Reagan visits Mexico

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan's visit to Mexico today, a rare preinaugural journey across the U.S. border, is intended to be long on symbolism of friendship and short on specifics of discord between the two countries.

The main purpose, said Reagan aide Edwin Meese III, is to portray the importance the new administration attaches to U.S.-Mexican ties after four years of less-than-smooth relations.

Meese said there was no specific topic for Reagan's meeting with Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo at the Museum of Art and History in Ciudad Juarez, on the U.S.-Mexican border near El Paso. Texas.

Reagan and Lopez Portillo planned to meet on the Cordova International Bridge, which spans the Rio Grande, and then begin private talks, followed by lunch in Ciudad Juarez.

After the meetings, Reagan is flying to Washington for his first meeting with his Cabinet nominees. He returns to Los Angeles on Thursday

Reagan, whose eight years as governor of California placed him in a unique position to keep tabs on the U.S. relationship with Mexico, said Friday he was going to Ciudad Juarez "to express our desire for a complete friendship.

Preinaugural foreign travel by a president-elect is highly unusual, and Meese said Reagan's trip indicates his view that Mexico is "a true partner.

"He's not going down there with a list of demands or a list of proposals, but rather, to talk over on a mutual basis with the president of Mexico, Lopez Portillo, how we can best carry on our relationships in an effective way as partners," Meese said.

Nevertheless, there is no shortage of issues on which Reagan and Lopez Portillo could focus:

-Mexico, although concerned about outside interference in El Salvador, to its south, has been sympathetic to the Marxist-led opposition there. Reagan's transition team has spoken harshly about the left-wing guerrillas and about the Carter administration's policies in El Salvador. Seven Americans have been killed in El Salvador in the last month, including two agricultural advisers shot in a San Salvador hotel restaurant Saturday night.

-Mexico is supplying the United States with about 700,000 barrels of oil a day - 80 percent of the export of the nationalized Mexican oil industry. Although the product is sold at world market prices, there is sensitivity in Mexico that the United States is taking advantage of its southern neighbor.

-With the great disparity in Mexican and U.S. personal incomes - it is the greatest between any two neighboring nations, according to Robert Krueger, the chief State Department official concerned directly with U.S.-Mexican relations - the flow of immigrants entering the United States illegally from Mexico has not been stopped. Estimates south of the border place the number of Mexicans living illegally in the United States at 480,000 to 1.2 million. U.S. estimates are much higher.

Martin Anderson, Reagan's chief domestic policy adviser, said Sunday on the NBC program "Meet the Press" that the incoming administration is considering several proposals dealing with illegal aliens. These include a suggestion by Texas Gov. William Clements that a Mexican citizen who wishes to work in the United States on a temporary basis and pay taxes be permitted to do so. Anderson

-One week ago today, Mexico abrogated all agreements allowing U.S. commercial fishermen to operate in Mexican waters-The last personal contact between leaders of the U.S. and Mexico was in 1979 in Mexico City. It was at a luncheon during that meeting that President Carter said he'd had a bout of "Montezuma's Revenge," a slang term for diarrhea that is considered offensive by Mexicans. During the same luncheon, Lopez Portillo reviewed the history of relations between the two neighbors, doing little to hide his feeling that Mexico had not been well treated by the United States.

Senate may open to TV

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate's new majority leader, Howard Baker, predicted Monday that the Senate will open its proceedings to television cameras this year. Baker, sworn in with other members of the 97th Congress at midday, said he would introduce later in the day a resolution to allow television news coverage.

New Congress sets cabinet hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new Congress with more Republicans and more conservatives is opening shop with plans to give Ronald Reagan a head start on installing his government once he assumes Senate committees scheduled a week of hearings on the president-elect's Cabinet nominations in hopes the Senate can vote on confirmation on Inauguration Day, Jan. 20. Until then, Congress has no legislating to do.

The Senate, controlled by Republicans for the first time since 1955, and the House, still led by Democrats, scheduled only the swearing-in of members and ceremonial proceedings today. They will meet in joint session Tuesday to count the votes cast by presidential electors and then adjourn until Jan. 19.

The confirmation hearings may give Reagan his first taste of battling with Capitol Hill.

Considerable controversy, urrounds the selections of retired Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. for secretary of state and of Colorado lawyer James G. Watt for interior secretary.

Haig, who now heads United Technologies Corp., will be questioned by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on his role as White House chief of staff during the closing days of the Nixon administration. Some senators also have questioned the wisdom of having a military man running the State Department. The Haig hearings are expected to open Friday.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said Sunday that President Carter will authorize the National Archives to search for specific presidential tape recordings and documents sought by Senate Democrats for use in the Haig hearings.

But two Republican senators said Sunday Watergate should not play a major role in Haig's confirmation.

'The most crucial part of the hearings is where he wants to go . how he would conduct the office of secretary of state," said Sen. Charles Mathias of Maryland.

Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah, appearing with Mathias on ABC's "Issues and Answers" program, added: "Even if he (Haig) has some problems ... it appears to me that he has served with distinction as commander in chief of our NATO alliance....I'm tired of the Wagergate syndrome and I think the American people are,

The Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee will open hearings Wednesday on Watt. Some environmentalists oppose Watt because he has been in the forefront of a battle to open Western lands for oil and mineral development.

Despite scattered opposition to Haig and Watt, the Senate is expected to confirm both, because presidents traditionally are given wide latitude in selecting a Cabinet. In fact, not since 1959, when the Senate refused to approve Lewis Strauss as commerce secretary, has a Cabinet nominee been rejected

The Senate Finance Committee will conduct a hearing Tuesday on the nomination of outgoing Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., to head the Department of Health and Human Services. That will be followed by a hearing on Treasury Secretary-designate Donald Regan, chairman of Merrill Lynch & Co. Inc.

Also scheduled Tuesday are confirmation hearings on Malcolm Baldrige, chairman of Scovill Inc., as commerce secretary: John Block, Illinois farm commissioner, as agriculture secretary, and Caspar W. Weinberger, a former secretary of health, education and welfare, as defense secretary.

Hearings will be held Wednesday for Pennsylvania businessman Drew Lewis, nominated for transportation secretary, and New Jersey construction executive Raymond J. Donovan, picked to head the Labor Department.

Senate Republicans, who hold a 53-47 majority, are keeping their leaders, but they are taking on more power with the new GOP control. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee is the new majority leader; Ted Stevens of Alaska is Baker's deputy.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., steps down to minority leader. with Alan Cranston, D-Calif., as his deputy.

In the House, the Democrats remain in control but their margin has been trimmed to 243-192. The lineup in the last Congress was 273 Democrats, 159 Republicans and three vacancies in seats formerly held by Democrats.

Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts will continue as House speaker and Jim Wright of Texas has been given another term as Polisters and students of the political process say both houses of: Congress are expected to be more conservative this year.

In many cases, liberals were defeated by those embracing: conservative goals. Other liberal lawmakers may moderate their positions because of what is perceived as a rightward swing by the

Despite the conservative trend, however, both Hatch and Mathias said the new Congress should concentrate on "getting the economy on its feet," rather than such issues as abortion, schoolprayer and busing to achieve integration.

Manhunt ends for Yorkshire Ripper

LEEDS, England (AP) — British police indicated they believe they have arrested the mass murderer known as the Yorkshire Ripper after a five-year reign of terror and the biggest manhunt in British criminal

Police said today that truck driver Peter Sutcliffe. a 35-year-old married man, would appear in court this afternoon on charges "related to" the brutal murders of 13 women in northern England's Yorkshire and Lanca shire counties

But they also said their questioning of Sutcliffe "had not developed as quickly as we had anticipated.'

Liason officer Supt. Frank Morritt told reporters here. "The precise nature of the charges has not yet been decided and discussions are taking place between senior officers

"One charge will relate to the Ripper series of incidents and one to suspected stolen car number

Asked if the Ripper charge would concern the actual murders, Morritt said, "Probably, yes. But I can't say for definite He said Sutcliffe, who was arrested Friday night was expected to appear before magistrates in Dewsbury, eight miles southwest of Leeds.

West Yorkshire's Chief Constable Donald Gregory said Sunday he and his men were "absolutely delighted, totally delighted with the developments at this stage." The police also said they were "scaling down" the Ripper investigation.

A police spokesman said Sutcliffe's wife, Sonia, was also being questioned, and the police were guarding their four-bedroom home in Bradford, a West Yorkshire city where three of the Ripper's victims

Neighbors said Sutcliffe was a quiet, handsome man who they believed worked as a long-distance truck driver. They said his brunette wife taught art part-time, and they had no children. Police Sgt. Robert Ring and Constable Robert Hydes told a news conference they arrested the man late: Friday night in the red light district of Sheffield, a Vorkshire town close to the six cities in which the Ripper killed. Although he never killed in Sheffield. many of his victims were prostitutes.

The two police officers said that during a routine check they found suspicious license plates on a parked Rover automobile. They said after a computer check of the car's registration, they arrested the driver on suspicion of theft of the plates.

"It was just a spot check on a car parked in a certain area where prostitutes take clients," said Ring.

Gregory said the man did not resist arrest. He said a woman with him at the time "is helping with inquiries, but has not been arrested." He did not identify the

noves three hostages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Iranian government says it is studying President Carter's final offer for the release of the U.S. hostages, has transferred the three Americans held at the Foreign Ministry to a new location and has taken full control of the other 49 captives from the Islamic militants who seized them 14

Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai's spokesman. Ahmad Azizi, told The Associated Press Sunday that the "U.S. response is being studied" and Iran's reply would be "announced later. Azizi said U.S. Charge d'Affaires Bruce Laingen, political officer Victor Tomseth and security man Michael Howland had been moved from the Foreign Ministry in Tehran to "a more appropriate place of residence." the official Iranian news agency Pars reported. Contacted by telephone from Beirut, he told the AP this was done for reasons of "convenience."

"It was decided from the beginning that when the hostages were delivered to the government, the three at the ministry would also be taken by the government," Azizi said.

"The other 49 hostages are now in the hands of the government," he reported, indicating for the first time that the militants who seized the U.S. Embassy on Nov. 4. 1979, had surrendered control of the captives as they promised to do last November when Iran's Parliament

set conditions for the Americans' release

Laingen. Tomseth and Howland were at the Foreign Ministry when the militants took over the embassy and had been kept there ever since. Azizi refused to say where any of the Americans were being held now or whether all of them were together.

After the abortive attempt to rescue the hostages last April, the militants said they had transferred their 49 prisoners to other cities. But there was speculation in Washington that they never left the embassy.

The head of Iran's hostage negotiating team, Behzad Navabi, said on Dec. 21 the hostages had been transferred recently to "very beautiful hotels provided with complete services." The other 49 hostages were reported reunited for Christmas services, but it was not known if they remained together afterwards.

U.S. officials in Washington said they had no confirmation of Azizi's report that the government had taken control of the hostages. But White House spokesman Jody Powell said the reported transfer of the three Americans from the Foreign Ministry "does cause us some concern." He said they "had been under somewhat more favorable conditions both in terms of communication with them and in terms of the amenities which they enjoyed....' There was speculation Iran was gathering the hostages in preparation either to release them or to try them as spies, something Iranian officials have threatened to do if the United States failed to meet its

Oklahoma horse breeder offers. reward for stolen quarterhorses

PERRY, Okla. (AP) - Edward Bennett isn't waiting for law enforcement officials to trace his four registered brood mares stolen last week from a wheat pasture land near Calumet, he's offering to pay for their recovery.

Bennett is afraid his quarterhorses, which he values at $25,000, "may be sold to the killers" -- meat packers -- for about 50 cents a

"I will give a sizable reward for the location of the mares and I'll also give a sizable reward to see the men in jail," Bennett said. Some stoleh animals are resold to other owners, but many are sold at livestock sales to agents for packing plants - three of which operate in Texas, officials said.

"A man in the business of cutting up horses for shipment to France is looking for good meat. Now, what's better meat than a grain-fed mare?" asked Jack Jungroth, vice president of the Oklahoma horse council.

Joe Ramer, one of 32 livestock theft detectives for the Oklahoma Cattlemen's Association, said about one in 10 owners brands his horse, a move he termed a real deterrent against theft. Bennett said he's contacted packing houses in Texas and Nebraska, hoping if his mares are brought in, someone will call him, but he'd like someone to respond to his ads first.

"I'll spend some money to prove these are mine," he said. "I've got colts I can blood test.

Since only pregnant horses were taken from his rented pasture, Bennett believes the thieves plan to let the mares live and sell the

With the high demand for horseflesh, Jungroth said he doubts anything can be done to break the stampede of horse thefts unless some laws are amended.

"Sooner or later, something's got to happen. When I got here 13 years ago, I thought we needed stronger laws and was told, 'In Oklahoma, we don't need it.' But if you've got a horse on your trailer, legally it's yours.' States such as New Mexico require permits to haul animals, but there is no such requirement in Oklahoma, horsemen said.

American slayings blamed on San Salvador rightist group

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) - El Salvador's government says the killers of two American lawyers and the head of its land-redistribution program may have been extreme rightists, but police say they have no leads to the gunmen.

Jose Napoleon Duarte, president of the U.S.-backed civilian-military junta, promised "an exhaustive investigation" into the killings of Mark David Pearlman, 36, of Seattle, Wash., Michael Peter Hammer, 44, of Potomac, Md., and the Salvadoran president of the Agrarian Transformation Institute, Jose Rodolfo

Their deaths raised to seven the number of Americans killed in the past month of political warfare between the extreme right and extreme left that took more than 9,000 lives in El Salvador last

The three men were drinking coffee at the Sheraton Hotel Saturday night when two men walked up to their table, pulled out pistols and shot them.

The gunmen escaped, and there have been no admissions of responsibility for the shootings.

In Washington, the State Department expressed grief at the deaths of the three, "whose lives were dedicated to the building of a more just and equitable society in El Salvador."

Duarte's government said it "laments and energentically condemns ... the vile murders.

"Those who benefit most by these killings are leftist groups," the government said in a communique. But it added that the killings may have stemmed from "the irrational ideas of extreme rightists," an apparent reference to right-wing opposition to the government's land-reform program on which the three victims had een working. Rodolfo Viera escaped an assassination attempt eight months ago that was also blamed on rightists.

Informed sources said Pearlman had been working in San Salvador for the past seven months as an adviser to the Agrarian Institute and Hammer arrived Saturday for a brief visit, A U.S. Embassy spokesman said both worked for the American Institute for Free Labor Development, an international branch of the AFL-CIO that has been operating in El Salvador on and off since Leftists fighting a guerrilla war to replace the junta with a Marxist regime claim the government's land reform plan doesn't go far enough. But an estimated 80 percent of the 9,000 political killings last year were blamed on right-wingers opposed to any reforms reducing the economic and political power of the small conservative oligarchy that controlled El Salvador for years.

Police find dead man's family slain

DELMAR, Iowa (AP) - When police went to notify Bonnie Gilbert that her husband had apparently committed suicide, they found the 34-year-old woman and her five children shot to death in the family home.

Ballistics tests will be conducted on a gun found at the site of the apparent suicide to determine whether there was any connection between the slayings, authorities said. Clinton County Sheriff Michael Galusha said Mrs. Gilbert and her children were found in their upstairs bedrooms Saturday night after authorities made several unsuccessful attempts to contact The bizarre chain of events began Saturday in Yale, S.D., when police there said Gene Gilbert, 28, committed suicide. Police went to the Gilberts' rented home in this eastern Iowa town of 600 residents and found the bodies of Mrs. Gilbert; Dawn Roling, 13; Michelle Roling, 11; Jason Roling, 8; Gene Gilbert Jr., 2; Rachelle The three older children were Mrs. Gilbert's by a previous Delmar authorities roped off the white, wood-frame, two-story house where the bodies were found. They refused to elaborate on what they found at the house, but Clinton County Medical Examiner Salvador Borja said all six victims were found lying on beds on the second floor of the house. Each was shot at least once in the head, the medical examiner said.

Boria said there were "quite a lot" of spent shells found near the death scene and that it had not been determined when the slavings took place: The family had lived in the town of about 600 residents 40 miles south of Dubuque for about a year. Neighbors described the family as almost reclusive.

"They weren't close to anybody," said Randy McKeon, who lived next door and said he hardly knew the Gilberts. "They weren't the backyard barbecue type and neither were we.'

Iran, Iraq claim wipe out of half of each other's armies

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) - Iran and Iraq claim to have wiped out about half of each others' arsenals, killed or wounded thousands of troops and crippled their opponent oil industries in the first 100 days of their border war

As the war entered its 16th week, both sides reported more fighting in the Iranian oil province of Khuzistan, and Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr came under increased pressure from Iran's Moslem hard-liners to launch a new counter-offensive against Iraq, a sign of growing domestic criticism of Bani-Sadr's handling of the war.

A communique broadcast by Baghdad Radio said 78 Iranian soldiers were killed Sunday and two gunboats were sunk. It conceded seven Iragi deaths.

Tehran Radio said Iranian forces killed five Iraqis on Sunday and 150 on Saturday in fighting in the central sector of the warfront that claimed four Iranian lives. It also claimed pro-Iranian guerrillas inside Iraq killed six Iraqi soldiers. Two guerrillas were reported

The warring Persian Gulf oil giants in rival announcements Sunday claimed total enemy losses between Sept. 22, 1980, but neither side side anything about its own losses. In some cases, the number of weapons reported destroyed exceeded the total number believed on hand at the outbreak of the war, but most such claims from both governments throughout the war are believed to have been exaggerated.

Tehran Radio claimed Iranian forces killed or wounded about 20,000 Iraqi soldiers and destroyed 215 MiG fighters and Tupolev bombers along with 30 helicopters. It said this represented "90 percent of the Iraqi air force's operational capability It said Iraq also lost some 3,000 tanks and 1,800 other military vehicles, and Iranian planes "bombed and destroyed" more than 500 Iraqi oil centers, military bases, airports, ports and other strategic and industrial targets. The International Institute for Strategic Studies in London said in its latest military estimates, issued before the war, that Iraq had 339 warplanes, 2,500 tanks and a similar number of armored personnel carriers, plus other military vehicles.

The Iraqi government newspaper Al-Gomhuriyah claimed Iraqi forces killed 8.413 Iranian soldiers and captured 964 in the same 100-day period. It said Iran lost 558 warplanes, 147 naval vessels, 1,089 tanks and armored cars, 1,270 armored personnel carriers, 115 rocket launchers and 44 radar stations, plus 70 oil pipeline networks and fuel storage tanks which were destroyed.

Police escort girls to school in midst of battle of judges

BUCKEYE, La. (AP) - State police escorted three white girls into all-white Buckeye High School this morning, and the girls were enrolled for classes under state court order in defiance of a federal judge's integration directive. "We have no alternative but to enroll the girls at this time," said Principal Charles Waites. "We don't have any choice with your state police here but to enroll them....I'm caught back in the middle and I'm squeezed a little tighter this time.' The enrollments came on orders of state District Judge Richard Lee. He took the extraordinary step of assuming custody of the girls, who want to go to school at rural Buckeye rather than obey U.S. District Judge Nauman Scott's order that they ride buses to a predominantly black school in Alexandria, 15 miles away. Scott threatened the girls' parents and school officials with $500 daily fines if they interfered with his pupil assignment plan aimed at integrating the schools. The girls arrived at the school, which includes grades 7-12, just before 7:30 a.m. in a pickup truck and were met by state police, including Col. Bo Garrison, state head of the patrol, and a lawyer for the state Department of Public Safety.

The girls were escorted into the school by Capt. Bob Garifo, commander of the troop based in Alexandria, and two uniformed state police officers - one of them black. They went to Waites' offfice and Garifo handed Waites a copy of the state court order. Waites then sent the girls to the counselor's office to be re-enrolled. At Scott's order, the three girls were dropped from the school rolls when the offices opened at 7 a.m., They said the three, who signed up for routine eighth grade courses such as history, science, math, and English, will be accompanied to classes all day by the armed troopers.

Garifo said, "We will be here until we are enjoined or until the

Lee ordered state troopers to post themselves at the school and arrest anyone who tried to stop the children from attending. Lee has been trying to checkmate Scott for months, saying the

Under a desegregation plan issued by Scott at the beginning of the school year, Michelle LaBorde and Lynda McNeal, both 13, and Ramona Carbo, 12, were among students to be transferred from town in Rapides Parish. The girls' parents went to state court and gave up legal custody of * their children to friends living in the Buckeye attendance zone. The girls enrolled at Buckeye, but Scott ordered school officials not to admit them to classes.

A flurry of orders and counter-orders followed. Lee twice sent sheriff's deputies to escort the girls to class at Buckeye Just before the Christmas holiday started, Scott threatened to fine anyone who tried to prevent the girls from enrolling at the Jones Street school, saying it was time "to put up or shut up.

"He is absolutely void of jurisdiction in the matter," Lee said of Scott. "He's not going to stop any proceedings in my court on a matter involving state law just because he's a federal judge. 1 . respect his court and I expect him to respect my court."

"He's strong-willed, which is a euphemism for hard-headed," state District Judge Guy Humphries Jr. said of Lee. "When he thinks he's right, he has the tenacity of a bulldog.'

Lee was elected a state district judge two years ago.

Scott, a federal judge appointed for life, has noted with pride that he has been upbraided by local citizens since issuing his orders.

Consumer Watch: Shopping by the calendar can save money

Associated Press Writer

Shopping by the calendar can save you hundreds of dollars. Almost everything you need will probably be on sale at some time during the year. As a general rule, you'll save the most if you buy things out of season or at the end of the season.

Here is a month-by-month guide of what to look for when: JANUARY - The traditional white-sale month, with big discounts on linens and towels. Storewide clearance sales offer bargains on holiday merchandise, from Christmas cards and ornaments to toys and gift items. FEBRUARY - Lincoln's and Washington's birthday sales and final markdowns on January leftovers. Check out air conditioners, bicycles, bedding, dishes, curtains, glassware, men's shirts, rugs and carpets. If you're a home gardener, check catalogs and start early indoor seeds to be transplanted later.

MARCH — Pre-season sales on spring clothing and end-of-season sales on winter items. Plan ahead and look for next year's winter coats, sportswear and sports equipment

APRIL - Use your income-tax refund - if you get one - to shop for building materials, paint, garden items, wallpaper and outdoor

MAY - Mother's Day and Memorial Day sales. Now is the time to replenish stocks of winter blankets, get children's camp clothing and any vacation luggage you might need.

JUNE - Father's Day sales, plus end-of-semester sales on school supplies, including typewriters. Other potential good buys include cars, tires, men's clothing, hosiery, lingerie and summer

JULY - After the Fourth of July, check sales on shoes, bathing suits, air conditioners, hats, appliances, garden supplies, outdoor furniture and sports equipment.

AUGUST — A second round of white sales. Also worth checking: summer clothing, coats, fall fabrics, camping items, furniture, bedding. lamps, back-to-school supplies and pre-season discounts on fall clothing. Look for auto sales toward the end of the month.

SEPTEMBER - Labor Day sales, back-to-school promotions and pre-season specials on winter merchandise. Final sales on summer clothing, garden supplies and outdoor furniture. Watch for good buys on china, glassware, furniture, bedding and silver. If you're a theater or concert-goer, check on season tickets at a

OCTOBER - Sales on the last of the old-model automobiles, along with Columbus Day coat promotions.

NOVEMBER — Veterans Day sales. You'll also find the lowest prices of the year on paint, hardware and other home-improvement supplies, along with relatively good buys on blankets, stoves, water heaters and used cars.

DECEMBER - The major retailing month of the year and the worst time to buy. Sales are few.

Tornado chaser spends vacation predicting birth of tornadoes

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Alan Moller doc vacation skiing, swimming or sunning on a sandy beach. Instead, for two weeks each spring, he grabs his cameras and chases

The 30-year-old National Weather Service meteorologist claims that stalking the elusive, swirling storms is "relaxing, entertaining," and he doesn't understand "why more people don't

"When I was about 4 or 5 years old, growing up in Fort Worth, I wanted desperately to see a tornado," Moller said. "When I wasn't out playing baseball, I was out looking for tornadoes.

But the diminutive, bearded Moller, a self-described "tornado freak," says there is more to chasing the killer storms than risking life and limb for a little excitement.

"We go out and try to capture (on film) the exact time the storm forms, its touch-down and dissipation. By going out and chasing them. I've found that storms which produce tornadoes have definite visual patterns," he said. "I've learned far more out in the field than I ever learned in the classroom."

Heavy rain and hail toward the southwest edge of a thunderstorm signal the possibility of a developing twister, Moller said. "Usually, there is a flat, dark rain-free cloud base at the northwest end and that is the area where tornadoes develop in the of the storm and follows heavy rain, is where air is sucked into the core of the storm. Moller said. It is the intense upward movement of air that can eventually produce a tornado. "Not many storms have that feature," he added. "A wall cloud is only seen with severe, damaging storms. If it's rotating, it will

The wall cloud, a ragged appendage that hangs beneath the belly produce a tornado." Moller, who has been on the trail of twisters since 1971, said he uses the information gleaned from his many outings to teach "Skywarn" participants - mostly amateur radio operators - how to spot tell-tale rotating clouds in severe thunderstorms. Trained ham radio operators, dubbed "spotters," are called on by the National Weather Service to go out in the field when bad weather develops and watch the sky for the signs of developing tornadoes that meteorologists cannot detect on radar.

Moller, who is in charge of the Skywarn program for northern Texas, said his field studies have helped him make the early warning program in his area "the best in the country"

He makes his annual tornado chase in April or May, "when the tornado season starts," with a group of "tornado nuts" he met while doing graduate work at the University of Oklahoma in 1971.

'It started as a hobby, then we got funding from the (weather service) Severe Storm Lab in Norman (Okla.)," Moller said. He recalled how the group had started the Tornado Intercept Project, a field stud for graduate students that is working in conjunction with the storm lab and the university.

The group prepares by studying climate data and pinpointing an area where thunderstorms are probable.

Then we drive out there and wait. After nine years of chasing tornadoes I can usually predict which thunderstorms will produce." he said.

"Of the 55 tornadoes I've seen, half of them have been out in the countryside near Amarillo or Lubbock," he said. "The canyons out there seem to be ideal for them.'

When a twister is born, the group members zig-zag across the countryside recording its life and death on film, he said

"I've found that going out late in the season (the last few weeks in May) is better because we are able to keep up with the tornado's movement," Moller said. "For some reason, they travel slower that three of year.

Moller claims his hobby isn't dangerous for "a trained observer" but admits the group has run into some hair-raising situations.

"In Union City, Okla., we entered a storm from the wrong end and all of the sudden a tornado formed about 100 yards away."

"I panicked and couldn't get my seatbelt off so I ducked underneath the dashboard. I peeked up and saw it just lift right over us....It was incredible.

Moller said at times he gets so wrapped up in the excitement of the chase that he momentarily forgets the devastating power of the spinning cloud.

That tornado he saw near Union City in 1973 "went on into town and killed five people." he said.

"We weren't able to reach town in time to warn anyone, but fortunately they had a good spotter system and were able to sound an alarm early enough to avoid even more deaths," Moller said.

"When you see them in the distance they just don't look like they could be so destructive. It seems unnatural - the motion almost

Defunct 'Red Squad' kept files on subversive groups

CHICAGO (AP) - The Chicago Police Department has acknowledged its now-defunct 'Red Squad' kept files on at least 77 civic. anti-war, religious, civil rights and political groups, and an attorney has charged that the total number of groups was 800.

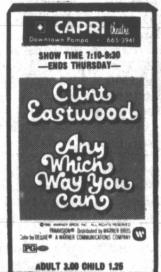

The names of the 77 organizations were revealed in documents filed by the city of Chicago in U.S. District Court here as part of several suits filed by civic and community groups, said Richard Gutman, lawyer for the Alliance to End Repression.

But, Gutman said, the so-called "Red Squad" actually kept files on 800 groups. He said those against the city in 1974 and 1975, asking for court orders to stop the city from spying operations. 'We could have listed all 800," Gutman said, "but that would just have taken up space and time. They will all be identified at the trial." Until recently, the city has denied that the Red Squad, which was the police intelligence division's old anti-subversive unit, kept the files. Now the city says the fact that the Red Squad had a file on an organization does not necessarily with plants and lower animals. But scientists said that because of several important limitations, the discovery falls far *short of immediately allowing human beings to be cloned or lost limbs to be regenerated. The discovery's importance is expected to be limited to scientific research.

Worries about cloning humans are very far away for purely practical reasons." said Dr. Davor Solter of the Wistar Institute in Philadelphia, a scientist who works in the field. Even if we did know how to clone a human, I don't know why we would want to do it.'

The main commercial application of cloning would require being able to make clones from adult cells, so that one could, for example, make multiple copies of a cow that happened to be an excellent milk producer, said Solter.

But the discovery may have great scientific importance, said Dr. Michael I. Sherman of the Roche Institute of Molecular Biology in Nutley, N.J. He said it would open up new tools for studying the functioning of genes in growth, aging and

What Reagan can and should do

The American system, by and large, is not one that is designed to turn the will of the majority into immediate action.

Despite recent trends and actions that have enhanced the power of the executive branch, the president must submit most of his proposals to Congress. When he assumes office, President Reagan will not be able to impose an across - the - board reduction in federal spending or rescind environmental regulations that aren't cost - effective. Such policy changes must go through Congress or time - consuming administrative procedures.

There are, however, some things Reagan can do immediately, by executive order, as soon as he takes office. What he chooses to do will, to a certain extent, set the tone for his administration. His early choices will let the American people know if he really intends to start the difficult job of cutting down the size and power of government or whether his administration will be a cooling - off period, a time to catch our breath for four years.

Of the options available to him, here are a few things we think Mr. Reagan should do within a few days of taking office:

-Eliminate draft registration. The current draft registration program was begun by presidential proclamation and can be stopped the same way. Reagan said he was opposed to registration when it was begun, noting that it wouldn't beef up national security, but would increase regimentation. He can end it and he should.

-Remove ceilings on crude oil and gasoline prices. These are scheduled to be phased out anyway. Their elimination would help to inject some realism into American attitudes toward energy and might even encourage more domestic exploration and production.

-Abolish voluntary wage and price guidelines. These are increasingly fanciful in our inflationary era, but their existence provides a rationale for a bureaucratic apparatus to monitor them. It's a good place to cut.

-Eliminate consumer affairs offices in various government departments and agencies. These have been expensive showpieces, taxpayer - supported ritual obeisances to "consumer" pressure groups that don't benefit real consumers a bit.

These actions would help to set a tone of voluntarism and elimination of waste and needless regulation in American life. We urge the president - elect to undertake them immediately on assuming office.

Regulatory reduction a must

One of the most important priorities of the incoming Reagan administration should be extensive reform of the regulatory structure that is now burdening American consumers and taxpayers.

A hardhitting approach to government regulation will yield incalculable benefits both to a Reagan administration and to the American people. The current recession is related in numerous small ways to the regulatory and paper work burden imposed by government. Lifting that burden can go a long way toward solving what many experts claim is an insoluble problem.

Government regulation has been one of the most significant growth industries of the last decade. Regulatory costs are now estimated at $100 billion per year, or about $1,800 per American family.

Despite the direct costs of regulation, it may be that the indirect costs are even more significant. Regulation tends to restrict personal choices and undermine democratic institutions. Since most regulations are promulgated by political appointees and faceless civil servants, their growth increases the sense of reduced control over our own lives that afflicts all of us. When we lose faith in our ability to improve our lives through our own efforts, we have lost an important element of American vitality. Regulation now has us almost on the ropes.

The last few years have seen a growing realization of the insidious effects of over-regulation and a few halting steps toward reform. The airlines have been substantially deregulated and some efforts have been made to reduce regulation of banking and surface transportation. The communications industry is undergoing a prolonged reappraisal of the benefits of regulation. Yet the growth of regulation overall continues apace. The number of pages in the Federal Register devoted to new regulations increased from 57,000 in 1976, to 77,000 in 1979, and will probably hit 90,000 for 1980. Each of those regulations cost us as consumers and tax payers several times: we paid the bureaucrats to write them, we will pay the bureaucrats who implement and enforce them, and ultimately we will pay the higher cost of goods and services

The previous administration operated on the philosophy that government must be made more efficient and easier to understand. and implemented some useful reforms. The next administration must dedicate itself to making government smaller and less intrusive. It must be willing to abolish agencies outright rather than simply reforming them.

Each regulatory agency presents specific problems, but an overall strategy for regulatory relief could include the following:

-Extend the federal hiring freeze imposed by Carter in 1980.

-Impose a year-long moratorium on new Federal regulations. -Direct each agency during the moratorium on rule - making, to prepare it for simplifying present rules and the rulemaking procedure. a macro - economic cost - benefit report on present regulations and a justification for existence.

-Announce, publicly and repeatedly, that regulatory reform is going to mean the actual elimination of some agencies, not just a facelift.

Reducing regulations will take patience and persistence. But the commitment must be firm, or the effort will bear little fruit.

New way to cut bureaucracy

By Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Once again a new president - elect is headed for the White House with a high - priority commitment to slash the size of the federal bureaucracy - and once again his chances of success range from slim to none.

That's because shrewd entrenched bureaucrats long ago figured out how to deflect, indefinitely postpone or simply ignore the well - intentioned but politically naive economy campaigns mounted by a succession of presidents.

But one federal agency has developed a new concept that's worth investigation by President - elect Ronald Reagan. It certainly can't be more of a dismal failure than the previous efforts that generally fell into two categories:

-The White House identified specific agencies, boards or commissions whose functions were deemed to be irrelevant, superfluous or of marginal utility, then called for abolition of the unnecessary function - and sometimes the entire

-The White House proposed an across the - board reduction in funding or personnel, with the heads of each government department and agency responsible for deciding which programs or units under their supervision were to be

The first approach has been regularly

thwarted through lobbying efforts mounted by bureaucrats who lined up an imposing array of political allies, usually including the congressional subcommittees and special - interest groups with which they earlier developed a symbiotic relationship.

The second approach has been frustrated through an equally sophisticated gambit described by Charles Peters, editor of The Washington Monthly, a highly respected magazine, as the "firemen first"

The phrase refers to the response offered by municipal officials who warn that if forced to comply with citzen demands for reduces government spending, they will have to make the first and deepest cuts through drastic reductions in fire and police budgets and staffs.

At the federal level, that might mean the Justice Department proposing that its required reductions be made by slashing the number of guards at maximum security penitentiaries or the Interior Department threatening to board up the Lincoln Memorial

The possibilities are endless. Nobody, of course, ever suggests abolishing the Paper Shuffling Section or the Division of Bureaucratic Perpetuation.

But a little - noticed experiment conducted earlier this year by the Food and Drug Administration suggests the officials conducted a survey based on response to this hypothetical question:

Assume that the FDA has been abolished, but Congress has authorized establishment of a new agency to take jurisdiction over some of the FDA's old functions. The new agency, however, may begin only five new programs each year. Which programs should be picked up immediately, which can be delayed for several years and which are least nportant?

Participating in the project were consumer organizations, trade associations, professional groups, state officials and the FDA's field officers. More than 400 questionnaires ranking the 29 programs offered were returned.

The survey was more than a popularity contest because it directly involved the FDA's constituents - as well as its employees - in assigning priorities to the agency's work.

If adopted on a government - wide scale, the technique would give those directly affected by each department's work the opportunity to participate in the winnowing process instead of grudgingly responding to an order from above.

Participants in the program would have to be carefully selected to insure that all legitimate interests were represented and to avoid rigged results leading to an possibility of a third approach. FDA untenable "firemen first" situation.

Finally, those involved would have to agree in advance that - unlike the FDA project - the results would lead directly to the drastic reduction or abolition of functions and programs deemed to be the least appropriate, effective and necessary.

Bad news about books

The 1980 election may be turning out to be one for the books in more ways than history's eventual evaluation of its

Books themselves are becoming a post election issue in some communities. The American Library Association reports that demands for removal from shelves of works some groups find objectionable are up sharply. Many of the complainants, according to the association, identify themselves as affiliates of the Moral Majority.

A spokesman for that activist religious movement responds that while there is no organized effort under way to police collections, the local initiatives ought to please rather than alarm librarians. The Rev. George A. Zarris, Illinois chairman, suggests the complaints be viewed constructively as evidence of increased interest in libraries.

Possibly. But it's the definition of that word interest that's the problem.

Book publishers aren't going to have to develop a sideline in burning and shredding

The prospect was raised some months back with a change in Internal Revenue Service procedures in evaluating inventories for tax purposes. Instead of being written down as has been the practice, books being held in warehouses were to be taxed at full value as business

A spin - off from a U.S. Supreme Court decision dealing with a toolmaking firm, the ruling as applied across the business board would have greatly increased the cost of doing business in publishing. The result would be fewer titles in print, fewer reprintings, fewer introductions of new authors who frequently require years to catch on with the public, fewer volumes of poetry and scholarly studies that rarely make money but that most houses issue as a cultural service. What would not result would be any significant increase in the IRS take since publishers, given the options of paying the added taxes or disposing of taxable inventories, would prefer the

The problem which was created in Washington has, however, now been settled there. The Senate, with House agreement to go along, voted to exempt the publishing industry from the IRS ruling in one of the final acts of the 96th Congress.

A fresh start

By Anthony Harrigan One of the first economic decisions to confront President Reagan will be whether to continue the Carter administrations tripartite committees in the steel and auto industries. He would be well - advised not to continue this committee system which brings together industries, the unions and government. On the surface, these committees may suggest a desirable form of consultation and cooperation. If one examines them closely, however, one realizes that they dilute the private enterprise system we have in this country. The industrial members of the committees are under pressure to make decisions contrary to the interest of shareholders.

The unions can't be a part of the solution to the problem of the auto and steel industries, for the unions are a very large part of the overall problem. They demand wages and benefits that exceed the productivity of their membership. Government, for its part, inevitably imposes requirements that are political in State intervention in America's basic industries should be avoided at all costs. State intervention has a long history of failure - from the Soviet Union to the new Third World nations.

Actions such as the federal government's to a situation where the state is

In Great Britain there has been extensive nationalism of industries and financial props for companies that can't survive in a competitive environment. In Britain, this is known as "lemon socialism. In the 1930s, the Roosevelt administration attempted state intervention in U.S. industries through the device of the National Recovery Administration (NRA) legislation. It sought to establish production codes for major industries. Fortunately, this corporate state legislation was struck down by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Reagan administration should make a clean break with the indirect controls and nterventionist procedures in vogue in the Carter administration. The most pressing need is to reduce the influence of the unions that are utterly uninterested in higher productivity. One way to accomplish this is to remove the unions' immunity from the anti - monopoly provisions of the antitrust laws. If the unions were stripped of their power to engage in broad restraint of commerce, the country's productive system would flourish anew. Removal of tax disincentives to modernization of plants and tools also would start up the engine of prosperity. Jawbening in tripartite industry, union and government committées won't do anything constructive. It simply will confirm the special privileges -- the impediments to productivity -- that the unions now enjoy.

School-family dispute over million dollar estate settled out of court

LITTLEFIELD, Texas (AP) — Attorneys for both sides involved in the dispute over the multi-million dollar will of South Plains cotton farmer F.O. Masten have reached an out-of-court agreement, according to a Lubbock newspaper.

The Lubbock Avalance-Journal reported in today's editions that sources close to the case said the settlement, reached Saturday. was the result of six months of negotiations between attorneys for Abilene Christian University and Masten's relatives.

State District Judge Pat Boone, who was to have presided over the trial, declined to comment on the reported settlement Sunday. "I am not giving out any news stories on this case," he said.

Attorneys for both sides, also contacted Sunday, declined to reveal the terms of the settlement because Boone has placed a gag order on all parties involved. * A hearing is still scheduled at 9 a.m. Monday, but the 163 prospective jurors who had been called for the case have been contacted and told not to appear, a court official said. . Since Masten's death last year, a major legal battle has been brewing over one small scrap of paper that could represent millions to a small Church of Christ university or wealth for Masten's Before he died last January, Masten scrawled a hand-written note on a doctor's pad. saying he wanted his $12 million holdings to go to Abilene Christian University But 18 members of Masten's family claim the ailing, 89-year-old cotton farmer was out of his head when he penned the note, suffering from the mouth cancer that eventually killed him. "What you've got here is an old man who might very well have wanted ACU to have the money or who might have had no idea what he was doing." said one attorney who asked not to be named. "You just never knew about Masten. That's what is going to be so difficult

The aging, eccentric farmer scribbled a note on hospital stationary in late 1979 that left his entire estate to Abilene

Court records reviewed by the Avalanche-Journal before Boone's order show Masten wrote the will 72 days before he died on Jan. 8. 1980, and the school probated the instrument the next day.

Masten relatives claimed ACU President Dr. John Stevens got Masten to make out the will through fraud and misrepresentation. Statements filed on behalf of the family contended the note is not a valid will, but a letter, and that Masten's medicine "a lawyer has produced a statement from Jean Burris, who was hired to sit with Masten at the hospital. Ms. Burris described the family as "a bunch of vultures circling over an old animal, waiting for it to

The relatives also say that two other notes written on Oct. 28. 1979, make provisions for a woman in Amarillo to receive $25,000 yearly and a part of Masten's property and for compensation for his nieces and nephews, who have joined in claiming the will is not

Masten's sprawling, 111,300 acre-ranch, which spreads over parts of six West Texas counties on the New Mexico border, is estimated in the court documents to be worth $12 million.

Earlier evaluations, which include oil and gas rights, place the value of the estate at about $50 million.

Court records also show that doctors and nurses who treated Masten during his hospitalization gave depositions last October and November. All said the found Masten to be alert and rational at the time the note was written.

But a Lamb County court ruled on Nov. 7, 1979, that Masten was 'of unsound mind" and appointed his brother, Robert Masten, to provide for his medical care. The court also ordered Masten's nephew, W.C. Masten, to versee all farm and ranch operations.

A copy of Masten's note included in court records reads: "Dr. John Stephens

"I want W.C. Lewis to be my executor."

Masten's genius for cotton farming was well-known in agriculture circles and he was credited with pioneering many improvements in cotton growing at his headquarters in Sudan,

Testimony in court depositions also show he was frugal to a fault, wearing the same clothes over and over and borrowing money from his chauffeur. Friends say he was as generous with others as he was thrifty with himself.

'He was always helping some of us get started," said J.K. Griffiths, who farmed 6,500 acres of Masten's land until he made enough money to start on his own. "He wanted us poor guys to

Curriculum, teachers, salaries to be considered by legislature

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Education will be one of the more emotional issues to come before the 1981 Legislature, which might pass far-reaching new laws on the subject. This is one of a series of AP stories on matters before the I egislature.)

> By LEE JONES Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Better teachers with better salaries, a no-nonsense public school curriculum and higher state university tuition could come out of the 67th Legislature.

Poor showings by young Texans on statewide tests on the "basics" virtually guaranteed the new Legislature would spend a lot of time on education issues.

"Everybody's not satisfied with the product coming out of the school system," said Jim Kaster, legislative point man for Gov. Bill

Kaster said public school bills - particularly curriculum reform and competency testing for new teachers - will have high priority with Clements - "right up among the top, if not the top."

Clements and his Advisory Committee on Education, the Texas State Teachers Association, the State Board of Education and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's Special Committee on Higher Education Financing all have recommended changes.

These look like the top educational issues of the 140-day lawmaking session that begins Jan. 13:

-Competency testing for teachers. The State Board of Education wants $1 million to start a program that would include a general literacy test before a young person is accepted for teacher training. Graduates would be certified only after passing tests in their subject areas and in teaching methods. Lifetime certification would come only after three years of teaching, a graduate degree and the recommendation of a teacher's employer and college.

-A teacher pay raise. The TSTA wants 33 percent over the next two years, counting automatic "step-ups" that teachers get for each year of experience. Clements favors 22 percent. The Legislative Budget Board has recommended 23 percent.

-Curriculum "reform" - meaning repeal of all laws requiring specific courses or subject matter, such as free enterprise, consumer education, kindness to animals and the dangers of drugs. The Board of Education would prescribe a basic statewide curriculum

-Tuition increases at state universities. Hobby's committee said tuition - now $4 per semester hour, or $60 per semester for a normal course load, for residents - should be at least doubled.

-Establishment of a guaranteed State Higher Education Assistance Fund to pay for construction, remodeling and other capital improvements at state colleges outside the Texas A&M and University of Texas systems. Hobby's committee wants to establish the fund with money from a tuition increase.

Each of those issues is expected to have a strong chance of reaching final votes in the House and Senate.

One issue that probably will generate some heat but has no real chance of floor action is collective bargaining for teachers.

"Collective bargaining is a dead issue as far as any chance of being passed goes," said Sen. Pete Snelson, D-Midland, whom Hobby is expected to appoint chairman of the Senate Education

Snelson and his probable House counterpart, Rep. Hamp Atkinson, D-New Boston, predicted legislative approval of teacher competency testing.

Atkinson said he expects the Legislature to exempt present teachers and require only new ones to be tested.

Teachers themselves, to get compensation to a more adequate level, are going to have to clean up the field and make it more professional," he said.

Jim Butler, executive secretary of the TSTA, said competency screening of teachers should take place in college, not after awarding of a lifetime teaching certificate, leaving that decision to "A hospital administrator doesn't tell a doctor whether he is qualified to stay in surgery," Butler said. Few seem to disagree with proposals to purge the law books of required school subjects and leave the job of curriculum-writing to "I think we need to do that. We now mandate so many subjects that it is impossible to have a day long enough to cover everything.

You'd have to go 23 hours a day to get in everything that somebody considers essential." Snelson said in an interview. One of the biggest fights will be over state college tuition, which has not changed significantly since 1957 and is among the nation's

The Texas College Coordinating Board sees a tuition increase as a way to raise professors' salaries, while the Hobby Committee wants to dedicate it to college construction. "It's a great evil," Sen Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, said of a tuition increase. "It is a form of user tax increase, and we ought not to raise this tax without considering the overall tax structure. Those who complain tuition is too low are not complaining our other taxes

Snelson predicted the Senate would approve a tuition increase, although not necessarily double it.

"Because it is comparitively low, when we address the revenue needs of higher education, that portion borne by the student will

Snelson said he would oppose plowing a tuition increase into the proposed State Higher Education Assistance Fund (SHEAF) for college construction. He said he doubted legislators would establish a predomonantly black school whose legislative supporters say it is chronically under-funded.

Rep. Wilhelmina Delco, D-Austin, chairman of the House Higher Education Committee, is sponsoring a bill to cut Prairie View in for a sixth of the Permanent University Fund.

Abscam defendant sworn in as trial begins

NEW YORK (AP) - U.S. Rep. Raymond F. Lederer, the only congressman accused in the Abscam probe to win re-election, was being sworn in for a third term today in Washington as his trial was starting in Brooklyn.

An aide said the Philadelphia Democrat intended to be present on the House floor when Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill administered the oath of office shortly after noon. Then Lederer planned to fly to New York, where jury selection was to begin in a federal courtroom. Lederer is the sixth member of the House to stand trial on Abscam charges. Four others have been convicted and the other, Rep. Richard Kelly, R-Fla., is on trial in Washington.

Lederer, 42. is accused of accepting a $50,000 bribe from undercover FBI agents posing as representatives of Arab sheiks who promised jobs and industry for his congressional district in return for his cooperation in immigration matters. Lederer allegedly took the money on Sept. 11, 1979, at a hotel near Kennedy International Airport.

He has pleaded innocent to the charges of bribery, conspiracy, accepting an unlawful gratuity and interstate travel in aid of a racketeering enterprise. Bribery, the most serious charge, carries a prison term of up to 15 years.

The government claims Lederer received $5,000 of the money with the remainder divided among Camden, N.J., Mayor Angelo Errichetti: Philadelphia Councilman Louis Johanson; Philadelphia lawyer Howard Criden and another, unidentified, Criden. Johanson and Errichetti were convicted in August of similar Abscam offenses. At that trial then-Rep. Michael Myers. D-Pa., also was found guilty of Abscam offenses. Myers was expelled from Congress and lost a re-election bid.

Errichetti, Johanson and Criden are not on trial now, having appealed their convictions and claiming any trial on charges stemming from the Lederer case would constitute double jeopardy because the allegations are similar to those of which they convicted Lederer's trial is expected to last about 2 to 3 weeks.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., the only member of the Senate indicted in the political corruption investigation, is scheduled to stand trial in Brooklyn in February or March.

The other three repesentatives convicted of Abscam offenses — Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., John Murphy, D-N.Y., and John Jenrette. D-S.C. - all lost re-election bids in November. All are appealing their convictions.

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with a fellow for over a year. He's 30 and I'm 26. He wants to marry me, but. Abby, he has one fault that really turns me off. His table manners are terrible! He holds his fork in his fist like a small child who is just learning how to eat by himself.

He stabs at his food with his fork and eats so fast he makes me nervous. When I try to correct him in a nice way, he gets angry and says, "If it bothers you, don't look at me!" CLEVELAND (AP) - They weren't supposed to even be in the ayoffs. Yet here they are, just one step from the Super Bowl. It's enough to make a grown man cry

"If I start talking too much about this," Coach Tom Flores said. rveying the jubilation in the Oakland Raiders' locker room, "I ight get tears in my eyes.

The tears in the Cleveland Browns' eyes are drying today - the ars of frustration, of dismay, of seeing a chance at a ampionship inching closer and closer, then having it cruelly atched away at the last instant.

It was Flores' clever decision to kick into the wind to start the cond half which began the Browns' downfall, because it forced em to fight that wind in the final quarter

But ultimately it was Cleveland's own doing which led to its ndoing on Sunday, to the Raiders' 14-12 victory which placed them the American Conference title game next Sunday in sunny San piego, far from the bitter cold which whips in off Lake Erie and rings tears to the eyes of anyone foolhardy enough to face that

Coach Sam Rutigliano of the Browns chose not to face it in the nal minute. He opted for a gamble, a shot at a touchdown rather han a kick into the teeth of that wind, an attempt at a ame-winning field goal.

And that gamble almost certainly killed the Browns. The team which had spent the season on the precipice, looking down the awning throat of defeat one Sunday after another, yet escaping ach time by the skin of its teeth, finally got swallowed up.

Sam took a chance. He could have thrown snake eyes," said ester Hayes, the Oakland cornerback who stole quarterbacks and all season, who swiped two of Brian Sipe's passes on Sunday. But the interception which destroyed the dream of yet another Sipe-inspired heart-stopping triumph belonged to strong safety Wike Davis.

It came on second down on Oakland's 13-yard line, with 41 econds to play. Ozzie Newsome, the receiver in the end zone, never 'Ozzie was my man all the way,' said Davis. "Sipe was sliding but of the pocket and didn't seem to want to risk the run ... I saw Ozzie look up, so I looked up and I saw Sipe let go of the ball.'

And Davis, diving, wound up with it, cradling it while free safety Burgess Owens and then the rest of the exultant Raiders enveloped him and began celebrating their victory

Rutigliano, of course, defended his decision to ignore — for one been.

The Cowboys came back to beat the Eagles in the final regular Earlier, Bartkoswki hit on touchdown tosses of 5 yards and 60 yards, Lynn Cain scored on a one-yard plunge and Mazzetti booted a 38-yard three-pointer.

The Cowboys had scored on a 38-yard field goal by Rafael Septien, a 1-yard run by Robert Newhouse and TD strikes of 5 yards and 14 yards, the last to Pearson with 3:40 remaining.

"After that embarrassment to the Rams, we decided to play 60 minutes every game. Even if the score was 60-0, we would keep plugging away," said White.

We got that first one to Drew and then the defense rose to the occasion and suddenly we were only three points down and had the ball," said White who was uncanny in the second half, hitting 15 of 20 passes for 239 yards after going only 10 for 19 and 89 yards in the

It was the second time White had beaten the Falcons in the playoffs with second-half passing, leading the Cowboys to a 27-20 triumph two years ago after Staubach was sidelined at halftime with Dallas trailing 20-13.

"He was just super, amazing..." said Landry. "You know. actually, he's a first-year quarterback although he's spent some time in the league

"He was simply amazing on a couple of plays, the final touchdown to Pearson and the 5-yarder to Billy Joe Dupree," said the coach who has taken the Cowboys to 15 playoff appearances in

For the Falcons, who finished with a 12-5 record after winning the West NFC title, the loss left most of the players in a state of shock.

"It was a bitter pill to swallow," said Falcons' Coach Leeman Bennett. "I still feel we're good enough to go to the Super Bowl. Any team that wins 12 games is good enough. But it's a very empty feeling losing in the playoffs.

Bartkowski attributed the loss to the failure of the Falcons to control the ball after Pearson's first scoring catch.

"We knew we had to control the ball and keep their offense off the field. When we got the ball back after Pearson's first touchdown, I thought if we could make three first downs, we would win the game. But we couldn't make one," said Bartkowski.

Jenkins, who had four catches for 155 yards, felt Dallas' playoff

Moore jubilant after named new Raider coach

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Jerry Moore, hired away from North Texas State to come to Texas Tech, was a ball of enthusiasm Sunday night after he was announced as the fourth coach to direct the Red Raiders' fortunes in 10 years.

"It's a dream come true for me. I can remember twice when I eame out here to play in Jones Stadium and I've always wanted to come back and coach. It's the best of both worlds for me," said Moore, 41, a former standout receiver for Baylor.

Texas Tech athletic director John Conley announced Moore's hiring at a 6:30 p.m. news conference Sunday. Moore succeeds Rex Dockery, who resigned last month to go to Memphis State.

Conley recommended Moore to Texas Tech president Dr. Lauro Cavazos after a Texas Tech selection team interviewed six applicants Friday at the Amfac Hotel near the Dallas-Fort Worth

"I wholeheartedly agreed with his choice," Cavazos said. "The process was relatively simple and yet effective because we were able to hire a man who I know is destined for great things as the head football coach at Texas Tech," Cavazos said

Moore, 41, an assistant at Southern Methodist for eight years and at Nebraska for six years before NTSU hired him in 1978, said he plans to bring most of his staff with him and hopes to install a Nebraska-like attack at Texas Tech.

"Most of my background has been at the University of Nebraska, and we plan to be a little bit similar. Offensively, we'll probably be an 'I' team, and defensively, we'll use odd fronts and some overshifts. But first of all, we'll have to look at the people we've got coming back and evaluate the talent we've got."

Moore's salary or length of contract were not announced, but Tech officials had said last week the new coach would be offered the best contract ever given to a coach at the school

"Our immediate task is recruiting, and I hope by this time tomorrow, we will be recruiting. I plan to bring a pretty good portion of my staff at North Texas State."

Moore, 41, noted for his offensive innovations, coached receivers and coordinated the offense during games while an assistant at

"I really like the opportunity to come back and work in West Texas. I really liked working the area when I recruited for Nebraska. I can't wait to get this coat and vest off and get my boots and hat on and get on with recruiting," he said. Moore was 11-11 in two years at North Texas State, with four of the losses by last season's 6-5 Mean Green team coming at the hands of post-season bowl teams.

Moore's name had never come up during the three weeks of speculation that followed Dockery's resignation and Sunday's news conference.

The names most often mentioned as likely successors to Dockery had been Ray Alborn of Rice and Bill Yung of West Texas State. The Dallas Morning News said in its Sunday publication that "barring unforeseen complications" Tech would hire John Mackovic, head coach at Wake Forest.

lives in Lubbock, was seriously considered by the Tech regents, the Associated Press learned, but both Layne and Alborn withdrew from consideration before the final choice was made

Moore is the fourth Texas Tech head football coach in 10 years. Jim Carlen, now at South Carolina, coached from 1970-74; Steve Sloan, now at Mississippi, headed the program from 1975-77; and Dockery coached from 1978-80.

"He is Texas born and bred. He has coached in the Texas high school and college ranks. He gained valuable experience under Tom Osborne at Nebraska, and the fact that he did a good job in a short time at North Texas State had a big bearing," Conley said.

Conley said when he and others on the group put everything down and added them up. "there was no question that Jerry Moore be asked to come to Texas Tech.

"Of all the people available, he definitely fits our situation better than anyone. Unquestionably, our goal is to win the Southwest Conference championship and to represent this conference in the Cotton Bowl. Jerry has all the characteristics needed to accomplish that." Conley said

Moore will inherit 15 starters from last season's 5-6 Texas Tech team. Offensively, he will benefit from the return of virtually the entire Red Raider unit, including quarterback Ron Reeves and wide receivers Renie Baker and Jamie Harris.

Moore earned 14 high school varsity letters in four sports at Bonham, Texas, where he was an all-state end.

Hero's role snatched from Pridemore

ATLANTA (AP) - A hero's role was only minutes away for Atlanta Falcons' defensive back Tom Pridemore - then it suddenly was snatched away.

"We were trying to stop them or use up the clock, and we couldn't do either." Pridemore said Sunday after Danny White fired two touchdown passes to Drew Pearson in the final 3:40 to give the Dallas Cowboys a 30-27 comeback victory over the Falcons in a National Football League quarter-final playoff game.

Pridemore had stopped a Dallas threat early in the third period when he recovered a fumble by Preston Pearson at the Atlanta 15. Then, his 22-yard return to the Cowboy 38 of a pass interception set up a 34-yard field goal by Tim Mazzetti that gave the Falcons a 27-17 advantage with only 6:37 remaining.

'Things were mighty bleak after that (Mazzetti) field goal, but we decided it was not over yet." White said. "I was throwing well and I knew we could come back. I hoped the defense could get the ball back quickly. They did and we hung in there. The pass to Pearson was risky, but we got it in there."

He declined to disclose Ali's purse, but it was believed to be about one-eighth of the $8 million paycheck he picked up when he was stopped after 10 rounds by Larry Holmes, the World Boxing Council champion, last Oct. 2 at Las Vegas.

Smith said he put together the fight only because Ali, who will be 39 Jan. 17, wanted it in the wake of his mismatch loss to Holmes. * Ali surrendered his Nevada boxing license Dec. 19 in a letter to the Nevada State Athletic Commission which accepted it under an agreement that Ali not apply again. But that agreement affects Ali's status only in Nevada.

"If I stop, it's because I want to stop. Nobody can made me stop," said Ali at a Nevada hearing into the matter. Smith is confident some place will let Ali fight again.

Texas backers to attend inaugural

*AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - President-elect Ronald Reagan will be inaugurated Jan. 20 with many whoops and hollers from his Texas

Reports from the Texas Inaugural Committee, which actually is part of the state Republican Party, shows at least 1,500 Texas backers of Reagan and George Bush, an adopted Texan, will attend the festivities.

"It's just about the biggest thing that has happened to Texas Republicans," said one party worker. "There are many, many more going up this time than they did for Richard Nixon's inauguration in 1968 and 1972."

National inaugural celebrations may be new for most Texas Republicans.

However. Texans have played big parts in previous inaugurations of Democratic presidents.

A number of Texas Democrats rode special trains to Washingtor. for the inauguration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Vice President John Nance Garner, a native Texan. Special planes carried even greater numbers to the nation's capital for the inauguration of President John F. Kennedy and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1961.

But the big Texas trek came in 1965 after Johnson had whipped Republican Barry Goldwater.

"I guess there were close to a thousand there from Texas, maybe more, "says Austin attorney Don Thomas. "Almost everybody you knew was there.

Thomas particularly remembers an inauguration party thrown for the Texans by Perle Mesta, internationally known hostess. "Even the Gabor sisters were there." said Thomas.

Texas had a special float in the parade — a miniature of the LBJ Ranch with a miniature Pedernales River flowing real water. Johnson's alma mater, Southwest Texas State University, furnished one of the bands.

"Texas Republicans expect to have plenty of big names at their parties, too, including television star Johnny Carson.

A chartered 747 jet leaves Dallas on Jan. 17, with about 360 GOP faithful aboard. Two other groups will leave from Dallas the same day, along with three groups from Houston, two from Austin and one from San Antonio.

Some Texans will be at the Hyatt-Regency but many of them will be at the Sheraton-Washington, about five miles from the Capitol Saturday night, Jan. 17, the Texans will be guests at a big party thrown at the Sheraton-Washington by the Texas State Society, where the vice president and his wife will be honored.

Sunday afternoon there will be a reception honoring Texas Gov. Bill Clements and other Republican governors, followed by a concert that night at Kennedy Center.

Monday morning there is a reception at the Kennedy Center honoring the wives of the president and vice president, Nancy Reagan and Barbara Bush.

Later. the Texas Inaugural Committee, headed by Rita Clements, wife of the governor, will host a brunch for Texans at the Sheraton-Washington. Monday afternoon there is a reception at the Smithsonian Institution honoring Bush.

Monday night there is a gala, at $150 per ticket; with a long list of entertainers including Carson, Frank Sinatra, and Bob Hope. At least some of the Texans will have special spots for the "inauguration Tuesday at noon and the shortened parade.

Those with white tie and tails and $100 for a ticket can attend one of the nine inaugural balls Tuesday night. Most Texans are expected to celebrate at the Sheraton-Washington.

And before leaving Washington on Wednesday most Texans will pick up a souvenir - maybe a $15 pair of cuff links with the inaugural seal, a $25 red, white and blue inaugural license plate or a $650 porcelain portrayal of the "Nancy Reagan Rose."

City repairs gas lines but fears court loss

DAISETTA, Texas (AP) - Residents of this tiny Southeast Texas town have won one battle - a leaky natural gas service has been fixed - but are now faced with having the service turned off, despite their repair efforts.

'We may lose next Friday (at the court hearing)," said Mayor Harold McCann Sunday night after exhausted workers finished patching the city-owned natural gas line.

"If we lose, we've got a lot of poor people that are in a sad situation. A lot of people on welfare can't afford to switch to judge delayed a Railroad Commission order that would have shut down natural gas service in this town of 1,100.

But McCann says back-breaking efforts by city council members and volunteer workers - who manned tractors and dug ditches for six straight days to restore the service - may be for naught if a judge upholds the RRC ruling at a hearing this Friday

The city's problems started last Friday when RRC officials called an emergency meeting and ordered the system shut down because of leaks

McCann said service to 12 homes had been halted and another 200 homes were experiencing "pressure difficulties.

"The line is on test and holding." McCann said Sunday after volunteers worked into the night hours to restore the system. RRC officials said a two-hour pressuzest would be need before the gas could be turned on. 'We didn't have the kind of equipment, but an oil company sent a man out with gauges and logs and he got right on it. We've had tremendous response from our community He said the city applied two months ago to the Farmer's Home Administration for a loan to repair the system, but that no word has been received about the status of the loan. "I will call the FHA in the morning (Monday) to see what the status of that loan application is," he said.

He added that other avenues of financing are open to the city, but that the length of time involved might force people in the city to switch over to propane or electricity before the lines could be

He said the RRC was asking the city to patch the old, trouble-plagued line to "up-to-date RRC standards." McCann said he felt the RRC was being unreasonable in its demands, adding that he hoped the hearing would be decided in

We're in hopes that someone a little farther up the line might give us some mercy," he said.

Lawyers should take residencies, judge says

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - The Nebraska Chief Justice says that attorneys should specialize, including the completion of residencies just as doctors do, so clients can seek someone specifically trained to deal with their problems.

Chief Justice Norman Krivosha, chairman of the National Conference of Chief Justices task force on bar admissions, made his suggestion Sunday in remarks before the annual meeting of the Association of American Law Schools. He said law school graduates who choose not to fulfill the residencies for specialization would become uncertified general practitioners who could identify a legal problem, provide emergency services if necessary and refer the client to a specialist. He said "at first blush, the idea may appear to be so revolutionary as to be both impractical and ridiculous But in dealing with questions about lawyer competence in the United States, he said "we have exhausted so many other alternatives without success, that perhaps such a revolutionary idea is all that remains. The Chief Justice said it was unfortunate that attorneys have concentrated their attention on trial practice because "the competency of the non-litigating practitioner is of equal or greater importance to the public.

There are no shortcuts to competency," Krivosha said, adding that a system which allows a young lawyer to gain experience under proper supervision is need. "I suggest that it cannot be done in three years in law school, including a one-year part-time clinical program." he said. A specialist residency program for recently graduated lawyers ould require two or three years of additional, supervised training directed by a law school, he said.

Fort Worth cowboy club aims for record book

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Move over Gilley's, here comes Billy Bob's Texas, a cowboy club that's not only bigger, but boasts

'We're not interested in publicity about a place that's trying to outshine Gilley's," says Spencer Taylor, a Fort Worth night club owner who is one of the partners in Billy Bob's Texas, due to open in

And while Taylor claims there's no effort being made to replace Gilley's under the "world's largest nightclub" section in the Guinness Book of Records, the new cowboy club will be huge even by Texas standards.

127,000 square-foot club that will feature live bull riding, not the mechanical moo-cow that John Travolta rode to fame in "The Urban Cowboy. Only certified professional cowboys will be able to ride the bulls.

First, Taylor says, there will be a rodeo arena in the middle of the and that suits Taylor just fine, who says the monster club will cater to "real" cowboys, not their urban counterparts. Surrounding the ring will be bleachers that seat 500 people.

Taylor says that 40 bar stations will be placed throughout the club, which can hold up to 6,000 people on a busy night.

"I started dreaming about doing this two years go," says Taylor, who already operates several successful Fort Worth night clubs. He thinks that bulls have become the centerpiece of the country-western craze, but knows that mechanical bulls especially the type featured at Gilley's - are no big deal anymore. So he thought live bulls would be nice, and then topped the idea off with a huge, life-sized mirrored bull that will twirl slowly over the 30,000 square-foot dance floor.

Plans also call for a "VIP" membership, available to members who pay a $300-a-year fee. VIP members will be entitled to enter a "club within a club," according to Taylor, and will be able to lounge in a "quieter, more relaxed and fancier" area inside the club.

While Taylor is the most visible of the partners responsible for creating Billy Bob's Texas, he says all the backers are concerned that the western dance palace be authentic.

"It's just like Billy Bob," Taylor says, talking about the club's namesake, a 6-foot, 5-inch, 270-pound Fort Worth cowboy who has done everything from herding cattle to playing professional

"His father brought him to this area to watch Willie (Nelson), who used to play here. Bob Wills played here. You have to sit down here and get the feel of it, and do it right."

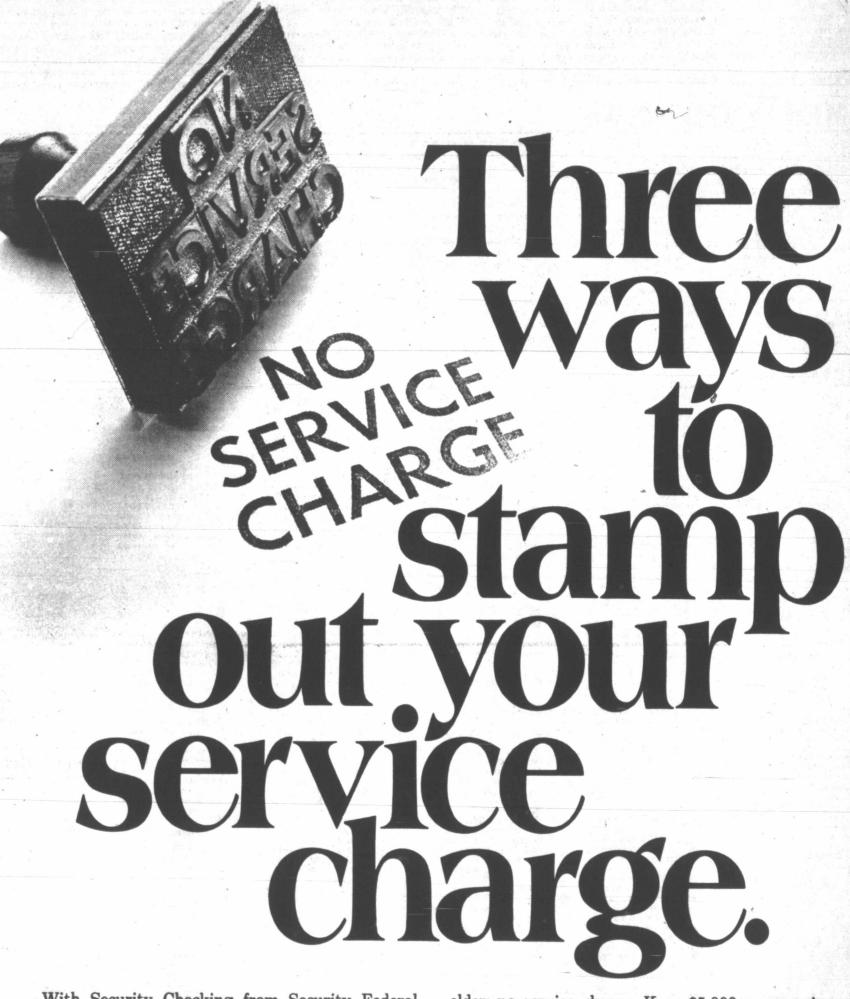

Taylor and his partners began renovating the club - which used to be the exhibition hall for the old Fort Worth Fat Stock Show - in

They won't say how much it will cost, but are convinced that the location, a short walk from a rapidly-developing downtown, is

There's a touch of history involved, too. The area was called "Hell's Half Acre" at the turn of the century because its saloons and brothels catered to cowboys, gamblers and an occasional

That's not exactly the image Taylor and his partners are after, but they don't mind if it adds to the glamour of the club.

What they do want is authenticity, not a country-western disco that appeals to "dimestore" cowboys.

Farm costs rose steadily while prices bounced

WASHINGTON (AP) - Despite its ominous-sounding name, fumaric acid can be used safely to cure meat and poultry products. the government says.

Still, as part of its rule-making process, the Agriculture Department is asking for public comments on whether to allow the use of fumaric acid in the curing process.

Donald L. Houston, administrator of the department's Food Safety and Quality Service, said the proposed rule would classify fumaric acid as "a cure accelerator which must be combined with a curing agent for the purpose of fixing color in meat an poultry products Houston said fumaric acid occurs naturally in many plants and is produced commercially. It has been approved by the Food and Drug Administration for use in non-meat food products. The Agriculture Department approves substances used in processing meat and poultry products.

Comments can be sent by April 6 to: Executive Secretariat, Room 3807-S. FSQS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

WASHINGTON (AP) - An Agriculture Department scientist said today the huge variety of food available to Americans is an immense asset but also can increase the odds of eating poorly.

D. Mark Hegsted, administrator of the department's Office of Human Nutrition, said "an American who enters a supermarket these days probably has some 10,000 to 12,000 items to choose

In effect, this represents "a kaleidoscope in which many new foods enter and leave the marketplace," he said.

This great diversity in kinds of food available does provide some kind of protection against the selection of an imbalanced diet but also makes the selection of such a diet increasingly possible," Hegsted said.

Hegsted's remarks were prepared for delivery at a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Toronto, Canada. Copies of his speech were also released here by the Agriculture Department. WASHINGTON (AP) - After all the gyrations from month to month, prices of commodities at the farm gained only an average of 1.7 percent last year, according to preliminary government figures, Comparatively, prices that farmers pay out to meet production expenses and other costs climbed an average 11.5 percent. The Agriculture Department's latest monthly report on farm prices, which was issued Dec. 31, also showed that farmers' cost index - as reflected by prices they have to pay for required items - climbed steadily during 1980, with the lowest reading in January and the highest in December. But prices that farmers receive for products, including crops and livestock, exhibited a roller-coaster effect much of the year. For example, the Crop Reporting Board's "prices received" index dropped in five months and increased in seven. Based on revised monthly readings, prices rose in 0.8 percent in February, 1.3 percent in May, 2.2 percent in June, 6.5 percent in

July. 3.6 percent in August. 2 percent in September and 1.5 percent

The preliminary figures also showed declines of 0.8 percent in January, 1.7 percent in March, 4.3 percent in April, 0.4 percent in October and 1.1 percent in December.

Looking at specific categories, the published index figures show prices of crops in general rose an average of 7.2 percent in 1980. Not all crops, however, fared equally or well. For example:

-Prices of potatoes, sweet potatoes and dry edible beans, as a group, rose an average of 39.3 percent from their 1979 average. -But prices of fruit dropped an average of 13.3 percent, including a 12.5 percent for fresh market fruit.

Just as the overall "prices received" index vary widely from month to month, so can prices for specific commodities or groups of commodities. The annual averages, however, do serve as a way of comparing price changes.

Among the main field crops, corn and other feed grains showed a collective price increase of 15.2 percent from 1979, the index figures

Food grains, which include wheat and rice, rose 11.8 percent from Cotton showed the biggest gain among the major field crops, with prices at the farm averaging 17.8 percent higher than in 1979. Tobacco, however, gained only 6.8 percent.

Soybeans and other oil-bearing crops, as a group, were down in price, averaging 1.6 percent less than in 1979, the report showed. Livestock prices averaged 2.3 percent less in 1980 than in 1979.

Meat animals, mainly cattle and hogs, bore the brunt of that overall drop as prices fell 6.4 percent in 1980, while prices of milk and other dairy products sold by farmers rose 8.4 percent. Prices of poultry and eggs edged 0.5 percent higher during the year.
