THE PAMPA NEWS

LOVE LEAPS 45-YEAR BRIDE—As thrilled as any young bride and with a tremulous smile on her lips, 70-year-old Mrs. Raymond Vann, nee Miss Lou Wilkins, missionary worker and writer of religious pamphlets, stands beside her husband Raymond Vann, 25-year-old Baptist evangelist and graduate of the University of Oklahoma. The couple was married in Fort Worth, Texas, after a 10-month acquaintance and a 10-day courtship.

Honeymoon Will Be 40 Days Of Prayer, They Say

FORT WORTH, Nov. 22 (AP)—Evangelist Raymond Vann, 25, and his bride, a grey-haired little missionary of 70, today interrupted their honeymoon (40 days of prayer) long enough to announce their plans for the future. They'll build and conduct a negro school in Fort Worth's Lake Como addition to be called the "Negro Baptist Bible Institute," where they will teach negro leaders to carry on the work the bride started 10 years ago. The bridal couple, sitting side by side in the tiny bedroom at 1800 Broadway street, reluctantly revealed their plans to a reporter despite their request that they be let alone to spend their honeymoon in prayer. Private contributions and maybe federal aid will build their school, said Mrs. Vann, who until Friday was Miss Lou Wilkins, missionary and former schoolteacher at Coleman and Bronte. Mrs. Vann was not averse to talking, but she blushed, literally, at any mention of her wedding 24 hours before. Vann doesn't talk. He has started a permanent pro-

Temperature Drops To 18 Degrees Here

Near blizzard conditions were due to prevail in the Pampa area today, as the aftermath of rain and snow and a temperature that dropped to 18 degrees early last night. Temperatures of from 15 to 20 degrees were forecast overnight. Rain, followed by snow, started to fall in Pampa early Saturday morning. Snow lasted until noon. Precipitation for the 24-hour period ending at 7 p. m. last night was 3.1 inches. This makes the monthly total 33.3 inches, yearly 33.01. It was the second rain of the month, the previous precipitation being recorded Wednesday. Friday's maximum temperature was 52, minimum 26. Highest temperature Saturday was 37 degrees at 6:30 p. m. Strong northerly winds were included in the forecast for today. Wind direction in Pampa yesterday was from the north, ranging between 25 and 30 miles an hour.

Blizzard Rolls Across Plains

(By The Associated Press) Winter hit Texas Saturday night, sending a blizzard across the Panhandle carrying threats of heavy snow and temperatures as low as 15 degrees. The storm hit the Amarillo region on the anniversary of the ice storm which isolated the territory for three days a year ago. The temperature there at 7:30 p. m., had dipped to 23 degrees and the wind was coming in at 30 to 35 miles an hour. Warnings went out to livestock raisers. Around Perryton a four-inch snow fell Saturday afternoon. Freezing temperatures were predicted for as far south as Big Spring and into northwest Texas as far as Dallas and Fort Worth. Amidst the rain, snow, and cold thus tossed at the state in winter's first all-out assault of the season, the wondrous lights of aurora borealis shone. The northern lights were visible at Wichita Falls, which reported interference with communications along with a 44-degree temperature. The forecasts for east and west Texas indicated more snow and cold for Sunday and Sunday night. Traffic in the Panhandle grew hazardous, with windshields icing.

17 Selectees To Be Examined At Dallas

Names of the 17 Gray county selectees who are to go to Dallas for a physical examination Monday, of the selectee who is to report at Fort Sill, Okla., December 1, and of the 24 selectees who are to be inducted into the army at Fort Bliss four days later, were released today by the Gray County Selective Service board. The 17 who are to go to Dallas are to report at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning to 301 Court House, where they will receive instructions from the board. A half-hour later they are to leave by special bus for Dallas. Physical examinations will be held from 7:30 to 11 a. m. Tuesday. Those selectees who pass the tests

Medical Fuss Aired Behind Closed Doors

(By The Associated Press) AUSTIN, Nov. 22—A faculty spokesman said tonight the University of Texas Regents had initiated proposals which would give medical branch instructors "a very adequate participation in affairs of the school."

AUSTIN, Nov. 22—A controversy over administration of the University of Texas medical branch at Galveston was aired before the board of regents behind closed doors today and indications were no decision would be reached in less than 30 days. The long simmering fuss, involving Dean John W. Spies, recently reelected for two years, and medical faculty members who are seeking a larger voice in school administration, produced these developments:

1. In a telegram to University President Homer P. Rainey, Dean Spies asked permission to negotiate personally with his faculty.

2. Dr. Willard R. Cooke, chairman of the faculty committee, asserted during an intermission in a hearing that the quarrel was over the school's program which he termed absurd because its objective was to build a tremendous personnel without sufficient clinical material or equipment for the personnel to work with.

3. Dr. Rainey reminded any changes in rules and regulations of the medical branch must lay on the table 30 days before final action by the regents.

The developments came before the governing board concluded the hearing accorded the faculty committee and physicians from Central Texas, Galveston, Fort Worth, Dallas, Wharton and San Antonio who sided with the faculty.

The faculty's recommendations, made weeks ago, had been referred to Dr. Rainey who negotiated with the instructors.

In his telegram Dr. Spies said that he had not attempted to discuss matters in controversy with the instructors.

Yule Shoppers Buying Early To Avoid Shortage

Already well under way, the 1941 Christmas shopping season is expected to set some kind of a new record in Pampa, according to indications in retail merchandising circles. Toys, jewelry, electrical appliances, wearing apparel, furniture, household items—in fact, all the things that fill Christmas stockings and the space beneath the Yule tree are moving at a fast clip.

The gift-buying began before the Thanksgiving holiday and shoppers already are combing the counters in downtown stores. The last-minute shopper this year is going to be left holding the bag, and the bag will be empty.

Merchants report that many buyers either are taking their gifts home to hide in closets until Christmas or are having them laid away in the stores to be picked up just before Christmas eve. One downtown store manager reported that there has been a particularly big rush on the sale of toys this year and that his business a week ago had assumed a volume this year had not been reached until 10 days before Christmas.

Reason for the early shopping this year, it was stated, is that many persons fear that the supply of merchandise will be exhausted and that merchants will not be able to replace sold-out stocks because of the difficulty of getting orders through in the emergency period. This spur to early buying, merchants believe, is the threat of further curtailment, perhaps complete cessation of manufacture in many lines of merchandise as the nation marshals its productive facilities in the all-out defense effort.

In almost every store in Pampa they will call your attention to the fact that when present stocks are exhausted for the Christmas trade, replenishments will be all but impossible. For that reason merchants say

Memberships In Red Cross Reach 2,003

With one more total report still to be made, contributions to the American Red Cross in Gray county in the 1941 roll call had reached $3,529.02 today, representing 2,003 memberships. Last year at this time the total number of memberships was 1,420.

TO THE ENERGETIC EFFORTS of Frank Smith, above, local Red Cross roll call officials credited a large share of the success of the 1941 campaign, which to date has netted nearly twice the number of memberships as at the same time last year. Mr. Smith was in charge of securing memberships from business sections of Pampa.

The industrial concerns, a majority of the rural sections, and a few scattered residential districts. Announcement of these totals does not mean the roll call is concluded. There will be one more report made after workers go back and complete calls and turn in final reports.

Out of the list of firms and institutions with 100 per cent membership, The Pampa News had the largest number of employees represented as members of the Red Cross, more than any other business concern in Pampa.

Others on the 100 per cent list were Pampa High, Pampa Junior High, Sam Houston, Woodrow Wilson, and Horace Mann schools, Adams hotel, Martin-Lane Grain company, Merrick & Boyd Lumber company, Guaranty Abstract company, McConnell Implement company.

W. C. Norris company, Zale's Jewelry store, Mann Furniture company, Dale & Lloyd's Magnolia Service station, Lee Way Motor Freight lines, American Manufacturing company, Texas company, under H. P. Dooler's supervision, and Texas company, under supervision of H. C. Little.

British Mop Up As Nazis Take Rostov

(By The Associated Press) British captured a gap in the Egyptian-Libyan border was announced in Cairo last (Saturday) night as Britain's mechanized African army continued its destruction of Axis motorized defenses.

Nazi armored divisions appeared caught between two jaws of a monstrous pincers movement when the Tobruk garrison to the west burst through seven-month-old Axis siege lines to catch them in the rear.

Besides the American tank tanks in the ground spearheads, swarms of Yankee fighter planes were participating in an accompanying air offensive which RAF officers said had given the British mastery of the skies in two days of fighting. Cairo military dispatches said more than half the tanks of German Gen. Erwin Rommel's North African corps had already been knocked out of action, with the British employing the same tactics of encirclement and annihilation used by the Germans themselves in conquering most of Europe.

"The aim of the British command is to destroy the German tank force in Libya, and that is what we are doing at the moment," a high British officer declared. Sun-bronzed Australians and British Tommies who stormed into Tobruk last Jan. 22 to the lusty chorus of "Somewhere Over the Rainbow," were reported slaying with enthusiasm into the rear of German and Italian troops who, in turn, had beleaguered them for so long.

Latest advices said the Tobruk forces had cut their way through three miles of Axis positions, driving to join units of the main imperial armies at Rezegh, 10 miles south of Tobruk's outer defense perimeter. British Middle East headquarters said repeated German attempts to break through the British encirclement were defeated in a big battle and that the area of entrapment, originally more than 60 miles deep, had been compressed into a 4-mile square zone.

While Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham's long-day-old counter-offensive in North Africa thus presented Adolf Hitler with the possibility of his first defeat in two years of war, Britain's Soviet ally suffered a major setback in the reported fall of Rostov-on-Don, described by the Germans as "the spigot to the Russian oil barrel."

The German command announced the fall of Rostov, a city of 500,000 population guarding the

Great Art Treasure Found In Indiana

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 22 (AP)—Discovery at St. Mary's college here of an art treasure, worth perhaps $500,000, was disclosed today by the Rev. Gregory Gerrer, of St. Gregory's college, Shawnee, Okla., curator of the Wightman Art gallery at the University of Notre Dame.

The find, described by critics as the most important in this country in the last two decades, is a wood panel painting of St. Francis of Assisi, which Father Gregory said had been identified, after several months of research, as the work of Giotto De Bondone, 13th century master.

Dr. Maurice Goldblatt, Chicago art expert, who assisted in identification of the painting as a genuine Giotto, fixed its value as possibly $500,000, but explained that was "a very rough estimate."

The painting was given the sisters of the congregation of Holy Cross, who operate the college, by Cardinal Francesco Satolli, first apostolic delegate to the United States, after he visited here in 1893.

It hung in the St. Mary's galleries until about six years ago, when it was lost. Several months ago the portrait was found and Father Gregory determined to find out who painted it.

Both Sides Will Abide By Results Of Arbitration

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Nov. 22—(AP) The captive coal mine strike was ended today in an agreement that its issue be submitted to arbitration with both sides bound in advance to accept the results.

At the continued entreaty of President Roosevelt, the policy committee of United Mine Workers of America voted unanimously to send its men back into the pits on these terms at once. John L. Lewis, the union's president, said the decision was made "in the public interest."

It came, however, as a sharp surprise to those who have kept in close touch with the mine controversy, because Lewis personally rejected the plan earlier in the week. Mr. Roosevelt's statements on the dispute had so prejudiced the public mind, Lewis said then, that it would be extremely difficult to find an impartial arbiter.

But the chief executive, who had said that the mining of coal must be resumed because it was essential to the national defense program, persisted. He addressed another of his several letters to Lewis and the CIO union before today's policy committee meeting, and named the arbiter in advance of the unions' concurrence.

We saw Dr. John R. Steelman, head of the labor department's conciliation service, a man of long and varied experience in the settlement of labor disputes. Technically, Mr. Roosevelt appointed a board of arbitration with Steelman as its chairman, Lewis as a second member and Benjamin F. Fairless, president of United States Steel, as the third.

Under the circumstances, however, it was obvious that the decision would be reached by Steelman alone, after hearing Lewis and Fairless present their cases. Secretary Perkins immediately relieved Steelman of all duties in the labor department so that he might devote his full time to the captive mine case.

Steelman said he would get in touch with Lewis and Fairless as soon as possible, probably tomorrow, and arrange for the arbitration meeting.

The captive mines are owned by the steel companies, and their product is used exclusively as fuel for the manufacture of steel, as distinguished from the commercial mines which produce coal for sale on the public market.

The strike began Monday, after a series of futile efforts to bring about an agreement on Lewis' demand for a "union shop" in the captive mines, a system under which all employees must join the union.

The union shop was already in effect under contracts between the union and all commercial mines of the Appalachian region. Sympathy strikes spread into the commercial field. The steel companies quickly began to feel the pinch and steel production for the defense program had to be curtailed. Numerous elements in congress were demanding action by the government through force or legislation to end the strike. A senate committee had already begun hearings on anti-strike bills.

In the immediate aftermath of today's agreement, it appeared probable that congress would go ahead with such legislation. Chairman Norton (D-N.J.) of the House Labor committee, conferred during the afternoon with President Roosevelt and said later he was of the opinion that the agreement should be followed. Highly placed house members said, too, that anti-strike legislation would be enacted regardless of today's developments.

The background of the captive mine dispute is this: After signing contracts several months ago with the commercial producers of coal, the union undertook negotiations with the steel men who own the captive mines.

Coke Gives No Promises For Higher Salaries

HOUSTON, Nov. 22 (AP)—Texas as teachers' pleadings for higher pay have fallen on sympathetic ears, Governor Stevenson told them today, but he gave them no promise of immediate action. Stevenson, in an address at the closing session of the Texas State Teachers' association convention, said he endorsed the concept that the laborer is worthy of his hire. "We want your wages to be raised," he said, "and in the course of time they will."

Educators at the convention have declared that the rise in living costs lends additional urgency to the problem of providing adequate salaries for teachers, and the association's executive committee said it was hopeful a special session would be called to take action. The governor made no mention of the special session question in his extemporaneous address but in an interview said: "I do not now know of any emergency that would justify calling a special session."

He said, however, that the teachers' petitions and problems would be given "very careful consideration." Stevenson urged the teachers to support the American way of life. "If Europe had the same school system as we have in Texas today," he said, "there wouldn't be any Adolf Hitler."

John L. Lewis' "activities," he asserted, "are antagonistic to our concept of government" and blamed the actions of the labor leader's

CIO Endorses Roosevelt's Foreign Policies

(By The Associated Press) DETROIT, Nov. 22 (AP)—The Congress of Industrial Organizations ended today a six-day convention during which it voted endorsement of President Roosevelt's foreign policies and gave its support to the United Mine Workers' attempt to gain a union shop in captive coal mines.

At the final session today the CIO assailed the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the National Labor Relations Board.

The delegates adopted a resolution contending that the FBI "offers serious danger of becoming a political police similar to the Nazi Gestapo," and adding: "There can be no toleration of any political police, such as the FBI in this country becoming similar to the Nazi Gestapo, or any toleration of any agencies of the government, including the FBI, violating the law, and we protest against the use of the FBI to oppress or harass any labor organization x x x."

It also called upon the justice department to investigate "the true un-American organizations now carrying on pro-fascist activities in this country" and asserted the FBI had not given wholehearted support to efforts to expose and stamp out "all

Pampa Youth Tells Of Thrilling Leap In 'Chute From Doomed Plane

A thrilling description of how it feels to bale out of a doomed army bomber in a terrific thunderstorm in the mountains of Utah is contained in a letter written by Lieut. Mabry Simmons to his sister, Miss Katharine Simmons, Junior High school teacher. Two army aviators, one of them Major R. L. Pirtle, 88th reconnaissance squadron commander, were killed when a blizzard spun the two-motored bomber onto a wooded Wasatch mountain ridge. Sergeant J. D. Anderson's charred body was found in the wreckage of the plane.

The five who parachuted to safety were brought to a Fort Douglas, Utah, hospital. The plane was en route home from Denver to Fort Douglas on a routine training flight. The following graphic letter was written to the Pampa woman in a hospital bed by Lieut. Simmons who gives Pampa as his home. Miss Simmons spent several tormented hours Monday from the time she heard of the wreck until she learned her brother was safe.

The letter: Ft. Douglas, Utah, November 18, 1941. "Dear Kackie: "This is the life here in the hospital. No pains, but a cold, and plenty of rest, sleep, and plenty of fruit juices."

"We hit Coldville, which is about 10 miles from Denver to Fort Douglas."

"In this way I believe I could be of great service to my fellow faculty members as well as to other interests concerned."

His telegram was read to the regents but there was no announcement as to how it was received.

The faculty spokesmen and physicians were closeted for hours with the regents. Laughter and sometimes applause was heard beyond the door.

At dusk the physicians departed but the faculty men returned to the hearing room for what Dr. Cooke said was a "final discussion of specific changes in rules and regulations of the medical college."

He added the group previously had a full discussion of problems and that faculty allegations had been corroborated.

The allegations, explained by Dr. Cooke before the hearing began, were:

The medical school's expansion program was topheavy on personnel and short on equipment and facilities.

The program indicated a trend for lower standards of admission and graduation.

Department members were not given sufficient voice in selecting personnel.

Criticism of the school would cease if faculty members' bid for more administrative power was granted.

1,600 Invited To Attend Scout Day

Boy Scouts and Scouters of the Adobe Walls Council will gather in Pampa Thursday for the first Adobe Walls Council "Scout Day." Invitations have been mailed to 1,600 Scouts and Scouters to come to Pampa for a parade, picture show, barbecue and football game as guests of the Pampa Scouts and Scouters and the Pampa school system.

In the past, Scouts have attended a rally in Canyon. This year the Canyon meeting will be at night and rather than ask Scouts to drive to and from Canyon, the Adobe Walls council executive committee decided to hold an all day rally.

Registration will be at 9 o'clock in the city hall. An All Scout parade, consisting of Scouts, Cubs, council officials, troop committees, den mothers and Scouters will be held at 10:30 o'clock. At 11 o'clock there will be a free picture show at the LaNora theater. A free barbecue will be served at the Junior High school gymnasium at noon. The Scouts and Cubs will attend the Pampa-Borger football game at 2:30 o'clock.

Scouts and Cubs will be given tickets to the show, barbecue and football game upon registering and showing their 1941 registration certificate.

Committees in charge of the rally are: Football game, R. G. Hughes and school officials; picture show, Raymond Harrah, Carl Benefield; finance committee, Frank Perry, Gene Sidwell, V. L. Boyles; barbecue committee, M. A. Graham, George Berlin, C. A. Huff; program committee, Ernest Cobe, Rev. Robert Eoshen, Fred Roberts, Ray Evans; parade committee, L. E. Frary, Ray Evans, C. O. Gilbert, J. D. Sackett; publicity committee, W. B. Weathered, Rev. Boshen, Edgar W. Henshaw; invitation committee, L. L. Sone, Jack Johnson.

The Adobe Walls council consists of 53 Boy Scout troops with 1,000 boys registered and 10 Cub packs with 210 boys registered. At least 500 scouters and den mothers work with the boys.

Troops and packs in the council with sponsoring organizations, scoutmasters and number of adults and boys follow:

60 miles east of here, and the sky was clear. The radio broadcast said high scattered clouds at Salt Lake, so when we hit a few clouds, and then had to go on instruments, we didn't think it would last long. After 20 minutes of instrument flying 232 degrees (toward Salt Lake), it got rougher so we turned to 212 degrees to angle around it. We hit a thunder storm while heading 212 degrees so by this time we had climbed from 12,000 to 14,000 to clear all mountains and turned to 180 degrees. The thunderstorm had currents so strong in it, that the old B-19 just couldn't take it.

"When Lt. Bayse pushed forward on the stick we were losing speed fast and nothing happened. Major Pirtle said, 'Get some speed; get some speed.' There wasn't anything to do but get out. Staff Sergeant Bynum went first. Radio Operator P. F. C. Pogerson went next. Major Pirtle went, and then Smith was ready to jump, but it threw us both away from the door. When the plane lunged the other way, then it threw Smith back to the door, so I dived out. Smith had to scramble back to the door he said. Bayse stayed at the controls until everyone had time to get out and then he went out the top hatch.

"Anderson got excited I guess because he never did jump. There were two pack chutes there for him, but he didn't get in one. The plane went clear out of hearing and then came right under me. I thought it was coming straight for me for a minute. It was then that that hit Major Pirtle, I'm sure, as the radio man was caught in his chute. He went clear of the tail when he jumped out the side door.

"I jumped fourth, and when I passed right by the second man that jumped, I thought for an instant that my chute was fouled. When I looked up at it, it was the most perfect chute I'd ever beheld. The initial opening of the chute jerked the out of me, but I was glad to have that firm feeling with me. When we came on down out of the overcast, which felt like an eternity, I could see the ship diving for the earth. When it hit it burst into flames and a few flares went off. Then everything was the quietest I've ever heard it in my life. The wind was gusty, so it was swinging me almost up even with my chute from side to side.

"I tried pulling the shroud lines to stop it, but I got afraid I would collapse the chute and then I would be in trouble. Just before we hit the ground the wind died down and it didn't drag us to amount to anything. When I hit, I thought I was at least 1,000 feet in the air. It was so dark with the overcast the you couldn't see anything but the lights of a town. I broke through the overcast right over the town, but it blew me about four miles N. E. before I hit the ground. When I hit, I thought it dazed me, so I unbuckled myself, wrapped up in the chute, and tried to keep warm for about 10 or 15 minutes, until Private Fergerson came along heading toward town.

"We gathered up our chutes and started toward town, but had to circle around to keep from getting in a marsh too deep. We hit the road about two miles from town and caught a ride there. They took us to the town hospital. We all vomited sometime that night. I did about two hours after I'd been in bed. The nurse put a hot water bottle to my feet and let it leak out on the bed.

"I woke up next morning with my feet cold and wet and my head stopped up. A little skin was knocked off my face, hip, and knee, but I could have gone back to duty today if it hadn't been for my cold. Lt. Bayse landed in some rocks, and is supposed to be out of flying commission for sometime. The other three men have ankles swelled up or cracked or chipped so they are not going to be able to go over in our squadron. They are going to have to get replacement (temporarily) for all the men except your tough lucky little brother.

"I was heavier than the rest of them and should have hit harder, but I guess they didn't have two big sisters to bang them around like I did to get them used to that sort of thing.

"I tore my pants ($16.00) and lost my flight cap ($2.10) and emblem (30c), but that was all I lost in the deal. I brought my parachute in and put it in a dry place. One other man brought his in, but he let it get wet.

"The nurse wants me to put the lights out, so I guess I'd better get along.

"Love, "Mabry."

Snow and strong north winds with blizzard conditions were forecast for New Mexico east of the Sangre de Cristo mountains, spreading south and covering an area east of the Rio Grande valley.

A low of 10 to 15 degrees was predicted for Clayton, N. M.

The weather bureau said there appeared little chance for an ice storm of the dimensions that hit Amarillo last year, the temperature being too low. Last year the temperature hung at the freezing point, too cold for snow.

The cold struck Lubbock in the south plains around 5 p. m., a 26-mile wind dropping temperatures to 39 degrees. Eighteen degrees and a blizzard were expected by Sunday morning.

South of there, in the Llano region, the cooler weather improved the chances of deer and turkey hunters, and many hunters were alert to the opportunity.

Lieutenant To Accompany Body Of Soldier Here

The body of Private Earl Sanders, of Pampa, who was killed Thursday when an automobile in which he was riding fell off a 26-foot embankment, will be received in Pampa tomorrow.

An army lieutenant will escort Sanders' body to Pampa and a military funeral will be held. The coffin will be covered with an American flag.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at Duengel-Carmichael Funeral home chapel. Conducting the rites will be the Rev. D. W. Nichols, pastor of the Church of Christ, Amarillo, and the Rev. E. E. Cook, pastor of the Glenwood Baptist church, Amarillo. Private Sanders was inducted into the army at Fort Bliss, El Paso, and later sent to Camp Galloway.

He is survived by his widow, who resides with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Johnson, 614 S. Ballard; son, Gary Earl, 5; mother, Mrs. O. B. Sanders, Abilene; brothers, Tommy and Clont of Pampa, and Curus of Bridgeport; sisters, Mrs. Mamie Pitman, Dallas; Mrs. J. F. McPhail, Wichita Falls; Mrs. Audrey Y. Agreement was reached that the wage, hour, and other features of the commercial contracts should be incorporated in a contract with the captive mine owners.

But when Lewis insisted that a union shop clause should also be inserted, the steel men balked. While the union has a 95 per cent membership in the captive mines, the steel men said they were unwilling to force the remaining five per cent into the union.

A three-day walkout ensued, which ended with the submission of the dispute to the National Defense Mediation Board, under the chairmanship of William H. Davis. At the same time, Lewis gave notice that unless the board reached a decision by Nov. 15, the strike would be renewed.

Well before Lewis' deadline, the board voted nine to two against the union shop. The CIO's two board members, Philip Murray, and Thomas Kennedy, resigned from that agency. All other members of the board, including the two AFL members, had voted against them. The strike was renewed.

Lewis contended he could not accept an "open shop contract" in the captive mines without invalidating the union's contracts with the commercial mines. Mr. Roosevelt said this was an "invalid point."

Lewis also argued that the officers of the union had no authority from the membership to accept anything less than a union shop.

On Wednesday, Mr. Roosevelt asked that the union and the captive mine operators agree to follow one of two courses: Hold the union shop controversy in abeyance for the duration of the national emergency, or submit the issue to arbitration.

The delegates approved another resolution maintaining that the NLRB and its regional directors were displaying increasing frequent bias against the CIO.

"The CIO severely condemns the NLRB policy in refusing to recognize the necessity for the establishment of the empire-wide industrial type of bargaining unit," it added.

"The CIO condemns the recent decisions of the labor board refusing to set aside collusive contracts with anti-labor employers."

The convention demanded, too, that "all employers accept the principle of the union shop."

Small boys have been known to perform this trick and get soundly spanked when discovered—turning in a false fire alarm.

Just why an adult, a woman, would want to do such a juvenile stunt, had Pampa firemen perplexed today.

It happened Friday afternoon. Firemen were called to 702 W. Kingsmill. The house was open but nobody was home and there was no fire nor sign of a blaze.

Fire Chief Ben White investigated and found the telephone call to his department had been made by a woman calling from a local drug store. Name of the woman had not been learned by the fire department late last night.

How can I prepare for the post-war period?

Two obvious suggestions come to mind: one is to pay off as many of your debts and obligations as you can now, while you are able. The other is to build a cushion of cash in a bank account which you can draw on, if the occasion arises, in the period of readjustment after the war. There is bound to be some hardship when we swing from defense back to normal peacetime activities, and a little foresight now will repay you well later.

to pass the test, and two others were deferred.

For the trip to Dallas Monday, the following have been called:

S-1530—Lloyd Gayden Evans, McLean.

2733—Walter Lewen Davis, Pampa.

2764—Clyde Allen Scaberry, Pampa.

2826—Albert Franklin Ayer, Pampa.

2639—Ambrose Lockett, Miller, Pampa.

2903—Mark Alvin Fahle, Pampa.

2834—George William Topper, Pampa.

2953—Jenner Erwin Langham, McLean.

2995—Lester Aubry Jones, Pampa.

S-3011—J. Q. Russell, Pampa.

3084—Lawrence Verlan Lee, Alanreed.

3067—Leon Ray Harris, Pampa.

3121—Henry Lewis Tepner, Pampa.

3186—Clyde William Baird, Pampa.

S-3174—Maynard Clements Johnson, LeFors.

3232—Rufus Duane Holmes, McLean.

3353—Walter Raleigh Krouse, Jr., Pampa.

Nine Transfers

Besides these names, the official list contains those of selectees from Gray county who have been transferred to other boards, who will probably be sent to the induction station nearest their new addresses:

2274—John F. Fortney, San Francisco; 2309—William Ray Carter, Rotan; S-2336—Travis Coy Lively, Jr., Bryan; 2688—Arthur Robert Laughlin, Jr., Bartlesville, Okla.; 2688—Howard Parks Snow, Brownsville; 2917—Willard William Gregory, Denver; 2955—Melvin Martin Nichols, Levelland; 3026—Gerald Edward Hessey, Houston; 3148—James Colman Goad, Roswell, N. M.

One-Man 'Army'

The lone selectee from Gray, who will have the distinction of being his own leader and assistant leader, on the December 1 call, is to report at 8:30 a. m. on that date to the board office in the court house.

It is the rule that each group of selectees from Gray selects a leader and an assistant leader for the trip to the induction station.

Giddens will therefore be the first lone "quota" all by himself. Why he is to be sent to Fort Sill, Okla., rather than to Fort Bliss, is something that state headquarters has not divulged to the county board.

December 4 List

Scheduled to report before the local board at 4 p. m. on December 4 are these 24 selectees, who are to be sent to the army induction station at Fort Bliss:

1390—John Marvin Canady, Pampa, transfer from Pauls Valley, Okla.

S-1463—A. Leroy Thomas Davis, Pampa, transfer from Corpus Christi.

1551—John Woodrow Plummer, Pampa.

1613—A. Ralph Leroy Gee, Pampa.

1897—Joseph Pope Guinn, Cumby.

2154—J. Truman Caster, Wink.

2208—Clyde Cecil Cummings, Pampa.

2235—Morse Ivey, McLean.

S-2235—Clifford D. Boyer, Ashfork.

2271—Robert Woodrow Karr, Pampa.

S-2282—John Nevin Johnston, Pampa.

2322—Arthur James Casada, Pampa.

2338—Lewis Glynn Culbertson, San Diego, Calif.

S-2363—J. W. Graham, McLean.

2412—Paul Max Hinton, Houston.

2416—Harry Leslie Stoner, McLean.

2422—John G. Lofton, Alanreed.

2485—William Aubrey Walters, Pampa.

2470—O. Q. Finley, Amarillo.

S-2497—Carol Roberts Dirrickson, Dalhart.

2574—William Neal Holmes, Alanreed.

2618—Otto Pete Rice, Pampa.

2620—Jack Bronnie Vaughn, LeFors.

2654—Wilson Fox Shaw, McLean.

Address Wanted

In the last above appears the name of Clifford D. Boyer, Ashfork, Ariz., S-2255. An order of induction was sent to the man at the Arizona address on November 16, and was returned to the local board on November 19, marked "unclaimed." Persons who know Boyer's present address are asked to get in communication with the Gray County Selective Service board, 301 Court House, telephone 2652, at once.

GO ahead—slide into that inviting front seat and press the starter treadle.

Feel better? You bet! Know it or not, your chin's higher already, just picturing yourself traveling into tomorrow in this rugged Buick.

And if it's a long road ahead, who cares? That's a more efficient valve-in-head under your bonnet, isn't it?—and with Compound Carburetion† to guarantee top power and top range!

Or suppose the going does get rough—haven't you all-coil springs to float you gently through bad going, and new, broad-rim wheels to ease and steady the ride?

What matter if this car should have to do you two or three times as long as usual—Buick's trim looks are only the outward dress of brawn that's the match for as many years as you want to name.

Things like husky frames, torque-tube drive, extra-strength connecting rods, oil-cushioned bearings that go twice as long under equal loads—such things mean you're all set for tomorrow and tomorrow, ad infinitum.

So head now for your Buick dealer and a Buick try-out. It's "first come, first served," and you wouldn't want to miss out getting yours, now would you?

Labor—No. 1 Defense Problem

The President's recent address to the International Labor Organization, which was attended by 250 delegates from some 35 nations, was not as direct and as aggressive as some had hoped.

A great many authorities are convinced that labor is this country's Number 1 defense problem now. Cases where industry has refused to cooperate with the government and accept the findings of arbitration boards, are few and minor.

It should be kept in mind that the majority of recent important labor disputes have not concerned questions of wages, working hours or working conditions.

Other strikes have revolved around the closed shop issue. There is no question but what the labor leaders have as their goal a 100 per cent union shop—a shop where no man can hold a job unless he joins and pays dues to a union.

The Nation's Press

THE NAZI PRESS (Pittsburgh Post-Gazette) Herr Amann, head of the Nazi party's press and publishing section, announced in Berlin that the party now owns or controls newspapers which have two-thirds of the total circulation in the Reich.

The total circulation, however, has fallen greatly during the period in which the party was assuming "both technically and economically" the control of the press, and the number of papers is now less than half what it was before the Nazis came into power.

THE GREAT BETRAYAL (Chicago Tribune)

The preposterous future which the most conservative of Mr. Roosevelt's war administrators present to the people of this country as their certain prospect is one which contains no hope for the continuation of the American republic as we have known it.

In the three years industry is to shift from production for the satisfaction of normal needs to the satisfaction of military necessities in Asia, Africa, and Europe. The resources of the country will be diverted to a paralyzing degree from the making of things by which people live to the making of things by which they kill each other.

Common Ground

"I speak the pass-word primer, I give the sign of democracy, By God! I will accept nothing which cannot have their counterpart of on the same terms."

A SOCIALIST'S REAL CHARACTER EXPOSED

All socialists are Godless cowardly communists. They would do the same things that the communists do, but do not have the courage to do them directly, or to admit that they would do them. When they are called communists, they say their character is being assassinated.

When a mirror, figuratively speaking, is held up to them, showing their godlessness and their inconsistencies and their real motives, then they want to fight. All socialists and communists are like that.

The other day, I called one of the correspondents writing to me a communist, when I said he did not understand that under socialism there would be no choice of jobs for the workers.

Now he convicts himself of his real character by making the following statement in regard to my labeling him a communist: He says, "Such outrageous effrontery and falsifying goads the people to seek redress with bullets instead of ballots and to seek the truth by suppressing the indispensable freedom of the press."

I can see nothing wrong in using the word "communist" or "socialist" to describe men who advocate the same things that socialists and communists advocate. Words like these are intended to shorten language. If we cannot use a noun that accurately describes a man, our language would be very cumbersome.

As aforesaid, no socialist, no communist will set forth any impersonal, immutable rule, principle, axiom, formula or order that they will agree to live by.

ROOSEVELT'S POPULARITY NO PROOF HE IS RIGHT

Many apologists for the New Deal are constantly bringing up the fact that Roosevelt was elected the third time with a big majority, and conclude that this is proof he is right; that his actions will be helpful to his fellowman.

Roosevelt did not get the votes because he was popular. He got the votes because he took from those who had worked and saved in the past and delivered about 12,000,000 checks a month to voters. He digressed farther from the principles our forefathers aspired to than any president in our history; that is, he has done more plain bribing than any former candidate.

Would anybody contend that a jury that was receiving checks from one side of a controversy, would establish justice and give a right decision? It is just as reasonable to conclude that Roosevelt is right because of the votes he received, as it would be to say a bribed jury would give an impartial, right and just decision.

No, the votes that Roosevelt received are not even evidence that he is following a course that will restore our prosperity. All history gives evidence that the course he is following will lead us farther into turmoil, poverty, misery and oppression in spite of the votes he received.

When the foundation of American political and economic life has been destroyed it must follow that everything represented by it and sustained by it will disappear also. If these are gloomy predictions they are not extravagant. They are confirmed by the prophecies of the men who are carrying out the program which will bring such results in its train.

Europe is already prostrated and, according to reliable reports, exposed to a winter of famine in many sections, particularly in the conquered and occupied countries which have been bled by war, made destitute by national misfortunes, and exposed to the worst rigors of the blockade.

The promises of destruction made by Mr. Roosevelt's advisers and administrators are promises which will be kept. To the communistically minded men who have been in the forefront of the Rooseveltian thought from the beginning, the outcome is desirable. They have sought transformation to what they have politely called the planned economy which in Europe they recognize as Hitler and despotism. These promises will be kept and these prophecies fulfilled, altho the crooked way to war has been paved with deliberate falsification, bad faith, and broken words.

Nothing but suffering and misery will come of it. There will be no new order, neither Hitler's nor Roosevelt's. A great dawn such as the world has never seen is not arising and will not arise. The freedoms which are the war cries of people seeking conflict to extinction are vapors. By the guidance of falsehoods the American people have been led into the crooked road of sacrificial illusions.

PRACTICAL SANTA CLAUS (The Akron Beacon Journal)

The incredibly generous terms of the United States' billion-dollar credit to Russia issued in still in the beneficiaries an abiding faith in Santa Claus. Russia is to receive a billion dollars' worth of war materials and she is not required to start paying for them until five years after the cessation of hostilities. Furthermore, the debt is to bear no interest. This is philanthropy in full bloom.

IS THIS THE CLOSED SHOP THAT JOHN LEWIS WANTS?

Around Hollywood

By GREGORY LA CAVA Motion picture director, who today contributes a guest column to Paul Harrison's vacation.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22—In a recently completed picture, I had a character say, "The United States is like a carpet. The middle part is the warp and wool and the rest of it is just fringe."

I didn't fully realize the import of this statement until later when we took the picture, "Unfinished Business," to the hinterlands for what is known as a sneak preview.

I was aware that the picture was appearing for the first time in front of an impartial jury; that more of this cross-section of America would see the picture than the other kind. The customary preview cards were neither cluttered up with superlatives or condemnations. Most responses were yes or no. Fortunately, most of them were yes—which is beside the point.

The reaction set me to thinking about Mr. and Mrs. America, the "faithfuls," whose homes and quarters enable a few of us to get paid more than we're worth. It struck me all of a sudden that it might be an idea for Hollywood generally to refresh its jaded creative senses by leaving over the back fences of the middle west rather than against predictions in Sandusky, O., might be a better conning tower for the observation of life than a San Francisco night club.

After all, movies deal with life and the human emotions. If you present your case in an entertaining manner, its reception will be all you desire. The audience may not know how you arrive at entertainment value; they may not know how many French poodles a star possesses, but they'll darn soon tell you whether a star is doing her stuff.

In my opinion, pictures should deal solely with human emotions; not with the problems of a few isolated people, but with the simple emotions that affect the greatest number of people. Most of America, or the world for that matter, indulges in some form of work where the emotions have little opportunity to wander. I believe it's the function of Hollywood to provide this emotional outlet.

NO DOCUMENTS, PLEASE

If a man has been plowing a field all day, I'm sure that he'll not select for his evening's entertainment a documentary film that has to do with the travail of conquering the land.

The average human is interested in very personal things rather than generalities. The story of an abandoned baby, a love triangle or a cut murder will win closer reading in the newspapers than long dispatches about the present war.

The world is composed of average people. I am happy to have met a few of them and I hope to meet more.

Lieut. Wilks Chapman, dental surgeon at the station hospital, Camp Barkley, Abilene, spent Thanksgiving in Pampa visiting in the home of his mother, Mrs. Ellen Chapman, 601 West Foster. Dr. Chapman came back looking very much like a soldier with his blonde hair cut short and wearing a first lieutenant's uniform. He has been at Camp Barkley a month. Before that he was stationed at Fort Bliss for six months. Then he received his commission and was sent to the Abilene camp. After he graduated from the dental college, he practiced for seven months at Odessa. Wilks is strictly a home town boy, having been born and raised here, and having attended Pampa high school. He was as excited as you or I over the football victory. He returned to Abilene Friday.

Another member of the armed forces who came to Pampa to spend the holiday was Lieut. John C. Burton and his wife, Mrs. Burton. John is an instructor at Randolph Field, San Antonio, where he got his wings. Lieut. Burton did not tell his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. V. Burton, that he would be here Thanksgiving, but nevertheless when he opened the door he expected to find his mother up to her elbows in flour and a turkey in the oven, but when he arrived at home he found the chicken cold and the folks gone. Later he found them eating their turkey dinner at a local cafe. But the next day, Mrs. W. O. Day, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton, and her husband came over from Stroud, Okla., former home town of the Burtons, and they had their Thanksgiving dinner at home. Lieut. Burton joined the air corps when he was a student at the University of Kansas. He gives his address at Randolph field as Pampa, although he was never in Pampa until he came up the other day. The Burtons moved here from Arkansas City last spring. Mrs. Burton was a club member of the Missouri club.

The old cry, "We'll beat 'em next year!" is already resounding, and two future Harvesters, both Gorillas now, James Enloe and Billy Joe Kuehl, submit this poem for your edification: The Harvesters came little but rough, To fight the Sandies and their bluff. The Sandies knew they could win the game Before they ever to Pampa came. But this my friends got in the Harvesters' hair, And they decided to finish the Sandies then and there. And so my friends you see what came of what Amarillo thought was a cinched game. And now my friends lend an ear: The Harvesters will do it again next year!

Highlights From Latest Books

By JOHN SELBY

"SECRET HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION," by Carl Van Doren (Viking; $3.75). Certainly the long-notorious treason of Benedict Arnold has never before been set forth at such length, or with such accuracy, as it is in Carl Van Doren's "Secret History of the American Revolution." And certainly the story makes good reading for those with more than average curiosity about the darker ventures of the Revolution.

Mr. Van Doren's material is mostly new, since he has had the luck to be permitted to make first examination of the secret service papers of Sir Henry Clinton, who was from 1778 to 1782 commander-in-chief of British forces in North America. These papers, with others, were discovered a few years ago in England, and were sold to the Clements library at Ann Arbor, Mich. Mr. Van Doren has been two years at the job of deciphering and checking and correlating the material, and fitting the new information thus gained into the story as it has come down to us.

Only an expert in Revolutionary history could write intelligently on the changes in the general picture of one of the famous treacheries of history. For the general reader the book's chief value will be its exceedingly detailed portrait of Arnold, Andre, Clinton, Peggy Arnold, and half a hundred others who innocently or otherwise touched the conspiracy. Of the lot, the portrait of Arnold is most complete, and explains most.

For Mr. Van Doren has taken great pains to check the evidence of Arnold's many difficulties before he determined to betray his country and his command. There is no question of Arnold's efficiency as a commander. Neither is there any question but that he was unrepentant in financial affairs, certainly guilty of fraud on a number of occasions, and certainly guilty of profiting in dubious, though not criminal, ways from his position as an officer of the Continental army.

But most revealing is his peculiar persecution complex. Arnold was always shouting about his honor, and his name was forever impugning. This has the effect of making his treason seem inevitable, and almost of relieving the reader when at last the bargain is made.

Behind The News In Washington

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22—A 200-mile stretch of Russian railroad not shown on any of the standard maps is now the all-important connecting link that makes possible the delivery of relief supplies and armaments shipped from Great Britain to Soviet Russia. This shuttle runs along the south shore of the White Sea, at the head of which is Archangel of bitter Russian A. E. E. memories. The road connects Archangel with the rail line which runs from Murmansk on the Arctic Sea, 750 miles south to Leningrad.

The Finns now hold 300 miles of this road above Leningrad, cutting off direct transit of supplies arriving at Murmansk, a port free from ice the year round. Archangel is usually frozen in from December to April.

Thus it would be impossible for Russia to get British and American war supplies if it were not for this spur that makes possible the shipment overland by rail from Murmansk to Archangel. From there it can be routed over known Soviet railroads south to Moscow and points east.

Importance of this connecting link and the desire of the Soviet to hold it during the winter months is one of the principal reasons why the Soviet is so anxious to make peace with Finland now. If the Finns, with German assistance, were to push eastward and cut the railroad from Murmansk to Archangel, there would be no practical way in which aid could reach Russia's northern front until the spring thaw which would open Archangel.

Soviet Russia has made great strides in the development of her Arctic ports and in the use of ice breakers to keep them open during the winter months. Claims have been made that sea lanes to Archangel could be kept open by the use of ice breakers, but from a military view it is pointed out that the maneuverability of ships traveling in narrow, ice-bound channels would be so reduced they would be easy targets for dive-bombing aircraft.

THE SAVING OF MANY FACES As seen and heard from a knot-hole on Washington's back-fence gossip, this attempt to make peace between Finland and Soviet Russia involves so much of an effort at face saving and national honor maintaining that the whole affair might well be taking place in the Orient, where face salvaging is a recognized part of the national character and economy.

No one doubts Finland's sincerity and integrity. Everyone appreciates the game little country was in a tough spot. She was fighting for her national honor. How she can make peace and save face is now her problem. She has more than regained territory sacrificed to the Soviet after the first Russian-Finnish war.

Key to the solution lies in the Russian province of East Karelia, which the Finns have penetrated. If the Finns would stop short of the Murmansk-Archangel railroad, the Soviet face-and-neck-would be saved.

Great Britain has a face to save in this proposition, too. Urged to declare war on Finland as a relief measure to Soviet Russia and as a means of putting more pressure on Germany, the British have been most reluctant to take this fateful step—and for good reason. Through a Finni named Ramsay-of Scotch descent—Great Britain has scotch of a good part of Finland's merchant marine. And these are the ships, specially built for battling arctic ice, that Great Britain is using to haul supplies to Murmansk.

How the United States is to come out in this face-saving scramble remains to be seen. This country is, in effect, asking Finland to make peace with her natural enemy, for whom the United States had no particular love until last June. The Finns naturally ask how the Soviet's future good behavior is going to be guaranteed, and it may be up to the United States to make that guarantee.

TANKS INTO PILLBOXES

Most interesting development of the German-Russian campaign, from a military standpoint, was the recent brief announcement that the German armies before Moscow were burying their tanks. This earth fill around a tank on a siege line is a curious tactical maneuver.

In the severe Soviet winters, the earth will naturally freeze. The turret of the tank is of course left above ground, and the tank itself becomes a blockhouse with double protection of frozen earth fill and its own armor. It is also earth-insulated, and much more comfortable for the tank crew.

TEX'S TOPICS

IT WAS reported in Saturday's Amarillo paper that the Golden Saddles have no alibi to offer for their defeat at the hands of the Pampa Harvesters. That's what we thought. If anybody could dig up an alibi for as clean cut a whipping as that one was, it would have to be a dandy. Some Pampans thought the alibi in the Amarillo paper the day after the game didn't give Pampa enough credit, but we think that Jerry Malin's story of the game was fair in every sense of the word. He summed it all up when he wrote that Pampa's victory was not flukes in any degree. In the event Pampa defeats Borger and Amarillo takes Plainview this week, that three-way tie is going to be a honey to decide.

And, if things work out that way—we will be thankful on the next Thanksgiving night that we are not a member of the district board which has to decide who will represent District 1-AA in the playoffs. It was not for this bear-ug compliments on that grand game the Harvesters played Thursday for the fans and for their coaches despite the flareup which caused three members of the team to be dropped from the roster only two days before the big game for breaking training. Likewise, we have not heard one dissenting voice from fans about the action taken by Coach Buck Prejean to maintain team discipline. Most of the news in the Amarillo paper was again publicly commended for his stand at Friday's Kiwanis club luncheon where he and Assistant Coach Mac Best were guests.

FVT Howard B. Steele, of Denver, Colo., a brother of Dudley Steele, Pampa, sends his relatives here copies of two daily papers published for American troops now in Iceland. He reports that they are the only two English-language newspapers printed in Iceland. Most of the news in the tabloid-type papers, The Daily Post and The White Falcon, deals with the war. Incidentally, Private Steele reports in his heavily-censored letter, that the whole affair was a success. He decidedly disapproved of the way the war was conducted. Private Steele is a clerical worker with Uncle Sam's 33rd Pursuit Squadron in Iceland.

The old saying that the first hundred years are the hardest is put right in its place by a little rhyme appearing recently done on the age of the sun. The sun, hazards Dr. George Gamow, professor of physics at George Washington university, is a mere youngster of some two billion years, and one to live to the ripe old age of 12 billion. The age of our own earth is also about two billion years, he calculates, not specifying how many years remain to it. Nevertheless, to those who are asked by the right party, estimating of progress, it would appear that on this kind of a cosmic scale of measurement, there's plenty of time.

There are seven ages of man and two of women—one's her right one. If a father uses slang, his wife says she's setting a bad example—if he doesn't, his kids think he's a back number. Starting Dec. 1, Germany will allow men six cigarettes a day and women three every other day. That will mean about 225 a month for some married women. The average girl doesn't discover that candy is sold by the bag until she is married. "I can't" is the byword of the fellow who seldom does. Idle gossip goes in one ear and out the other, or in both ears and out the mouth. Near Jackson, Wyo., 54 hunters shot a pranker's decoy elk, each one leaving it to fool someone else. Passing the bucket maybe books were invented so men would have some place to write to hang their clothes. New York night club laughed at the law and had a padlock slapped on the door. Now they can try to laugh it off. Some people won't even swing at a golf ball for fear they'll swing something.

Texas Aggies Win Southwest Conference Championship

Impressive Victory Over Borger Would Help Harvesters' Chances

Next, and last, game for the Pampa Harvesters will be played Thursday afternoon at Harvester park with the Borger Bulldogs providing the opposition. It will be the second Thanksgiving Day game of the season for the Harvesters who on last Thursday upset the mighty Amarillo Sandies 16 to 12.

Borger, who hasn't won a conference game this season, would like nothing better than to down the Harvesters. It would really be a juicy bone for the Bulldogs if they could beat the team that beat the Sandies.

The Harvesters aren't taking the game lightly. They know the Bulldogs will be shooting the works and clashed district champion and an impressive victory over Borger would help their cause materially.

The district champions will be selected by the district committee composed of superintendents and coaches of the five member schools. Supt. W. A. McIntosh of Borger, district chairman, will call the meeting, either Saturday or early next week.

A lot of people have been wondering how the Pampa Harvesters were able to overcome great odds and defeat Amarillo high school's defending state championship football team Thursday afternoon.

Coach Buck Prejan, who with Assistant Coach Mac Best, was a guest of the Pampa Kiwanis club at its weekly luncheon Friday gave the civic club members an easy answer to the question.

"Most of the doubters figured that because Amarillo beat Lubbock and Lubbock in turn defeated the Harvesters that Pampa didn't stand a chance of a chance against the Golden Sandies.

Coaches Prejan and Best never figured it that way.

"The credit for the victory over Amarillo," Coach Prejan told the Kiwanians, "belongs directly to the team members and the student body of the school.

"I have never seen such confidence among members of the student body," the coach said, "and the team had its mind made up that there would be nothing but victory. It was all settled a week before the game.

"That attitude never changed. Of course, the team and the student body got the attitude from the support they are getting from the fans in general. The fans have been fine to the team this year. The student body and the team members have appreciated that fact."

Summing it all up, Coach Prejan said the complete absence of a defeatist attitude on the part of the school, the team, and the general public spelled victory for the Pampa team.

"Everything was working perfectly," he said.

The head coach pointed out that one of the first things one of the co-captains said to him after Thursday's game was this:

"Boys, that student body and the fans certainly were behind us this afternoon, weren't they?"

Coach Prejan said that Pampa is taking nothing for granted in the game with Borger here next Thursday afternoon.

"Borger has its mind made up to beat us," he said. "They don't care what has happened the rest of the season. All they want is to win from Pampa—and as long as there are 11 men out there on the field playing against us, anything can happen."

Both Prejan and Best indicated that the preparations for the Borger game will be just as strenuous and just as serious as they were for the Amarillo game.

"We are not under-rating Borger in any sense of the word," Prejan added.

TCU, Rice Battle To Scoreless Tie

By HARRY E. HOARE
FORT WORTH, Nov. 22 (AP)—Texas A. and M. won the Southwest conference football championship in absence today, Rice battling the Texas Christian Horned Frogs to a scoreless tie which saw TCU unable to get past the Owl 38-yard line.

Until today TCU had a chance to win the title if it could have defeated both Rice and Southern Methodist and A. and M. lost to Texas next week. But today's deadlock, which counts a half-game win and half-game loss in the conference standings, removed the Frog hopes.

A crowd of 10,000 saw the Owls once drive as far as the Frog one-yard line and with 40 seconds to go try a field goal from the TCU 31. The gallant Frogs were on the defensive most of the way as Rice played one of its best games of the year.

Heavy rains had made the field slippery, but this did not cut down on thrilling runs.

The Owls rolled up 241 yards to 149 for the Frogs and had 12 touchdowns to 6.

The great punting of Stoop Dickson of Rice was a deciding factor in holding the Purple in its territory most of the time.

Late in the third period Dick Dwell drove 21 yards straight thru the middle down to the Texas Christian 1-yard line but fumbled, and Dean Bagley, great little Frog back, recovered.

That was as close as Rice got to scoring but as before the Owls had crunched down to the TCU 4-yard line with Dickson and Bob Brumley, crashing fullback, leading the way. Brumley threw in a 20-yard gain to feature the charge.

McLean Stings Irish 19 To 6 For District Title

By HARRY E. HOARE
Sports Editor, The Pampa News
MCLAN, Nov. 22—McLean's fleet Tigers took over the championship of District 3A of the Texas Interscholastic league Friday night with a well-earned 19 to 6 victory over a big and stubborn Shamrock Irish team. McLean will now meet Floydada in a bi-district game, date and site to be decided at a meeting of school officials.

McLean became the district representative after the LeFors Pirates, who had gone undefeated all season, voluntarily withdrew upon learning that one of their players was ineligible because of too many semesters of participation in sports.

LeFors had defeated both McLean and Shamrock by the margin of a field goal.

The Tigers gave away 11 pounds per man when they met the Irish Friday night and to overcome that handicap they flashed a dazzling first half of speed and deception and then held the Irish in check the rest of the way.

The game was only a few minutes old when Cook recovered a Shamrock fumble on the Irish 35-yard line. Stymied by the big Shamrock line, the Tigers took to the air, Cook passing twice in a row to Lee for a total of 30 yards. Then Cook took charge on the ground and two plays later he crossed the Shamrock goal line. The try for extra point missed the uprights.

Cook Steps 88 Yards
McLean marched to the Irish 20 at the quarter but Rives intercepted one of Cook's heaves on his goal line and raced to the Irish 30. Irish power exerted itself as Sewell, Martin, and Rives roared to the McLean 12-yard line before the drive bogged down. A McLean line play failed to gain. Then Cook split the Shamrock line, sidestepped three tacklers, and headed for the Shamrock goal line, which he crossed 15 yards ahead of his nearest pursuer. Again McLean's try for extra point was blocked.

Another fumble set up McLean's last touchdown early in the third quarter. The Tigers took over on the Shamrock 35-yard line and Cook proceeded to pass 25 yards to Lee. Cook then followed up by hiding the ball behind his back and roaming 25 yards un molested to a touchdown. The Tigers didn't even know Cook had the ball and they smothered Lee. Cook passed to Batson for the extra point.

From that point until the final whistle Shamrock had the advantage but they were able to score only once. Shamrock intercepted a pass and returned to the McLean 30. Rives passed to Montgomery on the 18. Rives and Martin powered a drive with Rives going over from the one-yard line. The try for extra point was blocked.

Cook Outstanding
Cook was the outstanding ball carrier on the field, with Rives Shamrock's shining light. Line

Borger Asks For 1,600 Game Tickets

Borger is going to move to Pampa next Thursday—at least, a considerable portion of it—to see the Pampa-Borger football game to be played here that day, according to requests from Borger for tickets to the game.

Already Borger has asked for 500 adult tickets, 500 general admission, and 600 student tickets.

The Bulldogs always play their best game against the Harvesters, and the Pampa-Borger grid contest will be just as thrilling as the classic last week when the fighting Harvesters snapped the Golden Sandstorm's 22-game winning streak.

Locally, tickets for the Borger game go on sale Tuesday morning at the Pampa Independent School district office in the city hall. General admission tickets are 83 cents, of which 8 cents is federal tax; reserved seats are $1.10, of which a dime is federal tax.

play by both teams was outstanding and if anything the smaller Tigers out-charged the Irish who appeared to be sluggish.

McLean rolled up 10 first downs to six for Shamrock. On the ground the Tigers gained 228 yards while losing 57. Shamrock powered for 106 yards and lost 8. In the air the Tigers completed three passes for 44 yards and had two intercepted. McLean drew 55 yards in penalties to five for Shamrock.

Starting lineup:
McLean—Batson and J. Lisman, ends; Roth and P. Lisman, tackles; Boyd and Holl, guards; Jones, center; Cook, quarter; Lee and Dyer, halves; Dwight, full. Subs: Simpson and Montgomery.

Shamrock—Lister and Ewton, ends; Kerah and Exum, tackles; Callan and H. Callan, guards; Glover, center; Rives, quarter; Sewell, full. Subs: Clynch, Sims, Pepper, and Whitton.

Officials: Douglas of Claude, referee; King of Pampa, head linesman; Brown of LeFors, umpire; Brown of LeFors, field judge.

Oklahoma Shoves Marquette Aside

NORMAN, Okla., Nov. 22 (AP)—Oklahoma shoved Marquette's Golden Avalanche back uphill today, 61 to 14, after the invaders had roared down on the Sooners to take a first quarter lead.

It was a wild exhibition of football, and a sad one for Tom Stidham, returning to the scene of his former triumphs as head coach of Marquette. He left Oklahoma last year.

The 8,000 spectators who braved the chill and a driving rain saw the Hilltoppers smash and run to two first period counters after the Sooners had rocked the invaders with a 56-yard dash to play dirt.

That original scoring play was made by Orr Mathews, great little Sooner quarterback, who had orders to call his own number, and did it until forced out with a side injury in the second period.

He fumbled on his own 44, picked up the ball on the first bounce, sped through left tackle, cut to his left and so far out-distanced Marquette's defenders that he turned to wave at them.

With Robert McCahill, Marquette left half, passing, the Hilltoppers went into action, a 26-yard pass to Ed Ray Carlson finding touchdown territory. John Goodyear kicked the point.

Shortly thereafter, Charles Bayer covered Mathews' fumble on the Sooner 29, and Pullback Douglas Renzel went to town, cracking the tackles until they gave way and letting him through for 14 yards and a touchdown. Goodyear again added the point.

Gophers Bury Wisconsin, Clinch National Title

By HERB BARKER
NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP)—Minnesota's powerful Gophers completed their second successive unbeaten, untied football season today and firmly established themselves as the nation's No. 1 team for the second time in as many years.

Overwhelming choice for the No. 1 spot in the last Associated Press poll, the Gophers, led by Bruce Smith, buried Wisconsin under a 41-6 count for their 17th consecutive victory, clinched the Big Ten title for the sixth time in eight years, and left no room for doubt that they would be ranked on top when the football rolls are closed for the season.

Smith, showing small trace of the injury that hampered him in earlier games, was the mainspring of a ferocious offense that swept the fighting Badgers off their feet and settled the outcome of the game almost before it started.

Notre Dame and Duke, two other members of the slender band of major teams who have escaped defeat, closed their regular seasons with victories. But there was sharp contrast in their methods. Duke, with Winston Siegfried scoring four touchdowns, buried North Carolina State, 55-6, but Notre Dame was hard-pressed to turn back four-times-beaten Southern California, 20-18. It was the first unbeaten season for the Irish, who were tied by army, since Kirtue Rockne's 1929 outfit.

Of the other major unbeaten teams, Duquesne closed its season last week while Texas A. & M., which clinched the Southwest title today when its nearest rival, Texas Christian, played a scoreless tie with Rice, will face Texas on Thursday.

Two other conference races were decided today. Missouri routing Kansas as expected, 45-6, took over the Big Six throne vacated by Nebraska. Utah, which was idle, walked into the Big Seven crown when Brigham Young was upset by Colorado State, 22-7.

In the East, Fordham's once-beaten Rams, hopeful of a bowl engagement, spotted St. Mary's Gael an early touchdown and then used the airways to chalk up a 5-7 decision. Harvard, extended to the limit by a gallant Yale eleven, pounded out a 14-0 triumph to take the Big Three crown. Penn., concentrating its scoring in the first half, buried a hapless, fumbling Cornell outfit, 16-0, as Navy, paced by Bill Busik, ran all over Princeton, 23-0. Indiana Bill Geyer was the star as Colgate applied Columbia, 29-21.

Playing in a series of brilliant kicks by both teams, Meredith Jones set the style in the first, pushing Mississippi back and back with one kick from his 25 out on the 18, and another from his 39 that gradually rolled to a stop on the 3.

Borger Has Made Up Its Mind To Beat Pampa, Says Prejan

A lot of people have been wondering how the Pampa Harvesters were able to overcome great odds and defeat Amarillo high school's defending state championship football team Thursday afternoon.

27-0. Billy Hillebrand accounted for the only score as Indiana nipped Purdue, 7-0, while Michigan and Ohio State, battling for second place in the Big Ten conference, played a spectacular 20-20 tie, with Bob Westfall and Tom Kuzma setting the Michigan pace and Jack Graf doing yeoman service for the Buckeyes. Nebraska's bitter rivalry with Iowa once again was decided by one point, Nebraska earning a 14-13 verdict with a garrison finish.

Iowa State and Kansas State played to a 12-12 draw while Oklahoma ran up a stunning 61-14 count on Marquette. Southern Methodist won a Southwest conference test from Baylor, 14-0.

In the southeast, Vanderbilt ruined Alabama's bowl hopes with a 7-0 decision. Jack Jenkins doing the scoring as he has in every previous game on the Vanderbilt schedule. Florida's passing attack upset Georgia Tech, 14-7, an Tennessee spilled Kentucky, 20-7. Frankie Sinkwich led Georgia to an easy 35-0 conquest of Dartmouth while Junie Hovious counted twice as Mississippi stopped Arkansas, 18-0. Clemson took a Southern conference decision from Furman, 34-6.

Oregon State, brushing past Montana with ease, 27-0, remained in the thick of the race for the Rose Bowl assignment. However, the Beavers still must face Oregon, which sprang a big upset by tripping Washington, 19-16. This left the bowl assignment strictly between Oregon State and Stanford, unless they should lose in their final games. Santa Clara routed U. C. L. A., 31-13.

Washington State handed Gonzaga a 59-0 trouncing, while Idaho won from Montana State, 39-0.

BITS ABOUT BOWLING

Dr. Pepper's bowling team from Pampa topped 2,748 pins in winning three straight games from Schlitz of Gorgier in the Borger City Bowling league Thursday night. National Tank from Pampa won two out of three games from Diamond Shop.

In other games K. C. Stores won three from Panhandle Power and Light and Horton Service Station won two out of three from Gunn Hinerman.

HYDRA-MATIC

Most everyone knows Hydra-Matic Drive is a work saver. But few realize that it's a gas saver, too. Here are the facts: Hydra-Matic is engineered with four speeds forward. That permits slower engine speeds. In fourth speed, for example, 1,000 engine revolutions will propel your Olds Hydra-Matic 2,130 feet as against 1,700 feet for a similar car with standard transmission. Hence, you get more mileage on gas—or, conversely, save gas on any given trip. Then, too, Hydra-Matic's automatic shifting prevents lags and consequent waste of fuel. The net result—gasoline savings of 10 to 15 per cent. Why not drive the easy Hydra-Matic way—in a new Olds B-44—and be money ahead on gas!

gram of self-discipline in which he writes answers to any questions that he can't answer with "God bless you," or "Amen" or some other scriptural phrase.

The reporter found the couple seated before a fire, reading a Bible. She was embarrassed and smiled shyly when she looked at her new husband in the presence of a stranger. Then she confided to the reporter.

"He just swept me off my feet. I wasn't ready to get married quite yet."

Young Vann, tall, black-haired street preacher and jail evangelist, started to scribble something on his pad of paper but stopped. Then he started again, writing that their plans for the negro school must await the end of their honeymoon period, raised from one week to 40 days.

A former University of Oklahoma and Connors college student, young Vann met his bride 10 months ago when he was a ministerial student here.

Neither has been married before, and Mrs. Vann smiled gaily as she said "he's my first and last and I'm his first and last."

The bride is an author and before the reporter left she gave him a copy of her book, "How to Win," and pamphlets entitled "How to Lick the Devil" and "The Christ-You."

Then the bride and groom prayed with downcast eyes and the report they had just given would have good effect on others.

Baker Team Will Banquet Tomorrow

Members of the Baker school football team, champions of the Pampa Ward School Football league, will be honored with a banquet Monday night at 7 o'clock in the Junior High cafeteria on central campus.

Highlight of the banquet will be the presentation of the Dan McGrew trophy to the team. Or rather it will be the re-presentation of the trophy because the Baker team also won it last year.

C. E. "Dan" McGrew, must be won three times before a team gains permanent possession. The trophy will be presented by Mr. McGrew.

Baker's crack little team finished the season without a loss but with three ties. No other team was able to escape a loss, so the title went to Baker.

Uruguay urgently needs water-power that was to have been supplied by the huge dam pictured above, across the Negro river. But the dam's completion may be tied up in legal snarls over whether Americans may install the machinery, contract for which is held by a war-stymied German group.

Uruguay Faces Economic Ruin Without U. S. Steel

By FRED S. FERGUSON
 President of NEA Service
 MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Nov. 22

"This little country is teetering on the brink of economic collapse. A traditional friend of the United States, 100 per cent pro-democracy in the present struggle and a sound democracy in itself, Uruguay is beginning to wonder whether its big friend in the north is going to permit her to sink for lack of raw materials with which to sustain economic life.

Standing in Independence Square of Montevideo in the shadow of the Artigas monument, with the life and bustle of a busy city all about, it is difficult to realize that the question of whether this life and activity continues depends upon steel production and priorities in the United States. But, this is the case.

At the moment Uruguay is sound economically in every respect, except for the complete lack of steel for construction work, which is getting closer and closer. The country has a dollar balance of forty millions. Its people are thrifty, democratic, and industrious. There is a distinct North American atmosphere about Montevideo. You can even buy a hot dog at a little sidewalk stand. Uruguay's principal exports are hides from its cattle, wool, and linseed, and the United States purchases two-thirds of all that Uruguay has to sell. The country nevertheless, is near the end of its economic rope and the shadow of unemployment lurks behind the mountain from which the city gets its name.

STARVED FOR LACK OF BUILDING STEEL

Unless steel bars for reinforced concrete construction work are received—and soon—75,000 men will be thrown out of work. They have been engaged up to now constructing roads, buildings of various descriptions, and generally employed in the principal industry Uruguay has outside of its cattle and sheep raising. If there are no steel rods, construction must stop and responsible authorities—placing an estimate of four to a family—are seriously alarmed over the prospect of 300,000 men, women, and children of Uruguay losing their means of support. This is more than 10 per cent of the population of the country.

There is no German problem in Uruguay. The automobiles of the city are decorated with victory "V's." American industries are the favored industries. Even the local news of the country is gathered and distributed by the United Press, an American agency, which maintains a large bureau in Montevideo devoted entirely to the handling of Uruguayan news for Uruguayan newspapers.

In the face of all this, it is a little difficult for a Uruguayan to understand why some steel isn't to be had. In effect, therefore, Uruguay is going to reverse the process that has been going on and intends to send a goodwill mission to the United States.

It will be in the form of addinorthern route to the great Caucasus oil fields.

Moreover, apparently in a desperate attempt to offset the British drive in North Africa, Hitler was now hurling tanks, planes and men by the tens and hundreds of thousands into a climactic smash toward Moscow.

Soviet front-line dispatches said the Germans, under orders to "capture Moscow by Christmas," were attacking with "probably the largest concentration of forces ever seen in modern warfare."

Stalled in week-long assaults against the north and south flanks of Moscow's 200-mile defense area—at Tula, 100 miles south of the capital, and Kalinin, 95 miles northwest—the Germans were reported to have shifted their attack to the center, striking their heaviest blows in the Moshaisk sector, 57 miles west of Moscow.

Meanwhile, reliable quarters in Europe were spurting Hitler to exert strong new pressure on France for air bases and supply routes to combat the drive.

These quarters said Hitler was prepared to change the armistice with France into a formal peace settlement—presumably including the return of 1,000,000 French soldiers now imprisoned in Germany—on the condition of German concessions in French North Africa.

From Vichy it was reported that Marshal Petain would soon go to occupied France to meet a high German personage, possibly Hitler himself, a move giving credence to signal personnel for the Embassy in Washington, and the job will be to spell out Uruguay's needs and then follow through every channel, step by step, until steel is forthcoming. The country needs only about 88,000 tons annually and considering the vast production advertised by the United States, that doesn't seem to be much to an anxious government official of Uruguay.

Two dangerous factors have been entering into the situation in recent weeks. One is speculation, and the other is uncertainty and doubt that has been arising in the minds of Uruguayans owing to whispered reports brought to them that Brazil and Argentina are getting better treatment at the hands of the United States. They hear of the Brazilian boom and say, "Then Brazil must be getting steel."

And speculators down here, with efficient representation in Washington, claim to have gotten priorities for deliveries elsewhere as part of their sales argument for orders in Uruguay at double the market price. These speculators have guaranteed delivery—for prices running as high as $140 a ton for steel normally priced at $53 at the mill. And the contractor of Uruguay begins to wonder whether it is price that controls delivery.

Meanwhile, a new treaty between the United States and Uruguay is being negotiated, and Ambassador William Dawson and Commercial Attaché, Robert G. Glover, painstakingly explain and give assurances daily that no favoritism is being shown on the question of American raw materials.

"GOOD WILL" TOURS PROVE EXPENSIVE

The seemingly unending stream of North American "good will" missions actually has created financial problems for the Uruguayans, what with all of the entertaining to be done—and time problems as well, if the business of the city and country was to be carried on.

When one of the last missions appeared, Uruguayans requested that it please be understood that there be no day-time social affairs scheduled, even if the Americans paid for the entertainment. The Uruguayans felt they simply had to get on with their jobs.

The government and people of Uruguay didn't need any selling, but the visits of some of the good willers were not without their bright spots. The president—General Alfredo Baldomir—is still talking about Jo Davidson. This famous sculptor did a bust of the president, all the while spattering typical Davidsonian bon mots through his whiskers, and Jo delighted the general.

Ambassador Dawson had the opportunity of meeting the entire Uruguayan congress as the result of the visit of one mission. The ambassador had a cocktail party for this mission and invited all the members of the congress and most of them came. But here, as in Brazil, North and South Americans agreed that the most effective way for the United States to display good will is to deliver goods that are sorely needed at fair prices.

NAZIS CAN'T FILL DAM CONTRACT

Some time around next June, there will be a nice little point of contract interpretation to be worked out between Germany and Uruguay, and the United States may have a hand in it. It has to do with a big power plant that is being constructed on the River Negro, above Montevideo. When completed the plant will be able to serve all of Uruguay with light and power. It will be government owned and operated. But a German consortium is building it.

The contract was made before the start of the war, and Uruguay was to pay for the building of the plant and for the electrical machinery on a part cash and part barter basis. The work is being carried forward by Uruguayan labor, and within the next six or seven months the plant buildings should be ready for the installation of machinery.

The question in Montevideo is—then what?

The Germans, obviously, will not be able to furnish the machinery for the plant. Inquiries are already being made as to whether American sources can finish the job. It's all very important to Uruguay, since this little country has no fuel supply whatsoever. It needs water power. If and when the job of furnishing the machinery is taken over, there may be plenty of argument over the German contract for a long time to come.

Dead General?

recent advices to the Associated Press that France was about to accept a full partnership in Hitler's "new order" in Europe.

A Rome radio broadcast heard in New York said Premier Mussolini would attend the Hitler-Petain meeting.

Further support for belief that momentous developments in France - German relations are pending was given in a White House statement in Washington that Germany is planning a general European conference for December or January, presumably to draw up "some high sounding formula of economic rehabilitation and restoration of independence for all European nations."

A further strain on French-United States relations appeared following the state department's accusation that the Vichy government's removal of General Maxime Weygand from command of French troops in Africa was at "the express demands of Hitler." A semi-official French reply Saturday said, "it would seem hard to believe that relations between America and France could undergo a total alteration because of that change."

Authorized French sources stressed that events in Vichy were linked with the British offensive on the Libyan desert.

Besides Libya, another bit of Premier Mussolini's African empire was receiving crushing British blows. The British announced from Nairobi, Kenya colony, the surrender of the Italian defenders of "strong positions" at Culquabert and Ferrarob on the road to Gondar, which remains the last important Italian stronghold in East Africa. The British said that 800 Italians and 1,000 natives were captured. They estimated that 10,000 or 11,000 more Italians and Ethiopians were holding out in Gondar.

The early ambition of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, was to be a minister.

Aggies Have Lost Only One Game In Last Three Seasons

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 22 (AP)—The Texas Aggies, who won the Southwest conference football title today without turning a hand, burst into a joyful roar when Coach Homer Norton broke the news this afternoon.

Norton assembled his squad in the training room and held them there throughout the Texas Christian-Rice game. Outside was a radio. Just as the game in Fort Worth neared an end, Norton turned the meeting over to Coaches Bill James and Marty Karow and stepped outside to catch the broadcast.

He listened, tense as a watch-spring while TCU had the ball. With the sound of the gun he raced into the meeting and told his boys they were champions again. TCU and Rice had tied, 6-0.

(TCU by winning could have got a tie out of the race, provided the Aggies lost to Texas next Thursday.)

Marshall Spivey, Derrace Moser, Bill Sibley, and Bill Henderson took the lead in jumping to their feet as he announced they had won but in seconds all were slapping Norton, Karow, and James on the back. It was not until noise abated that someone asked that the score had been and then that got another cheer.

Moser hollered: "I like those TCU boys for beating Texas and I like Rice, too, for they are a fine team, but now I sure love them both for playing that tie game to give us another title. They're both great teams."

For the seniors it meant that they never have finished lower than first in their varsity careers and to Norton it meant that his Aggies can go into the Texas game here Thursday and not be worried about having to win to collect the championship. It also meant a good job done from scratch.

It also added a plume to Norton's cap for he is first coach in Southwest conference history ever to repeat for championship, although it was shared with SMU last year. It now means that he has seen his team lose but one game in the last three seasons and emerge on top in each of those years.

From the time conference was formed no team ever repeated until 1940 Aggies gained a half-share with SMU but their 1941 title makes it a repeat and half to shatter all traditions "they don't repeat in Southwest conference."

After the celebration the team took to the field for a routine secret practice and all were charged full of pep.

Just Between Us Girls

BY JOHNNIE DAVIS

God has two dwellings—One in Heaven, and the other in a meek and thankful heart.

—Isaac Walton.

Since most Pampans will observe Thanksgiving Day next Thursday, the above lines from the Twentieth Century club year book seem appropriate. For the last few years we Americans have been living in the future—and a far from happy future it has been. . . . And so on this Thanksgiving—not only for the day itself, but a part of every day—let's take time out to enjoy and appreciate things as we find them now, without indulging in any "Today is fine—but what about tomorrow?" . . . Let's enjoy to the fullest everything we have for which to be thankful, without taking the edge off our thankfulness by thinking "This will never last." . . . and let's not feel that because most of the world has far less than we for which to give thanks, we must not enjoy what we do have as much as we possibly can. . . . If we have jobs, comfortable homes, good food, and our families with us this Thanksgiving season, let us make it the most joyous one in our memories.

No single event in Pampa has ever afforded the excitement which was displayed Thursday by local football fans when for the second time in the history of Pampa High School the Harvesters outplayed the Amarillo Sandies and won by a score of 16 to 12. . . . Among the ex-Harvesters attending the game was H. L. Ledrick, Jr., and his attractive brunette wife and their handsome young son. . . . Former Pampans at the game included Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Goldston, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Guille, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl R. O'Keefe, all of Amarillo. . . . Scores and scores of beautiful shaggy chrysantheums ranging in color from pure white to deep yellow added color to the game.

Next to a football game the best place to meet everyone whom you know is the grocery store—especially on Saturday or the day before a holiday when stores are to be closed.

Wife (reading from insurance pamphlet)—"A large percentage of accidents occur in the kitchen."
Husband—"Yes, and what's worse, we men have to eat them and pretend we enjoy them."

Birthdays were celebrated by two very young ladies, Carolyn Fletcher and Louise Lawler. . . . Carolyn, who has five years of age on Tuesday, had her first birthday party on that day. Carolyn, whose nickname is "Pudgy," was so excited over the entertainment that she insisted on fixing the invitations all by herself. . . . Louise, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lawler, was six years old on Friday. She is looking forward to going to school next fall.

Average spending—The average American family spends about $1,146 annually in retail stores, according to the census bureau. Largest expenditure is for food, $310. Maintenance of family car is second, $166 for new or used and $83 at filling stations. General merchandise, $176; apparel and shoes, $96; household furnishings, $51; eating and drinking establishments, $104; building materials and hardware, $80; miscellaneous stores, $80.

Rather than "bringing home the bacon," Jane Kerbow brought home the bacon. . . . While attending a dance in Amarillo, Jane was chosen as a guest leader of the orchestra and was presented the bacon after receiving more applause than any other leader. . . . Jane, whose personality and friendly manner give her a wide circle of friends, is proudly wearing a pair of stinging pilot's stinger wings belonging to W. H. Davis, Jr., who was commissioned a second lieutenant in the United States air corps at Stockton, California.

Nominations for a novel name is Penny Money, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Money, whose home is near Skellytown.

In discussing "What the Constitution of the United States means to an American" at a recent meeting of the Yelietas club, Mrs. R. W. Lane read the following poem: "This Is the Better Way," by Susan Coolidge—

He serves his country best
Who joins the tide that lifts her nobly on;
For speech has myriad tongues for everyday,
And song but one; and law within the breast
Is stronger than the graven law on stone;
This is the better way.

He serves his country best
Who lives pure life and doth righteous deeds.
And walks straight paths, however others stray,
And leaves his sons, an uttermost best;
A stainless record, which all men may read;
This is the better way.

Seen apartment hunting last week were Catherine Pearce and Mary Gaylord Booth when Catherine's parents, the Rev. and Mrs. W. M. Pearce, left for Vernon where he will serve as district superintendent. . . . Someone else who probably will be hunting an apartment one of these days is Lois Hinton who is wearing a diamond ring on the third finger, left hand. Lois won't reveal the date.

A winter fashion forecast in the form of a silhouette analysis has been issued by Kelly-Corry, who sketches clothes for movie stars. . . . The designer considers line more important than fabric or color. He offers this guiding chart for the season:

Hats—Miniatures are still important but the head-hugging berets with backward and falling trim are more so. Also watch for hats, cloques and geometric pill-boxes. Turbans will continue to be popular.

Necklines—High, round and collarless, but frequently ornamented with as many as six strands of waist-length beads.

Shoulderlines—Either smooth with some padding or decidedly upped. Some new ones point upward, an effect that will be accomplished with bands of fur and braid.

Bodice—Slim, snug, frequently ending in a point at the back, in front or both; normal waistlines with crushed sashes.

Sleeves—Slim, bishop, dolman or wide-open types. Divided between wrist-length, bracelet length, elbow-length or the cap type.

Skirts—Anything goes. Tubular lines accompany busties. Gathered and pleated skirts are very good.

Hemlines—New calf length to be worn after 5 p. m. Daytime length still short.

After studying Latin for two years, the general impression of this writer was that the largest percentage of words originated from that language. . . . Research shows that more words are derived from French than any other. Even though only a small number is taken from Spanish, this language is unusually fascinating. . . . In translating Spanish phrases at the meeting of the Upsdon chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority, Henry Siler, Pampa High school Spanish instructor, explained the meaning of some of the most commonly used words. . . . In geographical terms, Pampa means plains; Amarillo, yellow; Pueblo, village or people; Nevada, covered with snow; and Colorado, red color. . . . Did you know that Puerto Rico is rich port; Las Vegas, the plains; Pedro, Peter; Juanita, Little Jane; Felipe, Phillip; Los Angeles, the angels; Corpus Christi, the body of Christ; Santa Fe, holy faith; and Las Cruces, the crosses.

"Come little leaves said the wind one day, come over the meadow with me and play" must have been written on just such days as last Tuesday and Wednesday when the wind blew most of the leaves off of the trees.

Wynell Weathered, who is still too young to go to school, has been studying the correct usage of "can" and "may." . . . "Read this to me," Wynell told her mother, Mrs. W. B. Weathered, who asked, "What did you say?" . . . Practicing what she thought was correct, Wynell asked, "May you read this to me?"

If the skirt, sweater, or anklet fits you, wear it, is the modern coed's version of an ancient adage, judging by a recent survey of clothes-borrowing habits at Texas Tech college in Lubbock. . . . Estimates on habitual borrowing from friends and roommates ranged from 30 to 95 per cent of the women students enrolled, with an average of 72 per cent, yet only 54 per cent of the young women polled admitted borrowing themselves. . . . Sweaters were most frequently loaned, with jewelry, anklets, and skirts tying for second position. Ribbons, evening dresses, blouses and jackets were least likely to be passed around. Borrowing etiquette, it was agreed, stipulated early return of borrowed finery, repair of damage or soil, and a willingness to lend one's own wearing apparel.

The man who once most wisely said: "Be sure you're right, then go ahead." Might well have added this to wit: "Be sure you're wrong before you quit!"

Victory Dance At Country Club Follows Game

Among the social events entertaining the younger set Thursday evening following the Pampa Harvester and Amarillo Sandie football game was a victory dance given at the Country club by the LaRosa sorority.

Forming a football field, the ballroom was decorated in Pampa High school colors of green and gold. The Sandie goal posts were wrapped in black and gold and the Harvester goal posts were completed with the score, 12 to 16.

Music was furnished by Glen Dawson's orchestra.

Registering were Marilyn Keck, Larry Simmons, Clarence Simmons, Wayne Hillard, Jo Ellen Simmons, Charles Hillard, Betty Jean Myers, Harry Kerbow, Jimmy Berry, Rudy Hunsacker, Jerry Herbert, Tommy Buford, Billy Wheeler of Amarillo, Billy Milton of Amarillo, Stogie Crane, Betty Mounts, Buddy Simmons.

Ester Club Will Have Luncheon In Goodnight Home

Meeting at the I. O. O. F. hall Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock, members of Ester club will go to Goodnight for a covered dish luncheon and regular meeting in the home of Mrs. Steve Donald, a former Pampian.

The Ester club entertained retiring officers of the Rebekah and Oddfellows lodges at a Thanksgiving banquet given in the hall recently when V. J. Castka presided as toastmaster.

Guests of honor were Alva Phillips and Mrs. Steve Donald, noble grand; Ed Scott and Mrs. Alva Phillips, vice-grand; E. C. Rupp and Mrs. Dewie Voyles, secretaries; Emory Noblitt and Mrs. Vernon Hall, treasurers; J. W. Crisler, financial secretary; H. H. Nichols and Mrs. Carl Baer, lodge deputies; Fred Poronto and Carl Baer, team captains; Steve Donald and Mrs. Roy Kretzmeier, junior past grand; Carl Baer was introduced as president of the Panhandle Association of Rebekahs and Oddfellows.

Mrs. Kretzmeier was presented a book from the lodge covering her six months of work. The book was prepared by Ethel May Clay, Elsie Cone, Leona Burrows, and Lily Noblitt.

One hundred and fifty Rebekahs and Oddfellows including four guests from the new lodge at Skellytown, and Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Walker of Canadian were present.

Arrangements for the entertainment were made by Mmes. Jess Clay, J. W. Crisler, John Hall, Jim King, and Roy Sullivan.

Seventh Birthday Celebrated By Ann Jordan At Party

Ann Jordan celebrated her seventh birthday at a party given by her mother, Mrs. Rufe Jordan, in their home.

Games were played by the group after which refreshments of white birthday cake, topped with candles, and ice cream were served. Favors were tiny pumpkins in cellophane bags.

Numerous gifts were presented to the honoree.

Book Reviewed At Mission Program Of Baptist WMS

"These Things Remain," a mission book written by Ella Broadus Robertson, was reviewed in connection with the mission program presented when First Baptist Woman's Missionary society met in the church.

The singing of "I Need Thee Every Hour" opened the morning program and Mrs. G. L. Craddock led in prayer. Mrs. Don Egerton gave an introduction to the book and the biography of the author after which she read the scriptures which inspired the writing of the book as she introduced the speakers on the program. Mrs. G. L. Craddock and Mrs. Rufe Jordan reviewed chapter one, "The World's Need," and explained the religion of Hinduism, Buddhism, Mohammedanism, and other religions in China and Japan. Helping illustrate this, they used figures of Buddha and idols.

Mrs. R. L. Allford dismissed in prayer and lunch was served in the church basement.

The afternoon study opened with the singing of "At the Cross," Mrs. Allford, using a poster of an opened Bible spread upon a map of the world, reviewed chapter two, "My Responsibility," which was a discussion of the motives for giving missions.

Mrs. Foster Fletcher, rendered a violin solo, "Be Still My Soul," accompanied by Mrs. R. E. Gatlin. Mrs. Garnet Reeves interpreted chapter three, "God's Love." She showed a poster of a child praying with "I Love You God" printed beneath.

Mrs. Arthur Nelson sang "Beautiful City," after which Mrs. Seth Beauchamp reviewed chapter four, "God's Power," and Mrs. H. B. Baer was introduced as president of the W. M. U. The scripture verse, John 3:16 was used as the benediction.

Registering for the program were Mmes. Ernest Fletcher, C. H. Schultze, R. W. Tucker, Allan Vandover, H. M. Stokes, Ella Brake, Mary Binford, W. M. Voyles, C. R. Welton, Tom Duval, Charles Miller, W. V Notes RED CROSS VOLUNTEERS

Another big achievement was chalked up for Red Cross volunteers this past week when the last of the garments to be sewed were checked out. Now the important thing is getting them all back in as quickly as possible. Our goal is to have everything for this quota ready for shipment before Christmas— including the numerous sweaters yet to be knitted.

Hereafter the production room will be open only two hours each afternoon Monday through Friday, from 3 to 5 o'clock and from 9 to 11 o'clock on Wednesday mornings. To check in finished garments, issue yarn, and give instruction and assistance in knitting. Any volunteers who can help during those hours will find plenty to do in preparing garments for shipment. This week the room will again be closed on Thursday for Thanksgiving.

Twenty layettes were shipped this past week. Mrs. Bruce Walters hopes to ship the same number each of the next four weeks to complete the quota of 100 layettes. To be able to ship layettes at this rate, we must have 20 pairs of mittens completed each week. There are only two pairs on hand to go on this week's shipment. Mrs. S. G. Surratt requests that all who can finish mittens this week.

Women of St. Matthew's Episcopal auxiliary are busy crocheting the little thumbless mittens. This past week they donated $2 to buy additional yarn. That still will not provide sufficient yarn for the full 100 pairs, and unless there are other donations of either cash or yarn, some of the mittens will have to be made from outing flannel. Even tiny scraps of pink, white, or baby blue yarn will be appreciated, as they are useful in making contrasting edges, ties, etc.

Mrs. Ora Duenkel sewing labels into garments. She also checked out yarn for a sweater. During the last war she did a great deal of knitting for the Pampa chapter.

Mrs. L. L. Davis, Mrs. Andy Melkie, Mrs. E. L. Vaught, and Mrs. Bruce Walters folding and packing layettes according to intricate Red Cross instructions. Mrs. Tom Bunting putting finishing touches on baby garments. Stacks and stacks of diapers neatly folded by three members of Girl Scout Troop 4.

Mrs. E. W. Voss turning in 78 baby undershirts made by the Women's auxiliary and the young women's organization of First Presbyterian church. These women have undertaken the task of making the entire 200 little shirts for the layettes.

Mrs. W. R. Wanner nappy that yarn for the last of the little sweaters and pants sets had been checked out and that more than half of the suits had been completed.

Mrs. Charles Thut is especially anxious to begin preparing the toddler packs for shipment and urges that those working on toddler garments complete them as quickly as possible.

Rejoicing among women of the First Christian church as they finished counting piece by piece and turning in 25 layettes, the largest number yet completed by any one group. Some of the other churches aren't far behind.

The usual Monday rush at the production room, with Mrs. W. G. Kinzer handling the checking while Mrs. DeLea Vicars assisted knitters.

Mrs. Roy McKernan wondering if she would ever be able to knit and relax at the same time. She was putting in her first sock heel.

Mrs. Evert Revard busy winding yarn Monday afternoon. She took more time to wind and was back Tuesday to help in the production room again.

Gracious and serene Mrs. J. S. Wynne turning in a pair of socks and checking out yarn for another. For many months she has made it a rule to complete at least one garment for the Red Cross each week, often more.

She said she knew that she had more time than many women, so she felt that she should give more time to the Red Cross. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. DeLea Vicars, whose production record in the files now has overflowed to a fourth card.

Mrs. J. B. White, Red Cross executive secretary, proud of the fact that 14 Pampa men and women went to Borage each night this past week for an instructor's course in first aid. Representatives of Gray, Hutchinson, and Moore counties attended the classes, conducted by an instructor from national headquarters.

We regret to learn that two of our most faithful and expert knitters have been forced temporarily to give up knitting. Mrs. Paul H. Clark, who has made four sweaters, one toddler set, one knitted suit, and a pair of socks, has a broken finger. Trouble with her eyes has caused Mrs. Roy Bourland to have to give up knitting for the time being, just when she was ready to put the neck in her seventh man's sweater.

Many groups as well as individuals are assisting by putting finishing touches on garments. Entre Nous club trimmed 20 baby garments this past week, and Be'hany class of AAUW Begins Study Course On Policy Of U. S.

Miss Lorraine Bruce, international relations chairman for the American Association of University Women, at a recent meeting of the organization introduced the new study course, "The Evolving Policy of the United States." The first unit consists of a discussion of "Contemporary Europe and Its Meaning for America."

Miss Bruce was assisted in the discussion by Miss Pearl Garen who gave "The Charted Course of the Second War Year" and "The Six Areas of Conflict;" Miss Lillian Mullinax who gave "New Order and New Disorder" and "American Foreign Policy Reactions;" Miss Bernice Lash who presented "What Is the Place of Public Opinion in Shaping Foreign Policy?" and Mrs. M. E. Lamb whose topic was "I Give You Tomorrow."

The material being studied has been prepared by the national committee on the cause and cure of war and is recommended for study by the national headquarters of the A. A. U. W.

Mrs. V. P. Sheldon, president of the local branch, presided during the business session at which time the following announcements were made:

Dr. Anna Powell, former state president of A. A. U. W. is to be the guest speaker at the international relations banquet to be held on Tuesday, January 27.

The annual Christmas tea for A. A. U. W. members and guests is to be held on Saturday, December 13.

The Writers' Study group is to meet at the home of Mrs. George Frauf on Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Meetings are to be held regularly on the second and fourth Tuesday evenings of each month.

The Recent Literature group is to hold its next meeting on Monday evening, November 24, at 7:30 o'clock in the home of Miss Margaret Jones. The book to be discussed is William Shirer's "Berlin Diary."

Miss Clarine Branom announced that the Art and Crafts group is to have its next meeting on December 2, in room 218 in the high school building.

Miss Josephine Thomas, fellowship chairman, discussed "Why Fellowship?" She gave recent news on the fellowship funds and announced that the Helen Marr Kirby Fellowship Fund of Texas has reached the $2,000.00 mark.

Mrs. W. S. Dixon and Miss Lola Campbell were hostesses for the evening.

First Baptist church trimmed six. A group of young matrons who get together each week for morning coffee spent last Wednesday morning at the home of Mrs. Joe Key sewing buttons on 16 pairs of toddler rompers.

New volunteers this past week included Misses, Clyde Batson, Crystal Batson, Fred Cary, Ora Duenkel, Roy Moore, O. R. Pumphrey, Evert Revard, J. E. Winborn, and the Cities Service Ladies auxiliary.

Mrs. L. K. Stout completed a sweater which someone else had started and picked out some knitting in her own name.

So few women have attended the Friday evening knitting class that Mrs. Elma Phelps has about decided to discontinue it. The evening class was scheduled to give women who work an opportunity to check out materials and get assistance with their Red Cross knitting. Many of our volunteers are women who spend their days in offices, classrooms, etc., but still take time in the evenings to do their bit for the Red Cross.

This past week, Miss Margaret Jones, who is head of the senior high school English department, returned a sweater which she had completed in less than three weeks.

Completed garments were turned in this week as follows: Mrs. O. W. Alston—one woman's sweater; Mrs. J. E. Beard—one woman's sweater; Mrs. D. W. Benton for Bethany class—six baby dresses trimmed; Mrs. Fred Cary—10 baby garments trimmed; Mrs. Annie Culberson—one sweater; Mrs. H. Clark—one pair of socks; Mrs. George—three baby garments trimmed; Entre Nous club—20 baby garments trimmed; Mrs. Cyril Hamilton—four skirts (this brings her total number of garments to 30); Mrs. P. E. Howard—one pair of sets of sweater, beanie, and mittens; Miss Margaret Jones—one child's sweater.

First Christian church—25 layettes—First Presbyterian church—78 baby undershirts; Francis Avenue Church of Christ—six snow suits; Coffee club—buttons on 16 pairs of rompers; Mrs. W. E. Melton—three dresses; three gowns; and three skirts; Mrs. Jack Merchant—one toddler set of sweater, beanie, and mittens; Mrs. A. B. McAfee—two snow suits; Mrs. Ray Nielson—one woman's sweater; Mrs. I. F. Peterson of LeFors—two children's dresses; Mrs. Tom Rose—three snow suits; Mrs. Evert Revard—eight hanks of yarn wound.

Mrs. H. M. Richardson—three gowns; Mrs. Madeline Stanley—one child's sweater; Mrs. L. K. Stout—one sweater; Mrs. A. A. Fleming—one pair of sets; Mrs. G. E. Timm—put buttonholes in 10 pairs of rompers; Mrs. W. S. Tolbert—one man's sweater; Mrs. C. L. Thomas—one skirt; Mrs. E. L. Vaught—two dresses; Mrs. DeLea Vicars—three skirts and one pair of socks; Mrs. Dick Walker—one child's sweater; and Mrs. J. S. Wynne—one pair of socks.

FUR-TRIMMED GLOVES FOR LOVELY HANDS. A bit of fur encircling the wrists of your shorties or a wreath of it on your gamlets will give your gloves that luxurious look. And it need not be as expensive as you might expect. One firm will use any shippings of fur you already own—cutting down the cost considerably.

CARY GRANT AND JOAN FONTAINE HEAD CAST OF NEW ALFRED HITCHCOCK FILM

"Suspicion," Romantic Melodrama, Opens Today At Local Theater; "Look Who's Laughing," Ace Comedy, Features Bergen, McCarthy, Lucille Ball

By BROWNWOOD EMERSON

An ace melodrama and a neat comedy with the most popular entertainment teams in the lead roles split the week's bookings at the LaNora. Repeating last week, the runs are on the 4-3 basis.

Cary Grant and Joan Fontaine head the cast of RKO Radio's 99-minute "Suspicion," directed by Alfred Hitchcock.

The story deals with the romance and married life of a man and a maid in pre-war England, standing in contrast to the Hitchcock-directed "Foreign Correspondent."

"Suspicion" is about a "war of nerves" which Joan Fontaine, the apparently headed-for-spinsterhood daughter of a retired British general, undergoes after she becomes the wife of a "rotter" husband whom she loves with transcending devotion.

Grant has the difficult role of the young husband with a thirst for living parasitically, shocked at learning his bride was no financial catch.

Without belittling the dramatic punch of "Suspicion," there has been a fair crop of films on ponderous themes in the flickers here lately, so with even greater joy, I can chronicle the glad tidings that Edgar Bergen, Charlie McCarthy, Fibber McGee and Molly, and Lucille Ball will provide crisp, clean, diverting comedy, with never a dull moment in RKO Radio's 79-minute picture, "Look Who's Laughing," on the LaNora screen Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

This is the saga of Bergen and Charlie arriving by plane in a small community whose chamber of commerce prexy, Fibber, is trying to ride to local immortality by getting a plane manufacturer to build a factory on the town's outskirts.

Highlight of the picture is the inadvertent airplane flight of Fibber and Molly.

Spy Drama—Escape of a German aviator from a Canadian prison camp is told in 20th Century-Fox's "Man At Large," with Marjorie Weaver, George Reeves, and Richard Derr, 69 minutes on the Rex screen Wednesday and Thursday.

The airman is captured and a British agent takes over the "escapee" in order to track down a spy ring operating in the U. S.

Miss Weaver does a bang-up job as the reporter; Steve Geray is fine as the blind leader of the foreign agents, while Reeves and Derr are good as a G-man and a British agent.

One of the most exciting westerns to gallop off the Republic lot is their 56-minute "Outlaws of the Cherokee Trail," with The Three Mesquites and Lois Collier. Film has to do with a ruthless gang under Roy Barcroft which takes a jurisdictional advantage by remaining behind the Cherokee border after they have done their dirty work in Texas. It's at the Rex Friday and Saturday.

Bouquet From Buquet—Director Harold Buquet (pronounced Boo-kay), a mild-mannered and very genial soul, came into New York to vacation for several days after having finished direction of "Kathleen," the production which returns Shirley Temple to the screen. Conversation with Mr. Buquet naturally revolved about this lot.

He found Shirley a very pretty miss of nearly 13 years who was rarin' to go; healthy, husky, and never tiring. But she's always anxious to complete her day's studio chores so that she can get together with her classmates at the Westlake School for Girls.

She was initiated into the freshman class at this school and as part of the initiatory rites the students made her sing "The Good Ship Lollypop," as Shirley Temple would have sung it. She obliged, she told Buquet, "because 'Lollypop' is ancient Temple."

This director had lots more to enthuse about in discussing the "new" Temple whom he feels is destined to continue her successful career on the screen. Imagine scoring a "come-back" at 13! In 50 years she will be ready to play Marie Dressler roles!

Queens Salutes a Queen—The Broadway opening of "The Chocolate Soldier" was Rise Stevens' Day in more ways than one. In addition to marking the screen

GLORIA SWANSON, STAR of silent screen days, returns to the films in "Father Takes a Wife," on the Crown screen today, tomorrow, and Tuesday. Adolphe Menjou, John Howard, and Florence Rice have the other leading roles. On Wednesday and Thursday the Crown picture is "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," with Carole Lombard and Robert Montgomery; on Friday and Saturday, Gene Autry (who recently had an Oklahoma town renamed for him), in "Yodeling Kid From Pine Ridge."

debut of the Metropolitan Opera star opposite Nelson Eddy, the day was officially designated as Rise Stevens' Day in Queens.

Miss Stevens was graduated from the Newtown High school in Queens and this New York borough signaled her motion picture bow with an official proclamation by the borough president and a celebration at the high school.

Newcomer—"Gonna be odd billing on the new Kildare picture," observes Mary Louise Walliser in the San Antonio News, "with Ann Ayars playing opposite Lew Ayres." Miss Ayars, a newcomer in the series, was originally scheduled for a small part in the film, but when Director W. S. Van Dyke saw her first scenes he promptly gave her the feminine lead. Incidentally, it's Director Van Dyke's first Kildare film, too.

There's That Word Again—Love has been defined as the tenth word in a telegram, and the commodity that makes the world go 'round. And according to a bulletin from Philadelphia's Elsie Finn, visiting Havana, love makes the movies go 'round, too.

"The Cubans," she says, "like their movies hot—but flavored with a slight dash of tragedy. They prefer pictures with the Hollywood label. Ninety per cent of all films shown in Cuba's 350 theaters are American made." Miss Finn also learns that Cubans are very avid movie fans and are very much unlike their Colombian neighbors who have been known to tear up a screen when the villain got too mean.

Cubans merely point an accusing finger at the man who runs the theaters when a movie doesn't live up to their expectations. Garbo is one of their special favorites, as is Joan Crawford, and Clark Gable—especially when he's in his Rhett Butler mood—loving and punishing his beloved at the same time.

Hedy's Obay With Harvard Men—There can no longer be any doubt about Hedy Lamarr being a popular choice to play Marvin Myles in the screen version of "H. M. Pulham Esq." Harvard men approve the casting. In a telephone canvass of Harvard men of the class of '15 in the New York area, all agreed that Hedy was the kind of a girl any Harvard man would remember 20 years later, as Henry Pulham does in the book.

In fact some suggested it would be difficult to forget her in twice that many years. J. F. Marquand, author of "H. M. Pulham Esq." and a member of the class of '15 at Harvard, issued the following statement after inspecting the advance photographs of scenes from the screen production:

"When King Vidor first told me that he was considering Hedy Lamarr for Marvin Myles I thought that the strain of Hollywood was at last too much for him. Now that I see the skills of her, it may be that he knew what he was doing. Certainly she is a girl who could knock any Harvard boy for a loop, not to mention Yale, Princeton, or Dartmouth.

"Certainly it would be hard for Mr. Henry Pulham to forget her even after a lapse of 20 years. I don't know how anybody as pretty as Hedy Lamarr could write copy long in an advertising agency, but granting that she could do so, it would be something so remarkable that even absent-minded Mr. Pulham couldn't forget. In fact I feel that if I had seen Hedy Lamarr before I had written my novel, I would certainly have done a much better job."

It's a Lana-Slide—From Miami comes an enthusiastic wire informing us that the Miami football team has voted Lana Turner "The Girl We Would Like Most to Go Into a Huddle With." While Washington telegraphs that the American university publication, "The Eagle," in a poll of the student body decided that Miss Turner is the ideal and "most desirable air-raid companion." As a campus bard puts it: Falling bombs will seem like manna

So long as A. U. has its Lana. Heels to the Fore

It is Bill Boehnel of the World-Telegram who comes up with the thought the glamor boys are glorying heels these days. If you don't believe it, fact-finding Boehnel says look at Clark Gable, the confidence man in "Honky Tonk."

Then Boehnel cites Charles Boyer in "Hold Back the Dawn," and Tyrone Power, "the lug, not so pure and simple" in "A Yank in the Rye," and the "unheroic hero of the 'Maltese Falcon,' and even Tommy Harmon in his new movie in which he's a coach only interested in winning games.

Following the trend Robert Taylor will play the part of a gangster in this new co-starring picture with Lana Turner, "Johnny Eager." And Walter Pidgeon pursues Rosalind Russell in "Design for Scandal" with scandalous intentions. Who started the vogue?

Mr. Boehnel thinks it all began with Rhett Butler in "G. W. T. W." In any event whatever the source, he maintains that "today's heroes are certainly a far cry from those of the good old days when they were as pure as the driven snow and when their chief function was either to overcome all unjust accusations against them or to save the heroine from a fate worse than death."

Wife of Shamrock—Funeral services for Mrs. J. A. Hall, wife of Dr. J. A. Hall, prominent Shamrock dentist, will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the First Methodist church in Shamrock, conducted by the Rev. A. G. Haynes, pastor. Interment will be in the Shamrock cemetery.

Mrs. Hall died suddenly of a heart attack Friday night at her home in Shamrock. The family has resided in Shamrock for 30 years.

Survivors are the husband, one son, Donald, student at Baylor Dental school, Dallas; daughter, Dorothy, University of Alabama student; sisters, Miss Lute McElhaney, Shamrock, Mrs. A. J. Flint, Burbank, Calif., Mrs. Victoria Stanford, Dallas; and two brothers, Nell McElhaney, Dallas, and John McElhaney, Wheeler.

Religious Week At WTSC Opens Tuesday

Special To The NEWS
CANYON, Nov. 22—Religious Emphasis Week, a community-wide period in which local churches participate with special services, will be observed at West Texas State college from Nov. 24 to 29.

Campus social activities are suspended during this period.

The speaker this year will be Dr. James W. Middleton of San Angelo, whose theme will be "Changeless Truths and Changing Times." His first address will be at the assembly hour, 11 a. m., November 25. A schedule of daytime and evening services is being arranged.

Dr. Middleton is a newcomer to this section. He is a young man who has had ministries in college towns. He will hold an "open forum" each afternoon and will be available to students for personal conferences. Local ministers also will have offices at the college during the week.

Each year a different local church invites the main speaker. This year the First Baptist church is bringing the speaker.

Texas Tech ROTC One Of Four Best Units In Southwest

Special To The NEWS
LUBBOCK, Nov. 22—A one-minute script about the R. O. T. C. unit at Texas Technological college will be broadcast over CBS from Chicago Dec. 6 at 12:30 p. m., CST. Prof. John N. Watson of the Tech speech department will read the script, as follows:

A senior engineer unit of the Reserve Officers Training corps was established at Texas Technological college, Lubbock, in 1936. Initial enrollment was 101; it is now 359, representing 40 per cent of engineering students. Enrollment is voluntary. The organization includes a 40-piece band.

The Texas Tech unit is one of only four in the southwestern part of the United States which qualifies students directly for commissions as engineer reserve officers. Necessary equipment and instructor staff of three officers and two enlisted men are furnished by the federal government. Each year at the annual inspection by the war department the unit has received the highest rating of excellent.

Of the 25 commissioned this year, three are on duty with the air corps non-flying status, three are with the quartermaster corps, and four with army engineer battalions; two are students at air corps flying schools, one under orders for aeronautical training, and four are on defense projects.

SERIAL STORY

LADY BY REQUEST

BY HELEN R. WOODWARD

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY of pretty Diana Tucker's frankness surprised old Ellen Curt, stepmother of handsome, famous writer and commentator Stephen. She does not betray it, obviously likes the girl who has been married to her for six months and she will lose a $200,000 inheritance if he does not marry before he is 35, and that the woman he loves is married to another man. "I approve of her," says Ellen. Diana considers Stephen's offer the more seriously because she has just lost her job with his lawyers, Darbin and Thorpe, having resisted Thorpe's advances, does not want to return permanently to her domestic farm home. "I must talk it over with my father," she says, and Stephen arranges to drive down and meet her family.

MR. TUCKER'S OPINION?

CHAPTER VI

"HELLO, everybody!" Diana, having walked up from the bus in the cold moonlight, paused in the doorway of the dining room which also served as a winter sitting room. Vivid and glowing and beautiful, she looked, standing there.

"Diana!"

Her mother rose from the table where she had been looking through a magazine and took her daughter in her arms. It was good to feel those arms about her, and to know that whatever happened she would always find security here.

Her father shut off the radio and young John, who listened a little because of an early attack of infantile paralysis, smiled at her. Herman, an "A" student at the State University, had already gone back to school after his week-end holiday.

They were glad to see her and plied her with questions.

They went to bed early, and Diana, back once more in the clean, bare little room of her girlhood, felt for a moment as if she had never been away.

THE next morning Mrs. Tucker seemed anxious to know about her experiences in town.

"We see a good deal of Bill Jackson," she offered hesitantly. "He's gotten in the habit of dropping by of evenings. He and your father discuss the world situation pretty generally. Bill always asks about 'ou."

"I hope he comes while I'm here," Diana said sincerely.

"Then you really are going back?" her mother asked.

"Yes—I think so."

She could sense her mother's disappointment. It would be pleasant to have another woman in the house, or at least near by in the home Bill Jackson, was anxious to build for her daughter.

"You spoke of having something else in view—"

"I'll tell you about it later," Diana said evasively.

She was not surprised when Diana asked, "Where would I be finding father about now?"

"Most likely in the barn seeing about the new calf. Better wrap up warmly—it's pretty cold."

Her father went quickly about his tasks and Diana watched him. There was about him a quiet dignity and strength, more apparent to his daughter now than ever before. Diana respected his opinion more than anyone else's in the world.

Finally, "There's something on your mind, Diana," he said. "Standing there in the shadowy barn on that cold November morning, the happenings of two days ago seemed as remote as some imaginary incident on Mars."

"Yes," she answered. "It's a little hard to explain."

He smiled. "Go slowly and I'll try not to be too dense."

She said, "I've met a very famous man—and I've received an offer of marriage."

He was still smiling. "Let's hear about the famous man first—I fancy you'd want to keep the other till last."

She knew he'd be excited about her knowing Stephen Curt, and she was not disappointed. He shot question after question at her.

"That's one man I've always wanted to talk to, face to face," he said admiringly.

"You'll have the opportunity," Diana answered. "He's coming down here Wednesday to take me back to town. You see—he's the man who wants to marry me."

Rapidly, before he could speak, she went into detail concerning the terms of Stephen's legacy, the fact that he was in love with a woman already married, that she would receive ten thousand dollars.

HE did not speak for a long time after she had finished. Shifting from one foot to the other, both from cold and nervousness, Diana realized that this once she did not really want her father's unbiased opinion. She simply wanted his approval.

Therefore, when finally he said, "I don't like it, Diana," gravely, she felt a strange let-down. From the look on his face she had more than half suspected what his verdict would be. She began to argue her cause—to show that she would really be doing nothing more than accepting a temporary job—an excellently paid one, too. She'd be happy and comfortable in Stephen Curt's home for a few months, then free to do as she pleased.

"Suppose you fall in love with him," he suggested.

Diana considered that. Impossible! When she knew from the beginning that he loved someone else.

At last it ended by her father saying, "I'll say nothing more until I've talked with Stephen Curt. I can judge better then. Though a marriage of that sort goes against all I've ever been taught to believe in."

She had to be satisfied with that. She found herself filled with restlessness. There was so little to do at this time of year. She was glad when Bill Jackson joined them.

He was big and broad and kindly. He'd make the same kind of a husband her father had. Gentle, courteous, agreeable. She knew Bill's eyes followed her hungrily, but she would not meet them squarely.

At 6:30 Mr. Tucker said, "It's time for Stephen Curt," and went to the radio.

"Dad would rather miss his supper than Stephen Curt," John said laughingly.

Her father's eyes met Diana's across the room and he smiled. "I think you ought to tell them, daughter, that you've met Mr. Curt and that he'll be coming down here after tomorrow."

There was a murmur of surprise—they all looked at her strangely. She must have been a success in town, meeting people like Stephen Curt.

"Tell us what he's like, sis," John began, but his father held up a silencing hand.

"Later—let's listen now."

The announcer, after a few preliminary remarks, put Stephen on the air. At the sound of that commanding voice, Diana was once more back in Richard Thorpe's office, seeing Stephen standing at the window, looking out at the falling snow. She was in the crowded lobby, he was laughing at her for wanting to be "lady-like." She was hearing his voice—but the words that came over the radio were not the words she heard.

When he had finished, her father turned off the radio. "I respect no man's opinions more than I do Curt's," he said, and smiled at Diana again. Was he, perhaps, getting accustomed to the idea that had at first so displeased him? Was the entirely human thought that this man whom he so admired might be a part of his family, of his life, even for a short time, outweighing more prudent considerations?

Baptist Union To Meet Next In Amarillo

FORT WORTH, Nov. 22 (AP)—H. P. Black of Longview was elected president and Amarillo chosen for the next biennial session by the Texas Baptist Training Union convention today.

Closing a three-day meeting, the delegates declared "we believe our way of life is worth defending and that if we are to properly defend it we must be prepared. But the training union should not be made an agent of war propaganda or a recruiting station."

The 1942 meeting, first to be held under new regulations providing for biennial rather than annual sessions, will be conducted during the Easter holidays.

T. C. Gardner, Dallas, was re-elected training union director and treasurer. Miss Frances Lee, Fort Worth, and Mrs. Jessie Bell, Vinson, Dallas, were renamed recording secretaries. Vice presidents will be the presidents elected by each district.

Elected new executive board members whose terms expire in 1943 were: Ray Roelle, San Angelo, and Paul Gouins, Abilene. Reaffirmed for the same terms were Rev. H. H. Hargrove, Waco; Rev. Guy Newman, Temple; T. C. Jester, Houston; Rev. E. S. James, Vernon; Rev. W. L. Howse, Fort Worth and J. Earl Mead, Dallas.

R. H. Dilday, Port Arthur, was elected a trustee of the Texas Baptist encampment at Palacios. Renamed were Rev. S. G. Posey, Austin; M. C. Oldham, Houston, and Rev. A. G. Miller, Dallas.

The First Baptist church of Amarillo won a banner for the greatest total distance traveled by its delegates to the convention.

Severs street church, Dallas, won a banner for sending the largest percentage of its training members to the meeting.

The union also: Expressed appreciation to Baptists of Texas and the south for the work being done among our young men in the training camps.

Looked with grave concern upon the widespread use of alcoholic drinks among the masses of the people, especially the young people and the girls and women.

Urged the selection of law making and law enforcing bodies with greater care than ever before and that "we establish habits of sobriety, morality, and piety."

Took a stand for continued religious freedom.

Pledged support to the Texas Baptist enlargement program.

Two members who met at the training union convention in Dallas last year were married at opening today's convention program. They are Miss Marie Soder, Dallas, State BTU worker, and Mr. Hoyt Eudaly, Grand Rapids, Dr. George Truett, Dallas, performed the ceremony.

Over 17,000,000 storage batteries for automobiles are made annually, according to the census. The industry employs over 15,000 workers and batteries are produced in 221 plants.

Census bureau says that, according to its records, there are more dangers to a baby's health in the first year of life than in the next 20 put together.

18 New Locations Staked In Panhandle Last Week

While Panhandle wildcats were drilling ahead without striking new oil formations, the rest of the field registered 18 new locations and 16 completions last week. The 18 new locations were divided, seven in Hutchinson county, four each in Gray and Carson counties, and three in Moore county. The week's activity hiked to 918 the new locations staked in the Panhandle field to date this year.

76.7 Per Cent Of Gray County Revenues Come From Oil Taxes

Without taxes on local oil and gas producing properties, Gray county would lose 76.7 per cent of its tax revenues. A report showing how much Gray county looks to oil and gas for its taxes has just been received here from the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas association, research and service organization of Texas oil men. The association's survey, made at Austin of the tax pools of all 254 Texas counties, shows this county's percentage of taxes from petroleum to be considerably higher than the state average of approximately 30 per cent.

Market Briefs

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP)—Labor showed continued to cloud recovery tendencies today in the stock market and about the best bet could do at the finish of a fairly successful week was to maintain its balance. Prices in the coal strike were announced later after the close.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks throughout the day, but the week showed a net advance of 3. It was the first uptick in this barometer in 1941. Sun Oil was an exception, running up 4 1/2 points to 64 1/2, a new 1941 top, in the 70s. A few minutes when directors voted a 10 per cent stock dividend.

KPDN Radio Chat

By RAY MONDAY

If today's weather prediction is borne out, maybe you feel more susceptible to a "Fireside Chat." We'll try to make it as nearly a combination of the two (meaning fireside and radio chat) as possible.

Our "Burns and Allen" program had to get postponed for a week, but when you hear it, you'll agree that it's somewhat like the Pampa Harvesters victory—worth waiting for. The program, to be heard each Friday night at 8 o'clock over KPDN, will feature the typical Burns and Allen laugh-provoking comedy, with the added spice of a big-time orchestra. We believe it's destined to become one of KPDN's most popular programs.

It's becoming more obvious every day that the public likes to be kidded, annoyed, reprimanded, or anything else by the man on the radio—except ignored. And, it works both ways. The man on the radio would rather have you write the meepest letter any man ever look out of box 1701 than not hear from you at all. This is especially true of the man who checks the request hour returns each night at 7. So, if you don't want him to break out in a horrible wall, you'd better write a card or letter asking for some tune, whether it's Poldini's "Poupe Val-sante" or "Drop Me Off in Harlem."

The Tuberculosis association's Christmas Sale campaign will begin soon. KPDN's radio audience will hear more about it during an especially prepared program this afternoon at 12:15 o'clock. Starting in the program will be Helen Hays, popular actress of stage and radio, with Mark Warnow's orchestra.

Another group of live-talent musicians has taken the airways over KPDN each Monday and Thursday nights at 8 o'clock. We're speaking of the Mike Shepic trio, a combination of accordion, guitar, and bass, that gives a new zest to melodies old and new. The talented young accordionist is Ernestine Holmes, whose accordion is so much bigger than she that she has to sit down and hold it on her lap while she plays.

Incidentally, just as though it were incidental, Bill Browne, who usually fills this space, is either luckily or dangerously near the end of bachelorhood. However, as the song goes—"I Wasn't Told To Me—T Only Heard."

The age group 15 to 19 years now contains more persons than any other 5-year age period, according to 1940 census figures.
