U.S. May Take Over Kearny Ship Yards

Russia Joins In Movement To Stop Japs

(By The Associated Press) The Soviet government which yesterday (Saturday) accepted the British-American offer of maximum material assistance in the battle against Germany reported today (Sunday) that fighting was still general along the whole 2,000-mile front at the start of the ninth week of the Nazi invasion.

In return for the promised help Russia was reported to have pledged active aid in a "stop Japan" movement.

The British again were active in daylight raids on Nazi-occupied France. American-made fortress bombers flew in the attack on Brest, and one was reported to have been shot down by German fighters.

The British claimed to have shot down 19 German planes and admitted losing four.

France's troubles grew heavier. In Paris the prefecture of police warned the population that sabotage on railroad lines was threatening the city's food supply and offered one million francs for information leading to arrest of the saboteurs.

The imminent possibility of the Pacific situation were further accentuated when the United States Department of State announced that Japan had refused to let the liner President Coolidge pick up about 100 American citizens seeking to leave Japan.

In a statement the Russian promise was reported by an authoritative source, it was said that Japan might stop short in her southward expansion and make an early push at Siberia to help herself and her German Axis partner by blocking the U. S. supply route to Vladivostok.

High Japanese, German, and neutral quarters in Shanghai already had said Japan was preparing for a possible attack on Siberia within two or three weeks. If started later, it might be hampered by bad weather, they said.

In the German invasion of Russia, entering its ninth week today (Sunday), the Red army was fighting a dogged battle of withdrawal on the southern front in the Ukraine while opposing the German stand on the east bank of the Dnieper river.

Russians and Germans agreed on the fury of the fighting, but neither side gave official details. German military accounts claim the U. S. supply route to Vladivostok was virtually encircled and that dive bombers were wreaking havoc in and around Odessa.

The Germans admitted the Russians were defending themselves sternly, saying that as an example of the no-quarter type of fighting, 800 Russians out of 1,000 were killed in one small skirmish.

In the north, both the Germans and their Finnish allies claimed continuing progress. The Germans see RUSSIA JOINS, Page 5

Victoria Gets Ready For 1,200 Fliers VICTORIA, Aug. 16 (AP)—With a staff of some 25 officers on hand today, Victoria's huge army air corps gunnery training base readied itself for 1,200 Randolph Field trainees to arrive within the next two weeks.

Some 3,500 workmen are busy at the field, five miles east on the Houston highway.

Three giant hangars are under construction. Many of the two-story barracks buildings are nearly finished. A mile long concrete apron, concrete taxiways and three concrete and soil runways each almost a mile long will be built.

When complete the base personnel will include some 3,500 officers, cadets and enlisted men from Randolph, Brooks, Kelly and other basic training fields.

Dedmon To Race In Trial Spins Today

(By TEX DEWESE) AKRON, O., Aug. 16—Pampa's Bobby Dedmon with 116 other Soap Box Derby champions from the U. S., Alaska, Canada, and Mexico stepped out into the spotlight before 150,000 people in Akron Rubber Bowl tonight.

He was introduced as one of the potential champions of Sunday's big race at Derby Downs. Bobby had a bit of misfortune in trial spins on the Derby track. He threw a tire on his first trip down. His car will have a new wheel and tire for his first appearance in the All-American.

He is scheduled to race against James Joyt of Kalamazoo, Mich., and Jack Enterman of Rapid City, S. D. His heat is no. 37 in an afternoon race program of 48. Bobby's room mate at Champion headquarters is Edward Keenan of Oil City, Penn. The Pampa News party accompanying Bobby, including his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Dedmon, arrived in Akron Friday after two days of vacation at Ohio's Indian Lake. They will leave Akron Monday on the return trip via the southern route.

Yesterday was a full one for the Pampa champion. At 10 o'clock Saturday morning there was a special Soap Box Derby dedication program at the Akron city hall.

Then young Dedmon joined other champions from the United States, Mexico, Alaska, and Canada in the safety test runs of their cars out at Derby Downs, beginning at 10:30 o'clock.

At noon, Bobby and the other champions were guests at a luncheon in their honor at the Mayflower hotel.

A party for mothers of champions and the ladies of the press was held at the Akron Woman's club at 1 p. m.

Annual party for newspaper escorts was held at the Portage Country club near Akron at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

A dinner and program for the champions was held late Saturday after the test runs at Camp Y-Noah, resort not far from Akron.

Last night, a huge city-wide civic program, at which the champions were honor guests, was held at Akron's new stadium, the Rubber Bowl.

Goebbels Hurts Scorn At High Seas Meeting

(By The Associated Press) BERLIN, Aug. 16.—Both the Roosevelt-Churchill eight points and plan to aid Soviet Russia drew German derision today, the first in scornful words from Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels.

He described the program of the United States President and British Prime Minister as "an outrage against common sense" and authoritative German sources called their promises to Joseph Stalin a "propaganda attempt to cover up the flop of their high seas meeting."

"The whole world realizes the eight points are a ridiculous outcome of so important a meeting," they said. "Hence, to keep alive world discussion of the message to Stalin was launched 36 hours later."

Goebbels added his gibes in an article released to the entire German press.

"Seldom has history seen such a stupid, unimaginative document as the two big guns of world plutocracy framed on the Potomac," he declared.

(Actually, the President left the Potomac, his presidential yacht, for the secret meetings and conferred with Churchill on the United States cruiser Augusta and the British battleship Prince of Wales.)

"We didn't expect much from a meeting of Roosevelt and Churchill," Goebbels wrote, "but that the result would be so meager, foolish and sterile we didn't even dare picture in our wildest dream."

"Whoever wants to disarm us will have to go to the little trouble of taking our weapons from us. To demand that we do that ourselves is stupidity which calls for police action."

"We did that once in November, 1918. But the German people then was still credulous. At that time it had foolish leadership and the enemy a smart one, while today that is reversed."

"We understand clearly why these See GOBBELS, Page 5

Prospects Of Special Session Indefinite

(By The Associated Press) AUSTIN, Aug. 16.—A prospective special session of the legislature in the near future appeared indefinite today after a delegation of county judges refused to accept Governor Coke Stevenson's compromise proposal on the road bond issue.

"There will be no special session of the legislature until the county judges in complete accord upon tense developments in the Far East, as well as the Russo-German conflict, but asserted this nation was no nearer to war than when he sailed away to meet the British prime minister at sea.

The chief executive spoke aboard the yacht Potomac, with anti-aircraft guns mounted on her deck, just before he came ashore at Rockland, Me., and boarded his special train for conferences in Washington tomorrow with Secretary Hull on both the Far East and French situations.

Tanned and obviously happy at what he called the eminently successful swapping of ideas with Britain's leader, Mr. Roosevelt, told more than 200 scores of newsmen crowded into the Potomac's wardroom that there was not a single section of a single continent that went undiscussed during their dramatic meeting.

He made his statement after a reporter inquired whether his declaration that he and Mr. Churchill were in complete agreement on all aspects of the war situation would apply to the Far East as well as the Far West.

"Are you any closer to entering the war, actually?" another reporter asked earlier.

The President said that he would say "no" to the question. Mr. Roosevelt also intimated that the heads of the two biggest democracies saw eye to eye in believing that Russia would hold on against Germany through the winter.

He said consideration had been given at the high-seas meeting both to fitting Russia's immediate needs into this country's production of war materials, and to Russia's needs for the campaign of next spring.

Mr. Roosevelt declared that consideration of Russia's needs next spring were based on the assumption that winter would at least partially halt the Nazi drive.

Then, asked directly if he believed that Russia could stand up, the President said that he guessed from what he had said that there was an assumption in that.

Back from London and Moscow, Harry Hopkins, lend-lease administrator who accompanied Churchill to the conferences, sat quietly at his side as newsmen piled the President with questions, seeking to learn what changes, if any, the deliberations would bring in his country's status in the world conflict.

He would say little on this point, however, beyond declaring that the next step would be only a further interchange of ideas.

The chief executive likewise was silent on the length of his meetings with Mr. Churchill, of the setting of these sessions, except that he did reveal that only one conference was aboard the British battleship Prince of Wales. The others, he said, took place on the United States cruiser Augusta.

He refused—for obvious reasons, he said—to discuss the exact location of the epochal exchange of ideas between the president of a nation at peace, and the head of a government at war. Nor would he, for the same reasons, say when he and Mr. Churchill parted company or where the prime minister was at present.

The chief executive explained, however, that the meeting was a joint idea, planned as long ago as February and postponed because of Britain's campaign in Greece and Crete. It was called, he said, for an exchange of views, looking both to the present and the future.

He said he had even objected to an announcement that he was landing at Rockland today. Then, smiling, he remarked that it had been foggy on the way over and that if any submarines had fired torpedoes they had not been sighted.

The President asserted that a new lend-lease program was still in its study stage, but that it was nearing the point where additional funds See REDS TO LAST, Page 5

Eventually, authorities said, several hundred officers, including regular army men, national guardsmen and reserves, may be retired from active duty and given an opportunity to resign.

Six Axis Ships Sunk, Allies Claim

(By The Associated Press)
CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 16—Six Axis ships and a destroyer were sunk and three others were damaged by aerial and submarine attacks in the Mediterranean, the British and their allies reported today.

Torpedo planes which swooped upon Italian convoy plying from the homeland to African headquarters at Tripoli hit three of the five merchant ships and one of the protecting destroyers, and RAF communication said. Later reconnaissance showed only three of the merchant ships near Tripoli, it was said.

Inasmuch as the stricken destroyer was seen transferring her crew, the British presumed she had gone down along with a vessel of 6,000 tons which was last seen emitting a great volume of smoke, and another of 3,000 tons which listed heavily after the torpedo blow. This attack began Thursday night and continued yesterday, the British said.

British bombers also attacked and hit two tankers of 4,000 tons and two schooners of 800 tons between Tripoli and Bengasi. One of the tankers blew up, the British said, and the other was presumed to have been lost from fire.

The admiralty of the exiled Netherlands government, in London meantime announced that one of its submarines had sunk a 5,000-ton supply ship and a sailing ship of 1,000 tons in the Mediterranean.

RAF and navy bombers teamed up for an assault which raked harbors and airdromes of Sicily from end to end, a communique said.

Market Briefs

NEW YORK, Aug. 16 (AP)—The stock market today finished another down-drifting week with faint inklings of recovery. A little late bidding for stocks, motors, rails, rubbers and specialties permitted a slightly higher close for the majority of leaders.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks emerged with a net gain of 1 of a point at 42.8, its second advance of as much in the lengthy stalemated which began July 29. On the week the composite showed a net loss of 5 of a point. The day's turnover of 119,600 shares was one of the smallest of the year and compared with 321,100 a week ago.

The week's setback was attributed to persistent worries over taxes and spreading governmental controls, fears the Nazis were succeeding in their invasion of the country of the Soviets, and continued apprehension over the likelihood of an escalation in the far east. The market, on average, backed away Monday and Tuesday, was unchanged Wednesday and put on a half-point rally Thursday. Announcement of the Roosevelt-Churchill meetings at sea resulted in hardly a ripple on the financial pond. Prices wilted Friday under light selling.

French Warned Not To Wreck Railroads

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Aug. 16 (AP)—The Paris police, warning the population that sabotage on railway lines serving the occupied French capital was threatening the city's food supply, tonight offered one million francs reward for information leading to the arrests of the wreckers.

The prefecture of police abandoned all attempts at secrecy in warning that the sabotage had reached such serious proportions that co-operation of the public was necessary to stop it.

The appeal brought to the minds of many Frenchmen Chief of State Marshal Petain's recent warning that he felt an "ill wind rising in many regions of France."

The announcement came only a day after General Henrich Von Stuepnel, commander of the German armed forces in France, proclaimed that the entire population of occupied France and not merely the guilty would be held responsible for the outbreaks which have been blamed on Communists.

Two Killed In Auto Collision

LIBERTY, Aug. 16 (AP)—Two persons were killed and three others injured in an auto collision on Highway 90 just outside the city limits of Liberty today.

Mrs. A. G. Histon of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was killed instantly and A. G. Hinson, riding in the same car, died a few minutes after being picked up at the wreck scene.

An identification case gave the address of the couple as 311 South-east Seventh street, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Sheriff Pat C. Lowe was making an effort to locate relatives of the two.

The other car in the wreck was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Skells and a 10-year-old son, of Port Arthur. They were taken to a hospital here. Skells had a fractured rib and other injuries, while Mrs. Skells and the boy were bruised slightly.

BERLIN, Aug. 16 (AP)—RAF raids on German cities killed 298 Germans in July, DMB announced today. The news agency claimed only "slight damage" was inflicted on the German defense economy.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 16 (AP)—After an early attempt to continue yesterday's advance wheat prices today encountered week-end profit taking, hedging sales and adjustment of accounts that caused the market to slump for net losses of as much as a cent a bushel. Prices closed very little changed compared with a week ago.

Lagging flour demand following recent heavy purchases, uncertainty about farm program developments, including presidential action on the bill to govern government wheat stocks, and likelihood of increased country offerings as prices approach low levels were noted factors.

Wheat closed 1/2 cent lower than yesterday, September $1.11 1/2, December $1.15 1/2, corn 1/2 cent down, September 77 1/2, December 80 1/2; oats 1/2 cent off, soybeans 1/2 cent lower; rice 1/2 cent off and unchanged to 3 lower.

American Tourists Robbed In Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 16 (AP)—A series of robberies and petty thefts in which American tourists have been the victims prompted the police department today to announce new stringent protective measures.

The police guard along the Laredo-Mexico City highway will be strengthened, tourist guides will be subjected to closer check and more vigilant watch will be kept over parked automobiles. More English-speaking policemen will be stationed at points frequented by tourists. Orders also were issued to clear the capital's streets of beggars.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 15 (AP)—The second inter-American tourist congress will open here September 11.

The date was set to coincide with opening of the fourth pan-American highway congress, also scheduled for here.

Interior Minister Miguel Aleman was invited to open tourist congress sessions at the national fine arts palace with delegates from 21 western hemisphere republics attending.

Experts Think Coming Crisis On Soviet Front Will Decide Future Of Blitzkriegs

By THOMAS M. JOHNSON
NEA Service Military Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—Eyes of military observers are focused upon the vast struggle in Russia more closely today than ever before. They believe the crisis is very near now which will answer the crucial question: Can the blitzkrieg be beaten?

Reports that the Russians have found the antidote to the most irresistible tactic since the Roman phalanx are reaching here and arousing an interest that is only intensified by German claims of late success. Observers here are eagerly collecting every scrap of information from sources familiar with the Red army, because in Russia, our attacks and those of the British are denied much real information.

But several sources agree that the Red army has, on most of the front most of the time, succeeded in delaying the Nazis, if not actually defeating the attack. The Russians not only fight hard but fight cleverly, according to a plan long prepared.

The trial by fire of this plan now approaches the white heat which will reveal whether the Russians have once again proven true the military saying that for every new means of attack there is found a new means of defense.

To develop this defense the Reds have studied the blitzkrieg in four campaigns. They believed the greatest single problem was to break up the teamwork whereby dive and level bombers, acting as artillery in an uninterrupted barrage of unprecedented range, smashed a way for panzer divisions whose armored points, like encircling sickles, cut swaths through and behind the defending ground troops. The swaths were then followed and widened by infantry, motorized and afoot.

RUSSIA'S ANTI-BLITZ OFFENSIVE PLANS

When this thunderbolt hit Poland, the world jumped as if it had never heard the premonitory rumbling in Spain. When a year later, it hit France, she first acted as if she had never heard of Poland, then tried to defeat the blitz with a defense in depth by many outposts. But France lacked sufficient tanks, airplanes, anti-tank guns—everything, including, perhaps, fighting spirit—to batter in the spearheads of the panzer divisions.

The Russians decided they would cut off these points. As the main body withdrew from the sickle menaces, it left behind detachments far stronger than mere outposts, so strong that they could let the armored points pass, then cut in behind and hold up the following Nazi infantry, whether motorized or foot. Thus the Russians deprived the spearheads of their support and supply. The Russian tanks and anti-tank guns went to work on the spearheads. Some Soviet detachments were left behind, in rambling fortifications especially prepared for the purpose, which explains some German claims of "encirclement." The gaps left by these detachments were filled by new troops as mobilized.

Result: a big battle of a myriad of little ones, each waged as long as the Russian detachment could endure. Then, as Dr. Goebbels said, it "disintegrated"—implying that it ceased to be a fighting force. Actually, it simply melted into the forests and began guerrilla warfare. Russian guerrilla warfare, reports say, is no accident. It has quietly laid out by France, who reorganized the Red army, then by Voroshilov and by the inconspicuous Shaposhnikoff.

They made every co-operative farm an arsenal of dynamite, machine guns, rifles to be used by the co-operative's peasants in a ruthless bushwacking, sabotaging rough-and-tumble for which they had been trained in the army and in civilian "rifle clubs." These guerrillas operate not alone, but in co-operation with the army detachments left be-

Crux of Russia's anti-blitz defense is breaking up hitherto irresistible teamwork between Nazi dive-bombers like these and panzer divisions.

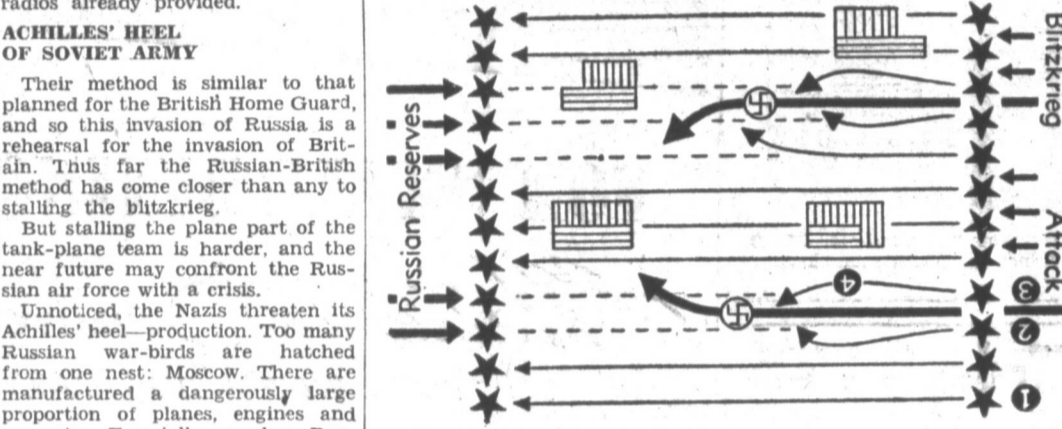

Diagram shows, in simplified form, Russian anti-blitz technique. Stars at left show first Russian position, those at right, the previously prepared second line of defense. Heavy, swastikaed lines indicate blitz attack. When blitz, with characteristic dive-bomber and fast tanks as spearhead, starts, Russians let it through first line. Some Russian units retreat directly to second line, as at (1). Other Russian units, as at (2) and (3), retreat only part way, then turn and pinch off the invading German column behind the spearhead. Use of these units against the blitz columns leaves gaps in the second defense line. Arrows at right show how these gaps are filled by troops brought up from the Russian rear. Shaded areas indicate collective farms, which are used as headquarters and supply bases for roving guerrilla bands.

Will Rogers Riders On Program At Perryton's Birthday Celebration

PERRYTON — One of the highlights of the Perryton Twenty-second Birthday celebration August 21-22 will be the first public appearance of the Amarillo Will Rogers Range Riders in the rodeo arena at Fair Ground Park where these colorful horsemen demonstrate the ability of their mounts before the crowds of celebration fans Friday afternoon.

Many weeks have been spent training 16 of their horses to do the Quadrille and the horses seem to enjoy the square dancing to music as much as their riders.

Another demonstration to be presented by the riders will be a Grand Entry Drill where all horses and riders go through intricate paces and formations. The Range Riders will also have a prominent division in the gals parade on the morning of August 22 when scores of bands, floats, Legion Color Guards, cowboys and cowgirls head division after division of the procession.

The Will Rogers Range Riders were organized only a few months ago as an appeal to horsemen of Amarillo. Bob Dow, former attorney-general of New Mexico and now a federal attorney, was chosen president and the purpose of the riders was to serve as an official welcome committee for their city. To date they have been on the receiving end only for one time when they met the Dalhart All-Women Boosters, and believe it or not, they rode cars with the women. The reason they have not had the opportunity to welcome Amarillo guests is because they have been in demand this summer at every celebration in the Panhandle and like the good sports they are, they just don't refuse whenever they can possibly attend their neighbor's fun.

Mrs. Will Rogers, wife of the world famous humorist, readily gave her consent for the organization to use the name of her late husband. She also agreed to visit Amarillo as their honor guest in 1942 when Amarillo plans to rename North Amarillo's Park to the Will Rogers Memorial Park, dedicate a monument to his memory and change the names of streets and avenues over which U. S. 66 now pass through Amarillo to the Will Rogers Boulevard.

The Range Riders are but one of the score or more featured attractions at the Perryton Celebration this year that includes an amateur rodeo each afternoon; a ball game each night; many dances, parades, and a Dixie Dice Stage Revue the last night at Fair Ground Park. Advance reservations indicate a record crowd at the 22nd Birthday party in Perryton.

Chigger Battle Won

BEAUMONT, Aug. 16 (AP)—Master Sergeant John J. Vidra announced today that the battle-of-the-chiggers has been won. Straight from the maneuvers near Mansfield, La., he declared: "There aren't any more live chiggers. We've met their all-out attack—and absorbed 'em."

The fourth United States census in 1920 showed the nation with a population of 9,638,534, compared to 7,239,881 in 1910.

'Tank Killer' Groups Ordered By Army

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (AP)—Organization of three fast-moving new anti-tank groups designed to break through the enemy's advance units and harry and shatter his armored forces before they are prepared for battle has been ordered by the army's general headquarters.

The units, making up a force of about 6,000 men, have been designated provisional GHQ anti-tank groups, and will be tested in the great war games between the second and third armies in Louisiana next month.

Without disclosing details of their composition, the war department said each of the "tank killer" groups would be composed of three battalions, would be fully motorized and would be armed with 37 and 75 millimeter guns. The intention, the department said, is to develop "tank-shattering gunfire that will be flexible enough to surpass the speed of any armored force and massive enough to defeat it."

The basic tactical doctrine for these organizations, the announcement continued, "calls for enterprise, speed and offensive action of the most persistent kind. They will not wait for an armored force to attack. Their mission will be to search out such a force and stab at it before it gets into formation for battle-field action."

Nine existing anti-tank units will be combined in the provisional groups. Lt. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, GHQ chief of staff, has directed that Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger, third army commander, select a concentration point at which to begin intensive training before the Louisiana maneuvers.

Gen. McNair, in issuing instructions for creation of the GHQ groups, said that working closely with aircraft and scouting forces, they should locate and keep contact with enemy armored units and take advantage of favorable opportunities to "attack such units with massed gun fire."

If the foe attempts a tank counter-attack or a counter-offensive by dismounted troops, the anti-tank groups should exploit their "superior mobility" to gain a more favorable position and resume gun fire.

Organization of the anti-tank groups was left to Gen. Krueger. Four anti-tank battalions and five field artillery battalions were placed at his disposal.

The anti-tank battalions, made up of about 700 officers and men each, divided into three companies of 12 37-millimeter guns each, are:

94th anti-tank, IV battalion, IV army corps, third army, Fort Benning, Ga.

101st anti-tank battalion, third army, Fort Benning.

102d anti-tank battalion, V army corps, third army, Camp Shelby, Miss.

104th anti-tank battalion, VIII army corps, third army, Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

The field artillery battalions, numbering 675 officers and men apiece, are equipped with four guns, batteries of 75s, each battery having eight guns. They are:

18th field artillery brigade, VIII army corps, third army, Fort Sill, Okla.

72d field artillery brigade, second army, Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

73d field artillery brigade, V army corps, third army, Camp Shelby, Miss.

74th field artillery brigade, second army, Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

75th field artillery brigade, VII army corps, second army, Camp Forrest, Tenn.

'Phone Union Will Try To Halt Strike

NEW YORK, Aug. 16 (AP)—Union leaders agreed today to do "everything within power" to forestall a national strike of telephone installation workers pending a review of their contract dispute with Western Electric, Inc., by a super-panel of federal conciliators.

The Association of Communications Equipment Workers, an affiliate of an independent union, the National Federation of Telephone Workers, said the federal government had requested it to avert a stoppage which ultimately might tie up the Bell telephone system throughout the country.

Spokesmen for both management and union said James W. Fitz Patrick, commissioner of the U. S. Conciliation service, would ask Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the service, to set up a super-panel of three members, including Steelman, to review the case immediately.

Henry Mayer, counsel for the union, said negotiations were "permanently terminated" today, still hopelessly deadlocked on the principal subjects of wages, a qualified union shop, and general arbitration.

The union had demanded a master working agreement providing automatic progression wages, replacing the present merit system, maintenance of a union membership clause, seniority benefits, and holiday pay for all observed holidays.

J. Laferriere, comptroller of the company, said the company offered a 6-cent-an-hour wage increase amounting to about $1,000,000 a year for 8,000 installation workers. Mayer said the union rejected it, insisting upon a 10-cent increase.

Mayer said that the union had receded from its original demand for a qualified union shop and accepted a more modified shop as recommended by Fitz Patrick.

After Fitz Patrick asked that the citizens strike be withheld, Mayer said the union replied that "it could not guarantee what might happen in some parts of the country, but that the organization would do everything in power to keep the boys in line until the super-panel held its hearing."

'Biological Balance' Needed To Keep Reservoir Sweet And Pure

BY HUGH WILLIAMSON
Associated Press Staff

The water tasted like a quinine and vinegar cocktail, with a dash of muckilage.

Such a complaint is heard, every so often, in almost every Texas city. Austin was the most recent complaining witness.

Lester C. Brenizer, Austin musician, took a swallow of the stuff, grimaced and wrote a letter to the editor. The water (usually all right);

1. Gave him an ache in the middle.

2. Caused him to hold his nose while drinking his coffee, and

3. Drove all the tourists out of the capital city.

"With all the lakes and good streams flowing into our reservoirs," he said, "why must we tolerate such impossible water?"

Citizens of Dallas, muttering to themselves, pondered similarly some summers ago.

In fact, the situation in Dallas was very bad and Dallas got busy. The city retained Dr. B. B. Harris of North Texas State Teachers college, Denton, as a consulting chemist to determine why the water tasted like something out of a sadistic druggist's nightmare.

"Too much fishing in your reservoir," was the scientist's answer.

The fish (before meeting their fate in the frying pan) ate the algae, he added. But when the fish were gone, the excess algae caused the water to taste and smell as no water should.

Dr. Harris explained that "biological balance" was necessary to keep the reservoir sweet and pure.

"A biologically balanced reservoir," he declared, "is one in which dependent organisms (animals chiefly) daily dispose of the independent organisms (plants) without permitting a chemical imbalance (undesirable taste and odors)."

"The municipal reservoir," Dr. Harris pointed out, "because of favorable conditions for both aquatic plant and animal life, brings into existence a great population of animal life, mainly fish, in which man is interested in taking for food and for sport."

"Unbalance begins in this reservoir the moment man removes therefrom a sufficient amount of the animal life to permit an excessive increase in the plant life, which increase adds an excess of organic material and gives rise to bad tastes and odors."

The secret of what causes bad water bad, incidentally, has just been revealed, Dr. Harris remarked, with scholarly feeling:

"The science of aqua-culture is just beginning to take root in the cerebral cortices of certain scientists and laymen.

"One of the branches of this root is Limnology. Recently budded from this branch is the idea of biological balance. This branch promises most acceptable fruit in full abundance for those who will learn how to cultivate it and direct it into the fullest expression of its possibilities."

Provided, always, people wouldn't expect to catch their fish and drink their water too.

As a matter of fact, Dr. Harris declared, there never would have been any biological imbalance in the water in the first place if it hadn't been for man.

For no selling how many thousands of years the aquatic plants and animals balanced themselves perfectly.

Then man came along and built himself a lot of reservoirs, the water in which was usually all right until the fishermen started their invasions.

There are some people who don't object to "algae water." They say it reminds them of their childhood days, when they used to drink right

97,000 Wells Free To Run Oil, But--

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Aug. 16.—Ninety seven thousand Texas oil wells are free to run a day's production tomorrow as a gift to Great Britain—but how many will flow is problematical.

Started as a patriotic gesture at the suggestion of John F. Camp, San Antonio operator, the oil-for-Britain plan ran into difficulties when a number of operators, asserting it was impractical and in some instances impossible, refused to donate a day's yield of crude.

Members Jerry Sadler and Olin Culberson of the Texas Railroad commission, state oil regulatory agency, condemned unnamed companies they said were attempting to stifle the move by citing legal obstacles the commissioners contended did not exist.

No commission officials would attempt to estimate the volume of intended contributions although Sadler once declared a large number of independent and small operators had informed him they would donate their day's yield.

A ceremony for presentation of warrants representing the oil to federal and British officials has been cancelled.

The method by which the donated oil will be doled to President Roosevelt for transfer to Britain was worked out by commission and federal officials.

Hitler was utterly unprepared when he struck at Russia June 22 for any such bitter resistance. As the ninth week of the war battle opens, his armies seem breathless and nearing the exhaustion point in the vital center before Moscow. Only on the extreme flanks of the Baltic-Black Sea front is the Nazi blitzkrieg still rolling, and neither sector offers the Germans an assurance of conclusive victory before winter.

When he struck in late June, Hitler unquestionably expected within seven weeks or less to engulf Leningrad, Moscow and Kiev and sweep the Russian Black Sea coast to the ocean. In the meantime, the German Rostov, the gateway to Russia's great Caspian oil fields, to Iran and to India.

Instead, only the southern Ukraine and its potential resources in food and minerals yet within his grasp and its cost has been a great expenditure of German lives and German war reserves. Odessa is the first major Russian city to be closely invested by the Nazis. By Berlin accounting, a major Red army disaster is in the making there which will deliver the whole Ukrainian plateau east of the Dnieper into German control.

But given Russian will to fight on behind the Dnieper, even Nazi capture of the whole great bend of this river would not be a vital blow. Complete annihilation of Red army forces in the sea-backed Odessa pocket seems improbable. Routes of escape by land and sea are still open. Natural water barriers offer possibilities of bitter rear-guard stands to keep open a wide set frontage against encirclement. They even afford the means of prolonged seige warfare if Russian army organization in the south has not broken down utterly.

It seems unquestionable that Hitler is desperately seeking to achieve in the Ukraine an appearance of victory on which to found some new peace offensive. Political and military gestures from Axis allied non-belligerent nations such as Japan and Vichy France were synchronized too closely with the Nazi Ukrainian offensive to permit doubt that both were Berlin-dictated as diversions. Undoubtedly, too, the Roosevelt-Churchill joint declaration must be regarded as a counter move to offset in advance that expected Nazi "peace" bid.

Danciger And Mazda To Give Oil To Britain

A few Panhandle producers, two or three, will give oil to Britain today, designated by the Texas Railroad commission as "Oil for Britain" day.

As far as could be learned yesterday only the Danciger Oil and Refineries, Inc. would run oil through its pipelines and only Danciger and Mazda Oil company would give a day's production. One or two others connected with the Danciger pipe line might give.

Major pipe line companies and a majority of major and independent producers in the state said they believed the move illegal because most of the oil is mortgaged in one form and another and that the companies were not given time to secure releases to run the oil.

Coke Stevenson III And Confined To Bed

He had expected to make a radio address and attend a luncheon in those cities.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Aug. 16 (AP)—Police were stationed outside German and Italian shops, newspapers and business offices today as Argentine workers filled the streets in a folded arms holiday to demonstrate their support of Democratic principles against totalitarianism.

REDS TO LAST

would be sought to finance aid for the democracies. In response to questions, however, he said Russia would not get lend-lease aid now on the grounds that that country had available cash to pay for war materials.

Mr. Roosevelt volunteered the remark that one of the statements overlooked in the joint declaration of policy made public Thursday was the necessity for a study of what is happening to the world under the Nazi regime.

The more this subject is investigated and discussed, he asserted, the worse becomes the thought of having these influences spread into affiliated nations.

Asked if any steps had been taken at the conference to implement achievement of the post war goal laid down in the eight-point program, he replied simply that there would be further exchange of views. He said, however, that he did not expect Churchill to come to this country, nor did he expect to go to England.

It was just pure luck, the President added, that his sons, Elliott and Franklin, Jr. were present for the writing of a document which may hold an important place in world history.

He explained that he just happened to catch them at the scene, aboard ships which formed a naval screen against any eventuality while the President and the prime minister deliberated.

Mr. Roosevelt brought back one sharp memory, which he shared with the newsmen through a vivid word picture. He told in simple words of the Sunday church services on the quarterdeck of the battleship Prince of Wales. He said everyone present felt this had been one of the great historic services, in which he and the head of the British government, together with the heads of their armies and navies, had prayed together.

Mr. Roosevelt listed, as the American representatives at the high-sea conference, Hopkins, General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff; Major General H. H. Arnold, assistant chief of staff in charge of air; Major General James H. Brown, army coordinator for the lend-lease program; Colonel Bundy of the war plans division; Admiral Harold Stark, chief of naval operations; Rear Admiral Turner of the war plans division; Captain Sherman of the office of naval operations; Major General E. M. Watson, secretary and military aide to the President; Rear Admiral Ross McIntire, personal physician of the President and surgeon general of the navy; Captain John R. Beardall, the President's naval aide, and W. Averill Harriman, supervisor of the lend-lease program at the British end.

He said the British had what he called opposite numbers to these men as their representatives.

The President made it clear that the army and navy heads of the two governments and their aides had conferred separately, as well as sitting in on the discussions he held with Churchill.

7 U. S. PILOTS KILLED IN 'FERRY' CRASH

The British air ministry announced today that 22 passengers, including seven Americans were killed Sunday when a trans-Atlantic plane crashed into a hillside shortly after taking off from a British airfield. The plane was believed to be a "ferry" plane returning pilots to Canada to fly American-built bombers to England. Photo shows five of seven fliers: Captain Jack Wixen (upper left) of Los Angeles; W. M. King (lower left) from Arkansas; Hoyt R. Judy (center) of Dallas, Texas; J. J. Roulstone (upper right) of Long Beach, Calif.; and Daniel J. Duggan (lower right) of Winthrop, Mass.

Relatives here learned yesterday that Mrs. Judy was on her way to Dallas from Montreal. She had gone to Canada with her husband on May 15. Captain Judy had joined the Royal Air Force and was engaged in ferrying bombers to Britain.

McLean Schools To Open September 1
Special To The NEWS
MCLEAN, Aug. 16 — According to Supt. C. A. Cryer, the McLean schools will open for the coming term Monday, Sept. 1.

Many improvements have been made in the high school that will save the district some $1,000 per year. The improvements involved no labor charge, as Superintendent Cryer and Janitor Overton did the work voluntarily. The efficiency system will permit the school to operate with at least one teacher less on the faculty.

The gift of the 1941 senior class, an inter-communication system, has been installed at the principal's desk with 16 boxes connected with every room in the building, the band hall and vocational room, enabling the principal to talk with anyone in the building and make announcements simultaneously.

All improvements have been decorated to correspond with the rest of the building and the arrangement is highly recommended by efficiency engineers.

Marketers Discuss Gasoline Rationing
WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (P)—Petroleum marketers discussed today the question of equitable rationing of gasoline among the 10,000,000 motorists in the eastern seaboard area, and indicated they would propose specific procedure to 100,000 gasoline retailers next week.

What proposals were under discussion was not disclosed, but some oil men speculated that each sale to customers in the "non-essential" class might be limited to five gallons on one visit to a service station.

Last night's order from defense officials cutting wholesale distribution of gasoline by 10 per cent left the matter of rationing among individual motorists entirely up to the filling station operators. It directed, however, that "essential" vehicles—fire trucks and other vehicles, physicians' cars and the like should receive necessary gasoline.

Secretary Ickes, who also is petroleum defense coordinator, took two other steps during the day.

Oilers Announces To Close Series With Two Games Today

Pampa Buries Lamesa Under 15 To 2 Score

The fast climbing Pampa Oilers and the Lamesa Lobes will close their current series here Sunday, playing games at 2:30 and at 8:30 o'clock.

On Monday and Tuesday nights the Oilers will entertain the Big Spring Bombers in the final games of the second last home stand of the season.

The Oilers still have a chance to finish in the first division and they need the support of every fan in this section.

Both teams will be shooting the works to win Sunday because the team that can win both games will land in fifth place in the league standing.

Last night's victory put the Oilers in fifth place, a half game ahead of the Lobes and the Hubbers.

The Oilers went on the rampage in the first inning with three runs on a walk to McGahey, Guynes' error of Scott's grounder, a triple by Frierson, and a single by Phillips.

Lou Frierson led the Oilers at the plate with a triple, double, single, walk, and being hit for a perfect night at the plate.

McPartland whiffed six and walked three. Tinsley started for Lamesa but was chased to the showers in the fourth.

Fielding gems of the night went to McGahey and Harston on great catches of flies back of the infield.

Phillips And Oilers Beat Lamesa 6 To 5 In Ninth

Billy Phillips, popular first baseman, again came through for the Pampa Oilers Friday night when he smacked a scorching single down the third base line in the last of the ninth with two out to score Homer Matney with the run that gave the Oilers a 6 to 5 win over the Lamesa Lobes.

When the ninth inning rolled around the Lobes were coasting under a two run lead and Lefty Courtney was still throwing his wide roundhouse curves and he was getting plenty of corners from Umpire Bruce while on the other hand Monty Montgomery was getting "tough" in the way of umpiring breaks.

Scott, first batter to face Courtney in the ninth, singled. Then Montgomery bagged his second single of the game. Sam Hale, who hit home into the game for McGahey in the seventh, singled.

Scott crossed the plate leaving the Oilers one run down and two on. Harston fanned. With two away Courtney walked Matney, intentionally, but the walk proved costly when he also walked Courtney.

Lamesa sent one across in the second, another in the third, two in the eighth and another in the ninth. Montgomery got himself in a lot of trouble with his singles in all, and errors wrecked him.

McPartland whiffed six and walked three. Tinsley started for Lamesa but was chased to the showers in the fourth.

Fielding gems of the night went to McGahey and Harston on great catches of flies back of the infield.

Scott And Frierson Only Oilers Hitting Above .300

Frank Scott's batting average hit the skids last week when he got only six hits on 29 trips to the plate but he was still out in front of his teammates in games through Friday night with an average of .345.

Scott and Frierson were the only Oilers hitting above the coveted .300 mark. Emmet Fullenwider, right fielder, got his eye on the ball to raise his average to .279, a hike of 13 points, while Kelly Harston and Bill Phillips jumped their averages to .365, Phillips jumping 15 points and Harston eight.

John McPartland, big lefthander, received credit for two wins over Amarillo to give him 17 victories against nine losses. Glab and Montgomery also came through with victories.

League batting and pitching records through last Monday night, as compiled by the league statistician, revealed that: Although powerful Gordon Nell, Berger manager, has clouded 22 home runs he is below the 300 hitting mark the second consecutive week.

Texan Scores Methods Of Security Body

AUSTIN, Aug. 16 (AP)—A denunciation of methods of the Social Security board in Washington was contained in a letter sent members of the Texas congressional delegation by Director Claude Williams of the State Unemployment Compensation commission today.

In the letter, Williams asserted that the board, a public agency, had obtained congressional approval of amendments to the jobless compensation act that would enable the board to paralyze state administrations unless they complied with demands of the federal agency.

Williams declared the amendments had been sponsored by the board without the knowledge of state administrations and that the board had informed state agencies it felt under no obligation to keep them informed of proposed changes in the law.

The director termed the board's methods undemocratic and appealed to Texas congressmen and senators to keep the state agency informed on proposed amendments.

At a recent conference of state administrators and the board, Williams related, he asked the board whether it believed state agencies should be notified of amendments which "would have the effect of cutting our throat . . ." He said he was advised the board felt under no obligation whatever to advise state administrators.

Williams asserted the drastic amendments, permitting the board to cut off state payroll money unless the state administrations conformed to its requests and allowing the federal agency to take over re-employment systems in such instances, were not contained in original drafts of the legislation.

"After the act was passed," he asserted, "the amendments appeared and for the first time the various state agencies learned that the social security board had . . . in provisions of the act."

"Since such legislation and such tactics often lead to abuses which cannot at first be foreseen," he continued, "we think it well that such things should be discussed by the state agency and its representatives in congress before they are enacted into law."

The director recently announced that only after demands of the board, requesting changes in the commission's partial benefit system for unemployed, had been granted did the board allow the agency its August payroll funds.

Americans Assigned To Protect Health Of 250,000 Chinese

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (AP)—Sixteen Americans, financed partly by $1,500,000 of lease-lend money, have been assigned by the government to supervise the health of 250,000 Chinese who are engaged in building a 200-mile railroad in a malaria-infested area of China.

The health unit, it was learned today, was organized by Surgeon General Thomas Parran, Jr., at the request of the Chinese government. It will be headed by Dr. Victor Haas, a public health service official now stationed at Memphis, Tenn.

The Americans will direct the entire medical, public health, and sanitation program on the construction job. The railroad will parallel the Burma road in some of the most highly infested malaria regions in the world.

The Chinese government has guaranteed military protection for the unit.

Conference May Cause Japs To Stop, Look, Listen

(By The Associated Press) LONDON, Aug. 16—London quarters reported today the forthcoming three-power conference of Russia, Britain, and the United States will be directed not only at augmenting the flow of war supplies to the Soviet for her war against Germany but also plan for making Japan "Stop, Look, Listen."

These sources said they understood the Soviet had agreed to active participation in plans to put a brake on Japanese expansionist moves as a part of the arrangement by which she is to receive a stepped-up flow of war materials.

It was believed by observers, however, that Soviet Russia would not have much to say openly concerning the Japanese phase of negotiation, for of incurring complicating factors in the world situation.

The threat of Soviet armies in the Far East, which may receive considerable supplies of planes and other materials as a result of the three-power conference, however, is calculated to check any plans the Japanese may have of aiding her Axis friends by attacking Siberia.

British quarters believed the talks of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill may already have caused Japan to alter her plans for southward expansion, and that she may rest content for the time being with her newly-occupied bases in Indo-China.

Both Russia and the United States were reported in British quarters, however, to be "slightly nervous" about Kamchatka, the 1,000-mile-long peninsula which drops down from the northeastern tip of Siberia to enclose the sea of Okhotsk.

Some quarters said this territory would be a prime plum for the Japanese navy, and in Japanese hands would be a threat both to the United States' string of Aleutian islands and Alaska, as well as to the sea and air route of communications between the United States and Russia.

Airplanes are expected to be high on the list of supplies Moscow will seek in the three-party talks.

KPDN Radio Chat

One of radio's favorites has joined the staff, so to speak, of KPDN. And he has brought with him one of the finest of all radio shows, voted so by millions of listeners.

We refer to Chick Martin, a favorite of farmer-listeners and others all over the country. He is emceeing his new "Checkerboard Time" show over KPDN, starting Tuesday morning at 7 a. m.

You farm folk have heard Chick Martin and his Checkerboard Time show at this hour in the past; so make it a point now to listen to KPDN at 7 o'clock on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays from now on.

The rest of you—those who live in town—may be just trying to wake up at that time. Well, place a radio beside your bed and roll over and turn on Checkerboard Time at 7 o'clock every morning. You'll find no pleasanter way to wake up in the morning.

Chick is a veteran of 16 years of radio broadcasting.

In a nationwide poll of farm radio listeners, Chick was voted a favorite, second only to Uncle Ezra of the famous National Barn Dance.

Chick was one of fourteen children of a Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin, farm family, and his mother was blind when she was still quite young. She required her children to read to her and to read properly and distinctly. This training stood Chick in good stead when he got into radio broadcasting.

He began singing about the time he learned to talk and has been singing ever since. He studied music in college and sang concerts after graduation.

But Chick's interests are not altogether artistic. He's a big, rugged fellow—a rabid baseball fan—who played semi-pro ball for several years. One of his principal hobbies is his garden. He likes the soil, having grown up on a farm, and he likes farm people. And judging by the following received by the Checkerboard program, they like him.

Featured on the program this time are the Cass County (Texas) kids, a western trio; 13-year-old Billy Hill, one of the most talked-of radio singers in the business; the Swanee River Boys, a quartet of four southern boys, and the Checkerboard Chow Hands, a six-piece western ensemble.

Remember, 1340 on your radio dial at 7 a. m. every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

The I. O. O. F. Orphans' Home in Corsicana will be represented in a radio broadcast by the Home glee club next Friday morning at 10 o'clock. Twenty-five children are in the group.

The glee club will be in Pampa Wednesday, Thursday and Friday and will entertain at the city auditorium Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. The public is invited to hear them.

Have you heard Elmer and Delmer with their hillbilly voices, their piano and calisthenics (that's Delmer), and the clarinet and sweet potato playing (that's Elmer)? The boys have been coming on each morning at 8 o'clock. Ray Monday is the bewildered master of ceremonies.

Listen to the ball games each evening and on Sunday afternoons. There's a contest in which you'll be interested, the rules of which are explained during the ball game broadcasts.

Speaking of contests, listen to the contest rules that are being explained on the All Request Hour each night.

PIONEER DIES

Death closed another chapter in the colorful history of the Top O' Texas with the passing of John A. Chambers, 81, early day cattleman, retired merchant, and former treasurer of Hemphill county. Mr. Chambers was a native Texan, born in Hood county, where he lived until 18 years of age when he came to this section of the state in 1882. The last few years of his life, Mr. Chambers spent in writing a story "The Bashful Cowboy." He was keenly interested in Panhandle history. Funeral services for Mr. Chambers were conducted at the First Baptist church in Canadian Wednesday.

Variety Of Defense Problems Face President On Return To Washington

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (AP)—President Roosevelt's return to the capital tomorrow will find a variety of problems awaiting his attention and disposition.

First will be the ever acute question of accelerating the delivery of defense supplies to Great Britain, the armed forces of the United States, and also of Russia.

For some time, criticisms of the defense setup, as cumbersome, less efficient than need be, and hampered by overlapping duties and powers, have been numerous. And the critics have not been confined to the group which opposes the President's policies.

There have been reports, some of them seemingly well-founded, that a shake-up of the defense organization is imminent, one report had it that Mr. Roosevelt had appointed Judge Samuel N. Roseman, of New York, to look into the situation and make recommendations. However, a high official said Judge Roseman was confining his studies to the overlapping of functions of the Office of Price Administration and Office of Production Management.

Whether or not major changes are made, however, the situation presented is one that calls for White House decisions of a major nature. In addition, Washington would not be surprised if the President were bringing as many problems back to Washington as await him here, problems calling for decisions based on the information exchanged at the Churchill conference.

On the domestic front, strikes continue to present problems, particularly that at the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Company in Kearney, N. J.

Several bills await Mr. Roosevelt's signature, notably the army service extension bill, adding eighteen months to the possible service of draftees, national guardsmen, reservists and army enlisted men.

Then, there is also another big defense appropriation bill—$7,586,895,000—but still carrying less money than the army and the administration requested.

Ex-Wheeler Man Dies In Oklahoma

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS CANADIAN, Aug. 16—Word was received here Friday morning of the death of Henry Fry in Sulphur, Okla.

Mr. Fry settled in Wheeler county, in the 70's, but has made his home for a number of years in Sulphur. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lillie Fry, and a son, both reside in Sulphur Springs where burial will be made.

Mr. Fry was an uncle of Mrs. T. S. Jones of this city and it was to their home that she came from her home in the east to teach school in the Texas Panhandle. She later married T. S. Jones, pioneer cattleman. Mrs. Jones spent a month early this summer at the springs and visited in the Fry home.

Just Between Us Girls

By Johnnie Davis

It's the human touch in this world that counts. The touch of your hand and mine, that means far more to the fainting heart than shelter and bread and wine. For shelter is gone when the night is o'er and bread lasts only a day. But the touch of the hands, and the sound of the voice Sing on in the soul away."

After writing Tex's Topics for just one day, filling this space seems like child's play. Writing about traditional gowns of satin, attractive decorations, menus, and Just Between Us Girls, evidently is a much easier job than trying to think of something of interest to both men and women. . . . Dramatizing the romance of newspaper work in a magazine article, the late O. O. McIntyre, noted columnist, stated, "The real reporter is a strange animal." . . . We arrived at the conclusion Friday, that anyone who can turn out a column each day is very strange indeed.

Why is it that so many people are surprised when the weather gets hot in the summer time? Like several days last week which preceded and followed a cool day or two. . . . Speaking of the weather, do you know what is consistently the best news story? It's the weather. It is hard to find news day after day and year after year that can beat Jupiter Pluvius, Merry Sunshine, "cooler today," or "thunder showers possible."

The main topic of conversation between Mr. and Mrs. Truman Hobbs, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Holloway, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sanford, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Northup is house planning, building, or furniture. . . . Frances and Truman Hobbs and Zenobia and Russell Holloway are still discussing blueprints while the Sanfords are about ready to buy furniture and the Northups already have purchased furniture.

A girl who buys a cedar chest does not have to worry that her "hopes" may be barred to the world. . . . Cedar chest manufacturers point out that these chests come equipped with pick-proof locks tricky enough to keep curious little brother, an expert at opening locks, from peering inside his sister's hope chest.

Mrs. Hal Suttle, who is a talented seamstress, has an extensive collection of small shoes of various kinds. . . . Another whose sewing she admires is Mrs. W. G. Kinzer. . . . One of the most attractive aprons we have seen recently was made by Mrs. Kinzer. The apron folds up just like an accordion and looks as if it were one small strip of material.

Another popular woman, Mrs. R. G. Peeler, will be moving from Pampa soon to make her home in Brownfield. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Peeler went to Brownfield, where he was transferred, and being unable to find a house immediately, Mrs. Peeler returned to Pampa to stay until September 1. . . . Mrs. Peeler, who is a member of a prominent pioneer family, has been employed in the office of Supt. L. S. Lane. . . . She was honored last week by Zenobia Holloway at an informal bridge party.

What a world! Trouble meets you halfway but you have to pursue happiness. . . . Most of us are accomplishing so much tomorrow that we're too tired to work today. . . . One of the toughest problems in connection with the spending of leisure time is how to get hold of something to spend along with it. . . . Perhaps the greatest objection to the state of being old is that there's not much future in it. . . . An oldtimer is a fellow who remembers when women cleansed their faces with soap and water.

Have you noticed the red topped milk bottles which have been placed in the drug stores, grocery stores, cafes, hotels and drive-ins by the health committee of the Business and Professional Women's club. . . . Contributions to the fund to be used in buying lunches for underprivileged school children of the city are to be dropped into these containers. . . . The Pampa B. P. W. club's publicity chairman, Lillian McNutt, has been named publicity director for the entire district.

Amazing things are happening in England these days, not the least of which is the way business women are getting together in organizations. . . . At the time of the outbreak of the war there were no business and professional women's clubs in all the British Isles. Today there are 40 and new ones are being formed at the rate of one every three weeks. . . . No one dreamed that women of a country as hard pressed as England has been this last year would have the time or interest for forming new clubs of a type never before known to them. . . . But perhaps there is a new need for companionship among women with similar interests at any rate these organizations of business women have multiplied in spite of blackouts and bombings. In fact, many first meetings were held in bomb shelters and the rules of organizations read above the din of air raids.

Many people believe the popularity of these clubs is an indication of a more democratic spirit among the business women of England and a prophesy of the kind of cooperative companionship that will prevail in the days after the war is over.

Visiting here are Mrs. T. P. Morton and daughter, Evelyn, of Mount Vernon, Illinois, who are former Pampans. . . . They are house guests of Mrs. Raymond Harrah and Mrs. H. M. Davis, an aunt of Mrs. Morton, who is a past president of the City Council and Woodrow Wilson Parent Teacher Associations, as well as an active worker in First Baptist church and various study clubs. . . . Mrs. Morton is just as active in Mount Vernon organizations as she was while in Pampa.

Word has been received of the marriage of Claude Motley, Western division manager of the Griffith Amusement circuit, with headquarters at Lubbock, and Miss Sylvia Ainsworth of Lubbock. . . . Immediately after the ceremony on August 3, the couple left for a honeymoon trip to New Mexico. . . . Mr. Motley formerly was manager of the LaNora, Rex, and State theaters here.

Can anyone living in the Panhandle for any length of time imagine having to buy enough dirt in which to plant a flower? . . . Mrs. Harold McMurray of New York City, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Tolbert, who have a farm east of town, did just that. . . . Mrs. McMurray brought a nickle package of dirt in a five and ten cent store in New York City and then the plant died!

Because of the silk stocking embargo, American women may have to switch from sheer silk hose to no hose at all—a transition which might be scarcely noticeable. . . . The women proved they could "take it" when warnings were published that the supply of silk for stockings might soon be exhausted. . . . Much of Pampa's feminine population hurried to town to "stock up" and some bought as many as 10 and 15 pairs. . . . What's bothering us though, what are these women going to do with all of these silk hose when others make their appearance wearing heavy cotton and lisle stockings as they are doing in larger cities now. . . . A shortage of washing machines and a return to the old fashioned scrubbing board is coming next, due to the defense priorities.

Happiness consists in living a tomorrow that never comes and in remembering a yesterday that never happened.

Strangely becoming shapes and peacock hues are important hat news in the fall, 1941, previews, and these four felts make the most of those two trends. The model at the left in the photo above is vivid green. It has red—yes, red!—coq feathers and brim stitching. Next is radio actress Ann Eden in Sally Victor's big bonnet that reminds you of the curious figures in a geometry textbook. This also is a two-color hat. The triangularly turned brim, of brushed wool, is black; the crown and top of brim are powder blue suede. Black is used to accent grey in the bumper-brimmed felt, upper right. The wave-blocked crown is circled by a black grosgrain band.

There's a fresh detail in the classic tan swager hat, lower right. Its rust-colored band is of cowhide.—Marguerite Young.

Tiny scrolls of parchment held by miniature wedding rings contained the names of the couple and the date of the wedding. The scrolls were placed for each guest by ribbon streamers from tiny centerpieces of yellow garden flowers.

Notes RED CROSS VOLUNTEERS

By MRS. HOL WAGNER

So many splendid offers of services to the Red Cross have come in this week that it's hard to know where to start! Pampa women, young and old, are opening their hearts to the need of Britain's war sufferers and are determined that Pampa's full quota of 4860 garments for British relief shall be met.

Youngest Pampa volunteers are two little misses aged 10, Katherine Jo Zalley and Vaucelle Moore, each of whom is knitting a sweater.

Fifteen-year-old Mary Helen Hays used some real ingenuity in trimming the size 12 dress she finished this week. It has stitching of red-colored yarn around the collar cuffs, and pockets, and the buttons have clever tassels extending from them.

Nita Rose McCarty, aged 16, has begun work on two inties for 8 year-olds, and her chum, Joyce Warner, who is also 16, finished the first of Pampa's quota of 30 kiddie suits—a tiny little maroon sweater with matching knee pants. It is on display at the production room in the basement of the post office for those who are interested in making one of these little suits.

The greatest need right now is for more knitters. The full quota includes 64 women's sweaters, 22 men's, and 128 children's; 30 knitted suits for children 2 to 6 years of age; 40 matching sets of sweater, beanie, and mittens for the toddler packs; and 60 pairs of socks!

Yarn for any of these items can be checked out at the production room any afternoon Monday through Friday, and a knitting instructor is on hand from 3 to 5 o'clock each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. In addition Mrs. Fred Roberts, production chairman, has authorized me to say that if any organization or group of friends wishes to meet at some other time and place to learn to knit, the Red Cross will send an instructor if arrangements are made in advance.

Mrs. Charlie That is issuing a call for volunteers to assist in making the 40 toddler packs intended for children from 9 months to 2 years of age. She will be in the production room each Friday afternoon to help those who wish to knit sweaters, beanies, or mittens like those the little fellow is modeling in the accompanying picture. She has made up samples of these and says they are so tiny that it takes almost no time to make them.

In addition to the sweater, beanie, and mittens, the toddler packs will each contain 17 garments that have to be cut and sewed: one snow suit, two pairs of rompers, two sleepers and diapers will be made of wool, since the children have to spend so much time in the air raid shelters. The diapers, at the request of the British women, are being made of terry cloth.

Most of the terry cloth diapers are already being made. Mrs. Frances Gehring and her mother are checking 96. Mrs. W. F. Mensing checked out 36 for the Six Arts club of which she is president. Mrs. Harold Wright checked out material for 24. Mrs. J. E. Ward finished 12 this past week, and Mrs. R. D. Morris is working on 20.

Mrs. Roy Bourland turned in a beautiful knitted blue sweater for a man this week. It takes more than a little courage and perseverance to start on one of the men's sweaters—they're so huge. Mrs. Paul H. Clark, Mrs. C. R. Followell, Mrs. W. G. Kinzer, Mrs. Robert Louvier, and Mrs. J. E. Ward each completed a sweater during the past week, and Mrs. Ray Nielson turned in two. Mrs. J. S. Wynne turned in her

Five young women from the BGK club have volunteered their services to assist in distributing and collecting materials for Red Cross production work. They will furnish their own cars and gasoline and have agreed to go anywhere in the local Red Cross chapter's territory, which covers most of Gray county. This service will be especially helpful to women who live in outlying oil camps and cannot always conveniently come to town during the hours that the production room is open.

If you cannot come to the production room to check out materials, telephone or mail a post card request to Mrs. Fred Roberts, and one of the following young women will bring the materials to your home: Mrs. Charles Lamka, Mrs. George Pollard, Mrs. Wayne Phelps, Mrs. Allen Evans, and Miss Mary Price.

Before long material for the 100 layettes will be ready to be distributed. During the past week volunteers cut out 200 little woolen undershirts and 80 blue baby-blankets. Assisting with the cutting on Tuesday afternoon were Mrs. W. G. Kinzer, Mrs. Andrew Melkie, Mrs. Doyle Osborne, Mrs. L. L. Davis, Mrs. J. A. Meek, Mrs. C. L. Shearer, Miss Edith Shearer, Mrs. E. J. Kenney, and Misses Peggy and Jean Melkie.

On Thursday the following helped: Mrs. Andrew Melkie, Miss Peggy Melkie, Mrs. Jessie Sowders, Mrs. C. L. Shearer, Miss Edith Shearer, Mrs. Robert Louvier, Mrs. L. L. Davis, Mrs. Doyle Osborne, Mrs. Joe Shelton, and Mrs. Walter Daugherty.

Even summer visitors are helping with Red Cross production. Mrs. Maud M. Hall of Chatham, Illinois, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. W.

Warmth for British Children

Michael Collins, 19-month-old son of Dr. and Mrs. H. Dale Collins of Oklahoma City, smiles, as he models a sweater, beanie, and mittens to be included in a Red Cross toddler pack for British children. Volunteers are needed now to begin work on these items for the toddler packs in the Pampa quota. Mrs. Charles That has charge of the toddler packs and will be in the Red Cross production room in the basement of the post office each Friday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock to give instruction in knitting. Besides the sweater, beanie, and mittens, there are 17 garments to be cut and sewed for each toddler pack, intended for children from 9 months to two years of age.

Purviance, completed three dresses for four-year-olds this past week. Mrs. Purviance also turned in two dresses that she had made.

Miss Harriet McCarthy of Oklahoma City, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. S. G. Surratt, is crocheting a shawl.

Mrs. R. D. Nice, who has already made 30 dresses for the Red Cross, was in one day last week and checked out material for two ladies' woolen skirts. Mrs. Nice is a professional dressmaker and has about all the orders she can fill, but she still takes time to sew for the Red Cross.

Mrs. W. D. Waters finished two of six children's dresses to add trimming to the woolen skirts during the past week. Mrs. J. M. Sowders turned in two dresses and Mrs. Elmer Mundy one.

Miss Helen Commons and Mrs. W. A. Spoonmore each checked out six children's dresses to add trimming to. That leaves only a few untrimmed dresses on the rack, though there are still many more dresses to be made. Would someone like to volunteer to add trimming to the remaining dresses?

COAT TOP PAJAMAS

A timely pattern—for those who are making back-to-college wardrobes—and for all women who like simple tailored styles in pajamas. This coat-type is a perennial favorite—it's mannish, breezy, smart—made up in plain colored or printed fabrics. The jacket is made on a yoke which fits smoothly through the shoulders, and allows an easy slits to be distributed through the front and back. The trousers are made with a neatly pleated front and an elastic band across the back which holds them firmly.

Pattern No. 8002 is designed for sizes 12 to 20. Size 14 with long sleeves requires 5-2-3 yards 35-inch material for trousers and coat top.

BABE IN BUSINESS WOODS

Life in Carvel was never like this, Andy Hardy reflects, as he puzzles through a switchboard as a part of his preparation for being a captain of industry, in "Life Begins for Andy Hardy," newest in the popular M-G-M series, opening a four-day run today at the LaNora. Mickey Rooney decides to test his ability in New York, after graduating from Carvel High, and before settling down to a decision on whether to study law, or to start out immediately in the business world.

San Francisco is the 12th largest city in the United States with a population of 629,553. Rainfall often is 25 per cent greater in wooded land than in open spaces.

HERALDING DAWN OF V-DAY

Strong drama of the German underground movement, powerfully directed, with grand performances by the entire cast, is The Film Daily's label on Warner-First National's 95-minute picture "Underground." Jeffrey Lynn and Karen Verne, above, with Phillip Dorn and Mona Maris, are the principals. Tempo of the film is grim, dealing with war-time life in Germany, Gestapo brutality, and anti-Nazi campaigns. It is strong stuff from beginning to end. Opening a three-day run today at the Rex.

STARK REALISTIC DRAMA

Stark realism and superb craftsmanship put the accent in the drama "Rage in Heaven," 82-minute Metro pic, starring Robert Montgomery and Ingrid Bergman, above, opening today at the Crown. Although this is "heavy" drama, it is an excellent film, directed by W. S. Van Dyke II, his final, until the end of the national emergency. Story deals with Montgomery as the weakling son of a feminine operator of a steel mill, his marriage to Stella (Miss Bergman), and later, what happens when hereditary madness possesses him.

POLL PROVES NO 'FILMGANDA' PROBE NECESSARY FOR U. S.

Majority of Pic Fans Not Annoyed By So-Called Propaganda In Recent Shorts And Newsreels, Ruch Committee Reports

By BROWNWOOD EMERSON
Last week I pointed out that the idea of a congressional committee to investigate purported propaganda in newsreels and pics seemed far-fetched to me.
"The Missouri senator, Bennett C. Clark, has gone ahead and set the machinery in motion for such a committee. They might save themselves a lot of work if they would simply take the report of Committee for National Morale.
This group found that the American public doesn't care if shorts and newsreels had some propaganda in them or not. The poll was conducted by Dr. Floyd Ruch, associate professor of psychology at the University of Southern California.
The Film Daily reports on the findings of the committee:
Dr. Ruch had his staff of trained interviewers put the following questions to "representative members of the public" with the results indicated:
"What kind of newsreels and short subjects do you like best?"
Those dealing with the war in Europe.....26%
Those dealing with America's defense program.....44
Those dealing with non-military events.....30
To determine the public's reaction to propaganda, two questions were asked.
"Have you been annoyed by any propaganda in the feature pictures you have seen recently?"
Yes.....16%
No.....77
Don't know.....7
"Have you been annoyed by any propaganda in the newsreels and shorts you have seen recently?"
Yes.....25%
No.....68
Don't know.....7
"The American public is taking a realistic attitude toward war and defense," concluded Dr. Ruch. "It doesn't like war but it is prepared to face it when and if necessary. In the meantime, it wants to know what is going on and looks to the newsreels and shorts for information. So-called propaganda is annoying only when the individual feels that something is being put over on him. Most Americans now feel that they have a real stake in national security and are naturally not annoyed, to see the defense program moving along."
A LeRoy Masterpiece
Mervyn LeRoy is at his directorial best in "Blossoms in the Dust," which is showing Friday and Saturday at the LaNora amply justifies this column breaking the rule against long synopses.
Here's "Blossoms in the Dust," as told by Associated Press writer Robin Coons:
The story opens at the young Edna's well-to-do home in Wisconsin, where she meets the bold young man from Texas who a year later is to make her his wife.
There is, in the household, a beloved foster-sister (Marsha Hunt) who takes her own life on the discovery that, by standards of the day, she is an outcast—an "illegitimate" child. Edna never forgets this tragedy.
In Texas the Gladneys prosper. A son is born. Knowing that she can never become a mother again, Edna is stunned by the loss of the boy, and for a time turns against her husband's efforts to interest her in adopting a child.
But little by little the pattern of her life is shaped: first it is a day nursery she operates for working mothers, and then, when fortunes change and they are struggling again in Fort Worth, a home for the care and intelligent placement of waifs.
She wages a continual fight for funds along with a battle against bigotry which culminates in her fight in the state legislature to save children from being branded as "illegitimate."
She carries on after her husband's death, wins her final victory over self by giving up one particular child she had planned to keep as her own.
New Nick Carter
Third in the Metro Nick Carter series is the 72-minute melodrama, "Sky Murder," featuring Walter Pidgeon with Donald Meek and Karen Verne, showing Wednesday and Thursday at the Crown.
Pidgeon is summoned to Washington by Ashley to meet Lessey, a senator who heads a committee to investigate espionage. Pigeon turns the job down, but gets himself mixed up in the whole thing when two murders are committed on the plane in which he is coming back to New York.

BIOGRAPHY OF TEXAS WOMAN

Moving biography of a woman who still lives and carries on her work in Fort Worth—Mrs. Edna Gladney, worker for foundlings and orphans—is "Blossoms in the Dust," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture in technicolor, 100 minutes, showing Friday and Saturday at the LaNora. Walter Pidgeon, in the scene above, is telling Greer Garson to go on with her child welfare work whether or not they will be able to continue the undertaking together.

Robin Coons, Associated Press writer, describes Miss Garson's performance as glowing, says her beauty is given new fullness by the color camera, and that Pidgeon, the husband, is great.

ROMANTIC

Lucile Fairbanks, lovely Warner Brothers star, lends plenty of romance to the 63-minute comedy, "Calling All Husbands," on the LaNora screen Thursday. Ernest Truex has the role of the hen-pecked husband who one day, after drinking some apple cider, says "no" to his wife, played by Florence Bates. Miss Fairbanks and George Reeves play the role of the couple who marry despite the disapproval of Florence.
Many surfaces of aircraft engines are protected by heat-treatment in electric furnaces and oil baths or by other methods which make them so hard and tough they will turn the teeth of the finest file without receiving a scratch.
Working parts of the modern aircraft engine are something like toy balloons—as long as the surface is intact they are good, but nick the surface and they are gone.

Chinese Valor Theme Of New March Of Time

How China's 400 million people are today only just beginning to fight the invading armies of Axis partner Japan is shown in the latest March of Time film, "China Fights Back," which comes to the screen of the LaNora theater Aug. 29.
Although China has already suffered grave losses in her four-year-old war with aggressor-nation Japan, the March of Time shows she is today mobilizing her full manpower and industrial resources for a new struggle to drive out the invader and reestablish her national economy.
Under Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, the first man in 800 years big enough to unify and direct the tremendous energies of the Chinese people, China was well on the road toward becoming an exemplary democratic nation when the war began.

In "China Fights Back," the March of Time shows how the Chinese people are today continuing their all-out effort to preserve their national independence and their free and democratic way of life.

SERIAL STORY

SECRET VOYAGE

BY JOSEPH L. CHADWICK

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY After telling Jeffrey Hammond and Eric Forbes that another ship is looking for the Sonora, the telephone rings and the same mysterious voice asks Jim Mallory. Jim is warned if he doesn't deal with him there will be trouble. The man offers to double the offer made by Hammond. Jim has another talk with Stacy, again accuses her of working for someone else, and asks her why Hammond and Forbes don't want the Sonora's location known. She denies his accusation. That night, Jim takes Lois Hammond to his apartment, kisses her. Later he hears voices in the patio. He is planning to get Hammond to send the girl to New York for four. She can't be trusted and "may talk to Mallory."

"Just—just thinking."
"What's that in your hand?"
She looked down. It was a cigarette case, a good one of silver. "I found it outside just now. I knocked it, saw it glint, and picked it up. It was quite warm, as if it had been on someone's person. Did you drop it just now?"
"No," Jim said. He remembered that Forbes' companion had lighted a cigarette behind the house, ducking his head down as he did it. "Let's see the thing."
Mary didn't obey. She was staring at the case, with wide and frightened eyes. He could see initials engraved on it. He stepped close, reaching for the case, but Mary held it behind her.
"She said, 'No!' shrilly, and trembled. He reached for her, meaning to take the thing. She struggled and broke away. He took another step toward her, then the suave voice of Eric Forbes hailed him.
"Don't you understand when a lady says no, Mallory?"
"Jim faces the man. Forbes' eyes weren't pleasant, and steel was in his voice as he said, 'Perhaps you'd like to apologize.'"
"Sorry," he said. "I made a mistake." Mary just stood there holding the cigarette case behind her without speaking. Jim swung around and left.

last night. I guess I do seem like a mug, always manhandling you. But this Sonora business has me jittery. There are a lot of queer angles to it. I thought that cigarette case might give me some sort of lead."
"I think you know a great deal about that cigarette case."
"What do you mean?"
"I think you dropped it. Eric Forbes thinks so, too. I showed it to him. He says you must have dropped it."
"He does, eh? Listen, Mary, you recognized that thing. You were afraid to let me see it, yet you let Forbes see it. Forbes isn't your friend. He's going to have you search for the case, but Hammond ship you back to New York, to get you out of the way. He thinks you can't be trusted."
"I—I don't believe that!"
But she did believe it, and it frightened her. Jim said, "Mary, where did Forbes say I got that cigarette case?"
"Off the Sonora, when you went down to her," she replied, and her voice had a strange choked-up sound.
"How did he know it came from the Sonora?"
"He didn't know, but I did. It belonged to the Sonora's first mate, Bert Halloran, who was lost when the ship went down. I know because I gave it to Bert Halloran just before the Sonora sailed from New York the last time."
Jim Mallory said nothing. He understood the grief he saw in this girl's eyes. Bert Halloran had meant a lot to her. She had been in love with him.
"Tell me the truth for once, Jim," she said. "Did you drop that case last night? Did you find it on the Sonora?"
He would have answered, but Jeffrey Hammond came up behind them. Hammond said, "I'd like to talk over the deal now, Mallory."
"Very well, sir," Jim said. He stood up. "I'll see you later, Mary."
He didn't see Lois come to the pool a moment later. Lois' dive was as smooth and perfect as her figure. She swam the pool's length, then climbed out and stood looking down at Mary Larsen. Her eyes were narrow and smoldering.
"I think, Miss Larsen," she said, "you forget you are merely an employee here, and that you are not paid to make a play for our guests."
She ignored Mary's alarmed eyes. "To be blunt, I want you to stop over-reaching yourself. I've decided that Mr. Mallory is my private and personal property. Do I make myself clear enough?"

PRIVATE AND PERSONAL

CHAPTER VI

JIM MALLORY snapped alert.

He cupped his cigarette in his hands to hide the glow, then turned in his chair to look across the patio. It was too dark to make out faces, but one of the two men was Eric Forbes.

The two men walked through the patio toward the rear of the house. Their voices died away, but Jim caught this much: Eric Forbes was afraid Mary Larsen would tell him, Mallory, something.

Jim stepped on his cigarette and took after the two, moving silently across the dark patio. He wanted a look at Forbes' companion. At the rear corner of the big house he paused. He saw Forbes going on around the house while the other man walked toward the drive where a car was parked without lights. He drove off without switching on the lights.

Jim frowned and turned back toward the patio. His movement was so abrupt he collided with someone. He heard a startled "Oh!" as he grasped a soft arm. He saw then that it was Mary Larsen. She was trembling and her face was a startling white oval in the darkness.

"So it was you—!" she said, as if she were breathless. "I heard from the rumpus room. You and that man—"
"What did you hear, beautiful?"
"I heard you mutter that the Sonora was worth a cool million."
"You what?" He stared, bewildered and startled. "You didn't hear me say that. That was Eric Forbes and a stranger."
He drew her by the arm into the dark rumpus room, afraid Forbes might take a notion to come back. He found the light-switch. Mary was pale in the sudden light.
He asked, "What were you doing in here in the dark?"

20-Year Old Snake

ROSCOE, N. Y., Aug. 16 (AP)—

Alfred Drober celebrated his 21st birthday by smoking two cigars that were as old as he was.

A tobacconist gave his father the cigars more than 20 years ago with the jesting suggestion that they be kept as presents until Alfred, then six months old, reached his maturity.

Studebaker Cars And Tractor Sales In July Break Record

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 16—

Factory sales of Studebaker cars and tractors during the month of July were the largest for that month in the history of the company. The total was 14,633 as compared to 1,973 unit factory sales in July, 1940, a month which the plant was partially shut down in preparation for the next year's models. For the first seven months of 1941, factory sales amounted to 88,143 units in comparison with 63,361 in the same period in 1940.

Retail deliveries in July were 12,800 which is the highest figure for that month since July, 1923. For July, 1940, retail sales were 9,001 units. In the first seven months of 1941 retail sales were 84,323 units as compared to 63,009 in the same period in 1940.

"The extraordinary public demand for new automobiles during the month of July was accounted for in considerable part by the need of transportation to accommodate the millions of workers who are being added to industrial payrolls this year," said Paul C. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Corporation. "Under those conditions, Studebaker's sales in July were limited primarily by the ability of the factory to produce from parts and material available," he added.

350,000-Mile Dodge Crosses Continent On Factory Visit

That even long-established automobile factories are not entirely surprise-proof was shown the other day when Carl D. Thomas of Arcadia, Calif., parked his roadster near the Dodge factory and sought an interview with Service Director W. B. Bamford.

"I drive one of your cars," said Thomas. "When I bought it, the dealer assured me it was the most dependable car built and would serve me for a life time. The car has given me excellent and economical service," the visitor continued to explain. "Of late, however, she has begun to act as though she wasn't quite her self. So I decided—I live in California, understand—to drive her in and have her looked over at the factory where she was built."
"Yes, of course," spurred the service director. "What model are you driving?"
"A roadster," replied the visitor.
"But we are not manufacturing any roadsters—haven't made any for years."
"Well," said the caller, "you certainly made this one."
"When did you buy it?"
"In 1922," the Dodge owner replied.
"Oh," gasped Bamford, "nineteen years old? How may miles?"
"About the equivalent, I should say, of 14 trips around the earth's equator—roughly 350,000 miles."

Mountain Sheep May Be Moved

(By The Associated Press)
AUSTIN, Aug. 16 (AP)—An inquiry into the causes of deaths among a remnant of mountain sheep in the Diablo mountains and the feasibility of moving the animals to the Chisos mountains in the proposed Big Bend park area is proceeding as rapidly as possible, Will J. Tucker, secretary of the state game commission, said today.

Tucker explained that investigations by state department field biologists had disclosed there remained only 150 of the species in Texas and that these were dying out by one, possibly from diseases contracted from domestic sheep.

"The encroachment of domestic sheep, of course, has been a factor in extermination of the species," Tucker asserted. "It is our opinion the game might die out in that area but we are doing everything possible to save it."

"We hope it may be feasible to transfer the remaining animals to the Chisos mountains but many difficulties arise in that direction. Mr. J. Stockley Ligon, trapping expert for the U. S. fish and wildlife service in connection with Pittman-Robinson act projects, currently is conducting a personal survey of conditions in the Diablo mountains.

"As soon as we receive his report, we will make recommendations to the federal authorities."

Tucker mentioned that a careful investigation of the Chisos area would have to be made to determine the exact spot where the sheep were likely to find a new and more suitable habitat.

"Then the national park authorities, if the park is established, will be asked to permit us to control predators in the area," he continued. "But the biggest problem is a method of trapping. And if the sheep can be trapped, they will have to be transported on horse and mule-back since no truck can penetrate the range where they live."

REV. E. M. DUNSWORTH

Calvary Baptist church membership is planning a Home Coming Day with a special all-day program, Sunday August 24, commemorating the fifth anniversary of the Rev. E. M. Dunsworth's pastorate.

Rev. Dunsworth, above, came to Calvary Baptist church on August 1, 1936. At that time there was an average Sunday School attendance of 50. One hundred twelve members were reported at the associational meeting in September following his arrival. There were three Training Unions and attendance was small. At the present time there is a membership of 400. Sunday School and Training Union are fully graded by classes and departments, with 15 Training Unions and more than 20 Sunday School classes. A new auditorium and class rooms have been completed this year. There is now a pastor's home adjacent to the church building.

The program for that day will include Sunday School as usual at 9:45 a. m. followed by morning worship at 10:50 with sermon by Rev. Dunsworth. At 12 o'clock there is to be a basket dinner served out of

Texas Ranks Twelfth In United States In Dollars Spent On Defense Projects

(By The Associated Press)
No available source will venture even a rough estimate as to the number of men currently employed on Texas defense projects. The total, they say, varies too widely from day to day.

Likewise, there is no method of determining the progress of the huge program that involves one-twelfth of the Continental United States. New projects are begun while others are underway. By the time one is finished, another is conceived. In Texas, the dreamer dreams with his eyes open to dodge the result of his yesterday's vision.

Dallas is a good example. The North American Aviation Trainer Plane plant is completed; the naval air station at Hensley field is a little less than half done; Avion Village, housing project for NAA workers, is practically finished; Roseland Courts, negro housing project, is only well-started; two other housing projects—one for Mexican, the other for white families making not over $60 per month—are in the hands of government architects; the Dallas Defense school is shifting from pillar to post until a recently approved $150,000 bond issue provides permanent city-owned and operated quarters.

The same situation on greater or smaller scale can be duplicated in practically every Texas city. The state itself, it is more significant perhaps than any definite measure of accomplishment.

Harold H. Young of the department of commerce regional office gives some definite information, however, when he says that on the basis of dollars spent for defense projects, Texas ranks twelfth in the nation.

Other states, he says, received a total of $589,085,000 for defense spending during the fiscal year ending June 30. California was first with $2,062,000,000. Other states leading Texas were in order: New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Massachusetts, Virginia, Washington, Connecticut, Maryland and Ohio.

In Texas, the war department led all other branches of the government with $329,490,000. The navy department was second with $130,588,000.

Other expenditures and contracts included: U. S. Maritime commission, $66,199,000; commerce department, (civilian aviation), $346,000; FSA (defense housing), $109,000; WPA, $44,000,000; Federal Works Administration, $1,544,000; U. S. Housing authority, $2,792,000; Public Building administration, $3,011,000; office of education (defense training), $2,540,000; NYA (defense training), $2,788,000; Defense Plant corporation, $2,932,000; and RFC, $17,698,000.

An extreme but interesting example of the tempo at which Texas defense building is juggling was the fell-swoop Aug. 1 announcement from Washington that 26 airports necessary to national defense had been approved for construction or improvement.

Cities and amounts involved were: Abilene, $148,000; Amarillo, $134,000; Arlington, $490,000; Beeville, $198,000; Brownsville, $457,000; College Station, $76,000; Corpus Christi, $310,000; Eagle Pass, $45,000; Galveston, $200,000; Georgetown, $394,000; Greenville, $410,000; Houston, $373,000; Kerrville, $299,000; Kingsville, $160,000; Laredo, $45,000; Longview, $100,000; Marfa, $218,000; Mathis, $178,000; Midland, $298,000; Mineral Wells, $78,000; Palestine, $363,000; Sweetwater, $107,000; Temple, $335,000; Tyler, $283,000; Vernon, $270,000; Waco, $189,000.

The Texas Contractor, Builders' Trade publication, reported construction contracts totaling $171,722,411 in operation for the first six months of 1941. The total compared with previous periods as follows: 1940—$115,107,969, 1939—$71,215,148, 1938—$63,110,231.

All divisions of building boomed. Non-residential projects led the 1941 record with $93,788,455. Engineering awards were second with $42,049,880. Residential construction, much of it necessitated by defense plants, totaled $37,883,896.

Indications are that defense needs will continue to stimulate Texas building for months to come, the publication said.

The Eleventh (Southwest) District Federal Reserve bank's monthly business review for July said that construction during the first six months in 1941 was the highest district level on record for that period, exceeding the same period's 1940 record by 36 per cent.

In Texas it said, publicly-financed building during the first half of 1941 showed a 39 per cent increase, and privately-financed work showed a gain of about one-fourth.

Promise of continued activity was shown when Uel Stephens, assistant regional PWA director, announced at Fort Worth that by late July, Texas cities had filed application for $6,681,000 municipal PWA construction necessitated by needs of army training camps and defense industries. Applications had been open less than a month.

Orange asked more than a million dollars for school, store, sewers, roads, and other projects necessitated by its crowding shipyard workers. Other samples: Wichita Falls asked for $170,000; Corpus Christi, $80,000 for a recreation center; three common school districts near El Paso, $112,000; Arlington, $82,000. Houston plans to ask $6,000,000 all its own.

Out-of-state workers have thronged to Texas, and Texas workers have gone to other states. From as far as Washington and Oregon, New York and Maine, Florida and Georgia, Texas craftsmen have been reported.

The Texas State Employment service reports a shortage of skilled male workers in many building trades. Likewise, in mechanical defense industries, Defense training schools—public and private—have appeared throughout the state.

Principal labor shortage reported for women workers is in commercial fields—stenographers, typists, secretaries. Several hospitals throughout the state also have reported shortage of nurses. Attracted by commissions and good pay, nurses have entered army and navy service.

South Texas farmers and fruit growers report a shortage of farm laborers. The South Texas Chamber of Commerce has asked U. S. immigration officials to admit Mexican workers on a temporary basis.

Defense industry has its growing pains, but Texas is on its busy, dizzy way, and like all boom periods, no one bothers much about the future. They don't have time!

Rabbit Foot Luck
WOOD RIVER, Ill., Aug. 16 (AP)—A man lost a rabbit foot he had carried five years for good luck and within 48 hours these things happened to him:
An automobile collided with his parked car.
Next day another car hit his machine, further damaging it.
The internal revenue bureau informed he owed $42.56 additional taxes on his 1939 income.
He got into his car to drive off—and the battery was dead.
