City water line break disrupts telephone service to 2,000

A broken six-inch cast iron water line in downtown Pampa caused the disruption of telephone service to 1,500 to 2,000 residents throughout the northern area of Pampa early today.

Information about the broken water line was reported to the one water department employee on duty about midnight last night, according to Eugene Edminson of the City of Pampa Water Production Department.

"The man is supposed to go out and check any break that has been reported to see if it is bad enough to dispatch a water crew to work on it right away. We just don't know if the break wasn't bad enough to call a crew, or if anyone actually did check it out last night," Edminson said.

Crews from Southwestern Bell in Amarillo and Pampa and City of Pampa Water Department employees were on the site in the east alley of the 200 block of Cuyler Street early today trying to pump out water that filled several Southwestern Bell manholes.

"When the city water main broke, it filled the manholes and wet the conduit in several of the Southwestern Bell manholes near the main telephone office. The break is located in the alley behind Texas Furniture. The cable is not damaged. It is just very wet," Phillip Bode of Southwestern Bell, Lubbock, said today.

"If the cable is only wet, then it should be fixed — or dried out — by late today, and telephone service should be restored. When the cable gets wet, it shorts out and that is it — they just call it wet cable," Bode said.

"If there has been any damage, it will take longer to repair. The crews just don't know where it is wet as yet — and they are still trying to pump out the water," Bode said.

Southwestern Bell engineers in the Pampa office said today the telephone cable involved in a local exchange cable which does not effect any long distance service. The cable is a 2,400 pair, one that contains 5,800 small telephone wires. It is a rather large cable, they said.

Pampa City Engineering Department employee Charles Smith said today the line that broke was a cast iron, six-inch line, and the water service will probably be interrupted in order for crews to handle the break.

"That water line was put in in about the 1920's, and it is just used up now. The rain did not actually have anything to do with the break. During peak water use times, the wells are turned on to meet the heightened demand, and the directional flow is reversed in the pipes. When that happens, the older ones sometime just come apart," Smith said.

The city water department employees said they recently have had several problems with the six-inch, cast iron water line that broke today.

"The line is just old, like so many others in the city," a city engineering department employee said.

Motorists stranded in Oklahoma flooding

By The Associated Press

The roof of a cafe caved in and motorists were stranded at flooded intersections in Oklahoma City, while a dam in New London, Mo., began overflowing after heavy rains swamped parts of the Southwest and Midwest.

A flash flood in Arizona killed at least three people on Sunday.

After baking in 100-degree weather for a week, Oklahoma City got about 5 1/2 inches of rain Monday — nearly 3 inches of it in less than an hour, officials said.

The Red Cross received reports of people perched on their rooftops to escape rising water and several motorists were rescued as Lightning Creek overflowed its banks, spilling water onto nearby roads at a depth of up to 4 feet.

About 25 people were inside the Cattlemen's Cafe Monday night when the kitchen roof collapsed under the weight of collected water, but no injuries were reported.

Dozens of motorists were stranded at low-lying intersections by high water.

The Oklahoma Highway Patrol reported shortly after 11 p.m. that Interstate 35 was flooded and impassable in south Oklahoma City.

"We've got reports of cars floating down the 1100 block of North Penn," said a spokesman at the Oklahoma County Emergency Operations Center.

"It's just going from bad to worse."

Elsewhere in Oklahoma, authorities said 3 to 4 feet of water blocked traffic along Oklahoma 33 on the east side of Watonga.

In New London, Mo., floodwaters from the Salt River began overflowing a coffer dam above the Clarence Cannon Dam project Monday night after the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers breached the dam to try to control flooding.

The floodwaters were expected to inundate hundreds of acres of farmland below the dam, causing an estimated $5 million in crop losses.

"With the rainfall Sunday night, it became obvious we could not save the coffer dam," said Col. Robert J. Dacey, district engineer for the corps in St. Louis.

"We took the option of removing part from the dam to permit water to overtop it in a controlled fashion," he said.

The coffer dam, made of earth, was built to protect the permanent dam while it is under construction. Corps officials said the structures already completed at the base of the main dam are relatively safe.

Earlier Monday, about 150 residents of the area below the dam were evacuated from their homes after Ralls County sheriff's deputies went door-to-door to notify them of the impending flood.

In Tucson, Ariz., three people were killed and five people were missing after a flash flood sent a wall of water racing through a canyon recreation area, authorities said.

About 50 people were hiking, swimming and picnicking Sunday near Tanque Verde Falls when the flood, fed by rainwaters upstream, stormed over the falls. Helicopters rescued 26 people.

City seeks impounding agent

City commissioners agreed today to receive bids Aug. 25 for an impounding agent to implement the abandoned vehicles program while in regular session today.

Commissioners will advertise for bids for the impounding agent at a later date.

The final plat for the Tumbleweed Addition was approved in the short session today.

An ordinance, providing for the Somerville Street addition paving program, was approved by the commissioners on the first reading.

Jury selection continues

Fifty additional jurors were called late Monday afternoon for possible selection in the 31st District Court murder trial of Preston Maynard.

After almost six hours of questioning of the 44 potential jurors by both defense and prosecuting attorneys five were selected to serve.

Selection of the additional seven jurors will continue today.

Maynard, 45, is accused of the Dec. 10 shooting death of his 40-year-old wife, Shirley Louise.

Maynard is being represented by V.G. Kollus of Amarillo and Ken Fields of Pampa.

Many of the potential jurors admitted during voir dire questioning Monday, that they were acquainted, either by business or social contacts with prosecuting attorney, District Attorney Harold Comer, many also answered to a hypothetical question, they could not be comfortable with giving a sentence of five years probation to a person convicted of murder.

Member of pioneer family dies

Mrs. Mary Field Cary, 84, member of a prominent pioneer Pampa family and widow of the late Gray County Judge C. E. Cary, died Monday in her home at 430 N. Sumner, following a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Cary was born Jan. 9, 1897 in Fort Worth and moved with her family to the Goodnight Ranch in Palo Duro Canyon in 1906 and to Amarillo in 1912 where she attended high school. She was graduated from Miss Agnes Brantley's Academy in Fort Worth in 1915 and taught music until her marriage to Claud Elmer Cary in Canyon on March 12, 1922, when she moved to Pampa, her husband's home. Judge Cary died on May 25, 1959.

She was a charter member and the first historian of the Las Pampas Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, a member of the United Daughters of the Confederacy and the Pampa Genealogical and Historical Society. She was a charter

Democrats predict tax win despite Reagan plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic leaders, accusing President Reagan of waging a "political trench fight," concede his nationally broadcast appeal may have swayed crucial votes for his tax cut but predict they will beat him anyway in Wednesday's showdown on the House floor.

Saying "this is not the time for political fun and games," Reagan sought Monday night to mobilize an army of Americans to lobby for his tax plan with "letters, telegrams and personal visits."

Some congressmen reported an immediate burst of telephone calls, but one Democrat who sided with Reagan on budget cuts earlier this year said he would vote against the president on taxes and at least two Democrats targeted by the White House lobbying drive remained undecided.

Reagan also tried to blunt Democratic criticism that he was sidestepping the politically sensitive issue of Social Security financing, telling his audience: "You have no reason to be frightened," that no one now dependent on benefits will have their monthly checks reduced.

He said he would talk about Social Security at length later but the overriding factor now is taxes.

The speech came less than 48 hours before the tax battle is to reach the floor of the Democratic-controlled House. The choice will be between Reagan's plan and a Democratic alternative the president branded as "just another empty promise."

Reagan's plan is for a 33-month, 25 percent cut in tax rates, re-NEING Oct. 1, with everyone getting the same percentage reduction regardless of income. It includes automatic cuts each year starting in 1985 to offset inflation.

The rival bill pushed by Democrats is for a two-year, 15 percent cut, also effective Oct. 1, tilted to people earning less than $50,000 a year. A third-year, 10 percent cut would be allowed only if the administration meets its goals for lowering inflation, interest rates and the federal deficit.

"I must agree, he's a super salesman," House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said after watching Reagan's speech on television.

The Massachusetts Democrat, who lost to Reagan on two earlier budget votes, said that as of Monday, "I have the votes to win" on taxes, but he said he couldn't say whether that margin would hold up in the face of the president's new lobbying offensive.

O'Neill said he counted 14 Democrats solidly against the Democratic bill with seven or eight still on the fence. He predicted an overall loss of 21 to 22 Democrats — which would give the Democrats a narrow victory assuming all 191 Republicans voted for the Reagan plan.

There are 435 House members.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois, the Democratic chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, said Reagan "has reduced the debate over a trillion-dollar tax cut to a political trench fight."

Reagan also stepped up his lobbying in the White House, meeting with 16 House members Monday and inviting more today.

The thrust of the White House campaign, however, was to build public pressure on Congress, the same strategy Reagan used in winning approval of sweeping budget cuts.

"I urge you again to contact your senators and congressmen," Reagan said. "Once again, they need to hear from you. That doesn't give you much time, but a great deal is at stake."

White House aides acknowledged that the issue was in doubt but said momentum was with the president.

Five Texas congressmen who are committed to vote for Reagan's bill said their phones began lighting up almost as soon as the president finished speaking. And the White House said almost 800 telephone calls in the first 1 1/2 hours after the speech ran more than 5-1 in Reagan's favor.

Rep. Glenn English of Oklahoma, one of the Democrats wooed by Reagan at the Camp David, Md., presidential retreat, said: "I don't think that as far as convincing me, I don't think that did it. He made a good speech to have the country rally behind, but beyond that I'm not sure it did much."

He added: "It sounds like I'm going to get a lot of telephone calls tomorrow."

Rep. Beverly Byron, D-Md., who also was among 15 Democrats at Camp David on Sunday, said she remained uncommitted, although she preferred the Democrats' plan to make a three-year tax cut conditional on an improved economy.

The House Rules Committee was meeting today to set ground rules for Wednesday's floor debate. The Senate, meanwhile, neared completion of work on its tax bill, with a vote scheduled today on an amendment that would liberalize tax credit for child-care expenses for working parents.

Fireworks, campers mark start of the 'wedding of the century'

LONDON (AP) — The flash of fireworks and sound of music fill the London skies tonight, heralding the "wedding of the century," and early birds were already camping before the great dome of St. Paul's Cathedral to get a good view of the royal bride and groom Wednesday.

As dedicated royalty lovers staked out choice places beneath the bunting and balloons festooning the procession route from Buckingham Palace to St. Paul's Cathedral, Lady Diana Spencer, clasping Prince Charles' hand, made one of her last public appearances before becoming princess of Wales and the future queen of England.

In a final rehearsal Monday at Sir Christopher Wren's 300-year-old cathedral atop Ludgate Hill, the bride and groom met before Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie to practice the ceremony that will be televised to an expected 750 million viewers in 55 nations.

Diana, whose pre-wedding jitters caused her to flee a weekend polo match in tears when confronted by a barrage of cameras, was whisked into the cathedral through an underground parking lot.

After the hour-long rehearsal, however, she faced an enthusiastic throng of 3,000 people. Charles took her hand as they descended the cathedral's 24 front steps to their limousine.

Several hours later the young couple were on view again at Buckingham Palace, where Queen Elizabeth II honored them with a dinner for 90 special guests and a "private" reception attended by 1,500.

"One and a half thousand people may seem a lot for a private party, but they have a very wide circle," said a palace spokesman. "There was no protocol about it. It was purely a party for friends and friends of friends."

President Reagan's wife, Nancy, the official American representative at the wedding, was among the dinner guests. The Three Degrees, the American soul singers who are favorites of Charles, were reported at the reception.

Charles tonight lights the first of a nationwide chain of 101 royal wedding beacons during a $125,000 fireworks display in Hyde Park. The 18-minute finale will use 2 1/2 tons of explosives in a 170-foot catherine wheel as the bands of the House Guards and the Household Cavalry accompany massed choirs and guns boom in celebration.

Meanwhile, police dogs sniffed for bombs under manhole covers and in drains, security forces made sweeps of the wedding procession's two-mile route, and police marksmen got their final briefings.

The 255-pound wedding cake, baked by Royal Navy cooks, was unveiled Monday. The five-foot, five-tier fruit cake was decorated with royal and naval insignia, family crests and replicas of St. Paul's, Buckingham Palace and Highgrove, the prince's country estate and the couple's future home.

As thousands of gifts piled up at the palace, what was declared the world's largest wedding card arrived with the signatures of 25,000 western Australians. Their diplomatic representative in London, Les Slade, noted that the 32-foot-wide greeting "is obviously too big to go on the mantelpiece."

Despite federal ruling, Clements orders medfly roadblocks up again

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements invoked his emergency powers and ordered agricultural inspectors to once again man roadblocks on the state's western border to prevent truckloads of California produce infested by the Mediterranean fruit fly from crossing the state line.

The governor's order Monday came one week after U.S. District Judge Patrick Higginbotham in Dallas issued a temporary restraining order that lifted a Texas quarantine on California produce not certified free of the destructive pest.

"Whether this will bump into the federal court ruling we don't know," said Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown. "We've been working on this the past few weeks. We've been very frustrated by court orders. This is another tool we're trying to use to protect ourselves."

Brown said Monday night 24 inspectors assisted by the Department of Public Safety would man the road blocks at El Paso and Amarillo within 72 hours.

Jon Ford, Clements' press secretary, said the governor's order is an inspection and not a quarantine. He said the order could last up to 30 days and then could be extended as long "as there's a fruit fly threat."

Clements said any produce not inspected and under federal quarantine regulations will be inspected to see if it is infested with the fruit flies, which are ruining produce in three California counties.

"Any produce from the quarantined California counties not accompanied by documentation, or California produce found to be infested, will be destroyed immediately at the carrier's expense, or the carrier and produce will be denied entry into Texas," the governor said.

"The current and future food supply of Texas is in great danger, and we must act now to protect Texas consumers and the livelihood of our produce industry," said Clements, who criticized California authorities for failing to respond properly and responsibly to the crisis.

Brown said he did not expect to find any infested fruit trying to be brought into the state. He said California officials have told him they are making progress at battling the destructive fly.

Inspectors, looking for infested fruit, also will make random checks of cars crossing the state line, said Brown. He said the state, under the court-order, did not have the authority to require fumigation.

Lengthy Casey probe expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee inquiry into CIA Director William J. Casey's fitness is expected to stretch into September, and the panel might seek his resignation even if no criminal wrongdoing is found, sources close to the investigation say.

As Casey continued visiting senators to rally support and the White House issued a fresh vote of confidence from President Reagan, the Intelligence Committee put veteran Watergate investigator Fred Thompson in charge of the probe.

Thompson, joined by Republican committee chairman Barry Goldwater of Arizona and ranking Democrat Daniel P. Moynihan of New York, heard a preliminary staff report Monday on Casey's tangled past business practices and his appointment of businessman Max Hugel to head CIA clandestine services.

The full committee was to hear the briefing, based on a review of CIA and FBI files, at a closed session today.

Thompson, 38, who served as Republican counsel to the Senate Watergate Committee in 1973, is a close associate of Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee. "This gives Baker more input into the committee," according to one source, who asked not to be identified.

One source said the staff report was very preliminary and basically outlined areas to pursue. This source said that effort was expected to take two to four weeks, which would postpone the committee's final conclusions until Congress returns from its August vacation in early September.

Casey and the White House had hoped to extinguish the controversy before Congress leaves town.

Thompson promised "a thorough inquiry" but added: "I hope it will be resolved in the near future. I don't think it serves anybody's purposes to have a long drawn-out affair." He declined to commit himself in any more detail on timing.

At the White House, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan hoped the questions about Casey would be resolved shortly "in spite of Mr. Thompson's being retained there."

"The president still has full confidence in Mr. Casey and hopes this matter will be concluded shortly," Speakes said.

Asked whether he thought Casey could continue to be effective in his job, Speakes said: "We think so. He's a distinguished public servant."

Based on what is known to date, one well-placed source said key leaders anticipate the probe would produce "no smoking gun of criminal wrongdoing but some areas of questionable activity and judgment."

In that case, this source said, the committee might well conclude that Casey cannot serve effectively.

Casey has been conducting a counteroffensive. He has delivered a 20-inch-thick stack of documentary materials to the committee, has requested a chance to rebut any allegations personally at a hearing and has lobbied senators for three days.

F-16 decision due in two weeks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration will give its go-ahead for twice-delayed shipments of F-16 jets to Israel within two weeks if the cease-fire in Lebanon lasts, officials say.

State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said Monday that a decision on ending the suspension will be made by Aug. 10, the next scheduled F-16 delivery date.

Another official, who asked not to be identified, had said earlier that if the cease-fire holds, Israel can expect a favorable decision.

Meanwhile, optimism was growing in the administration that the cease-fire would last.

Fischer indicated that the violations which have occurred are not a cause for serious concern, suggesting that neither Israel nor the Palestine

Liberation Organization should see them as sufficient cause to break the accord.

"I think it's hardly surprising that there are some initial apparent violations of the cease-fire in a matter as complex as this," Fischer told reporters. "We are still hopeful and become increasingly optimistic that the cease-fire will, in fact, take hold."

President Reagan met at the White House on Monday with his special Middle East envoy, Philip C. Habib, who negotiated the cease-fire on Friday.

Habib told reporters that he probably will return to the Middle East, although he wasn't sure when. Other sources said he wanted to spend some time with his family before planning his next step.

After talking to Reagan, Habib said the cease-fire could be "a first, important step on the road to greater calm and security in the area. This will be indispensable if future progress is to be made toward a broad and lasting peace in the Middle East."

Israel's U.S. ambassador, Ephraim Evron, said after meeting with Habib at the State Department that "the cessation of hostilities seems to be holding, and we would like to hope it is the beginning of a new, more peaceful period now."

Evron also said he thought the F-16s should be delivered "as soon as possible."

Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said Monday that a more permanent cease-fire will have to be established in the Middle East if the United States is to resume F-16 deliveries.

More cease-fire violations reported

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel charged the Palestinians with two more violations of the cease-fire along the Israeli-Lebanese border today despite a report that a radical guerrilla leader agreed to observe the truce after rejecting it earlier.

The Israeli military command said Palestinian guerrillas fired two rounds of rockets, the first about dawn and the second two hours later, toward Kleiya, a south Lebanese village occupied by the forces of Israel's Lebanese Christian ally, Maj. Saad Haddad.

It was the sixth such violation reported by Israel of the cease-fire agreed to by it and the Palestine Liberation Organization last Friday after two weeks of cross-border warfare in which more than 450 Arabs and six Israelis were reported killed.

The Israeli command said its gunners did not return the fire, and sources in northern Israel said Haddad's men also did not retaliate. However, Israel Radio reported a group of five guerrillas infiltrated a zone controlled by Nigerian troops of the U.N. peacekeeping force in south Lebanon and opened fire from there on some of Haddad's militiamen. The radio's northern correspondent said the militiamen returned the fire "in self defense," not in defiance of the cease-fire.

In Beirut, meanwhile, Palestinian sources reported that PLO chief Yasser Arafat met with Ahmed Jibril, the head of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command, and Jibril agreed that his guerrillas would observe the truce.

The PFLP-GC rejected the cease-fire last weekend, contending that Arafat agreed to it without consulting leaders of the other guerrilla groups in the PLO. It admitted responsibility for three of the rocket attacks on northern Israeli towns and Lebanese Christian villages in south Lebanon since the cease-fire.

Arafat and Jibril after their meeting Monday night issued a joint statement saying they "reaffirmed complete unity of the position of all Palestinian groups in the military and political spheres," the Palestinian news agency Wafa reported.

Palestinian sources, who did not want to be identified, said this meant Arafat and Jibril had reconciled, and the PFLP-GC would honor the cease-fire.

Astronauts test space shuttle's performance

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronauts planning to ride the space shuttle Columbia on its second flight into space in September began testing the reusable aircraft today for flight and systems performance.

The twice-delayed, 20-hour test got under way as scheduled at midnight.

The rehearsal for the shuttle's second mission, conducted in Columbia's hangar at the Kennedy Space Center, included opening the craft's cargo doors and operating a remote-controlled arm.

Astronauts Joe Engle and Richard Truly and their backup crewmen,

Thomas Mattingly and Henry Hartsfield, were to enter the cockpit this morning. The orbiter's computers, were to be programmed into simulating a flight so the astronauts could carry out in abbreviated form all the duties they are to perform in space, officials said.

The two astronaut crews were to alternate at the controls.

Test procedures include checking out systems and simulating maneuvers in orbit to make sure there are no unpleasant surprises when the shuttle is launched on its second mission, scheduled for Sept. 30. The mock flight was to conclude tonight.

Wiring problems on the shuttle's huge mechanical arm were resolved Monday. Technicians ran into problems Friday on the "remote manipulation system," which is designed to retrieve satellites and other objects from space and put payloads into orbit.

Rewiring was needed on a system permitting the arm to be jettisoned if it won't fold back into place during a mission.

"There were a variety of things wrong with the wiring," said Charles Henschel, shuttle test director at the Kennedy Space Center.

House expected to vote Wednesday on state's Congressional redistricting plan

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House members are expected to vote Wednesday on a redistricting plan that could increase the number of GOP Texas congressmen from five to as many as eight.

The House Calendars Committee planned to meet today to set the congressional redistricting bill for debate.

Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, weaned away enough votes from a competing, unabashedly Democratic plan to push his own proposal through the House redistricting committee Monday.

trying to keep Republicans from gaining more than one congressional seat.

Ragsdale thought he had 10 votes for his plan, and fellow Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, didn't hide his anger when two committee members changed sides.

Washington said he would offer a plan on the House floor that "the members who understand loyalty will go for, who understand loyalty more than some on this committee."

Asked what he meant by loyalty, Washington said, "Like giving your word, for instance."

Ragsdale had listed Reps. Bill Clark, D-Tyler, and Bill Coody, D-Weatherford, as promising to vote for his plan, which would have protected all incumbent Democratic congressmen but U.S. Rep. Jim Mattox of Dallas.

Mattox's district would be extended into several rural counties, which Ragsdale said would convert it from liberal to conservative Democrat — but Democrat nonetheless.

Both the Wilson and Von Dohlen plans pack Mattox's minority base of support into Congressman Martin Frost's district, converting Mattox's district from liberal Democrat to Republican.

Both plans also create a Hispanic district with no incumbent in South Texas, a GOP mid-cities district in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and a Democrat district in Southeast Harris County.

Ragsdale would have given the GOP only one additional congressman in the mid-cities area.

Coody voted against Ragsdale's plan, and Clark withheld his vote, changing a potential 10-9 victory to a defeat.

"I was for it Friday because we were trying to hold off the (original) Von Dohlen plan, which I didn't like," Coody said. He said Von Dohlen made his proposal palatable by making some very substantial changes, such as eliminating the Corpus Christi split.

Clark said, "I had a deal cut with Von Dohlen" to change sides if the committee switched Gregg County from district to Congressman Sam Hall's.

Von Dohlen abandoned his cherished plan to divide Corpus Christi — splitting liberal-voting Hispanics from conservative Anglos — in order to get the votes he needed.

Von Dohlen's plan is similar in most respects to the redistricting bill written by Sen. John Wilson, D-La Grange, and passed by the Senate last Tuesday.

The Wilson plan would increase Texas' GOP congressional strength from five to seven members, while Von Dohlen's holds the potential for eight Republican congressmen.

The key committee vote was 10-8 to table a substitute plan by Rep. Paul Ragsdale, D-Dallas, who didn't attempt to conceal the fact he was

Gasohol bill advances

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A gasohol bill described as a money saver for motorists and a move toward removal of all government farm price supports has cleared a Senate committee.

The Senate Committee on Natural Resources voted Monday to give gasohol suppliers a tax break to stimulate an industry that could provide a major energy source and give farmers an additional market.

"Gasohol is not as popular now as it was two years ago," said Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown. "If we don't pass this bill this session, we might as well kiss gasohol goodbye."

"In five years, if you will give us an opportunity, we'll have another industry we can put a tax base on," said Brown.

Gasohol would consist of at least 10 percent ethyl alcohol of 192 proof, which could be manufactured from Texas crops such as corn and grain sorghum.

New Mexico says it has power to block water export

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — New Mexico, with the approval of Congress, has the right to prevent other states from claiming its water supplies, arguments filed with a federal court contend.

Attorneys for the state of New Mexico Monday responded to a lawsuit filed by the city of El Paso, Texas, which is challenging New Mexico's ban on use of its water by another state.

El Paso, which wants to obtain rights to water supplies in southern New Mexico, contends the New Mexico law that prevents other states from claiming its water supplies violates the U.S. Constitution's protection for interstate commerce.

several defendants in the case.

The arguments outline defenses the state intends to use to support its water export ban.

Since the lawsuit was filed in federal court in September, legal efforts by New Mexico have focused on seeking the case's dismissal for procedural reasons.

U.S. District Judge Howard Bratton denied the last of the dismissal motions earlier this month.

Although El Paso's lawyers have been arguing the lawsuit involves a limited constitutional question, the answer raises several wide-ranging defenses against it.

The answer repeats two points initially made in New Mexico's final dismissal motion, questioning the lawsuit on the basis of the U.S. Constitution's 11th Amendment and the Rio Grande Compact between New Mexico and Texas.

However, New Mexico's attorneys told the U.S. District Court Monday the state was merely using powers granted it by Congress to declare water a publicly owned resource.

Additionally, the public status of water removes it from control of federal interstate commerce laws that govern other commodities, the arguments contend.

The arguments supporting New Mexico's ban are contained in an answer to El Paso's lawsuit filed by lawyers for state Engineer Steve Reynolds, one of

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Arms sales to China

Somewhat shocked by the growing magnitude of U.S. arms sales during the mid-1970s, then President Jimmy Carter tried to turn off the arms faucet when he took office in 1977.

Carter labeled the sales — which had reached a record $15.8 billion under President Ford during 1975 alone — "inherently evil" and "morally reprehensible."

He deliberately began to shut off sales — and in the process reverse a key segment of U.S. foreign policy built around the idea that America's best defense against war was the establishment of a balance of power in such hot spots as the Persian Gulf. The rationale was that Nation X would not attack Nation Y if both were equally matched.

It was probably typical of Carter that his idealism of 1977 had changed markedly by 1980. Sales which fell to $9.8 billion during his first year in office, climbed to $11.7 billion in 1978 and then jumped to $13 billion in 1979.

During the last year of the Carter administration, the sales not only approached Ford's level ($15.3 billion) but had now been extended to no less than 70 nations.

Nonetheless, the attempt to slow down the sales marked a four-year turn in U.S. foreign policy — a turn which was emphatically reversed a few days ago by the stunning announcement that a new customer for U.S. arms had been found in the unlikelyst of locations — mainland China.

It is unknown at this time what the Chinese want, what the U.S. will sell to its new communist "friends," or if the money — short Chinese intend to pay cash. Secretary of State Alexander Haig indicated only that defensive hardware is involved at this stage — such items as anti-tank weapons and anti-aircraft missiles.

It's doubtful if too many Americans are thrilled over the idea of U.S. military equipment being shipped to Shanghai and Peking, but last week's dealings with the Chinese shows how full-circle U.S. foreign policy has moved since the end of World War II. In 1947, for instance, the U.S. wasn't selling guns, it was selling economic recovery. That was the year Congress earmarked $12 billion to finance the Marshall Plan — perhaps the most humanitarian government proposal in world history.

Times, of course, change. Europe has long since rebuilt, and now U.S. foreign policy emphasis is on containment of the communist world by beefing up the defensive capabilities of almost anyone willing to keep the Soviet Union at bay.

Although no official arms transfer policy has yet been announced by the Reagan administration, the China agreement makes it clear the U.S. will attempt to put a damper on growing disorder in the world; by (quoting Undersecretary James L. Buckley) "the strengthening of other nations with which we share common security interests."

Coincidentally, of course, arms sales bolster U.S. influence over the arms policies of other nations, a factor the Pentagon feels was lost during the Carter administration. In many ways it is not difficult to see Carter's original point on arms sales. If foreign nations spent their billions for food, for instance, instead of missiles, the results might be more positive. Reality, however, is that the Soviets have shown an amazing skill at subverting and then picking off the weak. It is that reality that has undoubtedly inspired increases in U.S. arms sales, a situation not likely to be reversed for years to come.

TV boycotts aren't censorship

For the life of us, we have a hard time figuring out why people are so upset about the campaign of the Moral Majority and the Coalition for Better Television to threaten to boycott sponsors of programs they find objectionable.

If these self-proclaimed guardians of morality were trying to institute government censorship or set up a panel of federal censors, we could understand the excitement, and we'd be right out there on the barricades fighting against government-decreed puritanism. But so far they have adhered to the idea of private pressure by private citizens acting in a voluntary manner. We may not agree with all their opinions about what shows constitute the clearest danger to the tender minds of American youth, but we would hardly deny them the right to express their opinions or work to change the nature of television through voluntary means.

There's plenty of overblown rhetoric on all sides of the issue, perhaps worked up to a lather because of the announcement by Procter & Gamble, TV's heaviest advertiser, that it's refusing to advertise on 50 shows it considers too sexy or violent, and that it listens "very carefully" to conservative critics. Rev. Wildom, leader of the Coalition for Better Television, predictably called Procter & Gamble's position "socially responsible." The president of the company that makes "Dallas," however, likened the situation to the Big Bad Red Scare of the 1950s.

What's the upshot? "Dallas," one of the chief targets of the critics, still hovers near the top of the ratings, only slightly deterred by beginning repeats. "Charley's Angels" is in ratings trouble, but its problems started before the boycott picked up much steam. Some sponsors have said they'll look at shows more carefully, some have said they've always checked shows for taste and the boycotters are all wet, and some claim to pay no attention.

It's all part of the controversy that is a natural element of a relatively free and diverse society. The Moral Majority is by no means the first or only group to express concern about television programming. Organized groups of almost every ethnic minority have complained about stereotyping, and the complaints have, sometimes had an effect. Others have complained about too many gunfights, so we got car chases instead. Network television has always been subject to numerous pressures from groups of diverse persuasions, and writers, advertisers and producers have walked a fine line, sometimes producing pap and occasionally developing shows with genuine quality.

As technology progresses, the whole flap may become moot. With the advent and increasing availability of cable and pay-TV, as well as the acceptance of home video recorders, people with specialized or minority tastes are finding entertainment more to their liking, with less reliance on network products geared to a mass audience. We'll soon be able to get everything from dirty movies to symphony concerts and operas, and the rationale for trying to gear everything to some sort of mythical average family will disappear.

Certain elements of the Moral Majority coalition do have some disturbing ideas. Some of the legislation proposed or supported by the so-called New Right Christians indicates an alarming tendency to want to turn rather narrow moral principles into the Law of the Land. We're opposed to such efforts, and we'll continue to pinpoint areas where we think the coalition is becoming dangerous or repressive.

But the campaign to clean up TV (or make it even more boring, depending on your perspective) has so far been conducted by means that are perfectly legitimate in a free society. Boycotts, pressure groups, petitions, convocations of outraged citizens — all of these are healthy expressions of opinion that do not threaten anybody's legitimate rights. Most pressure groups sooner or later slip in the old "There Oughta Be a Law" syndrome, and at that point they should be opposed. Until it happens, we'll remain interested observers.

By Oscar Cooley

As I write this, President Reagan is defending his plan to cut income taxes 25 percent over three years, while the Democrats are attacking it. But the two sides pass one another like two trains on parallel tracks: they just do not meet. The Democrats are critical on the ground that Reagan would relieve the large taxpayers at the expense of the small, while Reagan says his plan is to channel funds now paid in taxes into capital investment, thus invigorating the economy and reducing interest rates.

I have the perfect solution: Cut everybody's taxes. Cut the taxes on the rich according to Reagan's formula, and cut the taxes on the less rich as much as the Democrats desire. This will achieve the economic result Reagan is seeking and also the merciful aim of the Democrats. It will please both rich and not so rich.

My reasoning is this: Taxation is monstrous. It is devouring us, rich and poor, capitalist and worker. Cut it. Cut it across the board, substantially.

We tax to support government. Today, government is overgrown. It needs to be reduced. The obvious way to do this is to feed it less.

How, then, would Americans support their government?

There are at least four other ways the government can get money: 1. Print it. 2. Borrow it. 3. Gifts. 4. Charge prices for services rendered.

The first two are out. They would merely increase the paper and credit money in circulation and feed the inflation monster. The U.S. government has already borrowed far too much. It has used up the nation's credit to such an extent that private borrowers are having to pay over 20 percent interest. It has caused vast inflation.

The third way is too chancy. No one knows or can guess how much the government would get from voluntary contributions. However, it would be worthwhile to provide a line on Form 1040 on which voluntary cash gifts could be entered. Christmas morning, Uncle Sam might do surprisingly well. And that he had enough confidence in his children's generosity to suggest gifts would raise him in public estimation.

The fourth way the government could get money to replace tax revenue, that is, by charging prices for services it renders, is by far the best. It is voluntary. It is not inflationary. It is not a one-sided transaction. It is the very way that private entrepreneurs and firms in the capitalist world get their income.

Is there any reason today why that agency of the government known as the Postal Service should not charge a price for delivering a piece of mail, a price which defrays its cost of performing that service?

Yes, you may say: the fact that it is difficult to say how much that cost is. The Postal Service hires people to do its work. Their salaries comprise much of its cost of operation. How much should they be?

The obvious answer is hire those who will do the work most economically. This can be found out only by allowing and in fact encouraging competition — which we esteem so highly we insist it be employed by private entrepreneurs. Making the carrying of first class mail a monopoly was done a couple of centuries ago. Whatever could be said for it then, it has no justification now.

But competitive pricing might be technically difficult in financing certain services — defense, for example. Could the U.S. army defend you, who have paid your defense price, or defense insurance premium, while it does not defend me, who has not?

How to apply the price principle to all services of government would require some ingenuity. This does not justify dropping it and adopting the tax technique, which is a form of robbery.

At the moment, Americans should refuse to close their eyes to the virtue of Reagan's plan to cut taxes across the board. It is a move toward lightening the load on everyone in the short run and to take a monster off our backs in the long.

Why tax cut plan should pass

All things considered

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Driving home in the afternoons, I listen to "All Things Considered," the news and feature program broadcast by National Public Radio. I'm always amazed that this voice of liberalism receives funding from the taxpayers, especially now that the Reagan administration is in office.

"All Things Considered" is well-done from the technical standpoint. I pick up odd pieces of information, like a report on the decline of the sawmill business in Oregon and the State of Washington. The producers are clever at using theme music and employing the sounds associated with various aspects of American life.

But its principal content is politics of the Americans for Democratic Action brand. It is partisanship pure and simple. If a conservative viewpoint is aired from time to time, I have yet to hear it.

The bulk of NPR air time goes to commentaries by such folk as the national editor of "The Washington Post" and spokesman for Friends of the Earth. It airs statements by the environmentalists who want to drive Secretary of the Interior James Watt from office. It offers Sen. Cranston (D-Calif.) who tells listeners how bad Dr. Ernest Lefever is. (Dr. Lefever, in case you have forgotten, withdrew his name as Undersecretary of State after a furious campaign of abuse by liberal groups.)

National Public Radio doesn't know the meaning of the word balance. It apparently regards itself as a kind of Carter administration in exile. The good guys in the white hats, according to NPR, hate offshore leasing, pipeline building in Alaska, and the "rape" of the earth. The bad guys in the black hats are the likes of Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina because he takes a dim view of liberals in policy-making positions in the State Department.

The producers of "All Things Considered" are the most smug lot imaginable. They regard liberalism as a revealed faith. They apparently can't believe that liberalism received a resounding defeat in the presidential election last fall. They have their own Shangri-La in National Public Radio. They are determined to keep the flame of liberalism burning in their slanted version of the news.

If they wanted to do this with private money, with the help of the limousine liberals, that would be fine. They have a right to take their philosophical and political convictions to the public by buying air time or printing tracts. But it's outrageous that they should operate a liberal propaganda machine at the expense of the taxpayers.

The federal subsidy for National Public Radio amounted to more than $200 million in 1980. The Reagan administration reportedly wants to cut that subsidy in half. But why not eliminate the subsidy — and the operation — entirely? National Public Radio hasn't made any effort to "clean up its act" and broadcast in less than a totally biased manner.

The American people don't need a federally-financed broadcasting operation that tries to sell one political and cultural point of view to the listening audience. If the government financed a publication with the bias of "All Things Considered," there would be a roar of protest.

Maybe only a few people listen to National Public Radio. Whatever the numbers, programs such as "All Things Considered" are out of order.

Divorce: English, French and American style

Mr. Peter Ustinov, the British actor and playwright, and I happened to discuss different methods of presenting a divorce problem to an English, a French and an American theater audience.

To give an example, let's make up a scene from a play as the English would do it:

George: Jessie.
Jessie: Mmmmm.
George: There's something I've been meaning to ask you for some time (about two and a half acts in fact).
Jessie: (Hard) Yes, George.
George: I... that is... I don't know how you're going to take this.
Jessie: I think I know what you're going to say.
George: How uncanny.
Jessie: But it's too late now.
George: I suppose it is. Whiskey?
Jessie: I don't mind if I do.
George: I imagine it was my fault in a way.
Jessie: Don't blame yourself, George.
George: Soda?
Jessie: Just a dash.
George: How's that? (holding up the glass)

Jessie: Dear George. That's fine.
George: You never did like it with ice.
Jessie: Never.
George: Well, thank God for that.
Jessie: Why do you say that?
George: There is no more ice. (sits down heavily) No more anything.
"The French, on the other hand, would play the scene differently," said Mr. Ustinov.
George: Cherie.
Jessie: Oui, mon petit chou.
George: I have something to tell you. I have a mistress.
Jessie: You are only telling me something I have known for two years.
George: No, I mean a new mistress.
Jessie: But, what will happen to Maria?
George: I don't know.
Jessie: The poor thing. I'll take her to the collections.

George: (reproachfully) Please do. You never were very nice to her.

Jessie: (more reproachfully) You never brought her around.

George: I suppose you are right. Jessie: Is she much prettier than I am?

George: Much prettier. Jessie: I'm glad. Otherwise I would have been jealous.

George: Where are you going? Jessie: I'll see you next week.

George: Is Pierre in town? Jessie: I don't know, but Leon is.

George: Who's Leon? Jessie: My, how possessive you've become.

"The Americans, on the other hand, are more for the stark realism of the thing," said Mr. Ustinov. "A saxophone must be playing nine blocks away, and a kid is crying across the road."

George: Jessie, I have something to tell you.

Jessie: I want a divorce.

George: But you haven't heard what I've got to say.

Jessie: Oh, for heaven's sakes, we're grown-up people. Let's not behave like children.

George: But for crying out loud...

Jessie: Mother said it would happen this way.

George: But...

Jessie: Let's not discuss it. It's vulgar and I'm not interested in the details.

George: Will you shut up...

Jessie: Don't raise your voice, George.

George: I just wanted to say...

Jessie: Whatever it is, I'm sure the lawyers will be able to settle it.

George: Settle what?
Jessie: Let's be friends. The children will never have to know.
George: Where are you going?
Jessie: Reno, Mexico City, Tucson. I'll send you a postcard. And I hope you'll be very happy.
George: (sitting down heavily) Never thought about it. Maybe I will.

Charles and Diana plan honeymoon cruise

LONDON (AP) — While Prince Charles and his bride will start their honeymoon in a secluded English country mansion, their plan to board the royal yacht Britannia in Gibraltar for a Mediterranean cruise has caused fireworks in Spain.

A day after Buckingham Palace announced the honeymoon route for heir-to-the-throne Charles and the former Lady Diana Spencer, the Spanish Foreign Ministry said King Juan Carlos and Queen Sofia would not attend the July 29 nuptials at St. Paul's Cathedral.

It said the choice of the British colony, a huge rock on the southern coast of Spain and the subject of a long sovereignty dispute between the two nations, was "inopportune and gratuitous."

However, Britain's Deputy Foreign Secretary Sir Ian Gilmour told the House of Commons that the government would not advise the prince to alter his plans.

It is their honeymoon, nobody else's, and it is not for anyone else to interfere with it, he said.

A Buckingham Palace spokeswoman said Charles was not expected to skip Gibraltar because of the king's decision.

While the two governments feud over the contested colony, which is a major British and NATO military base, the royal couple will be looking forward to escaping aboard the luxurious yacht whose crew uses hand signals to avoid disturbing its regal passengers.

After months of intense public scrutiny that saw their every move dogged by hordes of reporters and photographers, Charles and Diana will find themselves alone aboard the 4,961-ton yacht.

Britannia is commanded by a rear admiral in charge of 22 officers and 254 men of the Royal Navy who will attend to every one of the couple's whims as they cruise through the Mediterranean at a leisurely 21 knots.

Before their cruise, the newlyweds will recover from the excitement of the royal wedding by spending their first three nights together at Broadlands, the 6,000-acre Hampshire estate of the late Earl Mountbatten of Burma, Charles' beloved great uncle.

The prince's parents, Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip, began their married life the same way in 1947.

The estate, with its landscaped gardens by Capability Brown, is over a mile from the nearest public road.

From the secluded 18th century mansion, normally open to visitors but closed for a week after the wedding, the couple plan to fly to Gibraltar on Saturday to join the Britannia.

The majestic, royal blue and white yacht will sail out of the naval harbor almost immediately and set a course across the sea which was once ruled by the Royal Navy.

Britannia, launched in 1954, has steamed more than 600,000 miles, carrying members of the royal family around the world on state visits and private cruises. Although no details have been released about security arrangements, three warships accompanied the yacht when it recently took Queen Elizabeth to South America.

Critics of the royal family's privileges have frequently singled out the Britannia and its annual 2.15 million pounds ($4 million) operation costs. Anti-monarchist Willie Hamilton, Labor member of Parliament, recently suggested the yacht be scrapped and its budget apportioned out to striking workers.

The announcement of the royal honeymoon itinerary followed speculation that the 32-year-old prince would take his 20-year-old bride to the Caribbean isle of Nevis — Charles' sister Princess Anne honeymooned in the Caribbean with husband Mark Phillips in 1973 — or to the plush Yugoslav resort of Sveti Stefan.

The couple will set out on their honeymoon from Buckingham Palace by horse-and-carriage, after a wedding breakfast. They will depart for Broadlands from Waterloo rail station aboard the royal train.

Wiretaps judge once approved phony bust

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An Odessa state judge responsible for approving wiretaps of suspected drug dealers under a new Texas law once authorized a fake cocaine bust staged by law enforcement officers to protect the cover of a narcotics agent.

District Judge R.L. McKim, a Republican, says he was "taken advantage of" by the Odessa American, a newspaper that exposed the phony bust after unwittingly publicizing it as a legitimate arrest.

McKim is one of nine judges selected by Texas Criminal Appeals Court Judge John Onion to authorize wiretaps under a new law approved by the state Legislature earlier this year.

Onion said he recalled the phony drug bust but was unaware McKim was involved. The appeals court judge said he didn't think the incident would interfere with McKim's duties under the wiretap bill.

The fake bust was arranged by Tom Barker — an investigator for Ector County District Attorney John Green — to protect the undercover identity of a narcotics agent working for the prosecutor's office.

Barker outlined the plan at a May 23, 1975 meeting with McKim. Justice of the Peace Jan Brooks and an Ector County deputy sheriff in the judge's chambers. McKim said Barker merely informed the group of the plan and didn't seek the judge's formal approval. He said he had no idea that Barker planned to trick The American into publicizing the phony bust.

Barker later notified The American of the arrest of an alleged drug suspect — in reality, the county narcotics agent — and the newspaper published a photograph of Barker "staring grimly" at a cellophane package purportedly containing a pound of cocaine valued at $88,000.

Dimmit County names new county attorney

CARRIZO SPRINGS, Texas (AP) — The Dimmit County Commissioners Court has named a new county attorney to replace Pablo Bustamante, who resigned on July 10 in a plea bargain agreement.

Bustamante was ordered to resign and to serve seven years probation after pleading guilty to misapplication of county funds.

The appointee, Alfred Fitzpatrick, served as county attorney when former county attorney Bill Casey resigned and moved to Zavala County.

Fitzpatrick chose not to run for re-election at the end of his term and has been practicing law in Carrizo Springs.

A Texas Ranger investigation — which resulted in the indictment of Bustamante and a justice of the peace — continues in this South Texas county.

Fitzpatrick's appointment was announced by County Judge Larry Speer on Monday.

Dr. Lamb

Consult doctor to determine reason for chest pain

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been having some mild discomfort in the lower part of my chest, near the end of the breastbone. It comes and goes. It isn't severe, but I wonder if I am having heart trouble. You hear so much these days about people having heart attacks that it has me worried. How can I tell if it is caused by my heart or whether it is important or not?

DEAR READER — Don't try to guess about it yourself. Go see your doctor and let him take a careful complete history and decide then what to do. There are many variations of heart pain. Actually about a third of all heart attacks occur with no pain warning at all. We call these silent heart attacks. The pain from a heart attack may be a mild, dull, aching pain or pressure sensation, as opposed to a sharp pain. Sharp pains are seldom an indication of heart trouble. If the discomfort is of short duration, less than 10 minutes, it is usually angina pectoris. This usually means insufficient blood supply to the heart muscle but not heart muscle damage. Heart attacks that cause heart muscle damage are usually associated with pain that lasts 30 minutes or more. The discomfort can be in the center of the chest, at the lower end of your breastbone, in the pit of the stomach, right or left shoulder; it may radiate into the arms, the back or even into the jaw. The pain of a heart attack may occur at rest but angina pain more often occurs with exercise. Some people with a heart attack have indigestion and vomiting as the primary feature of discomfort. To give you a more complete idea of the indications of a heart attack I am sending you The Health Letter number 17-10, What You Need To Know About Heart Attacks. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Often the onset of discomfort from an acute attack is the first warning a person has that he has heart disease.

year I have worn a soft foam rubber truss, no gouging. The hernia doesn't bother me and I don't need the truss at night. I am normal and healthy in other ways. I have read that wearing a truss only delays matters, causing weakening and scarring of muscles, making hernia surgery more difficult. What is your opinion? I am trying to avoid surgery and run my time out with a truss.

DEAR READER — I don't think anyone should wear a truss for a hernia without an examination and approval by their doctor. Many small hernias do not require immediate treatment. But no one wants a truss that might make matters worse.
If your hernia is mild as you describe and indirect, it is unlikely that it would ever strangulate so it is unlikely that you would need surgery. The intestinal loop tends to slide back into the abdomen when you are lying down so you wouldn't have a hernia at night. If you are in good health you would probably tolerate the surgery very well if you should need it at some future date.

Dear Abby

Boy plays 'keep away' with girl

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: For two years I have been dating a man who must be ashamed to take me home to meet his mother. Although he has never told me this in so many words, I am sure it's true. He didn't take me to his niece's graduation ceremony earlier this year. Also, his cousin got married and he didn't invite me to the reception with him. Recently his brother's girlfriend had a big birthday party for his brother, and he went alone and told me about it afterward. These things hurt me, but I didn't say anything. When we first started dating, I introduced him to my parents and invited him to all our family gatherings so he could meet my relatives. I'm not a bad-looking girl. In fact, I'm considered good-looking by quite a few. I have a nice figure (34-22-35) and I'm very polite. Sometimes I think he's ashamed of me because I'm raising a son from a previous relationship and I've never been married. Please put me on the right track.

What do you say when some idiot comes up to you, just stands there and says, "Where have I seen you before?"
BUGGED IN BUTTE

DEAR BUGGED: I reply, "I don't know. Where have you been?"

DEAR ABBY: In response to FUNNY NAVEI: I am a 22-year-old woman who also has an "outie" (a belly button that sticks out). Mine is due to an umbilical hernia, which I was born with. I used to be embarrassed to wear bikinis and midriff tops because of people's rude comments, until I came up with a good line to shut them up. When someone asks about my navel, I tell him I was born in Germany (I was), and they tie the cord off differently over there, so that everyone born in Germany has a belly button like mine. I call mine a "German Outie." (You'd be surprised at how many people want to go for a ride in it.) Actually, I'm glad to have a unique belly button. You've heard of the Navel Academy, haven't you? Well, mine dropped out!

OUTIE FOX IN MONTANA

WONDER WHY
DEAR WONDER: Quit wondering and ask him. However, the reason he's ashamed of you is less important than the fact that he is. And unless he overcomes that "shame," the "track" for you is the one that leads out of his life.

DEAR ABBY: My mother and I are in total disagreement, and here's why:

My brother and I are both married, and we each have two young children. My mother bought my brother's kids beautiful outfits for their birthdays, but for my kids, she bought a couple of yards of material and told me to make them outfits!

I thought this was very unfair and I told her so. She said it wasn't unfair because my brother's wife doesn't sew and I do. I'll leave it up to you and your readers, Abby. Do you think this was fair? I like to sew, but not that much.
DISAPPOINTED

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: It wasn't fair, and your disappointment was justified. Youngsters look forward to receiving birthday gifts, and a couple of yards of material isn't nearly as much fun to unwrap as a new outfit.

DEAR ABBY: There is a question I have been wanting to ask you for a long time.

LOOKING COOL. Knits are the indispensable of the summer wardrobe, and these styles exemplify their versatility and fashion know-how. At left, there's an airy, unmissable grace to the supple sweater and skirt knitted in a weightless boucle; short-sleeved pullover with baby shawl collar and button placket tops an easy pull-on skirt. At right, this merry wool striper is a winner with everything from shorts and slacks to dresses; multicolor stripes run vertically down the white six-button cardigan body and continue on the round on the sleeves, lightweight and rich-textured, it is knitted of the finest Shetland yarns spun and dyed in Scotland. (Knits by Braemar International.)

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Tomorrow in St. Paul's Cathedral in London, the heir to the British throne will take a wife.

Most Americans caught up in the pageantry, the romance of a prince marrying the beautiful girl next door will lose sight of the real history that is being made.

It will mark the first time a mother of a bridegroom did not see the wedding from the kitchen.

Have you any idea the virgin trails this woman has blazed? As a mother of sons, I know what I am talking about. Her precedents should not go unnoted.

We all know how the mothers of bridegrooms have always worn beige and kept their mouths shut. Prince Charles' mother has decreed she gets to choose a color for her dress that will be worn by no other person at the wedding. (She's opted to wear short, which is wise. She can wear it again without having to cut it off.)

And how does the bridegroom's mother usually get to the church? Crammed in the VW of one of her son's friends, holding a box of iced tea spoons and a jar of Sanka for the reception which someone forgot. Charles' mother has taken it upon herself to not only decide the order of the coach procession, but she gets pick of the livery.

And how many mothers of the bridegroom have entered church to see 15 guests on 'his' side and 3,000 of the bride's dearest friends on the other side of the aisle? Charles' mother kept 300 tickets for her son's friends and gave the bride's parents only 100.

There is no question, Charles' mother has been an inspiration to mothers of sons everywhere. Who among us with a 33-year-old unmarried son who went to funerals for a living would not have panicked?

Be honest now. I have known mothers who have offered unprecedented finder's fees, and a few of us have actually followed up leads from the Welcome Wagon lady.

But Charles' mother, with her stubborn determination to serve tradition, announced, "The family put pressure on Charles to find a girl with no past and there aren't too many 20-year-old virgins available."

I salute Charles' mother for her courage and her vision. The only thing that would make the day complete would be to see the royal couple cut the 15 wedding cakes and see the bride's mother, Frances what's-her-name, running around with a bowl of ice water, dipping in the sword after each piece is cut.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

July 29, 1981

This coming year you will make important changes in your outlook and attitude. Views or concepts which previously impeded your progress will be weeded out.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Make it a special point today not to speak of others unless you have something kind to say about them. The words you utter now will later come home to roost. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A friend who always asks more from you than he or she is willing to do in return might hound you for a favor again today. Watch out!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Progress where your self-interests are concerned is likely today, but you might not be satisfied with the pace. Be patient instead of being too pushy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You have access to some information which might hurt another's reputation if it leaked out. Keep what you know to yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Accept those you pal around with today for what they are. Don't try to remold them into your own image. The suggestion you offer will be resented.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This could be one of those strange days when even persons who normally back you up might oppose you instead. Try not to antagonize associates.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you are working with new products or materials today, take ample time to first read the directions or information sheets very carefully.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Uncharacteristically, today you could be a shade too possessive of those you love. The tighter you try to hold them, the more they'll strain to break free.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't start projects today in which you only have nominal interests to begin with. It's probable your small amount of enthusiasm will wane if challenged.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Associates may do things today to warrant criticism, but let them go unnoticed. Fault-finding will cause complications. It won't resolve things.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be extra-protective today of possessions important to you. Don't leave anything unattended if there are strangers in the vicinity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Let bygones be bygones today. If you open old wounds instead of trying to heal them, you'll have only yourself to blame if they get worse.

Oilfield wins shot at sports festival

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Shot putter Brian Oldfield insisted he was where he belonged, competing among amateurs, as he won his specialty Monday at the National Sports Festival, an event he had to go to court to enter.

The irreverent 36-year-old, along with pole-vaulter Steve Smith — both former professionals — won an injunction to allow them to compete. That was after they were told by the U.S. Olympic Committee they were not welcome because only Olympic-eligible athletes may compete in the Festival.

A judge ruled in their favor and both competed here, with Smith finishing among the also-rans in the pole vault and Oldfield winning the shot with a toss of 68 feet, 5 inches.

The fourth of six days at this non-Olympic year forum for 33 winter and summer Olympic sports was a busy one, with a second track star, Craig Virgin, sharing the spotlight with Oldfield.

Virgin came from behind tough rival Alberto Salazar to win the featured 5,000-meter race. The American record-holder at 10,000 meters bolted past Salazar, the 1980 New York City marathon champion, just three laps from the end of the 13-lap race on the new track at Sunnycrest Park.

He crossed the finish line in 13:35.4, just 20 yards ahead of Salazar, who was clocked at 13:38.2.

Elsewhere, a bloop single to left by Dave Walker scored Ed Greene from third base in the 11th inning to give the East an upset 9-8 victory over the favored West and the gold medal in the round-robin baseball competition.

Figure skaters Scott Hamilton of Denver and Rosalynn Summers of Edmonds, Wash., sliced to gold medals Monday night in their respective Festival finals.

In gymnastics, Beth Pope, a 15-year-old from Little Rock, Ark., gained her second gold medal of the competition as she won the floor exercise Monday night. She also won the silver medal in the uneven bars and vault to go with the gold she won earlier in the all-around competition.

And Lydia Crabtree finally beat nemesis Sue Soffe, winning the gold medal for all-around performance in the beautiful rhythmic gymnastics competition. Crabtree, 22, from Redondo Beach, Calif., has finished second to Soffe in the national championships four times.

In other track and field action on the final day of that competition, Cindy Bremser, formerly of the University of Wisconsin, nipped Jan Merrill at the tape to win the 1,500 in 4:15.62. Merrill was clocked at 4:15.65.

Olympic veteran John Powell won the discus with a throw of 214 feet, 1 inch. American record-holder Pam Spencer took the high jump 6-3/4, and 17-year-old Gallagher, a senior-to-be Upper Darby High School Pennsylvania, won the meters with a time of 9:15.

The combination of Brown, Eric Brown, Ja Sanford and Dwayne E of the West team won 400-meter relay in :39.28. West team of Alice Br Jeannette Bolden, Flor Griffith and Jac Washington captured women's 400 relay in :44.1

Large gap still exists between players, owners

CHICAGO (AP) — Striking major league players and club owners will be meeting on opposite coasts Wednesday as the walkout that has canceled more than 25 percent of the 1981 baseball season continues through its seventh week.

Armed with a vote of confidence from the player representatives, Marvin Miller, executive director of the union, will hold the first in a series of regional meetings in Los Angeles. Miller said no further meetings had been scheduled.

At the same time, the 26 club owners will gather in New York for an update from the Player Relations Committee and their chief negotiator, Ray Grebey.

That means there can be no negotiations to end the strike probably before the weekend.

Miller spent more than five hours Monday night briefing the executive board of the union on the negotiations, which broke down last Thursday in Washington. The two sides had bargained for four days with a news blackout and Miller said he thought the players needed an update on the status of their strike.

Some 25-30 players who are not executive board members showed up for Monday night's meeting.

"Half of them didn't have the facts," Miller said. "There was an information gap not of our doing. A news blackout is a catastrophe for an organization like ours. There was a terrible information gap for four days (in Washington). Those were important days."

Miller said that although the players have never felt they were close to a settlement, that there had been some progress made for the first time about midway through the bargaining in Washington last week.

"But there is still an awful gap between us."

The basic issue remains the source of compensation for teams losing free agent players in baseball's annual re-entry draft. Miller said that the players' last proposal, made a week ago today, offered more compensation in the form of a professional player than the clubs had asked for.

"The clubs' position throughout has been the necessity of filling the hole left by a free agent signing with another team," said Miller. "We have known for a long time that's not the problem. We proved it last week. Our offer said that after you protect 24, the club losing the free agent could pick the No. 25 player from the roster of any of eight teams."

But the union chief said a management's counter-proposal was that non-signing clubs could protect 28 players.

Pampa wins state tourney opener

LUBBOCK — Pampa defeated Lamesa, 6-4, Monday to advance into the quarterfinals of the 13-15 Babe Ruth state baseball tournament at Lowrey Field.

Cleve Deason hit a home run for Pampa and Devin Cross was the winning pitcher.

Pampa meets Loveland at 3 p.m. today in the double-elimination tournament.

In other first-round games, Dumas bested Graham, 6-2, and Plainview defeated

Lubbock, 5-2.

The tournament was held up two hours because of rain, tournament director Martha Gillespie said.

"We still finished at midnight which was pretty good considering we had three games to play," she added.

The finals are scheduled for 5:30 p.m. Saturday.

Rozelle picks Raiders to lose antitrust battle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle predictably considers the league the favorite to win its court battle to keep the Oakland Raiders in Oakland, but he also believes the NFL could survive a loss.

"I don't think the league would fold up and go away (if it loses); it would lower the level we are at now," Rozelle said out of court Monday after closing arguments began in the trial of the antitrust suit brought by the Raiders and Los Angeles Coliseum against the NFL.

Rozelle also said that, should the jury find for the Raiders, the case would be appealed and "We don't think we're going to lose at all levels."

NFL attorneys get their final shot at the seven-woman, three-man jury today when they present closing arguments, hoping to preserve a provision of the league constitution requiring three-fourths of the 28 team owners to approve any franchise move — and keep the Raiders in Oakland.

The league's defense appears to have been hurt by U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson's paring the case for the jury deliberations. On Friday the judge ruled that the NFL is not a single entity, removing that from the jury's consideration. Rozelle and other defense witnesses had tried to convey the league as a partnership, while the Raiders painted a picture of 28 different owners competing in business.

Pregerson's instructions to the jury, which is expected to get the case Wednesday, narrowed to three the issues it must decide.

The judge told the jurors Monday that the three claims they would have to consider are whether the NFL and its member clubs violated the Sherman antitrust Act by refusing to let the Raiders move to Los Angeles; whether the league breached an oral contract to allow that move; and whether the defendants violated their implied promise of good faith and fair bargaining by blocking the move.

During closing arguments Monday by the plaintiffs, Raiders' attorney Joseph Alioto told the jury that the NFL constitution's provision concerning moves, rule 4.3, was "an unreasonable restraint on trade."

Tulsa advances to world series

GRANTS, N.M. (AP) — Pitcher Roger Burnett hit three home runs, including a game-winning two-run shot in the bottom of the seventh inning to lead Tulsa, Okla., to a 15-13 win over Dallas in the championship game of the South Plains Regional Pee Wee Reese baseball tournament Monday night.

Burnett, breaking out of tournament-long slump, drove in seven of his team's runs with a solo homer, a grand slam and his game-winning shot over the left field fence.

Tulsa, which now advances to the Pee Wee Reese World Series at Forest Park, Ga., next month, won all five games in the double elimination tournament and is now 51-2 for the year. Dallas, whose two losses in the tournament were to Tulsa, finished the year at 27-3.

There were a total of 10 homers hit in the championship game. Dallas second baseman John Tovar also hit three homers in the game.

Dallas trailed 13-4 after four innings but tied it with three runs in the fifth and six in the top of the seventh.

Nielsen's future arrives early

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Until last Thursday, Houston Oilers quarterback Gifford Nielsen was better known as kicker Toni Fritsch's holder and for his television commercials about a dry cleaner.

Sure, Nielsen was undefeated in three starts over three seasons with the Oilers and was tabbed as the Oilers quarterback of the future.

But Nielsen had no way of knowing that the future arrived last Thursday when veteran quarterback Ken Stabler announced his retirement from the game, thrusting Nielsen into the starting position.

Although coming off the most frustrating season of his career, Nielsen feels ready for the challenge.

"I haven't had a lot of playing time, but when I did play I think I played to win and we were successful," Nielsen said. "Hopefully, we can continue without missing a beat as if nothing happened. Hopefully, we won't digress, just progress."

Part of his confidence, Nielsen says, centers around his teammates. "We have the kind of team where a young quarterback can come in and replace a veteran."

"When I make some mistakes we have the kind of team that will be able to pull through some of my rough edges."

Nielsen, a devout Mormon, brings a different image to the quarterback role compared to his fun-loving predecessors. Stabler and Dan Pastorini, Nielsen denies, however, that his softer off-the-field image is any reflection of his aggressiveness as a football player.

"I've heard that they're before and I totally disagree with it," Nielsen said. "I'm going on the field and fight harder than anyone because I hate to lose. It just gets down to an individual and what his will to win is and how he gets the job done."

Nielsen suffered through a season of inactivity in 1980 when former Coach Bum Phillips went almost exclusively with Stabler in a desperate attempt to reach the Super Bowl. Nielsen completed two of his four passes for 12 yards last season.

"Last year was my toughest year in the NFL," Nielsen said. "It was really frustrating for me, especially when I started out by dislocating my shoulder. I just got off on the wrong foot and then I didn't get a chance to play."

The former Brigham Young star will get his chance to play this season and he is looking forward to the challenge even if Stabler should un-retire as surprisingly as he retired.

"If he came back that would be great," Nielsen said. "I think we should have a real good battle for the No. 1 job."

National Football League roundup

By The Associated Press
Looking for new worlds to conquer, Bill Kazmaier has selected professional football as his next challenge.

Kazmaier, winner of the "World's Strongest Man" competition the past two years, is in the Green Bay Packers training camp, attempting to win a spot as a defensive lineman. He has lost 30 pounds and hopes to trim another 20 pounds off his 6-foot-2 frame. Kazmaier, 27, currently weighs 300 pounds.

"I wanted to try football because I wanted another challenge," said Kazmaier, who also won the world powerlifting title two of the past three years and has bench-pressed a world record 661 pounds.

"I've conquered almost everything there is to conquer in lifting, so I wanted to try something else." Kazmaier hasn't played football since he was a sophomore fullback at Wisconsin in 1974. The Packers heard about him from a former club employee and signed him.

The Packers waived cornerback Virgil Livers, who failed to pass his physical after knee surgery.

Several quarterbacks made news Monday in National Football League training camps. Tom Owen, a seven-year veteran, re-signed with the New England Patriots. Owen, who has spent most of his career as a backup, held out as a free agent until Oct. 20 last season, missing the first nine games of the season and sitting on the bench for the final seven games.

Steve Myer, who missed the entire 1980 season with a back injury, retired after four seasons as Jim Zorn's backup with Seattle. Myer was hurt in a team scrimmage last summer and complained of back pain this year.

Atlanta cut QB Larry Fortner, along with reserve running back Anthony Anderson and offensive lineman Dexter Berry.

Miami waived three-year pro signal caller Pete Woods, who was with his fourth NFL team despite never appearing in a regular season game.

St. Louis released QB Mike Loyd among its four cuts. Houston's Gifford Nielsen expects to make plenty of news on the field this season as the Oilers' quarterback after the retirement of Ken Stabler. Nielsen, who led the nation in passing in his senior year at Brigham Young, threw only four times last season.

Now, he's No. 1. Elsewhere, Baltimore let go of five players, including linebacker Raymond Bryant, a former All-Pro with the Chicago Bear's who was trying a comeback after a two-year retirement.

Buffalo cut three offensive players: fullback Mark Lyles and receivers Joe Licata and Mark Lloyd.

Denver waived receiver Robert Steele and defensive back Kevin Reddick. Los Angeles cut receivers Stacy Colbert, Robert Taylor, Mark Tolbert and Mike Brant among nine players let go, and San Francisco cut WR Ron McCall.

Rookies scrimmage at Cowboy camp

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — An interception by linebacker Danny Spradlin, a fifth-round draft choice from Tennessee, highlighted a scoreless rookie scrimmage Monday at the Dallas Cowboys' training camp.

Spradlin, 6-1, 228, is one of four linebackers drafted by the Cowboys. Going into the scrimmage, he was listed as the No. 4 middle linebacker behind Bob Breung, Bruce Huther and ninth-round draft choice Paul Purowski of Florida State.

Coach Tom Landry has said he is looking for improvement from his reserve linebackers.

"Our backup linebackers all need to improve and continue to make strides if we're going to be a solid football team," he said.

The Cowboys veterans and rookies went through regular two-a-day practices Monday.

Scouts gather at jamboree

FORT A.P. HILL, Va. (AP) — Thousands of youngsters and adults have pitched their tents for a week of the 1981 Boy Scout Jamboree, which is called scouting at its best.

"The purpose is to teach scouting as it should be," said Jerry Voros, a Pittsburgh, Pa., public relations executive.

Voros, volunteer communications chairman for the Jamboree, said the Jamboree gives scouts the opportunity to experience the entire range of scouting activities in one place.

Some 31,000 people — more than 24,000 Boy Scouts and the rest youth and adult staff — arrived in steamy weather Monday at this Army installation near Fredericksburg.

Scout Clanton, 14, of Houston was among 240 scouts who came here on a 36-hour bus trip from Texas.

"It's good," Clanton said. "I've seen people from all over. They've got a big trading tent and you just swap things."

Clanton and his fellow travelers spent several days camping out at Quantico Marine Base near here before coming to the Jamboree.

The Texas scouts toured the White House, the Capitol and other tourist sites in Washington.

"I thought it was good," said John Pilati, 15, of Troop 771 from Houston.

"The only thing was the White House tour wasn't worth it. Mount Vernon was excellent. The view, the mansion, the scenery. It was excellent."

The Texas scouts said they were looking forward to snorkeling, the entertainment shows and trading scout patches.

The public will be allowed on the rolling 77,000-acre military reservation when the Jamboree officially opens Wednesday.

Although President Reagan declined an invitation to visit the site, the scouts will host other VIP visitors.

King Carl XVI Gustav of Sweden is scheduled to arrive here Sunday for a visit that will end Tuesday afternoon.

The 35-year-old king has been active in scouting since 1955 when he became a Cub Scout. He is scheduled to tour exhibits and meet scouts during his stay.

The bulk of Jamboree activity won't be connected to visits of dignitaries.

STILL ON THE BLOCK. President Ronald Reagan's $1.9 million home, nestled away among the camellias and ferns in the Southern California community of Pacific Palisades, is still on the market. The property is a victim of the real estate slump, and, according to the firm marketing the home, the former First Family may have to wait a little longer for a sale. (AP Laserphoto)

Reagan got point across to voters in Texas congressmen's districts

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan had no sooner ended his nationally televised speech to the nation Monday night in behalf of his tax cut bill than the telephone began lighting up in the Capitol Hill office of Rep. Sam Hall, D-Texas.

Near the end of his 23-minute speech, the president urged Americans to "contact your senators and congressmen. Tell them of your support" for the Hance-Conable bipartisan tax cut bill.

"He got his point across to the people in my district,"

Hall said Monday night less than 15 minutes after Reagan concluded.

"I thought it was delivered very well, and put over in such a way that it was very understandable. I've had 10 phone calls from my district already. From everywhere — Paris, Texarkana, New Boston. It was just me by myself here, and I've been on the phone constantly. And all are in support of the bipartisan approach. It (the phone) is lighting up again as I talk to you."

Hall, a conservative from Marshall, is one of five Texas Democrats who is committed for the president's tax bill.

Other Texas congressmen said they encountered the same thing.

"You're not going to believe this," said Rep. Jack Fields, R-Humble. "Our phone has been ringing off the wall. So far 100 pct of the calls — somewhere over 20 right now, and this is in first hour — are saying back to the president. I've never seen this type of response to a president."

Rep. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, and Rep. Jim Collins, R-Dallas, said their phones were busy also. They also watched the speech from their House offices. Like Hall and Fields, the callers were unanimous behind the president.

"How in the world did everybody know I'd be in my office this late at night, watching on television?" Collins asked. "My phone began ringing as soon as the president finished speaking."

During his talk, the president blasted Democratic leaders for their opposition to his bill.

Democrats, Reagan said, didn't want any tax cut at all initially, but had come around with their bill with so many changes that it was almost identical to his. He said the Democrats' only aim with their bill is to achieve a political victory.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said, "The bargaining process has moved each side much closer together on the tax cut issue."

"Each side is now trying to win a political victory. I've been trying to get a tax cut passed for over two years, and I think the American people are going to be the real winners, regardless of which tax cut is approved," he said.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, praised Reagan's speech and pledged his continued support.

News in brief

CEDARTOWN, Ga. (AP) — A Ku Klux Klan group that persuaded some blacks to join its job protest last week has filed a $5 million countersuit against a food processing company, claiming the concern caused it to suffer mental anguish and embarrassment.

The Klan action was taken Monday in response to a $1.5 million damage suit filed by Zartie Frozen Meat and Seafood Co. over the labor dispute.

More than half of Zartie's 420 employees walked off the job last Monday and began picketing, some of them wearing hooded Ku Klux Klan robes, in a drive to unionize the plant. A federal judge has since prohibited any pickets from wearing Klan hoods.

WASHINGTON (AP) — New Yorkers pay the highest rates for electricity among the nation's 25 largest cities, according to the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners.

The organization said Monday that electricity cost New Yorkers an average of 11.67 cents a kilowatt hour between last December and February, compared with 4.36 cents a kilowatt hour in St. Louis, the city with the lowest rates.

The second highest rate, 10.06 cents, was paid by residents of Honolulu, San Diego, Calif., was third at 8.99 cents, followed by Boston at 9.45 cents. Cities with rates between 6 cents and 9 cents were El Paso, Texas, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Phoenix, Ariz., Chicago and Baltimore.

Atlanta was second lowest at 4.70 cents, followed by Oklahoma City, 4.75; Cincinnati, 4.89; Indianapolis, 4.93; Milwaukee, 5.16; Houston, 5.20; Washington, D.C., 5.26; San Jose, Calif., 5.27; and Denver, 5.44.

Edward L. Rowny of Virginia as the nation's special representative for arms control and disarmament negotiations.

Also approved without debate or dissent Monday were the nominations of Nancy Harvey Steorts of Maryland as chairman of the Consumer Product Safety Commission and Anthony G. Sousa of Hawaii as a member of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

NUMB ARMS, LEGS Danger Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others.

Here are nine critical symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations which are usually the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these usually spells back trouble.

- (1) Paresthesias (see above)
- (2) Headaches
- (3) Painful joints
- (4) Numbness in the arms or hands
- (5) Loss of sleep
- (6) Stiffness in the neck
- (7) Pain between the shoulders
- (8) Stiffness or pain in lower back
- (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals indicate that your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these danger signals... call for in depth consultation in Layman's terms.

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS anchorman Dan Rather is being sued for $2.5 million by a process server who claims he was "unlawfully detained" at the network's studios after he handed Rather a subpoena.

Carl Kornbluth, a licensed process server, was "accosted" by at least 10 people and questioned for 35 minutes after he issued the subpoena July 14, his attorney claimed Monday.

"You don't fool around with a process server," said the lawyer, Donald Nussbaum. Nussbaum said the subpoena instructed Rather to appear at a hearing concerning Writers Guild arbitration.

Also named in the suit filed in state Supreme Court were CBS Inc. and several other employees.

CBS disputed the lawyer's version of the incident. Spokeswoman Ramona Dunn said Kornbluth was questioned for 10 minutes because newsroom employees were angry he had "slipped past security."

Ms. Dunn said Rather was preparing his evening newscast when Kornbluth entered the office unannounced. She said CBS employees stopped him and asked him who he was as he abruptly left.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Entertainer Chet Atkins, known as "Mr. Guitar," says he won't renew his contract as an executive with RCA Records' Nashville division.

Atkins, 57, associated with RCA for more than 25 years and vice president of the local division since 1966, said he would continue as a performer and producer.

"I am not totally severing ties," Atkins said Monday. "I'll still turn out a few albums annually and produce studio sessions for Perry Como, Roger Whitaker and some others. I've been thinking about this for some time."

He said he "told the bosses in New York four or five months ago that I didn't want to renew" when his contract expires this week.

Atkins, elected to the Country Music Hall of Fame in 1973, said he eventually wants to open his own office and perhaps a museum in a building he owns along Nashville's Music Row.

"Tell the friends and neighbors, ole Chester will still be around — probably more visible — but not in an executive suite," he said.

These horses have their own swimming pool

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Raising Arabian horses is big business. Last year, Paul and Dody Wood, owners of Colonial Wood Arabians, sold a filly for $135,000.

Most of their horses are trained as halter horses — horses that are judged in competition according to their conformation, or overall beauty. Judges look for a shiny coat, strong physique, slender neck, straight legs, smooth back and a level croup or rump.

That's why, to make the horses look their best, the trainers at Colonial Wood spend hours brushing and conditioning the horses' coats, putting moisturizer on their hooves and applying heat wraps to their necks.

That's also why they take the horses swimming every day. Yes, swimming. Not far from their own swimming pool, the Woods have a specially built pool where eight of their 15 horses now swim as part of their training.

The pool is round, nine feet deep, 42 feet in diameter and complete with three filters and a heater for winter use. As far as the Woods know, it's the only fully concrete pool just for horses.

After the horses get their morning feeding, they are led down a gradual runway into the pool, where they swim as many as 35 laps around the circumference.

"It's one of our best aids," said Dawn Close, the assistant trainer. "It really develops long muscles and helps with their overall conditioning and stamina."

The horses are a little jumpy the first time they're taken into the pool. Ms. Close said. But horses, like dogs, are natural swimmers and they soon get accustomed to the water, she said.

"By the end of the first week, if you take them into the pool every day, they'll just walk right in," she said. "They know it isn't going to bite them, and they start to really enjoy it."

The swimming, Ms. Close said, shapes and defines the horses' muscles that have been built up by running. And that, she believes, gives Colonial Wood horses a competitive edge in shows.

It also makes the horses more attractive to buyers, who flock to competitions. In the last three years, Mrs. Wood said, interest in Arabian horses has increased dramatically as people have begun looking at them as good investments.

Originally, Arabians came from the deserts of Arabia, where they were known for their endurance. In the late 1600s, Arabians were bred by Europeans to produce the Thoroughbred. The Thoroughbreds, not long after, were bred in North America to produce the quarterhorse.

Arabians are about as tall as quarterhorses — about 14 to 15 hands, or four and a half to five feet tall — but they're not as heavy as Thoroughbreds or quarterhorses, which can weigh up to 1,300 pounds.

As an example of the appreciation of Arabians in recent years, the Woods bought one of 42 shares in a breeding stallion two years ago. Each shareholder paid $150,000, making the horse — named Aladdin — worth $6.3 million. Today, Woods said, that horse is worth at least $10.5 million.

But don't look for Woods to sell his share of Aladdin. The horse brings $20,000 for each breeding, and good stallions have been known to breed for 20 years.

The top horse the Woods have sole interest in is Ambra, who won the U.S. Nationals and Canadian Nationals in 1979 — a rare achievement. Woods said she's worth about half a million dollars.

And then there's Fire Melody, who the Woods plan to enter in the Canadian Nationals next month. They think she could be as big a winner as her sister, who was a double national champion.

And why shouldn't they? Fire Melody has been swimming her laps.

Oystermen protect beds

APALACHICOLA BAY, Fla. (AP) — In Florida, good oysters are synonymous with Apalachicola Bay. The small shallow bay in Florida's panhandle, between Apalachicola and St. George Island, produces some of the finest oysters found in the United States.

During the nine-month season, oystermen still use 16-foot "tongs" to pry the oysters from their beds. This is just one of many regulations imposed by Florida's Department of Natural Resources to protect the oyster beds for generations to come. Oystermen believe that as long as the oysters are worked by hand, the beds will last indefinitely.

The average oysterman can catch some 20 bags or bushels a day; a bag weighing about 60 pounds and selling for $8 per bag locally. If the oysters are trucked more than 75 miles they must be refrigerated, increasing the per-bag cost.

The process normally is a two-person operation. The first is a "tonger" who actually catches the oysters. The second is the "culler" who sorts the catch and throws back the undersized oysters and open shells. The legal size limit is a 3-inch shell or more. Shells are thrown back into the bay because young oysters need them to attach themselves to for growth. Everyone works to preserve the oysters and their beds.
