Six arrested in killing of nuns

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Six members of El Salvador's armed forces are in custody in connection with the December murders of three Roman Catholic nuns and a church lay worker from the United States, Defense Minister Jose Guillermo Garcia announced Saturday.

Garcia said the suspects were arrested April 29, but he did not name them or say why their detentions had not been reported earlier. He said the U.S. Embassy had been notified.

Robert White, the former U.S. ambassador to El Salvador, told a news conference in Rochester, N.Y., Thursday that the Salvadoran government had arrested six soldiers for the killings. That report had not been confirmed by Salvadoran officials until Garcia's statement.

White accused the U.S. and Salvadoran governments of covering up the investigation into the slayings.

White was relieved from his post by the Reagan administration after he criticized Washington's increased military aid to El Salvador's civilian-military junta.

The bodies of the four women were found buried in shallow graves on Dec. 4.

There was no immediate comment from the American Embassy or the State Department in Washington.

Victims of the ambush murders were Sisters Dorothy Kazel and Ita Ford, both 40, Sister Maura Clarke, 46, and lay missionary Jean Donovan, 27. The slayings led to a temporary suspension of military and economic aid to El Salvador by the administration of former President Jimmy Carter. The aid was restored later in December and has been enlarged by Reagan to help the junta in its battle against left-wing guerrillas.

The women's burned-out van was found beside the road from San Salvador's airport to the capital and the bodies were nearby in a scooped-out grave.

A spokesman for the Maryknoll order in Ossining, N.Y., said Sisters Ford and Clarke had flown to San Salvador from Managua, Nicaragua, and were to be met at the airport by Sister Kazel and Miss Donovan who worked at a mission sponsored by the Catholic diocese of Cleveland, Ohio.

Sisters Ford and Clarke were Maryknoll missionaries from New York. Sister Kazel was a member of the Ursuline Order and she and Miss Donovan were from Cleveland.

No group asserted responsibility for the murders, but many observers suspected right-wing extremists inside the government's security forces.

Coal strike negotiations continuing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bargainers for striking miners and the soft coal industry sat beneath glaring fluorescent lights in a Washington hotel room for a third day Saturday trying to reach agreement to end a 44-day walkout marked by spurts of violence in the coalfields.

After the three hour meeting, the bargainers announced they would meet again Tuesday.

While neither side would comment on what progress had been made, the latest round of meetings is the only one to go beyond one day's duration since the strike began March 27.

Questioned after Saturday's meeting, UMW President Sam Church would do little more than repeat what has become a litany over the three days of talks.

Was there any progress, he was asked.

"We're still talking," he replied.

Was the union ready to compromise on its demands?

"We're still talking."

B.R. Brown, chief negotiator for the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, muttered "oh yes, all good sessions" when asked if the meeting had been a good one.

But when asked about specific progress, he reverted to his habit during the previous days of talks, remaining silent or saying "no comment" as he walks the lengthy hallway to the negotiating room past television cameras and reporters.

UMW spokesman Eldon Callen said the same seven union demands were on the table that the BCOA had turned down at a one-day session on April 17, the last meeting before the renewed negotiations this week.

The two sides met for a dozen hours over the three days, and the very length of the talks separated them from the two earlier sessions held since the strike began. Church's brief comments also contrast with his willingness to talk — sometimes scathingly about the industry side — at earlier sessions.

At Otwock Poland

Party warns jail attack threatening to security

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's Communist Party said Saturday the smashing and burning of a police station south of Warsaw threatened the security of the nation, but it praised the independent union Solidarity for trying to defuse the riot.

Some 500 people besieged the station in Otwock 20 miles from Warsaw Friday after they heard that police beat two men poked up for disorderly conduct at a railroad station. A smaller crowd returned later, set fire to the building and smashed it with iron bars and sledgehammers.

The party newspaper, Trybuna Ludu, said the attack "must cause indignation and concern. The incident was a threat not only to the calm in the Otwock and Warsaw area but also for calm, order and security in the whole country."

Trybuna Ludu said police "underlined the positive role played by Solidarity." Dissident leader Jacek Kuron, an adviser to Solidarity, tried to calm the crowd after firemen put out the blaze, but it was rekindled. Fire hoses were slashed, and the station was gutted.

The official PAP news agency said about a dozen youths, most of them drunk, smashed the burned shell during the night with iron bars and sledgehammers.

Trybuna Ludu acknowledged that police handling of the two jailed men who were later released, might have been "incorrect," but went on "That it came to burning down a police station deserves punishment."

Warning Poles to consider the implications of repeat incidents, it said, "Shall we then feel ourselves safe when police and security people refuse to interfere? We still have got many hooligans, scum and criminal elements who dream of a situation like that."

The incident was the first outbreak of vandalism since nationwide strikes last summer gave birth to Solidarity, the first union independent of the Communist Party control in the Soviet bloc. It also ended a five-week period of calm marked by government promises of major political and economic reforms.

The party has scheduled an extraordinary congress in mid-July, and in addition to reforms aimed at diminishing the nation's $24 billion debt to the West it has pledged to strengthen ties with Solidarity and Poland's influential Roman Catholic Church.

Poland's labor crisis has raised fears of intervention by the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact.

Violence erupts in Irish cities

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Violence flared in Catholic areas of Belfast and Londonderry Saturday and a fourth IRA prisoner began a hunger strike "to the death." IRA bomb hoaxes forced evacuation from an orphanage and nursing home, but failed to scare Queen Elizabeth II from a shipboard lunch off Scotland.

Amid the tension, thousands of people watched a parade through central Belfast by 18 pipe and drum bands at the climax of a week-long municipal festival. Rock bands played and people enjoyed other entertainment without incident.

Earlier in the day, however, guerrillas ambushed a British patrol in Belfast's Roman Catholic Lenadon quarter, seriously wounding a soldier with a sniper bullet from a high velocity rifle. A police vehicle also was blown up in Catholic West Belfast by a homemade hand grenade, injuring five policemen.

In Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second largest city, rioters hurled more than 300 gasoline bombs and bottles filled with sulfuric acid at police. Twenty-one people were arrested and two rioters were injured in what a police spokesman described as some of "the fiercest street fighting" since IRA guerrilla Bobby Sands died Tuesday in the 66th day of a hunger strike.

The bomb threat against Queen Elizabeth came as she and her husband, Prince Philip, were attending a ceremony at the British Petroleum oil terminal — Europe's largest — on the Shetland Islands, 100 miles off the north coast of Scotland.

The Irish Republican Army warned in a message from its office in Dublin to The Associated Press in London that it had "breached the English Queen's security. Clear the Shetland oil rig of all civilians. There is an anti-handling device on the bomb. This is no hoax."

A BP spokesman in London said the target of the bomb threat was a ship anchored just outside the terminal where the queen was to have lunch with 80 dignitaries. A search of the vessel turned up no bomb and the lunch went on as scheduled.

Another IRA bomb hoax forced the three-hour evacuation of 600 people from a nursing home and an orphanage in Newry.

Choice between left and center-right

PARIS (AP) — The French decide Sunday whether to give center-right President Valery Giscard d'Estaing another seven-year mandate or opt for the drastic change of direction offered by Socialist Francois Mitterrand.

Most analysts have termed the election, a rematch of the 1974 contest, too close to call. In the 1974 election, Giscard d'Estaing won by a 1.6 percent margin, or just over 420,000 votes.

The president is campaigning on his record, which he says has been marked by stability, the maintenance of France's position in the world, and an economic program which, if not completely successful, at least is better than most Western countries have managed in a time of world economic crisis.

Mitterrand has called that record a total failure, pointing to an unemployment rate of 7.3 percent, representing nearly 1.7 million jobless, inflation at a consistent 12 to 14 percent. His program calls for nationalization of the remaining private banks and 11 major companies along with large increases in public spending and public works projects to create jobs.

Giscard d'Estaing has retaliated by saving Mitterrand's program of nationalization would frighten away private investors and that his plans for a 35-hour work week with no loss of pay would be inflationary and in fact increase unemployment because of added costs to business.

Young bicyclist injured

A young bicyclist was slightly injured Friday afternoon when he collided with an auto on Kentucky Street.

The injured child was identified by city police as Jason Ryan Handley, 6, of 1005 Kiowa. He was treated in the Highland General Hospital Emergency Room for abrasions and released, a hospital spokesman said.

Police said Handley was riding east on Kentucky on his bicycle at about 3:38 p.m. Friday. A 1969 Chevrolet, driven by Ray Swafford Wells, 77, of 1307 Charles was also traveling east on Kentucky at the time of the mishap.

Handley apparently pulled into the side of the auto driven by Wells, police said. No tickets were issued in the mishap.

Pampa preacher beaten up

A Pampa pastor, Jerry West, was treated and released at Highland General Hospital late Saturday following an assault by two men at his home at 112 N. Starkweather.

Details were sketchy at press time Saturday, but sources said that at about 9:30 p.m. West 29 was conducting a bible lesson in his home next to the Pampa Baptist Temple where he preaches, when two men reportedly entered and beat him up.

A spokesman for Highland General Hospital said West was treated for half-inch lacerations to his upper and lower lips and released.

Sources said two suspects had been taken into custody. The names of the persons had not been released at press time late Saturday.

Policeman's wife has pride

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Staff Writer

Dena Jo Hartsock has been married to a policeman for more than seven years, but rather than becoming bitter or jealous of her husband's demanding job, her attitude has evolved into acceptance and pride.

At first, Mrs. Hartsock wasn't so tolerant. "He was on midnights and I hated it," she says.

She explains that she had just married her husband Mike. She was fresh out of high school, had moved to a new town and didn't know anyone.

"It was the first time I had ever been away from my mother," she recalls.

She and Mike met in Bartlesville, Okla. at a restaurant where she worked after school. It wasn't long before they knew they were right for each other. They married shortly before Mrs. Hartsock's high school graduation.

"He told me he had been a police officer before," she remembers.

After their marriage, her husband was a truck driver, constantly on the road. Mrs. Hartsock says she didn't like that either.

After passing through Pampa several times and liking it, her husband applied to the police department, she says.

It was hard at first, not knowing anyone and her husband being away at night.

"But after awhile, I became more familiar with the people and the town," Mrs. Hartsock says, smiling.

"It takes patience to put up with the job and with the person," she says, looking askance at her husband.

"Really, it was more that he had to put up with me than me with him," Mrs. Hartsock adds.

"You see, a man knows he has to go to work every day for the rest of his life," she explains. "I didn't understand that. I wanted him to spend time with me."

"It makes you grow up," she says.

Fear for her husband has also evolved over the period of their marriage, Mrs. Hartsock says.

"Fear used to be always in me for him getting hurt and dying," she says, clenching her hand on her chest.

"But you can't always be like that every day," she says.

Looking at her husband, she says, "If you were like that, you couldn't do your job."

Mrs. Hartsock says now she doesn't think about it, she just puts it aside.

She says she can identify with her husband's job in some ways. "We're quite abit alike — strong headed, strong willed. Mike has more patience, and I think I'm more gullible than him," she adds.

"Something I feel like I can't identify with, is the thing about Mike having to shoot someone. There I can't identify with him," she comments.

"I don't know if he allows himself to think about it," she adds, reflectively.

Her husband interjects a comment here. "She'd make a great police officer. I know it. She's got the personality, she's really got what it takes."

Mrs. Hartsock smiles at him.

"He used to bring his work home with him, and it bothered me," she says.

"I'm a person who needs a lot of attention. When he'd come home, and sit quietly with a frown on his face, I'd think something was wrong. That he was mad at me."

"The longer I'm married, though, the more I know what's wrong," she adds.

"I know he's got something on his mind. But that nothing is wrong. It's really more me than him," Mrs. Hartsock says.

Her husband also comes home with anecdotes about the day, she says. He tells her funny stories about the people he meets, the situations he gets into.

"That makes it fun," she says.

"Mike's witty."

A slender, attractive woman, Mrs. Hartsock speaks with a slight Oklahoma accent, belying her growing-up years in Bartlesville.

She and her husband, Mike, have two daughters — Michelle, 4, and one-year-old Stephanie.

Mrs. Hartsock was honored Friday with a certificate presented to her by members of the Pampa Police Department. The award was in recognition of her loyalty and devotion to her husband, Mike.

One dies as storms lash North Texas

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — One woman drowned and several million dollars' worth of property was damaged when a line of severe thunderstorms pounded North Texas with tornados and baseball-sized hail Friday night and Saturday.

A tornado reported in central Texas Saturday afternoon damaged barns and a cotton gin in Hill County, and a second funnel was reported on the ground in Bell County between Belton and Temple.

Tornado watches were posted Saturday afternoon for northeast, central and southeast Texas, and a flash flood warning was issued for Denton, Tarrant and Dallas counties.

By Saturday afternoon, three to five inches of rain had fallen on North and East Texas, with Burkburnett receiving 7.57 inches.

Several tornados were reported in the Dallas-Fort Worth area late Friday, although none of the twisters was confirmed by the National Weather Service.

One man received minor injuries and several mobile homes were destroyed when a funnel reportedly touched down near Aledo west of Fort Worth Friday night.

"The tops came off and the walls came down" on the homes when the twister hit, said resident Bill Pounds.

Residents of low-lying areas were evacuated in Dallas, Arlington and Grand Prairie, where water rose to 3 1/2 feet in the streets Friday night.

In Arlington, where hailstones measured 9 1/2 inches in circumference, two feet of water covered some streets.

Four Grand Prairie homes were evacuated, said police dispatcher Winnie Winter, and extensive flooding was reported in the Johnson Creek area.

Twenty to 30 homes were evacuated in the Oak Cliff section of south Dallas, said John Pickett, coordinator of emergency preparedness.

Cathy Lynn Arrington, 29, was killed when her car was swept away in flooded Oak Cliff creek waters shortly after 10 p.m. Friday. The Dallas County medical examiner's office Saturday ruled the death an accidental drowning.

Two Fort Worth residents were cut by flying glass, but no serious injuries were reported.

The brunt of the storms hit Fort Worth, where "damage was intense and easily into the millions of dollars," said Alan Moller, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service.

Ben Meyers of the Tarrant County Civil Defense Department, said the figure could be "as much as double" the $45 million in damage from a hail storm a year ago.

Winds gusting up to 90 mph and large hail knocked out windows and caved in roofs in Dallas and throughout Tarrant County, where Civil Defense sirens sounded at 8:30 p.m. Friday.

Railroad tracks were washed out in southwest

Tarrant County, where two roads were closed because of flooding, and large hailstones shattered windows in "several hundred homes" in Fort Worth, a sheriff's spokesman said.

At least three 18-wheelers were blown over on Fort Worth's West Freeway, said police Sgt. Larry Spigler.

SEARCHING THE WRECKAGE. An unidentified man searches the wreckage of a mobile home near Aledo, Texas Saturday morning after what witnesses described as a tornado ripped it apart Friday night. Two women who were in the home at the time the tornado struck were uninjured. The north central Texas community of Aledo is about 15 miles east of Ft. Worth. (AP Laserphoto)

Storms pound Oklahoma

By The Associated Press

One man died and at least eight others were injured in a thunderstorm that pummeled northwest Oklahoma late Friday and early Saturday, police said.

Hail the size of baseballs and winds of up to 100 mph beat four northwest Oklahoma counties, flipping over mobile homes and vehicles before the storm weakened and spread out on its eastward journey across the state.

Police said T. E. "Buck" Henshaw, 52, was killed shortly after midnight in his mobile home southeast of Laverne. Harper County Sheriff Tony Alexander said Henshaw's mobile home was flipped several times by the high winds and he suffered a broken neck. Mrs. Helen Henshaw, the victim's wife, was hospitalized for back injuries and released later Saturday, police said.

Alexander said the mobile home was near an oil drilling site where Henshaw worked.

Damage of nearly $2 million was reported by the Oklahoma Highway Patrol, which said three people were injured slightly in Beaver County where five mobile homes were destroyed, and several other buildings were damaged. Five others were hurt further east in Woodward County where six mobile homes were damaged or destroyed and three cars and a semi-truck were overturned by the high winds, troopers said.

The storm first surprised residents of Texas County in the Panhandle at 9:45 p.m., the patrol said. Two mobile homes were destroyed in Hooker there but no injuries were reported.

It hit Beaver County 20 minutes later and caused an estimated $20,000, the patrol said. The high winds then moved east to Harper County 40 minutes later and uprooted trees in Laverne.

The worst damage was reported at Woodward County in northwest Oklahoma where the storm hit at 11 p.m. Damage was estimated at $1.5 million and some people were trapped briefly in their overturned mobile homes, the patrol said. Troopers said 13 aircraft and three vehicles were destroyed at the Woodward Municipal Airport, where the roof of a hangar was blown off.

All the cities hit lost electrical power and some tornadoes were reported in the storm, but the Highway Patrol said it could not confirm those reports early Saturday.

The National Weather Service said the storm, which blew out of southeast Colorado and southwest Kansas, was the product of a collision of a moving low-pressure zone and moist air hanging over Oklahoma.

Klan leaders want peace in dispute

SANTA FE, Texas (AP) — Ku Klux Klansmen and sympathizers returned to this Southeast Texas town Saturday offering a "wreath of reconciliation" and vowing to end a simmering dispute between native American and Vietnaese fishermen and bring "peace to the Texas coast."

Louis Beam, grand dragon of the Texas KKK, denied the offer was an about face to the Klan's earlier demand that the government resolve the fishing rights squabble in Galveston Bay before the shrimping season opens May 15.

About 150 people — many dressed in the traditional white robes and hoods of the Klan — converged on this coastal town by early afternoon for a picnic and rally designed to raise money to pay fees stemming from a lawsuit filed against the Klan and Texas fishermen by refugee shrimpers seeking federal protection.

About 30 men armed with rifles and dressed in military fatigues, klan robes or black clothes with KKK insignia guarded the picnic site where Klansmen planned to burn a cross later Saturday night. About a dozen more armed men stood in the woods surrounding the meadow.

It was the same meadow where more than 2,700 people gathered Feb. 14 to burn a cross and hear Beam voice the grievances of native Texas fishermen who contend the refugees have threatened their livelihood by violating traditional shrimping practices in the bay.

At that first rally — billed as "a lesson in boat burning" — Beam accused the government of "turning its back on American fishermen and causing them to lose their jobs.

Scientist is top contender for Reagan advisor post

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (AP) — Balance is a word that crops up frequently when talking to Dr. George A. Keyworth II, reported to be the leading contender to become President Reagan's science adviser.

And balance is a word that comes to mind in describing the trim, sandy-haired head of the physics division at Los Alamos National Laboratory.

The 41-year-old Keyworth, known to his friends as "Jay," is as comfortable describing his family as he is speaking of the part he could play in helping to develop national policy on defense, energy and technology.

A direct man, Keyworth's easy manner is in contrast to the squat, gray barracks-type building where he directs a staff of 500 at the laboratory, created in the 1940s to develop the first atomic bomb.

Although he cautioned that he has not been offered the job, Keyworth confirmed that he will take the top science slot if he is asked.

"I would say that my philosophical views are identical to those of the administration," Keyworth said in an interview with The Associated Press. "I am extremely impressed with the people I met at the White House — the people, their abilities, their intelligence and motivation and their good sense."

The New York Times reported Friday that the White House is expected to name Keyworth to the position and the office of Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., said Friday Keyworth is very close to being appointed.

Raised in Gardner, Mass., Keyworth received his bachelor's degree from Yale University in 1963 and his doctorate in nuclear physics from Duke University in 1968. He has been with the Los Alamos laboratory since.

If appointed, his would not be a political choice, Keyworth asserts. "I'm a scientist," he said flatly when asked if he has been active in the Republican Party.

But Keyworth, dressed casually in corduroys and pin-striped shirt, acknowledged that the position of national science adviser would require him to look beyond the perimeters of his field.

"A scientist is trained to handle problems objectively and that's what we do best," he said.

Traeger praised as governor for a day

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, was sworn in as governor for a day Saturday and was praised by friends including former Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Traeger received the traditional honors given the president pro tem of the Senate on a day when the governor and lieutenant governor ostensibly are out of state.

As president pro tem, Traeger ranks behind the lieutenant governor in the order of succession to the governorship. The job of president pro tem is rotated among senators according to seniority. A new president pro tem will be picked before the legislative session adjourns on June 1.

Hundreds of constituents, state officials, fellow legislators and lobbyists packed the Senate chamber and gallery to honor Traeger, 59, a merchant who has served 18 years in the Legislature.

Speaker Bill Clayton, a former House colleague, called Traeger "a decent man who works in the trenches at all hours."

Briscoe said honoring Traeger was "like recognizing every major act of the Texas Legislature over the past two decades" and added it was "good to know he is dedicated to continuing to serve."

"Texas has never had a harder working, more effective or more responsible senator than John Traeger," said Briscoe.

Area Realtors meeting set

Innovative financing ideas will be the focus of the May 19 regional session sponsored by the Amarillo Board of Realtors and held at the Amarillo Quality Inn.

Benny McMahan of Dallas, president of the Texas Association of Realtors, will head up the real estate executive team conducting the workshop. The Borger, Canyon, Dalhart, Dumas, Hereford, and Pampa Boards of Realtors will also attend.

McMahan will start at 9 a.m. with a board officer's meeting. The general session will last from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Pearl Thompson, Amarillo board president is encouraging all area TAR members to attend in order to hear Jerry Starr of San Antonio explain creative financing ideas which can help prospective Texas homebuyers.

"Starr's talk, 'Mortgage Financing for the '80's' is scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m., following lunch," Thompson said. "Every regional meeting we've had has proven Starr's approach right. Being a much sought after teacher, Starr has the experience and expertise to explain his 13 financing techniques in an interesting concise manner."

Melvin G. Jayroe of Hereford, TAR vice president, will serve as moderator for the day. Fort Worth attorney Bob Carter, along with McMahan, will review the latest legislative developments affecting the real estate profession.

James T. Sawyer of Austin, TAR executive vice president and an Amarillo Realtor from 1955 - 1967 will also be a team member.

Neva Weeks from Pampa will be among those leading as a delegate.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Facing a $3.9 billion tab it would rather not pay — at least directly — Congress is searching desperately for a way to fill the nation's Strategic Petroleum Reserve without taking the money from the federal budget.

Couple 'unadopts' their 15-year-old son

MIAMI (AP) — After two years of trying to get rid of the adopted son they considered a trouble-maker, a Miami couple has convinced a judge to cancel the adoption.

The 15-year-old boy, who was adopted five years ago, was assigned temporarily to a county group home. He could be adopted again, placed in a foster home or assigned permanently to the group home under Friday's "unadoption" order by Dade Circuit Judge Adele Segall Faske.

"In a situation such as this, no one ever wins," the judge said. "There's a lot of forgiving to do. A lot of rebuilding to do."

Tom and Sally Daft were told to contribute "reasonable" financial support until the boy is permanently placed.

The boy was arrested in March after he admitted burglarizing the Dafts' home, police said. The judge agreed to withhold adjudication in that case if the youth testifies against two others charged with him.

"We've been actively trying to get rid of him for two years," Daft told The Miami Herald last month.

School officials said the boy has frequently run away from home, was suspended twice, set a fire in a locker, got poor grades and often fought with other children.

But a state-appointed guardian and social workers described the youth differently.

"He is an intelligent, well-dressed, personable young man who has been cooperative and attempted to communicate clearly," said Sherill Valdes, director of social services for the public defender's office.

"He's motivated," she added. "He hopes to attend college. He's bright enough to do it, too."

Plans have been proposed, and hearings have been held in both the House and Senate. But the schemes have been attacked by the oil industry, public and private economists and investment firms. Some ideas simply won't work, the critics say. Others just hide the cost of the oil.

House Energy Committee chairman Rep. John Dingell calls it a "budgetary shell game," and Senate Energy Committee chairman Sen. James A. McClure concedes that to some degree, "we're doing this with mirrors."

In effect, several of the schemes call for government purchases on separate ledger books, so the expenditures do not count on the federal deficit. But money for the oil purchases still would come from government borrowing — or from new taxes.

The simplest solution, proposed by Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., would enact a new law declaring that money for the reserve "shall not be included in the totals of the (U.S.) budget" — meaning it would not count against budget ceilings.

Budget Director David Stockman told a Senate Energy subcommittee last week that the idea may be the preferable solution to the dilemma, although McClure calls the idea "a transparent mirror" in the game of mirrors.

A majority of witnesses — including Stockman and Treasury Secretary Donald Regan — have told Congress a straightforward appropriation would be the best way to fund the reserve.

But with the budget fight between Democrats and Republicans continuing — and with neither side willing to up their declared spending levels by $3 billion to restore the reserve funds — the search for alternatives goes on.

Snake venom is easing pain

PROVEN IN THE LAB. William Haast and his assistant, Nancy Harrell, check expiration dates on doses of PROven in a lab at Haast's Miami Serpentarium. Such treatment is unproven and possible PROven is a diluted mixture of snake

EDITOR'S NOTE — In desperation, many victims of incurable diseases are taking a dose of danger: snake venom. Many say it helps, but federal health authorities caution that nothing has yet been proven, and it is potentially harmful. The controversy continues, pending further testing.

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Cobras, water moccasins and kraits are three of the world's most poisonous snakes, avoided and feared by most humans.

Small amounts of their venoms can paralyze or kill. But, thousands of people throughout the country are injecting a diluted mixture of these venoms into their bodies and resisting those who caution against it.

These people, all with incurable diseases as multiple sclerosis and arthritis, say the shots help.

"I know it comes from snakes, but that doesn't bother me. It's been a tremendous help, and I know for sure it didn't make me worse."

This statement from Donald Saslow, a 46-year-old multiple sclerosis patient from Pequannock, N.J., is like hundreds of others. But most scientists argue that such testimonials don't mean much and are not proof that it works.

However, this word-of-mouth boosting, stories in the news media and the battles between proponents and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration help maintain the interest.

The leading proponent of snake venom therapy is William Haast, owner of the Miami Serpentarium in Florida, a popular tourist attraction.

His Miami Serpentarium Laboratories Inc. makes a venom mixture called "PROven" — which he says is short for "protein-venom" — that is at the center of the controversy.

"PROven has helped lots of people and the interest is increasing," Haast says. "We're going to go on until they close us down."

This is precisely what the FDA would like to do. The federal agency and voluntary health organizations dedicated to the diseases snake venom is supposed to help say the treatment is unproven and possibly dangerous.

"Our aim is to see that this substance, which has not undergone any scientific testing, is tested in a manner that will yield meaningful results," says Dr. Harry M. Meyer Jr., director of the FDA's Bureau of Biologics.

"At the same time, we need to protect people from injecting into their bodies a substance that is potentially toxic, and that has been shown in our tests to be of varying composition and quality."

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society and the Arthritis Foundation, among others, echo these sentiments. Both groups say PROven has not been established as safe or effective and caution against its use.

Testimonials and unsupported claims are no substitute for controlled trials in determining the worth of a medical treatment," the Arthritis Foundation said in a statement.

However, both groups agreed to support controlled trials of the substance when and if it passed safety tests and when standardized and sterile quantities are available.

The controversy, over PROven started about three years ago when Haast and the late Dr. Ben J. Sheppard quietly began using PROven to treat patients at the doctor's Miami clinic.

Haast, 70, who says he's been bitten by scores of poisonous snakes, had long proclaimed medicinal qualities in venom. Sheppard used venom for his own arthritis and began prescribing it for others.

The physician, who died of a heart attack last year at the age of 78, said he did not know how the venom treatment worked but that he was convinced it helped people.

"I don't cure, I make people better," he once said. "Publicity about the treatments drew the attention of many disease sufferers and also the FDA, which sought to limit the use of PROven until there was more scientific evidence in its favor."

The tug-of-war between the agency and the venom proponents came to a head last September when the FDA asked Haast to stop selling PROven until some questions were cleared up.

Among other things, the FDA said the serpentarium was distributing PROven without adequate sterility and safety tests and that the composition of the product varied significantly from batch to batch.

Haast refused to comply with the order, and the FDA took him to court. U.S. District Court Judge Joe Eaton on Jan. 16 ordered Haast to stop selling PROven outside Florida and to comply with FDA rules.

However, the order only affected interstate commerce and not making and using PROven in Florida, the only state where it is legal.

Haast says he would not give up his fight and would continue supplying PROven to those who wanted it.

"We're okay in the state of Florida right now," he says. "But I was serious when I said I would move to another country and continue to supply PROven if I had to."

Proponents estimate that more than 6,000 persons have taken the venom solution over the last two years. Haast sells vials of the mixture for $80 each and says each contains enough PROven for 100 injections, about a three-month supply.

"We are not making a lot of money on this," Haast says.

Interest falling in mutual funds

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock brokerage firms, it appears, are losing some of their enthusiasm for one of their most successful products, money-market mutual funds.

Sure, the funds earn them management fees, and have helped introduce them to thousands of new customers.

But it turns out that many of those customers aren't showing any interest in the firms' other wares.

Therein lies the problem. Individual brokers dealing with the public, whose paychecks depend on commission earnings, derive no commissions from selling money funds.

The Wall Street Journal reported recently that some brokers at Merrill Lynch were actively discouraging customers who were interested only in Merrill's money funds, suggesting to them that if they were looking for a bank, they should go to a bank.

That story could just as easily have been written about our firm," says an executive of one Merrill Lynch competitor.

Indeed, many major firms are now said to be considering steps to deal with the complaints of their sales force by "repackaging" their money funds. Some of the possibilities, imposing fees for opening new accounts, or raising the minimum initial investments.

If such measures are indeed taken, the small saver won't lack for other places to turn. There are numerous money funds operated by mutual fund organizations, with minimum investments generally of $1,000 or $2,500, and a few with even less than that.

To judge by the number of their ads in the financial pages, many of these funds are just as eager as ever for new customers.

Meanwhile, banks and credit-card organizations are readying vehicles to compete with the money funds. Visa USA, for example, recently announced a plan, scheduled to begin operating later this year, that would allow cardholders to earn money-market interest.

Still, the evidence suggests that the public will continue to have a wide range of choices.

Still, the situation points up a problem that is about as old as Wall Street itself — the potential conflict of interest created by the compensation system for brokers.

The broker is supposed to be able to help decide what types of investments and strategies are best suited to each individual. But, being human, the broker has a natural inclination to want to push the products that earn him the biggest commissions.

Babe Ruth Baseball Queen Contest underway

The Pampa Optimist Babe Ruth Baseball Queen Contest is again in progress with four 14- to 15-year-old candidates and four 13-year-old prospects vying to become the league's Queen and Princess, respectively.

May Davis, head of the contest, said the program has been one of the foremost fund raising projects for the Optimist youth programs. These include baseball, basketball (boys and girls), football, and girls' softball.

Mrs. Davis said the winners of the contest will be decided by the queen candidate and her princess candidate who raise the most funds. Each penny earned will be counted as a vote, she said.

The Queen and her Princess will be crowned at the Babe Ruth Ball Park on May 16.

Mother's Day founder 'didn't do much else'

GRAFTON, W. Va. (AP) — Mother's Day began in this small West Virginia town, born of a mother's prayer and a daughter who "devoted her whole life to it and didn't do much else."

These days, the brick facade church where the first Mother's Day celebration was held is open for services only on Mother's Day and Thanksgiving. It's now called the Mother's Day Shrine, and its 73rd Mother's Day celebration is Sunday.

The woman behind Mother's Day — Anna Jarvis — died in 1948, but she is well remembered in Grafton. "When she was really dressed up she was stylish looking; she stood out a bit," recalled 87-year-old Leslie Loar, whose relative, L.L. Loar, opened the Andrews Methodist Church for the first celebration.

"She was so tied up in Mother's Day," he said, "That's all she thought about. She devoted her whole life to it and didn't do much else."

"Miss Anna," as Loar called her, was "a very pleasant woman."

Anna Jarvis was born in Grafton in 1864, and heard as a girl of her mother's prayer that women who lost their children in the Civil War would be remembered.

Two years after her mother died in 1905, Miss Jarvis, then living in Philadelphia, decided to honor her mother at her home on the second Sunday in May. The next year, she wrote to L.L. Loar, superintendent of the church Sunday School, asking that a Mother's Day celebration be held at the church to honor her mother, who taught Sunday school there for 20 years.

Leslie Loar, who was born and raised in this north-central West Virginia community of 6,000 people, remembers the first service in 1908.

"It was pretty much of a regular Sunday school," he said in an interview last week. "But they had white carnations for everybody. At that time it was pretty much for deceased mothers."

Miss Jarvis' crusade led to a statewide celebration, and on April 26, 1910, Gov. William E. Glasscock issued the first Mother's Day proclamation for West Virginia.

Miss Jarvis later won introduction of a Mother's Day resolution in Congress. It passed both chambers and President Woodrow Wilson proclaimed the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day in 1914.

Interest drives stock market

NEW YORK (AP) — Interest rates have emerged again as the driving force in the stock market.

The latest surge in rates helped send the Dow Jones industrial average into a 51-point tailspin in late April and the early days of May.

As the pressure let up toward the end of the past week — once the federal government had completed the process of borrowing $6.75 billion in the credit markets — stock prices stabilized.

For the week, the Dow Jones average of 30 blue chips posted a net loss of 19.19 to 976.40, on the heels of a 24.76-point drop the week before.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index fell 62 to 76.13, while the American Stock Exchange market value index managed a 5.94 gain to 362.18.

Big Board volume averaged 44.20 million shares a day, against 51.79 million the week before.

It is basic doctrine on Wall Street that the stock market tends to go up when interest rates decline, and to fall when they are rising. In fact, observed Heinz H. Biel at Janney Montgomery Scott Inc., recent history suggests that it is not always so responsive to every interest-rate development.

"The market ignores them whenever it has a strong conviction of its own, as it did in February when stock prices declined rather sharply, despite the easing of money rates at the time," he pointed out.

Lately, however, most analysts agree that stock prices have fallen into step with interest-rate movements because of the extraordinarily high yields now available on interest-bearing investments. In the past week, 30-year Treasury bonds were available for the first time ever with a yield of 14 percent.

Or an investor could have purchased blue-chip corporate bonds paying more than 16 percent.

"There are not a great many investment-quality stocks which can produce an assured overall return of 16 percent, year in, year out," Biel acknowledged.

In most cases, he said, "bonds do compete directly with common stocks, and this may be the reason why the stock market has been bumping against an invisible ceiling in recent weeks."

The yardstick most analysts use to measure stocks' and bonds' competitive standing is the difference between their prevailing yields.

This wedding was front page news

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — When Rhea Seddon's father filled out a standard newspaper form announcing his daughter's engagement to Robert Gibson, he expected to see it published among dozens like it in the society section.

It didn't occur to him that the engagement was front page news.

But alert editors of the Nashville Tennessean noticed that the occupation of both Miss Seddon and Gibson was the same — U.S. astronaut — and Edward Seddon's standard form became a copyrighted news story.

"My father filled out the usual form and sent it in, along with a glossy print, thinking it would appear in the Nashville paper on Sunday along with all the other announcements," said Miss Seddon during an interview at the Johnson Space Center. "He was kind of surprised when it appeared the next morning on the front page."

The two astronauts, who plan a May 30 wedding, will become the first space travelers to marry each other, although there is one other couple among astronauts who were wed before they joined the space program.

Miss Seddon said news of her engagement came as good news to Anna and Bill Fischer, who have been in the spotlight as the only husband-wife team at present in the astronaut corps.

"For the past year they have been known as Mr. and Mrs. Astronaut. I'm sure they feel it's nice to be passing the baton," she said.

Gibson and Miss Seddon will wed in a down-to-earth ceremony in her hometown of Murfreesboro, Tenn., followed by a honeymoon trip to Hawaii.

He also said he will be in a better position than the average husband to miss a birthday or an anniversary because of the demands of his job — since she faces the same demands.

And although it's doubtful they'll soon fly a mission together aboard the 99-ton space shuttle, which successfully completed its maiden voyage last month, they say such a husband-and-wife space trip is possible.

"I personally think she'll fly before I do," said Gibson, who has a 4-year-old daughter by a previous marriage. "But since she is a mission specialist and I am a pilot, the chances of our flying on the same mission will improve as the number of flights increases in the coming years."

Gibson, who would be the commander of such a flight, said taking his wife along on a space mission would create no special problems. "Just as long as she does what I tell her to do," he joked.

Romance between Gibson, 34, a Navy lieutenant commander from Westminster, Calif., and Miss Seddon, 33, a Berkeley-educated physician, blossomed in the cockpit of a jet fighter trainer.

Gibson, known affectionately as "Hoot" after the cowboy film actor, met his blonde-haired, blue-eyed fiancée in January 1978. Both were among 35 candidates to undergo rigorous training at the Johnson Space Center as test pilots and mission specialists in the shuttle program.

"I needed somebody to teach me to fly. I had a license to fly small planes, but that was nothing like flying a jet. He made me feel confident and taught me all about flying jets," she said. "We became friends, and later we became better friends."

Two years later, Gibson proposed, but she did not swoon when he popped the question.

"I took her out for a very romantic dinner and then we went to watch the stars and the moonlight and I asked her to marry me," Gibson said. But he said if she was also caught up in the romance of it all, he could not tell it from her casual reply.

"I told him, 'Sure,'" she said with a shrug of the shoulders.

The news of their pending marriage did not take co-workers at NASA as much by surprise as it did the rest of the world, because they were not able to keep their romance secret all those months. The official word did prompt some good-natured kidding, especially among Gibson's crew, who started calling him "Mr. Seddon."

"The other day I came back to the office and my secretary had left a message on the board saying that 'Brides' magazine wanted an interview," Gibson said. "Not with Rhea — with me."

Texas Tech furious at the national press

EDITOR'S NOTE: The medieval poet Dante says there are nine levels of Hell, but some modern-day journalists suggest they found a tenth level at Texas Tech University. Not so, contend angry students and Lubbock residents. They say those reporters stumbled into Paradise, not Purgatory.

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Hell hath no fury, it is said, like a woman scorned.

Probably not, but don't rule out Texas Tech University. As a group, officials, professors, students, alumni and supporters rank high on Fury's Top Ten.

Said one Texas Tech official, shamelessly quoting an agitated Hollywood figure:

"We are mad as hell and we aren't going to take it any longer!"

The target of this collective fury is the national press, at least those newspapers and news magazines which sent reporters to Lubbock in the wake of the assassination attempt on President Reagan in Washington.

Most left unimpressed with Lubbock and its beloved university, and it is their observations that aroused Texas tempers.

The investigative scribes came to town in quest of profile material on John Hinckley, the gunman who allegedly wounded Reagan and three others.

They found little of substance.

For some seven years, Hinckley popped in and out of Lubbock, sporadically attending classes at Texas Tech.

But he left a meager legacy, mostly as a forgettable face in a crowd of 23,000 students. He ate lots of hamburgers, watched lots of television and read lots about Hitler.

"Hinckley's slide into darkness seemed to pick up speed once he entered Texas Tech... in the fall of 1973," said Newsweek. "Academically, Texas Tech's reputation is modest, but its 23,000 students take pride in their parties."

That hardly endeared the magazine to Tech fans.

Nor did the Wall Street Journal, which characterized Tech as a "prosaic state-run university on the dusty flatlands of the Texas Panhandle."

Time described Lubbock as "dry and bleak" and confused Tech's nickname, Red Raiders, with the Scots of Highland Park, the Dallas suburb where Hinckley attended high school.

The Philadelphia Inquirer spoke of "the dust storms that plague the West Texas flatlands" and, say its critics, misquoted libelously and liberally from named and unnamed sources.

But most of the outrage was directed at the much maligned Washington Post, which, the students suggested, only flirted with the truth.

Said the Post, in its most controversial segment:

"A penchant for guns hardly strikes anyone as ominous in free-wheeling Lubbock, where some university students carry guns to class and the pistol-packing frontier Texas tradition runs deep and long."

That mightily offended the Lubbock citizenry, Tech's educational community and the feisty campus newspaper, the University Daily.

They responded with a flurry of angry letters to editors at the offending publications, to the hometown Lubbock Avalanche-Journal and within the pages of the University Daily.

No one, least of all the students, would deny that guns in Texas are uncommon, or that many youngsters enjoy a fast friendship with Black Jack and Adolph Coors.

But, they grumbled, seldom do they tote guns or grape to class.

Jumping into the spirit of things, students took up arms in the form of water pistols and hauled the weapons and assorted beverage bottles into class.

They appeared in T-shirts depicting an armed Red Raider, a Jack Daniels bottle and a message: "Nowhere else but Texas Tech."

A second set of T-shirts bore the inscription "Texas Tech... show your guns." A pistol appeared to protrude from the waistband.

With tongue in cheek, collegiate journalist Kippie Hopper began a front page article thusly:

"In the dry and bleak prairie dog capital of the world thrives the Tech campus, where hell-raising students fight the wind and the dust with a notched six-shooter in one hand and a Jack Daniel's bottle in the other."

And letters poured forth in a mighty rush.

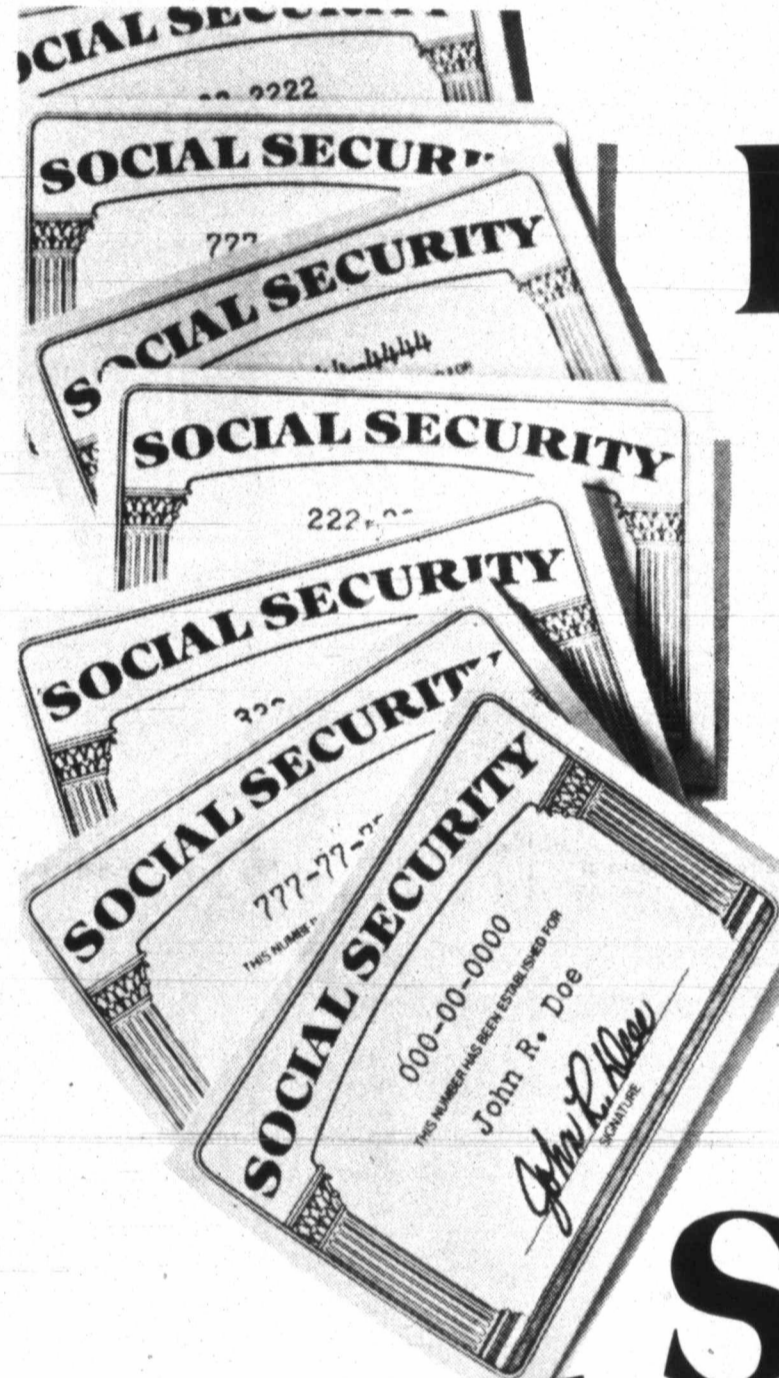

In one such, directed to the Post and printed in the University Daily, a lady named Jacquelyn Ormand suggested that "eager" reporters, "anxious to reveal the reason for Hinckley's deviant behavior," exploited the city and the university as a "scapegoat."

Tony Downey, a Tech student, observed:

"...Every geographical area of the country has its own mystique. In West Texas the legends of the six gun and hanging rope are as much a part of the local lore as the Minutemen are to New England or the Forty-Niners are to California.

"However, we seldom lynch anybody anymore. (In the case of certain irresponsible Eastern journalists who took a cheap shot at all West Texans by implying John Hinckley's dementia was nourished solely by his presence here, we might make an exception.)"

Declared Chino Chapa, editor of the Daily:

Five reasons to use Direct Deposit with Security Checking

Security Checking is probably the most convenient checking account in town! And if you're a Senior, Direct Deposit is the most convenient way to get your Social Security. Here's why.

1. You get Social Security payments faster. With Direct Deposit to Security Checking, you'll get much faster payment of monthly Social Security payments.
2. Direct Deposit is completely safe. You'll never have to worry about your Social Security checks getting lost or stolen. They go directly to your Security Checking account for you to use.
3. Security Checking is free to Seniors. If you're age 65 or more, there is no service charge for Security Checking. No matter what your balance is. And you'll even earn interest on every dollar in your account!
4. Security's five convenient locations. Chances are we're pretty close to you. Security Federal is probably the most convenient place for Seniors. Several of our branch offices are located near Senior Activity Centers. So your Social Security gets to your account more conveniently, and so do you.
5. $100,000 insurance of your account. Security Checking is insured to the hilt. Up to $100,000.00 for accounts in the same names. So you can be doubly safe with Direct Deposit to Security Checking.

All should observe Mother's Day

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: Sunday, May 10, is Mother's Day. Many suspect that it is just another commercial holiday dreamed up by florists and merchants to stimulate business.

Not so! Mother's Day was conceived by Anna M. Jarvis of Philadelphia, who in 1907 persuaded her minister to have a special church service the second Sunday in May to honor all mothers. Those with living mothers wore red carnations, and those without mothers wore white carnations. This custom is still observed in some areas.

Mother's Day is a day of gladness to most mothers. But not for all. I should know. For weeks following Mother's Day, my desk is covered with letters from mothers who have been snubbed, slighted or forgotten.

Two typical Mother's Day letters:

DEAR ABBY: The day my son got married, he forgot that he has a mother. Every holiday — including Mother's Day — his wife drags him to her people, and he goes like a little puppy without even putting up a fight.

LOST MY SON

DEAR ABBY: My son lives in the same city with me, but I'm lucky if I see him six times a year for 10 minutes. Then on Mother's Day he sends me a bouquet of roses. Big deal!

HURT

Each year, disappointed mothers send me the verse:

"A son is a son until he takes a wife, but a daughter is a daughter all of her life."

My mail constantly reaffirms the fact that one of the most sensitive of all human relations is the one that exists between a woman and her mother-in-law. (There is far more friction between a woman and her husband's mother than between a man and the mother of his wife.)

Recently, I received a letter from a young wife who asked, "Who should sit in front with my husband when we take his mother out for a drive?"

I replied, "Out of respect for her age — his mother." Well, the brickbats started flying from all directions. Readers quoted Scripture: "And a man shall leave his father and his mother, and cleave unto his wife."

One mother wrote to remind me that the Ten Commandments say, "Thou shalt honor thy mother and thy father" — and it doesn't say one word about the mother-in-law!

You don't have to be a Dear Abby to know that being a good mother-in-law is one of the most difficult roles in the world.

Now that I am a mother-in-law, I have resolved to abide by two simple rules:

Never offer advice unless it's asked for.

Never ask questions that are none of my business.

I am trying earnestly to be the best mother-in-law possible. And I must say that my chances for success are excellent, because for 41 years, I have had a wonderful teacher — my own mother-in-law, Mrs. Jay Phillips. God bless you, Rosie. You are the best! Love,

"PO PO"

Mother's Day worldwide tradition

Mothers in the United States, the Soviet Union and 36 other countries may not speak the same language, but it's likely all will receive gifts as part of Mother's Day — a tradition that surpasses all language and cultural barriers.

From the holiday's beginning as a proclamation by President Woodrow Wilson in 1915, the American tradition has been to shower mothers with gifts, ranging from a greeting card to a box of chocolates to major appliances, on the second Sunday in May. Some gifts are even customized for the celebration.

Mother's Day and gift-giving also go hand-in-hand in 36 of 50 countries surveyed recently. Mothers in Canada and Mexico will likely receive gifts May 10. Children in Austria, Finland, Italy, Germany, Denmark, Sweden, France and Lithuania will honor their moms with a gift. Even those in Russia, Poland and the People's Republic of China celebrate in the American tradition.

Children in Israel make special gifts for their mothers in classes at school, and children in Egypt have a vacation from school in order to celebrate the special day.

In some countries, special traditions are observed along with gift-giving.

In Yugoslavia, for example, all women — mothers and non-mothers alike — are honored on the "Day of Women," which is much like Mother's Day, Valentine's Day and Secretary's Day combined. On this special day, any man can approach a woman without it being considered insulting. Bosses give flowers to their female workers, and men honor their mothers or special women with gifts.

Children in Peru present their mothers with pink flowers to show their affection. Children whose mothers are not living place white flowers in their church or at the cemetery where their mothers are buried.

In Jamaica, Mother's Day takes on a religious significance, much like the Christian celebrations of Easter and Christmas. Jamaicans attend special church services that honor mothers. In Liberia, most churches also sponsor extra special programs for mothers.

Mothers in Belgium are honored twice each year — once in much the same tradition as in the United States and a second time as part of a Catholic observance on Aug. 15. During this second celebration, children write special letters to their mothers, make drawings, send cards and have special cakes made for their mothers.

In Haiti, everyone whose mother is alive shows respect for her by wearing a red flower. If a person's mother is not living, he or she wears a white flower in memory.

There is no formal holiday for mothers in the tiny nation of Nepal, but most children choose a day to honor their mothers. On that day they go to the temple and say a prayer, then give their mothers something from the temple, such as holy water.

Mother's Day will also be observed in such far-reaching areas of the globe as Australia, Barbados, Ecuador, Japan, Greece, Monaco, Iceland, Brazil and Portugal.

Reassurance for employed mothers

By ELAINE HOUSTON
County Extension Agent
LEADER TRAINING PROGRAM SCHEDULED

A leader training program on drug interaction will be presented at 1:30 p.m. Monday, May 11 in the courthouse annex meeting room.

The leader training is planned to give extension homemaker club leaders program material for a club program later this month. All clubs planning to use this program should send program leaders.

The program is free and open to the public. This training is sponsored by the Gray County Family Living Committee.

CULTURAL ARTS WORKSHOP

A cultural arts workshop is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. Thursday, May 14 in the courthouse annex meeting room.

The workshop will be conducted by Lil Hall of the Hobby Shop, who will show how to make padded picture frames. Participants should bring a piece of fabric (woven cotton print with a small design) and scissors. Additional supplies will be furnished at a nominal fee.

Everyone interested is invited to attend this workshop

Carnations are for Moms

Anna Jarvis, who founded Mother's Day in 1908, selected the carnation as the official flower of Mother's Day because it was her own mother's favorite blossom. Mother's Day was in memory of her deceased mother, who took special delight in the spring flowers that bloomed in the West Virginia countryside in May.

Flowers are synonymous with the softness of motherhood, so it is natural that people should look toward floral tributes as one symbol of their respect and love.

Miss Jarvis had originally envisaged Mother's Day as an occasion for writing mother a special letter, and paying her a visit just because she was mother. Over the years, the public has seized upon the holiday as an opportunity for more ostentatious display, and the carnation has multiplied into corsages, plants, bouquets and gifts of every nature and kind.

sponsored by the Cultural Arts Committee - Gray County Extension Homemaker Council.

WHAT TO DO WHEN THE FREEZER FAILS

When the freezer breaks down or the power goes out, try to find out how long it will be before the freezer is working again and keep the door closed. A fully loaded freezer will stay cold enough to keep food frozen for two days. A half - full freezer will only keep food cold for a day.

Meats that still contain ice crystals or have been maintained at 40 degrees F. (5 degrees C.) or below for less than two days may be safely refrozen. Some quality may be lost, but the product is still wholesome. Throw out any food that has an unusual color or odor. Never refreeze ice cream.

If it looks like the power will be off for a long time or the freezer won't be repaired for awhile, use dry ice. If dry ice is placed in the freezer soon after the power goes off, 25 pounds should keep the temperature below freezing for two to three days in a 10 - cubic - foot, half - full freezer and three to four days in a full freezer of the same size.

Handle dry ice carefully. Be sure the room is well ventilated, and never touch dry ice with bare hands. Place the dry ice on cardboard or small boards on top of packages, and do not open the freezer again except to put in more dry ice or to remove it when the freezer is working again.

If using dry ice is not possible, move food to a food locker. Carry it to the locker in insulated boxes or thick layers of paper to prevent thawing. Or possibly a neighbor may be willing to store some food until the freezer is working.

EMPLOYED MOTHERS - NEW 'HOPE' FOR DUAL-ROLE SUCCESS

Employed mothers, there's new 'hope' for success in both jobs - at home and at work. Home economics research is finding no basic differences between children of employed mothers and those who remain in the home.

However, studies show that employed moms' guilt and worry can affect the children. Guilt and worry about working outside the home tends to interfere with or makes time mother and child spend together less enjoyable, the research indicates.

Here are some suggestions to enhance parenting skills for mothers who work outside the home:

Choose what is most important. You are managing two jobs, so realize you won't be able to do everything. Don't increase stress by worrying or feeling guilty about things you cannot do. Accept your limitations and help your family to accept them.

Take care of yourself. Your own sense of well - being is tremendously important. When you are frazzled, go to a quiet place to relax. Schedule a regular night a week all for yourself.

Link work and parenthood. Talk to your child about your job. Invite him to visit you at work, and help him to get to know your co-workers. Perhaps most important, look for ways your child can help you in your job. As he learns about and participates in your work life, he is preparing for his own working years.

Research findings say several things about working moms and their children. If you're an employed mother, you're part of a large and growing number, researchers report. Almost half of all mothers in the United States with school - age children are employed full - time outside of the home.

Here's what the studies indicate about the children of employed mothers: By itself a mother's full - time employment is not likely to harm her child. There are few, if any, consistent differences between children of mothers who are in the home full - time and those who work outside the home full - time.

There is virtually no difference in school achievement and social adjustment between children of mothers who work outside the home and children of mothers who work at home. Children of mothers who work outside the home have as much personal attachment to their mothers as do children of mothers who remain at home full - time.

JEFF GRUBBS AND PHYLLIS MEEK

Meek, Grubbs set August wedding date

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Meek of Denver, Colo., formerly of Pampa, announce the engagement of their daughter, Phyllis Marie, to Jeff Grubbs.

Grubbs is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Grubbs of Tipton, Okla.

The couple plan to wed Aug. 22 in Central Baptist Church of Pampa.

The bride-elect is a 1979 graduate of Gateway High School in Aurora, Colo., and is attending Oklahoma Baptist University in Shawnee, Okla. She is employed by Buford White Lumber Company of Shawnee.

The prospective bridegroom is a 1978 graduate of Tipton, Okla. High School and is attending Oklahoma Baptist University. He is employed by Buford White Lumber Company of Shawnee.

JESSE LEOS AND ANGELA BOLIN

Bolin, Leos plan to exchange vows

Mr. and Mrs. Trent Bolin of 904 Twiford announce the engagement of their daughter, Angela, to Jesse Leos.

Leos is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Leos of Skellytown. The couple plan to wed in June.

The bride-elect is a senior at Pampa High School and is employed at Alco Discount Store.

The prospective bridegroom is employed by Atlantic Richfield Company.

Peeking at Pampa

The seasonal parties continue. And, ooh, such a splashy one was the buffet-dance last Sunday night in the Heritage Room. It was called "Spring Festival" and, according to accounts I heard of it, it was super.

A ten-foot Maypole, just ahead of the receiving line, delighted guests as they arrived. Odell Gideon made it and wife, Mary, decorated it with the help of other host couples. An added attraction was the yellow bird (Woodstock, of course) chirping merrily atop the pole all evening.

Table decorations featured polished tree branches with silken butterflies perched on them. Dick Morton's orchestra furnished music for dancing.

Host couples for the gala occasion were Ralph and Lillian Esson, Ab and Pat Conway, Leon and Pauline Daugherty, Mary and Odell Gideon, Rue and Hesta Hestand, Otis and Evelyn Nace, George and Jessie Newberry, C.B. and Faye Reece, Wayne and Loretta Robinson, W.T. and Ilche Wilborn, Cliff Scott and Joyce Cambern. In addition to local guests (heard there were over 400), visitors came from nearby towns — and also from Oklahoma City, Dallas and even New Orleans.

Good to see Icie Jones out partying again. She always looks wonderful, whether well or ill. And her hairdo is never ruffled, always beautiful.

Heard that Fred Vanderburg Sr. and his bride, Jessie Lee, are home from their wedding trip and are taking in the night spots hereabouts. Myriad friends wish them happiness.

Big crowd attended the dinner theater and enjoyed the play, "Same Time, Next Year," last week. Heard there will be another play later this month, "Last of the Red Hot Lovers," starring Amy Griggs and Don Shook. Space is limited, I understand.

Glad Chuck Ekleberry is back in circulation after his recuperation from surgery. Heard his doctors told him not to lift typewriters yet, so he makes calls with associates and lets them take on the heavy jobs.

Understand Chuck and Doris' two boys are doing fine and winning honors at the university in El Paso.

So the Cadillac Ball is over for another year. Heard that Dr. Julian Key won the car this time. Several others whose names were among the 30 in the first drawing won nice slices of money too. Saw people going to this special party by the slither, many of them in formal attire.

Seems to me Pampa has more than its share of adorable children. Am always hearing people talk about the small fry in their neighborhoods. Heard that blonde Mindy Robinson, five-year-old daughter of Tom and Sue, is a lovely little attention-getter. Somebody saw her the other day in a red dress and hair ribbon, red toenails and fingernails with sandals of many colors including red.

Seems she helps whatever project is going on close by. When a neighbor held a garage sale, Mindy announced to the arriving buyers, "I'm helping with the work here."

She's the granddaughter of Al and Doreen Dunham. That whole family seems closely knit, in work and at home. Tom works with Al and Doreen keeps books — when she and Al aren't playing golf. Mindy said, "My grandma sure likes golf!"

Anybody noticed, R.C. Grider's fancy mustache, all curled up at the ends? Bet no man in Pampa has a more glamorous one!

Lots of competent musicians in town. Think one of the hardest working ones is Sue Higdon, wife of Buster. She teaches music in the schools, plays for evening entertainments and trains a special high school group every year. This year's specialty is The Entertainers, composed of the Smith sisters and Heidi Allen. Think she will lose a couple of them when they go to college in the fall. But we know Sue will find her singers, as she always does.

Remember when Sue and Buster's boy was growing up here and played drums for his mother's music on piano and organ? They were a delightful duo.

Don't know this boy's name — but heard several people expressing thanks to a Pampa paper boy who always leaves the News by the front door. One day when he threw the paper onto the roof, he boosted his younger sister high enough to retrieve it. Now that's service.

More later. P.A.M.

Pear dessert elegant, easy

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
DEAR CECILY: I have been serving your easily made Pears Helene for a long time and my guests always enjoy them. Have you any other simple but elegant dessert using canned pears that I could offer at parties?

— PANTRYSELF COOK.
DEAR PANTRYSELF COOK: Yes, the recipe for a new pear dessert follows. I hope you and your guests will enjoy it. But first I'm passing along some information about the contents of the different size cans that Bartlett pears come in. You may find this information as useful as I have.

The 1-pound and -13 ounce can of Bartlett pears may have 5 to 7, 7 to 9, or 9 to 11 pear halves in the can — depending on the size of the halves. Most canned Bartlett pear halves are bought in this size can.

The 1-pound can of Bartlett pears is also popular. Depending on the size of the pear halves, the 1-pound can usually contains from 5 to 7 or 7 to 9 pear halves. The pear halves in the 1-pound can are smaller than the pear halves of similar count in the 1-pound and -13-ounce can.

The buffet size (8 ounces) can of Bartlett pear halves holds two servings — usually four small pear halves.

ORANGE PEARS
16-ounce can Bartlett pear halves
2 tablespoons butter

1/2 teaspoon grated orange rind
1/4 cup orange juice
1/8 teaspoon ground ginger
2 tablespoons orange liqueur
2 tablespoons heavy cream

Drain pears; reserve 1/4 cup of the syrup. Heat butter in a large skillet. Add 6 to 8 pear halves (depending on how many there are in the can), cut side down, and heat; turn and heat other sides. Add the reserved pear syrup, orange rind, orange juice and ginger; bring to a boil; stir in the orange liqueur. With a slotted spoon, remove pear halves and arrange them in pairs in dessert dishes. Boil liquid in skillet until it is reduced to 2 or 3 tablespoonfuls; stir in the cream and heat thoroughly. Spoon over pears. Makes 3 to 4 servings.

Mending Mature Marriage

Don't get derogatory nicknames

NANCY NIXON

Nixon, Smith plan Beaumont ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Nixon of Beaumont announce the engagement of their daughter, Nancy, to Charles C. Smith. Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Smith, 1156 Prairie Drive.

The couple plan to wed May 27 in First United Methodist Church of Beaumont.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Stephen F. Austin University and Lamar University. She is employed by Vidor Independent School District.

The prospective bridegroom attended St. John's College in Winfield, Kan. and West Texas State University in Canyon. He is employed by Ideco division of Dresser Industries in Beaumont.

By LOUISE PIERCE
Do you have an uncomplimentary nickname? Does it embarrass you when you hear it? And does it embarrass your mate even more than it does you? A reader of this column wrote me:

"DEAR LOUISE: I'm in my mid-sixties, married 49 years. I never cared too much about the details of my clothes. It didn't bother me when my hair blew real bad in the wind or when my shoes needed polishing and I let them go until I had time to polish them. I thought nobody else noticed so what did it matter?"

"But a few months ago I was with a friend (some friend) and she said, 'Oh, my, you're an S.S. again today.'"

"I asked her, 'What's an S.S.?'"

"She said, 'It's a s'p shower. And you've always got a petticoat that's longer than your dress.'"

"I wanted to tell her she should be thankful she knew a woman who still wore petticoats. But I was tongue-tied. I could only think about how bad I looked to her and probably to other people."

"I went home and asked my husband if my sloppiness bothered him. He said yes, it did—but he hadn't wanted to hurt my feelings by saying so."

"I'm writing because I thought other women might get nicknames and worry about them. If they don't have any now, tell them to watch out for them. G.J."

DEAR G.J.: Thank you for your letter. It is the theme of today's column. I'm sure we will all benefit from your rude awakening to your unkempt appearance.

Sometimes name tags are much more devastating than yours. In a recent column by Paul Harvey, he touched upon the topic of stigmas in regard to the way people's evil lives are sometimes perpetually remembered by their names. He said:

"One remembers that one Christian name was so oiled by one individual that no mother for 2,000 years has ever named her son Judas."

"The Dr. Mudd who treated Lincoln's assassin, however innocently, and despite eventual vindication, left that name synonymous with a person non grata for a generation."

All of us have probably called an evil woman a "Jezebel" because of the Old Testament's wicked queen.

Of course, none of us lesser lights is likely to become known nationwide for our deserved, or undeserved, nicknames. But a nation's disrespect probably wouldn't bother us as much as local disfavor.

One of my high school reunions comes to my mind, the one that Otis and I attended on the 50th anniversary of my graduation. A charming man was present who was well-dressed, a lot of fun, everybody's favorite.

But what we couldn't resist kidding him about was his reputation as a boy of 16. He was considered a town rascal in those days, drinking a small glass of 3.2 beer sometimes, keeping girls out on dates long past midnight, breaking football training rules, etc. (Don't those 'sins' sound tame now?)

He got so fed up with our twitting that he changed his name tag to "Old What's His Name."

As for me, I'm often called "Old Gabby." I'm not sure that's too derogatory.

although Otis says I sometimes finish his stories, talk when he's trying to watch TV and even ramble on when our guests should have the opportunity to do so.

Once, back in Kansas, our area held a contest at a fund-raising event. Two women were nominated for the "gabbiest woman in town." I won, hands down.

I'm still talking too much. But when I remember that too-applicable nickname, I try to bite my lips once in awhile.

Frequently I remember the old adage, "A bore is somebody who talks when you want to talk." Don't be a bore unless you want to join me in being "Old Gabby."

Often a derogatory appellation will disturb a spouse more than it does the offender. If this happens, it can fray the cords of marital happiness. No wife wants to hear her husband termed "the biggest liar in town." No husband relishes the notion of his wife's being called "a rattle-brained idiot."

We can all be normal and acceptable and unembarrassing to our mates.

If we can't help our unappreciated offenses in this regard, we must be prepared to call ourselves "Old What's His Name."

Mother's Day is for gift-giving

CHATSWORTH, Ca. — It's all-American to give when the occasion arises.

And Mother's Day is an occasion that evokes the best in everyone. In fact, Mother's Day is second only to Christmas as an event of importance to most Americans, according to a survey done for the Mother's Day Council by the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. Considering that Christmas has a head start of almost 20 centuries, Mother's Day is doing well indeed as a "favorite holiday."

Almost 90 percent of the panel questioned replied that they "always or sometimes" give a gift for Mother's Day. Such a spontaneous response can't be taken lightly—or for granted.

The median number of gifts given is about two and one-half per mother, and there are 70,000,000 American mothers.

Apparel is the favorite gift among 53 percent of the panelists, with emphasis on casual attire that's easy to fit and easy to buy, and intimate apparel such as lingerie and nightgowns.

The Harvard Study shows fragrances and cosmetics strong, too. They're easy to buy, pose no size or color problems and are personal and gratifying.

A whopping 47 percent of the panelists said they opt for jewelry—fine to costume—as their gift choice.

The most-often-mentioned gift was a floral tribute, as only one of several gifts given.

Next category of choice is the work-saving small appliance. Toasters, food blenders, mixers, food processors and even major appliances total up to 30 percent of the gift nominations.

So Americans will lavish gifts on their mothers on Mother's Day, May 10, in such a grand way that it is estimated that more than $3 billion will be spent to let Mom know how much she is loved and appreciated.

Baker, Stewart wed in evening ceremony

Patricia Rose Baker and Nickey Lee Stewart were wed in a recent evening ceremony at Central Baptist Church of Pampa, with the Rev. S.L. Yeilding of Wellington officiating.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. G.F. Baker Sr. of 1235 S. Finley. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Mary Hunter of Fletcher, Okla. and Mr. Leo Medley of Pampa.

The bride wore a white A-line gown of Chantilly lace with ruffled lace collar tied at the front. The veil and train matched the gown.

Attending the bride was Jerrie Ann Carter of Pampa. The bridegroom was attended by Marty Medley of Pampa.

Music was provided by Tracy Cary and Joyce Field, both of Pampa.

Ushers were Amber Killebrew and Richard Rogers, both of Pampa. Candlelighter was Kenny Southerland of Canyon, Virginia Rogers of Pampa registered guests.

A reception was held in the church parlor following the ceremony, with Sandy Killebrew and Briget Shoemake, both of Pampa, as servers.

The couple will make their home in Pampa following a honeymoon in Colorado Springs, Colo.

The bride and bridegroom are both employed by Pampa Country Club.

Although my own cookbook shelves house about 50 books on the subject of hors d'oeuvres and appetizers, Mrs. Edwinn's cookbook is in a class by itself. To her, cooking is a joy rather than a chore. She says, "It's a consuming passion. Over many years I have reveled in dreaming up new dishes and watching the gratifying reactions of my family and friends." Now lots of other people can enjoy the Edwinn culinary talents.

GLORIA EDWINN'S STUFFED PEPPERS

4 small green bell peppers (about 1 pound)
One 7-ounce can Italian tuna fish
4 cloves garlic, minced (2 teaspoons)
2 tablespoons pitted and finely chopped oil-cured black olives
1 cup fresh bread crumbs
1/4 cup finely minced parsley
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon dried basil
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 egg, lightly beaten
1/2 cup olive oil

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Cut off the tops of the peppers, scoop out the seeds, and cut out the membranes. Combine the tuna fish, garlic, chopped olives, bread crumbs, parsley, salt, basil, pepper, and egg. Use this mixture to stuff the peppers. Pour the olive oil into an ovenproof dish and place the peppers in the oil. Bake with some of the oil, and bake for 30 minutes, basting every 10 minutes with oil. Let them cool to room temperature. They may be prepared as long as 2 days in advance, cooled, and refrigerated. Bring them to room temperature before serving. If you are serving these as part of a large assortment of hors d'oeuvres, cut each pepper in half. Makes 4 to 8. From "Just For Starters" by Gloria Edwinn (Viking).

Food Editor's Note: When we tried this recipe, we drained the olive oil from the Italian tuna — there was 1/4 cup; we used it instead of the 1/2 cup olive oil called for in the above recipe. If you place the peppers close together in a casserole into which they just fit, this works well. — C.B.

Protect plant foliage from disease

By JOE VANZANDT
County Extension Agent
Plant leaves provide a source of food used in the development of fruit. Thus it's important to protect foliage from diseases.

Although plant foliage is subject to attack from bacteria and fungi, losses from fungal organisms are by far the most common in this area. Fungicides to control diseases caused by fungi include captan, folpet, zineb, sulfur, copper, maneb and other maneb combinations.

Two new fungicides being used in this area are benomyl and chlorothalonil. Since these are more specific in their actions, they will often out-perform older standard fungicides when used properly.

Bactericides are used to control bacterial diseases. Those most effective contain some form of copper or an antibiotic (streptomycin sulfate).

Following is a list of commonly used pesticides for disease control and what they are effective against. This list does not include the host plant, so read the label closely before purchasing the product to make sure it can be used on the particular vegetable that has a problem.

—BENOMYL: Fungal diseases: fruit rot, foliage and powdery mildew.

—CAPTAN: Fungal diseases: fruit rot and foliage.

—COPPER CONTAINING PESTICIDES: Fungal diseases: fruit rot and foliage. Bacterial diseases: fruit and foliage.

—CHLOROTHALONIL: Fungal diseases: fruit rot and foliage.

—FOLPET: Fungal diseases: fruit rot, foliage and powdery mildew.

—MANEB AND MANEB COMBINATIONS: Fungal diseases: fruit rot and foliage.

—STREPTOMYCIN SULFATE: Bacterial diseases: fruit and foliage.

—SULFUR: Fungal diseases: powdery mildew.

—ZINEB: Fungal diseases: fruit rot and foliage.

Combination products or those listed as general purpose materials should be examined closely to make sure they contain a fungicide, if one is needed. Often general use products contain only an insecticide and thus would have no effect on any disease problems.

Numerous growers in the county prefer to use a dust rather than a spray. In tests done in other areas, no difference can be demonstrated between a dust or spray application.

The secret of good disease control with either of the pesticide formulations is early detection of the disease, thorough pesticide coverage, and continual applications as long as weather conditions favor disease development.

When using dusts, apply them in the evening to get better distribution of the pesticide over the leaf. Dusting when leaves are wet with dew can result in an uneven distribution since dust will be attracted to water droplets. Sprays can be applied at any time.

Many gardeners are concerned about the effect of rainfall on a spray or dust application. If leaves have dried for two to three hours after the application, little pesticide will be removed by rain. However, if foliage has not dried, then repeat spraying or dusting.

For a pesticide to be effective against a disease, it has to be on the leaf during the time when the pest is present and developing. For most diseases, that is during and immediately after rainfall or heavy dews. During periods when diseases are severe, it may be best to apply the pesticide before a predicted period of wet weather. This will protect foliage and fruit during this critical period.

MR. AND MRS. GARY SWINNEY

Hettrick, Swinney recite vows

Chris Lee Hettrick and Gary Earl Swinney were wed in an evening ceremony Friday in First Christian Church of Pampa with the Rev. Bill Boswell, pastor, officiating.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Ken Neal of 1601 W. Somerville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Skidmore of 1225 E. Foster.

The bride wore an ivory gown of satin and lace with short sleeves and a rounded neckline. Lace inserts extended down the front of the gown, which had a tie sash at the waistline.

Shonda Quarles of Pampa attended the bride. The bridegroom's attendant was Bobby Broadbent of Pampa.

Ushers were Victor Laramore and Don

Summers, both of Pampa.

Connie Corcoran of Pampa and Tonya Selman of Garland served as candlelighters. Miss Corcoran was flower girl. Registering guests was Donna Quarles of Pampa.

Ring bearer was Kelley Quarles of Pampa. Music was provided by Eddie Burton and Mrs. Danny King, both of Pampa.

The couple will make their home outside Pampa after a honeymoon in Anchorage, Alaska.

The bride attended Grants, N.M. High School.

The bridegroom attended Pampa High School and is employed by Pampa Auto Center.

Pampa Christian School Kindergarten

4 and 5 Year Olds

PRE-ENROLLMENT: May 4, 1981

Phone: 669-7830 or 669-3891

We have an educational program for our Kindergarten classes that no other school can offer in the Pampa area. Your child will find that it is an enjoyable learning experience.

The curriculum includes readers, workbooks, and phonic cards. Your child will learn to read phonically with a 650 word vocabulary (one and two vowel words). A complete range of subjects is covered, including writing, art, poetry, music, science, numbers, and mathematical concepts.

The tuition cost is less than the private Kindergartens in this area. Check with us before you make your decision. We have a limited enrollment. Please call as soon as possible.

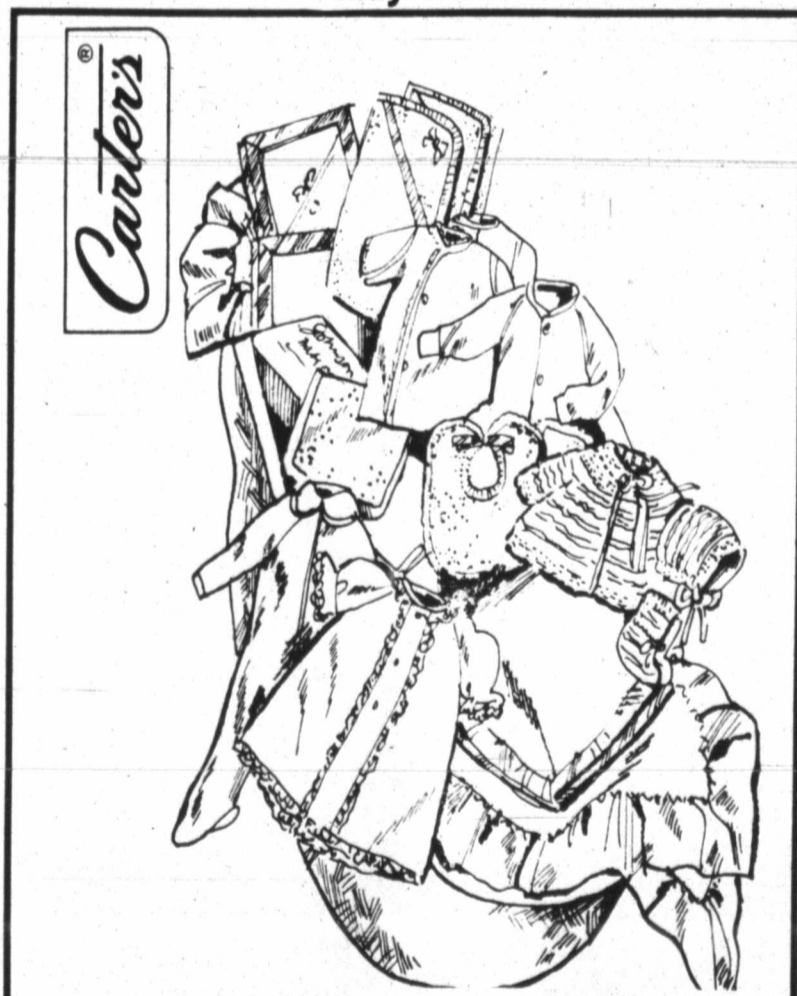

USING A BEKA BOOK PUBLICATIONS

This program has been proven by Pensacola Christian Schools in Pensacola, Florida for 30 years.

We are a member of Texas Organization of Christian Schools and American Association of Christian schools.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

May 11, 1981

Don't be discouraged if projects or enterprises get off to a slow start this coming year. You may not establish any records for speed, but you will make substantial progress.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be persistent in that which you hope to accomplish today. You could get sidetracked if you don't stick to your agenda. Romance, travel, kick, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Take your responsibilities and duties seriously today, or else, through neglect, they could begin to pile up and cause you complications.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Instead of operating prudently financially today, you may be tempted to do otherwise. Losses could occur if you get too careless.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You won't accomplish all you hope to today if you do things in fits and starts. Be consistent and try not to launch projects on impulse.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Instead of weighing your words in order not to offend others, you may say things today which will have more bite than you intend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's good to do for others, but today you may be unwisely generous and make a commitment beyond your means which you'll later regret.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Do nothing today to make yourself look important at the expense of associates. If you do, the applause will be marred with sneers and jeers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There is a possibility today that you might repeat a mistake similar to one you've made in the past. Let old lessons count for something.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Unless handled properly, joint ventures could be more counterproductive than fruitful today. Be tactful with emotional associates.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is not a good day to try to imitate the actions of others in career situations. What worked for them may fizzle for you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you are saddled with a careless co-worker today, keep a closer eye on him or her than usual. Do the complicated tasks yourself to avoid mistakes.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Some uncertainties are likely today in business situation. This is not a time to take risks, gambles or make impulsive moves.

Medieval scholar is sci-fi publisher

EDITOR'S NOTE — Fantasy in publishing is generally associated with science fiction. David Hartwell also thinks of the Middle Ages. He finds comparisons with the two and has combined the interests into a publishing success.

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Books Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — David G. Hartwell traveled from the Middle Ages to 2001 A.D. in record time.

Hartwell holds a doctorate in medieval literature. He also holds the job of director of science fiction and fantasy for Pocket Books.

His travel through time began when, fresh out of graduate school, he took a look at the academic world, was not taken by what he saw, and decided not to teach as originally planned. Instead, he went into publishing.

"Frankly, there were no good teaching jobs available at the time and in publishing you got paid better so I set aside medieval literature," the 40-year-old Hartwell says.

"My move was not an illogical one. The medieval period was the last period in which fantasy was the dominant mode in much of the literature and much of the rest contained, at least, outrageous and fantastic elements. Dante's 'Inferno,' for example, is fantasy if looked at from a certain angle."

Fantasy, he says, "using a rule-of-thumb definition, is that which includes all manner of impossibilities. You pick it up and say, 'OK, this is not real,' and then go on and read and perhaps enjoy it. Science fiction is a special case of fantasy which deals with things that are not true but could — under certain circumstances — be true, no matter how improbable. You pick up SF and say, 'OK, this is not real but there is something here that could be real.'"

Hartwell's first publishing job was as a consultant in science fiction to a paperback house, then he moved on to another as SF editor and came to his current position about 1½ years ago. He and his staff are responsible for publishing five science fiction and fantasy titles a month in paperback and between six and eight a year in hardcover.

Some of the paperbacks are reprints, others are reissues, and still others are new issues. All of the hardcovers are new, says Hartwell.
