Sakarovs end fast when told daughter-in-law to join husband

MOSCOW (AP) — Andrei Sakharov's daughter-in-law said today that Soviet authorities had relented in the face of a hunger strike by the Nobel laureate and told her she could join her husband in the United States.

Liza Alexeyeva, 26, said the KGB told her that Sakharov and his wife Yelena Bonner had ended their 17-day-old fast in Gorky on Tuesday after being told that Miss Alexeyeva would be allowed to emigrate.

Speaking to reporters in Sakharov's Moscow apartment, Miss Alexeyeva said she did not know when she would join her husband in the United States because she had not yet received the exit visa she needs to leave.

Miss Alexeyeva said she had called officials at OVIR, the Soviet emigration agency, and was told they knew nothing about the decision to grant her an exit visa.

The hunger strike caused an international furor, with governments and human rights groups around the world calling for the Soviets to meet Sakharov's demands.

Sakharov said in a letter received in Moscow on Monday that he was not taking a prescribed heart medicine during the hunger strike, and friends expressed repeated concern for his health.

Miss Alexeyeva said KGB (security police) agent Alexander Baranov told her she would be allowed to leave the Soviet Union if she limited her associations with foreigners.

Asked if she thought Soviet authorities would really let her go, an agitated Miss Alexeyeva said, "I can't check it. I don't think they (KGB) would deceive me so directly."

Authorities announced last Friday that Sakharov, winner of the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize for his work on behalf of human rights, and Mrs. Bonner had been hospitalized for preventive medical care. They did not say when they were hospitalized or where.

Miss Alexeyeva said Tuesday that she had been told that Sakharov's health was "poor." There has been no official word, however, on the condition of the 60-year-old Sakharov, who has a serious heart ailment, or his 58-year-old wife.

The couple stopped eating on Nov. 22, hoping to pressure authorities to allow Miss Alexeyeva to leave the country to join her husband, Alexei Semyonov, who is Mrs. Bonner's son by a previous marriage.

Semyonov, a 25-year-old graduate student at Brandeis University near Boston, wed Miss Alexeyeva by proxy last June in Montana. Soviet authorities refused to recognize the marriage, and last Friday the government newspaper Izvestia called the hunger strike a provocation.

Sakharov, a leading Soviet physicist before he began his public dissent, was banished to Gorky, a Volga River city 240 miles east of Moscow closed to foreigners, nearly two years ago.

Miss Alexeyeva tried to go to Gorky on Saturday to learn the state of the Sakharovs' health and the place of their forced hospitalization. She was prevented from leaving Moscow by plainclothes police who told her not to try it again.

She subsequently appealed for permission to go to Gorky, and met several times with KGB agents. She was called unexpectedly to the KGB headquarters today, where she was told she could leave the country.

Mother needs assistance

A young mother in her early 30s is separated from her husband. She has three pre-school age children. She is receiving public assistance but does not have money to provide toys for her children. Her parents are unable to help her because of their excessive medical bills.

If you would like to help families such as this one and others like them, send your contribution to the Salvation Army, Box 1458, Pampa, Texas 79065.

Weather

The forecast calls for mostly fair conditions today through Thursday with warm afternoon temperatures continuing.

Iran negotiating to end Libyan hijack

By The Associated Press

Iran's Shiite Moslem government negotiated today with militant Lebanese Shiites in an attempt to end their hijacking of a Libyan airliner and free 38 exhausted hostages. Radio Tehran reported.

Three other hijacked airliners from Venezuela landed in Cuba Tuesday, the hijackers surrendered, and the planes and more than 100 hostages were to be returned to Venezuela today.

"I haven't any nerves left," Rene Bobe, the pilot of the Libyan Boeing 727 radioed Tuesday night, 24 hours after his plane was taken over. "I can't take any more. The nerves of all my passengers are shattered. Please give them whatever they want and let's get it over and done with."

While the hijackers held the exhausted passengers and crew prisoner on the Tehran airport runway, they demanded that the Iranian government negotiate with the Libyan government to solve the mystery of the disappearance three years ago of Imam Moussa Sadr, the spiritual leader of the Lebanese Shiites.

Iranian authorities advised the Swiss Embassy in Tehran that all of the hostages were in good health, and that food was taken aboard the airliner shortly after it landed.

Sadr vanished in 1978 at the end of a state visit to Libya. Lebanon's Shiites claim Col. Moammar Khadafy, Libya's Sunni Moslem leader, has kept him prisoner ever since, but the Libyans say he boarded a plane for Rome at the end of his visit and they don't know what happened to him.

Libya's state radio condemned the skyjacker as "terrorists recruited by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency in a feverish campaign to slander Libya" and proclaimed the hijack an "act against Islam."

Three Lebanese Shiites hijacked the Libyan airliner Monday night on a flight from Switzerland to Tripoli and forced the pilot to fly to Beirut. There they released a pregnant Libyan woman and her two small children, demanded a U.N. investigation of Sadr's disappearance and took aboard two more armed Shiite militants.

After 10 hours in Beirut, the hijackers made the pilot fly them to Athens, then to Rome, back to Beirut in the evening and to Tehran early today.

The return of the plane to Beirut touched off a confrontation between the Lebanese government and Amal, the Lebanese Shiite militia and one of the country's 40 private armies.

Airport officials twice tried to block the landing by turning off the runway lights and parking service vehicles on it. Then an estimated 2,000 armed Amal militiamen took over the airport, the runway was cleared, and the plane landed.

Airport officials then refused to refuel the aircraft. As members of the airport security force trained their rifles on the hijacked plane, the Shiite militiamen pointed their guns at the soldiers. But a Middle East Airlines jet arrived from London, the militiamen intercepted the passengers and threatened to puke them back aboard and hijack the plane, and the officials reversed themselves.

A Lebanese official who boarded the plane before it took off for Tehran said there were seven armed men aboard. Apparently two more Shiites joined the hijackers during the second stop in Beirut.

The identities of the hijackers who took over the three Venezuelan airliners in a coordinated operation over Venezuela Monday still had not been determined, but passengers freed during various stops before the planes were taken to Cuba said there were a total of 10.

Bodies of 13 miners removed from site of third mine mishap

WHITWELL, Tenn. (AP) — Volunteers using air tanks and masks crawled through a mine shaft today and removed the bodies of 13 coal miners killed by an explosion in Appalachia's third major mining accident in five days.

"I heard a vibration and it just started shaking a little bit," said one of 17 miners who escaped Tuesday by jumping into small rail cars and riding to safety. "I knew they had hit gas and it exploded," he said. He declined to be identified.

Investigators tried to determine if the blast at Tennessee Consolidated Coal Co.'s No. 21 mine was caused by methane gas, commonly found in coal mines.

"I think there's strong evidence that's what it was," said John Parish, Gov. Lamar Alexander's press secretary. "But I don't think anybody is saying that officially." Parish also said all 13 victims were killed by the concussion of the blast.

The mine, which is about 30 miles northwest of Chattanooga in the rugged mountains of southeastern Tennessee, was closed pending the completion of the federal and state investigation.

Parish said after talking with state and federal officials that all 14 mines in the Whitwell area owned by Tennessee Consolidated would be closed until the investigation is completed.

However, William Allison, president of Tennessee Consolidated, said the mines would remain open. And John McGrath, a spokesman for the federal Mine Safety and Health Administration, said, "We would never close another operation because of an accident at this one."

All 13 of the victims — who were found three miles into a shaft that is only 36 inches high in spots — were killed by the concussion of the blast, Parish said.

Woody Duncan, director of the state Division of Mines, said a fire may have broken out in the area where the blast occurred. The bodies were found clumped together.

Eight miners were killed Monday in Topmost, Ky., when an explosion trapped them half a mile inside a mountain. That explosion shot mud and water out the mine's mouth against a cliff 280 feet away.

On Thursday, three miners were killed when rock and slate fell from the roof of a non-union mine in Bergoo, W. Va.

Tuesday's disaster was the worst in the nation since April, when 15 men were killed in a mine near Redstone, Colo.

48 pounds of marijuana seized, two arrested

Gray County Sheriff's officers arrested two El Paso men and confiscated 48 pounds of marijuana with a street value of $40,800 early Tuesday morning at the KOA campgrounds near Highway 70 and I-40, Sheriff Rufe Jordan said today.

Arrested were Richard Benjamin Blue, 25, and John Jefferson Robinson, 25, both of El Paso. The two are charged with possession of marijuana over four ounces. Bond for each man was set at $50,000 by Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford. The two remained in Gray County Jail earlier today in lieu of bond.

The Gray County Sheriff's office was contacted early Tuesday morning by Department of Public Safety Trooper

Jim Kingston to be on the look out for suspects wanted in a series of burglaries in Groom that night.

Deputy Sheriffs Jerry Holland and Rocky Ferguson joined Trooper Kingston near Highway 70 and I-40 at the KOA Campgrounds where they found a vehicle matching the description of the auto possibly involved in the Groom burglaries.

The investigating officers found the 48 pounds of a green leafy substance believed to be marijuana, capsules of unknown substance in a plastic bag and a firearm.

At Trooper Kingston's request, Steve McCraw of Amarillo, state narcotics division, came to the scene apprehension and assisted in the investigation.

McCoy plans retirement after 43-year career with Energas

Colleagues, business associates and friends of Energas District Manager James McCoy will say good-bye Friday to the man who has been with the company for 43 years.

McCoy, who plans to retire from the company effective Dec. 31, will be honored during a coffee from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Friday in the Flame Room at the Energas office here.

"I have had the 30 best employees that every worked," McCoy said of his 28 years at the Pampa Energas Company.

In 1938 McCoy started his long association with the gas company at the Empire Southern Gas Company in Brady as a laborer.

It was during the war that he put in a meter shop and started working with the meters. After the events at Pearl Harbor, the country needed energy, and he became distribution superintendent.

"Then I went to Gorman as a manager of the Gorman District and on Sept. 12, 1953, we moved to Pampa," he said.

In 1968 he was made District Manager — the title with which he will retire.

"The gas business has been upgraded, and the service is better than it has ever been. We are working with better equipment and that is a big part of the success. We are also developing a better customer service department. We try to teach each employee to do their job and to satisfy the customer, both at the same time," he said.

Getting gas into the home is often a problem, but 45 years ago, it was even harder.

"We used to raise the pressure every morning and then put it to bed each night," he said. "Now they have equipment that takes care of it all."

"Natural gas will be here for many decades to come. It will continue to be used for heating, cooling and for cooking. There is more natural gas than there was 50 years ago, and it will continue to be the cheapest form of energy that you can use," he said.

"If you notice, 90 percent of all the commercial cooking in Pampa is done with gas. I guess it is just more flexible and less expensive," he said.

"I plan to stay in Pampa after retiring, but there will be a lot of trips to see the children and grandchildren," he said.

His two daughters, Linda, who now lives in Springfield, Mo., and Shirley of Los Angeles, Calif., attended both elementary school and high school in Pampa.

McCoy has been very active in civic affairs including the Kiwanis Club, of which he is past president. He is a board member of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and the Pampa Chamber of Commerce. He is the current chairman of the local March of Dimes and a member of the First Assembly of God where he teaches a Sunday School Class.

McCoy has already vacated his desk to Jerry D. Norris, who has been promoted to the position of manager at the Pampa office.

"I just wanted to be sure he was happy and comfortable here," McCoy said.

Norris is former manager of the Odessa office. He was employed by the Energas company in Brownfield, Amarillo and Hereford. He is a graduate of Minden High School and holds a bachelor's degree in physical education from Northeast Louisiana State University.

The announcement of Norris's promotion was made by Harry E. Neel, vice president of Energas Company and manager of its Amarillo Division, which includes the Pampa District.

"Jerry Norris has been an asset to our company in each of his varied assignments undertaken during his 12 years on the job. We are pleased to have him available to replace James McCoy," Neel said.

Three more arrested in drug bust

Three more persons have been arrested by Pampa and Borger police in connection with the city-wide drug bust Friday, in which 11 persons were arrested.

Pampa police arrested Harold Gene Pendergrast, 811 W. Foster, at his residence early Tuesday morning on one count of unlawful delivery of marijuana. Pendergrast remained in city jail earlier today in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Police today arrested Harvey Ray Green, 21, 412 Graham, on one count of unlawful delivery of marijuana. He remained in custody in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Borger police today arrested Vincent Bernard Heaton, 21, 605 E. Sixth Street, Borger, on three counts of unlawful delivery of marijuana on a Pampa-issued arrest warrant. Heaton was transferred to Pampa today and appeared before Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford where his bond was set at $10,000 on each count. He remained in custody in lieu of bond at press time today.

U.S. warns Libyan leader to drop death plot or suffer consequences

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is warning Libyan strongman Moammar Khadafy to drop a purported plot to kill U.S. government leaders or be prepared to suffer consequences, according to an authoritative source.

The United States contacted the Libyan regime through a third country and spelled out at least some of the evidence the administration has obtained about the alleged plot, the source said Tuesday.

Khadafy, in an interview last Sunday, had challenged the administration to reveal its proof. A day later, President Reagan declared, "We have the evidence and he knows it."

Along with detailing some of the evidence it has, the private U.S. message contained a warning that the United States would take action against Libya if it refused to cancel the alleged plot, said the source, who refused to be identified.

The source refused to say what consequences were threatened or to say what country was used as an intermediary.

ABC News reported Tuesday that the message was given to Belgium, which has been handling U.S. contacts with Libya since the administration ordered Libyan diplomats out of Washington.

Word of the warning message came to light as the administration asked the Senate to temporarily hold off action on a resolution declaring congressional support for a boycott of Libyan oil exports.

In addition, Reagan held his second meeting in two days with national security advisers about possible sanctions against Libya. An oil embargo is known to be one option under consideration even though Libyan oil exports to the United States already have dropped to less than one-third of what they were earlier this year.

There were mixed signals from Capitol Hill and the White House about when the administration would complete a two- or three-month-old review of political and economic relations with Libya and decide whether to impose sanctions or take other steps.

After conferring with the White House, Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. convinced Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., to withdraw a non-binding resolution declaring that Congress "would support and act favorably on a decision" to suspend oil purchases.

The Republican leader said Reagan soon may ask Congress to impose some sanction against Libya, but had asked in the meantime that legislators hold off any moves of their own.

"There will be a decision (from the administration) within the next 24 to 48 hours," declared the GOP Senate leader. "This is a delicate moment."

Within an hour, however, White House spokesman David Gergen summoned reporters and said the administration was not committing itself to reaching any decision that soon.

Haig asks allies to maintain unity during Soviet arms talks

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. today called on the Western allies to maintain unity during the current arms reduction talks with the Soviet Union.

"Alliance unity and the credibility of the alliance is essential to the achievement of progress in arms control, an objective which is very strongly held by the United States government," Haig told reporters as he arrived at the airport.

Haig will attend talks with other NATO foreign ministers and officials of the 10-nation European Common Market.

Haig is expected to give the foreign ministers a report on progress at the Geneva talks aimed at reducing intermediate-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

"The United States is fundamentally interested in peace through unity and to simultaneously seeking to conduct a dialogue with the Soviet Union," Haig said.

During his talks with the foreign ministers Thursday and Friday, Haig is expected to ask for increased European commitments to NATO's defense efforts, a theme already emphasized by U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger in separate talks with NATO defense ministers.

Haig met today with Weinberger and was scheduled to meet later in the day with Greek Prime Minister and Defense Minister Andreas Papandreou.

On Tuesday, Papandreou said he told other NATO ministers that because of problems with neighboring Turkey — a NATO member — Greece is being "forced to consider a process of disengagement from agreements that are prejudicial."

He refused to elaborate on "disengagement" and "partial suspension" but did criticize an agreement reached by Greece's previous conservative government providing for Turkey and Greece to share disputed air space over the Aegean Sea.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who conferred with Papandreou Monday, had no comment on his statements, a U.S. spokesman said.

Haig will report to other NATO ministers at the alliance's annual year-end meeting about the status of U.S.-Soviet negotiations aimed at eliminating medium-range nuclear missiles from Europe.

A U.S. official who did not want to be identified said Haig will attempt to strengthen NATO's 1979 commitment to deploy new U.S. missiles should U.S.-Soviet arms reduction talks fail.

"We will be looking for general support of both tracks," said the official, referring both to deployment and negotiations with the Soviets.

The official said Haig would not attempt to get NATO support for possible U.S. action against Libya. Some U.S. allies are known to question the wisdom of sanctions against the government of Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy.

Haig is traveling under unusually strict security because of reports, taken seriously in Washington, that he is a possible target of a Libyan assassination team.

Fender says divorce fight is killing 'the golden goose'

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Entertainer Freddy Fender had a 60-day jail term set aside and a new hearing scheduled on allegations he violated a court order in a divorce squabble he contends is "killing the goose with the golden egg."

An arrest warrant was issued for the 43-year-old singer — whose real name is Baldemar Huerta — after he failed to appear at a Nov. 24 hearing.

Fender, who surrendered to authorities Tuesday, said he was on tour in Florida and California last month and never notified about the hearing.

State District Judge Jack Blackmon set aside the jail sentence Tuesday and scheduled a Dec. 21 hearing on allegations by Fender's estranged wife, Evangelina Huerta, that the singer violated terms of a peace bond and missed child support payments totaling $1,300.

Mrs. Huerta obtained a peace bond in 1980 when she said in her divorce petition that Fender would become enraged when served notice and would try to harm her.

She alleges he violated the terms of the court order June 16 by showing up drunk at her fashionable residence overlooking Corpus Christi Bay and refusing to leave.

"That woman wouldn't be afraid of the devil. I'm willing to offer her 50-50 for a settlement, but all she wants to do is make war. This isn't helping us any. I don't see any purpose in this except for the hate of a woman scorned," Fender told The Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

"People think I'm in jail already and I've had three cancellations, which will cost me at least $20,000. Promoters are scared. People get the wrong idea and put me down at the bottom of the list of entertainers so she (Mrs. Huerta) is killing the goose with the golden egg," Fender said.

Fender said he went to the house in June and offered to talk to Mrs. Huerta through the door in an effort to reach a settlement.

He contends the bitter divorce fight and other lawsuits, including two that stem from a tour bus accident last summer that killed his drummer, have put him in a financial bind.

"My head's just getting straight from having to identify my friend's remains and all these lawsuits come raining down on me," Fender said. "It's going to be a black Christmas. Last year I sent $2,000 to my family. This time all I have to send them is my love."

Court documents show Fender has real estate holdings — including the $350,000 house where his estranged wife lives — valued at $582,000, 13 vehicles, $40,000 worth of furniture in the Corpus Christi home and $172,789 in various bank accounts and certificates of deposit.

Fender and his wife were divorced once before and remarried in 1977. Their second divorce trial is scheduled for Jan. 25.

25 charged with delivery of drugs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A 10-month undercover narcotics investigation has ended with the arrest of 25 people in four North Texas counties, the Department of Public Safety said.

DPS spokesman Larry Todd said 24 of the 25 defendants identified in 18 indictments and seven arrest complaints were charged with delivery of marijuana and the other was charged with delivery of dangerous drugs.

All the defendants — 21 men and 4 women — were in custody by late Monday night and held on bonds ranging from $5,000 to $20,000, said Todd.

The indictments were returned by grand juries in Childress, Donley, Collingsworth and Hardeman counties.

Three held in marijuana seizure

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — Three people were in custody today following the seizure of 1,200 pounds of marijuana at the Gregg County airport, officials said.

Authorities said the illegal weed was found aboard a 402 Cessna that landed about 4 a.m.

Agents from the Department of Public Safety and officers from several other East Texas law agencies confiscated the plane and a van that was waiting for the craft.

Officers said the trio offered no resistance.

Law fit his beliefs, sponsor says

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The legislator who sponsored Arkansas' creation law says he did so because it was compatible with his religion.

"It had to be compatible," Sen. James Holsted, D-North Little Rock, said Tuesday. "I'm not going to stand before the Senate and try to pass something I don't believe in."

Holsted testified Tuesday to U.S. District Judge William Overton during the trial of an American Civil Liberties Union lawsuit that says the law is an unconstitutional establishment of religion. The ACLU also says the law is vague and violates academic freedom.

Holsted said the First Amendment prohibition against laws that establish religion is not violated because the law bans religious writings and "doesn't mention any particular god."

He believes in a literal interpretation of the Bible, that fundamentalists are the legislation's most ardent supporters and that the law favors a literalistic interpretation of Genesis, Holsted said.

The creation account the law authorizes for public schools, starting next fall, presupposes a creator who is divine, he said.

The ACLU lawsuit was filed for 23 plaintiffs, including 12 clergymen. The ACLU says the Balanced Treatment for Creation-Science and Evolution-Science Act is a move by fundamentalists to force their literal interpretation of Genesis into the schools.

The law says that if the schools teach evolution they must teach a theory called creation-science, which it defines as including creation of everything suddenly from nothing.

The state says creation-science is scientific and that evolution is at least as religious as the creation view. The ACLU says evolution is the only scientifically valid view.

Holsted said he got the bill from a constituent, but that it was drafted by a creationist, Paul Ellwanger of Anderson, S.C.

The ACLU's other three witnesses Tuesday included a philosopher, who said creationist writings are dishonest and illogical, and two scientists, who said the law's creation theory isn't science.

G. Brent Dalrymple of the U.S. Geological Survey said creationists attempt to date the earth's age and to refute evolutionist figures rely on disproved assumptions and false data. They have used figures the originators of the figures have rejected, he said.

Dalrymple, who was in charge of analysis of moon rocks from the Apollo 11-13 missions, said errors underlay creationist writings about the earth's magnetic field decay, the accumulation of meteorite dust, the sun's diameter, the cooling of the earth, the magma flow into the earth's crust and the accumulation of various materials in the ocean.

"I put that in the same category as the flat-earth theory and the theory that the sun goes around the earth," Dalrymple said of creation-science. "It is a completely absurd hypothesis."

Radiometric dating techniques, which measure the decay of radioactive material, indicate the earth is 4.5 billion years old, he said. That is the only valid measurement of the earth's age, because everything else can be changed by external forces, he said.

If creationists are right in some of their criticisms of the techniques, then the earth is older than evolutionists say, not younger, Dalrymple told the court.

Geneticist Francisco Ayala of the University of California at Davis, Calif., said evolution had been demonstrated in laboratories, including his two-year study of 25 generations of fruit flies.

Some of the things that creationist probability figures say are impossible are the very things that can be made to happen in the laboratory, he said.

The law's definition of evolution omits key elements, such as genetic drift, he said. The law is dangerous, Ayala said, because it pretends that only two alternatives exist and misrepresents one of them, evolution.

Evolutionists say life developed over millions of years. Ayala said there are many theories about how it happened.

A history and philosophy professor, Michael Ruse of the University of Guelph, Ontario, said creationists dishonestly quote evolutionists out of context to show disagreement over whether evolution happened.

Ohio authorities will question man belived 'Ski Mask Rapist'

DONALDSONVILLE, La. (AP) — Already indicted in Louisiana and Texas and suspected in 10 more states, the man known as the "Ski Mask Rapist" faced questioning by Ohio authorities today about crimes for which another person has been imprisoned.

On Tuesday, Jon B. Simonis, 30, of Lake Charles, La., was ordered held on $4 million bond in an Ascension Parish courtroom here and also indicted on assorted offenses by a grand jury in Tyler County, Texas.

Simonis, who has admitted a coast-to-coast rape and robbery spree over the past three years, was sentenced to 21 years in prison — with no chance for early release — after pleading guilty last week at Jena, La., to charges of armed robbery, burglary and unauthorized use of someone else's car.

Louisiana State Police said Simonis may have committed more than 80 crimes in 12 states, mostly sexual assaults on women and girls that males were forced to witness. In almost every case, said LSP spokesman Ronnie Jones, the attacker wore a ski mask or some similar disguise.

In addition to Louisiana, Texas and Ohio, the states that have inquired about Simonis includes California, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Michigan, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma and Wisconsin, investigators said.

Sheriff Jim Peck of Fairfield County, Ohio, said he hoped to confer with Simonis today about several Ohio rapes, including two in 1979 for which a Lancaster, Ohio, man is now imprisoned.

"The two rapes the man is in the penitentiary for have an M.O. (method of operation) very similar to that of Mr. Simonis," Peck said.

Last week, Texas authorities released an inmate convicted of rapes they said they were convinced Simonis had committed.

Simonis sounded remorseful in Tuesday's appearance at Donaldsonville.

"I am fully aware of the charges against me," Simonis told Louisiana District Judge Charles S. Bechel. "I have brought a lot of people harm. I have put physical and mental scars on these people's minds."

"I feel bad this has happened," he said. "I feel bad for what I have done. I don't expect the people to forgive me."

"It is my judgment I have done wrong and I would just as soon to plead guilty and save the people time and money. I am ready to plead guilty to the charges and take the sentence, whatever might be handed to me."

Bechel would not accept the guilty plea. Instead, he told Public Defender Alan J. Robert to confer with Simonis prior to his arraignment on three charges of aggravated rape, four counts of armed robbery and one count of aggravated burglary.

Those charges resulted from an Oct. 29 break-in at Gonzales.

While Simonis was appearing at Donaldsonville, a grand jury at Woodville, Texas, was indicting him for aggravated robbery, aggravated rape and aggravated sexual abuse of a 14-year-old girl.

Bond of $300,000 bond was recommended for whenever Simonis might be brought to Texas to answer those charges.

Chief Deputy B. J. Vardeman said the Tyler County charges involved the Sept. 28 rape and robbery of a Woodville family.

Vardeman said Simonis allegedly entered a home about 7:30 p.m. and bound the father with duct tape.

"He (the father) had tape over his eyes, his ears, his hair... He was tied up and handcuffed," said Vardeman.

Murder charges dropped

HOUSTON (AP) — Murder charges against a Houston man, who allegedly acted as an informant in the FBI's investigation of convicted contract killer Charles V. Harrelson, have been dropped because two witnesses could not be located, prosecutors said.

State District Judge Perry Pickett dismissed the charge Tuesday against Hampton Robinson III, but District Attorney John Holmes said the charge could be re-filed if investigators find the witnesses.

Robinson was accused in the slaying last May of William Scott Green, 36. Robinson's trial was delayed three times because the witnesses could not be found.

Robinson was sentenced to a year in jail and fined $2,000 when he was convicted of criminally negligent homicide in the 1976 slaying of rancher Thomas Taylor Bauer, 32, of Victoria.

Defense attorneys representing Harrelson, who has been identified by federal agents as the prime suspect in the 1979 assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., contended Robinson gave FBI agents information that led to Harrelson's arrest on an unrelated federal weapons charge.

Harrelson's lawyers claimed the agents used the information to plant five guns in Harrelson's car.

Robinson's attorneys and the FBI denied the allegations.

El Paso mayor supports water suit settlement out-of-court

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — El Paso, Texas Mayor Jonathan Rogers said he favors an out-of-court settlement in the pending dispute between his city and the state of New Mexico over water supplies in the Mesilla Valley.

The El Paso Public Service Board is challenging through the federal courts a New Mexico law which bans the exportation of state water supplies to another state. The board filed suit after its application to drill 326 water wells in New Mexico was rejected by state Engineer Steve Reynolds.

The suit is scheduled to be heard by U.S. District Judge Howard Bratton on Jan. 11. However, it is possible the suit may be delayed because of a similar case involving the state of Nebraska and farmers in Colorado.

Rogers said he and New Mexico Gov. Bruce King were personal friends, and acknowledged the two had discussed the suit in the past.

King and the New Mexico Border Commission last week said they would support efforts by the state's business community to try and get El Paso to drop its suit. Ray Pearson, chairman of the Public Service Board in El Paso, said he opposed dropping the suit.

King also has said he would like for New Mexico State University President Gerald Thomas to head an informal and unofficial committee that would spearhead discussions. Thomas, however, ruled out his participation and that of other university officials in New Mexico.

"I am not in a position to help because of the university's involvement in the lawsuit," Thomas said. "We're trying to get the business people from both sides to get together to talk on a non-official basis."

Poor pay while the wealthy play

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Poor Mexican-Americans are footing a disproportionate part of the expense for putting on the 10-day Fiesta celebration each year, a city councilman charges.

"Fiesta queens and kings are being promoted, crowned, dined, wined, chauffeured and paraded on the dollars that come from San Antonio's poor people," says councilman Bernardo Eureste. "People who can least afford it are footing the bill for the Fiesta Commission."

The city councilman proposed an alternate method of financing for the 1982 Fiesta and said he would call for boycotts and pickets if the Fiesta Commission and other council members do not go along with it.

Eureste's proposal calls for the San Antonio Conservation Society, which puts on Night in Old San Antonio, and the sponsors of Semana Alegre to contribute money to the Fiesta Commission for the first time.

He said the two events gross over $2.5 million each year but do not currently pay anything to the commission.

About 65 percent of the commission's income is generated by the Fiesta Carnival, which grosses about $2 million from a crowd that is mostly "Mexican-American... from the poor and modest backgrounds," Eureste said.

No evidence against Casey

CIA Director William J. Casey apparently isn't violating a law by refusing to place his personal stock holdings in a blind trust during his tenure as the nation's chief intelligence official. But he certainly seems to be flying in the face of government regulations that discourage federal employees from creating the appearance of using public office for private gain.

Casey and his wife reportedly own stock valued at up to $3.4 million in 27 corporations with overseas operations. Among these investments is $250,000 worth of stock in an oil company with substantial interests in the Persian Gulf sheikdom of Abu Dhabi.

The director of Central Intelligence can hardly monitor developments in the Persian Gulf without reading some highly classified intelligence on Abu Dhabi's oil reserves, political stability and other factors bearing directly on the value of his stock.

Similar inside information affecting most or all of Casey's other investments in companies with foreign operations is no doubt available to him on a routine basis.

This is not to suggest that William Casey buys and sells stock based on what he learns as head of the CIA. That would be illegal, and there is no evidence that Director Casey has used his public office for private gain.

Nevertheless, the temptation and the opportunity to do so remains, as does the appearance of a substantial conflict of interest.

Casey can remove that temptation together with the appearance of impropriety, by doing as his most recent predecessors did: namely, place his personal investments in a blind trust administered without interference by an independent agent. This is precisely what President Reagan, Vice President Bush, Secretary of State Haig, and Treasury Secretary Regan have done. Casey ought to hold himself to no less a standard.

Will we return to the gold standard?

The United States is beginning a great gold debate. Possible return of the U. S. dollar to the gold standard, scarcely mentioned for years, has suddenly become a lively topic around the country.

One reason for the resurgence of gold talk is the persistence of high interest rates, which have had a deadening effect on economic growth and are largely blamed for delaying or reducing expected benefits from the Reagan administration's fiscal disciplines.

Interest rates have been hanging tough at all-time highs because bankers and other lenders do not yet believe the inflation rate will be more than temporarily checked. High interest rates are but their hedge against being repaid with cheaper dollars.

Despite an inching down of the prime rate from a 20.5 percent high in early September to 16 percent last week, the gold-standard advocates argue that only a return to the gold standard will substantially lower rates and spur prosperity. They insist a sound currency must be tied to a precious metal such as gold or silver, that all history proves how currencies are inevitably debased when subject only to political manipulation. The gold advocates maintain that the Reagan fiscal reforms cannot work in the absence of monetary reform, quality of money, not quantity is the key to monetary discipline.

Giving intellectual substance to the gold debate is the U. S. Gold Commission, which was created by Congress last year and held its first meeting in July. The Commission, composed of representatives from Congress, the administration, and the financial community, is considering, in the words of its statutory authority, what role gold should play "in the domestic and international monetary systems."

Whatever gold's future role, its historic one has been enormous. By 1800, the fledgling United States had transformed its worthless continental paper currency of Revolutionary War days with dollar convertible into gold. During the life of the nation when the gold standard prevailed, except for a paper-currency period during the Civil War, prices were constant.

Wholesale prices were roughly the same in 1933, when President Franklin Roosevelt abandoned the gold standard, as they were in 1800. By contrast, during the 50 years without a gold anchor, wholesale prices have leaped an astonishing 760 percent. More U. S. dollars have been produced since the breakdown of the gold standard than the entire previous history of the republic. Never before in U. S. history had the Treasury been obliged to pay 15 percent of 30-year bonds, a sure sign of pessimism about the long term prospects of controlling inflation. Irredeemable paper money has usually gone with unbalanced budgets, high interest rates.

Under a gold standard, the Federal Reserve would have to back the dollar with a certain amount of gold in vaults. One plan calls for a gold reserve equal to 40 percent of the Federal Reserve liabilities. The result would be that paper currency would be increased, not at political convenience, but only when the supply of gold increased. As in the past, gold advocates maintain that people would not bother to exchange paper for gold, an inconvenience to carry, once the dollar became as good as gold, an historic regulator preventing excessive optimism or pessimism.

With U. S. official gold reserves at more than $100 billion or 10 times the reserves of 10 years ago, our gold cover for currency in circulation is now estimated to be 80 percent compared with only 17 percent when President Nixon closed the U. S. gold window on the world in 1971. The gold standard would, we are advised, permit the national debt to be refinanced at an interest rate of 5 percent or less, thus saving at least $50 billion annually.

The gold standard argument is being given considerable credibility nowadays by Economist Arthur Laffer and Congressman Jack Kemp, who helped to inspire the Reaganomics revolution. Dr. Laffer flatly predicts that President Reagan, who is known to favor gold discipline, will return the nation to the gold standard in the not distant future.

But most economists oppose the gold standard, including Nobel laureate Milton Friedman. He reminds that under gold, the United States suffers convulsive economic swings.

If interest rates should move downward and stay there, signifying confidence in the dollar's lasting value, then return to the gold standard does not appear likely. If not, the gold-backed dollar may well become President Reagan's next drastic medicine. And, by now, no one should doubt that Mr. Reagan will reach for this if he thinks it's necessary.

Recently, the Palestinian Liberation Organization boasted of wounding Yussuf Al-Khatib, the moderate Arab head of a village association in the Israeli-occupied West Bank, and slaying his 23-year-old son, Kadem.

This is only the latest instance of Arabs being attacked by the PLO. Almost every Arab leader who has spoken out for peace or refused to become a PLO militant has been liquidated or intimidated into paralysis. Some of the more prominent Arab leaders recently slain include Sheikh Hashem Khuzendar, the religious leader of

PLO murder list growing

Gaza and a supporter of Egypt's late President Anwar Sadat; Mohammed Abu Warda, a member of an Arab delegation from Gaza that went to Egypt to congratulate President Sadat on his peace moves, and Mohammed Hamed Abu Quarda, acting mayor of the Jabalya refugee camp in Gaza; who was a known Sadat supporter.

The list of prominent Arabs in Gaza and the West Bank who have been murdered for political reasons grows by the week. During recent years, hundreds of Arabs in all walks of life have been murdered by the PLO. Indeed, the PLO in its ruthless bid for political control in the occupied territories, has killed far more Arabs than Israelis.

PLo spokesman Farouk Kaddoumi has spelled out for the Arab population how politics from a gun barrel works: "Our people are capable of taking the necessary disciplinary measures against those who try to leave the right path."

The right, path, of course, is that set forth by PLO terrorists. The PLO path is an unremitting campaign of sabotage, murder, and intimidation. Gaza and West Bank Arabs who do not join in PLO attacks against the Israelis are classified as Israeli collaborators and, therefore, subject to a death sentence.

Amidst the conflicts and complexities of the occupied territories, it becomes increasingly apparent that a moderate Arab alternative to PLO rule in any autonomous setup has been effectively eliminated. This makes a West Bank settlement all the more difficult because the Israelis are not likely to deliver to the PLO Gaza, the West Bank, and the Arab population therein.

Today in history

Today is Wednesday, Dec. 9, the 343rd day of 1981. There are 22 days remaining in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Dec. 9, 1940, the British 8th Army opened its North African offensive during World War II.

On this date: In 1934, Ethiopian and Italian troops clashed on the border between Italian Somaliland and Ethiopia.

In 1941, Japanese troops landed on Luzon Island in the Philippines during World War II.

In 1965, Nikolai Podgorny replaced Anastas Mikoyan as president of the Soviet Union.

And in 1972, North Vietnam and the Soviet Union concluded an agreement for economic and military aid to Hanoi. Ten years ago: The Vatican released a pronouncement by Pope Paul VI, reaffirming the Roman Catholic Church's ban on married priests.

Five years ago: House Democrats called for a major investigation of alleged South Korean influence peddling on Capitol Hill.

One year ago: Mark Chapman was arraigned in New York for the murder of John Lennon outside the former Beatle's Manhattan apartment house the night before.

Today's birthdays: Actor Broderick Crawford is 70 years old. Actor Kirk Douglas is 65.

Thurrow's Folly

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

The silly season in economic forecasting seems to have begun. Evidence of this comes in the prediction by Lester C. Thurrow, the well-known economist at MIT, that the storm signals point to "an economic typhoon."

He could be right, of course, but his predictions strike this writer as a triumph of guesswork over evidence. While the economy is in a slump, it doesn't compare to the severe recession of 1974-75.

Even sillier is Mr. Thurrow's statement that President Reagan "admits that his policies have produced a 'mild' recession." Mr. Reagan has done no such thing. His policies, in effect for a very short time, haven't had any such effect. The "mild" recession is the direct result of years of liberal mismanagement of the economy and profligate spending on welfare.

Mr. Reagan is having to deal with troubles he inherited from earlier administrations. The roots of the current economic distress go back to the New Deal programs of the 1930s when Americans were first told that government would support them. The country has had several generations of welfare families since that time.

Moreover, the entire world is in the grip of a recession. Again, the root cause of this global recession are liberal and socialist economic policies in scores of nations. Dozens of nations have lived beyond their means since they gained their independence in the 1950s and 1960s. They have relied on American and European foreign aid to rescue them from ruin. Now, the sources of foreign aid are drying up.

This is not true in all cases, of course. The International Monetary Fund recently made the error of lending several billion dollars to India, which has a notoriously inefficient socialist government. One can be sure that the Indians will use much of this money to finance an arms buildup aimed at Pakistan. And part of the money will go to equip ailing state industries that will seek a new penetration of the American market. In short, the IMF is compounding the mess.

At home, the need is for additional deep cuts in federal spending in order to reduce the budget deficit. Congressional reluctance to make these cuts is very disturbing. Without deeper cuts, there is little chance of America getting its house in order. We have too much government at every level — too much waste.

Many wage settlements made in recent years have encouraged workers to opt for unemployment rather than reductions in salaries necessary to maintain competition. A case in point is an auto plant in Sheffield, Ala., where members of the United Auto Workers have indicated they will choose unemployment over a pay cut. They take this stand because the national wage agreement the UAW has with the Ford Motor Co. provides so-called "supplementary unemployment pay benefit" that give almost full compensation for a year. This is a built-in industrial welfare scheme unwisely accepted by business.

This situation shows that one of our root problems has to do with basic attitudes. Arrangements such as "SUB" pay encourage indolence.

President Reagan is on the right track in his economic policies. Instead of being responsible for recession, they are guidelines for a return to prosperity. In the meantime, a majority of Americans seem to have realized that a balanced budget is an essential goal, if not for 1984, then later.

If there is an economic typhoon in our future, it will come only from a mistaken return to large-scale welfareism and excessive spending policies.

What to do with our exploding prison population?

Granted, little criminals jammed in with big ones come out worse than before.

The suicide rate in prisons is 16 times what it is outside.

Rebellious cons are wrecking what prisons we have, and we have too few.

Some far-fetched experiments have been tried. California tried releasing convicted rapists and child molesters for outings in town.

From Patton State Hospital convicted rapists and child molesters were allowed to go into San Bernardino, Calif., to visit discotheques — to mingle with women — in the name of "therapy."

In one month, seven escaped. I have heard no better option for violent criminals than a lockup.

For non-violent criminals, there may be something better.

Chuck Colson's Prison Fellowship Program seeks reform for individual prisoners and for the prison system.

As a missionary behind bars, he seeks to redirect misdirected lives through a Christian commitment.

At the same time, Colson has sought and got the cooperation of prison authorities in releasing non-violent criminals to do "outside work."

On his responsibility, six prisoners were recently released from Eglin Federal Prison in Florida.

For two weeks they helped two elderly people in Atlanta — one an aged blind widow — to insulate their modest homes against the oncoming winter.

The six, two Hispanics, two blacks, two whites, are committed Christians in whom Colson had enough confidence so that they were not guarded while on furlough. They lived in Christian homes in the area.

Colson risked his ministry on the premise that these six would behave themselves.

They insulated attics and cellars in both houses, weatherstripped and caulked doors and windows.

Money for the materials was donated by area churches.

Work that might have cost $21,000 was completed for a fraction of that. The men did behave themselves. Colson hopes they will become the vanguard for many.

If non-violent criminals, instead of being sentenced to prison, can be sentenced to compulsory community service — or to work in jobs until they make restitution to their victims and to the state — then the punishment would fit the crime.

And they would pay taxes instead of taxpayers supporting them.

Bill would keep 'Rock' running in four states

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation aimed at keeping the Rock Island Railroad running along a 900-mile stretch in four states won't come in time to save the line from a Dec. 31 shutdown order, says a spokesman for shippers.

Rail Users Association, in an interview Tuesday. Smith was among witnesses who testified Tuesday on a bill that would increase the government's power to keep bankrupt rail lines operating and expedite their sale.

"A shutdown is imminent, and we can't avoid it," said Jim Smith of Herington, Kan., president of the Oklahoma-Kansas-Texas

The Senate Commerce Committee is scheduled to vote Thursday on the measure, but Smith said it's extremely unlikely that anything can be done in time to meet the deadline. The Dec. 31 date was set by the 7th Circuit Court of Appeals, which ruled that the Interstate Commerce Commission does not have power to continue service on the line. The ICC is expected to appeal that ruling, and Mrs. Kassebaum said she is looking at legislative alternatives to head off the shutdown. But one Senate source said the prospects for success are dim. Smith said halting service on the line from St. Joseph, Mo., through Kansas City, Topeka, Kan., and Oklahoma City to Dallas, would idle 400 workers, many of them former Rock Island employees, leave 210 shippers with no rail service and deprive more than 70 communities of affordable transportation for their goods.

"We've got one small grain elevator 15 miles from Herington that doesn't even have a paved road leading to it," Smith said. In another instance, a rock quarry near Richards Spur, Okla., would have its shipping costs more than doubled if forced to ship by truck instead of rail, he said. The bill is designed to facilitate sale of track of bankrupt railroads and give the ICC the power to grant temporary operating authority. The ICC would have authority, with consent of the bankruptcy court, to set a purchase price in cases where the trustee and the potential buyer cannot agree.

ANNIVERSARY TRIBUTE. Holding a candle Regina Wilde joins the some 400 people who came to the Dakota apartment in New York City Tuesday where John Lennon was shot a year ago. "Last year I felt sorrow," she said. "This year I feel happy. This is a tribute." (AP Laserphoto)

Anniversary of ex-Beatle's death brings pain and joy

By RICK HAMPSON
Associated Press Writer

One year ago Regina Wilde stood on the same New York City street near the same police barricades, staring through tears at the dark gateway where John Lennon was murdered.

But on Tuesday the 23-year-old college student returned to the Dakota Apartments for a party, not a wake, on the first anniversary of the former Beatle's death.

"Last year I felt sorrow. Someone close to me had died," she said, cupping a candle with her hand to shield it from the raw night wind. "This year I feel happy. This is a tribute. He will live forever and ever and a day."

The feeling was the same around the world that John Lennon helped change. Joy that his words and music endured seemed to be replacing sorrow over the burst of madness that ended his life a year earlier.

In Liverpool, the cradle of Beatlemania, it seemed like 1965 again when a local band kicked off an outdoor concert tribute to Lennon with the Beatles' "Eight Days a Week."

Teen-agers jumped up and down and screamed, and a few fainted, just as others had 20 years ago. A dozen girls crushed in the gyrating crowd were passed head over head toward ambulances, which took two of them to a hospital for treatment of rib injuries.

The celebration, attended by about 3,000 in near-freezing temperatures, ended with a five-minute candlelight vigil.

In San Francisco, two climbers marked the anniversary by scaling eight floors of a skyscraper and unfurling a banner calling for an end to the nuclear arms race. Edwin Drummond, 36, and Lia Simmacher, 21, abandoned their climb after officials of the 45-story building agreed to let the banner hang for the day.

But as soon as they were on the ground, officials bunched up the banner and hauled it inside. A lunchtime crowd of several hundred cheered the protesters and booed when the banner was removed.

The 30-foot hand-painted cloth pennant said "Imagine No Arms," a reference to a Lennon song and viewpoint.

At the Dakota, where Lennon lived and finally died at the hand of Mark David Chapman — who is serving a 20-year to life-in-prison sentence — about 400 people sang Beatle songs, held candles and talked about why they came.

"I don't know how I would have handled it if I was able to make it (last year)," said Scott Smith, 17, of Madison, N.J. "It goes all right with me now. The impact is over. I've had time to get used to it."

Greg Hoffman, 16, of Brooklyn, said the anniversary was "different" because last year "people didn't come because of publicity, they came because of what they felt. This year many people are coming to get in front of the cameras."

Joseph Erdelyi Jr., 70, held a placard advertising sheet music for his "John Lennon's Requiem" for $5 each.

Yoko Ono, Lennon's widow, had left the Dakota, reportedly for a day of meditation with their son Sean, 6, at their Long Island estate.

More iron lost than gained

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have iron-poor blood. I don't have enough iron to give blood and I am a member of a blood bank. The last two times I was turned down for not having enough iron in my blood for them to take it. I'm really worried. What can I do?

DEAR READER — Obviously one of the things you can do is to not give blood. You didn't provide any information about yourself but your loss of iron must be exceeding your intake. That happens in a woman in her childbearing years.

Women lose enough iron from menstruation to nearly double their daily iron requirements. And women who use hormones that are interrupted once a month to induce bleeding also need increased amounts of iron. Some individuals lose iron from the digestive system. This could be from an ulcer or sometimes there is seeping from erosion caused by taking aspirin. Then there is bleeding from hemorrhoids. We lose only a small amount of iron each day and the amount needed in people who have no blood loss is rather small. However, if you have been giving blood frequently and have not had an increased dietary intake of iron to replace it, then that may be the whole problem.

The role of iron involves much more than just providing iron for your blood cells. This is explained in The Health Letter number 4-4, Iron and Anemia, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Iron is essential in complex chemical reactions that enable your individual cells to release energy from your food. Without that action you would be very tired.

I hasten to add that iron-poor blood is seldom the cause of fatigue in most people but it can be one of many causes. You must see your doctor and see how much iron deficiency you really have and be sure it is just related to having given blood. You don't want to ignore a possible unexplained blood loss.

If you just have an increased iron requirement you can increase your daily iron intake by using iron cookware. And you may want to take a daily vitamin that contains iron. If you take iron use a glass of orange juice with it. The vitamin C will increase the iron absorption for you.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I recall reading about iodine having something to do with determining the height of a child. I think it was in your column. As I remember, children given iodine grew taller. My children are short and I want my grandchildren to have every chance to be taller. Can you give me some more information on this?

DEAR READER — Iodine is used to form thyroid hormone. And thyroid hormone is essential to normal growth. However, giving iodine to a growing person or animal will not increase his growth beyond what his inherited characteristics provide for. Put another way, if a person is producing enough thyroid hormone giving additional iodine will be useless.

There are still people who are apt to be deficient in iodine. The two main sources of iodine remain iodized salt and seafood. There is still a lot of salt on the market that is not iodized, particularly in large bulk amounts sold to restaurants and large consumers. If your grandchildren use iodized salt and eat seafood part of the time they are not likely to be iodine deficient. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Dear Abby

Off-the-record citizen wants back on

DEAR ABBY: When you read this, you will know why I've been too embarrassed to ask anyone else.

Abby, I haven't voted so long, I'm not even sure if I'm eligible or not. (I'm not even sure I'm registered.) There must be others with the same problem, so you may want to answer this letter in the column. If you print this, please don't use my name.

RED, WHITE, BLUE AND BLUSHING

DEAR BLUSHING: Yours is an excellent question. One of our cherished rights is the right to vote, and unfortunately, the number of people who exercise that right in this country is a national scandal. (Only 53.9 percent of the voting-age population voted in the last presidential election.)

For information about voting, look in your telephone book under the name of your state, city or county board of elections or county clerk. Or call the local chapter of the League of Women Voters. (There are 1400 chapters in the U.S.A.) If there is no chapter where you live, write to the national headquarters: League of Women Voters, 1730 M St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

The league is one of the few places where people can get impartial, thoroughly researched and documented information. It doesn't try to "sell" an issue, or "package" a candidate.

If a candidate is running for re-election, find out how he (or she) voted on the various bills. Also examine attendance records.

Those who do not vote have no right to complain about their government, their representatives or the state of the nation.

husband) and me like we were dogs — something we were certainly not accustomed to.

Joe is a very stubborn and unforgiving man, and he refused to attend Lisa and Gary's wedding. I went and did what I could to be supportive.

Lisa is welcome in our home, but Gary is not. Abby, I'm not crazy about Gary either, but I love Lisa more than I hate Gary, so I put up with him. I've tried every way I know to get Joe to forgive and forget, but he won't budge. Any suggestions?

NEEDS HELP IN INDY

DEAR NEEDS HELP: Quit begging Joe to change his mind. If by some miracle Gary proves to be a good husband, perhaps Joe will mellow and accept him in time. Nothing is forever, and time often heals some ugly wounds, so be patient, and be quiet.

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letter Booklet, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.

DEAR ABBY: I may be old-fashioned, but I think it's in very poor taste to give a child money for Christmas. My mother-in-law sends my child a check every Christmas, and I get furious with her. I have been tempted to send it back or to send her a check in the same amount.

I feel if she can't take the time (of which she has plenty) to shop for her grandchild, she can keep her money. My child would be more impressed with a sack of jelly beans than he is with grandma's check. Should I tell her to forget it next year?

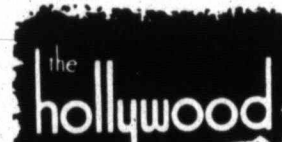

FURIOUS

DEAR FURIOUS: No. I think giving a child a check makes more sense than giving him a gift he feels he must keep (or worse yet, wear) because it's grandma's Christmas gift. You can't go wrong with money; the color is always right, and you don't have to worry about "fit" — it fits into any pocketbook.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter Lisa was married four months ago to a man I'll call Gary. It was a very stormy and upsetting courtship, to say the least. Gary has a violent temper and caused us a lot of grief. He'd phone the house at all hours demanding to talk to Lisa, and once when she refused to talk to him, he came to the house and broke down our front door! He treated Lisa badly and talked to Joe (my

by Lucrece Beale

SYNOPSIS: Heading across the frozen sea to ask Santa to help talk the Ice King into ending the continuous winter, Oonik and Keotuk are caught in a fierce storm. The storm collapsed the snow cave where Oonik was sleeping and he awoke to find himself sliding down a piece of ice.

CHAPTER FOUR KEOTUK HURTS HIS PAW

Down, down, down Oonik slid on the huge slab of ice upended by the storm. Ahead of him was the black churning sea. Oonik threw himself back and dug in his heels but he could not stop sliding.

Just as he was about to zoom into the water there was a terrible screech and the ice slab suddenly reversed itself like a see saw and Oonik began rocketing back in the other direction.

With a whoosh he shot off the far end and landed head first in a snow drift. There he rolled himself up into a tight little ball and lay trembling with teeth chattering and hands over his ears.

But even the Ice King seemed to have enough. The wind died down and the ice no longer groaned and creaked.

Oonik crawled out of the snowdrift. Blinking, he stared at the world. It was peaceful and quiet. Great piles of ice blocks lay about like forgotten toys. Where there had been open water there was now a solid ridge of ice.

There was no sign of Keotuk or the sled.

"Keotuk!" called Oonik. "Keotuk, come!"

He ran from ridge to ridge, calling and clapping his hands. Suddenly he saw a snowdrift rise up from the ice. The drift heaved and shook itself and there was Keotuk stepping sleepily out. Covered by the drift he had been safe and warm as the storm died out.

"Oh, Keotuk!" cried Oonik embracing the dog. "I knew you would be all right! But where is the sled?"

Alas it was gone. Together with Oonik's spear and the remainder of his food, the sled was buried beneath the ice or, perhaps, at the bottom of the sea.

Oonik stared at the mountains in the distant snow. There, nestled in those mountains, was Santa Land.

"We can make it," Oonik told himself bravely. "Come, Keotuk, it isn't too far. We're almost there."

Together they started off. Trudging slowly, Oonik often slipped and fell. Keotuk stayed Oonik wrapped the pieces of skin around Keotuk's paws.

at his side and when they came to an ice hill Keotuk caught Oonik's parka in his teeth and helped drag him up and over.

On and on they went in the never ending daylight and little by little the snow covered mountains grew closer. Then, when it seemed they were almost there Keotuk suddenly lay down.

"Come on," begged Oonik. "We can't rest now. We'll freeze or starve if we don't get there soon."

But Keotuk whimpered softly. Oonik knelt down and rubbed his hands through Keotuk's fur. "What is it?" he murmured gently.

Keotuk whimpered again and held up one of his front paws. Oonik gasped with dismay. The paw was cut and torn by ice splinters.

Oonik picked out the splinters. "Oh, Keotuk, if only you had shoes!" he moaned. Then he had an idea. "I will make you some shoes!"

With his knife he cut four strips of seal skin from his own coat. He wrapped the pieces of skin around Keotuk's paws and tied them with lacing from his own hood.

"There," he said. "Ice splinters can't hurt you now." Keotuk rose uncertainly to his feet. At first he limped but the soft skin shoes actually made his bruised paw feel better and after a while he was able to walk quite well.

On they trudged until at last they came to the shore and Oonik saw smoke curling up from behind the hills.

Everything will be all right now," cried Oonik starting to run. "For that is surely smoke from Santa's very own chimney!"

Getting angry at banks

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A lot of people are angry at their banks these days, such as Bob Loughlin of Portland, Ore., and Jackie Kleiner of Atlanta and Joe Pat Downs of Bardonia, Ky.

Loughlin got angry when, he says, a big bank foreclosed its loans to his firm and threatened to liquidate it. Kleiner got angry when, he says, he was badly overcharged on a loan. And Joe Pat Downs too.

Loughlin raised a to-do with regulatory officials and in court, then helped form a bank for small businesses. With evangelical zeal he denounces "greedy" big banks and "phony" prime interest rates.

Kleiner, a business professor and attorney whom Bob Loughlin considers the patriarch of the angry activists, got incensed when, he says, his bank charged him on the basis of a prime rate that wasn't prime at all. His loans, says Kleiner, were supposed to cost one percentage point over the prime rate, which an America Bankers Association book calls "the rate charged the largest and most credit-worthy customers."

Kleiner then discovered what the Federal Reserve Board and the House Banking Committee now know, that commercial banks have been posting "prime" rates much higher than rates they gave to certain customers.

He sued, claiming the First National Bank of Atlanta engaged in fraud and racketing activities. He seeks double the $30,000 interest already paid, plus damages. The case is pending. So is a growing list of cases.

Kleiner, in fact, is involved in seven other suits, the latest one in Portland, Oregon, where in conjunction with other attorneys he is suing First Interstate Bank of Oregon for allegedly overcharging his client.

One case already has been decided. A Kentucky jury ruled that Joe Pat Downs, a real estate developer, owed $104,000 less interest than United Kentucky Bank charged him, again because a loan was said to be based on the prime rate when, in fact, some customers received better rates.

That case is not ended though. It is being appealed, by Downs and his attorney, Kleiner, who now seek the addition of punitive damages against the bank and forgiveness of the entire $1.3 million loan.

The Loughlins, Kleiners and Downs, along with attorneys Henry Casey in Portland, Oregon and Joe Merren in Atlanta, are having an impact. Many banks no longer quote "prime" rates, and if they do they are careful to avoid saying so in loan contracts. The Federal Reserve has expressed some concern. And so has the House Banking Committee.

The latter — officially the House Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee — found that 60 percent of commercial loans by big New York Banks in May 1980 were made at rates below prime. It said the average discount was four points off the prime rate posted by the banks.

It is for this reason that Loughlin, the chief executive officer of Western Food Equipment Co. and a lay leader of his Baptist church, refers to such rates as "the phony prostituted posted prime fib."

Family urges renewed search

BUENA VISTA, Colo. (AP) — The wife and son of a Texas man who has been missing for five days say they believe he is in danger and sheriff's deputies should not have given up searching for him.

Bobby Lee Wood, 42, of Abilene, Texas, was last seen in the Cottonwood Pass area on Thursday. He escorted a group of students on a three-day snowshoeing trip in the area last week, according to spokesmen for the Chaffee County sheriff's office.

Authorities believe Wood left camp Thursday night without telling anyone. They walked down a trail to his truck, got a pair of skis and departed.

The students believed their guide was in no danger and took two days before notifying the sheriff's department of his absence.

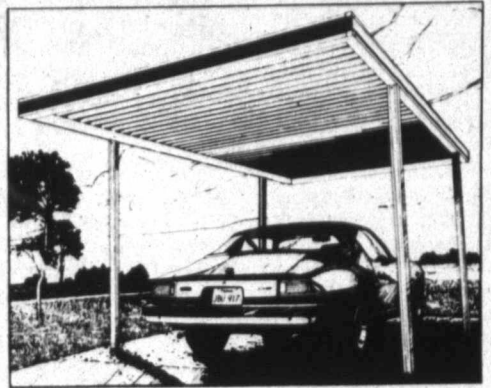

About 30 searchers combed the area around Cottonwood Pass over the weekend before calling off the search Monday morning.

Wood's wife, Jolene, said she was dismayed that the sheriff's department called off the search.

"He wouldn't just disappear like that," she said. "They said they discontinued the search because they could find none of his tracks. But I really don't know if that's any reason to think he's safe."

Longest flight attempt fails

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Mechanical trouble and fatigue forced flier Jerry Mullens down from his attempt to break an endurance flight record with a motorized aircraft.

Mullens landed at Will Rogers World Airport in Oklahoma City at 1:50 p.m. Tuesday after 78 hours in the air, the last 24 without an automatic pilot to spell him.

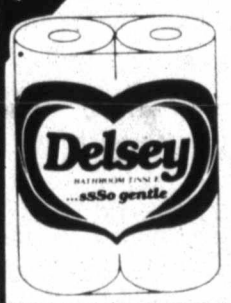

The Dallas pilot took off Saturday morning in hopes of making six 2,000-mile round trips to Jacksonville, Fla.

He landed at the end of the fifth round after flying 10,000 miles.

With an experimental modified sail plane, he sought to break the 11,337-mile record for non-stop flight without refueling set in the early 1960s by a B-52 bomber crew.

Nevertheless, he did set records for the longest sustained flight by a single pilot and the longest continuous flight by a single engine aircraft, according to Steve Davis of AAR of Oklahoma Inc., an aviation firm assisting Mullens.

Harvesters claim lopsided win over Borger

By L.D. STRATE
Pampa News Sports Writer
BORGER—Pampa's muskets had dry powder all the way while Borger ran out of firepower early in the game.

As a result, the expectant shootout never materialized as the Harvesters blazed away to a 79-60 win Tuesday night in another athletic clash between the two longtime rivals.

Pampa boosted its record to 4-1 while Borger suffered its second consecutive defeat after five wins in a row.

The first quarter went like everyone had anticipated with Pampa owning a slim 15-14 lead, but Borger downed only two of 10 field goal tries the second quarter, enabling the Harvesters to build an 11-point advantage.

Pampa led by nine, 34-25, at intermission and Borger never got closer as the Harvesters went ahead by as much as 25 points the second half.

About the only excitement was the individual scoring duel between Pampa's Charles Nelson and Borger's Stanley Davis. Both finished with 28 points, but Pampa had every player in the scoring column.

Nelson, a 6-4 senior, hit 12 of 17 shots from the floor and four of five from the foul line. Davis, a 6-2 senior, canned 12 of 16 from the floor and four of six from the line.

"The kids did a super job," Pampa coach Garland Nichols said. "I was proud of the way we set up our game plan and carried it out to perfection."

"We didn't block off Davis like we should have, but other than that I was pleased with our entire team effort."

Davis tallied eight points on offensive rebounds.

Pampa's Mike Nelson and Borger's Scott Hunt, the scoring leaders for the two teams, were held in check until the second half.

Nelson finished with 13 points after having only four the first half. He entered the game averaging 27 points a game.

Scott, averaging 18 points per contest, was scoreless the first half, but closed with 12 points to extend his double digit scoring streak to 41 games.

Terry Faggins contributed 12 points to the Harvester attack while Coyle Winborn had six, Jimmy Barker, five; Meryl Dowdy and Phil Jeffrey, four apiece; Terry Ferguson and Paul Prentice, two apiece; Danny Guerra, one.

"Charles (Nelson) had an outstanding game and Terry Faggins did some good outside shooting, but I was mainly looking at our defense and the guys that were making the great passes," Nichols said. "There were several times when we could have shot the ball, but we passed it for an assist instead. That's what I like to see in a team."

Pampa fairly sizzled from the floor, especially in the second half when the Harvesters widened the gap. The Harvesters hit 73 percent (19-26) of their shots the second half and finished with a 60.7 percent (34-56) shooting night. Borger downed 44.8 percent (22-49) of its shots from the floor.

Borger edged Pampa from the foul line, 72.7 percent to 65 percent.

Pampa won out on the boards, 28-20, with Mike Nelson, Charles Nelson, Faggins and Winborn pulling down five rebounds apiece.

The Harvesters compete in the Lawton Invitational, meeting Lawton MacArthur at 6:30 p.m. Thursday night in first-round play. The finals are set for 8:15 p.m. Saturday.

Pampa has finished second the last two years in a row at Lawton.

Pampa Junior Varsity won a 47-45 squeaker over Borger JVs when Tony Morgan hit a 12-foot jumper at the final buzzer.

"I thought our JVs did a super job," Nichols said. They had a lot of composure after getting blown out by the same team Saturday."

Pampa takes second in eighth-grade tourney

CANYON—Pampa Blue were runnersup in the Canyon eighth-grade basketball tournament last weekend.

Pampa Blue team fell in the finals to Plainview Estacado, 37-34, despite a 20-point effort from Brent Fryer.

Pampa started the tournament with a 34-32 double overtime win over Canyon White. Paul Simpson was high scorer for Pampa with 13 points.

Pampa sneaked by Hereford Stanton, 30-28, in the semi-finals. Fryer led Pampa with 12 points.

Pampa hosts an eighth-grade tournament Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

In Thursday's first-round action, Pampa Blue meets Canyon Purple at 10:30 a.m. and Canyon White goes against Pampa Red at 12 noon in the middle school gym.

The Pampa Blue-Canyon Purple winner meets Borger White at 4 p.m. Thursday in the high school gym. The Pampa Red-Canyon White winner plays Pampa Three at 5:30 p.m. Thursday in the high school gym.

The championship finals will be held at 6 p.m. Saturday in the high school fieldhouse.

Poor second quarters doom Hawks, Trail Blazers

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer
Take the Atlanta Hawks' first quarter and the Portland Trail Blazers' second quarter, please.

On their home courts, those two teams went through cold spells they would rather forget en route to National Basketball Association defeats Tuesday night.

The Hawks hit only 18 percent of their shots in the first period, and were outscored 28-9, before losing 98-88 to the New Jersey Nets.

Portland did all right in the first period against Golden State, taking a 32-26 lead. But in the first 6 1/2 minutes of the second quarter, the Trail Blazers were outpointed 21-2 to fall behind 49-34.

The Warriors went on to win 122-108, their first victory in 13 games on Portland's home court dating back to Feb. 8, 1976.

In other NBA games, New York walloped Denver

135-122. Chicago edged Indiana 118-116 in overtime, Dallas crushed Utah 128-103, Seattle trimmed Houston 107-96, Los Angeles nipped Washington 102-98, and San Diego upended Phoenix 121-110.

Lloyd Free's 37 points and 29 from Bernard King also contributed to Portland's downfall.

Atlanta, which managed only one field goal in the first eight minutes of play, came back to score 63 points in the second and third periods to test New Jersey's mettle, but the Nets prevailed for only the fifth time in 18 games.

Buck Williams led New Jersey with 19 points and Mike O'Koren added 17 for the Nets.

Nicks 135, Nuggets 122
Maurice Lucas and Randy Smith both scored 25 points and Michael Ray Richardson added 22 as New York handed Denver its fifth loss in a row, while the Knicks improved their record to 9-9 after a 4-8 start.

Lucas scored 14 points in the first quarter, including eight in a 3:43 span during which the Knicks outscored the Nuggets 16-4 for a 26-13 advantage. New York led 65-57 at halftime and pulled away early in the third quarter with a 21-6 burst.

Alex English led Denver with 28 points.

Sonics 107, Rockets 96
Gus Williams scored 29 points and five of his teammates scored in double figures in Seattle's victory over Houston.

Moses Malone scored 28 points to lead the Rockets, while Elvin Hayes scored 17 of his 25 points in the fourth quarter.

Bulls 118, Pacers 116
Reggie Theus scored 26 points and kept Chicago alive with a game-tying basket to send the game into overtime.

Ronnie Lester, who scored a career-high 19 points, clinched the victory with a basket and free throw with 25 seconds remaining in the overtime, giving the Bulls a 118-114 lead.

Johnny Davis, who led all scorers with 28 points, scored with 21 seconds to go for Indiana, which got the ball back when Chicago failed to inbound the ball in five seconds. But a last-gasp shot by Tom Owens was no good.

Mavericks 128, Jazz 103
Mark Aguirre scored 24 points as Dallas won by its biggest margin since it joined the league last season.

The Mavericks led by as many as 34 points, 116-82, on a basket by Jay Vincent midway through the final period. The victory was only the fourth in 19 games for Dallas, but was its third in a row at home.

Adrian Dantley scored 34 points for the Jazz to lead all scorers.

Lakers 102, Bullets 98
Norm Nixon scored 24

points and Magic Johnson and Jamaal Wilkes added 22 each to lead Los Angeles to its ninth victory in 11 games under new Coach Pat Riley.

The game was close all the way, with the score tied at the end of the first and third quarters and the Lakers leading by one at halftime. Washington was trailing 95-92 with two minutes remaining when Kareem Abdul-Jabbar blocked a shot and then gave Los Angeles a five-point lead with a slam dunk at the other end. Clippers 121, Suns 110
Freeman Williams came off the bench to score 16 of his 24 points in San Diego's 40-point second quarter to lead the Clippers to their first victory in nine games against Phoenix dating back to March 1980.

The Clippers outscored the Suns 17-2 in the first four minutes of the second period and led 67-45 at halftime after making 64.4 percent of their shots in the first two quarters.

Brian Taylor scored 23 points and dished out 11 assists for San Diego. Dennis Johnson scored 28 for Phoenix.

Danger Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others.

Here are nine critical symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations which are usually the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these usually spells back trouble.

- (1) Paresthesias (see above)
- (2) Headaches
- (3) Painful joints
- (4) Numbness in the arms or hands
- (5) Loss of sleep
- (6) Stiffness in the neck
- (7) Pain between the shoulders
- (8) Stiffness of pain in lower back
- (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals indicate that your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these danger signals...call for in-Depth consultation in Layman's terms.

Raiders have outside chance for playoffs

By The Associated Press
The Oakland Raiders cannot win their division title. That is about the simplest part of the American Football Conference playoff puzzle.

After beating the Pittsburgh Steelers Monday, the Raiders could settle for a wild-card berth. Oakland won the Super Bowl last season from a wild-card position.

The Steelers' 30-27 loss to Oakland helped just about everyone but themselves in the AFC scramble. It:

- Enabled the Bengals, 10-4, to remain two games ahead of Pittsburgh.
- One more victory by Cincinnati (or one more loss by Pittsburgh) will give the Bengals the division title, their first since 1973.

— Left the Steelers with an 8-6 record, tied in the conference standings with the Kansas City Chiefs and San Diego Chargers.

— Kept alive the Raiders' slender hopes of reaching the playoffs. Oakland is 7-points and Magic Johnson and Jamaal Wilkes added 22 each to lead Los Angeles to its ninth victory in 11 games under new Coach Pat Riley.

The game was close all the way, with the score tied at the end of the first and third quarters and the Lakers leading by one at halftime. Washington was trailing 95-92 with two minutes remaining when Kareem Abdul-Jabbar blocked a shot and then gave Los Angeles a five-point lead with a slam dunk at the other end. Clippers 121, Suns 110

Rob Williams had not played a basketball game for the University of Houston since Nov. 13. The layoff was made necessary when Williams needed arthroscopic surgery on his knee.

Tuesday was Williams' first time back in uniform for the Cougars and if his performance is anything to go by, guards all around the Southwest Conference may soon be lining up for knee operations.

Williams only played 13 minutes but scored 28 points, hitting 2 of his 13 field goal tries, to lead Houston's 145-78 dismantling of outgunned Texas Lutheran.

"I feel great," said Williams, who averaged 25 points a game for the Cougars last season. "I was glad to get back out on the court."

His coach, Guy Lewis couldn't agree more.

"It was sure nice to see the rascal back out there," he said. "I always worry about games like this because I didn't want to see him take a tumble."

In other games involving SWC teams Tuesday night, four Texas starters, led by sophomore Denard Holmes' 16 points, cored in double figures as the Longhorns thumped Biscayne, 1-63, and Texas Christian, paced by Doug Arnold's 29-point effort, surprised North Texas State in Denton, 78-73.

Texas hardly worked up a sweat against the Florida squad, leading 40-27 at the half, and won its opening four ball games for the first time since 1963.

Things were a bit tougher for the Horned Frogs, now 3-1 and victors in two games they were expected to lose — two weeks ago against a veteran Texas-Arlington squad and Tuesday, on the road against the Mean Green.

But the night belonged to Williams, who may have sounded a rim warning for defenders around the league — despite his wo-points-a-minute clip, he still is not at full speed.

LEFORS—Miami claimed basketball victories over Lefors last night.

The Warriors, led by a 20-point night from Keith Gray, won the boys' contest, 57-41. Louis Lisbon added 14 points for Miami.

Lefors was led in scoring by Monte Baskett and Richie Kidwell, both with 13 points.

Carla Stone drilled 20 points to lead Miami to a 55-17 win in the girls' game.

Laura Watson led Lefors with six points while Angela Stanly had four.

Lisa Hinton contributed 12 points for Miami.

FOLLETT—Canadian held off Follett, 48-45, in boys' basketball action last night.

Lee Young paced Canadian with 16 points while Kip Francis helped out with nine.

Kentucky winning without Bowie

By LARRY SIDONS
AP Sports Writer

Tell a college basketball team it will be without its 7-foot center for at least the first month of the season, including a game against an archrival who happens to be the defending national champion, and most squads likely would start to think about what might have been.

Not Kentucky. With towering junior Sam Bowie out with a broken leg, the second-ranked Wildcats are still unbeaten, including a 85-69 thrashing of 10th-ranked Indiana, last season's NCAA title-holder, Tuesday night.

A 29-11 spurt led to guards Dirk Minniefield and Jim Master helped the Wildcats build a 47-25 halftime lead.

"The first half was absolutely super," said Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall. "It was about as good a half as we could have played."

Minniefield scored 12 of his 22 points and Master 11 of his 17 during the first-half run.

"Master and Minniefield," said Bobby Knight, whose team fell to 2-1. "They shot well and their guard play was great. We just got beaten badly in the first half by a team that's a hell of a lot better than we are."

In other games Tuesday involving teams in The Associated Press Top Twenty, it was No. 4 Wichita State 94, Long Beach State 71; No. 6 Iowa 79, Iowa State 68; No. 8 Minnesota 80, Drake 55; No. 13 Missouri 78, Illinois 68 in overtime; No. 14 Tulsa 93, Oklahoma State 82, and No. 18 Southwest Louisiana 91, Louisiana College 59. The Top Ten

After No. 2 Kentucky pulled away in the first half at Lexington, Indiana closed in during the second half as, in Hall's words, "we showed a lack of a killer instinct and we just went native."

Kentucky also was helped by two quick technical fouls against Knight, who argued with an official over what he believed was an offensive goaltending violation by Kentucky. Master hit three of the four technical free throws to give Kentucky a 25-13 lead. Ted Kitchel led No. 10 Indiana with 17 points and Randy Wittman added 14.

Fourth-ranked Wichita State had a tough time shaking Long Beach State, trailing 49-48 early in the second half before scoring 22 of the next 30 points. Cliff Livingston scored 25 points and grabbed 19 rebounds, leading the undefeated Shockers to their fourth victory. Guard Tony Martin and forward Antoine Carr added 19 and 16 points, respectively, for the Shockers.

Dino Gregory paced Long Beach State, 2-2, with 25 points and eight rebounds.

Freshman Michael Payne scored 17 points and Bob Hansen added 16 as sixth-ranked Iowa defeated Iowa State.

The Hawkeyes, 4-0, led by 11 at the half and by as many as 15 before Iowa State closed to within seven points, 61-54, with 8:10 remaining. But Kevin Boyle then hit a short jumper and fed Steve Carfino for a 17-footer to increase the lead to 65-54 with 6:01 left, and the Hawkeyes hit 12 of 13 free throws down the stretch.

"Iowa State made a good run at us in the second half. They should thank us," said Iowa Coach Lute Olson. "We used very poor judgment when we were up by 15 points. We were impatient. Once we got patience, we made them play defense for a while."

Freshman Barry Stevens had 18 points for Iowa State, 2-2.

Twenty points from guard Darryl Mitchell and 17 from 7-foot-3 Randy Breuer led eighth-ranked Minnesota past Drake.

The Gophers, 4-0, held a 14-4 lead after the first 6½ minutes, maintained that advantage through the first half and pulled away after halftime, with Breuer going to the bench midway through the second half. Drake, 1-3, was paced by 13 points by Stephon Butler and 12 by Leon Van Hook. The Second Ten Ricky Frazier scored 28 points, including a basket with 2:22 left in overtime to put 13th-ranked Missouri ahead for good in its game against Illinois.

John Sundvold added 24 points for Missouri, now 4-0. Craig Tucker, whose three points in the final seconds of regulation time sent the game into overtime, led the Illini with 23 points.

David Brown, Paul Pressey and Greg Stewart, Tulsa's big front line, combined for 67 points as the 14th-ranked Hurricane defeated Oklahoma State, which lost for the first time in five starts.

Southwestern Louisiana improved its record to 6-0 by crushing Louisiana College behind the scoring of Alfred Turner, Dion Brown, Graylin Warner and Dan Gay.

9th grade girls fall to Perryton

Pampa dropped a 34-26 decision to vengeful Perryton in a ninth-grade girls' basketball game Monday in the Pampa Middle School gym.

Perryton's win avenged an earlier 32-18 loss to Pampa.

Boerstler and Schlenz paced Perryton with nine and eight points respectively.

Pampa was led by Kerry Richardson's 11 points and seven rebounds. Stephanie Smith added seven points.

Pampa, now 1-4 on the season, missed 25 free throws which contributed to the loss. Pampa hosts Perryton again Thursday.

News in Briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A trial is scheduled early next year on a suit brought by a coalition of insurance companies which favors a federal requirement that some cars be equipped with automatic passenger restraints next fall.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia denied a request by the insurance industry to block the Reagan administration from eliminating the requirement, officials said Tuesday, but will consider a suit on the merits of the case in February or March.

The insurance companies filed suit asking that the court overturn a recent decision by the Transportation Department to scrap the passenger restraint rule, which would require automobiles to be equipped with automatic seatbelts or airbags beginning next year.

The requirement was issued during the Carter administration, and called for all new cars to have the safety devices by 1984.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Release of government law enforcement manuals that would help criminals avoid detection is not required by the Freedom of Information Act, according to a ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals.

The court concluded Tuesday that such information is exempt from release because it concerns internal personnel practices of an agency — such as training agents in law enforcement techniques.

At issue was part of a training manual for new agents of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

The bureau, asked in a suit to release the manual, said disclosure of certain portions "would benefit those attempting to violate the law and avoid detection, and possibly endanger the lives or safety of ATF special agents and others."

assage of the amendment to the Bail Reform Act of 1966.

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers will use 30- and 60-second television commercials during December and January in a $1 million campaign to dispel what it says is a poor image of the union and its members.

The campaign focuses on local television markets in areas where the UAW has large numbers of members, but the ads also will run on a few network broadcasts, such as ABC's "World News Tonight."

The ads are aimed at erasing "an unfair, negative impression" which blames auto workers for perceived poor quality in American cars, UAW spokesman Don Stillman said Tuesday. The first commercial will run Thursday night in Detroit.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The new head of the National Endowment for the Arts says the organization will start efforts to increase funding for the arts from private sources rather than giving grants.

Frank Hodsell, who was named NEA chairman by President Reagan, said Tuesday that he advocated a "seeding role" for the NEA.

"It's like being a gardener," he said, "putting a little fertilizer in the field and seeing if the flowers bloom, bearing in mind that with too much fertilizer, the flower will die."

A lawyer and government administrator with no previous professional experience in the arts, Hodsell said he plans to investigate his new field before recommending changes in NEA operations.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Entertainer Freddy Fender had a 60-day jail term set aside and a new hearing scheduled on allegations he violated a court order in a divorce squabble he contends is "killing the goose with the golden egg."

An arrest warrant was issued for the 43-year-old singer — whose real name is Baldemar Huerta — after he failed to appear at a Nov. 24 child support hearing. Fender, who surrendered to authorities Tuesday, said he was on tour in Florida and California last month and was not notified about the hearing.

"People think I'm in jail already and I've had three cancellations, which will cost me at least $20,000. Promoters are scared. People get the wrong idea and put me down at the bottom of the list of entertainers so she (Mrs. Huerta) is killing the goose with the golden egg," Fender told The Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

BOSTON (AP) — A suspended city official, who was a fund-raiser for Mayor Kevin White, has been indicted by a federal grand jury in an alleged attempt to extort $50,000 from a prospective developer, the U.S. Attorney's office said.
