Prison to be ordered to supply beds for 3,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department today asked a federal judge to order the Texas prison system to provide beds almost immediately for more than 3,000 inmates who are sleeping on floors and window ledges.

The department's request was filed with U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice in Houston as a proposed order for the judge to issue in a long-running case involving conditions in the nation's largest state prison system.

The Texas Department of Corrections was sued by inmates who claimed their constitutional rights had been violated through overcrowding, brutality, poor food, and inadequate medical care.

The Justice Department joined the suit on the side of the inmates.

After more than a year of testimony, Judge Justice ruled on Dec. 12, 1980, that the 25,000-prisoner system had impermissible health care, crowding, security, disciplinary procedures, access to courts, working conditions, and facilities for retarded and handicapped inmates.

The judge asked the parties to file proposals to remedy the problems and the state and the plaintiff earlier agreed on some aspects of improved health care and limitations on solitary confinement, but could not agree on other issues.

The Justice Department spokesman, John V. Wilson, said that between 3,000 and 3,500 inmates in the 15-prison system do not have beds. The department proposed that the judge give the state 10 days to provide a bed and sheets for every prisoner.

Wilson said virtually all cells in the Texas system are less than 60 square feet. The department asked the judge to end the practice of housing three prisoners per cell by June 1.

The federal government also requested that by June 1, 1983, the system be ordered to have no more than one prisoner in any cell 60 square feet or less.

The judge was also asked to order Texas to construct all new prisons no more than 50 miles from a city with a population of more than 50,000 people and to build the facilities with cells of at least 80 square feet and a total of no more than 500 inmates.

Wilson said Texas now has one guard for every 11 or 12 prisoners, compared to a national average of one guard for every five prisoners.

The Justice Department asked the judge to order the Texas system to reach a ratio of one guard for every six prisoners by June 1, 1982.

The federal government asked that the Texas prison system be required to confine the use of deadly force to situations when "all other available actions have been attempted and found ineffective."

The federal government also asked for regulations prohibiting the use of behavior modifying drugs for security purposes.

In addition, the federal government sought an end to the use of some prisoners to guard and discipline other prisoners.

The Justice Department also asked that disciplinary rules be written "in a manner which will make them comprehensible to all inmates, taking into account that population's literacy and reading skills."

The judge was asked to order that all prisoners have access to an adequate law library and that illiterate prisoners be provided assistance by persons with formal legal training.

The department said that the Texas system's only prison hospital at Huntsville had "gross violations of minimal standards of sanitation, safety, plumbing, medical care, and overcrowding" and should be closed by April 1 unless these conditions are remedied.

The government also proposed that the prisons be required to build adequate fire exits and develop fire evacuation plans.

Overall, the Justice Department said, "overcrowding at (the Texas Department of Corrections) exercises a malignant effect on all aspects of prisoner life. The current intolerable situation promises to become even more acute."

County accepts mineral lease bid

Gray County Commissioners today accepted a bid submitted from the John R. Ketter Company for mineral leases on Gaines County School lands that would give the county a 1.25 higher percentage royalty on the lands.

The Ketter Company will lease two parcels, 269 acres and 640 acres. The company pays $2 per acre per year and will pay a $50 per acre bonus to the county. A royalty share of 20 percent will also be paid.

Commissioners heard a presentation from George Parrish Community Development Officer of the Texas Panhandle Community Action Corporation. Parrish asked for a representative of the county to serve on the board of the Amarillo-based corporation.

The Texas Panhandle Community Action Corporation was assigned the responsibility of dealing with poverty in the twenty-six Panhandle counties.

"Federal monies are allocated to the state and in turn allocated to local programs to alleviate the poverty problems," Parrish said.

"We aim to attain improved skills and education for the poor, obtain better jobs, and help the poor achieve self-sufficiency," Parrish said.

Programs within the Texas Community Action Program include, Head Start, family planning, senior citizen programs, mental health, mental retardation programs, alcoholism programs, medical transportation, and weatherization programs for private homes according to information submitted by Parrish.

The court tabled action on naming a representative to the Texas Panhandle Community Action Corporation until all county officials could be reached and informed of the board position.

The $7.00 contract with the Pampa City and School Appraiser for 1981 was approved by the commissioners. The Pampa City and School appraiser releases information to the county tax office concerning new housing and updated valuation on existing properties within the city and school district.

County bills in the amount of $210,310 were approved for payment.

Senate hearings open on farm bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jesse Helms, opening Senate hearings on a new farm bill, said today the United States needs an agricultural policy in which the government "supports but does not dominate the farmer."

Such a policy also should "assure consumers of abundant food and fiber at reasonable prices," said Helms, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, which will hold hearings lasting nearly a month to determine a new farm and food aid program.

The North Carolina Republican also told committee members, "Our interest is to continue the current direction toward a market-oriented agriculture" in which the private sector is emphasized.

The new farm bill will determine the extent to which the federal government supports farmers' crops in coming years.

Its effect also will be felt by consumers who buy those farm products in corner groceries and supermarkets, and by low-income Americans who depend on the government for food stamps and other nutrition programs authorized in the bill.

Agricultural exports and the Food for Peace program, which provides food donations and easy-credit crop sales to foreign countries, also come under jurisdiction of the bill.

Reflecting the wide scope of the bill, Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, said that the bill "will be one of the most important pieces of legislation developed by the 97th Congress."

He also echoed the call of Devon Woodland, president of the National Farmers Organization, who proposed doing away with the current payments system of price supports.

Instead, Woodland called for setting a legal minimum price for major grains, cotton and oil seeds. "A market order subject to approval of producers would implement the price minimums and establish eligibility for price support loans, starting with the 1982 crop," he recommended.

Three Pampa churches burglarized

Three Pampa churches were burglarized over the weekend, with $800 in electronic goods reported missing. Police say today two of the burglaries could be related.

Jerry A. West, pastor of the Pampa Baptist Temple at 500 E. Kingsmill, reported Sunday that sometime between 3 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. someone had entered the church through the unlocked south door and took four microphones and several keys to the church. The microphones were valued at $500.

The Community Christian Center, 801 E. Campbell, was also burglarized Sunday afternoon, between 1 p.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Police reports state the Rev. Ronnie Jay Branscum noticed someone had entered the church through the front door. Missing from the church were three microphones, valued at $300.

At about 9:15 a.m. today, Joe Turner, minister at the First Presbyterian Church, reported the burglary of his church to police.

Early today, nothing had been reported missing. The burglar apparently made entry by breaking a basement window of the church, police said.

Chief of Police J. J. Ryzman said today, "There appears to be a similarity between (the burglary of) the Pampa Baptist Temple and the Community Christian Center."

No suspects in the three burglaries were in custody early today. Police said they are continuing their investigation of the break-ins.

Reagan says groups threaten economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan told urban officials today that his economic program is running "a political gauntlet of interest groups" whose selfish concerns threaten the nation's economic recovery.

He appealed for the backing of local officials, who support his goals but worry about how he wants to achieve them.

In a speech prepared for the National League of Cities, Reagan condemned the "federal Goliath (that) brought us to the economic brink now confronting this nation."

For a time it appeared that Congress had more solutions than the country had problems," Reagan said. "Or, put another way, cures were invented for which there are no known diseases. Just conceiving of a program that might help someone, somewhere, was itself reason enough to pass a law and appropriate money."

Working together and exercising "will power," the new administration and its allies can bring the economic crisis under control by implementing his proposed budget and tax cuts, regulatory overhauls and monetary controls, Reagan said.

"However, this program now faces a political gauntlet of interest groups, and I'm finding it increasingly difficult not to call some of them 'selfish interest groups,'" the president said. "Unless something is done to turn the economy around, local governments will suffer right along with many other respected American institutions."

Reagan noted there has been some congressional opposition to his call for a three-year, 30-percent tax cut.

"Nevertheless," he said, "the real threat to recovery comes from those who will oppose only a small part of the overall program. Needless to say, the small portion these parochial groups oppose always deals with cuts that affect them directly. Those cuts they oppose."

"They favor cutting everybody else's subsidy as an important step in ending inflation and getting the country moving again. The accumulative effect of this shortsightedness can be damaging."

"We are all in the same boat, and we have to get the engines started before the ship goes over the falls."

The urban leaders, at the annual Congressional-City Conference, gave qualified support to Reagan's program Sunday, endorsing "enthusiastically" the president's objectives but issuing a list of reservations.

Commission suggests dropping clean air laws

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major report ordered by Congress recommends that deadlines for achieving anti-pollution standards be dropped from the nation's clean air law and that restrictions on industrial development in pollution-free areas be loosened considerably.

The National Commission on Air Quality formally submitted its report to Congress today, opening what promises to be a long, hard-fought battle over amending the Clean Air Act.

The commission recommended retaining most air-quality standards but removing 1982 and 1987 deadlines for meeting them. The deadlines were ineffective and in some cases unrealistically harsh, the report said.

Chairmen of key congressional committees that will deal with the revisions — Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt., and Reps. John Dingell, D-Mich., and Henry Waxman, D-Calif. — have said they hope the process will not be as difficult as that over the 1977 clean air amendments.

But industry has made clear it will not back off its demand that the law be relaxed to foster development, particularly of energy resources in the West, while environmental lobbyists have stressed they will fiercely resist dropping the deadlines and protections for clean-air areas.

"If the other side attempts to gut the Clean Air Act, there will be a bloody fight," said David Hawkins, a lawyer with the Natural Resources Defense Council.

Divisions over the act are evident even within the commission, which includes representatives of industry, labor and environmental groups. Several members reportedly plan to file dissenting opinions.

The mandated review of the law comes amid national concern over rising energy prices and possible shortages.

Atlanta gets donations for investigation

ATLANTA (AP) — Pennies from Illinois schoolchildren, fat checks from New York corporations and even a $1,400 pledge from a former Ku Klux Klansman are going a long way toward covering the $200,000 a month it costs to investigate the deaths and disappearances of 21 black children.

"Several hundred" letters are arriving at City Hall each week with contributions or words of encouragement, according to Leon Hall, director of Atlanta's Office of Community and Consumer Affairs.

"We have letters by the stack from school kids around the country," he said.

Contributions have come from "senior citizens, housewives, all kinds of people from everywhere. We even got a check for 50 cents, and believe me, we deeply appreciate it," said Hall.

The special police task force investigation into the deaths of 19 children and the disappearances of two others over the past 19 months has cost Atlanta more than $1 million through February and is expected to climb by more than $200,000 a month.

Last Thursday, Rhode Island legislators approved a proposal to send Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson $20,000 to help defray the cost of the investigation. Gov. J. Joseph Garrahy has yet to approve it.

Eastern Airlines donated $10,000. It was the first major contribution from a company that does not deal primarily with the black community.

Also last week, the record industry began collecting contributions. Leading the effort, LeBaron Taylor, vice president of CBS Records, received cash and commitments from executives of at least six major record companies that by the end of the week totaled nearly $30,000, including $10,000 from CBS itself.

And the city hopes to raise $100,000 more at a March 10, $100-a-seat fund-raiser in Atlanta starring Sammy Davis Jr. and Frank Sinatra.

Hall says other celebrities already have sent help or offered it.

Actor Burt Reynolds contributed $10,000. Soul singers Gladys Knight and Stevie Wonder said they wanted to assist. Country singer Kenny Rogers made an offer to help through an intermediary.

Hall also said Herbert Muhammad, former manager and intimate of boxing champion Muhammad Ali, planned to donate $25,000 and help coordinate a statewide fund-raising effort in Illinois.

A contribution, totaling $4,600 in pennies, came from the children of the Springmore primary school in Carbondale, Ill. Principal Myron Gerber said each child gave 2 cents. "Most had heard about the killings and were really excited about helping," he said.

Probably the most unexpected offer of help came from former Ku Klux Klan Grand Wizard David Duke, who now heads the National Association for the Advancement of White People.

In a speech at the University of Montana in Missoula, on Feb. 19, Duke termed the killings a "horrible crime" and said he would donate his $1,400 speaking fee to help solve the murders. He explained that he feared "the killings will cause additional violence against white people, not only in Atlanta, but around the country."

BACK ON THE JOB. Milwaukee firefighters and paramedics carry a woman to an ambulance Monday morning as they returned to their jobs following a 22 1/2 hour strike. ## Milwaukee firefighter strike ends

MILWAUKEE (AP) - An apparently illegal strike by more than 1,000 firefighters ended early today, less than a day after it began, when union leaders reached a tentative contract settlement with the city.
Firefighters began returning to work shortly after the settlement was announced and National Guardsmen, who were manning pumps after quick lessons in firefighting, were sent home.
Union officials halted the strike at 2 a.m. CST, 22 1/2 hours after it began over a demand for a salary increase that would bring firefighters' pay in line with that of police.
The city of 633,000 people weathered the affair without a major fire, and the Guardsmen didn't have much occasion to use the basic skills they learned.
The agreement was reached after negotiators spent several hours with Circuit Court Judge John E. McCormick, who had turned a hearing on a request for a permanent injunction against the strike into a bargaining session.
The union did not immediately disclose details of the agreement.
The membership was scheduled to vote on the proposal later in the day and then report to McCormick.
City officials had asked for the injunction after approximately 1,030 firefighters ignored a temporary back-to-work order from McCormick. State law bars strikes by firefighters.
All but one uniformed firefighter walked off the job before dawn Sunday after contract negotiations broke down over the union's effort to bring firefighters' wages up to parity with police wages. The union's previous contract expired Saturday.
Basic pay for police ranges from $17,812 to $20,705 annually. For firefighters, it runs from $15,518 to $19,591.
Before the agreement was reached, some National Guardsmen said they were beginning to learn how to handle fire equipment.

Soviet maneuvers begin in Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - With the Polish government gearing up for nationwide meat rationing in hopes of quieting public dissatisfaction, Western officials in Vienna said about 35,000 Soviet Bloc troops stationed in Poland began scheduled maneuvers today.
Western diplomats said all Warsaw Pact countries, including the Soviet Union, were expected to take part in the exercise, which is likely to last one to 10 days.
The Soviet Union maintains two tank divisions and logistical units in Poland, and, according to Western observers, massed other troops near the border between the two countries last fall at the height of Poland's labor unrest.
The United States, its allies and even some Communist leaders have warned the Soviets that military intervention in Poland would have grave consequences.
The Polish government announced Sunday that coupons will be distributed soon for meat purchases under a rationing system to be tried for three months beginning April 1. Also, sugar allotments in effect for five years are being cut in half today.
More equitable distribution of the available meat was one of the priority goals set by Poland's new premier, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, in his inaugural speech Feb. 11.
The AP did not weigh survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's grocery outlay each item represents. Standard brands and sizes or comparable substitutes were used. The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar. The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Supreme Court denies prayer on state map

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court today refused to allow North Carolina to publish a prayer on its official state highway maps.
The justices, without comment, left intact a ruling that the prayer, appearing on such maps since 1964, violates the constitutional separation of religion and government.
Two state residents, aided by the American Civil Liberties Union, sued in 1975 to get a "Motorist's Prayer" off North Carolina maps.
The prayer says: "Our heavenly Father, we ask this day a particular blessing as we take the wheel of our car. Grant us safe passage through the perils of travel; shelter those who accompany us and protect us from harm by Thy mercy; steady our hands and quicken our eye that we may never take another's life; guide us to our destination safely, confident in the knowledge that Thy blessings go with us through darkness and light... sunshine and shower... forever and ever. Amen."
The state maps are distributed free of charge.
U.S. District Judge Franklin Dupree upheld the prayer's constitutionality but the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed his ruling last Sept. 11.

Grocery costs decline in February

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Grocery bills have more than doubled in the past eight years, but February brought good news to shoppers in the form of the biggest monthly drop since late in 1976, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.
The AP drew up a random list of food and non-food products and priced the items at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973. Prices have been rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. The list originally included 15 items, but chocolate chip cookies were dropped when the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.
The latest price check showed:
-The average marketbasket total was 109 percent higher at the start of this March than it was when the survey began in March 1973.
-The marketbasket bill dropped during February at the checklist store in 10 cities, down an average of 3 percent, and rose in three cities, up an average of 3.4 percent. Overall, the average marketbasket bill went down 1 1/2 percent last month. The drop was the biggest since a 1.8 percent decline in October 1976.
-February's decreases were due mainly to drops in the price of sugar and eggs. Sugar went down at the checklist store in nine cities and eggs in 10 cities. Sugar prices have been rising since early last year because demand for sugar is expected to exceed production in the current crop year. Recent declines in consumption have caused drops in the price of raw sugar on the world market and the decreases were reflected at the supermarket last month.
The outlook for egg prices is less clear. Production was cut by the drought which killed more than 7 million chickens last year and continued low supplies could boost prices again.
-Orange juice prices went up at the checklist store in eight of the cities surveyed by the AP. The increases reflect rises in wholesale prices which followed the January cold snap that damaged the citrus crop in Florida which provides almost all the nation's orange juice.
-February's drop in marketbasket bills followed an increase of only two-tenths of a percent in January, meaning that grocery prices today are lower than they were at the start of the year. The situation is expected to change, however. The U.S. Department of Agriculture is predicting that food prices alone will rise 10 percent to 15 percent this year.

Two Cubans arrested in death

DALLAS (AP) - Two Cuban refugees who settled in Dallas two weeks ago have been arrested in connection with the stabbing death of a Mexican national, according to Dallas police.
The victim, Carlos Hernandez, 24, of Mexico, died early Friday after being stabbed in a street fight near downtown, officers said.
The two Cubans, resettled here from Fort Chaffee, Ark., were arrested the next day after a witness identified them as Hernandez' assailants, said police.

New study shows number of sexually abused children has climbed 89 percent

By LAURA RICHARDSON
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Profile of a child molester: male, age 30 to 45, married, employed. The victim: his 12-year-old daughter.

Mostly he fondles her and forces her to touch his sex organs, but half the time he makes her have intercourse with him.

These are among the conclusions of a Texas Department of Human Resources report to the Texas Legislature, which has before it several bills concerning sexual child abuse.

The number of confirmed cases of sexually abused children has increased 89 percent since 1978, the study showed.

"Such a dramatic increase in reports of child sexual abuse is indicative of a growing public awareness and willingness to deal with this problem," the report stated, adding that the actual rate of occurrence is unknown.

At present, TDHR has 2,100 active sexual child abuse cases, and estimates there will be 2,800 cases in 1982 and 2,975 in 1983.

The study, conducted at the request of the 1979

Legislature, involved 1,379 cases. It found that:

— Sexual child abusers were "almost always male" age 30 to 45. Nine out of ten victims were girls; the average age was 12 years.

— Slightly more than three-fourths of the cases were incestuous. Two-thirds involved the child's father or stepfather.

— The non-abusing parent (the child's biological mother in three-fourths of the cases) knew what was happening but did nothing to prevent further abuse and often left the child alone with the abuser.

— Sexual intercourse occurred with almost half of the female victims. One out of 12 became pregnant.

The study noted a "positive relationship between successful criminal prosecution and participation by the perpetrator in treatment," but also stated that abusers generally did not cooperate well with the department.

"Protection of the child sexual abuse victim cannot be attained in most cases unless treatment is provided to all family members... to correct the problems which cause or contribute to the sexual abuse," the report said.

Included in the report were recommendations for improving services to the families traumatized by sexual abuse. Money was the first priority. TDHR asked funding for additional staff, community treatment programs, training programs, and medical examinations of victims.

The department also asked legislators to amend the Texas Family Code to include sexual abuse and exploitation as grounds for taking a child from his or her home. Sexually abused children often are not physically injured, but current law allows removal only if there is an immediate danger to the child's physical health or safety.

The report did not recommend increasing criminal penalties for sexual abuse of children, but Gov. Bill Clements has.

Part of his anti-crime package is a measure increasing the maximum penalty for sexual abuse or rape of a child from 20 years to life. It also raises the maximum prison term for indecency with a child from 10 to 20 years, and for injury to a child from 20 years to life in aggravated cases.

Gunfire erupts during Mardi Gras parade, three injured

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A high school band drum major and two spectators were wounded Sunday when gunfire erupted at the crowded Mardi Gras parade honoring nine Marines held hostage in Iran, authorities said.

The band was well behind the floats carrying Marine Sgt. John D. McKeel and eight other Marines who had been held hostage in Iran for 444 days.

Two of the victims were hospitalized in stable condition, and the third suffered flash burns, hospital officials said.

Police said the shooting was being investigated, but that no arrest was made.

"We're getting numerous conflicting stories about what happened," said Don Joly, chief spokesman for the police department. Investigators worked through the night, questioning most of the band's members and dozens of other witnesses.

Charity hospital authorities identified the victims as drum major Ray Johnson, 17, of St. Augustine High School in New Orleans and spectator John Barker, 20, of Plaquemine, a student at Nicholls State University.

The bullet went through Johnson's cheek and neck, and Barker was hit in the groin, they said.

Gary Francis, 25, of New Orleans, was treated and released for powder burns near his eye.

Exactly what prompted the shooting was clouded by the near-panic it caused among the throngs that stood packed 15-feet deep on each side of the broad boulevard of Canal Street, at the edge of the city's French Quarter.

"All of a sudden, I heard a noise. All the band began moving to the very front. The police pushed everybody away. There was a lot of confusion," said onlooker Leslie Ward of Memphis, Tenn.

"The police got their riot sticks out and started pushing the band forward to clear the street. People were running and screaming," she said.

Assistant band director Edward Allen said the shooting occurred during a scuffle that broke out when a young man refused to give way to a St. Augustine alumnus clearing crowds out of the band's path, said assistant band director Edward Allen.

The band is all black, and witnesses described the gunman as white, well-dressed, wearing a sports coat and a holstered gun at his hip. Band members said they feared the attack was racist.

Police — some on horseback — rushed to the scene. Apparently fearing a riot, they drew their nightsticks and dispersed spectators and band members.

Frightened band members fled into the crowd, many of them crying, witnesses said. Many, including Allen, believed a suspect had been arrested.

Bill would curtail jobless benefits

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas is in a minority among the states in giving unemployment compensation to people who quit their jobs, says management's representative on the Texas Employment Commission.

Ken Clapp favors a bill disqualifying such persons from jobless benefits until they have found new jobs, worked in them for six weeks and lost them through no fault of their own.

In addition, the bill also imposes a "return-to-work" requirement on people who are fired for misconduct or refuse to accept "suitable work" while collecting benefits.

The bill, by Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, has been passed by the Senate and is set for House debate on Wednesday.

Clapp said in a memorandum to Blake that most states already have a "return to work" provision in their unemployment compensation laws.

He told Blake questionnaires returned by 42 states and Puerto Rico "indicated clearly that those states having such provisions feel that the provisions lower the amount of benefits paid and provide a more workable and fairer system."

He said 51 percent of the states that responded said return-to-work requirements decreased total benefit costs while increasing appeals of decisions in contested cases.

Minnesota reported total unemployment benefits dropped by one-third in the first year after it passed a return-to-work law, Clapp said.

Texas' average weekly benefit is among the three lowest in the nation, and 76 percent of the state's employers pay the minimum tax levied to support the jobless benefit system.

Of the poll results, Clapp said, "The primary advantages seemed to be a reduction in the overall amount of benefits paid and a feeling that claimants and employers were more fairly treated."

Current Texas law allows the TEC to withhold benefits for a time from employees who quit, but the commission itself decides how long, based on the facts of each case.

Arkansas official surprised at plan to ship water to dry Texas areas

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The director of Arkansas' Soil and Water Commission says it would be too costly to send Arkansas water to Texas.

John Saxton said a Texas farmer couldn't afford to pay $800 per acre for water that might produce $50 per acre.

He also said he's unsure whether the state has enough water to meet long-term needs. His agency plans to study the matter, he said.

Gov. William Clements of Texas said last week that Arkansas officials were sympathetic to states that need water and said he encountered no resistance to the idea.

Clements said he discussed water transfer with Arkansas Gov. Frank White. White denied that.

Saxton attended a meeting of the High Plains Study Council in Washington last week, where the plan was revealed.

Hunt brothers seek geothermal leases

DALLAS (AP) — The wealthy Hunt brothers of Dallas, in the news the past year for efforts to buy large quantities of the world's soybean and silver supplies, are investing heavily in another natural resource — geothermal energy — according to the Dallas Times Herald.

Records on file with the U.S. Department of Interior show Nelson Bunker Hunt, W. Herbert Hunt, Lamar Hunt and several other members of the Hunt family, as well as various Hunt trusts and corporations, have obtained enough federal leases to make the family the largest single developer of geothermal energy, the newspaper reported.

In Sunday's editions, the Times Herald said the Hunts have laid claim to approximately one-sixth of all the federal land leased for geothermal power exploration — 252 of the 1,600 leases issued by the Bureau of Land Management, accounting for about 480,000 of the federally controlled 2.9 million acres.

In addition, the story said records reveal the Hunts have applications pending for an additional 435,000 acres.

Geothermal energy refers to the use of underground deposits of extremely hot water and rock to provide heat or electricity on the earth's surface. The technology currently is primitive but geothermal sources provide much of San Francisco's electric power and the Department of Energy has estimated such underground heat may one day provide as much as 10 percent of United States energy needs.

Under current federal regulations, explorers may claim, without competitive bidding, the right to 10 years of geothermal exploration on federal lands in 12 western states. Those leases cost $1 per acre per year, with royalty payments due the government on any successful development.

Government records show that almost all the Hunt investments have been acquired through such non-competitive leases in Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Idaho and Utah, with pending leases in Arizona and California, the Times Herald said Sunday.

Federal law limits the amount of geothermal land one individual may own to 20,480 acres but the Hunts have circumvented the requirement by putting leases in at least 20 different names, including other family members, corporations and trust funds — a ploy which the Department of Interior has ruled is completely legal, the newspaper reported.

Three federal agencies, a congressional committee and a federal grand jury continue to investigate last year's massive purchases of silver by Bunker and Herbert Hunt. Their maneuvers, some analysts said, led to a collapse in the

Two years ago a federal judge, upholding an order from the government's Commodities Futures Trading Commission, ruled that the Hunts had acted improperly in contracting for soybean futures under several different names to get around individual ownership limits. That case has not been brought to a conclusion.

Clayton decision complicates 1982 politics

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Speaker Bill Clayton's surprise announcement that he does not want a fifth term as head of the House complicates 1982 politics a little more.

Some speculators see him as a sure candidate now for land commissioner.

Others think he might challenge Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown.

Clayton told reporters last week he had changed his mind and decided "it's time to move on and let somebody else" represent his home district northwest of Lubbock. Earlier, the Springlake farmer had passed the word he would seek a fifth term as speaker in 1983.

Clayton's announcement removing him from another speaker's race surprised more than just reporters, because his "lame duck" status could affect Clayton's strong control over committee chairmen in this regular session.

"That House could get rocky between now and the end of the session without him being able to hold it in line," well qualified by his long experience as a legislator and as a wealthy West Texas farmer to be either land commissioner or agriculture commissioner. Each job pays $51,000 a year now and could provide a stepping stone to a still higher job, maybe a race for U.S. Senate in 1984 or governor in 1986.

Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong has already said he will not seek re-election.

"After 20 years (as state representative and land commissioner) it is time to change," he said. "I know I don't want to do this any more."

Armstrong says the "only other job I would take a look at" is for lieutenant governor, provided Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby does not run. "I would look at that because it means you can work for six months (as presiding officer of the Senate) and do something else for six months."

Hobby has announced he will seek re-election in 1982.

There had been reports Hobby might retire to his extensive business interests in Houston, but those close to him urged him to announce for re-election in order to keep control of the Senate.

"I have no idea what Hobby will do," Armstrong says.

Should the lieutenant governor's job become open, a large number of Democrats and Republicans will join Armstrong in taking a "look" at it.

Brown has not formally announced his 1982 plans, but those close to him say they have never considered he would do anything but run again.

Brown got crossed up with

'Silly' bureaucratic excuses stand in way of aircraft radar for Valley

WASHINGTON (AP) — A "silly, bureaucratic" reason is standing in the way of radar to improve safety at the trio of airports in Texas' Lower Rio Grande Valley, says Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

And the Texas Democrat said he wants it out of the way.

Bentsen said there have been four documented cases of near airplane collisions in the last 11 months in the Brownsville, Harlingen and McAllen area where the airports lack a radar system.

Three of those cases involved commercial airliners, he said.

The regional administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration approved of the proposed remedy — a central radar system to serve all three airports.

"But in Washington, they turned it down for a silly, bureaucratic reason, saying they never proceed on three different airports at the same time; that they only did it on one airport," Bentsen said in an interview prepared for broadcast by Texas television stations.

"And yet, the traffic of the three adds up to enough to have more traffic than you would have in many cases where they've put radar in on a single airport," he said.

A Bentsen aide, who asked not to be named, said the senator plans to support valley residents again this year in their request for a joint radar facility.

George Burlage, spokesman for the FAA regional headquarters in Fort Worth, said the request to combine the three airports to meet the requirements for a single radar system still is under study in Washington.

"Of course, it's these criteria we have to worry about," he said. "None of the three qualify, but the three together would qualify."

Burlage added that the agency's regional administrator, C.R. Melugin Jr., was in the valley earlier in February to discuss the proposal and his support for it.

Redistricting talk is starting to hit its stride, with last week's release of preliminary census figures to help it along.

Because of Texas' 26.6 percent population increase to 14.2 million residents, the state stands to add three seats to the current 24 it holds in the House.

Since all congressional districts in the state must end up approximately with the same number of people, the ideal congressional district would have about 525,000 inhabitants.

The Census Bureau provided its preliminary estimates for how many people live in each of the present 24 districts, and to the surprise of few, the fastest-growing district was held by Republican Rep. Bill Archer in booming Houston.

That district has a population about 337,600 above the number it must have.

Other big gainers are the Houston area district of Rep. Ron Paul, a Republican from Lake Jackson, about 186,000 above; the north Dallas district represented by Rep. Jim Collins, a Republican, about 171,000 over; and the San Antonio and West Texas district of Rep. Tom Loeffler, a Republican from Hunt, about 153,000 above.

The only congressional districts substantially below the new ideal figure are in the inner cities of Houston and San Antonio.

The 18th District represented by Rep. Mickey Leland, a Houston Democrat, and the 20th District held by Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, a San Antonio Democrat, both have populations about 102,000 people below the new figure.

Other districts with less than the new average are in the Dallas area, held by Democratic Rep. Jim

Biblical gender unchangeable

De-sexing the Bible has a lot of folks enraged.

However, it's hard to get riled up over something so absurd as deleting gender references in Biblical passages pertaining to the relationship between the Trinity and mankind. Oops! Personkind? Peoplekind? It kind?

Our language has been under attack for some years now by men and women who see the evil smirk of a sexist behind every use of the word "man." Sometimes criticism is legitimate — it is wrong to say "the lady senator" unless you also refer to the "gentleman senator."

As newspaper editors we try to eliminate all gender references that denigrate either sex. However, there are unavoidable uses of "man." Just ask our female editorial writers.

You can substitute "humankind" only so often and even then, there's "man" standing by himself. Try pronouncing "Huwomankind" and you'll understand why it never found its way into common usage.

Rumors from the biblical editing mill indicate that revisionists have a preference for "it" to replace male gender terminology. Other non-gender terms, often 10 words in place of those easily recognizable, are popular with the re-write people. Can you imagine a priest intoning over a tiny babe, "I baptize thee in the name of The Parent, the Offspring and the Holy It?" The church would rock with chuckles ... in the off chance the priest could get it out without suffering apoplexy.

It is difficult as wordsmiths to comprehend why anyone committed to the art of communications would undertake so asinine a task, especially now.

Theologians as well as psychologists and sociologists berate us as a society for "failure to communicate," failure to understand each other as individual men and women rather than stereotypes. To reduce humanity to an assemblage of "its" hardly expedites interpersonal communication.

Genderless language establishes a gap between man and his god, between the LITTLE IT and the BIG IT. "The Father," becomes "The Parent," an even more ambiguous entity than now. Worshippers don't want to follow a thing without character. It would be better to publish two Bibles — one with the traditional "He," the other with "She." Give people a choice, but let them keep personalized deistic identities.

The Bible must be considered as three entities. It is THE most important artifact in Christian theology. It is THE oral history of the Christian and Jewish religion. It is A work of art.

A radical change in Biblical literature alters the concept of Christianity. A Catholic on our staff wondered how revisionists would deal with this standard rosary recitation: HAIL MARY, FULL OF GRACE, THE LORD IS WITH THEE, BLESSED ARE THOU AMONG WOMEN AND BLESSED IS THE FRUIT OF THY WOMB, JESUS.

Shall it now be HAIL PERSON, FULL OF GRACE, THE IT IS WITH YOU, BLESSED ART THOU AMONG ITS AND BLESSED IS THE FRUIT OF THY BODILY ORGAN, OFFSPRING?

It is not within our purview to decide the spiritual validity of the Bible, but no one could quarrel that the document is the most authoritative work around on the origin of an internationally influential belief and custom. Alter the language and you destroy the history — people in Biblical time did not worship "The Parent" or "The Offspring" or a "Holy It." They believed in Father, Son and Holy Ghost.

As art, the Bible deserves the respect afforded all literature, sculpture, musical composition, and so forth.

Many art works have been defaced over the centuries, sometimes by politicians, at other times by prudes. Instead of continually revising the Bible to make it palatable for modern tastes, editors should be concerned about preserving its original artistry. Those who presume to rewrite The Book are just as artistically insensitive as the censors who dressed THE NAKED MAJJA and covered THE DAVID with grape leaves.

Well, we said the latest revision is too ridiculous to incite anger. Seems we got rather upset anyway and don't blame you if a slow burn sets in. To keep from exploding, ponder what those revisionists would have done with other literary achievements ... Hemingway would have had further reason to shoot himself had the publisher issued THE OLD IT AND THE SEA ... Would FATHER OF THE BRIDE have become a classic under the title THE IT OF THE PERSON TO BE MARRIED? LITTLE WOMEN and LITTLE MEN could have been issued only as LITTLE IT and LITTLE IT II ... How any people would have flocked to see THE MUSIC IT ... or AN IT FOR ALL SEASONS ... ?

Pick your own revisions. Just don't take the game seriously, unless of course you want a job with the Bible rewriters.

Calculating the real cost of our holidays

Recently in Pampa, as in many other cities and towns in the nation, people took time off from their work because the day was a national holiday.

Not everybody got a day off, just people working for the federal government and those who close up business when another national holiday comes around.

It used to be that February 22 was the day celebrated for Washington's birthday, but that all changed some years back when Congress decided that specified holidays should be celebrated on a Monday, thereby giving celebrants three days to whom it up instead of one.

It is not the celebrating of George's birthday, however, that this piece is about. The first president OUGHT to be remembered. He did a great favor for this country when he served as its president.

The point of this piece is that a lot of money is being spent when government offices across the nation are closed down for another holiday.

This latest celebration cost the taxpayer $194.5 million.

At least, that's what the federal Office of Personnel Management figures it cost to give the nation's 2.1 million federal workers the day off.

With nine official holidays — New Year's Day, Washington's birthday, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Columbus Day, Veteran's Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas — the federal yearly cost alone is $1.7 billion.

Enter Rep. Robin Beard, R-Tenn. Mr. Beard has come up with an idea that would require all future federal holidays to be celebrated on a Saturday or Sunday.

Rep. Beard has a good idea, but it doesn't go far enough. He refers to "future federal holidays." What's wrong with having ALL federal holidays on Saturday or Sunday?

Why should the taxpayers have to shell out almost $2 BILLION a year to give government employees nine extra days off? Some of them have too many days off already. They have one of the most liberal vacation plans available. Sick leave is abundant. And the pay usually is not so bad, either.

Beard says that his plan would do nothing to detract from an attempt to honor an individual, and it wouldn't. What it would do is bring a measure of equitability into an inequitable situation.

By Robert J. Wagman
WASHINGTON (NEA) - The Heritage Foundation, the Washington think tank with the closest link to the Reagan administration, recently completed an analysis of the federal budget and how it could be cut. Many of the suggestions contained in that report are likely to find their way into President Reagan's budget for fiscal 1982 or 1983.

The foundation assembled a group of 18 experts, each of whom studied a particular area of the budget. Their findings were compiled into "Agenda for Progress Examining Federal Spending," a volume whose theme of cutting the overall budget while increasing defense spending is compatible with the conservative, pro-military orientation of the Foundation and of many in the new administration.

Blueprint for budget cuts

The experts offer a blueprint for increasing Pentagon allocations by $34 billion in fiscal 1982 while reducing total federal spending by $25 billion. Here is where most of the nearly $60 billion in cuts would be made:

The report contends that $4.9 billion could be saved annually by ending U.S. participation in international development programs such as the Export-Import Bank and by eliminating Food for Peace. They argue that ample funds are available to developing nations in the private sector.

The analysts call for a $2.1 billion reduction in federal spending on science and technology. That includes pulling out of the Space Shuttle program.

The biggest savings might be achieved in the areas of energy and natural resources, say the Heritage experts. They contend that $12 billion could be saved each year by abolishing the Energy Department, the Energy Regulatory Administration and the strategic petroleum reserve.

Another $10 billion could be saved annually in environmental programs, say the experts, because "the bulk of expenditures now being made for natural resources and environmental protection are unnecessary." Instead, they recommend tax credits and penalties to discourage pollution.

The study speculates that $3.3 billion could be saved annually by slashing the Agriculture Department's non-agricultural functions — such as food and housing programs — as well as dairy and other support payments.

Some $6.2 billion could be saved annually in the transportation field, say the experts, by eliminating the Interstate Commerce Commission, federal financing of mass transportation, the Amtrak subsidy, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the Federal Maritime Commission.

The foundation says that another $5 billion could be saved by slashing various development grants for cities, communities, businesses and rural areas. And $2.2 billion could be saved by doing away with the Education Department and by substituting tax credits for federal tuition loan and grant programs.

Some of the report's most controversial proposals deal with employment, health and social services. The analysts say that $3.8 billion could be saved annually by amending the CETA program, pegging social service payments to each state's per capita income, introducing a sliding scale of patient payments in the Medicare and Medicaid programs, consolidating all federal income support efforts into a single program and turning all welfare payments back to the states through block grants.

Finally, the Heritage experts say that the Veterans Administration could save a whopping $8.2 billion annually by simply restricting compensation and benefits to former servicemen with disabilities directly related to their job performance in the military, by dismantling the VA hospital system and by paying for the care of disabled veterans at private facilities.

Opposition both inside and outside government would make a number of these budget cuts difficult if not impossible to achieve. But many of the proposals are likely to find their way in some form into one or another of the budget-cutting plans that emerge from the Reagan administration over the next several years. The Heritage study may well serve to define the issues in the coming budget debates.

Pledge of hypenated - allegiance

by Paul Harvey

The United States has benefited immeasurably by the cross-pollination of many cultures.

Historically, our "land of opportunity" reputation has attracted the world's most talented, most ambitious, best skilled and most energetic workers.

Our polyglot population — each of us "most something else" — merged under one flag, claimed one nationality — "American!"

Until recently — when some segments of our population have elected to hypenate their allegiance.

The nationality "American" evolved as a contraction of the extraction concept.

You never heard any Russian come over here and proclaim himself to be a "Russian-American." He came over here purposely to STOP BEING RUSSIAN.

Britons came over here, immediately to identify themselves — not as British-Americans — but as Americans. While they did not deny or apologize for their birthplace, they left that allegiance behind and proudly became unadulterated Americans.

Our American society is singular in the degree to which it demands that race, color and native nationality of its citizens NOT BE CONSIDERED FOR ANY REASON.

We have gone to great lengths legally to insure that race, creed and national origin NOT be either an advantage or a disadvantage. Equal rights and equal opportunities for everybody means EVERYBODY!

Yet there are some segments of our nation's population tending to segregate themselves — to hypenate their allegiance — by calling themselves "Latino-Americans," for example.

And not only has the hypenated allegiance been romanticized — in the way patriotism used to be — but the designation is frequently a basis for special consideration — in schools, in jobs, in politics.

Surely the immigrants from Mexico don't want what they left behind or they would not have left.

And this applies to other racial and ethnic groups which tend to hypenate their allegiance.

While it might sound innocent enough to call oneself a Polish-American or an Afro-American or an Asian-American, in grammatical construction the "hyphen" which joins also separates.

The hyphen tends "to keep apart." The only other nation in the world which tends to hypenate allegiance is Canada, and the result there is chronic strife and threatened divorce.

It seems to me that when anybody from anywhere elects to come here — to become an American — if he insists on bringing along and perpetuating the mores, politics and language of his original homeland — that's like a divorced man keeping his first wife's picture in his second wife's bedroom.

It's not nice and it is not conducive to compatibility.

The wisdom of Big Brother

By Richard L. Lesher, President Chamber of Commerce of the United States

WASHINGTON - Curious, isn't it, how the federal government, which rarely misses an opportunity to lecture business and taxpayers on their failure "to do the right thing," seems to be reluctant to live up to its own standards? To cite just one example, consider Uncle Sam's record in paying his own bills.

A recently released report from the General Accounting Office revealed that about 40 percent of the government's bills are paid not just a few days late, but an average of 74 days after they are due. Of course that's just an average, and unlike private citizens, the federal government does not concern itself with late penalties.

These inexcusable delays have an especially detrimental impact on small business which provides most of the products bought by the federal government. When these companies are not paid, they must often borrow money at high interest rates just to cover their expenses. Senator Bill Roth, of Delaware, reported in January that one small businessman who was contracted by the Department of Housing and Urban Development for construction work was still waiting for an eight-month overdue payment of $800,000. The delinquent bill was costing his company an astounding $8,000 each month.

Nevertheless, none of this will prevent the government from reminding us, now that April 15 is approaching, to get those tax returns in on time — or else!

Let Us Make Merry, For Tomorrow

Sensing, perhaps, that the new crowd might not view their activities quite so sympathetically, the regulatory agencies went on a good, old-fashioned binge in the final days of the Carter administration. During that last month, the Super-Regulators issued more than 150 final "Midnight Regulations". Over 100 of them were scheduled to become effective within the next 60 days and many imposed substantial new burdens on the economy. The new administration is trying, within the extend of the law, to postpone their effective date and eliminate altogether those it considers unnecessary.

Keep Up the Good Work Guys! A study produced by the Department of Agriculture recently concluded that dozens of government policies aimed at helping American farmers have been so counter-productive they have actually jeopardized the entire future of family farm ownership.

ACTION Is Where the Action Is A member of Congress who has grown tired of his job can always junk it. But what about those lesser mortals who still want to work in government and find a position with lots of possibilities for travel as well?

In that case, ACTION, the federal agency that houses the Peace Corps abroad and Vista at home, is the place to be. According to The Washington Star, ACTION last year could claim an average of 23 trips per employee — that's 42,201 trips among its 1,837 employees. In dollar amounts, the agency reportedly spent the equivalent of more than $8,600 per employee.

Shot Down, But Still Flying High It has now been more than 600 days since James Pope was transferred against his will from the Federal Aviation Administration headquarters in Washington to Seattle in the other Washington. Pope claims he was arbitrarily moved across the country for criticizing the FAA's plans for collision-warning systems.

The FAA disputes that Pope's transfer was punitive, but there can be no question that his new job is. For the past year and a half, he has collected $50,000 a year for sitting at an empty desk and doing — nothing.

We talk better English?

Who says we Americans murder the king's English?

A professor at Lancaster University in England has put a computer to work comparing the way the Americans and the British use the English language. The study analyzed one million words of text from newspapers, novels, official documents and other published material from each side of the Atlantic.

The verdict: The Americans are more mindful of the rules of grammar and proper usage than their English cousins.

It turns out we have been taken in by the British all these years. They dazzle us with their broad vowels and prissy pronunciation and make us think we're a bunch of clods. Sir Laurence Olivier can make an audience melt just by asking for the time of day, but has anyone parsed his sentences lately? He's probably slipping in plural verbs with singular subjects and getting away with it.

Professor Geoffrey Leech, who conducted the study, is scolding his compatriots for not taking better care of "the last great cultural heritage of the British empire" — their language. He says the British have been taking it for granted that they speak English better than anyone else when actually they don't.

Franks not just for hot dogs

ROUND FRANK RUEBENS are a variation of the traditional Reuben sandwich, substituting franks for corned beef. Sauerkraut and Swiss cheese top off the franks, which are placed on slices of onion and served on round sandwich buns.

The frank is probably the most popular member of the sausage family. Americans consume about 19 billion of them each year. Many are eaten as hot dogs, but the frank can become an essential, yet economical, ingredient in more elaborate dishes at home.

Here are two recipes that show it's simple to teach an old dog new tricks. The recipe for Round Frank Reubens is a variation of the traditional Reuben sandwich made less expensive by substituting franks for corned beef. Sweet and sauerkraut Franks, a colorful variation of an Oriental favorite, transform just a half pound of franks into three to four servings and is ready in 30 minutes.

ROUND FRANK RUEBENS
Yield: eight sandwiches
8 hickory smoke franks
16 ounces sauerkraut
1 teaspoon caraway seeds
8 round sandwich buns
butter or margarine
8 thin slices onion
2 cups shredded Swiss cheese
Combine sauerkraut and caraway seeds and heat in covered saucepan for 10 minutes to let flavors mingle. Cut franks on one side three-fourths of the way through at half inch intervals. Simmer in water five minutes, grill or broil. As the franks heat they will curl into a ring. Toast sandwich buns and spread with butter. Place a slice of onion on the bottom half of each bun; then top with a hot frank. Fill centers of round franks with one-fourth cup drained, hot sauerkraut and top with one-fourth cup shredded cheese. Broil four inches from heat source until cheese melts. Cover with bun tops and serve hot.

SWEET AND SAUERKRAUT FRANKS
Yield: six servings
5-6 hickory smoke franks, cut into one-inch pieces
16 ounce can sauerkraut, drained
1/4 cup converted rice
16 ounce can tomatoes
8 ounce can pineapple chunks in unsweetened juice (reserve 1/4 cup plus 2 tablespoons juice)
1 green pepper, cut into 1/4-inch pieces

Sauce:
1/4 cup sugar
2 tablespoons catsup
1/4 cup cider vinegar
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1/4 cup cold water
1 tablespoon cornstarch

Combine sauerkraut, rice, tomatoes cut into pieces with juice, pineapple chunks and 1/4 cup pineapple juice in skillet. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer covered minutes. Meanwhile, in separate saucepan make sauce combining sugar, catsup, vinegar, soy sauce and 1/2 cup pineapple juice. Bring to a boil, stir into cornstarch and mixture to boiling. Cook, stirring occasionally for 2 to 3 minutes. Add hot sauce to skillet contents and combine.

Southwest Farm Show to feature 'Food 1981 - Garden to Gourmet'

FORT WORTH—Food 1981—Garden to Gourmet will be a featured program during the Southwest Farm Show and Championship Tractor Pull, March 6-8 in Fort Worth. The program will highlight nuts and fruit varieties for the area, including how to serve them and how to preserve them, according to R.B. Allen of Southwest Hardware & Implement Association, sponsor of the farm show. Each of the food production and preparation program will begin at 1:30 p.m. daily at the Tarrant County Convention Center in Ft. Worth. The programs, which are free, are coordinated by staff members of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Dr. Sammy Helmer, Extension horticulturist, will begin the programs with "The Incredible Edible Landscape," a discussion of new nut and fruit varieties and container gardening. Donna Brewer, Park County Extension home economist, will demonstrate the latest methods of preservation in her "Pick, Peck and Pack It Fresh" program.

Bargains on supplies help make gardening inexpensive

By JOE VANZANDT
County Extension Agent
MONEY- SAVING TIPS ON GARDENING

Garden centers, nurseries and feed stores across the country will soon be having sales on garden equipment and various gardening supplies. If your vegetable garden is going to be economical and enjoyable, you will have to make many important decisions in the next few weeks. Be a smart shopper and remember... so-called bargains may not really be bargains at all. Believe it or not, bargain seed is oftentimes not a good buy. Packets of seed which normally sell for 39 cents to 79 cents each may be offered for as little as three packages for $1. Whether or not this is a real bargain will depend on whether or not the seed is of high quality and will produce a good crop of vegetables. Check the seed packet to see when it was processed. Most seed packets are dated and indicate the year seed was produced. Also, make sure that seed are varieties recommended for this country. Saving a little money by purchasing seed of the wrong variety will certainly be reflected by lower yields come harvest time. If you have a large garden, consider buying bulk seed. Bulk seed can be purchased in small quantities and, in general, is higher quality and has a higher percent germination. Also, it's usually less expensive since the cost of packaging and the packet is not included in the price. In buying plants, again buy recommended varieties. When selecting your plants, remember the biggest plant is not always the best buy. Ideally, transplants should be about as tall as they are wide. They should be dark green in color, vigorous looking and certainly without spots, lesions or damage to the foliage. Purchase only the exact number of plants you will need according to your garden plan. When buying fertilizer, questions always come up as to what type to buy and how much. Garden fertilizer comes in different grades and sizes. In general, most garden fertilizers come in 50-pound bags. Generally our soils have an ample supply of the essential plant nutrients with the exception of nitrogen and phosphorus. In isolated areas, zinc and iron will be needed in small quantities. Nitrogen is normally deficient in soils that have not been recently fertilized because this element is utilized in larger quantities. Also, nitrogen is easily lost from sandy soils by rain and irrigation. Phosphorus is utilized by plants in small quantities, but is not lost by leaching. Therefore, lower phosphorus fertilizer rates are desirable for optimum vegetable production after initial deficiency levels are overcome. Generally, one application prior to spring tillage and planting is sufficient. Home gardeners are encouraged to have their soils tested by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service Soil Testing Laboratory in Lubbock for evaluation of conditions before spring soil preparation. We can supply information on sample collection and mailing. There is a $4 charge per sample for the regular analysis on which fertilizer use suggestions are based. If chlorosis or yellowing exists in the garden, then zinc, iron and manganese levels can be tested. The charge for the regular analysis plus zinc, iron and manganese is $7 per sample. Recommendations dealing with these deficiencies will be included. Occasionally, over fertilization can cause gardening problems. If your soil is high in all plant nutrients except nitrogen (frequently the case in old garden sites), the preplant application of one-half pound (one cup) ammonium nitrate per 100 square feet is generally sufficient for most vegetables. If both nitrogen and phosphorus are needed, apply one pound (one pint) of 16-20-0 fertilizer per 100 square feet. Always work the materials into the soil ahead of planting. Avoid placing heavy fertilizer applications in direct contact with seed or transplants. When buying garden chemicals, remember that one or perhaps two general-purpose insecticide and fungicide materials are all that may be necessary. When buying chemicals, purchase only those that you feel will be needed for this year's garden. Many garden chemicals, when stored from one year to the next, lose their effectiveness. Thus, you may actually be better off buying small quantities of garden chemicals. Of course, with a large garden, larger quantities will be more economical. Home gardening can be compared to fishing. You can have an expensive boat, fancy rod and reel, an electronic fish finder and all the other fancy equipment, or you can get by with a cane pole, piece of string and a fish hook. Fancy equipment doesn't necessarily mean you are gonna catch a lot of fish. The same is true of gardening. Basic tools include a spading fork, shovel, hoe, rake and garden hose. Any other tools like rototillers may be purchased or rented to make gardening easier, but should not be considered absolutely necessary for successful gardening in Gray County.

ESTATE PLANNING AND TODAY'S ECONOMY — WHY A WILL?
Many people put off thinking about a will because they don't like thinking about death, but that can mean trouble and major expenses for heirs. It also can mean the courts will dole out the property according to state law. Even in Texas, a community-property state, there is a need for a will — and an estate plan. Inflation alone should be enough reason for people to write a will and plan their estate. Your estate may be much larger than you think... thanks to inflation, more corporate fringe benefits and retirement programs, and the increasing value of homes and other real estate. If you don't say how you want all of this distributed, you can create a lot of trouble and expense for your heirs. It generally costs more money to die without a will than it does if there is one. Delays in estate administration that result from "no will" require extra attorney services — along with an increased fee. Also, court costs and other administration fees often are major expense items for the "no will" estate. On the other hand, a will makes it possible to cut out many of the legal steps that would otherwise be required. A "no will" situation also leaves the heirs vulnerable to the full impact of estate and inheritance taxes. Of course, the exact amount of death tax levied upon a particular estate is dependent upon the amount of money involved and the manner in which the estate is distributed, but a will can lessen the heavy impact of this taxation. Making and continually revising an estate plan can lessen the tax amount even more. The Tax Reform Acts of 1976 and 1978 made significant changes in federal tax laws applicable to estates and trusts. An attorney familiar with estate planning can help you take advantage of the provisions that these laws offer. While estate planning and a will may not be the complete solution to the problems faced by survivors, it is a giant step in the right direction. You spend considerable time accumulating assets, so it's a "must" that you spend considerable time in planning the distribution of those assets to minimize the anxieties of your survivors.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Last New Year's Eve my husband got drunk and told me he was in love with another woman. The next day, after he sobered up, he said he loved only me and to forget what he said about his being in love with another woman. He said this woman was just a friend who needed someone to talk to, so he had been meeting her to help her sort out her problems, but there was nothing between them. He said he had kissed her a few times to cheer her up, but all he ever gave her was a T-shirt with "One Fantastic Woman" printed on it.
Abby, I love him regardless, and there is no way I am going to get into a fight with him and lose him to somebody else. We have three small children who worship him. I told him that I forgave him totally, and now he is knocking himself out trying to make it up to me. Do you think I was too easy on him?
MARYANN
DEAR MARYANN: No! But I think he gave the T-shirt to the wrong woman.
DEAR ABBY: So PLOTZING IN PLATTSBURGH, N.Y., complained because she got a lot of useless gifts for Christmas? Last Thanksgiving my youngest son's darling wife got together with the family and had them all put in an envelope what they were planning to spend on a gift for me.
The week before Christmas this daughter-in-law came to my house with a housecleaning crew, and in four hours, two husky men and two spry little ladies cleaned my five-room house from top to bottom. My windows were washed, the oven was clean as new, and all I did was sit and watch! When they left, there was $14.80 left over for me.
On Christmas Day the whole family came back with a picnic-like supper and useful presents such as new dish cloths, dish towels, a pot scrubber, rubber scraper, etc. And when they left I felt like the best-loved grandma, mother and

HAPPY GRANNY IN COLUMBUS, OHIO
DEAR GRANNY: Wonderful, indeed. Readers, jot this down on your Christmas gift list. There are only 298 days until Christmas.
DEAR ABBY: I read with interest the letters in your column supporting the theory that wearing jockey shorts has contributed to the infertility of the American male. I submit the following as evidence to refute that theory.
In India, where I was born and raised, it was customary for men to wear a "langoti" under their loose-fitting garments. (A langoti is a triangular cloth truss, similar to an athletic supporter.) Some wear it because they believe it will prevent their body magnetism from flowing off their extremities. Some say it has religious significance. In any case, wearing the langoti is an ancient Indian custom, passed down from father to son. The point I make is that the majority of men wear the langoti very tight!
Abby, the population of India is over 600 million, so obviously they have no fertility problem. I wore a langoti — a tight one — and I have nine kids. My father had 10, and my grandfather had 12, not including those he had while sowing his wild oats.

Louisiana State loses winning streak to Kentucky

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

First, the nation's longest winning streak came to an end... and then it didn't.

In a Super Sunday of college basketball action, second-ranked Louisiana State had its 26-game winning streak ended by No. 9 Kentucky 73-71.

That put the pressure squarely on No. 1-rated Oregon State and the unbeaten Beavers, erasing a 6-point halftime deficit for the second road game in a row, overtook No. 13 UCLA 82-76, boosting their record to 25-0 and remaining the only team in the country without a setback.

"One by one we're accomplishing all the goals we set for ourselves," Coach Ralph Miller said after Oregon State clinched at least a tie for its second consecutive Pacific-10 title. "And it's the first time we've swept UCLA and USC since 1958."

The Beavers also came from behind Friday night to beat Southern California 73-64.

"I'd have to say this is my best team at Oregon State," added Miller, who is in his 11th season. "We should be in good shape for the playoffs because we've used a lot of people this year and our players are pretty well rested."

Steve Johnson, the Beavers' 6-foot-10 center, rested some Sunday with foul problems but still scored 26 points. His two free throws 3½ minutes into the second half put Oregon State on top to stay 48-47 and contributed to a 17-3 spurt.

The 61-year-old Miller received some more good news Sunday when the U.S. Basketball Writers Association voted him Coach of the Year.

Kentucky closed out its regular season by preventing LSU from becoming the first team in 23 years to go through its Southeastern Conference slate without a blemish.

Four Wildcats scored 11 points apiece — Dirk Minniefield, Chuck Verderber, Melvin Turpin and Sam Bowie — to offset a 24-point effort by LSU's Howard Carter while Minniefield also thrilled a packed house of 24,000 at Kentucky's Rupp Arena with his floor leadership and ball-handling.

"I'm proud of this team and of the crowd," Coach Joe B. Hall said after the Wildcats turned back a series of rallies by LSU, which never led in the game. "This was the kind of support we needed to wake our young players up. If we'd had a dead crowd I don't know if the outcome would have been the same."

"It was a difficult position coming in here," LSU Coach Dale Brown conceded.

In other Sunday action, Edmund Sherod's free throw with four seconds left in overtime gave Virginia Commonwealth a 62-61 decision over Alabama-Birmingham and its second straight Sun Belt Conference postseason tournament crown — plus an automatic berth in the NCAA Tournament — while four free throws by Kris Anderson in the final two minutes helped Florida State defeat Marquette 81-78.

On Saturday, No. 3 Virginia beat No. 17 Maryland 74-63, No. 4 DePaul outscored Chicago Loyola 105-95, No. 5 Arizona State whipped California 81-68, No. 6 Notre Dame routed Dayton 70-57, Wyoming upset No. 7 Utah 53-50, No. 8 Iowa crushed Wisconsin 96-75 and No. 10 Tennessee defeated Auburn 75-63.

In a pair of Atlantic Coast Conference upsets, both by 66-65 scores, Duke edged No. 11 North Carolina in overtime and North Carolina State nipped No. 12 Wake Forest. Also, No. 14 Illinois trimmed Purdue 81-70, No. 15 Brigham Young stopped Colorado State 80-69, No. 16 Indiana whipped Michigan 98-83, No. 18 Arkansas shaded Texas Tech 64-61, Indiana State knocked off No. 19 Wichita State 75-72 and No. 20 Louisville, the defending national champion, trounced Western Kentucky 90-75.

Virginia snapped a two-game skid by beating Maryland thanks to a 10-2 second-half burst keyed by Jeff Lamp and Ralph Sampson. Mark Aguirre scored 31 points and Terry Cummings added 22 as DePaul overpowered Loyola. The Blue Demons led 63-41 at the half.

Byron Scott scored 14 points in each half to lead Arizona State past California while seniors Kelly Tripucka and Tracy Jackson scored 20 points apiece in their final home game led Notre Dame over Dayton.

Wyoming put a damper on Utah's plans for clinching Western Athletic Conference title as Kenneth Ollie scored points, including a pair of key free throws in the closing seconds.

Iowa retained its one-game lead over Indiana in the Big 8 as five Hawkeyes scored in double figures against Wisconsin led by Vince Brookins' 18. Gary Carter's 20 points put Tennessee over Auburn.

With the NCAA playoffs just around the corner, Rob Morris was selected as the sixth team in the ECAC South tournament, which opens Tuesday at two home-court sites.

There were five-way ties in Philadelphia's Big 8 competition, as well as in the Mid-American Conference among Ball State, Western Michigan, Northern Illinois, Bowling Green and Toledo.

Missouri nailed down its second straight Big Eight title, edging Kansas State 46-43 and Lamar downed McNeese State 87-76 to capture Southland Conference honors for the fourth year in a row.

Boston College defeated Seton Hall 64-57 to win the regular-season championship of the Big East.

Jackson absence infuriates owner

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — What becomes of Mr. October in March?

This was a riddle that upset the brass of the never moribund New York Yankees team and titillated rather than irritated the players as they began their first full week of spring training without superstar Reggie Jackson.

"Frankly, I am upset, disappointed, hurt more than angry," fumed Yankee boss George Steinbrenner. "It's time Reggie learned he is not bigger than the Yankees."

George flew out of town immediately after Sunday's Jacksonless workout and left an invisible note to his $3-million property who is playing out the last year of a five-year contract: Don't call me; I'll call you.

"The last guy I want to sit down and deal with now is Reggie Jackson," the owner said.

Steinbrenner had flown into this Yankee training headquarters for a dual purpose — to announce the signing of an old football coaching buddy, Lou Saban, as president of the Yankees, and to talk to Reggie about a new contract.

He succeeded in the first. Jackson's absence left him personally mortified in the second.

Gene Michael, the new Yankee manager, said Jackson, who had been allowed a two-day delay in reaching camp with the rest of the regulars, called from California Saturday to say he would be late.

"I told him I wanted him here," Michael said.

Prior to practice Sunday, Reggie called again and informed Michael he definitely couldn't make it on time.

"I don't know where he was calling from," the Yankees' rookie skipper said. "I told him he should be here. I told him he'd better talk to George."

Braves remember missing children

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The green swath of tape on the Atlanta Braves' batting helmets will remain until the cases of the 21 slain or missing children in Atlanta are solved, according to a spokesman for the National League club.

The players also will do 30-second taped commentaries, to be distributed to Atlanta-area radio stations, pleading with the killer or killers to give himself up, said Braves spokesman Wayne Minshew.

Left-handed reliever Larry Bradford, who attended Clark College in Atlanta, thought of placing the one-inch strip of tape on the helmets and was joined in the gesture on Sunday by the rest of the squad.

Andy Bean fears 18-under-par win may anger Arnold Palmer

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Andy Bean had only one disturbing thought after scoring a 7-shot victory in the Bay Hill Golf Classic.

"I talked to Arnold (Palmer, owner and operator of the host Bay Hill Club) early in the week and we agreed that the course was tough enough that something like 10 under (par) would win," Bean said Sunday. The big guy offered a mischievous smile and added:

"I'm afraid I might have made Arnold mad at me."

Combining his awesome physical strength with a deft and delicate short game, Bean ripped Arnold's course and humbled the opposition with an 18-under-par performance on a winning score of 266.

"What can you say, when you've played better than you thought anybody was going to?" Bean asked.

The 6-foot-4, 210-pounder, the tour's most noted alligator-wrestler, made it look easy. He started the final round with a 3-shot lead over Tom Watson, the only man in the field with any realistic hopes of overtaking him.

And it took Bean only three holes to put away the struggling Watson. Bean reached the par-5 first in two big blows and 2-putted for birdie. He birdied the second from point-blank range and Watson, playing with him, bogeyed it after missing the green. And Watson left one in a bunker on the third and bogeyed again.

Bean suddenly had a 7-shot lead.

"That was pretty much the ballgame," Watson said.

"I couldn't catch the big fellow. He didn't make any mistakes and I made too many. He deserves to win. He played well enough to win."

Bean, 27, scored his seventh career victory with a final round 69 and picked up $54,000 from the total purse of $300,000.

"It's nice to win at home," said Bean, a resident of nearby Lakeland. He was trailed through the warm, sunny weather by a large and enthusiastic gallery of relatives, friends and neighbors.

"Winning can be fun when you don't have to grind all the way," he said. "It's fun just to be able to 2-putt and go on about your business and not have to make birdies all the time."

He didn't have to.

With the big lead, he had no more pressure than on a walk in the park. He started in front, stayed in front, finished in front. He wasn't challenged at any point.

Watson, the only man with a chance, continued to have his problems, particularly with the driver.

Young fans find suitable heroes in members of Dallas Diamonds

DALLAS (AP) — They swarm outside the locker room, jockeying for position, shifting and turning so the Gloria Vanderbilt tags etched across their bottoms and the "Dallas Diamonds No. 1" stenciled on their T-shirts are only a blur.

The 50 or 60 young girls gleefully jump up and down as if the orthodontist who will remove their braces waits behind the door.

Instead, they are energized by unqualified hero worship. They don two pair of socks, carry basketballs and wish fervently to become a 10 — not like Bo Derek, but like the number that Nancy Lieberman wears on the back of her uniform.

The Diamonds have not received the mass adulation reserved for the Dallas Cowboys, but the faithful waiting for Ms. Lieberman, Rosalind Jennings or the other Diamonds have their own brand of fervor.

"I want Rosalind to be my mama. She's my idol," says Stephanie Stanford, 11, with one eye still searching for a crack in the Moody Coliseum locker room door.

"I wish Rosalind was my mama, because I love her," 11-year-old Alice Kirben says even louder.

"Not me," replies little Erica Thomas, 10. "I wish Nancy was my mother. I thought she was dyn-o-mite."

The three are all members of the Central YMCA girls' basketball team. Like most of the others gathered, they want to do something unheard of only a few years ago — become women's professional basketball players.

The girls bring basketballs and T-shirts to sign. They scribble their phone numbers on scraps of paper, asking the players to come to their homes for dinner. They pray aloud for the players to give them one of the precious few sweaty wristbands worn during the game.

Kristin Fanning, 11, decided after watching Ms. Lieberman on the court that basketball is the only life for her.

"It seems that she worked hard and got to the top, so I figure that I can work hard and get there, too," she said. Dallas Diamonds basketball is the only sport she follows.

"They give girls an athlete to look up to," said 17-year-old Susan Watkins, who has been to every home game the past two years.

She wears a special-made Diamonds No. 1 T-shirt, splashed with players' autographs. She was waiting anxiously for Ms. Lieberman's signature to complete the collection. She almost had the coveted autograph at the last game, but an apologetic Ms. Lieberman had to rush for a plane.

Paula Adrian, 14, identifies with the Diamonds more than any men's team she's ever watched, although her addiction is tough to put into words.

"I think it's different," she said. "A lot of men's teams — well, I can't really explain. I just think they (the Diamonds) look good and work good."

Kim Watkins, 11, has gotten to go into the locker room sanctuary to talk to player Kim Beutel, and little Kim basks in the glory.

"Kim Beutel is my favorite," she said. "There's a lot of reasons. She's nice and pretty good, and she likes to talk to kids after the games."

Kim's mother, Linda Watkins, holds the autograph book and stands patiently while Kim waits out the last of the showering players.

"She's hooked on Kim Beutel, I mean really," Mrs. Watkins said. "She's become more interested in basketball because of seeing Kim play."

Having a professional female athlete as a role model is something she never had as a child, said Mrs. Watkins, who believes it's good for her daughter.

The players like it, too.

"It makes me feel great," Ms. Jennings said. "All those kids looking up to me makes me work harder. It makes me feel warm inside, real happy. I want to show them that if they work at anything, they can do it."

There are about 10 young fans she knows who are always at the games and "They ask crazy questions — stuff like how many socks I wear and why I picked the number 15," she said.

She stood up and bounced like the kids outside the locker room. "They'll be taller than me one day," said the 5-6 player.

"I'm short, and I made it. They can think, 'If she can do it, I can do it.' I make it look like fun, because it is to me. If they can pick up on that, I think I've done my job," she said.

Ms. Lieberman said she answers 1,500 fan letters a year.

Murphy ends free throw record

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — While the ball bounced harmlessly off the iron, Calvin Murphy grimaced but the crowd gave him a standing ovation, sympathizing with the end of the longest consecutive free-throw shooting streak in the National Basketball Association.

Murphy, the Houston Rockets' pint-sized guard, had hit 78 free tosses in a row before blowing his first try in Sunday's 102-86 loss to San Antonio.

He did not go to the free throw line until deep in the third quarter and when the ball bounced off to the right, he turned and walked away — clenching his fists in front of him and closing his eyes.

It was his first miss from the free-throw line since Dec. 27. On Feb. 19 he had passed Rick Barry's previous NBA record of 60 straight charity tosses.

Although Murphy turned away and winced, 11,245 San Antonio fans stood and applauded the feisty little guard, showing their appreciation for his remarkable skein.

"I'm not heartbroken," Murphy said later. "What goes up must come down."

The 32-year-old, 10-year veteran from Niagara "was both the oldest and shortest man on the court in Sunday's 102-86 win by San Antonio, but he showed his stamina late in the game when he sailed into the second row seats after Spurs' rookie Reggie Johnson fouled Murphy on a driving layup.

After a hush fell over the crowd when it took the spunky guard several minutes to rise from the

by Sherry Conklin

These nutritional tips brought to you by DIET-CENTER
412 W. Kingsmill Hughes Bldg.

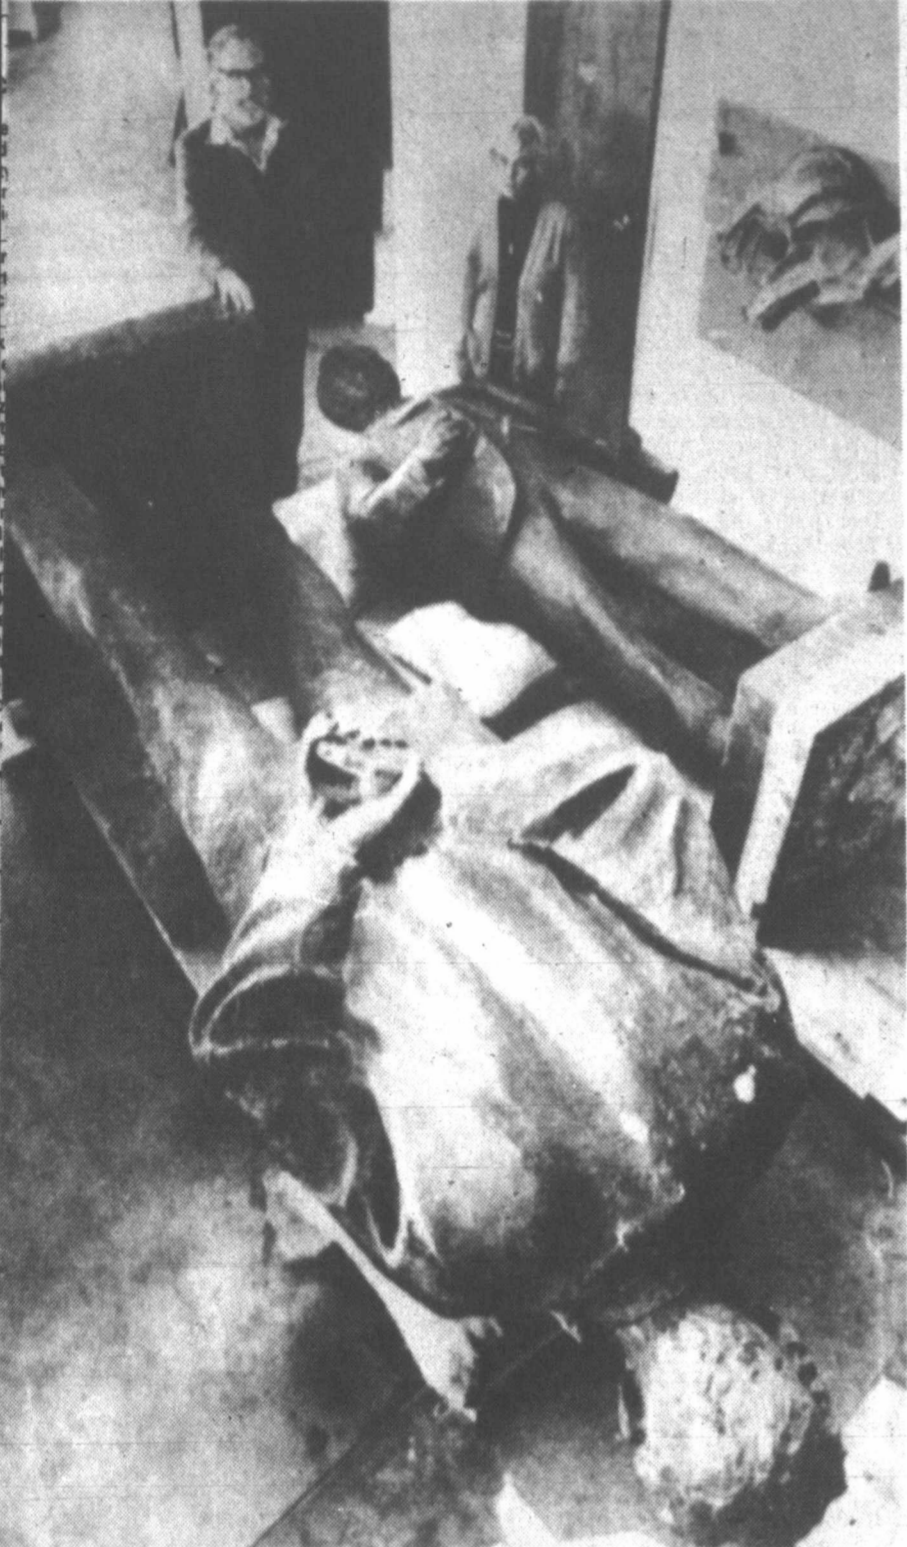

You have decided to lose some of those extra pounds and go on a diet. You do just get the first couple of days. Then you find your will-power weakening and it becomes a real effort to stay on your program. By the end of the week you give up on the whole idea!

Does this pattern sound familiar to you? You want to lose weight but success seems impossible. Very likely previous conditioning from your childhood is taking over when your "will-powering" stops.

Diet Center will help you understand how to change these childhood patterns that have always defeated your best efforts. You can learn to use your own power of choice rather than "will-power."

Agents search Chagra homes

EL PASO, Texas (AP)—About 70 federal agents who conducted surprise, all-day searches of five homes apparently sought evidence in the assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood and assets to pay off back taxes of convicted drug trafficker Jimmy Chagra.

The agents searched the home of Chagra's wife as well as those of his brother, sister, mother and father-in-law Friday.

"They searched every square inch of every house," taking diamonds, other jewelry, cash and documents, said attorney Joe Chagra, Jimmy's brother in a weekend interview.

He said agents of the FBI, Drug Enforcement Administration and the Internal Revenue Service spent about 13 hours in each, carrying cardboard boxes out and stacking them in a rented truck. Joe Chagra said "the main purpose was to seize all of Jimmy's property" to settle back income tax claims.

The Justice Department had no comment on the searches, but a federal official based here told the El Paso Times that the agents were looking for "something that should lead to indictments in the Wood investigation."

"If we find what we're looking for, it should lead to indictments. We're getting closer, and we may be there with what we find," he told the newspaper.

Wood was killed by a sniper armed with a high-powered rifle as the judge left his San Antonio residence on his way to work May 29, 1979. It touched off the biggest federal investigation since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in 1963, but so far there have been no charges.

At the time of his murder,

Wood, known as "Maximum John" because of the stiff penalties he gave drug traffickers, was scheduled to preside over the government's drug case against Jimmy Chagra, 35, who eventually was convicted of continuing criminal enterprise and sentenced last year to 30 years without parole.

His brother Joe, who helped defend him, said the agents started knocking on doors at 8 a.m. Friday and showed search warrants signed by U.S. District Judge William Sessions of San Antonio.

"It's one of those things you never expect. It tears away all of your privacy as they search through every drawer and closet," Joe Chagra said. "I think it violated our rights."

He said family members were watched during the process, apparently to prevent them from hiding anything, and women FBI agents were assigned to watch the women family members.

Chagra would not be more specific about the items taken by the agents, but he said he was given a receipt for each one. He said "the main purpose was to seize all of Jimmy's property—he can't very well pay taxes if he's in prison."

Reagan guard's weapon misfires

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Secret Service says an "in-house inquiry" will be conducted to determine why a rifle used to guard President Reagan malfunctioned and harmlessly discharged a bullet shortly after the president left church.

Reagan, in an armored limousine, was about 100 yards away from the National Presbyterian Church, when the gun, used by a Secret Service officer stationed on a nearby rooftop, misfired Sunday, said Dick Hartwig, a Secret Service spokesman.

"It was a weapon malfunction and it happened while it was in a storage case," Hartwig said.

News in brief

DALLAS (AP) — Despite protests from California, the state of Texas has imposed a 30-day quarantine on California fruit and vegetables because they might be infested with the Mediterranean fruit fly.

California, which has reported "Medfly" infestations in two counties, had sought a temporary restraining order barring the quarantine, but U.S. District Judge Patrick E. Higginbotham in Dallas allowed it to go into effect at midnight Saturday.

He set a hearing for Friday to consider lifting it.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three rival factions of Iranians shouted slogans and taunts during a four-hour demonstration that erupted in fistfights and led to the arrests of two people.

A few rocks and bottles were thrown but no serious injuries were reported by authorities after the more than 1,000 Iranians demonstrated Sunday in MacArthur Park.

Police Sgt. Don Van Velzer said the 200 officers called in for riot control could not keep the three groups completely apart.

One of the factions supported communism, the second supported restoration of the deposed monarchy and the third backed the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.
