LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Blowtorches of flame shot through an elevator shaft and up one side of the 30-story Las Vegas Hilton Tuesday night, as four separate fires "of suspicious origin" left eight people dead and 242 injured.

Searchers went room-to-room in the hotel's east wing today looking for possible additional victims in the gambling mecca's second major hotel blaze in three months.

Six people, including a firefighter, were hospitalized in critical condition after the fires, including one major blaze that started on the eighth floor and three smaller fires on other floors. Most of the injured suffered smoke inhalation and were released after treatment.

A pillar of flame shot up the side of the 2,783-room hotel, the nation's largest, as hundreds of guests fled into the streets or scrambled to the roof where helicopters plucked them to safety.

"When we got outside, there were flames shooting up the side of the hotel. It looked like the 'Towering Inferno,'" said Hank Arkin, a guest from Merrick, N.Y.

Fire Chief Roy Parrish said two men were being questioned about the blazes, which followed by less than three months a fire at the MGM Grand Hotel that killed 84 people and injured more than 700.

However, Clark County homicide Detective Michael Brady said "nobody is in custody for arson." He said six people were questioned about possible looting, but they were later released.

Guards were at all entrances and in the casino area today, while guests returned to the hotel in an effort to retrieve belongings.

Manager Art Donovan said he had "no idea" when it would reopen.

The first-floor casino was not damaged. Hotel officials said that unlike the MGM Grand, the stone-facade Hilton had sprinklers and smoke detectors on every floor.

The main fire began about 8:05 p.m. in the southeast corner of the eighth floor. A pillar of flames quickly leapt from window to window up the side of the building, spewing smoke over the Las Vegas Strip.

Guests broke windows to scream for help, or lowered themselves on ropes made of bedsheets. Stairwells to the ground floor were jammed.

One victim died in a fall onto an outside deck, Clark County Coroner Otto Ravenholt said. The others died of smoke inhalation, he said.

About 25 minutes after the first fire was found, a second blaze was discovered in a different wing. Two more were found within 20 more minutes, and a special weapons team was called to the scene when authorities suspected arsonists might be at work inside.

Some 450 firefighters battled the fire.

The fire on the eighth floor was under control shortly after 9 p.m., fire officials said. The other blazes — in a second-floor laundry room and on the third and ninth floors — were put out later.

The eighth and ninth floor hallways were gutted, Sgt. Bob Hilliard said, and smoke damage extended to the 18th floor. Rooms closest to the elevators received the most damage.

Barron Hilton, chairman of the Hilton Hotel Corp., in Beverly Hills, Calif., expressed "profound shock and sorrow over the deaths and injuries."

Parrish said the fire was "of suspicious origin" and "entirely different" from the MGM Grand Nov. 21. The hotels were built and financed by the same concerns.

The MGM fire was a "low-level (building) fire. In this case, we had a high-rise fire. The circumstances are different," he said.

But for many panicked guests, there was a grim sense of flashback. "We thought of the MGM fire and ... it scared us half to death," said Tom Sawyer of Key West, Fla.

"We looked out the window and it was awful scary seeing the chopper and the lights," said his wife, Deborah, after their escape from their 23rd-floor room. "We saw windows breaking and people screaming. We felt trapped."

Joseph Adolf, a conventioneer from Chicago, headed for the roof from his 29th story room.

"When we got to the roof, we saw flames coming up the (elevator) shaft through the building. So we ran over to the other side of the roof. When we saw flames there, we started to get nervous," Adolf said.

Within minutes, helicopters began taking people from the rooftop to safety.

For others, escape was more orderly. Graham Kemp, of Brisbane, Australia, was having dinner in one of the five restaurants when an announcement over the public address system told guests to leave. "There was a sort of stunned silence for about 10 seconds, and everyone just got up and left. There was no panic at all," he said.

Hundreds of evacuees huddled in the Las Vegas Convention Center across the street. Red Cross and Civil Defense workers set up hundreds of cots and handed out blankets, coffee and doughnuts.

A police special weapons team was sent to the hotel when authorities believed arsonists to be inside.

Authorities at Desert Springs Hospital, Southern Nevada Memorial Hospital, Sunrise Hospital and Valley Hospital said at least 242 people were treated for injuries, mostly smoke inhalation. Of those, 96 were admitted.

Six people, including one firefighter, were hospitalized in critical condition. Two of them were taken to coronary care units.

A spokesman for the Las Vegas Hilton, which is about two miles from the Flamingo Hilton, said four conventions — the Inter-Mountain Veterinarian Association, Savings Institution Marketing, National Shoe Fair of America and Association of Drilling Contractors — were under way at the hotel and it was fully booked.

Andy Williams and Juliet Prowse were among the performers booked for Tuesday performances in the showroom at the Hilton.

Eight Strip resorts including the Hilton had at times been warned about improperly working fire exits, missing or empty fire extinguishers, unlighted fire exit signs and clogged sprinkler heads, according to a check of Clark County files.

Deputy Fire Marshal Don Fitzgerald had said such violations are "an ongoing problem" but "in all probability are not going to lead to a disaster like the MGM Grand fire." Most had been taken care of soon after the hotels were notified, he said.

In an interview following the MGM Grand fire, Hilton manager Fritz Huebler said that his hotel "has the highest degree of safety. Like everyone else, we review it every month every floor. The MGM Grand had sprinklers on only a few floors and no smoke alarms.

On Dec. 4, in Harrison, N.Y., fire claimed 26 lives when it swept through convention rooms at the Stouffer's Inn.

Ravenholt identified five of the victims of the Hilton blaze as: Dennis Emery McFarland, 32, Boone, Iowa; Frank Alan Greenfield, 22, West Bloomfield, Mich.; Robert Nichols Leach, 54, Honolulu, Hawaii; Harry Gaines, no age available, and his wife, Lorraine Gaines, no age available, Los Angeles.

Storm claims 13 lives Despite the C-C-O-L-D-D!!, -7 degrees no record breaker

Bitterly cold temperatures, high winds and powdery snow gusted into the Texas Panhandle yesterday, creating a teeth-rattling wind chill factor of -52 degrees around 6 p.m.

Pampa temperatures ranged from a high yesterday of 20 early in the morning to a low of -7 degrees, with peak northerly wind gusts of 40 mph. The record low for yesterday's date is -12, set in 1899, said Laurence Smith of the National Weather Service in Amarillo.

The dry, powdery snow yielded only .02 inch moisture, with accumulations of one-half inch for most areas of the Panhandle. Light snow first began falling around 8:30 a.m., with heavier snow accompanied by high winds beginning around 2:30 p.m. Blowing snow yesterday afternoon caused hazardous driving conditions throughout the area, with traveler's advisories in effect through the evening and into this morning.

Grain elevators in Pampa, White Deer, Groom, Miami and Wheeler each reported only a trace of moisture, with snow accumulations of one-half to one inch. A spokesman for Omega Grain Supply Inc. in Wheeler said that some wheat may have been damaged by the storm, but crop damages would not become apparent until about the first of April.

The winter blast did no damage to power lines in the Pampa area, said Joe Gidden of Southwestern Public Service. Some service was interrupted by blown fuses, and one powerline pole on Highway 152 was broken, he said.

The cold high pressure system covered most of the United States, stretching from Oregon and Washington east to a line from Michigan to Alabama, Smith said.

Area weather conditions are expected to improve through today, with a forecast high in the low 30s and a low tonight near 20. Skies will be clear, with southwest winds at 10 to 15 mph, decreasing tonight to 5 to 10 mph. Thursday will be partly cloudy with a high near 50.

oncoming traffic in Arlington Heights and a 23-year-old pedestrian was killed by a hit-and-run driver, police said.

The Chicago metropolitan area was socked by a foot of snow, prompting several major hotels to offer reduced "snow rates" to commuters who didn't feel up to braving the snow to get home.

In Kansas, winds clocked at 55 mph careened across parts of the state as temperatures dropped to 20 below overnight, the weather service said.

Tree limbs felled by the high winds caused scattered power outages to about 4,400 customers throughout Missouri, utility spokesmen said.

Meanwhile, at least 62 people were injured — four seriously — when a sudden tornado flattened a school and destroyed or damaged some two dozen other buildings in Bay Minette, Ala., about 40 miles northeast of Mobile.

Among the injured were 44 students at the Bay Minette Middle School, which was demolished by the twister Tuesday morning. Most sustained cuts from flying glass, hospital officials said, but two youngsters were in guarded condition Tuesday night.

"We didn't have five seconds' warning," said Coach Harry Shiver.

The tornado blew out both ends of the gym and ripped the roof off the rest of the school complex. The winds also knocked down a service station, a used car dealership and an auto parts store on U.S. 31.

DRIVERS UNINJURED. Wrecker crews clear away debris of a collision involving a 1980 Datsun pickup truck (above) early today on Highway 152, west of Pampa. Driver of the truck, 64-year-old Elvin R. Goodrich of Oklahoma City escaped serious injury. Goodrich was traveling west on Highway 152 when his vehicle was broadsided by a welding truck, driven by 20-year-old Kirk Linzy Cotham of Pampa, also uninjured. Cotham was cited for failure to yield the right of way. (Staff Photo by Sheila Eccles)

Winter's fiercest storm claimed at least 13 lives as icy winds hurled blinding snow across the nation's midsection — virtually paralyzing cities as authorities urged people to stay indoors and wait out its wrath.

As the battered region from the Rockies to the eastern Great Lakes dug out from under up to a foot of snow, officials in four Southern states today surveyed the damage left by tornadoes that killed at least one and left dozens injured.

A snowmobiler was found frozen to death in Idaho, and blowing snow, icy roads and zero visibility were blamed in traffic fatalities Tuesday in Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri and Michigan.

Searchers became lost in near-blizzard conditions themselves before reaching the body of Arthur Frey, 47, about a half mile from the disabled snowmobile he had been riding in Island Park, Idaho.

Meanwhile, four people died in a 28-vehicle chain reaction crash on snow-shrouded Interstate 80 at Altoona, Iowa.

The storm turned much of Illinois into a windy deep-freeze after slinging up to a foot of wet snow across northern and central counties.

Authorities there reported two traffic deaths that may have been snow-related. A 64-year-old woman died when her auto veered into

Punishment for murder, is it illogical?

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
 Staff Writer

Pampa experienced 26 homicides during the 30-year period from 1950 to 1980 — nine committed in 1980. The degree of severity of the punishments meted to those convicted of the crimes appears at first glance to be random and illogical, but is it?

Over the three-decade period, one person received life imprisonment, while at the other end of the scale, an Amarillo airman, convicted of shooting a Pampa man in a dispute over a girl, was sentenced to four years' probation.

Three murder cases, occurring in the 1960s, were dismissed in the 1960s because the defendant died, evidence was lost or a key witness had disappeared.

A man who admittedly stabbed his estranged wife's lover to death was sentenced to six years imprisonment by the jury. However, the Criminal Court of Appeals freed him, reversing the verdict on grounds of an adultery clause included in the old Texas Penal Code.

In 1980, one woman was sentenced to five years imprisonment for voluntary manslaughter in the killing of her husband, while a second defendant was found guilty of involuntary manslaughter (a lesser degree of homicide) and sentenced to 20 years in prison. The majority of the sentences for murder ranged from three to 12 years' imprisonment.

No one was found innocent of murder charges in a jury trial in the 30-year period.

Chief Justice Warren Burger recently told the American Bar Association that the U. S. criminal justice system is more concerned with the rights of the defendants, ignoring the rights of the victims.

Burger advocated stiffer bail laws, swift appellate action, a limit of appeals to "miscarriage of justice" claims, educational rehabilitation through prisons and generous use of probation for first-time offenders, combined with quick revocation for failure to comply with probation terms.

"Is a society redeemed if it provides massive safeguards for accused persons ... yet fails to provide elementary protection for its decent, law-abiding citizens?" he asked.

A point strongly supported by law enforcement officers and prosecuting attorneys.

Assistant District Attorney Penny Burt said the personality of the defendant is a deciding factor in the amount of punishment the jury assesses. (Texas is one of only 10 states allowing juries to sentence.)

"There doesn't seem to be a jury which is not swayed by the personality of the defendant before them," she said. "That may account for some of the divergent sentences on murder trials based on essentially the same facts."

Mrs. Burt said soft verdicts reflect a trend towards permissiveness in society, reinforcing the theory expressed by Dr. Robert Beckley, that murder has become more socially acceptable.

"People are bending towards the 'Father Flanagan attitude' that there are no bad people, just sick people," Mrs. Burt added.

District Attorney Harold Comer said it is difficult to make jurors as concerned about the crime as the victims are.

"I try to tell them to consider themselves in the grandstands, watching the crime being enacted below them," he said. "I want them to see it happen in their minds."

"It's just hard for them to believe that this guy in the courtroom, with his hair cut, and a suit and tie on is someone who would deliberately take the life of another," Comer said.

Don Cain, 223rd District Judge, has presided over one murder trial during his four-year tenure as a district judge. In 1980, he has heard four murder cases brought before the Gray County Grand Jury. Two were "no-billed" and two are currently on the criminal court docket.

Cain explained that in Texas, the defendant has the right to request sentencing by a jury or by a judge.

In a murder case, he said, most of the accused request a jury.

"They (the defendants) think that 12 persons not familiar with the court system and its workings, not under potential news media criticism, who won't be sitting there next week, will be more likely to give a lesser sentence, than a judge would," Cain said.

"This is not necessarily true, but I think that is what they think," he added.

Local lawyer Kenneth Fields said the sentences reflect fair punishments meted by jurors on the strength of the evidence presented.

"Every case is different with a different set of facts," Fields said. "The sentences can be attributable to the facts of the situation," he added.

Judge Grainger McIlhany, 31st District, said the discrepancy between sentences is related to the difference in the people sitting on jury panels.

"You have 12 different people, every time," he said.

As an illustration, McIlhany recalled a case in Wichita Falls several years ago where two attendants (former inmates) of a mental institution were accused of killing an inmate they were angry with.

The cases were tried separately, he said. One man was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. The second was given life imprisonment.

McIlhany said in this case, probably the first jury took into account the accused's obviously low mental capacity, while the second jury tried the man on a high intelligence standard and saw the murder as a pointless killing.

Jack R. Fraenkel, in his book "Crime and Criminals" looks at both sides of "soft justice."

In favor of harsher punishment, Fraenkel comments, "The Bill of Rights is essential to our democracy, but it must not be used to undermine the right of individuals to be protected from crime."

To protect everyone's rights, criminals should be treated as criminals, not coddled as misguided "patients" and set loose to endanger others, he says.

Fraenkel quotes Professor Howard F. Gill, an expert on penal administration at American University as seeing the criminal justice problem differently.

Gill said, "Stiffer and stiffer punishments never helped anybody."

Fraenkel comments that centuries of hangings and floggings failed to eliminate or decrease crime. He said problems with the criminal justice system are many, but the medieval bread-and-water approach to justice is foolish.

Residents 'rock 'n' roll'

Residents at Leisure Lodge will conduct a "Rock 'N' Roll Jamboree" Friday, Feb. 13, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., to help raise money for the American Heart Association.

During this daylong "fun-raising" event, residents will be rocking in rocking chairs and rolling in wheel chairs to raise money for the fight against heart disease.

Pampans are urged to make a donation or sponsor one of the "rock 'n' rollers" — or better yet, to go to the nursing home at 1504 W. Kentucky to cheer them on and share a truly heartwarming experience.

Texas roundup snares thousands of aliens

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Illegal aliens working on farms, ranches, construction sites and elsewhere in Texas have been captured and bused back across the Rio Grande by the thousands in the past three weeks, a roundup spurred by the lifting of census restrictions.

The restrictions, which prohibited the Border Patrol from raiding private businesses, were imposed last spring in hopes of getting a better census count, but officers in the field complained they were kept in effect several months after the count was completed.

The ban was lifted Jan. 15 and "we had our second highest January in history" said Richard Staley of El Paso, chief of a Border Patrol district that includes most of southern New Mexico and West Texas as far east as Van Horn.

"January is usually one of our slower months — there is usually very little 'harvest,'" he said. But last month he said his 385 officers apprehended 12,080 undocumented workers and returned most of them to Mexico.

Other Border Patrol officers from here to the lower Rio Grande Valley and as far north as Dallas reported the same trend. Even though the ban extended through the first half of January, agents working in the Valley caught twice as many illegal aliens last month as they had in December, said Jim Kerr, a Border Patrol supervisor based in the McAllen headquarters.

"We could drive down farm roads and look out either side and see illegals working in the fields," before the restrictions were lifted, he said. "Hell, they were waving at us as we went by."

Not any more.

"One day, working just three hours in Odessa, our officers pulled 84 aliens out of (oilfield) pipe (supply) yards up there," said Johnny Williams, chief pilot with the Border Patrol sector headquarters in Marfa.

In Dallas, regional chief William Chambers said "as of last week we have arrested 510 in the Dallas-Fort Worth area alone." Most of them have since been bused back to the border, where illegal aliens are released to walk across the bridges back into Mexico.

Immigration officials say those bused back to the border "volunteer" to return — as opposed to the few who elect to stay and wait — in jail — for a deportation hearing.

Charles Elmore, a Border Patrol intelligence officer based in Marfa, said there is rarely any hostility between the illegal aliens and the officers who arrest them.

"They joke and laugh on their way back to be processed. There is no deep-seated hatred there. It's not that we don't like these people," he said. "I don't blame them for trying to come up here and better themselves."

"But the United States just can't solve the whole world's evils," Chambers said the restrictions were more painful for his region, which includes North Texas and Oklahoma, and other interior checkpoints where raiding private businesses is the main source of illegal aliens.

"In El Paso for instance they could work along the river" during the ban, he said.

But Staley said it was just as frustrating for his men stationed across from Juarez, the largest Mexican city on the U.S. border.

"We had a de facto temporary worker program" he complained. Aliens and patrolmen alike agree that crossing the border illegally is not difficult. One of the favorite crossing points in the El Paso area is within a few yards of the largest customs checkpoint on the U.S.-Mexico border. In fact, many illegal aliens consider crossing the border so easy that they leave the United States and go home for Christmas.

"That's one reason December is such a slow month for us," said Elmore. "They are going back to Mexico for the holidays. Then they come back sometime in January."

Staley said if he had "enough men" he could reduce the flow by 80 percent. But Chambers said the first thing the United States should do to decrease the migration is to make it a crime to hire illegal aliens.

"It is obvious that this was deliberately overlooked," he said. "There are penalties for inducing aliens to enter, penalties for bringing them in, for harboring and concealing them — but no penalties for employment."

The latest raids have drawn criticism from Mexican-American activists who argue that they disrupt families, infringe on the rights of Hispanic citizens, and yet still do not stop the northward migration of Mexicans into the United States.

Staley compared the work of his officers to that of state policemen trying to enforce the 55 mph speed limit. "Their presence does slow down the speeding driver. We are effective in that way. We might get one out of every three or four who attempt to enter" illegally, he said.

Teachers want health insurance

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Teachers have told a House committee that most of them must meet the high cost of medical insurance out of their small paychecks or just do without it. The House Insurance Committee took testimony on Tuesday on bills that would up group insurance for teachers and other school district employees.

Organizations of educators said they want group insurance but disagreed over the details.

Committee members are expected to piece together a bill from the various ideas received.

Only about 60 of Texas' 1,035 school districts make group insurance available to their teachers and other employees.

Judy Koehl, a middle school teacher from Queen City, said she takes home $770 a month while her husband's $710 — also for teaching school — is reduced by $80 for health insurance premiums.

She urged a system of regional group insurance programs that would take into account the varying costs of medical care across Texas — "I don't want to be penalized by someone living in another part of the state, such as Houston."

Whether the state helps pay teachers' premiums will be a major issue. A $50-a-month contribution for all school employees and retired teachers would add an estimated $360 million to 1982-83 spending.

Rep. Hamp Atkinson, D-New Boston, chairman of the House Education Committee, said some teachers don't want the state to contribute toward group insurance premiums.

He said as many as 50 to 60 percent of all teachers already are covered by a spouse's policy and "are saying, 'If you have money for insurance, just put it into salaries.'"

The committee approved a bill in 1979 that required state contributions in an amount to be determined each session by the Legislature. It also would have compelled all school districts either to belong to a statewide plan to provide an equivalent group insurance program for their teachers. That bill died without final House action.

The Texas State Teachers Association favors that plan.

"Rising insurance rates have made it prohibitive for many, if not most, Texas educators to purchase individual coverage out of salaries which rank Texas teachers third in the nation," said TSTA President Dora Scott of Houston. She said an advantage of a statewide program, as opposed to many local plans, would be that "broad-based participation should help provide for a lower rate."

The Texas Association of School Boards endorsed a bill by Rep. Bill Haley, D-Center, a former teacher. Haley's bill would pump money into group insurance programs set up separately in each district without state controls.

"TASB firmly believes that a group insurance program should allow the local district to design the program and select the carrier," said Jerry Edwards, associate director of the school board organization.

The Texas Classroom Teachers Association favors a bill by Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Salado, that creates seven regional group programs, each with its own insurer.

Accused brothel madam changes no contest plea

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — After pleading no-contest to charges she operated a brothel, Theresa Brown has changed her mind, fired her attorney and tried to get the plea changed, her new lawyer said.

Attorney Pat Maloney filed new motions Tuesday seeking to void the no-contest plea and her conviction for aggravated promotion of prostitution.

"Illicit sex is a cooperative act. It takes two to bring it off. But in an atmosphere of chronic chauvinistic phoniness, all the attention has been focused on Theresa as if she and she alone committed sin," said Maloney, retained by Ms. Brown after she dismissed her former attorney, Rick Woods.

"I am of the opinion no jury is likely to convict this woman and thereby fly in the face of the biblical injunction, 'Let he who is without sin cast the first stone,'" Maloney said.

Ms. Brown's no-contest plea followed an arrangement with the district attorney, agreeing to accept a three-year sentence after being told it was likely that Judge James Barlow would probate the sentence. But after she entered the plea and was convicted, she had second thoughts, she said.

GTE service hearings set

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A two-day special public hearing will be held in March to let General Telephone Co. customers say if they are satisfied with the service they are getting.

The Texas Public Utility Commission said the hearing would be held March 30 and 31, before the commission considers the firm's request for a $44.6 million statewide rate increase on April 27.

Last year General Telephone, which serves 1.3 million Texas telephones, asked for $58.3 million in rate increases but got only $31 million. The firm also was penalized $4 million by PUC for poor service.

Inflation, growth and new technology were cited by General Telephone when they asked for the new rates increases on Jan. 24.

Long distance rates would not be affected. General asked for sizeable increases in service for suburban areas near big cities.

PUC General Counsel Allen King said there would be an intense investigation of General Telephone's quality of service and that would be a major consideration when the commission reviewed the rate increase request.

OPINION PAGE

An explanation of libertarianism

For some time, we have tried to explain our libertarian leanings, which often (but not always) are shared by those few conservatives who have been in Congress.

We have opposed laws which are eroding more and more of the freedoms once granted to all American citizens. We have raised our editorial voice against governmental manipulation of the economy with its impossible environmental regulations and its massive deficit spending.

We have opposed low interest loans to communistic countries (communist doctrine, after all, contends that a capitalistic system is inherently evil and must be destroyed).

We have even said nay to the reams of social legislation and national welfare laws which would do no more than plunge this country headlong into a true socialistic state.

Naturally saying "no" tends to cast a negativistic shadow on the paper's editorial policy.

We contend, of course, that Jefferson was right in saying that the government that governs best is that which governs least.

So, we feel absolutely obligated to oppose a host of the legislation flooding congressional hoppers every year.

We might point out, however, that it often takes more courage to say "no" than simply to be a political yes-man and sway with whatever political winds are blowing on a given day.

It is the same way with newspapers. There is nothing easier than to say, why, oh yes, we do need a new social program here and one over there and we do need a big, new stadium and millions of dollars in housing — that's the easy way out.

There are several reasons that no-men (as opposed to yes-men) are necessary in Congress. In the first place, there is a pervasive trend for representatives and senators to stray from the original concepts of personal freedom and free enterprise.

With all the bad, costly, and oppressive legislation introduced in Congress every year, how nice to have some people willing to say no.

Reagan camp echoes Persian Gulf stance

On any number of foreign policy issues, the differences between the late Carter administration and the new Reagan team are certain to be dramatic.

But on one matter — the need to defend the West's oil lifeline in the Persian Gulf — the expressed views of both the Carter and Reagan people center on a common theme.

Carter's national security affairs adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, told a French audience shortly before leaving office that Western Europe and Japan should join the United States in building a "regional security framework" in the Persian Gulf area.

The following day, incoming Secretary of State Alexander Haig assured the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that he favored full consultation with allies in the event of any threat to Persian Gulf oil supplies.

Thus, the new secretary of state was telling the world in general and the Soviet Union in particular that a Democratic president proclaimed last January — that the United States would fight to preserve the West's vulnerable oil lifeline.

The Brzezinski speech, echoing the view of outgoing Secretary of Defense Harold Brown and of so many others in both Reagan and Carter camps, merely restated the obvious remedy to the West's current weakness in the Indian Ocean-Persian Gulf regions.

Carter's pledge to "repel" any attempted Soviet takeover of the Persian Gulf was largely bluff. He knew, and the Russians knew, that Soviet conventional forces are sufficiently strong to seize the Persian Gulf with only minimal interference from the United States.

That is true today, although the Carter administration did reinforce still-limited naval and Marine units in the Indian Ocean and negotiate the right to use emergency bases in Kenya, Somalia and Oman.

This is a start that the Reagan administration can build on if Haig's declared commitment to Persian Gulf security is to assume credibility.

An African policy for President Reagan

By Peter Duignan and L.H. Gann

Congressman Stephen J. Solarz's new African policy for President Reagan, New York Times, December 5, 1980, is old-line liberalism. According to Solarz and his colleagues, the U.S. must side with the emergent Third World against South Africa.

The liberals' approach supposes that there is such a thing as a Third World. Burundi and Singapore, Uruguay and Lesotho, Gabon and Indonesia have nothing in common.

Union has indulged in forced labor, imprisonment, mass killings, and enforced population movements to a far greater extent than whites in South Africa.

Nevertheless, we have normal diplomatic relations with nearly all communist states, including obvious satellites of the Soviet Union like East Germany.

Because of South Africa's armed strength and economic position as the industrial giant of Africa, a South African revolution is not around the corner.

feel free to deal with South Africa in pursuit of our own interests.

Congressman Solarz and his friends join us to support SWAPO in Namibia, but we would be foolish to do so. SWAPO, like the African National Congress (ANC) in South Africa, is openly allied to the Soviet Union, which provides the organization with money and arms.

We should take an equally hard line against Ethiopia. It is of no concern to the U.S. who rules in the Ogaden; however, the present Ethiopian alliance with Cuba and the Soviet Union gravely weakens the Western position in the Horn of Africa. Washington should arm the Eritrean rebels. By doing so, we should be able to kill two birds with one stone: weaken Ethiopia and improve our relations with all those Arab states that have hitherto supported the Eritreans.

No doubt such a policy would evoke bitter criticism in the U.S. Unfortunately, however, the Cold War against the West has never ended; neither have communist tactics of camouflage and deception.

Peter Duignan and L.H. Gann are Senior Fellows of the Hoover Institution at Stanford University.

New test case for school busing

by Paul Harvey

It's time to test a new federal government authority to require crosstown school busing.

The new administration in Washington is opposed — but is helpless to countermand Supreme Court orders.

Surely by now the High Court must recognize that busing has in fact re-segregated schools, re-polarized our population, violated the rights of youngsters white and black and tragically depleted the quality of public education.

What happened in Buckeye, La., has been misrepresented as a black-white confrontation.

There is only one school in the little town of Buckeye.

The three girl students in question have been attending Buckeye school — within walking distance from their homes.

Until a federal court judge ordered them to be bused 30 miles each day for the sole purpose of further "whitening" an integrated school in Alexandria, La.

It has to be insulting to black parents and students, this implication that academic excellence requires cross-pollination with whites.

The school bus runs backward! The objective of purposeful race-mixing in public schools was increased educational opportunity for blacks.

Academic achievement scores, black and white, are down.

Unemployment for black youths, 24 percent 10 years ago, is now 37.4 percent.

One of the significant factors in the case of the "Buckeye Three" is that the school to which the federal court wants to assign them — Jones Street Junior High in Alexandria — is already half - and - half, black and white.

Obviously, therefore, the federal judge, Norman Scott, is less concerned with adding whites to an already balanced school than with punishing the "all whiteness" of the Buckeye school.

The parents of The Buckeye Three will need public contributions to help with the horrendous legal costs of pursuing this fight — but somebody must.

I have said there is nothing the new president can do without the concurrence of the courts. That is not entirely true.

Because crosstown school busing wastes the equivalent total output of 700 average oil wells every day, probably by executive decree the president could park the buses.

Understandably, however, the resultant disruption of classroom enrollment would dissuade him from any such stopgap measure.

What's needed is a new Supreme Court test case. In the new climate of public opinion and with our enlightened hindsight — surely the Supreme Court will want to recover its own fumble.

Dealing with the Third World

By Edward J. Walsh

Now that the Americans held hostage in Iran for nearly 15 months have come home, the black humor on the Washington cocktail circuit will include the question: Who will be named our new ambassador to Iran?

The joke is not funny: we won't be resuming diplomatic relations with that anarchic state for a long time, if ever. At least one more revolution is certain there, and from America's point of view, one is needed.

The question of American relations with the developing nations, the so-called Third World, is not so easily dismissed. We may regret the retreat of Britain, France, Germany, Portugal and the Netherlands from positions of influence in the underdeveloped world, but they have nonetheless retreated. We now face in their former colonies in Africa and Asia a collection of chaotic, often primitive nations that have mostly shed the accoutrements of Western civilization their European sponsors had brought them.

Inasmuch as the Third World is a geopolitical fact of life today, the United States must deal with it, if only because the accidental juxtaposition of nations has placed some of the most backward and hostile states near some of the most strategically significant ones.

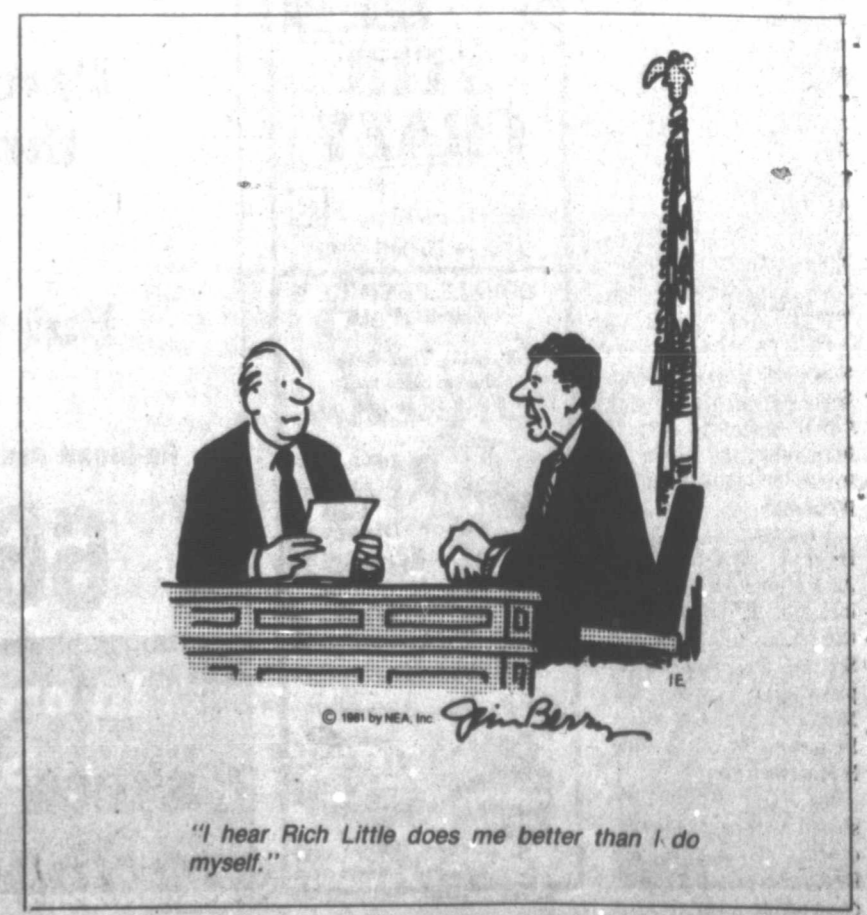

Southern Africa is a case in point. South Africa, which produces 2 percent of the world's non-fuel minerals, including 50 percent of America's imports of platinum group metals and 39 percent of its chrome, lies next to the Marxist states of Zimbabwe and Mozambique. Not much farther away are Angola, crawling with Cuban troops, and the socialist nightmare of Tanzania. The Soviet Union is paying close attention to the Third World, and is working hard to promote its interests. The United States must do the same.

The Carter administration recognized the importance of the under-developed world, but in a tragic and reckless way, that actively promoted the accession of brutal Marxist regimes, in Rhodesia (Zimbabwe) and Nicaragua. It stood by idly as the Shah of Iran went down. Andrew Young at the United Nations gave official American approval to pro-Soviet regimes. Zbigniew Brzezinski in the White House provided the theoretical foundation for the spurious "North-South dialogue," that rationalized leftist revolutions. To all this, President Carter acquiesced a simplistic acceptance of leftist sloganeering as principled humanitarianism. As a result, most of the Third World today is closer to slavery than democracy.

President Reagan's appointment of Jeane Kirkpatrick to be United Nations ambassador suggests that he wants to heed the importance of the Third World by placing the security interests of the United States first. Mrs. Kirkpatrick's view, simply stated, is that a policy that enhances the national security of the United States is also a policy that will improve the lives of the peoples of the Third World. We must, she writes, "assess realistically the impact of various alternatives on the security of the United States." In other words, first things first. If her official actions reflect what she has said, we are off to a good start in overhauling our Third World policy.

Grand jury indicts police for impersonating officers

EAST MOUNTAIN, Texas (AP) — Sheriff's deputies armed with arrest warrants combed through this small East Texas town, looking to arrest every city law enforcement agent on charges of impersonating a police officer.

City Marshal James Morgan and two of his reserve officers, Phillip Luchae and David Patterson, were arrested Monday on five separate charges by Upshur County Sheriff Dale Jewkes, who said he was enforcing the orders of a county grand jury.

Morgan, elected City Marshal in May 1980, was booked into the county jail, then released on $500 bond after his arraignment before Justice of the Peace W.V. Ray. The same thing happened to Patterson and Luchae and Jewkes said warrants have been issued for five more reserve officers.

The sheriff said the arrests came after a grand jury recommended charges against the marshal and his reserve officers because they had not completed a state certification course within six months of the time they assumed their duties, as required by state law.

Jewkes said the investigation began last August, triggered by complaints about a "speed trap" in the town, which was incorporated three years ago. Any officers who issued tickets or made arrests but had not been certified was violating state law.

Jack Ryle of the State Commission on Law

Enforcement Standards, which also took part in the investigation, said, "In effect, what they were doing is to impersonate a police officer."

The charges said Morgan recklessly appointed a police officer and that his reserve officers recklessly accepted appointment as a peace officer.

City Commissioners met Monday night and voted to seek no changes in Morgan's department, despite having been advised of the certification requirements last year.

"We voted to continue our present police department... not suspend anyone and to back the department 100 percent," said Commissioner Fabe Pace.

East Mountain Mayor Ralph Collins said the charges are the result of a group of dissatisfied people trying to dissolve the city government because of the taxes needed to pay for municipal services.

District Attorney Dwight Bannon said Tuesday the situation has resulted in dismissal of several speeding tickets written in East Mountain, and refusal to house East Mountain prisoners in the county jail.

"The county is in a sticky situation," he said. "If we house a prisoner in jail and the officers making the arrest are not certified, it becomes a difficult legal question."

'Severe critic' of food stamps may head program

WASHINGTON (AP) — It appears the Reagan administration has decided to hire a Capitol Hill employee to supervise food stamps and other food programs handled by the Agriculture Department.

Sources who asked not to be identified said Tuesday that Mary C. Jarratt, a House Agriculture Committee staff employee, has been selected as assistant secretary of agriculture for food and consumer services, one of the department's most important jobs.

Miss Jarratt was described by one of the sources as "a severe critic" of food stamps and other government food programs and as one who "favors stringent cutbacks" in spending for those.

Rep. Frederick W. Richmond, D-N.Y., who was asked about the report that Miss Jarratt had been selected for the post, said he had "every reason to believe" it was true.

Richmond is chairman of the House agriculture subcommittee on domestic marketing, consumer relations and nutrition.

Miss Jarratt has been on the minority staff of the House Agriculture Committee and reportedly was boosted by a number of powerful Republicans, including Rep. William C. Wampler, R-Va., vice chairman of the full committee.

Others that reportedly supported Miss Jarratt included Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chairman of the Senate agriculture committee and an outspoken critic of federal food programs.

A number of others had been in the running for the Agriculture Department post, including Elizabeth Whelan of the American Council of Science and Health. Another possibility was Lenore Moragne, a nutritionist in the Department of Health and Human Services.

Miss Jarratt will be the second woman to have the job of overseeing the Agriculture Department's food and consumer services. Her immediate predecessor, Carol Tucker Foreman, was the first.

Spending on food and consumer services in the year that began last Oct. 1 are currently estimated $15.6 billion, or about 75 percent of the Agriculture Department's estimated budget of $20.9 billion for 1980-81. That includes a projected $11.1 billion for food stamps.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is revising downward its earlier forecast that U.S. farm export would soar to a record value of $48.5 billion this fiscal year.

Its not official yet, but Stephen R. Milmoie of the department's Economics and Statistics Service said Tuesday the revised export value would be around $47 billion for the year that began last Oct. 1.

That would still be a record, up 16 percent from $40.5 billion in 1979-80, but not up to par with the 20 percent gain forecast earlier.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Winter grain crops remained generally dormant last week because of sharp drops in temperatures, says the government's weather watchers. The exception was in Texas.

"Substantial precipitation was limited to the Gulf Coastal areas and the Northeast," the Joint Agricultural Weather Facility said Tuesday in a report covering the week of Feb. 2-8. "At week's end, a front brought moderate rain into southern California and a winter storm was developing in the southern plains."

Crop conditions continued favorable for corn and soybeans in the Southern Hemisphere, but in the Northern Hemisphere it was dry in Spain and northern Italy as well as in the United States, the report said.

'Uncomfortable moment's in the music business

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Bruce Simmons has been menaced with a shotgun in Colton, threatened with death in Binghamton and held against his will in the men's room of a Watertown tavern.

And he did it all for people like Carole King, Neil Diamond and Smokey Robinson and the Miracles.

Simmons is field representative for ASCAP, the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, the organization devoted to protecting the royalties and copyrights of songwriters and musicians.

As ASCAP's man in central New York, Simmons is responsible for making sure that any merchant or bartender playing music publicly, even if it's background music in an elevator or a radio turned up for a tavern's patrons to drink their beer by, pays the royalties for the copyright music.

Not all proprietors understand they must pay for the right to use a composer's work publicly, Simmons said. He tells stories of his uncomfortable moments with angry bartenders who didn't believe they should have to pay ASCAP money to play music for their customers.

"I have had very few punches in the nose, but it happens occasionally," said Simmons. An assault case is pending against one village official who struck him when Simmons informed him of ASCAP's rights to royalties for an outdoor concert.

"We guard this right so jealously, to use music privately, but they sometimes don't realize the composer, author or publisher has exclusive rights to public use of that work," Simmons said.

ASCAP operates under the federal copyright laws and, using a sophisticated computer operation, returns the licensing fees from users to the composers, musicians and publishers who own the copyright to a piece of music.

ASCAP's right to collect the licensing fees for the musicians it represents has been upheld by court cases dating to the early 1900s, Simmons said. ASCAP's rival is BMI, which represents its own stable of musicians. Many establishments end up paying fees to both organizations.

The fee a bar with live music owes ASCAP is computed with a formula that takes into consideration factors such as seating capacity, the type of music and any cover charges the bar assesses.

"We are not talking about big dollars for them," said Simmons, who cited the example of a country music tavern in Massena near the Canadian border that pays $320 a year.

Establishments refusing to pay the fee could be fined a minimum of $250 per song, he said.

Simmons says a big part of his job is educating people about ASCAP. He estimates that 25 percent of the people he deals with balk at paying the fee.

"When it comes to that time when a guy is totally refusing and using our property, then it is necessary to take legal action, just like any other case where somebody is using your property."

Nicaraguans' arraignment delayed

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Arraignment of two Nicaraguan Air Force officers charged with trying to smuggle two helicopters out of the United States has been delayed until Feb. 17.

Meanwhile, Modesto Rojas-Berrios, the Nicaraguan Air Force's director general, and Sidney Muller-Schroeder, its chief procurement officer, remain free on $100,000 bonds each guaranteed by the Government of Nicaragua.

The pair originally was scheduled to enter formal pleas Tuesday to charges of attempting to export two helicopters without a license, in violation of U.S. neutrality laws. They could be subject to maximum punishment of seven years in prison and $100,000 fines, each, if convicted.

U.S. Magistrate Joseph F. Leonard has ordered the two not to leave Texas before their trial. Investigators said they led an effort to export two Bell UH-1B helicopters, also known as "Hueys," to Nicaragua, although the U.S. Government has cut off aid to the Central American nation following overthrow of former President Anastasio Somoza.

The two men and four of their associates were arrested on Jan. 18 at a heliport at nearby Bulverde, Texas, by U.S. Customs agents who seized the two helicopters. Customs agents alleged they were fueling the craft in preparation for a flight to Nicaragua, via Mexico.

Leonard dismissed the charges against the other four men at a hearing on Jan. 30 as part of an agreement between government and defense attorneys.

Customs agents reportedly were investigating allegations the helicopters were destined for use by the leftist government of Nicaragua in behalf of insurgents in El Salvador, a charge denied by the Nicaraguan ambassador.

Father charged with death of his daughter

GRAHAM, Texas (AP) — An oilfield worker beat one of his infant daughters to death and seriously injured the other while their mother was at work, police said Tuesday as they filed a murder charge against the man.

Nicholas Ortega, 22, was arrested Monday night in Wichita Falls and was arraigned Tuesday before Justice of the Peace Bob Chotes, who set bond at $100,000.

Ortega was charged with murder in the death of his daughter Melinda, age 4 months, and with bodily injury to a child in connection with the beating of his daughter Christy, age 14 months. Bond on the second charge was set at $50,000 and Ortega remained in the Young County Jail after giving a statement in the case, police said.

Christy Ortega was in stable condition in Wichita General Hospital's intensive care unit, said a hospital spokeswoman.

Graham Police Investigator Jim Nance said the beatings apparently occurred Monday at the family home while the mother, Mrs. Bellia Ortega, was at work.

"The first child (Melinda) was brought in (to the family doctor) about 4 p.m. and was immediately transferred to Wichita General Hospital," Nance said.

He said the first child was accompanied by her mother, and the 14-month-old girl was brought to the doctor about two hours later by an aunt.

"She (Christy) had two black eyes and a bloody nose," Nance said. The child showed signs of previous abuse, possibly with a belt, he added.

Report from office of

Senator Sarpalius

AUSTIN — A bill co-sponsored by Sen. Bill Sarpalius which would mean additional money for the counties of the Texas Panhandle passed the Senate last week. Senate Bill 151 will allow the distribution of idle road building funds to counties.

The money, which will amount to $7.3 million for all 254 counties each year, has been left in the lateral road fund since the Board of County and District Road Indebtedness was abolished in 1979. The board was created in 1932 to help counties raise money to build roads. The board was also empowered to distribute the money in the lateral road fund to the counties based on a statutory formula.

Sarpalius explained the reason for the new legislation. "There are two main reasons for this bill. One is that the money now is sitting idle because there is no authorization for the distribution of it. The other is that while the state highway fund has a permanent escalator clause built into it, county road funds have no such protection at the state level."

Distribution of the fund, according to Sarpalius, will be based on a combination of three factors: one - fifth on the basis of county area, two - fifths on the basis of rural population, and two - fifths on county road mileage.

"The 26 counties in our district should fare well under this distribution system, because we have counties with large areas and substantial rural population," he said. Sarpalius also was quick to point out that this bill would not result in any new taxes, because the money comes from the state gasoline tax that the state has been collecting for decades.

Additionally, SB 151 appropriates all the money which has accumulated in the lateral road fund since the last distribution and the $7.3 million to be allocated to the fund for fiscal year 1982. Thus the total amount to be distributed, according to the formula, for the fiscal year 1982 will be in excess of $20 million for all 254 counties.

"Many people don't realize that 51 percent of the roads in this state are supported by county governments. These county roads are very important to everyone in the state, but are particularly important to the people in the Panhandle and the South Plains. We have a large rural population, with a lot of agricultural and oil and gas activity. Both of these require good roads. Since the counties have not been receiving this money and the need is continuing, I'm glad that the Senate has been able to take action early in the session," Sarpalius said.

Artists nervous about painting's libel aspect

BOSTON (AP) — Artists are quaking at their palettes over a $30,000 libel award made recently by a New York civil court jury in the curious case of "The Mugging of the Muse."

The verdict, under appeal by painter Paul Georges, resulted from an allegorical canvas showing three men with drawn shivs pouncing on an ill-clad maiden from a darkened alley, while nearby a winged angel watches and a fire hydrant gushes blood.

Artist Georges called it "The Mugging of the Muse." Fellow artists Anthony Siani and Jacob Silberman called for their lawyers. They claimed two of the muggers bore a distinct resemblance to them, and the libel jury agreed to the tune of $30,000.

Other artists painting in a realistic mode worry that the judgment against Georges, who denied any intention of libeling his colleagues, may set off similar suits from people unflatteringly depicted in paintings or claiming to see themselves inside a picture frame.

Anyway, it's the biggest court suit to hit the art world since James McNeill Whistler hollared for his mouthpiece to silence John Ruskin. But that was a case of a painter going after critic, not a subject after an artist.

Famous portrait sitters have resorted to violence in the past but rarely to litigation to even the score with a painter. Winston Churchill, it was revealed after his death, put his admiralty sword through a portrait done of him by a noted member of the Royal Academy. "It made me look as if I were having a difficult stool," Sir Winston complained to Somerset Maugham.

A Sunday painter of more than a passing talent, Churchill always was hard on fellow artists, especially the moderns.

Getting back to "The Mugging of the Muse," I wonder if it's too late to sue the photographer who took my First Communion picture. It was my mother's favorite, but I've always hated it. It shows me looking pale and surly in a short pants blue serge suit rather conspicuously spotted, the result of getting car sick in a trolley to the portrait studio. A touch of the airbrush in the name of allegory might have saved me for posterity from the cameraman's ruthless realism.

Controversial issue given passion, reason in drama

LOS ANGELES (AP) — On Tuesday, with its broadcast of "The Choice," CBS showed that a controversial issue can be presented in TV drama with passion and reason in even measure. The issue was abortion.

Tonight's made-for-CBS movie, "A Gun in the House," intends to incite passions on both sides of the argument. But that question — to arm, or not to arm? — is almost secondary to this film's primary thrust, which is the blatant, repeated exploitation of violence.

While producers David Debin and Peter Locke insist they intended only to bring focus to the question of handguns in America, what they did was create a sort of made-for-TV Dirty Harry in aprons.

Sally Struthers plays a nice middle class housewife whose husband is away a lot. She worries about crime and eventually buys a gun. She and her lady friends take a class on the use of handguns.

It just so happens that a spectacularly wacky creep is on the room, a guy who likes to burgle houses and rape women. But he doesn't only attack women; he badgers them and psychologically batters them.

His partner in crime is a nice young boy who is apparently working his way through college by going along on these missions of pillage.

Sally Struthers is chosen as a victim. They break in and proceed to spend several long minutes tormenting her, making her crawl on the floor in her nightgown, until she runs upstairs and grabs her gun. There is some confusion and she fires, killing the "innocent" kid.

Now, as in "Dirty Harry," this is where the audience is supposed to stand up and cheer. You've been set up by the long, harrowing scene, and the killing seems justified, if not reasonable.

A bone needs to be tossed to the other side of the handgun argument: A singularly unbelievable district attorney charges Sally Struthers with murder, and she and her husband have to prove her innocence.

The obvious intent of this lurid melodrama is to elicit a collective, "Good, those punks deserved it." Indeed, producer Locke says the scene had to be set up that way.

"Unless the situation was set up that way, I think there would be some heavy doubts in your mind, that she might have appeared irresponsible (in shooting the kid)."

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our son is being married at a formal church wedding in May, and I am very nervous about the bride's selection of bridesmaids.

Five out of her six bridesmaids are already visibly pregnant! By May, one will be six months along, two will be in their eighth month, and the other two had better have their overnight cases packed and in their cars!

The bridesmaids' gowns are the maternity type, but Abby, I wonder what the reaction will be when they all walk down the aisle in various stages of pregnancy? (They're all married, so there's nothing wrong with it, but the coincidence might cause people to snicker.)

Is there some tactful way I can get my future daughter-in-law to reconsider her choices?

NERVOUS IN NEVADA

DEAR NERVOUS: No. It's the bride's prerogative to be attended by her closest friends, in whatever shape they happen to be in. Just make sure there's a doctor in the house.

DEAR ABBY: We are two 17-year-old girls who baby-sit to earn extra money, and our problem is one that many other teen-age baby sitters have.

In our town, we get a dollar an hour for baby-sitting. This is the same pay our mothers received when they baby-sat as teen-agers. Due to inflation, we think we're entitled to $1.50 an hour before midnight and $2.00 afterward. How should we go about getting a pay raise?

UNDERPAID

DEAR UNDERPAID: Sitters can hardly stage a "sit-in." But all you sitters can stand united and ask for a uniform increase. And if you get a boot in the bustle, all you have to lose is your seating capacity.

***

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to tell you how much good you did for me when you published the following in your column: "When I met him, I liked him."

"When I liked him, I loved him."

"When I loved him, I let him."

"When I let him, I lost him."

I can't thank you enough for printing that. It saved my reputation. My boyfriend and I had been dating only a short time, yet he was pressuring me to "let him." I'm 16 and he's 18.

I very nearly gave in, then that little saying popped into my head and gave me the strength to say no.

Needless to say, today we aren't speaking. I know it sounds like the plan backfired, but it really didn't. I may have lost a boyfriend (who in the long run turned out to be worthless anyway), but I gained the respect of other guys with better values. (Boys talk.) I hope other girls who read your column that day took your advice seriously. I did. And today my life is the best it's ever been. Thanks.

Cerebral palsy no stop for Kathleen Barrett

NOT GROUNDED — Though she was born with cerebral palsy, Kathleen Barrett, 30, shown with an instructor, has learned to pilot a glider. Because of her SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Kathleen Barrett doesn't let the fact that she was born with cerebral palsy stand in the way of living a full life.

Not only does she dance, swim, bicycle, drive a car, travel on her own and live independently in a Sacramento condominium, but she's been a glider pilot for the last eight years.

It took her three years before she soloed, mainly, she says, because she didn't work at it very often.

"I became interested when I saw others piloting glider planes, and liked the idea of being free, the silence of it," she explains. "It's something I can't do on the ground."

When she first went for lessons, the instructor looked dubious, she recalls, so she didn't return to him, but enrolled in another glider course where the instructor said, "Fine, go ahead."

While she has a physical handicap, it is not a mental one, and it is not a disease, but a disability, she points out.

"People think we're dumb," she says. "What I have is a neurological disorder. You can't catch it from me."

Ms. Barrett, 30, has halting speech and is sometimes difficult to understand. She walks with a lurch and occasionally falls, but this hasn't stopped her from enjoying life and hobbies such as building model railroads.

Through the years, she has been told by countless persons that she was too severely handicapped to even write her own name. But when she was told she couldn't do something, it only made her try harder. In trying harder to show others, she has made great accomplishments herself.

She lectures on "the hidden assets of disability" at the University of California Extension division in Davis, Calif., and works a regular 8-to-5 schedule as a Works Community Program Analyst for the state Department of Developmental Services. Two nights a week she attends law school.

"I would like to become a research lawyer," she says, adding that she would also like to run for public office.

Governor Clements supports handicapped

AUSTIN — Governor William P. Clements recently received a Certificate of Recognition commending Texas' early role in the International Year of Disabled Persons (IYDP), which officially began January 1. Allen B. Clark, Jr., state liaison to the U.S. Council for IYDP, presented the certificate to the Governor in the Governor's Reception Room of the State Capitol. Justin W. Dart, Jr., chairman of the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped, attended the ceremony.

"Texas' early response to the U.N. challenge is gratifying," said U.S. Council President Alan A. Reich. "It is in the communities of America where disabled persons live and work that further progress must be made. The leadership of Governor Clements and state liaison Allen Clark will help ensure that Texas communities will commit themselves to goals that will really make a difference," Reich said.

Over 80 Texas communities are already active in the U.S. Council's partnership program, which encourages the nation's communities to assess local needs, set goals, and develop short and long-term programs to meet those goals. The U.S. Council, as a catalyst, stimulates commitment and provides guidance for states, communities, corporations and organizations throughout the country.

Long-term goals being promoted by the Council include: greater educational and employment opportunities; better access to buildings and transportation; and expanded cultural and recreational opportunities. Improved rehabilitation, and accident and disease prevention, are also among the designated long-term goals.

Already more than 1,400 communities and 280 national organizations are cooperating with the U.S. Council in the Community Partnership Program.

The United Nations, in proclaiming 1981 as the International Year of Disabled Persons, issued a challenge to all nations to bring disabled persons into the fullest possible participation in national and community life. The U.S. Council was formed to promote the Year in the United States, where 35 million citizens are affected by physical or mental disabilities.

ORANGE WHEAT BREAD

- 2 cups white flour
- 1/2 cup whole wheat flour
- 1/2 cup wheat germ
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 cup orange juice
- 1/4 cup oil
- 1 egg, beaten (or 2 egg whites or egg substitute equivalent to 1 egg)
- 1/2 cup walnuts, chopped and dusted lightly with flour
- 2 tablespoons grated orange rind

Measure dry ingredients and mix together in a large bowl. Add remaining ingredients and stir until moist. Pour into a greased 9 x 5-inch loaf pan. Bake at 350° F. for 55 minutes, or until a wooden toothpick inserted in the center of the loaf comes out clean. Remove from pan immediately. To store, wrap securely in foil or plastic. ## Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 62-year-old male and retired. I do not get a lot of exercise. My temperature varies from 96 to 98 F. I would like to know what makes it vary that much and if there is any danger from the variation. What can be done for it?

DEAR READER — That does sound a little low. The body temperature varies a great deal more than most people realize. It may vary three degrees in a 24-hour period. The low level is in the early morning hours when very few people take their temperature and the high point is in the late afternoon or early evening. This cyclical change is the diurnal cycle and is related to our sleep cycle and hormone secretion.

We usually say that body temperature may vary from 96.6 to 100 F and still be normal. But it depends a lot on the individual and also on how the temperature is taken. Even the thermometer may not be entirely accurate. Skin temperature is lower than mouth temperature and that may be why you have given me a relatively low reading. You could have a bad thermometer, or, if you're taking your temperature by mouth, you may not be leaving it in long enough.

I have discussed the various things that affect taking body temperature in The Health Letter number 7-6, Body Temperature and Fever, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. These factors include whether you have just taken a hot bath and even what you have eaten.

The body temperature is a good indicator of general health. But it is important to know that it can be above the magical 98.6 F and still be entirely normal, particularly in active young children in the evening. The low temperatures are more often associated with low metabolism. Check out your method with the information I am sending you and if your temperature persists on the low side, see your doctor. A low thyroid condition or being totally inactive may be the reason. But it could be just normal for you.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am an 18-year-old girl who has never been in the hospital and am what you might call sort of a hypochondriac. Every once in a while I get a slight pain where my appendix is. What do you think I should do? When I get the pain I don't double over or anything, although sometimes it almost gets to that point. I am deathly afraid of my appendix bursting or having to be taken out.

DEAR READER — It probably is not your appendix but the next time you have such a pain you may want to see your doctor. The typical pain of appendicitis is preceded by fullness or loss of appetite and discomfort in the middle of the abdomen. The pain moves to the right lower side later. But all cases are not typical.

Your discomfort could be from gas. Gas pains can be so severe that they cause people to double up, and the cecum, the blind pouch at the end of the colon, is one place where gas is trapped.

If the pain occurs midway between your periods, it could be the pain associated with ovulation. Since it occurs midway in the cycle, it is often called mittelschmerz, meaning middle pain. But no one can tell you what your pain is without a more detailed history and examination.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

If the American family is becoming an endangered species, you can bet one of the things that killed it is the dinner hour.

When it was conceived, the dinner hour was to be a gathering of every member of the family who would sit around and exchange pleasantries and news of what each had done that day.

I know that's the way it's supposed to be because I saw it once on the Donna Reed Show.

We have never had a family dinner that did not sound like we were hosting a lynching. It was inevitable to touch upon who did what to whom, who did it first, and who would get a room to themselves after they were sentenced.

The criticism of "family meals" is that "this is not a fit topic to discuss at dinner time." As I see it, no one seems to know what is a fit subject to talk about at the dinner table. There are few things that the entire family can get into.

Children tend to talk about things that take away your interest in food - and living. At one meal alone, I heard a description of the underside of the tongue, a rumor of what popular food contained rat's nostrils, what pureed peas remind you of when you look at them from a distance, and what happens to the dog's stool when he eats leftover chicken.

Men prefer to talk about money. Within minutes they can make you feel guilty for asking for seconds on the salt. They also take the opportunity to lay on the family their famous lectures: "An 'E' on the Gas Gauge Does Not Mean Evacuate." "Why Do We Heat the Front Porch by Gas in the Winter?" "Don't Reach Out and Touch Somebody Unless It's Collect." and the all-time favorite, "When I Go to the Poorhouse, I'll Have to Call a Cab to Get There."

Mothers use the togetherness of the meals to discuss their doormat status ("Why don't you just put a key under my tongue and stand on me?") and to tell their children that no one ever amounted to anything who smoothed a lumpy bed with a coat hanger.

I have come to the conclusion there are no "safe" topic areas at the family dinner table. No matter what you hit upon, every member of the family will react in character.

The other night, a guest said at our table, "I read where the Snail Darter is still on the endangered species list."

There was a moment of silence before one child said, "Aren't they the ones that bleed through the eyes when they die?"

My husband said, "When they go up to $10 a pound, knowing our kids, they'll develop a Snail Darter deficiency."

I said, "They aren't the only ones who have become endangered. So are women who pick up towels after a 16-year-old."

The family that eats together ... shouldn't.

Pampa teacher attends convention

Rochelle Lacy of Pampa High School has just returned from Corpus Christi where she attended the 31st annual convention of the Texas Educational Association. The convention, held in conjunction with the United States Institute of Theatre Technology (U.S.I.T.T. - Texas), was conducted at the Holiday Inn Convention Center and at Corpus Christi State University.

Approximately 300 secondary school, college and university theatre instructors and theatre technicians throughout Texas participated in three days of workshops and convention programs. Program topics ranged from acting and lighting to theatre curriculum development.

Highlights of the convention included demonstration from various plays performed by several area Corpus Christi high schools, a cabaret theatre production of "Gershwin" and a performance of the musical "Pippin." The convention climaxed with an awards dinner on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Lacy is currently serving as a member of the board of directors for the Secondary School Section of T.E.T.A. and is chairman of the committee for Child Drama. For ten years she was drama director of U.S.I.T.T. - Texas.

Keep doggie cozy

By Judy Love

The weatherman predicts a long, icy-cold winter, and the chilliest months are upon us. As the temperature drops, you and your family will be warm and cozy wearing the beautiful sweaters that you've made.

But have you overlooked that special family member who also needs to be toasty warm this winter - your dog?

Protect your pet from the elements - snow, slush, rain - with a ribbed turtle-neck sweater in a festive winter color like red or wine. It's practical, adorable and you can whip it up in no time. Make your pet the best-dressed canine in the neighborhood!

The directions are for a sweater for a dog measuring 10 inches from back of neck to base of tail. The changes necessary for dogs measuring 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15 inches in length are available, so your bigger bow-wow won't be slighted.

You'll need a pair of No. 10 knitting needles and craft yarn. I suggest Bernat Tabriz Needle Art Yarn because it's easy care, machine washable and dryable.

To order instructions for your doggie sweater, send 50 cents to Stitchin' Time, P.O. Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Ask for leaflet S570 and remember to include your name, address and ZIP code.

KNIT KNACKS

Dear Judy Love: I am not a knitter, but I have seen your column many times and thought maybe you could help me out with this problem. I love sweaters, but sometimes they "catch" on something and pull the yarn. I'm afraid to cut the straggling strand for fear it will unravel and ruin my sweater. Is there any way I can fix this? — J.R., Newfield, N.J.

Dear J.R.: It's really quite easy, even if you're not a needleworker. You can use a crochet hook (or a pin) and pull the yarn through to the underside. It's a good idea to knot it on the underside if it's broken. Good luck, Judy Love.

KEEP YOUR pet cozy and warm all winter long with this practical, adorable doggie sweater. It's easy to knit and can be adapted for dogs of varying sizes.

Astro-Graph by bernice bede osol

February 12, 1981

Your importance among your peers will be greatly accentuated this coming year. In situations where you previously didn't mind taking a back seat, you're apt to now opt to be chairman of the board.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) By all means accept any invitations you get today which are of a social nature. Not only will you enjoy yourself, but you could also meet some new friends in the process. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You get luckier today when you get nearer to the finish line. Don't fret if you get off to a slow start; you'll pick up speed once you hit the home stretch.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Not only will you have an abundance of your own bright ideas today, but you'll know how to use the clever thoughts of others in ways which will prove beneficial to all.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your material prospects are very encouraging today. There's a possibility that you may be able to add to your resources through several channels.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're personable to begin with, and today all of your finer qualities are even more accentuated.

Be yourself. You'll win friends and influence others.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You could be very lucky today, not so much from things which you develop, but through situations which others originate. Family members may be your benefactors.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Things which are rather grandiose could prove fortunate for you today. It might be a big idea you're hoping to sell or dealings that you have with large organizations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Major achievements are possible today in matters affecting your work or career. If there is something important you're anxious to push, do it now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Whether you ask for it or not, it's likely today that the leadership role will fall to you in your involvements with others. Accept the challenge.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be on the alert today for new ways to supplement your income. A little investigating in the right areas might uncover something profitable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have more loyal friends than you may realize. Today, if you need their help, don't be bashful about asking. They'll back you up, as you would them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) That break for which you've been hoping workwise could pop up today. There's lots of opportunity around you now, so make the most of it.

Harvesters blitz AHS, 70-44

The snow storm turned into a heat wave Tuesday night. Inside Harvester Fieldhouse anyway.

Pampa scored 49 points in the second half enroute to a 70-44 thrashing of Amarillo High last night in a District 3-5A contest.

The Harvesters were almost as cold as the freezing temperatures outside the first half, hitting only 29.8 percent (9-28) from the floor.

However, Pampa outscored the visitors, 5-0, from the foul line, and that five-point difference gave the Harvesters a 21-16 lead at halftime.

Pampa warmed up rapidly the second half.

The Harvesters built a 14-point bulge, 44-30, after three quarters and expanded that margin to a whopping 29-points, 65-36, late in the fourth quarter.

Pampa hit 57.6 percent (18-31) the second half to lift its record to 17-10 overall and 3-1 in loop play.

AHS, which hit 41.0 percent (21-51) for the game, falls to 9-15 and 0-3 for the season.

From the foul line, Pampa downed 16 of 25 tries while the Sandies hit only two of 10 efforts.

"The gym was cold. I don't know if that anything to do with our cold shooting the first half or not," Harvester coach Garland Nichols said. "We came out the second half and just got after them. The kids played good defense and got on the boards. There was some good outlet passes that got us some easy points."

Charles Nelson tossed in 17 points to lead Pampa, followed by brother Mike Nelson with 11. Other Harvesters in the scoring column were Terry Faggins, eight; Ricky Smith and Romerly Dowdy, six points each; Kirt Crouch, five; Ray Condo, Ed Guerra and Jimmy Barker, four points each; Damon Fleming, three, and Jay Henson, two.

Aaron Cunningham led the losers with 10 points.

Pampa hosts Dumas Friday night in a non-district game while awaiting the Tascosa-Caprock district outcome that same night.

Should Caprock defeat district leader Tascosa (3-0), there would be a tie between the Rebels and the Harvesters for first place in the final first-half standings.

Pampa begins second-half district play Tuesday night on the homecourt against Caprock.

Wheeler splits with Clarendon

CLARENDON—Wheeler was axed by Clarendon, 60-47, in a girls' District 2-2A basketball game Tuesday night.

Clarendon snapped a 10-10 tie in the second quarter to lead by seven points, 27-20, at halftime.

Clarendon remained in front the second half.

"We just weren't aggressive enough on defense," Wheeler coach Jan Irby said.

Missy Wiggins paced Wheeler with 21 points, followed by Elise Christner with 11, Lori Lee, four; Twyla Collings, four, and Tracy Weaver, four.

Liz Callaway topped the winners with 15 points.

Lee pulled down nine rebounds and Wiggins had six for the Lady Mustangs.

Wheeler, 16-10 overall, and 2-1 in second-half district play, hosts Wellington Friday night.

Boyd Waldo scored 21 points to lead Wheeler past Clarendon, 75-60 in the boys' contest.

Teammate Russell Gaines added 13 points.

Brad Thompson's 22 points paced the losers.

Clarendon led by four, 34-30, at halftime, but Wheeler jumped on top by 12, 55-43, after three quarters.

Sonics stun Celtics in overtime

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

It has not been a very enjoyable season for the Seattle SuperSonics, who have struggled because of injuries to Paul Westphal and Lonnie Shelton and a contract dispute that has kept Gus Williams on the sidelines.

But finally they found reason to rejoice.

The Sonics rallied from a seven-point deficit in the final two minutes of regulation play and went on to stun the Boston Celtics 108-107 in overtime Tuesday night at the Kingdome in Seattle. It was the fourth loss in the last six National Basketball Association games for the Celtics, who fell three games behind Philadelphia in the Atlantic Division race.

"It was one of the biggest wins of the year, especially now when we have to put a string together," said Sonics Coach Lenny Wilkens, whose club has a modest three-game winning streak and is still in the chase for a playoff berth despite a 25-32 record.

"It's the type of game that can turn the whole season around," said Westphal, who came off the bench to lead Seattle with 24 points. "If we spring off it and use it as momentum, it can help us on the coming road trip."

The Sonics start a four-game road swing at Portland Thursday night.

In other games, the Chicago Bulls edged the Kansas City Kings 116-115, the Atlanta Hawks beat the Golden State Warriors 116-108, the Washington Bullets defeated the Denver Nuggets 115-110, the Detroit

Pistons topped the Dallas Mavericks 101-95 and the Phoenix Suns stopped the San Diego Clippers 107-93.

Boston seemed to have the game in hand with a 98-91 lead, but Seattle's John Johnson hit two free throws and Fred Brown followed with a three-pointer and a layup off a Vinnie Johnson steal to tie the score with 1-12 to go.

"When it was 98-91, it got real ugly," said Boston Coach Bill Fitch. "During that time, it was the only period that we misfired in the backcourt all night. They didn't have a beautiful game either. We kicked them and they kicked us."

Neither team could score for more than a minute before Vinnie Johnson hit a jumper to put Seattle ahead 100-98 with four seconds left.

Skellytown closes season with wins

Skellytown basketball teams closed out the season Monday by winning two of three games against Miami.

The Little Bucks crushed Miami, 30-9, in the fifth-sixth grade boys' game.

Scoring for Skellytown were Lance Cross, eight; Joe Brown, six; Rabbit Rogers and Daron Adkison, four points apiece; Shelby Davis and Freddy Hutchinson, two points apiece.

Skellytown held off Miami, 26-25, in the seventh-eighth grade girls' game.

Skellytown broke away from a 6-6 tie in the first quarter to lead by seven, 18-11, at halftime. The Little Does led by five, 22-17, going into the final quarter.

Lori Marlar led Skellytown scorers with 10 points, followed by Darla Woodward, six points; Sissy Giddeon and Kathy Hassler, four points each, and Lindy Hanover, two.

Skellytown dropped the

Boys place second in swim meet

AMARILLO—Pampa boys didn't have a first-place finisher, but the overall team effort thrust the Harvesters into second place in the District 3-5A swim meet Tuesday at the Maverick Club.

Amarillo High collected 111 points for championship honors, followed by Pampa with 71 points; Tascosa, 47; Palo Duro, 39 and Caprock, 5.

The top three finishers in each event advance to the Region 1 meet Feb. 26 in Lubbock.

Pampa's Clay Douglass qualified in two events, taking second in both the 200 intermediate (2:12.971) and the 500 freestyle (5:19.005).

Also qualifying for the Harvesters were Richard Steger, third, 200 freestyle,

1:57.941 and second, 100 backstroke, 1:02.350; Don Braswell, third, 500 freestyle, 5:42.275; and Cody Moore, third, 100 backstroke, 1:04.425.

Pampa's 200-medley and 400-freestyle relay teams took second and third respectively.

David Fatheree finished fourth in the diving event with 227.10 points, but qualified for the regionals due to the degree of difficulty of his dives.

Also placing, but failing to qualify for Pampa, were Cody Moore, fourth, 50 freestyle, 24.044; Richie Hill, fifth, 100 fly, 1:06.762; fourth, 100 breaststroke, 1:09.885; Jerry Bond, sixth, 100 fly, 1:15.718; Robbie Hill, fourth, 100 freestyle, 57.308; sixth, 100 breaststroke, 1:12.611; Reid Steger, 100 backstroke, fourth, 1:04.911. In the girls' division, Pampa finished third with 40 points behind Amarillo High (92) and Tascosa (94).

Pampa's only winner was Cindy Raymond, who won the 100 breaststroke in 1:15.371.

Raymond also qualified for regionals in the 200 intermediate, taking third with a 2:19.340 clocking.

Cindy's sister, Lisa Raymond, also qualified in two events, placing second in the 500 freestyle (5:38.275) and third in the 100 fly (1:08.396).

Julie Rabel of Pampa placed fourth in the 200 freestyle (2:33.797) and sixth in the 100 freestyle (1:11.725).
