for them claiming they will work out some plan to correct civil war by some super mediation board, one wonders by what principle, by what rule, by what order, these boards will determine what each man should receive for his labor.

Most dreamers and theorists, who think wages can be raised by collective bargaining, or by wish, or by law, invariably suggest that the manner in which wages should be determined should be left to some board. They seem to think that this board can create some new rules, some new order of things. Their minds seem to be a blank at this point. They, then, disavow all responsibility for labor peace and harmony.

But these men on the Boards have no magical way of establishing wages. If it is compulsory and the workers are obliged to accept the arbitration, or the employers are obliged to, then we discard our freedom and our right of choice. If, on the other hand, they set an arbitrary high wage and prevent no one from doing the work for less and permit the employer to pass the extra cost on, then every consumer in the world is deliberately robbed. The wages of every consumer, in reality, are cut.

No, the question of wages cannot be determined by any super, super board of mediation. In a true democracy, in a country where people have respect for the equal rights of others, in a country where the hairs of a man's head are numbered, figuratively speaking, all the people should have a right and a voice in determining what each wage and what each price should be on an article put on the market. And when all the people have a right to express their opinion and not just part of the people, then we never get wages too high or we never get wages too low. And what these people, who think that wage levels can be raised by collective bargaining, fail to understand is that every advantage or disadvantage to the producer is shortly passed on to the consumer; and if a producer is obliged to pay a wage higher than his customers are willing to do the same work for, then he is entering into a conspiracy with his workers to rob his customers. Then he is violating the fundamental principles of democracy, of morals and justice and of Christianity.

No, this wage question is not settled as easily as establishing another super board. It only procrastinates and delays the just solution of all wages, namely, a free market.

France and England—and especially France—have been toying with the theory that wages must be set arbitrarily and they are paying a terrific price for this belief.

Unless the United States comes quickly to realize that wages must be established on a free market and not by any board, sooner or later the United States will either become a totalitarian slave or become so poor that we will be enslaved by some other more practical people who know enough to know that people cannot be free and not free at the same time.

"The first thing you notice is how incredibly young they are!" the actress said. "They look like high school kids when they bring the children to the studios. But every one of them is firmly convinced that her child is going to be a star some day."

"If that's what they really want—either for ambition or because they need the money—I could tell them a lot of things more important to a child's career than learning a time-step before it's a year old. First, I'd teach it to mind—not just me, but anybody I told it to. My mother never let me forget for a minute that the director was the man to obey. I'd teach a child to be quiet, and to go to any body who held out his arms to it."

That's one trouble they're having with Deanna Jean Hall, the 15-month-old cherub who's Miss Shirley's screen child in "Little Miss Muffet." She definitely doesn't care for worms. She wriggles and whimpers in feminine arms, much preferring the assistant director's.

"Babies are just like grownups," Miss Shirley sagely observed. "You can't treat them all alike. Still, I've heard my mother tell about how directors used to pick a child for a role. If it squealed or squirmed, they just said, 'Take it away. Let's see the next one.' No that directors weren't just as kind to my generation—they just didn't have any time to waste."

"I'd teach a child good manners, too; they're especially appreciated on a movie set, where discipline is absolutely necessary. When I was little, I didn't interrupt when an older person was speaking, or cross in front of anyone without saying, 'Excuse me.' I wasn't allowed chewing gum until I was 10 years old, and when I was 12 I went to bed at 8 o'clock. You see, I had to work the next day."

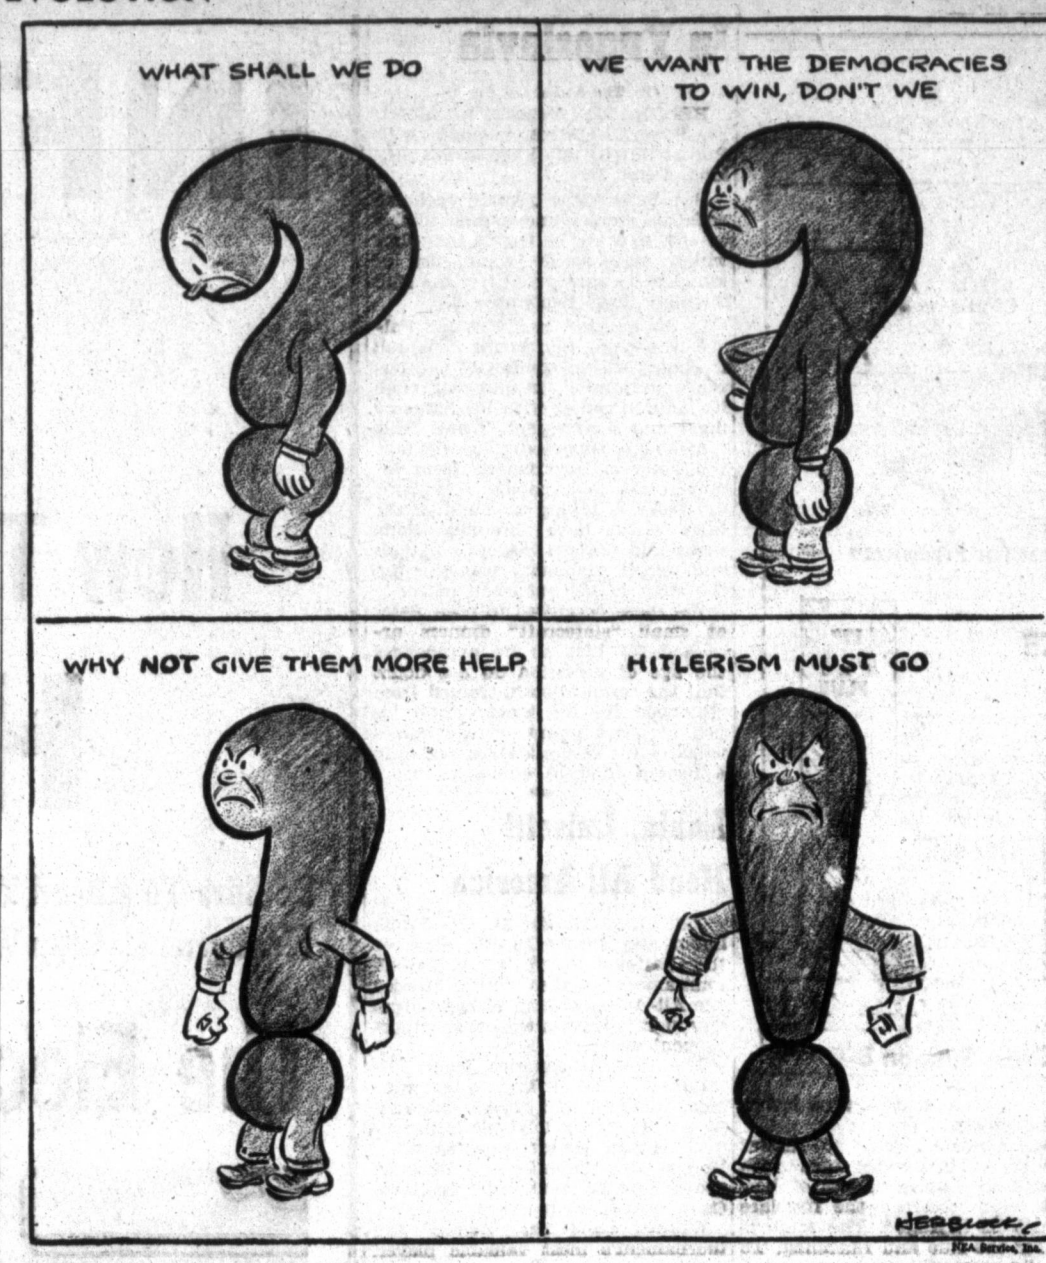

But few youngsters' careers are planned before they're born, as was Anne Shirley's. Her mother, a light-opera singer, was firmly convinced her child would be a girl and naturally an actress; the matter was practically cinched in advance because she concentrated on photographs of Sarah Bernhardt and Mary Pickford. Anne was modeling diapers and posing for cereal ads as soon as she could grin into a camera; movie work began when she was three and hasn't stopped since.

By the time her schoolmates were talking vaguely of being famous dancers or marrying millionaires, she could listen with an adult detachment because she was established in her life profession.

She was impatient with school because, except for English and oratory, it taught her little that would help an actress. Art classes didn't include makeup; geometry taught angles, but not camera angles.

"Maybe boys have it harder because they're sometimes called sissies when they wear makeup, but girls are put on a little pedestal. I know I was the envy of every girl in school because I had more dresses than all of them put together."

EVOLUTION

Around Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON. NEA Service Staff Correspondent.

Hollywood, March 24.—Anne Shirley was a movie baby who grew up in front of the camera. Now, all of 22 years old, she's able to look over the film moppets of two decades later and compare them with herself. Miss Shirley doesn't say that the youngest generation is skidding mercurially to the dogs on its tricycles and scooters, but it certainly isn't working for a career the way she did.

"The first thing you notice is how incredibly young they are!" the actress said. "They look like high school kids when they bring the children to the studios. But every one of them is firmly convinced that her child is going to be a star some day."

LIFE IN KANSAS PICTURED IN NO. 12 OF RIVER SERIES. Floyd Benjamin Streeter's "The Kaw" (Farrar and Rinehart: $2.50) is No. 12 in the now well established Rivers of America series, runs as rapid with good humor, anecdote, history, entertainment as the rest.

The Kaw is the Kansas river; its story is the epic of Kansas from Coronado and the first explorers, Dodge City and the first cowboys, to the 1930's—great, dust storms, William Allen White, and Al Landon. Following is a typical dramatic incident in the days of "Bleeding Kansas" and the Quattrill raids:

"The Rev. H. D. Fisher, pastor of the Methodist church, made a remarkable escape. For some months prior to the raid he had been chaplain in a Kansas regiment. He was at home for a few days at this time, and the raiders knew it. As he was one of the men Quattrill particularly wanted, he started for a place of safety as soon as he heard that the guerrilla chieftain was making a charge on the town.

Seeing there was little chance of escape by flight, he returned to his home and hid in the unfinished cellar. Soon after the raiders surrounded his house and demanded that his wife tell them where he was. When she refused to tell, they searched the house and then started for the cellar. She lit a lamp and told them to go down and see for themselves. As the cellar had been only partly excavated, Fisher had climbed upon a bank and lay in the darkness.

Failing to find him they began to kindle fires about the house, but Mrs. Fisher put them out as fast as they lit them. They lit too many, however, and she saw the flames would burn the house. . . . She poured water over the spot where her husband was lying and at last he crawled through a small window by the kitchen door. . . . his wife threw a carpet over him, and rolling him up in it, dragged the bundle into the yard, and threw it under a peach tree. Then she brought pieces of furniture and piled them around it. The raiders did not leave until the house was in ashes.

Obviously any resistance after Yugoslavia becomes an Axis partner would have to be directed from outside the country or very surreptitiously within her borders.

One possibility was that Gavrilovic would go to London to organize a "loyal Yugoslav committee" and perhaps eventually head a British-recognized government-in-exile. This speculation was advanced by Gavrilovic's friends.

It was pointed out that Senator Veceslav Vilder, a representative of the other opposition party in Yugoslavia, the independent democrats, already had fled to Istanbul, Turkey, where he plans to organize opposition to the Axis.

The agriculture minister who resigned in protest, Dr. Branko Cukirilovic, provided the first official intimation of any kind that Yugoslavia had agreed to sign up with the Axis.

His letter of resignation, made public today, said "as the cabinet meeting of March 20 I represented the opinion which was outvoted. . . . I have always held to this opinion."

"I have always held to this opinion."

So They Say

The British people want a friendly, civilized world of free peoples in which Christian virtues and more values are not spurned as decadent and outmoded. —WINSTON CHURCHILL, "Mr. England."

We cannot stint and must not falter. —Secretary of State CORDELL HULL to the house appropriations committee.

The Mexican people never have omitted sacrifices in preserving their independence, liberty and greatness. —MAXIMINO AVILA CAMACHO, brother of Mexico's president.

The right to criticize, to commend, and to condemn will always be upheld so long as we have our American form of democratic government. —Representative EDITH NOURSE ROGERS, Massachusetts.

Our country was not built by boys afraid to take a chance. Fear is one of the chief enemies of our youth. —Dr. C. W. HALL, placement adviser, Western Reserve university.

When private business does not take risks it gives itself up, and then we no longer need private enterprise. —WALTER FUNK, Nazi minister of economics.

Cabinet Crisis In Yugoslavia Patched Up

(By The Associated Press). BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 24.—Although Yugoslavia was torn by internal discord, her government patched up a cabinet crisis and a special train got up steam today to carry her emissaries to Vienna and full junior partnership in the three-power Axis military alliance.

A communique announced that the cabinet split over prospective adherence to the Axis had been settled and that two new ministers already had assumed their new duties.

Dragomir Ikonik, minister of public welfare and Caslav Nikitovic as minister of agriculture.

A third Serb minister who was reported unofficially to have resigned—Minister of Justice Mihajlo Konstantinovic—apparently had been persuaded to reconsider and remain with the government. His resignation had never been acknowledged officially.

There were indications that anti-Axis leaders in Yugoslavia were planning to organize "free" communities outside the country, in much the same manner as other governments of German-invasion countries.

(Although Yugoslavia seemed lost to the pro-British, or even the Neill Iuj camp Britain appeared to be making eleventh hour efforts to state off her partnership in the Axis. It was reliably reported in Cairo that the British minister to Belgrade had appealed to the government not to "betray" Yugoslavia in the face of rising public opinion.

(British press dispatches from Belgrade declared that Germany, seemingly assured that there would be no flank attack from Yugoslavia, was hurrying heavy forces of her army in Bulgaria down the Struma river valley toward the Greek frontier.

(Hundreds of thousands of British troops were in Greece to bolster Greek resistance to any German drive across the frontier. The start of the battle of the Balkans seemed to be drawing nearer by the hour.)

Yugoslavia's two new ministers, Ikonik and Nikitovic, as well as Konstantinovic, initiated the Axis adherence plan in early afternoon and indications were that formal adherence would come tomorrow in Vienna.

The special train was to carry Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic and Foreign Minister Aleksander Cincar-Markovic to Vienna, accompanied by Viktor von Heeren, German minister to Yugoslavia, and other officials.

As the new ministers were being sworn in by orthodox priests, the vice-chairman of the Serb peasant party, Milos Tujanjanin, presented a letter to Premier Cvetkovic containing the resignation of six more senators of his party.

Tujanjanin said the instant Yugoslavia signs the three-power pact Milan Gavrilovic, Yugoslavia's first minister to Moscow since the World War, would resign his post. He is expected to return and lead an opposition fight which anti-Nazi announced today would continue no matter what action the government took.

(Obviously any resistance after Yugoslavia becomes an Axis partner would have to be directed from outside the country or very surreptitiously within her borders.)

One possibility was that Gavrilovic would go to London to organize a "loyal Yugoslav committee" and perhaps eventually head a British-recognized government-in-exile. This speculation was advanced by Gavrilovic's friends.

It was pointed out that Senator Veceslav Vilder, a representative of the other opposition party in Yugoslavia, the independent democrats, already had fled to Istanbul, Turkey, where he plans to organize opposition to the Axis.

The War Today

By DEWITT MACKENZIE. Japanese Foreign Minister Matsuoka's stop-off in Moscow, en route to visit Messrs. Hitler and Mussolini, strikes me as likely to have a vast influence on Nippon's undecided policy toward Britain and the United States in support of the triple alliance—Germany, Italy and Japan.

Mr. Matsuoka's forthcoming parleys with the Axis chiefs are widely expected to consider the question of whether Japan shall take steps which will involve the question of peace or war with John Bull and Uncle Sam. In view of this I would give a bright, new penny to know what, if any, sign of encouragement or discouragement he is carrying away with him from Soviet Premier Molotov for more active cooperation with the Axis.

The Japanese envoy has come to Europe to see for himself whether the Axis partners are in position to make good their claim that they can nullify American aid for Britain and knock the latter out. His findings may be calculated to influence strongly the decision of his government as to whether Japan is to continue to weave a tortuous course of non-belligerency or throw caution to the winds and join in the attack on the Anglo-Allies.

Now the Muscovite point of my story is that it won't be strange if Matsuoka imagines he hears the whir of warplane propellers all the time the Axis brotherhood is arguing for Japan's full participation in the war. That disquieting sound will come from phantom Russian bombers, winging their way over the short 600-mile stretch between the Siberian coast and Japan, to drop their destructive freight among the paper and match-stick buildings of the island kingdom.

That's one of Japan's greatest fears—that if she gets involved in the western war, Russia will take the opportunity to settle old scores. And Nippon's constant nightmare is the frightful devastation which could be wrought throughout the country by bombers. Apart from this, Japan doesn't, of course, overlook Russia's big standing army in Siberia or the great fleet of submarines at Vladivostok.

It's because of this situation that Tokyo has been trying to make an accord of amity with Russia. It certainly can't have made Matsuoka's mind any easier to hear on arrival in Moscow that the Soviet was reported ready to give Turkey material aid if the latter is forced to fight Germany. Diplomats in Turkey took this as significant regarding the future as of the war in western Europe.

Moscow reports that Matsuoka received a courteous but unenthusiastic welcome. That doesn't give us much to go on, but if he didn't encounter greater warmth from Soviet officials later, he is proceeding on his way a very thoughtful man.

Mrs. Wesley Davis Elected President By White Deer P-TA

WHITE DEER, March 24—Mrs. Wesley Davis was elected president of the White Deer Parent-Teachers Association for the next year at a meeting at the grade school.

Other officers elected were Mrs. B. R. Weaks, first vice-president and chairman of the program committee; Mrs. Juno Duval, secretary; Mrs. H. W. Buchanan, treasurer; and H. M. Howell, parliamentary.

The organization voted to purchase a piano for the high school. Guest speaker on the program on "Safety" was B. L. St. Clair, member of the state highway patrol.

Mr. St. Clair stated that 73 deaths occurred in the Panhandle last year as a result of traffic accidents, an increase of 55 per cent over the previous year, and the largest increase in the state.

"Traffic accidents are more serious than wars," he said. "200,000 men were killed or died from injuries received in the six major wars fought by the United States and covering a period of 15 years, while in the past 15 years of peace time, 415,000 have died in traffic accidents."

Of the three E's of safety, Engineering, Enforcement, and Education, he named education as the most important, urging that parents teach safety by precept and example in the home, and that safety education be a required and accredited course in the high schools.

A concert by the high school band, directed by Elton Beene, preceded Mr. St. Clair's talk. Selections played included "Hail of Fame," "Prelude and Fugue in B-Flat Minor," "Donkey Serenade," "Castle Ruins," a cornet duet by Carl Dittberner and Julius Meaker, accompanied by Mrs. Beene, "My Song of Songs," and a sight-reading number, "Brass Buttons."

The ninth grade room mothers and sponsors served refreshments.

Under the direction of W. L. Waggoner, bandmaster, the grade school band rendered several numbers. A trio composed of Katherine Price, Erna Lee Morris, and Wilma Jean Adams, played "Stars of the Summer Night." Lota Mae Hughes, drum majorette presented an exhibition and tap dance number. The program was concluded with the band playing the White Deer High school song.

The program was turned over to Mrs. C. W. Mool, program chairman who presented Chester Strickland, who made an interesting talk and led a round-table discussion based on a questionnaire taken in the sixth and seventh grades on what they think the government owes them.

Mr. Strickland stressed the importance of developing in our homes as well as in our schools the need to make a living. We should develop in the minds of these girls and boys that they have to go to work.

"There is an unbalanced emotional stability among our younger folk," continued Mr. Strickland. "We have three unlicensed teachers we should watch—that is the radio, the press, and movies. In each of these there are some good things, but children are not able to segregate the good from the bad. Ninety per cent of the high schools of the country spend 75 per cent of their time preparing students for college and about one out of six go to college."

In the contest between the grades, Miss Ola Mae Roberts and Miss Dorothy Terry's rooms tied for having the greater number of patrons to register.

John Chessher, who looked across the line at Priola in the Pampa-Amarillo football game, will put on the gloves against Priola. The Amarillo battler will have a 15-pound weight advantage, Chessher weighing only 215 pounds.

Opposing Redus will be John Cornett who has lost only one fight this season, to Barrick of LeFors last Friday night. Cornett was well out in front until the third round.

Everett Sparks, Pampa's little 105-pound dynamite who has not had a fight in three weeks, will meet a worthy opponent in Nelson Page, Richard Stephens, Pampa 115-pounder who has been on the winning end of nearly every fight in his three years of boxing, will tackle a real battler in Pete Trimble.

Jack Lane will be Pampa's 135 pounder and will meet John Hamilton.

Grapefruit League Games Expose Novikoff, Dodgers

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

There is a fairly common belief that baseball's annual spring training shenanigans are just a sham to lull the new season and that they serve no useful purpose so far as actually getting the clubs ready for competition.

It certainly is true that the training camps train the spotlight of public attention on the sport well in advance of the schedule opening, but the happenings in the sunshine zone these days show beyond all doubt that the exhibition games are of great value.

What would happen if all the clubs started from scratch in the National and American leagues next month instead of getting steam up in the Grapefruit circuit is ludicrous to imagine.

For instance the Philadelphia Athletics, cellar club of the American league, might scout out in front like they have in the exhibition hilarieties and the pennant-winning Detroit Tigers might start in the cellar, where they are at the moment.

The A's have won 13 out of 16 games against all the baseball talent concentrated in southern California and thus have a narrow advantage over the New York Yankees, who have won 12 out of 15 in Florida.

Already the Grapefruit games have been worth their weight in gate receipts to the clubs.

They have shown that the Brooklyn Dodgers aren't as strong as they thought they were and sent President Larry MacPhail scurrying westward this very day, from Florida to California, to attempt to swing a deal with the Chicago Cubs for Second Baseman Billy Herman.

The Dodgers went wild in winning their first four exhibitions, but since they have split even in a dozen games, they have exposed the mad Russian, Lou Novikoff, as a rival of Dizzy Dean as a circus sideshow with no main tent. He was the slugger who was going to lead the Cubs into championship contention again, but yesterday he couldn't hit the ball out of the infield, the day before he struck out with the bases loaded in the ninth and in most of his previous games he followed a similar script.

The Washington Senators were saved from establishing George Archie as their regular first baseman; the myth of Dick West as a possible first string catcher for Cincinnati's world champions was exploded; the New York Giants were given an opportunity to experiment with Hank Danning and to find out the true condition of Billy Jurges; the Yankees had time to train Joe Gordon in a first base dance routine; the Cardinals discovered Pitcher John Grodzick.

They have exposed the mad Russian, Lou Novikoff, as a rival of Dizzy Dean as a circus sideshow with no main tent. He was the slugger who was going to lead the Cubs into championship contention again, but yesterday he couldn't hit the ball out of the infield, the day before he struck out with the bases loaded in the ninth and in most of his previous games he followed a similar script.

The Washington Senators were saved from establishing George Archie as their regular first baseman; the myth of Dick West as a possible first string catcher for Cincinnati's world champions was exploded; the New York Giants were given an opportunity to experiment with Hank Danning and to find out the true condition of Billy Jurges; the Yankees had time to train Joe Gordon in a first base dance routine; the Cardinals discovered Pitcher John Grodzick.

Dodgers Best Looking Team In Florida

By GAYLE TALBOT

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 24 (AP)—Tanned by the Cuban sun and in great physical shape, the Brooklyn Dodgers right now are about the best looking outfit training in Florida—a lot better looking than the champion Cincinnati Reds.

It was to be expected that the MacPhail circus would get a head start, as it pitched its tent at Havana early and enjoyed much warmer weather than its rivals around here. But it is something more than that. The Dodgers have contracted pennant fever in the worst way, and they are almost swaggering in their confidence.

Paul Waner, staging a determined comeback, is in the best shape he has seen for many a season. He gained weight and has a Havana tan and is powdering the ball. He has clinched the right-field spot, and with Harold Reiser in center and Joe Medwick in left the club has an outfield that commands respect.

"We'll win it if nothing happens to us in the way of serious injuries," declares Medwick.

"All we need to beat Cincinnati is for Luke Hamlin and Leo Casey to have as good seasons as they had last year," says Coach Chuck Dressen. "Whit Wyatt is pitching better than I ever saw him. That knee of his is completely healed and I won't be surprised if he and Kirby Higbe each wins 20 games."

President Larry MacPhail, determined that there shall be no mishap like last year's "beating" of Medwick to spoil his team's chances at the flag, has made it compulsory for his men to wear the new protective helmets at all times, and there is a $100 fine attached.

There is one faint cloud on the Brooklyn horizon, the illness of Catcher Babe Phelps. He still is at home with a case of sinus, despite the fact that doctors employed by MacPhail to examine him could not locate the difficulty.

Junior High Excited Over Softball Tournery

In the spring, a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of baseball. Slide, Kelly, slide! Hit it on the nose! Let him hit. It's "take him! Nice stab on that line-drive! Throw him out at first! Cut that runner off at home! Let's get a double play! Stay with him, pitch—we're all behind you! Two away get the easy man! Throw that ole apple in there! How can he hit 'em when he can't see 'em? You've got him swinging like a wash woman!

The above remarks are constantly heard on the Central school campus where the junior high boys are getting ready for the intramural softball tournament. To see and hear the boys work out, on a spring think the Ollers had already started spring training because each boy considers himself as a potential big league baseball player and puts everything he has into every movement.

These baseball-playing enthusiasts play neither for medals nor money, but for the love of the game and the desire to excel in physical activities. No one is required to play, yet over 300 boys, or 86 per cent of the boys enrolled in junior high, are receiving softball instructions and working out daily for the 20 homeroom teams in junior high school. Coach Jack Davis, director of intramural activities, says:

It is believed that the student spectators will see better ballplaying this year in the intramural tournament than ever before. One of the reasons for this is the boys are receiving instructions and training in the fundamental skills of softball in their regular physical education classes. The players are taught such fundamentals as batting, base running, throwing, and fielding. They are encouraged by their physical education teachers to hustle, display good sportsmanship at all times, and keep playing situations constantly in mind all during the game.

The plan of teaching fundamental skills of intramural sports in the regular physical education classes is one of the changes made in the intramural sports program this year. The opinion expressed by players, students, and teachers is that the change has been highly beneficial in improving the program.

Each homeroom softball team has a student coach who selects and coaches the team. This coach ranges from the batting order, directs workouts, agrees on ground rules, and performs all necessary duties of a baseball manager. When the tournament is concluded, the coaches will select an all-star intramural softball team.

Following are the names of the student coaches in junior high school: Donald Rook, Harvey Hutton, Howard Bass, George Neuf, Leonard Greer, Ewan Jones, Claude Wood, Fredrick Brock, Robert Gotton, Billy Coy Sheehan, Burris Moore, Jack Dunham, John Lindsey, Norman Bartz, Dell Scott, Don Warren, Donald Riley, and Mike Gavin.

Starting next Monday, a single elimination schedule will be played to determine the champion of each grade in junior high school. The games will be played at noon and the public is cordially invited to come out and see American Youth in action.

Texas Women Beat Berg and Partner

NEW ORLEANS, March 24 (AP)—Betty Jameson of San Antonio and Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite of Fort Worth came from behind to give a Texas ladies' victory to Patty Berg, Jr. of Minneapolis and Mrs. Sam Israel, Jr. of New Orleans, 2 and 1, in an exhibition golf match for British war relief.

Miss Jameson, 1939 and 1940 national champion, dropped in the winning shots before a large gallery at the New Orleans Country club, after Mrs. Goldthwaite had launched their comeback with a birdie on the 10th hole.

Patty was brilliant with a 38 on the outgoing nine but her team a one-up lead, but took 41 strokes on the home stretch while Miss Jameson needed only 37.

Neither Miss Evelyn Gregory, girls coach, or B. G. Gordon, boys coach, have named their teams. Number of matches has not been determined because it is not known how many players the visitors will bring.

Bucky Harris Says Nats Will Run; They'll Have To--To Get Anywhere

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

ORLANDO, Fla., March 18—Stanley Raymond Harris says the Washington club will run this season.

Bucky Harris doesn't say where, but the Nationals will have to run to get any place.

It will be news when any one of them makes an extra base hit. Yet Harris wouldn't be surprised if Washington had its best club since he returned there in 1935.

That wouldn't necessarily make the Nats pennant-winners, but—Tall Sid Hudson, Dutch Leonard and Kendall Chase assure Washington respectable pitching.

The outfit has speed. . . the swiftest athletes in baseball in George Washington Case and Ben Chapman.

George Albert Archie, the most valuable player in the Pacific Coast league, will play considerable first base, and gets around the bases.

Roger Cramer and Chapman with Case form a CCC camp in the outfield to correct trouble which Harris says cost a dozen runs a week last term.

Because Jimmy Pofahl turned out to be in Clark Griffith's words—the worst buy he ever made, Cecil Travis and Buddy Lewis are back where they were. . . at shortstop and third base, respectively.

Lewis went to right field and Travis to the far turn a year ago when Old Fox Griffith paid Minneapolis $35,000 for Pofahl.

Mustangs Steal Show At Denver

DENVER, March 24 (AP)—The youngsters enjoyed a fine fling in this year's National A. U. cage tournament, even though it took a trio of oldtimers who have played on two continents to show them how to win the championship.

The veteran triumvirate of Frank Lubin, Carl Knowles and Art Moller robbed the younger set by bringing a clean sweep by practically all the United States cage team at the Berlin Olympics in 1936.

Otherwise, young players stole most of the spotlight in the week-long marathon of 49 stars from 26 states.

The most astounding overthrow of the tournament was perpetrated by the Southern Methodist Mustangs, playing here as the Dallas Wilsons, who upset the twice-champion Denver A. U. club in the third round and became the youngest team to reach the quarterfinals.

The torrid golf shooting of two players—Charley Bozeman of Louisiana State and Guff Pattison—led the Shreveport, La., team to the quarter-finals, farther than any previous Dixie team had progressed in the seven years the meet has been here.

In beating the defending champion Phillips 66 Oilers in the semifinals, the Hollywood titleholders relied on the accurate eye of their 21-year-old forward, Lester O'Garra.

Champion Aggie Wrestlers Go Home

BETHLEHEM, Pa., March 24 (AP)—Oklahoma A. and M.'s collegiate wrestling champions headed home today passing up this week's National A. A. U. title met at New York in favor of their studies.

Some members of the Aggie freshman squad will enter the New York event to gain tournament experience, Coach Arthur Griffith said, but the Cowboys, who dominated the N. C. A. A. competition at Lehigh University over the past week-end, already are enroute to the Sooner state.

Oklahoma A. and M. has won six national A. A. U. team titles since 1925, their last in 1938.

WEST POINT, N. Y.—Princeton overhauled Army 9-4 for second straight National Intercollegiate Football championship.

CHICAGO—Greg Rice ran fastest two miles in history, 8:51.1, and Fred Wolcott of Rice and Bob Wright of Ohio State waged great duel in hurdles, Wolcott winning 40 and 60 yard events and Wright the 50-yard timbers in Chicago relays.

YESTERDAY: Bee refuses to give up despite the hard work at Huntington's. Her first pay check...

QUARREL WITH MR. BRADLEY

CHAPTER XII BEATRICE felt her heart thump, astonishingly. A date with Mr. Bradley!

Yet, the next morning she found herself watching him. He listened with courteous attention as an indignant customer poured out her wrath.

This morning, under the usual gardenia in his buttonhole, he wore a black and white badge with a crimson ribbon.

"SCOTCH SALE!" proclaimed the letters on the badge.

Beatrice's lips quirked. There were banners all over the basement in celebration of Scotch Sales, but this badge was too much.

"Miss Davis," he called. "Yes, sir?"

"You're not wearing a Scotch Sale badge."

"Oh, was I supposed to?" His throat, above his immaculate white collar, grew brick red.

BEATRICE had written seven more sales slips, and waited on two women who had promised to come back after they looked about some more.

"Oh!" She had genuinely forgotten the stupid badge. "I've been so busy. Anyway, it can't mean much, one-way or the other."

"The customers seem to know there's a sale you never bothered about the badge, Miss Davis."

"Mr. Bradley's brown eyes snapped, and his big hand gripped the edge of the wrapping desk."

"Are you trying to make a fool of me?" he asked angrily. "She was suddenly angry. Evelyn...

"It's my dream to get out from under her thumb," he said. "In a couple of months, I ought to be way out. I—I'm studying merchandising at night, in a school of Painful red flooded into the man's lean face. He opened his mouth. The brown eyes took in the heightened color of Beatrice's cheeks, the snapping eyes, and suddenly Mr. Bradley closed his mouth again, without saying anything.

"You're all riding me!" Beatrice cried. "Just because I don't talk the way the other girls do! Just because I know something about style and fashion and try to help these blundering idiots who come in here rigged up like caricatures!"

Mr. Bradley's expression changed. "Excuse me for saying that about being a fool. . . I didn't mean it. It's just that I've taken so many gratuitous insults from so many people around here lately, and haven't been allowed to retort even once. I'm not accustomed to this Spartan self-control."

Beatrice said quickly, "Excuse me for saying that about being a fool. . . I didn't mean it. It's just that I've taken so many gratuitous insults from so many people around here lately, and haven't been allowed to retort even once. I'm not accustomed to this Spartan self-control."

Mr. Bradley said quietly, "Forget it. I couldn't fire you if I wanted to, if that's what you're thinking. My authority is extremely limited. So limited it is non-existent. And like you, Miss Davis, I'm not accustomed to Spartan self-control either."

Miss Dane's rheumy eye spied them. She hurried over, her tight black dress straining at the seams, her blood-red nails startling against the pearls she pulled on nervously. "Aren't you going to lunch, Miss Davis? Don't hold us up!"

At the elevator, he was waiting. "It's my time to eat, too. Do you mind if I—I lunch with you?" "I'd love it."

ALL at once, the feud was over. Yet, in the cafeteria, he leaned across the table and said, "I've had the feeling, ever since you came, that you've been laughing at me. Why?"

"I haven't been. I've been too busy learning my job. It's all new to me. I've concentrated on making that quota. And I thought I was doing fine when you bawled me out for advising the customers. . ."

He played with a fork. "Miss Dane's orders." "She doesn't know as much as she thinks she does! Times have changed since she started. I'm sure what I was trying to do is much better than selling a customer any dress, just to sell it. And it's my dream to prove I'm right."

"It's my dream to get out from under her thumb," he said. "In a couple of months, I ought to be way out. I—I'm studying merchandising at night, in a school of business administration." "How wonderful! But aren't you dog tired at the end of the day?"

He grinned. "I almost explode with stifled yawns." Then he asked, "How did you ever get into Huntington's? You're so different from the other girls. I mean—just as you said when you were angry with me—you talk differently, you've been—well, differently educated. . ."

"So have you, haven't you?" "I used to think I'd be an architect," he admitted. "An old friend of the family wanted to see me through, but I couldn't let him support me indefinitely until I established myself. And an architect doesn't become established overnight."

"Besides, I figured it out that store merchandising and management has structure and form to it, too. I—I can't explain exactly. But it takes the same kind of mind. You plan for effects, results. You're building. Of course it's not so tangible, and maybe I'm crazy. . ."

"You're not crazy!" She looked around the crowded room where salesgirls, wrappers, stock girls, shipping clerks, markers, and alteration hands were eating their lunches.

"Most of the people who work for a store like this seem to have drifted into it. They're not career people, they don't bring superior minds and any enthusiasm or even interest to the job. Oh, I'm not blaming them, most of them never had a chance. But, Mr. Bradley, if you see this store differently—if you see it the way an architect sees the vision of a house that hasn't even been started yet—if you're really so absorbed and sincere that you're going to school at night after a hard day here—why I think nothing can stop you from coming out on top!"

She was breathless, carried away. "You could be general superintendent, some day!"

"I don't think Mr. Bruce Sheldrake need do any overtime worrying," he smiled. "But if you think I'm a ball of fire, you're the first girl who ever did. And that's heartening."

"Lots of girls must have liked you. . . She dropped her eyes. Suddenly she caught sight of her wristwatch. "Mercy, I've got to run!"

"There's not much time for mutual understanding in Huntington's, is there?" he asked ruefully. "I haven't a class tonight. Could I come around and call for you after dinner? We could go into this ball of fire stuff more thoroughly."

British Troops Beat Off Seven Heavy Attacks

CAIRO, Egypt, March 24 (AP)—British troops have beaten off seven heavy Italian counter-attacks outside Cheren, key to Italian Eritrea, and "again are making headway," a British general headquarters communique said today.

Britain's offensive position in Italian East Africa had been improved by capture of Neghelli, provincial capital in southern Ethiopia, which put a third column in position to strike toward Addis Ababa, Ethiopian capital.

"Free French" troops fighting on the British side had been reported battling for hill positions four miles from Cheren, in Eritrea. Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian capital, already was the goal of British-led natives from the northwest and British and South African forces from the east when the new drive started from the Kenya frontier to the south early this month.

The British said fast mechanized columns swept nearly 140 miles northeast from Meqa and northwest from Mejo to take Neghelli, whose capture by Italians in January, 1936, in the Italo-Ethiopian war was hailed in Rome as an important victory.

Observers said the 275 miles north to Addis Ababa was "easy-going country"—with little opposition expected as far as Hadama, nearest point on the important Addis Ababa-Jibuti railway and only 50 miles from the capital.

The British-Ethiopian push from the northwest was reported menacing Debra Markos, 125 miles from the capital, but in difficult, mountainous country. To the east the British are trying to drive from Jigjiga, captured last week, toward Harar, 50 miles away, and the Addis-Ababa-Jibuti rail line the capital by air, but nearer 300 by the railway.

KPDN Will Have New Spot On Dial, 1340, Next Saturday

Pampa Radio Station KPDN will be acquainting its listeners with its new spot on the dial Saturday, when the frequency of the local station is changed from 1310 to 1340 kilocycles.

Only two Texas radio stations will retain their old frequencies, KOKO, Fort Worth, 570, and KWFT, Wichita Falls, 620.

The changes are an outgrowth of the North American Radio conference in Havana two years ago. The purpose in reallocating frequencies is to eliminate interference created by stations operating under high power on the same or nearby frequencies.

Among the larger stations outside of Texas are these with their new wave lengths: WJZ, New York, 770; WBBM, Chicago, 780; WMC, Memphis, 790; WNYC, New York, 830; WENR, Chicago, 890; KOA, Denver, 850; KARK, Little Rock, 920; WBRC, Birmingham, 960; KMOX, St. Louis, 1120; WCAU, Philadelphia, 1210.

One person in every two hundred in England is named Smith, according to estimates.

According to estimates, total farm mortgage debt in the United States declined to $7,071,000,000 in 1939.

Here Is Real Story Of Bob Feller's Discovery

Bob Feller

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

FT. MYERS, Fla., March 18—For five years now, Cyril C. Slapnicka has been peacocking around as the discoverer of Robert William Andrew Feller.

This got Cyril Slapnicka the job as vice-president and general manager of the Cleveland club.

Meanwhile, the man who found Bob Feller has lived in becoming modesty a few miles from young Feller's farm home in Iowa.

He is Pat Donohue, who 30 years ago did considerable catching for the Athletics and Red Sox.

Cleveland obtained Feller through Donohue's friendship with Billy Ev-got them back in place, he sat down and wrote Evans a letter.

"Here," it read, "is the greatest pitcher since Walter Johnson."

SCOUT SLAPNICKA SIGNS FELLER FOR $65 A MONTH

Evans sent Slapnicka, then a scout, to Van Meter to sign the 16-year-old phenomenon.

This one-time pitcher did, for $65 a month.

That was all Slapnicka had to do with Cleveland landing Feller.

Everybody knows Feller when, a few weeks later, pitching for the Farmers' Union team of Iowa in the national amateur tournament in Dayton, O., the plowboy struck out 18 in one game, and 21 in another.

A small army of scouts, two representing Cleveland among them, tumbled all over themselves trying to sign Feller.

Father Will Feller, who suffered broken ribs in catching and developing his son, had to keep a strong hand on the strapping lad to keep the foxy foragers from lassoing him.

Even the Cleveland agents didn't know Feller was already Indian property.

What Slapnicka did do was almost lose Feller.

Replacing Evans as general manager of the Tribe, he couldn't have built a better case leading to free agency for baseball's finest pitcher had he tried.

Under the sandlot rule in vogue at the time, Slapnicka, as a representative of the Cleveland club, had no right to sign Feller, even to a contract of the Fargo-Moorhead club of the Northern league.

That is why the Des Moines club of the Western league, which attacked Cleveland's possession of Feller, was awarded $7,500 in the Landis decision, which kept the wonder boy in Indian liver.

FELLER STAYS DESPITE JUGGLING AND BUNGLING

Cleveland "recommended" that New Orleans offer and, Fargo-Moorhead accept, $200 for Feller's contract.

It "recommended" that Feller "re-tire." It "recommended" that he come to Cleveland, where he was given employment by the club in its concession department. It "recommended" him for semi-pro ball in and around Cleveland.

It "recommended" that he be gotten off the retired list . . . after the Indians used him—ostensibly a New Orleans player "retired" from baseball—in an exhibition game with the Cardinals. It finally "recommended" that New Orleans transfer him to Cleveland for $1,500.

While officially belonging to those outfits, Feller never saw Fargo-Moorhead or New Orleans. He struck out batters right and left for the semi-professional Rosenblums of Cleveland instead.

It is suspected that Commissioner Landis would have made Feller a free agent in the winter of 1936 had the wonder boy desired his freedom. Judge Landis also feared the ef-

Negro Arrested In Axe Assault Case

COLUMBUS, Miss., March 24 (AP)—Percy Russell, negro, sought for two weeks for an axe assault upon Police Captain J. Bradley Partain, was arrested yesterday in Little Rock, Ark.

Sheriff W. J. Probst said Saturday that Russell had been returned to Mississippi and was being held in an unannounced jail pending action next month by the Lowndes county grand jury.

The police officer, who suffered a brain concussion when struck over the head, has been gradually improving but is still confined to a hospital.

Partain and Patrolman Buck Cunningham had sought to arrest Russell on a liquor charge.

Walker Seeded No. 1 In Girls Meet

Louis Norman Newsom is a striking illustration of how long it takes some pitchers to learn to pitch.

"Buck Newsom broke in with Columbia of the South Atlantic league in 1927, but it wasn't until 1933—11 years later—that Detroit's world series star of 1940 realized what it was all about.

While Bo-Bo Newsom has been with something like a score of clubs, and has been shipped for wildness and numerous other reasons, he dislikes only two people in baseball—Rogers Hornsby and Joe Cronin.

"Yet," says old Ozzie Bluege of Washington, "Hornsby and Cronin had the biggest hand in the development of Newsom."

Hornsby had Newsom with the Chicago Cubs, and when the Rajah took charge of the Browns he saw to it that the Hartsville Hot Shot was drafted from the National league club's Los Angeles farm.

Hornsby wound up selling Newsom to Washington for $40,000.

Some of the boys are still trying to figure how the Boston Red Sox, who needed pitching so badly, traded Newsom and couple of others to the Browns for Joe Vosmik.

Newsom blames Cronin. "Cronin gave up on Newsom for the same reason Washington did," explains Bluege, the veteran outfielder. "He was too erratic. They'd beat him after he had a lead of five or six runs.

"A lead like that now gives Newsom an easy game, but when he was with Washington and Boston, he made every game a hard one. Even when he was way ahead he'd pump himself out. He'd try so hard he'd go wild."

"Buck drove infielders crazy . . . getting down in position to field only to hear the umpire shout 'Ball one.' 'Ball two,' etc."

"I have an idea the reason Buck pans Cronin is that Joe used to keep after him to get the ball over the plate. That was particularly true when he was in front. The opposition can't bunt when you are well in front. They've got to hit, and the pitcher should then take advantage of the percentage that goes his way in line drives into someone's hands, etc. The pitcher might just as well make use of the seven men in back of him."

"He'll last longer if he does, and while he still is a work horse, Newsom suddenly awakened to that fact in 1938."

Before he pitched the Tigers down in front last fall, not a few ball players voiced the opinion that Newsom was good only with a club down in the race . . . hinted that he wasn't too stout-hearted when the stakes were high.

But Bucko demonstrated that all he required was the opportunity.

Bluege recalls how he finished a game with Washington after his

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., March 24 (AP)—Hazel Crutcher Walker, star forward for the defending champion Little Rock, Ark. Flyers today begins her personal campaign to become an all-America basketball player for the eighth time.

A 24-hour program opens the 1941 National A. A. U. Women's tourney. The 13-game marathon being halted long enough to permit J. Lyman Bingham, executive A. A. U. secretary of Chicago, to lead a parade of the athletic title.

The Flyers are seeded No. 1 in the five-day meet and are rated even stronger than last year. Lottie Jackson a former all-America player who competed with the Galveston, Texas, Anicos a year ago, now is with the second seeded Nashville, Tenn., six.

Lacked moxie, eh? That and a fast ball was all Buck Newsom had until he learned how to pitch.
