Accused killer found guilty, jury asks insanity definition

By DEBORAH BRIDGES Staff Writer

A man described as fearing Communists, hating red trucks and who reportedly threw tennis ball halves into the Mississippi River to see the "souls of Communists," was convicted late Thursday night of the March 1979 murder of a hitchhiker on Interstate 40 near

A slight reddening of the ears was the only reaction visible as Russell Eugene Galer heard the verdict read in 31st District Court

The punishment phase of the murder trial began at 9:30 a.m. this morning in the 31st District courtroom at Gray County Court House. Jurors will consider a sentence for first - degree murder, which can range from four years to 99 years, or life in the state penitentiary

Galer, 26, of Utica, Mich., stared ahead as the verdict was read by the foreman of the six - man, six - woman jury at 9:50 p.m. Thursday

Following the conviction, Galer walked from the courtroom supported by his father and a Wheeler County Sheriff's deputy.

The murder case went to the jury at 3:45 p.m. Thursday, following two days of testimony. In closing arguments before the case went to the jury, District

Attorney Harold Comer charged jurors, "Insanity must have existed at the very time Galer pulled that trigger and put a bullet in

One and a half hours after beginning deliberations, the jury foreman said the jury was unsure of the definition of "insanity." He asked that the psychiatrists' testimony be transcribed by the court reporter and provided to the jury for consideration. The jury was recessed until 7:30 p.m.

The transcripts were not completed until about 8:30 p.m., when final deliberations began.

In the two days of testimony, an Amarillo psychiatrist, Dr. Hugh Pennal, and the superintendent of Vernon State Hospital in Vernon, Dr. Frankie Williams, diagnosed Galer as a chronic paranoid Described as hallucinatory and suffering from delusions, both doctors said Galer was potentially dangerous.

In his testimony, Dr. Pennal said Galer had an unusual delusion about tennis balls, with religious overtones. Pennal said Galer had

'No obstacle' remains in release of hostages

By The Associated Press

The United States and Iran rushed toward completion today of an agreement to free the 52 American hostages and both sides signaled that a breakthrough in the 14-month hostage crisis could be near.

Iran's chief hostage negotiator, Behzad Nabavi, said there is "no obstacle in resolving the issue" and informed Washington sources said the United States and Iran were near completion of an agreement to exchange the hostages for frozen Iranian assets.

A U.S. Air Force jet with British and American bankers on board arrived in Algeria in an attempt to work out the complicated inancial arrangements with a U.S. negotiating team that has been consulting with Algerian go-betweens in Algiers.

Galer's father described his son as talented artisticly, but poor in There appeared to be about 10 to 12 people in the group. They other aspects of education. The elder Galer said his son was trouble were met by U.S. Embassy officials who said there would be no - maker within the family and he had finally been forced to ask statements. The financial specialists were to meet immediately with Warren M. Christopher, head of the U.S. negotiating team. Hubert Galer said his son was a photographer, but he was

In Washington, Vice President Walter Mondale told CBS News, we're trying to do things in hours that would take months otherwise." But Mondale cautioned that there was no agreement vet and said: "We've had our hearts broken before and I think we'd better keep our expectations under control.

President Carter - who leaves office next Tuesday - had no comment on the negotiations and was meeting in the White House with his foreign policy aides

Nabavi, outlining the Iranian position, said "only the real rillingness of Washington can bring decisive results today" and the leader of Friday prayers in Tehran also indicated a breakthrough was at hand.

The Air Force jet carrying William T. Lake, deputy legal adviser for the State Department, stopped in London on the way to Algiers to pick up bankers prepared to deal with Iran's demand that $4 billion blocked in U.S. branches overseas be transferred to the Since that time in early April 1979, Galer has been admitted to the Central Bank of Algeria.

The financial experts were not identified, but Christopher Ross, U.S. Embassy deputy chief of mission in Algiers, confirmed that "British and American bankers" were on the plane.

Algeria"s state radio, meanwhile, gave prominence to a report—officially denied in Washington — by the French news agency, Agence France Presse, in Tehran that an agreement had been reached, and that only President Carter's approval was needed

Friday is the Moslem Sabbath and no official could be reached for comment in Algiers. The Algerian Central Bank was closed. But since its governor, Seghir Mostefai, is a member of the Algerian intermediary teams, that did not appear to be an obstacle.

Nabavi said there was no obstacle to resolving the crisis in a brief interview with Iran's official Pars news agency.

"As the statement by the Algerian government has already been accepted by both sides and as the methods of implementing the transfer of our frozen assets have been defined and presented by the Iranian government in a completely practical and realistic way, there are absolutely no reasons for non-acceptance by the U.S. government, provided they are really inclined to solve the matter.

"Contrary to claims by certain sources, there are no complications and, in the view of the Iranian government there is no obstacle to ending this issue. Only true willingness by Washington can bring about a definite outcome to the issue during the course of today.

Nabavi added that "the Iranian government has expressed its willingness to conclude the issue and from our point of view any procrastination is condemned."

In Washington, informed sources said the United States and Iran were nearing completion on an agreement for the release of the 52 American hostages. They said Deputy Secretary of State Warren M. Christopher has summoned bankers and other experts to Algiers to complete the terms.

The State Department said the Iranian response to the U.S. proposal for settlement "appears to be a promising approach and is being explored on an urgent basis in Washington and Algiers."

The statement added that "if after further study of its several aspects the approach appears to be fair, valid and technically feasible, it will require the cooperation of a large number of individuals and institutions to achieve results in the remaining

Top-level Carter administration officials met until about 2 a.m. EST today at the Treasury Department to evaluate the new Iranian proposal, described as a "very complicated...very different kind of oproach. Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie said further instructions would be transmitted to Christopher, who has been in Algiers since Jan. 8 negotiating through Algerian intermediaries.

The Iranian message was delivered on the eve of what officials in Tehran said was the deadline for transferring frozen Iranian assets into the Central Bank of Algeria.

Discounting talk of a deadline today, Muskie said. "The only deadline is Jan 20, which dictates beyond our power to change it the transfer of authority from President Carter to President

Asked if a settlement could be reached by then. Muskie replied: "There's a fighting chance."

Desegregation plan would pump up minority colleges

"We will do all within our power to solve this problem, and we intend to do so while maintaining the high academic quality that has come to be associated with Texas public institutions of higher education." he wrote in a letter to the department.

The plan includes commitments from the board of regents at the state's three largest university systems to equal employment opportunity goals, agreements to make a special effort to recruit black and Hispanic students, and the Legislative Budget Board's establishment of a $20 million Educational Excellence Fund to improve programs at the formerly minority schools. much work remains to be done if traces of the once segregated higher education system are to be eliminated.

"By seizing the initiative to comply voluntarily with the law, the state of Texas has laid the foundation for a cooperative approach between the federal and state governments," she wrote in a letter to White. "The voluntary efforts that the state of Texas has initiated are significant and important steps toward achieving full compliance.

The provisional acceptance of the remedial plan extends to June 15, when all additional steps that Texas agreed to undertake are that segregated blacks and whites," Ms. Brown wrote

Her letter added that the department has not completed its review of the distribution of Hispanic students in state college and universities.

At the same time that the Texas plan was accepted Thursday, Kentucky and Missouri were told to bring their higher education systms in line with desegregation court rulings. The civil rights law bans discrimination by race, color or national original in federally

Ms. Brown said improvements at the two traditionally black institutions would be particularly important if Texas is to be declared in full compliance. The department's review found those two schools to be slighted when state funds were distributed for buildings or faculty salaries. It also noted that the state had decided to spend large amounts to construct or enlarge traditionally white institutions located nearby. Da Although there has been some progress made since 1954 by certain institutions in altering their racial identifiability, Ch nevertheless we have found that student enrollment continues to Co reflect the former status of these institutions," the review said.

It said the clearest example of the continued dual system was found in the Texas A&M University System, which had a total black

under graduate enrollment of less than one percent

The other two institutions that submitted their agreements to participate in the voluntary compliance plan were the University of Texas System and the University of Houston System.

In his statement. White said all Texans could be proud of the plan and live with it.

"This agreement gives Texas an opportunity to make decisions in the equal opportunity area that are consistent with our own educational objectives." he said. "It places responsibility not on Washington or the federal courts, but on Texas. In meeting our responsibility, we remain the masters of our own destiny."

School lunches increase five cents

A recommendation to increase Pampa Independent School District lunch prices five cents across the board was accepted by the district's board members during an eat - and - meet session at Carver Educational Center Thursday.

Assistant Superintendent James Trusty recommended the lunch price hike after federal legislation reduced reimbursement to schools for Type A Lunches by 21/2 cents each. The Texas Education Agency cut the reimbursement rates effective Jan. 1, after the new rates were established by federal In a memo to the District Superintendent Bob Phillips, Trusty said the USDA Commodity Assistance value had shrunk by 2 cents, also. . The 3 - cent Commodity Assistance for the breakfast program provided by the schools was eliminated, according to the recommendation. Reduced price lunches for eligible students was increased from 10 cents to 20 cents, by the board's acceptance. However, reduced price breakfasts remained the same

The new prices are effective immediately. The lunch prices are as follows: grades 1 - 5 - $.80; grades 6 - 8 - $.35; and grades 9 - 12 - $.90. School adult prices will be $1.30. Non - school adult lunches

The price for all students on the breakfast program will be $.45. School adults will pay $.65 for breakfast. Board members voted to table bids on replacement windows until the submittals are studied by architect, Herbert Brashear. In the personnel session, the school board hired Margaret Spearman to teach history in Pampa Middle School.

Jerry Haralson, business manager for the school district, reported no unusual expenditures had been made on the current budget. Haralson said a budget revision would be ready to be presented at the next regular meeting of the school board.

In other action, board members approved due bills and invoices and accepted the minutes of the Jan. 6 meeting.

Synthetic interferon given Illinois woman

HOUSTON (AP) - For 18 months Joan Karafotas shunned traditional chemotherpy treatments and instead took vitamins, excercised and gave up coffee and wine in a fight against a cancer. Now the 37-year-old Illinois housewife has pinned her hopes on the latest product of genetic engineering.

Mrs. Karafotas became the first person to be treated with synthetic inteferon Thursday when doctors at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute injected her with tiny amounts of the experimental drug.

The attractive mother of three is one of eight patients in the advanced stages of cancer who are participating in the four-month, limited study at M.D. Anderson, one of four American hospitals that specializes in the treatment of the deadly disease.

"The availability of interferon produced by recombinant DNA is extremely important because it is only through this basic science technology that we will have the full chance to determine the anti-cancer potential," said Dr. Jordan Gutterman, who is directing the clinical study.

Interferon is a natural substance made by mammalian cells which are attacked by viruses. It confers protection against most kinds of virus and has been successful against animal tumors and some human cancers.

Mrs. Karafotas was told 18 months ago that she a lymphoma, a cancer of the lymph system, and learned that M.D. Anderson was experimenting with natural interferon.

"I decided then I wanted the best treatment I could get," she

The M.D. Anderson study is the first step toward federal Food and Drug Administration approval of the substance for human use. Among other things, the study will attempt to make sure the substance is not toxic and determine whether there are significant differences between it and natural interferon

Mrs. Karafotas, who has taken limited amounts of natural interferon since her cancer was diagnosed, said she rejected traditional chemotherapy after she was told that method might only have temporary effect against the disease.

"I didn't object to chemotherapy, but my doctor said it tended to relapse and possibly might have an effect on the tumor." she said. Mrs. Karafotas, of suburban Chicago, said she learned M.D. Anderson would be conducting the limited clinical study on man-made interferon and approached Gutterman and said she wanted to participate

"I asked to be in the program, I really believe in it," she said, adding doctors warned her not to expect too much from the experimental treatment.

'I'm optimistic. I don't feel any apprehension ... I feel good about it. I think mental attitude has a lot to do with everything," she said. Mrs. Karafotas said the cancer has not grown since it was first

"I feel fine, maybe a little emotionally drained, but I excercise regularly ... watch my diet and have given up coffee, wine and things like that," she said.

The American Cancer Society predicts 39,500 Americans this year will contract the disease Mrs. Karafotas suffers from, and that 21,600 people will die from what the society lists as the seventh leading killer among cancers.

Gutterman said Mrs. Karafotas will be monitored closely while she receives two small doses of the synthetic compound a week for six weeks.

Treatment of the seven other patients will be staggered over a four-month period, a hospital spokesman said.

Natural interferon, which is produced from cultures of living animal cells and is quite impure, is constantly in short supply because of the production difficulties. A single course of treatment with the drug can cost a patient up to $30,000.

The gene-splicing technique used to manufacture artificial interferon has offered the promise of producing other drugs with less expense and in greater supply. Two other drugs - insulin and human growth hormone - produced by the recombinant DNA methods have already gone into human trials.

To make synthetic interferon, scientists took a copy of the human gene for interferon and inserted it into the genetic material of fast-growing bacteria. The bacteria were then cultured and the substance harvested from the culture.

The Swiss company Biogen announced a year ago it had produced synthetic interferon, but doctors predicted it would be at least five years before the substance would be refined enough for clinical use.

The synthetic interferon was manufactured by the drug firm Hoffman-La Roche Inc. of Nutley, N.J., with a process developed by Genentech Inc. of South San Francisco.

trim budget fat Reagan vows to

WASHINGTON (AP) - The incoming Reagan administration, accusing President Carter of playing politics with the 1982 federal budget, vows to slash the $739.3 billion lame-duck spending plan from top to bottom

President-elect Ronald Reagan, who reviewed the just-released budget with his economic advisers Thursday and scheduled another session for today, said he expected to find "some fat" to reduce the projected $27.5 billion deficit. But Reagan's nominee for budget director, David A. Stockman, said more radical surgery will have to be performed or else an already sluggish economy will worsen. Stockman accused Carter of proposing a "very political document" that under estimates the deficit and is overly optimistic in its economic forecast. Stockman estimated the deficit under Carter's budget would be at least $50 billion. "We think that we're going to have to revise it (the budget) from top to bottom because clearly it's not an acceptable fiscal policy and it would only cause further deterioration in the economy, Stockman said. Carter's budget director, James T. McIntyre Jr., denied the spending plan for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1 had been shaped with politics in mind. "I have taken no action with the purpose of embarrassing the incoming administration," he said. Carter, as he signed the thick document, defended the budget as an example of restraint. The departing president predicted any changes made by his Republican successor or Congress will be

"relatively minor in nature because this is a sound proposal that will withstand the scrutiny of congressional deliberations. Reactions in Congress, predictably, were positive from Carter's fellow Democrats and negative from the GOP.

Rep. James Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, called the budget "very honest" and "very, very tight as far as reducing spending.

Jones' Republican counterpart in the Senate, Peter V. Domenici of New Mexico, attacked the proposal as "an old, tired, timid budget. Carter's budget calls for a $76.6 billion, or 12 percent, spending.

increase from 1981, mainly due to a hefty boost for the military and inflation-triggered jumps in other areas.

Defense spending would go up $23 billion to $184 billion.

When adjusted for inflation, the projected overall budget rise is 1" percent. The defense budget, which would get 25 cents out of every federal dollar, rises 4.4 percent while non-defense spending declines slightly after taking inflation into account. Carter also proposed modest personal tax credits to offset higher

Social Security taxes. In addition, he revived his call for a-10-cent-a-gallon increase in gasoline taxes to conserve energy. The gasoline tax, which Congress rejected last year and is likely to do again, would cut the budget deficit $13 billion. In a revised estimate of the 1981 budget, which Carter had promised would be balanced, the president said the effects of high inflation and a recession in 1980 caused spending to balloon to $663 billion, creating a $55 billion deficit. Reagan told reporters he intends to honor his campaign pledge to make deep cuts in the budgets he is inheriting from Carter

Asked if he still expected to meet his goal of balancing the budget by 1983, he replied, "Well, I'll break an arm trying." "There's no question about the economy worsening," which is causing federal spending to grow, Reagan said. "But that's not anything meaning we're going to retreat. It just means that we've got a harder job and more to do

Edwin Meese III, who will be Reagan's chief counselor in the White House, said a complete package of spending cuts accompanied by significant tax cuts and regulatory changes will be. sent to Congress within four weeks of Tuesday's inauguration.

Judges compromise school battle

BUCKEYE, La. (AP) — A minor fire caused considerable smoke damage at all-white Buckeye High School just hours after a state compromise. judge who had defied a federal desegregation order agreed to a compromise allowing three white girls to finish the semester there,

The state fire marshall was asked to investigate the cause of the blaze, which broke out in a shop at the rear of the school shortly before midnight. The fire, reported by a passer-by, was doused in minutes but caused extensive smoke damage, officials said.

School Principal Charles Waite said he did not believe the fire had anything to do with the dispute between a state and federal judge that Thursday prompted blacks and whites to heckle each other outside a courthouse as the two judges reached a The case involved three white girls who sought to attend Buckeye rather than a predominantly black school. Before the fire, Waite said he would re-enroll Michelle Laborde, Lynda McNeal and Ramona Carbo today. But Waite and the girls' parents, guardians parish-wide school system.

what federal judges are for." "I don't like anybody telling me what to do," Scott said. "The people who protest are not being unreasonable in their reaction."

But he added that "I'm not going to let this school system be sacrificed to this (busing) argument He said Buckeye students had been "called upon because the

Irish political campaigner, husband shot

COOKSTOWN, Northern Ireland (AP) - Three gunmen burst into the home of Roman Catholic civil rights campaigner Bernadette Devlin McAliskey just after breakfast today and shot and wounded her and her husband, police said. The fiery 33-year-old former member of Parliament and her teacher husband, Michael, suffered multiple gunshot wounds in the body, police said. They were taken by army helicopter to Belfast's Musgrave Park Hospital where authorities gave their condition as "serious" but said their lives were not believed to be in danger. The gunmen rushed into the isolated cottage at 8:14 a.m. as Mrs. McAliskey was getting the children ready for school, police said.

An army patrol heard the shots at the McAliskeys' home in a Derrylaughen on the shores of Lake Neagh, 40 miles west of Belfast, and apprehended three suspects believed to belong to a Protestant para-military organization, authorities said. Police said the arrest was made with no shots fired. The suspects

Clayton still in charge of house

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Legislature's first week left Speaker Bill Clayton in solid command of the House but also showed he can expect trouble from a feisty minority A preview came Wednesday when Clayton got exactly the rules

he wanted the House to play by during the legislative session but needed all day to do it. Consistently, 40 to 50 members out of 150 voted for amendments that would have weakened Clayton's control over the committee system and the flow of bills to the floor. The dissidents are a mixed bag consisting of unabashed liberals, moderates who vehemently reject the "liberal" label, a few Republicans, a couple of conservative Democrats and all but two of the 17 Mexican-Americans.

Wags already are seeking a nickname for the minority like the "Dirty Thirty" label worn by the small group that bedeviled Speaker Gus Mutscher in 1971. Clayton's control of the rules would have been tenuous had not 10 voted on his side. The speaker has been generous with prime committee assignments for both blacks and Republicans in past sessions. Clayton overwhelmingly won a fourth term, more than any speaker, yet 26 representatives felt strongly enough against him to vote "no" even though Clayton was unopposed.

Dissidents rounded up enough votes to block a routine motion to suspend an archaic yet constitutionally required order of business prohibiting committee hearings the first 30 days and floor action the first 60 days.

For more than 20 years, that rule has been suspended without a murmur of opposition on opening day of the Legislature because it keeps lawmakers from plunging immediately into their work.

Clayton said he didn't mind the failure to suspend the rule because, as a conservative, he thinks the Legislature passes too many bills anyway.

Others expect him to feel a lot of pressure from his supporters who have bills they want passed. Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, who ran unsuccessfully for speaker and is a leader of the dissident minority, says the action stopped a lot of special interest bills One who could benefit is Gov. Bill Clements, who has a long list of * bills he wants passed. An exception to the constitutional rule is of the 13 black members and all but three of the 36 Republicans emergency legislation submitted by the governor. "The governor ought to think it (refusal to suspend the rule) is " super. He can virtually control everything we do," said Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, a member of the Clayton team. Bryant, however, predicted the situation would neither hurt not help Clements' chances for getting his bills passed, saying it would be "business as usual" for the governor's program.

Oil firm, former officials get

HOUSTON (AP) - Two oilmen and a Denver-based company, in a plea bargain agreement with federal prosecutors, will pay more than $20 million in penalties and refunds for selling low-priced "old" crude oil as a higher-priced "new" product.

B.A. Williams III of Houston, Marvin Davis of Denver, Colo., and Summit Transportation Co. entered guilty pleas before U.S. District Judge Norman Black, who imposed $20,120,000 in fines and refunds. Williams is a former president of Summit and Davis is its former board chairman

Williams was fined $40,000 on each of two counts and Davis agreed to pay $20,000 as a civil penalty.

Summit entered a guilty plea to a two-count criminal information and drew a maximum $10,000 fine on each charge

The company also agreed to pay a $3 million civil penalty and refund $17 million, including interest, to the Department of Energy. Specificially, Williams was charged with willful violation of the Energy Petroleum Allocation Act and the company was accused of making false statements.

Prosecutors said the pricing scheme existed between Jan. 1, 1973,

Court records showed that Summit delivered 48,153 barrels of West Texas sour crude to Mobil Oil Corp. for $529,684 in March 1976. Included in the sale was a statement from Summit that the petroleum did not include any "old" oil when, in fact, it did, the government contends.

At that time "old" crude was selling under federal regulations at about $5 a barrel compared with $10 to $15 for "new", or more recently discovered, oil.

U.S. Attorney Carl Walker Jr. released a statement of the government's contentions in the case.

"Summit, in purchasing their supplies of (certified) crude oil also purchased crude oil for which they obtained no certification in violation of DOE regulations," the statement said.

"Summit ... then resold or exchanged and resold their crude oil, thereby knowingly and willfully on frequent occasions failed to identify the amount of old oil contained in the volume sold, thus supplying their customers with a false certification.'

The summary listed three 1976 sales which the government said involved resale of West Texas sour crude oil containing a certain amount of "old" oil. In March 1976, Summit Gas was alleged to have entered into a contract with Mobil Oil Corp. to sell crude and "knowingly and willingly contracted to sell the West Texas sour crude oil as containing no 'old' oil, when, fact, it did contain a certain percentage of 'old' oil."

Embryo transfers may be possible this year

(AP) - Childless couples may soon have access to a new and better method of giving birth than the so-called test tube programs, says a researcher in the field of transferring animal

In fact, the first human pregnancy by embryo transfer the likelihood is rather high could take place this year, since this does occur within a Iniversity scientist Duane C. Kraemer said Thursday until a successor is duly chosen, apparently permitting Brown to stay in the seat until after the special election

However, attorneys said they would have to research state law further before giving a firm opinion on the matter.

Another question yet to be answered, the lawyers said, was whether the special election would be a non-partisan contest open to all comers or would be restricted to Schoolcraft and Brown.

"It's time to get back to work," said Schoolcraft, who took the oath of office Tuesday when the session opened. "It looks like we've got an election to run.'

Brown's challenge was based on absentee votes mailed in by military personnel who lived outside the district. Brown claimed the ballots were illegal because the voters did not live in the district and did not intend to return to it.

A special House committee had recommended 5-4 Thursday that Schoolcraft's election be upheld. But the full House voted instead to accept a committee minority report voiding the election and making a new one necessary.

It took three hours for House members to reach a decision.

In committee, the members heard four days of testimony before voting 5-4 Thursday in favor of Schoolcraft. The vote went along party lines, except for Democrat Susan McBee of Del Rio, who voted in favor of the Republican.

Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, a member of the committee, made the motion for the majority report.

"My review of the evidence has satisfied me that contestant Brown did not satisfy the burden (of showing) a sufficient number of ineligible votes to declare the election void," McFarland said. McFarland; McBee; Bob Leonard, R-Fort Worth; Tom DeLay, R-Wallis; and Brad Wright, R-Houston, voted in favor of

Chairman Craig Washington, D-Houston; Ray Keller, D-Duncanville; Lloyd Criss, D-La Marque; and Bob Valles, D-El Paso, voted against the motion, and prepared the minority report.

That's OUR money!

An interesting story came over the wire recently. It told of the U.S. Civil Service Commission's attempts to give away $1.8 million

The story went on to say the government wanted to give the money to people who took a secretarial entry level test between 1972 and 1978.

The give - away came about as a result of a discrimination suit settlement that alleged that the civil service test was unfair in asking certain questions not related to secretarial skills.

Perhaps the test was somewhat discriminatory. Maybe it wasn't. Whether it was or wasn't, it occurs to us that the federal government is playing a bit loose with our tax dollars in agreeing to dish out almost $2 million of our money. For certain, taxpayers did not discriminate against anyone

To make matters worse, the feds also agreed to spend an additional $100,000 in an attempt to determine to whom to give the money. Apparently they have no idea of the names of people who allegedly were discriminated against. Indeed, they don't even know how many people have taken the test.

Perhaps a couple million dollars doesn't seem like much to the feds. You know, the more - where - that - came - from school - of - thought. But it occurs to us that it took a lot of people to work a lot of hours to earn enough money to send those millions to Washington.

We wonder in passing whether the bure aucrats would be so generous with the settlement if the money came from their pockets rather than the taxpayers' pockets. Certainly they would not. So perhaps therein lies the basis on which subsequent settlements should be made

Auditing the GAO

The General Accounting Office is one of the more fruitful branches of the federal government, because it is always telling on the other guys. How they waste money and perform foolishly. Now Common Cause, the self - described citizens' lobby, has taken a look at the GAO, and though the reports suffers from some of Common Cause's idealism, it has value nonetheless.

A central finding, and one we've long suspected to be the case, is that usually nothing gets done about GAO exposures. The GAO's own annual report for 1979 says that of 95 recommendations it made to Congress that year, only three saw action taken. (Fourteen GAO studies from previous years were acted upon.) "Sporadic executive and congressional interest" is how Common Cause summed up the reaction to GAO proposals. To rectify this, the group suggests that the president's Office of Management and Budget expend more resources on considering GAO reports and that Congress adopt a more efficient system for scrutinizing programs and eliminating obsolete ones. Here, Common Cause is wearing its blinders, which lead it to believe that the public sector could perform like a business if only we had the right policies and people. Politics isn't business, however, and though the GAO, Common Cause and other watchdogs might occasionally force changes by embarrassing the powers that be, they can only vainly hope that the system will reform itself

Indeed, even the GAO is caught up in its own trappings, according to Common Cause. Though generally praising the agency, the new study notes that GAO has become obsessed with standard - format, blue - covered audit reports that hamper its flexibility in responding to issues of the moment. For sure, the GAO has become a bigtime operation, with a $186 million annual budget, more than 5,000 employees and 983 blue - covered publications in the 1979 fiscal vear

The GAO claims to have saved the tax payers more than $10 billion in the last three years for which it has accounted. We hope that's been the case. We'd like to think we've gotten something more than laughs out of the hundreds of millions we've spent on the agency itself. But we aren't starry - eyed enough to think we'll ever get the sort of quickness and leanness out of government that Common Cause wants to spend more tax money pursuing.

Take early aim at election commission

The Federal Election Commission isn't the biggest or most expensive agency in Washington. But as Sen. Dirksen used to say, "a billion here, a billion there. and pretty soon you're talking about real money." Eliminating the F.E.C. would not only save taxpayers a pretty good chunk of change, it would bestow innumerable benefits on the political scene.

The Federal Election Commission was supposed to eliminate Watergate style corruption from politics. How likely was it to be successful? Well, it regulates political campaigns. It was created by incumbent officeholders. An incumbent President nominates new members. An incumbent Senate passes on those appointees. An incumbent Congress passes on its budget. Either house of Congress may veto any of its proposed regulations.

Oddly enough the law that the F.E.C. administers institutionalizes the two major parties and throws roadblocks in the way of minor party efforts and independent candidates. It places severe restrictions on nonincumbent candidates. And it gives taxpayer subsidies to certain presidential candidates.

There are other problems with the campaign laws. Individuals can donate only $1,000 to a candidate. That puts a monetary limit on freedom of speech, as well as creating practical problems for unknown or minor party candidates who already face problems getting media attention and publicity against incumbents whose taxpayer - paid perquisites amount to the equivalent of $629,000 per year in publicity - oriented benefits.

Carter and Reagan each got $29 million from the taxpayers for their presidential campaigns. Anderson got about $5 million. We think they should have financed their campaigns on voluntary contributions.

F.E.C. compliance procedures and bookkeeping requirements are another problem. Instead of discussing issues, candidates spend a good deal of time and money hiring accountants and lawyers and filing reports, and even then they're not safe. A complaint from an opponent can initiate an F.E.C. action that may not be resolved until after the election is over. Does this contribute to intelligent, issue - oriented campaigns?

The problems created by government regulation of political expression are too large and complex to be solved by a little tinkering. The current electiof law ought to be repealed and the F.E.C. abolished. That would leave us with the First Amendment. Past experience indicates it isn't a guarantee that there will be no corruption in politics. But when it comes to giving the public a fighting chance for integrity, we'll take the right of free speech for all over a government agency any time.

Time to settle up

Retiring Congressman Lucien Nedzi is leaving his colleagues a legacy that they would just as soon do without.

As chairman of the House Administrative Committee, the Michigan Democrat was in charge of the House restaurant. As he prepared to leave his post, 23 congressmen owed the dining room some $40,000, mostly on behalf of organizations holding receptions. Such groups must be sponsored by a House member, who is responsible for the bill. Nedzi sent word that the overdue tabs must be paid. Beginning in February, members with bills dating back 90 days or more will find the money deducted from their congressional pay.

The wisdom of Big Brother

By Richard L. Lesher President, Chamber of Commerce of the United States

WASHINGTON -- What with all the attention being given to the huge increases in Social Security taxes for 1981 - up $20 billion overall and as much as 25 percent for some workers -- many of the other little insults inflicted by our friendly federal protectors are receiving scant attention from the press.

For example, did you know that the IRS has been waging a virtual mini - war on are not correlated to any similar increase in the number of new tax - delinquent accounts. Ironically, for 1980, the number of tax - delinquent accounts rose only 3.9

Big Apple or Rotten Apple? Ask yourself: Do you think a privately owned building in New York City would be justified in dumping raw sewage into the Hudson River for three years? The question, of course, is preposterous. Any company caught engaging in such activity would be criticized severely and probably punished to the limit of the law.

Ah yes, but when government is the culprit ... what then? As a WNBC-TV editorial recently asked: "... How many New Yorkers, we wonder, are aware that when the big new convention center opens a couple of years from now, it will be spewing about a million gallons of raw sewage into the Hudson River for three years? That's a pretty big story in New Jersey which will get a lot of the benefit of New York's filth but none of the profit from the center." Yet as the station pointed out, when New York authorities were asked to respond to complaints from New Jersey groups, they refused. In fact, they refused even to acknowledge that a problem exists. Take a Load Off Your Shoulders

The question is: With a federal budget described as "hemorrhaging", taxes climbing by record amounts, the national debt soaring toward a trillion dollars, inflation remaining in double digits, and now, interests rates seemingly levelling off at a mere 20 percent, are you ready for some good news?

The news is the President has just signed the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, which could save $250 million by eliminating unnecessary government forms and streamlining information systems.

That signing did not come a minute too soon for the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, which recently processed one and - a - half tons of paper just to comply with one new OSHA regulation. It should also please the small business community whose paperwork burden has been calculated by Senator William Roth of Delaware to be 850 million pages long. Incidentally, Roth also calculates that if those 850 million pages were laid end to end, they would stretch around the world nearly six times and, if stacked, would form a column 67 miles high.

Fellows, That's Pretty Poor The Department of Housing and Urban Development has come up with some intriguing statistics which reveal that 125 percent of all the people in Santee. South Carolina, and 115 percent of the people in Gay, Georgia are below the poverty line. Might this not indicate, suggests National Review, that 196 percent of the people in HUD are grossly overpaid?
Thoughts for 1981

Do we still need to spend nearly half a million dollars a year for the National Board of the Promotion of Rifle Practice? And how about the continuation of the Interior Department's Bureau of Mines Helium Fund -- even though the government no longer purchases helium?

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) - Public schools here have special problems" but that does not exempt them from enrolling the hundreds of illegal alien children who have crossed the U.S.-Mexico border to get an education, a federal judge ruled. U.S. District Judge Filemon Vela made the comments in a formal ruling he filed Thursday, two months after ordering local schools to admit the illegal alien students despite the district's financial problems and overcrowded classrooms. "It is to be hoped that the special problems of this school district will be recognized and that some help will soon be forthcoming," Brownsville had sought an exemption from a statewide ruling by U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals of Houston, requiring Texas schools to admit illegal aliens tuition-free. That order struck down a state law prohibiting a free education for undocumented children. By last week, 625 undocumented children had enrolled in local schools as a result of Vela's order. Total enrollment is 27,405. Vela wrote that the district's problems were not caused by undocumented children alone. "The district underestimated the peak enrollment for the current school year," he said. "Thus the problem of overcrowding and the unexpected financial burden would have been with the district in any case, though the addition of the undocumented alien children certainly intensified these problems."

School superintendent Raul Besteiro said Vela's ruling contained no surprises and little comfort.

"I've said it over and over. We can take any burden if we have a set number to shoot for but there is no limit. The children just keep coming." he said

Brownsville sits a cross the Rio Grande from Matamaros, Mexico and many school officials fear Vela's ruling will cause more families to move across the river just to enroll their children. "It is obvious the problems the district faces are caused by the problems they're causing," Besteiro said. Linda Yanez, an attorney for Texas Rural Legal Aid, Inc., had argued against exempting local schools from the order. She said society would have more problems in the future if the undocumented children were denied an education.

Silent meditation in classes proposed

Senator Walter Mengden, Republican from Harris County, pre-filed legislation for the regular legislative session that began this month to permit silent prayer or meditation in public schools.

Senate Bill 46 provides that the person in charge of each public school classroom may allow a brief period of silent prayer or meditation with the participation of all consenting students.

The bill further provides that this period may not be conducted as a religous service or exercise. In addition, disciplinary action is prohibited from being imposed on any pupil who does not wish to participate.

"This bill provides an opportunity for a moment of silent reflection of the anticipated activities of the day or - for those so disposed on a religous theme,," Senator Mengden said. The bill is completely constitutional. A three-member federal court upheld the constitutionality of a similar law in Massachusetts.

"This is a good bill that does not trespass on anyone's rights," Senator Mengden said

Inauguration day outpouring of prayer is being urged

WASHINGTON (AP) - A nationwide outpouring of prayer is being urged on inauguration day next Tuesday when Ronald Reagan assumes the presidency.

Leaders of the effort say that a million prayer groups across the country are expected to be meeting that day in churches, offices, shopping centers, schools and homes

The plan is being pushed by the National Advisory Committee for Inauguration Day Prayer, including numerous evangelists and church leaders "These prayers can affect the destiny of the country as much as the inauguration of the president," says the Rev. Jimmy R. Allen, a committee member and head of the Southern Baptist Radio and Television Commission.

Its weekly "Baptist Hour" radio program on nearly 500 stations is appealing for participation. The committee coordinating the effort was set up as an adjunct to organizing of an evangelism festival in Kansas City July 27-30.

"It is crucial that we call our people to prayer," says Allen of Fort Worth, Texas. "Not only because the Bible commands us but because the times demand it.'

MOSES LAKE, Wash. (AP) - St. Martin's Church has designated May 18 as "Ash Sunday" in commemoration of the eruption of Mount St. Helens on May 13, 1980. The Episcopal parish plans to sell samples of the ash for $2 each.

NEW YORK (AP) - Officials of major Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish organizations have urged the government of the Bahamas to cancel an order to expel an estimated 25,000 Haitians.

saying it might subject some of them to persecution The religious leaders urged Bahamian Prime Minister Lyndon Pindling to at least defer the Jan. 18 effective date of the order to permit time to screen the Haitians "so as to insure that those who have a well-founded fear of persecution are not returned to Haiti."

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter, in his farewell appearance as teacher of the adult Bible class at First Baptist Church, advised that "God will understand when you fail." He cited such traits as humility, compassion, courage and love as qualities that help overcome "broken collar bones and election defeats" and asked, "How can we expect all of our prayers to be answered when all of Jesus' prayers weren't answered?

Religion in the news

One of Jesus' final prayers was to be spared the crucifixion.

Religious affiliations of President-elect Ronald Reagan's Cabinet run from the biggest to tiny denominations. Most of them are Roman Catholics, the nation's largest denomination, and Episcopalians, the seventh-ranking church in transportation secretary-designate, and Richard S. Schweiker, 54, health and human services secretary-designate, are members of the Schwenkfelder Church, a little but historic Protestant group of only five Pennsylvania congregations totaling 2,748 members. Of 20 prospective Cabinet members, counting Vice President-elect George Bush, an active Episcopalian, five are expected to be Episcopalians and five are Roman Catholics. Among the Catholics is Secretary of State-designate Alexander Haig, 56, whose younger brother, the Rev. Frank Haig, is a Jesuit priest who teaches physics at Loyola College in Baltimore. Other Catholics include Labor Secretary-designate Raymond J. Donovan, 50, a leader in church charitable work in his home state of New Jersey; William J. Casey, 67, named to head the CIA, and Richard Allen, 44, picked to head the National Security Council.

Treasury Secretary-designate Donald Regan 61, comes of Catholic background, but a spokesman says he presently is

Other Episcopalians are Defense Secretary-designate Caspar Weinberger, 63; Attorney General-designate William French Smith, 63; Agriculture Secretary-designate John Block, 45, and William E. Brock, 50, expected to be named special trade

Three United Methodists are Samuel R. Pierce, 48, designated secretary of housing and urban development; James B. Edwards, 53. chosen for energy secretary, and Dd Stockman, 34, named director of budget and management.

this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

FRESHMAN SENATOR WELCOMED. The area's hew state senator. Bill Sarpalius, right, began his duties in Austin this week and was welcomed by Lieutenant Governor Bill Hobby who named the freshman senator to three Senate committees.

Area state senator on three committees

AUSTIN -- Freshman Senator Bill Sarpalius won the praise of Lieutenant Governor Bill Hobby and some choice committee assignments on his first day of the job.

"It is unusual for a senator serving his first term to receive such choice committee jobs," Hobby said.

Sarpalius will serve on three committees. Economic Development, Natural Resources, and Human Resources. In addition, the Panhandle senator will be the chairman of the important Agriculture Subcommittee.

"I'm very excited about the session. Agriculture is important to the people in my district, and the people of my district come first with me," Sarpalius said.

Hobby shared Sarpalius' enthusiasm. "I have given Sarpalius a lot of hard work with these committees, but Bill Sarpalius is a senator the people of the Panhandle can be proud of. I know he'll do a good job for them," Hobby said.

Sarpalius also was pleased with the appointments. He said he felt many Panhandle residents thought Austin had forgotten about them, but that he would try to change that. "The key to power in the Senate, or the House of Representatives for that matter, is the committees. Every bill goes through a committee before it becomes law. If the Panhandle is to be heard from down here, we who represent the Panhandle will have to control the right committees," Sarpalius said.

Agriculture, both men agreed, was one of those committees vital Sarpalius also will sit on the Human Resources and Economic Development Committees. "Economic development - I don't think there could be any question about the importance of that committee to the people of the Panhandle or the whole state, for that matter. The economy is on everyone's mind right now.

'We can't work miracles in Austin, and I won't promise any, but the economy and its development is a big issue with me, and with the people of my district," he said.

The senator's third seat is on the Committee on Human Resources. The committee handles bills relating to child care. nursing homes, hospitals and related matters. The senator, who grew up at Cal Farley's Boys Ranch, said human resources and child care were of particular interest to him. Sarpalius said he was putting the finishing touches on his legislative program, but had no details "I will say this much - I feel like I was sent down here to represent the people of my district and whatever bills I propose will have them in mind," he said.

Democratic caucus tormed in state house

Associated Press Writer AUSTIN. Texas (AP) - A House and seven in the Senate.

Democratic Caucus has formed in the House to draw sharper lines with the GOP, but whether all brands of Democrat will join is open to question. Chairman Jerry Benedict.

D-Angleton, and all five have a Democrat governor,' steering committee members voted against Bill Clayton for speaker, and Clayton "team members" say the Caucus is

"I'd like for Clayton to join this. . I think a lot of times Clayton could stand with us as a Democrat," Benedict said.

Clayton says the idea of a Democratic Caucus has merit but he also questions the need for one until there are more Republicans in the House.

Steering committee members are Reps. Irma Rangel, D-Kingsville: Ron Coleman, D-El Paso; Larry Shaw, D-Big Spring: Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin: and Gene Green, D-Houston

Benedict said the steering committee would begin writing a statement of principles next

He said legislative Democrats should define where they differ from the 36 Republicans in the

"The Republicans have money and can get to the media and say what they stand for. We wanted to be able to say what we are as Democrats. One thing we agree on is we would rather Benedict said

Benedict said the caucus has not decided how it will function or whether it will endorse bills.

No wit, no point of view in new Harper Valley television series

A liberated widow moves to a small town, where she wiggles and giggles her way into the enmity of the town's stuffy dowager. They cause one another problems, the divorcee usually triumphs.

And so, another TV series crawls out of that miasmic stew where lifeless characters and dimwit situations simmer until they take form on your screen. No wit, no point of view, just an actress who is pleasant and pleasant to look at. But very, very little more.

"Harper Valley PTA," beginning tonight on NBC, is "Dukes of Hazzard" with Barbara Eden's body instead of car chases. It's what's passed off as "fun television," which is to say, the network guys know there's nothing there, but people watch anyway, so why

And NBC can be reasonably sure people will watch. The TV-movie versions of "Harper Valley" was NBC's top-rated entertainment show as a repeat two weeks ago.

Coronado Center 665-7726

COMING FRIDAY, JAN. 23

In tonight's premiere, Stella Johnson (Miss Eden) ruslies out her house in a pair of oh-so-naughty babydolls to get the paper, but she locks herself out. The town drunk, who also happens to be the mayor (George Gobel), happens by and gives Stella a boost through the window. Get the picture?

The good folk of Harper Valley do. Someone takes a snapshot of the suggestive scene, and Stella has troubles aplenty. Her antagonist, Anne Francine, offers the photograph to the members of the PTA as evidence that Stella Johnson is "throwing herself at every available man in town - she is parading around practically N-A-K-E-D (spelling the wicked word)." And, "Once again, Stella Johnson is lowering standards and raising temperatures.'

The laugh-track goes goofy.

Before it's over, Miss Eden shows herself in a wet T-shirt, which is this episode's reason for existence. But she's wearing a bra Better than a car chase, I suppose PBS began its repeat run of CBS' canceled series, "Paper Chase this week. The series, based on the 1973 movie about first-year law students, was thoughtful, bright and largely unwatched (at least its Nielsen ratings so suggested).

PBS is thinking about reassembling the cast and filming new episodes, a move that would not only give new life to a worthy T show but would fit public TV's goal of broadcasting American-made drama. Let's hope.

The world of costly Italian linens

By BARBARA MAYER

There is a world in which sets of fine, embroidered silk sheets that cost over a thousand dollars have a place. According to Athos Pratesi, owner of the Italian textile firm that bears his name, that world has been expanding lately. It is no longer only the rich and fa-mous who buy the costly linens his company has been making since 1915.

A surprisingly large number of well-off, middle-class individuals wander into the firm's 20 stores or other outlets that Pratesi supplies throughout the world to plunk down $320 for a set of cotton sheets or $120 for a large bath towel.

The silk sheets, at about $1,-600 for a queen-sized set are not a big item with most of Pratesi's customers. But Arab sheiks like them well enough to order in multiple numbers, he says.

What attributes would a sheet have to have to command prices of more than a hundred dollars? For starters, the sheets are beautifully made of fine Sundanese cotton or silk spun in Italy. Every seam is a French seam, and the embellishment on each sheet - embroidery, monogramming, lace or all three - is done in the factory in Pistoia, Italy, with skilled Italian hands on equipment that is a technological marvel.

But, the customers are buying something harder to see and easier to judge than fine workmanship. They are buying status, cachet, instant rightness. And Americans are apparently just as eager as kings and international film stars to enjoy these benefits.

"We regard the United States as a very strong growth market. Our sales were up about 30 percent in the U.S. last year and we will open a new store in Bal Harbour, Fla., in February," Pratesi said in an interview at the Pratesi shop in New York. Other stores are in Beverly Hills and Palm Beach. Pratesi was in the U.S. to scout locations for additional bou-

Pratesi is certainly riding the crest of a wave of interest here in fine linens. #### Skillet dish features sausage, rice

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor These days I am constantly on the lookout for casserolestyle skillet dishes that contain a minimum of meat but are flavorsome and satisfying.

Here then is a new recipe for this sort of skillet dish; it's a medley of Polish sausage, brown rice, mushrooms and cabbage. Because parboiled brown rice is used, each grain stays separate.

In my test kitchen, we tried the tecipe during the day; at suppertime I reheated the Polish sausage and brown rice combination in my microwave oven and invited three neighbors to be tasters.

Oh, brother, what a game! "It's a shame somebody had to lose a game like this," said Michigan basketball Coach Bill Frieder after his ninth-ranked Wolverines defeated Indiana 55-52 in overtime Thursday night. "Both teams played extremely well."

It actually took a brother team for the Wolverines to do it. Marty Bodnar sank two free throws and brother Mark added three more in the final seconds of overtime to give Michigan the victory. 'We had four straight overtime games last year and we lost three of them and we've already had two straight this year and we won them both," said Frieder, who replaced Johnny Orr this year as the Michigan coach. "In this respect it was a typical Big Ten game.

It was literally a game of inches, pointed out Indiana Coach Bobby Knight:

"We had the momentum early in the game but our execution fell off and we let them back into the game. Ray (Tolbert) missed two free throws and we missed a few other shots. That's eight possible points and if we could have got six of them we would have been in good shape.

Isenberger hit one of two free throws with two minutes remaining in regulation time, but Thad Garner connected on both ends of a one-and-one situation to tie the game for Michigan at 48 with 1:24 left to play.

How colleges fight sports evils By Murray Olderman

STANFORD, Calif. (NEA) The disclosure of serious academic irregularities in the sports programs of America's major universities in the last year has caused a re-evaluation of the purpose and direction of college athletics. The athletic director - the A.D., as he was affectionately known - was usually the football coach put out to pasture, rewarded with this sinecure for faithful years of service. And his biggest chore was arranging schedules.

No more. There is now a new breed of A.D. in service. It is represented most typically by someone such as Andy Geiger, the director of athletics at Stanford — an affluent private university on the peninsula south of San Francisco Geiger, whose own athletic experience includes brandishing an oar for the varsity crew at Syracuse University two decades ago, is a professional sports administrator.

He prepared for the world of big business that is now intercollegiate athletics by serving as an assistant A.D. for six years at his alma mater before moving on to hitches running sports programs in the Ivy League at wn and Penn. The 42-year old administrator came to

Stanford in 1979. Recruiting, and the evils resulting therefrom, is gener-ally regarded as the cancer that gnaws at the vitals of varsity sports and results in the hypocrisy that pervades campus athletics.

"I don't think recruiting is bad," Geiger proclaims. "It's part of the lifestyle of this country. We at Stanford must recruit to play at the Pac-10 conference level. Illicit recruiting is bad."

Geiger came from the Ivy League environment where financial aid to athletes usually is based on need alone. But he is pragmatic about athletic scholarships. "If I were a player," he says, "I would start a union if financial aid based on need became a reality.

In the area of illegal recruiting, a new tumor has been revealed across the nation in the last couple of years. There has been wide spread tampering with the academic records of prospective athletes, most of it induced by college coaches vying for the borderline guy who can star on the field but barely make it in the class-

"The practice is not new," notes Andy. "The discovery and disclosure are new." His neighbor to the north,

Dave Maggard, athletic director of the University of California at Berkeley, blames it on money pressures. "The stakes are bigger," says Maggard, "because of big budgets and deficits in college sports programs."

At the University of Michigan, for instance, athletic director Don Canham admits that if the average attendance at football games dips below 90,000, the program is in trouble.

"There is tremendous pressure," adds Maggard. The financial impact has created demands to make the football program go." He means winning, which means getting the right kinds of play-

"There are athletes," admits Geiger, "who aren't qualified to be in school.

We've been guilty of using the civil rights movement to have semi-professional teams. We should rule correspondence and extension courses out of business for athletes. "Our world won't change until there's integrity and discipline to follow what rules there are and bring people into our program who are qualified to be here."

Economic pressure has completely changed the onceserene picture of college athletics. "The operating costs of our program are astronomical,' says Geiger. "On expenses, for instance, transporting ath-letes from San Francisco to Los Angeles — and we make at least 30 team trips a year has quadrupled. "We have 230 scholarships at Stanford, for both women and men, at $9,000 a copy. Stanford ran a $1.5 million deficit last year for 24 varsity teams, men and women, and 30 club sports." Fortunately, the university had a $2.5 million reserve fund to carry that deficit, and the anticipated loss this fiscal year to $135,000. The question occurs, naturally, why have big-time sports at all in an academic prudent management has cut

'Maybe, in America, it's the way we show our colors," Geiger answers. "I have no idea why we're in this "But at Stanford, it has become a fairly healthy enterprise. We have a $9 million annual budget and 150 fulltime employees. "Intererst in sports on our campus has not diminished. It booming. Students are excited and involved with our
