Explosions injure two in Corpus oil refinery

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Two explosions ripped through a petroleum refinery today, setting three gasoline tanks on fire and seriously injuring a company employee and a truck driver, officials said.

Officials at Southwestern Refining Co. said the explosion occurred when highly flammable vapors and liquid gasoline seeped through a leak in a tank that holds 66,000 barrels of gasoline.

Duane Eckles, 47, of Corpus Christi, was in critical condition with burns over most of his body, said a spokeswoman at Memorial Medical Hospital.

John Fernandez, 44, a truck driver from Rosharon, was listed in fair condition with burns on his face and hands, she said. Both men are in the hospital's burn unit.

"Apparently, there were two separate explosions after the vapors leaked out and spread over the area" near a residential neighborhood, said Herb Sager, spokesman for the refinery, a subsidiary of Kerr-McGee Refining Co.

A nearby city recreation center opened immediately after the explosion and at least 30 people had taken refuge there by 5 a.m., officials said.

Sager said company officials were not sure where the leak started or what ignited the vapors.

"The man that was burned so severely (Eckles) called the fire department after the first explosion, then while he was on the phone the second explosion occurred and that's when he was burned."

Sager said the operating house where Eckles had gone to use the phone was completely burned out.

Assistant Fire Chief R. K. Gibson said four units responded to the call about 4:08 a.m. and found three large gasoline storage tanks ablaze.

"The fire is under control now," Sager said. "We're just letting it burn out."

The refining plant produces 125,000 barrels of gasoline a day. Sager said there were six large tanks in the area where the explosion occurred.

"We know that a gasket (on one of the gasoline lines) failed, but we think that it failed because of the heat from the fire," Sager said. "We don't think that was the location of the original leak."

Sager said gasoline vapors continued to leak through a manhole on one of the tanks and firefighters were pumping gasoline out of the tank through one line and refilling the tank with water.

"As soon as the water rises above the leaking area, the fire will go out," Sager said.

Building valuation triples in '80

The value of new property in Pampa is three times as great as building valuation totals for the same time last year, according to figures recently released by the city's building inspector.

Total valuation of building permits issued for 1980 totaled more than $15 million as compared to the $3 million valuation reported in 1979.

Steve Vaughn, city building inspector, said $6.5 million of this year's total was for the new Coronado Community Hospital under construction at a site on North Hobart.

The Caprock Apartment Complex — soon to be opened on West Somerville — upped the 1980 valuation total by $2 million, Vaughn said.

The city building inspector said 1980's valuation has more than doubled last year's figures, despite the nearly $7 million for these two capital projects.

While new residential housing have basically remained the same during the past year, Vaughn said mobile home permits increased significantly during 1980.

"This past year, more than any other time, the influx of mobile homes has risen in Pampa," Vaughn said.

"For us, house building is plugging on about the same. We haven't shown any increase or decrease," he added.

"I really haven't expected building to drop off in Pampa as it has in other towns. Here, builders build according to the supply and demand," Vaughn commented.

The building inspector said local builders do not "spec" build — construct new homes on the speculation the houses will sell. "Most houses are sold when they're built," he said.

For the month of December, 20 building permits were issued with a total value of $574,442, as compared to November's valuation of $21,628.

Five residence permits, valued at $370,534, were issued by the inspector's office in December. Mobile home permits number 10 with a total valuation of $151,500.

One commercial building permit valued at $40,000 was issued. Three alterations and additions to dwellings were issued with a total valuation of 10,408, according to the building permit report.

Reagan to slash federal budgets 'across the board' to cut deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan said today he will try to slash federal spending "across the board" to trim the budget deficit of $60 billion he is expected to inherit when he moves into the White House.

"We're going to start whittlin' it," Reagan said when asked what he would do about the expected deficit. Asked whether he had specific targets for cutbacks, he replied: "Across the board."

Reagan aides, however, have said in the past that defense spending will not be subject to the budgetary squeeze.

The incoming president spoke briefly with reporters as he headed for his first business meeting with his Cabinet nominees, held at the State Department. He was escorted into the building by Alexander M. Haig, the president-elect's nominee as secretary of state, and Edmund S. Muskie, the outgoing secretary. Reagan was applauded by department employees in a hallway.

Reagan said the meet participants, sitting around a large, square table, would discuss "just how we're going to organize, work together."

Facing economic forecasts far gloomier than he had expected, he was told by advisers Wednesday that in addition to the red ink, federal spending is up $45 billion over levels projected last June.

Reagan told participants at the Wednesday meeting to bring him more ideas for slashing federal spending and reviving the slumping economy.

The economy has "been deteriorating very badly and I think it's a very serious situation," he told reporters as he left a reception for transition workers Wednesday night.

Reagan was returning to Los Angeles today. He will return to Washington next Wednesday to await the inauguration Jan. 20.

The president-elect met with his strategists for more than two hours Wednesday to review the state of the economy and look at possible ways to cut spending. "A whole raft of things" were examined, a source said.

These included such entitlement programs as unemployment insurance and trade adjustment assistance, student loans, food stamps, Medicaid, highway and bridge programs and even Social Security, the source added.

Treasury Secretary-designate Donald Regan said the president-elect found his first comprehensive briefing by his new economic advisers "very interesting."

Algerian spokesman cautiously optimistic

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — America's chief hostage negotiator, on a hastily arranged visit to Algeria that stirred fresh hopes for the release of the 52 Americans held in Iran, met today with Algerian Foreign Minister Mohamed Benyahia.

In Tehran, meanwhile, an official at the Algerian Embassy sounded a cautiously optimistic note.

A reporter who telephoned him from Lebanon asked the official whether he believed the American hostages would be freed soon.

"We hope so. Be patient," he replied.

The Algerians are acting as intermediaries in the U.S.-Iranian negotiations for release of the Americans.

The U.S. negotiator, Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, met for two hours here with Benyahia. Neither side released any information on the meeting. Earlier, Christopher said the U.S. and Iranian positions appeared a bit closer.

In Washington, Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie said the purpose of the Christopher mission was to provide the Algerians with a "full understanding" of the U.S. position.

Interviewed on the Cable News Network, Muskie said the fact that Iran had posed a series of questions about U.S. proposals indicated a "show of interest" in ending the crisis. But he added that it was not clear whether the questions "revealed the full scope of our differences."

Christopher arrived in Algiers earlier in the day. "I don't want to say anything more than I said in Washington," he told reporters at Houari Boumediene airport.

His arrival, the third such trip he has made to the Algerian capital, was reported by Rehda

Malek, the Algerian ambassador to the United States who is currently in Tehran with two other Algerian intermediaries.

Malek told a reporter in the Iranian capital he and the other intermediaries had no plans to fly to Algiers today. "We are busy working," he said, meaning negotiations were still under way with the Iranians.

"The process is continuing and the distance between us, which is still measured in very large numbers, seems to be narrowing somewhat," he told reporters as he left Washington to discuss the latest U.S. note to Iran with Algerian Foreign Minister Mohammad Benyahia, whose government is the intermediary in the negotiations.

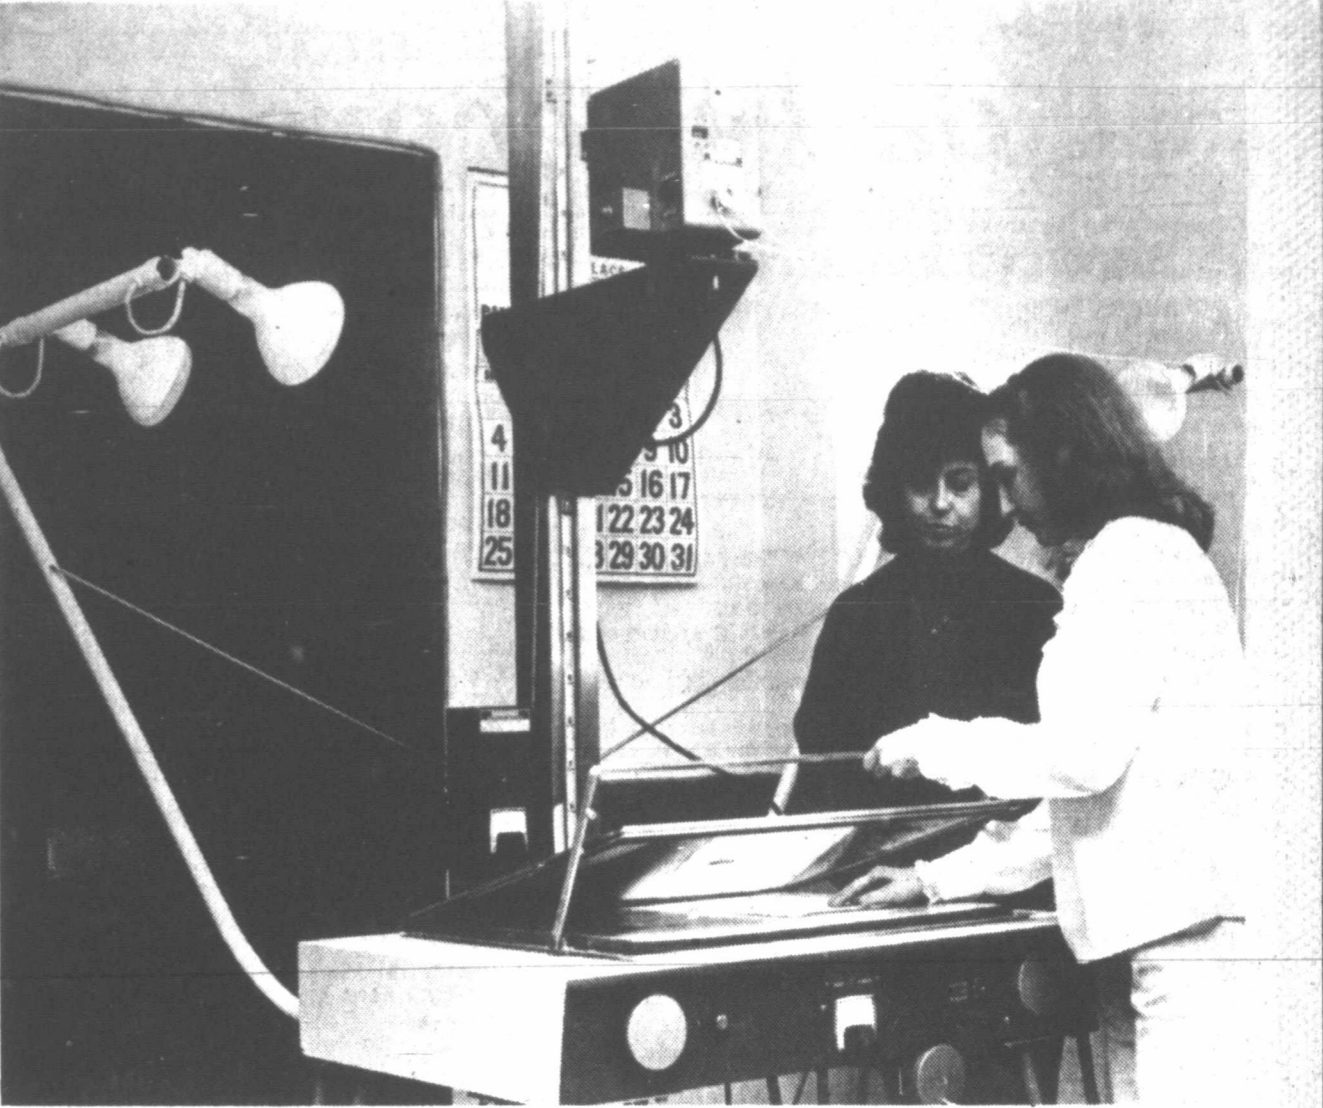

Christopher added, however, that "serious problems remain, communications are difficult, and time is running out" for the Carter administration, which has only 12 days before President-elect Ronald Reagan takes office.

Another senior U.S. official, who asked not to be identified, said prospects for a breakthrough before Reagan's inauguration Jan. 20 were "very small indeed."

U.S. officials said Christopher would elaborate on the U.S. reply sent Wednesday to questions transmitted by Algeria from Iran about the substance and mechanics of the U.S. proposal to set up an escrow account in Algiers with several billion dollars in frozen Iranian assets. The money would be released when the 52 hostages, spending their 432nd day in captivity today, were freed.

ON THE WAY TO ALGERIA. Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher talked to reporters today as he was boarded an Air Force plane at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., on his way to Algeria to talk with the Algerian intermediaries as part of the 14-month old stalemate over the 52 Americans in Iran.

Motive a mystery in coed's death

MOORE, Okla. (AP) — Saying the motive for the killing is still a mystery, investigators today continued their hunt for the slayer of a 21-year-old University of Oklahoma student.

Moore Police Lt. Roy Homer said the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation was asked to help officers conduct a two-state investigation into the death of Tracey Diane Neilson. Mrs. Neilson, married four months, was the daughter of Canadian, Texas, rancher Jim B. Waterfield.

Mrs. Neilson turned 21 on Monday, the day of her death. The wife of University of Oklahoma medical school student Jeff Neilson was found in the bedroom of her apartment Monday. Her throat had been slashed and she had been stabbed repeatedly, Homer said.

Investigators found no evidence of a break-in and found nothing missing from the Neilson duplex at Jamestown Square Apartments, Homer said.

The spokesman said Mrs. Neilson had not been sexually attacked and her body was found fully clothed. "The motive is still definitely up in the air for us," Homer said. "This is going to be a time-consuming investigation."

Police began interviewing Mrs. Neilson's neighbors in Moore and friends and family where she grew up in Texas, Homer said.

Neighbors have told police a dark-haired younger man was seen to enter the woman's apartment about noon Monday. Witnesses reportedly told police the man may have forced his way into the Neilson apartment when the victim opened the door.

Homer said a preliminary medical examiner's report indicated Mrs. Neilson, a physical therapy student, died about noon Monday. Her body was found about 5 p.m. in the master bedroom by her husband, who had returned from classes.

Mrs. Neilson married Neilson, of Altus, in Canadian in August. The couple had attended Oklahoma State University before moving to Moore. Mrs. Neilson was valedictorian of her Canadian high school class and was a standout basketball player there.

Local state legislator under fire for university integration bill

By DEBORAH BRIDGES, Staff Writer

State Representative Foster Whaley said today he was misquoted by a United Press International (UPI) in a recent article charging Whaley with submitting a proposal to close down two predominantly black colleges to the Texas Legislature.

The published report quotes Whaley as saying he was considering a legislative measure to shut down TSU and Prairie View A & M and force the students and faculty to integrate into other state schools.

Whaley, a Pampa Democrat, said the proposed legislation does call for the phasing out of Prairie View A & M University over a period of three years.

Also included in the bill is a clause which denies transference of college credits to students who move from Prairie View to Texas Southern University (TSU) — a second black state school, he said. This is the only reference to TSU in the bill, Whaley said.

The state representative denied any intention to close Texas Southern University.

Commenting on the bill in a wire service story, TSU Vice President Meldon S. Hollis said, "I can't think of anything that would guarantee federal intervention quicker than such a bill."

Frank W. R. Hubert, chancellor of the Texas A & M System, said the proposed legislation was a "novel idea."

Hubert said it was the first integration measure he had seen of "this magnitude and this nature."

The rumors that the federal government was about to step in and speed up integration efforts in Texas, spurred Whaley to outline the controversial bill, he said.

"I knew it was going to be a bombshell when I dropped it," he said, adding he wasn't "afraid to face the music."

Whaley said his telephones had been ringing all morning from persons all over the state wanting to know more about the bill. "And it's going to get worse, instead of better," he added.

A recommendation by State Attorney General Mark White for an additional $20 million to the two schools would be ineffective in serving integration, he said.

According to a wire service story, White warned the federal department might accuse Texas of discrimination if the budgets of the two universities were not increased.

Whaley said increasing the budgets will not integrate the schools, adding integration is the purpose of his bill.

Blacks will receive a better chance for equality through integration of schools, rather than the enhancement of black schools, Whaley said.

"Back in World War II, I fought along side a unit of black soldiers. They had the same equipment, but they were separate. I am ashamed that that was the way it was then," he said.

The bill is proposed as a remedy to past discrimination and to eliminate a dual system of higher education in Texas, Whaley said.

It recommends Prairie View cease all operations on Aug. 31, 1984, after the last student to enroll in the fall semester of 1981 graduates. No other persons would enroll after the fall of 1981, the bill states.

All tenured members of the faculty of the university may apply to the state coordinating board for assignment to another state institution — a guarantee of employment.

Institutions that first employ Prairie View A & M teachers without assignment and accepts the school's students would receive state allocations of $5,000 for teachers and $1,000 for students.

The proposed legislation stipulates all real and personal property of Prairie View A & M will be sold by the Texas A & M board of regents. Proceeds will be placed in a special fund in the state treasury to be used for funding grants and recruitment incentives.

Carter hopes for hostage release before term is up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although terming prospects of a breakthrough "very small," the Carter administration says it is still possible to reach a settlement on freeing the American hostages in Iran before President-elect Ronald Reagan takes office.

Negotiations have intensified in the past two days with an exchange of messages between Washington and Tehran and Wednesday night's hastily arranged departure of Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher for Algeria.

Christopher, the chief American negotiator, left Washington Wednesday night and arrived in Algeria today at 5:17 a.m. EST, the State Department said. He was to meet with Algerian Foreign Minister Mohammad Benyahia in Algiers today to elaborate on a U.S. message sent to Iran Tuesday night in response to Iranian questions about the American position.

Standing in sub-freezing temperatures at Andrews Air Force Base before setting out for Algiers for the third time in two months, Christopher departed from the usual State Department position of refusing to characterize prospects for a settlement.

"Nothing would please me more than to say we are on the verge of an imminent breakthrough," he told reporters. "I can't conscientiously say that."

"But I can say that the process is continuing and the distance between us, which is still measured in very large numbers, seems to be narrowing somewhat. I emphasize seems to be."

Only a few hours before, State Department spokesman John Trantner said the administration was "neither more optimistic nor pessimistic" about a settlement. But he added: "I don't think we would be sitting here working on transmitting messages through the Algerians to Iran if we didn't think it was possible in this administration. We certainly do think it is possible. We always have thought it was possible."

Christopher conceded that "serious problems remain."

Hospital offers training

Coronado Community Hospital officials have announced an offer to Pampa residents wishing to attend classes in licensed vocational nurses training with total costs paid for the first year by the Pampa hospital.

Classes start at Coronado Community Hospital Monday, Jan. 12, and interested persons are urged to contact Ella Weeter at Frank Phillips College at 274-5311 for information concerning the cost free program.

Students will be attending classes for a limited time during the first semester at Frank Phillips College in Borger. The rest of the course will be taught at Coronado Community Hospital in Pampa.

The new nursing program is a pilot program which will allow licensed vocational nurse students to meet all the first year requirements to become a registered nurse if the student wishes to continue training, even at a future date.

"We would like to see Pampa residents take advantage of the offer and stay here to work," Coronado Community Hospital Public Relations Director Paul Murray said.

Charles Edwin Dykes Jr., 17, of 400 E. Kingsmill was arrested for criminal trespass in connection with a reported trespassing incident at 400 E. Kingsmill, not 406 E. Kingsmill as previously reported.

A look at Texas

By The Associated Press
 AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. John Sharp, D-Victoria, says he has a "reverse homestead exemption" measure that would get tax relief directly to taxpayers and "keep it out of the hands of state government."

Sharp told a news conference that his bill, which would call for a state constitutional change before becoming effective, would allow an additional one cent sales tax to finance increased homestead exemptions.

"If we do nothing until a major tax revolt completely engulfs us and forces change, we will no longer be able to solve the problem with only one cent of the sales tax," he said.

Sharp's bill, which has six co-sponsors would allow cities and counties to share a one-cent increase in sales taxes, if local voters approve. If the added tax is approved, that city or county must lower property taxes on residence homesteads to the level of the bonded indebtedness.

If school districts chose to lower property taxes to the level of bonded indebtedness, without a vote, the district would be reimbursed from state general revenue funds. Sharp estimated the cost to the state at $300 to $350 million a year.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Railroad Commissioner Buddy Temple has named Houston lawyer Rodney Ellis as his general counsel. Ellis, 26, is the first black to join the commission's executive staff. Ellis formerly worked for Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and was a clerk for Chief Justice John Phillips of the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals in Austin.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements announced the appointment Wednesday of Richard Collins as Dallas to the Texas Historical Commission and Charles Bleil of Texarkana as associate justice of the Texas Court of Civil Appeals.

Collins, a 33-year-old banker and investor, will replace Mary Moody Northen of Galveston, whose term expired.
 Bleil, 38, will replace C.L. Ray Jr., who was elected to the Texas Supreme Court. Bleil was a state district judge.

Clements also appointed:
 — David Diaz, 49, of Corpus Christi as judge of the 94th Judicial District Court in Nueces County to replace Judge George Hamilton, also of Corpus Christi, who resigned.

— Floyd Wilson, 52, of Meridian as judge of the 220th Judicial District Court in Bosque, Comanche and Hamilton counties to replace Judge Andrew Campbell of Hamilton, who resigned.

— Patricia Lykos, 38, of Houston as judge of the 180th Judicial District Court in Harris County to replace Judge Fred Hoey, also

New labor dispute in Poland brewing over 40-hour week

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A new confrontation between Poland's independent labor movement and the communist government appears to be taking shape over the 40-hour work week.

The presidium of Solidarity, the nation's largest independent union with about 10 million members, was expected to give final approval today to a demand for a five-day, 40-hour work week with no reduction in pay.

The government, seeking a solution to the nation's grave economic problems, says the country cannot afford the 40-hour week yet.

Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Jagielski, who negotiated the agreements that ended last summer's wave of strikes and recognized the workers' right to form unions free of Communist Party control, said in a television appearance that the government was standing by its counterproposal.

They call for either two Saturdays off each month or all Saturdays free but with an extra 30 minutes on the job each day. "Not everyone was unanimous in this complicated matter," Jagielski said. "However, taking into account all factual arguments, a close study of the possibilities and the economic aspects basic for every citizen, the government expects that its decision will meet with understanding on the part of the crews and trade unions."

Solidarity claims the Gdansk strike settlement on Aug. 31 promised a five-day work week with no extension of the working day.

Meanwhile, the government was grappling with a regional labor dispute in the southeastern corner of the country 10 miles from the Soviet border.

Workers and farmers occupying a government building in the town of Ustrzynki Doine refused to negotiate with a government delegation led by Stanislaw Ciosek, a minister without portfolio responsible for trade union affairs.

Jan Wolinski, a spokesman for Solidarity's regional office in nearby Rzeszow, claimed the government delegation "cannot undertake any decision and is not authorized to sign any agreements."

He said the militants would not negotiate until the Warsaw government dispatched a "competent commission" to deal with their complaint that local authorities were harassing Solidarity activists.

About 70 farmers and workers took over the administrative building in Ustrzynki on Dec. 29. Workers in 17 local enterprises staged a one-hour sympathy strike Tuesday.

A student protest loomed in Lodz, Poland's second largest city. Dissident sources said students in the law and administrative colleges were threatening a sit-in Friday unless the regime agreed to some 30 demands. They include freedom for political prisoners, screening of a controversial film on last summer's strikes in the Baltic seaport of Gdansk and curbs on the security services.

Iran backs victory claims with parade of Iraqi prisoners

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An Iraqi army spokesman claimed Iran's counter-offensive was "rapidly running out of steam," but Iran paraded nearly 500 Iraqi war prisoners in Tehran to back its victory claims and reported nearly 300 more Iraqis killed or wounded.

Iraq said its forces blunted the northern prong of Iran's counter-offensive, turning back Iranian troops trying to recapture Gilan-e-Gharb, on the slopes of the Zagros mountains 330 miles southwest of Tehran.

Baghdad Radio said the Iranian troops were retreating, leaving dead soldiers and wrecked tanks littering the snow-covered heights overlooking highways to the Iraqi capital, Baghdad.

Iran said it was the Iraqis who were retreating at Gilan-e-Gharb. Tehran reported intense hand-to-hand combat around the city as Iranian forces battled to dislodge Iraqi troops from the mountainsides.

On the southern front of the Iranian offensive, Iran said its troops pushed the Iraqis back several miles from entrenched positions in the Susangerd region, on the edge of the Ahvaz oil fields. But Baghdad vowed to turn Susangerd, which is 20 miles east of the Iraqi border, into a "final graveyard" for Iranian forces if they continued their attack.

No confirmation of the conflicting claims was obtainable since Western reporters were barred from the battlefronts. An Iraqi field commander turned back a group of foreign journalists who had been given permission in Baghdad to visit the Gilan-e-Gharb front.

saying he had not received the okay from the capital.

Iranian communiques have reported major victories since President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, Iran's commander-in-chief, announced the start Monday morning of the long-promised counter-offensive. But an Iraqi communique derided the enemy's claims, saying:

"The fact that it had been technically possible for the Iranian armed forces to mount an ill-fated assault on a few kilometers front out of a 1,000 kilometers (625 mile) battlefield which is inside Iranian territory is being presented as a victory."

The first Iranian communique broadcast today said about 200 Iraqi soldiers were killed Wednesday in fighting in the Ahvaz area and in a surprise Iranian attack near Abadan, the besieged oil refinery center at the southern end of the Iraqi invasion front. It was the first report of an Iranian attack in the Abadan area since the counter-offensive began.

The communique said about 90 more Iraqis were killed or wounded in fighting in another unspecified area, and that 19 Iraqi tanks were destroyed there, two were captured undamaged and an Iraqi MIG jet was shot down.

Meanwhile, an Iraqi war communique claimed 283 Iranian troops were killed Wednesday, 202 of them in the Gilan-e-Gharb region. It said the Iraqis destroyed an Iranian armored brigade and 15 rocket launchers and captured 51 tanks, 13 armored personnel carriers and 30 vehicles in Susangerd.

Begin expected to resign next week

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin will resign next week, setting the stage for early elections, possibly by this summer, Israeli newspapers predicted today.

Begin will quit unless a compromise is reached on salary demands by the nation's 58,000 teachers, and both Finance Minister Yigael Hurvitz and Education Minister Zevulun Hammer decide to stay in office, the papers said.

Hurvitz, seeking to cap an inflationary spiral that left Israel with the world's highest inflation rate — 131 percent — last year, has threatened to quit if the Begin government gives in to the teachers' demands for higher pay, while Hammer says he resigns if the teachers don't get salary hikes.

The resignation of either minister would almost certainly topple the government, and the newspapers said there was little hope a compromise could be found.

Israel is scheduled to hold parliamentary elections in November, but the balloting could be pushed up to the beginning of summer if Begin quits.

Ex-spy sentenced for selling secrets

BALTIMORE (AP) — David H. Barnett, a former CIA operative, was sentenced to 18 years in prison today for selling intelligence secrets to the Soviets for $92,600.

"I don't think there is any question you did harm to this country," said U.S. District Judge Frank Kaufman.

Kaufman said the sentence was intended to deter others from selling intelligence secrets. The maximum sentence for espionage is life in prison.

Barnett pleaded guilty last Oct. 29 to a single count of transmitting information to a foreign power. The plea came as part of a bargain with the federal government.

The government had agreed not to make any recommendation for sentence but made a statement detailing Barnett's crime. "Mr. Barnett did not withhold the lion's share of the information he had about the American intelligence community," said Assistant U.S. Attorney David D. Queen.

"The most damaging information in the hands of Mr. Barnett, in the opinion of CIA analysts, was transmitted to the KGB," Queen added in the statement at Barnett's sentencing.

Watt attack by environmental groups falls on deaf ears

WASHINGTON (AP) — The heavy attack by environmental groups against the nomination of James G. Watt as interior secretary apparently is having little effect with the people who count most — the senators who must confirm his appointment.

Watt received a generally warm reception Wednesday from the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee. Several senators predicted confirmation would be no problem, even though some of the country's largest environmental groups strongly denounced Ronald Reagan's selection of Watt for his Cabinet.

"Mr. Watt has distinguished himself as one of the most dedicated anti-environmentalists of the past decade," Russell Peterson, president of the 416,000-member National Audubon Society, told the committee. "His actions and statements identify him as an aggressive, shortsighted exploiter, rather than a far-sighted protector, of the nation's air, land and water."

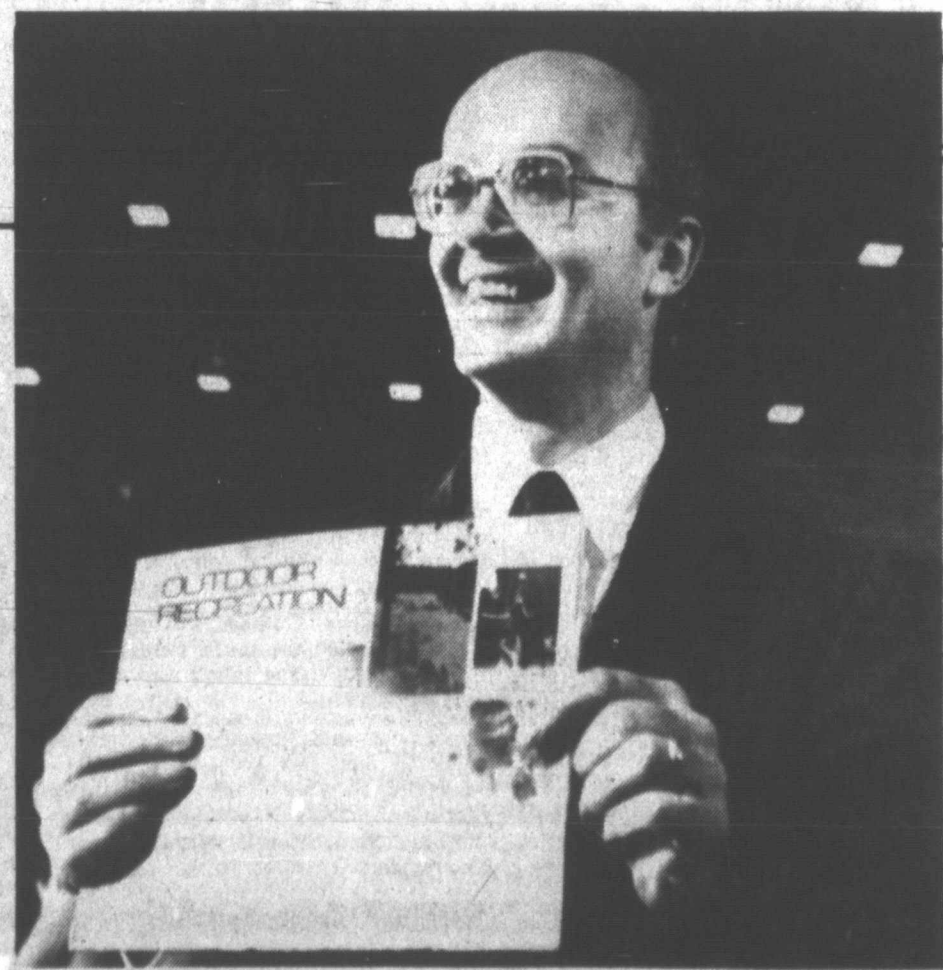

The Audubon Society, the Sierra Club, Friends of the Earth and the Wilderness Society released a statement attacking Watt for a record of "consistent and unbending advocacy for the destructive exploitation of the public lands."

But Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., called Watt a "lifelong Westerner who is deeply concerned about protecting the environment of the Western states, even as we develop the energy and other resources we so desperately need."

And a senator who asked some of the toughest questions of Watt, Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., told Watt, "You are going to be confirmed, I can count on you have the votes."

The environmental organizations focused on Watt's role as president and chief legal officer of the Mountain States Legal Foundation for the past 3½ years.

Watt said the 10-lawyer foundation specialized in protecting individual rights against "excessive regulation and government control."

New Braniff chief pledges to pilot airline to financial stability

DALLAS (AP) — John J. Casey has climbed into the corporate cockpit of Braniff Airways pledging to pilot the troubled airline "caught on a limb of expansion" back to financial stability.

Braniff International Corp. board members voted unanimously Wednesday to elevate the 62-year-old vice president to president and chairman of the board.

Casey responded by detailing plans to streamline management, sell excess jetliners and revamp marketing strategy to stress more efficient use of aircraft on the airline's most profitable routes.

He also said Braniff and Eastern Airlines executives would decide later whether to continue merger talks he described as still "in a very preliminary stage."

The new chairman praised Harding Lawrence, who resigned abruptly last week after 15 years at the helm of Braniff and was named chairman emeritus Wednesday, for having the competitive foresight to make Braniff a major American airline.

Casey joined Braniff in 1968 after a stint as senior vice president for Seaboard Airlines in New York. Before that, he was an executive for American Airlines, where his brother, Albert, is board chairman.

Three executive vice presidents will take charge of all the airline's daily operations, Casey said.

Neil J. Robinson, vice president for finance and control, was named head of the marketing department; Edson E. Beckwith, senior vice president of financial services, was named head of finance; and William E. Huskins, senior vice president of engineering and maintenance, was named head of operations.

New Vice Chairman Russell Thayer, former Braniff president and bypassed in Casey's selection, will be responsible for selling excess aircraft and overseeing fuel purchases.

Aircraft for sale include three 747's and five 727's on order from Boeing. Several other planes, including seven other Boeing 747's, also are for sale, Casey said.

Casey said the new marketing strategy would include increased service to Florida, Mexico and London, with discontinued service to Frankfurt and Brussels.

He said Braniff's problems began when it "was caught on the limb of expansion" in purchasing and hiring. Recovery efforts have included selling aircraft, cutting routes and reducing the number of employees from 15,000 to 11,500, he said.

"We hope we don't have to reduce personnel" further to balance the books, Casey said. But he said he did not foresee the opportunity to rehire laid off employees in the near future.

Skyrocketing fuel prices compounded Braniff's financial problems and led to Braniff's heaviest losses in the second quarter of 1979, said Casey.

And he termed the federal government's deregulation of the airline industry "late and not sufficient."

In the first nine months of 1980, he said, Braniff posted a $77 million loss and a $51 million net loss.

Casey said the company also would show a loss for the fourth quarter of 1980.

Anthropologist says monogamy promoted human evolution

TORONTO (AP) — When a man and woman stand before an altar, they are entering a relationship with evolutionary origins that may be older than even the act of standing upright, an anthropologist says.

A shift in pre-human sexual behavior from polygamy to monogamy may have been the crucial step that sent one line of ancient apes down the road to humanity, according to Dr. C. Owen Lovejoy.

Pair-bonding may even have come before such human characteristics as erect posture, tool-making and evolution of a large brain, he told a panel of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"This primitive family structure is probably what made it possible for human intelligence and social structure to evolve," he said Wednesday at a news conference.

This "mating strategy" sparked other changes that became the "hallmarks of the human lineage," he said.

Lovejoy, an anthropologist and anatomist at Kent State University in Ohio, will present his theory in an upcoming article in the journal Science.

His idea developed as he studied recent fossil evidence countering the earlier belief that upright posture (bipedalism), the use of tools and increased intelligence developed concurrently. Fossils unearthed in Ethiopia indicate that bipedalism preceded the development of stone tools by some 1.7 million years.

Lovejoy's theory is that upright walking, with hands free for other tasks, developed so males could bring food back to a monogamous female during pregnancy and child-rearing.

And the switch from polygamous living groups to monogamous pairs began when females stopped showing external signs of fertility, he suggested.

Until then, polygamous primates were able to mate with several females, each at the time she was fertile. When the clues to fertility disappeared, the advantages of monogamy outweighed the advantages of polygamy.

Males were increasingly drawn into the rearing of children, which encouraged a division of labor in which they "provisioned" their females, he says. This arrangement put a premium on cooperation and communication, factors now believed to have been the driving forces for human intelligence and language.

Consumer group says state's auto insurance priced too high

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A national consumer group says Texans might be paying $22.3 million a year too much for their automobile insurance.

The estimate came Wednesday from the Washington-based National Insurance Consumer Organization, whose president, Robert Hunter, was to testify today before the State Insurance Board.

The board is conducting hearings on the extent to which it should apply insurance company investment profits toward holding down premiums charged for auto, home and other kinds of property and casualty insurance.

NICO said in a statement that if Texas rates did recognize, dollar-for-dollar, the insurers' investment income, they would total as much as $22.3 million a year less.

Auto premiums in Texas total more than $1 billion a year.

"We have received hundreds of letters from Texas consumers.

They are tired of paying out a huge portion of their income for insurance while the companies are making such huge profits," Hunter said in a statement.

In September, the board denied an 18 percent auto rate increase recommended by its staff because of record insurance company profits from investing policyholder premiums.

Joe Eddins, vice-president and actuary of Maryland Casualty, suggested that insurers — taken as a group — would not make a profit if it were not for investments.

He presented the results of a study made by A.M. Best Co. that showed stockholder-owned insurers operating in Texas lost $3.1 billion between 1970 and 1979 from writing insurance but made $25.4 billion, before taxes, from investments.

Sam Winters, attorney for the Texas Insurance Advisory Association, an organization of property insurers, predicted "disastrous" results from "tinkering" with investment income.

Watt promises cooperation on Wichita site

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary-designate James Watt has pledged to work with Oklahoma's new senator in resolving the controversy over a religious site in the Wichita Mountains National Wildlife Refuge near Lawton.

Republican Sen. Don Nickles, who participated Wednesday in a Senate Energy Committee hearing on Watt, said he will vote for Watt even though the secretary-designate did not agree when Nickles contended that "local and state governments can do a better job of managing (public) land."

Watt responded by saying, "I hope to prove you wrong in a short period of time."

Watt's pledge is the first indication that the Reagan administration will cooperate with the Oklahoma congressional delegation, which wants the Department of Interior to transfer ownership of the 90-acre Holy City to the Wichita Mountain Association, sponsor of an annual Easter sunrise service.

During the nomination hearing, Watt told Nickles that the Reagan administration will "manage public lands as a good neighbor" by cooperating with local wishes and needs.

Although Nickles did not give Watt details of the controversy over the Holy City and the marble statue of Christ situated in the refuge, Watt said he would quickly look into the situation.

The American Civil Liberties Union contends the location of the Holy City on federal land violates the U.S. Constitution's separation of church and state.

However, Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus, whose job Watt is in line for, has ruled that the pageant can continue.

Three jailed in kidnap, slaying of missing girl

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Wednesday night that all three will be transferred to Bossier Parish Friday for arraignment on charges of second-degree murder.

The victim was black, the three men are white.

Details of the investigation, the motive and the cause of death were not released.

Police said that when they caught up with Thomley's car, they found Franklin Strickland, 23, dead in the car from a self-inflicted gunshot wound from a pistol found in the vehicle.

Virginia Smith disappeared on Nov. 1, and her body was found on Dec. 6 on a levee behind a pasture in a rural area of Bossier Parish.

Charged in Shreveport with kidnaping were Allen K. Gaskin, 17; Steven Seth Scott, 20, and James Earl Thomley 18, all of Shreveport.

Caution urged in Oklahoma tax cuts

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — State Sen. Gene Stipe says the Legislature should use caution in passing tax cuts until it takes care of pressing needs for special education and the state school for the mentally retarded.

The statement by Stipe, D-McAlester, came in a floor speech Wednesday. The Senate and House were expected to consider only routine matters during the third day of the 38th legislative session today before adjourning for the weekend.

Stipe told his colleagues Wednesday that everyone favors tax cuts, but the real problem in excess taxation at the federal level, not the state level.

In other action Wednesday, the Senate adopted a resolution changing its rules in a move sponsors said will make the legislative body more accessible to public scrutiny.

The House met only briefly Wednesday.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Sagebrush rebellion

We can't help feeling some sympathy for the "sagebrush rebellion" that seeks to loosen the federal control of lands now held by the U.S. government, primarily in western states. But we think the movement doesn't go far enough.

Advocates of the rebellion want the federal government to turn its lands over to state governments. Utah and Nevada have already passed laws asserting their rights to lands now controlled by the feds. Sen. Orrin Hatch (R-Utah) and Rep. James Santini (D-Nev.) have proposed bills in Congress that would allow state takeovers when state land-use laws conform to federal statutes.

What's wrong with turning this land over to the people as individuals? Why not put up for sale what can be sold, using the proceeds to reduce the federal deficit, and announce that the rest is available for homesteading, whereby people can earn ownership through some kind of "sweat equity"? If there's any left over after that, it can be designated as "unowned" and one bureaucrat in each state can be designated to record the fact if somebody wants to stake a claim to it.

Transferring ownership from one level of government to another doesn't solve the problems that arise when the government (i.e., "everybody", i.e., "nobody") owns land and assumes responsibility for its management and stewardship. A better idea would be to turn it over to individuals.

Season now right to sell government land

Much is written of budgetary deficits. Government-held assets seldom are remembered.

Those assets are immense. Heading the list is land and land appurtenances such as timber, minerals, oil. Of the 3.6 million square miles of land area in the 50 states, 1.1 million square miles are held by the federal government alone. That is a little more than 30 percent.

The Reagan administration expects to eliminate waste and thereby accomplish the awesome task of balancing the budget, cutting taxes, and raising defense expenditures.

Government-held assets are a good place to start, so far as the waste pile is concerned. What is more wasteful than productive property that has fallen into the hands of unproductive government?

The suggestion for the disposal of governmentally inactivated property has been made before. It draws opposition from two diametrically opposed groups — confused businessmen and militant so-called environmentalists.

Businessmen argue that a sale of assets amounts to consumption of capital. Militant environmentalists are typically more concerned with the survival of trees than housing for humans.

To the businessman, we say, you are confused. You do not understand the difference between private property and government property. Private property produces revenue. Government property consumes privately produced revenue.

Sale of government property is not a consumption of capital; it is a gain of capital. Government "capital" is an idle engine; private capital is a working engine.

To the mistaken environmentalists, we say that if you truly love trees and wish to see them grow, put a profit motive into the process. Forestry specialists acknowledge that selective clear cutting diminishes the damage of fire and, at the same time, fosters new growth.

Lumber for houses is the profit source for bigger investment in research and planting.

You cannot normally expect political office holders to do unpolitical things. Until it is widely understood that property benefits more people when it is productive, you will not see many legislators who are willing to risk their paychecks for a sound economic fact.

The season is opportune, however, for a change of attitude at the federal level, provided there is understanding at the grassroots.

Foreign investment and foreign aid

By Willard L. Beaulac

Consider this scenario: you are a poor farmer in a depressed area of the United States, and an oil company asks permission to drill on your land. You give permission, and the company strikes oil. You receive 65 to 75 percent of the profits from the operation, without investing a penny, so you think this is an excellent deal. The oil company hires many of your relatives and friends, pays them more than the prevailing wages, builds homes for them, and provides them with schools and medical attention. Your relatives and friends think they are being rewarded handsomely. Also, the company buys materials from local firms and engages local contractors to help in its work, so the community in general feels that it is doing well. This is the way American and other foreign oil and mining companies think they operate in Latin America.

But there is another side to the picture. When the Chilean copper mining industry was predominantly American-owned, it supplied one-fourth of all the government's revenue and 60 percent of the country's foreign exchange. Chile had once been in the position of the poor farmer, and the American companies transformed the country. Not all Chileans thought they had a good deal.

In November 1971, Chile's Socialist president Salvador Allende appeared on national television in the United States. When questioned about his government's seizure of American copper companies, the president replied with a question of his own: "How would Americans feel if the automobile industry in the United States were owned by foreigners?" In effect, private investment was the medium through which foreign nations extended economic cooperation to Latin America and other areas. What Latin America needed and wanted from abroad were resources it lacked: funds, equipment, materials and techniques. All of these were available from private sources and were supplied by them.

Foreign investment continues to be a principal force for growth in Latin America, but in some countries it has been increasingly resented and its properties have been increasingly coveted. Critics of foreign investment say that profit remittances and payment of salaries to foreigners are "imperialistic"; and that such practices drain Latin America of resources, just as the Spaniards did in colonial times. But a study of the much-criticized United Fruit Company revealed that the company operated in countries where it left seven new dollars for every dollar it remitted abroad. Also, the company pioneered in health measures, in scientific research, and in the planting of new crops that were of much greater value to the countries' economies than to itself. Instead of draining countries of wealth, the company had created enormous wealth and left most of it in Latin America.

Sears, Roebuck and Company tries to acquire all its merchandise in the countries in which it operates. In Colombia, as early as 1970, Sears was actually purchasing nothing abroad; in Brazil it purchased 99.41 percent in the country; in all Latin America it was purchasing from 14,456 domestic suppliers, a majority of them small. Also, nearly all Sears officials and employees are Latin Americans, and employee participation in store ownership is very high.

State-owned companies are often inefficient, but critics of foreign investment say that, at least, they are indigenous. The real conflict in Latin America, they claim, is not between state and private enterprises, but between indigenous and foreign enterprises — Allende clearly took that view. But, that has not been true in the past, and there is little reason to believe that it will be true in the future.

Without foreign investment Toquepala, Peru's open-pit copper mine, would not have been developed, nor would Chile's great copper mines. Moreover, neither Argentina's nor Mexico's railroads would have been built, nor would Venezuela have its flourishing petroleum industry. And, without foreign investment, tomorrow's Latin America will be condemned to very slow growth or no growth at all.

Under the alliance for Progress Chile was a favored recipient of United States aid, but the sequel was the destruction of its economy by the Socialist — Communist government of Salvador Allende, which confiscated both domestic and foreign-owned properties. Since 1973, when the military overthrew Allende, Chile has received less aid from the United States. Nevertheless, Chileans are once more investing, foreign investment is flowing into the country, the economy is flourishing and the prospect that one day democracy will return is correspondingly increased.

Foreign private investment is a vital ingredient of development. Countries that reject it, or do not respect it, cannot be considered serious bidders for United States government aid.

Today in history

Today is Thursday, Jan. 8, the eighth day of 1981. There are 357 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Jan. 8, 1815, American forces under Gen. Andrew Jackson defeated the British in the last engagement of the War of 1812, the Battle of New Orleans.

On this date:

In 1642, Italian astronomer Galileo died.
In 1679, the French explorer La Salle reached Niagara Falls.

In 1918, President Woodrow Wilson outlined 14 points for peace after World War I.

In 1979, as many as 60 people were reported killed in anti-shah rioting in 10 Iranian cities.

Ten years ago: The United States apologized for a bomb explosion outside a Soviet cultural building in Washington.

Five years ago: China's Premier Chou En-Lai died at the age of 78.

One year ago: Diplomatic sources said the new Soviet-backed regime in Afghanistan was continuing to execute political foes.

Today's birthdays: U.S. diplomat and businessman Thomas Watson is 67; musician David Bowie is 34.

Thought for today: Never forget what a man says to you when he is angry. — U.S. clergyman H.W. Beecher (1813-1887).

The Great Pyramid of Khufu (Cheops), ca. 2550 B.C., was built on a square base, with an area of 13 acres, or seven average-sized city blocks. The six million tons of material used in the construction would, as Napoleon figured in 1798, be enough to build a 10-foot wall around the whole of France. Cut into standard-sized bricks and laid end-to-end, the Great Pyramid would reach from the Earth to the moon.

What they said

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — Every year people speak out and then regret it for the rest of their lives. Aren't you lucky you weren't the person who said:

To Lee Iacocca: "Don't worry Lee, the bank will give you all the money you need to get Chrysler on its feet."

To Roberto Duran, the Panamanian boxer: "Here, Roberto, have another meatball sandwich. It will give you sustenance in the ring."

To the head of United Artists: "I just saw the rushes of Michael Cimino's 'Heaven's Gate' and we're going to do bigger business than 'Star Wars'."

To Congressman Jenrette: "This is Sheik Abdul Hassan. He has a wonderful idea and he'd like to speak to you about it at a friend's house on W Street."

To President Bani-Sadr: "Our intelligence indicates that Iraq would never attack Iran because we're a Moslem country."

To the head of the Communist Party in Poland: "I just returned from Gdansk and the workers never looked so happy."

To Sen. Percy: "You'll really please the Reagan people if you leak the conversations you had with Brezhnev."

To the head of NASA: "If we don't have the space shuttle up by Christmas, I'll eat a Titan missile."

To Bill Paley, head of CBS: "The worst mistake would be to shoot J.R. in 'Dallas.' It would kill our ratings."

To Billy Carter: "Stonewall the Senate Committee about Libya. They're not going to touch the president's brother."

To the Joint Chiefs of Staff: "We don't need more than eight helicopters for an Iranian rescue operation. There are no sandstorms in Iran in April."

To the Soviet defense ministers: "Our troops should be out of Afghanistan in a month."

To Teddy Kennedy: "All you have to do is announce you're a candidate for the presidency and you can have the nomination without a struggle."

To Rosie Ruiz, the marathon runner: "How would you like to win the 1980 Boston Marathon without any sweat?"

To the head of U.S. Immigration: "Castro isn't going to let any Cubans out of his country, so you can relax."

To Nancy Reagan: "The first thing you should do as First Lady is reveal that you sleep with a tiny pistol under your pillow."

To Pope John Paul II: "Why don't you devote next Sunday's sermon to husbands who lust after their wives?"

To William Agee, head of Bendix: "My advice is to go public with the Mary Cunningham rumors, and lay them to rest once and for all."

To Secretary of State Cyrus Vance: "The only one you don't have to worry about in the White House is Zbigniew Brzezinski."

To Ronald Reagan: "Do you know that trees are responsible for more pollution than automobiles?"

To Madame Mao: "They don't have a case against you. Once they see you in the courtroom they'll know you couldn't have been a member of the Gang of Four."

To President Carter: "The only way to beat Reagan is to debate him one on one. You have nothing to lose and everything to gain."

America in transition: a view from the Orient

By The Honorable James Shen
Former Ambassador - Republic of China to the United States

The American people have spoken, and decisively, too, in choosing Ronald Reagan instead of Jimmy Carter to lead them in the next four years.

What looked for a while as if it would be an extremely close race turned out to be a landslide victory for the Republican candidate. No one, therefore, has been left in any doubt as to who most of the American people prefer to have in the White House.

Students of U.S. affairs sometimes feel that the American political wheel, unlike its counterpart in countries following the parliamentary system, turns slowly and only once every four years in the case of the presidential election.

But it did turn again on November 4, 1980. It shows that the American system still works well for the American people, though it may not necessarily work equally well for other peoples.

As usual, there are numberless post-election columns, editorials and TV interviews and discussions to explain to the readers and listeners what were the decisive factors in the 1980 election. But to an outsider watching the American scene from the Orient, two issues emerged as most important:

One is the decline of U.S. power and prestige in the world and the other is the weakening of the U.S. economy. To be fair, Jimmy Carter inherited many of the problems from the previous administrations, but it is also fair to say that he failed to come up with any workable solutions.

The American people, therefore, wanted a change. They picked Reagan in the belief that he has some ideas as to what should be done.

Now, whether or not Mr. Reagan can restore the United States to its eminent position as the leader of the Free World and rebuild the U.S. economy in a reasonable length of time is another matter. U.S. citizens feel that he should be given a chance. It is Reagan's duty to prove that the American voters' confidence has not been wrongly placed.

Now that the election is over, Reagan will want to roll up his sleeves and go to work, and there is certainly plenty for him to do. In view of his campaign promises and pledges, he will want to build up the country's military strength, not to confront the Soviet Union so much as to assure the U.S. of a good bargaining position. Men like Brezhnev respect nothing but strength, and there is a better chance of preserving world peace through strength than through weakness and vacillation.

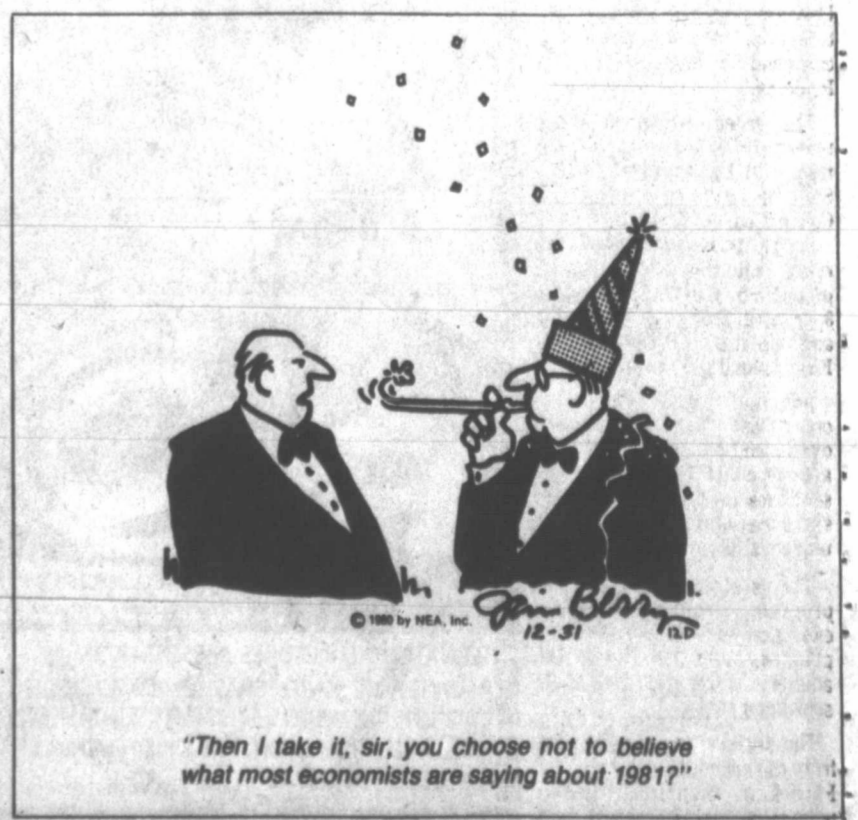

The U.S. economy is still the largest one in the free world, or for that matter, in the whole world. Periodic booms and recessions occasionally happen in the free enterprise system.

The Reagan administration can be trusted to do everything possible to improve the U.S. economy, on which much of the free world's economic and social well-being depends.

Ever since World War II, the United States has been the leader of the Free World. Some American people seem to have taken this for granted. Actually, the United States has been a great power, not so much because of its military prowess, as because of the righteous stand it usually takes in international relations. Some people tend to forget that in order to remain as the leader of the free world, the United States must be motivated and guided by high moral principles.

How to rebuild the image of the United States as a dependable and trustworthy friend and ally should receive top priority consideration as the United States moves into a new era. East Asia is just as good a place for the Reagan administration to start as any other area in the world.

Agency wasted money seeking bargain Texas Congressmen get desired committee posts

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State agencies have acquired unwanted, money-wasting equipment because of problems in the commission that buys goods for state use, according to a House committee report.

The House General Investigating Committee issued an 11-page report Wednesday saying the Purchasing and General Services Commission has wasted state money when it tried to get a bargain.

Witnesses testified the commission made purchases on a bottom-line basis — the low bid was accepted even if it meant more money in the long run.

"We've had some real serious waste of funds and time," said Rep. Richard Slack, D-Pecos, committee chairman.

The report on the purchasing commission was one of two issued Wednesday by the committee. A separate report on San Antonio College called for audits of all junior colleges.

Committee members had to go behind closed doors to gather testimony about the purchasing problems. Officials from several agencies testified secretly because they feared retribution from the purchasing commission, according to the report.

Such retribution could take the form of "delayed restrictive purchasing practices," the report said.

Lack of communication between the commission and agencies led to the commission's ignoring of specific equipment requests. Agencies wanting equipment that went with existing equipment got stuck with non-compatible supplies, the report said.

Slack and Jim Vollers, committee counsel, said it was impossible to determine how much state money was wasted.

Commission policies on renting office space also were criticized in the report. The commission, again ignoring agency requests, approved leasing office space "under circumstances wherein the cost of moving, reprinting of stationery, transferring communication equipment, and down-time to an existing state agency far exceeded any savings realized by a lower" lease cost.

"Rather than saving the state money by accepting the low bid, the ultimate cost to the state was greater," the report said.

Many of the problems cited in the report were also mentioned in a special audit done by the governor's office, which the commission already is implementing.

The governor's office also faulted the commission for unresponsiveness to state agency needs and called for some watering down of the competitive bidding system.

The report also cited complaints about the commission's handling of repairs to aircraft — "handled by the commission solely upon the basis of cost without consideration of previous performance."

The committee's only firm recommendation was for a committee to advise on the purchase of computers.

Slack said the investigation of SAC found "slovenly" inventory practices that led to missing equipment.

The committee recommended legislation requiring all junior colleges to appoint auditors to do annual audits. The only audits now required are "head counts" done by the state auditor to figure out how much state money the school gets.

Slack said there were "flagrant abuses" in purchasing at SAC.

WASHINGTON (AP) — House committee assignments appear to be falling into place for Texas Democratic congressmen at the start of the 97th Congress.

The two freshmen Democrats from the state — Reps. Bill Patman of Ganado and Ralph Hall of Rockwall — snared the major committee assignments that were at the top of their lists.

Patman won the House Democratic Steering and Policy Committee's endorsement for a spot on the House Banking Committee, a position he was interested in because of his work on interest rates during his years in the Texas Senate.

Hall, whose district includes oil production areas in East Texas, was tabbed for a position on the House Energy and Commerce Committee.

The steering and policy committee's actions normally are endorsed by the full House Democratic Caucus, which meets later this month to formalize the committee assignments.

Some second-term Democrats from Texas also received the steering and policy committee's approval for changes in their committee assignments.

Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock would take the third seat on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee traditionally held by a Texan until former Rep. Omar Burleson, an Abilene Democrat, retired in 1978.

Rep. Phil Gramm of College Station would receive a seat on the House Budget Committee, which limits its members to serving three two-year terms on the panel.

Rep. Marvin Leath of Marlin would move from the House Public Works Committee to the House Armed Services Committee, an important step for a congressman whose district includes the giant Fort Hood complex.

Texans fared remarkably well two years ago when seven freshmen Democrats arrived in Washington and received committee assignments of their choice.

Gramm would take a leave of absence from the House Veterans Affairs Committee to fill the budget committee slot. His seat on the energy and commerce committee would not be affected.

"I have wanted this position since I've been in Congress," Gramm said. "I think that the key issue in the 97th Congress is going to be the budget."

Number of Texas farms grows in 1980 to highest in nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas went against the national trend in 1980 and became No. 1 in the nation for number of farms in the state, mainly because of the increasing popularity of farming as a part-time pursuit, according to new federal statistics.

Preliminary Agriculture Department figures show the number of farms in Texas climbed by 1,000 last year, reaching 186,000, a total that is expected to hold steady through this year.

The state had more farms than any other, leading second-place Missouri which had 120,000 farms last year and third-place Iowa with 119,000.

The number of farms in Texas had declined steadily since 1975 when there were 189,000.

"There's an increasing number of small, part-time farms coming in," Arnold Bollenbacher of the Census Bureau said. "One of the major things that is occurring there is that there is a sizable increased count of places with under 50 acres, especially, and much of this is part-time."

The increasing number of farms in Texas and their decreasing average size both ran counter to national trends.

The total amount of land devoted to farming, however, declined slightly since 1975 to follow the national trend that has prompted mounting concern over the disappearance of the nation's farmland.

The Agriculture Department estimates show farm acreage in Texas for 1980 at 138.8 million acres, down by 100,000 acres from the previous year and by 1.2 million acres since 1975.

Projections for this year show the amount of Texas farmland holding steady.

Bollenbacher said a majority of the farms in Texas are part-time, operated by people who do not earn their living as farmers.

The number of farms nationwide has been dropping slowly but steadily so that their average size has jumped 10 acres to 265 acres from 1975 to this year, according to the Agriculture Department figures.

Nationally, the estimates showed farmland dropping 2.5 million acres between 1978 and last year with another one million acres expected to disappear this year.

The National Agricultural Land Study, an 11-agency federal task force reviewing the farmland situation, said a year ago that Texas was losing 226,000 acres per year of agricultural land to urban, industrial and transportation uses.

Houston boos course in flag-waving

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston City Council has turned down a request for $900 to hire an instructor to teach a course in flag-waving.

The proposal suggested that an instructor from Stephen F. Austin State University in Nacogdoches come to Houston and give 30 workers in the wastewater division lessons on how to be flagmen.

Councilman Dale Gorczynski said, "It's no big deal, $900. But it's a principle."

The course would have included lessons in "the flagman, who he is and what he does," "the flagman versus environment," "the flagman versus humans," and "the flagman versus vehicles."

Bad aim fortunate in shootout

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — A store owner and two Wichita County sheriff's deputies are glad their aim was worse than their reactions when they mistook each other for burglars in the predawn darkness and exchanged gunfire.

No one was injured in the shootout early Wednesday that resulted from the mutual case of mistaken identity.

A sheriff's spokesman said no charges would be filed against Bettie Jo Marshall, who said she was sleeping in the E-Z Food Store in hopes of catching burglars who had been breaking in.

Deputies Allen Hart and Darrell Bruce said they were on routine patrol when they noticed that the store, usually well-lit after closing, was dark and a plate glass window was broken.

The uniformed officers left their marked patrol car to investigate and Mrs. Marshall awoke to the sight of two strange men.

"She said she could tell it was a yellow car, but she couldn't tell it was a law enforcement vehicle," said Capt. W.L. Burrow. "She couldn't tell who was out there, so she fired two shots" from her .38-caliber pistol.

Hart said he returned the fire when he saw a figure appear behind the store's counter.

Burrow ran back to the patrol car to call for assistance, and Mrs. Marshall called the police, whom she had told of her plans to sleep in the store.

When police arrived, they advised all parties that no burglars were present.

Judge presses for 'Princess' film showing

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge Gabrielle McDonald has refused to set aside her order that the University of Houston public television station show the controversial film "Death of a Princess."

The order, which give the university 30 days to air the film, will be appealed by the State of Texas to the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals.

Judge McDonald, in a Dec. 18 ruling, said cancellation of the program by KUHT-TV, Channel 8, constituted prior restraint and violation of the public's First Amendment rights.

She had issued a similar order last May, which was overturned by the New Orleans appeals court. But the case was sent back to Ms. McDonald and she once again demanded the university show the film.

The station cancelled the program, depicting the 1977 execution of a Saudi Arabian princess and her lover for adultery, a few days before its scheduled airing.

The decision to drop the film from the schedule was made by Patrick J. Nicholson, then a university vice president and recently retired.

Winter sunglasses offer glamor, protect eyes

By Florence De Santis

NEW YORK (NEA) — Sunglasses in winter? Eye protection is needed now, just as much as it is in other seasons. And, sunglasses are glamorous, as everyone knows.

Bausch & Lomb, the sunglasses people, have winter glamor glasses with sculpted frames in three colors. They like ivory, blue and gold to lighten the sturdy look of frames meant to withstand sport use. What those frames surround is their Ambermatic lenses, which change both color and density according to light and temperature.

When amber, the lens cuts haze and sharpens contrast on cloudy days. It turns brown to eliminate glare, especially when sun reflects from ice or snow. When the day is bright but really cold, the lens turns dark gray — all this with no loss of glamor, since your eyes are fully visible.

The Ambermatic lens does come in a mirrored version, with the frame layered in light tortoise and white, to wear in high-glare surroundings. For general winter use, the changeable Ambermatic with eye visibility is the glamor or sunglasses choice. It's even wearable indoors, although eye specialists say that's a no-no. So, push them back on your head if you'd like to be seen in them at all times.

WINTER EYE PROTECTION with glamor is seen here in sculpted frames, layered in ivory, blue and gold. The ambermatic lenses change from amber to brown to gray in response not only to light but cold.

AT WIT'S END

By Erma Bombeck

Returning anything to a department store for adjustment is one of my favorite things. It ranks right there under getting three estimates on a crushed car door.

It isn't that the salespeople give you a bad time. It's just time-consuming.

On Christmas when I opened a box containing a blouse, a cardigan and slacks, I was flattered that my husband saw me as a 5-10, 36 pound girl.

"The pants have Cheryl Tiegs right on the pocket," he said proudly.

I weighed more than Cheryl Tiegs at my birth. The day after Christmas I tried on the blouse. The sleeves held my arms to my side like a vise. The sweater would never button in this life.

Two days after Christmas, the department store set up special desks to handle the returns more efficiently. I took a second look at my outfit.

"How are you at handling stress, Cheryl?" I said in the closet to no one in particular. If I did without breakfast, didn't drink a glass of water in 36 hours, left the top zipper open, secured the zipper with a pin to keep it from easing on down, rolled up the legs and wore an overblouse, I could get by with it. I hung them in the closet and watched TV.

Four days after Christmas, my husband asked if I had returned my outfit. I took another look at the blouse. If I did arm circle exercises every morning for the next year, rolled up the sleeves, didn't button the two bottom buttons and didn't use my hands or shoulders to open doors, answer phones or drink coffee, I could wear it under a coat. I hung it up in the closet.

A few days ago, I ran across the box holding the Christmas sweater. I thought about returning it when I took another look at it. What the heck, if I hung it loosely over my shoulders and looped the arms under my chin and looked breathless like I'd just come off the "courts," it would fit like a glove. I took it out of the box, threw away the tags and sales slips and viewed my coordinated sports outfit that Barbie would have to wear a truss to get into.

Foolish? Maybe. On the other hand there isn't a day goes by that I'll not look at that trio and quote a wise man who once said, "Some men see things as they are and say why. I dream of things that never were and say why not?"

Cosmos, understanding science

COSMOS. By Carl Sagan. Random House. 355 Pages. $19.95.

By now it shouldn't be necessary to prove that Carl Sagan is one of the most brilliant scientists of our times.

But what is of perhaps greater importance is that he possesses a feverish desire to make everything about science understandable to everyone.

The latest illustration is his educational television series called "Cosmos." As a sort of companion to it he has produced a book by the same name.

Sagan says the book and television series evolved together, and that in a sense each is based on the other.

Be cautious choosing modeling school

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) — No offense, but any modeling school that takes one look and guarantees you'll be the next Cheryl Tiegs is out to take, not teach you.

That's the consensus of two modeling school owners who were in New York recently for the second annual convention of the International Talent and Modeling School Association.

"How do I know if you even have the potential to be a model until you go through the basic course so you know how to do your hair and makeup?" says Vernon Smith, president of IT.msa, and owner of the New Dawn Academy and Modeling Agency in Vancouver B.C. "And how can I guarantee that Eileen Ford will hire you after you take my courses?" he adds.

Any school that does or that brags about placing its graduates on Calvin Klein's runways or in Neiman-Marcus' catalogs should "be able to produce tearsheets, letters and contracts from agents," he says.

Even so, don't be seduced into signing away thousands of dollars by signing up for everything at once. According to Betty Mazzelli, owner of La Belle Agency, a modeling school and agency in Santa Barbara, Calif., "Even if you have the potential to be a model, you should take one course at a time because you may discover you don't like modeling."

And before committing yourself to so much as $300 for a 10-week basic grooming course — which every good school should give and which should include classes in diet and exercise, posture, skin care, make-up application and hair styling — commit yourself to more research.

Make sure the school meets existing state and/or municipal standards and regulations. "In California," she says, "I'm licensed by the city, and bonded and licensed by the State Department of Education. The state also approves my brochures which must include our refund policy, staff credentials, placement assis-

Out of the closet

The most oppressed "minority" in America today is people who are overweight, says Evelyn Roaman, namesake of the half-size clothing chain and author of the forthcoming "The Evelyn Roaman Book — Heavy Can Be Happy."

Badgered by ads that sell a skinny ideal, denied a full range of clothing and services, and often discriminated against in job situations, overweight people are victims of society's attitudes.

"Advertising and fashion magazines have managed to trance procedures and a description of our facilities."

Descriptions in the wrong hands can be deceptive, however, so always ask to see the facilities, which should include a runway, makeup room with makeup testers and brushes for use in class (at no extra fee), and, in the best of circumstances, videotape equipment.

Says Ms. Mazzelli, "We have a color tape machine to train our students in commercial acting, and a black and white set to show them how they look on camera before still photos are taken. We're fortunate in that we have an in-house photographer and darkroom so we can photograph our students as they go along." The cost for that, according to her catalog, is included in class fees.

Smith's school in Vancouver is a more modest establishment. "We try to get pictures of the girls during courses," he says. "They pay for the contact sheet and a couple of dollars for a print. And when a girl is ready for a portfolio — which every model needs to show how she looks in pictures — we try to keep down the expense. Maybe $25 for the shooting and $7 for each print."

"Disreputable schools, incidentally, insist that students buy their portfolios before they graduate, when they may not even know how to walk down the runway," he continues. "And the graduation itself may only consist of calling a student in to the office, walking her up and down and saying, here's your certificate."

A legitimate graduation is both public and demonstrative, he says. "When our girls complete the self-improvement course, they invite four guests each to see them model two different outfits of their choice. They do their own makeup and hair, we take their picture and I even supply coffee and cookies."

The festivities at La Belle Agency take place downstairs in the Spanish restaurant (in which Pat Loud decided on a divorce on television's "An American Family"). Says Ms.

trick 30 percent of the adult female population — about 25 million women — into believing that they are the wrong size," says Mrs. Roaman.

Mrs. Roaman is not a large lady herself. "I've never been heavier than a size 14," she concedes. "But one thing has nothing to do with the other. When you have a problem, you can't be objective about it. I've been working with clothes for larger women for 35 years, and I think the fact that I'm not heavy allows me more objectivity."

BEFORE AND AFTER photos of Jan Soukup from Morris Bluffs, Neb. (pop. 400). Ms. Soukup attended the Nancy Bounds Model School in Omaha and today is an international photographic model. Would - be models should thoroughly check out modeling schools before committing themselves to courses — and fees.

Mazzelli, "After our 10-week basic course, we fill the restaurant with the students' friends and family and the girls do a runway show, modeling clothes from stores in town. They get a good idea whether they like modeling or not."

Liking it isn't enough, however, to continue training at La Belle's. "We lose 90 percent of our students after the basic course at our own doing," she says. "We won't let them continue unless they're really good because even though models are being used more in small towns, the supply still overwhelms the demand."

Still, she acknowledges, if you know you can model, look like you can and are persistent, you can. But don't look for miracles, especially if they're headlined, "Models wanted — earn while you learn." Says Smith, "Those ads are usually nothing but a scheme for a photographer to earn some money. He sticks an ad in the paper and says to the girl who shows up, 'I'll teach you to pose professionally, take your picture and sell the prints but you have to buy the clothes and pay for the contact sheets and the prints.'"

So the model ends up earning nothing and learning nothing except, perhaps, that modeling isn't all it's cracked up to be.

Cruise collections test the waters for spring fashions

By Florence De Santis

NEW YORK (NEA) — Some designers call their first 1981 collections "resort and cruise," but others more accurately say, "resort and early spring."

Not many women buy entire wardrobes for a sun trip, and most hope that what they do buy will be wearable for the warmer months at home. So, designers test the spring fashion waters with their cruise collections.

Most of the top talents are thinking in light, soft ways. They're using airy organzas and sheer linens. Their colors range from sugar almond pastels to sharp contrasts of white with classic red, black or navy, just as good for spring as for resort and cruise trips.

Silhouettes don't present difficulties for most women, since they're loose or skimmer-shaped. Shoulders remain wide, but usually with sleeve-top pleating, tucking or shirring, rather than padding. Typical is Bill Blass' boxy long camel linen jacket with sleeve-top accenting, over a red blouse and white skirt. His resort sweaters in silk knit threaded with gold and striped with navy or white have accented sleeve tops.

John Anthony has always specialized in soft looks, and he uses fabrics in counterpoint, such as silk jacquard blouses with silk tweed jackets, fibranne dresses with linen gauze toppers and tulle tops with tissue faille pants. Linen voile makes a two-piece dress with a loosely-cut, short-sleeved top, buttoned to one side beneath a lapel neckline, over a super-soft dirndl skirt.

The Anthony talent for adapting sportswear shows in an evening "sweatshirt" of navy tulle powdered with star-like glitter, worn over a strapless jumpsuit of tissue faille. For cocktails, his short silk surplice-top dress whirled with accordion pleats, repeated in the all-pleated loose jacket.

Most designers are relying heavily on pants, in every style from brief shorts to billowing harem. They may have taken the cue from Milan's trend-setting Giorgio Armani, who boldly made an early spring collection entirely of pants outfits. Bermudas, culottes, long and wide pants — Halston and Geoffrey Beene both like the last, while Perry Ellis goes for ballooning harem with midriff-baring tube tops.

Despite their impracticality, jumpsuits have become the rage, whether for day, as in John Kloss' rolled-leg casual jumpsuit in pink cotton-blend twill, or for evening, as in Stephen Burrows' strapless, lace-trimmed white linen. John Anthony uses silk crepe-backed satin for a soft jumpsuit with a linen blazer. Many resort jumpsuits are cropped, such as Yonson Pak's sapphire rayon jersey with a football sweater-styled top and pleated shorts bottom.

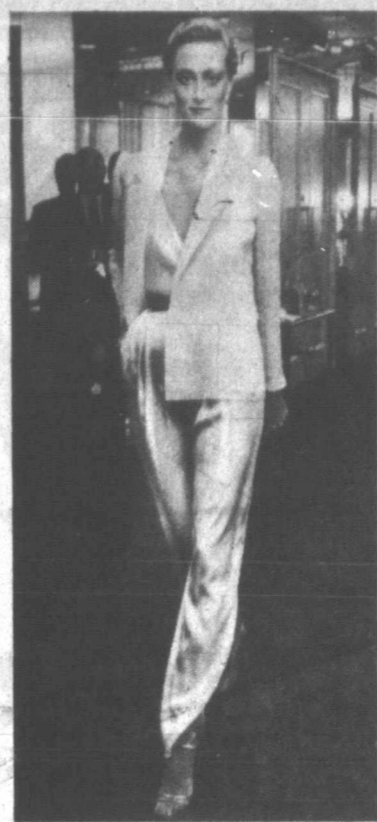

Designers are showing confidence in such soft silhouettes as the blouson, the wrapped top or skirt and the chemise or skimmer in dresses. While much of resort is in separates, dresses attract with pleats and tucks or are cut on the bias for evening. Typical of soft jackets is John Anthony's silk organza blazer, which he sees as part of his trio including cream silk satin pants and angora halter, or as a topper for anything in the resort wardrobe.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

FASHION

Florence De Santis

CLASSICALLY SOFT RESORT SEPARATES from John Anthony combine a long jacket in unlined wool flannel, left, with a band-collared, short-sleeved surplice blouse and panel pleat skirt, both in silk. All in butterscotch color: belted in snakeskin with a Lucite buckle. Soft luxury in resort pants, center, from John Anthony combine natural fiber fabrics. Blazer is in double-layered silk organza, wrap halter top is in angora knit and the pants are crepeback silk satin. All in vanilla, with gunmetal leather belt. Right, three pieces for patio cocktails and, later, for spring, are done in vanilla silky polyester by John Anthony to get permanent crystal pleating. Jacket pleats fall from saddle shoulders. Leather belt is in gunmetal color.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My 5-year-old daughter, Penny, is in a gifted children's class in public school. She has a classmate, Randy, who is a handsome, kind little fellow, but Penny says that no one likes him because he is dirty. She says he wears the same dirty jeans and T-shirt, his tennis shoes are holey, the laces untied, he never wears socks or underwear and he could really use a bath.

I told her that we like or dislike people because of the way they behave, not the way they dress, the color of their skin, the way they wear their hair, or what church they go or don't go to.

Penny likes Randy and has become his friend. (She's the only friend he has.)

I've considered writing Randy's mother a note telling her in a nice way that her son is being discriminated against because of his neglected appearance. I've also considered buying the boy some new clothes and underwear. Or should I just mind my own business? Maybe you have a suggestion on how to help Randy.

OPEN FOR SUGGESTIONS

DEAR OPEN: Because you know nothing about Randy's home life (he may not even have a mother), express your concern to Randy's teacher. A child who comes to school dirty, ill-clad and so obviously neglected needs help. School authorities are in close touch with agencies that provide assistance to abused and neglected youngsters. A child in need is everybody's business. Thank you for caring.

DEAR ABBY: I need your advice. I'm in love with a wonderful guy who wants to marry me. My problem is my work. He wants me to give it up. I'm a model (fashion and photography), and I've been told by experts that I have a great future in this field. Norman knew I was a model when we met and it didn't seem to bother him. Now he tells me that after we are married he doesn't want me to continue in this line of work.

Abby, I love modeling, but I love Norman too, and it's creating a terrible conflict within me. I don't want to give up my career, but I don't want to lose Norman. He's a very stubborn, possessive man who has given me an ultimatum — either him or my modeling. Please help me.

TORN

DEAR TORN: If you give up modeling to marry this stubborn, possessive man, prepare for more ultimatums. His idea of a "model wife" is one who yields to his demands.

DEAR ABBY: My husband insists upon sleeping in the raw. I personally have no objection to this, but he is also a sleep-walker. We have four children, including two teen-aged daughters, and Ben has been known to roam all over the house in his sleep. He has also walked outside on both the front and back porches in this unclothed state.

When I notice that Ben is gone from our bed, I go and find him and gently lead him back. Is there some way I can talk him into wearing pajamas to bed? He says they aren't "comfortable." But under the circumstances, I think he should try to get used to them, don't you?

BEN'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Yes. If you can't talk Ben into pajamas, try to talk him into the bottoms. (But settle for shorts.)

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DR. LAMB

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am an overweight 27-year-old woman. For the past several years I have been having very painful headaches. Sometimes I take up to five aspirins but they don't help any. To get the pain stopped I have to push on the sides of my head. Sometimes I get double vision, too. It lasts only a couple of minutes. The double vision never comes when I have the headaches. Also I see silver spots in front of my eyes. They sometimes last up to an hour or so. What can be causing these problems? Could it be nerves?

DEAR READER — Headaches are one of the most common complaints. People sometimes have difficulty deciding whether to see a doctor because of headaches. Anyone who has persistent headaches or a particularly severe headache should seek medical attention. A headache is a symptom. While it is true it may be a complication of a cold or just nervous tension, it can be a symptom of an important disease.

I don't mean to frighten you but double vision and headaches could mean an enlarged artery in the brain or a tumor. This is probably not true in your case but your doctor will want to sort out your history. Your story sounds more like you have migraine headaches, but the sequence of your symptoms is important in making a decision.

A common sequence in migraines is the onset of constriction of the arteries to the brain first. This interferes with circulation to the brain and causes spots before the eyes and even double vision. Then the constricted arteries relax and dilate. The dilation stretches nerve fibers in the artery wall and the pain begins.

The main causes of headaches are discussed in The Health Letter number 16-12, Headaches and What to Do About Them, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Stressful events do bring on migraine headaches. In addition to modifying your life style to avoid headaches, there are a number of medicines that often control them.

DEAR DR. LAMB — A year ago I had a nose bleed. It poured out. I stopped it. A month later I had my finger in my nose and it started. I couldn't stop it and went to emergency. They put cocaine up my nose and packed it. It coagulates fast. Then three weeks ago I had one again. I put pressure on my nose and it stopped. It pours down my throat. The doctor in the emergency room said it was a pumper. This means an artery. Can an artery break open? If it were an artery, could I control the bleeding with pressure? I don't have high blood pressure. If this happens again should I have it cauterized?

DEAR READER — Since you were able to stop it with pressure on your nose that suggests the bleeding point is in the tip of the nose. There is a nest of small vessels there including small arteries. Pressure will often stop bleeding there.

I would like for you to go see an ear, nose and throat (ENT) specialist. Sometimes an artery in the back of the nose can crack open and cause bleeding. Nose bleeds can be more serious than most people believe, particularly in adults.

The ones in the tip of the nose are often controlled by cauterizing the area but if a larger artery in the back of the nose is involved, it is sometimes necessary to tie it off.

From Italy to Hong Kong for menswear

By Florence De Santis

NEW YORK (NEA) — Every year men's clothes show a stronger fashion influence, although the average man still remains slower to pick up new ideas than the average woman. But when even discount stores advertise designer names in their men's departments, you know the fashion influence has become important.

As in women's clothes, it's also gone international. Where once the only menswear influence came from London, now Italian designers such as Giorgio Armani, Gianni Versace and Nino Cerrutti set the trends. And French designers Pierre Cardin, Daniel Hechter and Thierry Mugler have recently made almost as much of a name for men's fashions as they did for their women's clothes.

Now the international influence stretches even further, encompassing a lone creator in Hong Kong named Bobbie To. No, he's not merely a Hong Kong tailor, but an original designer who also knows how to attract attention. Visitors to the now-suspended Hong Kong fashion weeks for buyers and press used to look forward to Bobbie To's extravagant fantasy parties.

In his menswear, however, Bobbie To knows how to fit into the international trend, as his current clothes for Bloomingdale's, New York's trendy department store, illustrate. He makes everything go together in a coordinated, casually elegant way. His pullover has an unusually deep V-neck, and is in silk knit to feel comfortable over his silk dress shirt. He adds a cable-knit wool blend cardigan, front-pleats his trousers to lend elegance to corduroy, and tops everything off with a wool swagger coat with pleated sleeve tops that run onto the shoulders like stitched-down epaulets.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

January 9, 1981

It's important this coming year to stay on the best of terms with persons whose assistance you need in your career or business. Solid relationships can help you advance your ambitions many times faster than you could on your own.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Steer clear of friends and acquaintances who sometimes take advantage of your generous nature. These persons may consider you a sitting duck today. Romance, travel, luck resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Should you find yourself in a competitive situation today, don't underestimate your adversaries. The foe may be a trifle stronger than you think.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Acting without thinking today could cause you unnecessary problems. Plan that which you hope to do with extreme care, then follow through to the letter.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful in dealing with friends today where money is involved. A misunderstanding could suddenly erupt if the transactions get complicated.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Persons whose support you need in order to further your ambitions must be treated with extreme tact. A wrong move could cost you an ally.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This is not a good day to experiment with untested methods or procedures workwise. What you think is a labor-saving device may prove to be the opposite.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Usually you're not the type who takes risks on things about which you know little, but today a persuasive friend may encourage you to act against your better judgment.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Making snap decisions on important domestic issues could cause complications today. Don't decide unless you're sure you have all the facts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't let your attention wander if you are working with unfamiliar tools or materials today. Daydreaming could cause serious mistakes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're reasonably lucky today, except in situations where you hope to get something for nothing. A jackpot isn't likely if you don't first put a coin in the machine.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) On the homefront today, disruptions could arise over ridiculous issues. Conduct yourself so that no one can accuse you of being the instigator.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) From time to time you have a tendency to blurt out things you wish you'd never said. Guard against this tendency today so you won't have to apologize later.

Stocks investment 'wiz' shakes up the market

NEW YORK (AP) — His critics call him a "clown" and a "Wizard of Oz type," but few people can shake up the stock market the way Joseph E. Granville can.

If there was any doubt about that, it was removed on Wednesday, after the Holly Hill, Fla., investment adviser recommended in his telephone "early warning service" that subscribers dump all the stocks they owned.

As the market opened, it was inundated with sell orders that forced trading delays in more than 100 stocks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had soared past the 1,000 level Tuesday to its highest closing level in more than four years, abruptly turned around and plummeted.

By mid-afternoon Wednesday, the Dow was down more than 30 points. Even after a modest rally before the close, the Dow still showed a 23.80-point loss, to 980.99, wiping out a large portion of the nearly 41-point gain it had built up in the first three trading days of 1981.

Trading volume reached record levels of 92.89 million shares at the New York Stock Exchange, eclipsing the previous high of 84.06 million last Nov. 5, and 15.76 million shares at the American Stock Exchange.

Granville was not shy about taking responsibility for the drop. Reached by The Associated Press late Wednesday, he said it could be "totally traced" to him.

Hours before, the legions of investors and stockbrokers who make up his avid following — the "Granville groups," as one Wall Streeter refers to them — had spread the word through the investment world.

He had recommended to his telephone subscribers that they sell out all their stock holdings, and even go short — sell stock borrowed from brokers, in hopes of profiting from price declines — on those stocks that had gained the most ground in recent months. Many people clearly followed his advice.

By any standard of the established order on Wall Street, Granville is a maverick. His weekly market letter, which at last report had some 11,000 readers at a price of $250 a year, is regularly peppered with jibes at orthodox economists and money managers.

They are, in his description, "bagholders" — losers in the investment game.

For most of the year, Granville takes his message on the road in "shows," usually sponsored by local brokers, across the country and abroad. Between now and the end of February, he has dates in such diverse places as Garden Grove, Calif.; Dayton, Ohio; and Vancouver, British Columbia.

In these appearances, Granville fills his presentations with exotic showmanship — jokes, ringing bells, puppets, plus a musical composition of his own called "The Bagholder Blues."

Because of this, even one Wall Street analyst who professes to admire some of Granville's work in analyzing the market describes him as "a snake-oil salesman. He can mesmerize an audience like an evangelist."

Many Wall Streeters also bridle at his practice of suddenly shifting opinions on the market outlook. When he helped touch off a 30.72-point jump in the Dow Jones industrials last April 22 with a buy recommendation to his "early warning" subscribers, critics point out those who received only his regular letter still had his previous negative views.

At present, they add, the most recent issue of the letter, dated Jan. 3, is emphatically bullish. "Straight up," it is titled. It advises new subscribers to "do some aggressive new buying. The market is signaling a sharp upswing ahead."

More is likely to be heard from his detractors in the days ahead, given the stunning impact his sell message had.

But in the view of one veteran Wall Street analyst, Robert Slovall at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc.: "It's not Joe's fault that one guy can have such a remarkable impact on the market. It's the gullibility of a lot of investors who want simple answers to complicated questions."

Whether popular or not, the publicity-conscious Granville was obviously delighted with all the attention he was getting from reporters Wednesday.

The sell recommendation, he declared, would be proven correct within months. "Just watch how much more the market is going to go down over the next four to six weeks," he said.

STOCK MARKET TIMING. Joseph Granville, author of "Granville's New Strategy of Daily Stock Market Timing for Maximum Profit," looks over predictions made in his book. Being at the center of a storm is nothing new for Granville, the investment adviser whose "sell" recommendation helped send the stock market into a steep decline Wednesday. (AP Laser photo)

Hodding Carter wants close probe of Haig

HOUSTON (AP) — Former State Department spokesman Hodding Carter believes there are "enough matters on record" to warrant a careful examination by the Senate of Alexander Haig, the choice of President-elect Ronald Reagan as secretary of state.

Carter, in Houston to speak at a public television awards ceremony Wednesday, said "all you have to do is look at (former Watergate prosecutor Leon) Jaworski's book — not just at what he has been saying about Haig lately — but what he said in the book. You will realize that he (Haig) needs to be looked at very closely."

The former state department aide said the Senate should dig deeply into Haig's activities during the last days of the Nixon administration.

Carter also was critical of national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, saying "he thinks of himself as one of the master global strategists of our time, but his notion of what our strategy should be changed every nine months."

Carter said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance tolerated Brzezinski's undermining efforts because "Mr. Vance was a person of intense loyalty to the president. He felt that the ultimate issues the president agreed with him and was listening to Brzezinski only for political reasons — to watch out for his right flank."

Hunts buying Canadian mineral rights

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Money from the billionaire Hunt brothers of Texas is gushing into Western Canada.

Nelson Bunker, William and Lamar Hunt invested $83 million in Western Canadian mineral properties in a buying binge this week and New York bankers say the brothers have been given the go-ahead to purchase holdings in "at least a half a dozen mining ventures."

This week's buying involved three Western Canadian mining concerns, but a spokesman for Hunt Energy Corp. of Dallas would not confirm or deny that other approved acquisitions also involve Canadian properties.

The Vancouver-based Inveq group said it sold royalty interests in two of its mining properties Tuesday to Procan Exploration Co., the Hunt brothers' Calgary-based partnership.

The same day, Cadillac Explorations Ltd. of Calgary said it sold Procan a 40 percent royalty interest in some of its mining claims and leases for $55 million. The purchases came one day after the Hunts bought for $35 million a 50 percent royalty interest in certain mining claims and leases in the Northwest Territories owned by Terra Mining and Exploration Co.

A royalty interest is a percentage of net profit, as opposed to a working interest which gives the owner the right to put the mine into production.

Terra operates three high-grade silver mines in the Camsell River district near Great Bear Lake, 250 miles northwest of Yellowknife. The Silver Bear Mine and the North Mine (parallel vein systems about 40 yards apart) are wholly owned, while Norex Mine, about seven miles east, is 50 percent owned by Terra.

Alan Savage, president of Inveq Resources, said Procan agreed to provide $1.5 million for exploration and development required at its Kelly Creek copper and silver property near Terrace in northwest British Columbia.

The Kelly Creek property is a joint venture between Inveq Resources and Cathedral Minerals Ltd., which in turn is controlled by Inveq.

Procan has also spent $1.75 million on a royalty interest in Imperial Metals and Power. Under the agreement, Imperial will core drill its Groundhog coalfield licenses to establish whether mineable reserves of thermal coal exist.

Before the Hunts embarked on their spending spree, they needed to get permission from Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York and First National Bank in Dallas under the terms of a $1.1 billion refinancing program to bail the brothers out of a disastrous foray into the silver market last year.

The Hunt brothers bought considerable amounts of silver in 1979, including a contract to buy 19 million ounces at $35 an ounce. But when the speculative market began to crumble, the Hunts failed to meet the margin calls.

Top realtor says professionalism needed

NEW YORK (AP) — With would-be customers priced out of the market, with new construction buried in an economic morass, with financing demanding a tax lawyer's agility, real estate people are having their problems.

But some of the industry's problems, according to a fellow who relies on some 34 years of critical observations, were brought on by itself.

"What problems?" William D. Patterson was asked. "Incompetence," said Patterson, who helped found and who now heads Delaware's largest realtor, Patterson Schwartz, headquartered in Wilmington. He expounded:

"I told a real estate group a while ago that we aren't a profession and they got angry. But we're not a profession. We're approaching a profession and we're making great strides, but we've got a way to go."

Patterson, it may surprise some to learn, is also an official of the National Association of Realtors. He is in fact the brand new president of its educational arm, the Realtors National Marketing Institute.

"If we have a theme for this year it's specialization and professionalism," he said. Education will be the vehicle. "Education and training is the bottom line in this business," he said. It will be proven again this year, he said. Perhaps as never before, he suggested.

"The real estate business is becoming more complex and competitive," he explained. "For the time being, and if mortgage rates stay at 14 or 15 percent, we'll need a lot of innovation or we won't see deals."

Patterson's job for the year — he'll be detached from his Wilmington office — is to spread word of the institute's many courses and books for, he says, "those seeking to be more than sales people."

It's a practice of many years, one that helped build his firm to 130 people grossing $100 million a year. All are employees rather than contractors, the latter being a looser alliance common to most firms. It allows him, he says, "to tell them what needs to be done."

"During the difficult what he foresees for this year, and probably 1982 and 1983 as well, the well-trained, well-directed Realtor will get the business, says Patterson. He will, for example, know creative finance.

"As practiced through much of 1980, creative financing means inducing the seller to take back a mortgage from the buyer. It can mean tax advantages for the seller. It can mean a steady, high-interest income.

The well trained agent or Realtor, said Patterson, "will qualify the buyer and have complete information on that person when he goes to the seller. He'll be able to advise on taxes. He'll know the seller's needs and his investment goals."

Taxpayers will lose if banks win lawsuit

DALLAS (AP) — Taxpayers will be the big losers — "as usual" — if 52 Dallas-area banks win a lawsuit being tried here that challenges local governments' rights to include bank stock in making tax assessments.

"If they (the banks) win this one, it will have statewide effects," said Dallas County tax official A.L. Curtis as jury selection began for the trial. "It would set a precedent ... that the banks could not be taxed on anything but real estate and that would take a great deal of money from local governments.

"The taxpayer — as usual — would pay in the long run." Jury selection for the suit continued today, with local officials estimating the City and County of Dallas would stand to lose at least $15 million in tax revenues if the banks can carry the field.

Financial administrators said bank taxes account for about 5 percent of the budget in Dallas County alone.

The 39 bank members of the Dallas Clearing House Association initiated the suit. They claim taxing bank stock

Reagan to inherit sluggish economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan will inherit a 1981 inflation rate exceeding 12 percent and a sluggish economy that will push unemployment as high as 8 percent, the outgoing Carter administration predicts in its forthcoming economic outlook.

The grim forecast, which parallels other projections by the Congressional Budget Office and private economists, is the reason strategists for Reagan are warning the president-elect that the current budget deficit will be "far worse" than originally predicted.

David A. Stockman, Reagan's budget director-designate, said Wednesday the task of controlling federal spending — in light of double-digit inflation and sky-high interest rates — "is going to be even greater than we expected."

He told reporters the 1981 federal budget is fast piling up a $60 billion deficit, the same as last year's red ink and double the figure predicted only months ago by the Carter administration.

As recently as last spring, Carter vowed that the fiscal 1981 budget would show a slight surplus.

Carter's budget for fiscal 1982, which is to be delivered to Congress less than a week before Reagan takes office, is expected to project a deficit of about $40 billion after $740 billion in federal spending, sources say.

That budget is based on the Carter administration's economic outlook that sees consumer prices advancing at more than 12 percent for the third year in a row.

The Carter budget predicts inflation, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, will rise 12.6 percent in 1981, about the same as last year and only slightly less than the 13.3 percent pace in 1979.

This lack of progress on the inflation front occurs despite last year's severe but short recession, which kept the economy at a virtual standstill for all of 1980.

The Carter administration assumes that the Gross National Product, after adjusting for inflation, will not grow at all in the first six months of 1981. However, a 3.4 percent annual growth rate predicted for the second half would mean a 1.7 percent expansion for the whole year.

Historically, that is a meager improvement, particularly after a recession. In 1982, the Carter administration foresees a 3.5 percent growth rate, sources said.

Unemployment, now 7.5 percent of the workforce, is expected to rise to 8 percent in this year's second quarter. It then will decline to about 7.7 percent by year's end, according to the administration's outlook.

Most private economists also foresee a very slow growth in the economy in 1981. Data Resources Inc. predicts a 0.1 percent growth rate. Chase Manhattan Bank a 1.5 percent expansion.

Clements wants tough stance towards criminals

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Anti-crime bills are certain to take up much of the 1981 Legislature's time as Gov. Bill Clements has proposed an extensive package of proposals, and numerous legislators have indicated they want to get tough with criminals. This is one of a series of AP stories on matters before the Legislature.)

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas' top lawmaker and Gov. Bill Clements have put the word out that they are going after the kingpins of crime during the 1981 Legislature.

Bills filed before the session indicate legislators also want criminals to keep their hands off youngsters and old folks.

The desire of Clements and Col. Jim Adams, director of the Department of Public Safety, to get a wiretap bill approved has focused most attention on that proposal, but it appears doomed.

Clements claims polls show Texans support tapping telephone lines if that is what it takes to shut down major drug traffickers, who have generated a $3 billion a year business in the state.

A wiretap bill passed the Senate in 1979, but never got a committee hearing in the House.

"We must enact a state wiretapping statute if we are to ever reach the upper echelon of the drug traffic in Texas — there are no two ways about it," says Clements.

His proposal would be limited to felony narcotics cases and, in response to wiretap critics, Clements maintains the bill would have enough safeguards to protect the privacy of law-abiding Texans.

"The people of Texas ought to fear the source of this request," says Executive Director John Duncan of the Texas Civil Liberties Union. "Bill Clements came out of the Department of Defense under the Nixon administration — a department that routinely violated the constitutional rights of Americans by spying on them."

Although a Clements aide says Speaker Bill Clayton has assured the governor he will remain "neutral" on wiretap, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby opposes the proposal and predicts it again will not clear the Senate. To stack the odds in his favor, Hobby is expected to appoint Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, another opponent of wiretap, as chairman of the committee that will consider the bill.

Adams said a proposal from the "War on Drugs" campaign by Dallas millionaire H. Ross Perot to seize illicit funds that have been invested in legal businesses is directed at crime bosses.

"We haven't seen the existence in Texas of an organized crime family," says Adams, a former FBI boss. "There are 26 such families, all headquartered in other states, but we are seeing their money coming into Texas motels and banks."

The Perot group proposes stiffer penalties, with no parole, for major drug dealers, greater penalties for selling narcotics to minors and outlawing "head shops" that sell drug paraphernalia.

Clements and Adams support a proposal to allow a defendant's voluntary oral confession to be used as trial evidence. Texas is the only state that does not allow such confessions to be introduced into evidence.

They also want the Legislature to make it clear that money seized in a drug search can be used by the agency responsible for the search in other drug-related law enforcement activities.

Clements' "stand tough" anti-crime package includes other proposals that would:

- Permit juries to know how parole laws might affect a prison sentence.
- Close loopholes in a law that allows judges to grant probation after a person has been "shocked" with brief time in prison.

— Raise court fees to fund an $18 million grant program for law enforcement.

— Increase the maximum penalty for rape or sexual abuse of a child from 20 years in prison to life. The maximum penalty for indecency with a child would increase from 10 years to 20 years.

The tougher penalties, plus stronger enforcement, "should help deter some of the monsters who prey on innocent and helpless children," editorialized the Dallas Times Herald.

Rep. Gene Green, D-Houston, has filed a bill to make those pay extra who commit crimes against the handicapped or persons 65 or older.

If the offense were a felony, for example, Green's bill would require the defendant to serve at least twice the minimum prison sentence provided by law.

Bonilla wants to succeed brother in LULAC

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Tony Bonilla wants to become national president of the nation's oldest and largest Hispanic organization to carry on the programs begun by his brother two years ago.

And Ruben Bonilla, prevented by the organization's constitution from seeking a third consecutive term, says he intends to take a "high profile" role to ensure continuity during his brother's administration.

But the two Corpus Christi attorneys deny they are trying to establish a Bonilla "family dynasty" atop the League of United Latin American Citizens, a 52-year-old organization that boasts 100,000 members in 40 states and Puerto Rico.

In addition, a third Bonilla brother, William, 48, was national president of the organization in 1974 and served as chairman of Project SER, a federally funded LULAC jobs program, during Ruben's national presidency. Tony, 34, served as national executive director during his brother's term and met with President Jose Lopez Portillo of Mexico as the LULAC liaison.

Ruben Bonilla, 44, won the national presidency in a lively contest with incumbent Ed Pena, former head of federal Equal Employment Opportunity contract compliance, and during his two-year stint completed transforming LULAC from a primarily social organization to one active in pushing political solutions to Hispanic problems.

Activists criticized LULAC as the "Mexican-American Country Club" until it emerged in a leadership role during the late 1970s.

"They didn't make that (family dynasty) accusation when the Kennedys participated at the highest level of government," Tony Bonilla said in a telephone interview from nearby Floresville Wednesday.

"I think the record will show that we (Bonillas) have delivered. We have contacts with key people in government on the national, state and local levels so we can get things done and the bottom line when you want to get something done is who do you know and what can you do," he said.

Ruben Bonilla said the idea of his brother running was to strengthen Ruben's "Agenda for Hispanic Equality," which seeks to prevent conservatives in the Ronald Reagan administration from dismantling equal opportunity hiring and other programs designed to help minorities. He said recently boycotts and peaceful picketing might be necessary in coming years.

"The announcement being made today is the earliest any person ever announced for LULAC national president in our 52-year history," Ruben Bonilla said said by telephone from Corpus Christi.

"The idea of the early announcement is to enable us to develop a strong organization and enable my administration to have a stronger foothold in dealing with the Reagan-Bush Administration and congressional offices across the country."

He said in the past, LULAC presidents had been part-time leaders of the organization and melted into obscurity at the end of their terms. He said he does not believe LULAC members want to return to the days of the "tamaleras," tamale parties, of the late 1960s and early 1970s.

"For years the Hispanic community has been called a sleeping giant," Tony Bonilla added. "I think Ruben has awakened the sleeping giant and gotten it to start walking. My ambition and goal is to get the sleeping giant to start running."

"Some people have billed the 1980s as the decade of the Hispanic. If that's supposed to have any meaning it's going to require greater political involvement at the highest level of government. It's going to require becoming politically sophisticated and more independence from the political parties."

The new LULAC president will be chosen during the national convention June 17-21 in Albuquerque, N.M.

Pampa swimmers compete in double meet tonight

Pampa High swimmers pull double duty tonight when they meet Caprock and Palo Duro in duals at the Maverick Boys Club Pool in Amarillo.

Pampa opens against Palo Duro at 7 p.m. and then tangles with Caprock.

Pampa boys are 1-1 in dual competition this season, defeating Tascosa and losing to Amarillo High.

The Harvesters' top pointgetters this season have been Clay Douglass, Richard Steger and Don Braswell.

Caprock and Palo Duro are also both 1-1.

The Lady Harvesters, who are suffering from a lack of depth this season, are 0-2 in dual meets. They are led by Cindy Raymond and Lisa Raymond.

Pampa hosts Lubbock Monterey in another dual Saturday in Pampa Youth and Community Center.

It will be the final home meet of the season for the Harvesters.

Wheeler teams down Mobeetie

WHEELER-Wheeler sped away from Mobeetie the second half for a 47-39 win Tuesday night in a girls' basketball game.

After trailing by two, 9-7, in the first quarter, Wheeler went ahead by three, 16-13, at halftime.

The Lady Mustangs used an 18-point third quarter to expand their lead by eight, 34-26, after three quarters.

Missy Wiggins and Mona Jennings paced Wheeler with 15 and 14 points respectively.

Shannon Batton topped Mobeetie with 14 points. Quarles added 13.

Wheeler routed Mobeetie, 72-43, in the boys' game.

Boyd Waldo was Wheeler's top scorer with 16 points. Teammate Ty Henderson contributed 12.

Danny Hilburn led the losers with 15 points. D. Farrar added seven points.

A 22-point fourth quarter by Wheeler was more than enough to bury Mobeetie.

Wheeler is entered in the Phillips Tournament today through Saturday.

Pro bowlers Tour begins 20th year on television

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Bowling, America's blue-collar game, has risen out of the gutters and alleys. The popular participant sport now travels first class along Madison Ave. because of a conscientious clean-up campaign and the best TV format since Johnny Carson was given his desk and sofa.

As Carson might deadpan, "Howwww popular is it?"

Well, on Saturday, ABC-TV begins its 20th consecutive season broadcasting the Professional Bowlers Tour with the Miller High Life Classic from Anaheim, Calif. The network recently signed a new four-year contract to carry 16 winter tour events and, for the first time, five spring stops.

And if longevity doesn't impress you, how about ratings? Bowling attracts more viewers than all sports except football and boxing. It also draws more women than most sports. Last year's winter tour on ABC had an 8.5 rating (percent of total sets watching), compared to baseball's 7.3, pro basketball's 5.8 and college basketball's 6.0.

That translates to some 20 million viewers and a lot of barrels of beer on the wall, even if the bowlers can't touch the foamy stuff on the air. Bowling gets many of the same fulltime sponsors as other sports. The exceptions are the stock brokers and insurance companies that still target the country club set watching golf and tennis.

If bowling's image isn't three-piece suits or plaid pants, it's not T-shirts or cheap polyester with neon on the back, either.

Under the heading "Be Your Own Public Relations Man," the Professional Bowlers Association's Image Committee demands that "shoes should be clean and polished and if your shirt wasn't designed to be worn outside your trousers, tuck it in...Sideburns may not extend below the ear lobe and hair must be neatly trimmed and not extend below the collar line...Jeans may not be worn while bowling at any time."

"The rules are geared to encourage our appearance as professional athletes," says PBA Commissioner Joseph Antona. "We want them to wear good-looking shirts. And they can only take soft drinks on the lanes, although once in a while, someone will sneak a beer."

Pro football, the TV king, has the rugged action that attracts large audiences. This fall, CBS won the Sunday football ratings war over NBC 15.3-15.0, but ABC's bowling numbers still are quite respectable. Only ABC's "Wide World of Sports" and its "Superstars" did better among winter sports programming in 1980.

As a spectator sport, bowling isn't dynamic, yet it is the third longest running sports series behind ABC's college football and "Wide World." The PBA says 64 million Americans have bowled at least once, but that doesn't fully explain the sustained viewer interest in a sport that has as much variation as chopping trees.

Strateline: Sports

In Forrest Cole's pro debut last weekend in Abilene, the 24-year-old Pampa bowler averaged 211.6 for a dozen games. Cole's score wasn't good enough to place, but his timing was off. Not of the approach, but on his schedule.

"There was some pretty good bowling going on," Cole said. "I was unlucky enough to bowl in the segment between the summer and winter tour. I had to go against some top-name bowlers."

Cole didn't make the $293 low in cash at the Kiva Open, but he wasn't too disappointed with his performance.

"I had some big games in the 250s and 260s that you have to have, but I also had three bad games that just killed me," he added.

If his schedule permits, Cole plans to bowl in a PBA tournament in Amarillo later this year.

Pampa receiver Steve McDougall and Amarillo High running back Mark Mathiasmeier were named to the All-South Plains Team by the Lubbock newspaper.

There's a new type of Bermuda grass fed by a fertilizer that is cutting down on football injuries in East Texas High Schools.

This past season, twenty-four high schools participated in the agricultural experiment, conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and scientists with the Tennessee Valley Authority's National Fertilizer Development Center.

The new type grass is soft and resilient. Tests at one school show scrapes down to zero, ankle injuries cut from 14 to four and knee injuries nonexistent. A second school reports knee injuries down from six to one.

According to the extension service, one of the key ingredients in the grass is an experimental fertilizer developed at TVA's Muscle Shoals, Ala., experimental station and now being tested on a variety of crops. One application lasts a season.

Can anyone guess correctly the four Major Bowl winners of 1980? Alabama clobbered Arkansas, 24-9, in the Sugar Bowl. Southern California edged Ohio State, 17-16, in the Rose Bowl. Oklahoma crushed Florida State, 24-7, in the Orange Bowl. Houston nipped Nebraska, 17-14, in the Cotton Bowl.

There ought to be a Political Bowl for teams with mediocre records, but who have coaches that win popularity contests.

Arkansas and Lou Holtz should be the first considered next season if the Razorbacks have another 6-5 record.

Many colleges, particularly in the east, are rarely considered for a bowl because they don't have a Big Ten schedule or a winning tradition.

Forget the schedule and tradition. Teams like Dartmouth, which has posted a 60-27-3 record against Division I-A competition the past 10 years, deserve a day in the spotlight.

Flashback: Jan. 1972. Eighth-ranked Pampa lifted its record to 17-2 with an easy 71-45 win over Dumas.

Richard Buntun and Don Cain led Pampa's balanced scoring attack with 17 and 16 points respectively.

Jim George led Dumas with 17.

Phillips top candidate

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Allen's philosophy, frequently expressed, is that "the future is now." He is noted for trading draft choices — including choices he had already swapped away — for established veterans.

Phillips emergence as the favorite also increased the odds against Lou Holtz, coach of the University of Arkansas, who said Wednesday that he considered the Saints job a plum and would have to consider any offers from Mecom.

Mecom also said he foresaw no conflict between his future coach and General Manager Steve Rosenbloom. Rosenbloom is in charge of personnel with the Saints, working through Dick Steinberg, whom he hired from Los Angeles shortly after joining the Saints before last season.

"I am not out to replace anything but a head coach," Mecom said Wednesday. "Bum and I have talked about that."

The two are scheduled to talk again before the week is over.

Eighth-ranked Maryland tripped up by North Carolina, 75-66

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Maryland Terrapins are rated No. 8 in the country, but it's tough to pull rank in the Atlantic Coast Conference — especially on the other team's court.

In few other leagues does the homecourt advantage mean as much. And North Carolina, rated No. 16 in America, had it Wednesday night during a 75-66 victory over the Terrapins.

"This game was extremely important for our young team," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith. "They've got everybody back from the team that beat us last year and we're missing five of our top seven. This has to help us."

Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell, as expected, was not too happy with his team's performance.

"We had been down in the first half then we went from eight up to two down in 30 seconds, it seems like," he said. "Then we got in a lot of foul trouble and that really hurt us."

Driesell was not surprised that North Carolina went to its patented four-corners offense, its Great Equalizer, early in the second half.

"He's (Smith's) done that a lot in the past," Driesell said.

In other action involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 3 Virginia beat North Carolina State 63-55; No. 4 Kentucky stopped Auburn 79-66; No. 6 Wake Forest tripped Appalachian State 63-42; No. 9 Louisiana State whipped Vanderbilt 77-61; No. 13 Tennessee turned back Mississippi 73-68 and No. 20 Clemson outscored Georgia Tech 65-54.

Al Wood's second-half shooting and some clutch free throws down the stretch kept the Tar Heel triumph. Wood wound up with a team-leading 22 points, while Albert King scored 21 for Maryland.

Ralph Sampson scored 24 points and Jeff Lamp had 17 to lead Virginia over North Carolina State. The victory was Virginia's second in the ACC this season without a loss and improved its overall record to 10-0. The Cavaliers have won 15 straight games going back to last season, the nation's longest winning streak for a college basketball team.

"Quite obviously, Ralph Sampson was the difference," said North Carolina State Coach Jim Valvano. "He's just a great basketball player. If you wanted to start a pro or college franchise today, Sampson is the starting point. He is the most valuable player in the world in that aspect."

The balanced scoring of Sam Bowie, Fred Cowan and Dirk Minniefield helped Kentucky beat Auburn. Kentucky led by five points at 58-53 with 7:18 remaining, then pulled away from the Tigers with solid defense and deadly free throw shooting.

Cowan scored 17 points, Bowie 15 and Minniefield 13 for the Wildcats.

"We almost lost it at one point, but building the lead back is a good sign this team is growing up," said Bowie, referring to the stage where Auburn had trimmed the Wildcats' lead to five points.

Clutch second-half shooting by Jim Johnstone and Danny Young led Wake Forest past Appalachian State. The Mountaineers remained close to Wake Forest throughout the first half by using a deliberate offense.

But then Johnstone took charge, pouring in nine of Wake Forest's first 16 points in the second half. As Appalachian started collapsing on Johnstone, Young began hitting. Young and Johnstone both wound up with 12 points.

Super sub Willie Simms tossed in 18 points and LSU's stingy defense forced repeated turnovers as the Tigers scored their 10th straight victory with their conquest of Vanderbilt.

Howard Wood scored 29 points, including 17 free throws, to lead Tennessee over Mississippi. Chris Dadds hit four straight 18-footers at the start of the second half as Clemson bolted to an 18-point lead and coasted past Georgia Tech.

Elsewhere in college basketball, Chuck Barnett's 24 points led Oklahoma over Stephen F. Austin 88-55; Ronald Jackson scored 26 to pace Southern Mississippi over Marquette 84-72; Randy Wright led a balanced Oklahoma State attack with 19 points as the Cowboys beat New Orleans 94-70; Darrell Walker and U.S. Reed teamed for 44 points to lead Arkansas over Alaska-Anchorage 92-58 and John Goode scored a game-high 15 points, including a free throw with no time on the clock, as VMI defeated East Tennessee State 43-42.

Also, Dan Callandrillo's 22 points powered Seton Hall over Providence 66-52; Furman defeated The Citadel 75-65 as Mel Daniel scored a career-high 34 points; Greg Nance had 20 points to help West Virginia defeat Youngstown State 81-59; St. John's whipped Georgetown 68-60 behind Wayne McKoy's 20 points; Dominique Wilkins had a career-high 37 points as Georgia beat Florida 90-74.

Lefors splits with Higgins

LEFORS-Lefors crushed Higgins, 41-15, Tuesday night in high school basketball play.

Richie Kidwell led Lefors with 13 points while Monty Basket added nine.

Higgins was paced by Daniel Jennings, who had seven points. Lefors defense held Higgins without a score the first quarter.

Leading by five, 16-11, at halftime, Lefors went on an 18-point scoring surge the third quarter while Higgins was limited to a field goal.

Lefors dropped the girls' game, 44-22.

Lori Watson was Lefors top scorer with 10 points.

Lefors managed only a pair of field goals in the first and second quarters to fall behind by 20, 24-4, at halftime.

Lefors trailed by 23 going into the final quarter.

Tonya Mills and Cindy Stubbs added four points apiece for the losers.

Kim Eggleston and Patty Willyard had 13 and 11 points respectively for Higgins.

Reminds 8:1

"There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus...Such has been the case with the group 'Transformation.'"

The group is made up of Gary and Trish Endsley singing praise and glorifying God with their voices. They are backed up by a group of young musicians who serve and love the Lord.

Each member of the group can identify with the above scripture and their desire is to help others to experience the same renewing of body, spirit and mind.

Experience a "Transformation" at this Saturday's meeting of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International, at the Pampa Optimist Boy's Club, 601 E. Craven, at 6:30 p.m.

Charger receivers, Sipe head AP NFL ALL-PRO team for 1980

NEW YORK (AP) — Tight end Kellen Winslow and wide receivers John Jefferson and Charlie Joiner of the San Diego Chargers, who caught more than 1,000 yards in passes apiece to set a National Football League record, were named today to the Associated Press All-Pro Team for the 1980 season.

Cleveland's Brian Sipe, whose league-leading passing was instrumental in the Browns' resurgence, was selected The AP's All-Pro first-team quarterback. He beat out Dan Fouts, the Chargers' record-breaker.

The Raiders are outside linebacker Ted Hendricks and cornerback Lester Hayes; the Rams are free safety Nolan Cromwell and cornerback Pat Thomas, the Browns are Sipe and defensive end Lyle Alzado and the Oilers are running back Earl Campbell and tackle Leon Gray.

Campbell still involved in contract dispute with Oilers

'HOUSTON (AP) — Witt Stewart, trying to negotiate a $1 million per year contract for Earl Campbell with the Houston Oilers, says Campbell would be valuable to the Oilers even if he became injured and couldn't play for two years.

Just like when O.J. (Simpson) went to San Francisco, he took some class with him," Stewart said. "People would come out to the games just in hopes of seeing him run the ball twice."

Campbell's contract that currently pays him $500,000 annually including bonuses, the all-pro running back will ask to be traded or sit out next season.

news conference called by Stewart to discuss Campbell's demands and has declined all interviews that include questions about the contract dispute.

The policy led to problems when linebacker Robert Brazile walked out of training camp when the Oilers refused to renegotiate.

"A lot of players went to Earl during the season and told him the only way he would get things done was to go in on Thursday and threaten no to play on Sunday," Stewart said.

Wake Forest wins WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Clutch second-half shooting by Jim Johnstone and Danny Young led No. 6 Wake Forest past a deliberate Appalachian State team Wednesday night and the Demon Deacons captured a 63-42 victory.

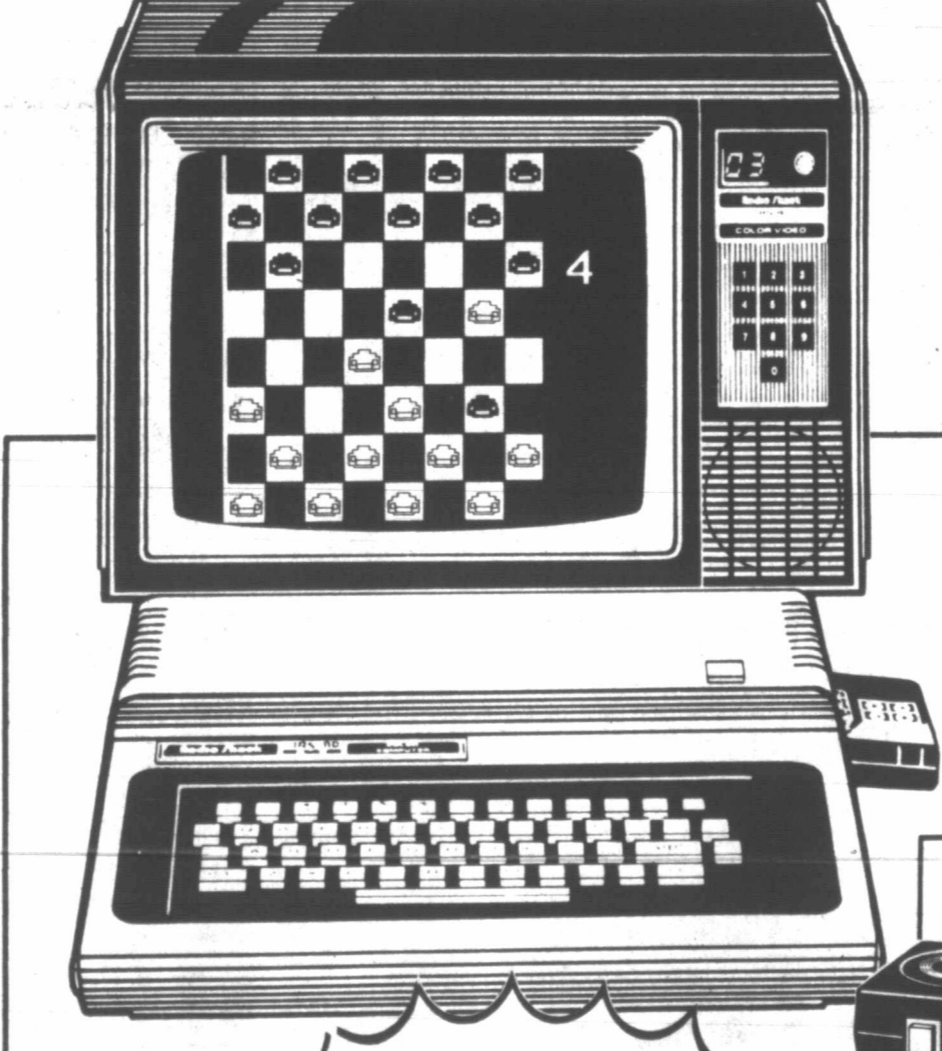

Sipe chosen as NFL's most valuable player

CLEVELAND (AP) — He was rarely caught off guard by a blitzing linebacker, but quarterback Brian Sipe says he was entirely surprised by the latest post-season award to hit him. The heart of the Cleveland Browns' celebrated passing attack, Sipe was named the National Football League's Most Valuable Player by The Associated Press on Tuesday.

Ag Department booklet brunt of Block's observation of hogs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Carol Tucker Foreman, who some critics charge personifies a desertion of farmers by the Agriculture Department in favor of consumers, is remaining controversial to the end of her days in office.

Ms. Foreman, who was named assistant secretary of agriculture for food and consumer services four years ago, was unveiling a new 32-page government booklet today called "Ideas for Better Eating."

About 100,000 copies have been printed at an estimated cost of $26,000, officials said.

The booklet includes "menu suggestions and recipes to help Americans make better use of the dietary guidelines" published by the government a year ago.

Those guidelines, although not recommending a ban on any particular food item, stirred controversies over their validity, including conflicts among some experts over the relationship between heart disease and cholesterol.

Questions also have been raised in Congress and elsewhere about whether the government should recommend what people should eat.

At Tuesday's Senate Agriculture Committee hearing on John R. Block's nomination to be agriculture secretary, Block said he thought people "are pretty good at figuring out what to eat and what they should eat for themselves" so long as poisonous foods are kept off the market.

Block also triggered laughter when he mentioned hogs in the same context of human eating habits.

"You can provide protein and grain to a hog and he'll balance his ration," Block observed.

"He'll eat about the right amount of protein to go along with the grain. He won't overeat on the grain. And people surely are as smart as a hog."

Ms. Foreman and her boss, outgoing Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, have insisted the department has a primary dual role of catering to consumers as well as farmers. Thus, they have maintained a variety of non-farm functions such as food safety, nutrition and health have gained importance the past few years.

But many farmers and some of their groups have faulted Bergland for what they perceive has been a neglect of pure agricultural matters in favor of "consumerism."

Block has said he recognizes the importance of consumers but also has said repeatedly — as he did at his Senate confirmation hearing — that he intends to be a strong spokesman for farmers and that improving the profitability of agriculture "has to be priority No. 1."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation has been introduced in the House to increase the amount of money spent by the Department of Agriculture on agricultural research, extension and teaching.

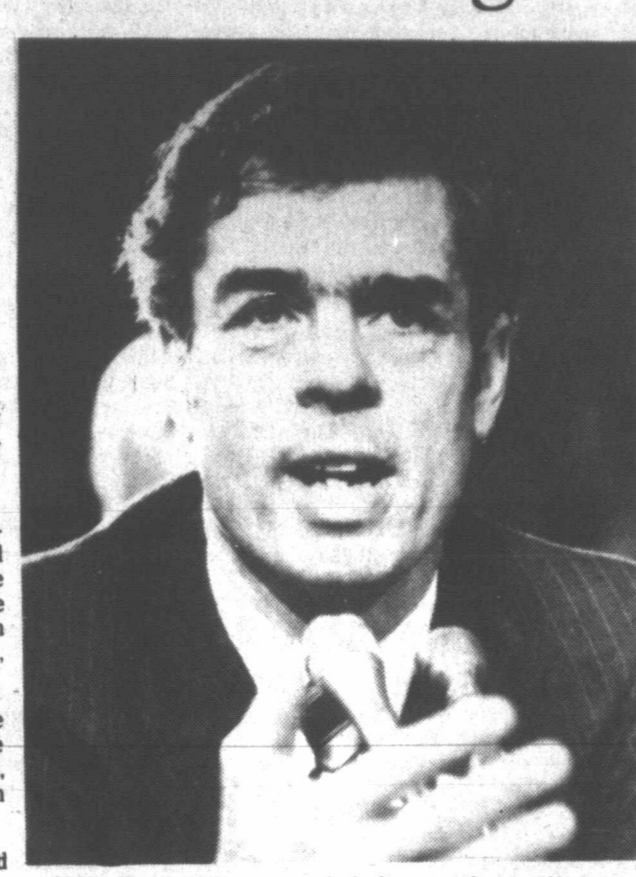

Rep. William Wampler, the ranking Republican on the House Agriculture Committee, introduced the legislation Tuesday.

"Congress must take the lead ... to insure that American farmers, ranchers, and the food and fiber industries of our country have the scientific technology ... to provide a bountiful and safe food supply at reasonable costs for our own people and the ever-increasing demands of an exploding world population," the Virginia Republican said in a statement on the bill.

Among other things, the measure would set up a position of assistant secretary of agriculture for research, extension and teaching.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says China has canceled orders for about 300,000 metric tons of U.S. wheat so far this week.

But officials said Wednesday the cancellations probably were for logistical reasons and did not signify any withdrawal by the Chinese from the American market. The cancellations were reported to the department by private exporting companies and included 100,000 metric tons Wednesday and 200,000 Tuesday.

JOHN R. BLOCK, a corn belt farmer from Illinois, reaped laughter Tuesday during Senate confirmation hearings on his nomination to the Cabinet post of Secretary of Agriculture. Block joked about a government booklet recommending a balanced diet for Americans, saying if hogs can figure out how much protein and grain to eat, Americans ought to be that smart, too — without the help of government pamphlets.

That left China's orders for U.S. wheat at slightly less than 8.7 million metric tons for the 1980-81 wheat marketing year that will end May 31. China has ordered 750,000 metric tons for delivery in 1981-82.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and, in the case of wheat, is equal to 36.7 bushels.

China also has bought for 1980-81 delivery 470,000 metric tons of corn, 304,600 of metric tons of soybeans, 24,600 metric tons of soybean oil and 1,373,600 bales of cotton, the department said.

Robbins, best known for his million-dollar "El Paso," underwent heart surgery in January 1970.

Meanwhile, another Grand Ole Opry veteran, Ernest Tubbs, entered a hospital Wednesday for treatment of a mild case of pneumonia, his agent said.

Tubbs, 66, was in satisfactory condition at Nashville's Baptist Hospital. Dick Shuey, Tubbs' agent, said the country music singer had been sick with the flu for several days.

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Mail says "some observers believe" the reported arrival of Prince Charles for Lady Diana Spencer is cooling.

"It is now doubtful that she will be joining him on his annual skiing holiday this month," the gossip column of the newspaper added Wednesday. It gave no source for its information.

Buckingham Palace has complained that British reporters have been hounding Queen Elizabeth, Charles and other members of the royal family about rumors of an impending marriage of Lady Diana, 19, and the heir to the throne.

"The Queen has become increasingly angry about this, to put it bluntly," said her press secretary, Michael Shea.

Orange Bowl, movie boost NBC ratings.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Orange Bowl football game and a movie sendoff for a new prime-time series helped boost NBC to its best week in television ratings since late October, according to figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co.

With the football game — Florida State vs. Oklahoma — and the movie — "Harper Valley PTA" — in the Top 10 for the week ending Jan. 4, NBC registered an average rating of 18.7, Nielsen said. CBS continued to lead the ratings with 19.7, but ABC sank from second to third, with 16.4.

The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 19.7 percent of the country's TV-equipped homes were tuned to CBS. CBS now has won the networks' competition, or tied for first place, four weeks running.

NBC had finished last in the three-way competition nine weeks in a row, since the week ending Oct. 25 when the network beat both competitors with baseball's World Series.

For the eighth time in nine weeks, CBS' "Dallas" was the week's most-watched program, tied for the position with the post-game show for the National Football League playoff match between Dallas and Atlanta, also on CBS.

Both registered ratings of 36.1. Nielsen says that means of all the nation's homes with television, 36.1 percent saw at least part of each show.

For the season that began Oct. 27, CBS leads with an average rating of 19.9 to 18.3 for ABC and 16.4 for NBC. NBC claims the season started Sept. 15, despite an actors' strike, and by that measure, it's CBS 18.5, NBC 18, ABC 17.8.

The holiday week, with several movies and specials, was not a particularly good one for new series. NBC's "Barbara Mandrell and the Mandrell Sisters" was 31st, with "Bosom Buddies" from ABC 33rd and two more ABC shows, "It's a Living" and "Too Close for Comfort," 37th and 38th.

Two new series were among the week's five lowest-rated programs. CBS' "Secrets of Midland Heights" was No. 61, with "Number 96," which has been canceled by NBC, 62nd. An "ABC News Closeup," "Survival," was 63rd, followed by "CBS Reports: Embassy" and "Run America" on NBC.

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated programs: National Football Conference playoff, Dallas vs. Atlanta, post-game show, and "Dallas," with ratings of 36.1 representing 28.1 million homes, both CBS; "60 Minutes," 33.7 or 26.2 million, and "Dukes of Hazzard," 29 or 25.6 million, both CBS; "Love Boat," 26.5 or 20.6 million, ABC; "M-A-S-H," 24.8 or 19.3 million, and "Archie Bunker's Place," 24.7 or 19.2 million, both CBS; Orange Bowl football game, 24.1 or 18.7 million, NBC; "Fantasy Island," 23.5 or 18.3 million, ABC, and movie—"Harper Valley PTA," 23.3 or 18.1 million, NBC.

Burgess Meredith gets first singing role

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Off the network path... Fifty-nine years after leaving New York's St. John the Divine Choir School, where he worked his way to soloist, Burgess Meredith gets to sing in front of a camera. Two hundred movies after his first one.

His chance came when his pal Patrick O'Neal asked him to play the lead in a Liberty Mutual special, "Mr. Griffin and Me," playing on 100 or so stations around the country this week. The money's no good on these little one-hour dramas, but the material is fine and the part is rich.

Meredith plays a Mr. Griffin, a famous movie director who disappeared with his movie-star wife's paintings and took up residence incognito in Macon, Ga. He grew a beard, sold the paintings and eased into the good life of an aging eccentric, crooning in a local beer bar, which he lived uninterrupted until happenstance brought his wife (Gloria Grahame) back into his life.

"I sang at St. John the Divine for four years, when I was 8 until I was 11, and I developed into a pretty good singer," Meredith says. "But I never followed it up. I never came across a good musical."

"The music wasn't really in the script, it kind of worked its way in as we went along. Patrick tells me that in the finished thing, it works pretty nicely."

The music was written and directed by Meredith's son, Jonathan, a swan farmer in Nevada. Meredith got so excited about his rediscovered musical heritage that he formed a record company with his son. They wrote a theme song for Meredith's ABC show, "Those Amazing Animals."

Anyway, "Mr. Griffin and Me" is a nice little TV entertainment, lightly comic, that serves as further testimony to O'Neal's developing skill as a director. This is the fifth 60-minute special Liberty Mutual has put together for off-network distribution, and the fourth directed by O'Neal (he acted in the first one).
