PRESIDENT HOOVER URGES REVISION OF WAR DEBTS

The cast of "Dulcy," the Little theater play, has the Pampans' congratulations. It was a creditable performance and this writer enjoyed it.

Not So Easy
Staging a play by non-professionals is not an easy task. Memorizing the lines is a bore for one not in practice. Speaking above crowd noises is difficult. Keeping one's head clear and his part "in character" requires concentration. Such home talent productions receive what is best in the legitimate stage.

Most of us have to re-learn how to listen to a stage play. We are accustomed to entering darkened theaters where there is continuous entertainment. We are irked by the delay in raising the curtain; we are embarrassed by the bright lights. And when the play starts we have to suffer the foolish giggles of children who seem to think they are at a Saturday afternoon Western movie thriller—and certain tremendous sighs by grown-ups.

But as we said, we liked the play and we do not intend to miss a public performance by the Pampa players.

The state highway department kindly offers to test natural materials in Gray county suitable for building all-weather roads. Not only is the state department approving caliche-asphalt construction in the Panhandle, but it is offering the usual financial aid. Use of this type of construction depends upon the adjustment of the materials and the traffic demand of the road. There is no reason why Gray county should not use some of this type of road where traffic will be light. The cost is little more than half that of concrete, and we have no obligations to the concrete trade.

Going Too Far
It has for some time seemed to this writer that a lot of the demand for public work as a means for furnishing employment is being carried too far. In many types of construction, the percentage of the cost of wages is rather low. To provide enough of such work to give everyone employment would create such a huge public debt that taxes would be exorbitant.

In the long run, employment must come from private business. To demand public works which cause private business to be taxed out of existence is to defeat the program and the effect desired. We have too many people on the public payrolls now, the number in this country having mounted in proportion to the answer to the demand that the government enter business. The gradual and lately accelerated process of this nation toward socialism has not been caused by socialists, but by well meaning people who expect the government to do things for them.

Too Many Clerks
England as a government is at a crisis because the people demand so much of it. Ultimately, the government becomes what always in reality tends to be—the people themselves. The dele system has discouraged personal initiative. It has done more—IT HAS CREATED

THE UNEMPLOYED army which went to the capital now knows what President Hoover meant when he said that every community should care for its own.

A law is being prepared in Washington to cure everything. But what will be done about the damage done by the laws?

When our roads are paved, we will no longer have farmers, but suburban agriculturists.

Let someone be mistaken by December news stories: Congress is NOT Santa Claus.

The Wasp in the Borger HERALD wonders why there are optimists in a world like this. He must be broke at Christmas, too.

Wrecking students strike because they are charged they were working. That's the A. P. version, but there seems to be something wrong with the sentence, somehow.

AN EMERGENCY IS POINTED OUT THIS MORNING

PAYMENTS ARE DUE ON TUESDAY FROM EUROPE
JOHNSON IN OPPOSITION
PROPOSAL IS SURE TO PASS BUT DELAY INEVITABLE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10. (AP)—President Hoover asked congress today to open the way for further war debts revision, saying it was required in the "economic emergency."

This view was embodied in a message submitting his moratorium proposals for ratification before next Tuesday when the European payments again fall due.

Congressional leaders at once said the consideration which they want to give the moratorium made such quick action impossible.

There was no prospect of the proposal being rejected, however, despite the single fight against it by Johnson of California.

His resolution for inquiry into the amounts of foreign securities in this country was adopted without debate while a messenger stood in the aisle bearing the president's recommendations.

Meanwhile, the state department disclosed receipt of formal notification from the French government of its position that reparations revision must be accompanied by a comparative scaling down of war debts.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10. (AP)—Declaring debtor nations cannot pay, President Hoover asked congress today to provide for "temporary adjustments" in the war debts of Europe to the United States.

In a message submitting the June moratorium for ratification, he proposed revival of the commission which funded these debts, and said: "As we approach the new year it is clear that a number of the governments indebted to us will be unable to meet further payments to us in full pending recovery in their economic life."

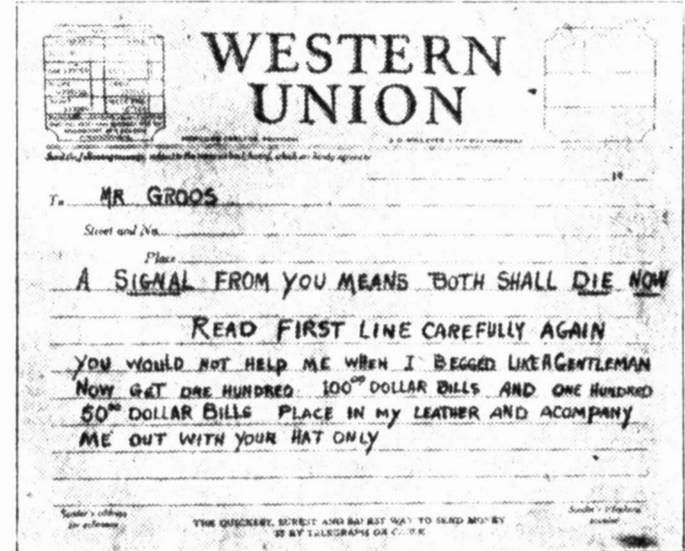

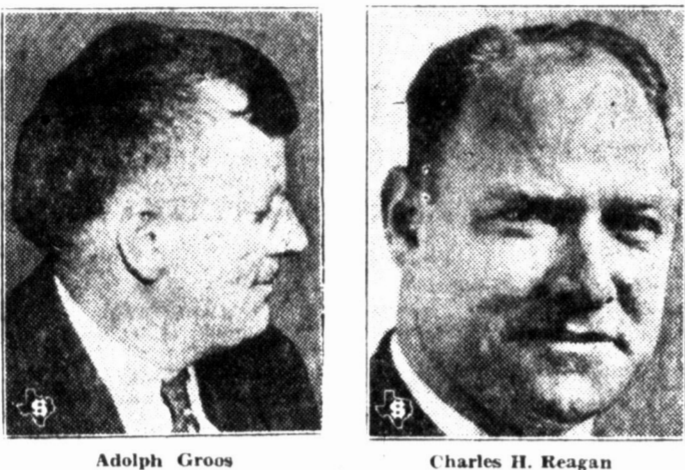

"Therefore it will be necessary in some cases to make still further adjustments."

Chambers May Visit Each Other To Trade Ideas
Panhandle secretaries believe that welfare work should not be handled by or through chambers of commerce, but that a separate organization should be maintained. Members of the Panhandle Secretaries association met in Amarillo yesterday and discussed welfare work, the number of organizations needed in a city, and the conducting of an annual meeting.

George W. Briggs, secretary of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, talked welfare work. Guy Hill, secretary of the Shamrock Chamber of Commerce, spoke on the same subject. Other secretaries agreed in the discussion that welfare work was a job in itself.

It was suggested at the afternoon meeting that boards of directors exchange courtesies and ideas by inviting each other to luncheons. Mr. Briggs says he will place the idea before his board Monday night. He believes the plan would create friendly relations among cities in a section of the country.

PECULIAR BANK RAID FAILS

Charles H. Reagan, automobile dealer of Cotulla, was thwarted in an alleged attempt to rob the Groos National Bank of San Antonio last week, when the firing pin of his gun caught in his coat pocket. This saved the life of Adolph Groos, president of the bank, to whom Reagan had just handed the note pictured above, and who arose to resist Reagan.

OPPORTUNITY AWAITING CIRCULATION ENTRANTS

"Hard Times" Will Not Exist for Those Who Work Hard in Campaign. Prizes still are awaiting workers in the Pampa Daily NEWS big circulation campaign.

There have been quite a few entrants within the last couple of days, but few workers. True, there has been bad weather and no doubt each of these entrants will be active and hard workers; however, we need about 25 more really energetic workers.

How about you folks who are crying "hard times" and wishing you had a job? You can get a pay check every Saturday night. And you folks who need extra money for Christmas. Why not go to work in this campaign and make you pay check as big as you want it? All your friends take the NEWS, and would rather pay you and help you make extra money, and at the same time, save themselves about 16 to 17 1-2 cents per month on the cost of the subscription.

Rumors are apt to be circulated at all times in all businesses. One man started the rumor yesterday that contestants receiving their commission checks each Saturday night would not receive credits on winning the first, second, and third prizes. This rumor is absolutely wrong. You can earn cash commission checks every Saturday night and not effect your standing, whatsoever.

The only thing is, a candidate accepting the cash commission checks would refund their commissions at the end of the campaign, should they win.

BLACK KILLERS TAKEN OUT OF JAIL BY MOB
MILITARY PRECISION IS SHOWN BY BAND OF SIXTY
JAILER IS OVERPOWERED

LEWISBURG, W. Va., Dec. 10. (AP)—Two negroes were taken from the county jail here early today and lynched by an organized mob of about 60 men.

They were hanged, almost nude, from the cross arm of a telephone pole, and then, before dawn could come on stragglers, volley after volley of shots were fired into their bodies.

The two, Tom Jackson, 25, and George Banks, 27, had been arrested Nov. 22 at Leslie, W. Va., in connection with the killing of Constable Joseph Myles and Jack Brown, a companion, who had gone to a negro dance hall at Leslie to order the dancers to be more quiet. They had left the dance hall when

WRECKS HIS SEQUESTERED CAR

Shortly after Constable Mitt Jennings of Gonzales served sequestration papers on the car pictured above to its owner, Aref Droupp, upper left, he went after the car in Droupp's yard and found it in a wrecked condition. An ax had been used to smash all windows, the lights and motor, and tear gaping holes in the body. Droupp, Gonzales tailor and hotel owner, neither admits nor denies having chopped up the car.

JUNIOR CHAMBER URGES EASY PARKING SOLUTION

The downtown parking problem is particularly acute at this time. This is the Christmas shopping season. These people should be given the courtesy of easy parking.

The best solution is this: Let local people who customarily park in the business district refrain from doing so until after Christmas. This plan will tend to remove the complaint that home people so monopolize the business area that visitors cannot park near the stores.

As a public necessity and civic duty, we appeal to Pampa citizens to observe this parking proposal.

Salaried Persons Donating Much to Welfare Funds

Donations of job holders, clerks, and salaried employees of Pampa are far larger in proportion to their income than the gifts of citizens whose property and incomes are much larger. Workers in the drive to raise funds to finance welfare work in the community reported this morning.

The singing waiter has long since passed into well-nigh oblivion along with the corner filling station whence used to come the frequent nocturnal renderings of "Sweet Adeline." However, in Eddie Quillan's "Sweetstakes," the husky voice of the warbling water returns to actuality in the person of Young Quillan himself.

In this story of the turf, Eddie is seen as a jockey whose unfortunate exclusion from national race tracks causes him to seek necessary employment in a cheap cafe in Mexico. There the disillusioned rider is hired to serve the pleasure-seeking patrons with refreshments along with a frequent old-time song.

Albert Rogell directed "Sweetstakes," which is an original story by Lew Lipton. Others in the cast are James Gleason, Marion Nixon, Lewis J. Barton, Emma Dunn and Tom Jackson. It is a Charles R. Rogers production.

As an added attraction, L. O. Goodman, recently of Enid, will entertain on his marimbophone just before the feature. He is an expert on the instrument.

LIMIT OF 100 BARRELS SET BY GOVERNOR

PRORATION PLAN WILL BE RETAINED AT PRESENT
IS EFFECTIVE TOMORROW
RAIL COMMISSION NOT CONSULTED ABOUT REDUCTION

AUSTIN, Dec. 10. (AP)—Gov. E. S. Sterling today issued an order reducing the per-well allowable in the East Texas oil field to 100 barrels daily.

The new allowable will be effective at 7 a. m. tomorrow. The present allowable is 125 barrels per well.

Governor Sterling, supreme administrator of the area under martial law, said there were 3,380 producing wells in the four counties of Smith, Gregg, Rusk, and Upshur. Based on those figures, the daily output of the field will be reduced immediately from in excess of 400,000 barrels daily to 338,000 barrels.

The order was issued after a conference with Gen. Jacob F. Wolters, commander of the Texas National Guard occupying the field; members of the Texas Railroad Commission, administrators of proration in other Texas fields, and attorneys for the state in litigation involving constitutionality of the state conservation laws.

Those participating in the conference were Governor Sterling, General Wolters, C. V. Terrell, chairman, and Lon A. Smith, member of the railroad commission, and E. F. Smith and Dan Moody, attorneys.

Governor Sterling said it was decided not to change the method of prorating the field at this time.

Lon A. Smith, railroad commissioner, said the matter of reducing the allowable in the field was not discussed in the conference.

"The governor did not mention a 100-barrel allowable," Smith said. "He asked us what we thought about calling a hearing for the entire field."

Smith said the railroad commission only was interested in "conservation" and not proration.

He said the commission could call a hearing with reference to conservation of the oil in the field but that it could not do anything about proration until martial law was lifted and the field "turned back" to the commission.

Hobarts Return From Old Home

Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Hobart have just returned from an extended visit in the east. Thanksgiving dinner was served in Mr. Hobart's old home in Berlin, Vt. It was the first Thanksgiving dinner Mr. Hobart had eaten in his former home in 50 years.

The weather was clear and cool for most of the visit, although a light snow fell. The deer season was in full swing and Mr. Hobart took his gun and roamed over country where he hunted as a boy. He was successful in getting a buck.

En route to Vermont, Mr. and Mrs. Hobart visited friends in Arkansas City, Kansas City, Chicago, Lansing and Montreal. The return trip was made by way of Philadelphia and St. Louis. Mrs. Hobart came home from St. Louis, but it was necessary for Mr. Hobart to make a brief business trip to Dallas. He returned yesterday.

Mrs. Ralph Trimble and son Ralph Jr., returned yesterday from an extensive visit with relatives in Dahlart, Kingfisher and Sayre.

COMBS-WORLEY AND OSBORNE LIVESTOCK WINS MANY PRIZES AND SALES RECORDS

Fine Herefords Are Shown at Four Great Events in Recent Weeks. A car of fine Herefords of the Prince Domino strain rolled into Pampa yesterday afternoon from Los Angeles, Omaha, Wichita and Kansas City, where they "broke in" to the big money at livestock shows. The cattle are owned by Mrs. Phoebe A. Worley, Albert B. Combs, and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Osborne of Miami. The owners returned with their valuable livestock. Mrs. Inez Carter, and the Osbornes' daughter, Mary Jane, accompanied the Panhandle people and returned with them. At the Royal Livestock show at Kansas City, Mr. Osborne sold a heifer that brought the highest price paid at the show. At Los Angeles, he sold the highest priced sire of the show. The Panhandle citizens and their fine show cattle have been making the round of livestock shows for over a month. Herdsman of the Combs and Worley herd was Billy Jameson, and Grady Sheppard was herdsman of the Osborne herd. The cattle were shown at four nationally famous livestock shows, and with one exception, every time they entered the ring they won cash prizes and ribbons. Mrs. Worley and Mr. Combs show herd comprised 10 pure-bred Herefords, and Mr. Osborne's 16 Herefords, all of the Prince Domino strain. The foundation cattle of the Combs-Worley herd came from the Osborne ranch near Miami, Mr. Osborne is internationally famous as a breeder of Herefords, Los Angeles, and Kansas City. In January, Mr. Combs and Mrs. Worley will take their animals to the livestock show at Denver, and to Fort Worth in March.

Frat Initiation May Prove Fatal

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Dec. 10. (AP)—Fred H. Hoppe, 19-year-old University of Alabama freshman from Alton, Ill., suffered a fractured skull in a fall from a flagpole in the center of the business district which he was attempting to measure as a part of his fraternity initiation today.

Doctors said he was in a serious condition but they were hopeful of his recovery. Dean Dabney Lancaster started an investigation. He said Hoppe lost his hold and plunged to the ground after climbing 25 feet up the 75-foot pole.

DIVORCE GRANTED

Minnie Bell Moore was granted a divorce from J. O. Moore in 114th district court yesterday by Judge W. I. Gamewell. In the suit of Annie Tracy and others against Fannie Shelton and others for partition of real estate, Judge Gamewell held that part of the land was not susceptible to partition and that part of it was.

LADY with a PAST

BY HARRIET HENRY

SYNOPSIS: New York has been the scene of Venice Mait's social fetters. Now she returns to the city from Europe to make a final bid for popularity. She has built up a fabulous reputation of success in Paris; the suicide of a marquis linked with her name.

Chapter 29

A SLOGAN FOR MYSTERY

IT WAS the youth of the spectacles whom she had met at the Manings. Colour crept into her face. She felt as if a detective was suddenly spying on her. "Why, Ernest," she murmured, "I didn't know Nolly's Doctor Price was you."

pretences made. Lola could never resist a story that would make such good recounting. And Venice could not risk this.

Lola's voice broke in upon her thoughts.

"What about René de Thénardier? Did he ask you to marry him?"

"Yes," said Venice. She was hating this. It seemed so crude and unnecessary. But it was necessary.

"How could you resist? He was most attractive, and think of being the Marquis de Thénardier!"

"I didn't love him."

"Ve-ell, of course I can see that. But it must have been a temptation."

"No."

"Oh, darling, you'll be a dud all your life if you're not careful."

"I'll be careful." Venice laughed dryly. How very careful she was being.

"Did he kill himself right in front of you?"

Nora was standing just inside the dining-room screen. Her large mouth was hanging a little open. Her eyes stared at Venice as though she had never noticed her before.

"Practically," said Venice. "I'd just turned away and I heard something on the window-sill. I looked around and he was gone. The peas, please, Nora." At least she had repaid the servant for her tolerant indifference.

Nora started and crimsoned.

"Yes, Miss Venice." There was actually awe in her tones. She looked at her young mistress with new respect.

Venice mentally grinned. Even servants responded to the mystery of a past.

"My Godfrey," cried Lola, "wasn't it horrible?"

"Pretty awful, yes."

There was a silence.

"It's funny," reflected Lola, "here you were, Venice, stuck at parties and coming home alone from lots of them, and a dashing Marquis, who could have had any number of women, kills himself because you won't marry him."

"But he didn't exactly," said Venice. "He was fearfully broke and his debts drove him to it."

"That's what you say, darling. But the truth will out. Perhaps you've been fooling us all along."

"Perhaps."

"And do you remember the day you admitted to me you were a complete flop?"

"Yes, I was thinking of it just a moment ago. Perhaps I still am, Lola." She mustn't be too sure of herself.

"Hey, hey! I always had plenty of attention but do you think any Marquis'd kill himself for me?"

"The best part of me is probably hidden deep. Very far below the surface," Venice said. She had a vague idea that Lola would repeat this.

She did. Venice sensed it was like an advertising slogan for certain food products.

As Lola departed she asked Venice to a house-warming the following Sunday. Venice accepted with keen anticipation. Her first encounter in the social arena since Guy had given her a cloak of rumour to throw about the shoulder of her diffidence.

Will Venice be successful at the house-warming, tomorrow? She finds there—Roland Wainwright.

MARY, WHO HAD THE LITTLE LAMB, FOLLOWED IT IN DEATH IN LONDON—INCIDENT REAL

LONDON, Dec. 10. (AP)—Mary Hughes, who many years ago had a little lamb that followed her to school, has followed the little lamb in death.

Mary was 90 and old and blind and lame before she passed on at her home at Worthing. But she continued to tell her story of how she was the Mary whose little lamb in the nursery rhyme became known around the world to children of three or four generations.

"Billy," the lamb, died many years ago of course. Mary, however, her friends said, continued to old age and death with a heart as young and merry as when the fleecy-white lamb followed her to school that day, over 90 years ago.

The story of the verses, as she told it, was this:

"Miss Sarah Buel, later Mrs. Horatio Hale, noted American ethnologist, wrote the verses. Miss Buel was visiting her two sisters at Ty Issa, in Vale Llangollen, North Wales, where my father, John Thomas, was a well known breeder of Welsh Mountain sheep.

"I was always fond of lambs and when the mother sheep died sometimes my father would often give me an orphaned lamb to keep as a pet. Sometimes I had a half dozen of them and they would follow me around the farm and down the road when I went to meet the postman.

"One day, when I was 8, my oldest pet, Billy, followed me to the village school, where he romped about, jumping over the desk and refusing to behave. He disturbed the school so much the teacher, Miss Coward, turned him out the door.

"Miss Sarah wrote the verses there and then. Later, she married Mr. Hale and after she died her son wrote to an American newspaper in 1810 saying she was the author of the verses. I have no quarrel with my American friends, but the incident happened as I have described and not, as some Americans claim, in America."

W. K. Duke of Skellytown was brought to Worley hospital yesterday afternoon in a Stephenson ambulance.

A. J. Snow of Amarillo transacted business here this morning.

A NEED FOR 30,000 CLERKS TO DISTRIBUTE THE DOLE.

Private business, given a chance to obey the laws of supply and demand unfettered by law and monopoly, will do most for the public and the nation. To the extent that private business is choked, the people suffer. To the extent that machines replace men with no compensation in shorter hours, the surplus of workers multiplies. To the extent that profits and earnings are hoarded and not used, business is stagnated. The capitalist-democratic system must better distribute the fruits of its accomplishments or some communist system will eventually result. A government cannot, under our system, do all the things which are now being demanded of it.

LYNCHING—

They were shot down with a shot gun.

No License Plates

The mob went to the jail in automobiles about 2 o'clock. The cars were driven quietly around the square on which the jail is located with their lights dimmed and their license plates removed. Simultaneously they pulled up to the curb and parked.

Quietly, and almost with military precision, the men got out of the automobiles and marched to the jail door. Jailer Wallace Flint was summoned and as he opened the door he was grasped by the men and his keys taken from him.

While one group guarded Flint, another went back into the cell block and awakened Jackson and Banks. Clad only in their underclothing the pair was taken out of the jail and placed in two of the leading automobiles.

Select Pole

The caravan then proceeded to the edge of the town. Occupants of the leading car selected a telephone pole and the cars stopped.

Ropes were tossed over either side of the cross-arm and a group of men grasped the ends. Nooses were quickly fashioned and at a signal the group pulled Jackson and Banks up toward the cross arm.

The two negroes suspended well above the ground, the men tied the free ends of the ropes and stepped back.

At another signal dozens of men produced guns and their grim-work was completed.

ager F. M. Gwin said that every city employe agreed to donate one per cent of his or her salary to the Welfare fund for six months. A total of $2,670.40 had been reported by workers this morning.

All solicitors were asked to report their collections at the city hall immediately. Welfare Board officials desire to know at once the total amount that has been raised. Many teams have made no report since the drive began. Monday morning they were given instructions to visit all citizens on their list and make a report after this had been done. Workers were urged this morning to "clean up their territory as soon as possible and make a report."

CHICAGO, Dec. 10. (AP)—Grain prices averaged lower early today, influenced by stock market weakness. Corn started 1-8 to 1-2 off but later scored slight gains.

Emma Boone Todd, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Todd Jr., announced to the Welfare Board yesterday that she wanted to give $40 per month, or a total of $4.80 per year, out of her spending money to the Board, and she signed a pledge for that amount. sured her, helping Nolly to settle herself in a chair.

Unpacking the next morning Venice became fairly ecstatic over her new clothes. The jangling of the telephone startled her.

"Hello."

"Hello, Venice. Welcome home."

"Oh, Lola! How are you? And innumerable thanks to you and Jerry for the roses."

"Rien, darling. May I come to lunch with you today? I'm pining to see you and I simply have to hear about the Marquis' suicide and that American he spoke of."

"Come along," said Venice. "She knew a vague resentment at Lola's evident enjoyment of the gossip about her. She regards me as a naughty peep-show, she reflected humorously, and wants to be the first to get a look inside."

The receiver back in its place, her eyes wandered to the small lacquered figures on the footboard of her bed still patiently crossing their bridges and carrying their long poles. Their minute stolidity knew no surprise or probing curiosity about her. It pleased her to imagine that their indefinite little faces looked brighter for her return.

Lola blew in about one o'clock. "I'm so glad to see you, darling."

She kissed Venice in her careless, exuberant way.

"It's nice, Lola. And you look more burbling than ever."

"Luncheon is served." Nora at the door with her habitual air of it's-my-duty-but-I-don't-think-much-of-it.

Sitting at the familiar mahogany table, Venice's mind went back to that day when she and Lola had discussed a recipe for popularity and she had so poignantly admitted her own lack. She would like now to tell Lola exactly how she had run across Guy at the Café de la Paix and of their business arrangement but her natural honesty was surpassed by the realization that if Lola once permitted the truth to leak out Venice's past would be as quickly deflated as a balloon touched with a lighted cigarette. MARY HARKNESS plots to ensure THE FLY, who she believes "framed" her brother, EDDIE, with the murder of old MISS JUPITER, and later ran Eddie down and killed him. She is aided by BOWEN of the Star. Mary's fiance, DIRK RUYTER, believes Eddie guilty, as do police, who give up the investigation.

BRUCE JUPITER, in his father's had grace, oves to visit Mary, who he believes is a gold-digger. Jupiter has made Mary his heir. Dirk orders Mary to abandon the investigation, but she goes to Miami on the Jupiter yacht, hearing The Fly will be at Hialeah to see his horse run.

She meets COUNT DE LOMA, old acquaintance of COUNTS LOUISA, Bruce's friend. De Loma is listed as the owner of The Fly's horse. MR. JUPITER buys a second-hand car of the same make as that used by the murderer, and finds Eddie's L. O. U. for $15,000 in it.

Bruce and Louise quarrel because she cannot explain where she got a diamond bracelet. Louise says it is Mary's. Bruce makes her give the bracelet to Mary, who discovers it was stolen from Miss Jupiter the night she was killed. Mary locks it in the hotel safe and takes out the rubies. She has them when she meets De Loma.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXVIII

MARY had persuaded herself that The Fly would not come tonight. It was the only way she could bring herself to approach the meeting-place with any degree of confidence. He would not be there, and she would have worn the rubies for nothing—except to make a little small-talk for the other diners, perhaps. She told herself that, and tried to be sorry. But she wasn't. As the time approached, dread of the encounter turned her knees to jelly.

If she could only have given it up and gone to find Dirk. The joyful expectation of seeing him soon lifted her spirits.

A cool breeze from the bay struck their faces as they came out of the elevator into the informal sort of lobby, set off from the dining-space by tall potted palms. Hovering in a corner, watching the dancing, she caught sight of someone familiar. . . . George Bowen. Excusing herself, she hurried to meet him.

"Come in with us!" she begged him, pointing out that at least a third of the men present were in linen suits rather than the required formal dress.

"Not me—I'm just a voice in the wings," Bowen pleaded. "I barged in with my friend here," he said, pointing to the society reporter. He brought forward a brown-eyed young woman in a vivid evening frock who could scarcely take her eyes from the ruby necklace long enough to be presented. "I've got to be running along," Bowen went on. "But first," (lowering his voice) "thanks for shoeing the Countess out to me. I got a swell shot of her. Swell!"

"But I had nothing to do with it," Mary protested. "Did she leave the hotel?"

"Yes. Bruce was with her. I told him the picture was for the society page and he didn't seem to mind. But here's the news—Miss Brown here thinks she knows her!" He turned to his companion. "Tell her about it, will you, Bella?"

Miss Brown smiled. "I knew as soon as I saw the proofs that I'd seen her before," she said. "It was when I was doing some publicity for a steamship line. I was coming up from Havana on one of our boats. There was a French actress on board—at least, she said she was an actress. And she could certainly act! I'll say she could.

"She and young what's-his-name—oh, you know, the Newport society woman's son—can't think of his name—were together all the time on the boat coming up. He was only a kid, and he was gaga about her. She didn't claim to be a countess then—maybe that came later.

"Well, one night there was a big fracas in her stateroom—screams and a lot of thumps and bumps, like someone was getting beaten up. A steward and I took it on the run. Here was this rich boy sitting there stupidly, and her with her clothes half off, the place all mussed up. She pretended he'd half killed her. But I'm certain it was a frame-up.

"He said they were drinking together, as they'd done every day, when she suddenly began tearing off her clothes and slapping things. He thought she was drunk, but she wasn't. She knew what she was doing all right.

"It was hushed up. The boy's mother paid her off to keep the story from getting out. I was glad to let it ride, too. Steamship companies don't like that kind of rowdy publicity any more than anyone else. But we took care to see she didn't ship on our lines again, and turned our information about her over to the Department of Justice. I don't know what they did with it."

"Her name?" Mary asked. "Do you remember it?"

MISS BROWN shook her head. "Not clearly. Delorme, or something like that. Louise Delorme."

"I'm sending the pictures to the Department of Justice," Bowen cut in eagerly. "I'll have the dope on her in a short while. Neat, eh what?" He gave his companion a congratulatory whack on the back. "Brownie, I salute you!"

"I salute you both!" Mary cried. "It's the most phenomenal luck I ever heard of—your remembering that, Miss Brown. I can't tell you what it means to us all, or how much we thank you!"

"All except Bruce, perhaps," Bowen commented.

Not wishing to keep her two companions waiting any longer, Mary left them to go back to her party.

"Every minute you waste talking to these galleons of yours is costing the boss money," Bates scolded. "Pretty soon there won't be food enough in the place to fill me up."

"But wait till you hear," Mary crowed excitedly. "I've learned all about the Countess. And what nice little playmates you have!"

They turned toward the trellised gate which formed the entrance to the dining section of the roof. The place was crowded—too crowded for comfort. Extra tables had been squeezed in to accommodate the unexpected business which the fete, to be held later in the evening, had brought. Aisles were almost non-existent, and the dance floor had shrunk to half its size.

The chatter of the crowd, like the roar of a vast human surf, was confusing, and Mary stood still for an instant trying to discover a lane wide enough to squeeze through to reach their table.

Suddenly she was enveloped in a burst of blue-white radiance that almost blinded her, and effectually shut out of sight everything but the small circle of blazing light in which she stood. A ripple of laughter and applause from the crowd steadied her, and told her that they had merely been the victims of a "stunt." Each incoming party was being subjected to brilliant illumination by reflector lamps standing on either side of the entrance, by way of introduction.

Mary followed the beckoning arm of the head-waiter to their table, recognizable by the large white "Reserved" card which was whisked away as they approached.

Jupiter was muttering angrily. "What's the matter with the damn lights? Put a man's eyes out!" But Bates appeared to enjoy the unexpected publicity.

"That is what I call service!" he remarked. "And lady, you certainly do rate it, with those doll-rags on!"

IN the low-cut ivory satin, her dark head gleaming redly under the glare of the lights, Mary made a breath-taking picture framed in the doorway—the black velvet wrap dropped from slim, satin-smooth shoulders, the blood-red of the Jupiter automobile glowing warmly against the creamy sky.

It is true that not all the undertone of comment was kindly, and she felt it. But the embarrassment such knowledge brought only added a becoming flush to the pale cheeks, and a deeper radiance to the gray eyes. There were many here tonight who read their scandal papers, and remembered . . . and they frankly craned to get a view of the girl who was reputed to hold the Jupiter automobile millions in the hollow of her hand.

Well, the wise ones murmured, she was good looking enough certainly to have turned any man's head, particularly an old widower's who had spent close to 50 years of his life in respectable wedlock with his first and only wife. Jupiter was a lucky man, said these. And there were others who said "What though her engagement has just been announced to young Ruyter!" And still others pointed out, in rebuttal, that young Ruyter was conspicuous absent, and who could the young man expecting her be, anyhow? Just a herring drawn across the trail, replied the wise ones. And having exhausted the subject, they turned their attention to their food, and to a party of incoming dowagers, enduring the lights in their turn, and without either youth or conspicuous beauty to make the ordeal less trying.

Service was slow, but the soup arrived and still there was no sign of De Loma. If he were already there, he must be aware of their presence after that gaudy introduction. He must not be here. That was the only explanation.

Then he came. Mary heard his voice at her elbow, and jumped. She never knew where he came from, how he found his way to her side, without attracting notice. It was as if he had sprung from the ground at her feet in a burst of smoke, like Beelzebub. But the explanation was quite simple—lone males were not being honored with the spotlight. De Loma had simply walked in the 4th door, and by the very sensible process of following the narrow raised platform which skirted the room, just under the parapet, he had arrived by what seemed miraculous means at the Jupiter table.

SHE looked up quickly, in time to see the fatuous smile freeze on his face as he saw the rubies. His face went pale under its dark tan. The black eyes stared at the gems as if fascinated. His head jerked away as he saw her looking at him. It was the first betraying move she had ever seen him make. But it was enough—plainly the unexpected coming face-to-face with the necklace had unnerved him. He was nervous as a lover as he asked her to dance. A slow thrill of power slipped over Mary, drew her up straight and tall beside him. The rubies rattled on the polished bosom of his dress-shirt. He kept his eyes turned away—his ready gift of tongue seemed to have left him all at once.

The orchestra muted its voice and began to throbb out a waltz. The leader crooned the melody softly, in a yearning, passion-laden undertone. It was somehow reminiscent of that other night—the night of her engagement party—Mary thought, leaden-hearted. "If only Dirk were here now, to dance it with her—"

She looked about, not very hopefully. The lights had been dimmed until only the strings of swaying, breeze-shaken Japanese lanterns remained. By their uncertain illumination she saw a party being seated at a table beside the dance-floor—two girls and a man. There was much scraping of chairs, re-arranging of places and setting of wraps. It was impossible to see who they were, for they were in semi-darkness while a broad amber glow from a huge spotlight made the dance-floor a colorful melange of moving figures.

Something about the newcomer reminded Mary of Dirk. . . . her heart plunged wildly. She touched De Loma's arm.

"Over there—someone I want to see." Obligingly he turned about and led her past the table she indicated. Almost immediately they were abreast of it. She did not really expect it to be Dirk. . . . she had been seeing him in various total strangers, ever since she learned he was in the hotel. This no doubt was just another optical illusion.

Then suddenly she was looking directly into his eyes. For a long moment they saw no one else, he and she—just that long plunge of eye into eye while mixed emotions swept over them both.

There was a girl's surprised cry, "Why, Enrique!" It was Ethel, gaping at the man she believed to be in South America. De Loma barely nodded. Cornelia's face stared at them frigidly—white, angry, stunned.

Then in the space of an instant Dirk's face changed as if a mask had slipped over it. With a look of stony recognition, he turned away. (To Be Continued)

Man Charged On Liquor Counts

F. M. Neaves was bound over on $1,000 bond awaiting the action of the next grand jury after he was charged before Justice of the Peace W. S. Baxter with possession of intoxicating liquor for the purpose of sale and for transportation of intoxicating liquor for the purpose of sale. He made bond yesterday afternoon and was released.

City officers Bud Cottrell and O. T. Lindsay arrested Neaves and turned him over to county officers. Justice Baxter set bond at $500 on each count.

Many at Beef Canning Tuesday

A beef canning demonstration held at the farm of P. B. Farley near Groom Tuesday was attended by County Agent Ralph R. Thomas and Miss Myrtle Miller, home demonstration agent.

A half-dozen have been held in this community this fall. About 20 neighbors attended the demonstration. The calf used by Mr. Farley was in good condition, and three quarters filled more than 100 quarts of beef. This will be sufficient to last the family through the winter.

The new cutting and canning method introduced into Gray county by Mr. Thomas was used. This leaves the beef cut into natural cuts with muscles separated. The meat is seared in hot grease and then tinned and cooked in a pressure cooker. The process leaves the natural juices of the beef preserved in the cuts.

"HELP?"

... You Bet!"

It's all in the day's work, minister. When the call for funds to help the unemployment went out, I came across. And when they asked my business to do its part, we did it. And now I'm mighty glad to be able to help in a personal way; to help some needy folks. Count me in.

Yes... this is a call for personal help... for your time as well as your money. There are many families in Pampa who are making the best of a workless winter, but who will, despite all their efforts, suffer for lack of enough to eat, unless you help!

It's war... war against privation. We're meeting it with war-time measures. And so we ask you as a patriotic citizen to send in your contribution, or give freely when Welfare solicitors call upon you.

Pampa Daily News

FEMININE FANCIES

By Hollye Sellers Hinkle

"In winter I get up by night and dress by yellow candle light" said the poet, and he liked it. To get up with the chickens and watch the sun rise has its interesting points, but the man was not so dumb who said, "Oh, it's nice to get up in the morning, but it's nicer to lie in bed."

Here's a thought, however, that will spur us to early rising: Only a dozen more shopping days 'til Christmas.

Don't feel sorry for the ice man. Of course it's hard to deliver ice on cold mornings like this, but think of his low cost of operation. He can find his product in every water bucket.

And there's the milk man, who, of course, has his difficulties. But if he gets hungry all he has to do is open a bottle of milk, and there he will find all the ice cream he can eat.

And for the shivering news boy—there is always a red-hot story.

Someone said a wife can best make for herself a good husband by making for him a good wife.

In discussing the woman behind a man's job, Edith Johnson, Oklahoma columnist, says:

Three things a wife can do for her husband and that have a direct bearing on his business life: She can see to it that the family lives within its income and that he is not continually worried by unpaid bills. She can provide a cheerful, restful home environment and she can draw her husband into a circle of friends whose companionship will be worth something to him. She can support her husband morally and spiritually by giving him sympathy when he needs it and by strengthening him with her confidence in him and his ability.

"My greatest problem, often, in handling a man is his wife," said the president of a wholesale house. "If she co-operates with him, I have no trouble with him. But if she kills his ego, nags him for more money than he is making, or hinders him away in the morning with a threat such as 'You'd better get some orders today—this month's bills are not paid yet,' his case is pretty hopeless, and usually we have to let him go.

"But take another man whose wife stands by him through thick and thin. He will bring in business as long as there is a dollar of it to be had. Because he knows what he can count on from her, we know pretty well what we can count on from him. He isn't up today and down tomorrow. He doesn't have fits of moodiness or absent-mindedness. He isn't given to drinking and he is seldom sick.

"His wife does not send him away in the morning feeling like a whipped cur. If he does feel whipped at the end of a day of fruitless efforts, she sets him up with a smile or she tells him an amusing story that changes the current of his thoughts."

To aid her husband most, however, a woman must not be constantly thinking of "wifely duties." To be a real pal should be her aim. She should take an interest in things he is interested in, and these things include both business and pleasure. She must not consider herself "too dignified" to play with him.

There are few men who do not enjoy sports. Their wives should enjoy these sports with them. Hunting, fishing, hiking, and even such homely pleasures as playing ball in the back yard will make life more worth the living for both husband and wife, once they get started doing these things. Learn to play!

We have discussed our idea of an ideal wife. A man also has some responsibilities in addition to earning bread and butter for his family. We have not forgotten that and will discuss the man's part in making a happy family on another day.

WHITE DEER WOMAN ENTERTAINS LOCAL GROUP

BAPTISTS ARE COMPLIMENTED ON WEDNESDAY

GILSTRAP HOME GAY WITH CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS

Mrs. O. H. Gilstrap, formerly of Pampa, entertained in her White Deer home yesterday afternoon for a number of friends, most of them being members of the Central Baptist Woman's Missionary society of Pampa.

The three entertaining rooms were beautiful in Christmas decorations, including a lighted tree.

A short program was opened with a song, "Silent Night," sung by the guests. Ruth Catherine Swisher then read "The Founder of Christmas" and Mrs. O. C. Weakley read "Gethsemane."

An informal social hour followed, and Mrs. Weakley and Mrs. J. B. Hilburn assisted the hostess in serving a plate lunch, in which a red and green color scheme was stressed.

Gifts were exchanged from a Christmas tree and the Pampa Woman's Missionary society presented an embroidered sheet and pillow cases to Mrs. Gilstrap.

Pampa guests included Mrs. Stella Simon, Mrs. J. C. Barnard, and the following W. M. S. members: Mesdames E. Bass Clay, W. O. Cooley, Lloyd Satterwhite, D. L. Crawford, O. J. McAllister, J. M. White, George Berlin, Cecil Lunsford, E. E. Chapman, C. F. Naylor, J. M. Fitzgerald, G. L. Moore, J. Chris Walker, Kelly Langard, H. C. Chandler, D. H. Coffey, T. M. Gillham, O. L. Beaty, S. L. COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsion of creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Shoe Display Is Not Very Easy

Joe Lazarus, who is good at winning window display prizes, decorated a window in his Brownbilt shoe store that he is proud of. Mr. Lazarus points out that it is harder to decorate a shoe window than any other; first, because one has to fill it full of shoes.

The decorations were painted and cut out of board paper at Mr. Lazarus' orders. They include a snow scene at Christmas time. There are several trees, a little snow-covered cottage, children playing in the snow and blowing bubbles and riding and pushing a sleigh. The "ground" is covered with "snow" and tinsel.

JUNGLE TOURISTS

An American explorer recently advertised for a limited number of adventurers who will be willing to pay him $5000 apiece to be conducted across South America on a trip over the Andes, through the jungles and down the Amazon; and for some reason or other this news tends to make a man feel a bit melancholy.

Perhaps this melancholy springs from jealousy, for it would be hard to imagine a trip anywhere on the globe that would not be surprisingly interesting. But there is, in the announcement, an indication that the days of real adventure are over with forever, a sign that the travels of the conquistadors have come down to the level of a personally conducted tour; and such reminders are not pleasant.

For if there ever was on this earth a land of wonder and terror, it was that enormous stretch of choking jungle and frozen mountains that lies between Para, at the mouth of the Amazon, and the west coast of South America. Until comparatively recently no man entered it lightly.

There was the land in which no man could count on tomorrow until it actually arrived. Wild beauty, impenetrable mystery, danger that was always hidden and yet always just around the corner—these marked almost every mile of the journey. If the jungle didn't strike a man down, the Indians with their poisoned arrows and their quaint habit of embalming heads were more than likely to; if these failed, the blizzards of the Andean passes were quite apt to do the job.

But the men who made the trip, and lived to tell about it, never seemed to have any regrets. The country held wonders. Long-buried Inca cities lay there, empty for countless centuries. Raleigh's golden city was there somewhere, too, though he never could find it, not even with his own neck at stake. There were gold mines, lost empires, fabulous tribes of strange men—material to keep a romancer busy for a lifetime.

But it's different now. For $5000 you can get an explorer to take you through—not to look for anything, but just to make the trip. The old days, it seems, are gone for good.

Local Men Are Hunting Geese on Canadian River

On a goose hunt to the Canadian river yesterday afternoon went Mel Davis, Clyde Patherese, Lynn Boyd, Chas. O. Cook, and C. P. Buckler.

The Pampa men carried with them a number of live decoys and they expected to bring back enough Canadian honkers to impress their neighbors. They took their camping outfit with them, and each was dressed and loaded for geese.

McConnell Is on Gas Committee

Roger McConnell, Gray county oil and gas land owner, was appointed a member of the committee to conduct an investigation into operations of pipeline companies and to establish a fair price for Panhandle gas. Gas royalty owners met in Amarillo yesterday to organize to fight the low rate, especially of the Texoma Natural Gas company.

Representatives from Gray county were Roger McConnell, Lee McConnell, I. B. Hughey, J. M. Saunders, and J. G. Noel.

Commissioners in some counties will be asked to intervene. Mr. McConnell said this morning. He declared that some companies report they are paying six cents for gas and giving 25 per cent of the gas-line for royalty while the counties are getting tax on only 2 cents per 1,000 feet. The increase in price demanded by the royalty owners would mean thousands of dollars additional tax money for counties.

Mr. McConnell will attend a committee meeting Monday to advance plans for a fight for better prices.

Civic Clubs Are To Meet Soon In Cage Tournament

The civic club basketball championship of the city will be settled on Thursday evening of next week at the high school gymnasium.

Lions, Kiwanians, and Rotarians will put their best athletes on the floor. The winner of the first game will play the third five for the title. Proceeds will be used in the Christmas charity work of the clubs. The contest was announced this noon at the Lions club by L. L. Sone, who will coach the animals.

The program of the club today featured Miss Iva June Willis of Central high school faculty and Under Grand opera. Costumed, a student trio composed of Miss Dorothy Doucette, Malcolm Carr, and Edward Whittenburg gave a tawful and humorous burlesque on grand opera. Then Miss Doucette and Malcolm Carr sang "When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain," with Miss Willis accompanying.

H. Otto Studer, today's program chairman, called on various members of the men's public speaking class for "brilliant oratory." News flashes by the Associated Press were given by Olin E. Hinkle.

Visitors today included Tom White of Lubbock, Judge W. I. Gamewell of Canyon, David M. Warren, and R. S. (Bob) Brashears.

Pierce "Kidd" Brewer, Duke full-back and 1931 leader, has been captain of nine different athletic teams since his grade school days.

CITY BUILDER

—By Fred's Studio

Marvin W. Lewis, owner of the Pampa Motor company, has lived in Pampa for the last six years. Three and one-half years ago he acquired the Pontiac agency and established his company at its present location on North Ballard. Prior to that time he was in charge of the finance and credit department of the Rose Motor company.

Mr. Lewis is a native of the Panhandle. He was born at Canadian and attended public schools there. He attended the University of Colorado at Boulder, Colo., three years, studying economics and business administration. His father, W. W. Lewis has lived at Canadian since 1898.

Mr. Lewis was married in 1926. He and Mrs. Lewis have two daughters—Majorie Ruth and Bonabelle. The family lives at 909 North Somerville. Mr. Lewis is a member of the Masonic lodge at Canadian, the First Baptist church here, the Junior Chamber of Commerce. He is treasurer of the Baptist church, and is prominent in church activities.

Mr. Lewis became an active supporter of civic projects soon after he moved to Pampa. He gave able assistance as a solicitor in the drive to buy right-of-way for the Clinton and Oklahoma Western railroad which was built to Pampa several years ago. Last year he help put over the Community Chest campaign, and this year he aided in raising funds to finance the Red Cross work in this community.

Mr. Lewis does not play golf, and fishing does not particularly appeal to him, but he likes to hunt. His business gives him plenty of exercise, he says. It is Mr. Lewis' opinion that a business man nowadays will get enough exercise if he attends to his own affairs in a capable manner. Speaking from his own experience, he remarked that a man's children will afford sufficient opportunities for play of a thoroughly exhaustive nature of he takes advantage of them.

Santa Claus Is In Narrow Escape

CHICAGO, Dec. 10. (AP)—Santa Claus almost got shot last night.

He was moving into the basement of the Max Pander home when Sonny Pander, left alone to guard the house by his mother while she went shopping, heard a noise.

Sonny telephoned the police. Policeman George Zahora was sent to the scene. In the basement he found a figure moving behind a Christmas tree.

"Come out from behind that tree or I'll shoot," he commanded.

"Don't do it," was the reply. "I'm no burglar. I'm Max Pander just trying to smuggle in a Christmas tree so my boy, Sonny, won't hear."

B. E. Kirby of Kingsmill made a business trip to Pampa yesterday. Mrs. Robert Gilchrist and children are visiting in Amarillo today.

temporary adjustments," he emphasized.

The foreign debt commission would go into the debt question in the light of "the present economic emergency," and make recommendations to congress.

Wide Discussions

Mr. Hoover ranged from Manchuria to Mexico and from the St. Lawrence waterway to Paraguay. He again urged adherence to the world court and vigorous action by the world at large to curb armaments.

The president asked legislative sanction for the moratorium with-in the next five days, for it is on Dec. 15 that the next payments from abroad fall due.

He suggested provision for payment of the instruments withheld over a 10-year period, beginning July 1, 1933.

His statement of last spring that "I do not approve in any remote sense of the cancellation of the debts to us," was repeated.

Other than to reiterate America's "responsibility in maintaining the integrity of China," he confined his discussion of the Manchurian situation to a review of steps taken.

Cites Safeguards

As to the world court, the president said safeguards against European entanglements stipulated by the senate have been obtained "and the interests of the United States protected." He recalled that for 12 years every president and secretary of state has sought adherence.

There was an expression of hope that negotiations with Canada over the St. Lawrence waterway would result in work upon the project "within a reasonable time."

Much of the body of the message dealt with Latin American affairs.

Jimmy Wilson, negro, is being held in the county jail in connection with an alleged shoplifting attempt at Deak's Department store this morning. He was questioned for several hours by Sheriff Lon L. Blansett, but the negro persisted in his claim that "them white folks is lying on me."

CHASTAIN CAN DO MORE THAN BARK SIGNALS

LOCAL CAPTAIN THINKS HE'S INSULTED BY MALIN

Captain Ray Chastain of the 1931 Harvester football squad considers himself slapped down and he says he is not going to take it without a comeback. Yesterday morning Jerry Malin, sports writer for the Amarillo News, was telling the Pampa sports scribe how crazy and blind he was in picking an all-conference football team and he stepped on Captain Chastain's toes while doing it.

"The Pampa writer picked Chastain for all-conference quarterback. The Amarillo columnist comes back and says: 'I want a smart, heady quarterback on my team who can do more than bark numbers.' Then he went on and told how good Enochs looked against Lubbock. Enoch has looked good against Lubbock but it takes more than one good game to make an all-conference team, Captain Chastain remarks.

"Chesty" can do more than bark signals, if Pampa fans can use their eyes. He can carry the ball, as Amarillo knows and as Lubbock knows and as a few more teams know Chastain can block with the best of them and when it comes to running interference he is all right. Then Chastain has intercepted more passes than any other football player in District I. He scored 16 touchdowns during the past season and kicked 18 points after touchdowns. Pampa fans believe that should prove that Chastain can do more than "bark signals."

CAGE TEAM IS YET UNKNOWN

Coach Mitchell Gives Every Lad Chance to Show His Capabilities.

And still no Harvester basketball team has been picked. Coach Odus Mitchell thought he had a tough time picking his football squad, but that was easy work compared to the job on his hands now.

The opening game of the season is tomorrow night at the local gymnasium at 7:15 o'clock. There are so many good boys for nearly every position on the team that it is doubtful whether the coach will be able to choose his team until a few games have been played.

The Shamrock green and white clad boys will oppose the Harvesters tomorrow night. Coach Mitchell said yesterday afternoon that he would probably use all his material so that he can see how they looked under fire. Railbirds predict that Enloe and Moore will start the game as forwards and that Marbaugh will get the call for center. The guard positions will see Wayne Kelly and Sharpe in action. How near that lineup will conform with Coach Mitchell's idea of a first string will be seen when the boys take the floor against Shamrock.

Newcomers to the quintet are looking particularly good in practice. Several of the old guard will also be heard from before long. They haven't succeeded in getting all the football out of their system.
The Gorillas and the girls are practicing daily, and with the Harvesters also doing a daily two hours, the gymnasium is about the busiest place in the city.

Negro Orchestra Opens At Majestic

Little Rod and his ten musicians arrived here yesterday and played their opening engagement at the Majestic ballroom last night. The large crowd was pleased by the music presented by them.

Frank Hunt, manager, doesn't know how long he can keep the new orchestra, as their services are in great demand.
The orchestra came here from Amarillo, where it played over radio for a short time. The musicians had just finished a long vaudeville tour of the north central states before making Amarillo. They will play Wednesday and Saturday nights.

Harry Jones and his orchestra left for Amarillo for a brief engagement before going to Albuquerque, N. M.

FORT WORTH, Dec. 10. (AP)—The jury in the murder trial of Carter Rollins, 19, negro, charged with killing D. L. Reed, farmer, was discharged last night. It was unable to agree. District Attorney Martin said the case would be set for trial again in January.

BRIDGE CLASSIC OPENS

The bridge "battle of the century" was beginning when the Culbertson and Lenz teams pictured here began the first game of their 150-rubber, five-week match to be played in New York. Left to right are: Ely Culbertson, sponsor of the "official" system; Sidney Lenz, backer of the one-two-three system; Oswald Jacoby, member of the unbeaten "Four Horsemen" of contract play. Standing in the center is Lieutenant Alfred M. Gruenther, of West Point, outstanding American authority on duplicate bridge, who will referee the match. Culbertson has staked $5000 on the result of the match, against $1000 posted by Lenz, and the amounts are destined for charity.

ARMY MAY BE HARD PUT TO DEFEAT NAVY

MIDDIES SHOW POWER IN LAST THREE GAMES

NEW YORK, Dec. 10. (AP)—Although the season's records of the Army and Navy football teams, seem to give the Cadets a big margin over traditional rivals, there is every indication that the contest will be as close as Army-Navy games usually are.

In ten games each has played so far, Army's record shows seven victories and tie against two defeats and only one of the two was a bad beating. Navy lost two games by 20 to 0 scores and two by close margins while winning five and tying one.

Navy showed few signs of real strength until its last three games and then improved steadily. In the Pennsylvania game last week, "Bullet Lou" Kirn, the midshipmen's chief offensive threat, came back in better form than ever before.

And Sam Moncur, new quarterback got a "punch" into the Navy his predecessors had not been able to uncover.

Against this and Navy's strong defense, Army has the team that trounced Notre Dame 12 to 0. Ray Stecker who beat Navy last year and who performed brilliantly against Notre Dame, is the kingpin of the Cadet attack, but Tom Kilday has been performing with special brilliance in practice this week and there are plenty of other good backs.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 10. (AP)—Swept from his high pinnacle by a youngster playing in his second tournament, Erwin Rudolph of Cleveland, defending champion, today found himself on the second rung of the ladder at the world's championship billiard tournament now in its second week.

The veteran cue artist was administered a surprise trouncing last night by Marcel Camp, 23, of Detroit, 125 to 24, in seven innings. The upset automatically put Ralph Greenleaf, former champion at the top of the heap with four victories to his credit and no losses. Rudolph has played five games in this meet and Camp was the first man to best him.

The Detroit star, the only left-hander in the tournament, had won only one of five contests when he stepped up to meet the champion.

NEGRO GETS LIFE

PADUCAH, Dec. 10. (AP)—Life imprisonment was the penalty assessed Arthur Adams, negro, by a jury here.

Adams, captured last week in Quarah, was charged with killing R. L. Autry of Aquila. The capture was effected when Adams was forced by hunker to leave a river bottom where he had been hiding.

BUFF SQUAD LOOKS FAST

Sad Sam Burton Expects Another Pennant From His Tall Boys.

CANYON, Dec. 10.—Basketball practice at the West Texas State Teachers college is progressing satisfactorily to most of the numerous fans who watch from the gallery each day. It seems that Coach Burton, who is noted for his championship basketball teams, is not quite settled on his first five men.

George Ray Colvin, from Turkey, and Edwin "Colossus" Comer of Clovis, N. M., seem to be his first choice for the forward positions. Each of these lads looks down on the world from an altitude of 6 feet 5 inches.

Joe "College" Fortenberry looks like the best bet at center. He sees the world from an elevation of 6 feet 7 inches. Otis Burk, who played at forward last year, has been shifted to guard and it looks as though Burk, Captain Clark, Guy Richards, and Leo Cooper will have a merry chase for the starting position at guard.

Russell Stroun of Eldorado, Okla., another elongated lad of 6 feet 4 inches, will prove a worthy understudy for Fortenberry at center, but he may be shifted to a guard position. He lacks in experience, but is a hard worker, eager to learn and such candidates progress rapidly under the tutelage of the "big coach."

There are a number of capable forwards that may cause Comer and Colvin to extend themselves. Frank Monroe, G. C. Fitzgerald, and Milton Morris are all letter men and thoroughly capable of carrying on. D. J. Phillips, Jack Spence, and L. A. Stowe, all new men on the Buff court, are showing well. Phillips especially should see some service this year. He stands 6 feet 3 1/2 inches and has an uncanny eye for the basket.

Troutman, a reserve from last year, of Dumas, is also showing well at guard, as is "Slats" Weatherby, while Whitford Fowler, another Lockney product, gives promise of developing into a good forward. Leonard Britt, a Canyon product, is another good guard prospect.

CHILEAN MOB "LOBBIES" WITH MULLIGAN STEW

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 10. (AP)—A mob "lobbied" the Chilean congress last night with dried fish and a mulligan stew bombardment of unions, other vegetables and crockery.

Unsuccessful in forcing the congress to dissolve as they demanded, the mob retreated into the streets, stoned and wrecked street cars and store windows and had begun to lay down a barrage of pistol fire when the streets were cleared by 1,000 policemen.

Denton Eagles Win Big Title

DENTON, Dec. 10. (AP)—The North Texas State Teachers college Eagles were football champions of the Texas Interscholastic Athletic association today.

They won the title by defeating the Daniel Baker college, 32 to 13, in a post-season game here yesterday. The teams were tied, 13 to 13 at the half, but Denton swept to victory in short order when play was resumed. Wright made three touchdowns for Denton.

PLAYER MART IS STILL OPEN AS MAJORS ARGUE

CHICAGO, Dec. 10. (AP)—The player market was still wide open today as the majors met jointly to discuss common problems.

The Chicago Cubs' angle of the Hack Wilson question was settled by one of baseball's biggest deals, which sent the former home run champion to the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for Burleigh Grimes, pitching hero of the last world series. However, there was more than a slight possibility that Wilson would be used as trading timber by the Cardinals. Bud Teahout, the young left-handed pitcher who also went to the Cards in the transaction, was said to be slated for a job with one of the St. Louis minor league farms.

Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, was reported to have something pointed to say as he presided over the joint meeting. His theme was expected to concern actions of several clubs in connection with the option rule.

The sacrifice fly rule and the reduction of the player limit were certain to be thoroughly discussed. It was reliably reported that no change in the sacrifice fly rule would be made and a reduction of the player limit from 25 to 21 men, as has been suggested, was considered hardly likely.

A. Maples, Crossett shoe salesman who has been coming to Pampa for the last 20 years, was a business visitor at Carter's Men's store yesterday.

HORTON SMITH SETTING PAGE IN GOLF MEET

YOUNG MISSOURIAN IS DOING WELL AT 'FRISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 10. (AP)—Paced by Horton Smith, tall young Missourian, some 133 surviving amateurs and professionals unlimbered their clubs today for the second round of the 36-hole qualifying tests for the $7,500 national open match play golf championship.

Smith turned in a brilliant 69, four under par for the Lake Merced course, to lead nearly 200 starters in the first half of the qualifying round. Players with scores of 66 or over were automatically retired, but all outstanding performers came through.

On his game from tee to green, Smith was a favorite to win medal honors in the race for the 32 qualifying places. One stroke behind the leader was Gene Sarazen of Great Neck, L. I., one-time national open champion.

Mrs. Emma Jackson of Pampa and Bob Burgess of Canyon transacted business at Chickasha, Okla., Tuesday and Wednesday.

ST LOUIS HAS GROWING PAINS BECAUSE OF NARROW STREETS

CORRECTIONS TO COST CITY ENORMOUS AMOUNT

(By D.M.W.)
An old city that prospers has growing pains. St. Louis is no exception. Founded in 1763, it is easy to understand that most of the old streets are narrow and inadequate to take care of the modern city of today. Spending of millions of dollars for street widening is today necessary. Many, many times visitors to Pampa have expressed their surprise at the width of the streets. The visitors know that Pampa's streets are wide enough to enable the development of a well-planned city.

St. Louis a year or two ago voted an $80,000,000 bond issue. This money will be spent for improvements that could have been made generations ago at nominal cost. St. Louis has an ambitious program of beauty planning. A plaza will be built from the union station to the public library. Already buildings opposite the station have been demolished. Steam shovels are now clearing the rubbish from the basements.

When the great buildings on the plaza are completed, the city will have one of the most beautiful public building sections in America. It will require several years to make the improvements, but St. Louis is looking forward to the municipal advancements outlined.

Hundreds of old buildings will be torn down. Condemnation of property will take time. Another disadvantage of being an old city is the accumulation of old buildings. Fortunately, the plaza section will be largely in the region of out of date buildings.

St. Louis merchants believe in spectacular things. They know that good newspaper advertising will bring customers into the stores. Six, Baer and Fuller (Grand Leader) carried 72 columns or nine full pages in the St. Louis STAR the other afternoon. This was in addition to good space carried in the Globe-Democrat, Post-Dispatch and Times.

Those merchants know that they must advertise in a big way to attract the Christmas business they should. The Six, Baer and Fuller store has a $20,000 Christmas stunt. A dinosaur is the backbone of the Christmas display. The dinosaur has electrical contraptions and both adults and children enjoy watching it. A five year old nephew has seen it several times, but wants to see it every opportunity.

The Famous Barr store is one of the largest in the nation. It is a solid block each way and has about 14 stories. Although it was the first of December, it was difficult to plow one's way through the main floor. A sky rocket stunt costing approximately $35,000, is the center of its Christmas activities, together with a midget village. The smallest clerks in the store are assigned to the midget stores. In addition, there are six or seven midgets from circuses and carnivals. With a visit to Santa Claus himself, it is no wonder that the exhibit is packed every afternoon.

You can eat in St. Louis just as cheap or just as high as you wish. Food generally is cheap. The largest and best cafeteria in St. Louis was filled at 5:30 one afternoon. Believe it or not, there was a double line of customers running into the street. When one is visiting though, he doesn't have the time to try out as many dining rooms or restaurants.

Visitors are urged to see Shaw's Gardens. These gardens have one of the largest displays of flowers, shrubs and trees in the country. The annual chrysanthemum show brought out 10,000 people a couple of Sundays ago. The management

Local Salesman Is Made "Mayor"

E. T. Wood, salesman for the Thompson Hardware company, General Electric refrigerator distributors in Pampa, has been elected "mayor" of Coneston, according to word received today from headquarters of the General Electric refrigerator department in Cleveland, Ohio. Wood's election was brought about by a record number of sales made during a 10-week sales contest, known as the Monitor Top election campaign, which ended a few days ago.

A prize was awarded Wood in the form of an engraved gold-plated safety razor set of the same kind presented recently to each governor of the United States. In addition to this, a number of other valuable prizes were obtained by him as a result of credits gained through making these sales. Wood states that he lacks only 10 General Electric refrigerator sales before Dec. 30 to entitle him to a trip to Havana, Cuba, as a guest of the E. O. Cone company, and the General Electric company.

R. A. Thompson of the Thompson Hardware company was presented a beautiful silver-plated specially designed and engraved fountain pen desk set as a trophy for his work in the campaign. On January first he will assume the office of congressman from the State of Con in the mythical land of "Refrigerania."

The sales record established by Wood and Thompson has gained national recognition.

Freak Games In Bowling Produced

Two freak games have been rolled at the Pampa Bowling Alleys this week. The first freak was the work of Jesse Young, manager of the Panhandle Hardware company of White Deer. The other odd game was rolled by Tom Darby, local painter.

Mr. Young rolled a game with a total score of 199. The last figure in each of the ten frames also was nine. The scores by frames follow: 19, 39, 59, 79, 99, 119, 159, 179, 199. Mr. Young made four strikes and the rest spares.

The freak game rolled by Mr. Darby was for a 200 score. The last figure in each frame of Mr. Darby's game was a zero. Scores by frames follow: 20, 40, 60, 80, 100, 120, 140, 160, 180 and 200. He alternated with a spare and strike starting off with a spare.

is always developing a show of some kind, and people love flowers. It is no surprise that women, and even some men, never tired of visiting the gardens.

Tomorrow: St. Louis newspapers and a day with a reporter.

PICTURESQUE PLAINSMAN NOW WITH INDIAN AFFAIRS GROUP

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10. (AP)—Plainman of the era of Buffalo Bill and Deadwood Dick is Representative Edgar Howard, 73-year-old Nebraskaan, who becomes chairman of the Indian affairs committee with the house turnover.

In background and in garb Howard fits the role. His long hair, long-tailed coat, black bow tie and broad-brimmed black hat are, he says, a lifetime habit—heritage from Quaker ancestry.

But the old west way he wears them reveals a first cousin kinship to the costumes of Colonel Cody's shows. His appearance also has a faint tang of resemblance to the late William Jennings Bryan—Howard first came to Washington as Representative Bryan's secretary.

"From the time I was 10 years old, I have known Indians," said Howard today in his low slow drawl. "In Osceola, Iowa, where I was born my father was in the merchandising and livestock business. He bought some of the first longhorns ever driven up from Texas for corn feeding."

Howard's cow range experiences always were mixed with newspapering, he said. He covered the country as a tramp printer and 45 years ago he was combining cowboy sharpshooting with editing the Dundy County Democrat at Benkelman, Nebraska. He was twice shot and slightly wounded, he recalled, by people who didn't like what he printed.

All the Indians now left in the state of Nebraska are concentrated in Howard's district, where he still combines newspapering and politics—but his sharpshooting days are over and he edits a daily now.

Missing Woman Is Found Today

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Dec. 10. (AP) Two days of searching for Beatrice Barclay Pickereil, 15-year-old wife of Bevis T. Pickereil, 28, who operates a fleet of motor trucks, ended last night when she was found by her husband with friends at Essex Falls, four miles from her home.

Mrs. Pickereil fled from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Barclay, Monday night after she had separated from the man with whom she eloped last August. She fashioned a rope from bed sheets and lowered herself from a bedroom window.

C. C. Julian Again Taken to Court

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 10. (AP)—Tangled affairs of C. C. Julian, oil promoter charged with mail fraud, were involved in further litigation today.

John Head, Oklahoma City attorney, was appointed receiver for the Black Warrior company, a Julian enterprise, after W. M. Cady, president, admitted allegations with L. E. Trout, a stockholder, that the company was in danger of losing its assets, chiefly oil property in Wichita county, Texas, through failure to pay taxes. Cady disclaimed responsibility. He said records of the company had been lost or destroyed.

Young Bride Is Shot to Death

(AP)—Mrs. Grace Guiliano, 28, a bride of six months, was shot dead in her bath last night.

The bullet, fired from a .22 caliber rifle, came through a window pane and struck her in the back as she was preparing to draw water into the tub.

Her husband of six months, Joseph, who was downstairs reading, heard her scream. She was unconscious when he reached her side and was dead before she could be taken to a hospital.

The shot that killed her was not the first fired last night in the fashionable neighborhood in which the Guiliano home stands. As the husband, seeking help, ran from the house, he came upon a group of policemen who were investigating the circumstances of a shot fired through a window at the nearby home of J. C. Dorn.

STUDENTS GIVE MUCH TROUBLE AT SHANGHAI

PARIS, Dec. 10. (AP)—A note from the Chinese government at Nanking to the League of Nations council today said Japanese cavalry were advancing west of the Liao river in Manchuria and the Japanese have appointed 19 Chinese regimental commanders to organize "lawless elements" to disturb Chinchow.

Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese spokesman, also reported three Japanese airplanes dropped bombs on Tien-changtai and Tawa yesterday.

Dr. Sze and Sir Eric Drummond, league secretary general, conferred with Ambassador Charles G. Dawes today.

Ambassador Kenkichi Yoshizawa presented a formal declaration of Japan's attitude to the council today, following receipt of new instructions from Tokyo overnight, concerning the "bandit measures" he proposed to present as a reservation to the league's peace resolution and Chairman Briand's commentary on it.

The 12 neutral members of the council went into secret session at noon to consider the declaration.

The question was whether Japan's reservation can weather a public session of the council without counter-reservations by other parties.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 10. (AP)—Barbed wire barricades went up in Shanghai's streets today as upwards of 5,000 students, protesting that the government's Manchurian policy was too mild, imprisoned the Chinese mayor in his office and raided the rooms of other municipal departments.

Some of the disturbances occurred near the French concession and French authorities immediately established military patrols and closed
