Stormy Protests Heard At Neutrality Act Hearing

Ohioan Wants Material Put In Record

'Star Chamber' Session Charges Hurlled By Vorys

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (AP)—The House today voted to place certain material in the committee record.

Before any witnesses were called, Chairman Bloom (D-N.Y.) vigorously gavelled down attempts of Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio) to place certain material in the committee record.

Vorys sought permission to record a letter which he and three other Republican members and addressed to Bloom, protesting against the limitation of the hearing to two days, together with telegrams received by the chairman from opposition witnesses.

Upon the motion of Rep. Luther A. Johnson (D-Tex.) Bloom ruled the request should be considered in executive session, to which Vorys replied that he wanted to be heard publicly.

"The chairman has made a stumpy speech here," the Ohioan said, "and I don't want a star chamber session."

He referred to a statement Bloom had made at the opening criticizing unidentified minority members for saying they had submitted lists of witnesses they desired to be heard.

Johnson arose and told Vorys that "we're going to do things in a decent way. We're not doing anything to say about it."

After Bloom had gavelled the committee into silence, the committee voted 10 to 6, with one voting "present," to go into executive session.

At that point, Rep. Mundt (R-S.D.) got up and tried to make a statement.

"You sit down, Mr. Mundt," yelled Bloom, pounding his gavel again.

Bloom then ordered the room cleared and announced that the open session would be resumed as soon as the question of the record was settled.

Seeking to end the hearings on proposed revision of the neutrality act by nightfall, the committee allotted the anti-revisionists as much time as sponsors of the change received yesterday, when three cabinet members testified there was a compelling reason for the modification.

Even now the navy was reported to have sufficient anti-aircraft guns for the immediate needs of American merchantmen.

Spurred by the testimony of Secretaries Hull, Stimson and Knox that removal of the ban was imperative, Chairman Bloom (D-N.Y.) declared the committee would not permit any extension of the hearing.

Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, who was the administration's final witness yesterday, told the committee that an important reason for arming merchant ships was to give them some defense against air attack. Later, Rep. Rogers (R-Mass.), a member of the committee, said Stark had authorized her to state that the navy had a sufficient number of anti-aircraft guns for that purpose.

Government Asks 11 Per Cent Boost In Production Of Oil

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 14 (AP)—Oil men were told by a government spokesman that their industry was being asked to boost production 11 per cent over the 1940 output during the next 12 months "with just 70 per cent of the steel" and similar reductions in chemicals, alloys and plastics.

E. O. Buck of Houston, Texas, assistant director of production in the office of Petroleum Coordinator Harold C. Jones, said the federal aim was to keep present wells flowing, stimulate wildcatting, and bring about orderly development of proved fields.

Hitler Hordes Drive Closer To Moscow

Churchill Bans Debate On Russia

LONDON, Oct. 14 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill raised a screen of secrecy around the question of aid to Russia today, refusing to permit the House of Commons to debate the subject of British help and declining to discuss the course of the battle before Moscow.

In a brief parliamentary exchange Laborite Emanuel Shinwell, advocate of a British diversion in the west, had asked for a debate on aid to Russia. The prime minister brusquely brushed aside questions, however.

"Mr. Shinwell should not suppose," declared Churchill, "that he has a monopoly of anxiety in these matters. I do not see any reason at all for an early debate at the present time on the situation in the east."

"I think it might be detrimental. I am sure it would likely do more harm than good."

Decision On Trinity Canal Due Thursday

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (AP)—Chairman Mansfield (D-Tex.) said the house rivers and harbors committee probably would decide Thursday whether to include a plan to spend $114,500,000 on navigation and flood control improvements on the Trinity river in omnibus authorization measure soon to be reported to the house.

Those testifying for and against the plan had their final words yesterday in the hearing before the committee.

In a final bitter attack on the plan, Representative Monroy (D-Okla.), called the Trinity a creek, said it was preposterous to think of making it navigable inland to Dallas and Fort Worth. He said it would benefit only these two cities.

Roy Miller of Corpus Christi, Tex., replying to several opposition statements, said as the closing witness that army engineers had found the waterway definitely feasible after many years of careful study. He pictured the river as a feeder tributary to the Louisiana-Texas intracoastal canal and to a great system of inland waterways throughout the country.

RAF Bombs Cities In Western Germany

LONDON, Oct. 14 (AP)—Royal Air Force bombers pelted Düsseldorf, Cologne and other objectives in western Germany last night in the revitalized British aerial offensive, the air ministry announced today.

A small force, the air ministry added also attacked the docks at Boulogne, and shipping was raided off the French and Netherlands coasts.

Five aircraft were acknowledged missing.

It was the fourth consecutive night assault upon Germany, one of a series of around-the-clock attacks instituted on Germany or German-occupied territory since a long period of bad weather kept the bulk of Britain's airmen grounded.

Connally Opposes Scrapping Ships

WACO, Oct. 14 (AP)—Senator Tom Connally says the U. S. navy is the strongest in the world and "I'll never vote to scrap one of those battleships or destroyers because of any treaty on the face of the earth."

"Our supreme duty," he told a Rotary club audience here yesterday, "is to arm this nation—build a wall of steel between here and Europe and here and Japan—so powerful that no aggressor will ever dare step foot on American soil."

He said American defense production was making progress within the limits of circumstances confronting the administration. He explained he said this "because so much misinformation goes out that the nation doesn't know the real truth."

Fifty per cent of this country's war material is going to fight Hitler as aid to the democracies, he asserted.

The senator was to address a lawyer's luncheon today at Houston.

It's better to buy Star tires than see them. Williams-Sill sells them.

PRINCIPAL SPEAKER at the first fall meeting of the Panhandle chapter of the American Petroleum Institute tonight at 8 o'clock in the city auditorium here will be Oscar Haas, above, district manager for Allis-Chalmers with headquarters in Tulsa, Okla. The meeting will be free to everyone.

Henderson Rules Out Proposal To Hike Oil Prices

A proposed 25-cent-a-barrel increase in the price of crude oil, effective tomorrow, has been deferred by the Phillips Petroleum company at the request of Price Administrator Leon Henderson, it was learned today.

Frank Phillips, chairman of the board, said a price increase was first proposed by the company about July 15 but that the company was asked to delay any action for 90 days. The second proposal was made October 7 in a memorandum which declared that the United States is approaching a shortage of crude oil and petroleum products because of the decrease in discovery of new reserves and smaller recovery.

No statement has been made by other purchasers of oil regarding a proposed increase in the price of crude.

Phillips is one of the largest producers and purchasers of crude oil in the Panhandle.

When the proposed increase was suggested, Phillips reported: "The demand for crude oil is now 20 per cent larger than in 1937 and 10 per cent above 1940 and is steadily rising. Meanwhile the annual rate of discovery has fallen 60 per cent since 1937."

"The price of crude oil should be increased immediately for the following reasons:

"1. The declining rate of discovery must be reversed. The stimulating effect of price on exploration is the only effective and practical means of accomplishing this."

"2. The cost of finding new reserves has risen threefold since 1937 and is steadily increasing."

"3. The cost of finding, acquiring and producing crude oil has increased 42 cents a barrel since 1937."

"4. Rising costs of labor material and taxes are affecting the entire production situation and are threatening the small wells of settled production with premature abandonment."

Plane Hunted On Desert At El Paso

EL PASO, Oct. 14 (AP)—Rugged desert expanses of Southern New Mexico appeared today to have swallowed up an army observation plane and its crew of three, missing since yesterday when it was last placed only a short distance from its base.

After nearly 24 hours of searching, aerial and ground crews were still without a trace of the ship at mid-morning.

Ten ships of the 120th Observation Squadron over the area north of Fort Bliss in Southern New Mexico, and shortly after 9 a. m. one of the planes returned briefly to report no progress.

The missing plane and its two officers and sergeant last reported by radio about noon, and were due back at Briggs Field at 1 p. m. At the time, it was towing a gunnery practice target southeast of the Organ mountains, only about 50 miles air line from Fort Bliss.

Military authorities planned to send First Cavalry division horse troops and jeeps into the hills to search the brush. During the night, observation planes looked for flares.

Authorities at a dozen Southern New Mexico points were on the lookout but several reports proved without foundation.

The pilot's last report stated he was flying to Briggs Field, the army airport, to have repairs made on the reel by which the target is towed. He was then above the gunnery range being used by the 260th Coast Artillery, District of Columbia anti-aircraft regiment.

It was estimated the ship had an hour's fuel supply at the time. The weather was bright and sunny.

There ended all trace of the 3-seater observation plane and the occupants, Second Lieut. Willis Hunt of Blueville, Ark., the pilot; Second Lieut. Caesar E. Kaiser of Louisville, and Sgt. Richard Lauck of Denver.

No signs of flares or camp fires were seen by searchers in planes and jeeps yesterday afternoon.

The fliers' mission restricted them to operations within a 200-mile radius of the field. CAA stations throughout southern and central New Mexico had no reports of the ship.

Mr. John B. Lauck, mother of Sgt. Lauck, said in Denver last night she dreamed a week ago that he had fallen from an airplane.

Norris Says War With Japs Might Not Be So Bad

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (AP)—Senator Norris (Ind.-Neb.) declared today that an American-Japanese conflict in the Pacific might develop "quick as a wink" if Germany should defeat Soviet Russia, and he added he was "not sure that war with Japan would be a bad thing for us."

The 80-year-old legislator, only remaining member who cast a senate vote against entry into the last World War, said that a German victory over Russia might lead to interference with American shipping in the Pacific.

The United States, he asserted, would not tolerate any such interference, and he disclosed that navy officials had advised him "they could sink the Japanese fleet within two weeks."

"Although they may be a little optimistic," he said, "I believe we could lick them (the Japanese)."

"A navy man told me that our bombers could get the whole island of Japan in one night, because Japanese cities are built of wood and are just so much tinder."

Norris made these observations to a committee on a senate appropriations subcommittee started closed hearings on the house-approved $5,985,000 lease-lend appropriation, part of which may be used to help Russia.

President Roosevelt in a statement yesterday said that large amounts of supplies already were en route to Russia and that munitions promised the Soviet for October delivery—including tanks, planes and trucks—would be sent to the U. S. S. R. before the end of the month.

The Scouts will march in the big parade at 11 o'clock Saturday morning. At night the Scouts will appear in the grand finale of the ceremonial to be presented at Huber baseball park. All Scouts in uniform will enter the field after Indians and white men, carrying both Indian and American flags, have formed a large circle designating the men of the past (the Indians), the men of the present (the white men), and the men of tomorrow (the Boy Scouts).

On Sunday afternoon the Scouts will go to the site of the Adobe Walls battle where Indians attending the ceremonials will dedicate a monument to warriors who fell in the battle.

Final ceremonial will be at 8 o'clock Sunday night.

Scoutmasters of the council have been asked to make all arrangements for their members to attend the campout and ceremonials.

AFL Head Voices Support Of Britain

In his most forceful foreign policy declaration of the Federation of Labor convention, Green declared last night:

Penney was taken from the city jail where he had been held since last Wednesday, dressed in fresh clothing and given a haircut for the return trip.

Thompson said they would start sometime today.

As he left the jail Penney told newsmen that "if I get death I will have no fear of the chair, it'll be over in a minute or two."

Texas Highway Patrol Cadets Work 14 Hours A Day At Mabry

AUSTIN, Oct. 14.—It takes a lot more than a uniform, a badge and a pistol to make a Texas Highway patrolman.

At 6 a. m. each week day a bugle sounds in the big dormitory at Camp Mabry and 93 student patrolmen roll out. By 7 o'clock they are dressed, had roll call and 15 minutes of calisthenics, and are ready for breakfast.

From 8 o'clock until noon they are drilled in a host of subjects presented through lectures and classroom demonstrations by instructors who are nearly all members of the department of public safety. The studies range from history and geography to traffic control, physiology, criminal identification and investigation, criminal law and procedure, court demeanor, investigation of simulated crime scenes, and even a mock court trial.

Divided into four khaki-clad platoons, they spend an hour in snappy military drill on the big parade grounds before lunch. This teaches the cadets discipline, self-control and coordination, it was pointed out by State Police Director Homer Garrison.

The roar of motorcycles, the crack-spout of pistol and rifle fire, the glistering of perspiring bodies growing tough under rigorous physical training, and the increasingly fluid diction of embryo public speakers mark the afternoon sessions.

Next in order come one-hour periods each for recreation, dinner, and first-aid training. The day's grind ends at 9 p. m. after a two-hour study period, and then there's a free hour before taps is blown at 10 p. m.

The cadets entered school Sept. 1 after making the highest grades in statewide competition. Although each was examined by a physician before submitting his application, 12 of the first 100 appointees were rejected when state police doctors subjected them to a physical examination said to be as tough as the one given U. S. army air corps cadets.

Predominantly college men and all between 23 and 35, they come from all walks of life. Among them are a school principal, a football coach, mechanic, ice plant operator, seismograph operator, tax collector, flying cadet, newspaper reporter, accountant, salesman, justice of the peace, and grocery clerk. Few have previous experience in law enforcement, because, as Colonel Garrison says, "the training they receive here is far above anything they've ever seen." And after five weeks of it, the cadets readily agree that Garrison puts it mildly.

Late this month the class will graduate. Sixty of the rookies will become drivers license examiners, the rest highway patrolmen. Then on Nov. 1 a second school will start, and approximately 60 students in it will all become highway patrolmen.

After graduation the rookie is placed on six-months probation and is assigned to work with an experienced man.

Sooners Oppose Canalization Of Trinity River

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (AP)—Canalization of the Trinity river in Texas was described today by Representative Monroney (D-Okla.) as a "foolish and wasteful" proposal that would benefit Fort Worth and Dallas but destroy the commerce of hundreds of other communities in Texas and Oklahoma.

Testifying before the house rivers and harbors committee, he declared that the "only purpose of the project is to force down rail rates."

The Trinity river program calls for dredging of a canal 9 feet deep and 100 feet wide inland from the Gulf to Fort Worth at a cost of $114,500,000, of which flood control works would account for approximately $19,000,000.

"By changing the law and allowing truck competition, you can force down railroad rates, and save the $14,000,000 you propose to spend here," Monroney suggested.

The Oklahoman repeatedly referred to the proposed canal as a "ditch" and said it was "preposterous to think this creek" could be converted into a waterway as an economically sound undertaking.

"It is silly to presume Oklahoma wheat would move via the canal," he continued. "The through rail rate to Houston from Enid, where most of our grain is shipped from, is 33 cents per 100 pounds as compared with 27 cents to Fort Worth. That would leave a margin of but six cents to pay for handling, transferring and moving the grain on by water to Houston."

Monroney challenged the figures on which army engineers had based the economic justification of the waterway, then continued: "I am afraid that they have become imbued with the amazing spirit of the followers of Amon Carter, (publisher of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram) who has long demonstrated the theory that nothing is impossible for Fort Worth if the treasury holds out."

Representative Johnson (D-Okla.) also testified in opposition to the undertaking.

"But I can't get as excited about it as my colleague," he declared. "I don't think there's the remotest possibility that we will see the Trinity canalized to Fort Worth in our generation."

The committee received a petition from five Texas congressmen whose districts are within the Trinity river watershed, asking approval of the program.

The signers were Representatives Dies, Summers, Luther A. Johnson, Patton and Lanham, all Democrats.

Rail Unions Reject Carriers' Wage Plan

CHICAGO, Oct. 14 (AP)—Heads of two of the 19 railroad unions which have called a strike to enforce wage demands characterized as unsatisfactory today a management "plan of emergency compensation for the carriers' 1,260,000 organized employees."

The plan was submitted by F. G. Curley, chairman of the Carriers' Conference committee, to President Roosevelt's fact finding board yesterday.

It would increase by 6 per cent earnings up to $30 a week or $65 on semi-monthly payrolls, effective Nov. 1, and amount to $95,004,000 if it remained in effect a year.

George M. Harrison, president of the Railway Clerks union, termed it a "bonus plan" which is "deceptive in its operation and unsound as a means of adjusting wage rates."

The five operating brotherhoods have asked for a 30 per cent increase while the 14 non-operating have asked for raises of from 30 to 34 cents an hour.

John Barrymore Not Dying, Says Doctor

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14 (AP)—John Barrymore has laryngitis and it has aggravated his chronic stomach condition. But there's no reason to become alarmed, assures Dr. Hugo M. Kersten.

Barrymore went to bed yesterday and reports that he was dying spread quickly through the movie colony. That did alarm Dr. Kersten, who issued this statement: "John Barrymore is ill of laryngitis. It has aggravated his stomach condition but he is not critical."

The physician added that Barrymore, who is at home, probably will be able to make his Thursday evening broadcast, barring complications.

Russell Circus Called American As Melting Pot Era Passes

Russell Bros' greater American circus is just what its name implies. This three-ringer, coming to Pampa and showing on Brown avenue, across from the ball park on Wednesday, Oct. 22, makes no claims on the name American merely because people are more conscious now how much that word means. This is actually an all-American circus.
The circus in this country has always been analogous in its makeup to the nation itself. The circus has been one place where international performers really worked. Its "back-yard" a miniature melting pot of national groups. English, German, Irish, Italian, Austrian, Spanish, Hungarian, Latin American and Oriental circus families have trooped together for generations, sometimes inter-marrying, always respecting each other's ways and rights.
But today the American circus acts in this country outnumber the foreign ones. By the year 1941 there are many American circus families with traditions of trouping that go back several generations.
Although most of these American performers are native-born there is still a cosmopolitan tang to circus life in this Americanized troupe in the Russell circus as the Acevedos or the transplanted Clarkes.
The Acevedos are Latin Americans, hailing from south of the border. The Clarkes, whose name has long been honored in English circuses, have a new generation of native born Americans in their family, act, with lovely young Ernestine as star of their troupe.
The owners of Russell Bros., springing from pioneer American stock, have run their show from the beginning with the desire to bring to Americans the best in big-top entertainment at such moderate prices that no American need feel circus-going a costly luxury. And their circus is as American as ice cream or strawberry pop.

SERIAL STORY

MURDER IN PARADISE

BY MARGUERITE GAHAGAN

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

"THE STORY: Mystery and murder come to quiet Paradise Lake when Maudie O'Connor and her school teacher, Hankie, discover the body of sophisticated Tod Palmer, slain for a jewelry store robbery. Maudie's involvement in the numbers racket, everyone except Maudie believes his gangster enemy, Stush Veretti, is guilty. Down from the city to solve the case is Maudie's old flame, Dennis Flynn, and both of them believe Maudie knows more than she is revealing, having done some amateur sleuthing of her own in investigations with such old Paradise residents as innkeeper Chris Gordon and Miss Millie Morris, Jeanie's prim apter aunt who hated Cord.

ANOTHER MURDER

CHAPTER VIII

IT wasn't fate that knocked, but young Tod Palmer. He had just come from the State Police Post where he had heard news important enough to start him on the hunt for Denny. Tod's weekly didn't play for scoops and even if he'd been on his own deadline he still would probably have hurried to Denny because you could see he thought Denny was tops among newspapermen.

Officer John Antler had just received word that the city police had picked up Stush Veretti, and with the information the officers had collected, they could now place Veretti in the vicinity of Paradise Lake at the time of the crime.

"And a city dick by the name of Sullivan said to tell you they were sure they would soon have the gun." Tod's face was still pale, but there was a softness about his lips that hadn't been there, that morning when he had stood up at the inquest and provided Jeanie Morris with her alibi.

"Sure," Denny said. "I knew they'd be able to hang it on that guy. Someone in town was sure to squeal on him." He looked like the cat that had swallowed the canary, he was so obviously pleased with himself. I couldn't help but laugh when he looked at me for approval.

TOD said he couldn't stay and I hoped he was on his way down the road toward the Morris house. There alone, with its gingerbread trim, the house was a pathetic remind of better days when the Morris family had had enough money to be a pover in the summer community. The moon was still painting the lake, but it had traveled some. If I couldn't make use of it I hoped Jeanie could.

Denny was too engrossed with his own thoughts about the next day's story to look at the moon, so I prepared to sit down and read the papers I had neglected.

Then, in the distance, I heard Finn McCool's grumble and Maudie's sharp answer. The tone in her voice bothered me. It didn't sound quite natural. As a rule the more McCool grumbled in his dour Scotty way the more tolerant and amused she became, but now she was sharp—sharp and frightened.

She came from the path to the dock so I supposed she had been out rowing again. Blisters, probably, I thought. She wouldn't learn to take it easily at first.

"Did you row around the whole lake?" I asked. But she wasn't smiling as she opened the door on the screened porch, pushed McCool on ahead. There were red splashes on her cheeks and her breath was coming in short gasps. I jumped up and went to meet her.

"You'll never learn. You've done it this time for sure. And you're probably still wearing that darn new corset," I said, really frightened, for Maudie's years and weight aren't to be taken lightly although they never seem to worry her.

Denny was beside me trying to drive the grim frozen look from her face with some witticism. "You've as good as lost your bet, Machusla," he said, putting an arm around her shoulder, "but don't worry, I'll still dine and wine you."

She pulled away, heading for her pet rocker and sat down with a little moan. "Bet— You fool, you've lost."

We stared at her and then I felt a little sick. She was terrified. I could see it in her tightly gripped hands and in the shivers that went over her well-padded frame. "She's dead. I was with her when she went. I— I don't think she suffered long. It must have happened just before I came along —and I don't think she felt any pain." Maudie was always one to flee from the thought of suffering. "Although the way her poor head was beaten it must have hurt horribly."

Denny clicked quicker than I did. He brought her a drink while I was still rubbing her hands and trying to zip zippers.

"Down it, Maudie, and then let's have the story straight. Who's dead?"

"Miss Millie—in the boat."

WELL, eventually we got it from her. She had started out to take McCool for his nightly constitutional, but the sight of the shadows and the moonlit road had brought back too much of the other night's horror, so she had turned and gone down to the dock. They had gone out in the boat and started in the general direction of the Morris end of the lake.

"I wouldn't have seen the boat if McCool hadn't barked," she said, still pathetically shaken and with all her wise-cracking sophistication lost. "Finally I did see it near shore in the reeds. I knew it was drifting and I thought I could tow it back here and then whoever owned it could get it."

But when she got over to it she found it wasn't empty. Miss Millie Morris was there huddled in the bottom moaning faintly. Her poor old head was almost completely bashed in.

"Whatever was used certainly was effective," Maudie said in a voice that trembled. "She was alive—"

"Did she say anything?" Denny demanded. "And by the way, Maudie, darling, where's the boat now?"

She waved her hand toward the lake and said the boat was at our dock. I could feel the hair stand up on my neck and even Denny's hardboiled exterior seemed to show the strain. It seemed the discovery of the boat and its gruesome cargo had nearly thrown Maudie off balance. When she saw Miss Millie give that last little shiver and then become still, Maudie headed for home, rowing faster and in a straighter line than she had ever rowed before.

Maudie straightened up finally while Denny was preparing to contact the State Police.

"Maybe now you'll listen to me," she said, pushing her white curls away from her brow and adjusting her glasses. "Do you think the numbers boys had any reason to rub out poor Miss Millie?"
