Senate votes tax change to offset 'bracket creep'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, adopting one of the most sweeping tax changes in modern times over Reagan administration reservations, is backing automatic annual reductions in personal income taxes to offset the "bracket creep" caused by inflation.

The "indexing" provision, approved on a 57-40 vote Thursday, is supported in principle by half the members of the House and by President Reagan. But the administration unsuccessfully sought to keep the indexing plan off the president's tax-cut bill.

The amendment, sponsored by Sen. William L. Armstrong, R-Colo., would adjust personal tax rates, the $1,000 individual exemption and the standard deduction to offset inflation, starting in 1985.

For example, if inflation as measured by the Consumer Price Index was 10 percent in 1984, the following year the exemption would be raised to $1,100, the $3,400 standard deduction for a couple would be increased to about $3,750 and rates would be reduced 10 percent across the board. That would cut taxes an estimated $37.4 billion in 1985.

With the administration's support, the Senate also approved a major new incentive for savings, aimed partially at solving the financial plight of the homebuilding and savings-and-loan industries. It would cost $8.7 billion from 1982 through 1985.

The new provision, which would allow a person to earn $1,000 in tax-free interest from a special new one-year savings certificate, would benefit mainly people with incomes above $30,000 a year. It would be financed in part by ending a current interest exemption which is claimed widely by low- and middle-income families.

The two amendments, and an unrelated one affecting Social Security, occupied the Senate until almost midnight Thursday as it worked on Reagan's plan for a 25 percent, across-the-board cut in income-tax rates over 33 months, starting Oct. 1.

In the House, meanwhile, the Ways and Means Committee completed the first round of work on its own tax-cut measure, which would reduce tax rates an average of about 15 percent over two years and target extra relief to families with incomes under $50,000 a year.

House and Senate leaders want to wrap up the tax package and get it to Reagan before starting their August vacation. That would ensure a small share of the personal tax cuts in the last three months of this year.

Armstrong said his indexing amendment does more to achieve fairness in the tax laws than any other provision of the tax-cut bill. "This was a vote for the poor, the people and the dollar," he said.

Opponents criticized it as a surrender to inflation.

"This will insulate one more group of our citizens from the evils of inflation," said Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I. "If we are ever to go to whip inflation, it is absolutely essential that all groups feel the pain."

Carbon black employees to be questioned in arsenic probe

Cabot security officer Frank Leonard of Boston said today he will be questioning employees of the Cabot Carbon Black Plant for any new information that could lead officials to understand how arsenic was added to a coffee pot at the plant.

Lab analysis of the coffee was requested after eight employees became ill on their July 9 shifts from drinking the brew. Laboratory results verifying the substance as arsenic were received Wednesday by Cabot Carbon Black Plant officials.

An investigation by Leonard and the Gray County Sheriff's Department was launched immediately after results were received.

"We would still like to think that this was an accident and not deliberate," Leonard said. "But at this time, we just don't have any more information."

"We would like to talk to everyone here that could shed some light on how the arsenic got into the coffee," he said.

A check with employees of a local chemical distributor, C.E. NATCO of Pampa, revealed that legally anyone can buy arsenic just by checking the contents of commercial rat poison found in many local stores. A spokesman said these pesticides generally contain the arsenic.

Stan Burnham, Cabot Carbon Black Plant Manager, said late Thursday, "We even had all of our pesticides analyzed to see if any of them contained the arsenic. There was no arsenic in the pesticides."

Burnham also said that the poison is not used in the plant for any procedures.

Clements considers adding topics to summer special session

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says legislators are doing so well with the five special session topics he gave them that he might add some other summer reruns to the schedule.

"A day does not go by where we do not talk about adding to the call," Clements told reporters Thursday, adding, "I wouldn't be surprised to see it opened up to a few particular items."

The special session opened Monday with lawmakers facing a list of items unresolved in the regular session, including congressional redistricting, a Medical Practices Act, "fine tuning" the Property Tax Code, abolishing the state property tax and a water trust fund.

Clements said only the Medical Practices Act seems to be "really stuck."

"I want these five items addressed first," he said.

The list of proposed additions for the 30-day summer session has topped 100. Measures to legalize bingo and give gasoline a tax break are the two most favored by letter-writers, according to Clements.

However, the first priority could be finding a new way to finance 17 state universities that don't share in the Permanent University Fund. Legislators now are working towards a constitutional amendment that would abolish the state property tax that once was used to fund the non-PUF schools.

"We are continuing to discuss it. Certainly it's being given consideration," Clements said of college funding.

He added that "most" of the state college presidents support an $80 million dedicated fund for the non-PUF schools.

Clements, Speaker Bill Clayton, and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby will meet next week to decide whether to add college funding to the call.

The governor said his call might allow lawmakers to debate expanding the PUF to universities outside the University of Texas and Texas A&M systems.

Clements is happy about the congressional redistricting bill steered through the Senate by Sen. John Wilson, D-La Grange. The measure, which sets up the minority district in Dallas that Clements supports, won approval Wednesday from a Senate committee made up of all members.

"I want to compliment John Wilson for his very statesmanlike performance in the Texas Senate," said Clements. "It was an outstanding job, perhaps the most outstanding since I've been down here in Austin as governor."

The governor acknowledged that the plan could give Republicans an extra congressional seat from Dallas. He chided Sens. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, and Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, for pushing a plan that would make re-election easier for Dallas Democratic U.S. Reps. Jim Mattox and Martin Frost.

"As they jumped into bed together it didn't turn out very well," Clements said of the Democrats.

Clements predicted the House would approve a different plan and the matter would be solved in conference committee.

Experts say spraying came too late to save California crops

LOS GATOS, Calif. (AP) — As the Mediterranean fruit fly expands its turf, agricultural experts say the battle to save the state's produce industry from the insect may already be lost, despite aerial spraying of pesticides.

Five helicopters took off early today, trying to bring the program back on schedule after mechanical problems during the first three days curtailed spraying. The aircraft were to remain in the air until after sunrise.

The fruit fly, which attacks 200 varieties of fruits and vegetables, has moved to within 20 miles of San Francisco and within 40 miles of the rich farmlands of the San Joaquin Valley, officials said.

The area considered heavily infested with maggots rose to 175 square miles Thursday, and critics charged that a lackluster performance by helicopter crews spraying the insecticide malathion has brought California and its $14 billion agricultural industry to the brink of disaster. In the first three days of spraying, 25 square miles were sprayed.

"If they've fouled up for over a year, they're certainly not going to eradicate it now," said entomologist Terrance Allen, who headed the medfly eradication effort last year.

"It's a matter of time before we'll be picking up Mediterranean fruit fly in the San Joaquin Valley, Santa Barbara Valley (and) Imperial Valley," Allen said, naming the famed farm areas further south of the infestation.

"It even has a chance to go into northern California, into Oregon and maybe Washington," he said.

Allen claims that Gov. Edmund Brown waited too long to order aerial malathion sprays. He said he was demoted to a lesser state government job because of his advocacy of stronger action against the pest.

Allen's opinions were echoed by Frank Gilstrap, a Texas A&M University entomologist and member of the California Medfly Technical Advisory Committee. He charged Thursday that failure to spray by air when the heavy infestation was discovered in June was "absolutely unconscionable."

He said the spraying is desperately behind schedule and predicted only a 50-50 chance of success.

Santa Clara, San Mateo and Alameda counties, which are under a produce quarantine, "must be sprayed within 10 days to catch the pupas' development into an adult insect," he said. "When that cycle is allowed to take place uninterrupted, another generation of pests joins the population."

Brown, however, brushed off the criticism and said Thursday that containment efforts, based here are "on track" and prospects for eradication are good.

Brown initially refused to order aerial spraying, saying he feared that it might be harmful to human health, but reversed himself after the federal government threatened to impose a quarantine on all state produce.

Maynard trial moved up one day

District Attorney Harold Comer said today the date of the murder trial of Preston Wayne Maynard, 45, accused of shooting his wife to death in their mobile home Dec. 10, has been moved from July 28 to July 27.

"We'll start picking a jury Monday the 27th, instead of Tuesday," Comer said. He said jury selection will begin in the 31st District court room at 9 a.m.

"The state expects to produce 13 witnesses on the murder trial," Comer said. "A lot of those will be laboratory people."

Wednesday, Maynard and his attorneys, Bill Kolus of Amarillo and Ken Fields of Pampa, appeared before District Judge Grainger McIlhenny to present five motions of defense concerning the production of evidence intended to be used by the state as evidence in the trial, Comer said.

After hearing the pretrial motions, McIlhenny required the district attorney's office to furnish the defense an opportunity to see any evidence to be used in the trial, with the exception of the statements of witnesses, Comer said.

The witnesses' statements would be provided after their testimony in the trial for the defense's use in cross examination, the district attorney said.

"The court ruled favorably for the defense's request that the state furnish copies of all lab reports," he added.

Comer said, in addition, McIlhenny ruled that the district attorney could not refer to Maynard by any name other than his Christian surname unless the DA first approached the judge.

Maynard was arrested Dec. 11, 1980, and charged with first-degree murder in the shooting death of his 40-year-old wife, Shirley.

The shooting occurred at the couple's mobile home in the Pampa Mobile Home Park sometime the early afternoon or evening of Dec. 10.

Gray County Sheriff's deputies stood vigil from about 6:40 p.m. until after 9 p.m., along with city police and Lipscomb County deputies, while Maynard remained locked in his home, refusing to talk.

At 9 p.m., deputies rushed the residence and broke in. Maynard was found lying on the living room floor of the home, suffering a gunshot wound to his knee. His wife was lying on the sofa, dead of a gunshot wound to the chest.

Israel bombs Palestinian strongholds

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israel pounded Palestinian strongholds in Beirut and southern Lebanon from the air and sea today in the heaviest anti-guerrilla action since its 1978 invasion of the southern border area. Police said more than 50 people were killed, but a radio station the death toll was over 100.

Israel said its warplanes destroyed the headquarters of two Palestinian guerrilla movements in Beirut, and that all the jets returned safely to base after the first raid on the capital in more than three years.

The Palestinians disputed the claim that headquarters were destroyed and said one Israeli jet was downed.

The wail of ambulance sirens echoed in the streets of Beirut as police reported more than 35 deaths in the capital and 15 in the port city of Sidon and the oil terminal area of Zahrani, 25 miles south of Beirut. It was the fifth Israeli air strike in Lebanon in a week.

But the Christian Voice of Lebanon radio station said more than 100 people in the teeming neighborhoods around guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat's command headquarters in the Sabra camp and the neighboring Chatilla camp were killed and more than 350 injured.

Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization said Israeli jets also blasted the guerrilla-held fishing towns of Damour and Saadiyat with repeated bombing and strafing runs that caused heavy destruction and casualties in the two targets. Damour is 12 miles south of Beirut, and Saadiyat is 15 miles south of the capital.

A communique from the Israeli military command said its planes destroyed the central headquarters of Al Fatah, the largest guerrilla organization in the PLO military command, and of the Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, the guerrilla group closest to the Soviet Union.

A PLO spokesman said the Israeli communique "exaggerated." He said two apartment buildings near the Al Fatah security headquarters were hit, but not the headquarters itself. Reporters watching from rooftops counted six medium-altitude runs by the jets. The guerrillas put up a screen of anti-aircraft fire.

Several shoulder-fired SAM-7 Strella missiles were seen streaking through the sky and exploding below the raiding jets.

As the air action flared in Beirut, Israeli gunboats shelled the southern Lebanese coastal area around Zahrani, setting the end of an oil pipeline ablaze and cutting off traffic on Lebanon's coastal highway below Sidon. Associated Press correspondent Nicolas B. Tatro reported by telephone from Zahrani.

Meanwhile, Palestinian guerrillas fired intermittent barrages of Katyusha rockets into northeastern Galilee and the Israeli Mediterranean town of Nahariya, injuring five Israelis. The Tel Aviv command said Israeli artillery batteries returned fire to guerrilla positions in Lebanon. It was the third straight day of Palestinian rocket attacks on settlements in northern Israel.

Reagan assured of defense money

WASHINGTON (AP) — With House approval, President Reagan is virtually assured of the $136 billion he wanted next year to begin rebuilding the nation's arsenal. Now the Pentagon says it may need even more money in 1983.

John Beach, plans director for the Pentagon's comptroller, acknowledged Thursday that an increase in the administration's projected defense budget for fiscal 1983 is possible. But he said a decision was premature because Congress has not yet completed action on the 1982 budget.

By a 354-63 vote Thursday night, the House approved the $136 billion military authorization bill for 1982 and sent the measure to a conference with the Senate, which had passed a similar $136.4 billion version in May.

After seven days of debate on some 50 amendments, the House-endorsed bill would allow the Pentagon to set aside in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 about $52.4 billion for purchase of ships, planes, combat vehicles and other weaponry, $63.3 billion for operation and maintenance expenses and $20.2 billion for research and development work.

The total exceeds by nearly $25 billion the amount authorized for the current fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30, and is within $400 million of the money the administration said it needed to begin rebuilding the nation's military might.

The authorization money would push the total 1982 defense budget to about $220 billion, including funds actually spent during the year.

Defense officials, meanwhile, have said Reagan's projected $254 billion defense budget for fiscal 1983 may fall some $2 billion to $10 billion short of what is needed to pay for vast increases in military buildup programs. The $254 billion estimate was made only a few weeks after Reagan took office Jan. 20.

"General discussion about a possible increase" already is under way, Beach said.

"We won't decide until about November or December" whether a 7 percent "real growth" in the defense budget for fiscal 1983 will be necessary, he said. By real growth, he meant in addition to inflation.

A recent Pentagon internal memorandum suggested that the planned 7 percent real growth in defense spending over the coming five years "does not permit the services to implement all the programs planned earlier."

The memo suggested that the target may have to be raised to 9 percent.

Polish dockers set Baltic strike

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — About 40,000 Baltic coast dock workers today scheduled a potentially crippling port strike for next Thursday in their bid for improved working conditions.

The strike threat appeared to add new urgency to the debate on social and economic reforms under way behind the closed doors of an emergency Communist Party congress.

The strike call, threatening what could be the most serious labor protest in Poland since a nationwide warning strike in March, came from the port workers' branch of the independent Solidarity labor federation.

Union sources said dockers on the Baltic coast would report to work at 6 a.m. next Thursday, but would then take part in meetings and other job actions. One Solidarity source who asked not to be identified said strikers would perform "some unloading of ships whose cargo lies in the interest of society in other words, food."

The dockers, who walked off their jobs for a one-hour warning strike last week, reported Thursday that talks with the government had reached an impasse.

They are seeking improved working conditions and benefits and recognition under a new charter.

A long strike by the 40,000 dockers would be a serious blow to Poland's already-crippled economy, deep in debt and unable to keep store shelves stocked.

The strike threat came as the party congress reconvened to discuss proposed reforms after electing a new Communist Party Central Committee.

Trying something new for Communist Poland, the congress picked the 200-member Central Committee by secret ballot.

The 1,955 delegates will get a chance to take an even more striking step — choosing a new party chief — again in a secret ballot. First Secretary Stanislaw Kania, Poland's top leader, is expected to face several challengers, but congress observers still expect him to win re-election.

Party officials stayed up late into the night to count the ballots. The names of the winners were not to be released until the committee's first meeting later today, but the panel was likely to be more reform-minded than the old committee.

most of whose members did not even win re-election as delegates to the congress.

The Central Committee is to draw up a slate of candidates for party chief, but for the first time the full congress will be able to act on its own nominees.

At other Soviet bloc party congresses, as in past ones in Poland, the members of central committees, and other party officers, are proposed by party leaders and elected unanimously, with great fanfare but little suspense.

The Poles are lumbering toward democracy a little clumsily this week. One congress official described the congress sessions as "sometimes confused, but that's the price we must pay for more democracy."

Working groups discussing economic reform, relations with Solidarity, the country's powerful new independent labor movement, and other topics were to resume closed meetings this morning.

Official sources said no real action on policies to deal with Poland's economic woes, labor unrest and political turmoil could be expected until the top leadership, including the first secretary, was in place.

Senate okays indexing income taxes to inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, adopting one of the most sweeping tax changes in modern times, is supporting automatic annual reductions in personal income taxes to offset the "bracket creep" caused by inflation.

The "indexing" provision, approved on a 57-40 vote Thursday, is supported in principle by half the House and by President Reagan, though he tried to keep it off a tax-cut bill this year.

The amendment, sponsored by Sen. William L. Armstrong, R-Colo., would adjust personal tax rates, the $1,000 individual exemption and the standard deduction to offset inflation, starting in 1985.

For example, if inflation as measured by the Consumer Price Index was 10 percent in 1984, the following year the exemption would be raised to $1,100, the $3,400 standard deduction for a couple would be increased to about $3,750 and all rates would be reduced 10 percent.

The Senate approved a new incentive for savings to help the troubled homebuilding and savings-and-loan industries. It would allow a person to earn $1,000 in tax-free interest from a special new savings certificate at a cost of $8.7 billion to the government from 1982 through 1985.

The House, by a 354-63 vote, approved a $136 billion military authorization bill giving Reagan most of the money he wants to rebuild the nation's arsenal. The measure goes to a conference with the Senate, which passed a similar $136.4 billion version in May.

The Senate Intelligence Committee is looking into allegations of financial misconduct against CIA Director William J. Casey. Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., said several senators have "expressed concern" about Casey's status following disclosure of suits accusing him of financial improprieties.

Sandra Day O'Connor, President Reagan's nominee for the Supreme Court, was spending her fourth, and probably last, day courting members of Congress. She was to meet today with Sen. John East, R-N.C., a staunch anti-abortion activist who says he will oppose any nominee who agrees with the 1973 decision legalizing abortion.

House Democratic leaders, reacting to "a growing public outcry," are trying to preserve the $122 million monthly Social Security benefit that Congress has voted to eliminate. Majority Leader Jim Wright introduced a resolution Thursday aimed at encouraging a House-Senate conference committee to retain the benefit. The House Ways and Committee says about 1.5 million current recipients would have their benefits reduced unless the minimum benefit is retained.

Seventy-two senators and 183 House members have started fashioning a compromise version of the Senate's package of $38.1 billion in budget cuts and the House's $37.3 billion package. The work, being carried out in scores of subcommittees, is not expected to be completed until at least the end of next week. So far, conferees have agreed on a provision limiting federal civilian pay increases to 4.8 percent in 1982 and a cap on various foreign aid programs.

Blacks happy with new district

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Dallas blacks who want their own congressman rose Thursday and applauded Sen. John Wilson, D-La Grange, author of a Senate plan that gives them their wish.

Senators were scheduled to take a final vote today on Wilson's statewide congressional redistricting plan, to which they voted preliminary approval Wednesday.

Al Lipscomb of Dallas, a speaker for the Coalition for Minority Representation, urged the House redistricting committee Thursday to issue a similar plan.

He asked the blacks accompanying him to stand and applaud Wilson, who was at the House hearing. After the applause ended, Lipscomb said, "Contrary to what you might believe, there will be no crosses burned on your lawn."

Wilson's plan also satisfied Republicans, because by packing blacks and Hispanics into one district, it weakens the chances of Democratic Congressmen Jim Mattox and Martin Frost to be reelected.

Gov. Bill Clements has recommended just such a plan, saying blacks should get one of the three new congressmen to which the 1980 census entitles Texas.

Lipscomb also praised the Senate majority and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who cast one of the Senate votes for Wilson's plan.

The House committee is divided over how to deal with the question of black representation versus preservation of Democrats Frost and Mattox in Congress.

It also has to fight out the question of drawing a new district in western Harris County, which Republicans are all but guaranteed.

GOP State Reps. Brad Wright and Don Henderson of Houston both want to go to Congress from the new district.

Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, redistricting committee chairman, was criticized by Rep. Hugo Berlanga for sending all Republican representatives a letter asking them whether the new district should be Henderson's or Wright's.

"Our mission is to create congressional districts, and these districts don't belong to any one person. ... It is outrageous for the chairman of this committee to be soliciting support in favor of one person or another when our mission is to create districts that are equitable to everybody," protested Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, a member of the committee.

Representatives reaction is mixed on congressional redistricting plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charlie Wilson, D-Lufkin, is happy with a redistricting plan drawn up by the Texas Senate that would take 100,000 voters from a Republican area of Montgomery County out of his district.

"I kept Conroe. That I like. And Cut 'N Shoot. I've always liked Cut 'N Shoot," said Wilson. The 27,000 residents of Montgomery County still in his Southeast Texas district are in a traditional Democratic stronghold.

"It doesn't make them sad either," Wilson hastened to add about the Woodlands area of south Montgomery County who will no longer be represented by him if the Senate remapping plan holds up.

"Many people around in there have expressed the wish they could be represented by a Republican. They will be much happier with their representation under this bill," he said, grinning.

Most of them, Wilson added, have been placed in the 6th congressional district of Rep. Phil Gramm of College Station. Gramm is a Democrat but has voted with the Reagan administration so consistently that some Democratic loyalists have asked that he be booted out of the party.

Others in the Republican sections of Montgomery County, who Wilson said are more likely than any other of his constituents to cast a straight Republican ticket, have been placed in the 8th congressional district of Rep. Jack Fields, R-Humble.

Two congressmen who didn't fare so well in the Texas Senate plan are Rep. Jim Mattox and Rep. Martin Frost, a pair of Dallas Democrats.

The plan obviously hurts him, Mattox said, since tens of thousands of Republican voters were placed in his district.

"They gave me all of Highland Park, University Park, Lake Highlands and White Rock Lake, and they took away all my Hispanic and black area—all my old East-Dallas area," Mattox said.

Wilson said the bill, if approved, would give Republicans five more seats in Congress, just from Texas.

"I believe they'll win every

Wood grand jury becoming secretive

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Government attorneys have grown even more secretive as a massive investigation into the assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. draws nearer a solution.

Since the Justice Department in Washington took control of the investigation from the local U.S. Attorney's office last December, virtually no information of an official nature has come out of the two-year investigation.

That policy became even more apparent Thursday when prosecutors moved a grand jury session into the old post office building in an effort to conceal the identity of a secret witness who spent two hours testifying.

The unidentified heavy-set man matched the physical appearance of Jerry Ray James, the former prison-mate of key suspect Jimmy Chagra. James has been granted a conditional release from prison, placed in the Federal Witness Program and granted immunity to testify as a key witness in the Wood investigation.

However, federal authorities used walkie talkies in an effort to keep news reporters from seeing the witness, refused to confirm whether it was James and covered him with a suit coat before driving him from a basement parking lot in the back seat of a station wagon.

New Mexico Gov. Bruce King in April granted James a conditional release from prison as a witness in the investigation of Wood's killing. He allegedly told federal investigators that Chagra told him he (Chagra) arranged to have Wood shot on May 29, 1979, outside the judge's San Antonio apartment.

Federal authorities later revealed that they had recorded conversations between Chagra and James late last year and early this year at the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., where James was transferred after last year's New Mexico prison riot.

Chagra, a high-stakes gambler from El Paso, was scheduled for trial in Wood's court at the time the judge was shot from ambush. He later was convicted of narcotics-related continuing criminal enterprise and sentenced to a 30-year prison term without parole.

Until Thursday, all the other known grand jury sessions had taken place on the third floor of the federal courthouse, now named for the slain judge.

But Thursday's unannounced meeting was conducted at the downtown post office building in the fifth floor bankruptcy courtroom while two FBI agents stood guard in the hallway.

Tight-lipped prosecutors were seen going in and out without commenting to reporters who discovered the meeting and staked out both entrances to the courtroom.

The grand jury apparently convened at 9 a.m. for the ultra-secret session about six blocks from where it usually meets.

The jurors, appearing particularly camera-shy and surprised to find reporters at the new location, left the building with their usual no comment at 11 a.m. They began drifting back around noontime, but apparently never reconvened in the afternoon before departing the building for the day.

FBI agents and a uniformed security guard remained in the hall talking on walkie talkies most of the day.

About 1:40 p.m., a full two hours after the grand jury session apparently broke up, reporters spotted a heavy-set man in his 40s, well dressed and clean-shaven, as he was whisked from the bankruptcy court down a flight of stairs and into the FBI office located on the fourth floor. Camera men later saw the station wagon, driven by a federal marshal, leaving the underground garage with the witness covered by a coat.

Earlier, Assistant U.S. Attorney LeRoy Jahn was seen going down the elevator with a large stack of blue-colored folders, pads and pens apparently used by the grand jurors.

Neither Mrs. Jahn nor her husband, Assistant U.S. Attorney Ray Jahn, would comment on the purpose of switching the meeting site. The Jahn husband-wife team and Assistant U.S. Attorney John Emerson have been housed at the FBI offices and have presented evidence to the grand jury the past seven months.

FBI Director William Webster said last winter that the investigation was nearing a solution and that "we know the players."

Despite predictions of indictments as early as March, however, no one has been charged in Wood's death.

Exxon official kidnapped

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — An Exxon executive from Corpus Christi was kidnapped off the streets there Thursday and forced to drive to the San Antonio area where he was robbed, shot and left on a road in south Bexar County, authorities said.

Undergoing emergency surgery late Thursday at Bexar County Hospital was D. E. McKay, 61, identified as Exxon production manager in Corpus Christi. He was listed in good condition at the hospital and knee surgery was undertaken to repair damage from the bullet wound, according to authorities.

Bexar County sheriff's officials said McKay was kidnapped off of a Corpus Christi street about 8 a.m. and forced at gunpoint to drive toward San Antonio.

Lt. Ray Paez said McKay had stopped for a traffic light near the Sheraton Marina Hotel in Corpus Christi when a man knocked on his car door window and pointed a gun at him.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Covey Commandment.

Law change needed to aid 'Amerasians'

While lines are being drawn for a major debate on U.S. immigration and refugee policy, one issue deserves to be treated separately. It is the special plight of so-called "Amerasians" — children in the Orient who were fathered by Americans, usually U.S. servicemen, and left to survive in a culture that often rejects them.

There are tens of thousands of these children of mixed parentage in Korea, Vietnam, Laos and Thailand. Many live as social outcasts. The Communist government of Vietnam considers them "bad elements" and denies them eligibility to attend public schools or to hold a job.

Rep. Stewart McKinney, a Connecticut Republican who has concerned himself with the fate of Amerasians, says many sympathetic Americans are willing to sponsor them as immigrants but the deck is stacked against them. He is sponsoring a bill in Congress that would make it easier for Amerasians to find a home and a future in the culture of their paternity.

His bill would remove the Amerasians from their present "non-preferential" status as prospective immigrants and give them the "first preference" status of unmarried sons and daughters of U.S. citizens or the "fourth preference" applying to married sons and daughters. With the change in the preferences would go a mechanism for U.S. government assistance in establishing their parentage, and a requirement that applicants have a sponsor in the United States.

This change in the law would have a relatively minor effect on the total flow of immigrants into the United States, but it would rectify a situation that now should hang heavily on the national conscience.

Respect among leaders

The meeting at Camp David between President Reagan and President Jose Lopez Portillo of Mexico seems to have cemented a new attitude between the two leaders. Perhaps Lopez Portillo summed it up best in suggesting that Reagan had found the key to dealing with developing countries, respect.

"If all the powerful people in the world were to truly understand what respect means to the weak people," said Portillo, "the world would truly change."

The conventional wisdom about such a statement is that it sounds very nice, but it papers over the serious and fundamental problems that divide the two countries. Indeed, the news stories about the meetings mentioned some U.S. officials who "worried privately" (i.e., as anonymous sources) that new frictions might arise as a result of serious problems that have been ignored in the atmosphere of neighborliness between the two presidents. The conventional wisdom sounds sober and responsible. But it may well be dead wrong.

Granted, there are serious problems that complicate relations between the United States and Mexico. Immigration, both legal and illegal, fishing rights, trade, and sharply differing approaches to revolutionary or guerrilla activities in Central America are just a few of them. They will provide employment for diplomats and fodder for speculation for years to come.

Yet Lopez Portillo's comments offer us the opportunity to wonder whether these admittedly serious issues are anywhere near as important as an attitude of respect between the two countries and their leaders.

The serious issues are beloved by political scientists, diplomats, intellectuals, politicians, journalists and editorialists. They give us an opportunity to analyze them and demonstrate our erudition and superiority. Often they really are important, but just as often they have little bearing on the day-to-day lives of the people involved. Discussion of the serious issues and the factors that underlie them is just as often intellectualized cocktail party chatter as it is a genuine effort to deal with the real world. It is important to understand the kinds of issues with which diplomats deal, but it's also important to place them in perspective, to understand that they may not always be as portentous as they're advertised.

People who respect one another are able to deal with divisive issues and disagreements more constructively than people who don't. Mutual respect implies an understanding that the two parties will occasionally have to agree to disagree. In an atmosphere of respect, agreement on every detail is not necessary. Sometimes one party will go along with a course of action with misgivings, but sometimes he will refuse to go along, because the disagreement is too basic. If respect exists, such incidents will not shatter a friendship.

We're not quite ready to say that respect is a cure-all for the problems that ail the nations of the world. But it can be a helpful basis for approaching those problems, not with the hope of solving them all overnight, but with the possibility of alleviating or mitigating them. Reagan and Lopez Portillo seem to have established a relationship with genuine possibilities. We wish them well.

Defusing 'tax bombs'

Ralph Ballmer, a spokesman for the New Growth Study Group, is fearful of a local "tax time bomb." This would be a crushing new burden of taxes on local taxpayers to fund various proposals.

Ballmer makes the suggestion, certainly one of common sense, that no new works should be undertaken while existing public facilities are in need of maintenance and upkeep. But commonly working against this good sense is the greater political expediency for politicians to move on and trumpet something new.

Another worthy idea set forth by Ballmer's group is the undertaking of cost-benefit studies in terms of tax-paid facilities to service private developments. One such study found, according to Ballmer, that the proposed Broadmoor housing addition would cost taxpayers more over a 50-year period than the revenue that would come from it.

If such is the case, we think it proper that the private developer pay the difference.

A final suggestion of merit is that those who benefit most from public and private projects should pay the most for the facilities needed to service them. Citing the example of the planned Ford Aerospace development, the growth group maintains that landowners near the site whose property values will rise should pay a proportionately larger valuation and hence share of taxes.

Taxation may be as inevitable as death, and surely it is equally welcomed. But as long as we have taxes they should be kept as evenhanded and low as possible.

The greatest political con

Where, then, is the fantasy? It lies in our belief that these desirable conditions can be enjoyed by all. Further, that they can be enjoyed at once and often without effort.

Thus, from the beginning of the human story there have been con men moving about, offering us magic elixirs, Dr. Quack's snake oil remedy, good health through jogging, tennis, meditation or prayer. We have had con men who not only promised to extend our lives, but assured us we would live forever. And we have had a welter of "experts" tell us how to get rich without trying, how to get lucky and how to achieve all three instantly.

Without getting into the history of it, which would have to begin with witch doctors and the tribal shaman, we have emerged in the 20th century with a virtual monopoly of the confidence rackets in the hands of modern governments.

Even among those who progress to a faith in God's intervention on their behalf, few are willing to risk their futures on anything so tenuous. Thus they, to vote for a retention of the government dole (which in this country is called "Social Security" and "welfare"), and favor more and more handouts, more and more subsidy and less and less responsibility for each individual.

Meanwhile, the government has passed laws against any and all confidence racketeers outside its own portals (everything government touches it monopolizes) and is now the undisputed emperor of con. If a businessman promises more than his good or service can perform, he runs the risk of fine or imprisonment. If a politician makes promises that are impossible of fulfillment by anyone, he stands a good chance of winning election, fame and fortune. There are laws against misrepresentation and false advertising except where government is involved. It is in government that false witness has risen to a fine art.

With the passing of time, there is one fear, and correspondingly one hope, which has become the lodestar of the philosophy practiced in this country. The central theme has it that life is always good; death is always evil. We fear death and we hope for life everlasting, or, at least, life for as long as possible, and a little bit more.

Nearly everyone speaks up in favor of life. With few exceptions death is out of favor. I am not a fool and so I'm not about to suggest that we reverse this polarization. Such a reversal would, of course, be evil. We should not seek death. Nor seek to inflict it on others.

But examine with me, if you will, what the monopolizing of the confidence rackets by government has done in this particular. You've read it in the papers and you've seen it on TV. Our value systems are askew. If there's a 20-car pile-up on a highway, including an eighteen-wheeler with the loss of property in excess of half a million all told, crews will clear up the wreckage and deplore the circumstances.

But if a car plunges over an embankment and the lone driver killed, there will be a flurry among lawmakers who will try to enact new legislation to prevent cars from skidding. Tire manufacturers who made tires that would deflate, skid or lift off the pavement may be fined. Everyone is horrified. Someone died! We don't want to believe the driver brought it on himself. Somebody else is to blame!

We don't think about it this way, but in the 20-car pile-up, a little bit of life was lost by every car owner, every finance company, every hauler of goods. Their labors, symbolized by the money they have invested, have been lost. But since there was no direct loss of life, we can sweep the debris under the legal carpet and stop worrying.

By practicing a philosophy that life is always good, death is always evil, we have rejected reality. This value structure converts the human experience into an inescapable tragedy. With this belief, mankind is doomed. His final act is always evil and thus far there is no escape.

Let me offer a thought that may distress many. Life is not always good; death is not always evil. Just as there is a time to work, there is a time to rest. There is a time to plant and a time for harvest.

You and I, with our limited knowledge, can never judge the right time for anyone, including ourselves. We certainly cannot judge it for others. It is good that each individual lives as long as he can as a free being. What I am saying is that death is an integral part of life. To fear death in logic would be to fear life which ends in death.

Functional, independent life is good. But the miracle of human experience is not limited to the fact of life. It is also encompassed by how each one of us lives. Even a parasite has life. But it lives at the expense of its host. How the host might live and what it might achieve were it rid of parasites is more important, in my judgment, than survival of the parasitical growth.

I am not opposed to parasites who find a welcome host. There can be symbiotic relationships both temporary and lasting that are ecologically sound and useful. But a philosophy that worships life by shutting out the value of death altogether is a false and unrealistic philosophy. And when government organizes human society around that false hope it will stop at nothing to preserve each life, no matter how little it might be valued or how unworthy it might be. This is a monstrous error that can dissipate human liberty and convert us all into parasites feeding on each other. (Robert LeFevre is a libertarian writer living in Orange, Calif.)

Lawmen toughen tactics

timidity. Skyjackers will not be refueled, ransom will not be paid, we will not bargain with kidnapers. All that the FBI will do — and will not do — in hostage situations should not be delineated publicly.

But it might be useful for anybody contemplating hostage crime to know that the Bureau has now prepared countermeasures.

Experience teaches that hostage kidnapers generally fit one of four categories.

Most are mentally disturbed, or... Political terrorists seeking thus to promote some social change.

The first are the worst. Approximately 52 percent of all hostage incidents involve individuals who are mentally disturbed.

These may be paranoid schizophrenics, or... Manic depressives, or... Antisocial psychotics, or... Individuals with "inadequate personality."

J. Edgar Hoover used to say, "Never try to anticipate with logic somebody who is mentally sick; if you could understand how he thinks, then we'd have to worry about you."

Nonetheless, it helps to recognize certain behavior patterns.

For example, paranoid schizophrenics are usually above average in intelligence. Don't try to trick them. Don't lie to them.

The manic depressive already wants to be punished; don't threaten him.

The "latter two categories are individuals seeking to "show the world that they are somebody." Try to give them an "out" without the feeling of having failed again.

Force remains the last resorts of the lawman in a hostage crisis.

First he will try persuasion.

After that, chemical weapons.

After that, snipers.

After that, SWAT.

But no more of the limitless negotiation which has encouraged an unprecedented escalation of such crime. No more of that.

A junior partner

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

In 1939, Japan produced fewer than 1,500 cars and trucks. Last year the Japanese turned out more than 11 million vehicles.

Where does that leave the United States, once the world leader in automotive production? Very far behind, unfortunately.

The consequences of the loss of more than a quarter of America's auto sales to the Japanese has had the most profound effects, namely widespread unemployment, desperately bad business conditions for suppliers, and the near-collapse of the country's tenth largest manufacturer — the Chrysler Corporation.

Despite these grim results, the nation hasn't arrived at anything like a national car industry policy. The Carter administration gave Chrysler a huge handout. The Reagan administration is trying the band-aid approach, with proposals for reducing the regulatory burden on auto manufacturers. Neither approach offers a solution to the problem of a threatened collapse of the U.S. auto industry over a period of years.

The Reagan administration has worked out an agreement with the Japanese government for a modest cut in the number of cars exported to the United States. But who believes the Japanese will abide by it? Already there is talk of the ways the Japanese will get around the agreement, by shipping cars to Puerto Rico, for instance, and trans-shipping them to the mainland so that they will be outside the import limit provisions.

Japanese companies also are planning to build cars, in part, in the United States. The Nissan Co., which produces the Datsun, is spending between $300 million and $500 million for a small truck plant at Smyrna, Tenn. This is a tremendous boost for Middle Tennessee. In one sense, Americans can be glad that capital is being injected into the country from abroad. However, only 38 percent of the Datsun vehicles will be manufactured in the U.S. The rest will come from Japan.

Many American automakers are making deals with foreign auto manufacturers or selling shares in their companies. Renault and Peugeot of France and Mitsubishi of Japan already have large financial interests in American auto manufacturing.

Frank Vogl, U.S. economics correspondent for the "Times" of London, says that internationalization of the car market calls for international partnerships in the auto business. "If you cannot beat the Japanese," he writes, "you ought to join them."

The only flaw in that argument is that in the partnership arrangements now under discussion, the American auto companies will be the junior partners. Is that what the American people want? Is that in-America's national interest?

Before the U.S. accepts a junior partnership role, with only limited say over a business that has been the centerpiece of our industrial system, it ought to consider other approaches to protecting and strengthening the American auto industry, which is essential to our country's prosperity. An internationalized auto industry, in which Japan has the principal say, will be run for the benefit of Japan, Inc.

One step to consider is a truly tough import limit policy, such as the Germans have applied to Japanese vehicles — 10 percent of German auto production.

Another device is the tax credit idea advanced by Sen. Dan Quayle of Indiana. He would give the purchaser of an American vehicle a $750 tax credit if he buys American.

Special activities have been planned for the children. In one exciting week the children will journey, through the church year seeking clues of who Jesus was and what he has to say to them. This program gives children a new interest in Sunday worship.

The five day bible study will end on Friday afternoon with a picnic lunch and a trip to the Senior Citizens Home to share what they have learned.

Religion roundup

DALLAS (AP) - For students studying for the United Methodist ministry, some theological schools of other denominations have been declared off limits, says the weekly, United Methodist Reporter.

It says the number of such schools was not disclosed immediately, pending notification of them by United Methodist accrediting agency.

So far, it has ruled on the acceptability of about 60 of the 186 non-United Methodist seminaries that historically have been approved as places for study by United Methodist ministerial candidates.

However, a review of them was ordered by the denomination's 1980 governing conference, breaking with a former policy of putting any nationally accredited seminary on the denomination's approved list.

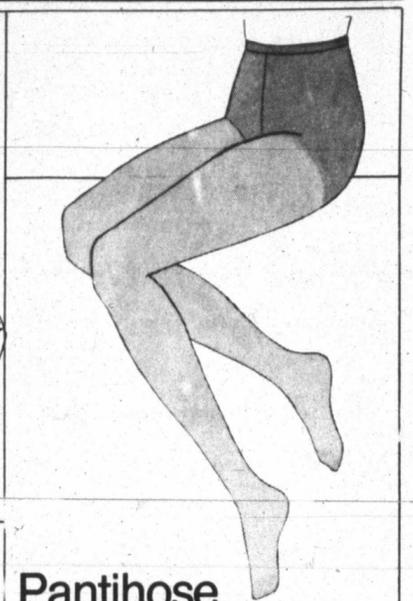

Of the 186 seminaries once on the list, 24 declined the review and were removed automatically, including seven Roman Catholic, five Episcopal, three Southern Baptist and two Lutheran schools. Other seminaries, besides the 60 dealt with so far, are to be reviewed over the next three years.

NEW YORK (AP) - Rabbi SI Roth, professor of philosophy at Yeshiva University, has been re-elected president of the Rabbinical Council of America, representing Orthodox Judaism.

BIBLE CHURCH OF PAMPA

Pampa Bible Church moves into new home

On Sunday, July 19, the Bible Church of Pampa will conduct services for the first time at 300 W. Browning, formerly the facility that housed Smith-Ellis Funeral Home.

This will be the church's fourth location over the 12-year history.

The Bible Church of Pampa was incorporated in March of 1969 by a few families seeking to pattern their lives and their fellowship around a deeper study of God's Word. Hence the "Bible Church" was born.

The first official location was at 319 1/2 W. Foster where the Rev. H.A. Somerville served as interim pastor. Rev. Somerville was the retired pastor of the Amarillo Bible Church. He came in November of 1969 to serve until the first fulltime pastor could be called.

In February of 1970 the church moved to 307 W. Foster.

Rev. Johnathan S. Smith became the first fulltime pastor and served the church from 1970 to 1971. After his tenure, Rev. Somerville again led for a short time until another pastor, Rev. Dick Ogden, was called. During Brother Ogden's ministry from 1972 to 1974, the church moved to 2401 Alcock in April 1974.

Then, Mike Harris, a lay teacher from the Beracah Bible Church, Amarillo, filled the pulpit for over three years. Harris is a professor at Amarillo College. In the fall of 1978, the present pastor, Roger A. Hubbard, was called to assume the shepherd's role on the first Sunday of November of that year.

Pastor Hubbard, originally of Big Springs, is a 1976 graduate of Dallas Theological Seminary. Hubbard's previous experience is the Westminster Bible Church, Victoria, where he served as pastor for two years. He and his wife, Lorna, and their three children reside at 2208 Duncan.

The Bible Church of Pampa is independent from the authority of other churches, denominations and other religious institutions. They help support three independent missionaries with Africa Inland Mission and Child Evangelism Fellowship.

Pastor Hubbard explained, "This church is devoted to the basic truths of historic Christianity as taught in the Bible. We study the scriptures verse by verse by category in order to discover and apply biblical principals to our own personal lives that we may honor our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ."

The Bible is taught in accordance with the progress of revelation, which means that God places different demands upon believers in different times and ages.

The services include Sunday school for all ages at 10 a.m. and worship service at 11 a.m.

The Sunday evening services consist of prayer meeting at 7 p.m. and worship service at 7:30.

Two nurseries, one for toddlers ages 1-4, and one for crib babies ages 1-12 months are provided.

DON AND FAITH DUNLAP

Concert at Faith Full Gospel

Don and Faith Dunlap will be in concert at Lamar Full Gospel Assembly at 7 p.m. on Sunday.

Their unique presentation of singing, sharing and teaching are a powerful combination. They have adopted as their theme, "His Word Our Song."

Their singing of the scriptures in praise provides an effective way of leading people into a greater understanding of worship.

The Dunlaps have participated in many church conferences and interdenominational gatherings, including conventions, 700 Club and PTL Club.

Pastor Gene Allen and the congregation of Lamar Assembly extend to the people of Pampa and surrounding areas an invitation to join with them in this night of "Celebration of Praise" unto Jesus Christ.

Artist at Highland Christian

Don W. Todd, a contemporary gospel and country recording artist from Nashville will appear at Highland Christian Church, 1620 N. Banks, on July 25, at 7 p.m.

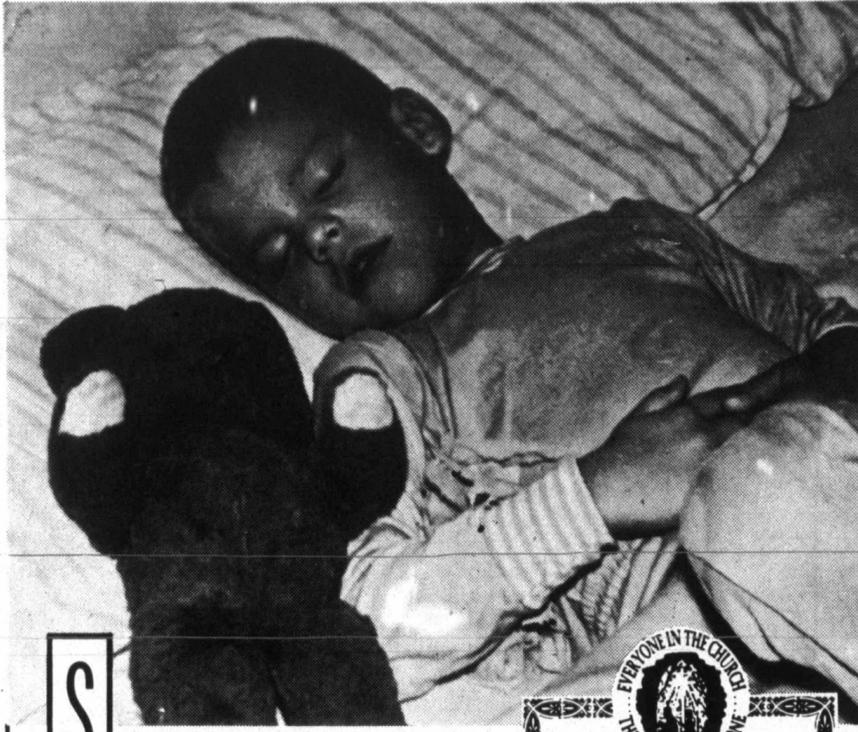

Todd is founder, director and president of Music City Evangelism, of Madison, Tenn., a non-profit religious organization which hosts the annual Music City Youth and Family Conference. The conference attracts thousands of youth and adults from a 15 state area.

Todd's ministry has taken him over most of the U.S. and several foreign countries. His performances have been seen in thousands of churches, schools, and civic clubs. During each school year he performs musical concerts in about 100 public schools, to over 50,000 students.

He has been featured on many television programs, working with many well known musicians and entertainers.

Join Us In Worship

IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

SAFE AND SECURE

How confidently he sleeps. Mother and Daddy are in the next room. Teddy Bear is right beside him.

We, also, desire a feeling of confident security. We want to do good and live with honor in this life, free of the fear of falling into sin. God wants this for us, too. And He sees and knows how hard we try.

In the New Testament, Jude writes, "God is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of His glory with exceeding joy."

Pledge yourself to Him and attend church this week.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Bullet-proofing of automobiles a booming business for Texas firm

Editor's Note: Nearly bankrupt this time last year, a San Antonio company that bullet-proofs cars is in the middle of a boom. Recent assassination attempts are credited for increasing business.

By MACK SISK
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The shootings of President Ronald Reagan and Pope John Paul II have increased the business of a San Antonio company that bullet-proofs cars for wealthy clients throughout the world, company officials say.

"I think basically business is on the upswing having to do with the two recent assassination attempts on the Pope and President Reagan," said Ron Kimball, manager of the automobile division of Safeguard Security Services, Inc.

The president and the pope were seriously wounded in separate attacks earlier this year. Both survived.

Kimball said SSI has grown into the largest firm of its type in the United States since it was rescued from bankruptcy a year ago by Sigmor Corp., the nation's largest independent gasoline distributor.

Sigmor owner Tom Turner Sr. bought SSI because he wanted a subsidiary to construct bullet-proof glass "kiosks" to house employees in his chain of Shamrock service station-stores. The kiosks can stop a .357 magnum bullet fired at point-blank range and already is credited with foiling robbery attempts in Turner's stores.

In the space of a year, SSI's bullet- and bomb-proofing services have rapidly expanded because of demand primarily from governments and individuals in the Middle East, Latin America and West Africa, said Kimball, a former agent for the Drug Enforcement Administration.

Now SSI says it is putting money into research into light-weight ballistic materials that could be used to protect human beings subject to robbery or terrorist attacks, or who work on off-shore oil rigs or in the vicinity of nuclear reactors.

SSI completely refurbishes an average of five vehicles a month, at $50,000 apiece and up, to provide protection against grenades, bombs and bullets up to and including 7.62 NATO ammunition.

Company director Ed Stackpole demonstrated for a reporter a new Chevrolet Caprice completely lined with bullet proof materials and glass, a siren, an intercom system allowing passengers to speak with people outside without unlocking the doors, gun portals, concealed tear gas canisters and with the ability to lay smoke screens and oil slicks.

Stackpole said the automobile was reworked for a "West African tribal chieftan" at a cost of more than $55,000.

Nearby sat a red Ford Good Times Van being built for "a president," but he would not identify which country, and a completed Chevrolet Suburban bound for a Latin American country.

In another section, workmen had just taken saws and cut a brand new $24,000 Cadillac Seville exactly in half at the middle.

"We're going to put in an extra section for a bar and television set," Stackpole said.

SSI officials say their light-weight polycarbon — tested at their own indoor firing range — are as effective at stopping bullets and bombs as steel and weighs one-third the weight of steel. They turbo-charge and super-charge the engines and install overload springs to make the cars as swift and maneuverable as factory models.

"Evaluation of armor has just begun in the last four to five years," said Dan Call, a salesman who travels selling the anti-terrorism services to wealthy potentates. "Studies have shown that 80 percent of the terrorist attacks take place while people are enroute in their automobiles."

SSI officials said none of the passengers was killed in five terrorist attacks on their vehicles in Central America.

The SSI officials showed pictures of a late-model automobile that withstood 34 rounds of 45- and .30-caliber bullets, an ax and a sledgehammer with no harm to a sub-minister of defense in El Salvador.

They also displayed a photo of an automobile with its outer metal blown away by a bomb thrown against it in Guatemala. But they said a Guatemalan minister inside the car escaped with his life because of their bullet proofing materials.

"In the most recent attack in January in Guatemala, the man had gotten out of his van and they started shooting at him. He got back in the van and was okay," Call said.

SSI officials also are planning an armored vehicle with sophisticated electronic gadgetry for the Houston SWAT team and are discussing building troop carriers. But they emphasize that their services are for defense of life only and are not considered to be offensive weapons.

They add that they can create a space in the vehicles where weapons can be concealed.

"If you want it to hold a bazooka, we'll arrange for it, if there's room. We design secret compartments. It's a real James Bond deal," said Sam Riklin, a publicist for the firm.

Riklin predicts with continued experimentation that in the future material could be created "as thin as a shirt and nothing will hurt it except a bazooka."

SSI now employs 50 workers at its assembly plant in Northeast San Antonio, and Riklin predicted the work force could double in the next five years.

Harry Chapin killed

NEW YORK (AP) — Harry Chapin, the pop balladeer who sang about extraordinary moments in ordinary lives and used his fame in the fight against world hunger, has died in a highway crash at age 38.

He was a poet, a guitar player, a moviemaker and a writer for Broadway, the singer of the hit songs "Taxi" and "Cat in the Hat."

But he also was "kind of a social worker-singer" who "did a lot of reaching out and supporting people who were less fortunate than himself," said Kathleen Dwyer, one of about 300 fans who lingered Thursday at a park where Chapin was to have given a free concert.

Chapin was alone Thursday in a blue 1975 Volkswagen Rabbit when he passed a tractor-trailer on the Long Island Expressway. The truck collided with his car, and the car burst into flames.

The truck driver cut Chapin's seat belt and pulled him through a window. Chapin was rushed to Nassau County Medical Center in East Meadow, where he was pronounced dead. No charges were filed against the truck driver, officials said.

Although Chapin was badly burned and suffered internal injuries, a hospital spokesman said he had suffered a heart attack and died of cardiac arrest. The spokesman said there was no way to tell whether the heart attack came before or after the accident.

Chapin was driving from his Long Island house to New York City on business, said Guy Thomas, a publicist for his management company.

Chapin was the son of a jazz drummer, Jim Chapin, who worked with bandleaders Tommy Dorsey and Woody Herman. Harry Chapin, born Dec. 7, 1942, in New York's Greenwich Village, learned to play the trumpet as a child before taking up the guitar.

Chapin and his brothers Tom and Steve formed the Chapin Brothers folk singing group. He attended the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs and Cornell University, then returned to singing.

"Cat in the Hat," a 1974 gold-record hit about a son who grows up to be just as aloof as his father, was written to a poem by Chapin's wife, Sandy, who chided him about neglecting his family. He had five children.

In addition to recording 11 albums, Chapin wrote, edited and directed a documentary

Twelve convicted in conspiracy

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Twelve men, including three South Americans, have been convicted by a U.S. District Court of conspiring to smuggle 10,000 pounds of marijuana from Colombia into the United States.

Six of the twelve are from Houston and two are from Key West, Fla. The others are from Colombia, Nicaragua, Havana. Jurors deliberated five hours Wednesday before convicting each defendant on two counts of conspiracy.

The men were seized by the U.S. Coast Guard off the Texas coast in April of last year. They were aboard two sport fishing boats in the vicinity of an abandoned shrimp boat containing the marijuana.

film, "Legendary Champions," which was nominated for an Academy Award in 1969, and wrote a 1975 multimedia Broadway show, "The Night That Made American Famous," for which he got two Tony nominations. He also wrote two books of poetry.

Heloise: helpful housewife-columnist who drops hints

By KANDIS GATEWOOD
San Angelo Standard Times
SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Heloise argued with a plumber about dumping coffee grounds down the sink. Not unusual for a woman who keeps a tablecloth wadded up in her freezer.

Heloise — the columnist synonymous with household hints — chats with as many exclamation points as she uses in her writing. The San Antonio resident talks about her second book, taking over her late mother's column and life with her new husband, David. He's the plumber.

And she talks about her latest household crusade. This time it's perspiration buildup. Of the 2,000 to 3,000 letters Heloise receives in one week, 20 to 30 readers have complained lately that they can't get stains out of new T-shirts. Heloise has put the Soap and Detergent Association on the case.

Yes. The youthful Heloise with naturally gray hair listens to her readers. Yes, she tries every one of the hints she recommends. And yes, she writes her columns. With help from her household of four animals — "They're just like children except you don't have to send them to college" — two secretaries, father and husband, Heloise tries anything that doesn't sound too dumb.

But "some of the hints are really dumb," Heloise said. "I got one letter from a woman. She said she had the 'ultimate use' for nylon net. She cuts up green nylon net and puts it into salads — to help her cut down on eating. God forbid she swallows it."

Picking hints is the hardest part of the job. "What I think is a dumb hint you may think is fantastic," she said.

For example, Heloise would never re-use a coffee filter.

"But now, I re-use coffee," she said with a laugh.

And re-using coffee can cause commotion with David. "My husband thinks it's gross. So, each to their own."

Despite the savings from Heloise's decision to use black ties and tails instead of bridesmaid dresses at her Feb. 14 wedding, her husband doesn't easily follow Heloise's hints.

"David doesn't believe me a lot of times and I tell him, 'David, 75 million women across America listen to what I tell them.' And he says, 'But are you sure?'"

Some questions make Heloise grow weary of being Heloise. "Once in a while when I come off a book tour or something, I think, 'If just one more person says 'ring around your collar' ..."

At her mother's death in 1978, the daughter — born Ponce Cruse — became Heloise II, and assumed a lifestyle she knew well.

Growing up where it wasn't unusual to catch Mom in the back yard testing hints on her blue jeans, Heloise never thought her childhood was out of the ordinary.

"It was unusual, but I didn't know it at the time ... Then I went off to college."

During a cooking spree with friends "we'd burned something and so I went and called my mother," Heloise said. "She said 'oh yes' and told me how to fix it. I went back and told my friends. They said, 'do you know how lucky you are? How many people can call home to Heloise?'"

But life as the daughter of the homemakers' hint helper wasn't always so helpful.

"I remember when my mother went to New York when I was 8. I really didn't understand. 'Why are you leaving me?' I asked her. She tried to explain to me that she wasn't leaving me, she was just leaving. But I didn't understand."

As she speaks, Heloise admitted her admiration of homemakers — male or female — that stems from her mother's respect of "the backbone of the world."

"I'd rather run an office with four people than be a mother with four children. It's easier. You can go home in the evening," she said.

When her mother died, readers made it easier for the new Heloise.

"The people in New York (who syndicate her column) were so concerned when mother died. Would people accept a 27-year-old single lady as Heloise? I told them, 'You don't know the trust of the readers.' We didn't lose any accounts."

Within a week after her recent wedding, and even now, readers sent "the most beautiful cards."

congratulations on the wedding — pretty cards with all the glitter and gold. And some sent checks," Heloise said. "What do I do with these?"

Heloise — always observant, always ready with a suggestion — will think of something.

She sees herself as Heloise for the rest of her life.

"This is me. I don't see this as a job," she said. "Now, I don't spend 24 hours a day hinting and I don't go in someone's house and open the cabinets."

But she is dedicated. The other morning, for example, she got up at 2:30 to write down a hint that came to her in the middle of the night. You can make five flower arrangements from two arrangements that you pick up at the grocery store.

These eggs have 'plus'

EGGS PLUS
Unusual but harmonious combination you may not have come on.
2 to 4 tablespoons butter
1 large onion, quartered

and cut in thin strips
1 very large red Delicious apple, unpeeled and thinly sliced
¼ teaspoon salt
4 large eggs

In a heavy 10-inch skillet, in the hot butter, gently cook the onion and apple, stirring occasionally, until the onion is wilted and the apple slices still hold their own shape. Spread evenly over the bottom of the skillet and sprinkle with the salt. Break the eggs into a bowl, keeping the yolks whole; carefully slide the eggs over the onion-apple mixture. Cover and cook gently until the egg whites are opaque and the yolks partly firm — usually 5 to 7 minutes. Makes 4 small servings.

LIFE SAVERS
NEW YORK (AP) — Child-restraint devices, if used, could prevent some of the 1,000 deaths and 70,000 automobile injuries inflicted every year on children aged 5 and under.

According to Family Circle Magazine, only 8 percent of the nation's children are adequately protected when they ride in cars.

The effectiveness of the devices is illustrated by the fact that when restraint devices are required by law, auto injuries to children are cut.

In Tennessee, which enacted a mandatory law in 1978, not one child under the age of 4 has been killed in an auto accident while wearing a child-restraint device, and auto injuries have been reduced 50 percent.

TV HINTS. Ponce Cruse, better known as Heloise, is shown at her San Antonio home while filming a series of helpful hints for her first venture into TV.

Dear Abby

Gay grandma disturbs relatives

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a wonderful man, but when I married him I acquired a gay mother-in-law. She has a live-in girlfriend who not only shares her home but her bedroom. (Double bed.)

The problem is that we have moved out of state, and when we come back to visit her, we are expected to stay at her home. We have small children, and I don't want to expose them to this unnatural lifestyle.

My husband says the children will be oblivious to his mother's living arrangements, but I am not so sure. He is also afraid that his mother's feelings would be hurt if we stopped staying with her. How should this delicate matter be handled?

WITHHOLD MY NAME

DEAR WITHHOLD: If you don't make an issue of your mother-in-law's living arrangements, your children will probably think nothing of it. But if they question it, a non-judgmental explanation is in order: "It's a fact of life that some men sleep with men, and some women sleep with women."

My hospital roommate acted so pleased when people came to see her by the dozens, but after they left, the poor thing was exhausted because she really wasn't up to having company. She later told me she really didn't want company but didn't want to hurt their feelings. I'll bet she had 50 visitors every day.

Abby, tell your readers to ask their hospitalized friends and relatives if they honestly want visitors before popping in for a surprise call. A card or telephone call would be so much more appreciated by most folks.

ON THE MEND IN BEND, ORE.

DEAR ON: Well said. And while we're on the subject, I wonder why everyone thinks a "No Visitors" sign on the door means everyone except him?

DEAR ABBY: Is my husband crazy, or am I? He has worn glasses for years, and says when he takes his glasses off, he can't hear. Do you think he should have his head examined?
MOLLY IN GREELEY

DEAR MOLLY: Not necessarily. But it wouldn't hurt to have his ears examined.

BUCKLING UP. Former welterweight champion Roberto Duran (right) waits as trainer Carlos "Panama" Louis tightens the strap on his headgear during a sparring session Thursday at his training camp in this rural community east of Cleveland. Duran, who lost the welterweight title to Sugar Ray Leonard last November, will fight Nino Gonzales Aug. 9 in Cleveland. (AP Laserphoto)

Duran wants return match with Sugar Ray Leonard

ORWELL, Ohio (AP) — Roberto Duran stepped away from what Carl King — son of fight promoter Don King — calls "the actual place of work" — a boxing ring on the second floor of King's Boxing Camp barn.

"I'm all right," he said in Spanish, making his way across the barn's plywood floors and into the showers Thursday.

There were no cheers and no boos. A small group of local fans gingerly approached the Panamanian boxer for autographs.

Two days ago, Duran arrived here from New York. Thursday, he was getting the feel of things. Six rounds of sparring were under his belt, and he appeared to feel good about a post-workout bout with reporters and a camera crew which posted him in front of a grain harvester and Ohio corn fields for a filming session.

Duran is to face Nino Gonzalez Aug. 9 in Cleveland in a 10-round junior-middleweight fight.

"He's OK," said Simon Smith, a Panamanian policeman who has been Duran's sparring partner for five years and who helped Duran work up a heavy sweat.

"He has to get his weight down a little, that's all."

Smith and Luis Resto, a New Yorker, had worked Duran into his characteristic reverie of "bings," "bams," "ee's" and other guttural sounds that the boxer uses in the ring.

At 30, Duran is still one of the winningest fighters ever. He has a 72-2 record. Duran admitted he's been virtually inactive since he became ill and quit in the eighth round of a welterweight title fight against Sugar Ray Leonard in New Orleans last Nov. 25.

But he's still obsessed with Leonard, and he sees his fight with Gonzalez as a stepping stone to a Leonard rematch.

"I'll fight Leonard anytime he decides to fight," Duran said. "He must give me a return fight."

The 21-year-old Gonzalez, from Bayonne, N.J., is 24-1.

Scores soar at British Open

SANDWICH, England (AP) — Since the British Open golf championship began in 1860, there never was a first day like this.

Nobody broke par.

Jack Nicklaus, a three-time champion, shot 83 — his worst round in 20 British Opens — after hearing that his son Steve had been charged with drunken driving back in Ohio.

Tom Watson, defending champion, predicted the title may be won with an unprecedented total of 6-over par.

And amid all the high scoring in the shifting winds, 51-year-old Arnold Palmer lost an argument with officials over a free drop and probably was robbed of a share in the lead.

The 6,829-yard Royal St. George's links lived up to its reputation as a terror for golfers unfamiliar with the hump-backed fairways, invisible bunkers and winds that blow in from Pegwell Bay.

Only two of the 153 players, Vicente Fernandez of Argentina and Nick Job of Britain, made par 70. They shared the lead, with six men one stroke behind them — Johnny Miller and U.S. Amateur champion Hal Sutton of the United States, U.S. Open winner David Graham of Australia, Isao Aoki of Japan, Simon Owen of New Zealand and Tony Jacklin of Britain.

All the top players had predicted the course would be difficult, but probably none of them expected it to be as tough as this. The pins were awkwardly placed, the wind differed from hole to hole and the greens were slow.

At the center of the drama was the tragic figure of Nicklaus, who has never finished outside the top six in the last 15 years.

Few of the 19,000 fans who lined the undulating fairways knew of his family worries. All they saw was a great golfer making a mess of hole after hole. At the turn, with one birdie and five bogeys, he was at 39, four over par.

But worse was to come. On the first five of the inward nine he had four double bogeys and a bogey.

Nicklaus said afterward he had talked to his son on the phone.

"I'm not greatly excited by what has happened, but it had nothing to do with my performance," he said. "There has to be one day when you shoot the worst round of your life."

Watson double-bogeyed the first hole after twice hitting into heavy rough. He finished with 73. That left him three strokes off the pace.

Texas League roundup

By The Associated Press

Leo Hernandez hit his 16th homer of the season in the second inning Thursday night to give San Antonio a game-winning lead in an 8-1 Texas League win over Tulsa.

In other league action, Midland downed Arkansas 10-8, Jackson beat Amarillo 9-2, and Shreveport handed El Paso a 3-2 loss.

The first three runs in the San Antonio-Tulsa contest came on solo homeruns. Dale Holman put San Antonio on top 1-0 in the first inning and Tulsa's Pete O'Brian tied it in the bottom of the inning.

Hernandez' blast was followed by three more San Antonio runs in each of the fifth and eighth innings. Steve Sax drove in the three in the eighth with a double down the third-base line.

The winner was But Wickensheimer, 4-2. Kevin Richards, 4-4, took the loss.

Carmillo Martinez hit a three-run third-inning homer to keep Midland in the game with Arkansas. The Travelers came back and tied the game, 7-7, in the eighth but were unable to match three more Midland runs.

The winner was Henry Mack,

Pampa Nationals rally to edge High Plains West

AMARILLO—Pampa National League all-stars came from behind to defeat High Plains West, 11-9, Thursday night in Area Tournament play to advance into the championship finals.

Pampa Nationals meet Randall County at 7 p.m. tonight in the finals. If Pampa wins, another game would be played at 7 p.m. Saturday night since Randall County is unbeaten in the double-elimination tournament.

Pampa rallied to score four runs in the top of the fifth inning after trailing, 7-5. Pinchhitter Mike Lynn gave the Nationals the lead with a run-scoring double. Lynn also scored to give Pampa a 9-7 lead.

Greg Clayton had led off the fifth with a triple and came home on a single by John Thomas to trim the gap to one.

High Plains came to score twice in the bottom of the fifth, but Pampa also scored two times in the sixth inning to make it 11-8.

Pampa pitcher Brett Mitchell, who went the full seven innings, yielded one more run in the sixth on a double and a wild throw, but struck out the last batter to end the game.

Mitchell gave up nine hits and only one earned run while striking out five and walking five. He also led the team in hitting with a double and single.

Pampa has now won two of three games in the tournament.

Last night's win avenged an earlier 19-5 loss.

The Area winner advances to the district tournament which starts July 23 at the North Randall County Field.

Spinks fights Muhammad for light-heavyweight title

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Michael Spinks is the favorite in his World Boxing Association light-heavyweight title bout against champion Eddie Mustafa Muhammad Saturday, but he says that doesn't mean a thing once they get into the ring.

"I respect any man that has two fists that would hit me," Spinks said. "I'm not going to stand in front of him and let him hit me."

Spinks, rated the No. 1 contender by both the WBA and the World Boxing Council, finally gets his chance to step out of his older brother's shadow in the scheduled 15-round bout at the Imperial Palace on the Strip. The fight will be televised by ABC.

"It's the biggest fight of my career," he said. "I don't know if it's the toughest opponent, but it's the biggest fight. I'm going for all the marbles."

Spinks' brother, former heavyweight champion Leon Spinks, will be at ringside, the younger Spinks said. He said his controversial sibling's well-known brushes with the law had not distracted him.

"Not one bit," he said. "He's not coming here and driving his Cadillac through my training session."

Michael, now 16-0 with 11 knockouts, was in his seventh professional fight on the undercard at the Las Vegas Hilton in February 1978 when Leon scored a split decision over Muhammad Ali to win the undisputed heavyweights championship. Michael's 10-round decision over Mike Bethea went virtually unnoticed in the hubbub over one of the great upsets in boxing history.

Following his brother's victory — and the controversy surrounding the WBC's decision to strip him of its half of the title — Michael didn't fight for 10 months.

Pampa can win district 14-15 crown tonight

Pampa 14-15 year olds need only one more win to claim the District 14-15 crown tonight.

That win can come tonight when Pampa meets Canyon at 7 p.m. in the championship bracket at Optimist Park.

Canyon nipped Hereford, 2-1, last night to advance into the finals.

Even if Pampa loses, a second game would have to be played since they are the only unbeaten team in the double-elimination tournament.

Pampa has defeated both Hereford and Canyon once each.

The team is coached by Gerrel Owens, Doug Baird, and Marvin Elam.

The district winner advances to Lubbock for the state tournament, which will be played at Lubbock Christian College.

Pampa Americans roll past Canadian, 12-6

CANADIAN—Pampa American Little Leaguers opened up a 12-hit attack to bury Canadian, 12-6, Thursday night in the Area Tournament.

Pampa plays Memphis at 7 p.m. tonight with the winner advancing into the championship bracket against Childress at 7 p.m. Saturday night. If Childress loses, then another game would be played at 7 p.m. Monday night to determine the tournament champion.

"Our hitting came alive last night," Pampa coach Nelson Medley said. "We made a few errors, but it didn't hurt us that much."

Troy Owens pitched a three-hitter for the Americans while striking out five and walking five.

"Troy pitched a fantastic game," Medley added.

Shawn Fry was a perfect three of three at plate while Owens had three hits in four times at bat. Brad Abbott, James Ward and Ronnie Lyles had two hits each.

NBC hocus-pocus recommended

NEW YORK (AP) — The man who changed the face of NBC Sports says the quick-fix syndrome that doomed Fred Silverman at NBC won't work for Grant Tinker either. He recommends a little hocus-pocus — at least at the beginning.

Don Ohlmeyer, the dynamic executive producer of NBC Sports, doesn't mean the kind of programming spell that Silverman said he would cast over NBC, instantaneously turning a frog into a prince.

He means the great art of illusion, giving the viewer less than meets the eye but making him think it's more.

"The first thing Grant has to do is change the public's perception of NBC," said Ohlmeyer, who defected from ABC in 1977.

Ohlmeyer resorted to fancy footwork in NBC Sports until he could improve the product. Now Tinker, NBC's new chairman, faces a similar task: raising the image and ratings of the last-place network.

"I knew right away that I couldn't change NBC Sports overnight," Ohlmeyer said. "What I could do immediately was change the form of our programming. Later we could change the content. The cosmetic changes are the easiest, and they're often perceived as what we're all about."

Ohlmeyer said the first patch-up job involved the programs' openings and promotions. Like an unknown restaurant, a spiffy outside can sometimes lure curious diners inside.

"We were stalling for time," Ohlmeyer said. "While we were improving the form, we were working all the while on the substance."

It might have been a charade, but it worked. NBC's Sports has reached parity with its rivals in style and substance and has made some small inroads into ABC's large ratings lead on the weekends. New RCA Chairman Thornton Bradshaw praised NBC Sports as one of the bright spots of the Silverman era.

Ohlmeyer is a disciple of ABC News and Sports President Rooney Arledge, who has built ABC from a journalistic also-ran into a razor-sharp news department. It took time before ABC's news content was strengthened, but Arledge immediately put it in a prettier package.

ABC's news quality now can sell itself. In the fierce battle for network news supremacy at night, ABC is now closer to No. 1-rated CBS than it is to No. 3 NBC. The Nielsen figures from last week give CBS a 10.6 rating and a 25 share, followed by ABC's 10.1 rating and 23 share and NBC's 9.1 rating and 21 share.

NBC's problems in daytime and prime time are more difficult. All the networks report the same news. It's the entertainment programming that varies so greatly in quality and public acceptance. And already the industry's forecasters are predicting another third-place finish for NBC in 1981-82.

This is Tom Jones

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Today, this is Tom Jones: a singer with a country music-oriented album and a television deal in the works.

The Welsh fireball with the sensual magnetism has never drifted too far from country music. His "Green Grass of Home" in 1966 is a country music standard.

"I've always liked country music," Jones, 41, said in a telephone interview from his home in Bel Air, Calif. "I've had some success with it, but I've never done a country album. Since country music is so big now, it seemed natural to do it."

The album is "Darlin'," arranged and conducted by veteran Nashville producer Bill Justis. There is a single by the same name.

Jones, who had a network television show, "This is Tom Jones," from 1969 to 1971, has taped 12 segments for a syndicated television show called "Tom Jones." He probably will do 12 more with the show targeted to hit the home screens early next year.

"There's a country spot in every show," he said. "The show will be nice." Jones added, "I'll get to widen my audience and play to a new generation. Some of my old fans' kids come to see me now."

He appears in Las Vegas two months a year and makes concert appearances much of the rest of the time. And excited women still toss things at him on stage — a tantalizing trademark of his earlier career.

"I get more flowers now," he said, chucking. "It used to be underwear and some hotel keys. Women want to get my attention and maybe they think flowers are just as appealing." He doesn't mind and doesn't consider it distracting.

"I want people to feel relaxed and this seems to make them feel good," he said.

His comment to all those who have thrown things at him: "Keep throwin' 'em."

Jones, who has 10 gold albums in this country and a like number elsewhere, credits his stage act with keeping his career going.

But an ambition is to make a movie, and he's purchased rights to a book called "The Gospel Singer" about a Southerner.

DISTANCE SUCCESS. Members of the Moody Blues, the acknowledged masters of the complex, dreamy, British mellow rock sound, have joined a small and select circle of superstar rock bands dating back to the '60s whose LPs have made it to the upper reaches of the record charts in the '80s with the latest release "Long Distance Voyager." There Brynn Thayer was in the Hudson Mall in Jersey City looking as fresh as the daisy she wore in her lovely loose locks. It has been a pleasure witnessing the growth and development of this outstanding actress over the past few years in the role of Jenny on "One Life To Live." She has come a long way from being the timid actress who felt like she stood in Kathy Glass's shadow when Brynn assumed the role of Jenny that Kathy had created. "It was rough," admits Brynn, "unfortunately the first piece of fan mail I received was rather unkind because I took Kathy's place and I'm afraid I was quite disturbed by it."

But soon Brynn placed her own distinctive stamp on Jenny and the public sat up and took notice. It's interesting that Jenny's development has paralleled Brynn's own.

The woman I saw today who was so self-assured and comfortable dealing with questions from the crowd represents the positive change that success can bring. Brynn has never looked more beautiful and one suspects that a strong undercurrent of sensuality lurks behind those expressive eyes. These elements of blossoming beauty and sexuality have been carefully and expertly brought to her role on "One Life To Live." Brynn has made Jenny a living and breathing woman who is as believable and comfortable in a negligee as she is in a nurses' uniform. She has changed from being a "hand-wringer" to a strong gutsy lady capable of making decisions and controlling her own destiny.

A brief encounter with Brynn Thayer undeniably reveals all those wonderful qualities and more. In this case art most definitely imitates life.

Panhandling and preying on each other

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A boulevard for busted hopes and burned-out minds, a last stop for losers, the Bowery has been an alcoholic skid row for years, but it shelters a new breed these days — younger, more mobile, more prone to violence.

Many who sit today on the littered sidewalks or lie in the gutter have histories of mental problems and drug use as well as alcoholism, according to Calvin Reid, director of the city's only men's shelter.

They panhandle passing motorists. They prey upon each other. Often, their object is nothing more valuable than a bottle of cheap wine.

But three weeks ago, someone began slashing throats. Two vagrants died. A 31-year-old former mental patient named Charles Sears was arrested last week carrying a bloodied straight razor. The resident of a Bowery flophouse was charged with one murder, one attempted murder and two attempted assaults.

The Bowery runs from the edge of Chinatown up to Cooper Square, near Fourth Street. Sprawling up the street are restaurant supply houses, flophouses, lighting fixture stores, Chinese restaurants and an Off-Track Betting office.

Some residents say you can see a revival if you look hard enough. But the "good blocks" are outnumbered. In a city where parking is at a premium, it's easy to find empty spaces on the Bowery.

The city and state spend about $11.3 million a year on shelters for the estimated 36,000 homeless people scattered around New York City. More than half the money goes to the city's 34-year-old Shelter Care Center for Men.

One such resident, who would identify himself only as Pete, begs passersby for money and uses spit and a hankie to clean windows on cars stopped at the traffic lights. He showed a reporter where he sleeps on a bed of cardboard.

Pete says he is a hippie from the 1960s, uses cocaine and heroin and claims that former patients from state mental hospitals are "messing up the street." His arms are full of needle marks. His clothes have a powerful stench.

Twenty years ago, typical shelter users were about 55-60 years old, with about 60 percent white and almost all alcoholic, Reid says. Statistics on today's users indicate 47 percent are black, 33 percent white and 17 percent Hispanic, with 54 percent under 40 and 80 percent younger than 50.

Pete, 34, his goatee and long mop of hair prematurely gray, claims he rarely eats and admits to a serious drinking problem. "I wake up shaking. This is drug addiction," he said, drinking from a second bottle of wine. His first, still half-full, was stolen by another man who threatened to knife him for talking to a reporter instead of sharing his wine.

Any type of liquor will do, Pete said, his belly bare to the breeze inside his open shirt. "Whatever it takes to stop the shakes."

On a typical day, about 1,600 men use sleeping quarters provided by the city through the shelter. Inside the shelter itself is a 16-bed dormitory used by those with ambulatory or senility problems. At night, recreation and sitting rooms are cleared to set up beds for an additional 73 men.

They are given two sheets, a pillow, clean underwear and socks. Admission is on a first-come, first-served basis. Once the beds are filled, homeless men are sent to nearby single-occupancy lodging houses. It was at one of those facilities, the $3.51-a-night Delevan House, where Sears lived.

The Delevan lobby is up a long, dark stairway and around to the right. Clerk Donald Pope stands in a cage with heavy wire grating and the Clutch Exchange hangs behind the desk.

There are four floors of rooms, which Pope describes as "cubbyholes. They're big enough to move around in. That's it." The posted rent is $3.25 per night, payable in advance, plus 26 cents tax.

Pope says the lobby can be used only by "paying guests, not the overflow from the shelters." He says the men the city sends are "troublemakers." Some regulars have been staying at the Delevan for 5-10 years," he said.

The sign reads: "Salvation Army Bowery Corps — Dedicated to the Service of God and Humanity A.D. 1951." The Salvation Army has a history of helping Bowery derelicts.

"It used to be that the term 'Bowery bum' meant living on the street, a derelict with liquor," said one Salvation Army official, who asked that his name not be used. "The term has really spread out. Now you've got mental cases and drug addicts burnt out from the 1960s acid."

In the past, he added, "the Bowery bum or derelict has been harmless. But that has become a myth. There are some real dangerous people out there."

NOWHERE TO GO. Two unidentified inhabitants of the sidewalk The Bowery shelters many people with Bowery, a skid row section of New York City, sleep on the histories of mental problems and drug and alcohol abuse. (AP Laserphoto)

Free flight tickets lead to commotion

CLEVELAND (AP) — It began as a promotion to publicize a new airline service out of Cleveland Hopkins International Airport.

It ended with a loud, raucous commotion that attracted police tactical units and was more than the airline had anticipated. And when it was over, although the airline said everyone left happy, the airport was dismayed.

Texas International Airlines promoted its new services from Cleveland to such southern cities as Houston and New Orleans and several western cities.

The airline said it would give away 50 free round-trip standby passes on Wednesday to the first 50 people at the reservation desk with 50 items of a certain kind or an object 50 inches tall.

By about 5:30 a.m. Wednesday, more than 400 people were at the desk area.

The few Cleveland policemen at the airport were reinforced by other patrolmen and the Community Response and Special Weapons and Tactics units.

Then at 10 a.m., the tension in the crowd eased when Ben L. Karr, Texas International marketing director, said that everyone meeting the contest rules would get two free tickets. The airline had planned to give away 50 round-trip tickets, but ended up yielding about 600.

"A crowd in every case gets a little pushy," Karr said. "Some people took it upon themselves not to play by the rules of fair play."

But the incident did not sit well with George F. Doughty, the city's ports director who has some administrative authority over the airport.

Tactical spy plane unveiled

PALMDALE, Calif. (AP) — A new $12.5 million version of the high-flying U-2 spy plane emerged ceremoniously from an isolated hanger as the Air Force praised it as a revolutionary step in tactical reconnaissance.

The black TR-1, its huge wings drooping as it moved into the windy California desert Wednesday before some 200 dignitaries and reporters, was the first of a planned fleet of 35 of the new Air Force planes to come off Lockheed Corp. assembly lines.

Thomas Behan, TR-1 program manager at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Fairborn, Ohio, said the new version will not replace the U-2, which hasn't been produced in more than a decade. The older planes will continue their strategic mission, while the TR-1 was designed for tactical reconnaissance — "standoff battlefield surveillance" in the European theater, he said.

The unarmed plane is designed to fly to the fringes of enemy territory and see what's ahead, looking especially for such things as tanks and troops movements, Behan said.

With a 103-foot wingspan, 63-foot fuselage and single turbojet engine, the plane has a cruising speed in excess of 430 mph, a range of at least 3,000 miles and can soar to an altitude of more than 70,000 feet. How much those figures are exceeded is classified.

Angry residents say they'll picket airline

IRVING, Texas (AP) — A group of anti-noise activists here say they have been driven to the streets by "irresponsible corporate behavior" on the part of American Airlines, and will picket the corporate headquarters Friday to stop flights over their homes.

"The time has come for positive action," said John Medaille of the Concerned Citizens to Control Airport Noise. The group has been trying to halt a 60-day Federal Aviation Administration test of Runway 13-Left at the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport. The runway approach routes planes over Irving homes.

The group says American Airlines is the "prime beneficiary" of the new flight pattern, and accuses company officials of acting like "a bunch of imported J.R. Ewings."

Medaille said the group plans to picket American's headquarters in Grand Prairie Friday, to hold a "Save Our City" march Saturday, and to conduct a door-to-door education campaign Sunday.

The group announced its plans at a Wednesday news conference, two days after the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans refused the city of Irving's appeal to halt the test, set to end Aug. 9.

American president Robert L. Crandall said his airline is not at fault.

"I am sympathetic to those people, but the facts are different from what they are saying," he said.

The group claims American increased the number of flights from 148 to 215 the day the test began, and wants the runway open "so it can stack 10 flights at a time."

"Is this the way to run an airline? No, this is an example of irresponsible corporate behavior," Medaille said.

Crandall said "only about a third" of the 200 flights using the runway are American.

"Anyone who lives near airports takes risks," he said. "When most of these people moved in, they knew the airport would be built and there would be noise."

"We've got clothes, we've got household goods, books, toys, furniture, Christmas decorations," she said. "We won't let people pay. The only way they could pay would be to send a check afterward, and that is not what we want them to do."

PAC activities influencing campaign politics

EDITOR'S NOTE — Acronyms abound in this complex modern world. Especially in politics. Now meet PACs — Political Action Committees, including NCPAC and PROPAC. Free from the laws limiting expenditures for candidates, these fund-raising organizations are playing an increasingly significant role in campaign politics.

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Newsfeatures Writer
ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — On a third of a page in the Washington Post one recent Sunday appeared an ad topped by a mug shot of Terry Dolan, at once one of the most vilified and imitated men in American politics. It quoted him: "A group like ours could lie through its teeth and the candidate it helps stays clean."

Dolan says that statement was quoted out of context. The ad was bought for about $7,000 by a group called PROPAC, the Progressive Political Action Committee, one of the new liberal fund-raising organizations created since the 1980 elections.

It described the National Conservative Political Action Committee, the organization Dolan runs, as "a group of well-financed zealots who have set out on a scare campaign to bully the Congress into submission — and to bully the American people into submission as well."

A year away from the midterm elections, liberals are regrouping, attempting to win back the votes they've lost in the past four years by emulating conservative organizations. PROPAC is one of five new liberal groups based on the NCPAC example.

Political Action Committees make for a development that could eventually supersede Democratic and Republican campaign organizations as they funnel independent funds into congressional campaigns.

For PACs are unfettered by post-Watergate laws limiting expenditures by candidates. Using sophisticated direct-mail techniques, they can raise millions to be spent as they wish — for specified candidates or, as Dolan's NCPAC does regularly, for "negative" campaigns against incumbents even before they have opponents.

Ralph Nader's Congress Watch says independent PACs spent more than $16 million in the 1980 elections, $13 million of which came from the right side of the spectrum. The proportions will change in 1982 with the arrival of the new liberal groups. But they have a long way to go. Conservative direct mail expert Richard Viguerie estimates conservatives have an 11-year head start, and many liberals agree.

NCPAC, which spent $4 million in 1980, achieved its prominence as cornerstone of the ascendant New Right because Dolan was one of the first to understand and take advantage of the new rules and combine them with Viguerie's computerized fund-raising technology. Last fall's conservative sweep, which turned out of office four of the six senators NCPAC had marked for defeat, gave them new credibility.

NCPAC (pronounced "nickpack") takes credit for the defeat of four prominent liberal senators — George McGovern of South Dakota, Frank Church of Idaho, Birch Bayh of Indiana and John Culver of Iowa. But its strategy of negative advertising — foes call it distorted — leads even some Republicans, including National Chairman Richard Richards, to suggest the strategy hurts the party more than it helps by creating an anti-NCPAC backlash.

Whatever, the ads can be rough. Anti-Church and McGovern spots a year before their elections showed empty missile silos, implying the incumbent favored stripping national defenses. One showed a target over McGovern's face.

There will be more. Dolan hopes to spend between $5 million and $6 million next year and is considering targets as big as Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts and Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia.

All of which makes NCPAC a convenient punching bag. Richards says groups like it "create all kinds of mischief" and generate sympathy for incumbents they're trying to unseat.

On the left, there's calculated imitation of Dolan's methods.

PROPAC, for example, has singled out for defeat Sens. Orrin Hatch of Utah, Jesse Helms of North Carolina, S. Hayakawa and Harrison Schmitt of New Mexico, though Helms' term doesn't expire until 1984.

"If we're being shot at with a weapon we have to shoot back with a comparable weapon," says Lesley Israel, one of the group's political coordinators.

PROPAC is run from the public relations office of Victor Kamber, a former AFL-CIO official, and has ties to women's organizations, civil liberties and environmental groups and other liberal constituencies.

Among the others: — Independent Action, run by Ed Coyle, who has worked in the Democratic presidential campaigns for McGovern, Morris Udall, Edmund Muskie and for John Anderson's independent candidacy. It's backed by, among others, Udall and Sen. Paul Tsongas of Massachusetts.

— Citizens for the '80s, a centrist, establishment Democratic organization. It includes on its board such as Robert Strauss, former Democratic national chairman and Jimmy Carter campaign manager.

— PACs created by

Kennedy and former Vice President Walter Mondale. Intended to help Democratic candidates for office, they also inevitably will be used to build IOUs for 1984 presidential bids.

The initial appeals show some of NCPAC's rhetoric.

The first PROPAC fund-raising letter opens with a list of evils that could befall the country during conservative times.

Study says shortness may be prevented

BOSTON (AP) — It may stunt the supply of astronauts and jockeys, but researchers say a common hormone has been found to help short children grow and its use could be expanded.

The hormone, given 20 children ages 8 to 11 whose growth was below the normal rate of 2 to 4 inches a year, shot up "3, 4 or 5 inches a year, so their growth failure was corrected," said Dr. Daniel Rudman, who directed the study.

The study was conducted at Emory University Hospital in Atlanta and was published here in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The natural chemical — the height-regulating protein called human growth hormone — can accelerate a child's creeping growth rate if given in extra doses, Rudman said. Until now, doctors had used it only on children with a rare deficiency that prevents growth entirely.

However, the hormone won't help short people catch up once they reach adulthood. Also, supplies are low because it can be obtained only from human pituitary glands collected at death. However, genetic engineers have found ways to program bacteria to produce the hormone, and the substances are being tested.

"Short children are pretty common, and in the majority of them, there is no apparent cause for their shortness," Rudman said.

About 40 percent of all short children appear to produce normal amounts of the hormone, but the researchers found that many of them apparently produce an abnormal form of it that fails to do its job.

Rudman estimated that human growth hormone may help approximately one in 10 of those children. Among those with the most severe problems, the hormone may help as many as one in three.

Without the treatments, boys reach an adult height of under 5-foot-3 and the girls under 4-11.

Not all short children have that problem, so the researchers devised a test to find out who would benefit from extra doses of the hormone.

They used the test on 48 children ages 8 to 11 whose conditions were so severe that growth had nearly stopped. Twenty of those children, whose average height was about 4 feet, received extra doses of the hormone for six months and their growth speeded up, Rudman said.

Land give-away saves school

ANTLER, N.D. (AP) — A 72-year-old bachelor's offer of free land to homesteaders willing to settle here and keep the town from drying up and blowing away has reopened the school and given six families a fresh start.

"It's like a dream come true," said Susan LaPointe, who plans to move from Bath, Mich., to Antler with her husband and six children.

When the school board decided to close the school in tiny Antler because there were not enough pupils, Harley Kissner offered to give away part of his farm to get families with children to move to town.

"I'm very, very happy," Kissner said Tuesday after giving the school board a list of six families moving to this town of 100 people on the Canadian border. The families will bring 21 children, nearly doubling enrollment in the school, which had offered grades one through six before closing in the spring. The prospect of new students prompted the school board to reverse itself on closing the school.

Ever since he made the offer two weeks ago, Kissner has received letters and telephone calls from all 50 states. He is giving away three 9-acre and three 5-acre plots from his 640-acre farm in an area where land sells from $450 to $500 an acre.
