Hostages enjoying first day of freedom

WIESBADEN, West Germany (AP) — The 52 former hostages, safe in American hands at last and enjoying their first taste of freedom in 14½ months, settled into a U.S. military hospital today and made their first telephone calls to families in the United States.

"First of all, there was a very heavy run on the telephones," said State Department spokesman Jack Cannon.

The Americans, 50 men and two women checked into the hospital at dawn, after their dramatic release from Iranian captivity and a freedom flight to West Germany via Algeria.

Just after noon, some of the hostages appeared on the balconies of the hospital, bantering with hospital personnel in the bright sunlight. Orderlies tossed up a copy of the military newspaper Stars and Stripes to a group of four young men, who autographed the newspaper and threw it back down.

Two other men, wearing pajamas and bathrobes, hopped over the railings separating each room's balcony, and joined the other four. They waved when they noticed photographers about 200 yards away.

Elizabeth Ann Swift, who was a political officer at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and one of the two women in the group, also came out to enjoy the sparkling, crisp day and her new freedom.

Asked how much notice they received in Iran of their impending freedom, Cannon told reporters at a briefing that he thought "some individuals had little notice, as little as 15 to 20 minutes." Others, he said, had several days, but he did not elaborate.

Cannon said he knew of no former captive who was suffering immediate medical problems. He said the returnees were free to leave the hospital if they wish, but they were advised that previous returns found an orientation period in seclusion valuable.

He said the former hostages would remain in the hospital for "perhaps several days" for medical tests, orientation, catching up on world events through magazines, newspapers and videotapes and being debriefed by "a number of agencies of the government."

The Americans "suffered far more than they should have suffered," Cannon said. "For freedom-loving peoples everywhere, this is a very happy day."

The 50 men and two women were taken to their rooms after a 12-hour, 4,550-mile flight from Tehran, with stops in Athens and Algiers, and telephone calls to their joyful families in the United States.

Many were exuberant or smiling. All appeared to be in fair health or better despite their 14½-month ordeal at the hands of the Iranian revolutionaries who seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and its staff on Nov. 4, 1979.

They were expected to spend three to five days of "decompression" after their 444 days in captivity, undergoing medical and psychological examinations and resting, before their return to the United States.

Hundreds of jubilant Americans stationed in Germany gave the heroes of the 14½-month ordeal tumultuous welcomes as two Air Force hospital planes brought them to the Rhein-Main Air Base in Frankfurt and two buses ferried them 20 miles to the hospital at Wiesbaden.

The Hesse state radio said police received bomb threats against the buses shortly before the Americans left the airport. The police refused to confirm or deny the report, but the buses traveled with a large escort and there was no interruption in the trip.

Cyrus Vance, who was secretary of state when the hostages were taken on Nov. 4, 1979, and quit because he opposed the unsuccessful attempt to rescue them in April, headed the greeters at the Frankfurt airport and rode in the first bus to the hospital.

Ex-President Carter was flying to Germany today as President Reagan's special envoy to greet the freed Americans. They were not flown out of Tehran until 25 minutes after Carter's presidency ended Tuesday and Reagan was inaugurated, and one of Carter's aides commented:

"You can't come to any other conclusion than that they deliberately held the hostages until President Carter left office — they did it on purpose."

Air Force officials said Carter would arrive at 8:30 p.m. — 2:30 p.m. EST — meet privately with the Americans, and give a speech at Frankfurt airport before flying home at 10:45 p.m. — 4:45 p.m. A West German government spokesman said Chancellor Helmut Schmidt would join Carter in greeting the Americans.

"Welcome To The Freedom Hotel" read a big sign on the third floor of the hospital where the freed Americans' rooms were. A special telephone room was set up with 24 booths so they could call anyone anywhere and free.

They were to be served American food in a special dining room equipped with 10 banquet tables, each with white table cloths, small American flags and the yellow ribbons that became the symbol of the American people's support of them.

Two Algerian airliners brought the Americans from Tehran to Algiers, where they were greeted in the airport VIP lounge by Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, the chief American negotiator for their release, and Algerian Foreign Minister Mohamed Benyahia, who with his diplomats were the intermediaries in the long negotiations with Iran's revolutionary regime.

"It is... my duty at this moment to deliver your fellow citizens to you, Mr. Christopher, who officially represents the American government here," said the foreign minister.

"I have the great honor and privilege in affirming that you are back home and safely in our hands," Christopher told them. "This event answers our prayers, and we are more than delighted to accept the responsibility of seeing to it that you return to your homes and families."

Some of the freed hostages walked jauntily, others more slowly and a few shambled. But none looked in poor health, and most were smiling. Bruce Laingen, the senior diplomat in the group, threw up his arms and made the V-for-victory sign.

One of the Algerian doctors who examined the Americans in Iran shortly before their release was quoted by Iran's Pars news agency as saying, "their general condition is satisfactory." The doctor was identified only as Koidri.

Ali Abdelaziz, an Algerian protocol officer who was on the flight from Tehran, said when the Americans were safely aboard the plane, "they let their joy explode. They began to shout, to sing."

Two Air Force "Nightingale" medical evacuation planes were waiting in Algiers to bring the 52 to Germany. They had a belated Thanksgiving turkey dinner on the 1,250-mile flight and left the planes in Frankfurt in fur-hooded Air Force parkas with yellow ribbons tied to their breast pockets.

Laingen and one of the two women, Elizabeth Ann Swift, tried to approach the crowd but were turned back by security officials.

The control tower was decked with yellow ribbons and banners, and the crowd in front of the tower broke into "God Bless America," waved small American flags wildly and shouted, "USA! USA! USA!"

Signs and banners read "We've Got A Full Deck Now-52," "We Couldn't Forget," "You're Half-Way Home," "Welcome Back, God Bless America."

The welcome was in marked contrast to their departure from Tehran, where an airport crowd of revolutionary guards was shaking fists and chanting "Death to America" and "Allah Akhbar" — "God is Great."

Iran's chief hostage negotiator, Behzad Nabavi, told Tehran Radio the U.S. Embassy in Tehran would remain in Iranian hands because "Iran will not have political or economic relations with the United States in the future."

"For the first time in history we have made a superpower like the United States confess to its interference in another country's affairs," Nabavi said. "We have broken the myth of this superpower, which claimed to respect international rules and human rights."

ARRIVAL IN FRANKFURT. Three former hostages are on the steps as they leave a DC-9 Air Force medical plane at the Rhein-Main Air Base in Frankfurt at dawn today. They arrived in Frankfurt after a stopover in Algiers, the first stop in freedom after the 52 Americans were released by Iranian government.

Freed hostages tell families of brutality

By The Associated Press

The emancipated hostages told of beatings and other atrocities at the hands of the Iranian captors today as they telephoned their loved ones back home.

One said he was beaten and placed in solitary confinement for more than five months after he tried to escape. Another said he was told by Iranian interrogators trying to extract information from him that his mother had died. He didn't learn that she was still alive until the freed captives reached West Germany this morning.

As they began a stay of several days at a U.S. military hospital in Wiesbaden, West Germany, most of the 52 hostages talked with their families for the first time in 445 days. Most reported they were now "doing fine."

Col. Leland Holland, 53, security chief of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, called his 79-year-old mother in Scales Mound, Ill., before dawn.

"He said he had spent a month in what he called the 'dungeon' and said his captors were S.O.B.s," said the colonel's mother, Clara Holland. "He said, 'I didn't fare as badly as some of them did.' He said his house was ransacked and everything taken, including his watch and rings. They took all the furniture and clothes."

Duane "Sam" Gillette called his parents in Columbia, Pa., and Andrew Appel, a spokesman for the family, said later:

"His treatment was at times disgusting. I think President Reagan was polite when he termed the Iranians barbarians."

"We know that his letters were covering up what the real situation was. There was no physical torture, but there was psychological pressure. The food wasn't good, and the conditions were very poor."

The family of Malcolm Kalp in Brockton, Mass., said they learned today that the reason nobody back home heard from him during the 444 days of captivity was that he tried to escape and was punished.

Kalp, 43, talked for about half an hour with his brother, Richard Kalp.

"He told us he tried to escape several times."

Richard Kalp's wife said, "That sounded like him. He said he had written us often and asked if we had received any of his letters. We told him we hadn't and he said he had never received any of ours."

"He told us he was beaten by them and placed in solitary confinement because of his escape attempts," said Kalp's sister-in-law, Linda Kalp. She said he served from 150 days to 170 days in solitary, but she didn't know if it was all served at once.

U.S. Marine Sgt. Johnny McKeel Jr. told his parents in Balch Springs, Texas, that interrogators told him his mother had died.

Young McKeel quoted the interrogator as saying, "Your mother is dead and if you want to go back to the funeral, you'll have to tell us what we want to know."

The Marine said he gave only his name, rank and serial number. A guard knocked out one of his teeth.

On a happier note, Barbara Timm, in Oak Creek, Wis., said she had a "very private and very beautiful" telephone conversation with her son Kevin Hermening early this morning.

'Russian roulette' used by captors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former hostage Elizabeth Montagne, calling her treatment by Iranian captors "degrading, humiliating and dehumanizing," says the militants forced her to play Russian roulette.

"It was mental abuse," she said in an interview. "There was never a threat of physical beating with fists or clubs, but it was mental abuse. And, there were threats with guns."

"I don't want to go into detail about the threats with the guns," Ms. Montagne said, "but everyone called it the Russian roulette incident. That did happen to me."

Ms. Montagne was one of 13 blacks and women released within a couple of weeks after the U.S. Embassy in Tehran was seized by Islamic militant Nov. 4, 1979. She said the mistreatment she suffered occurred during the first four days of the takeover.

Lloyd Rollins, another of the 13, told NBC News Tuesday night that the militants tied some hostages to a table, gagged others and waved guns "in our faces."

Ms. Montagne and Rollins, 40, had withheld comment on their treatment until they were sure the 52 hostages left behind until Tuesday were free.

Rollins said the militants played Russian roulette with two female secretaries to try to "get information from us."

"They put a bullet in the chamber, spun the chamber, and they clicked the trigger off on a couple of the girls," Rollins said.

State Department spokesman David Passage said government officials had kept quiet about the brutality because they did not want to endanger the hostages who were still in Iran. For the same reason, the 13 hostages released earlier were asked not to talk about abuse, he said.

Passage said that after officials have talked with the hostages freed Tuesday, "we will have a good deal to say about it."

The only previous report of brutality to the hostages was a Nov. 7, 1979, statement by an unidentified U.S. official who said the hostages had been "pushed around, abused, intimidated and mishandled," but that there had been no evidence they had been "beaten, stabbed or shot."

Rollins, who is now stationed at the U.S. Embassy in Ottawa, Canada, and Ms. Montagne, who said she is a staff assistant with the State Department's China desk, gave different accounts of the duration of the abusive treatment by their captors.

Rollins said the scare tactics ended within a few days, "when they got to know us."

"The guns disappeared, the weapons disappeared, and they tried to reassure us that we weren't going to be hurt," he said.

Ms. Montagne said although the abuse lessened somewhat after the first few days, "I wouldn't say it improved dramatically. We were merely tied up during the day. We had to ask for everything, and we were tied up at night, when we were sleeping."

She said the abuse became so routine that it became "dull, after a while, I guess."

Rollins' comments were made just minutes after he saw live television broadcasts of the 52 hostages arriving safely in Algiers after 444 days of captivity in Iran.

Mrs. Daniel suspected, motive unclear

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — Law enforcement officers sifted through a stack of evidence and interviews today in an effort to decide whether to file charges against the wife of Price Daniel Jr.

The former Speaker of the Texas House died Monday from a gunshot wound in the stomach. No charges have been filed and no arrests made in the case, said Liberty County Sheriff C.L. "Buck" Eckols, who earlier had called the death a homicide.

Daniel, 39, who had tried to carry on the tradition of family political power begun decades ago, was killed in his ranch home on the outskirts of this Liberty County community of 8,000, nestled along the banks of the Trinity River.

Funeral services are scheduled for 2 p.m. today. District Attorney Carroll E. Wilborn Jr., said the "the investigation thus far has led us to believe the fatal wound was inflicted by his wife. But we have yet to determine whether it was a homicide, in self-defense, provoked, or an accident."

Court records showed that Vickie Daniel had filed for divorce 21 days ago and a hearing on the action was scheduled for Thursday. She had filed for divorce once before, in November 1976, but withdrew the petition.

In the recent lawsuit, Mrs. Daniel claimed a "conflict of personalities ... with no hope of reconciliation."

After the shooting Mrs. Daniel, 33, suffering from shock and hysteria, was taken to a local hospital and placed under sedation. Later, on advice of her attorney, she refused to talk with authorities.

In the spacious home at the time of the shooting were the Daniels' two young children and an 11-year-old daughter of Mrs. Dgniel by a previous marriage.

Wilborn said he had asked that the 11-year-old girl be questioned.

Eckols said he understood the children were in a back bedroom and did not hear any gunfire.

Daniel, dressed in boots, dungarees and a shirt, was found laying face down in a narrow hallway between the kitchen and the car port.

He was dead at the scene.

A rifle was discovered in a nearby room. Two empty shell casings were on the floor.

Daniel had served three terms in the Texas House, the last session as speaker when he pushed several reform measures through the legislature. He later made a bid for state attorney general, but was beaten in the Democratic primary.

Price Daniel Sr. had served as Texas House speaker, governor, U.S. Senator and State Supreme Court Justice.

The Daniel influence was seldom challenged in Liberty, one resident said.

FLAG UNFURLED IN PAMPA. Pampa merchant Gil Phetteplace places the United States flag in front of his downtown store today as part of a vigil he has maintained throughout the Iranian crisis. Phetteplace has kept the stars and stripes at full mast in front of his store during the entire 444 days the Americans were held captive in Iran and intends to maintain his flag vigil until the hostages are home - on American soil.

Words 'former hostages' are sweet as champagne

The Associated Press
Former hostages.
Those words were as sweet as champagne to the families of the three Texans who flew from Iranian captivity to freedom Tuesday.
And those families' joy reached across the state to become acts of celebration reaching from courthouse lawns to city skylines to the side of a dusty West Texas mountain.
As word spread that the captivity had ended for the 52 Americans held captive in Iran, Texas family members celebrated with tears, cheers and the popping of champagne corks.
"I'm just happy, happy — and it's not the champagne," said Dorothy Royer, who had poured champagne for friends in Houston upon learning that Mrs. Royer's son, hostage William B. Royer, had left Tehran.
"They are gone from Iran — yay!" shouted John McKeel of Balch Springs, thrusting his fist into the air as he received the official word that his son, Marine Sgt. John McKeel Jr., had left Iran on an Algerian jetliner. "The celebration starts now!"

In contrast, his wife, Wynona, reacted by saying, "Thank God. I'm going to go cry now."

The McKeels were told of their son's freedom by Undersecretary of State Mark Johnson, who called at 11:53 a.m. CST Tuesday. While still on the phone, McKeel turned to the dozens of reporters crowded around: "They have confirmed they are in the air. It's official. They are in the air."

"I'm really excited now," said Mrs. Royer, 79, who got her state department phone call at precisely the same time as the McKeels. "For the first time, I'm really excited. This is something I've waited for a long time."

"This is the next to the happiest day in my life. The happiest will be when I see him again."
She said she had not decided what she would say to her son when that time came. "But I do know what I'm not going to say. I'm not going to ask him how he is because I already know. And I'm not going to tell him that I love him because he's known that for 49 years."

But in Hurst, the parents of Navy Lt. Cmdr. Robert Engelmann continued to decline interviews.
"I have no comment," said A.R. Engelmann, who celebrated his 60th birthday Tuesday. "We've heard about it (the takeoff), but I'd rather not say anything."
Engelmann did say, however, that the family had a good time getting his son's car ready for his return.

Texans from El Paso to Houston shared in the families' euphoria.

In Dallas, County Judge Garry Weber ordered the U.S. flag raised to its full height, after it had flown at half-staff since the hostages' captivity began.

In Fort Worth, the Rev. Jimmy Allen — one of eight preachers who went to Iran in December 1979 on a fact-finding mission — said, "I am grateful to God," he said. "It is the answer to our prayers."

Dr. W.A. Criswell, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Dallas, added, "More people in America have prayed over that (hostage situation) than anything since World War II."

In El Paso, Mayor Tom Westfall signaled a celebration by turning off the lights in a huge, five-pointed star on the flank of the Franklin Mountains that bisect the city. Normally the lights only burn at Christmas time, but the star was lit nightly, to honor the hostages, since Dec. 21, 1979.

"Here in Texas we once said 'Remember the Alamo.' Let us remember the hostages," said Westfall. He added, "It may not be too Christian, but I'd like to see the lights go out someplace else."

Balch Springs plans a "Johnny Comes Marching Home" parade when young McKeel returns.

And from an unexpected source, prayers were said for the hostages at Houston's Islamic Society, as Iranian students gathered to "thank Allah" for the release of the hostages.

One of the students, who asked not to be identified, said the group of about 25 Iranians has been holding noon prayer services since the embassy was seized.

Two Dallas-based airline companies, Braniff International and American, said they have received government permission to offer the hostage families free transportation to Washington to meet their relatives.

Dallas city officials ordered a celebration for noon today and Fort Worth lit up its skyline — usually illuminated only for the Christmas holidays and the annual stock show — to celebrate the hostages' release.

The Texas House of Representatives adopted a resolution Tuesday welcoming the hostages back to the U.S. with special mention of the three Texans among them. The resolution, sponsored by Rep. Terral Smith, R-Austin, said the hostages had "earned the concern and respect of the people of Texas."

Mrs. Royer suggested that the day the hostages return to the United States should be declared a national holiday.

Bentsen says US should be cool to Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — The relationship between the United States and Iran must remain decidedly cool despite the release of the 52 American hostages, says Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

"I don't think we can, or should, contemplate anything approaching normal relations with the outlaw band that is now attempting to rule Iran," the Texas Democrat said Tuesday.

"I presume we'll have an arm's-length relationship — dealing through a third country — and the longer the arm the better."

Bentsen, in a statement, suggested that the way to prevent any future occurrences like the 14½-month-long hostage crisis might be stating clearly the response that could be expected.

"We must prepare a government policy statement that will act as a positive deterrent to any such irresponsible violations of international law in the future," he said.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said he was not prepared to comment on the terms of the agreement that freed the hostages until the details become available.

He said in a statement that he was delighted the hostages are on their way home. "I'm glad the long ordeal is over," Tower said.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth said the "unlawful and humiliating treatment" that the hostages received should not be forgotten.

"Not since the Middle Ages have such despicable acts been committed by any government to the official peaceful emissaries of another," Wright said in a statement.

"Personally, I do not see how the United States could resume normal relations with Iran in the absence of some very decided changes in its government and in its attitude toward us."

Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, a San Antonio Democrat, said the declaration of hostilities against Iran that he had introduced earlier should still be approved by Congress.

"It would formally define, in other words, Iran as an enemy," he said about his proposed resolution. "We must make Iran pay for its crime against the United States and the civilized world. That's my feeling — we must make them pay."

Gonzalez, who called for the United States to demand damages and reparations from Iran, said a formal declaration of hostilities could be useful in finally resolving some aspects of the freeze that was placed on Iranian assets.

"Honor is still important to this nation," he said. "I'm still going to press for some attention given my resolution." Rep. Jim Collins, a Dallas Republican, said his main concern in finding out the specific terms of the hostage release would be to determine if any precedents were set.

"Our (foreign) policy has been one of complete appeasement, and you always want to be deliberative, but we've got to change our policy," Collins said.

Cuban relocation derailed

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — Pressure from local and state officials may have derailed a plan to resettle Cuban refugees in East Texas, says the personnel manager of a religious organization involved in relocation efforts.

"It appears we just don't have the community support down there," Stevie Shaw of World Relief International said Tuesday.

The evangelical organization, based in Wheaton, Ill., has been active in helping Cuban refugees resettle, but Mrs. Shaw said it is "rather doubtful" that relocation efforts will continue in East Texas.

"It doesn't look as though we will be locating in Texas, either, due to the response we have received," she said.

She said the international evangelical group is still taking applications for possible East Texas resettlement, but she added that prospects for moving any of the 5,800 refugees from Fort Chaffee to Texas appear dim.

The organization has placed ads in Texas newspapers offering employment at a resettlement office that was supposed to be located in East Texas, but Mrs. Shaw said she has told applicants she would "get back in touch with them."

The controversy flared when word was leaked prior to a meeting last week in Marshall between local authorities and Justice Department officials that as many as 3,000 Cubans might be resettled in East Texas.

Poisonings stump health officials

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Texas health officials are stumped by at least 10 cases of poisoning from thallium, a rare metal banned from consumer products in 1972.

"It's just something you don't see everyday," said Ron Tisdell of the University of Texas Poison Control Center in Galveston.

"We've probably seen more cases in the past several months than have been reported in the past 20 or 30 years of medical literature."

He told the Corpus Christi Caller of 10 confirmed Gulf Coast cases reaching from Beaumont to Corpus Christi but declined to identify the people or exact locations involved.

Thallium is a rare, poisonous element normally used in gasoline antiknock compounds, photoelectric cells and rat poisons but banned from its former use in such consumer products as hair dye for eight years.

What puzzles officials is that the metal is suddenly appearing in relatively large quantities.

"It's honestly like a jigsaw puzzle," said Rich Miller, with the Occupational Safety and Health Administration in Houston.

Tisdell said the poison attacks the central nervous system and that little is known about what tolerance humans may have for it.

Jan Murphy, 37, of nearby Portland, was one of the first victims officials found, and her case led them to find nine others.

She said her problems began about three years ago when she and her family moved a new house.

After several months her hair began to fall out, her toenails decayed and her feet became numb.

"You could stick a needle all the way in it and I couldn't feel it," she said, but her doctors could not tell her what was wrong until December 1979, when a neurologist diagnosed thallium poisoning.

Since then, tests on her husband and children have shown traces of the rare metal.

Bell to get favorable ruling

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Southwestern Bell has persuaded a Public Utility Commission examiner the commission has no right to regulate the phone company's test of a computerized home information service.

PUC Hearing Examiner Phil Ricketts on Tuesday sent a letter to Bell and the Texas Daily Newspaper Association saying he is recommending the commission dismiss TDNA's complaint against the test.

The newspaper publishers, claiming the June test would give Bell an unfair competitive advantage, want the commission to stop the test.

The phone company plans to put free computer terminals in 600 Austin homes and 80 Austin businesses. The televisionlike screens would be equipped to display phone listings and advertising.

At a hearing last Friday, Bell lawyers argued PUC cannot regulate a company experiment that is free to the customers.

PUC General Counsel Allen King agreed, saying it would be impossible for PUC to regulate all tests of equipment and services conducted by utility companies.

Ricketts also said he will recommend approval of King's motion to toss out the PUC tariff granted last year for the test. King said Bell does not need the tariff to carry out the test.

The PUC counsel said Bell wanted the tariff as protection against potential anti-trust suits.

Testimony begins in Abilene murder trial

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A jury of eight men and four women was ready for the opening of testimony today in the capital murder trial of Billy Wayne Alexander Jr., charged with killing a state trooper in the Texas Panhandle last year.

The opening of testimony was scheduled for 10 a.m. today, following Tuesday's selection of a retired city employee and a 51-year-old church secretary to complete the jury.

Alexander, 21, is charged in the Oct. 5 shooting death of Department of Public Safety officer Jerry Don Davis, killed during a routine traffic investigation near Slaton.

The last two jurors were picked in the eighth day of jury selection that saw 50 potential panelists interviewed by prosecution and defense attorneys.

State District Judge Bob

Wright will preside over the trial, moved to Abilene after defense attorneys Floyd Holder and Dick Alexander requested a change of venue.

District Attorney John Monford is the attorney for the prosecution.

Lady Harvesters lose to Tascosa

Pampa's Lady Harvesters fell to Amarillo Tascosa, 82-54, Tuesday night in a District 3-5A game in Harvester Fieldhouse. The Lady Harvesters fell behind, 21-6, in the opening quarter and trailed by 43-24 at halftime.

Pampa's top scorers were Jeanette Britt and Bobbie Skaggs with 19 and 16 points respectively.

Natalie Gilbreath tossed in 27 points for Tascosa while Lisa Dawson added 23.

Pampa, now 3-16 overall and 0-2 in district play, travels to Palo Duro Friday night for another district clash.

Tascosa is 10-11 overall and 2-0 in district action.

The junior varsity game was much closer, but Pampa still lost, 46-39.

Pampa led by two, 11-9, at the end of the first quarter, but fell behind by six, 25-19, at halftime.

Keva Richardson topped Pampa scoring with 11 points.

Cantrell's 20 points led Tascosa.

In the only other district girls' contest last night, Amarillo High trounced Caprock, 81-45.

Carmen Wynn led AHS with 22 points. Tammy Davis was high scorer for Caprock with 20.

Miami teams rout Higgins

HIGGINS—Ray Young scored 32 points and Ron Francis 20 to lead Miami to a 96-25 shellacking of Higgins Tuesday night.

Also scoring for the Warriors were Keith Gray with 14 points, Wade Smith and Lewis Lisenby, six points each; Mark Higginbotham, Kirk Gray and Bryan Bench, four points each; Monte Smith and David Haws, two each.

Mike Poole led Higgins with eight. Young and Francis also controlled the boards by collecting 20 and 14 rebounds respectively.

Susan Bean tossed in 27 points as Miami girls routed Higgins, 70-24.

Latonne Trimble helped out with 23, followed by Cindy Noble with eight; Brenda McCullough, five; Caria Stone, three; Bess Gill and Lisa Herman, two points apiece.

Lefors splits with Allison

LEFORS—Richie Kidwell and Mark Connell combined for 44 markers to pace Lefors past Allison, 69-29, Tuesday night.

Kidwell tossed in 24 points while Connell added 20 as Lefors won its second District 1-A game against one setback. Overall, Lefors is 9-12.

Also scoring for the winners were Monte Basket, 11; Mike Jackson, six; Roy Livingston, four; Buddy Reeves and Chris McMinn, two points each.

Bob Holm was Allison's high scorer with 11. Lefors jumped out to a quick 20-2 lead.

Lefors dropped the girls' game, however, 46-34.

Laurie Watson topped Lefors in scoring with 11 points, followed by Cass Whittington with six; Tonya Mills, five; Jackie Baker, Kim Lake, Cindy Stubbs, Lindy Livingston and Angela Stanley, two points apiece; Kathryn Still and Lias Moxon, one points each.

Wheeler cagers roll past Memphis

MEMPHIS—Wheeler's fullcourt press took its toll in the second half as the Mustangs slipped past Memphis, 48-45, Tuesday night.

Applying a ball control offense, Memphis bounced out to a 12-6 first-quarter lead and remained on top throughout the first half although Wheeler cut the gap to one, 20-19, at intermission.

Wheeler took command, 31-30, after three quarters.

"Our press started hurting them the second half," Mustang coach Warren Basly said. "We came up with some steals and once we got the lead we were in pretty good shape."

Russell Gaines, Wheeler's all-state football player, led the Mustangs in scoring with 15 points, followed by Boyd Waldo with 14.

Memphis was led by Paul Richardson and Lynn Monzingo with 14 and 13 points respectively.

"We spent on a lot of time on their offensive end," Basly said. "They played a real slow game. We didn't shoot as well as we've been averaging when we did get the ball, but it was good enough to win."

For the night, the Mustangs hit 18 of 55 shots from the floor for 32.7 percent and 12 of 16 from the foul line for 75 percent.

Also scoring for Wheeler were Benny Baker, eight; John Harris, six; Ty Henderson and Mike Gallagher, two points each, and Joey Waldo, one.

Gaines led his team on the board with 11 rebounds.

Wheeler lifts its record to 13-6 overall and 2-0 in District 2-2A play.

Wheeler girls rolled over Memphis, 53-26. Elise Christner had 18 points and Beth Brown 13 for the Lady Mustangs.

Lowly Pistons stun 76ers

By The Associated Press
With 3 1/2 minutes to go in Pontiac, Mich., everything was going according to form. The Philadelphia 76ers, the winningest team in the National Basketball Association, held a 75-71 lead over the Detroit Pistons, who had lost their last nine games.

And then, suddenly, the Sixers fell apart. They were held scoreless for the remainder of the game as the Pistons reeled off the final 12 points and walked away with a stunning 83-75 victory.

The 75 points tied the lowest output ever for Philadelphia, which also was held to 75 in games against Cleveland in 1973 and Washington in 1974.

The loss trimmed Philadelphia's lead over the second-place Celtics in the Atlantic Division to just one game.

In other games, the San Antonio Spurs edged the Phoenix Suns 119-112 in overtime, the Washington Bullets beat the Utah Jazz 121-113, the Chicago Bulls topped the Indiana Pacers 121-105, the New York Knicks trimmed the Seattle SuperSonics 98-97, the Cleveland Cavaliers defeated the Portland Trail Blazers 99-94 and the Kansas City Kings beat the Dallas Mavericks 104-91.

After the 76ers led 75-71, Detroit drew even on a jumper by Keith Herron and two free throws by Kent Benson tied the game. A jumper by Terry Tyler with 1:36 left put the Pistons on top 77-75, then Herron followed with another basket. Phil Hubbard hit two free throws and Ron Lee added a basket to wrap up the victory.

Spurs 119, Suns 112, OT
Mark Olberding, who scored just four points in the first three quarters, got 14 the fourth quarter and overtime to lead Midwest Division leader San Antonio over Pacific Division leader Phoenix.

San Antonio outscored Phoenix 19-10 in the five-minute overtime, with Olberding's jumper with 1:27 to go putting the Spurs ahead to stay.

Bullets 121, Jazz 113
Kevin Grevey scored 12 of his season-high 30 points in the third quarter, when the Bullets outscored the Jazz 30-17 to pull away. Greg Ballard added 28 points and Elvin Hayes had 25 as Washington handed Utah its fifth straight loss.

Adrian Dantley, the league's leading scorer with a 31.8 average, led the Jazz with 39 points.

Bulls 121, Pacers 105
Chicago's two All-Stars paced its victory over Indiana. Guard Reggie Theus scored 31 points and handed out 15 assists and center Artis Gilmore added 25 points and grabbed 20 rebounds.

The victory ended the Bulls' six-game losing string and snapped Indiana's three-game winning streak.

Knicks 98, Sonics 97
Campy Russell, who had just one basket in the first three quarters, got three in the final period, including an 18-foot jumper from the right side with 19 seconds left for the winning margin. Michael Ray Richardson preserved the victory by stealing the ball from Seattle's Wally Walker with six seconds to play.

Ray Williams of New York led all scorers with 30 points.

Phillips likely choice for Saints' job

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — With the resignation of General Manager Steve Rosenbloom, it appears likely that former Houston Oilers Coach Bum Phillips will be named head coach of the New Orleans Saints before the Super Bowl on Sunday.

Chances of an early announcement had dimmed over Senior Bowl week as Phillips, Rosenbloom and Saints owner John Mecom Jr. said there were still several details to be ironed out before an agreement could be reached.

Although all three repeatedly brushed it off as an easily resolved detail earlier, the issue of who would control team personnel apparently became an impassable barrier.

As coach and general manager at Houston, Phillips had total control of drafts and trades. Rosenbloom said he had that authority with the Saints, working through Dick Steinberg, his hand-picked vice president for personnel.

"I already have a general manager," Mecom said earlier, when he was asked if the issue of player personnel could be a stumbling block to hiring Phillips.

Mecom, Rosenbloom and Steinberg met Tuesday. When Rosenbloom could not get a commitment to building through the draft, with him and Steinberg continuing to make personnel decisions, they both quit, the AP learned.

Their brief statement made no mention of the struggle. None of those involved could be reached for followup comment.

The resignation statement said: "We came to the Saints with a mutual understanding and agreement in philosophy with the ownership on how to construct a stable winning organization."

"It has been apparent for some time that there exists a difference of opinion regarding how these goals should be approached. Under these circumstances, we feel that this decision is the best for all concerned."

"We do not feel that further comment on the situation is necessary."

Last Saturday, Mecom gave the first hints that he was becoming disenchanted with Rosenbloom. He said he didn't like Rosenbloom's describing the Saints' 8-8 record in 1979 as "cosmetic," among other things.

Rosenbloom joined the Saints after that 1979 season, the team's best ever, and before this year's skid to 1-15. He said his job was never in jeopardy but joined with Mecom in firing Coach Dick Nolan with four games left in the season.

Mecom has not announced that he is going to hire Phillips, but he said Monday that Phillips was 99 percent sure to be the next New Orleans coach.

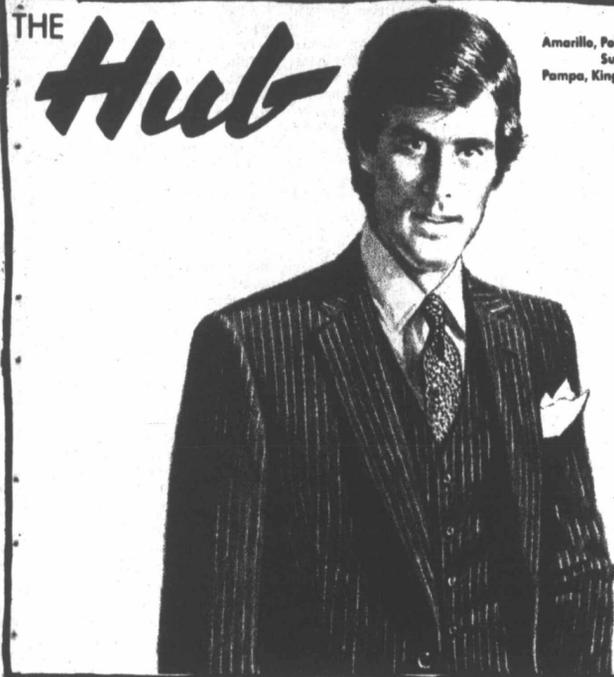

No news conference has been scheduled to announce the new coach.

Rosenbloom grew up in the NFL, son of the late Carroll Rosenbloom, owner of the Baltimore Colts and later the Los Angeles Rams.

After his father's death, the control of the Rams passed to Rosenbloom's stepmother. They had personal differences and Rosenbloom left Los Angeles and joined the Saints.

The Houston Chronicle quoted Mecom as saying Monday he had "decided on Bum" and an official announcement will be made as soon as he confers with Pete Rozelle, National Football League commissioner.

Mecom said he had been unable to reach Rozelle, who reportedly was in Washington for President Reagan's inauguration.

Eagle linebackers fight off injuries to reach Super Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — There is a link between Philadelphia linebackers Bill Bergey and John Bunting that goes much deeper than the full beards they wear or the fact that they play side-by-side in the Eagles' 3-4 defense.

It is the jagged scars that run along their left knees, the souvenirs of injuries that very nearly ended their football careers.

On Sunday, Bergey and Bunting will face the Oakland Raiders in Super Bowl XV. It is the game that pro football players wait a lifetime to play but for these two Eagle linebackers, it means so much more.

Bunting tore up his knee at New England in October, 1978. He spent the next year rehabilitating it and by sheer determination, he battled his way back into the starting lineup by the beginning of the 1979 season.

Bunting was just getting accustomed to playing again when lightning struck the Eagles' linebacking corps again.

In the third game of the 1979 season, Philadelphia was playing New Orleans in the Louisiana Superdome, where the Super Bowl game will be played Sunday. Bergey will never forget the game or what happened.

"It was down at that end of the field," he said, motioning toward an end zone. "It was a sweep, second play of the game. Chuck Muncie was carrying the ball. We were in a 3-4 defense (with three rushing linemen and four linebackers) and I started outside."

"My foot caught in the seam of the turf and just then Conrad Dobler hit me. I couldn't get my leg out of the turf. I heard a pop, three times, the kind you hear when you crack the knuckles in your hand."

Bergey went down and on the ground he watched the tackle being made.

"Bunting made the stop and it's ironic. We had the same injury, stitch for stitch. On the play when I went down, making the tackle gave him the confidence he needed to know he could play again."

Bergey limped to the sidelines with ligament and cartilage damage. That night he underwent extensive surgery. At age 34, his career seemed in very real jeopardy.

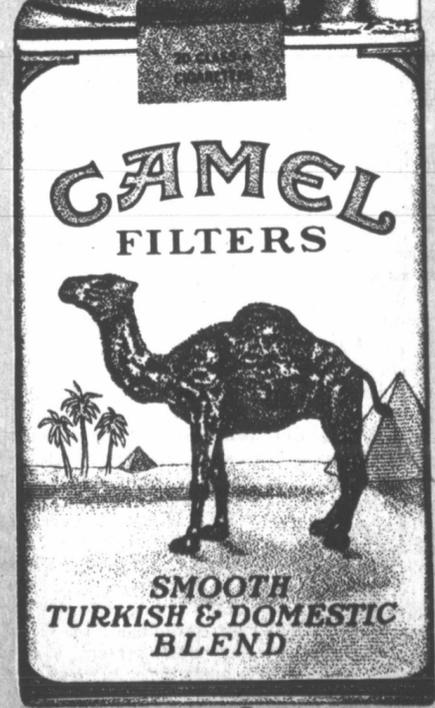

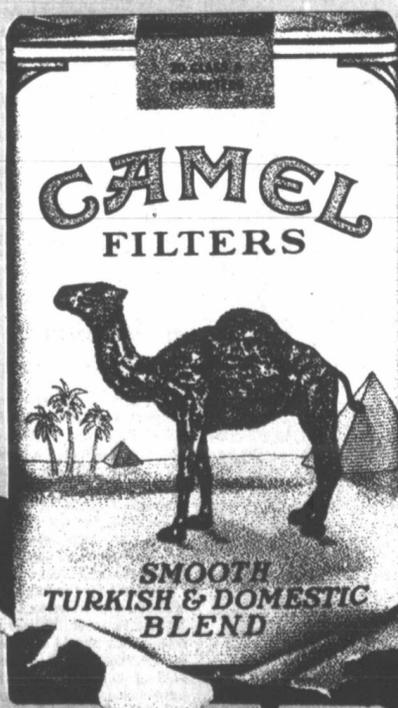

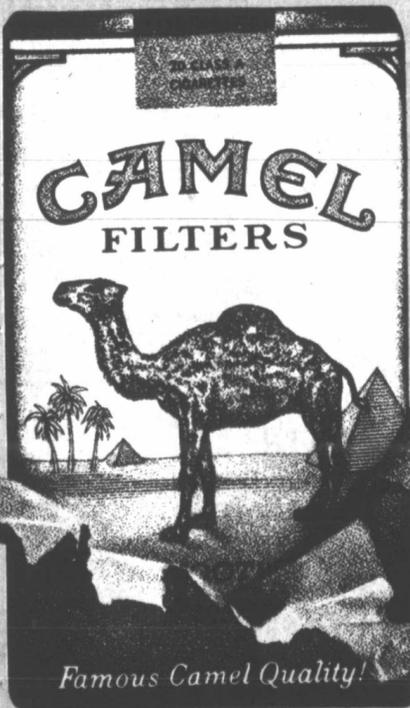

"Never once did I think of not coming back," he said. "When I was on the operating table and I realized I had the same injury as John, I thought to myself 'Oh no.' I knew what he had gone through. And then I thought, 'But he came back from his knee and he's playing.' Bunting was my guiding light."

Bergey said he had to learn to play football all over again. "Sometimes I'd fall down, like a child just learning to walk."

There was plenty of pain and anguish on the road to recovery but Bergey doesn't regret his sacrifice one bit.

"I have cherished every moment since I've been back," he said. "You get a whole new perspective once you've had to sit out for awhile."

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

OPINION PAGE

Putting U.N. in its place

Ronald Reagan has been asked by U.N. Ambassador Donald McHenry not to downgrade the Cabinet-level status of the job McHenry now holds. What McHenry so fears is the least Reagan should do.

Ideally, we'd like to see the new president put an end to American participation in this international charade and at the same time invite the U.N. and its bevy of freeloaders and spies to find some other refuge. Admittedly, this is not a politically realistic choice, although it is a good deal more acceptable than it was just a few years ago. What can be done, now, is to reduce the $500 million annual ransom this country's tax payers pay to this fanciful mechanism for world peace, most effectively by withdrawing from adjunct bodies such as UNESCO. At the same time, Reagan should be careful not to place official importance on its activities, so as to discourage false hopes among his countrymen. Assigning the U.N. ambassador a status roughly similar to, say, the envoy to Liechtenstein's would be a start.

Changes in China

The leaders of Communist China are concerned about the decline of faith in Marxism prevalent among the people, especially the young people of China. What many Western observers had previously seen as idealistic unity has been replaced by cynicism and apathy. Perhaps it was never much more than a veneer imposed partly by force and partly by deception and self-deception.

It is appropriate that even Chinese Communist Party publications speak of a "crisis of faith in Marxism." The terminology itself reveals that Marxism, far from being the supremely rational explanation of the universe it claimed to be, has always been a faith approaching a religion, held not because of, but often despite empirical evidence about its reliability. When people are asked to accept a faith that contradicts the evidence of their eyes and ears, they can do so for only so long. Marxism has been a peculiarly unpromising faith, and it isn't surprising that it is losing ground among the people of China.

This growing sense of realism, combined with an increasing availability of accurate information among the more educated people in China seem to mark an evolution from the doctrinaire Marxism and narrow world view that marked the Mao years. These developments should not cause us to expect an immediate flowering of political and economic freedom, nor do they mean that China might not become a dangerous adversary in the world once more should internal conditions or leadership change.

They do give us some hope, however, that the previous monolithic character of the communist enterprise has broken up almost irreversibly. By small degrees, we can perceive a disintegration of communism as a viable force in the world today.

We note these hopeful signs and look for more. Reversions to ideological type are possible, of course, but we suspect that communism has lost much of its dynamic force. It's a development lovers of freedom must view with guarded optimism.

Communism on trial

Reports from China tell of a surreptitious sign the Chinese often make when speaking of the trial of the Gang of Four on charges of treason and high crimes. They hold up five fingers signifying their instinctive understanding that Chairman Mao Tse-Tung himself is also in the dock, which is to say the Communist system itself is also on trial.

Actually, there are 10 defendants who once held sway over China before Chairman Mao's death. They include Jiang Qing, Mao's widow and leader of the gang; Chen Boda, one of the most powerful leaders in the Communist Party hierarchy and former secretary to Mao; Qui Huizuo, former logistics chief, and five senior members of the armed forces.

The gang and their fellow defendants are specifically accused of awesome atrocities during the Cultural Revolution of the 1960s. In total, the 10 are charged with persecuting 727,420 persons, 34,274 to their deaths. Moreover, as many as 100 million Chinese are reckoned to have suffered at their hands in some way during the revolution.

The skillful strategy of the new Chinese elite headed by Vice Chairman Deng is to obtain a formal verdict against the insanity of the Cultural Revolution and thereby to get rid of what Mao stood for without losing the Mao myth — without stripping bare the Chinese Communist pantheon.

In a broader sense the notorious trial is part of Deng's managed revolution against Communist orthodoxy from above that finds a remarkable parallel in the revolution against communism from below that is currently going on in Poland. A dictatorial, self-appointed oligarchy inherent in Communist rule is the object to be outlawed, circumvented and overthrown.

Neither China nor Poland has defined what is to replace Red dictatorship or how such leadership is to be chosen and renewed. This, indeed, is the bedrock issue — the unsolved problem of succession in the Communist system — the inability to replace incompetent or tyrannical rulers or to have an orderly succession.

Mugabe has right idea

By Oscar Cooley
Robert Mugabe, prime minister of Zimbabwe, which was Rhodesia until it became independent of Britain on April 16, 1980, urges the white farmers to stay on their farms and produce, instead of fleeing for fear of the rising political power of the blacks.

In many of the newly independent African countries, the black leaders have seized the land of the whites and deported the owners. Mugabe appears to have more sense. He has not only permitted but persuaded the whites to stay.

Addressing gatherings of white farmers, he has stressed the need for Zimbabwe to increase its production of food. This year, fewer acres were planted to tobacco, more to corn, and the second largest crop in the country's history is forecast. Of the some 2 million metric tons of corn expected, about half will be available for export to neighboring countries which have not been so foresighted.

Under the influence of socialist theory, most of the African countries have nationalized the land, that is, taken it away from the private owners and made it state property. The white ex-owners have been deported. The blacks, sensing that not they as individual farmers but the state would get the product of the nationalized land, have not strained themselves to plant, till and harvest large crops. Nature's droughts have further cut yields.

Result: Food shortage, bringing much of the continent to the brink of famine. Hundreds of thousands of tons of corn and wheat have had to be imported from free-enterprise South Africa. Zimbabwe has done differently. Three-fourths of its food and most of its grain for export are produced by some 5,300 white Rhodesian farmers whom Mugabe has allowed to remain on the land.

Thousands of acres of unused or abandoned land are being given to black farmers, said to number 700,000. Mugabe puts production ahead of nationalization. Zimbabwe seems likely to become the granary of south central Africa. The minister of agriculture looks forward to a doubling of production in the next 15 years.

This is not to say that all is peace and quiet in Zimbabwe. The country has recently emerged from a race war. Some 800 white farmers were among the casualties. Blacks, told that they are at last independent, are not above squatting on land that they think now should be theirs. Crops and cattle often are stolen. But white leaders say that conditions are improving. Although the past of some of the blacks, including Mugabe, would not bear close examination, they begin to see on which side their bread is buttered.

Blacks and whites and every shade of color between must learn to live together. The blacks have numbers and strength, the whites skill and experience. The two should complement one another, to their mutual good.

Race separation and strife make no sense. The sooner the racial difference is forgotten and both groups become color-blind, the better for all. The modern world is a melting pot and becoming more molten yearly.

The people of Zimbabwe appear to be setting all Africa a good example. Hopefully, even South Africa will profit by observing history unfold in its neighbor to the north.

Today is Wednesday, Jan. 21, the 21st day of 1981. There are 344 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Jan. 21, 1954, the first atomic submarine — the USS Nautilus — was launched in the United States.

On this date:
In 1793, France's King Louis XVI was beheaded.

In 1861, Jefferson Davis of Mississippi resigned from the U.S. Senate, 12 days after his state seceded from the Union.

In 1924, Russian revolutionary leader Vladimir Ilyich Lenin died at the age of 54.

In 1950, former State Department official Alger Hiss was found guilty of perjury by a federal jury in New York.

Ten years ago: In a surprise coup, the 92nd Congress toppled Sen. Edward Kennedy as assistant majority leader.

Five years ago: the supersonic Concorde airliner was put into service by Britain and France with flights from London to Bahrain and from Paris to Rio de Janeiro.

One year ago: In the first test of the presidential campaign, George Bush beat GOP front-runner Ronald Reagan in the Iowa caucuses and President Carter trounced fellow Democrat Edward Kennedy.

Today's birthdays: Golfer Jack Nicklaus is 41. Actor Telly Savalas is 57.

Thought for today: Let us be happy and live within our means, even if we have to borrow the money to do it with. — U.S. revolutionary Commander Artemus Ward (1727-1800).

Briefly noted...

By Don Graff
It's not easy finding anything to smile about in the simmering Polish revolution, but a wire dispatch turned up with a light moment the other day.

The successful — to date — movement to establish independent unions has created an instant business. It is in posters — and buttons and T-shirts and calendars and, who knows, maybe eventually bumper stickers. And it is thriving.

All these items extol the new non-government union. Solidarity, featuring its name in bold red script on white background — Poland's national colors. They are, it was reported, seen everywhere, even on employees of state enterprises.

It is reminiscent of the spin-off from the anti-war, anti-establishment agitation in the United States of the 1960s that appears to have become a permanent part of the national pop culture.

"Only in America" might once have been said of the particular phenomenon, but now it's also a case of "even in Poland."

Unfortunately, however, probably still "never in the Soviet Union."

On the other hand, don't count the Soviet citizen out when it comes to ingenuity in dealing with the deficiencies of his own system.

Another wire report informs that an effective way to get around chronic shortages in a household staple has developed. It somewhat resembles a capitalist mail-order business.

Rather than stand in endless lines at shops — often only to find upon reaching the head that the supply has given out — the Soviet consumer has taken to registering in advance. A form similar to a postcard is filled out and when the store receives fresh supplies, the card is mailed to the eager consumer who rushes in to pick up his reserved order.

The item is toilet tissue, the erratic supply of which has led to hoarding in the past. But that, it is reported, has become almost a thing of the past thanks to the card system, which would very likely be extended to other essential items but for the development of a new problem.

A shortage of postcards.

Iran has poison roots

by Paul Harvey

Americans are finding it difficult to understand the Humpty Dumpty government of Iran.

It is next to impossible for us to comprehend a religion which encourages war by promising that any who are killed in battle "go directly to heaven."

We have listened to the ayatollah's accusations that the late shah "murdered his political enemies."

We have ourselves tended to condemn the late shah — forgetting that the ayatollah himself has been murdering his political enemies, 50 or so every week since the takeover!

To understand Iran better, one has to understand the Islamic religion. It has poison roots.

Islam was founded by "the prophet Mohammed." He was a mortal who accumulated wealth and women by demanding ransom for the captives he took in the bloody wars he conducted "in the name of Allah."

What I'm saying is that for modern Iran to demand ransom in exchange for American hostages is consistent with the historic savagery of that religion.

After the War of Badr, Mohammed's own mind was divided over whether to kill 50 captives or hold them for ransom.

Then he got what he said was "a revelation from heaven." He elected to let the prisoners live and grab the ransom. To mollify the masses he divided the ransom money among the warriors, the poor and the orphans.

Meanwhile, he carefully kept one-fifth for himself.

In one of his frequent wars against those who refused to become Muslims he massacred the 800 to 900 male members of a Jewish tribe. "Beni Koreiza." He helped himself to their women.

One morning in March of 627 A.D. he ordered captives to dig trenches in the marketplace city of Medina, then seat themselves along the sides of the trenches where they were beheaded and buried with a single sweep of the sword.

No American knows the Middle East, inside and out, better than a world evangelist John Haggai. He says, "Islam always has been and always will be the religion of the sword because nowhere in the Koran is there any concept of love. According to the Koran God may have mercy on his chosen — but there is no mention of love."

And Muslims are exhorted to kill in the name of Allah.

In the seventh century Islam spread itself violently across parts of Asia, Africa and Europe.

And it has grown by 400 percent in the last 10 years in the United States.

The Southwest decision

By Anthony Harrigan
Southwest Africa, which the international media have dubbed Namibia, is a remote, strange land of great mineral riches and strategic importance for the West. It is imperative that the Reagan administration not allow it to slip into the grip of Marxist revolutionary forces.

Discussions over the future of the territory, administered by the Republic of South Africa, began in Geneva Jan. 7. The new administration should totally alter the Carter administration's approach to Southwest Africa, which has been bent on transferring power to the revolutionary Southwest Africa People's Organization (SWAPO).

The Soviet Union already dominates the revolutionary government in Angola — to the north of Southwest Africa. If SWAPO is installed in power, Moscow will have taken a giant step forward in its plan to control the mineral treasure house of Southern Africa.

It was absurd, in the first place, for the United States to embrace the idea of nationhood for Namibia. It is a colossal semi-desert and jungle area with a scanty population. None of the elements of nationhood exist in Namibia. The modern infrastructure was created by the South Africans after they captured it from the Germans in World War I. Logically, the territory should continue to be associated with South Africa.

Under international law, the South Africans have an unquestionable right to continue their control of the territory's only port — Walvis Bay, which is an area exclusive of the old League of Nations mandate.

The territory is enormously rich in diamonds and rare minerals vital to the United States and its Western allies. To think of transferring these vital free world resources to SWAPO, a puppet of the Soviets, should be unthinkable to a government headed by Ronald Reagan. The existing pro-transfer of power policy derives from the notions of Andrew Young and others who hate the idea of a Western presence on the African continent.

A formula for the future administration of Namibia can be worked out over a period of years. However, the security interests of South Africa should be given maximum consideration by the United States. The guiding consideration should be the prevention of the emergence of another Angola or Zimbabwe, where revolutionaries are in full control.

A central purpose of U.S. foreign policy in Africa should be to prevent any further gains by revolutionary forces. This means a total change of philosophy in the State Department, which has been busy promoting hurtful policies.

Over the next decade, the United States will be in a fierce resource war with the Soviet Union. The Soviets are doing everything within their power to deny strategic metals to the United States. Their prime target area is Africa.

The Carter administration completely ignored Soviet resource war objectives. It let the mineral riches of Rhodesia slip into hostile hands. It's time to call a halt to such destructive policy actions. Southwest Africa must be kept under Western control.

Last-minute actions at USDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are all sorts of loose ends and "final" actions when there is a change in administrations, and this time was no exception at the Agriculture Department.

For example, Bob Bergland and his successor, John R. Block, spent a couple of hours late Monday in the secretary of agriculture's spacious office, shaking hands with hundreds of well-wishing department employees.

As a parting gesture Monday night, about 40 of Bergland's closest associates gathered at his home and Mrs. Bergland left the department's administration building.

"I don't believe in saying goodbye or any of that other sappy sentimentality in times like these," Bergland told his friends. "It was great fun, the most fun I've ever had in my life. ... Thank you, we did our damndest, and we did it with dignity. See you on the trail."

Other actions, some of them routine, that occupied the bureaucracy's time at the Agriculture Department on the eve of the Reagan administration taking office, included:

Carol Tucker Foreman, for four years a controversial assistant secretary and consumer advocate, announced new federal grade standards for frozen brussels sprouts to "bring the standards in line with industry's present-day technology."

Now, she said, the rules will allow the use of mechanical trimmers, allowing the industry to save money in processing brussels sprouts.

The product "will be less uniform in size and shape but this will not affect its eating quality or nutritional value," Ms. Foreman said.

million pounds, a 28 percent increase from 2.78 million pounds in the same month a year earlier.

Also, the Crop Reporting Board said total production of farm-grown catfish last year was nearly 46.5 million pounds, a 14 percent increase from 40.6 million in 1979.

Prices paid to catfish farmers generally improved from 1979, according to weighted averages published in the report.

There was no average for the entire year, but the monthly figures ranged from 65 cents a pound paid in December to 69 cents earlier in the year. Comparatively, the average in December 1979 was also 65 cents, but earlier in the year the monthly price ranged down to 52 cents a pound.

One final-hour action by outgoing Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland involved implementing a "food security reserve" authorized by the 96th Congress before it adjourned last month.

Bergland's action officially set up 4 million metric tons of wheat already owned by the Agriculture Department's Commodity Credit Corp. as a food reserve that can be used only as aid to foreign countries.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat. Thus, the food reserve is about 146.8 million bushels.

Congress also specified that the grain can be used as foreign aid only when the U.S. domestic supply of wheat is so limited that sufficient quantities cannot be made available under Food for Peace assistance.

Bergland said, "This insulates the security reserve from the marketplace and prevents the stored wheat from depressing commercial grain prices when supplies are more readily available."

Honey production slipped to about 200 million pounds in 1980, down 16 percent from 1979. The number of bee colonies was down slightly, but the yield of honey per colony dropped sharply to an average of 48.2 pounds from 57.2 the year before, the Crop Reporting Board said.

Drought and, in parts of the Northwest, ash fallout from erupting Mount St. Helens, were major reasons for the decline in honey yields.

Popcorn output last year was about 528 million pounds, down 2 percent from 537 million in 1979, the board said. Farmers planted a larger acreage but reduced yields — again, largely because of drought — were the big problem.

Names in the news

MIAMI (AP) — Though he spent three months helping Ronald Reagan get elected, former President Gerald Ford spent inauguration day on a golf course here while his wife, Betty, stayed at home in California.

There's no ill feeling between the two Republicans, but "these's nothing I can do now but get in the way," Ford explained Tuesday.

"I've been to eight inaugurations before — this is Ronald Reagan's day," Ford said before teeing off at Doral Country Club. "My wife, Betty, and I worked very hard to campaign for Reagan's election, and now that it's over, we thought it would be better to step into the background."

Reagan challenged Ford for the Republican nomination in 1976. Ford won but was defeated by Jimmy Carter. The two Republicans patched up their differences in time for the 1980 campaign.

NEW YORK (AP) — No parties, no movies, no walking, no talking. That's diva Marilyn Horne's advice for steering clear of the flu.

The 47-year-old mezzo-soprano has been rehearsing for a Carnegie Hall recital, one that has been postponed twice because of her bout with influenza.

"The original date was Dec. 16, but that had to be put off because of a flu virus I picked up in Dallas in November, until Jan. 11," she said in today's New York Times.

She went to Florida to recuperate, picked up another bug and postponed the recital again.

Her prescription for avoiding the flu: "I don't walk anywhere in this cold weather. I lead a zero social life — no parties, no movies or plays, because I can't afford to come in contact with other people's viruses. And, talking being a singer's worst enemy, I do little of it."

NEW YORK (AP) — If you're a penny-pinching theatergoer, someday you may see Christopher Reeve on that long, winding line at TKTS, New York City's half-price ticket booth.

Reeve, now starring in Lanford Wilson's "Fifth of July," told the Daily News that he's a theater maven from way back and especially likes to "get off the beaten trail" and see new plays.

When he was shooting the movie "Superman" in London, he said he'd fly here every three months and "go to a Sunday afternoon play, a Sunday night play and again on Tuesday night."

The big, splashy Broadway productions are "good, dependable entertainment," but Reeve says he searches for "things that are a little riskier than that."

"I go exploring a lot — downtown to the Shakespeare festival and little places like The Impossible Ragtime Theater, the Theater for the New City, Chelsea Theater Center.

Woes plague feeders

AUSTIN — A combination of economic woes are threatening the Texas cattle feeding industry, and for some cattle feeders, "breaking even is about the best they can expect," Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown said today.

Brown noted that most Texas cattle feeders, who supply up to 15 percent of the nation's beef, face an average $50-per-head loss on each animal leaving their feedlots. "High costs on feeder cattle, grain and borrowed money are the major factors hurting cattle feeders at the present time," said Brown.

"Placements of calves into feedlots have declined by an average of 13 percent over the past three months, with further drops likely in the spring," he said.

"While the situation currently facing cattle feeders is bleak, we are hopeful that things may turn around in the coming months," he said. If interest rates drop substantially, and consumer demand for beef picks up after the holiday season, we could see some improvement."

Some of the problems facing cattle feeders can be attributed to this past summer's drought, the effects of which will be around long after the rains have come and temperatures have dropped, Brown added.

It now costs cattle feeders from 60 to 65 cents for each pound of weight put on an animal. This figure includes feed, medical care and other costs, but not interest, which is very substantial at today's rates.

The Texas Department of Agriculture's Market News Service, which provides complete price information on a variety of crops and livestock statewide, reports that as of Jan. 13, finished slaughter steers in the Panhandle area were bringing 67.5 cents a pound. "Therefore, it is apparent that profit margins are very slender, or non-existent," Brown commented.

Eight states had a total of 21 confirmed outbreaks of sporadic cattle scabies in December, the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service reported. The skin disease is caused by tiny mites.

The latest outbreaks occurred in Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, South Dakota, Oklahoma, Colorado, Texas and Kansas, the agency said.

The 21 outbreaks last month represented a sharp decline from 41 outbreaks reported in December 1979, officials said.

Production of farm-grown catfish in December totaled 3.55

Response rate high

AUSTIN — Texas farmers and ranchers have created the highest response rate in the nation to state statistical surveys on agricultural topics, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has reported.

The rate of response is 94 to 95 percent.

Texas has the most comprehensive statistical reporting program in the U.S., mainly due to the cooperation of thousands of producers who take the time to complete surveys," Brown said.

Livestock inventories are taken two to four times annually with reports on slaughter and marketing numbers released monthly.

Year-end summaries from producers provide the basic data for publication of annual statistics on crops and livestock and for county estimates, as well as production cost reports.

Also special surveys have been performed as needed, such as one on predator losses in the livestock industry. An update on irrigation conditions and costs is being considered for this year, Brown said.

Statistical reports are available by writing the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, P.O. Box 70, Austin, Texas 78767.

estimates which can be made with this process enable Texas producers and the agricultural industry to depend on the information in making marketing decisions," Brown said.

Early in the year a planting intentions report is issued which gives farmers a preliminary forecast of the season's acreage. As planting is completed, regular reports keep those in agriculture informed on the progress of major crops and harvesting totals as they are available.

Names are drawn from a universe of 150,000 across the state for reports on major crops and livestock with survey results published in various forms throughout the year. The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service is a cooperative effort of the Texas Department of Agriculture and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Brown said that from the first mailing of the survey, approximately 25 per cent respond. Five days after the mailing, a reminder card is sent out, which brings in another 15 percent. A second questionnaire and telephone follow-up raise the response to the 95 percent range.

"The accuracy of the

New Jersey official tries hijacking

NEW YORK (AP) — Maybe this is a case for the FBI, or the Interstate Commerce Commission. I'm not sure, but I've got to report a hijacking.

A state senator from Monmouth County down on the Jersey shore is trying to hijack bocce (sometimes spelled boccie) as the official State Game of New Jersey, which is like naming lasagna the national dish of Afghanistan.

Now everybody knows that bocce is a New York game, and the most popular game in New Jersey is collecting tolls or perhaps swatting mosquitoes. It used to be rolling wicker chairs along the boardwalk in Atlantic City, but now the crap shooters have moved the action indoors.

Anyhow Sen. Eugene Bedell of Keansburg, who is of Irish ancestry and probably wouldn't know a bocce ball from a Kerr's Pink Irish potato, has introduced Senate Bill 1573 to make bocce the official State Game of New Jersey. But I understand the real hotbed of the conspiracy is located in Asbury Park, which has had itself designated Bocce Capital of New Jersey by the legislature and boasts the state's honorary bocce commissioner, Anthony "Putt-Putt" Petillo, a city policeman who got his nickname from his motorcycle.

The smart talk around Trenton is that if the Bedell bill passes both houses, it will be signed into law by Gov. Brendan Byrne, another Irishman, which will be the greatest piracy perpetrated against neighboring New York since the hijacking of the football Giants to the Meadowlands.

Bocce was brought to America by Italian immigrants settling in New York's Greenwich Village just after the American Revolution. It may have looked suspiciously like the game Peter Stuyvesant's good burghers played on Bowling Green in their wooden shoes, back when the town was called Nieu Amsterdam, but that is just proof of an earlier hijacking.

Bocce is as old as the Roman Empire. The British adapted it for their game of "bowles" after Caesar's legions brought them civilization, then in the 18th century, in another historic ripoff, the Dutch called their version kegging. Imported by the French, it became "boules" or "petanque."

Bocce, according to the Associated Press Sports Almanac, is "the oldest bowling game in history." The name comes from the Italian word for kiss, which is what the game is all about, except that it is a very chaste kiss in keeping with the high moral standards of the mother country.

The game is played with eight large bocce balls, about the size of a grapefruit, four to a team.

and a ping-pong sized target ball called "Jack" or "Pelino," which as every aficionado of gangster movies knows means "little pal." The object is to roll the bocce ball closest to the target ball, blasting opponents who may be closer out of the way.

Crossman has nine employees and has been the owner and manager since 1963.

Seed supply may be tight

AUSTIN -- Supplies of planting seed for 1981 crops may be "tight" because of the drought last summer, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has reported.

"We are not certain how much seed farmers held back for the next season, but with production cut by as much as 40 and 44 percent in some crops, it is obvious that good mature seed is going to be hard to find in some areas of the state," Brown said.

Supplies of commercial seed companies will be assessed by the industry later this month.

State production of cottonseed in 1980 was 1,294,000 tons, nearly half that of 1979, which weighed in at 2,284,000 tons. "Much of Texas cottonseed is used for livestock feed, oil, and other by-products, but this reduction is an indicator of the problem that is ahead if farmers have not held planting seed in reserve," Brown said.

The selection of hybrid varieties of several crops may not be as broad as in the past because of reduced harvests and short carry-over in some commodities.

Brown advised farmers to check the label carefully on all seed purchased for this spring's planting.

LIGHTNING HAIR fashions from the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association include electrified waves and curls created through the latest perming methods for spring and summer. The Indian Lightning reflects fashion's Western interest.

Curls and waves return for spring, summer

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — "Lightning Hair" is flashing curls and waves back into fashion for spring-summer 1981, according to the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association.

Permed, curled hair is a necessary fashion ingredient again, says Doris Williams of Stateville, N.C., styles director for the 68,000 member professional organization.

Ms. Williams explained that fashion apparel designers are showing the most variety in fashion ever for spring-summer, including cowboys and Indians, hi-tech, romantic feminine and school girl designs.

"Straight, sleeked hair, which made a big return to fashion along with the preppy look, is not versatile enough to cover all the designer fashion moods now before us," says Ms. Williams. "Spring-summer hair fashions require curls, waves, expansion and volume for more versatility," Ms. Williams added.

The Lightning Hair fashion collection includes electrified waves and curls, bolts of fringe, wave currents, wave turbulence and wave explosions, which describes curl movement away from the head.

Expanded curls and waves are perm-designed to add softness to facial structures in lengths ranging from at-the-shoulder to above the ear.

The Lightning Hair collection includes electrified curls with expanded width to the head shape, super glamour star bombshell looks, shoulder length waves with fringe on one side, super short new wave looks with accenting fringe and versatile asymmetrical mid-length cuts. All except for the super short new wave looks are struck with lightning curls and wave action.

Lightning hair is highlighted by dazzling color, including color classics that capture some of the dynamic looks created by Hollywood's screen immortals. Any year is the year of the blonde, and Lightning Hair offers two striking Summer Blondes, the Blonde Bombshell and the Carmelized Blonde. These entrancing shades harken memories of Marilyn Monroe and Doris Day, two of film's most popular blondes. Other creations in NHCA's color classics collection are the Coralizing Redhead, Lacquered Lights, Sapphire Streaking and Laser Lights.

There are a number of long hair styling techniques which have been included in Lightning Hair to offer the woman a full line of styling options. These include hand over hand roping, the pony tail extension, hair binding, the basic chignon and ornamental extensions.

In recent years, the male client has turned to the cosmetology salon for the complete program of services that he desires. With this in mind, Lightning Hair features a series of design concepts that cater to a variety of needs. Male hair fashion designs include a wavy classic look with extra length in the back of the head and a new "electro cut" featuring short length on the top of the head with longer wavy length on the sides. The male designs include styling for a hair replacement, skin care, the shaping of facial hair, perming and coloring.

Perming and coloring add versatility to male hairstyles, and skin care serves both a physical and cosmetic role for the man. After his skin has been cleansed and freshened, the client is relaxed and his circulation, metabolism and physical and mental states are all improved as a result.

With its daring directions in perming, waves and curls, Lightning Hair is hair full of buoyancy and life for the active men and women of the 1980s.

Lightning Hair was created by NHCA Styles Director Williams and the Spring-Summer Coiffure Design Committee which includes Samuel Cappelletti of Margate, N.J.; Charlene Rusterbert of Evanston, Ill.; Michael Schuh of Centerville, Ohio and Diane Sherrill White of Statesville, N.C. All are members of the association's prestigious national styling group, the Official Hair Fashion Committee.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our son was married last June at a beautiful church wedding. He and his bride received many lovely wedding gifts. (There were over 300 guests.)

In September I started getting calls. ("Did Wendy ever get our wedding present?") I mentioned this to Wendy, and she said she was waiting for her monogrammed stationery. I told her I'd be glad to buy her some appropriate stationery and even help her write the notes, but she said she was "too busy" getting settled, and she'd rather wait. (This girl is a college graduate.)

Come December, my friends were asking me if Wendy ever received their wedding gifts, so I wrote a "thank-you" to everyone I knew had given them a gift. I signed Wendy's name, and mailed them off.

When I told her what I had done, Wendy was furious. Now my son isn't speaking to me. I really don't think I did such a terrible thing. Abby, what would you have done in my place?

MOTHER-IN-LAW

DEAR MOTHER-IN-LAW: I would have apologized to those who inquired, and let Wendy suffer the consequences of her own procrastination and bad manners.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14 and I'm in love with my teacher. He is 30 and married, and I know there is no hope for me, but I think about him night and day. (Especially night.)

I did a couple of dumb things, like copying his picture out of the yearbook for art class, and I also told some kids in school how I felt about him. Well, it must have gotten back to him, because now he avoids me and won't even look my way. Before this, he would smile at me and say hi.

I have written him a dozen letters but I've torn all of them up. I can't help how I feel. What should I do?

MISERABLE IN MALVERN, ARIZ.

DEAR MISERABLE: Don't do anything. Apparently your actions have already caused your teacher some embarrassment. You can't help how you "feel," but you can help how you behave.

DEAR ABBY: This is for those who are upset because their wedding gifts have not been acknowledged. I think this is even worse.

Last summer my husband and I were invited to a wedding. It was several hundred miles away and the trip cost more than we really could afford, but we felt an obligation to go because the bride's parents were our good friends, so we went anyway.

We did all the right things — signed the guest book, went through the receiving line, wished the bride happiness and congratulated the groom.

Subsequently we received a very nice note from the bride, thanking us for our gift. And she ended with, "We were so sorry you couldn't attend our wedding. We missed you." Sign me ...

One-man show to open in Dumas

DUMAS — A one-man show of paintings by Malcolm Hughes of Amarillo will be exhibited at the Dumas Art Center Galleries, 100 W. 7th, through the first week of February.

The exhibit will open Sunday with a public reception hosted by the Moore County Arts Association. The reception will be from 1:30-5 p.m.

A native of Amarillo, Malcolm Hughes has shown unusual artistic ability and creativity since early childhood. During junior high and high school, he won honors and prizes in local and national shows. While in high school, his work began to appear in art shows and galleries in the Southwest.

Since then, he has completed a degree in commercial art and has developed into a fine painter. In 1976, Hughes spent a year working and studying in Europe.

Working in both watercolor and oils, Hughes has become a master realist in landscape and still-life. His work has been exhibited in prominent galleries and shows throughout Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Colorado and Kansas.

Hughes believes art is creative communication and feels he is responsible for communicating skillfully and accurately the beauty, order, harmony and hope in life without romanticizing the brokenness of the present world.

Hughes and his wife Anne make their home in Amarillo. The artist studies and paints what interests him, be it the Texas landscape, still life, buildings or people.

He has accepted an invitation to teach a course in oil painting. The class will stress traditional and basic values in pictorial expression.

The class will be conducted Tuesdays from 7-9:30 p.m. Feb. 3 through March 24. The class will meet in the studio classroom at the Art Center.

Registration for the class is scheduled for Friday, Jan. 23 from 10:30 a.m. until 1 p.m.; Saturday, Jan. 24 from 1-3 p.m. and Sunday from 1:30-5 p.m. A list of materials will be given students during registration. Out-of-town students may register by mailing their tuition to Mrs. Howard Boyd, 111 Amherst, Dumas, Texas 79029. For more information, call Mrs. Boyd at 935-4531 before Feb. 3. Class enrollment will be limited.

The Moore County Arts Association will conduct the year's first general membership Jan. 26 at 7:30 p.m. at the Art Center.

The Association will present a program by Carolyn Stallwitz, a well-known wildlife artist and naturalist. Mrs. Stallwitz will present a slide program on birds and wildflowers of the area. The public is invited to attend.

Local firm to sponsor "Pounds Off for Heart"

"Pounds Off for Heart," sponsored by the Diet Center, 412 W. Kingsmill, will take place Feb. 1-28. The purpose of the event is to promote cardiovascular health while raising funds to help the American Heart Association fight heart disease and strokes.

Those interested in losing weight and supporting the American Heart Association are invited to weigh in at the Diet Center during the first week of February and pledge at least 49 cents (the retail price of a one pound can of shortening) or more for each pound lost during the month. All records will be confidential.

Sherry Conklin, counselor at the Diet Center, will give weekly weigh ins and encouragement. During February, weigh ins will be conducted from 7:30 a.m. until 1 p.m. and from 5-6 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 10:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. on Saturday.

Ms. Conklin will conduct weigh ins at places of business for groups unable to weigh in at the center. It is recommended that all persons weigh in at least once a week.

The center will sponsor "Feed a Healthy Heart" Feb. 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Natural Gas Co. building. Dr. C.M. Lang will discuss preventing heart disease and will relate proper diet and weight control to heart disease.

Quilting bee becomes business

By GALE TOLLIN
Associated Press Writer

WEBSTER, S.D. (AP) — The quilt company pieced together by a young VISTA volunteer who says he was "too dumb to know it couldn't be done" had sales of $50,000 in the year of its birth, 1971. Now it often sells that much in a single day.

George Whyte, who organized Dakotah Inc., says sales will total about $9.5 million for 1980, and $12 million is projected for 1981.

The 1979 payroll was $1.5 million. In 1980, it was about $2.5 million. Employees own Dakotah and are paid on a piece-work basis, most earning $7,000 to $12,000 a year but some as much as $20,000.

The more than 400 employees, farm and small-town people, work in six northeastern South Dakota plants. The largest number, 185, work in the main plant in Webster, population 2,252, where all cutting is done and quilts and draperies are manufactured.

Whyte, 32, general manager and executive officer who works at his desk and design table in jeans and sports shirts, calls Dakotah's growth "phenomenal."

A review by the Small Business Administration described Dakotah as "the most exciting and finest example of rural renewal we have ever witnessed." Twice the SBA acclaimed White "the Small Business Person of the Year." For the nation's best example of a self-help project, the U.S. Jaycee Foundation gave Dakotah its "Uplift" award.

But Whyte says he's proudest of the company's dedicated employees, and of the economic shot-in-the-arm that Dakotah gave depressed small towns.

"We've had an immense impact," Whyte says. "In 1970, you could park anywhere on Webster's Main Street. Today you're lucky to find a parking spot."

Dakotah is the largest employer in the area, and the payroll money circulates at home. People now are building new homes in Webster, says Mayor LaVern Batie, rather than moving away.

Whyte, reared on north-central Iowa "hog and gopher" farms, had left the University of Iowa after two years to join VISTA —

Volunteers in Service to America — and was assigned to help make an economic survey. While working southwest of Webster at Lily, population 62, the 21-year-old was impressed with the handicraft skill of women. He began thinking about a homegrown craft industry.

Whyte held hundreds of craft meetings, studied what the women were making, gathered a few items and sent to Washington, D.C., in December 1970 to locate department store markets. Only four people came to look at the line.

After several department store rejections, Whyte got in touch with a New York manufacturer's representative, Park B. Smith. Smith came to South Dakota in September 1971 and liked what Dakotah showed him.

Smith urged a display for New York's November market showing, where buyers select merchandise for the next season.

Yugoslav ballet slated to appear in Amarillo

CANYON — Lone Star Ballet Inc. will present the National Folkloric Ballet of Yugoslavia Saturday, Jan. 31 at 8 p.m. at the Amarillo Civic Center. The Yugoslavs, who come as ambassadors from their country, have been carefully chosen to represent the various traditions and cultures of Yugoslavia.

Branko Markovich, the troupe's artistic director, has made the dances as authentic as possible. He has studied the dances and customs of the six republics of Yugoslavia and the movement which each has developed throughout Yugoslavia's long history.

In contests they have taken highest honors. They have won gold medals at major events including the Vienna World Festival, the Moscow World Festival and the International Fair at Damascus. The troupes has thrilled audiences in 30 counties on five continents.

Tickets for the performance may be purchased at Sears in Amarillo and at the Canyon Box Office, 2020 Fourth Avenue. Reservations may be made by calling 655-2128 or by writing Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015.

ALTRUSA CLUB OF PAMPA

Altrusa Club of Pampa met recently in the Coronado Inn. Mary McDaniel, chairman pro tem, presided.

Nancy Duncan, chairman of the dental hygiene project, is teaching proper brushing techniques to all local third grade students. She announced the schools will be covered on school days Jan. 28 - Feb. 3, with the assistance of John Sparkman, D.D.S.

Rena Belle Anderson presented a charm to Yovan Deboski, Girl of the Month for January.

Irene Smith, bylaws committee chairman, discussed changes approved recently by the International Board of Directors.

Guests were Tesa Grabato, M.D. and Frances Lyons. The next meeting will be Jan. 26 at 7 p.m. at the Coronado Inn.

TOP O' TEXAS COWBELLES

Mrs. Rex McKay presided at a recent meeting of Top O' Texas CowBelles. The meeting took place at the Country Inn Steak House. Nine members, representing Wheeler, White Deer and Pampa, were present.

Plans were made for a fall style show given by the CowBelles in conjunction with Hi-Land Fashions. It was suggested that beef certificates be given as gifts to brides, employees and teachers. The certificates may be purchased from banks and grocery stores. Last year, Top O' Texas CowBelles gave beef to Genesis House and gave beef and memorial certificates to Girls Town. Donations were made to Texas CowBelles for the 1982 Cook Off and the Texas CowBelles scholarship fund.

Top O' Texas CowBelles was one of the chapters that hosted the Beef Cook Off that took place in Amarillo during the Texas Cattleman Feeders Convention.

The chapter had a booth at the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo and gave beef recipes and beef during the Homemakers School. In October, Top O' Texas CowBelles hosted the State CowBelles convention in Amarillo.

KAPPA ALPHA
The December meeting of Epsilon Sigma Alpha chapter of Kappa Alpha took place in the home of Mrs. Leon Taylor.

Members made Christmas corsages for senior citizens. The corsages, dips, chips and Christmas punch were presented to members of the Senior Citizens Center.

Members serving refreshments to senior citizens were Mrs. Paul Cearley, Mrs. Jim Cline, Mrs. Darrell Danner, Mrs. Jerry Dennis, Mrs. Harold Haines, Mrs. Ray Jones, Mrs. Jessie Watson, Mrs. Dave Turner and Mrs. Jerry Hildenbrand.

VARIETAS STUDY CLUB

Varietas Study Club met recently in the home of Mrs. Otis Nace. Mrs. J.E. Gunn, president, conducted the meeting.

Mrs. Georgia Mack presented a program entitled "To Your Health - Living and Liking It." She began her talk with the statement, "We are never too old to learn and it is the things you learn after you think you know it all that are most important to you."

She stressed that people should learn from work, friends, family and even suffering. She urged her audience to avoid self-pity - and to remember that self knowledge is the beginning of wisdom.

She illustrated her talk with pictures and a review of articles regarding successful women who overcame all odds to reach the top in their fields.

The next meeting will be Jan. 27 in the home of Mrs. Ladon Bradford.

PAMPA PANEHELLENIC ASSOCIATION

Pampa Panhellenic Association met in the home of Mrs. Fred J. Neslage to make plans for the year and to prepare for the annual meeting with the graduating senior high school girls. Mrs. Neslage presided.

Each year, Panhellenic members hope to make the transition to college life easier for the girls and to help them become familiar with sorority rush, pledging and the Greek system.

A committee was appointed to set standards for a Panhellenic scholarship. Committee chairman is Mrs. Wallace Birkes; program chairman is Mrs. Gail Ethredge.

Decorations for the meeting were provided by Mrs. David Holt, Mrs. Loyd Harvey provided refreshments. The next meeting and party for senior girls will be Feb. 16 at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Neslage. All members are urged to attend.

Employers can prohibit use of foreign language

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, by refusing to review a lower court ruling, is allowing employers to prohibit their workers from speaking a foreign language on the job.

The high court on Monday let stand an appeals court decision which upheld the 1975 firing of Hector Garcia.

Garcia, a Mexican-American who spoke English and Spanish, was dismissed by Gloor Lumber and Supply Inc. of Brownsville, Tex., partly for speaking Spanish with another employee in violation of a company policy.

The company required salespeople to speak only English on the job except when dealing with Spanish-speaking customers.

The company said this policy was necessary to avoid offending customers who speak only English, to maintain the workers' fluency in English, and to enable English-speaking supervisors to monitor employee activities.

Garcia charged that the English-only rule discriminated against him by forbidding him the use of his native language.

On other issues Monday, the Supreme Court:

—Agreed to decide whether the Minnesota State Fair must allow members of the Krishna Consciousness sect to roam freely among visitors while selling literature and seeking donations.

—Agreed to determine whether free food and lodging provided by an employer for workers at remote locations are "wages" subject to Social Security and unemployment insurance taxes.

—Rejected an appeal by Philadelphia Inquirer reporter Jan Schaffer against her six-month jail sentence for refusing to tell a court who gave her information on the FBI's "Abscam" investigations into congressional influence-peddling.

In the language case, the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission had decided there was "reasonable cause" to think Garcia was fired because of discrimination, in violation of federal law.

But a federal district judge in Laredo, Texas, said the language policy was a valid business necessity. The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals agreed.

Rosy future predicted for coal exports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forecasting a rosy future for U.S. coal exports, a government task force predicts the United States will be supplying 38 percent of total world demand by the end of the century.

The Interagency Coal Export Task Force appointed by President Carter said this rapid increase is possible with very little federal aid.

The United States supplied about 6 percent of the 76.5 million tons of coal sold on the world market in 1979, the task force said in a report Monday.

It forecast that would triple to 18 percent in 1985, increase to 25 percent in 1990 and hit the 38 percent figure by the year 2000.

Meanwhile, the report also forecast a rapid rise in total coal sales as more countries looked for an alternative to expensive and unreliable supplies of oil.

The report estimated the world coal market excluding Communist and developing countries would increase to between 475 million and 565 million tons by 2000.

The problem of clogged port facilities which added an average of 40 days waiting time for ships seeking U.S. coal in 1980 should begin clearing up in mid-1983 and be totally alleviated by 1985, the task force said.

Approximately 23 million tons of new coal loading capacity annually is already being built at the nation's ports and there are plans for another 160 million tons, according to the report.

"The development of new piers and associated coal loading equipment is not the responsibility of the federal government, but rather that of private industry, the states and local governments," the report concluded. "Their response now appears to be entirely adequate."

The report said the long delays in 1980 at such harbors as Baltimore and Hampton Roads, Va., were caused by strikes in two other principal coal exporting countries — Australia and Poland — which increased demand for U.S. coal beyond all previous forecasts.

—Let stand the dismissal of a discrimination complaint against a foreign government, the United Arab Emirates, which asked job applicants in this country to list their religion.

—Agreed to review police evidence-gathering rights in two drug-arrest cases. In one case a man was arrested when police found cocaine in the pocket of a jacket in the back seat of his car; in the other, a defendant claimed that packages of marijuana found in his car were "personal luggage" which could not be searched without a warrant.

—Refused militant atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair's request to prevent a federal appeals court in New Orleans from asking God to protect it when it hears two cases involving her next week.

Billions of dollars stolen by 'just plain folks'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The bartender who "forgets" to ring up every sixth drink, the clerk who wraps four dresses and charges a friend for one, the waiter who neglects to list items on a diner's check — besides being crooks, these people have something else in common.

They're mostly ordinary Americans, plain folks who have families and homes, who watch television and go to work — where they steal an estimated $15 billion a year from their employers.

A man dedicated to reversing the sting of these thieves is Steve Long, president of Triad Consultants Ltd.

"I'll bet you that any 10 people you see on the street — nine of them stole something once," says the salty, Bronx-born private eye.

Long calls himself a "crook-catcher" and reckons he and his 21 operatives, aided by lie-detectors, recovered nearly $500,000 of $3 million in employee thefts they investigated last year.

"I'm convinced that people never steal out of necessity," he said. "I never met a man who stole a loaf of bread because he was hungry. A lot of theft is spontaneous. People steal because it's there."

Long estimates "80 percent of all shrinkage in retail businesses is attributable to internal factors — not shoplifters."

He said bars are a favorite target of crooked employees, and much of his business comes from owners who can pay in the neighborhood of $450 for eight hours of surveillance and polygraph tests.

"I remember a club, no longer in operation, and a bartender there who once commented that the boss wanted good 'pour-costs.'"

"That means a short-pour of a drink," Long translated. He quoted the bartender as admitting, "...If I take (steal) every fourth drink, it's still going to make my pour-costs look good...I'm just going to cheat the customer a little bit more."

Long chortled over the restaurant worker who was finally caught after stealing hundreds of eggs.

"The amount was enormous. He stole every day. It turned out his wife had this religious ritual. She bathed in eggs."

He once caught a restaurant official who didn't think he was stealing, although he cost his boss $20,000 in 10 months.

"What he did was buy drinks (for customers), and he continued buying them drinks and buying them drinks and make them feel guilty, and they would give him a very big tip."

Employees, Long said, "will steal anything... If I want to get rid of my garbage all I have to do is put it in a neat paper bag with a staple on top of it, and put it in front of my door. And the garbage will be stolen."

Movie theaters are regular targets of employee theft, Long said, explaining that the ticket-seller often works with the ticket-taker, who hands you old stubs, palms your tickets and delivers them to the ticket booth for resale.

"We've found people in chains all over the country making $900, $1,000 a night selling tickets over and over," Long said.

Jim Hill, security manager at Macy's on Union Square, estimated that 40 percent of theft from the store last year could be blamed on employees.

Hill said a male worker was caught after it was discovered that $115 was missing from his register on the same day each month.

"What was happening was that he was making his car payments and they were due the next day. He wanted Macy's to pay for his car."

Long, president of the California Academy of Polygraph Sciences, said the lie detector is the heart of his operation. Often the device is so intimidating that the thief confesses before the test can be given.

"I tell people taking tests, 'If you don't want to tell me the truth, leave the room. If you want to tell me the truth and straighten this out, fine.'"

He advises employers "not to be afraid of employees. If they start making noises about constitutional rights, you have to remember that as an employer you have constitutional rights, too. No employer has to give up money because an employee wants to steal it."

Drought cut state's crop production

AUSTIN — What weeks of 100-plus temperatures and months without rain can do to Texas agriculture is evident in the final production totals for the state's major crops in a report released this week by Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

The losses ranged from 49 percent in sweet potatoes and 44 percent in peanuts to only 11 percent in corn, which is mainly an irrigated crop," Brown said. "Resulting high prices for some commodities have been good news for producers fortunate enough to have a good harvest, but have also brought about increased costs for feed and seed, and retail foods."

A run-down on the major income-producing crops show how deeply the dry weather cut into yields. The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service estimates are as follows: Corn, 117 million bushels, down from 132,300,000 bushels in 1979; grain sorghum, 181,700,000 bushels, down 25 percent from the 243,000,000 bushels last year; cotton, 3,305,000 bales, down 41 percent from last year's 5,539,000, and peanuts, 300 million pounds, down from 533,025,000 in 1979.

Potato harvest was cut by 39 percent with a total of 2,306,000 hundredweight. Sweet potato production decreased 49 percent to 520,000 hundredweight.

Astro-Graph by bernice bede osol

January 22, 1981

It's possible this coming year that you could have something quite good in your grasp without fully appreciating all its ramifications. Look for an unusual product or item which can be taken to the marketplace.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The opinions of others are important today, but they should not be taken so seriously that they cause you to act against your own better judgment. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 459, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If your work habits are erratic today, the results are likely to be similar. Don't do things in fits and starts. Organize your schedule and efforts.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Basically you're a very adventurous and daring person. Under proper circumstances, these are commendable traits. Today, however, you may be tempted to take unwise risks.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Remorse could later set in if you make important decisions too impulsively today. Stall for time and a chance to study what you're getting into.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Keep in mind today that anything worth doing is worth doing well.

Tasks given merely a lick and a promise may have to be done over.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Treat your resources and possessions with prudence and respect today. Reckless or extravagant behavior could put you behind the 8-ball.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Look out for your interests today, but try to do so without being too self-serving. Others will let you know quickly enough if you are.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Normally you're pretty good at keeping confidential information to yourself, but today could be an exception. You might reveal something that's best kept secret.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're a very generous person, but be careful today what you lend and to whom. Give only if there is a real need.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be careful today that you don't overreact and make an issue of something that really isn't one. Let your logic prevail, instead of your emotions and pride.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Sometimes your hunches are rather amazing and accurate, but this may not be the case today. Signals from your intuition could contain a lot of static.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A well-meaning friend who has caused you some complications previously could create ripples again today if you permit him or her to get involved in your private affairs.

'Frankenstein': a monstrous failure

No special effects on Broadway

NEW YORK - "Frankenstein," the most expensive nonmusical ever mounted on a Broadway stage, opened and closed the very same night at the Palace Theater here this week. The critics just plain massacred it.

At a price tag in excess of $2 million, "Frankenstein" surpasses 1979's "Ballroom" to rank as the biggest financial disaster in the history of Broadway. Local wags are already calling it Broadway's answer to Hollywood's "Heaven's Gate."

A valuable lesson can be learned from this major flop. The lesson: much as it may seem so these days, Broadway is still not Hollywood. What works for one doesn't necessarily work for the other. Boy, does it not work.

Based loosely on Mary Shelley's classic novel about a man and his monster — and on the 1930s Boris Karloff films — "Frankenstein" sought to captivate audiences through a device that has proved so successful on screen: special effects.

They don't come cheaply. "Frankenstein" cost $800,000. But the producers, eyeing the successes of lavish, dazzling musicals like "42nd Street" and "Barnum" — and the repeated failure of serious drama — believed the answer could be to mount a straight play with eye-popping visual effects.

Just to be sure they chose a scary story everyone knows and loves, "Frankenstein" seemed as if a natural to be a smash hit. Maybe not the worthiest of gambles, but a smart one. "Star Wars" on stage.

And the effects were indeed astonishing. Created by Bran

DAVID DUKES as Dr. Frankenstein and Keith Jochim as his misbegotten creation: Can you imagine it - a boring monster?

Ferren, who recently finished the film "Altered States," they drew hearty cheers from the opening night crowd. A snowstorm swirled across the stage. Clouds passed before the moon. Lightning crackled, thunder shook the seats. Eerie purple fog shrouded a cemetery. Most spectacular of all was Frankenstein's tower laboratory, crammed with highly charged electronic equipment and bubbling retorts.

Effects like these have never been seen before on a Broadway stage, and aren't likely to be seen again. Despite its amazing effects, "Frankenstein" wasn't a play. It was more like a musical with visual effects instead of songs. There were 10 rapid and complete scene changes, and the script was just like the dialogue, characters and action serving merely as gap fillers while the audience waited for the next big "number."

The big flaw with banking on the effects, and it is a colossal one, is that after you've shown them once you've got nothing else to offer. When Frankenstein's lab swung into view for the second time, in act two, it drew no cheers. Now it was only the backdrop for the story. The audience had settled in, wanted its drama.

And didn't get it here. The play, by Victor Gialanella (with no mention of Mrs. Shelley) was a hodge-podge of bits and pieces from the original book and the movies, the story dashing here and there, never nailing down anything. There was no yarn here, no internal structure. The "Frankenstein" story generated no thrills of its own. It was just plain dull.

Especially because the monster (Keith Jochim) talked. And talked. Argued belligerently and at great length with his creator (David Dukes), who was here more guilt-ridden than possessed. Can you imagine it — a boring monster? The Times critic, registering his disbelief, called the monster "a beery lout in a Halloween costume."

So, apparently, special effects aren't the way to bring people back to nonmusicals. Maybe you can get away with flash instead of content in a Hollywood movie (though the really big successes like "Star Wars" have both the hardware and the story). But the failure of "Frankenstein" demonstrates that, on stage, dazzle alone isn't enough to make people shell out $55 for a pair of duets. Not unless they're also getting a steak dinner.

From skates to spies for Lynn-Holly

LONDON (NEA) - Lynn-Holly Johnson, who easily could be typecast as the "American girl-next-door," has come a long way from next door. In fact, she is now moving in rather exalted circles.

She's playing a teen-ager (at 21, she still looks young enough) who tries to coax Agent 007 into a small fling, in the new James Bond picture, "For Your Eyes Only." It's a far cry from "Ice Castles," the film that introduced the world to Lynn-Holly Johnson.

As she did in "Ice Castles," she skates in "For Your Eyes Only," too, and those sequences will be shot later at the lovely Italian winter resort, Cortina D'Ampezzo. She is looking forward to that, but she is much more eager for the acting sequences than the skating sequences.

Even though it was her figure skating talents that brought her to prominence, she feels her future is on warm land, not ice-cold skating rinks.

"I hope this is my last skating-and-acting picture," she says.

But it may not be. There is pressure underway for her to star in a film biography of the late ice-skating actress, Sonja Henie. Lynn-Holly Johnson is the first actress to make it from the figure-skating world since Sonja Henie did back in the '30s and '40s.

Though she is now at the point where she'd like to give up professional skating and concentrate on acting, skating was Lynn-Holly Johnson's first love. And were it not for being in the right place at the right time, she might still be the top figure skater she was.

She started skating as a toddler (she also acted in school and remembers playing the Helen Keller role in a production of "The Miracle Worker.") She was always good at her ice work and, at 15, won the silver medal in the U.S. national novice free skating competition.

At 18, she turned pro and joined the Ice Capades; she loved her association with that big show.

"I'd probably still be there," she says, "but scouts for the 'Ice Castles' movie saw me in the show."

She had what they were looking for — skating prowess, a lovely appearance and teen-age charm. She did the picture opposite Robby Benson, and an actress was born. She has since done the Disney movie, "A Watcher in the Woods," with Bette Davis and Carroll Baker.

"For Your Eyes Only" is just her third movie, but she is no longer the starry-eyed innocent. A couple of recent incidents have opened her eyes to movies and movie stars, and she has learned that even stars have their rough edges.

Just before she came to England for this role, she attended a Hollywood affair. Her "Ice Castles" co-star, Robby Benson, and her "Watcher in the Woods" co-star, the legendary Bette Davis, were both in attendance. She says she was a little hesitant about approaching Miss Davis, but felt old pal Benson would be pleasant.

Benson turned out to be cold and distant toward her, she says, while Miss Davis "was warm and wonderful, and hugged and kissed me."

NUMB ARMS, LEGS
Danger Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, lightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others.

Here are nine critical symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations which are usually the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these usually spells back trouble.

(1) Paresthesias (see above) (2) Headaches
(3) Painful joints (4) Numbness in the arms or hands (5) Loss of sleep (6) Stiffness in the neck (7) Pain between the shoulders (8) Stiffness or pain in lower back (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals indicate that your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these danger signals... call for in depth consultation in Layman's terms.

Reagan calls hostages 'prisoners of war'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan parted past midnight in celebration of his presidency and the hostages' freedom, and then settled into the White House today with a renewed commitment to rebuild the economy and pare the size and cost of government.

"We don't have a thing to worry about," a jubilant Reagan declared to a black-tie crowd of supporters packed into a hotel ballroom. "Between us we're going to straighten things out and we're going to take the high road."

After swearing in his White House staff today, Reagan planned to convene his first Cabinet meeting. His aides said he would issue a directive to begin searching for waste and abuse in the federal bureaucracy and also may suspend pending federal regulations so they could be reviewed.

Also being considered, but likely to come later, is an executive order abolishing the Council on Wage and Price Stability, the officials said.

The return of the 52 American hostages from Iran was still unfolding as Reagan set out Tuesday night for appearances at a formal dinner and nine inaugural balls. As aides told him the latest developments, he shared the news with partygoers, updating his announcements as the night wore on.

"I think you might like to have a little news bulletin," he said early in the evening. "I have just learned that the planes have landed in Algeria. Fifty-two — and I won't call them hostages, they're prisoners of war — are well and hearty and preparing to board American planes..."

At his final appearance, he told the audience, "These POWs are only minutes away from landing in Wiesbaden, West Germany," where they will stay for the next few days to readjust to freedom.

Reagan's announcements and characterization of the hostages as POWs drew cheers and whistles at each stop.

Over a four-hour span, Reagan sped from party to party around town, never staying more than 10 or 15 minutes. Organizers estimated the total attendance at more than 45,000, and all the balls were packed.

Reagan was decked out in white tie and tails, but his wife Nancy stole the fashion show. Mrs. Reagan, with her hair pulled back in a chignon, wore a white satin and lace sheath that sparkled with crystal and chalk beads.

"I think she looks gorgeous," Reagan said.

For Reagan it was, in his words, a "perfect day," particularly because of the hostages' release.

"I'm more pleased than anything I can say," he told reporters as he posed for pictures in the Oval Office during the afternoon. "It's been a very wonderful day. I guess now I can go back to California."

The new president's mood was soaring as he went from crowd to crowd, and at one party he poked fun at himself, at age 69 the oldest man ever inaugurated as president.

Singing doctors prescribe barbershop tunes for patients

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — When Dr. Rich Muller comes upon a patient who is depressed, he may call in three colleagues for consultation — on what to sing.

Then the four Hartford Hospital physicians will emerge from their huddle as a barbershop quartet called the Spinal Chords and launch into an a cappella rendition of "Margie" or some other standard.

"It was logical to start singing for patients. Sometimes they need cheering up. We even go into the intensive care unit and sing for people," said Muller, a second-year medical resident at the city's largest hospital.

"I've always said that no one can listen to barbershop and not smile," said the baritone, who plays piano but had little previous performing experience. "So, sometimes one of us or one of the nurses or someone else says, 'Hey, I've got a patient who's down in the dumps,' and we get together on the spot and sing."

The quartet began when, as first-year residents, tradition required that the young doctors entertain the 1979 staff Christmas party with an act of some kind.

Under the leadership of Muller — "I've always had a passion for barbershop" — they put together an act made up of Christmas carol tunes with new lyrics spoofing their fellow workers and life in the hospital generally.

They enjoyed it and quickly turned to traditional barbershop songs.

"We discovered that the stairwells had wonderful acoustics. They made us sound twice as good as we were," said Muller, 28, who hopes to become a general practitioner in a tiny, remote upstate New York town after completing his work here.

After some stairwell practice sessions, the Spinal Chords began singing in the hallways, in the wards and in patients' rooms. Last month, they made it to the top: They sang at a hospital board of directors meeting.

Twice in recent months they have sung for former Connecticut Gov. Ella Grasso, who is in the hospital for cancer treatment. Liver cancer forced her to resign at the end of last month.

In addition to Muller, the group includes tenor Bud McDowell of Middletown; Kent Stahl of Hartford, who sings lead; and bass singer Mark Rosenbloom of Fairfield.

Word of the four singing doctors has spread in the Hartford area.

"The admitting office says a good number of patients, when they're about to be admitted, ask whether they'll get to hear the Spinal Chords. That's really true," Muller said.
