Pampa Officers Try To Help Solve Spearman Mystery Slaying

YUGOSLAVIA GIVES IN BUT FEARS REVOLT

Wilkinson At Scene Where Woman Died

Body Of Red-Headed Woman Still Not Identified

Pampa officers today were assisting in trying to unravel the mysterious murder of an attractive red-headed woman found lying at the side of a highway 20 miles west of Spearman yesterday morning. Up to an early hour this afternoon the body had not been identified, according to Police Chief B. Wilkinson who is assisting in the investigation.

The woman's head had been battered in with the claws of a hammer. Chief Wilkinson said today upon his return from Spearman.

The woman was described as being five feet, two inches tall, and weighing 125 pounds. She wore a valuable short fur coat, light in color, navy blue silk dress, blue high heel shoes and a blue felt hat with ribbon hanging down the back.

There was not a single mark of identification on the woman's clothing, Chief Wilkinson said. The clothes didn't show where labels had ever been attached. She had no purse and nothing in her pockets.

The body was found by Noble Watson, wheat farmer, near the Coldwater creek bridge. Watson told officers he had seen a car go west a few minutes earlier and that about 20 minutes later it returned eastward at a high rate of speed. The body was left in plain sight.

She had false teeth and there was a chip out of the front eye tooth. The tip of her ring finger on her left hand had been cut off.

At the inquest conducted under the direction of Justice of Peace D. B. Hokes, a verdict of "death by person or persons unknown" was returned. Dr. J. E. Gower, who examined the body at the inquest said that the head had been struck about the head and face eleven times with a heavy instrument.

Officers said they studied tracks of the woman and a man. They said the woman apparently had got out of the car and was sitting beside the road and that the assailant apparently slipped up behind her.

Army May Buy Road To Train Battalion
WASHINGTON, March 21 (AP)—The army, congress learned today, plans to buy a Louisiana railroad for realistic training of a railway operating battalion.

The road to be purchased is the Red River and Gulf, which has 58.6 miles of track and is considered ideal for training purposes because it is located in an area containing four army camps.

Details of the negotiations were disclosed by Brigadier General John J. Kingman of the engineer corps in testimony submitted to the house today by its appropriations committee.

The purchase price of the railroad will be $100,000 and an additional $500,000 will be spent for repairs and improvements.

The railroad battalion, the only unit of its kind in peace-time service, has a strength of approximately 800 officers and men.

HENRY FLYING 1776 APPEASERS

as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

Words Of 166 Years Ago Carry 1941 Ring

Sunday marks the 166th anniversary of a speech that—excepting only the Gettysburg address—is the most famous patriotic oration in American history. The highlights of that stirring, fateful address (reminiscent of the state of the world today) are recalled in the following article written exclusively for NEA Service and The Pampa News by Louis Bromfield, noted American author.

By LOUIS BROMFIELD
Author of "Night in Bombay," "The Rains Came," etc.
Written for NEA Service

And now, having read the immortal speech, I find it difficult to sit down and write of it in the simple language of our times, one hundred and sixty-six years after the small slight patriot stood up in the Continental congress and spoke those words which, even more than the speech, have become the motto which appears on our currency, have become the slogan of our nation.

Patrick Henry was facing the appeasers, the compromisers, the men who would have bargained and quibbled and talked, endlessly, over the most precious of our liberties. He spoke not from a written draft, carefully weighed and prepared. This, in a surge of passionate feeling, he had thrown aside. He spoke out of his heart, out of his instinct, out of his intelligence and experience. He finished the speech with a single sentence which should serve for all time as the guiding light of every good American.

I like to imagine him, in that small, crowded room, facing the compromisers and the traitors, alone, slim, defiant, afraid of nothing, not even of death on a charge of treason. The men on the benches opposite him have been discredited and forgotten, but every American child knows the name of Patrick Henry. I can imagine the deathly silence which followed that immortal final sentence: "I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death."

SOMETHING GREATER THAN PATRIOTISM
It was not that variety of patriotism defined by Samuel Johnson as "the last refuge of the scoundrel" which moved Patrick Henry. We have had a good deal of that sort of patriotism recently; it has always been the chief gaw-gaw in the stock in trade of the partisan politician. Patrick Henry was moved by something even greater than patriotism. He was moved by a passion for human liberty.

Between the circumstances which gave rise to the famous speech and those which entangle us today, there is a striking similarity. The difference is that today we are not so sure of our liberty.

Entertainment tomorrow night will include a stag banquet at 7 o'clock in the Herring hotel, and a stag floor show in the city auditorium at 8:45 o'clock.

Child Labor Amendment Again Urged

AUSTIN, March 21 (AP)—The controversial proposal that Texas ratify a federal constitutional amendment which would prohibit child labor rested in a legislative sub-committee today.

Rejected five times by previous legislatures, the resolution, barring employment of persons under 18 years of age, was referred, 7 to 4, to a sub-group of the house constitutional amendments committee last night after a public hearing. The sub-committee was instructed to report April 3.

Alternately assailed as a socialistic menace and commended as a means to prevent child labor exploitation, the proposal evinced heated debate. It was adopted by Congress in 1924 and ratification by 36 states would place it in the constitution.

T. J. Holbrook, former state senator, condemned the resolution as broadening federal control. He contended states already had adequate statutes to prevent child labor.

"The first time it was submitted to the Texas legislature in 1923," he asserted, "it received 13 votes in the house and only three in the senate. It has been rejected by 42 states. Twenty-eight currently have ratified it."

"This amendment was born in the mind of the deepest-dyed socialists in this country and across the seas. This is no time to bring it up—when the country is almost if you please, in a war."

Herman Jones, former representative, argued the proposal would provide uniform standards with which every state could comply.

John Hornsby, former state senator, contended the amendment would strip rights, adding, "I'm against further centralization of power in Washington."

Mrs. W. T. Dechard said a poll indicated 69 per cent of Texas people favored regulation of child labor. She urged support for the proposal.

Other speakers included Mrs. James Y. McCallum, former secretary of state; Mrs. Hal P. Bybee of the Texas Parent-Teachers congress, and Mrs. C. A. Barr.

Proration Of Gas Well Distillate Ordered In Wells
AUSTIN, March 21 (AP)—A legislative sub-committee today committed to the governor the proration of gas well distillate.

After a hearing last night, the house committee on oil, gas and mining assigned the proposals to a sub-group with instructions to study them. No date was set for a report.

Representatives Emmett Morse of Houston and Clayton Bray of Austin, authors of two of the bills, requested the committee action.

Bray asserted a great increase in the number of recycling plants, which reduce condensate in gas to a liquid, was providing unfair competition to crude oil refineries.

Coventry Has Bounced Back
By EDDY GILMORE
COVENTRY, England, March 21 (AP)—Coventry, bombed and burned last November like no other British city in this war, has bounced back.

People laugh, whistle, and go about their work. Children are playing in the streets and school lots again.

In this quick recovery, Mayor J. C. Moseley avers that civic cooperation has been so good that if the legendary Lady Godiva—she of the naked ride in protest against high taxes—headed her white horse down Coventry's streets again after requesting that nobody look "I'm sure even Peeping Tom would cooperate."

Fire-blackened cathedrals stand as a gaunt reminder of the destruction, but stores have been reopened and new ones set up.

A purchaser can get the latest clothes, house furnishings, fertilizer, spring flowers, children's toys—practically anything he can buy anywhere else in England.

Many who lost their homes, life savings, and even their families, are staying on to help rebuild.

Three Ministers In Cabinet Resign In Crisis

(By The Associated Press)
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 21 (AP)—The Yugoslav government yielded today to German pressure and prepared to follow four of her neighbors into a working arrangement with the Axis but forthwith found itself confronted by an internal crisis generated by powerful pro-British elements.

Prince Paul, the chief regent, refused to accept the resignations of three ministers who in protest against the Yugoslav capitulation, had proposed to walk out of their offices.

A fourth cabinet member was reported to be planning to resign, and feverish political conferences kept the capital tense.

Premier Dr. Dragisa Cvetkovic called an emergency meeting of key ministers who conferred on the crisis for several hours.

In the early afternoon the premier, the Croat peasant leader, Vladimir Maccek, who is vice premier, and the Slovene leader, Culover, hastened to the white palace to confer with the regent.

The tenseness was heightened by disclosure that four of Yugoslavia's most prominent generals were pensioned early in the week as a "mere routine matter."

Observers pointed out that army circles have been among the most vigorous opponents of a surrender to Germany.

But government circles said the remaining high officers had agreed to the government's decision.

German circles said the formalizing of Yugoslavia's entry into closer relations with the Axis would be swift, with Premier Cvetkovic and Foreign Minister Aleksandar Cincar-Markovic due to leave tonight or tomorrow for Vienna where they would sign the document Sunday.

Although the government's action was reported by responsible government sources, British circles insisted they had reason to believe Yugoslavia had reached no decision on what concessions she would make to the Axis.

While admitting that the solution might be found in time to permit the premier to resign, British circles made the Vienna trip a cabinet session and the afternoon meeting at the palace were "sufficient indication no agreement has yet been reached."

Slovakia, Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria among Yugoslavia's neighbors in southeast Europe, previously had joined the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis.

Presenting for the first time to Pampa women the intricate art of entertaining at the Perfect Hostess School in a specialized field of his own, Byron E. Lopp, nationally known human analyst, will discuss problems that are foremost with the hostess today in the modern home.

What types of people like to eat heavy food, include their conversations entirely to sports, enjoy classical music and read only fiction? Why they are this type and how best to entertain in a fashion that will appeal to any one type that might be your guests is what will be explained in an interesting, entertaining two-day discussion at the city hall auditorium on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons, March 25 and 26 from 1 p. m. until 3 p. m.

Free gifts, souvenirs, displays of merchandise showing what is new in many lines will give a gay atmosphere to the "Perfect Hostess School."

No admission will be charged for the two-day series on this human relations program which is being sponsored by the merchants of Pampa.

Discussion during the two-day program will include how to tune in on your guest, catch the spirit of conversation, tone and volume of speech and the study of facial expressions, with each phase explained by Mr. Lopp with the use of charts that have evolved from over twenty years study and research.

At the conclusion of the school through the courtesy of the local sponsoring merchants, especially prepared pamphlets will be given to those attending by going to any one of the sponsoring merchants and asking for this unusual, interesting and instructive pamphlet.

Both Houses Pass Truck Limit Bill

(By The Associated Press)
AUSTIN, March 21.—Texas truck load limit controversy neared the end of the road today.
 Over the hump in the legislative after years of up-hill grind and dead-end detours, a bill permitting trucks to haul up to 19 tons a load, as compared to the current 3½-ton limit, coasted toward the statute books.
 Only signatures of several legislative officials and that of Governor W. Lee O'Daniel, who has indicated no opposition and once requested an increase to 14,000 pounds, were needed to route the proposal into law. Technicalities in the Legislature will be concluded Monday.

Both houses yesterday passed the bill, the lower chamber accepting senate amendments. The measure would adopt a scientific formula of weight distribution, authorize highway patrolmen and sheriff's department to enforce it and provide penalties up to six months in jail and $500 fines for violation.

After a hearing, a house committee sent to a sub-group a resolution ratifying the child labor amendment to the federal constitution. The amendment to the constitution, reported April 3, would prohibit employment of anyone aged years old.

Also assigned to a sub-group after a hearing were three bills authorizing the railroad commission to prorate distillate gas wells.
 A schedule of night hearings adopted by a senate committee on tax proposals to increase state revenues included utility, telephone, liquor, stock sales and motor vehicle loan levies on March 26; oil, March 27; gas, March 31; sulphur, carbon black, and other receipts, corporation franchise and any others, April 2. The house has passed a $25,500,000 omnibus tax bill.

Before both houses adjourned until Monday, the house delayed further consideration of Governor W. Lee O'Daniel's emergency anti-strike legislation pending receipt of an opinion from Attorney General Gerald C. Mann on the bill's constitutionality.
 A plan to revamp the state's representative districts the first time in 18 years was recommended by an 11-1 vote in a house committee. Purpose of the measure was to make district populations, now ranging from 19,000 to 134,000, more nearly equal.

The bill would give Harris, Dallas and Bexar counties their constitutional maximum of seven representatives.
 Fiscal reorganization of the state got a boost from a senate committee which favorably reported a bill setting up a department of finance, a governor's cabinet and a civil service system. A house group recently approved an identical proposal supported by regional chambers of commerce, business and civic organizations.

Repeal of a law giving the supreme court power to promulgate rules of civil procedure was recommended by another senate committee. Proponents of the repeal bill asserted regulations drawn up by the tribunal would not simplify court technique while opponents argued the rules would remove conflicts and speed up litigation. The regulations will become effective Sept. 1 unless the legislature decrees otherwise.

New Taxes Opposed

FORT WORTH, March 21 (AP)—Biggest problem facing the telephone industry today is how to ward off additional special taxes which the state and some municipalities are considering levying. C. C. Bandits Put Pair To Sleep And Then Rob Packing Plant

LUBBOCK, March 21 (AP)—After a weird series of dramatics, two masked men took $618.43 from the Keeton packing company early today and fled.

The coolly courteous pair, one short and portly and the other short and scrawny, chloroformed Lenroe Keeton, manager of the firm, and Mrs. Keeton at their Lubbock residence and seized office keys and the combination to the safe.

Calmly assuring Mr. and Mrs. Keeton they would not be harmed, the heavier robber, carrying a flashlight and pistol while his silent companion stood in the background with a rifle, forced the couple to take sedative tablets.

"I will have to give you chloroform to knock you out—but you'll be all right," the heavy man said.

After the Keetons lost consciousness, the pair ransacked the residence, drove to the packing company, opened the office door with Keeton's key and forced two employees, Cleve Keeton, 19-year-old nephew of Lenroe Keeton, and Jack Humble, into a tool room.

Using Lenroe Keeton's combination, they opened the safe. A key that had been taken from Keeton's pants pocket opened the inner safe and the pair lifted $618.43—some $200 of it in currency and cash.

Cleve Keeton and Humble smashed their way out of the tool room 30 minutes later.

Police, informed of the keys and safe combination used in the robbery, hurried to Lenroe Keeton's residence and found the couple still under influence of the chloroform. No hints of violence were made by the robbers, witnesses agreed.

CIO-Ford Tension Reported Lessened

DETROIT, March 21 (AP)—James F. Dewey, federal labor conciliator, announced today that prospects for an amicable adjustment of the dispute between the United Automobile Workers (CIO) and the Ford Motor Co. have been greatly enhanced by mediation conferences of the past few weeks.

Dewey indicated that steps taken by the Ford Co. and the National Labor Relations board had relieved the tension between the union and the company since the union declared its "intent to strike" at the Rouge and Lincoln plants, here.

The Ford company employs approximately 10,000 workers in the Detroit area and has $154,000,000 worth of defense contracts.

Dewey said the company had re-employed "most" of the 1,000 Rouge plant employees that the UAW-CIO had charged were dismissed for union activity over a period of the past seven months.

Youth Kidnaps Pair Then Kills Himself

KANSAS CITY, March 21 (AP)—A crippled, self-styled madman who kidnaped a young couple and terrorized them as he drove their car at 80 miles an hour, killed himself late yesterday while three police detectives stood outside his hotel room door.

Police Chief L. B. Reed said the man was Oliver Norris Bridges, Jr., 21, of Sherman, Texas, who had served vagrancy sentences in Los Angeles and Wichita, Kan.

Miss Jeanne Harvey, 19, and James L. Person, 28, told Chief Reed that the man:

Pointed a pistol at them as they emerged from a downtown night club Wednesday night and drove away with them in Person's car.

Kept them captive nearly six hours on a wild ride of more than 250 miles.

Remarked while passing an insane asylum in Kansas, "Right there is where I belong."

Commented as they crossed into Kansas, "I'll get 30 more years now for kidnaping and the Mann act."

Once attempted to compel the couple to disrobe but relented after Miss Harvey wept.

Brought them back to Kansas City, let them out and drove away. Tom Farley, head of the police homicide squad, would say only that Bridges "must be plenty hot," when asked if the case had any connection with the slaying of Miss Lella Adie Welsh. Later, however, Chief Reed said there could be none because Miss Welsh was slain here March 9 and it had been established that Bridges was in Los Angeles March 10.

Mexico May Seize Axis Ships In Ports

MEXICO CITY, March 21 (AP)—Mexico's leading newspaper, Excelsior, today reported it had been informed reliably that President Avila Camacho's government, following the example of other Latin American states, might appropriate several of the 12 German and Italian ships now refueling in Mexican ports.

The vessels would be commandeered for duration of the European war, Excelsior said, and would be incorporated into a national merchant marine to enable this country to develop profitable trade with the rest of the hemisphere. The nation's present shipping facilities are at a minimum.

Before taking such a step, the newspaper reported, the Mexican government would seek an understanding with the owners of the vessels.

There was speculation the government might appropriate some of the larger Italian freighters because Mexico has received none of the three 10,000-ton tankers from Italy for which $2,500,000 in petroleum was shipped to the Italian government.

Matter Will Be Subject Of Sermon

"Matter" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 23.

The Golden Text is: "All flesh is grass, and all the goodness thereof is as the flower of the field: the grass withereth, the flower fadeth: because the spirit of the Lord bloweth upon it" (Isaiah 40:6, 7).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Nevertheless we, according to His promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness" (II Peter 3:13).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "He uttered His voice, the earth melted." This Scripture indicates that all matter will disappear before the supremacy of Spirit (page 97).

ZENITH DEFINED
The zenith of the heavens is the point exactly overhead. Technically speaking, it is the point where a plumb line, extended upward from yourself, meets the celestial sphere.

The Meaning Of 'All-Out' Aid

For almost as long as the war has been underway we have been bandying about those three words, "all-out aid."

Few of us actually have realized what it means. It remained for President Roosevelt, in a ringing speech full of defiance and challenges, to give form and substance to this expression.

It throws down the gauntlet. It commits the United States to the task of defeating the dictators. I press in no uncertain terms a rising national anger against the brute force that is wrecking an erstwhile civilized world.

With an oratorical flare President Roosevelt recounted the needs of Britain—planes, ships, food, arms—and announced flatly: "We will send them."

The proportions of what "all-out" aid may mean are revealed in dispatches from Washington which indicate that the seven billions now being asked for British aid will be just one-fourth of what they will require before they win the war—FOUR YEARS HENCE!

The present American defense prospect—for home defense—amounts to 52 billions.

One thing is certain. The die is cast. The time for debate is over. The time for disagreement on America's foreign policy is past. By completely Democratic means America has committed itself to the president's program of all help for Britain. And it is up to all of us to support that program. We may disagree at home, but on foreign affairs we must present a united front.

Whether democracy holds out or cracks up largely depends on how quickly we realize that we are already in this conflict up to our necks.

President Roosevelt warns that sacrifices are ahead, that we will have to work "longer hours."

There must be an end of self-seeking, of attempting to make capital out of the war for personal enrichment.

It should not be necessary for the government to use "strong arm" tactics to put an end to labor disputes and keep defense industries in production.

If every one of the 130 million residents of the United States realized the enormity of the crisis, there would be no defense troubles.

We have one good chance of remaining a non-belligerent in the war. That is if England gets ENOUGH AID—IN TIME.

If not, we may expect almost anything to happen. The strength of democracy—the rights of the individual—is also its weakness.

It would be bitter irony if internal discord in the United States would bring the end of the free way of life we have been promoting for 150 years.

Behind The News

By PETER EDSON

The Pampa News Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Since there are indications that not a few business men of various sizes are coming down to Washington and offering suggestions like, "How about giving my boy Able a nice dollar a year job in the government for the war—I pay all his expenses!" it might be in order to tell a few things about what these dollar a year jobs are, if you can get them.

Nobody knows exactly how many dollar a year jobs there are in Washington right now. Civil Service says there aren't more than half a dozen outside the new defense setup which has nearly 150, about equally divided between the production, purchases and priorities sections. But Treasury Department has been hiring experts for a long time, getting some of them for nothing, others for $15, $22 or $25 a day and on up to $10,000 a year. And other government departments have high-powered advisers and consultants on call at little or nothing a year, all the time.

The strangest thing about the so-called wartime dollar a year men, however, is that they don't get a dollar a year at all. They get $5 a day, the standard government subsistence rate for years, plus travel expenses. All except Knudsen, Hillman and Stettinius, who get absolutely nothing, their jobs being the hardest.

GOOD WORKERS

That $5 a day doesn't begin to cover the average dollar a year man's living expenses in Washington. Most of them have not brought their families to the capital, and they therefore batch it in swell hotels where the two rooms and a bath suites run $15 a day and up, without meals. Then there are extras like pants pressing, charged water and ice and long distance good nights to the kiddies.

For the most part, these dollar a year men work darned hard. They don't care about hours, and they're all for getting the job done. Some of them, on loan from their corporations, are trying to run their own jobs at the same time, giving these regular jobs one day a week or a month, or one week out of four, or half of each week. They do like to sneak home for weekends, and the best place to catch them in large numbers is Washington airport. They fly out late Friday and back Sunday night or Monday.

Government travel allowance doesn't cover these visits home, but it does pay for the trips made to speak at business men's banquets, like A. & P. stores' Donald MacKeachie made to New England recently, to tell food retailers what defense is all about.

HARD TO GET

Washington hostesses have about given up on these glamor boys of big business. Society hostesses had hoped to be able to ring up their set and say, "William Batt, president of S. K. P., and Mr. Deupree, president of Procter & Gamble, are coming to din-

Common Ground

By R. C. HOLLES

This column contends there can be no satisfactory progress until we measure the shares of each man by the common yardstick of the God-given equal right to create and enjoy anything anyone else has a right to create and enjoy.

"CHRISTIANITY AS OLD AS THE CREATION"

The following are extracts from a talk I made before a Methodist Men's Club at their monthly dinner meeting.

Whether or not Christianity is as old as the creation depends upon what one regards Christianity to mean. If the word "Christianity" means something created from the New Testament as being divinely revealed by God and delivered through inspiration, then Christianity is not as old as the creation.

On the other hand, if Christianity means eternal, immutable, impersonal principles, with the emphasis on the equal rights and personality of all people everywhere, then Christianity is certainly as old as the creation. That is, since principles never change and things that were good and right for the welfare of man are the same now as they were from the beginning of time, then Christianity is as old as the creation. Another way of expressing the difference between Theists and Deists is that Theists regard the Bible as inerrant and the Deists regard God as inerrant and perfectly good.

Prayer

The following explanation of prayer is made by Mathew Tindal in his great book, "Christianity as Old as Creation" published in 1730.

The Encyclopedia Britannica calls this book the Bible of Deism. I quote:

"Deists' ideas of prayer are different from Theists. Deists say that since God knows beforehand what we will ask, prayer itself becomes a duty chiefly, as it raises in us a due contemplation of the divine attributes, and an acknowledgment of his great and constant goodness, and serves to keep up a constant sense of our dependence on him; and as it disposes us to imitate those perfections, we adore in him in being kind and beneficent to one another.

"There are few so gross as to imagine we can direct, by prayer, infinite wisdom in the dispensation of Providence, or persuade him to alter those laws he contrived before the foundation of the world for putting things in a regular course."

Prayer, consequently, according to the Deist, tends to keep men humble and make them realize the oneness of mankind and the helplessness of man when he does not respect the equal rights of all other human beings.

Disinterested Love

Continuing Mathew Tindal's quotation:

"In short, the worship God requires, is either for his own sake, which supposes his happiness some way or other depends on it; or else for the sake of men, to raise and keep in the minds the contemplation of an infinitely good being, and of his laws, all founded on a disinterested love to the whole race of mankind. To imagine the worship of God is ordain'd on any other account, not only destroys one of the greatest motives of men's doing good to one another; but supposes God not sufficient for, or infinitely happy in himself; but subject to the passions of ambitions and vain-glorious mortals."

No New Duties

"The end of Christ's coming, seems not to teach men new duties, but (repentance being the first thing preach'd) by him and his Apostles both to Jews and Gentiles) to repent of the breach of known duties. And Jesus does not say, he was sent to all Israel, but to the lost sheep of the House of Israel; and that the Son of Man is come to save that which was lost; and his parable about the lost sheep, suppos'd all were not lost. And when it was objected to him, that he kept company with sinners, he owns the charge, and says, The whole need no physician, but they that are sick; which would have been an improper answer, if he thought all stood in need of him, and his spiritual physick. And to confirm this, he adds, I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance; and that there's more joy in Heaven for one sinner that repents, than ninety-nine just persons that need no repentance."

30,000 Tests

As to the difficulty of knowing whether or not a Christian guided by one of the New Testament has the right text, Tindal quotes Dr. Bentley as saying that there were over 30,000 best editions of the New Testament, when "Christianity as Old as Creation" was written 211 years ago; that, at the time of Queen Elizabeth, practically all the texts set forth predestination and those who dared to oppose this interpretation were thrown into prison till they learned better.

ner. Can I count on you?" But dollar a year men have no appetite for small dinners over which Washington politicians talk shop. Most of the business men declared a political holiday when they came to town, and no wonder. In the list of 150, someone has counted 140 Republicans.

Even the cocktail hour doesn't lure these sleek and suave commuters. Sometimes you can spot one at the bar of a downtown hotel, but more often they bend elbows in the office of some division head who has a private bar. Army and navy quartermaster and supply officers are their most frequent companions, for lunch in the private dining rooms of the new social security building which is OPM headquarters, or in the railroad retirement building which faces it. Occasionally Jesse Jones entertains them for an evening by taking their worked-a-year-dollar at poker.

A few of the defense commissioners were allowed to bring their own secretaries with them. But the average man who is giving his brains to his country has to get along with what the civil service supplies, which can be anything from age 20 to 60.

There are a few luxurious suites for the top men, but others are pretty well pigeon-holed. One of them, used to running his own plant and having things the way he wanted them, was shoved into a cubicle without much more than turn-around space. Having difficulty in getting a buzzer installed, whenever he wants a stenographer he reaches over and pounds on the wallboard partition.

Nearly all the dollar a year men have made good on the job. They were hand-picked, of course, for specific tasks. Not all are rich. Many are just expert buyers or technical men in the middle salary brackets of big corporations. Some of them have been accused of not putting into their defense jobs more effort than they were paid for. Their golf games and their pocketbooks have suffered, but they're taking it on the chin, and if a few of them are sent back to private industry, they probably won't care.

UNOFFICIAL REPORT ON THE DEFENSE OF EIRE

Around Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, March 21.—That high fog has been playing havoc with Movietown's shooting schedules. Anxious assistant directors have been sending out doves, only to have them come back with sprigs of water cress or hunks of herring in their beaks. Location trips have been postponed, outdoor sets drip desolately, and conversation is limited to the weather and cures for tartrigitis.

Paramount's realistic Mexican street finally had to be paved, and the ponderous, steel-plated tank which Bob Hopes drives in "Caught in the Draft," still is sunk turret-deep in the mud of Calabasas Ranch.

A real estate agent who had been advertising a five-acre ranch for weeks simply added the line "high and dry" to the description of the property and sold it the next day.

THE FLOOD

The last yarn we heard was from Red Skelton, who said he looked out in his yard the other morning and the salmon were running. Jimmy Gleason backs him up—says when the rains first started he decided his four pet goldfish should get some fresh water. He lugged out their tank and put it in the middle of his badminton court, but when the rain stopped so he could venture out, they were gone—absolutely and completely. Only conclusion he could reach was that they had swum up the downpour. Dizzy Dean denies that the rain has held up spring training; he says they played one game last week with the water up to their knees and the ball didn't get wet once.

But their hasn't been the usual crop of brilliantly imaginative stories about marooned companies and thrilling rescues. There have been one or two pretty anecdotes based on the Sir Walter Raleigh fable, about stars being carried across streaming gutters in the starboard arms of gallant prop men. Nothing to compare, though, with stories of past years, such as the glamor girl who kept a rowboat—stocked with hardtack, chocolate bars, a change of clothing, and a pair of water wings—in her garage, ready to launch at an instant's warning.

It is no gas, however, about the California vs. Florida climate rivalry. Not to Hollywood's Chamber of Commerce, whose president recently sent this letter to Darryl Zanuck, head of 20th-Fox:

"It has been brought to my attention that you have a motion picture company on location in Miami, Fla. In your desire for authenticity, you have probably failed to realize that you are virtually being victimized by colorful advertising that must be inspired in Hollywood. This is evident by the fact that Miami employs one of Hollywood's cleverest publicists who makes his headquarters in the heart of Hollywood. Consequently, I should think that for a truly authentic motion picture of Miami, as everyone believes it to be, it would have to be filmed in Hollywood."

"In as much as I understand that you have already started shooting in Florida, I realize that it is too late to rectify the mistake; however, I do most strongly protest your sending any of our stars there. I know that you would not want to risk the loss of a great sum of money by having your sets ruined and your equipment damaged, and we certainly do not want to see any of our motion picture people injured, all of which is very likely in one of Florida's famous hurricanes."

PROFIT BY LOSS

Banks operating in the United States decreased from 15,287 in 1938, to 15,087 the succeeding year, but deposits showed an increase of more than $3,000,000,000.

People You Know

By Archer Fullingim

Roy Lee Jones, former Pampan, and Mickey Ledrick, both students at West Texas State college, accompanied the Buffalo basketball team to the Kansas City tournament. All wore big hats and boots and rodeo pants and shirts, and you wouldn't think it but every time they'd get out on the street they'd block the traffic. Big crowds would trail the tall Texas team and the students who went along with them, every place they went. Six other students went with Roy Lee and Mickey, and they all had big cow bells which they rang continuously while the Buffaloes were playing. They had difficulty in keeping the bells until after the tournament because people insisted on buying them. Roy Lee sold a $2 cowboy hat for $15. The Texans, on account of their garb, were so popular that somebody was always coming up and wanting to buy them a meal or anything else they could think of. The manager of the mammoth hall gave them the best seats in the place, and told them to ring the cow bells all they wanted to. He said it was good for business. One fellow walked up to Mickey and said, "Old boy you just keep on singing them songs on the radio and you'll get some place some day!" They would go into a night club and the head waiter would run his customers out of the best seats and give them to the Texans, then the orchestra would play "The Eyes of Texas, O Beautiful, Beautiful Texas, O Kansas Citizens thought was also a state song. The West Texas State students and team got the lion's share of the publicity and really were the gallery darlings of the tournament. Price Brookfield, the Buffalo center, made the All-America team (the Buffs won third place in the tournament). Mickey said you'd think that Kansas City would think nothing of big hats and boots since it is supposed to be a cow town, but he said the Saturday afternoon crowds were the most naive and unsophisticated he has ever seen. Everybody up there had heard of the Buffs. On the way home they stopped at a small town for gas and the filling station attendant knew the complete basketball and football record of West Texas.

STREET SEES HOPE OF DEMOCRACY IN U. S.—BRITISH UNION

Two years ago, Clarence K. Streit published his "Union Now"—a book that proposed to bring together the world's 15 democracies into a super-union on the basis of the United States of America with the idea of preventing war. Shortly afterward, war came, nearly all the democracies but those in the British Empire and the United States were wiped out. Not abandoning his original plan, Streit has now revised it in "Union Now With Britain" (Harper: $1.75), to meet the present emergency. Here is what he says on the immediate need for united action:

In less than a year the question has changed from one of preventing the onslaught of democracy to one of preventing democracy's total defeat, from one of preventing the war in Europe to one of preventing the invasion of America. We Americans, instead of uniting the 15 while they faced a single foe, have let that Nazi foe unite in an alliance against us the three most heavily armed aggressor powers on earth. This is the first military alliance ever made to intimidate the United States. . . .

And what must our answer be? More urgently than ever, "Union Now"—Federal Union with the remaining democracies for nucleus, Union now with Britain. . . .

- The union must start with a smaller nucleus than was first proposed.
- The people of this nucleus, to save themselves from autocracy, must unite more hastily, in a provisional emergency Federal Union to hold the fort till they can agree upon a permanent constitution.
- To succeed in overthrowing autocracy they must stress all the more that their union is not exclusive or imperialistic, but the genuine nucleus of the United States of Man.

TEX'S TOPICS

By Tex DeWeese

THERE ought to be a law against practical jokesters. . . . Jeff Bearden, the insurance man, sends in a stogie with that book, "Night in Paris" . . . The cover design is so alluring that you would have to be made of wood not to open it to see what's inside. . . . Then, when you open it, the book explodes and you are ten years older. . . . But, as has been recorded in the space before, we are a sucker for almost anything that comes along. . . . So, if you have some kind of a gag you'd like to test—bring it around, we'll bite.

A picture came to our desk yesterday afternoon—a propaganda picture, no doubt, but nevertheless a picture with overwhelming appeal. . . . It showed a vast field dotted with a mass of white-clothed figures. . . . They were 17,000 children—all orphans of parents killed or lost in the war. . . . They stood there in the picture—wearing the clothes they had on and perhaps their lives to American generosity. . . . And, this thought came: . . . Who shall reap the better crop—the Americans who sowed humanity by giving the children life and hope, or the Japanese who sowed shells and bombs, and made them orphans?

THERE may be some women who will not agree with this little note from E. V. D.: . . . Women are the biggest and gayest deceivers in affairs of the heart. . . . When a man is doubting his pride is hurt and he keeps quiet. But when a woman is deceived she tells the world in song and story and thus the men's reputation for loyalty in love suffers. . . . Every married man with their hearts and most women think of it with their heads. And so time marches on! . . . Well, hadn't thought of it that way. Maybe the man has something there.

Lots of women keep away from cigarettes by using a holder. . . . Our idea of something real funny is a barber shaving himself and arguing that he doesn't want a shampoo. . . . In Alabama a man, pinched for shaving a card game opponent, found out that a razor doesn't beat four aces. . . . Those new United States mosquito boats make a hit with the British—and everybody sincerely hopes they will with the German subs. . . . Recently, I read a British report of Herbert Hoover's proposals for school kitchens in Belgium—probably figuring that those supposed to benefit would be left in the soup.

WHEN a woman says "can you keep a secret?" you know right then that SHE can't. . . . Every married man wishes his wife could cook as well as he tells his friends she can. . . . The most useless thing on earth is an airplane. . . . All the people who think they're paid what they are worth could find a convention in a Santa Fe upper berth. . . . Another of life's little mysteries is why a mother can sleep soundly despite a variety of loud noises nearby, but will awaken instantly if the baby sleeping beside her whimpers softly.

In Hookertown, N. C. a colored couple had twins; one black, one white. Nature is much too wonderful at times. . . . Listen to what German Ambassador Edmund von Therman told the natives down Argentina the way "New Germany will be the most important buyer in the new European order. . . . Germany will be in a position to export great quantities of machinery to Argentina and buy corn, wheat and meat, which is not the case with the United States, which has the same products as Argentina."

WHENEVER our representatives in Washington are discussing the relations of Germany and the United States in the House or the Senate there should be a huge banner on the wall bearing cartoonist Tad Dorgan's immortal slogan: "Don't kid yourself!"

PACKED HOUSE DUE TO SEE FIGHTS IN GYM TONIGHT

Roy Ray And Twigg Will Settle Feud

The "sold right out" card is expected to be hung up tonight at the high school gymnasium here when the Pampa Harvester and LeFors Pirate boxers meet. First fight is scheduled for 8 o'clock with admission 25 cents for students and 40 cents for adults.

Chairs will be placed on the gymnasium floor to accommodate fans. The auditorium seats more than 500 persons and it has been nearly filled on previous matches. But tonight LeFors will be here and that doesn't mean just the LeFors boxers and a few faculty members and students. When LeFors boys box, LeFors citizens follow them by the hundreds.

Pampa and LeFors boxers met in LeFors two weeks ago with LeFors the winner. Tonight the Harvesters hope to win the count by winning. Two of the judges tonight will be C. E. McGrew and Paul Hill, both of Pampa. The two men were named by Coach Toby Waggoner of LeFors. The third judge has not been selected. Name of the referee has not been released.

Bouts equal to those seen in Golden Glove tournaments and even in the professional ring will be fought tonight. For fans who like to see little fellows in action there will be Billy Stevens of Pampa and Bobby Dunn of LeFors who are really class. Johnny Campbell of Pampa will step out against Clinton Benefield if the latter doesn't weigh more than 88 pounds. Richard Stephens of Pampa and Charles Vandlandingham are old rivals as are Lefty Pendleton of Pampa and Charles Nipper.

Highlight bout is expected to be the battle between Pampa's Roy Ray and Kenneth Twigg, two of the Pampa's outstanding 145-pounders. They will be meeting for the first time this year.

Fans are asked by Coach Oscar Hinger of the Pampa to respect the decisions of the judges because both coaches have agreed that they will not protest decisions.

Booing will not be tolerated in the gymnasium, Coach Hinger declared today.

One of the greatest little scrappers on the Pampa High school boxing team is Johnny Campbell, above, who tonight will meet Clinton Benefield of LeFors if Benefield can make 88 pounds, four more than Campbell's weight. The two will battle in the dual meet between Pampa and LeFors boxers in the high school gymnasium. Campbell has been defeated only once this season.

LEFORS ACE

By LOUDON KELLY
DENVER, March 21 (AP)—Tall, hot-shooting sons of California, Deadeye Hank Luisetti in the fore, took over almost complete dominance of the 34th National A. U. basketball tournament today.

Only the towering Phillips 66 Oilers, defending champions from Oklahoma's Caney river country, blocked the way of one or another of three California teams toward the national title that no Pacific coast outfit has won in 22 years.

Phillips' veteran team, vowing to be the first two-time champions since the title-winning Tulsa Oilers of 1933-34, will clash with Hollywood 20th Century in the closing semi-final game tonight.

Luisetti's San Francisco Olympic club team will clash with its neighbor from across the bay, Oakland Athens club, in the other semi-final.

This is the first national tournament for the former Stanford stylist, who insists he will leave the hardwood for keeps after this season.

Phillips overwhelmed the Los Angeles Cliftons in the second half for a 42-21 triumph. Hollywood's victim, the last Southern team in the tourney, was Shreveport, La., Morris Dickson's, by a 47-38 score. Athens club tossed the Dallas Wilsons into defeat, 44 to 36.

To many tournament followers a clash between Phillips' champions and Luisetti's San Franciscans in tomorrow night's title deciding contest would be a natural.

The Dallas team, made up of every player from this year's Southern Methodist outfit, electrified the tournament Wednesday by beating the Denver Legion, twice former champion, but they couldn't keep up with Oakland, featuring former California and St. Mary's cagers.

Phillips' massive Oklahoma's, their last game, averaged better than 6 feet 4 inches, raced away from their Los Angeles opponents after a defensive first half battle in which neither side scored a field goal for 10 minutes.

BY FRANCIS WALLACE
Widely-known Sports Authority and Writer

I have been asked by my old pal Harry to help fill his space while he is coveting on the beach at Waikiki. Any subject, he says, will do.

Okay. My subject is Grayson.

I always figure that people who read a writer every day are interested in what kind of a guy he is. At least, back in the old home town of Bellare, Ohio, the fans are always asking me about the personalities of writers.

Well, Grayson is just like—Grayson. He's unique. He's a living legend among the sports writers—writing about—for the boys are cynically modest about publicizing each other. Harry is a regular guy and a great newspaperman. He gets impulses and follows them to strange places—such as Waikiki. He has a sense of humor and he also has all the masculine virtues you can think of.

He's somewhere around 40 but he hops around like a 20-year-old. He keeps in shape—probably without any effort. He's about 6 feet, 180, has sharp dark eyes, plenty of hair that is edging from black to gray. His voice is quick and he knows all the American dialects, including the profane. He's always good for laughs and he tells a story better than he knows. He has a full background in sports and he knows as many people personally as any other man you can mention.

I got around some myself in a year's time; and wherever I go I look for Grayson—and usually find him. He's where the fun and laughter are—but the thing about Grayson is that he's always working. He is always looking for an angle and he's always asking questions. He can get more work out of other newspapermen than anybody I know; and I don't know any reporter who gives more to his job.

I first met him in New York about 15 years ago. He came there with a reputation from the Coast. Since then America has been his field. He's a real rambler. He's welcome anywhere—except in those circles where he has recently told somebody the truth where it hurt—either in print or vocally. He does either very well.

His friends and pals are legion. He went to Cuba a few years ago on a holiday and became a pal of the dictator. Now when Grayson goes back, the army meets him.

There's an economic waste at the moment with Grayson at Waikiki. He should be in the war zone. Grayson would make the generals up in the middle of the night. He'd make a parachute landing in London. He'd have Churchill writing pieces for him—and he'd tell Hitler exactly where to get off—and probably get away with it.

In fact, he and I tried just that during the World Series in Cincinnati. We were at a bar at 3 in the morning and life was pleasant. I said that the trouble with Hitler was that he didn't know how to have fun. The idea appealed to Grayson and he immediately put in a call for Hitler—collect. But Hitler never answered. Perhaps he'd heard of Grayson.

Snead Uses Wife As Good Luck Charm

By BILL BONI

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 21 (AP)—Before Samuel Jackson Snead, the new north-south open golf champion, teed off today in the first round of the $5,000 Greensboro open, he made darn sure that Mrs. Samuel Jackson was somewhere about the premises.

It was Snead's fine golf, of course, which was the big factor in his record-setting victory in the north-south at Pinehurst yesterday. There wasn't anybody out there shooting that 11-under-par 277 for him.

Just before last month's St. Petersburg open, Snead went home and brought Mrs. Snead back with him. Up to that time his best showing was victory in one tournament and third place in another. Since then he has won at St. Pete, been finalist in the Miami four-ball, had third best score and fifth money at Belleair, Fla., won the national pro-amateur, and finally won the north-south, a jinx tournament to him in the past. He's been averaging close to $1,000 a week.

Just before the first time Mrs. Snead has acted as a good luck charm. Last summer they went to Canada on their honeymoon, and she reached the final of the P. G. A. championship. Before the summer season ended, he had won top money twice more, and in each case the missus was right there.

Grayson's Scoreboard

While NEA Sports Editor Harry Greenstein, the Sports board is written by leading sports editors and sports authorities.

BY FRANCIS WALLACE
Widely-known Sports Authority and Writer

I have been asked by my old pal Harry to help fill his space while he is coveting on the beach at Waikiki. Any subject, he says, will do.

Okay. My subject is Grayson.

I always figure that people who read a writer every day are interested in what kind of a guy he is. At least, back in the old home town of Bellare, Ohio, the fans are always asking me about the personalities of writers.

Well, Grayson is just like—Grayson. He's unique. He's a living legend among the sports writers—writing about—for the boys are cynically modest about publicizing each other. Harry is a regular guy and a great newspaperman. He gets impulses and follows them to strange places—such as Waikiki. He has a sense of humor and he also has all the masculine virtues you can think of.

He's somewhere around 40 but he hops around like a 20-year-old. He keeps in shape—probably without any effort. He's about 6 feet, 180, has sharp dark eyes, plenty of hair that is edging from black to gray. His voice is quick and he knows all the American dialects, including the profane. He's always good for laughs and he tells a story better than he knows. He has a full background in sports and he knows as many people personally as any other man you can mention.

I got around some myself in a year's time; and wherever I go I look for Grayson—and usually find him. He's where the fun and laughter are—but the thing about Grayson is that he's always working. He is always looking for an angle and he's always asking questions. He can get more work out of other newspapermen than anybody I know; and I don't know any reporter who gives more to his job.

I first met him in New York about 15 years ago. He came there with a reputation from the Coast. Since then America has been his field. He's a real rambler. He's welcome anywhere—except in those circles where he has recently told somebody the truth where it hurt—either in print or vocally. He does either very well.

His friends and pals are legion. He went to Cuba a few years ago on a holiday and became a pal of the dictator. Now when Grayson goes back, the army meets him.

There's an economic waste at the moment with Grayson at Waikiki. He should be in the war zone. Grayson would make the generals up in the middle of the night. He'd make a parachute landing in London. He'd have Churchill writing pieces for him—and he'd tell Hitler exactly where to get off—and probably get away with it.

In fact, he and I tried just that during the World Series in Cincinnati. We were at a bar at 3 in the morning and life was pleasant. I said that the trouble with Hitler was that he didn't know how to have fun. The idea appealed to Grayson and he immediately put in a call for Hitler—collect. But Hitler never answered. Perhaps he'd heard of Grayson.

80,000 Baseball Clubs Will Open Season May 4

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DETROIT, Mich., March 21 (AP)—"How long will it last?"

That old, familiar chant was heard today with Joe Louis, carrying on with what is described as his "bum-of-the-month" campaign, expected to blast the championship aspirations of ponderous Abe Simon tonight.

The battle, set for 20 rounds or less in Olympia arena, is jokingly or otherwise called the 15th defense Louis is making of his world's heavyweight championship since he won it from James J. Braddock in Comiskey Park, Chicago, back in June, 1937.

The chant started in Boston last December when the Brown Bomber beat Al McCoy so unmercifully he was unable to answer the bell for the sixth round. It was next heard in New York where stout-hearted Red Burman yielded in five rounds. Next in Philadelphia where the battle-worn Gus Dorazio fell on his face, completely knocked out, in two rounds.

As the hour of the bout approached there was no one, with the exception of Simon and his manager, Jimmy Johnston, who conceded ponderous Abe a chance. Simon stuck to his conviction that he never had been hurt by a blow and did not believe Louis could do it, either.

Although no one questions the outcome of tonight's bout, scheduled to start at 9 p. m. (CST), it is expected to draw a capacity crowd of 14,000 and a gross gate of $50,000, with tickets selling at $1 to $5.

Buck Set Pace In Scoring But His Team Never Won

TYLER, March 21 (AP)—Buck Overall is one of the nation's leading college basketball scorers. He may be the top man of them all.

But what he'd like to know is how many goals you have to pour through the hoop to win a championship?

Buck has just finished his second season as pace-setter of the Tyler Junior college team with 562 points, almost a third of the squad's total. The year before he flipped in 550.

Yet the best his team ever has done is tie for the Texas Junior College championship. And it was a three-way affair at that with but three teams in the play-off.

It wasn't Overall's fault. He's been playing top basketball five years. Buck was the sensation of Cushing high school which one season won 25 of 37 games yet didn't take the title.

Last season, his first at Tyler college, the Apaches finished second.

This year in the do-or-die play-off finals he rang the bell for 29 points in the first game and 24 in the second as his team edged in with a tie for the title.

Overall, a slim 170-pound, 6-foot-2 youngster with a slow draw and lightning in his feet, has averaged more than 18 points in each college game.

This year he led the Apaches to 23 victories in 30 starts, 26 of them in a row.

He probably will come back here next season to see how many points it takes to win a title. Overall is going to keep on trying but he's getting a little tired of always being the best man but never the groom.

Arkansas To Play Wyoming Five Tonight

KANSAS CITY, March 21 (AP)—The Western NCAA basketball final gets underway tonight with a quartet of champions each boasting a pivot who is truly a "post" graduate.

For the favored Arkansas aggregation the job belongs to Capt. John Berger, whose 6 feet 8 inches makes it possible to click away enemy shots while in half crouch; Ed Beisser, 6 foot, does it for Creighton; Paul Lindeman, 7 inches above the 6-foot mark, is Washington State's offering; Jim Weir, Beisser's physical equal, works for Wyoming.

In tonight's games Freiburger and his Razorback mates oppose Weir and company; Creighton opposes Beisser against Washington State and Lindeman.

Arkansas is favored. The Porkers went through the 18-game college schedule without a loss.

The winner of the western final will meet the eastern champion here March 29 for the national title, won a year ago by Indiana.

Dartmouth, Wisconsin, Pittsburgh, and North Carolina are competing today and tomorrow in the eastern elimination at Madison, Wis.

Arkansas is favored for its all-around balance. The Porkers' starting five averages 5 feet, 5 inches, and includes Johnny Adams, who has shown like a new dime all season.

Against Texas Christian he whipped 36 points through the netting for a Southwest conference high.

Creighton unfurled their bulky Beisser here Tuesday night as the fifth district representative of the municipal auditorium floor by defeating Iowa State, co-champion of the Big Six, for the right to play tonight.

Beisser dunked in 16 points.

Portales College Bids For Higher Place In Grid Sun

PORTALES, N. M., March 21 (AP)—The Eastern New Mexico College Greyhounds, bidding for a higher place in the football sun, announced today a nine-game, 1941 grid schedule listing among their opponents New Mexico State and Flagstaff Teachers of the Border conference, and Oklahoma City University.

The Greyhounds go to Flagstaff September 20 and to Oklahoma City October 3. Other out-of-state opponents include McMurray college of Abilene, Texas, here, Sept. 26; Panhandle A. and M. of Goodwell, Okla., here, Oct. 11; and Northwestern Teachers at Alva, Okla., Nov. 28.

SERIAL STORY

DOLLARS TO DOUGHNUTS

BY EDITH ELLINGTON

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY, Beatrice files an application for a job. She is suggested by the attitude of the personnel director. Her courage in talking up to the director lands her the place. At luncheon she calls Mr. Weening, tells him she is going to South America—without a license. He is surprised, secretly pleased. And Miss Davara, widow member of Huntington's staff, comes from the phone booth.

BEE SIGHS A GOAL

CHAPTER X

BUDGET FASHIONS, in the basement, consisted of a huge amount of floor space bounded by built-in cases filled with dresses of every size and color imaginable. In the center of the department, four iron racks of "mark-downs" proved an irresistible attraction which lured even the most casual of passing customers from the nearby children's department. Housewares, with pots, pans, electric appliances, were on the other side of Budget Fashions.

Miss Bee Davis, who had been working in Budget for a whole week now, supposed that the housewives who purchased double boilers and little boys' pants were the logical customers for Budget dresses, and probably that was why they had put it so conveniently between the two departments.

It had been a hectic and eye-opening week. She had learned to make out sales slips; she had learned the difference between what you did when a customer wanted a purchase charged and delivered, and when it was cash and carry. She had learned to walk up to a woman fingering mark-downs under the blue "Reduced for Clearance" sign, and ask, "May I help you, Madam?" Every customer in the store was "Madam." The lady in charge of the training department had crisply corrected her when she pronounced it "Madame."

Beatrice had learned too that you never turned a hair when a woman who weighed 200 pounds padow around in the size 14's; and no matter how broad of beam she happened to be, if she wanted a print with immense flowers that was sure to make her look like a slip-covered elephant, you let her buy it.

"See how well it fits across the shoulders," she had learned to point out, if the dress was too long. "And, it's just the color for you," if the dress was too tight.

She did not feel happy about those things. They seemed a little dishonest. But Toby Masters told her cheerfully, "That's the way to make the quota sing, honey."

RIGHT now, Beatrice was standing beside a thin young girl who was trying on a black crepe with a white lace collar. "I think that looks very well on you; it's quiet, but it isn't the sort of dress that's easily catalogued." At the strange look in the young girl's eyes, Beatrice hurried on, "No one could tell whether you'd spent $5 or $50—do you see what I mean? You could wear this dress to work, to a dinner party—"

She knew that this was the wrong technique. Toby would have reached promptly for some red horror with an imitation rhinestone buckle. But somehow, in this week she had worked here, Beatrice found herself rebellious. This child simply needed someone to explain things to her. For the same amount of money, she'd get so much better results! So many customers hadn't the faintest conception of how their slim resources could be stretched to make them look smarter.

"It doesn't cost money to exercise good taste," she thought. "Why should this girl walk out of Huntington's with a dress that's a poor advertisement for us and a disaster for her?"

But the thin girl trying on the black dress was stubborn. "I want something—well—more stylish," she said. "One of those prints, maybe. I—I want it to look dressy."

Beatrice sighed and went obediently to the marked-down rack for a couple of prints.

"Yes, sir?"

Something about Mr. Bradley invariably amused her. She didn't quite know what it was. Perhaps it was because he was so earnest. He stalked through Budget Fashions with his clean-cut young jaw set sternly, as if he were bearing lions in their dens. He had rather nice brown eyes, and dark hair that didn't lie quite smoothly.

"Miss Davis, I—er—well, as a matter of fact, Miss Davis, our buyer thinks you should be warned about spending too much time in conversation with each customer." He stirred uneasily from one foot to the other. "We understand, of course, that a sale can't be hurried. But she feels that you are—perhaps unconsciously—er—are attempting to sway the customer's judgment, so that—well, in the end, we shall have a return rather than a sale."

Beatrice's hand on the dresses shook a little. "I'm sorry, Mr. Bradley," she said quietly. "I'll try to do better."

The customer finally walked out without buying anything. Beatrice let her go.

She stood there in the fitting room, touching the rejected dark dress that was smart, practical, and quiet for all its tiny price tag, and thought, "Doesn't the store want the best efforts of its sales people? Is this the way they treat everybody who tries to be really helpful?"

True, the dress hadn't sold. But if the store, as a matter of policy, went in for educating its customers—for being of actual service to them—in the end, the sales would be better than ever. "They'd be dependable, regular repeat sales. Customers would be grateful and come back, for they'd know at Huntington's you got an honest opinion, not just a sales talk."

SHE returned to the sales floor slowly. Mr. Bradley was signing a slip for Toby. On an impulse, Beatrice asked him, "Do you think customers prefer not having the opinions of the salesperson offered them? Some of them are uncertain, they really ask—"

"A store must give its customers what they want, not what's good for them. Everybody's taste is different. We can't go in for educating our customers up to our own individual standards."

"Why can't we?" asked Beatrice hotly. "Oh, maybe I don't know enough about it. But it seems to me that if that same girl walked into the college shop upstairs, they wouldn't let her buy a $20 dress that would announce to anyone who saw it that Huntington's college shop smells bad!"

"Miss Dane has been buyer in this department for 10 years."

She wanted to retort, "Maybe it's 10 years too long." She bit the words back. The store earned a great deal of money, it was certainly a successful store, and efficient.

"I never tried to understand it before. But now that I'm here, I'm going to stick it out. I'll learn."

It came to her that if she were the girl she pretended to be, she'd have no choice. She'd be glad of the job and meek. "I'll take it," she thought fiercely. "I'll stay right here and find out if I'm worth anything or not."

Again she remembered the voice in Mr. Weening's office. "Useless, am I? Well, I'm going to find out if Grandfather's store is really living up to what he wanted it to be. And if it isn't, I'm going to make it over!"

'Cheer Up Boys And Girls,' O'Daniel Tells Convicts

AUSTIN, March 21. (AP)—Inmates of the Texas penitentiary today had this message from Governor W. Lee O'Daniel:

"Cheer up, boys and girls in white, your troubles are all behind you!"

The governor last night joined for five minutes the prison talent radio program from Huntsville by remote control from the mansion.

During the program celebrating its third anniversary on the air, the governor declared he had learned from experience that not all prisoners were bad, reiterated his stand against the death penalty, said he was happy whipping had been abolished in the penitentiary and asserted that of 6,287 prisoners he had granted clemency only 345 had violated it.

"That indeed is a splendid record," he continued.

It was O'Daniel's second appearance on the prison program since he was elected chief executive.

MADISONVILLE, March 21 (AP)—Listen real good, Miss Audrey Mangum, way up yonder in Cambridge, Mass., and we'll let you in on a pretty big surprise:

Better keep a watch for your postman the next few days, cause we sorta suspect he's gonna hand you a big package wrapped in brown paper. For a seven-year-old kid who has never seen a Texas prairie or a cattle roundup, it'll be sorta like Christmas in March.

You sorta caught the fancy of a bunch of Texas cowmen and they're sending you an honest-to-goodness pair of cowboy boots. They got the letter from your mama, all right, tellin' all about wantin' to be in that western home-talent program.

Course, we're sorta spillin' the beans a little by printin' this note that the Madisonville Sidewalk Cattlemen's Association sent along with your boots, but here 'tis—and don't tell it around too much:

"Since you can't find any boots in the backward north, we have hauled off and bought you a pair. We thought boots were sold in any place in the civilized world, but we reckon the north ain't caught up with Texas yet. One time a dry goods merchant in Texas failed to stock boots, but that was back in 1903, and the lynching is hardly remembered anymore."

Don't get excited about not gettin' the 10-gallon hat you wanted, cause the association sorta took care of that, too. You know Amon Carter, that newspaper fellow over in Fort Worth, is in charge of the 10-gallon hats in Texas and they sorta hinted to him that you needed a hat. Would not be a 'tall surprised if you get that hat.

Course you know about those fellows in the Madisonville Sidewalk Cattlemen's association. They're the fellows who got sorta sick of seeing city slickers wearin' boots, so they made a few home-tow rules. If you own two head o' cattle down here in Madison, you can wear boots. If you own three head, you can stuff the right pants leg in. Four head and you can stuff both pants legs in. And if you got six head, you can wear spurs.

Sorta put a cramp in them city slickers, too.

WORDS OF

ence is one of scope and scale alone, for, today, not only is our own liberty threatened, but the liberty of the whole world and the liberty of generations to come. In that speech, made one hundred and sixty-six years ago, there is many a phrase which could be uttered today with even greater significance.

More than a century ago, he asked the Continental Congress, "Are fleets and armies necessary to a work of love and reconciliation? Have we shown ourselves so unwilling to be reconciled that force must be called in to win back our love?" . . . I ask the gentlemen, sir, what means this martial array, if its purpose be not to force us into submission? . . . Shall we try argument? Sir, we have been trying that for the last 10 years. Have we anything new to offer upon the subject? Nothing. We have held the subject up in every light of which it is capable; but it has all been in vain."

A DICTUM FOR OUR DAY

"Or again, 'Are we disposed to be of the number of those who, having eyes, see not, and, having ears, hear not, the things which so nearly concern their temporal salvation?' . . . To the compromisers now left to obscurity, he cried passionately: 'The gentleman may cry Peace! Peace! but there is no peace!'"

When I feel sickened and gorged by the rantings of cheap politicians, I like to close my eyes and think of that slight figure rising to face the whole world with a cry which will live forever. . . . "I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

He knew, as each one of us knows in his heart—that life without liberty is intolerable.

New Welding Course To Be Organized

A new course in trade and industrial welding will be organized the last week in March so that individuals who wish to continue their present course may do so and so that new people may enroll. This affords an opportunity for persons to learn more about such a popular course.

Since welding divides itself into individual jobs and operations so easily, the progress of the individuals will be kept on job tickets so that when they finish the course they will be given an approved ticket indicating just how much welding they know as well as the state certificate of completion. By doing this a person will know exactly how he is getting along in the course and others will also know how the person is getting along in the class work.

The cost of the course will be about $25 for a 48-hour course.

The requirements of the members of the class are they must be employed in maintenance and repair work in which welding will help the person do a better job in his work, or experience which is equivalent to a year's work as a welder's helper or as some type of a welder is required.

Enrollment for the course is at the Texas State Employment Service located on North Russell street opposite the court house, or contact the instructors, M. G. David and Leon M. Cook, both of whom have had actual teaching experience and have been in the welding trade a long time.

Defense Guard Will Hold Regular Drill Sunday Afternoon

Putting into practice the lesson reviewed last night, Company D, Texas Defense Guard, will hold its regular drill at 1:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon on the grounds adjoining the American Legion hut on W. Foster.

There were 20 attending the "skull" session Thursday night at the hut, when First Lieutenant Carl M. Smith instructed the company verbally and through demonstration on the school of the soldier and school of the squad.

Visitors were Harry Wilbur and J. R. Conklin, both of Canadian, who were interested in learning about the Texas Defense Guard with a view toward possibly forming a unit at Canadian.

The war department has received plans for the design of a uniform for the guard but has not yet issued its approval.

As submitted, the uniform will closely resemble the U. S. army uniform with various insignia to distinguish the state's military forces from the national.

Warning Issued On Sale Of Plants

Sale of trees and other plants that have not been properly healed in is against state laws. This was the caution of J. C. Bateman, district 1 plant quarantine inspector for the Texas department of agriculture, who visited in Pampa this week.

There have been cases of plants sold that were in no condition to grow and these have had to be destroyed.

Inspector Bateman is in charge of 72 counties. His last visit to Pampa was two months ago.

"We don't want to file charges against anyone for violation of the laws, but we do want to notify all nurserymen, florists, and other sellers to be sure they are complying with the regulations, in order to protect the buyers," Mr. Bateman said.

Junior Stamp Club Announces Contest

James Reeding, club sponsor, announced that he would give prizes for the most progress in a collection, most club interest, and stamp posters. The prizes will be valuable to collectors.

Discussion on countries contacted through stamp collecting will be discussed at the April 16 meeting.

Jap Minister May Visit In London

BERLIN, March 21 (P)—Usually reliable Japanese sources in Berlin indicated today that Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, now enroute here for Axis conferences, might visit London while in Europe.

They were unable to say whether this might mean he would return by way of the United States.

Official confirmation of the reports was not obtainable and authorized Germans said this was the first time they even had heard of any extension of Matsuoka's visit.

The Tulsa plant, it was believed by the air corps, would cost finally $15,000,000 of which $10,000,000 had been allotted. Similarly the estimated cost of the Fort Worth plant was set at $18,000,000 and $10,000,000 has been allotted.

Canadian Honker Holds Up Traffic

PORTLAND, Ore., March 21 (P)—Residents peered from their windows to discover the cause of a commotion.

They saw a Canadian honker waddling across an intersection, honking shrilly with each goose-step.

Autos screamed to a stop and drivers started tapping their horns in response.

Honks dimmed the neighborhood, until the bird gave one big honk, and flew away.

Where do telephone wires go, Mister?

Well, Sonny, these telephone wires that begin here in your home reach to all America. They cover both our water fronts and the land between.

Which means that we must keep your Daddy's telephone service so dependable, so valuable, so "good" and so reasonable in cost, that he can call next door or far away...anywhere...any time.

Most Injuries Occur In Third Quarter

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, March 21.—A safety conscious trend was reflected today in the Texas Defense Guard High school football.

Sliding downward in all phases were figures on injuries although the number of teams increased. There were no fatalities among the 679 teams playing under auspices of the Texas Interscholastic League.

R. J. Kidd, league athletic director, advanced these reasons for decreasing injuries per team:

Greater concern for safety methods in summer coaching schools.

Insistence of the league upon weekly injury reports, stressing safety.

New blanket insurance policies which made coaches, parents and players "injury conscious."

The report showed:

The average AA squad was smaller last year—38 men as compared with 40 the previous year—while the average six-man team was larger, 16 against 13.

Peak injury period was Oct. 6-12, beginning week of conference play.

Injury peak in games was the third quarter because "boys went back into the game without proper warming up."

Line play accounted for the greatest part of 679 sprains, 382 fractures, 144 dislocations and 136 cuts listed by coaches.
