By The Associated Press
Lech Walesa urged Solidarity members to stage bloodless strikes against Poland's martial law regime to prove the independent union "works and exists," the Norwegian radio reported Saturday. Reports from Poland said troops shot and killed 56 people and clubbed 10 others to death.

Western intelligence sources Saturday confirmed that plane-loads of Soviet officers landed in Warsaw last Wednesday. There was no further elaboration.

The State Department said it considered reports of 54 killed in worker-police clashes in Poland to be reliable. A Dutch truck driver returning from Poland said Solidarity officials told him Polish troops shot and killed 56 miners and clubbed 10 others to death in Katowice last week.

Polish workers, some joined by deserting martial law troops, already were holding out in factories, mines and shipyards, according to reports reaching the West from Poland.

Some accounts said the strikers threatened to blow up mines and ships and that Walesa suffered a heart attack, but like all the other reports could not be confirmed because there are no normal communications with Poland and dispatches by Western correspondents are subject to military censorship.

Walesa's appeal was written and signed by him Thursday in the village he is being held in 15 miles south of Warsaw and smuggled out of Poland by a Norwegian citizen, Norway's government radio, NRK, said.

The broadcast said Walesa urged Solidarity members to stage "passive strikes" at their factories, meaning not to report to work, and that "at plants where you have a possibility to defend yourselves, you should stage active strikes," meaning occupations, NRK said.

"Workers should not arm themselves and should avoid bloodshed," said Walesa, Solidarity's chief. The message ended with an appeal to "prove that Solidarity works and exists," the radio said.

There have been unconfirmed reports of 50,000 arrests in Poland since martial was declared a week ago. The Polish state radio has admitted seven people killed in clashes with police.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said officials have unconfirmed information that many more have been killed. Some reports placed the dead at 54. Fischer said these reports appeared based on multiple sources and "appear to be reliable."

Pope John Paul II sent two envoys to Vienna, where they planned to catch a train to Warsaw and hold talks with Polish church and government officials and Walesa in hopes of negotiating a settlement of the week-old crisis in the pontiff's native land.

The Italian news agency ANSA said a proclamation from Poland's primate, Archbishop Jozef Glemp, will be read in all Polish churches Sunday urging Poles to avoid bloodshed and "not to raise an arm filled with hatred against one another."

"Keep calm, do not drive our country to a still greater disaster. Only self-control and the maintenance of calm can save the country and the church which fulfills her mission in it," ANSA quoted Glemp's message as saying.

A Polish sailor enroute to Saint Nazaire, a French port on the Atlantic, told reporters in Paris after arriving by plane from Warsaw that Walesa was "interned in a suburb of Warsaw because he refused to issue an appeal for calm."

The sailor, among a group of 20 heading to Saint Nazaire for reasons which could not be determined, said he had been in Gdansk and that workers occupying the shipyards there were "threatening to sink everything if the militia intervenes."

The Czechoslovak Communist Party newspaper Rude Pravo said Polish strikers have threatened to blow up a barricaded gas bottling plant 20 miles from the Wojek coal mine in Katowice where troops shot and killed seven demonstrators last week.

Rude Pravo said strikers at another mine in Upper Silesia have placed explosives at the shaft entrance and are threatening to set them off unless martial law is repealed.

The State Department in Washington said Friday that a high-level Polish government official told the U.S. Embassy in Warsaw that strikes were under way in 43 enterprises in eight Polish provinces.

Warsaw Radio claimed Saturday that most of Poland was calm and that the 10 p.m.-6 a.m. curfew would be shortened by two hours in most provinces. But it said the curfew would remain unchanged in five provinces, and extended two hours in Gdansk, where troops and strikers battled last week, leaving 324 injured.

The state radio also announced a ban on sending Christmas cards, apparently to prevent Poles from communicating strike news to one another, and claimed that troops patrolling on foot and in armored personnel carriers were "proving true."

However, Paul Koshinski, 20, a student from Binghamton, N.Y., told reporters on arriving in Vienna by train from Warsaw, that Polish soldiers joined workers occupying the Nowa Huta steel works shortly after security forces stormed the mill earlier this week.

APACHE WELL BLOWOUT near Allison continues to active and uncapped for several weeks. The well had spew natural gas as crews from area contractors work to dig a 120 foot deep and one-half mile wide pit around the well to reach the casing. More than 30 pieces of heavy equipment are completing the pit. The well has remained active and uncapped for several weeks. The well had been perforated before a production line was completed. Contractors estimate it will take two to three more weeks before the pit is completed. (Staff Photo by John Wolfe)

General's captors declare war on NATO, U.S.

ROME (AP) — The Red Brigades terrorists, in a six-page statement issued Saturday, branded kidnapped U.S. Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier "a Yankee pig" and declared war against NATO and the American military, police reported.

In Verona, Judith Dozier, her voice cracking and her eyes swelling with tears, appealed to the terrorists for the safe release of her 50-year-old husband.

Italian police used helicopters and dogs to comb northeast Italy in their largest search on record, hunting for the "people's prison" where Dozier reportedly was held by the terrorists to face "proletarian justice."

The statement by the Marxist urban guerrillas was the first written dispatch since they snatched Dozier from his Verona apartment Thursday night.

"War against NATO!" read one of the slogans at the end of the message. "Attack the centers, the war strategies, and the bases of the American military machine!"

The statement accused the United States and multinational corporations of using the Western alliance to dominate Europe and criticized the "complete exclusion of the interested peoples" from the U.S.-Soviet arms reduction talks in Geneva, Switzerland.

The communique was left in a cracker box in a wastebasket on the major Rome thoroughfare of Via XX Settembre. An anonymous telephone caller told a journalist from the Rome newspaper Giornale D'Italia where to find it.

The message did not make any demands for Dozier's release.

It carried the Red Brigades' symbol at the top — a five-pointed star in a circle, and was labeled "Communique Number One."

In previous kidnappings, the Red Brigades have issued a series of numbered communiques.

"On Thursday, December 17, an armed nucleus of our organization captured and locked in a people's prison a Yankee pig of the American occupation army, Brigadier General James Dozier, vice commander of Allied Land Forces in Southern Europe," the statement said.

The message praised West Germany's Red Army Faction, another left-wing terrorist group that has claimed attacks on NATO facilities. It also called for "reopening" links with other urban guerrilla groups in Europe, naming specifically the Irish Republican Army and the Basque separatist group ETA.

Mrs. Dozier, in a brief statement at NATO headquarters targeted for the Red Brigades, said, "This is a man who lives and cares for others."

"We hope that you will return him safely and sound," she said, her voice filled with emotion.

Police said Dozier, the second-highest ranking U.S. Army officer in Southern Europe, was probably in the hands of the leftist terrorist group's hard-line Venice wing — which kidnapped chemical company executive Giuseppe Talierno last May 20 and left his bullet-riddled body in the trunk of a car on July 6.

An Italian executive was grabbed by kidnapers Friday evening in Milan, police reported, but there was no apparent connection with Dozier's abduction, Giuseppe Pasini, 70, the chairman of a marine motors company, was seized while driving home from work. There was no immediate claim of responsibility or demand for ransom.

Rallies worldwide show Solidarity support

By The Associated Press
Thousands of people gathered at rallies Saturday in Europe, Asia and the United States to protest martial law in Poland and demand restoration of the independent Solidarity labor union.

About 5,000 Swiss gathered at a peaceful meeting in Berne, expressing sympathy with Solidarity and calling for removal of martial law in Poland.

The Swiss demonstrators unanimously approved a resolution, to be given to the Polish diplomatic mission, requesting restoration of democratic and trade union rights in Poland and execution of reforms agreed to by Solidarity and the Polish government before martial law was declared a week ago.

A crowd estimated by police at 3,000 marched over a two-mile route through Amsterdam.

The Dutch protesters were told by Sławomir Czarlewski, identified by rally organizers as a member of Solidarity's national committee, that resistance to the government clampdown would continue both inside and outside of Poland.

In New York City, about 1,500 demonstrators, hoisting placards and chanting slogans, rallied outside the Polish consulate in Manhattan.

Speakers at the rally called for U.S. economic sanctions against the Soviet Union, despite claims by the Soviets that the imposition of martial law was an internal affair.

Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., said the Polish government should immediately free all Solidarity prisoners, honor the contract between the government and Solidarity and put Solidarity leader Lech Walesa on television so the world could see he is alive.

Moynihan warned that if these conditions were not quickly met the Senate would discuss economic sanctions against Poland and the Soviet Union. "We're not going to feed the army that imprisons the Polish people," he said.

Turnout for a rally at Chicago's Daley Center Plaza was light, with about 1,000 people showing up for a 30-minute demonstration.

At Cambridge, Mass., a committee of 130 U.S. university professors and scholars Saturday called the imposition of martial law in Poland "crude violations of basic human rights" and called for the release of Polish citizens detained by the military government. The Committee for Democracy in Poland, formed at Harvard University, has a membership that includes Nobel Prize winners Simon Kuznetz of Harvard, Paul Samuelson of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and James Tobin of Yale, according to Teresa Houthakker, a spokeswoman for the group.

In Canada, about 600 people gathered on a rain-swept pier in Vancouver to sing union songs and pledge support for Solidarity. The demonstrators were joined by some of the roughly 160 Polish sailors on fishing boats docked at Vancouver. There have been some defections of Polish sailors in the past week.

On Parliament Hill in Ottawa, more than 1,000 people gathered to vent their anger against the Polish crisis and Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's statement that martial law may not be bad if it prevents civil war.

FOOD ARRIVES. Dutch drivers unload Christmas parcels in the Polish city of Radom, some 62 miles south of Warsaw, earlier this week, as inhabitants watch. The truck is one of a Dutch convoy which left the Netherlands Dec. 13 with some 200,000 Christmas parcels donated by relief groups. The parcels should help relieve, even if only temporarily, shortages caused by economic troubles and the current disorder in Poland.

Pampa woman robbed of purse at gunpoint

Pampa Police officers were searching the area around the Pampa Mall about 7:15 p.m. Saturday for a youthful armed robber who made off with a woman's purse as she left the mall.

"The woman was leaving the mall by the back door outside of J.C. Penney's to the parking lot. She was approached by a young male who pointed a gun at her and demanded her purse."

according to J.C. Penney's merchandiser Agnes Sifuentes.

"The lady didn't have very much money in her purse, about $10," Sifuentes said.

The assailant was described as being about 15 years old, a white male with brown hair and wearing blue jeans with a red plaid shirt. He ran into the dark parking lot behind the mall.

The woman was not injured in the robbery.

Nine die in two head-on collisions

By The Associated Press
Nine people died Saturday in two head-on collisions a half-hour apart in far West Texas and in South Texas near Sabinal, the Texas Department of Public Safety reported.

Five New Mexicans were killed in a 2:45 a.m. wreck just west of Pecos on Interstate 20. Troopers said the car in which all five were riding was in the wrong lane rounding a curve and collided with a tractor-trailer rig. The New Mexico car burst into flames and all the passengers were burned beyond recognition.

The truck driver was not hurt, but two-thirds of his load of plastic products was burned.

The dead were identified as Ruben M. Madrid, 27, Daniel Madrid, 23, and Patricia Madrid, 21, all of Artesia, N.M.; and Larry R. Medina and Amelia Madrid Medina, 26, of Hobbs, N.M.

Four other people, including three members of one family, died early Saturday in another head-on collision on U.S. Highway 90 just east of Sabinal, troopers said.

A pickup driven by Francisco Mota, 28, of Del Rio collided with a car driven by Eloy Vasquez, 37, of Port Lavaca at 3:45 a.m., investigators said.

Also killed in the wreck were Vasquez's wife, 37-year-old Jesuita, and the couple's 12-year-old son, Sonny.

The couple's 10-year-old son, Christopher, was transported to Bexar County Hospital in San Antonio for treatment of two broken legs and internal injuries, troopers said.

Senate and House leaders find satisfaction in separate roles

WASHINGTON (AP) — By most standards, Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker would appear the clear victor in the 1981 congressional battles with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr.

But in the first politically divided Congress since the early 1930s, the two leaders are each claiming satisfaction, confident of their respective forces and eager for a 1982 rematch.

Congress quit for the year last week, to return Jan. 25.

Both Baker, who steered President Reagan's programs through the Republican Senate, and O'Neill, powerless to stop the Reagan bills in the Democratic-led House, are ending 1981 on more solid political footing than they began the year.

Both overcame rivalries within their parties and emerged undisputed leaders — although Baker went from minority to majority leader while O'Neill presided over a majority that became, for all practical purposes, a minority.

Baker, buoyed by enactment of the Reagan economic recovery plan, says, "I believe we're on the right path and I believe the country is determined to go the distance."

But the Tennessee Republican conceded that winning approval for another round of budget cuts — due to be submitted with the president's new budget in February — will be hard work.

Senate Republicans disagree among themselves and with the White House over the scope of the new cuts, which are bound to cut into government benefits paid to individuals.

And while Baker and other GOP leaders say tax increases seem inevitable, there is disagreement over what kind — and reluctance by the administration to lead the way.

O'Neill, while conceding Reagan got "everything he wanted," argues that the president's program isn't working — and that Democrats will make a big comeback, picking up 25-50 House seats next November.

O'Neill admits frustration — if not surprise — at his inability to keep conservative Democrats, the "boll weevils," from repeatedly voting Republican and giving Reagan a working majority in the House.

Since Congress gave Reagan what he wanted — a 25-percent tax cut over three years, $40 billion in spending cuts and a record peacetime $200 billion defense budget — the fate of the nation's economy is now in GOP hands, O'Neill contends.

While claiming "there is no glee in my heart that the nation is in a recession," O'Neill suggests hard economic times will hurt Republicans more than Democrats.

Baker and other Senate Republican leaders are counting on an upswing in the economy as Reagan's program takes hold.

"I'm optimistic about the economy," Baker said. "January will be very slow but I think that by spring and summer, we will see the economy growing at a substantial rate."

Although Republicans held both the House and Senate in the early 1950s, the last time power was divided was in 1931-32, with a Democratic House and a GOP Senate.

Despite this built-in conflict, relations between O'Neill and Baker have been cordial, aides to both men say.

"I've gotten along good with Howard," O'Neill said, suggesting, however, that Baker's job was the more difficult one.

Once the bulk of Reagan's economic program passed in August, Baker was anxious to wrap up the session, O'Neill relates.

"He told me he saw no reason we can't get out of here by Oct. 1, I said, 'fine. Howard, sure, anything you say Howard.'"

But the session stretched into last week in a battle over additional budget cuts sought by Reagan that even some key Republicans found hard to swallow.

"What he didn't realize was that he had a man down the street that he had to take orders from," O'Neill said.

Even though Baker had some difficulty in holding his troops toward session's end, his soft-spoken leadership was praised by both O'Neill and Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd, who lost the majority job to Baker with last January's GOP takeover.

"I admire the facility to exact that kind of discipline," said Byrd, of West Virginia, while blasting Senate Republicans as "political zombies marching in lockstep."

"One man's lockstep is another man's party unity," Baker responded.

Baker, 56, who came to national prominence as the ranking Republican on the Senate Watergate Committee and waged an unsuccessful presidential bid in 1980, was minority leader when Reagan won the presidency and the Senate went Republican.

Largely because of his support for the Panama Canal Treaties, some of the Senate's most conservative members sought to deny Baker the majority leader's job. But Baker won the crucial backing of Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., a close friend of the president, and nailed down the post.

Rotarians seek candidates for scholarships to study abroad

Pampa Rotary Club will sponsor a coffee on Sunday, December 27, at 3 p.m. Quivera Room, Coronado Inn, to interview and provide information to interested candidates for Rotary Foundation Awards for a year of foreign study.
Rotary District 573 (West Texas) will offer 4 awards to graduate or undergraduate scholars for the school year 1983-84. Pampa Rotary Club may recommend two candidates for graduate and undergraduate awards. The club may also recommend candidates for teachers of the handicapped, journalists, or vocational scholars.
The purpose of the Rotary foundation scholarships is to further international understanding and friendly relations between peoples of different countries. Both men and women may apply for one academic year of study or training in a foreign country where Rotary clubs are located.
During the year of study in a foreign country, foundation scholars are expected to be outstanding ambassadors of good will in interacting and communicating with the people of the host study country and through both informal and formal appearances before Rotary clubs, schools, and civic organizations and other forums. After the foreign study has been accomplished, the scholar is expected to discuss and share the experiences and understanding acquired during the scholarship studies with the people of the scholar's home country and the Rotarians who sponsored the scholarship.
Cassandra Sweet, sponsored by Pampa Rotary Club, studied economics at the Universidad Complutense in Madrid, Spain in 1979 - 80 on a Rotary Foundation Graduate Award. Ms. Sweet is now employed in international marketing in Houston, Texas.

The five Rotary Foundation Scholarships are:
GRADUATE SCHOLARSHIPS, for those who will have received a bachelor's degree or its equivalent before commencement of scholarship studies.
UNDERGRADUATE SCHOLARSHIPS, for those who are studying at the university level but who will not have completed their bachelor's degree before the commencement of scholarship studies.
VOCATIONAL SCHOLARSHIPS, for those who are secondary school graduates and who have been employed or engaged full-time in a vocation for at least two years as of the application deadline. Applicants must not be eligible for a Graduate or Undergraduate Scholarship.
TEACHER OF THE HANDICAPPED SCHOLARSHIPS, for those who have been employed or engaged as full-time teachers of the physically, mentally or educationally handicapped for at least two years as of the application deadline.
JOURNALISM SCHOLARSHIPS, for those who have been employed in a full-time position as a journalist at the time of application, or have been actively pursuing full-time post-secondary studies in print or broadcast journalism for two years prior to the commencement of award studies for which the application has been made, and who intend to pursue the profession of journalism after completion of their scholarship studies.
Applicants selected by Pampa

Rotary Club as candidates for the Graduate or Undergraduate awards will compete at the district level. Vocational applicants, Journalist and Teachers of the Handicapped will compete on an international level. Approximately 70 awards will be made in each of the international competitive areas and four awards will be named in District 573 (West Texas) for Graduate and Undergraduate awards.
A benefit not found in other scholarships is the scholar's association with rotary clubs and Rotarians. Each award recipient is assigned a sponsoring Rotarian counselor and a host Rotarian counselor to provide assistance for a successful study year.
The basic period of the scholarship is one academic year.
Study or training must be undertaken in one of the 180 countries in which there are Rotary clubs. A candidate may not propose to study in one's own country. No Rotarian or relative of a Rotarian is permitted to apply.
Applications must be made through a Rotary Club, either in one's hometown or in the community in which one is studying applications must be received by March 1, 1981.
Contact any member of the Rotary Foundation Committee of Pampa Rotary Club for further information and to attend the coffee on December 27. Members are Don Nelson, Chairman at 669-3104; Dr. Rene Grabato - 665-4285; Jack Reeve - 665-4034; Kenny Smith - 669-3057; Jimmy Wilkerson - 665-5123; Paul Payne - 669-9400; and Brian Hanson - 665-6428.

Municipal Court Roundup

Business was brisk in Pampa Municipal Court Thursday with 36 cases on the docket. All cases were disposed of, and Municipal Judge Phil Vanderpool adjourned court at 3:30 p.m.
Three mini juries were chosen to hear cases involving speeding and public intoxication.
Many of the defense arguments in municipal court, which handles only misdemeanor charges, are presented by the person charged, making for some interesting court arguments.
Municipal attorney Rick Harris stays low key during the proceedings and seems to be able to work without the legal shenanigans of higher court attorneys.
The jury found Jeffery Eugene Poole guilty of speeding and set his fine at $15, slightly less than the ticket would have cost him otherwise.
The second jury, composed of some of the same people, couldn't decide if David Anthony Dwight was actually guilty of a public intoxication charge. Police Officer Steve Chance testified he thought Dwight was intoxicated on Nov. 21 as he left the Palace Club. Dwight countered by asking if he was so intoxicated how could he have passed the sobriety test administered some minutes earlier by the officers.
Chance testified he was busy and didn't see Dwight pass the sobriety test administered by Officer Wopperer.
The jury didn't know either, and after a lengthy deliberation, remained undecided. The case is to be retried.
In the third case, Geoffry Terry took the witness stand and cross-examined himself on a public intoxication charge resulting when he also left the Palace

Club a week later on Nov. 28.
A parade of witnesses called and examined by Terry testified Terry did not consume enough alcohol to make him stagger or slur his words during the evening.
An equal parade of Pampa Police Officers testified that during their rounds of the bar they noticed Terry staggering and slurring his words when they arrested him as he later left the establishment.
Mrs. Terry told the Pampa News her husband's troubles really started as he was taken in handcuffs to the Pampa City Jail when he was dropped or fell to the floor of the Pampa Police Department. She said her husband injured his head on the floor and injured his arm when picked up by his handcuffs. She said he ended up with a large bill from Coronado Community Hospital for x-rays of his head and arm.
But the city apologized, she said, through a letter written by Pampa Police Chief J.J. Ryzman.
"The officer involved did overreact, and he has been disciplined," Ryzman wrote. The name of the officer involved was never released by city officials.
The city also has declined to say whether they will foot the hospital bill, Mrs. Terry said.
City Attorney Rick Harris and City Judge Phil Vanderpool, in a last-minute out of court conference with Terry, reminded him that in no way were the hospital events and the letter from Police Chief Ryzman to be brought up in front of the jury. "Those incidents are irrelevant to the charge of public intoxication," the two told Terry.
Terry convinced five jurors out of the six jurors that he was not guilty, resulting in a hung jury. The case is to be retried.

In other court action:
Monte J. Hopkins was fined $100 for fleeing. A charge of improper passing was dismissed, and he is to attend the defensive driving course in lieu of a fine on the speeding charge.
Phillip Monroe Lang forfeited his $100 bond when he failed to appear for his court appearance in connection with a charge of public intoxication.
Billy Ray Finely was fined $100 each on two separate charges of simple assault.
Florence O. Montgomery forfeited $100 bond for public intoxication.
David Luster was fined $50 for disorderly conduct.
Dale Edward Killham had two cases reset, one of intoxication and one of disorderly conduct.
Jerry Ray Greenwell was fined $100 for public intoxication.
Joe Paul Greenwell was fined $100 for public intoxication.
Rex Avery Rucker is to attend the defensive driver course in lieu of a fine for speeding.
William J. Kindermann was fined $20 for operating an unregistered vehicle.
Curtis Andrew Orr forfeited bond for public intoxication.
Roy Lewis Hass was fined $75 for public intoxication.
Sarah R. Taylor forfeited bond for public intoxication.
Randy Taylor forfeited bond for public intoxication.
Verne Roger Cave Jr. was fined $25 for public intoxication.
Dennis Wayne Taylor was fined $50 for public intoxication.

Agent Orange study of Texas veterans opens

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A study of Texas Vietnam veterans exposed to the controversial herbicide Agent Orange should get underway in January, and some results could be available as early as mid-1982, health officials say.

Details of the study, mandated by the 1981 Legislature, were unveiled Friday for veterans organizations that supported the program by Texas Department of Health officials and University of Texas scientists.

"Our hope would be to conduct this study in such a way that its results would be scientifically unassailable," said Dr. Bill Neaves, chairman of the University of Texas Agent Orange Program Committee.

Danny Jordan, president of the Austin-based Brotherhood of Vietnam Veterans, said he hoped the study would give veterans "credible medical evidence that they can take to the Veterans Administration" in an effort to win compensation for the ill effects they say were caused by the defoliant.

Neaves said the study would be broken down into sections, including a mortality study, a search for genetic damage and unusually low levels of immunity, and evaluation of birth defects in exposed veterans' children.

Dr. George Anderson, health department toxicology consultant, said veterans groups are contacting members and urging them to visit their doctors, who in turn will refer them to a screening program.

Once subjects are chosen for the study, Anderson said, results of the mortality study should be available in five or six months. The other studies could take up to two years, he said.

Officials expect to begin screening about 5,000 Texas veterans by early next year, Anderson said.

Crewman rescued after tug collides and sinks

By The Associated Press

A tugboat carrying three crewmen collided with another tug and sank in the Mississippi River on Saturday, officials said. Meanwhile, a freighter saved three crewmen whose tug sank in an accident in the Gulf of Mexico.

Boats and planes had searched in the Gulf for about 15 hours when a passing freighter, the Virginia Ray, spotted the three crewmen in the area where their tug, the Offshore Challenger, sank.

"They are in good condition," said Petty Officer Larry Lawrence at the Coast Guard station in New Orleans, where the search was coordinated. "Especially considering the weather."

"They had seas of 20 feet and the winds had blown up to 40 knots."

Boats first reported a distress signal from the ocean-going tugboat about 6:30 p.m. CST Friday, when it reported it was taking on water near the Bay of Campeche, about 165 miles northeast of Vera Cruz, he said.

The tug apparently sank about 9 p.m., Lawrence said.

He said the Virginia Ray lowered a lifeboat and picked up the men, wet but apparently unharmed, about 11:30 a.m. Saturday. They were transferred to a civilian boat expected to arrive at Ciudad Carmen, Mexico, about 6 p.m. Sunday, he said.

Offshore Marine Towing Corp. of Harvey, which owned the tug, refused to release the identities of the crewmen. Lawrence said two were from New Orleans.

Meanwhile, rescuers searched the chilly Mississippi near Triumph, La., for the crew of the Capt. Rodney, which sank quickly after a 2:50 a.m. collision with another tugboat.

"We are searching for the boat's operator, deckhand and another crew member," Coast Guard spokesman Larry House said. "There could have been more crew. We just don't know."

The boat collided with the Anthony P. St. Phillips, which managed to stay afloat. All that was found at the scene of the accident near the river's mouth was "an oil slick and some debris," House said.

The cause of the accident was unknown and officials had not determined the identities of the crew, he said.

Officers accused in beating are reinstated

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — A civil service panel has reduced the penalties imposed by the police chief on two officers accused of beating prisoners.

The two officers, one of whom admitted striking a teen-ager with weighted leather gloves, had been fired by Sonny Pfeifer, police chief in this suburb between Dallas and Fort Worth.

But the Grand Prairie Civil Service Commission, saying Pfeifer's action was "entirely too severe," reduced the punishment to suspension without pay Friday.

The officers had been fired after Pfeifer said a two-month investigation substantiated charges of police brutality filed by two Mexican-American teen-agers.

Officer Jimmy L. Horrocks, 38, admitted in testimony before the three-member commission that he struck Chris Gomez, 15, because the youth spat at him after being arrested at a car wash.

He will return to work Wednesday after serving a 30-day suspension retroactive to Nov. 23, the day the officers were fired.

The panel decided the other officer, 27-year-old Alan T. Patton, did not use excessive force in pushing Gomez and "popping" 16-year-old Ricky Diaz.

For failing to report Horrocks' conduct, however, Patton received a 10-day suspension beginning Nov. 23 — which will give him some back pay.

Patton said Gomez was leaning toward the front seat screaming profanities and threats into his ear as he drove the youth to jail. The officer said he reached back to push him back and accidentally hit him in the nose with his elbow. At the jail, he said Diaz began threatening him and he "popped" him in the chest with his hand.

He said he did not know he was required to report incidents involving the use of force against a prisoner.

Man dies in Dallas jail

DALLAS (AP) — Pathologists are awaiting test results before ruling on the death of a Dallas County Jail inmate who was found unconscious minutes after a scuffle with guards, authorities said Saturday.

"It will be four to six weeks" before a cause of death is determined, said Keith Colvin, medical investigator with the Dallas County medical examiner's office. He said no preliminary report had been released, although the autopsy was completed Saturday morning.

Jose Young, 26, was pronounced dead at a local hospital late Friday after police efforts to revive him failed.

At least a half dozen jail guards became involved in the scuffle after Young threatened to hang himself, officers said. His clothes were removed and he was taken to a padded cell, where he was found unconscious five minutes later.

No marks were found on the body, said police spokesman Bob Shaw.

"He was fighting like a madman," Shaw said. "I assumed they may have choked him down. It's something we do all the time. We have to use whatever force is necessary to get a prisoner under control."

Shaw said the death will be investigated routinely by the Internal Affairs and Crimes Against Persons divisions.

Young, who was jailed for criminal trespass and attempted escape, began shaking and fell down outside the bus station where he was arrested. But the paramedics who were called to examine him told officers Young was putting on an act, Shaw said.

Boy Scout suit goes to court

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — The parents of a 9-year-old girl who "needs to be taught to be a survivor" go to court this week to press a suit over her ouster from the Cub Scouts.

The parents of Marystephanie Constantines — "Toffie" to friends and family — filed the federal sex discrimination suit against the Boy Scouts of America when she was booted out of the group after nearly a year.

"She won all the main awards and even got the Silver Arrow for outstanding achievement in the Cub Scouts," said her mother, Joy Constantines.

When Marystephanie won the Pinewood Derby, in which the scouts carve cars from wood and race them down an incline, "that really cemented her place in the troop," said Mrs. Constantines.

The ouster came when Marystephanie wanted to go with her brother, who also was a Cub Scout, to summer day camp this year.

"We filled out the papers and sent them in along with the money," said her father, John Constantines, an attorney. "Then we got a letter from the Scouts and our money back. The letter said they hadn't known that Marystephanie was a girl.

"When she joined she filled out three sets of papers with her name on them. One went to the national, one to the regional and one to the local. They are trying now to say they didn't know she was a girl."

Her father filed the $250,000 sex discrimination suit on Marystephanie's behalf against the Boy Scouts of America, the Cub Scouts of America and the Last Frontier Council.

The Boy Scouts don't see it as sex discrimination.

"The issue from our point of view has nothing to do with sex discrimination," said Scout spokesman Brantly Hudson. "We are a private membership organization and as such are able to determine our membership requirements."

Hudson said the decision to bar Marystephanie was not a matter of local judgment but "is based on national policies and decisions."

He said girls are permitted in the Explorer program, which is open to youths from high school through age 20. There are programs for younger girls similar to the Cub Scouts, he added.

"The Cub Scout program was started in the 1930s as a program designed to meet the emerging emotional, psychological and physical needs of young boys," Hudson said. "It's been constantly updated and modernized with the help of nationally prominent psychologists and educators who have advised us the emerging emotional, psychological and physical needs of boys differ from those of girls."

Marystephanie was in the Bluebirds, a girls' organization for a year. "But I didn't like it," she said. "All we did was learn to keep house, to cook and sew. I know how to do that."

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Covington Commandment.

Local Opinion

Why an executive session?

Tuesday's executive session of the Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees with parents of a Pampa student seemed pointless.

The parents were apparently displeased with some disciplinary action taken by one of the school system's teachers and, as a means of appealing the disciplinary decision, turned to the school board.

At the conclusion of the closed session, neither the board nor the school superintendent seemed to know who should speak for the board. Both our school superintendent and board members averted their eyes and were reluctant to discuss what had taken place in the closed session even in general terms.

Asked if the dispute had been resolved, board members said no. The school superintendent did say trustees had listened to the family "tell their side of the story."

At the conclusion of the meeting, the board president did tell the Pampa News that no action had been taken, that no comments from the board had been made and no decisions had been made. And in fact, no decisions could be made, no actions could be taken in executive session or the board would be in violation of the Open Meetings Law.

It seems to us, therefore, that the executive session from the outset was doomed to be meaningless. In this instance, it failed to serve any viable purpose of changing or correcting any possible wrong or even examining whether a wrong had occurred, and served only as a mean of allowing a distraught family the opportunity to air a gripe.

The Open Meetings Law prohibits public bodies from making decisions in executive sessions in the sense that they are not allowed to take an official "yea" or "nay" vote. They are prohibited from taking an action in executive sessions, in the sense that they cannot actually take a vote to do or refrain from doing something.

That rarely works in the real situation.

In reality, any time a group of elected officials sits down, whether to coffee or in executive session, opinions are exchanged, actions are influenced, decisions are formed. Board members, through discussion, can tell who is for or against any proposed action. Only the formality of calling the roll is missing.

This is one reason why we so oppose these closed meetings.

The public has a right to know. The public has a right to know if disciplinary problems are occurring — if unjust situations are being corrected, if unjust situations even exist.

We feel the most good would be served by public airing of these problems.

However, knowing the school board as we do, we feel this is highly unlikely.

In the alternative, we would appreciate it if they would take a few extra minutes in their private discussion to draft a general statement of the events which took place outside the public's view. No names would have to be mentioned, no one's feelings hurt. Just tell us what happened.

A spokesman for the Attorney General's office told us Wednesday the Open Meetings Law does not address the problem of what public officials can say about what happened during executive session. We take this to mean they can say what they see fit. They are not prohibited from talking about what took place.

Board members might also consider their own credibility as a public body. Every time they meet in private, which until recently had been during every public meeting, they put their own credibility on the line. People naturally wonder what the meeting was about and conjure up reasons more sinister than real. Our reporters have on at least one occasion sat outside the school board's closed door for an hour, only to be rebuffed by our school trustees when asked what had occurred. "Not given the time of day" were our reporter's exact words.

Regardless of the board's decision, we will, of course, continue to confront this board every time it meets privately and ask them to tell us what happened.

We cannot guarantee they will tell us.

Who should speak for school board?

Just a note on who should speak for the school board.

The school board employs the school superintendent and other school officials, not vice versa.

If anyone should speak, our elected officials are the ones.

The bomb is the chief industry

By ROBERT WALTERS
AMARILLO, Texas (NEA) — Sprawling across a 9,100-acre tract in the midst of the desolate, windblown High Plains of Texas stand hundreds of nondescript buildings that comprise one of the federal government's most sensitive facilities.

Only the signs posted on the perimeter fence offer a clue that something extraordinary is occurring inside. "All vehicles and personnel are subject to search while on this facility," says one warning.

Another summarizes the provisions of an obscure federal law known as the Atomic Weapons and Special Nuclear Materials Rewards Act. A third identifies the facility as the Department of Energy's Pantex Plant.

Beyond the bulletproof guard towers, the cyclone fences and the electrified gates, approximately 2,400 men and women are engaged in a highly classified, very specialized form of work matched nowhere else in the nation.

The Pantex Plant is the final assembly point for every nuclear weapon produced in the United States.

Shipped here by truck and train are fuses from a Motorola Inc. plant in Scottsdale, Ariz.; neutron generators from a General Electric Co. facility in Pinellas, Fla.; and electronic components from a Bendix Corp. plant in Kansas City, Mo.

Weapons-grade plutonium and enriched uranium come from facilities in Aiken, S.C.; Richland, Wash.; Piketon, Ohio; Oak Ridge, Tenn.; and Paducah, Ky.

Workers at the Pantex Plant in the barren countryside 17 miles northeast of downtown Amarillo transform those components into nuclear warheads for both tactical weapons and strategic intercontinental weapons.

Constructed as an Army ordnance facility during World War II, the Pantex Plant was temporarily abandoned by the federal government in 1945, then reopened in 1951 to perform its current mission.

Throughout most of the ensuing 30 years, the facility operated in relative anonymity. Even residents of nearby communities in the Texas Panhandle were unaware of precisely what was being produced at the Pantex Plant.

Today, however, the facility is the object of a fierce controversy, touched off last summer by Bishop Leroy T. Matthiesen, leader of the Catholic Diocese of Amarillo.

After President Reagan announced his decision to proceed with the production of neutron bombs, the bishop composed a statement, which appeared in the diocesan newspaper, criticizing that decision as "tragic."

Other Catholic bishops throughout the country have decried the escalation of the arms race, but Matthiesen's statement was distinguished by two unique sentences.

"The matter is of immediate concern to us who live next door to Pantex, the nation's final assembly point for nuclear weapons, including the neutron bomb. We urge individuals involved in the production and stockpiling of nuclear bombs to consider what they are doing, to resign from such activities and to seek employment in peaceful pursuits."

Matthiesen received hundreds of letters reacting to his call for resignations. The mail from other sections of the country was almost universally favorable, but the reaction in the Panhandle was overwhelmingly hostile.

One of the area's major employers, Pantex has an annual budget estimated at $75 million to $80 million, including a substantial payroll of $45 million per year. Local political, civic and business leaders were highly critical of the bishop.

They "apparently look at the question of nuclear proliferation as a chamber of commerce matter," responded an editor of the West Texas State University campus newspaper.

Matthiesen says that he "never expected a mass resignation" but notes that in his private discussions with Catholics working at the Pantex Plant he has found that "some of them are suffering from real guilt feelings."

Why we need the B-1 Bomber

By CHARLEY REESE
As the disarmament lobby joins hands with Soviet agents, dupes and pacifists to argue against the MX missile and the B-1 bomber, just remember this: The Soviet Union is definitely not to be trusted!

There are a lot of wishful thinkers in this country who believe differently, but all you have to do, as old Sgt. Friday used to say, is look at the facts.

Some of the facts showing why we need the B-1 bomber, for example, are that the Soviet Union is treacherous, brutal, cruel, devious, and totalitarian to the bone marrow. Anybody who would sentence a man such as Edward Kuznetsov to seven years of hard labor for reading a poem in a square is not the kind of government at whose mercy I would like to be.

I know the unrealistic Soviet "experts" on Ivy League campuses and in the Eastern think tanks don't put much stock in Solzhenitsyn. After all, he doesn't have a degree in Russian studies. He's only a Russian!

But I believe him because he lived there. Solzhenitsyn says in the 80 years prior to the communist revolution, the Czars executed at the most about 17 people a year despite revolutionary activity, an attempt on one Czar's life and the assassination of another.

Even in World War II, the Soviets' actions were infamous. They frequently put poorly armed political unreliable on the front line for the Germans to kill.

They betrayed the Polish underground, telling them to launch their offensive and then sitting back while the Germans destroyed them. Later, the Soviets executed 10,000 Polish officers and men in the Katyn Forest.

After the war, they did not demobilize their army. They stayed put — in Eastern Europe, which was coerced into communism; in North Korea; in northern Japan. They literally looted Eastern Europe, packing whole factories on trains and hauling them into the Soviet Union along with thousands of engineers and scientists their secret police rounded up.

When the United States offered to ban nuclear weapons and to turn over control of nuclear energy to the United Nations, the Soviets refused because having stolen material and plans from the United States, they were busy making their own atomic bombs.

They armed the Red Chinese while our foolish leaders were disarming the Nationalists, and they engineered the Korean War and later the Vietnamese War.

Beginning in 1962, the Soviets launched the most intensive arms build-up in world history, outpacing the United States in the last decade alone by $250 billion. Their strategic arsenal is so vast that even if we destroyed 90 percent of the Soviets' land-based missiles in a surprise first strike, the remaining 10 percent would be sufficient to destroy the U.S.

These weapons are in the hands of people who deliberately exterminated 15 million peasants and starved another six million Ukrainians... that in addition to the executions mentioned earlier.

... a concentration of world evil, of hatred for humanity, is taking place and it is fully determined to destroy your society." Solzhenitsyn said to the AFL-CIO in Washington several years ago. "Must you wait until it comes with a crowbar to break through your borders, until the young men of America have to fall defending the borders of their continent?"

Yes, as a survival insurance policy for each citizen of the United States, we need the MX and the B-1 Bomber!

What consultants do?

By ART BUCHWALD
Before Richard Allen became National Security Adviser, he was part-owner of a consulting firm, with a former adviser and speechwriter to President Reagan named Peter Hannaford. The firm was called Potomac International.

There is nothing wrong with this because Washington is full of consulting firms made up of both Republicans and Democrats. We in Washington take them for granted. So I was thrown for a moment, when I was in Worcester, Mass., and a lady in the audience asked, "What does a Washington consultant do?"

I promised her that as soon as I got back to Washington, I would find out and give her the answer.

I went to see a consultant I knew and said, "Charley, I know this is a stupid question, but what do you do?"

"I don't have to tell you," he said defensively.

"I'm not trying to get you in trouble," I said. "But a lady in Worcester asked me the question and I couldn't give her an answer. The Richard Allen business apparently has made people curious."

"Well, the best way to explain it is this way: Suppose you're having a problem with the government. You come to me."

"And you solve the problem?"
"No, I send you to the someone in the government who can solve the problem."

"Why can't I go see the person myself?"

"Because you don't know who to see and even if you did he wouldn't see you unless I asked him to. Consultants are like marriage brokers. We get a fee for bringing two people together. The bigger the problem the higher up you have to go in government to resolve it, and the larger the fee we have to charge you."

"That makes sense," I admitted. "How do you have access to the people who can solve my problems?"

"Through political connections. When the democrats were in power, the Georgia crows were the most sought-after consultants. Now that the Republicans are in charge, people are looking for a California connection."

"Will you plead a person's case for him, if the official doesn't feel he can do it?"

"Of course. But it will cost you more, because that means we have to leave the office and take a government official to lunch or dinner."

"It doesn't sound like hard work."

"That depends on how dedicated a consultant you are. Our business doesn't just depend on access to government and congressional figures. Many times we have to pretend we have access to them, even if we don't."

"How does that work?"

"Well, suppose you have a client from some South American country and you want to impress him with the fact that you have clout in Washington. You take him to a restaurant where the White House crowd hangs out and you wave at them even if you don't know them."

"Let's say Ed Meese and Mike Deaver are at another table. You excuse yourself and go over to them and mutter something like 'You were great on 'Meet the Press' last Sunday.' Meese and Deaver don't know who the hell you are, but since they meet so many people they pretend they do. You walk back to your table and say to your client, 'Those guys really drive you up the wall. Meese is mad at me because I didn't return his last telephone call.' I did that once with Ham Jordan during the Carter administration and got Argentina on a $50,000 retainer for a year."

"That takes guts."

"You only resort to that kind of stuff when your people are out of office. If they're in, you don't have to fake it."

"Are you in or out right now?"

"I'm in like Flynn. Didn't you notice the picture on my desk?"

"Is that you eating raw fish in a Japanese sushi bar with Richard Allen?"

"One autographed photo in Washington is worth 1,000 proposals. When the president of the Banzai Sewing Machine Company saw that picture they signed up my firm for four years."

"I guess a consultant is the greatest thing you can be in Washington. It just about covers everything, and if you know the right people, you can make a lot of money."

"We don't do it for the money," Charley said. "All we want to do is make people happy."

Pampa youths bring Christmas to orphans

BY JOHN GRIMES
Of the Little Harvester Staff

There are many things that go with Christmas. Twinkling lights, cookies sprinkled with a sparkling coat of sugar and the happy shouts of children.

All of those things came together Friday when a group of Pampa High School students brought Christmas to the Panhandle Children's Home in Panhandle.

The party at the children's home is an annual event with the Red Cross Youth, sponsored by Mrs. Mary Lynn Case.

Around the last of November, the homeroom classes of Pampa High School, "adopt" one of the children.

Each homeroom that volunteers to take one of the children is responsible for collecting money to purchase "their" child's desired gift and turning it in to the Red Cross Youth.

Dwayne, one of the residents of the home, wanted a tape recorder for Christmas. Homeroom 100, taught by Mrs. Francis Palmer, agreed to furnish Dwayne with his present. The students in the class dug into their pockets and gave through their hearts towards the purchase of the gift.

The present was taken, along with the other children's gifts to Panhandle and were given to Santa Claus himself for personal delivery.

The children were entertained and generally kept busy, by the Red Cross Youth members until Santa made his early appearance and personally handed each child his or her gift as the youngster sat on Santa's knee.

(Personal note: I am not a very sensitive person, but what I saw at the Panhandle Children's Home left a deep impression on me that will last a lifetime.

It is a sight to see a little kid, especially one of the children at the home, open a present, a dream if you will, and play with it.

I would like to thank Mrs. Mary Lynn Case for allowing me to go to the party with her group, the Pampa News for letting me write this for them and you, for allowing me to share this special event with you.)

Man sentenced for Bush threats

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A man with a history of making threats against presidents and vice presidents has been sentenced to the maximum five years in prison for mailing a letter threatening Vice President George Bush last August.

The letter mailed on Aug. 24 also contained a threat against Mayor Henry Cisneros.

John Wesley DeShazo, 43, was sentenced on Thursday by U.S. District Judge Hippo Garcia. He earlier had pleaded guilty to the charge.

You Have "Nuclear Power"

AUSTIN — Nobody wants their community to become a nuclear waste dump. We are no exception.

As you know by now, the Department of Energy is considering putting a high-level nuclear waste dump in the Panhandle. It is by no means certain the dump will be located there, but it is possible.

You probably also know by now that this decision will be made entirely by the federal government, and that there is not much the state can do about it.

But there is something you can do about it. Texas is unique in that nearly all the land in the state is owned by the State itself or by private land owners. The federal government owns large tracts in nearly every other state, particularly in the West.

This means the federal government will have to deal with a private landowner to locate the waste dump.

If the government really wants to put the dump on someone's land, it can condemn the land, using its powers of eminent domain. This process, however, can be expensive and time-consuming.

Because the government now is in a hurry to dump the waste, we can stall them, possibly even stall them clear out of Texas, by refusing to lease to them.

Another tactic we could use is to write a deed restriction into our deeds before we sell property. We could insist the land never be used to store nuclear waste. This would not be binding against the federal government, but it would take a lawsuit to overturn the restriction. This would take time, and the federal government is in a hurry. We need for a good Panhandle lawyer to volunteer to show us how to put such a restriction in our deeds.

The last tactic we could use is simple protest. We need to write letters, to call and to send telegrams to the Department of Energy, telling them we do not want any part of their nuclear garbage.

Finally, there is a bill in Congress that would allow states to appeal to Congress to block establishment of these dump sites. It is S.R. 1660, also known as the National Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1981. It is in the U.S. Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen is a member of that committee. We urge all of you to write Sen. Bentsen and Sen. John Tower, at Russell Building, Washington, D.C., 20510. Also write the Department of Energy, Nuclear Waste Terminal Storage Office, 505 King Avenue, Columbus, Ohio 43201.

Nazi collaborator may have taken own life

CHICAGO (AP) — Albert Deutscher, an immigrant accused of taking part in the killing of Jews in World War II, was killed by a train just hours after the government sued to strip him of citizenship.

The authorities said they did not know whether to attribute the death of Deutscher, 61, to suicide. He died Friday in the Burlington Northern commuter railyard where he had worked as a trainman since coming to the United States in 1952.

The Justice Department suit alleged that on more than one occasion, Deutscher "participated in the shooting and killing of many hundreds of unarmed Jewish civilians, including women and children," and covered up his crimes in order to enter the United States.

Deutscher was the 24th person prosecuted by the Justice Department since it began looking for people living in the United States who were involved in the Holocaust.

Deutscher complained of feeling ill and asked to leave work early. He was struck by the train he would have caught for the trip home, railroad spokesman Jim Hagle said.

Hagle said the engineer, Charles McPeake, spotted Deutscher walking close to the track in the same direction as the train and sounded the whistle repeatedly, but Deutscher did not move. McPeake applied the emergency brakes but was unable to stop in time, Hagle said.

In a similar version of events, Detective Earl Thul of the Cicero police, said Deutscher was running down the center of the tracks when he was hit.

The complaint, filed in U.S. District Court here, said Deutscher was a native of Worms in the Soviet Ukraine, and the Nazis who captured the city in 1941 created a paramilitary organization called the Selbstschutz, which Deutscher joined.

In early 1942, the complaint alleged, the Nazis brought many Eastern European Jews to Odessa, took them north and "on more than one occasion during January and February 1942, the trains halted at or near Berezovka, a few kilometers west of Worms. The Jews were forcibly unloaded from the freight cars at that point and marched in columns toward the village of Worms."

There, they were slaughtered by the Selbstschutz, it said.

Reagan urged to veto home loan guarantees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fourteen Democratic senators urged President Reagan Saturday to veto what they called an effort to undermine the FHA and VA home loan guarantee programs.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, was joined by 13 colleagues in a letter to Reagan protesting Budget Director David Stockman's reported recommendation to phase out by 1987 the Government National Mortgage Association, better known as Ginnie Mae.

"It's worked for 45 years and now at a time when you have high interest rates, when millions of young Americans are having a very difficult time buying a home, to talk about doing away with it ... is just dumb. It's an outrage," Bentsen complained.

GNMA buys mortgages guaranteed by the Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans Administration.

Those two programs, "which operate at no cost to the taxpayer, have made home ownership possible for millions of Americans. It would be a national tragedy" to undermine them, the senators' letter said.

Senators co-signing the letter were John Melcher and Max Baucus of Montana, Howell Heflin of Alabama, Jennings Randolph of West Virginia, Sam Nunn of Georgia, Carl Levin of Michigan, Paul Sarbanes of Maryland, Quentin Burdick of North Dakota, Russell Long of Louisiana, Dale Bumpers of Arkansas, Lawton Chiles of Florida, Ernest Hollings of South Carolina and Paul Tsongas of Massachusetts.

Industry sources said Stockman wants to phase out GNMA's authority by reducing its credit ceiling by about $10 billion a year, starting with a $48 billion ceiling in fiscal 1983 and dropping to $38.4 billion in 1984.

The senators complained in their letter that Stockman's proposal would not reduce federal expenditures nor the federal deficit, but would "strike a fatal blow to the already tenuous position of our ailing housing industry ... and deny thousands of Americans the ability to own a home."

What's an average day worth?

On an average day you probably get out of bed, adjust the thermostat, make a pot of coffee, cook breakfast ... perhaps use the dishwasher.

Later, maybe you do a load of laundry and listen to the radio. Then you cook dinner and put the leftovers in the refrigerator. You may turn on the television or settle down in your favorite chair next to a lamp to read.

For all of you, all of this and more adds up to one day ... just 1/30th of your average monthly electric bill.

Knowing what electricity is worth is worth knowing.

Striking controllers sentenced

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Three former air traffic controllers will have to spend 90 days in prison for participating in an illegal strike against the government, a federal judge has ruled.

Gary Greene, Harry L. Grant and Ronald May were sentenced Friday to the maximum penalty of a year and a day in prison and fined $750 a piece on their felony convictions.

However, U.S. District Judge Eldon Mahon suspended all but 90 days of the jail terms and ordered the trio to serve 18 months probation after their release.

The three had refused an earlier plea bargain offer and opted to be tried on felony charges of striking against the U.S. government when 11,000 members of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization walked off the job in August.

Defense attorney G. William Baab said the three men would appeal their convictions.

Three other former controllers, Gary Laws, Sam Anselm and Charles Phillips, accepted the government's offer and pleaded guilty to lesser charges of criminal contempt of court. Mahon ordered each of them to pay a $750 fine.

About 50 people showed up at an earlier rally in support of the former controllers. The crowd later gathered in Mahon's courtroom to listen as the sentences were handed down.

Before adjourning the 1981 session last week, Congress finished work on five regular fiscal 1982 appropriations bills, the biggest one containing $199.7 billion for defense.

Veterans visit Hanoi for dialogue on issues

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Four American veterans of the Vietnam war have arrived in Hanoi to begin what they hope will be a "soldier-to-soldier" dialogue on such issues as the use of the defoliant Agent Orange and the fate of U.S. servicemen still listed as missing in action.

A Vietnamese Embassy spokesman here said the men — the first all-veterans group to visit Vietnam since the war — arrived in Hanoi Friday aboard an Air Vietnam flight from Bangkok.

Before leaving here, the vets said they still had not received an itinerary from Vietnamese authorities. It was also not certain whether they would return on Christmas Eve on a flight from Ho Chi Minh City, formerly Saigon, or from Hanoi on Christmas Day.

The leader of the group, Robert U. Muller, told reporters here that he is seeking information on the long-term effects of Agent Orange.

The defoliant was sprayed by U.S. forces across Indochina during the war and some veteran groups have been pressing the U.S.

government to recognize that exposure to the controversial chemical during the war damaged them physically and caused genetic damage among their children.

Muller, a 36-year-old former Marine lieutenant and the current executive director of Vietnam Veterans of America, was paralyzed from the waist down in 1969 when a bullet severed his spinal cord in a battle near Con Thien. He is confined to a wheelchair.

The group is also seeking information about some 2,500 U.S. servicemen unaccounted for in Vietnam and its two close Indochinese allies, Cambodia and Laos. Indochinese officials say there are no American servicemen left in captivity.

Hanoi has a unit that reportedly searches for the remains of American war dead.

Privately, some American diplomats say the group will be used for propaganda purposes, especially on the Agent Orange issue.

A team of Vietnamese physicians has been studying the effects of defoliants and the Hanoi government periodically denounces the United States for its use of chemical agents during the conflict.

Rare sea animals monitored at aquarium

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Steinhart Aquariums scientists are trying to make a home for two delicate new guests — chambered nautilus, among the rarest creatures in the sea.

The pair, a male and a female each about as broad as a salad plate, arrived in San Francisco last week, after being caught in deep, dim depths of the Western Pacific by nautilus specialist Leroy Headlee of the University of Idaho.

Tricked by faint overhead lights into believing they are still home 600 feet below the surface, the white and salmon-colored creatures bob about like huge swimming snails, propelled by jetted pulses of water from a bladder.

The nautilus, a descendant of mollusks that lived more than 600 million years ago, predated the appearance of bony fish in the oceans. It is best known for its beautiful spiraled shell with ever-smaller curving chambers.

It was the nautilus' trait of expanding its shell and abandoning its old chambers which inspired the poetry of Oliver Wendell Holmes, Sr.: "Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul, 'till thou at length art free, leaving thine outgrown shell by life's unresting sea."

Only five chambered species are known to exist today — relatives of at least 2,500 fossil species on record — and they're found only in the Western Pacific. Some cousins found in fossils had tapered shells up to eight feet long.

Five of the creatures are also on public display at the Waikiki Aquarium in Honolulu, which began displaying them in 1976. Bruce Carlson, curator of the Waikiki facility, said Saturday that several aquariums in the United States and Europe also have nautilus.

Elaborate precautions have been taken here to ensure the survival of the animals. Two previous chambered nautilus died at Steinhart in 1977 after only two months because the sea water balance was wrong.

"We thought we were exhibiting living chambered nautilus," said John McCosker, director of the aquarium in Golden Gate Park. "But they were dying chambered nautilus."

This time, critical water-quality standards are monitored by the minute.

The tentacled creatures live in the outer chambers of their shells. As they grow, they build larger chambers with body secretions and wall off the old chambers.

One of the researchers tending the new arrivals is Christine Slager, who showed how she feeds the nautilus fish heads from her hands.

The female, who looks the same as the male, took a few minutes to catch the scent of food, then bobbed over and took a nibble. So far, said Ms. Slager, she hasn't been bitten. But she conceded it could happen. The nautilus is equipped with a parrot-like beak.

"It just chews its way right through bones," she said.

Headlee said he caught his specimens in lobster traps suspended in water from 200 to 600 feet deep. Although the nautilus is a tropical animal, it prefers the cold protected waters far beneath the surface.

Farm trade with Iran picking up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although Iranian and U.S. diplomats continue to officially ignore each other, Iran is again becoming a lucrative market for American farmers, an Agriculture Department researcher says.

The estimated $300 million in commodity sales to Iran this year compares with about $8 million in 1980, said John B. Parker of the department's Economic Research Service.

But the projected 1981 sales are significantly below levels established before U.S. hostages were taken in Tehran two years ago.

Even though the Iranian government had begun to wind down purchases of U.S. food before Iranian militants took embassy personnel hostage Nov. 4, 1979, sales still totaled $415 million that year.

"They haven't returned fully to us as a supplier of anything but wheat," Parker said Thursday.

The U.S. hostages were released in January after more than 16 months of captivity. President Reagan told Congress last month: "It appears that full normalization of commercial and diplomatic relations between the United States and Iran will require more time."

His assessment was contained in a message informing Congress he was keeping in force a declaration of emergency issued by then-President Carter after the hostages were seized.

Parker said he expects U.S. wheat sales to Iran this year to be around 1 million metric tons or more, compared with 50,000 tons last year, 611,000 tons in 1979 and 1.2 million tons in 1978.

U.S. rice sales to Iran may total about 100,000 tons in 1981, Parker said. None was sold last year, but 285,500 tons went to Iran in 1979.

Wheat and rice make up about 80 percent of the food sales to Iran, with corn, sugar, corn oil and a small quantity of cheese making up most of the rest, he said.

Iran formerly was a significant buyer of U.S. soybean oil but turned to Brazil the past couple of years, Parker said.

Parker said Iran's food imports from all sources — the United States and other countries — "are really up in the air" and may reach a record $3.4 billion this year.

Iran does not have a large trade deficit because its total import bill for all items is "not much more than they're getting from petroleum," Parker said.

"The $3.4 billion for food items apparently is not as big a problem as people thought it was," he said. "Probably the logistics of paper work and banks is more of a problem than the money to pay for it."

4-H CLOTHING LEADERS WORKSHOP

There will be a 4-H Leader Workshop at the Texas 4-H Center, January 30-31, 1982. The workshop will cover fashion - fabric forecast for Spring '82, trends in needle arts for clothing and home accessory items, leader resources in clothing and needle arts, small workshop sessions to make clothing and home accessory items and 4-H clothing contest opportunity - revisions. This is a great opportunity for leaders interested in clothing. If you are interested in attending, call the Extension office, soon as possible at 669-7429.

WHAT'S UNIQUE ABOUT 4-H

What's so special about 4-H, a voluntary, educational program designed to meet the needs and interest of boys and girls?

4-H — which stands for Head, Heart, Hands and Health — is a unique youth organization for several reasons.

First, 4-H uses real life experiences to learn how to do jobs and make decisions that are important in life.

4-H is a family affair; there is a place for all members of the family to participate.

4-H is a flexible program that can be adapted to fit any individual, home or community; 4-H is working with others. Learning to stand up for what you believe in and learning to work with others are important to each person.

4-H provides for ownership by allowing members to grow, make, care for, buy and sell their projects.

4-H is based on science and fact. Resources of the Texas A & M University System, business, industry and your community are used in developing and carrying out projects and activities.

4-H is part of the community. 4-Hers learn how to be good citizens by carrying out community responsibilities.

4-H is "learning by doing." It's an active program. Other "unique" characteristics of 4-H are that it:

- is a part of a total national educational effort, built on a solid foundation of formal education.
- is voluntary.
- cultivates fields of interest outside the formal curriculum.

- is based on teamwork.
- is marked by leadership of a great cooperative effort. The Land-Grant university — U.S. Department of Agriculture system.

- involves lay leaders.
- shows that there is much to learn in everyday life experiences.

- practices parental cooperation.
- enjoys support and interest of many educators.

— is applauded by courts and others concerned with youth behavior, and — gets generous support from farm, business and civic leaders.

4-H also has these interesting qualities:

- 4-H does not require a facility — home, farm or neighborhood is the best place to hold 4-H meetings.
- 4-H does not require a uniform — costs are minimal.
- 4-H is based on fact and science — with resources of the land-grant colleges.

COTTON SEED FOR COWS

Both cow-calf producers and cotton farmers could benefit by doing some business with each other this year. Many cotton producers are receiving $80 - $90 per ton for their cottonseed which they sell to the gin during harvest to recover ginning costs. Cattlemen offering competitive bids to cotton farmers during cotton harvest would enable purchasing direct from the farmer.

Summer and fall rains over the area helped produce an abundance of forage on the native grass pastures for grazing this winter. Forage samples collected over the area show that most native grass ranges averaged 4 percent crude protein from October until April. This means that a spring calving cow would need 1.0 lbs. of crude protein above that furnished by the pasture for optimal performance.

Whole cottonseed is 23 percent crude protein and 84 percent T.D.N. (a measure of energy) which makes it 15 percent higher in crude protein and 30 - 50 percent higher in T.D.N. than typical 20 percent protein range cubes. The extra energy in whole cottonseed is particularly helpful in successfully breeding and wintering fall calving cows. A spring calving cow would need approximately 1.3 lbs. of whole cottonseed per day and a fall calving cow would need 4.3 lbs. per day to meet their protein requirements.

Shown below is information that compares protein and T.D.N. levels of typical protein supplements fed in the area. There will be some variance from these values depending upon the specific formulations used by individual feed manufacturing companies.

- Whole Cottonseed: 23 percent crude protein, 84 percent T.D.N.
- Cottonseed Meal: 41 percent crude protein, 69 percent T.D.N.
- 20 percent Natural Protein Cube: 20 percent crude protein, 63 percent T.D.N.
- 20 percent High Fiber Cube: 20 percent crude protein, 56 percent T.D.N.
- 32 percent Liquid Molasses-Based: 32 percent crude protein, 45 percent T.D.N.
- 30 percent Block: 30 percent crude protein, 52 percent T.D.N.
- Alfalfa Hay: 16 percent crude protein, 51 percent T.D.N.

If protein is the most critical factor in a winter feeding program, supplements should be compared based upon the cost per unit of crude protein.

With whole cottonseed priced at $85 per ton, the equivalent cost per ton of other feeds to equal this cost per unit of protein is as follows: Cotton meal, $151.54; 20 percent cube, $73.92; 32 percent liquid $118.27; 30 percent block, $110.88; and alfalfa hay, $59.15.

The absolute equivalent costs will depend upon the specific formulations of the supplements under consideration. The value of other nutrients contained in the supplements must also be considered such as vitamins, minerals, tract minerals, feed additives, etc. Other factors must be evaluated when considering cottonseed such as storage facilities since most cotton is harvested before winter feeding begins. The cottonseed stored in bulk will not handle as easily as supplemental feed purchased in sacks nor as conveniently as free choice liquid supplements.

WINTERIZE GARDEN SPRAY EQUIPMENT

Remember the difficulty you had deciding to purchase that $10 - 25 garden sprayer?

Well, suppose next spring you discovered this once good sprayer is clogged, corroded and in need of repair. Not only would you be disappointed, but meanwhile those garden insect pests would be that much farther ahead in doing their own thing.

You can avoid this careless and costly inconvenience by spending a little time now cleaning and inspecting your spray equipment before storing it this winter.

Clean equipment in good repair is also safe equipment. Clogged nozzle parts can result in uneven droplet sizes, causing poor coverage and possible plant damage. A damaged hose or other spray parts can also cause toxic chemicals to leak onto the operator's clothes and skin.

We offer these suggestions for cleaning spray equipment:

1. Drain all spray material from the sprayer tank and hose in a safe place where children, pets or livestock will not contact them. Dispose of pesticides according to the product label.
2. Fill the spray tank with clean water and add a liquid detergent soap. Flush this solution back through the pump, hose and nozzle in a safe area.
3. Fill the spray tank with a mixture of one-half cup ammonia to 3 gallons of water and let stand for 18 to 24 hours.

Desert plants are depicted on stamps

The U. S. Postal Service released earlier this month the block of four stamps featuring U. S. desert plants in Tucson, Arizona.

The stamps were scheduled to be released October 23, but were rescheduled because of the change in postage rates effective November 1. The denomination of the stamps is the new First-Class postage rate of 20 cents.

The first day of issue ceremony was held at 11 a.m. December 11 at the Arizona - Sonora Desert Museum. James C. Gildea, assistant postmaster general for labor relations, delivered the dedication address. Also speaking at the program was Virginia F. Martin, junior past president of the Cactus and Succulent Society of America.

The colorful block of four stamps depicts plants which grow in the America West. Featured are the Barrel Cactus, the Beavertail Cactus and the Saguaro, which are all in the cactus family, and the Agave, which is a succulent plant of the amaryllis family. Each of the plants shown has fleshy tissues designed to conserve moisture.

The block of four is composed of two horizontal designs and two vertical designs. The horizontal designs featuring the Agave and Beavertail cacti are in the center of the block of four, with the Agave appearing in the top design. The vertical design to the left depicts the Barrel Cactus and the one to the right shows the Saguaro. The Latin name of each plant is part of the design.

The stamps were designed by Frank J. Waslick of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, who also was the modeler. Waslick designed the block of four Owl Stamps issued in 1978 and the full-color Tourism Aerogramme issued September 21 of this year.

The engravers were Joseph S. Creamer, Jr. (plant vignettes) and Robert G. Culin, Sr. (lettering and numerals).

The stamps are being printed by the offset-intaglio method. There will be 40 stamps per pane with five complete blocks of four stamps on each side of the pane for a total of 10 complete blocks.

A six-digit plate number will correspond to the offset colors — yellow, red, blue, green and two browns. A three-digit plate number will correspond to the intaglio colors — brown, blue, and green.

The image area size of a single stamp is 0.84 x 1.83 inches or 21.33 x 46.48 millimeters. The overall size of single stamp, from perforated side to perforated side to perforated side, is 1.98 x 3.96 inches.

CUSTOMERS AFFIXING STAMPS. Customers are encouraged to purchase their own stamps and prepare their own covers. Covers bearing customer-affixed stamps will be given preferential service. All envelopes must be addressed, and peelable return address labels are recommended for this purpose. Stamps must be affixed in the upper right corner of the envelope approximately one-quarter inch from the top and one-quarter inch from the right edge. Return addresses should be placed on the right side of the envelope at least 3/16 of an inch from the bottom. A filler of postal card thickness should be inserted in each cover. Not later than January 10 — orders must be postmarked by that date — the envelopes may be forwarded to: "Customer-Affixed Envelopes, Postmaster, Tucson, AZ 85726-9991." No remittance is required.

POSTAL SERVICE AFFIXING STAMPS: Expect for affixing stamps and addressing orders, follow the procedures listed above. Orders must state which stamps are to be affixed.

Roberts poster popular

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A poster poking some irreverent fun at evangelist Oral Roberts is becoming popular with help from an unlikely salesman — a minister at a Tulsa church.

The 18-by-30-inch photo montage shows Roberts' City of Faith complex beside a highway. Prominent in the foreground is a road sign advising: "Begin 900-foot Jesus Crossing."

Roberts drew national attention and criticism from some religious leaders after he wrote that he had a vision of a 900-foot Jesus standing beside the City of Faith.

The three-tower hospital complex includes a 60-story building.

The Rev. William Gold, minister of Hope Unitarian Church, said he saw the poster and asked for a copy. Instead, he received 15 with a price tag of $4 each. He said he added $2 profit and the posters still sold out.

He stacked 25 more on his desk and most of them are gone. "I don't know how the word gets around," Gold said. "I haven't even mentioned this outside the church, but I have only five left of the 40."

Oil, gas boosts local economy by $141 million

DALLAS — The sale of crude oil and natural gas from Gray County wells in 1980 boosted the county economy and accounted for $141.4 million of the $31.2 billion value added on Texas production last year.

In a report on the economic impact of oil and gas industry operations in the top producing counties of Texas, Dallas-based Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association said Gray County ranked 57th among Texas' 254 counties on the basis of the value of its marketed petroleum production. This includes condensate and casinghead gas.

The county's wells produced 4 million barrels of crude oil, valued at $86.5 million and 36.9 million MCFs of natural gas, valued at $54.9 million. Owners of the royalty in Gray County received $17.7 million as their share of the output, the Association said.

"Although crude oil and natural gas production in Texas declined slightly last year from 1979 levels, we in the industry are encouraged by the fact that drilling starts in 1980 were up 16 percent over the previous year," said the Association's chairman, Jerry Rush Jr. of Amarillo. "Since petroleum remains the cornerstone of our state's economy and its tax base, Texas must continue to encourage the development of its energy resources."

In addition to paying local, county and state property taxes, producers in the county also supported state government through production tax payments estimated at $8.1 million, according to the Association. Crude oil taxes amounted to $4 million while natural gas levies totalled $4.1 million.

Based on Texas Employment Commission figures, some 1,454 oil and gas industry employees in the county received wages of about $29.5 million in 1980.

In the search for new petroleum reserves in the county, oil and gas operators spent a reported $28.5 million in the drilling of 68 wells, including two wildcat, or exploratory, wells. This effort resulted in the completion of 35 oil wells and 22 gas wells, although some $4.9 million was lost in the drilling of 11 dry holes. As of March 1, 1981, there were 4,153 producing wells in the county, 3,255 oil and 898 gas.

Petroleum processing also contributed to the county economy, with six natural gasoline plants, having a total daily capacity of 226.6 million cubic feet of natural gas; one carbon black plant, and one petrochemical plant in operation.

Energas announces four promotions

AMARILLO — Four officials of Energas Company will assume new posts with the natural gas utility company on Jan. 1.

Jim Enloe, who is now interim manager of the Amarillo district of Energas, will be promoted to general superintendent of service for the entire company.

Dale Young, formerly Odessa district manager, will become Amarillo district manager.

B. J. Hackler will succeed Young as Odessa district manager. Hackler has been assistant manager of the Lubbock district. Dillon Patterson, previously manager of the Energas office in Slaton, will become Lubbock assistant district manager.

The promotions were announced by Charles K. Vaughan, president of Energas.

Enloe joined the company in 1963 in Pampa. He became assistant manager of the Amarillo district in 1974 and was appointed interim district manager in Amarillo in June of this year.

He is a native of Pampa and attended Frank Phillips College and Texas A & M University. Enloe is a member of the Texas Gas Association and is active in the Amarillo Downtown Lions Club and Amarillo Chamber of Commerce.

Young has been Odessa district manager since 1974. An employee of the gas company since 1955, he previously was assigned to Hereford, as district engineer and later as district manager there. He holds an engineering degree from Texas Tech and is a registered professional engineer.

In Odessa, Young has been a director of the Chamber of Commerce, vice president of the Odessa Symphony, an elder in the Church of Christ, and a member of the Rotary Club. He also serves as a director of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Hackler joined the company in 1966 and held several positions in Lubbock before becoming regional sales manager in Amarillo in 1973. He returned to Lubbock in 1975 as assistant to the vice president and became assistant district manager in Lubbock in 1978.

Hackler has been a director of the Downtown Kiwanis Club and Big Brothers - Big Sisters in Lubbock and chairman of the Heart Fund. He also has been active in the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, Jaycees and Downtown Kiwanis Club.

Start-up of second richest field celebrated

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — First there was Prudhoe Bay. Now Kuparuk. Atlantic Richfield added to the lexicon of the oil industry Wednesday by officially celebrating start-up of what is destined to be the second-most productive oil field in the United States.

Although Kuparuk is not quite as large as the neighboring Prudhoe field about 40 miles to the east, it still ranks among the 10 largest in American history. ARCO President William Kieschnick said.

When the field hits full production in 1986, it will turn out 250,000 barrels a day, second only to Prudhoe's daily output of 1.5 million barrels.

"This is an indication the North Slope is not one-field fluke," Kieschnick told reporters in a three-way teleconference conducted in Anchorage, Los Angeles and Dallas. "This is a very good news day."

The field currently is pumping 50,000 barrels a day of oil into the trans-Alaska pipeline, and production is expected to reach 100,000 barrels a day within six months.

ARCO Alaska President Paul Norgaard said the additional oil will cause no problems with the pipeline which already has been tested at 1.8 million barrels a day. It currently carries 1.5 million barrels a day.

The design capacity of the 800-mile line from the North Slope to the marine terminal at Valdez is 2 million barrels a day, but some additional work would have to be done for it to carry the full amount, he said.

ARCO officials said they were pleased to get the field into production Monday, more than three months ahead of schedule.

"This is the toughest time of year to start up an oil field," Norgaard said, pointing out that it was 24 degrees below zero at Kuparuk (pronounced ku-PAR-uk) at the time of the news conference.

Although the oil temperature at the bottom of the Kuparuk reservoir is about 140 degrees, it had cooled to 7 degrees below zero by the time it was brought out of the ground and into the processing facility, Norgaard said.

The oil is pumped through a 16-inch pipeline to Pump Station 1 at Prudhoe Bay, about 40 miles east of Kuparuk.

ARCO is the principal owner of the field with about 57 percent and will be the operator even after the field is fully unitized. The other owners include BP Alaska Exploration, Inc. (27 percent), Sohio (9 percent) and Union Oil (4 percent).

Mobil, Phillips, Chevron and Exxon share the other 3 percent.

Kieschnick said the oil companies already have spent $500 million developing the field and but the time it reaches full production the total investment will be $8 billion.

The field now consists of 40 wells, clustered on five gravel drilling pads. Norgaard said 24 of the wells are in production and the rest will be brought on line in the coming months.

Oil, gas boosts local economy by $141 million

DALLAS (AP) — The United States could be 90 percent energy self-sufficient by 1995 if the oil and gas industry were not fettered by politics and public misconceptions, a Houston oilman says.

Domestic oil and gas supplies are not, as the public believes, disappearing rapidly and the nation does not have to depend on Arab-state oil cartels for its supplies, George

P. Mitchell, president of a large independent oil company, said Wednesday.

"That myth must be laid to rest," said Mitchell. "The truth is that this country ... is capable of becoming 85 to 90 percent energy self-sufficient over the next 10 to 15 years and of breaking OPEC's (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) back in the process."

No stake for Billy Clayton

Editor's Note: In a single decade, one Texas House speaker was slain and another convicted of a crime. A third abandoned public office under the shadow of a stock scandal. Now comes Billy Clayton, serving an unprecedented fourth term as speaker. He is a survivor. Just ask the federal prosecutor who pledged to drive a stake through Clayton's heart.

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — He's kinda short and stocky, one of those twice-born Baptists who is more at ease with King James than King's English.

"Polyester Chester" laughed his staff, blinking at his noisy wardrobe. He never met a gadget he didn't like, or buy, and he prowls the Texas capital in a 1967 Chevy with a bumper sticker that says, "I'm proud to be an American."

Though a Democrat, and righteously conservative, Billy Wayne Clayton is hardly your typical Texas millionaire.

He's pleasant and friendly and loves his wife and children and Willie and Waylon and dirt farming and his fellow church deacons and cowboy boots.

He looks like a South Plains farmer, which he is. Springlake. Corn and cotton.

Strangers rarely associate him with the state's third most powerful office, that being speaker of the Texas House of Representatives.

And it's difficult to believe he's the "pork barrel king of the state," as one colleague insists.

But it's even harder to understand why a federal prosecutor would want to "drive a stake through the heart" of such a good ole boy.

At 53, Billy Clayton is in the twilight phase of a legislative career spanning two decades, a time in which not only Texas but all America changed.

Drastically. Since 1975, he has served an unprecedented four terms as house speaker, a position of awesome power and equally awesome opportunity for abuse.

When he voluntarily steps down, to run for land commissioner, he will leave a legacy that some colleagues insist is as remarkable as it is astounding.

They talk of decorum, fiscal responsibility, fairness, integrity and the ability to deal even-handedly with friend or foe.

"Billy Clayton is probably the most sincere, dedicated person I've ever served with," said Lewis, the odds-on favorite to succeed Clayton as speaker.

"He's a straight-shooter. Anybody in politics is going to make enemies. But even his enemies will tell you he's fair."

Well, maybe not all... For instance, there's Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, who maintains Clayton is an irresponsible "handmaiden of the lobby in Austin."

Bryant contends Clayton is a Republican masquerading as a Democrat and a "special interest tool" to boot.

If the Brilab episode didn't end Clayton's political career, it should have, said Bryant. No matter that a Houston jury acquitted the speaker on charges basically of accepting a bribe.

"Anyone who would take $5,000 in the speaker's office and keep it in his desk for several months and then claim that he'd forgotten about it..." said Bryant. "I think has disqualified himself as a candidate for any public office."

Some dismiss Bryant as a disgruntled demigod. The more charitable, such as Rep. Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, say that Bryant "just marches to a different drummer than some of us."

"Minorities came into the Legislature and he made them part of the legislative process," Lewis added. "He didn't just let them sit out there... For the first time, he put minority members in positions of leadership."

Said one Capitol figure who likes Clayton but dislikes his politics: "He was real good about being non-partisan, and thus blunted any coalition of representatives against him."

Rusty Kelley, Clayton's former administrative assistant, would never be accused of being unbiased about his ex-boss. He admires him mightily.

"To be so simplistic, he's also very complex," said Kelley. "He doesn't appear to be a deep thinker, but he is really very smart."

Kelley added that Clayton "changed the office of house speaker, but the office didn't change him..."

One recent evening, Clayton appeared at a popular Austin nightspot called The Quorum, where he autographed copies of his new biography, "Gavels, Grit & Glory."

Television cameras recorded his fashionably late arrival and scores of friends eagerly paid $15.95 for the book by Austin writer Jimmy Banks.

The book, absorbing if not dramatically revealing, chronicles Clayton's political career from Lyndon Johnson's presidential campaign on to Austin, Brilab and the fourth and final term as house speaker.

Banks describes Clayton as a "fascinating individual" who cooperated in the author's effort "to paint a true picture of a man who has made a tremendous impact on Texas history."

Without reading the book, Bryant labeled it a "campaign piece" and described the author as an "old lobby hack from way back."

Banks, once a Capitol correspondent and now a public relations executive, devotes much of his book to the 1980 Brilab fiasco.

He quotes defense lawyer Roy Minton as saying Clayton was chosen by the FBI for the bribery-labor sting operation not because of any wrongdoing but because he was a "glamorous" target.

Minton said the FBI had no evidence to indicate Clayton might be "susceptible to bribes."

The lawyer said Clayton once was convinced that a "political enemy" was somehow involved in the case.

"We did all we could to follow through on that possibility," Minton said.

"But what Billy doesn't understand is that if the FBI can find a glamorous target, those young studs they have as agents just think it's great."

"They will step over 30 common criminals who are stealing, raping and plundering to get one politician, one high-level businessman, one newspaperman, one lawyer — anything like that..."

"And when Clayton's name came up, they thought there was nothing that would be greater in the world than to put a case on the Speaker of the House of Representatives."

Neither Banks nor Minton offers any hard evidence to support this theory, but Clayton appears to now concur.

"There would never have been a Brilab, so far as Bill Clayton was concerned, if I hadn't been speaker of the Texas House," Clayton told a recent visitor to his Capitol office.

"If I had just been a member of the House, it never would have happened."

Clayton said his "trust and friendship with individuals caused that trouble," presumably referring to labor leader L.G. Moore who produced the $5,000 in question.

Clayton acknowledged he should have acted quickly to return the "campaign contribution" instead of letting it languish unreported in a desk drawer.

"But I never in my own conscience and mind perceived that I'd done anything wrong," he said. "I don't believe I did today, and the jury thought the same thing."

Banks' book sheds new light on the oft-quoted, or perhaps misquoted, comment by then U.S. Attorney Tony Canales before the Brilab trial.

"I'm going to drive a stake through the heart of Billy Clayton," Canales reportedly said.

"That was a favorite quote of lawyers and it was taken out of context," Canales now says. "I was asked if I intended to really go after the speaker, and I said, 'Look, we don't indict for funnies.'"

Pampa wins pair from Portales, Borger

PORTALES N.M.—Pampa put the loose around Portales' neck early and choked the inexperienced Rams, 63-38, Saturday night in the first of a series of road games.

The Harvesters were never in trouble as coach Garland Nichols shuffled his players in and out throughout the game.

Pampa had built up a 9-point bulge, 32-13, by halftime.

Mike Nelson, a 6-3 junior, and Terry Faggins, a 6-4 senior, led the Pampa assault with 18 and 16 points respectively. Coyle Winborn tossed in 10 followed by Charles Nelson, nine. Randy Skaggs, four. Jimmy Barker, Terry Ferguson and Phil Jeffrey, two points apiece.

The Harvesters boosted their record to 8-2 for the season.

Mike Nelson scored 11 of his 22 points in the fourth quarter as Pampa came from behind to whip Borger, 70-59, Friday night in Harvester Fieldhouse.

Borger taking advantage of sluggish play by the Harvesters and the absence of Nelson, who had to have stitches taken in his mouth when he caught an elbow in the second half, had led by much as eight points late in the third quarter.

Nelson's return late in the third quarter gave a lift to the Harvesters, who had cut the lead to five, 48-43, going into the final eight minutes.

Nelson's 3-point play with 6:55 to go gave the Harvesters a 50-48 lead they never relinquished.

The score was tied seven times in the first quarter and the lead switched back and forth four times in the second quarter with Pampa holding a one-point lead, 30-29, at halftime.

Faggins added 20 points to the scoring attack while Charles Nelson had 10. Jeffrey chipped in seven points while Dowdy and Winborn added six and five points respectively.

Scott Hunt paced Borger with 25 points. Stanley Davis and Terrance Sheppard had 12 and 11 points respectively.

The Harvesters' next game at home won't be until Jan. 12 when Altus, Okla. comes to Harvester Fieldhouse.

Pampa visits Carlsbad, N.M. Monday night and then enter the Borger Tournament Dec. 29-31.

Borger downed Pampa, 59-48, in the junior varsity game Friday night.

Pampa led 9-8 when the first quarter ended, but fell behind 27-20 at halftime.

Craig Chapin led Pampa in scoring with 14 points. David McQueen added 10 points.

Apple was Borger's top scorer with 15 points.

Pampa JVs are now 8-3 on the season.

Austin moves into finals

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Tracy Austin trounced second-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd 6-1, 6-2 Saturday night to advance into the finals of the $250,000 Toyota Tennis Championships.

The victory, Austin's ninth in 16 career meetings with Lloyd, was even sweeter since it came only two days after she had dropped a 3-hour, 18-minute three-set match to Lloyd.

Austin, who captured her second U.S. Open singles title in September, will meet the winner of Saturday night's other semifinal between top-seeded Martina Navratilova and Pam Shriver in Sunday's final.

The winner of this eight-woman double-elimination tournament receives $75,000, while the runner-up gets $40,000.

Lloyd won the opening game, breaking Austin at love. But the reigning Wimbledon champion could win only 10 more points in the first set, as Austin dominated her older rival.

Playoff outlook

By The Associated Press
The possibilities for filling the remaining National Football League playoff spots are as follows:

AMERICAN CONFERENCE
East
Miami has clinched the title. Buffalo has clinched a wild card spot. New York Jets can clinch a wild card with a victory over Green Bay Sunday. If the Jets lose, they can only get the wild card if San Diego loses to Oakland Monday night.

Central
Cincinnati has clinched the title. All other division teams have been eliminated from wild-card contention.

West
Denver wins the division title with a victory over Chicago Sunday or a loss by San Diego to Oakland. If San Diego wins and Denver loses to Chicago, both finish at 10-6. The Chargers win the division title on the basis of a better record within the division, 6-2 to the Broncos' 5-3 loss. The Chargers can only gain the wild card if they beat Oakland and the Jets lose.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE
East
Dallas has clinched division title Philadelphia has clinched either the first or second wild card. If the Eagles beat St. Louis on Sunday they would be the first wild card at 10-6. If the Eagles lose and the New York Giants and Green Bay also finish 9-7, the Giants would qualify first on the basis of better conference record, 7-6 vs. 7-7 for Green Bay and 6-6 for Philadelphia. The Eagles would be the second wild card on the basis of a better record against common opponents (4-2 vs. 4-4). If the Eagles lose to the Giants and Green Bay are the only teams to finish 9-7, the Eagles get the first wild card and Green Bay gets the second for beating the Giants twice.

Central
The winner of Sunday's Tampa Bay-Detroit game wins the conference title at 9-7. If Green Bay finishes 9-7 and Tampa Bay finishes 8-8, Detroit also finishes 9-7. Tampa Bay is the division winner for having beaten the Packers twice. If Green Bay finishes 9-7 and Detroit beats Tampa Bay, Detroit advances on the basis of a better division record than Green Bay (5-3 vs. 4-4). Green Bay can win the division title only by beating the Jets and having Tampa Bay and Detroit tie. Green Bay wins the wild card with a win over the Jets. The Tampa Bay-Detroit loss can win the wild card only if Green Bay loses.

West
San Francisco has clinched the division title. All other teams have been eliminated from wild-card contention.

Toledo wins bowl game

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Toledo's Tony Lee kicked a 41-yard field goal with 19 seconds left, giving the Rockets a 27-25 victory over San Jose State in the first California Bowl college football game.

The game-winning kick came just half a minute after the San Jose Spartans, who trailed 21-3 in the third period, went ahead on a touchdown pass and two-point conversion.

The Spartans, champions of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, got a 467-yard passing performance from quarterback Steve Clarkson, who hit sophomore wide receiver Mervyn Fernandez for three touchdown passes.

Fitness First!

By Tim Gaughy
Pampa Youth Center Director
Strive For Fitness

One problem that all people face is self-acceptance. Realizing that the body has limitations as well as areas of excellence is a lifetime task. Too often, an individual in some level of development meets a competitor who is more gifted in another area. That area receives attention from peers, teachers, or significant others, reinforcing the misconceptioned idea, "I need to be the best." What should be emphasized is, "I'm striving to be the best I can be" in the areas of fitness, regardless of what other's abilities may be. We are all individuals with different capabilities.

The value of regular exercise, daily stretching, and sensible eating cannot be overstressed. Enthusiasm for movement and health should be intense enough to last a lifetime.

Center Memberships
The Center offers memberships for several levels of participation. The Youth Center membership includes the swimming pool, recreation hall (pool, ping pong, video and table games), and gymnasium. Jogging includes use of the track from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. in addition to the regular Youth Center privileges. A tennis membership includes use of the tennis courts, jogging track, and the Youth Center. The most popular membership is for the Fitness Center which includes racquetball, weight lifting, sauna, whirlpool, jogging track, and the Youth Center. The Unlimited Combination membership includes the use of all of the activities at the Pampa Youth and Community Center. All memberships are available for the individual, husband and wife, or family.

Ideal Christmas Gift
Don't panic for an ideal Christmas gift this year. Come by the Center and check out the facilities and prices. Don't let loved ones get fat this winter, get them a membership to the Center so they can get fit with a gift that continues to give through the year.

The Pampa Youth and Community Center is located at 1005 West Harvester, just north of the Coronado Shopping Center. Coming Jan. 1, the Thousand Mile Runners Club. Watch for it.

KELLYE RICHARDSON of Pampa heads the scoring attack for the Amarillo College Lady Badgers this season. Richardson, a 5-10 sophomore, leads AC in both scoring (17.6 ppg) and free throw percentage (.729) through 12 games.

Richardson in starring role for Lady Badgers

AMARILLO—It's a long jump shot from high school to college basketball, but Pampa's Kellye Richardson made it look as simple as an uncontested layup.

Richardson, now in her second season at Amarillo College, leads the team in scoring after 13 games with a 17.6 points per game average. She also leads the Lady Badgers in free-throw percentage (.729) by hitting 35 of 48 charity tosses.

Richardson, the team co-captain and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Richardson, made a spectacular debut as a freshman.

In a starter-sixth player role, Richardson scored 358 points, had 89 steals and handed out 88 assists. She was named to the All-Tournament Regional Team at Brownwood and the honorable mention All-Tournament National Team at Kansas City.

Needless to say, the 5-10 guard was instrumental in the Lady Badgers' 32-7 record and a seventh-place finish in the nationals last year.

Richardson, a third-team, all-state pick at Pampa High her senior year, has earned a No. 1 fan in AC coach Kelly Chadwick.

"I think it is possible that Kellye could be an All-American this year," he said. "She is one of the quickest girls you will ever see play the game. She's a great shooter and a great assist player."

Yet, in spite of how complete Richardson is already, Chadwick feels all that may be showing now is the tip of the iceberg. He thinks she's one of the most natural athletes he's ever coached, and her potential is limitless.

"I think Kellye is still going through a lot of learning stages on the floor," said Chadwick. "She has not reached her potential. Her attitude has improved so much. She's a tremendous person with a lot of class."

"And, I feel she is the type of gal who'll keep improving because she's so talented. I think she could play for most any major college in the country. I know if I were coaching a major school, I'd be recruiting her very hard because she's 5-10 and can play the point."

Richardson is well on the way to fulfilling goals she has set for herself this season.

"My goal is to be a good team leader," she said. "To keep enthusiasm going. As for myself, I'd like to make all-conference and to win the conference, regionals, and do the best we can in the nationals."

She also knows she's in good hands with a proven winner like Chadwick.

"Coach Chadwick is a perfectionist and he expects perfection out of his players," she said. "He is a great coach and he knows what he is doing. He will always be a winner because he believes in himself. He is a tough coach and he works very hard. In the end, it pays off."

"I have learned a lot from him. And I know that anyone who has been, or will be, coached by him will be pleased when they leave. All he wants is for you to give the best you have and he will be pleased with you."

Amarillo College is currently on top of the Western Junior College League standings with a 2-0 mark. Overall, the Lady Badgers are 9-4.

"I believe we can win the conference, but we are going to have to work hard for that goal," Miss Richardson says. "Everyone is going to have to want to win, but I think we have a great team with super attitudes."

With her all-around play, Miss Richardson is helping the Lady Badgers make a steady march toward that goal.

Braxton wins WBC light heavyweight title with KO

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Challenger Dwight Braxton pounded Matthew Saad Muhammad with a brutal right jab and took away his World Boxing Council light heavyweight title with a 10th-round knockout Saturday.

Braxton, of Camden, N.J., a boxing unknown until recently, overwhelmed the champion in his ninth title defense by punishing Muhammad inside throughout most of their scheduled 15-round fight.

Brown steps down as Sam Houston coach

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — After four years as head football coach of Sam Houston State University, Melvin Brown announced Saturday he would step aside to seek the head mentor's job at another university.

Brown said he had not yet found another coaching job. "I've been here for four years," Brown said. "Things didn't work out the way I had hoped. I've just decided it would be the best move for Sam Houston and me."

Brown led the Bearcats to a 6-5 record his first season and was named Lone Star Conference Coach of the Year. His resignation comes after Sam Houston won only two games in 1981.

Dr. Elliott T. Bowers, Sam Houston president, said Brown would be assigned other duties for the spring semester while the search is launched for a new coach.

Brown, 48, played football at the University of Oklahoma and was head football coach at Southeastern Oklahoma State University from 1956-62.

Before coming to Sam Houston, he was an assistant coach at the University of Houston.

Cedeno traded to Reds

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros veteran centerfielder-first baseman Cesar Cedeno was traded to the Cincinnati Reds Friday in a straight player deal for third baseman Ray Knight. Astros officials announced.

Cedeno, who played first base for the Astros last season — after starring for 11 seasons in centerfield — will take a 12-year, $2.8 million contract from the Reds.

Knight, a member of the 1980 National League All-Star team, hit .259 last season. Knight had his best season in 1979 when he hit .318 and finished third among National League hitters.

Astros officials said their current plan is to shift Astros third baseman Art Howe to first base and install Knight at third for the Astros.

Contract terms were not announced.

Baylor blasts Southwest Okla.

WACO, Texas (AP) — Terry Teagle scored 28 points and teammates Joe Copeland and Jay Shakir added 13 each to led Baylor to an 88-65 win over Southwest Oklahoma in a non-conference basketball game Saturday.

Baylor grabbed an early 13-6 lead behind the shooting of Tommy Temaai, who scored 11 of the Bear's first 15 points. Shakir also hit all of his 13 points in the first half.

The Bulldogs closed the gap to 34-28 with four minutes left in the first half, but an offensive burst by Baylor gave the Bears a 42-29 halftime lead.

Teagle hit 18 of his 28 points in the second half as the Bears rolled to an easy win.

Arnold Madison and Roderick Walker each scored 12 points to pace the Bulldogs.

The win ran Baylor's record to 5-2. The Bulldogs dropped to 6-6.

Dolphins roll past Buffalo to capture AFC East championship

MIAMI (AP) — Quarterback David Woodley fired one touchdown pass and Uwe von Schamann kicked three field goals Saturday as the Miami Dolphins defeated the Buffalo Bills 16-6 to give Coach Don Shula his sixth undisputed American Football Conference Eastern Division title in 12 years.

The triumph boosted Miami's National Football League record to 11-4-1 and gave the Dolphins the home-field advantage for their opening playoff game Jan. 2 or 3. Buffalo, 10-6, will move into postseason play as one of two AFC wild-card teams which will meet Dec. 27.

Woodley tossed a 7-yard touchdown pass to rookie running back Tommy Vigorito with 7:22 left in the first quarter and set up field goals of 22 and 30 yards with pinpoint passing to reserve tight ends Joe Rose and Bruce Hardy.

Von Schamann's 22-yarder with six minutes remaining in the second period gave Miami a 10-0 advantage, but the Bills sliced their halftime deficit to 10-3 on Nick Mike-Mayer's 31-yard field goal with 1:01 left in the half.

Woodley, who completed 10 of 21 passes for 137 yards, directed a 13-play, 67-yard drive which led to von Schamann's second field goal midway through the third period. Key plays in the drive were passes of 20 yards to Rose and 21 to Hardy and a 14-yard halfback pass from Eddie Hill to Hardy.

Buffalo cornerback Mario Clark recovered a fumble by Woodley at the Miami 48 to set up a 36-yard field goal by Mike-Mayer which trimmed the Dolphins' lead to 13-6 with 9:09 remaining.

Von Schamann's 36-yard field goal with 2:15 to play sealed the Dolphins' 15th straight victory at home against the Bills.

How the 49ers staged their gold rush

By Murray Olderman

SAN FRANCISCO (NEA) — The startling resurgence of the San Francisco 49ers, the first team in the National Football League to clinch a division title this season, started with Bill Walsh, who did not get a pro head coaching job until he was 47 years old.

That is one year older than Vince Lombardi was when he began his hallowed revival of the Green Bay Packers.

In his third year, Walsh — lean, white-haired, strong-jawed — has brought the 49ers to the playoffs for the first time since 1972.

Considering what he had to work with, it's truly a remarkable feat.

The starting defensive backfield is composed of three rookies and a free agent who was operating a health food store two autumns ago. (Ronnie Lott, a cornerback who's a strong contender for rookie of the year in the NFL, was a safety in college.)

Only one of their contingent of seven running backs had even a chance to gain 500 yards this season, and he (Ricky Patton) plays sparingly. And their best ball carrier, Paul Hofer, can't work all week because of an excruciatingly painful knee that hasn't fully mended from surgery. There's no cartilage between the femur and the tibia in his right leg, and every time he cuts, it's bone rubbing against bone.

Their star receivers are a former college quarterback, Freddie Solomon, who had suspect hands, and a 10th round draft choice, Dwight Clark, who was considered too slow for the pros.

This is the first season that Joe Montana, the quarterback, has opened as the starter.

So Walsh, who is eloquent and has a professorial mien as well as a sly sense of humor, tends to generalizations — maybe even platitudes — when he tries to analyze what brought the 49ers from a 6-10 record last year (preceded by 2-14 in 1979) to their current high estate.

"It has all fit together very nicely," he reflects. "The chemistry on this team is excellent. We're not lucky. We haven't been lucky. This is not a Cinderella team, it's an opportunistic and resourceful team. They have confidence in themselves under stress. The resourcefulness emanates from Dwight Hicks, the free-agent safety. The opportunism stems from Joe Montana. They're the catalysts for what we've accomplished."

"The 49ers are not lucky. You can call us resourceful and opportunistic however..."

"We don't have a dominating team. I don't think there are any — but we don't stand in awe of any one..."

"I'M SECOND YOUR MOTIONS COACH"

"The chemistry of our team is excellent. The players now have confidence in themselves under stress. We are not at all Cinderellas!"

"Look, according to pro measuring standards, we're not as good as the Los Angeles Rams. The pro scouts wouldn't rank us among the top three or four teams. We don't have an Art Shell (the All-Pro veteran with Oakland across the Bay) on this ball club, but we play up to our potential."

"And we do have a formula. It consists of three parts: One, the mesh of players and coaches. Two, an excellent coaching staff. Three, the fact I am general manager as well as coach and thus am able to make decisions."

Walsh made his football reputation as a tactician when he spent eight years as the offensive coordinator of the Cincinnati Bengals — developing Ken Anderson, their current field leader who has emerged as a leading candidate for NEA's Jim Thorpe Trophy as the top player in the NFL this year. Walsh did the same polishing job on Dan Fouts in two years as the offensive boss of the San Diego Chargers. He proved his organizational ability when he moved back to college ball as the head man at Stanford in 1977. He produced two bowl teams in two years. His touch with quarterbacks was evident there, too, for two of them have graduated to the NFL — Steve Dils at Minnesota and Guy Benjamin, reunited with Walsh as the 49ers' back-up to Montana.

Good fortune — Walsh doesn't like the word luck — was also a factor in putting together this year's team. The 49ers signed Jack "Hackshaw" Reynolds, a 34-year-old free agent who had become unhappy with the Rams after 11 solid seasons. He has been marvelously effective as a middle linebacker and a terrific team leader. Fred Dean was unhappy early this fall with the San Diego Chargers. So, the 49ers effected a trade that immediately boosted their pass rush.

In Walsh's first year, the 49ers averaged 360 yards a game on offense and won only two games. This season, they have averaged 345 yards a game on offense

Cowboys lose to Giants in overtime

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Joe Danelo, who had missed three routine field goals including one earlier in overtime, kicked a 35-yarder with 6:19 gone in the extra period to give the New York Giants a 13-10 victory over the Dallas Cowboys Saturday.

The victory brightened the Giants' hopes for their first playoff berth since 1963, and wiped out Dallas' hopes of finishing the regular season with the best record in the National Conference.

Danelo tied it at 10-10 with a 40-yard field goal into the wind with just 25 seconds remaining in regulation play after the Giants had relinquished an early 7-0 lead.

He had missed chip shots from 21 and 27 yards in the first period. And when rookie linebacker Lawrence Taylor recovered a Tony Dorsett fumble in the opening minutes of overtime, Danelo blew that chance, too, his 33-yard attempt striking the right upright and bouncing back 3-36 into overtime.

Three plays later, another rookie linebacker, Byron Hunt, intercepted a Danny White pass intended for Drew Pearson and returned it 7 yards to the Dallas 25.

An 8-yard pass from Scott Brunner to rookie wide receiver John Mistleter on third-and-11 put the ball on the Dallas 18-yard line. And Danelo came through.

The Giants, 9-7, will clinch the remaining NFC wild-card playoff berth if Green Bay loses Sunday to the New York Jets. If the Packers win, the Giants still can make the playoffs if Philadelphia, the NFC's other wild-card team, loses Sunday to Cincinnati.

The Cowboys finished the regular season at 12-4, automatically giving San Francisco the home field for all NFC playoff games. The 49ers, 12-3 heading into New Orleans Sunday, beat Dallas 45-14 on Oct. 11.

Rafael Septien had given the Cowboys a 10-7 lead with a 36-yard field goal with 9:13 remaining in the fourth quarter.

The Cowboys were throttled through virtually all of the first three quarters. But on the last play of the third period, White and Tony Hill teamed up on a 44-yard pass play to the New York 11.

Three plays later, 1:29 into the fourth quarter, White rolled to his left and passed three yards to tight end Doug Cosbie, deep in the left side of the end zone for the touchdown that pulled Dallas into a 7-7 tie.

The Giants kicked around the ensuing kickoff and wound up with possession on their own one. And three plays later, rookie safety Michael Downs of Dallas intercepted a Brunner bomb to give Dallas the ball on the New York 47.

White and tight end Billy Joe DuPree hooked up on a 16-yard pass on the first play, the next six plays gained 12 more, then Septien put the Cowboys ahead 10-7.

The Giants, whose first touchdown came on Brunner's 20-yard pass to tight end Tom Mullady with 4:48 to go in the third quarter, failed on their first possession following Septien's field goal.

But they were given new life with 2:14 to play in regulation when Dallas running back Ron Springs fumbled and defensive end George Martin recovered.

The Giants moved from the Dallas 45 to the 23 — stalled by a holding penalty which wiped out a 15-yard run by Leon Perry — to set up the Danelo field goal that sent it into overtime.

The first two times the Cowboys had the ball they failed to get a first down. Martin sacking White once in each possession. The Cowboys, in fact, failed to cross midfield until just 18 seconds remained in the first half. Then, Septien was way short on a 60-yard field goal try.

Conversely, the first two times the Giants had the ball, they pushed deep into Dallas territory. But the first time, with 7:18 left in the opening quarter, Danelo's 21-yard try was a line drive to the left of the uprights. And with 3:38 remaining in the same period, he was wide to the right. It was, actually, his third field goal try. But his second one, a 32-yarder, hit the right upright — but was wiped out when Ed "Too Tall" Jones of the Cowboys was called offsides on the play.

Midway in the second quarter, kick returner Leon Bright sprinted 16 yards with a White punt to the Dallas 41. But the Giants were unable to pick up a first down.

On White's next punt, Bright was clobbered by Anthony Dickerson of the Cowboys before the ball arrived. He had to be carried off the field. But X-rays showed no rib damage and he returned to the game in the second half.

The Giants' touchdown was built on two key plays in a 62-yard, six-play march. The first was a 12-yard pass from Brunner to rookie tight end Dave Young to the Dallas 39. The next one was a flea-flicker to the Cowboys' 23.

Idaho State wins Pioneer Bowl, 34-23, over Eastern Kentucky

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Senior quarterback Mike Machurek took advantage of the elements Saturday, directing Idaho State to three wind-aided second-quarter touchdowns, and the Bengals whipped Eastern Kentucky 34-23 in the Pioneer Bowl for the NCAA Division IAA national championship.

It was the first championship-game appearance for the Bengals, 12-1, who went 0-11 just two years ago. The Colonels, 12-2, were making their third championship-game trip in a row.

Eastern Kentucky was the NCAA's top-ranked Division IAA team when the game started, and ISU was No. 2.

With the 25 mph wind at his back,

Machurek took the Bengals 52, 80 and 38 yards for second-period tallies. His 9-yard pass to Charles Ewing was sandwiched between a pair of 6-yard runs by tailback Dwain Wilson and ISU took a 28-9 lead into the locker room at intermission.

Machurek, who led the division in passing and total offense, also found Chris Corp for a 17-yard scoring pass in the first period and Paul Fite scored on a 2-yard plunge on the first play of the final quarter.

Eastern Kentucky scored first on a 21-yard field goal by Jamie Lovett and added a 3-yard touchdown run by Ed Hairston two plays into the second quarter, but could not mount a scoring drive against the wind the rest of the half.

The Colonels scored with the wind at their backs in the third period, marching 71 yards for a 2-yard plunge by Nicky Yeast, and moved within 11 points when Yeast banged 4 yards for a touchdown midway through the fourth quarter.

ISU's first touchdown was set up by some trickery. Facing fourth down and 7 at the Colonels' 32-yard line, the Bengals lined up in punt formation. But the snap went to the short man, reserve quarterback Dirk Koetter, who snapped a 12-yard pass to Jerry Bird, and Machurek found Corp on the next play.

Cameron Yoe wins 3A state crown

WACO, Texas (AP) — Cameron Yoe and Victor Powell caught two second-quarter scoring passes from quarterback Paul Hoelscher to lead the Yoemen to a 26-3 win over Gilmer in the Class 3A schoolboy football championship Saturday.

Cameron Yoe finished his season with a 13-1-1 mark in capturing its first 3A state championship. Gilmer closed the year at 12-1-2.

Gilmer, plagued by fumbles and a feeble defensive line, failed to hold the Cameron rushing attack at bay.

After a scoreless opening period, the Buckeyes led off the scoring early in the second quarter when quarterback Chuck Waggoner kicked a 22-yard field goal.

But the Yoemen quickly countered when Hoelscher found Powell wide open in the end zone and lobbed a 29-yard scoring pass; Mariano de la Rosa's kick made it 7-3, with 10:14 left in the period.

On Cameron Yoe's next possession, fullback Nelson Huffman recovered a Waggoner fumble in the end zone for a touchdown. De la Rosa's kick made it 14-3.

The Yoemen increased their lead when Waggoner's snap to David Cockrell for a punt sailed over Cockrell's head into the end zone, giving Cameron a safety and a 16-3 lead with minutes left in the half.

Hoelscher lost no time in renewing his passing attack. He tossed a 37-yard scoring pass to Powell, after briefly handing off to wingback Oscar Riggins, who pitched it back to Hoelscher for the toss.

A third-quarter field goal from 20 yards out by de la Rosa capped the scoring.

Flowering plants make special gifts

BY DONNA BRAUNCHI
County Extension Agent

Living plants are popular holiday season gifts and decorations. A few tips on their care can help prolong the pleasure received from these plants.

Pointsettias, chrysanthemums, azaleas and most other flowering pot plants will last much longer if kept in a cool location away from drafts. Never place them where heating vents or other heat sources can blow or reflect directly on them. If the room where the plant is used is kept rather warm, try moving your plant to a cooler room each night.

Water is extremely important. Since your flowering plant has probably been growing in a greenhouse where it has had all water about every other day. Over-watering is a possibility also and very confusing since the symptoms for it are the same as for the lack of water. Most planting media is well drained and most containers have a hole in the bottom. This usually will prevent problems from over-watering.

Light is also important. Artificial lighting is helpful but most plants will remain attractive longer if placed near a window or other source of natural light. Direct sunshine or placement too near glass should be avoided.

Consumers frequently ask about how to transplant their flowering plants into their landscape. Gloxinias, cyclamen, and poinsettias are not good landscape plants for most of Texas. The growing season in the Panhandle is not long enough and warm enough for poinsettias to flower outside. Unless greenhouse facilities are available, these plants are best discarded after they lose their attractiveness. Most new poinsettias will hold their bracts for several weeks or more. Their leaves will often drop quickly when temperature, moisture or light conditions are changed.

Flowering pot plants are great to receive or give during the holiday season. By giving them a little extra care this joy may be extended considerably.

HOLIDAY FOOD HAZARDS

Remember that holiday meals can be disastrous if the family's favorite foods have hidden guests - sal, staph, strep, botulism, or clostridium perfringens.

Here are the most likely culprits:

Ham - know the kind of ham you bought. Some need to be cooked, others are fully cooked. If in doubt, cook it. Turkey or any poultry product must be fully cooked. If the turkey is prepared ahead of time, store it in the refrigerator and reheat it at the time of serving. Remove the dressing or stuffing and store it separately. Stuffing - do not stuff the bird a day or two ahead of the day it is roasted. Stuff it just before cooking. Refrigerate leftover stuffing in a separate dish. To save time, cook the stuffing in a separate container.

Meringue Pie - if underbaked, the egg whites may be the host for salmonella. Don't make the meringue so thick that heat cannot penetrate topping and kill the micro-organisms. Refrigerate the pie after it is cooked. Leftovers - there are usually lots of leftover foods after a holiday meal. Put the leftovers in the refrigerator as soon as the meal is over. Don't delay, room temperature is the ideal temperature for micro-organisms to grow at a rapid rate.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

May peace, love, and happiness be yours this Christmas and always!

Johnny is SMARTER than you think

Learning disabled-real and phony

"Learning Disability" has become a catch-phrase. You don't have to know what it means in order to use it, or to pin a "Learning Disabled" mark on a child.

There are numerous definitions of "Learning disabilities." No two are exactly alike.

And how many "learning disabled" children are attending our public schools? Depending upon whose figures are used, somewhere between 2 and 9 million. Whatever the actual number, the aggregated, or based on a careless definition of the classification.

Although the phrase has been misused for years, there are children who suffer real learning disabilities. Unfortunately, the special education they need is being seriously diluted by the flood of youngsters who are classified as "learning disabled." Not to make a blanket accusation, this is being done in many cases for the convenience of the classroom teachers or for the financial benefit of the schools, which, in many states, get additional funds for special education classes, on a per-capita basis.

Some of the real disabilities are organic in nature - something has gone awry in the delicate functioning of the brain or nervous system. Some are physical in nature - poor vision or hearing, allergies, etc.

Two things should be noted: First, the diagnosis of such real learning disabilities should come from a qualified physician or pediatrician, not from a classroom teacher or team of school "experts." Second, unless this nation's health has deteriorated to a point beyond cure, there are not enough of these truly learning disabled youngsters to account for the hundreds of thousands being added to the ten rolls every year.

The pseudo-learning disabled suffer from a host of other factors that can make learning difficult, or impossible. These include a home life where learning (particularly reading) is not highly regarded... too many comic books of the kind that stress violence, terror and horror but add nothing to a child's vocabulary... social promotion which moves kids automatically to the next grade whether he has learned anything or not... poor and ineffective teaching which dooms the child to a lifetime outside the mainstream of American life, fit only for the most menial jobs.

The organic and physical problems should be dealt with by competent medical authorities. Other learning problems can be and should be dealt with by the parents and teachers or schools, acting as a team.

With regard to the "other problems, one should note that a child attending a school where discipline is likewise "learning disabled." Parents must shoulder the blame for this. Many so-called "learning disability" problems could be solved if the teacher were allowed to discipline the child. (We're not advocating beating a child, just insisting upon his attention.)

Parents should be skeptical when told their child is "learning disabled." They should find out exactly what the "learning disability" is, and what can be done about it. If the child is being sent to a special education class, they should find out exactly what kind of special education the child is to receive.

Special education can be a great help to a child in need, if it means he will get special attention to his problems. In far too many cases, a child with a reading problem is "divorced" from reading because this might frustrate, threaten or upset him.

Parents shouldn't be afraid to ask questions, and they should discuss any organic or physical problems with their family doctor or pediatrician. They should learn what they can do, and not expect the school to handle it alone. Most important: there should be certain there is a "learning disability," not a "teaching disability" or "curriculum disability."

5 days 'til Christmas

At Wit's End

I was unpacking the Christmas decorations this week when I came across a pie tin with a picture of the Blessed Virgin pasted inside dangling from a soiled ribbon.

The ornament is pitiful, it is usually the first decoration put on the tree every year by my older son who knocks you into the fireplace, steps on your knees and physically races you to the tree to get it on first. He made it in the third grade.

This is the first Christmas he will not spend with us in 26 years.

I always knew how I got three children, but I never knew why. I used to tell people it was a 4-H project that got out of hand.

I was frustrated by children. They didn't come with any instructions. You had to fumble around and try to get them assembled and working the best way you could. And what worked for one, never worked with the other one.

I was confused by my job. Was I supposed to serve as a buffer between them and the sidewalk? Them and disappointment? Them and failure? How close was I supposed to get? How far did I dare fall behind?

I was ultimately angered by the whole process. They were telling me that as soon as I got their teeth straightened, their hernias repaired, their bodies packed with vitamins, taught 'em to parallel park, wipe their feet, put down lids, flush, feed themselves and make their own beds, I should back off?

For the last ten years I've been "doing all the right things." I've given them room to breathe, I've smiled in all the right places, I've swallowed advice that lodged in my throat like a lump. I've resisted spreading guilt, of which I have an abundance.

Dr. Lamb

Talk to your doctor

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — About two years ago I had a hysterectomy and bilateral salpingo-oophorectomy. I was 46 at the time. My doctor started me on Premarin when I was dismissed from the hospital. I did very well and felt great.

After my yearly checkup the doctor took me off Premarin and prescribed another medicine. About two months later I began to have hot flashes for the first time. He changed me to Bellerigal S but I can't tell much difference. Should I, at 48, be taking any of these medicines? Are any of the medicines or the surgery responsible for the hot flashes, or the bristly hair that is beginning to grow on my lip? Before surgery I always reached a climax. Now I tire before I can so that I've had very few since the surgery. I am becoming quite anxious about all the medicines and no results. What do you suggest?

DEAR READER — I suggest a frank discussion with your doctor. Bellerigal S does not contain any hormones. If your terms for your surgery are correct you had both ovaries removed at surgery. You need to know for sure if this is true. The Premarin provided enough hormones for the first year to prevent the symptoms you have since developed. Switching medicines decreased your hormones because of lack of ovaries, and symptoms followed.

You will want to read about the symptoms of the menopause in The Health Letter number 5-12, Menopause, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. When your ovaries are removed they may cause the same symptoms as the menopause.

If you don't have a uterus you can't develop cancer of the uterus. The other worry is your breasts. If they are normal without lumps there is no evidence of problems there from estrogens.

The remaining complications of estrogen therapy, such as an increased risk of heart attacks, blood clots and others, are really uncommon (after all, women produce female hormones normally) if a woman keeps her weight down, blood pressure down and above all does not smoke. If a woman will follow these measures, have regular evaluations and has no problems such as breast lumps, there is usually little reason why she cannot take enough hormones to be comfortable. And if there is a reason why she can't her doctor should explain it to her.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My brother-in-law said that the only place he ever heard of a spur was on the heel. I believe they can form on other parts of the body. How many areas of the body can develop a spur?

DEAR READER — A spur can develop almost anywhere you have bone. If a part of a vertebra degenerates new bone is formed. The new formation may not follow normal growth patterns and a spur may develop. Spurs are common in arthritis because of bone degeneration and regeneration.

The spur often develops where there is a tendon or ligament attached to the bone. A heel spur develops where the tissues attach to the bottom of the heel. But it can also develop where the Achilles tendon attaches to the back of the heel. You can have a bony spur in any of the joints, including the hand. Spurs only cause symptoms if they press on a nerve or cause an obstruction. An arthritic spur of the spine may press on a spinal nerve causing pain.

Holiday Baking: Mini-Fruitcake

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: My grandchildren all like home cooking. Along with the holiday cookies

I always bake at this time of year. I'd like to try making some fruitcakes in small muffin pans. Have you a recipe to pass along? — GRANDMA.

DEAR GRANDMA: A recipe for fruitcakes baked in small muffin pans just came across my desk and it may appeal to you. Because nowadays so many cooks like to use various grains along with white flour in baking, this recipe was updated to include nutritious oats. — C.B.

MINI-FRUITCAKES

1 cup water
1 cup quick-cooking oats
1 and 1-3rd cups all-purpose flour
¾ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon allspice
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
4-ounce carton diced mixed candied fruit
¾ cup ready-to-use mincemeat

¾ cup coarsely chopped walnuts
2 large eggs
1-3rd cup vegetable oil
2 teaspoons vanilla
Glaze, if desired: 3 tablespoons apple jelly

Thoroughly grease or insert paper baking cups into 18 muffin-pan cups (each 2½ by inch).

In a small saucepan bring the water just to the boil; remove from heat and stir in the oats. Cover and let stand 20 minutes.

In a large bowl stir together the candied fruit, mincemeat and nuts; add the flour mixture, stirring well.

In a medium bowl beat the eggs until foamy; stir in the oats, oil and vanilla; add to the fruit mixture, mixing just until dry ingredients are moistened. Turn batter, by scant ¼-cupfuls, into prepared muffin-pan cups. Bake in a preheated 300-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — about 50 minutes. Cool 10 minutes; remove from pans. If you want to glaze the fruitcakes, melt the apple jelly and spread over their tops.

No matter how it's spelled, tomato ketchup's a favorite

NEW YORK (AP) — The average American consumes 47 ounces, or nearly three pounds, of tomato ketchup a year, reports the National Food Processors Association, which adds that more than a million tons of tomatoes go into processing the product annually. The year Americans got their first taste of processed tomato "catsup" was 1876. The bottles of those days were sealed with corks, which were then dipped in wax to make the contents airtight, according to the Closures Manufacturers Association, whose members make the modern twist-on metal resealable caps found on ketchup bottles today. Ketchup originally came from the Orient, where it was called "ketsiap," "koechiap," or "kechap." Today there is still confusion about the spelling, with some dictionaries preferring ketchup, others catsup. The Oriental variety of ketsiap was made from a brine of pickled or fermented fish and was used as an all-purpose seasoning. Researchers at the Closure group say. In the 17th and 18th centuries, English seafaring traders (some sources say Dutch) brought the ketsiap sauces home from the Far East and tried to duplicate the flavor in their homeland. By 1841 the condiment was a favorite in England.

Later, in the 19th century, Maine sea captains circling the globe in clipper ships also acquired a taste for this flavorful Oriental product and brought the knowledge of it to U.S. shores. In those early days many of the exotic Eastern ingredients were not available here. So mushrooms, grapes, cucumbers, currants, blueberries, gooseberries, plums, oysters, lobsters and walnuts went into the homemade ketchup bottle. English and American cookbooks of the 18th and 19th centuries would commonly list as many as a dozen ketchup recipes. The ketchup then was used as a condiment with various meats — the hamburger, as it is known today, had not yet evolved — and was also used as a key ingredient in sauces and gravies. It was more like today's Worcestershire than today's ketchup. Tomato was actually a latecomer as a ketchup flavor because it was thought to be poisonous before the 1820s, the researchers point out. No one knows who was the first to incorporate the tomato into ketchup, or how tomatoes evolved as the condiment's main ingredient, but as American ketchup became uniformly a tomato product, the other varieties seemed to vanish.

Schaubs honored on fortieth anniversary

James Lonnie and Betty Schaub of 611 N. Dwight, celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary Saturday with a reception in the Fellowship Hall of Hobart Baptist Church. The celebration was hosted by their sons and daughter. Schaub married the former Betty Henderson Dec. 21, 1941 in Wheeler. The couple have lived in Pampa for 36 years. Their children are David Schaub of Houston, Mrs. Brenda Ward of Amarillo and Phil Schaub of San Angelo. The couple have three grandchildren.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES SHAUB

Peeking at Pampa

A near capacity enjoyed the beautiful rendition of Tschalkowsky's Nutcracker Suite presented by Fine Arts and Civic Ballet with choreography by Jeanne Willingham on Dec. 12 at the Middle School Auditorium. People said the audience was charmed by the lovely settings, the delightful costumes, the marvelous concluding scene. Can't list all the performers (seems there were 50 or 60 of them, maybe more) but each was outstanding. Some of the leading roles were played by Sang Ho Cho, Anita Dalton, Melissa Harris, David Irvin, Deanna Parsley and Anna Riehart. Little angels and small mice were adorable. The Pampa Civic Ballet presented lovely numbers.

Included on the same program was the Middle School Choir under the direction of Elana Donald, presenting religious numbers. They looked so nice, the girls in dark blue formals, the boys in dark trousers, red shirts and white ties. Elana is a charming lady, possessed of a beautiful voice herself.

Too many of us fake trips just for the pleasure of going somewhere. But Wanda Smith Goff went touring this last summer with a definite purpose in mind. Wanda is a lovely lady, a former Pampa teacher, known and loved by us all.

She and her daughter - in-law drove 1700 miles through Ohio and Indiana, researching Wanda's Smith family genealogy. Her father was a Quaker and they spent a lot of time in Quaker libraries and meeting houses as well as Mormon libraries.

funeral homes, historical societies, courthouses and other places where records were available. Wanda was able to find out much of what she needed to trace her "roots".

When she visited her son and his wife in Germany during their military service there, some years ago, she and her daughter - in-law spent a lot of time searching for the younger Mrs. Goff's German and Norwegian ancestors. Interesting work.

Wanda says: Just heard that Clara (Mrs. James) Quay a door - prize winner a couple of weeks ago. The Top of Texas Insurance Association gives a money prize at each monthly meeting, and Clara was the December winner. She's such a gracious lady, always cheerful and kind. Always looks as if she just got her hair done, too.

Social clubs are having elaborate parties this season. At a recent one in the Heritage Room, many men wore tuxedos, and the ladies' formals were gorgeous. Especially beautiful were Joyce (Mrs. Clifford) Scott's white lace and satin gown.

Mrs. Ralph Gardner's shimmering silver dress. Dorothy (the other Mrs. Ralph Gardner (note the slight difference in spelling) in white and gold. Pauline Daugherty (Leon's wife) in a magnificent red velvet formal made by her daughter, Paula Whitney. (Mrs. Don.)

Paula is quite a lady. Besides maintaining a home for her husband and four children, she teaches home economics in Lefors and also finds time to sew lovely clothes.

Pampa homes have surely never been decorated more festively nor the parties more enjoyable than they are this year. Among the beautiful parties have been Hesta and Rue Hestand's get-together on Dec. 12; (such goodies. Hest's a wonderful cook and so innovative) - and the sparkling party given by Stroups, Marian and Jack, with co-host, Susan and Steve Heare; (big crowd, tables and tables of mouth-watering Christmas food.)

All our Pampa ministers treat us kindly. But Reverend Joe Turner of the Presbyterian Church does countless special things for his people. He visits Pampa nursing homes regularly. Also, periodically he takes a carload of people out of town rest homes. Several Presbyterians are now in the Abraham Memorial Home in Canada and Joe takes the friendship and cheer. Splendid man, in the pulpit and out of it.

Nice to have Katy and Julian Key home again. They enjoyed a visit in Denver a Kansas city with the children and grandchildren. Always good to have them parties and dances. They make enjoyable conversation - and their dancing is a joy watch.

Understand Mae McDaniel has made a record of children's songs and stories. Hope it's a smash hit.

Saw Cora Mae Hood long ago, so attractive in bone-colored coat and hat smart outfit. Don't forget send your recipes to included in the Heritage Cookbook, being compiled by Elizabeth Hurley, Car Mackey and Thelma Br plus other ladies in various churches. Seems publications - will commemorate Gray County 80th birthday. All you good cooks, be sure to send your favorite goodies. Happy holidays!

Dear Abby

Even an apostle isn't a saint

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: One of the toughest tasks a church faces is choosing a good minister. A member of an official board undergoing this painful process finally lost patience. He'd watched the Pastoral Relations Committee reject applicant after applicant for some fault, alleged or otherwise. It was time for a bit of soul-searching on the part of the committee. So he stood up and read a letter purporting to be from another applicant.

"Gentlemen: Understanding your pulpit is vacant, I should like to apply for the position. I have many qualifications. I've been a preacher with much success and also some success as a writer. Some say I'm a good organizer. I've been a leader most places I've been.

"I'm over 50 years of age. I have never preached in one place for more than three years. In some places I have left town after my work has caused riots and disturbances. I must admit I have been in jail three or four times, but not because of any real wrongdoing. My health is not too good, though I still get a great deal done. The churches I have preached in have been small, though located in several large cities. I've not got along well with religious leaders in towns where I have preached. In fact, some have threatened me and even attacked me physically. I am not too good at keeping records. I have been known to forget whom I have baptized.

"However, if you can use me, I shall do my best for you." The board member looked over the committee. "Well, what do you think? Shall we call him?"

The good church folks were aghast. Call an unhealthy, trouble-making, absent-minded ex-jailbird? Was the board member crazy? Who signed that application? Who had such colossal nerve?

The board member eyed them all keenly before he answered. "It's signed, 'The Apostle Paul.'"

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is 25 and a college graduate. For the last three years she has been living with a man I'll call Bill, and now they are getting married. She has asked me to attend her wedding and give her away. Abby, I never approved of her living with Bill, and as far as I'm concerned, nobody has to "give her away" - she did that herself three years ago.

I have been a widower for five years, and my family thinks I should go along with my daughter's wishes, but I'm afraid if I do, it will look like I approved of her former lifestyle and have forgiven her for it.

I need help in deciding what to do.

OLD-FASHIONED FATHER

DEAR FATHER: I think you will have fewer regrets if you were to go along with your daughter's wishes. I vote go and perform your fatherly duty.

DEAR ABBY: I am an amateur female musician. I was offered a chance to play for money, so I made up a fake name on the spur of the moment. Ever since that time, whenever I play professionally I use that name. If I'm paid with a check, I endorse the check with that name.

Now I'm worried. Have I done anything illegal? Did I need to get special permission to use this fake name? I report all the money I make for tax purposes, so I am not cheating in any way.

I'm losing sleep over this, Abby. Hurry your answer.

WORRIED IN N.J.

DEAR WORRIED: As long as you did not use the fake name in order to deceive or defraud, you will have no problem.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.

MRS. KEVIN MICHAEL O'NEAL

Fellers, O'Neal united in evening ceremony

Valisa Ann Fellers and Kevin Micheal O'Neal were united in marriage on Friday, Dec. 4 at 7:30 p.m. in the St. Vincent De Paul Catholic Church with Father Francis Hynes, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don B. Fellers of 1119 Kiowa.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl F. O'Neal of 1840 Holly.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Myrna Orr, organist and Carleen Moyer, vocalist.

Flower girl was Kim Fellers.

Ring bearer was Ryan Snyder.

The bride wore a formal gown of white organza designed with a square neckline edged with cluny lace. Her long sheer full sleeves were accented by lace and were caught at the waist in deep cuffs with ruffles over the hands. The skirt fell into a four ruffle hemline edged with lace. The gown swept to the back and extended into a chapel train. She wore a matching lace coil with silk illusion edged with lace, which fell to walking length.

The reception was held in the Pampa Country Club. Kerri Golden, Vicki Green and Becky Sandford assisted in serving.

The bride is a 1981 graduate of Pampa High School. She is employed by O'Neal's Furniture Gallery.

The groom is a 1981 graduate of Pampa High School. He is employed by Lone Star Technical.

PATHFINDERS By Gail Sheehy. Morrow. 494 Pages. $15.95.

In 1976, Gail Sheehy published a book titled, "Passages," which described the predictable crises of adult life. Now, Ms. Sheehy, a journalist, has written a new book, "Pathfinders," which attempts to explain why some people overcome life's crises while others do not.

For her research, Ms. Sheehy developed a "Life History Questionnaire" which was completed by 60,000 people and was tabulated by a computer team at New York University. While Ms. Sheehy concedes that 60,000 does not constitute a statistician's random sample, she writes that "it greatly enlarges the data pool on which life-cycle theories have been drawn up to now."

From the questionnaire, Ms. Sheehy was able to compile a list of prospective interviewees — people who seemed to have a sense of well-being and who might be considered "pathfinders." For the interview, Ms.

The result is a 494-page book full of information, 15 pages of notes and sources and an extensive bibliography.

The persons Ms. Sheehy interviewed have striking life histories — and she comes up with a jarring piece of information about "baby givebacks" — a tiny, transcontinental baby-adoption market for upper-middle-class professionals who decide they cannot cope with a child, and who give back their offspring to carefully chosen counterparts who are eager for a child and who promise to provide the same kind of home.

The book also contains a "Life History Questionnaire" for those who wish to know approximately where they stand in the sense of overall well-being as compared with the 60,000 people surveyed for the book.

Apricot Tart: Winter Wonder

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor

One of the best things that can happen to canned apricots is for them to be put into a tart. Especially if the tart is made by the following recipe. Cooks who have baked this dessert with the recipes I have given using fresh peaches and pears will, I believe, be happy to have this latest variation. Our tasters could not have praised it more highly.

APRICOT TART
Two 17-ounce cans whole peeled apricots in heavy syrup
Pastry Shell, recipe follows

3 egg yolks (from large eggs)
1-3rd cup commercial sour cream
¾ cup sugar
¾ cup all-purpose flour

Thoroughly drain the apricots; halve and discard pits; thoroughly dry the apricots between sheets of paper toweling. Prepare and bake the Pastry Shell.

In a medium bowl beat together the egg yolks, sour cream, sugar and flour until smooth. Arrange the apricot halves, cut side up, in concentric circles (overlapping if necessary) in the still-hot Pastry Shell; pour the sour cream mixture over the apricots. Bake in the preheated 350-degree oven until top is golden and meringue-like — 45 minutes. Place on a wire rack to cool.

With a small metal spatula, loosen edges; remove side wall of pan. Delicious served while still warm or at room temperature. Makes 8 servings.

PASTRY SHELL
1½ cups all-purpose flour
½ cup (4-ounce stick) butter
2 tablespoons commercial sour cream

In a food processor with the metal blade, process the flour and butter until no butter is visible. Add the sour cream and process just until dough forms a ball. Remove and flatten into a disc; place in the center of an ungreased, round, 9- by 1½-inch cake pan with a removable bottom. Press over bottom and sides of pan to cov-

MRS. CARROL JOE BROWN

Mending Mature Marriage

Fault finders possess low self-esteem

BY LOUISE PIERCE

DEAR LOUISE: I don't like being too critical of the husband I've lived with for almost 50 years. But he gets crankier as he gets older. And he was always a moody man, getting real upset whenever anything wasn't to his liking.

When we were younger, I kind of laughed it off, which made him worse because he hated being laughed at. Sometimes I left the room and stayed away till I thought he'd got over whatever he was mad about. That used to work.

But the last year that hasn't helped either. Whenever I come back, I find out he's still mad, sometimes at me, other times at something that happened or didn't happen to him.

He gets the notion, real often any more, that everything's wrong with us and the country and the world. The more he rants about it, the madder he gets. When I got back the last time, in time to get his dinner, he wouldn't eat. He said I should have stayed home and helped him to get to feeling better. But how could I have done that? A.G.

DEAR A.G.: I agree with both of you. You had to leave because you couldn't think of a better solution to the situation. But if you had stayed, which I hope you will do next time, you might have helped him to overcome his unhappy time.

A friend of mine recently said to me, "People who find fault constantly, don't like themselves." I think this could well be true of your husband.

Evidently he doesn't have enough to do and he needs to have a retirement job or take up a hobby that will give him something new to think about and less time to worry about what's going on about him.

But if that isn't practical, try getting him to like himself, which he certainly does not seem to do now.

Have you ever praised him in any way, building up his ego and thus giving him something to be happy about?

I believe every wife, especially we older ones, should do a lot of bragging on our husbands, whether they deserve it or not. We're spending more time with them than we used to, and it needs to be happy time. This can be done if we tell them they were always great guys and still are.

Brag on everything about him that you can. Even exaggerate a little. Say he's good-looking, intelligent, good company, well-dressed, etc. If he's not any of those things, it will make him try to be. And if you can convince him you love him for all his good qualities, real or imagined, he should start changing in order to become what you say he is.

As for your husbands who may read this, the same thing can apply if an older wife is unhappy. She will be overcome with pride and pleasure if you tell her she's the best wife in the world. She'll start trying to live up to it.

DEAR LOUISE: Our senior citizens group has a few happy people who like eating together and playing cards and visiting and doing crafts. But a lot of them just come for lunch and then go home.

Should we try to get them to spend the afternoon with us and take part in our activities? The ones who stay are the happiest ones. The ones who scrape back their chairs after stuffing themselves, look unhappy and talk a lot about how bad they feel and how many colds they've had this winter and how they wish they were 20 or 30 or 40 again.

My husband and I stay the whole time and a wonderful fellowship with the others who stay. What's wrong with the ones who run for home? And what can we do about them? C.N.

DEAR C.N.: I believe the eaters - and - runners do not have enough to do to interest them at the senior citizens' group. And I would guess that they go home and find fault with themselves and each other. I hope you can interest them in staying at least once, trying out the activities that the rest of you enjoy. They might try to stay another time and another.

Try to think of something new in games and crafts. Give them special assignments striving for

Beware of hoilday overload

BY COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

Although many still see Christmas as a religious celebration and time for family togetherness, for others it has become a month-long headache.

The latter are overwhelmed by the thought of spending long hours fighting for their lives in crowded shopping centers, paying astronomical prices for presents their children will destroy or tire of the day after Christmas, suffering cramped fingers after addressing scores of Christmas cards and planning parties with food and drink for 50-plus guests.

The secrets to avoiding this kind of holiday overload are recognizing your limits, planning ahead, sharing responsibilities and doing only what you feel comfortable doing — not what you think you should do, therapists say.

"I see the holidays as symbols," said Ed Harmon, who directs seminars on self-esteem and stress management. "Maybe one day the human race will be able to fully enjoy every day, but until then, the holidays can serve to help us celebrate life."

"But instead of letting the holidays serve us, people often serve the holidays. They get trapped in the structure and don't see the holidays as an opportunity to be grateful for what life has to offer us."

Harmon said many people's holiday activities are outer-directed. They focus on impressing others with extravagant parties and presents, rather than setting their own standards for the holidays.

"If you have a real sense of your own worth, you don't have to impress other to gain acceptance. And if you really feel good about yourself, you can share those good feelings with others, which is what the holidays are all about," he said.

"Then you can buy someone a present because you care for him, not because he spent so much on you last year and you can send Christmas cards in order to share and communicate with your friends, not out of obligation."

A person should always make conscious choices about activities he undertakes, Harmon said. Then, even if a task is vaguely unpleasant, he knows he chose to do it and wasn't pressured into it by outsiders.

When people only do something because they think it's expected, they end up feeling resentful and seeing the holidays as a burden, Harmon said.

"We really don't have to do anything and if we choose to do something rather than face the consequences, that was a choice on our part," he noted.

Women are often under the most pressure around the holidays since the season is family-oriented and women are generally seen as being in charge of family activities, said Jonelle Jerram, director of a women's center in Orange, Calif.

"There is the pressure to perform and the accompanying fear of failure to deal with, such as with the wife who's entertaining her husband's business associates or the one who's expecting her mother-in-law to come over and give everything the white-glove treatment," Jerram said.

"When you're trying to live up to other people's expectations, your self-esteem can take a nose dive if everything isn't right."

CORNMEAL RICE GRIDDLE CAKES

They're substantial enough to stick to the ribs.

- 1/2 cup fork-stirred all-purpose flour
- 1/2 cup yellow cornmeal
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 large eggs, separated
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 1 cup cooked rice
- 2 tablespoons butter, melted

In a medium bowl stir together the flour, cornmeal, baking soda and salt. In a small bowl beat egg yolks slightly; add buttermilk and beat to blend; add to flour mixture with rice and melted butter; stir only until flour mixture is moistened. In the clean, small dry bowl, with the clean beater, beat egg whites until stiff; fold into batter — it will be thick. Have a greased griddle heated to 375 degrees; onto it drop the batter, by 1/4 cupfuls, well apart, swirling as you do so to have each griddle cake about 4 inches wide. Bake until tops are bubbly and bottoms golden brown; turn and brot both other sides. Makes 12. Serve hot with butter and syrup. (Recipe may be easily halved.)

Roast Goose good choice for holidays

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

For a festive holiday dinner, a number of Americans are adopting a European custom and making roast goose the centerpiece. This delectable bird has long been a traditional holiday dish in England, Germany, Poland and a number of other Old World nations.

In Poland, the popularity of goose dates back to 18th-century monarchist days when the Polish gentry entertained on a lavish scale with banquets featuring the bird in a number of forms.

In the old days, a Polish aristocrat would invite scores of guests to a day of game shooting on his estate. The day would wind up with a robust meal usually featuring bigos, or hunter's stew. It consisted of cooked fowl, usually goose, boned and diced, Polish sausage sliced, sauerkraut, salt pork, dried mushrooms, an assortment of spices and red wine. The mixture was simmered slowly in a pot.

Polish cooks insist that bigos tastes better if cooked a couple of days ahead and allowed to sit in the refrigerator.

Food is scarce in Poland these days, but the country is still noted for its varied cuisine as the Poles rely on ingenuity to make up for the shortages in their cupboards.

Goose is less frequently seen in American supermarkets than chicken, turkey or duck, but frozen ones are available on the spot and birds can be ordered in advance.

Allow a frozen bird to thaw for two or three days in the refrigerator. Then, as the time for roasting nears, place the trussed bird on a rack, breast side up. Prick the breast in several places to let fat drain off.

Some cooks stuff goose with sauerkraut and caraway seed, but I prefer a dressing of chopped, tart apples and pitted prunes.

When I was covering the United Nations, a member of the Polish delegation gave me an old recipe for roast goose that he says should be preceded by a couple of nips of chilled vodka.

Goose, about 7 pounds
2 lemon halves
1 teaspoon salt

1 tablespoon marjoram
1 clove garlic
2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
2 ounces white wine
1 medium onion, sliced
1 cup chicken bouillon

Rinse cleaned bird under warm water inside and out. Dry well and rub with lemon halves, salt and marjoram two hours before roasting, and keep in refrigerator until cooking time. Prick skin in several places. Stuff cavity with dressing of your choice, secure with skewers and rub with garlic just before placing in 325-degree preheated oven. Roast about 3 to 3 1/2 hours, skimming off excess grease. As pan drippings accumulate, add mustard and wine, stir into pan drippings and baste bird frequently. When nearly done, add sliced onion to pan. When goose is done, remove from pan, add chicken bouillon to drippings, boil up and pour into gravy boat. Place goose on platter. Serves 4-6 persons.

Popsicle brigade tries to get in step with Senate

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — In months after becoming a U.S. senator, Charles E. Grassley of Iowa was mulling up the steps of the Capitol one day when he was suddenly stopped by a policeman.

senators and their staffs are permitted in the Senate gallery now," the policeman said, tightly clasping the Republican freshman's arm. "Do you know who I am?" asked Grassley, angrily. "Do you know who I am?" asked the policeman, whose own temper flared.

Eventually, it was all straightened out. Grassley's identity was established and he went on his way. But the encounter is an apt symbol of the impact the new class of 16 Republicans has had in their first year in the Senate.

It is their election which gave President Reagan a GOP majority in the Senate, and insured relatively easy approval of his budget and tax programs.

"Our accomplishment is right there for all to see," Grassley said. "Where would these things (the tax and budget cuts) be without us?"

But harsher critics of the newest senators refer to them as the "popsicle brigade," a derisive reference to their relative youth, and their inability to fit into the rhythm of the Senate, to learn its rules and customs, and their tendency to identify with single issues like abortion, a balanced budget, school prayer, or busing. Sen. Jeremiah Denton of Alabama, for example, is known for a seeming fascination with matters of sex and the family.

During a Senate Judiciary Committee discussion of whether a husband should be prosecuted for rape, Denton said, "When you get married, you kind of expect you're going to get a little sex."

Denton successfully steered a bill designed to discourage teen-age pregnancy through the Senate, and at one point provided a graphic description of what kinds of sex he was concerned about.

Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., has become known for having served strip steak, asparagus and strawberries at a lunch where the chief topic of discussion was to be fraud in the federal Food Stamps program.

In addition, aides to more experienced Republican senators view her as one with unbounded ambition who is probably the most difficult to work with among the newcomers.

"She sure has ruffled some feathers around here," says one official. Another says simply, "She is a grandstander with little sense of common courtesy."

But in the same breath, the same source says Mrs. Hawkins was invaluable in seeking votes in support of President Reagan's proposal to sell AWACS radar planes to Saudi Arabia.

While Sandra Day O'Connor's nomination to the Supreme Court was pending before the Senate, Grassley was invited to the White House for a meeting on another topic.

After the meeting in the presence of other senators, Grassley abruptly asked Reagan if he had a commitment from Mrs. O'Connor to oppose legalized abortion.

Knowing it would be improper for any president to obtain promises on how Mrs. O'Connor might vote on any issue, Reagan sought to politely deflect the question. Nonetheless, pressed Grassley, "She's going to vote right, isn't she?"

The outcome of decisions made in Senate committees are almost always known in advance, but roll call votes are taken as if minds were made up only at the last minute.

"A lot of these people had no real legislative or political experience before they got here," said one Senate veteran. "And some are just a little slow to learn."

Many of the freshmen were elected because of their conservative stands on social issues like abortion and school prayer and busing.

One observer said, "They really believe that the New Right and the Moral Majority is the only constituency they have, and so they have become single issue senators."

Ironically, in 1981, there was no final action on any of those issues in the Senate.

"That is partly because of they don't know how to do things around here," said one senior Senate official.

Six of the new senators served in the House of Representatives. But because they were in the minority in the House, and are now part of the Republican majority in the Senate, they have as many or more problems adjusting to the Senate, as those with no congressional experience.

Republican Leader Howard Baker called them into his office, and explained patiently that their roles had changed, that majority status can be tough, and that the president needed their votes. Eventually, they came around.

A day in the life at the Catholic Worker kitchen

By RICK HAMPSON

Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The door of the Catholic Worker Soup kitchen bangs open. It jags a drunk, swearing and looking mean. He lurches across the room, crashing to tables and chairs.

The ragged men and women who have come for a free breakfast cover in the meadows, hiding from his intoxicated rage. But the thin, long-haired young woman in charge of the kitchen grinds out her cigarette and walks up to him.

"You've been drinking, John. You know the rules," she says, looking into his wild eyes. "You have to have."

The drunk grabs a chair and slams it on the floor next to her. They stand face to face, hers young, angelic; his ap-toothed, unshaven. The girl doesn't blink.

John backs toward the door and leaves. So begins another day in the life of the Catholic Worker movement, a day of begging for food, stirring soup, folding and stamping newspapers, caring for people others shun, and then, praying for the strength to do it all again tomorrow.

From the time she started her first Catholic Worker "house of hospitality" in 1933 until she died a year ago at 83, Dorothy Day's life was filled with the noise, dirt and strife of the streets. Many who mentored the life of the poor: she lived it.

To Dwight MacDonald, the critic and author, she was "one of those surprises that makes life life," a woman who fed and sheltered thousands but never had a nickel herself, who was jailed eight times for civil disobedience, who swore allegiance to the church and attended Mass daily.

Today there are about 40 Catholic Worker houses across the nation. The movement's philosophy, a blend of pacifism and Catholicism, is expounded by the gritty, one-cent Catholic Worker newspaper, a sometime monthly with a circulation of almost 100,000.

Although the New York workers are best known, others are just as active. In Los Angeles, for instance, a community of 20 workers runs two houses. The Catholic Agitator newspaper, a soup line, a food co-op and legal and medical clinics.

Some of the work is more political than charitable. In Des Moines, workers were arrested last year for splattering blood on a sign at a military base. They also marched on the state capital with anti-abortion groups.

Although its radicalism has limited the breadth of its appeal, Thomas Merton, the author-monk, said that if not for Dorothy Day's movement he would not have become a Catholic.

When Dorothy Day died last year, friends of the workers were friends of the workers. They asked, "What are you going to do now?" recalls a worker. "We're going to bury her, we told them."

It was an answer Dorothy Day would have liked. She believed the movement was inspired by good works, not her personal magnetism.

"The Catholic Worker has always believed that, besides talking and theorizing and writing theological tomes about what it means to be a Christian, you have to start living it yourself," says Jeff Gneuchs, a young Dominican priest who lives and works at Maryhouse, one of two houses the workers run here.

Dressed in faded jeans and a dirty sweatshirt, he slouches in a chair with his feet up on an old gray desk, gazing out the window at the streets of the Lower East Side ghetto.

"If you see someone who's hungry you should feed him, not wait for the government to do it," he says.

The future of Russia presents giant riddle

By CHARLES J. HANLEY
Associated Press Writer

The Soviet Union stands on the threshold of a new era, a giant weighted down with missiles, bloody memories and visionary plans, a superpower whose path is strewn with challenges.

—Its own economy, after a relative boom in the 1960s and early 1970s, is lumbering through a time of uncertainty.

—Its army is dangerously ensnared in a guerrilla war in Afghanistan, and is American adversary, under a new leader, is talking tough again.

—Perhaps most important, its own leader, the ailing Leonid Brezhnev, may have to be replaced at any time.

Where is this formidable nation headed from the twilight of the Brezhnev era? In interviews and writings, a dozen experts who know the Soviet Union intimately — academics, economists and diplomats — agree that a time of decision is approaching for Moscow's leaders: more guns or more butter, liberalization or tighter controls, decentralization of the economy or still more central planning.

Dimitri Simes, a Soviet affairs specialist at Johns Hopkins University's School of Advanced International Studies, says the new leadership will have to be "more bold, more decisive, more confident" to deal with accumulated problems.

Daniel Bond, who follows the Soviet economy closely, believes it has sufficient underlying strength for survival.

But what will the Soviet Union be like in the decades to come?

The most commonly held view is one of small steps, of gradually more economic decentralization, of learning to live with socialist "friends" who follow divergent paths. Some expect a little political liberalization, others more authoritarianism.

Above all, as the world's largest nation redefines itself and its brand of socialism, those watching it are mindful of its fundamentally conservative, cautious nature.

Russia, the 19th-century poet Fedor Tjutchev observed, is the "homeland of patience."

On Jan. 27, 1959, in a seven-hour speech to the 21st Congress of the Soviet Communist Party, Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev boasted that the Soviet gross national product would overtake the American GNP by 1980. But Soviet production today is less than two-thirds the U.S. output.

After growing at an annual rate of 4 to 5 percent in the 1960s and early 1970s, the Soviet economy has remained hobbled by deep-rooted problems — perennial agricultural shortcomings, a slip in the growth of labor productivity and in the growth of the labor force itself, the inertia of a system that prizes stability over innovation.

The grain crop, heart of Soviet agriculture, has stagnated or actually declined in each of the past three years. Industrial production per man-hour grew at more than 3 percent a year in the 1960s but by 1979 had stalled, reports Bond, a Soviet specialist at Wharton Econometric Forecasting Associates in Washington.

U.S. analysts speak vaguely of declining worker morale, pointing to evidence of worsening alcoholism and absenteeism. Bond suggests that a reported sharp rise in the infant mortality rate may be a symptom of a general "health crisis."

The analysts note, too, that a Polish-style upheaval is less likely in the Soviet Union because Moscow's leaders have been far quicker than the woles to crush dissent in its early stages and are more adept at controlling consumer expectations and appetites. Although word filters out periodically of scattered work stoppages in the Soviet Union, analysts can produce no evidence of an upsurge in labor unrest.

The immediate question: Would the U.S.S.R. tolerate a neighbor, Poland, that established a pluralistic system in which the Communist Party is not the only power center?

Some analysts say they believe Moscow will accept a "new" Poland as long as it stays loyal to the Warsaw Pact militarily. The Soviets stress that each country is unique and that they already live side-by-side with disparate forms of socialism. But they routinely warn that if the socialist system is threatened in Poland, they will take action.

Simes says a "new ballgame" has developed for the Soviets on their western doorstep.

Ruble agrees. "Over the course of the 1970s, Eastern Europe has become less of an economic asset and more of an economic drain," he says. Moscow has to subsidize East European economies with cheap Soviet oil, and in Poland alone it is stuck with $4 billion or more in questionable loans.

"It's going to become very expensive for the Soviets to maintain their East European empire."

Simes maintains that the Soviets, with their plodding centralism, could learn from economic experiments in socialist neighbors like Hungary, where privately owned shops and other "market socialism" ideas have been introduced. "It could be a very important educational experience for the Russians," he says.

At the 26th Soviet Communist Party Congress last February, party chief Brezhnev held up some of the East European innovations as exemplary. But no doubt the 74-year-old Brezhnev will be the man to put such policies into action.

The Soviet government tacitly about such things but Brezhnev doesn't appear in robust health, and all sort of ailments have been ascribed to him in the West. In any event, his age alone focuses increasing speculation over succession.

"The honest answer is, we don't know," an American government official says. "We just don't have a good feel for high politics in the Kremlin, no matter what anybody tells you."

But using past performance as a guide, the Kremlin-watchers have developed a favorite scenario: Brezhnev will be succeeded first by an interim leadership from the old guard (the average age of the 14 full members of the Politburo in 1970, followed in two or three years by a more permanent new team.

Most view longtim Brezhnev associate and stand-in Andrei Kirilenko as likely immediate replacement. But he's the same age as Brezhnev.

Ruble notes that the "Brezhnev generation" will be replaced by men who came to political maturity in the post-Stalin period. "It may make a considerable difference in style," he said.

He cited the example of Soviet Georgia party chief Eduard Shevardnadze, who consults public opinion polls in his republic and whose speeches are "very blunt about shortcomings."

At the same time expansion of the work force is slowing. U.S. Commerce Department demographer Murray Feshbach forecasts that the annual net increase in the working-age population will fall from a 1976 high of 2.3 million to a low of 285,000 in 1986.

Economist Victor Perlo, an American economist who has published a book in Moscow on the Soviet economy, defends it against its detractors. He notes by way of comparison, for example, that labor productivity in the United States has actually been declining. But Perlo agrees "there are serious problems in economic management."

One, he said, is the old Soviet phenomenon of "storming," in which a factory falls behind schedule in the first part of the month, then works overtime in the final days to meet the month's quota. Such inefficiency takes a heavy toll of Soviet production.

Another heavy burden on the economy is Soviet military spending. U.S. experts estimate 11 to 14 percent of Soviet GNP is devoted to defense. The current figure in the United States is 5.5 percent, but President Reagan wants to boost that to 7 percent by 1986. Soviet economic health may depend to a great degree on the course of the superpowers' military buildups, programs that each blames on the other.

Good weather and normal farm production could give the Soviet GNP a respectable growth rate of 3 percent in the next two years, BOND FORECASTS. "But this may prove impossible to sustain," he wrote, "since the Soviet economy will continue to be plagued by serious long-term problems."

Across the Polish frontier, the problems are of the kind that make history.

An independent labor movement, Solidarity, has risen under Poland's red-and-white banner, enlisted half the Polish work force and stood up to the Communist Party to demand fundamental change, including a decentralization of economic authority and greater political democracy.

Labor unions beyond party control violate the commandments of Marxism-Leninism. But for a year now the Kremlin, guardian of the communist faith, has allowed Solidarity to exist.

The American specialists, while not ruling out eventual Soviet army suppression of the Polish experiment, make two points: the "free union" idea is unlikely to spread to the Soviet Union, and the Soviets may be learning to co-exist with ideologically wayward partners.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

Your prospects for the coming year look very promising materially and financially. However, be extremely careful about spending unwisely and taking on long-term obligations.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Think twice before making promises or commitments today. Your intentions will be good, but something could come up later which may prevent you from fulfilling them. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in each of the seasons following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Think carefully today about the friends you put on your gift list. Although you'll want to treat them generously, they may be put in an embarrassing position if they're unable to reciprocate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be on your best behavior in socially today. Others will be watching you carefully. If your demeanor is improper, it could hurt your reputation.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Attitude means everything today. If you see yourself as the underdog, you may conduct yourself accordingly and come out a loser instead of the victor.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful today that you don't become involved in romantic intrigue. Stay away from one who is off-limits and could cause complications.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Associates will recognize it immediately if you try to use flattery or guile to get them to do your bidding today. Be sincere and direct.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This could be one of those days where it's easier to find excuses why things shouldn't be done than to do them. Tasks can't be rationalized away.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Subdue tendencies today toward being too possessive of one you love. Romance can't blossom properly in a smothering atmosphere.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In order to appease one for whom you care there is a possibility you could make some unwise concessions today. These might worsen matters rather than improve them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Get it in writing rather than make a verbal agreement with anyone who is performing special work or service for you today. Promises may not mean much.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be prudent today in the management of your finances and resources. Subdue temptations to spend more on yourself and others than you can afford.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Take a little extra time with your makeup and attire today if you are going where there is a chance you'll run into someone you'd like to impress. Appearance is important.

Doug McKeon in 'On Golden Pond'

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Most actors would be terrified to find themselves appearing in a movie with legendary stars Katharine Hepburn and Henry Fonda. Doug McKeon wasn't — but perhaps that was because of his age: 14 years.

McKeon, who is now a mature 15, refers to the stars as Kate and Henry, but during the filming of "On Golden Pond" in the lake country of New Hampshire, it was strictly "Miss Hepburn" and "Mr Fonda."

Jane Fonda was the third star of the film, and her company put together the project, for which critics are predicting a bushful of Oscar nominations. "Please call me Jane," she

Hayley Mills is no longer a little girl

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It's been two decades since Hayley Mills was introduced to American moviegoers as Walt Disney's pig-tailed "Pollyanna."

The British-born actress is back, just barely recognizable as a pioneering wife and mother in public television's "The Flame Trees of Thika."

"I was in a shop in London not long after 'Flame Trees' was on there," recalls Miss Mills, now 35 and a mother of two. "I overheard two women talking: 'There's Hayley Mills. My, how she's aged.'"

"I was shocked at first, then I felt an enormous sense of relief," the actress says. "I have changed. I'm no longer that little girl, and all the people who enjoyed those films I made then will find we've aged together. And it's kind of nice, that we've all been down the same path, together."

Hayley Mills hasn't aged THAT much, though she considers herself a good deal more mature in mind and body. And her role in "The Flame Trees of Thika" is her first as a mother.

"That was the kind of woman I've never had the opportunity to play, a mature woman with a daughter," Miss Mills says, "and the character appealed to me."

"The Flame Trees of Thika," based on Elspeth Huxley's memoir of life in the African wilderness around the turn of the century, is the first "Masterpiece Theater" presentation of 1982, beginning a seven-week run Jan. 3.

As with many Public Broadcasting Service productions, air date and time may vary.

The part is Miss Mills' first in a TV series, though, she says, "For a variety of reasons, things I might have done like this just didn't happen."

"I had contracted to do 'The Pallisers,' but they wanted to start just two months after I'd had my first baby, and I was exhausted and not entirely fit to take on a series. Then, I was ready to do 'The Duchess of Duke Street,' and I found I was going to have my second baby."

Both those British-made miniseries became hits in this country.

names, but became very close to them just the same. McKeon plays Fonda's future grandson in the film.

Michael Bennett in 'Dream Girls'

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Critic
NEW YORK (AP) — "I'm always scared to death opening night," says Michael Bennett. "It's never been any different and it never will be."

This Sunday, Dec. 20, is one of those nights for him.

It's when "Dream Girls," a new musical staged by the man who gave you "A Chorus Line," bows on Broadway. It's about three young black women, backup singers for a male soul-music star.

As befits a Bennett undertaking, it's not a tiny venture. It has a big band, a cast of 32 and, he says, a $3-million budget — possibly a Broadway record even though he breezily describes the show as your basic $1-million musical "with inflation."

With the book and lyrics by Tom Eyan and a score by Henry Krieger, "Dream Girls" arrives here from a tune-up run in Boston, where it did very well at the box office.

Out-of-town success is very nice, says Bennett, a small, wiry, intense man who conducts business clad in an orange baseball cap, sneakers, a sweat shirt and gray corduroy pants.

But he doesn't relax, doesn't think any show is surefire until the Broadway critics and the public say so.

"No," he says, igniting a cigarette. "The truth is, until it's a smash hit in New York, I don't believe it."

Such is the gospel according to Bennett, 38, a former chorus "gypsy" who's suffered the lows and savored the highs of theater since 16 when, he says, he was a hoofer in the European version of "West Side Story."

His big-league track record includes not only "Chorus Line," which he conceived, directed and choreographed, but also "Promises, Promises," "Coco," "Company" and "Follies," all of which he choreographed.

"Chorus Line" is still on Broadway after five years, nine Tony awards, a Pulitzer Prize and, according to a spokesman, net profits of $25 million at last report.

But that smash hit has made Bennett extremely aware that the Broadway crowd now is waiting to see if with "Dream Girls," he can rebound from his last musical — a glittering, waltzing 1978 flop called "Ballroom."

Based on an acclaimed CBS special, "Queen of the Stardust Ballroom," it was a love story about a lonely widow and a married man who meet in a ballroom frequented by middle-aged lonelyhearts.

He lost $2 million of his own money on it, a process he says began when he needed a large set for the show's planned first staging and Joseph Papp's Public Theater, where "Chorus Line" began.

The theater proved too small, he explains, so "Ballroom" had to "be a Broadway show from the beginning."

CHRISTMAS CARD DRAWS CRITICISM. This is a reproduction of a Christmas card taken from a "Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms" publication. The card shows a gun-toting Santa, protecting himself from muggers and robbers. The card was sent to members of Congress and reads, "Best wishes for a safe Christmas and a crime free New Year."

Gun lobbyist's Christmas card criticized

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A pro-gun lobbyist, saying Santa Claus might need protection these days "against robbers and muggers," has sent members of Congress a Christmas card showing Santa pulling a handgun on a thief stealing presents.

The card, from John Snyder of the Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms, was promptly attacked as being in "bad taste" by Rep. Jonathan Bingham, D.N.Y., who backs strict gun-control laws.

"I really object to this kind of violent imagery," Bingham said. The card "pictures Santa, hiding behind a Christmas tree, peering through his handgun sight and taking aim at the back of a figure kneeling before the fireplace," Bingham said. "Since some of the packages from under the tree have been unwrapped and their contents scattered around the floor, one is probably supposed to assume that the figure who is about to take Santa's slug in the back is stealing presents from under the tree. "Obviously, this Santa comes from the 'shoot first, ask questions later' school." Snyder denies his gun-toting Santa intends to shoot the intruder. "The gun's pointed toward the guy, but it's not pointed at him," he said. "Santa's trying to stop the guy."

Snyder argued that with robberies increasing in many parts of the country, it is fitting for Santa to carry a gun. "Obviously, someone like Santa Claus who's giving presents to everybody would like to prevent those presents from being stolen. A handgun is one way of doing that," he said. "It's very proper to give Santa the chance to protect himself against robbers and muggers."

NAMES IN THE NEWS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Superior Court judge is considering a request for a fourth trial to determine if an 8-year-old boy should be declared the son of actor Chad Everett.

Three decisions so far have been in favor of the actor, whom the boy's mother, Sheila Scott, claims is the father.

The retrial request was presented in a two-hour hearing Friday. Judge Raymond Cardenas said he would take it under advisement along with a motion by Everett's attorneys asking that the boy's birth certificate be altered so that Everett is not listed as the father.

Cardenas also gave both sides until Dec. 20 to submit briefs on another motion by Everett's attorneys — to hold the boy, as an unsuccessful plaintiff, responsible for all defense costs except for attorney fees, a sum Ms. Scott said amounted to $35,000.

On Nov. 3, a jury upheld the 45-year-old star's claim that he did not father Ms. Scott's son, Dale Andre Everett, after meeting Ms. Scott on the set of his since-cancelled TV series, "Medical Center."

HAMPTON, Va. (AP) — The Rolling Stones wound up their American tour Saturday night with a sold-out concert.

The veteran rock 'n' rollers, led by Mick Jagger, have performed before more than 1 million people on the tour, which began Sept. 25 in Philadelphia.

Both Hampton Coliseum shows here, on Friday and Saturday, sold out in less than 2½ hours.

LONDON (AP) — Former Liberal Party leader Jeremy Thorpe, acquitted 2½ years ago of plotting to murder a former male model, plans a political comeback, according to British press reports Saturday.

Thorpe, 52, is being considered as a possible candidate for Parliament by the Liberal chapter in the southwest England city of Taunton, local leader Ann Wynn-Wilson said.

"His name came up along with other candidates who failed to win seats at the last election," the tabloid quotes Thorpe as saying.

Thorpe was found innocent in June 1979 of conspiring to murder Norman Scott, a former male model who said he had a homosexual relationship with the party chief. The scandal cost Thorpe his party leadership, which he quit in 1976, and his seat in the House of Commons in the May 1979 general election.

LONDON (AP) — Prince Andrew, wearing a brief Roman tunic and sandals, danced and clowned until the wee hours at a Royal Navy base Christmas party, the Daily Mirror reported Saturday.

The 21-year-old brother of Prince Charles is a helicopter pilot attached to the base at Culdrose in Cornwall, where the tabloid said the party was held Thursday night.

The paper said Andrew "moved freely" among other pilots and officers, some dressed up as Muppets.

INDIO, Calif. (AP) — Betty Ford's facelift now has a legal wrinkle.

A $120 million lawsuit accuses a doctor of wrongly claiming credit for the former first lady's new look.

Dr. M.R. Mazaheri of Palm Springs is seeking general damages and an injunction against Dr. Boroko Djordjevic, a plastic surgeon also of Palm Springs.

Mazaheri claims Djordjevic or others speaking for him say Djordjevic "performed cosmetic surgery" on Mrs. Ford or that he did surgery "to correct damage done" by Mazaheri when he lifted Mrs. Ford's face, at a fee of $3,200, three years ago. The suit was filed Tuesday in Riverside County Superior Court.

Djordjevic denies he operated on Mrs. Ford, that he claimed to do so or that he ever said anything bad about Mazaheri.

Ann Cullen, secretary to Mrs. Ford, who lives in Rancho Mirage, sent a letter to Mazaheri saying, "The surgery that you have performed is the only surgery that she has undertaken." The Sept. 10, 1981, letter is attached to the lawsuit.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An appeal is planned against a $663,000 award to entertainer Cher in her suit against the Star tabloid. Forum magazine and a freelance writer, a Star lawyer says.

Cher didn't contest the accuracy of the material. She did say that an interview she gave to writer Fred Robbins for Us magazine appeared without her permission in Star and Forum.

Star lawyer Howard Squadron said the decision, reached after a non-jury trial in U.S. District Court, would be appealed. "If the decision is allowed to stand, it will inhibit the freedom of the American media to report on public figures," he said.

Cher had asked for $5 million in punitive damages and an unspecified amount in compensatory damage. Judge Manuel Real awarded $325,000 in punitive damages, $200,000 general damages and $138,000 for corrective advertising, said her lawyer, John Forbess.

"I'm totally satisfied," Cher said after Thursday's ruling.

Old problems facing the new Polish settlers

By JOE FOHN
San Antonio Express
PANNA MARIA, Texas (AP) — Along Texas 123 South from Stockdale to Karnes City, the roadside signs tell proudly of the region's Polish ancestry. Kosciusko, Pawelekville, Cestohowa and Panna Maria, established in 1854, making it the oldest Polish colony in the United States. Residents of these towns are disturbed by the news coming from Poland, for similar circumstances drove them or their ancestors from there.

"They're freedom-loving people," mused the Rev. Erwin A. Juraschek at his rectory at Cestohowa. "That's why they are here." Juraschek held hastily prepared prayer services this week for the protection and safety of the beleaguered residents of Poland, at the request of concerned parishioners.

Like his Panna Maria counterpart, the Rev. Bernard Goebel, Juraschek is of Polish ancestry. But where Goebel experienced first-hand the Nazi holocaust from a cell at Dachau, Juraschek is American-born. And their parishioners, along with others nearby, vary in the depth of their bonds to Poland.

With the spirit of reform and their resistance to communist domination since World War II, modern Poles face much the same challenge as did the ancestors of South Texas Polish-Americans more than 120 years ago, Juraschek said.

"Otto von Bismarck was imposing on their freedom back then, so they came over here. Now, these people can appreciate and understand this business (events in Poland).

"Their roots are still there, but they're second- and third-generation Americans," Juraschek said.

With the passage of time, some of the most obvious outward signs of Polish influence are beginning to blur here. The culture, especially the youth, is growing more American, less Polish.

Hagan Dworaczek, 58, a butcher shop owner in Kosciusko, speaks the Polish dialect he learned as a child. His son, however, understands only a few of the phrases and speaks no Polish at all.

Dworaczek said he is concerned about Poland's problems, especially the prospect of Soviet intervention. But he adds, "we're (Americans) having problems too. In Libya. And with Cuba."

He said he is too young to answer questions about his great-grandfather's feelings for the old country.

"But anybody who ever came here from Poland never regretted it. They'd never go back," Dworaczek said.

Sam Swierec, Falls City mayor whose family settled at Panna Maria, echoed Dworaczek's sentiment. As to the special significance of Poland's problems, Swierec said they are secondary.

"I hope it doesn't come to all-out war. But I'm American."

"Both my father and grandfather were born in the United States. My family came in the very first group to come over, in the 1850s."

But he added that many here do retain close ties with Poland, and he is sensitive to their feelings as well.

One who never broke contact with Poland is Felix Snoga, 76, retired storekeeper and postmaster in Panna Maria who now lives quietly with his wife, Ella.

When his father came here at age 4, two brothers and a sister came along, but one brother stayed.

His descendants, cousins of Felix, live there today, and Snoga and his wife regularly send them foodstuffs and other provisions through a Polish-American aid agency.

After World War II, Snoga sponsored a Polish refugee who has since moved to Milwaukee. The man returned to Panna Maria four years ago, a guest at Snoga's 50th wedding anniversary.

Meanwhile, at Snoga's old store across the highway from the spotless white Catholic church, the prevailing talk was not of Poland, but of an early morning thunderstorm that had brought unexpected — but not unneeded — moisture to pastures and oat fields in this agricultural region.

"Once in a while, they'll say something about what they see in the paper."
