Sit-in strikes are short of shutdown in Poland

By The Associated Press
Sit-in strikes were reported in major industries across Poland, but the protests against the government's crackdown on Solidarity apparently were far short of the general strike urged by militants in the independent trade union.
The Polish and Soviet government news agencies said major factories in the Warsaw area were operating normally, but the British Broadcasting Corp. reported from London that 7,000 workers at a Warsaw steel mill struck for the second day. There were also unconfirmed reports that students occupied a university building in Warsaw.

The Soviet news agency Tass said Polish authorities broke up a strike at a steel mill in southern Katowice, and that the "provocateurs will be tried under the criminal code in conformity with the martial law decree."

Poland's ambassadors in Paris and at the European security conference in Madrid said Solidarity leader Lech Walesa was negotiating with Polish authorities near Warsaw and that his influence could ease the situation, indicating the regime wanted him to urge unionists not to strike.

In Washington, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said Monday that a pending $200 million food package to Poland has been held up "until the situation clarifies."

Danish travelers who left Poland Monday night said although the Polish government had deployed troops and armor across the nation it was sending large convoys of food to cities. Charity groups in the Netherlands said the Polish martial law government also was allowing Christmas parcels into the country.

In London, foreign ministers of the European Common Market urged Polish authorities to solve the crisis "without the use of force," and said all countries, including the Soviet Union, should "refrain from any interference."

Solidarity and other sources reported strikes Monday in the Silesian coal mines, steel mills in Warsaw, Katowice and Krakow, the big Lenin shipyards in Gdansk, where the union was born in the strike wave of 1980, most factories in Poznan and Wroclaw, the big Ursus tractor factory outside Warsaw and other factories in the capital.

The ruling military council Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski named when he declared martial law Sunday tried to check the protests by putting the steel and coal industries and other factories under military control. This made strikers in them liable to prison terms or even the death penalty.

Police and troops surrounded several of the struck plants, including steel mills in Warsaw and Krakow, witnesses reported. Warsaw Radio, in a broadcast monitored in West Germany, said there were between 20 and 50 arrests of "irresponsible Solidarity extremists" at the big Huta steel mill in Katowice. Solidarity militants distributed leaflets calling for a general strike Monday, the first work day after Communist government proclaimed state of emergency, suspended a 9.5-million-member union that had been challenging it for 16 months and rounded up thousands of union leaders and activists.

One member said the union was stunned into inaction by the removal of its leaders, hence the sporadic response to the strike call. But independent reports from Warsaw said the strike appeared to be wearing off, and survivors of the roundup Sunday were beginning to try to reorganize. However, they were hampered by government's disruption of communications throughout the country.

Normal communication lines abroad of The Associated Press and other Western news agencies also were disrupted Monday.

Although the government claimed Sunday that Solidarity's national leader, Lech Walesa, was not among those arrested and interned, he was reported being held incommunicado outside Warsaw after the government apparently failed to get him to appeal the workers' not to strike. Union sources said they didn't want him to make a statement unless it was recorded at a factory before witnesses to insure that he was not under "psychological duress."

City okays stop signs on 25th

BY LYNN HUNTER
Managing Editor

The Pampa city commission today gave informal approval for placement of stop and yield signs along 25th Street west of Duncan Street, as about 20 residents of the area looked on during today's regular commission meeting.

City Engineer David Pullham said the traffic commission had studied the problem along that street in September, but two accidents at the intersection of 25th Street and Beech on successive Friday evenings had prompted the residents to appear before commissioners today.

Commissioners said two stop signs would be placed at 25th and Beech and 25th and Evergreen with other intersecting streets controlled by yield signs. This seemed to be the consensus of the residents at the meeting.

Paul Brown, who resides at the intersection, said, "We live on that corner, and there are a lot of speeding cars. There is construction going on on Chestnut Street, and crews who are unfamiliar with the neighborhood and a lot of equipment coming in there. We want stop signs in there because of excessive speeds."

Dwight Fiveash, who resides on the northwest corner at 25th and Beech, said, "We signed petitions and went before the traffic commission in September. It's been three months and still no action has been taken on this. Now, there's been two accidents which could possibly have been prevented and could have involved serious injuries.

We're not trying to stop or end traffic on 25th Street. It will still be an artery. We're just trying to protect the people and the people that live there. I won't edge my lawn on that street without someone watching for traffic, and I've had one car in the yard."

City Manager Mack Wofford said the city engineer and police chief actually have the authority to place traffic control signs anywhere in the city for 30 days. After that, an ordinance must be adopted to enforce the traffic controls on a permanent basis.

City Commissioner O. M. Prigmore suggested that Pullham and Police Chief J. J. Ryzman place signs along 25th Street as suggested by the residents "to just try it a while."

Commissioner Clyde Carruth suggested speed limit signs, reminding residents of the 30 mph speed limit, be placed along the street also.

Pullham said during traffic studies for the traffic commission in September had showed that traffic along 25th Street outnumbered north-south traffic by a ratio of 6 to 1. He said he felt residents would ultimately be unhappy with control signs only on 25th Street.

"I think they will notice more speeding cars on the north-south streets," Pullham said. "But this seems to be what they want."

In other business, city commissioners gave City Attorney Don Lane the go-ahead to draw up an ordinance closing a portion of Texas Street which has never been opened between Ward and West Streets as the first step in the sealed bid sale of a lot where the pump station was formerly located.

Wofford said the well on the lot has been abandoned and plugged, and the city foresees no future use for the land.

"It was our feeling that the best thing we could do would be to put the land back on the tax rolls. We don't want to sell it at less than market value, and we plan to have an independent appraisal of the land," Wofford said.

He said the city attempted to lease the surface in 1978, but no contract was ever signed.

"We've had a number of requests about the property," he said.

The property, which lies north of Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Home, would have 110 feet of frontage onto Ward Street.

City commissioners also approved. —Second and final reading of an ordinance increasing Energas rates by about 13 percent. The rate increase will become effective Wednesday if five other cities considering the increase today approve it.

—Second and final reading of an ordinance to pave Somerville Street, west of Sumner Street, and setting assessments for residents.

—Approved two public hearings on the annexation and zoning of Chaumont Addition, located north of the Country Club, west of Loop 171 and east of the Mesilla Park Subdivision. The public hearings will be 9:30 a.m. Jan. 12 during the regular meeting and 11:30 a.m. Jan. 15 at the site.

Israelis are bracing for trouble

MAJDAL SHAMS. Golan Heights (AP) — Israeli settlers on the Golan Heights cleaned out bomb shelters today as their government braced for possible military trouble from Syria following Israel's annexation of the Golan Heights.

U.N. spokesman Hugo Rocha, who visited U.N. peacekeeping forces on the Golan, said there were "no extraordinary movements in the area."

Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan, Israel's military chief of staff, was called home in the middle of a five-day visit to Egypt, and the Defense Ministry declared that the army had taken "all necessary steps" against possible Syrian troop movements or guerrilla attacks on the Golan settlements, Israel Radio said.

In Damascus, the Syrian defense minister, Maj. Gen. Mustafa Tlass, declared "the sword is the best answer" to the annexation. He made the statement as he emerged from a four-hour emergency session of the Syrian government.

Israeli settlers, and some Druse Arabs were elated that Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government had rushed the Golan annexation bill through parliament Monday, but there was concern that Syria might attempt some military action against the area which Israel conquered from Syria in 1967.

Meir Vaish of Katzin, the largest of 31 Israeli settlements on the Golan, said the Israelis had spontaneously started cleaning their bomb shelters during the night.

"We have always lived with the fear of attack and we believe there won't be hostilities," Vaish said. "But some kind of reaction may come and we should be ready."

However two days later, I was contacted about the meeting with Solidarity. All I knew was that I was going to meet with one of the leaders. I did not know when, with whom, or where, just that it would take place," she said.

"This was very unusual for two reasons. The women of Poland are not active in politics. They are too busy trying to find food for their families, and because I was an American," she said.

Mrs. Warminski asked that her son, Norman, who was also studying in Poland, be able to attend the Solidarity meeting.

"Some time later, during breakfast, two men from the party came to me and said, this was the day I would meet with Solidarity. I asked if I could take a tape recorder to the meeting," she said.

"We drove into town and then walked about 26 blocks to the Solidarity offices. I met with Antonio Stawikowski, president of the Torten division of Solidarity," she said.

The Solidarity Union is not secretive.

Gray commissioners urge test halt

A resolution calling for a halt to test drilling in 25 Panhandle counties to locate a possible site for storage of toxic wastes was adopted today by the Gray County Commissioners.

Drafting of the resolution by Judge Carl Kennedy was prompted by the Swisher County Commissioners who earlier drafted and approved the same type resolution. The resolution will be sent to state officials.

"This resolution says that until it is proven there is no danger involved in such storage, we don't want the waste buried here," Kennedy said.

Commissioner Precinct 3 James McCracken said there is currently a great deal of waste storage controversy.

"But regardless of what is going on, we do not need the waste storage here, where the Ogalla aquifer could be in danger," McCracken said.

"It doesn't take much judgement to see that it just doesn't belong here. We don't need it," McCracken said.

"They said nuclear energy would be the most efficient and least expensive type of energy. I am not convinced it is either," McCracken said.

Precinct 4 Commissioner Ted Simmons said the same type resolution was being drafted by the West Texas

Association of County Commissioners. "I almost don't think the government seriously considers using the test site," Simmons said.

Precinct 2 Commissioner Ronnie Rice wryly suggested the "U.S. store all toxic waste in Libya."

In other action commissioners authorized Precinct 2 to advertise for bids for a truck tractor and executed the oil leased for Gaines County School lands.

The insurance rates for county buildings were discussed with Kay Francher. The current values of the buildings is listed at $4,985,736. Francher told the court that for the 1982 insurance rates, the building values would be raised 10 percent, bringing the total value to $5,484,311.

Weather

The forecast calls for partly cloudy skies today with temperatures reaching the upper 50s. Winds will be 10-15 mph today. Conditions will be cooler on Wednesday with temperatures in the low 50s and gusty winds.

Area resident provides insight on thinking of the Polish people

BY SHEILA ECCLES
Staff Writer

With the people of the world watching and virtually helpless to aid Poland, the Polish union Solidarity, trade union of the people, is struggling for survival.

The news channels from Poland have been closed, and only sketchy accounts of the situation are being relayed to outside nations. However, a White Deer resident, Mrs. Proxie Warminski, is able to provide some insight into the people and the latest situation. She was in Poland during the early summer months studying ethnology at Copernicus University.

Her concern for the country of her ancestry prodded her to ask questions and eventually win an interview with Antonio Stawikowski, Torun District leader of Solidarity.

"I stayed in Torun, which is a city close to the place where Solidarity meets. Due to our interest in the people and the government, we asked to have a Polish Communist Party leader come and speak to us," Mrs. Warminski said.

"We finally met the Polish Government man, a professor, and we did go around and around. There was a terribly tense feeling in the small group, but we asked our questions," she said.

"We wanted to know about the government, and how it was run. We had spoken to many of the University professors, who were not in sympathy with the Polish government, so we knew what to ask," she said.

"After the discussion, I asked if I could speak to someone from Solidarity. There was no answer," she said.

However two days later, I was contacted about the meeting with Solidarity. All I knew was that I was going to meet with one of the leaders. I did not know when, with whom, or where, just that it would take place," she said.

"This was very unusual for two reasons. The women of Poland are not active in politics. They are too busy trying to find food for their families, and because I was an American," she said.

Mrs. Warminski asked that her son, Norman, who was also studying in Poland, be able to attend the Solidarity meeting.

"Some time later, during breakfast, two men from the party came to me and said, this was the day I would meet with Solidarity. I asked if I could take a tape recorder to the meeting," she said.

"We drove into town and then walked about 26 blocks to the Solidarity offices. I met with Antonio Stawikowski, president of the Torten division of Solidarity," she said.

The Solidarity Union is not secretive.

but it also cannot broadcast through the media, only the Polish Communist Party leaders are allowed to give statements. So the information that comes from Solidarity passes through word of mouth or by letters.

"We were ushered in. Stawikowski spoke perfect English. The tape recorder was allowed, and I have a 30-minute tape. What he said on this tape, made in August, is now coming true," she said.

"He wanted me to know that all the people in Poland are very much for Solidarity. The party people are only a very small minority," she said.

Poland was a democracy before World War II, but after being completely destroyed during the war, President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill gave Poland to the Soviets as a bloc country.

"The Polish people are brave. There have been liberation movements started before, but they were gunned down. We never heard of these incidents. But they fought on," she said.

"As we discussed Solidarity, I learned that Solidarity was not aiming to be a political party, only a trade union," she said.

"He also told me that he thought the people would have no coal this winter. All the coal is going to the government. Russia is squeezing them every way they can," she said.

"He also thought the people would have only potatoes and bread to eat this winter," she said.

Mrs. Warminski asked if the people were frightened of Russia.

"They have been afraid of Russia since they can remember. Everybody in Poland remembers the war, 40 years ago, and the events since," she said.

"The people at first were afraid to trust anyone. When my parents visited Poland eight years ago, the Poles were afraid to even talk about the government. They would never speak of things in front of the children, because the children were interrogated each day in school. There was a great deal of fear then," she said.

"But suddenly, now, the people have come to their breaking point. They will not take it any longer," she said.

"While visiting with the people, I learned what they felt. I got the feeling if Walesa, the leader of Solidarity, is arrested now, the union could be crushed," she said.

"I don't think Russia will step in, and so far they haven't," she said.

"The Polish Army will follow orders only to a point. The soldiers are the sons of people that have gone through the war. I don't think these sons will turn against their own people," she said.

"As soon as I landed in Poland, I was asked about President Reagan. The Polish are eager to know about the man. They want to know if he would keep his word," she said.

"The Polish don't get much news, and I don't know how they get what little they do, but they know about Reagan and the people are very hopeful for him," she said.

"But the University professors are more skeptical. They wonder if Reagan will do to them what President Roosevelt did," she said.

"The Slavic people understand only one thing, and that is power. Ho powerful are you," she said.

"These people have been so oppressed for so long. There is no food in the supermarkets. There is no paper to write on, and they must live in government houses," she said.

"The lack of food may be Russia's way of keeping the people in line. But where does all the food go? No one knows," she said.

"The Polish farmers are only allowed to have 25 acres. If the farmer wants to borrow a government tractor or another farm machinery, he must give one-half of his crop to the government so the Polish farm by hand," she said.

"The farmers have no machinery at all, all the machinery is owned by the government, just as everything else is," she said.

"The Polish Communist government tries to say that the food shortage is caused by the Polish farmers because they do not grow enough food," she said.

"Barring all, I told the Polish Communist Party leader, it was ridiculous to blame the farmers for the food shortage and 25 acres is not enough to turn a tractor around in," she said.

"When ships come in from America loaded with food, the people don't always receive it. The only way before was to send it through the Catholic Church," she said.

"The Russians have treated the church very carefully. The Poles would lay down their life for the church," she said.

"A shipload of turkeys sent by the church did get to the people through the efforts of the churches. This is the only thing I can actually vouch for, because I saw it," she said.

Shortly after arriving back in the U.S., Mrs. Warminski received a letter from the Solidarity leader she had interviewed.

"He did not ask for money or for food. He wanted paper, any kind of paper," she said.

"The people can only leave Poland if they have American money. You cannot take any Polish money out of the country. Therefore, they cannot leave," she said.

"The Poles are pooling their money to get the young people out of the country, but the rest will stay and fight for as long as it takes," she said.

Family assistance sought

The parents of this family have adopted four children in order to keep the children together when their parents were about to desert them.

This act of love has cost several hundred dollars in legal fees and many other expenses involved in taking care of their own three children and the four adopted children.

If you would like to help this and other families have a merry Christmas, send your contributions to The Salvation Army, Box 1458, Pampa 79063.

Beirut Iraqi Embassy toppled by bomb

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A booby-trapped car driven into the Iraqi Embassy compound blew up and crumbled the five-story building today, and police said 20 people were killed and more than 30 injured. The ambassador was among the wounded.

A police spokesman, who declined to be identified because of government rules, said the car was driven into the compound "despite machine-gun fire from embassy guards." He said the driver was killed.

The force of the explosion tipped over vendors' carts some 700 yards from the new building that Iraq's diplomatic staff moved into just over a year ago.

Rescue workers pulled bodies from the rubble more than one hour after the midday blast.

U.S.-Soviets meet again on nuclear missiles

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — U.S. and Soviet negotiators met for two hours today to discuss reducing medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

No details were given because of a news blackout agreed to both sides.

Another session was scheduled for Friday. The military takeover in Poland thus caused no change in the schedule of two meetings per week with a possible Christmas break. The talks began Nov. 30.

Today's session took place in the Geneva office of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency in accordance with the agreed rotation of sites between the two delegations.

President Reagan was quoted as expressing optimism the talks could lead to reductions in the size of nuclear arsenals. His comments were reported by the head of a papal delegation which called on Reagan at the White House Monday.

The delegation spokesman, Prof. Victor Weisskopf, said Reagan was handing a study commissioned by Pope John Paul II which concluded that "the only hope for humanity is prevention of any form of nuclear war."

Another papal delegation called on Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev in Moscow today, presenting him with

School trustees to discuss audits

The Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees is to discuss the 1980 - 1981 school audits and selection of a school auditor for 1981 - 1982 during its regular board meeting at 5 p.m. today in Carver Educational Service Center.

The board will consider bids for classroom furniture, audio - visual equipment and a pickup truck for the transportation department and also is to adopt the 1982-83 school calendar.

Approval of construction projects is also scheduled for discussion.

An executive session to consider personnel actions is possible, the board's agenda states.

U.S. officials say crackdown may be only temporary setback

WASHINGTON (AP) — The crackdown by the Polish government on the Solidarity labor movement was well-timed and may have been unavoidable because of growing chaos and economic hardship, in the view of some U.S. officials.

They believe Prime Minister Wojciech Jaruzelski is gambling that he can curb Solidarity's more extreme demands while maintaining the process of political reform that Solidarity set in motion more than a year ago.

If he succeeds, they believe, the crackdown will mark only a temporary setback to the reform movement that is dragging Poland steadily away from the Soviet bloc. If he fails, they don't rule out that Soviet military intervention would follow.

It is for these reasons that President Reagan and other senior officials have refrained from outright denunciations of Saturday night's actions by the Polish government. Official U.S. comment has been limited to expressions of concern and calls for compromise.

The impression is being given to reporters that if the Polish government can eradicate so-called excesses by labor union radicals while maintaining the reform process, the outcome of the crackdown will be quite acceptable to Washington.

Senior officials are encouraged that Lech Walesa, the top Solidarity leader, has not been arrested, although almost all other Solidarity leaders were taken into custody. They think that means the Warsaw government hopes to negotiate a compromise with Walesa.

The view held by these officials — who are willing to give candid assessments only on the condition their names not be used — is that Walesa is "a force for moderation" who may be willing to cooperate with the Jaruzelski government to help resolve the situation.

U.S. officials are by no means confident that a consensus can be formed or that Jaruzelski can achieve his aims without political repression and violence that could bring about Soviet intervention.

Although Secretary of State Alexander Haig said the United States lacked evidence of direct Soviet involvement, officials believe the Soviets did know what was going to happen and approved it.

Whether Jaruzelski's approach is working should be clear as the extent of public opposition to it becomes known and it is determined whether such opposition can be contained by peaceful means.

To make it work, senior officials believe Jaruzelski will have to relax the martial law and strict restrictions he has imposed and release many of those arrested.

Pope bars contraception, sacraments for divorced Catholics who remarry

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II refused today to change the Roman Catholic Church's ban on either artificial birth control or on giving the sacraments to divorced Catholics who remarry.

In his most comprehensive statement on family issues, the pontiff rebuffed American Catholics and declared that the truth "is not always the same as the majority opinion."

The document represented the pope's verdict on a package of 43 secret recommendations made by the world synod of Roman Catholic bishops last year.

During the month-long meeting, some of the American bishops asked for a reappraisal of the contraception policy, saying those who violate the ban on artificial methods are often conscientious Catholics.

They cited surveys indicating that 76.5 percent of American Catholic women use some type of artificial birth control method and only 29 percent of the Catholic priests in the United States believe such contraception is immoral.

The pope, however, emphatically rejected artificial contraception, saying it "degrades human sexuality" by permitting couples to act as "arbiters of the divine plan."

The only "lawful birth regulation," the pontiff continued, is the so-called rhythm method of sexual abstinence during a woman's fertile period. He said "every effort must be made" to spread knowledge of "the body's rhythms of fertility to all married people and to young adults."

The 167-page document also made these points:

- Catholic education must stress self-control and the "absolute necessity" of chastity.
- "Trial marriages" are unacceptable because they amount to "an experiment with human beings."
- Pastors should not turn down couples asking to be married in church for motives which are social rather than religious unless they reject "explicitly and formally what the Church intends to do."

Belli asks new trial for Hughes' relatives

HOUSTON (AP) — Melvin Belli, whose courtroom prowess earned him the nickname "King of Torts," wants to reverse a jury's verdict that denied 400 distant cousins a share of the late Howard Hughes' estate, an associate says.

Belli, a San Francisco lawyer, asked for a new trial Monday on behalf of the second cousins who contend they deserve half of Hughes' fortune, estimated to be as much as $2 billion.

"It's an effort to reverse the things that led to an unfair trial. A lot of deserving people got the short end of the stick," said Belli's associate, Daniel Smith.

Attorneys for an additional 100 second, third and fourth cousins also petitioned Probate Judge Pat Gregory for a new trial.

Gregory, who last month signed the final decree designating 17 maternal relatives and five paternal first cousins as Hughes' sole heirs, has 45 days to rule on both motions.

The 400 distant relatives challenged the claims of five paternal cousins, arguing that the late Elspeth Hughes Lapp — the first cousins' bloodlink to the late billionaire's fortune — was illegitimate.

The other 100 cousins, mostly from Alabama, claimed the real Elspeth died as a child and was replaced by an impostor.

On Sept. 4, a six-person jury swept away both challenges.

The 400 distant cousins turned to the 74-year-old Belli, who estimates he has won $100 million in civil damages during his 47-year career.

Belli once defended Jack Ruby, who was convicted and sentenced to death for murdering Lee Harvey Oswald, the accused of assassinating President John Kennedy. Ruby, a Dallas nightclub operator, died before his appeals could be heard.

Minimum Social Security benefits restored

WASHINGTON (AP) — Concurring with President Reagan's change of heart, congressional conferees are endorsing restoration of the minimum Social Security benefit for the 3 million current recipients who stood to lose it March 1.

But Senate and House negotiators agreed Monday that most new Social Security beneficiaries will not be eligible for the $122-a-month minimum benefit after Jan. 1.

Congress eliminated the minimum benefit, at Reagan's request, when it passed 1982 budget legislation in August. But a public outcry prompted Reagan to reverse himself and call for its restoration.

The Social Security legislation was expected to be taken up today by the full House and Senate, which must approve the agreement.

The agreement also would permit borrowing among the three Social Security trust funds until January 1983, a limit designed to force Congress to find more more comprehensive solutions to financing problems of the system by then. The conferees also agreed to a provision putting a new tax on sick pay.

People who were receiving the minimum benefit prior to November were to have lost it after their February check.

The estimated 5,000 people who have become eligible for the benefits since Nov. 1 have not received them, and it was unclear whether they now will get payments for November and December.

Under the conference agreement, which sets Jan. 1 as the cutoff date for new recipients, about 5,000 more people will get the minimum benefit than if a Nov. 1 cutoff date had been carried over in the revised version, said Robert Myers, deputy Social Security commissioner.

Under the agreement, members of religious orders would be able to come on the minimum benefit rolls for the next 10 years.

Social Security Administrator John Svahn also expressed pleasure at the conferees' action.

Water decline map completed

The Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District No. 3 has completed the work for the 1981 Decline Map.

The information needed for water depletion for the I.R.S. may be obtained from the Water District Office in White Deer. The office is open between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Anyone interested in starting a Water Depletion Program on irrigated land, can obtain the necessary information such as: saturated thickness, examples of cost in water, IRS Forms, and past years decline from the Water District Office.

City's record endeavor became a fiasco

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Once upon a time there was a city council that decided to go into the record business. They printed 10,000 copies of a 45-rpm disc called "I'm El Paso." They still have 9,000 of them.

The records remained packed in cardboard boxes at the El Paso Parks and Recreation Department, which got $9,000 from the city council in June to press the records.

Park officials and promoters of the record gave the council a preview of the record last May and only alderman David Escobar was unimpressed.

"I wouldn't have given two nickels for it," Escobar said. "I wouldn't have bought the record, but maybe they will unload it to somebody."

"I don't think it's inefficiency in the parks department. I just think it was a failure," Escobar said. "Some records sell and some don't. I just don't think the quality is there."

The $2 records were supposed to sell big during the city's 400th birthday celebration in July. The song is a narration of El Paso's history, landmarks and famous people to the tune of Marty Robbins' ballad "El Paso." It ends with, "I am 400 years old. I am El Paso."

Curtis Lee, co-producer of the record, said the city's 400th birthday spawned the record idea.

"We thought it would be a neat thing to have something like that for a commemorative souvenir," Lee, general sales manager for radio station KHEY, said. But the parks and recreation department sold only about 30 records during the celebration, department spokesman Henry Quintana said. "The more we thought about it, it was a big job market those records, but Mr. (Dale) Tate thought we could do it, so he went to city council for money," Quintana recounted. Tate was director of the parks department until forced into early retirement in August.

Quintana blames inadequate promotion for poor record sales during the city's anniversary celebration. The records arrived only days before the celebration, and Quintana said advertising couldn't begin until they were received.

New commissioner appointed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Dr. Gary E. Miller was named commissioner of the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation shortly after MHRM Board Chairman L. Gray Beck defended the latest attempt to reorganize the department.

Miller, whose appointment was announced by the board Monday afternoon, succeeds Dr. John J. Kavanaugh. Kavanaugh resigned the post earlier this year.

Miller now serves as director of mental health for the state of New Hampshire. He was deputy commissioner of the Texas department from 1967 to 1969.

In a Monday meeting of a special committee to study the department, the panel chairman, state Rep. Walter Grubbs, D-Abilene, criticized the plan as adding an "extra layer of bureaucracy" to the state's system of mental health care.

Grubbs said the new plan is the latest of about a dozen attempts to reorganize the department in the last 10 years. The Legislature has called on the MHRM Board to come up with a plan that would streamline the system and better coordinate state programs with local community centers.

The community centers receive state funds, but their employees do not work for the state.

Beck gave committee members copies of the proposed plan, but said the board plans no action until it digests public comments on the proposal and gives the new commissioner a chance to look it over.

"We obviously would want the new commissioner to feel comfortable with the reorganization plan," Beck said.

The plan was developed by a task force appointed by Kavanaugh, but Beck said a new task force would be appointed to sift through public responses to the proposal.

The plan would break the department's field organization into four sectors under regional managers who would report to a newly-created position of deputy commissioner for management, Beck said.

Beck said the regional concept would meet the Legislature's desire for increased coordination between the department and local mental health programs.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — If Charles Darwin were alive today, he would be a creationist, a New York scientist told U.S. District Court during the sixth day of the trial of a lawsuit attacking Arkansas' creation law.

Biochemical taxonomist Wayne Frair of The King's College in Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., testified Monday for the state in defense of the law, which gives a creation concept the same status as evolution in public schools.

"I personally feel it's time we allow the students of this state and nation to hear both views," Frair said. "I think the state of Arkansas is on the cutting edge of a progressive movement cutting through decades of prejudice and ignorance."

The American Civil Liberties Union filed the lawsuit May 27 for 23 plaintiffs, including scientists, educators and clergymen who say the law should be struck down before it takes effect next September.

The ACLU says the Balanced Treatment for Creation-Science and Evolution-Science Act violates the constitutional requirement for separation of church and state, violates academic freedom and is unconstitutionally vague.

Trial began Dec. 7. The ACLU presented 17 witnesses and rested its case Friday. The state has called five of its 13 witnesses. The trial should end this week. Judge William Overton says he hopes to rule on the case by Christmas. Attorney General Steve Clark says the ACLU might ask Overton to charge the state for up to $1 million worth of ACLU legal services if the state loses.

Darwin, viewed by some as the father of evolution, would be a creationist because the scientific data shows development within kinds of creatures, but not from one kind to another, Frair said. Missing links aren't found among fossils because they aren't there, he said.

Frair, a creationist, said science could benefit from the creation theory being taught alongside evolution because it would relieve scientists of pressure to force their data into an evolution theory that does not easily accommodate it.

He said creationism is sweeping the nation and is gaining support among scientists. On Nov. 5, in a talk at the American Museum of Natural History, one of the world's leading paleoichthyologists, Colin Patterson, said he felt that all his life he "had been duped into taking evolution as revealed truth," Frair said.

Evolutionists say life developed slowly through millions of years, that the earth is about 4.5 billion years old and that man and ape have a common ancestor. Creationists say the earth is 20,000 or fewer years old, that living kinds were created suddenly from nothing and that man has no link with ape.

Frair said evolutionists theorize that certain changes took place in blood cells as creatures supposedly evolved into man, but his research does not reflect such differences. His research included 15,000 measurements, he told the court.

On cross-examination, Frair didn't have a definition for the word "kinds," which figures in the law's definition of creation-science — change within "kinds." Many witnesses have told the court that the word comes from Genesis, not science.

Chemistry professor William S. Morrow of Wofford College in Spartanburg, S.C., who described himself as an agnostic, also defended the law. He said evolutionists claim creationism is unscientific because they don't like its conclusions. They have closed minds, he said.

Overton told Wofford, "You've expressed all sorts of opinions and I haven't heard one single solid basis for any of them."

Wofford said the creation concept authorized for public schools by the Arkansas statute is scientific but suppressed by "all sorts of assassinations," including rejection by established scientific journals. Frair said he has published articles in established journals.

A Fort Smith high school chemistry teacher, Jim Townley, said the law needed to free teachers to teach the creation view along with the evolution view so students will have all the relevant data.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing...

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Covering Commandment.

Warming to the Frost Belt

Just as the conventional wisdom was starting to accept the growth of the Sun Belt as inevitable, a study out of Harvard and MIT indicates that the reports of the death of the Northeast may have been somewhat exaggerated.

Scholars at the Joint Center for Urban Studies, drawing heavily on 1980 census figures, have concluded that the Sun Belt - Frost Belt designation is, at best, oversimplified. This country is too diverse to fall into such easy categories.

Specifically, the study suggests that two "Sun Belt" areas that have experienced fast growth in the last several decades, the Southeast and California, are likely to experience "decelerating growth" in the next decade.

What does this new bit of demographic information mean? The first conclusion is that one is well advised to be wary of demographic projections, including this one.

If demographic forecasting is less than reliable, it would seem to follow that federal programs based on demographic projections and designed to alleviate or compensate for the problems identified by them should be approached with more than the usual amount of skepticism.

Letter to the editor

To the Editor:

Because a number of people have wrongly concluded that St. Matthew's Episcopal Church was supporting the political views of the group of Buddhist monks who traveled through Pampa last week, I would like to explain how and why a few members of St. Matthew's came to have their limited contact with the monks.

Several weeks ago a former parishioner now residing in Amarillo called St. Matthew's to ask if we would help find housing for a group of Buddhist monks traveling to a United Nations Special Conference on disarmament. I made it abundantly clear to the caller that St. Matthew's would in no way, shape or form endorse the political position of the Buddhist monks.

Members of three other prominent Christian churches in Pampa also displayed Christian love in action by housing some of the travelers. Further, some of our parishioners out of the goodness of their hearts and out of their Last November Massachusetts voters passed Proposition 2 1/2, which slashed property taxes. Between then and July, member companies of the High Technology Council had already created 45,000 jobs. In recent months Massachusetts has ranked with the lowest one-quarter of states in unemployment.

Cause-and-effect relationships in society are seldom clear. Nonetheless, the record of failure compiled by federal programs designed to promote economic development is impressive. Cutting taxes, cutting red tape and getting out of the way appear to be much more hopeful approaches.

In the last 20 years the federal government has sponsored numerous programs designed to aid the ailing cities of the Northeast, and the most significant result has been to make cities more dependent on federal aid, often trapped in unproductive expenditures and boondoggles.

A more helpful approach is now being tested in Massachusetts, one of the states expected in this most recent study to experience economic growth, confounding the experts.

Between 1964 and 1977 state and local taxes and other revenues from sources such as fees and license had risen in Massachusetts from 11.6 percent of personal income to 17.2 percent. It was not just happenstance that the state acquired the popular moniker "Taxachusetts."

In 1977 a group of Massachusetts companies set up the High Technology Council to work for tax reduction. The firms pledged to create 60,000 new jobs by 1982 if they got substantial tax relief.

own pocketbooks provided a light meal for the monks at our parish hall.

When word of this quiet attempt to be humane and Christian appeared in the Pampa News, the opportunity for misunderstanding unfortunately increased. Some people in Pampa read between the lines of the news articles and incorrectly concluded that our parish was endorsing the tactics and politics of the visitors.

I hope that your readers will understand that as Jesus did not endorse the lifestyles of all his dinner companions, neither did we wish to make any statement about the Buddhist monks' politics.

In Christ's Name, The Rev. Ronald L. McCrary, Pastor St. Matthew's Episcopal Church

By CHARLES D. VAN EATON I haven't read the Atlantic article detailing budget director David Stockman's alleged condemnation of the Reagan economic program. But there has already been a flood of comment on Stockman's remarks from members of Congress - so I'll talk about Congress.

The Senate and House of Representatives have been haggling over a "continuation budget." They haven't yet completed final action on the fiscal year 1982 budget. You remember the fiscal 1982 budget - that's the one all the weeping and gnashing of teeth was about last summer.

The Gramm - Latta - Reagan budget was actually an adjustment of the budget presented to Congress by President Carter just before he left office. The budget resolution accepted by Congress (remember that fact) called for spending cuts of almost $35 billion.

Even with these cuts, however, total federal spending was still projected to be almost $50 billion more than Carter's previous budget - fiscal 1981.

After the Reagan "victory" on the budget resolution I wrote: "Although President Reagan won the budget resolution battle... he is far from winning the budget war. Budget resolutions don't necessarily mean a thing... the budget war is going to be won or lost in the individual congressional committees which consider the particular appropriation bills which make up the budget.

Congress and credibility

So what has Congress been doing? Congress has been ignoring the promise it gave America in its budget resolution vote last summer and has been systematically reporting out appropriation bills which exceed the limits they themselves agreed to.

In general this brazen disregard of the most elementary rules of honesty crosses party lines. Indeed the Republican leadership in both houses has, after complaining about how difficult it was going to be to get action on additional budget cuts, joined in the circus.

Both Republicans and Democrats in the Senate have voted for an Interior Department appropriation which was $1 billion over target. Both have continued to push funds for Rural Electrification over target.

Republican Senate leader Howard Baker has fought for and won funding for the Clinch River Breeder Reactor in his home state of Tennessee. He has also joined with Mississippi's John Stennis to fund the park-barrel Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway in the region of the country which forms their political base.

The Senate Appropriations Committee has voted out a health, education, and social services bill which is $1.6 billion over the spending target agreed to last summer.

That's not the end of it. The House Ways and Means Committee has voted down proposals endorsed by the director of the Congressional Budget Office - Alice Rivlin, a Democrat - which could have begun to stem the Social Security hemorrhage.

The budget resolution had no sooner been passed last summer before cries went up from Republicans and Democrats in both houses about the impending doom of budget deficits.

Something had to be done about the coming deficit, which was, they asserted, the direct result of tax cuts. Not too much spending, mind you, but not enough taxes. Republican Baker wants more taxes. Republican Pete Domenici, chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, wants more taxes. Democrat Gary Hart of Colorado wants to defer tax cuts because he's convinced that the tax cuts - which haven't even begun to actually reduce tax revenues - are the cause of the current recession.

How much higher do you think taxes ought to be, Senator Hart? If you measure the federal government's total receipts for each calendar year 1975 through 1980 and divide each year's figure by the number of persons employed in that year, you find the tax receipts per employed person have increased at a compounded average annual rate of 11.3 percent since 1975.

A lot of congressmen have said that Mr. Stockman has lost his credibility. I find it hard to believe that there are many members of Congress of either party who know much about the meaning of credibility.

Today is Tuesday, Dec. 15, the 349th day of 1981. There are 16 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Dec. 15, 1961, former Nazi Adolf Eichmann was sentenced to death in Jerusalem.

In 1916, the French defeated the Germans in the World War I battle of Verdun.

In 1965, the U.S. Mariner spacecraft relayed back data about Venus as it flew past the planet.

In 1974, U.S. Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. took over as Supreme Allied Commander in Europe.

And in 1979, the deposed Shah of Iran fled from the United States to what was called "temporary" exile in Panama.

Ten years ago, The Nixon Price Commission voted to limit increases in doctors' fees to 2 1/2 percent and placed a 6 percent ceiling on rises in hospital charges.

Five years ago, Spanish voters approved a government plan for free elections to choose a new parliament to rewrite the laws of the Franco dictatorship.

One year ago, Outfielder Dave Winfield became the highest-paid player in baseball history when he signed a contract with the New York Yankees for nearly $1.5 million a year.

Home for the holidays?

By ART BUCHWALD

I went over to see Harvey Dunlap during the Thanksgiving holidays and pay my respects to his kids, who were home from school.

"Max was eating breakfast, Chris was eating lunch and Dottie was holding hands with her boyfriend."

"I'd never seen Dunlap so happy. This is the first time since they've been home that we've had this many at the table at the same time."

"Who is that down at the end?" "That's someone Dougie brought from school. I think her name is Anna, and she's from Brazil. Do you speak Portuguese?"

"No. Where's Dougie?" "He's upstairs sleeping. I have an appointment to see him at five."

"An appointment?" I said. "Yes. You see, Dougie said he would be so busy this weekend it would be best for us to make an appointment with him. He worked Edna and me in for 5 o'clock."

"That's damn decent of him," I said. "Most college kids aren't that thoughtful."

"Well, as you know, Dougie is studying to be a doctor, and he probably got the idea from that."

"You want to go to a movie?" I asked Dunlap.

"I'd like to, but I don't know what the kids are doing yet, and I can't walk out on them in case they decide to stay home."

"When will you know?" "I'm not sure. They never can tell you until the last moment."

"Why don't you take a head count in the morning as to who will be eating dinner at night?" I suggested.

"We tried that yesterday. Everybody said they would be home for dinner, but as the day progressed they kept peeling off, because they had gotten a better offer. In the end there were only three of us - Edna, myself, and Anna."

"Dougie left Anna at home?"

"He had a date with his pals from high school, and told Anna she'd be bored."

"Max looks good," I said. "Come to think of it, he does. This is the first time I've seen him since he got home."

"Wasn't he at your thanksgiving dinner?" "He was going to Florida with a friend, but at the last moment the friend decided to go to Aspen, so he drove home and missed out Turkey by a day."

"How long is he going to stay?" "He says either until tonight, tomorrow or Monday, depending on some friends he's waiting to hear from in Vermont."

"It must be hard for you and Edna to make plans when no one is quite sure what they're up to. Where is Edna?" "She's out in the kitchen cooking a roast beef just in case anyone decides to stay home."

"Has she seen the kids yet?" "Yes and no. I believe they kissed her when they arrived, and she caught sight of two of them coming home this morning at 7 o'clock. But I think the only extended conversation she had was when she asked who took her car keys."

"If I were you," I said, "I'd make them sign up on a schedule indicating when they were bringing home, how many meals they were planning to have, and when their flights were leaving. As a parent you have a right to know that much about your children."

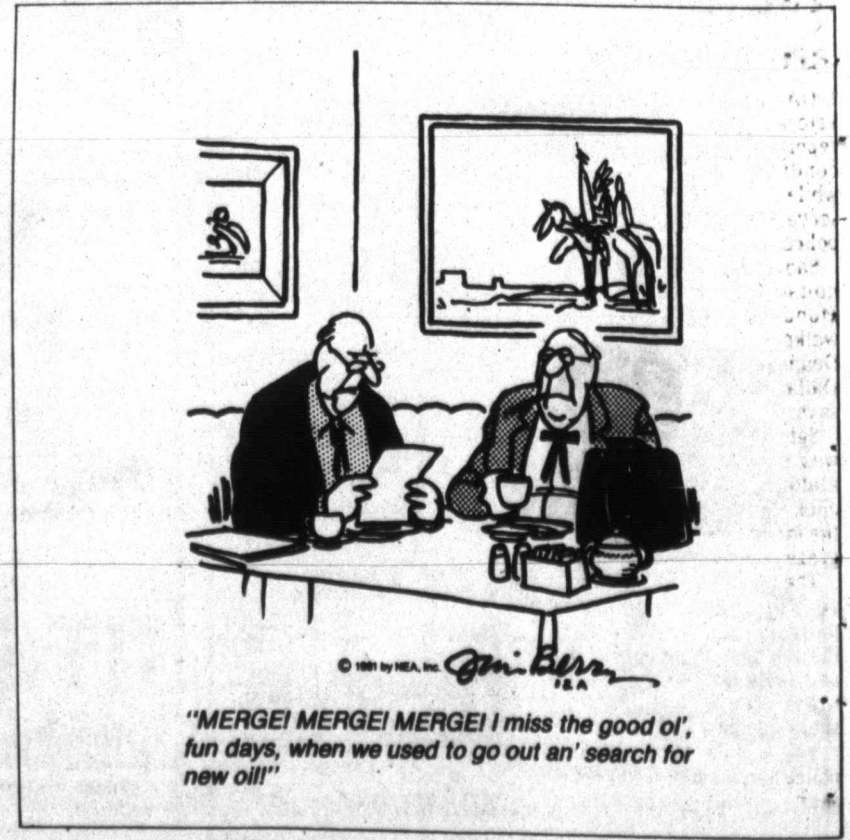

"We had that information when they came - but no one stuck to the schedule."

"So forget about them and do what you want to do."

"We announced that yesterday, and Chris said, 'If all you and Mom are going to do is go out, I don't see why we came home in the first place.'"

Conferees approve $200 billion defense bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A military spending bill totalling about $200 billion, approved after a closed-door session by a House-Senate conference committee, is believed headed for easy passage.

The version approved by the conferees Monday — less than $1 billion below what President Reagan wanted — would fund the Pentagon for fiscal 1982, which began Oct. 1. Congressional aides said the exact amount of the compromise had not been calculated.

The House last month had approved a $197.4 billion spending measure. The conferees' task was to reach a compromise with the Senate-approved measure, which totalled $208.6 billion. The measure approved by the committee is about $29 billion more than the Defense Department's appropriation for fiscal 1981. The compromise is expected to be approved before the Congress adjourns this week.

House-Senate conferees also approved an administration-supported plan to have the 3 million people receiving the minimum Social Security payment of $122 a month continue to get their benefits.

In other business Monday: —The House Rules Committee cleared the way for final congressional action this week on an $11 billion, four-year farm bill, which includes price support programs for major commodities and a one-year extension of the food stamp program. The Senate approved the compromise bill last week.

—Sen. Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., sought reinstatement of a strict anti-abortion provision in a billion Treasury Department spending bill. The provision would eliminate abortion funding for health plans for federal workers unless the mother's life was at stake. With the Senate trying to adjourn this week, it was uncertain whether the proposal would be brought up again.

—The House voted 391-2 to give the Coast Guard $159 million more than the Reagan administration sought for fiscal 1982, after hearing arguments that the service's efforts against drug smugglers are good investment. The action, if backed by the Senate would set the Coast Guard budget at $1.8 billion.

Recruit's father dismayed at drowning report

DALLAS (AP) — The father of a Marine Corps recruit who drowned during water survival training says he is "disappointed but not surprised" by a Marine report that calls the death accidental.

"There is nothing they can do to satisfy me about what happened out there," Artie Christian said. "But they should look into it truthfully ... This whole matter deals with the integrity of the Corps."

His son, Pvt. Randall C. Christian, 18, of Dallas, drowned Aug. 27 during training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot in San Diego, Calif.

Marine headquarters in Washington said Monday that the commandant of the Marine Corps, Gen. Robert Barrow, has approved a three-member investigating board's conclusions that the recruit's death "was the result of a training accident, and there was no misconduct, or criminally culpable act."

Barrow ruled that no disciplinary action would be taken "against anyone concerned." However,

Barrow has ordered a "comprehensive review" of all Marine swim training procedures.

The investigating panel discounted testimony from several Marine recruits who said Christian was pushed or pulled from the side of the swimming pool by a swimming instructor, Staff Sgt. Rudy Rodriguez.

"The panel concluded that Rodriguez 'did not prevent Pvt. Christian's attempting to reach the side ... The testimony which alleges that he did is unreliable.'"

Congressman Jim Mattox, who along with Christian's father has alleged that Marine instructors supervising the training session were negligent, said Monday that he plans to ask the House subcommittee on investigations to review the board's findings.

"Having the Marine Corps investigate itself amounts to having the fox guarding the chicken coop," said Mattox, a 6th District Democrat.

The investigating board, made up of three senior officers, conducted its formal probe at Barrow's request after an informal investigation found that Christian's death was accidental and that no negligence was involved.

The Marine Corps says Christian drowned while treading water when he became entangled with three other recruits.

"The four recruits were separated by two instructors, Staff Sgts. Rodney Jordan and Rudy Rodriguez," the statement said.

"Soon thereafter Christian stopped treading water and sank beneath the surface," Staff Sgt. Rodriguez dived down, grabbed him, brought him to the surface and carried him to the side of the pool."

PROTEST MEETING. Members of the Solidarity are seated in the front row during Monday night's meeting of Swiss unions' coordination organization in support of the Polish independent labor federation in Zurich. Solidarity activists in martial law declared Poland distributed leaflets Monday calling for a general protest strike but was able to mount only scattered strikes to protest the crackdown by Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski's military regime.

Congressional mood growing festive as adjournment nears

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The mood in Congress has been growing more festive as members wrap up legislative odds and ends and get ready to head home for the holidays and a long winter recess.

Until the lawmakers reconvene Jan. 25, 1982, Capitol Hill will be a virtual ghost town.

In the closing days of the 1981 session, members and their staffs were making it clear they had no appetite for prolonging the year-long budget confrontation with the White House into their Christmas break.

Staffers on the House Appropriations Committee were so eager not to go through the agony of more budget negotiations that many of them sported little handmade buttons that pleaded: "Anything but conference."

And Congress pulled it off, managing to glide through both chambers an identically worded $412 billion bill to continue financing for the government without resorting to the usually inevitable House-Senate conference committee.

Even as partisan a combatant as Democratic House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts was mellow. Sure, he told reporters, this year's outbacks in federal and state government services slowed efforts to dig New England out from under its recent heavy snowfall.

"God put it there. I'm afraid God's going to have to take it away," he quipped.

Members were still lobbing political grenades back and forth at each other to be sure, but the blasts were muted and often good-humored.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., told the Republican-led Senate:

"The cardinal, spiritual leader of the Archdiocese of New York, also said the church still recognizes U.S. men and women in uniform as 'true guardians of peace.'"

"Those who produce or are assigned to handle the weapons that make the strategy possible and workable can do so in good conscience," he said.

"Every nation has a grave moral obligation to reduce and ' ' to get rid of such weapons together.

Cardinal seeks arms race end

NEW YORK (AP) — In a Christmas letter to Roman Catholic military chaplains, Cardinal Terence Cooke calls for an end to the nuclear arms race but adds the "church does not require unilateral disarmament."

"Clearly, the upward spiral in armaments and what it implies must be ended," Cooke, the military vicar of the nation's armed forces, wrote the chaplains of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Veterans Administration. The letter was made public Monday.

The cardinal, spiritual

Two officers are wounded

DALLAS (AP) — Two veteran police officers were reported in serious but stable condition after being shot while approaching a house to serve a drug warrant, says police spokesman Bob Shaw.

Shots were fired from the house about 5:15 p.m. Monday as six policemen walked up to the house on Dennis Street in a West Dallas housing project, Shaw says.

Sgt. Thomas A. Wafer, 41, was shot in the lower right abdomen and Investigator Jack Gauding, 41, was shot in the lower left side and a bullet grazed his head, Shaw said.

The people in the house surrendered after one policeman responded with three shots from his pistol and another policeman fired a blast from a .12-gauge shotgun, Shaw said.

Two people were arrested, police spokesman Ed Spencer said.

Supreme Court refuses to allow prayer meetings in public school

WASHINGTON (AP) — A week after saying state college students must be allowed to use campus buildings for worship meetings, the Supreme Court refused to give that same right to public high school students.

Acting without comment Monday, the justices left intact rulings that prohibit a group of students at Guilderland High School near Albany, N.Y., from holding prayer meetings in a classroom. "We're surprised and very disappointed," said spokesman Orland Love of Milwaukee for the Catholic League, whose lawyers filed the appeal for the Guilderland students.

"Some hopes were raised last week when the court recognized that religious worship is a form of free speech," he said.

Although the issue is not settled definitively, the signal to lower courts at least for now is that treatment of religion in public schools still depends largely on the age of the students involved.

The Constitution's First Amendment forbids the government to "establish" or promote religion — a prohibition that sparked the Supreme Court's 1962 outlawing of organized prayer in public schools.

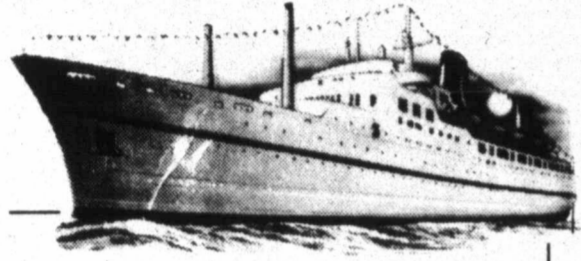

The Guilderland students had contended their case was different. Although they would be meeting at the high school, they would do so during non-class hours and without teacher supervision.

In other matters Monday, the nation's highest court took these actions:

—Left intact a ruling that Vietnam veterans cannot sue makers of the defoliant Agent Orange under "federal common law."

Veterans have claimed that Agent Orange has caused them severe health problems.

Television reporter, a surprise witness, tells of confession

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A TV reporter, saying his civic duty outweighed his obligations as a journalist, provided a surprise finale in the Freeway Killings trial, testifying that defendant William Bonin confessed to 21 killings in a jailhouse interview.

"I'd still be killing," Bonin was quoted as saying by reporter David Lopez, who provided details of the confession in the murder trial Monday after earlier refusing to go beyond limited testimony.

"I couldn't stop killing. It got easier with each one we did," Lopez said Bonin told him.

Bonin is charged with 12 slayings in what came to be known as the Freeway Killings case, so named because bodies of 44 young men and boys were dumped beside freeways in Southern California between 1972 and 1980. Officials say the killings might not all be related.

Bonin also said he led police to one victim's body solely because he wanted police officers to buy him a hamburger. Lopez testified.

Bonin, who was arrested in June 1980, received a letter in jail from the mother of Sean King, 14, of South Gate, pleading to have "my little baby buried for Christmas" and adding: "I forgive you for what you did. I'm a born-again Christian," Lopez said.

But Lopez said Bonin told him the day he led investigators to King's body in San Bernardino County: "I was dying for a hamburger and I knew if I went out with the cops they would buy me a hamburger."

Lopez works for KNXT in Los Angeles. Bonin's attorney, William Charvet, had tried to block his testimony and called it "very damaging" to Bonin's case.

Lopez said he decided to testify because "it was the only humane thing to do."

"We're journalists and we're also citizens," Lopez said outside court. "I testified as a citizen... You're a citizen first."

Lopez appeared earlier in the trial, but would only confirm the contents of a report he broadcast about the interview with Bonin. The report did not provide detail on the confession.

Lopez had claimed rights under California's shield law to protect a news source in his refusal to testify further, but said after his testimony Monday he felt that "a million-pound weight been lifted off my back," he said he believed mother and father's right to know about confession.

Bonin took notes during testimony.

Slow sales now will clog nation's economy

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Mirror

NEW YORK (AP) — To the retailing industry and its several million employees the closing weeks of the year are pivotal. Many stores do a quarter or even a third of their annual business in these few weeks.

What's unusual about this time around is the fragile position of the U.S. economy, already in a recession and threatening to get worse.

A rise in purchases before the end of the month could slow or even reverse the decline. Otherwise the economy will be clogged with unsold goods, meaning more tough times for business and jobs.

President Reagan and his economic policymakers will be watching Reagan's supply-side economic plan could desperately use breathing room if it is going to get the chance to work its promised wonders.

This year, store operators are being described as cautious, concerned or just plain scared. Evidence of their mood abounded in the torrent of price-cutting and "pre-Christmas sale" advertising that appeared at the very beginning of the season.

Surveying the scene on Thanksgiving Day, Raymond F. DeVoe Jr., an analyst at the securities firm of Legg Mason Wood Walker Inc. said he was tempted to conclude: "If the promotional barrage is this heavy and this early, then they must be panicking in anticipation of one lousy Christmas season."

DeVoe recalled, "last year's season started out slowly, and then climaxed in the last week with a surge of buying that left many retailers with sales gains as high as 17 percent."

But at this time last year, the economy was far healthier than now. For the 1981 holiday season, DeVoe noted, "the timing couldn't be worse. The entire Thanksgiving-Christmas period will be punctuated by bad and even worse economic news."

Veteran parking law expanded

Disabled veterans can look forward to an expansion of the state law regulating special parking for disabled veterans beginning in January.

The 67th Texas Legislature passed into law House Bill No. 308 which expands the state law regulating special parking for disabled veterans. The law previously stated that a veteran who, as a result of military service, has suffered at least 60 percent disability and who receives compensation from the federal government may register a passenger car or light commercial car for his or her own use, without paying a registration fee.

The new law provides the same exemption for a veteran who has a 40 percent service-connected disability due to the amputation of a lower extremity.

Lamb

Uncorrected heart damage

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR LAMB — How completely does coronary bypass surgery restore the heart to normal function? My wife has had damage from a myocardial infarction. What could cause chest pain in the chest upon lifting and with use of hands and muscles as hammering nails or turning screws?

I am made to feel this is imaginary. I recently met someone who explained having the same type of pressure on hammering nails. They did not know I experienced this problem so I know I am not an isolated case. How accurate is a stress test as an indication of ability to work after bypass surgery? I had a triple coronary bypass operation. I continue to have chest pressure on lifting 25 pounds of weight and most any physical exertion that requires strength from the hand and arm muscles.

DEAR READER — You have written about a very important point. A bypass operation does not correct the damage that has already occurred in the heart muscle from a previous heart attack. It doesn't even correct the disease in the arteries. It only provides a detour around areas of the arteries that are blocked by disease.

The heart muscle damage is permanent. If it is not too extensive you will be able to return to normal function. But if it is extensive the heart muscle may be too weak to provide proper pumping action.

A stress test is fair as a measure of function. It is almost useless in evaluating the type of exertion you are asking about, lifting. Why? Because most exercise tests evaluate heart function in relation to increasing heart rate common with treadmill walking or bicycling.

Lifting increases the work of the heart by increasing the blood pressure without an associated comparable rise in heart rate. Your doctors should record your electrocardiogram when you are having chest discomfort.

Since you have identified this with lifting, that is the stress that should be used in your case.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 17-10, What You Need to Know About Heart Attacks, that will explain exercise after an attack to you. It states that lifting is different from walking and why. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Bypass operations are most successful in people who improve their lifestyle by losing excess fat, developing fitness and not smoking.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 19 years old and weigh 95 pounds. The only fat part of my body is my face. Is there any exercise I can do to prevent having a double chin?

DEAR READER — You can't spot reduce. There are no exercises that selectively eliminate fat from under the chin. Exercise uses calories and removes fat stores from throughout the body.

Dear Abby

Stars in her eyes put love in her heart

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I recently attended a Barry Manilow concert, and I haven't been able to get him out of my mind since. Abby, I am perfectly in tune with all the feelings Barry expresses! All my life I've had the feeling that God put me on earth to love and fulfill the needs of someone like Barry Manilow, someone who has everything in the world but happens to be very lonely. Please don't get me wrong. It's not the money, fame or glamour I'm looking for. I just want to devote my life to someone who wants more than anything in the world to be loved for himself, but has never found that person.

If Barry is involved already, I would like the chance to make Burt Reynolds happy. In spite of his macho confident manner, I sense that Burt is also a very lonely person who needs love.

I am not a fat, ugly old woman who has never had a date. I am 22, attractive and have no trouble getting dates. I just need help to do what the Lord wants me to do.

Can you help me meet Barry Manilow or Burt Reynolds?
NEEDS AN INTRODUCTION

DEAR NEEDS: Superstars such as Barry Manilow and Burt Reynolds work very hard, and their schedules are so demanding they have very little time to become lonely. However, if the good Lord wants you to meet either one of these gentlemen, trust him to provide the introduction.

DEAR ABBY: I am particularly upset when I arrive early at a movie to select a seat where I want it, and then have two or three people come in and sit near me and start talking or giggling or commenting on the movie. Even "stage whispers" can spoil the show for me.

I realize that the sooner I speak up, the better, but I keep putting it off, hoping it won't happen again. But it usually does.

How do you ask people to be quiet? And what do you say if they say, "If I want to talk, I'll talk"? Or worse yet, "If you don't like it — move"?

ATLANTA MOVIE LOVER

DEAR LOVER: Politely ask your noisy neighbors to please be quiet. And if you encounter a rude response, complain to the manager.

DEAR ABBY: I have no sympathy for the 52-year-old woman who married a 60-year-old man (second time around) and found that he was impotent.

I am 75 and my husband is 77. When he was 30, due to a

I'm suspicious that your face is not as fat as you imagine. You weigh so little that unless you are quite short I suspect you have a distorted image of yourself. In that case you need to see about some professional counseling. Such a distortion is often the basis of anorexia nervosa that induces young girls to starve and damage their health.

Now, if you have inherited the tendency to have fat pads under the chin it will be hard to eliminate such a pad by diet or exercise or both. When the condition really warrants it the fat pad can be removed easily with a simple surgical procedure. Plastic surgeons who do cosmetic surgery do such operations all the time.

It's the ultimate sportcoat... our Chamy® sportcoat by Kingsridge. We defy you to distinguish the difference between our Chamy® and real suede. Ours is an incredibly soft, supple, sensuous man-made fabric that's just about half the weight of natural suede... so it drapes better, wears better, cleans far more economically, and is more comfortable than real suede. It's one of man's few truly crowning achievements to imitate (even improve upon) nature so exquisitely. Kingsridge, our most talented maker, tailors Chamy® into impeccable jackets in deep, fashionable colors of dove grey, gunmetal blue, antelope, chamois, buckskin, brown, forest green, French blue, dusty blue, and a fascinating array of other haute couture colors in various sizes. Further, you may select from four diverse styles of coat: the Rancher, a quietly assertive Western model with peaked yoke and slit pockets; the Ventura, a sporty design with open patch pockets and pick-stitch trim; the Keith, a conventional blazer with basic flap pockets; the Summit, a slightly modified blazer with open patch pockets and pick stitch detail. You'll find your exact size from 38 to 46 regular and 40 to 46 long at 300.00 in Men's Clothing, all four Hubs, Amarillo, Pampa and Clovis.

By September, your child has built up to a pitch. If he doesn't get this game, he may give up breathing for Lent. He assures you it is the only game he wants.

Now the pressure is on for you to find the game that, for the purpose of avoiding a lawsuit, I will call "Humiliation"... a game for the entire family. order No. 17065354, batteries not included.

By October, every store in your area is sold out of Humiliation with no hope of getting a new order in. But the television teasers go on... showing a typical American family with Mom and Dad and two - and - a - half children sitting around a table playing Humiliation until they faint from joy.

Forget baking fruitcake, buying a Christmas tree, entertaining with wassail, caroling, sending out Christmas cards, or decorating the house. Every morning as soon as the alarm goes off, your feet touch the floor and you give the battle cry. "Find Humiliation today!"

By mid-November, you have driven 1800 miles in search of the game, following tips from friends that a discount house has two left in the northern part of the state, or a toy dealer has one under the counter that is damaged, but negotiable.

Several times you are tempted to get a game that is a ripoff of Humiliation, like Mortify or Family Conceit, but it won't be the same.

If you're lucky (?) just before Christmas, you race a little old grandmother to the counter and wrench the last Humiliation game on earth from her fingers, buy batteries and put it under the tree.

On Christmas night when you are picking up all the paper, ribbon and warranties, your eyes fall upon Humiliation, still in the box, the $49.95 price tag shining like a beacon.

The kids are playing with a cardboard box and snapping the air pockets of plastic packing material.

Christmas is not a game for kids.

NUMB ARMS, LEGS Danger Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others. Here are nine critical symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations which are usually the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these usually spells back trouble.

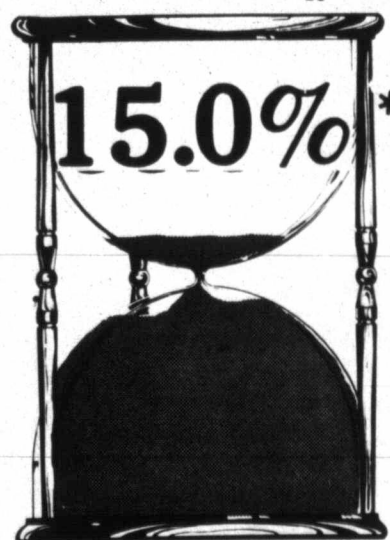

- (1) Paresthesias (see above) (2) Headaches (3) Painful joints (4) Numbness in the arms or hands (5) Loss of sleep (6) Stiffness in the neck (7) Pain between the shoulders (8) Stiffness of pain in lower back (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals indicate that your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these danger signals...call for in Depth consultation in Layman's terms.

our desire to raise your status life will grow very strong this coming year. Because you will m higher than you ever have in the past, you'll move up the ladder of success several rungs in a time.

AGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 1) Your possibilities for success today are exceptionally good. You should be able to see opportunities which others may overlook, or ignore. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in each of the seasons following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 469, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

APRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) adhere to your compassionate instincts today and put the concerns of friends above your own. Being unselfish may hold pleasant reward.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) you are what you think you are today. If you feel you're going to be lucky, you probably will be. If you want to move mountains, give it a try.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) try to spend time today with persons who are optimistic and interested in bettering their positions in life. You'll pick up valuable ideas which you can use successfully.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) it will be difficult to think of anything in other than large terms today, and this is good. Dare to reach high. The chances are excellent for attaining your goals.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Something fortunate materially could happen for you today through a social contact or a good friend. It may be the fulfillment of a dream.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Because someone important is quite fond of you, there is a good chance you'll get a lucky break at work today. It may be a promotion, or possibly a bonus.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your insight regarding matters affecting your career or work today is on-target. Even if it involves the solicitation of a pal, follow through.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your earning potential is extremely high today, due to your ability to turn everyone you meet into a friend. People will do things for you they may not do for others.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You have the marvelous faculty today of being able to build upon good ideas conceived by others. It'll be your touch that puts them over the top.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You have both intuition and luck going for you today, especially in areas which could contribute to your material security. Use each.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) An optimistic attitude is important today in your business and financial affairs. Don't just think "win." Dare also to think "big."

How a Saint rang up sales

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — A middle-aged bishop in red robes aloft on strange rooftops with a sack on his shoulder laughing madly smacks of a character sprung full blown and half witted from the imagination of a P.G. Wodehouse or a Charles Dickens.

You know: another dotty cleric, all "gas and gaiters," to use Nicholas Nickleby's felicitous phrase, cavorting with amiable eccentricity to advance a hilarious plot that will come out all right in the end.

Yet this is the seasonal image that the world has of St. Nicholas, alias Santa Claus, a much venerated 4th century bishop of Myra in Lycia (now Turkey). He would have been astonished at how he turned out in history, since Christians in his time had only begun to observe Dec. 25 as the birth date of Christ.

Nicholas was a towering figure in the early church. He was tortured and thrown into a dungeon by the Emperor Diocletian, then freed under Constantine, the first Christian Roman emperor. The fiery bishop helped put down the Arian heresy, which held that the Messiah was true God but not true man, and personally brought about the destruction of the pagan temple of Artemis.

In the calendar of saints, he has the title of Confessor, a rank just below martyr, given those who were punished and imprisoned for confessing their faith, but did not die for it.

Along with St. Andrew, Nicholas is the patron saint of Russia. He is also the patron of Greece, Sicily, Lorraine and numerous cities, dioceses and churches throughout the world.

Many miracles and cures were attributed to him, and legends began to grow with his spreading popularity. He became the patron saint of travelers and sailors when on a pilgrimage to the Holy Land, his prayers were credited with saving their ship in a savage storm.

Nicholas became the patron saint of prostitutes, pawnbrokers, old maids and young marriageable maidens through the oft repeated tale of his tossing three bags of gold through the window as dowries for the three daughters of an impoverished nobleman, who otherwise would have chosen a life of prostitution to save the old homestead. The bags of gold ended up on the coat of arms of the powerful Medici family in Florence and eventually became the three balls hanging outside a pawnshop.

Clement Moore, a professor of classical Greek in New York, set out to amuse his children with lines that began "Twas the night before Christmas," and Santa suddenly acquired eight reindeer, a white beard, a tubby superstructure and "a nose like a cherry." This was lifted off for the commercialized Santa Claus.

In Germany at Christmas the saint appears as a hairy imp, Pelz Nichol, nicholes in furs, who keeps tabs on the behavior of children.

In the Caribbean, he still wears his bishop's red robes and mitre and rides a white horse, but the gifts are handed out Dec. 6 by Black Peter, his faithful sidekick, who comes across as Kecht Ruprecht in some Eastern European countries, a sinister heavy famous for frightening children who don't know their prayers.

In South America, children write letters to Baby Jesus on the eve of St. Nicholas Day, leaving them on the window sill for the saint to take up to heaven.

Phyllis McGinley, the Pulitzer prize winning poet, summed up the saint's astonishing transformation over the ages in twinkling verse:

"He who had feared
The world's applause.
Now, with a beard,
Is Santa Claus.
A multiplied elf, he struts and poses,
Ringing up sales in putty noses;
With Comet and Cupid
His constant partners,
Telling tall tales to kindergart'ners,
His halo fickle as Wind and wave.
While dizzily Nicholas
Spins in his grave.

Santa and the ICE KING

by Lucrece Beale

SYNOPSIS: After a long journey across the ice sea, Oonik has finally reached Santa Land. Much to his dismay, he finds Santa suffering from the Ice King's wrath as much as the Eskimos of his own village.

CHAPTER SIX A TALK WITH SANTA

Oonik ran down to the barn. The door was blocked by snow. He knew someone was inside because he could hear voices and every now and then the tap of a reindeer's hoof.

Oonik went around to the side of the barn. There he found a ladder leading up to an enormous window high above. He had never seen a ladder before. He climbed it fearfully. When he was near the top he looked down and when he saw Keotuk way below he grew so dizzy he almost fell. Shutting his eyes, he went up the rest of the ladder and climbed in the window.

He found himself at the top of a vast pile of hay. At the bottom of the pile was Santa Claus. He knew it was Santa because he was fat and round and wore a red suit and had silvery whiskers. But he didn't look gay and merry the way Oonik had always pictured him. He looked sad and worried.

He was talking to a crooked-legged dwarf with large, floppy ears and the two of them were gazing unhappily at eight skinny reindeer.

"It's no use, Tweedleknies," Santa said. "I'm going to let them go. I can't keep them here to starve."

"If only they'd eat meat," grumbled the crooked-legged dwarf. "Or cookies. Or vegetables. Or something."

"They want moss," murmured Santa Claus. "They can't understand why summer has not come. I'll turn them loose. They can go somewhere where there's bound to be summer in August as it should be."

"But what will you do when Christmas comes?" exclaimed Tweedleknies. "With no

Oonik landed with a plop at Santa's feet.

reindeer how will you make your rounds?"

"I don't know," Santa shook his head. "Perhaps there won't be Christmas any more. Who knows? Anyway, I'm turning them loose."

"We'll never get the door open, protested Tweedleknies. "It's blocked by snow."

"They can fly out the window," replied Santa. "That is if they still have the strength to fly."

"Come now," he said gently, patting the reindeer. "Fly away and find some summer feeding ground."

The reindeer looked around uncertainly and then, tapping their hooves three times on the floor, they flew gracefully upwards straight to the window where Oonik sat.

"Wait, wait!" cried Oonik rising to his feet. "Don't let them go!"

But it was too late. The reindeer brushed past him, one by one, into the sky.

Then Santa called out, "Who on earth are you?"

Oonik slid to the bottom of the pile of hay. He landed with a plop at Santa's feet. "I'm Oonik the Eskimo boy," he said. "And I came to you because my people are being destroyed by the Ice King's anger."

"Ah," said Santa, "so are we, my boy. And it is the same everywhere. Only yesterday I had a letter from a child who said that though it was August she had not yet had a chance to use the bathing suit I brought her last Christmas. Another child wrote that he was still using the ice skates I brought to him. So you see, the whole world is cold."

"But you must stop the Ice King!" cried Oonik.

"I?" said Santa.

"Of course! You are the most powerful, the bravest, the wisest one on earth. You are the only one who can stop the Ice King."

Santa pulled his pipe from his pocket and slowly filled it. "Tell me," he said, "how shall I stop the Ice King?"

"Why," said Oonik simply, "by going to him and telling him to stop."

Now the crooked-legged Tweedleknies growled, "What nonsense! If Santa went to see the Ice King who knows what might happen to him!"

"I'll go, too," protested Oonik. "I—I could help!"

"You'll snort Tweedleknies."

"Hush, Tweedleknies," said Santa. Then he looked for a long time into Oonik's eyes. At last he said, "Very good, son. We will go."

Farmer utilizes Texas wind

CROWELL, Texas (AP) — When he's not picking cotton and harvesting wheat, H.L. Ayers is farming electricity out to the same place he buys it from — the electric company.

Ayers, who lives in this rural town bordering the windswept Texas Panhandle, sells the electric company about as much electricity as he buys.

The 47-year-old farmer says he expects to sell enough electricity over the next five years to pay for two big wind generators that provide the power.

The two generators, installed last June, churn out as much as 30 kilowatts of electricity per hour. Ayers said. One of the generators runs the pumps on his extensive irrigation system while the other supplies power for his home.

The electrical co-op gets whatever power is left over, he says.

Ayers admits that, so far, he has bought more electricity than he has sold. But he points out that the summer months, when his generators started working, were months when the wind blew the least.

Average windspeed in the plains area where Ayers lives is about 13 mph. It takes winds of 10 to 12 mph to start turning the 32-foot blades atop their 60-foot towers. But Ayers says once they get going they can generate electricity with a breeze as light as 8 mph.

Ayers said he first thought of buying wind generators two years ago when faced with the ever-increasing cost of energy.

"I guess my electric bill has jumped 25 percent since then and there's no question that it would go even higher," he said.

The generators cost Ayers $13,000 apiece, he said. But the hardy farmer says he thinks the investment will be worth it in the long run.

Not only is he saving on his electric bill, but Ayers says he will receive a 40 percent tax credit on the generator that runs his house and a percent credit on the one that runs his irrigation system.

Ayers says the idea making electricity should more attractive to farmers the cost of power continues to escalate.

did you know?

One thing we've probably all learned is to have an appreciation of things that have worth, and to know their value. To help you learn the value of the electricity you use, Southwestern Public Service Company offers this simple exercise: Take the amount of your last electric bill. Divide this amount by 30 to find the approximate cost of your electricity per day. Then divide that amount by the number of people in your family to determine the cost of your electricity per day, per family member. After all, knowing what electricity is worth is worth knowing. Just look around.

Joe Hevd, Consumer Services Manager, Roswell

Southwestern was the first electric utility to install a fabric filter environmental-protection device at a large-scale power generation unit. SPS installed the filter—an efficient, economical device for maintaining air quality around a plant—at its first coal-fired plant. As more electricity is generated by burning coal, interest in coal's environmental impact will grow. Even now, other utility companies and the Environmental Protection Agency are studying the performance of SPS's unique system.

James Trammell, Plant Chemist, Lubbock

If your heating system is thermostatically-controlled, the easiest and most effective way to control your home's energy consumption is to be careful about where you set your thermostat. In winter, set it at 68 degrees or less during the day and 55 degrees or less at night. When your house is unoccupied for more than four hours in the winter, set the thermostat back to 55 degrees. Wearing a sweater or putting an extra blanket on the bed is all that is needed to keep most people comfortable at these temperature settings. Just call your SPS office for more information.

Ken Eden, Consumer Service Representative, Amarillo

Knowing what electricity is worth is worth knowing. For answers to your questions, call or write your SPS manager.

Rams spoil Atlanta's hopes for playoffs

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles Rams were ready looking ahead to next season. Now it seems the Atlanta Falcons are, too.

Realistically, we're going to be at home at Christmas. The Rams just like the Rams," Atlanta Coach Leeman Bennett said Monday after the Rams' playoff hopes with a 16 victory.

It looks like we finally ran out of chances," said Falcon quarterback Steve Bartkowski, who was held in check by the Los Angeles defense. "Obviously I'm disappointed, but we were simply outplayed in this game."

Atlanta 7-8, still has a slim shot at the lone remaining National Football Conference wild card berth. If the Falcons whip Cincinnati in next Sunday's regular-season finale at Atlanta, they could possibly finish as one of six AFC teams with 8-8 records.

The NFL's complex tie-breaking system would then determine the wild-card berth.

Atlanta's loss assured Philadelphia of the other NFC wild card spot.

Wendell Tyler ran for two touchdowns, the last to bring the Rams from behind with 17 remaining in the game.

Trailing 16-14, Los Angeles went 80 yards to Tyler's 7-yard scoring run with the help of two pass-interference calls, against the Falcons' Bobby Butler and Kenny Johnson. The penalties, which occurred two plays apart, moved the ball all the way from the Rams' 20 to the Atlanta 7.

Despite those two mistakes and an interception of Bartkowski that ended the final Falcons' hope at the Ram 7-yard line, with two minutes remaining, Bennett said an earlier play made the difference.

"I felt the key was the interception by Nolan Cromwell when it looked like we were going to score," he said. "That was a swing of 10 or 14 points."

With Atlanta at the Rams' 11 late in the second quarter, Cromwell picked off a Bartkowski throw three yards deep in the end zone and raced 94 yards to set up a 3-yard touchdown run by Mike Guman. That gave Los Angeles a 14-10 halftime advantage.

Tyler's other touchdown came on a 6-yard run earlier in the second quarter.

Lynn Cain gave Atlanta a 7-0 first-quarter lead on a 2-yard touchdown burst. The other Atlanta scoring came on field goals of 45, 25 and 22 yards by Mick Luckhurst, the last giving the Falcons a 16-14 edge with 8:40 left in the game.

Proosters meet tonight after girls' contest

Pampa Harvester Booster Club has slated a meeting tonight in the film room at the high school football fieldhouse, following the Pampa-Liberal, Kan. girls' basketball contest.

The public is invited to attend the meeting. The Booster Club plans to have all its meetings following the high school home basketball games instead of Monday night as in the past.

Tonight's varsity game tips off at 7:30 p.m. A junior varsity game starts at 6 p.m.

Pampa, 2-11, will try and snap a three-game losing streak. The Lady Harvesters' last win came against Lubbock High, 52-51, one week ago. Their other win came against Vega, 45-34, that clinched third place in the Canyon Cage Classic.

Debi Young, a 6-1 junior, leads the team, in scoring with a 12.8 average per game. She was named to the all-tournament team at Clovis last week.

This will be Pampa's last home game until Jan. 1 when Borger comes here.

Foul line hurt Pampa in Bi-State finals

Frustration at the foul line did the Pampa Harvesters in during their 71-68 setback to Enid, Okla., in the championship finals of the Bi-State Classic Saturday night in Lawton, Okla.

During the final five minutes of play, the Harvesters missed five front ends of one and one tries from the charity stripe.

Pampa coach Garland Nichols said those misses marred a possible victory.

"I think the foul situation played a big part in the loss," Nichols said. "Maybe the kids will realize just how important those foul shots are from now on."

Enid, ranked No. 3 in Oklahoma's Class 5A poll, made the most of its foul line opportunities the fourth quarter. The Plainsmen cashed in on seven of eight foul shots to help overcome a seven-point Harvesters lead.

Enid is the best team we've played by far," Nichols added. "However, I really felt like we should have beat them. Those missed foul shots are something we can look back on and see where we could have won."

Pampa did have two players—brothers Mike Nelson and Charles Nelson—named to the all-tournament team.

Mike, a 6-3 junior, tossed in 59 points in three games while Charles, a 6-4 senior, had 56.

"I thought Terry (Faggins) should have made it, but I guess they felt like three from the same team would be too many," Nichols added. "All three of these guys were real consistent throughout the tournament."

Faggins tossed in 41 points in three games.

Mike Nelson is still the team's top scorer, averaging 22.4 points per contest. Charles Nelson carries a 19.2 ppg average while Faggins follows at 13.3 ppg.

Pampa opened the tournament by whipping Lawton MacArthur, 69-60, then trounced Lawton High, 75-56, in the semi-finals.

"We played pretty well throughout the tournament," Nichols said. "It was disappointing not to win it after coming so close."

Pampa JV wins title

The Pampa Shockers downed Borger JV, 48-41, Saturday night in the finals to win the Pampa Junior Varsity Tournament.

"We didn't shoot as well as we did the first two games, but we played excellent defense," said Pampa coach Frank McCullough. "I would have to say our defense won this one for us."

Randy Skaggs was Pampa's high scorer with 17 points while Randy Harris chipped in nine.

"Everyone played well throughout the tournament," McCullough added. "It was a total team effort."

The Shockers, now 8-2 on the season, host Borger JV at 6 p.m. Friday night.

Pampa JV Team Two started Saturday's tournament play off with a 65-32 win over Clarendon JV.

Mike Cox led Pampa in scoring with 18 points while Devis Cross and Troy West tossed in 12 points apiece.

Pampa then defeated Borger Sophomores, 61-44, for the consolation title with Cox pumping in 21 points.

"These young men are getting better every game," McCullough pointed out. "All they needed is some playing time. They are all doing a good job, both on offense and defense."

Pampa Team hosts Borger sophomores again Friday, starting at 4:30 p.m.

Follett wins Miami tourney

MIAMI—Follett captured both the boys' and girls' titles at the Miami Basketball Tournament last week.

In the boys' division, Felton whipped Kelton, 52-41, in Saturday's finals with a well-rounded scoring attack.

Galen Kunka and Stacy Ragan had 14 points apiece while Gavin Gadberry chipped in 13.

Ronnie Allis led Kelton with 18 points while Joey Waldo added nine.

In the girls' finals, Mardy Tyson and Dorice Bedell scored 22 points apiece to lead Follett past White Deer, 66-46.

Debbi Cochran led White Deer with 13 points.

Booker defeated White Deer, 68-45, for third place in the boys' division.

Jimmy Wilmoth topped Booker with 23 points while John Kotara tossed in 17 points for White Deer. Steve Ellis and Shawn Craig added six points apiece for White Deer.

Miami edged Groom, 47-46, for the consolation championship.

Lewis Lisenby and Keith Gray had 11 points each for Miami while B.J. McKnight paced Groom with 14 points.

Jennifer Treadwell poured in 31 points to lead Groom past Miami, 72-37, for third place in the girls' division. Kathleen Koetling helped Treadwell with 16 points.

Mary Ann Gill had 14 points for Miami.

Booker downed Higgins, 75-53, to claim the girls' consolation title. Stephanie Goldsmith led Booker with 20 points.

Players named to the all-tournament teams are listed below:

Boys—Ronnie Allis, Kelton; Galen Kunka, Follett; Keith Gray, Miami; Gavin Gadberry, Follett; Gary Mills, Booker.

Girls—Lynette Friemel, Groom; Mardy Tyson, Follett; Karla Stone, Miami; Dorice Bedell, Follett; Debbi Cochran, White Deer.

Pampa Blue downs Canyon Purple

CANYON—Pampa Blue breezed past Canyon Purple, 31-16, Monday in ninth-grade basketball action.

Dunivan Lewis paced Pampa with 11 points while Brent Cryer had nine, Dean Larue, six, Matt Martindale, two, and Paul Simpson, one. Last weekend the Blue team took third place in the Pampa Freshmen Tournament.

In the frosh girls' game, defending district champion Canyon Purple had to sink a shot in the final two seconds to defeat Pampa, 41-39.

"This was the best game we've played all year," Pampa coach Mike Duncan said.

Karri Richardson poured in 24 points and claimed seven rebounds for Pampa. Stephanie Smith added eight points.

Teresa Perkins and Leslie

Cash hit the boards hard, pulling down eight and nine rebounds respectively.

Crownover led Canyon with 13 points.

Pampa travels to Mobeetie for its next game Jan. 2.

In a ninth-grade boys' game at the Pampa Middle School gym Monday, the Pampa Red team fell to Borger White, 38-15.

Scoring for Pampa were Terry Jeffrey and Michael Glover, four points apiece; Kelly Wyatt, Jay Snow and Curran McLean, two points apiece, and Derk Milum, one point.

Frosty 4-mile run results

CANYON—Tim Delaney, a West Texas State University student, was clocked at 21:15 to win the Frosty Four-Miler held Saturday in Canyon.

Louis Allred of Pampa finished second in 22:22 and he also won the 30-39 age division.

Corky Fritch, Amarillo, took third and Chris Hansen, Pampa, was fourth. Others from Pampa were Tom Byrd, Bob Steger and Jerry South.

Hansen won the 20-29 age division while South was the 50 and over division winner with a time of 30 minutes.

The course started at the West Texas State activity center and went north toward Buffalo Hill.

its only limitation is your own imagination!

This computer is the heart of this new kind of electronic video game system. Its capabilities are infinitely more sophisticated than the conventional electronic games found in homes. It even surpasses most arcade games! An ALPHA-NUMERIC KEYBOARD translates English into the electronic language of the microprocessor. This tiny electronic brain is a micro genius capable of making more than one hundred thousand electronic decisions every second and is quite closely related to those used in today's aerospace and weaponry systems. The application of this state-of-the-art technology makes Odyssey² unique among electronic games. It simulates reality to a truly remarkable degree.

MULTI-LEVEL PLAY CAPABILITY! At their peak, Odyssey² games present a most serious strategy challenge to the most seasoned players. You can find yourself playing against a human mind and an electronic brain at the same time! But if you tell the computer you're a beginner, then things are different. The speed and action is slowed down to let you acquire the mental agility and physical dexterity it takes to let you play at the Olympic level.

ON-SCREEN DIGITAL READOUTS! Every game comes programmed with its own display of vital statistics! Scoring! Real time! Elapsed time! Lap counters! Even photo-finish freeze action at the end of racing events!

ODYSSEY² IS A SERIOUS EDUCATIONAL TOOL! For children, games like MATH-A-MAGIC make addition, subtraction, multiplication and division fun to practice. Games like BUZZWORD and CRYPTO-LOGIC reinforce basic spelling skills. Odyssey² is equally valuable as a learning device for teenagers and adults.

Choose from a wide variety of action-packed arcade...challenging sports...and educational games.

MULTI-MODE CARTRIDGE LIBRARY! Many of the Odyssey² game cartridges contain two or more generic games playable at different strategic levels—not simply variations designed to stretch out a single visual theme. This makes a widely varied collection of games much more economical to acquire. Many other Odyssey² games are available now including FOOTBALL, BASEBALL, BOWLING, BASKETBALL, LAS VEGAS BLACKJACK, ARMORED COUNTER, SUBCHASE, MATH-A-MAGIC, ECHO, MATCHMAKER, LOGIX, BUZZWORD, COMPUTER GOLF and COSMIC CONFLICT! New games will always be on the way.

We sell insurance

But that's only the beginning. We also handle claims, adjust losses, renew policies and visit with you to discuss your coverage. In short, we handle your insurance as if you were the boss—and why not? You are the boss!

We can offer you solid protection from the companies we represent—companies like Great American. They sell insurance too but they also back up their policies with personal attention from us—your independent agency. Call us for a quote on a Great American auto or homeowners policy. Their reasonable price is only the beginning of the value you'll receive for your insurance dollar.
