Reagan addresses nation on 'economic calamity'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan takes his case to the people tonight to drive home his message that sweeping budget and tax cuts are necessary to avoid "economic calamity

Aides said the nationally broadcast address from the Oval Office. at 9 p.m. EST, would offer a broad view of the economic dilemma, rather than specifics for paring government spending and individual tax bills. The details will come in a speech to Congress

White House press secretary James S. Brady said Reagan would seek to reassure the nation that everyone will be treated even-handedly as he tries to cut spending and taxes. "There won't be any one, two or three groups singled out," and the thrust will be to "weed out the greedy to help the needy," Brady said.

The speech is Reagan's first effort to build public pressure on Congress to accept his proposals. He made a highly unusual visit to "Capitol Hill Wednesday to consult with congressional leaders and, in Brady's words, "grease the skids" for the coming economic

 The address comes four years and three days after Jimmy Carter, wearing a cardigan sweater, delivered a "fireside chat" in which he asked the nation to make a sacrificial effort to save energy and fight economic problems.

Reagan will take a different approach, aides said.

'It is not a share-shortages, do-without, the-glory-of-America-is-behind-us speech," Brady said. Reagan spent. Wednesday afternoon and part of the evening rewriting the speech. One source said David A. Stockman, director of the Office of Management and Budget; Treasury Secretary Donald Regan; Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of Reagan's Council of Economic · Advisers, and Martin Anderson, the assistant to the president for policy development, each had an impact on the speech.

Brady said Reagan decided to rewrite the speech after meetings Tuesday with big-city mayors and the Conngressional Black

"He found, in getting into it, that there wasn't a full understanding of things he wanted to get across," the spokesman said, adding that in presenting his message, the president "is going to make certain it is spelled out.

The point, Brady said, will be that if the nation does not act, "the

One White House official said the president will deal not only with inflation and unemployment, but also with "a whole series of interweaving factors, fundamental, root-deep policy matters, the role and growth of government, the irrepresible way programs

"All of these need to be explored, so when he does submit his proposals, some dealing with cuts, the people will know why," the source said. "People need to know government has exploded in size - it's spinning out of control - and the negative impact of the taxing system and how that restricts prosperity.

As he nears final decisions on what programs to cut, Reagan is coming under increasing pressure from special interest groups. But Brady said "the biggest special interest we have is

The mayors, black congressmen and others have pleaded that the poor be protected, and the press secretary said "no programs that are safety nets for the poor, the indigent and the truly needy are going to be eliminated.

After meeting with the president Wednesday, Hosea Williams, the civil rights leader, said the briefing he and two others received "puts us in a much better position to say to blacks and poor people in America, 'Have no fear. Mr. Reagan is not going to run out and snatch any checks from the needy.

After his 75-minute visit to Capitol Hill, Reagan said: "It was a good meeting, just to establish a base."

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the president told the law makers: "We're in a difficult situation. We need the support of the American people. We need the support of the Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee left the meeting saying, "I'm convinced the president will propose tax relief and spending cuts together." He said Reagan left no doubt there will be linkage between a tax cut on one hand and spending cuts on the other.'

One congressional source, who asked not to be identified, said Reagan gave the impression that his proposed 10 percent tax cut for individuals would be retroactive to Jan. 1. The source said the president left no doubt that business tax cuts would be retroactive to the first of the year.

The tricycle's owner, Dixie 3, remains in the intensive care unit of Highland General Hospital after she was admitted for burns and smoke inhalation she suffered in the

A young mother, slicing her hand as she broke the glass, managed to rescue her two daughters through a bedroom window as fire raged in their white, frame home at 732 Bradley late Wednesday

Dixie Heard, 3, is reported in good condition today in the intensive care unit of Highland General Hospital, suffering from first- and second - degree burns to her face and smoke inhalation, a hospital spokesman said. The little girl was admitted to the intensive care unit but is expected to be moved to a medical floor today, he

Nancy Heard, 26, and her second daughter, Jennifer, 9, were treated for smoke inhalation and kept overnight for observation. Mrs. Heard was also treated for a severe laceration to the hand, the spokesman said. Both were released earlier today

Pampa firefighters were called to the scene at 10:35 p.m. Wednesday, arriving to find flames roaring through the front window and door of the two - bedroom house.

Assistant Fire Chief J. D. Ray said Mrs. Heard and her two daughters had already escaped the blaze when firefighters arrived.

Mrs. Heard said she was in the den located at heavy smoke

"I ran into the living room and saw the fire,

"By the time I got in there the fire had gotten into the bedroom. I had to break a window to get out." she said

Mrs. Heard and Jennifer were safe, but Dixie remained inside the burning house.

Mrs. Heard said she crawled back through the window, but the smoke was so dense she could not see her youngest daughter. By meerest chance, the two accidently bumped into each our and Mrs. Heard carried Dixie through the window to safety.

Fire official are continuing to investigate the cause of the late night fire. Fire Marshal L. V. Bruce will be inspecting the remains of the house later today, officials said.

Ray said the house sustained heavy fire and smoke damage.

"I'd say 50 percent of the house was gutted, and the other half received heavy smoke damage," he said.

A fund for the Heard family has been set up by Glenda Anderson at the First National Bank today. The Heards have no hospitalization insurance to cover the hospital bills incurred from the fire, a spokesman of the bank said.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the fund can contact Mrs. Anderson at the First National Bank.

VANCOUVER, Wash, (AP) — Mount St. Helens blasted a steam plume more than half a mile above its 8,400-foot crater rim this morning as scientists predicted the volcano would erupt today.

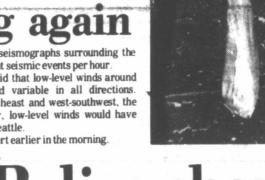

U.S. Forest Service spokesman Thom Corcoran said there didn't appear to be any ash in the plume rising 3,600 feet above the crater "It's venting but we're not calling it an eruption," he said. 'Things haven't changed, we're still in an eruption alert.

Clouds which shrouged the mountain early today were breaking up. Corcoran said. He added that seismographs surrounding the mountain were picking up six to eight seismic events per hour.

The National Weather Service said that low-level winds around the volcano were very light and variable in all directions. Upper-level winds blew to the southeast and west Weather Service reported. Earlier, low-level winds would have carried any ash northwest toward Seattle.

Scientists had issued a volcano alert earlier in the morning

A chaplaincy program for the Pampa Police Department is in the planning stages, with an organizational meeting scheduled for Feb. 10.

Spurring the ride - along chaplain project through its early formation is the Rev. L. Edward Barker, pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene

"I looked at the 52 churches in our community and thought with the large number of churches and the large amount of churchgoers in Pampa, it would provide a good impact to see a chaplain riding along with the police officers," Barker explained.

"This year, we've had nine homicides and a number of suicides in Pampa. All these things spoke crisis to

Chief of Police J. J. Ryzman said the chaplaincy program has several postive aspects to it. Ryzman listed several good points to the project.

The 52 Pampa ministers have been invited to the organizational meeting of the program scheduled for 7 p.m., Feb. 10, in the basement of the First United Methodist Church.

Iran frees one jailed American and was allowed to speak freely BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Iran's revolutionary regime freed one of the three Americans still held in its jails and moved toward a decision on another one amid new criticism of President Abolha ssan Bani-Sadr from the leader of the clerical party controlling the government. Authorities in Tehran on Wednesday freed Mohi

Sobhani, a 44-year-old computer expert from Los Angeles who was arrested on unspecified charges Sept. 6. A naturalized American, he had stayed in his native Iran to run a computer business after his former employer, Rockwell International, pulled out in 1979. Sobhani's brother, Morris, told reporters in Santa Barbara, Calif., he did not know whether his brother and his Iranian wife would return to the United States. Meanwhile, the Swiss Foreign Ministry reported that Cynthia Dwyer, 49, a free-lance journalist from Amherst, N.Y., who was arrested last May 5, was tried by a Revolutionary Court Wednesday on espionage charges and a verdict was expected soon, possibly by Wilhelm Schmid, a Swiss diplomat allowed to attend the court session, reported she was charged with spying - acting against the best interests of the Islamic Republic of Iran," but he said he got no inkling what the verdict might be.

'In the event she is released, we will do everything in our power to help with the arrangements for leaving the country," said Schmid in a telephone conversation with The Associated Press in Beirut.

"In the event that she should be sentenced, which we hope will not be the case, we will naturally continue to insist on our right to visit her and to help her in any way

Schmid said Mrs. Dwyer "was very happy to see and to learn that finally there seems to be some sort of decision about her case." The Swiss Foreign Ministry said Mrs. Dwyer appeared nervous but in good health

Although the Swiss, who represent U.S. interests in Iran, said the woman was tried for spying, State Department spokesman William Dyess called the session a hearing and said, "We are not aware of any specific charges." But Swiss Foreign Ministry spokesman Othmar Uhl insisted that a trial had been held and said a verdict was expected "around

Mrs. Dwyer's husband, John, said he and their three children "just have to settle down and wait for" the

There was no information on the third captive American, Afghan-born Zia Nassry, a travel agent from New York City arrested by the Iranians in March after he went to Tehran to try to open a clinic for Afghan refugees. He reportedly was accused of spying and like the others was held in Tehran's Evin Prison.

The three Americans did not figure in the negotiations for the release of the 52 Americans released Jan. 20 after being held hostage for 444 days by the young militants who seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. However, the Swiss Embassy, which represents U.S. interests in Iran, had been working on their behalf.

Meanwhile, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of the Iranian regime, tried to put an end to the public feuding between the comparatively moderate, Westernized Bani-Sadr and his ultra-conservative, anti-Western clerical foes of the Islamic Republican Party. But Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, the leader of the party, did not heed him.

Khomeini in a speech Wednesday accused the politicians of "biting one another like scorpions" and said, "God help them if they are wittingly weakening this country...I advise them to keep calm, not to claw one another's faces."

Beheshti told reporters Bani-Sadr was close to exceeding his constitutional authority and suggested that he might not be secure in his position as commander-in-chief of the army, which has greatly enhanced his position since the start of the war with

"Bani-Sadr will be high commander of the army as long as Imam (Khomeini) lets him," Beheshti said

Reagan looks to God

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan told 3,300 dignitaries at the National Prayer Breakfast today that "I could not face the days ahead" if he did not believe that God would carry him through difficult passages.

Reagan and wife Nancy were joined at the annual gathering by Vice President George Bush, Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, the Rev. Billy Graham, New York Mayor Edward Koch, congressmen, White House staff and others.

After the crowd sang "Happy Birthday" to him, the president, who turns 70 on Friday, declared: "I want to thank you for starting out the celebration of the 31st anniversary of my 39th birthday."

Reagan's presence at the event, held at a downtown hotel, continued a tradition begun by President Dwight D. Eisenhower 29 years ago.

The president said he was surprised to learn that a taped broadcast of the breakfast will be relayed to Navy ships, penal institutions and other facilities

Federal hiring freeze threatens jobs

MISSION, Texas (AP) — Doing a job well may prove to be the undoing of 280 government employees caught in an employment squeeze by President Reagan's freeze on federal hiring.

Workers at the U.S. Agriculture Department's screwworm laboratory here have been so successful in their efforts to eradicate the livestock pest that both the program and their jobs will end

USDA placement officer John Nichols said 280 of the 325 employees at the lab, which raised sterile screwworm flies for introduction in infested areas in Mexico and the southwestern United States, still have not found new jobs.

Anticipating the phaseout of the program, the laboratory has gradually released employees over the last several months. But the hiring freeze has hampered efforts to relocate the workers. Ten had accepted positions with other federal agencies, but Reagan's hiring freeze took effect before they reported for their new duties, Nichols said.

Under the freeze, the USDA is the only federal department to which screwworm employees may transfer, he said.

By introducting the sterile flies in infested areas, the laboratory has been so successful at disrupting the reproductive cycle of the screwworm that the pest has been eradicated effectively in the United States, USDA officials said.

The pest harms livestock by laying eggs in open wounds and draining an animal's strength.

Garwood jury still deliberating

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — A jury of five Vietnam veterans today began a second day of deliberation in the court-martial of Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood, who is charged with collaborating with his captors while a prisoner of war in Vietnam.

The panel of Marine officers considered the charges for 81/2 hours Wednesday and recessed early in the evening without reaching a verdict in the lengthy trial.

Before recessing Wednesday, senior juror Lt. Col. Abromo L. Vallese requested transcripts of testimony from two former prisoners of war and an Air Force psychiatrist

"We have a lot more deliberation," Vallese said. Garwood, 34, is charged with five specific instances of collaboration and one count of maltreatment of another POW. A conviction on either count could result in life imprisonment and forfeiture of some $147,000 in pay that accrued during his stay in

The jurors, all Vietnam veterans, also have the option of reducing the maltreatment charge, which alleges Garwood struck former Army Pvt. David N. Harker in the ribs, to assault, which carries a naximum penalty of six months in prison.

Last week, the judge dismissed charges alleging Garwood deserted and that he verbally abused a fellow POW. The jury was restricted by military law to only one ballot, unless two members request another. Four jurors would have to vote for conviction for Garwood to be found guilty. Any sentence would be determined in further hearings. A conviction would be subject to an automatic appeal to the Camp

Lejuene base commander and then to the Navy Court of Military Review in Washington. His defense team argued that Garwood was driven insane by his treatment and long captivity, and didn't know what he was doing

Inflation should drop to six percent administration's economic recovery program would lower the nation's inflation rate to 6 percent by the end of next year, sources

Inflation was 12.4 percent in 1980, and most experts predict it will remain in the 9 percent to 10 percent range through the end of 1982.

A Democratic congressional aide, asking not to be identified, said of the economic model used to make Budget Director David A. Stockman's inflation forecast: "If you put garbage in, you get garbage out. One knowledgeable Republican source said Stockman is using the low inflation estimate, which so far has not been made public, to project federal spending and revenues in later years.

All the sources who discussed Stockman's projections did so on the condition their names not be used.

Stockman and other administration economic officials contend inflation can be brought down quickly if the correct actions are taken. They say inflationary expectations in the financial community, which is sustaining inflation at high levels, will change

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan's budget director, in as soon as the administration shows it is serious about fighting Stockman, eyeing cuts in dozens of programs, is telling > congressional aides he's deliberately trying to create a political 'firefight' to help the Reagan administration trim the federal According to one Senate aide, Stockman told a meeting this week his strategy is to seek cuts in programs favored by as many special-interest groups as possible, thus preventing any group from claiming it was singled out. Meanwhile, other sources reported Stockman is turning away, from proposing major cuts in the current fiscal year in favor of saving up to $40 billion in fiscal 1982 and still more later.

One source reported that Stockman hopes his strategy of cutting numerous programs will create an atmosphere in which everyone will be expected to sacrifice.

In addition, Stockman told one group he favors combining many existing "categorical" programs into "block grants" to the states at 80 percent of their current funding levels.

'Fort Apache' movie besieged by foes

NEW YORK (AP) - The 41st Precinct stationhouse in the ravaged South Bronx was dubbed "Fort Apache" by police who felt surrounded by hostile residents

Now a movie called "Fort Apache - The Bronx" is beset by foes who charge the film is racist and who pledge to fight it.

When it opens Friday at 45 movie houses in the New York area, opponents say they will protest outside the theaters. Local residents and even policemen demonstrated while it was being shot. Politicians, community leaders and a newspaper columnist have denounced it. In Philadelphia, meanwhile, unfavorable publicity has forced a postponement of the opening.

The film, starring Paul Newman as a veteran cop in the 41st Precinct, depicts street violence, drug use and prostitution among South Bronx residents, mostly blacks and Puerto Ricans.

The New York State Advisory Committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights has charged the movie uniformly showed "the South Bronx as being composed as pimps, prostitutes, thieves, . transvestites and junkies." That portrayal reinforces "the stereotypes that nurture the growth of racial prejudice and bigotry," the group charged.

U.S. Rep. Robert Garcia, who represents the South Bronx, warned that moviegoers "will say, 'look at those animals in the South Bronx.

FORMER FBI AGENT BECOMES PRIEST. Vincent Ascherl, who retired after 24 years as a special agent for the FBI, will be ordained a Roman Catholic priest in El Paso Saturday. The 66 - year - old widower says his career as a law officer is "compatible" with that of a priest in some ways.

Former FBI agent to become Catholic priest

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - For 24 years Vincent Ascherl packed a loaded. .38-caliber Colt revolver in a shoulder holster as a special agent

He never had to use the gun while on a case, but he was prepared at all times to shoot to kill "if it ever came to that."

Today. Ascheral owns no firearms because "a priest does not carry weapons. That's contrary to the canons.

The former FBI agent will be ordained a Roman Catholic priest Saturday morning in St. Patrick's Cathedral here.

He says the career switch does not strike him as unusual

"I've always been religious," said Ascherl, 66. a widower and the father of four grown children. "I'm certainly not studying the priesthood as a penance in any way, shape or form for my FBI

And besides, he said, his work with the FBI was "mostly routine." Ascherl said he never even drew his revolver, never had to "rough anyone up" never even got into a fistfight during his years as a federal agent. But there was one time when he thought he was going to have to fight his way out of a jam.

He said after he retired from the FBI in 1973 his decision to become a priest came naturally without any dramatic awakening.

"It's not like the Lord comes down and says, 'Vincent, I want you to be a priest.' We have to detect the Lord's call in ordinary ways and signs," he said.

Thirty-four years ago Ascherl joined the FBI in New York City as a stenographer. He studied law at night and became a special agent in 1949. Now that he's about to become a priest, does he wish he had joined the priesthood in the first

Committee Chairman Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, appointed a three-member subcommittee to look go control on the recommendation of bill sponsor Sen. Carlos Truan.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me
This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment

A thoughtful farewell

The farewell address of outgoing President Carter struck an unusually solemn and thoughtful note. In it he demonstrated considerable grace and an obvious earnestness. He also demonstrated some of his own personal strengths and weaknesses. The man obviously has a good heart and a sincere desire to do what is good for the American people. But his analytical powers sometimes fall a little short.

This characteristic can be seen in his identification of some of the problems that face his successor and the American people. The tendency of the government to be increasingly dominated by special interest groups that demand absolute loyalty on their pet issue with little consideration for the overall health of society or the compromises that are sometimes necessary when different people endeavor to live together in peace are indeed serious problems.

Carter is not alone in his failure to identify correctly the root causes of these problems, so perhaps it is unfair to single him out. Nonetheless, when he undertook his run for the presidency more than five years ago, he singled himself out and asked us to take him seriously. If he shares a certain intellectual flabbiness that is characteristic of the age, he may not be alone, but he can still be held accountable

It seems to us that the problems of special interest groups and single issue groups, like so many contemporary problems, have a common origin in the contemporary philosophy that government should be the universal solver of problems and curator of the people in society. Government officials are chiefly responsible for currying this attitude, though intellectuals, news media and (alas) editorialists must bear their share as well.

In its efforts to help people, control people, or develop useful political allies, government has created a broad range of constituent groups that have come to depend on handouts, subsidies or special favors from government. Many of these groups have come to see such special treatment not as a favor but an inalienable right, and they're seldom satisfied unless they keep getting more, which should come as no surprise to students of human nature.

Similarly the idea that human relations can and should be legislated and controlled through the force of law has a lot to do with the rise of single - issue groups determined to have their pet project enacted into law. When government, rather than individual judgment, is widely accepted as the sole arbiter of right and wrong in society, it is not surprising to see people with strong ideas about right and wrong turning to government to validate their ideas by passing a law. Again, government officials have done much over the years to foster this attitude

As Carter returns to private life, he will probably have a great deal of time to reflect on these and other matters from a unique perspective. We believe he has a good heart and a good mind, and that he is capable of benefiting from this kind of reflection. The Republic may yet be the better for some of his thoughts and reflections, particularly as he gets some perspective away from a Washington in which he was obviously never comfortable.

We wish the former president a fruitful and productive life, time for contemplation, and a surcease from the frets and cares of national leadership. As his years increase, so may his wisdom and his sense of

Keep agreement but post warnings

As pieces of the hostage puzzle fall into place, it is becoming increasingly clear just how great has been the insult and humiliation that were heaped on the United States by a group of supposedly civilized people

Former President Carter gave some indication of the abuse and discomfort and even torture that the Iranians imposed on the imprisoned Americans, and now the former hostages, themselves, are spelling out all too clearly how badly they were mauled when they were captives.

Malcolm Kemp was placed in solitary confinement for 374 days.

Jimmy Lopez was kept in a small, dingy cell, so cold that he sometimes had to break ice off his waterbucket. At times, he was awakened by centipedes crawling on his face. Others were lined up in their underwear, guns at their backs, for a mock execution.

Not since the Vietnam War have there been reports of such gross mistreatment of prisoners. These people weren't even soldiers at war. Most of them were civilians in an embassy, an area that is supposed to be immune and inviolable to other nations of the world.

Now reaction will come in waves in this country. A lready, voices have arisen to ask President Reagan to renounce the deal made with Iran and to give it the same moral standing as an agreement made with a kidnapper.

That is very tempting, and the final decision will Mr. Reagan's. He has all the evidence at hand, and we feel that the people of this country will give him support, no matter how he chooses to proceed. There would come an immense feeling of satisfaction at nixing the deal made with the Iranians. We have our people now. Let the Iranians get what's theirs the best way they can. They are thieves of the highest order. We are not quite sure, however, whether that is in the best interests of the United States. And that, after all, is of prime importance. If we were to go back on our word this time, we would be lowering ourselves to the level of the Iranians. It would be casting a cloud of suspicion over anything that we might want to do in international law in the future. Our word is a most precious asset and we would be saying, in effect, that we can't be

The Iranians, if left alone, are going to seal their own fate. They have no standing in the eyes of the world. They are at war and they need the assistance of the United States. There should be none. Nothing. No foreign aid. No guns. No technical assistance. Let them hang there, twisting in the wind.

We have had our shins kicked and we didn't respond. Let the world know that this will never happen again. Make it plain that we don't like what has been done to us but that we have now entered into a new era, when patriotism is back in style, when the word of a man or a country will be defended with everything

We learned our lesson - a hard and tragic lesson - but we did learn it. And we now are ready to guarantee that it doesn't happen again. Fools of the future who dare to try similar insults should be warned that they will not be treated so Lessons from the hostage drama

By Robert Wesson

Robert Wesson is senior research fellow at Stanford's Hoover Institution and professor of political science at the University of California at Santa Barbara. Aside from wars, no event in history has so stirred the feelings of Americans as the protracted imprisonment of the 52 in Iran. In so much drama, there should be important lessons.

Some are obvious. For example, that Americans are phenomenally sensitive to the sufferings of their fellows, even to possibly endangering major strategic interests; probably no other nation would have made the plight of one citizen in four million a prime national concern for so long. Moreover, Americans are forgiving; there is reasonably little demand that the Iranians be punished for what was by all canons of international law and humanity a gross crime. It is less cheerful to note that the American government showed itself remarkably incompetent in a series of shortcomings: inconsistency in support of the shah, failure to assess the opposition to his government, failure to heed warnings against admitting him (for no substantial medical reasons) to the United States, and failure to prepare the embassy for an assault, even to destroy embarrassing documents. After the seizure of the that this country should not identify itself embassy and the hostages, the administration by loud and loose talk made it a matter of pride and face for the Iranians to hold onto the hostages as proof of will and independence and convinced the captors that they had a valuable prize that could be used in bargaining with the United States. The attempted rescue in April was a textbook example of poor planning. No such operation should be attempted unless the nation is prepared to support it strongly enough virtually to guarantee its success and unless prospective results outweigh the risks of broader complications.

Many of the mistakes of the hostage episode are closely paralleled by mistakes of Vietnam: failure of political assessment, failure to weigh consequences of actions, and failure to measure military power adequately to requirements. Another great lesson of Iran ought to have been learned in Vietnam: the folly of identifying the United States with particular regimes and personalities in the Third World. In Iran as in Vietnam, the United States received the blame for all the mistakes or vices of the regimes that appeared to be its puppets. It with any government or leader, regardless of its or his qualities. Popular rulers become unpopular - the shah was once quite popular - and capable governments become incapable, and they fall not so much because they are evil as because they are weak. The Somoza regime, for example, like that of the shah, fell not because it was cruel but because it became excessively corrupt and incompetent.

The only sound approach for the United States is to maintain reasonable distance and impartiality. This is obvious in regard to a bad government, but it is also true of a good one. The good government does not need to have Uncle Sam standing visibly behind it, and to rely on the big foreign power would only weaken it in the long

A still broader principle became woefully apparent in the prolonged hostage crisis: we do not come near understanding the mentality of some, perhaps most Third World leaders. From the point of view of our rationality, they may be sadly irrational. In modern Western terms, many of them are profoundly ignorant; is often urged that the United States should thus, the formal education of the Iranian not be too closely aligned with "militants" consisted chiefly of reading the dictatorships, but the better principle is Koran and commentaries. Third World leaders are probably quite as intelligent as inhabitants of Washington, but we cannot count on their reacting sensibly as we view the world - and this applies to Soviet leaders as well. We do not comprehend their rejection of our values, their defensiveness, and their emotionalism. We must also assume if they talk sensibly (in our terms) it may be more or less because they have learned what pleases us or moves us to accept their wishes.

That we do not share their values is further reason to avoid meddling in the politics of Third World countries. We do not know what institutions they need, and even our advocacy of democracy and human rights may be suspect. They have basically to solve their own problems. This does not mean, of course, that we cannot help; but the Iranian drama merely shows that help should not be interference.

Finally, we ought to have learned that we do not really know how to deal with the Third World. We do not know the long term effect of actions or the results, for example, of foreign aid: witness the fact that a very few years ago the Shah's Iran, with an annual GNP growth rate of 20 percent and all manner of admirable programs, was considered a model for development and modernization. To try to lead very different peoples with values very different from our own along paths that we find proper is to invite trouble.

In your recent editorial regarding an "abandoned vehicle" ordinance, you state that "A man's property is his own to do with as he pleases -- even if that property is old and ugly." This is your opinion. It is not the law; moreover, a majority of your readers might consider it unfair.

Should our city and county enact laws concerning abandoned vehicles, it will be under our state law Act. 6687-9, titled the Abandoned Motor Vehicle Act. Among other matters, this law defines a junked vehicle, declares junked vehicles to be a public nuisance, and gives powers to any city, town, or county within the state to abate the nuisance.

In addition to our state law, there is a legal principle that my freedom ends where your nose begins. If I litter my property with junked vehicles, I may become odious to my neighbors, and I may be breaking the law.

Those who own junked vehicles may claim that they have a right to store them on their property. Should the blight caused by these vehicles diminish values of other properties in the neighborhood and cloud enjoyment of these properties by their owners, who has the greater right?

Tanks for the food

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON - Every once in a while, someone comes up with a magic word that will end the energy crisis. The latest one is "gasohol." It is now possible to make fuel for cars from grain products, potatoes and practically anything that can be grown on a farm. Several major oil companies are starting to get into the gasohol business. Since we are the largest food - producing nation in the world, energy experts are very optimistic about the future of the new multinational companies based in Western countries. They are aiming at international codes that will restrict the advertising and marketing of pharmaceutical and food products. They hope to extend this campaign to all Western agricultural projects in Third World nations. The entering wedge of this campaign is an activist effort to get the World Health Organization (WHO) to adopt an international marketing code for infant formula. From regulating the baby food business, they hope to extend controls to other food and agricultural activities. The radical activists hope to have the code adopted by May. If the radicals win approval for this code -- an unprecedented WHO activity, they will work for codes affecting other Western products sold in the Third World.

Business International, published in Switzerland, has documented the radical campaign. This campaign brings together leftist groups and religious organizations that are interested in radical change in the Third World.

Will Dwyer II, an American writer with the Public Affairs Broadcast Group in Los Angeles, points out that the proposed WHO "would effectively socialize the spectrum of marketing for infant

That's the name of the game. Though the capitalist United States is the biggest supporter of the agency, WHO is profoundly influenced - as are all U.N. agencies - by the Third World and ist groups that form the largest bloc in the international organization. Multinationals are one of the prime targets of the totalitarian countries in the United Nations organization.

The campaign began several years ago with a vicious attack on the Nestle Company, a highly respected Swiss company. The activists have resorted to all manner of inflammatory charges, including the statement that some 10 million infant deaths can be attributed to bottle feeding. Business International notes that "industry is doubtful whether there are even as many as 10 million users of its products in less developed countries." The activists wholly ignore the fact that infant formula may be an invaluable dietary supplement, or, in some cases, a necessary substitute.

Business International also points out that in Europe the campaign involves "the radical leftist" Bern Third World Action Group. In the United States, the radical Interfaith Center on Corporate Responsibility is part of the campaign coalition.

American church groups are a major target of the activists' propaganda activities. The aim is to bring them together in an international demarketing campaign

The larger aim of the radicals is to establish a system of U.N. controls on international business. The radicals know that agricultural production and food preparation and distribution are among the greatest strengths of the free world countries.

The peoples of the Third World stand to gain immensely from the know - how of the multinationals engaged in agriculture and food development. The radicals don't want the Third World peoples to benefit in this way. They want to revolutionize underdeveloped counries and steer them in the direction of Marxism. They also want to deprive the West of its strength in this area of commercial activity.

All this is behind the campaign to create U.N. regulations on the sale of infant

MAIL BY BOAT. Clifford James prides himself with being "the only remaining water - route carrier in the nation" as he delivers mail by boat to 175 families along the waterways of Alabama's coastal

Residents happy with mail service

BON SECOUR, Ala. (AP) — There is a place in America, believe it or not, where the people are perfectly happy with their postal service and have even petitioned the government not to change a

Clearly, it is a place like no other.

It is along the 25-mile mail route through the lowlands of Alabama's coastal tip. Here, winding waterways, fed by springs, serve as roadways. Here, the postman delivers the mail by boat. Clifford James — Jamie to his patrons — is the faithful courier on this appointed round, where rain and snow and gloom of night are not nearly as troublesome as fog and wind and nesting alligators. "As best I've been able to find out." James said, "I am the only remaining water-route carrier in the nation.

"There are others who carry the mail by boat - one on the Snake River in Idaho, one on the Great Lakes, one at the mouth of the Mississippi — but they deliver bulk mail to post offices.

"I deliver the mail, regularly, six days a week, to individual mail boxes. 110 boxes serving 175 families. The boxes are on river banks, on piers, hanging from trees, you name it. Some of those families have the same names, so you have to know who's who. I know them all and they know me. It's a very personal service.'

In this era of the faceless bureaucracy, such neighborly governmental attention is, indeed, remarkable and deserving of

Is it surprising, then, that the U.S. Postal Service is not sure it's

Two years ago, the department decided to eliminate the water route. The patrons of the post office at Magnolia Springs, Ala., 36555, and not just those along the water route, raised such a howl that James' contract was renewed, at least until spring of next

"I've had to deliver the mail by car three times, because of storms," James said. "To reach those river houses by land, I have to drive 75 miles on some pretty rough dirt roads. It takes five hours. By boat, it takes 21/2 hours and far less gas. They pay me $8.100 a year. I pay all my expenses I'd say the government has a bargain.

James's customers certainly feel that way To the inhabitants along the Magnolia River, Eslave Creek.

Nottle Creek, Fish River and other points in southern Alabama's watery remoteness, he is their daily link to one another. He brings their letters and mails their packages, but he also passes the news, keeps them in touch.

James is a big. friendly man of 52. He is a Navy veteran, emplete with tatoo, and so is no stranger to the water.

Three times in his three years on the job he has rescued boaters in distress, towing them to safety. Once he even rescued a sea gull that had impaled its beak on a fishing lure.

IRS will battle court's order to give information

WASHINGTON (AP) - Government lawyers are trying to block a court order directing them to make public Internal Revenue Service data they say could provide a road map for cheating on federal income taxes.

IRS officials say complying with the order might cost the government millions in lost taxes and extra auditing expenses by revealing what tax return items are likely to trigger an audit.

But Stephen Strong, attorney for a husband and wife who sued to get the data under the Freedom of Information Act, says those fears are baseless. And he says the IRS is trying to conceal information that might undermine its budget requests because it wants to "have more auditors and build its empire.

After nearly six years of litigation in two lawsuits, one of which went to the Supreme Court, U.S. District Judge Walter T. McGovern in Seattle has ordered the government to turn over computer tapes Friday to Susan and Philip Long.

The tapes contain the results of the IRS's Taxpayer Compliance Measurement Program for five years ending in 1976.

Under the program, 50,000 returns are randomly selected almost every year for detailed audits. "They check everything in these audits." said a federal official, who asked not to be named. "You have to bring in a birth certificate to prove your name is accurate. When they finish, they have 50,000 perfect returns."

By comparing the original and corrected returns, the IRS determines what entries are most likely to indicate where other taxpayers made mistakes or cheated.

Two die in crash

LAREDO, Texas (AP) - An assistant warden for the Texas prison system was driving a prisoner toward Laredo when he noticed an airplane flying extremely low across the highway

Warden Bo Savage turned to the prisoner in his care, made a joke about the airplane's low altitude, and turned back to watch just in time to see the aircraft explode in flight.

The two men on board were killed instantly, said Webb County sheriff's deputies. The dead were identified as Gary Bilbro of Elmendorf and pilot Dennis Meurer, a Laredo

The bodies were thrown 100 feet from the airplane's fuselage, and wreckage was scattered for several hundred yards, according to a Department of Public Safety trooper at the scene.

Firemen had to put out the fire before investigators could approach the wreckage.

The airplane was on the final leg of a College Station to Corpus Christi to Laredo flight when it exploded and crashed about three miles south southeast of the Laredo International Airport, said airport director Carlos

Refinery suits settled

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) - Texaco and another company have reached out-of-court settlements totaling in the millions of dollars in 10 negligence suits filed in federal district court in Beaumont

A federal civil trial was scheduled to begin Wednesday, but U.S. District Judge Joe Fisher dismissed a 12-member jury after agreements were reached on the final three suits, filed in the aftermath of a March 17, 1977 blast at Texaco's refinery in Port Arthur that killed eight people and injured 15.

Amounts of the settlements were not disclosed. Attorneys said they could not release specific amounts without their clients'

Another attorney, who also requested anonymity, said a co-defendant with Texaco - Kraut Kramer-Branson, Inc., of Los Angeles - bore the biggest share of the settlement burden in the suit brought by his client.

Mavericks set modern NBA record in loss

HOUSTON (AP) - The 116-68 embarrassment the Dallas Mavericks suffered Wednesday night at the hands of the Houston Rockets is the kind of thing Dallas coach Dick Motta had really been anticipating to have happened many more times this season with his National Basketball Association expansion

"I had these kind of games when I was in Chicago (its expansion year), and this being our first year I was kind of expecting to have these kind of games at least once out of every four times," Motta said.

"We're young and inexperienced, but we have talent and I tend to be around here for some time.'

The 68 points was a low for modern-day NBA times, and Dallas' 8-point third quarter was the least any team had scored in a period this season.

After Houston took a 50-39 halftime lead, Motta gave his squad a pep talk and told them, "You don't give up, you keep going."
"But I think I saw a couple of players running with their tails between their legs. And I think that's good because they won't be around much longer," Motta said. The Rockets outscored Dallas by an incredible 38-8 margin in the third quarter, and the Mavericks' collapse caught the victors by surprise.

"Speaking for myself, I couldn't be happier with our performance, but I'll have to admit it came a little easier than I thought it would," said Bill Willoughby, who scored a season-high 21 points for Houston.

"We didn't do anything that differently than in other games. We just seemed to connect and put the ball in. I don't know what was wrong (with the Mavericks). They usually don't get blown

Houston raised its record to 26-29 in the NBA's Midwest Division, while Dallas dropped its eighth straight game to fall to Moses Malone also scored 21 for Houston, with Rudy Tomjanovich adding 16, Calvin Murphy 15 and Robert Reid 14. The Mavericks shot a paltry 31.5 percent from the field, while the Rockets hit 55.3 percent. Dallas never led and only managed to tie the Rockets in the early moments of the game. But Houston quickly blew past the Mavericks to take a 32-16 edge at the end of the first period.

Bill Robinzine led Dallas scorers with 14 points, Stan Pietkiewicz added nine.

College basketball roundup

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

At the start of the Southeastern Conference basketball season, Tennessee Coach Don DeVoe knew there would be some bad nights.

But he didn't know how bad. "Ole Miss just gave us a good thrashing tonight," said DeVoe after his 11th-ranked Volunteers were routed 71-52 by Mississippi Wednesday night. "They showed us how to play basketball. They played defense the way all coaches hope their teams would."

DeVoe was not figuring on Mississippi giving him such trouble. Kentucky and Louisiana State were supposed to be the teams to beat in the conference, not Ole Miss.

They just did a good job of setting the tempo from the start and we did not do a good job of anything." said DeVoe after losing his fourth SEC game in 11

A&M appointees get approval

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Two of three Texas A&M regent appointees said Wednesday they are committed to holding onto their share of the Permanent University Fund but would agree to divvy up their portion with schools in the A&M system.

PUF is now divided between the A&M and University of Texas systems, and there has been considerable discussion over other Texas colleges getting a cut as rising oil and gas revenues pump millions into PUF.

Harvey "Bum" Bright and William McKenzie, both of Dallas, told the Senate Nominations Subcommittee they favored spreading the wealth among other schools in the A&M system, such as Prairie

Joe Richardson of Amarillo said he would have to do some more research before committing himself on ways the money should be

Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, asked how the regents felt about allowing schools such as Stephen F. Austin and Sam Houston State to share in PUF, and McKenzie replied, "I don't think you should steal from one to build another," then he added that "steal" might not be the proper word.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, said he understood from the remarks that the appointees were committed to keep the PUF for the UT and A&M systems, and McKenzie replied, "Absolutely."

The subcommittee sent the nominations to the full Senate on a 5-0

Also approved by the subcommittee was the reappointment of Alton Bowen as state education commissioner and the apppointment of V.F. "Doc" Neuhaus, Hidalgo County, to the Finance Commission of Texas.

Bowen said the No. 1 problem in public education 'is getting back to the teaching of fundamentals - reading, writing and arithmetic." He said 30 percent of Texas school children are not achieving at the level they should be.

"One of the finest things that has happened in the last two years," said Bowen, "is the testing you required." Pupils are now tested in the third, fifth and ninth grades.

Bowen also said the Texas Education Agency would propose a form of teacher competency testing that would require education majors to display reading, writing and arithmetic skills before their junior year in college and also expertise in their teaching field before they are certified.

"The quality of education depends on who walks through that classroom door each morning," said Bowen.

No easy solution to Spanish crisis

MADRID, Spain (AP) - The first political crisis since Spanish democracy was born again four years ago is not proving easy to solve, and the outcome is of vital importance to the United States

"It's not just another European game of musical chairs," said a Spanish diplomat, referring to the frequent government changes in

Adolfo Suarez, who became premier in 1976 after the death of dictator Francisco Franco, unexpectedly resigned last Thursday. His generally conservative party, the Union of the Democratic Center, picked Deputy Premier Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo to succeed him, but hopes that he would be confirmed quickly have proved too

King Juan Carlos, obviously sensing problems if not turmoil, has set aside plans for a trip to the United States until he has a new government securely in place.

It is the first time that Spanish democracy's fragile structure is being put to the test of orderly transition. If there is a swing to the far left or a rightist military coup, which is not entirely excluded, what is at stake for the Western Alliance?

While Spain is not yet a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Western military specialists consider it a bastion of Western defense. Located at one end of the Mediterranean, it has more than 9,500 U.S. military and Del Department personnel on its territory.

The base agreements expire in September, and the U.S. and Spanish governments are now negotiating their renewal.

Spain spends some $4.8 billion dollars annually on defense, more than Canada, a NATO member. Suarez was edging gingerly toward membership in the alliance, with 1983 his target date. Should Calvo Sotelo succeed him, the move into the alliance would probably be

But should Felipe Gonzalez's Socialists have to be admitted to the government to form a majority, Spain's entry into NATO and the future of the U.S. bases would probably be challenged.

Cold-shouldered by much of Western Europe in the days of the Franco dictatorship, Spain has also been attempting to enter the 10-member European Common Market, which would benefit Spanish goods and give it the European political acceptance it so

The EEC countries have been dragging their heels, however, and a hoped-for entry date of 1983 has now slipped to 1984 because of financial problems within the Common Market.

Lurking behind the political confusion in Spain is the continuing problem of Basque terrorism. King Juan Carlos' current trip to the Basque country, a courageous move in the eyes of many, may undercut the more militant Basques and lead to an eventual solution of the problem of Basque separatism.

By Abigail Van Buren DEAR ABBY: My great-niece is pregnant with her first child. She is ecstatic, her husband is ecstatic and her parents are ecstatic. But I am not ecstatic. Tell me, how many babies are born blind every year? How many babies are born deaf, retarded, or with some birth defect? And how many die of cancer in childhood?

And supposing a child is normal at birth, how many grow up to be teen age dope addicts? And, Abby, what is our present prison population?

AUNT LUCILLE

DEAR AUNT LUCILLE: The statistics are not relevant. Most children are born healthy and normal. But are those who are born less than perfect, less lovable? And is their worth diminished?

Your problem is far more serious than the possibility of another imperfect child. It's your penchant of wallowing in gloom and doom.

Please get professional help, Auntie. If not for your sake, for the sake of those around you. You need to develop a more positive and hopeful outlook.

DEAR ABBY: There used to be a law (at least I heard there was) stating that if you have lost one son in war and have only one remaining son, he is exempted from being drafted. Also, if you have only one son and his father was killed in war, the son doesn't have to go.

My son is about to register for the draft, and I would like to know if this is true because his father was killed in battle.

TIRED OF WARS

DEAR TIRED: There is no law at the present time to "draft" anyone; there is only a law stating that those born in 1960 and 1961 must register - in order to determine how many are available in that age

And until there is actual drafting, there are no laws stating who is exempt and who isn't.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to whether one should tell a friend that her husband is cheating.

When I was 20 (and still a virgin), I married a man who had me completely fooled. In the 31/2 years that we were married, he slept with everyone he could get his hands on, including his underage cousin! No one wanted to tell me. I was, indeed, the last to know. I will be eternally grateful to the friend who finally gathered the courage to tell me what everyone who lived in our apartment building knew. And all the while I had been beating my brains out trying to make a marriage work with a husband who had been lying and cheating from the day we were married.

Today I am divorced and 1,000 times happier. And I'm still young enough to meet someone decent and have a good

GRATEFUL

DEAR GRATEFUL: Not all wives are grateful. How's this for a new twist?

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago, I took it upon myself to tell a very close friend of mine that her husband was having an affair with a girl in his office. I honestly thought I was doing her a favor

Do you know what she said to me? "Why don't you mind your own business? LEARNED A LESSON IN TIFFIN, OHIO sional help. DEAR DR. LAMB - I am desperate. I have fragile capillaries so I bruise very easily. My doctor said to take large doses of vitamin C and rutin, which I do. I am now taking 1000 mg of C and 100 mg of rutin twice daily, but I'm still bruising. Most of the time I don't even know how it happens as it doesn't hurt.

I am 71 years old and take Diupres for blood pressure, Premarin and vitamin E, also one Geritol tablet daily. I lead a very active life and am quite healthy but this is a real problem. It is only on my arms, seldom on any other parts of my body.

DEAR READER - Occasionally a low level of vitamin C can cause increased fragility of the capillaries, but there are many other causes for this problem and, as your story demonstrates, taking vitamins alone is frequently not the answer.

If you have not had them, you need a series of tests to evaluate the clotting mechanism of your blood. Your problem can also be caused by a disorder of the platelets, the tiny cells involved in blood clotting.

Certain medicines can sometimes cause this, including aspirin or common home remedies that contain aspirin. Now that you have tried the vitamin C and rutin routine, talk to your doctor again to see if he is interested in testing your clotting mechanism further to pinpoint the real problem

This practice began in 1885 as a signal to trigger-happy cowboys and local citizens that the saloons were closed. Even after the passing of the era of saloons. Clinton continued to fire his gun, in commemoration of that rowdy period. Several hundred spectators gathered each year to join in this community watch

Born in Dublin, Ireland in 1848, Clinton came to America at the age of seven. While a 15-year-old student at a military academy in Little Rock, Arkansas, Clinton joined the Confederate Army. It is said that a Union soldier captured Clinton in North Carolina and that the young man escaped by stealing a colonel's horse and riding to Louisiana. After the war, Clinton joined the United States Army Scouts in San Antonio. The officer who took him in turned out to be the same gentleman from whom Clinton had stolen the horse.

THE EIGHTEEN-CARAT KID & OTHER STORIES. By P. G. Wodehouse. Continuum. 163 Pages. $10.95.

This is the fourth volume of vintage Wodehouse made by Continuum since the death of the author in 1975. Its contents are no less delightful than those of its three

"The Eigteen-Carat Kid" the first offering, is a novella set in a British boarding school, where one very rich and very bratty youngster named Ogden Ford enrolls. Ogden becomes the charge of Burns, a young headmaster, and the little cigarette-smoking tyke is soon the target of kidnappers. Into the picture enters Smooth Sam Fisher, who is determined to kidnap Ogden and use the ransom money to settle down and marry. Smooth Sam is a likeable crook, and Ogden such a little monster that the reader should not be surprised to find himself rooting for Sam to pull the caper off. "The Wire-Pullers" is a short story about cricket, and is viewed through the eyes of a young lady who tries to influence" the outcome of a cricket match so that her father will move the family to the city for the winter. Another short story, "The Prize Poem," tells how three entrants in a poetry contest unknowingly all submit the same poem. The final piece, "William Tell Told Again," is Wodehouse's version of the classic tale.

. In all, this collection is an amusing package that will delight Wodehouse longtimers and newcomers alike. It's to be hoped there will be more volumes of Wodehouse treasures to come - and if they are as rewarding to the reader as those published so far have been, editor David Jasen's title of "No. 1 Wodehouse Fan" may be in jeopardy.

East Texas man climbs ladder at CIA

WASHINGTON (AP) - With a name like Bobby intelligence community has been based upon Ray, he could have been the star wide receiver on a Texas high school football team or the country plowboy who rose to become president of the local bank.

But Bobby Ray Inman, who came out of a small East Texas town, is considered by many to be America's master spy.

After nearly four years as director of the National Security Agency, Inman will be deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency. The Senate Intelligence Committee Tuesday approved his nomination by President Reagan and sent the appointment to the full Senate for confirmation.

In addition, the Senate Armed Services Committee chaired by Texas Sen. John Tower has approved Inman's promotion to the rank of full admiral. At 49, Inman will become one of the youngest four-star admirals in Navy history.

His spying has not been of the cloak and dagger intelligence analysis, depending heavily on the technological, less glamorized tools of spying such as satellites, microwave stations and computers.

Born in the Upshur County town of Rhonesboro, about 100 miles east of Dallas and educated at the University of Texas at Austin, Inman has spent 28 years in the Navy, most of it in intelligence roles.

During his tenure, he has developed a reputation as a straight shooter, a man who doesn't hedge. Intelligence Committee members said. They repeatedly referred to him as the best witness to appear before the panel in its closed-door briefings.

With a secret budget estimated at $2 billion a year, Inman ran an agency larger than the CIA. Its mission included breaking enemy codes, developing unbreakable codes for U.S. intelligence agencies, and monitoring, translating and analyzing worldwide communications among nations, foreign citizens and

The headquarters of the National Security Agency is on the grounds of Fort George Meadenear Washington but it has a network of facilities and employees around

As deputy director of the CIA, Inman will be the right hand man of CIA director William J. Casey.

Inman says his talks with his boss-to-be have indicated he will be responsible for community affairs, budget matters and resource allocation. Casey will oversee covert operations and the collection and production of intelligence.

The Intelligence Committee is accustomed to meeting in secret, so the senators were guarded and " general in their questioning of Inman. Inman was

The lines were made by clearing the stony surface of the plain perhaps a thousand years ago, hundreds of years before the Inca Empire was established. They stretch like shallow pathways for miles.

Sometimes they run parallel across the plain and straight up the side of hills. They zigzag and oscillate and form trapezoids, large clearings.

They are nearly invisible from ground level. The best vantage point is from 1,500 feet directly overhead. The lines were first discovered in 1926, but were not well-known until the 1930s when pilots began flying over them regularly.

Dr. Paul Kosok, a history professor from Long Island University, studied the lines in 1941 and called them "the largest astronomy book in the world.

Miss Reicke said it was Kosok who urged her to undertake the study which began in 1946. She dismissed the spaceman theory as a "fantasy." "Furthermore, spaceships would not need such long runways to take off," she said.

Miss Reicke said she had spent years just to determine * the unit of measurement used to construct the lines - a length of 1.60 to 1.70 meters, then about , the height of a man.

They flew from St. Louis to San Francisco to play a classi-cal concert. "We had to work very hard to be able to play classical music again in a style that would really work." Now they play rag and classical about 50-50 as easily as strictly classical musicians switch from the styles of Mozart to Wagner.

Rosenthal's expectations about Eubie Blake did a turnaround when they met, too. "I kind of expected here was a guy who wrote great ragtime in '20s and he was a celebrity now because he was old and the only one left.

"Then the last night I was absolutely knocked over by his playing for 45 minutes. He pushed the microphone away and said he hates those things. I was standing in the back and heard every note and every word he said. And at 2 in the morning at a party with only 5 or 10 people left he sat down at the piano and played 'On a Clear Day.' It was one of the most beautiful things I've ever heard in my life. I got the same feeling I get listening to Segovia, like he has distilled his art down to the purest essence."

The Amherst Saxophone Quartet, named for a suburb of Buffalo, N.Y., that Rosenthal used to live in, met Blake and his wife Marion at the airport in St. Louis.

They decided to greet the Blakes with some rag music, so they got out instruments and music stands. Airport officials protested but they swung into "Birds' Carnival," by Zez Conrrey, which turned out to be one of Blake's favorites, and 200 people in the airport started to dance. The same officials told them to come back and turn the airport into a happy party

Rosenthal says, "Eubie played 'Butterfly' the last night. None of us had heard it before. Sal fell in love with it and said Mike had to arrange it. We got Eubie's tunes from two books of his music that are available. Marion sent us 'Butterfly' and Max Morath sent us 'In Jassamine Lane.' "

Rosenthal considers ragtime both classical music, in the tradition of Chopin, and popular music. The sheet music of Scott Joplin's "Maple Lead Rag" sold a million copies when it came out.

Oink Inc. began as lark, includes Gobble Inc.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Oink, Inc., formed as a lark two years ago by a bunch of "crazy guys" who fancied themselves pig buyers, is generating big bucks for kids who spend a whole year grooming their swine for the San Antonio Stock Show and Rodeo. Oink, Inc., its charter hastily written on a napkin, was founded on the spur of the moment one Bloody Mary morning by a group of 42 lawyers, doctors, oilmen and other local businessmen. "Of course it's not really incorporated. It's just a bunch of crazy guys," explains attorney R.H. Tibaud Bowman, one of the founding members of Oink, Inc. Today, membership has swelled to around 200, its purpose has become semi-serious, and its concept has been so successful that it has branched out and formed a subsidiary known as Gobble, Inc. "It was kind of a cold morning," Bowman, a member of the livestock show's auction committee, recalls about how Oink, Inc.

came into being. "So we went up to the Frontier Club and has some Bloody Marys and kind of got a little frisky.

"We came back and decided, by gawd, let's just put some money together and start bidding on something. Everybody put up $20 and we raised $800 to $900 and we wound up at the pig auction."

Dressed in their boots and cowboy hats and bidding in the name of Oink, Inc., the businessmen wound up buying about a dozen pigs in 1979, but along the way they drove bidding up $22,000 above the norm. Bowman said

'Eight hundred dollars goes a long way at an auction," he laughed. "Swift buys everything back at the floor price, something like 80 cents a pound. We'd bid $1 a pound for some pig and an old rancher would bid $1.10. So we'd Say, 'Oink, Inc., bids $1.20,' and he'd bid $1.30, and we'd let him have it.

"But sometimes we'd wind up getting stuck with the pig and we'd just sell it to Swift for the floor price and it kind of ate up our $800. but it went a long way. But we ended up raising for the pig auction an extra $22,000, according to their records out there, by running the bids up," he said,

"Little kids were coming up and down the aisles and they thought we were big pig buyers. It was just wonderful. We all had our cowboy hats on," Bowman, 33, recalls.

The group celebrated its first-year success with a barbecue complete with big vats of Bloody Marys and margaritas and two pigs cooked over a 20-foot long spit - and named a tiny girl dressed in a pink pig outfit as Miss Oink as Mexican music blared from pickup truck speakers.

Last year, the group's ranks began to swell, it appointed some real auction bidders, raised around $2,000 and bought 22 pigs for Oink, Inc., and its members. Two small girls were named jointly to

This year the group has formed Gobble, Inc., to try to enliven the poultry auction bidding and collected $1,000 in bidding money in 10 minutes last week at a joint Oink-Gobble meeting prior to this month's stock show.

"It's a fun deal, but it's also a way for people to channel their energies and do something for charity, because it does raise money for these kids. That's the main thing," Bowman said. "They come into town with their pigs or whatever it is they've been raising for a year. It's nice to see it go for $1,200 instead of $250 like it did in the Bowman said it is rewarding to get letters later from the 4-H and FFA members saying: "Dear Oink, Inc. Thank you so much for buying Josephine. She was very dear to me. She was a 300-pound hog, as you know."

Trail of death now twisting through courts

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Southern Californians, inured to the horror of mass murder by the likes of Charles Manson, have been shocked anew by a grisly case now snaking its tangled way through the courts.

It is called "the Freeway Killer case," and the gruesome details unfolding daily involve homosexuality, black magic and demonic tortures of perhaps 44 victims.

The dead were young men and boys, mostly in their teens, whose mutilated bodies were dumped along or near the maze of high-speed freeways that criss-cross this vast urban sprawl. The prime suspect, charged with 14 of the slayings, is a 34-year-old truckdriver and Vietnam veteran named William Bonin, a twice paroled sex offender whose sexual problems reportedly date back to the age of 10. He has been described by a prosecutor as "the most arch-evil person who ever existed." An informant told police that Bonin once said he liked to strangle teen-age boys on Friday and Saturday nights so he could have Sundays free to take his girlfriend roller skating.

Three young men, one of them said to be possibly retarded, have been charged as Bonin's accomplices in murder.

A fifth defendant, Vernon Butts, 23, who confessed his role in some of the killings, was found dead in his jail cell last month, an apparent

Butts had dabbled in the occult and kept two coffins in his home. In a detailed confession he called the murder spree "a good little

The boyish Butts, who was said to have become despondent when his confession was made public, claimed he never killed any victims but rather held down the screaming youths while Bonin tortured and strangled them.

Butts gave a chilling account of Bonin's search for victims as he cruised Southern California in a green van, picking up hitchhikers or offering rides to youngsters waiting for buses.

One 12-year-old victim disappeared while waiting for a bus to Disneyland.

Butts told of Bonin's grotesque torture methods - using an ice pick and a coat hanger before he strangled the young men with their own T-shirts.

In one case, Butts recalled how he and Bonin left a movie and picked up a hitchhiker 'somewhere in the middle of the city.' "We picked up the boy, took him out to the middle of nowhere and had sex with him and then he (Bonin) killed him," Butts said. "Bill (Bonin) said he loved those sounds of screams." Of his own role in the killings, Butts said, 'After the first one I couldn't do anything about Bonin, he explained, had "a hypnotic way about him that led the younger man to follow. Others are said to have followed, too. Three men charged in the case are James Munro, 19, who once worked with Bonin; Gregory Miley, 19,

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -Government and school the state $111.3 million between employees would not have to retire until 70 under a proposal

if department heads decide their age would prevent them from safely performing their duties.

The current mandatory retirement age is 65. Sen. Lloyd Doggett's bill would lower the minimum age limit for a government job from 21 to 18.

The bill would prohibit political subdivisions from denying a person a job "solely because of age." It also provides that no governmental body or public school may discriminate against an employee or jobseeker because the person is "blind, visually handicapped, or otherwise physically disabled" unless the disability would prevent the person from performing work.
