British teenager is Pampa's AFS foreign exchange student

BY CINDA ROBINSON Staff Writer

Tim Angell is British. 18, a senior in high school, and living in a foreign country. Lucky for Tim. he is living with Bill and Carol Mackey of Pampa.

Angell is participating in the American Field Service (AFS), an international exchange program which places students in homes in foreign Angell considers himself a typical British teenager. His home. Sea Scale. is on the coast in the northwest corner of Great Britain. The village has a population of about 3,000. In his absence, his two younger brothers share an enormous house with a student

Shooting victim in serious condition

A Pampa man was listed in serious condition in the Intensive Care Unit of Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo late Saturday night after being shot with a small caliber hand gun Friday while driving in the 900 block of South Clark Street

Pampa police officials said Stanley Brown, age and address unknown, was driving down Clark Street when he was approached by a female subject. Brown got out of his vehicle, and the woman reportedly shot him

Brown was taken to Coronado Community Hospital and later was transferred to the Amarillo Hospital.

The woman whose name was not released will be charged Monday. police officials said.

The circumstances of the case are still under investigation.

Since he arrived one month ago, Angell says he has adjusted to his new

"It was easy to adjust to the wind - it is always windy at home. But the dry climate and higher altitude took me a while to get used to. A normal summer day at home is only 18 degrees Celsius.' Angell said

"The people here are so friendly. It's so much bigger here, and so much more to do. There are three cinemas and the drag. I'm 18, and I've only been driving a few months, but here, almost everybody my age is driving. Back home, it's mostly public transportation," he said.

Some American treats he has discovered he likes are Dr. Pepper and ice cream. Buttermilk is definitely out, and country music is questionable. Angell said.

"I am working at Burger King. It seems that jobs are more available here. It has taken time to get used to because I can't understand their accents when they call out the orders, Angell said.

He makes his new home with the Mackeys who have one daughter still living at home. Melissa Mackey, also a high school senior. Melissa is the editor for the high school paper, a member of choir. Key Club and Red Cross Youth, and is involved in the Gifted - Talented program. She was the one to request an AFS student in their home.

Angell said of his new home. "It's very comfortable, and my new parents are much more talkative. This is nice. the small modern styling and wall - to wall carpeting. Most of the houses at home are big, older two - story houses."

"You get the impression in England that Americans do everything bigger.

They certainly make the scenery bigger and the cars." Angell said. 'Americans seem to be more fashion conscious. I'm just now learning to convert to straight leg jeans." Angel

"The churches and the schools take a more active part in community activities. At home, I am a minority because I am a church goer. There are three churches in my community, Catholic, the Church of England, and Methodist. I am a member of the Church of England." he said.

Angell explained the rioting that England has been experiencing.

"There are different cults in the slums of the cities. The head bangers like heavy metal music. They go out on the dance floor and just beat their heads around. The mods dress in smart suits. ride motor scooters and generally have a neat appearance. The skin heads shave their heads, wear levis and heavy boots. The New Romantics or Posers do anything to look different like boys wearing makeup, and they just stand posed until someone notices them. Rastifarians are blacks who want to return to Ethiopia. The Punks just do anything to look revolting. These groups say that they are fighting the police, unemployment and each other."

One thing he discoved was the warm feeling the Americans have for "Many of the young people (in England) see America and Russia equally as the bad guys. Most kids would love to come to America, but there is the jealousy about America being the super - power," Angell said.

Angell's parents are both college graduates. His father is a chartered electrical engineer who works for a nuclear power plant located near their village, and his mother is a substitute teacher. Her main subjects are English and art. Both parents are very supportive of his trip to the U.S.

Anti-Khomeini assassins slay clergyman, guards

Anti-government assassins killed a clergyman and two Islamic revolutionary guards in northern Iran and attacked the Tehran homes of two members of Parliament, Tehran Radio reported Saturday

It said one legislator was wounded along with five guests in the attack on his house by gunmen of the Marxist underground group Mujahedeen Khalq.

The assaults against supporters of of the Islamic regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini were staged on Friday and reported Saturday.

The slain clergyman was identified as Sheik Hassan Asgari, the Friday prayer leader of Kochesfahan in the province of Mazandaran. Tehran Radio said Mujahedeen Khalq assassins stormed into Asgari's house with machine guns, killing him instan ly

It said "counter-revolutionaries" attacked the house of legislator Muvahedi Savuji in Tehran but were driven off by guards and no casualties were reported. Gunmen firing from a speeding car also attacked the house of another parliamentarian, identified only as Armenian deputy Khalasian, wounding him and five visitors, the broadcast said.

Tehran Radio and Pars also reported raids on Mujahedeen hideouts in nearly a dozen large and small towns around the country, with a total of more than 160 arrests. Among them were 20 people arrested in Khomein. Khomeini's hometown in central Iran.

Attack on Jewish gathering by PLO kills two, injures 20

Jewish gathering was shattered by explosions and death Saturday when two men described as Arabs hurled grenades and fired automatic pistols into a crowded synagogue, authorities

Two people were killed and about 20, including two policemen, were wounded by bullets, shrapnel and flying glass, police and Red Cross officials

Both of the assailants were captured and one was shot by police in a gun battle during the attack that littered the cobblestone street with spent shells and glass shards. Police said they also arrested a man whose name was found on one of the attackers.

They did not identify the men, but police spokesman Werner Liebhardt said one claimed membership in Al-Asifah, the military wing of Al-Fatah, the largest guerrilla group in the Palestine Liberation Organization. There were 200 people gathered at the 155-year-old Israelite Temple attending a Bar mitzvah, the ritual that celebrates a boy's 13th birthday. The attack was the second against Jews in Vienna in a month.

Four grenades were lobbed at the synagogue's front steps as people started to leave, police said. Pools of blood lay at the front door, six windows of the gray five-story building were smashed and its facade was fragments.

Red Cross officials said a 25-year-old woman died en route to the hospital from wounds suffered while trying to shield a friend's child. A 68-year-old man also died in the hospital from injuries, officials said. The two wounded officers had been assigned to guard the synagogue, police said. Police have guarded the house of worship since 1979, when a group called 'Eagles of the Palestinian Revolution" claimed credit for blowing up the synagogue courtyard. Nobody was hurt in that bombing.

The League of Arab States deplored the attack. Clovis Maksoud, the league's special envoy to the United States, released a statement in Washington that said:

"The secretary-general of the League of Arab States, Chedli Klibi, in a statement issued in Tunis today. deplored the attack on a synagogue in Vienna earlier in the day. Mr. Klibi, expressing regret over the loss of life and injuries resulting from the attack. noted that deep respect for the places of worship of all faiths is an integral part of Arab traditions and values. The Arabs consider this attack a distortion of these values and a deliberate misrepresentation of the noble struggle of the Palestinian people.

Israel reacted angrily to the attack and referred to Chancellor Bruno Kriesky's efforts to maintain friendly

Interior Minister Irwin Lanc, who rushed to the scene, was asked about the assailants' motives and replied, "I think the location of the attack speaks

He dismissed possible links between the attack and Kreisky's Mideast policies.

At the United Nations, Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim strongly condemned the attack. Waldheim, an Austrian, said "such acts of violence are contrary to the ideals of the international community and the whole civilized world.

The attack came about one month after two Arabs were arrested trying to smuggle a pistol, two Soviet-made rifles and six grenades into Austria at Vienna airport

On Aug. 10, two small bombs exploded in a garden adjacent to the heavily guarded Israeli Embassy here, slightly injuring a woman.

Governor says

Nevada could take small MX

The state of Nevada, though it fears being "placed on the sacrificial altar for national defense." could accept a scaled-down MX missile system on military land, according to the

Such a system has been reported to be among the options President Reagan is considering for the missile during his vacation at his ranch 30 miles from Santa Barbara Speaking with reporters Friday after meeting with presidential counselor Edwin Meese III, Gov. Robert List said Nevadans would "do our part.

"Our concern is that Nevada not be placed on the sacrificial altar for the national defense if it isn't necessary to put us there, and we don't think it is," said List, a Republican. But if it is "absolutely essential to the national defense that we take a minimum number of them, and that they be put on military areas, then we could swallow it. List said he was worried that the influx of workers for such a large construction project would drive up prices, and that scarce resources such as water would be overburdened.

"You know it has a real whirlwind effect as far as jobs (go)," he said. 'You're going to have people ... drawn to this project like a moth to a light bulb and that's going to have a very adverse effect on surrounding business

On that point, the Pentagon released a study Friday in Washington proposing special aid for communities burdened by major new defense facilities such as the MX missile and an East Coast base for new Trident submarines at King's Bay, Ga.

Reagan has committed himself to a new missile but has criticized the Carter administration's plan for a basing system of 4,600 shelters in Nevada and Utah, among which 200 missiles would shuttle so that the Soviet Union would not know at which shelter

A system of 100 missiles in 1,000 shelters, all on land at Ellis Air Force Base, Nev., has been reported to be one of the president's possible choices.

film company Pampa native now owns successful

BY ELAINE W. LEDBETTER Guest Writer Talent and determination plus a need for corporate management to comply with the Equal Employment Opportunity Act resulted in Pat Ludeman Keeton establishing her own film company in 1976.

Ms. Keeton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin F. Ludeman of 806 N. Frost and a 1965 graduate of Pampa High Schoo

In partnership with Marjorie Leopold, the firm is known as Keeton -Leopold Associates, Chicago. In explaining the circumstances that led to the partnership, Ms. Keeton said, "In 1974 I went to a meeting of Chicago Women in Film hoping to get some leads into the film industry. There I met Marjorie Leopold who was the first female camera operator apprentice in the union. We became friends and eventually partners.

"Together we convinced a Chicago film studio to create a division to produce industrial films. We were to seek funding and share the profits with the studio in return for which we received a subsistence wage and the trappings of a legitimate studio known as 'The Shooting Gallery' Ms. Keeton recalled, "Being young, inexperienced and female in a highly competitive, male - dominated industry in the midst of the 1974 recession, we soon realized that our only strategy was to develop original ideas.

"Through research we found that the Equal Employment Opportunity and the Affirmative Action movements were hot issues. The multi - million dollar suits were just beginning and large corporations were seeking serious behavior - oriented films for managers that explained what they should do, rather than consciousness raising films that focused on how they should feel."

These talented young women had three factors in their favor. First, starting at zero, they had nothing to lose by investing months of time in research, developing proposals and talking to hundreds of corporate personnel managers, lawyers and government officers. Second, as outsiders of the corporate establishment, their ideas could be bolder without feeling a strong program might somehow be viewed as an admission of guilt. Third, they both had a genuine personal commitment to fighting sexism and racism and could see beyond the stereotypes to get at the real issues The key to the actual launching of their firm was, in the final analysis, a father's desire to make his daughter happy. Ms. Keeton said, "After raising only $18,000 of the necessary $100,000 needed for this project, we were about ready to throw in the towel. But then my partner's father, who was a mergers and acquisitions broker, put together a tax shelter in which investors could write off certain losses to offset their profits in a given year and thus minimize their taxes. Together with this was the prospect of eventually receiving a 300 per cent return on the investment when the program began to be marketed."

Although the two women had produced many films, the culmination of their efforts was a film called, Boomerang: A Management Training Program in Equal Employment Opportunity." Sensing the great potential for the film was the factor that caused the women to establish their own company to market it. Hence, the firm of Keeton - Leopold Associates. Chicago, was launched.

Ms. Keeton's specific responsibilities included developing a network of sales representatives to market 'Boomerang'; hiring, training and supervising a support administrative staff and developing and initiating marketing strategies to expand services and program materials.

In addition, she developed accounting strategies, initiated corporate and agency level contracts and serviced accounts to assure successful implementation and administration of pilot seminars. The film was purchased by hundreds of the Fortune 500 companies as well as by large banks and government agencies. It contains eight award winning vignettes in 16mm color. Accompanying the film is a comprehensive administrative manual and a workbook for participants in training sessions. It has since been customized to meet specific needs of major firms and government groups.

The overwhelming success of 'Boomerang' led Ms. Keeton to change her career direction. She said, "As business attitudes shifted more overtly to the idea that firms would do

LONDON (AP) — A man wielding a knife slashed the official portrait of Princess Diana and tore out the center with his hands Saturday before being grabbed by guards at the National Portrait Gallery, witnesses said

The slasher, identified by police as Paul Williams, a 20-year-old student from Belfast, Northern Ireland, was charged with criminal damage. He entered no plea and was to appear in court again Monday

In addition to her studies, Ms. Keeton has recently been involved in a number of special projects. For Chase Manhattan Bank she developed and implemented a bank - wide training program for all supervisors and managers designed to minimize potential EEO problems and charges. She is now producing follow - up modules on the improvement of interpersonal and communication skills, conducting performance reviews and documentation

She has produced similar programs for Polaroid Corporation and for the state of Tennessee, done extensive freelance work for the National Safety Council, Coronet Educational Films. the American Medical Association and the Greyhound Corporation. These assignments involved the development of educational materials employing both written and audio - visual media.

In the fall of 1978 she instructed a 12 week course in "Fundamentals of Supervision" at Westchester Community College for public city and county employees.

The International Committee Against Racism invited Ms. Keeton to serve as lecturer and coordinator for a film forum and course on understanding racism for students and adults throughout the New York City area in the spring of 1979.

Tuesday, and Thursday nights

For one year she served as writer, producer and administrative coordinator for the Washington News Bureau of the Westinghouse Broadcasting Company. She wrote and produced radio feature stories on the 18 - year - old vote, the four - day work week, health care and the space program.

Mr. Keeton received a B.A. degree in honors liberal arts at the University of Texas at Austin in 1969 and was awarded the M.A. degree in communications, television and film from the same university in 1971. While a graduate intern at UT, she wrote and produced programs for the public television station in Austin. In addition, she researched and wrote a weekly news review show and many public affairs programs.

As a student at Pampa Junior High, Ms. Keeton won the regional spelling bee and a trip to Washington to compete in the national contest.

In high school she served as editor of "The Little Harvester" and was president of the Texas High School Press Association. She also won honorable mention in a nationwide short story contest conducted by "Seventeen" magazine.

Regarding her home influence, Ms Keeton said, "My father is a petroleum engineer, and my mother is a legal secretary. Therefore, they naturally assumed that their children would work and become economically independent. One of the greatest gifts they gave us was confidence in ourselves. They always trusted our judgment and respected us as individuals.

Commenting further on her family, she said, "My twin sister, Pam (Mrs. John Price) was always a wonderful confidante. We have remained very loyal to each other despite the infrequency of our visits caused by the wide geographic separation.'

She married Rick Keeton, a UT classmate, in 1970. Recalling this experience, she said, "We married young and were not mature enough, nor committed enough to resolve the conflicts between our development as individuals and our mutual relationship. Since we were both feeling more and more confined, we divorced

In March, 1981, she married Peter Scheckner, a professor of English at Ramapo College in Ramapo, New Jersey. She established her reputation in the film industry as Pat Keeton, and since she is widely known by that name in professional circles, she plans to Speculating on her future, Ms. Keeton said, "It is really great being 34 rather than 24. I feel that my goals and ambitions are much more clearly defined now. I plan to continue producing films and teaching and am delighted to have a marriage in which our personal commitment is enhanced by our ties to others.'

She concluded, "I am particularly thankful to have arrived at this point in life without succumbing to cynicism and with so much to look foreward to."

One major event she is anticipating is the birth of her first child in January.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - A federal judge Friday found a Las Vegas gambler in criminal contempt of court for appearing late to testify in the grand jury investigation of U.S. District Judge John Wood Jr.'s slaying.

Chief U.S. District Judge William Sessions fined poker player Robert Charles "Bobby" Hoff the maximum $500 and gave him a 30-day jail term, but suspended it immediately upon payment of fine

Hoff was in custody only 15 minutes while his local attorney, Jeff Morehouse, went to the clerk's office and paid the fine in cash.

The bearded gambler told reporters as he and Morehouse left the courthouse, "I think it was pretty fair." Sessions could have jailed Hoff for up to six months in addition to the fine.

Government attorney Ray Jahn presented testimony from Las Vegas switchboard operator Ann Powell that Hoff was still in the lobby of the Binion's Horseshoe Casino at 9 a.m. May 20, 90 minutes after he had been ordered to appear before the federal grand jury here.

Cornelius Van Denhandel, an American Airlines official, told Sessions that Hoff took a 10:05 a.m. flight from Las Vegas and arrived in San Antonio at 4:01 p.m., more than six hours after he was scheduled to appear.

And Margaret Bowden, a supervisory staff assistant for the U.S. Marshall's office, said Hoff was upset during his first grand jury appearance on April 29 that he was asked to come back on May 20, causing him to miss the World Series of Poker at the Horseshoe

Mrs. Bowden quoted Hoff as telling a woman he called "Jo" over the telephone that "I'm going to make it as hard for them as possible.

Hoff won second place and $108,000 in the 1979 World Series of Poker and complained to reporters after he eventually testified on May 22 that he could have been a big winner had he played in this year's poker tournament

Hoff told reporters Friday the telephone call from the Marshal's Office probably was to Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, a friend of Hoff's and wife of a convicted hired killer who is a key suspect in Wood's murder.

Hoff was granted immunity for his testimony and government attorneys reportedly questioned him about Charles V. Harrelson and Jimmy Chagra, two gamblers who allegedly were at the Las Vegas casino during the 1979 poker tournament.

More charges filed against Sheriff Smith

TYLER, Texas '(AP) - A Smith County grand jury has handed down a new round of indictments against suspended sheriff J.B. Smith.

Smith, already indicted on charges of retaliation, arson and 18 counts of official misconduct, Friday was charged with bribery and burglary of a vehicle.

Smith is accused of bribery for offering security for an apartment complex for use of a rent-free apartment. The burglary charge stems from the same January 1978 incident for which Smith has been indicted for attempted arson. The sheriff allegedly doused the car of an arson suspect with gasoline and threatened to ignite it.

ODESSA, Texas (AP) - Ector County sheriff's deputies were searching Saturday for a 19-year-old man who escaped from their custody Friday.

Deputies said Griffith was in a line of prisoners instructed to turn down a right-hand corridor. Griffith turned left instead

Cousin challenges Martin to polygraph test on shooting story

HALLSVILLE, Texas (AP) Charles Goff has challenged his cousin, state Rep. Mike Martin, to take a polygraph test to prove he didn't arrange to have himself shot to win political sympathy.

'I'd be willing to bet everything I own that he won't step forward and take that polygraph," said Goff, who added that he has taken such a test.

In an interview published Saturday, Goff told the Dallas Times Herald Martin promised him $6,500 in cash and a government job for wounding the Longview Republican, but that he never · received any money.

Martin was wounded in the arm in the July 31 shotgun ambush outside his trailer home in Austin. The freshman legislator first said he did not know who shot him, then blamed it on a satanic cult. Now Martin says the shooting was the work of political enemies. He calls Goff's story "a lie."

No charges have been filed in connection with the shooting, although both Goff and Martin have testified before a Travis County grand jury investigating the case. Goff said Martin called him after the shooting and told him: "You did damn good,

He said his cousin first proposed a "controlled hit"

"He said, 'I'm willing to sacrifice my arm for what I want" - support for a possible state Senate race, Goff said

Martin agreed to give his cousin $1,500 in expenses immediately before and after the shooting, Goff said, plus at least $5,000 until Martin could put him on the state payroll as his bodyguard in

He said Martin did give him $400 to purchase a shotgun and shells to use in the attack. They even met in neighboring Upshur County to practice the attack, he Goff said that when he went to Austin, he used a car rented by a supporter of Martin's, whom he refused to

Although he told investigators who questioned him shortly after the shooting he knew nothing about it, Goff said his mother later forced him to tell the police.

Reagan could push for nuclear progress

A policy statement expected to be released in September will affirm the Reagan administration's faith in the safety and efficiency of nuclear power plants. That President Reagan hopes to see nuclear power get off dead - center has been known all along, but there is more to be said about how he would help bring this

The draft statement now circulating calls for removing unnecessary regulatory barriers to the construction of nuclear plants. lifting the ban on commercial eprocessing of spent reactor fuel and going ahead with development of the breeder reactor as the next step in power - generating technology.

Some of these policy changes were already indicated in an earlier administration statement on non proliferation nuclear weapons. The Carter administration had put fule reprocessing on hold and slowed down breeder development as part of an unoproductive strategy against proliferation. The new administration is taking the more realistic position that the United States can best contribute to non proliferation by remaining an active participant in the world wide development and application of nucaler technology

Also, the administration has indicated it is ready to tackle the political problem of picking a site or sites for the disposal of nuclear wastes. The lack of a disposal program for the byproducts of nuclear power generation has taken on an exagerated importance as a side - issue in the nuclear debate.

The streamlining of the regulatory process is the issue most pertinent to the immediate future of nuclear power. There is no reason why the present lead time of 12 years or more for the construction of a power plant policy.

cannot be shortened with no compromise in safety standards.

The administration's first concern should be for the 98 nuclear plants either under construction or on order which may face delays in completion and licensing because of regulatory overkill. They reamin the potential victims of a regulatory procedure presenting so many opportunities for raising extraneous issues that a project which was economically sound at the outset may founder before it can be completed.

It is well to remember that the Three Mile Island accident, which has dominated the dialogue about nuclear power for the last two years. only exacerbated problems which had overtaken the nuclear industry midway through the 1970s. Even if nuclear power weathers the crisis of TMI, which it seems to be doing utilities face an array of discouraging circumstances which stand in the way of future nuclear

Nuclear power's minimal environmental impact compared to coal, and its freedom from the vagaries of price and supply of oil, continue to make its case as an energy option - on paper. But utilities will not undertake the huge investment in new nuclear plants in the face of today's regulatory uncertainties and the policies of utility commissions in most states which make it impossible to recover the costs until a plant is completed and producing power:

There are technological solutions to the safety risks associated with nuclear power, but the financial risks are another matter. Reform of the regulatory environment in which nuclear power is struggling to survive should be the cornerstone of the Reagan administration's nuclear

Can an unprinted story libel?

By ROBERT LeFEVRE

A court decision affecting the Alton. Illinóis, Telegraph, may have an impact on freedom of the press in this country. The tiny paper (38,000 circulation) was the loser in a legal action concerning a story the paper never published. So the Alton Telegraph has a judgment standing over it of $9.2 million, one of the largest ever handed down

Attorneys for the paper are filing an appeal. However, if they lose the appeal or find it impossible to reduce the amount of the judgment, the paper will be bankrupt and forced to close.

Most libel actions center on a story that some particular news medium printed, broadcast, circulated or otherwise released to the public. What makes the Alton, Ill., case so special is that the entire affair centers on a confidential memo, written by a pair of reporters who were investigating a tip on the possibility of a gangland connection between a building contractor, a local bank and "The

This memo wasn't published. circulated, aired or otherwise released to the public. It was sent sub rosa to the U.S. Justice Department in an effort by the reporters to check the accuracy of the tip they had received before publishing the story. This is the kind of action that is usually praised. When a reporter refuses to hand in a story until it is checked and cross - checked, we commend him for responsible

In recent months we have had a few instances of irresponsible journalism wherein a reporter has not checked on the facts, or worse, has fabricated them, out of hand. So, at the Alton Telegraph, where the reporters did their best to check, and in consequence did not produce a story, one would imagine a possible Pulitzer for restaint, or self control, or journalistic responsibility.

What makes this story particularly poignant is that a former editor, one Elijah Lovejoy, was martyred by an angry mob 144 years ago for defending this same press which had editorially upheld the right of blacks to be free men. That wasn't a popular position in Lovejoy's time. Lovejoy paid with his life. And now the same newspaper is under seige again.

In any case, back in 1969, reporters Joseph Melosi and William Lhotka got a tip that Chicago mob money was coming into the county through a savings and loan institution.

They passed the tip along to the Justice Department asking for a "confirm or deny." As a result, the Justice Department launched an investigation, moved in with heavy handed insolence and so frightened the lending insitution that it halted credit to the building contractor. As a result of credit impairment, the builder lost his business. The lawsuit was filed at his

Meanwhile, the investigation failed to produce corroborative evidence and the reporters dropped the story. However, the government investigation put an apparently innocent man into bankruptcy.

I happen to be a person who doesn't believe that the press is always innocent and blameless. Indeed, if I wanted to complain about the two reporters in Alton, I'd charge them with naivete. It's the kind engendered in most journalism courses in college where the instructor frequently exhorts his charges that when they want to know "the truth" about something they should check with the government.

If the reporters were guilty of anything, they were guilty of (1) asking the Feds for help, and (2) presuming thereby that they would learn the truth. A really top reporter may listen to what a government officeholder tells him; but then he goes out and confirms the government story by checking around among nonofficial, hardworking, non tax - supported humans. A third count against the reporters could be that they should never have believed that their "confidential" request for information would be kept confidential. It wasn't. The erstwhile contractor found out about the memo and the lawsuit

I dont' know what will happen in this case. However, one bit of good that can come from it relates to the point I have just mentioned. If reporters, generally, wake up to the realization that the government is not reliable, won't keep a promise and often wouldn't know the truth from a hole in the ground, then the cause of journalism and freedom of the press may yet be served.

In my personal judgment the whole legal action was aimed at an innocent bystander who, even if naive, did nothing wrong. The Justice Department was plainly culpable (1) for its heavyhanded methods of conducting investigations, and (2) for betraying a promised confidence. But one can't sue the government without governmental consent.

There's further irony in this story. Perhaps the best statement to emerge in defense of the newspaper comes from a member of Congress who commented: "The idea that a newspaper can be sued and possibly driven out of business because of something it didn't print is absurd."

The ruined businessman and his attorney contend that the loss of a multi million dollar business, which occurred because of the way the Feds operate, is nonetheless the responsiblity of the newspaper that did nothing but ask a question in My own sense of fair play tells me that the judge who presided should have either tossed the legal action out of court or demanded that the Feds be brought in as codefendants. Neither So newspapers are now confronted with something of a dilemma. If they don't check on a story, they can be found guilty. If they do check on a story, they can be found guilty. Indeed, in the past 144 years the popular cry against freedom for blacks has been converted into a series of judicial decisions against freedom of the press.

I wonder how long this will go on before members of the Fourth Estate are legally required to ride in the back

Despite constant assurances of people very high in the government, there are still some skeptics in this country and Western Europe who are not sold on the argument we need to build a neutron bomb. The fact of the matter is that the United States not only needs it - but it's inconceivable that we could have ever lived without it. The neutron bomb is the greatest thing to come along since white bread. When set off it produces high levels of radiation, cooking people, but leaving structures and buildings standing Unlike present atomic weapons where blast and heat do most of the damage, the neutron bomb actually penetrates its target, frying anyone inside.

The same people who are always standing in the way of progress are 'Why do we need a neutron

The question doesn't deserve a response, but I'll give one anyway. We need one if we hope to fight an integrated war on foreign soil.

The U.S. military's new strategy is to prepare itself for conventional nuclear and chemical war battles. Because the Soviets outnumber the NATO forces, the neutron bomb will give us the parity we need to deter the Russians from attacking the West.

You would think the Europeans would be overjoyed that we were going ahead with an enhanced bomb which might kill them but preserve all their beautiful palaces and churches. The reaction has been just the opposite. Instead of saying "Thank you,

Uncle Sam," they have informed us to stuff our neutron bombs in the ground.

I say if that's the way they feel about it we should keep our bombs in Utah and see what kind of conventional nuclear war they can fight without them. If they want to use the second rate low - yield atomic weapons thay now have at their disposal, good luck to them. But when they start crying for the high - yield mini - nukes that can really do a man's job, we'll remind them of the fuss they made when we offered to place the neutron weapon on their soil.

The point that opponents keep missing is that we are not building the bomb to start a war, but to stop one. If the Soviets know we have a neutron bomb ready, they're not going to attack the West, unless, of course, they have a neutron bomb of their own. By this time we should have our own laser death beam weapon in production, which will deter the Soviets from starting anything with their enhanced weapons.

In an arms war the trick is always to stay one step ahead of the other guy.

I don't want anyone to get the idea that the neutron bomb is our ultimate weapon and that we can relax after we get enough stockpiled. The bomb, for all its publicity, is just a nice little option a field commander has at his disposal when the going gets tough. It's not the end - all for killing large segments of the population, but if we can save pieces of valuable real estate from being destroyed it will pay for itself in no time at all. (c) 1981, Los Angeles Times

The safe was found in Italian liner lying 225 feet under water about 40 miles south of Nantucket, Mass., by an expedition led by Peter Gimbel and his wife, Elga Andersen.

Ms. Andersen has said the safe won't be opened until a television documentary on the expedition is aired. The luxury ship that was lost, along with 51 lives, after a collision with the Swedish liner Stockholm 25 years ago.

There have been reports that two safes aboard the Andrea Doria contained at least $1 million in cash and jewelry and the divers hope to find the other safe before the expedition's support vessel, the Sea Level 11, lifts anchor early next week to return to Early today the vessel's first mate, John Breen, said by marine radio-telephone that the divers were "secured for the night" but had not found the second safe.

The purser's friend, the Rev. Mario Zicarelli of the Nativity of Our Lady Church in the Bronx, said Friday he didn't expect the expedition to find much treasure in either safe.

He said the purser had told the passengers to remove their valuables from the safes after the ship was struck.

"I took good care of my people," Father Zicarelli quoted the purser as

'There may be some currency aboard that was used for routine transactions by the ship's personnel, but I do not think anything of great value will be found in the safes," the priest added.

Michael Dempsey, president of Chubb Industries of King of Prussia, Pa., which in 1970 absorbed the Italian company that made the safes aboard the Andrea Doria, agreed with Zicarelli about the safe brought up by the divers.

That safe, he said, belonged to the Banca di Roma, and his firm had been informed by the Italian bank that its safe contained only "petty cash and other small items."

But Dempsey said there were 16 safes aboard the liner, including four double-door safes fitted with 50 safety deposit boxes each.

'I would suggest that the probability is that the great amount of the fortune would be in those four safes," Dempsey

"I think if it is jewelry, if it is gold, the probability is they'll be in very salvageable condition," he said. "If it is paper records or money in note form, then it is probable that with 25 years of salt water they're going to be damaged

MILWAUKEE (AP) -Buddy Bell drove in three runs with two hits and Al Oliver added a two-run single to lead the Texas Rangers to an 8-5 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Saturday

Jon Matlack, 4-6, pitched five innings to earn the victory. Steve Comer, John Henry Johnson and Jim Kern finished up, with Kern getting the last out for his fourth save after Johnson walked two batters in the ninth.

Texas took a 2-0 lead in the third inning off Milwaukee starter Randy Lerch, 4-7. Mario Mendoza led off with second on a bunt by Mickey Rivers. Both runners advanced on a grounder and Mendoza scored on a wild pitch by Lerch before Bell rapped an RBI single to score

Longhorns remind Akers of '77 club

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -Coach Fred Akers says the 1981 Texas Longhorns are "showing some of the same attitude" in pre-season workouts as the 1977 squad, which finished the regular season No. 1 in the nation.

'If we stay healthy and play up to our potential, we could have as good a football team as we've ever had," Akers said Thursday.

Akers' first Texas team in 1977 was 11-0 — scoring a school record 431 points before losing to Notre Damn the Cotton Bowl and falling tno. 4.

"I think our team, in general, has the best attitude and more enthusiasm than any since I talked with you before the 1977 season," Akers told sportswriters visiting SWC schools.

Waters hurt

IRVING, Texas (AP)-Dallas strong safety Charlie Waters did not suit up for Saturday night's National Football League exhibition game against the Houston Oilers because of an accident at home.

The Cowboys said Waters' injuries do not appear serious. He will be examined Monday in an effort to determine his availability for the regular season opener against Washington.

Despite temperatures of more than 100 degrees on Texas' artificial turf, Akers said he "had not heard one complaint about how hot it is or how hard the workouts

Akers said kicking, especially punting, would be big, big, big part of our footballteaam. And at this point, it is suspct until we prove it. Punting hurt us badly last year. Akers said John Goodson is the best practice punter in the country," kicking as "far and as high" as former Longhorn Russell Erxleben, who punts for the New Orleans Saints. Goodson, however, was inconsistent last year in averaging 38.2 yards on 58 punts.

Raul Allegre, a transfer from Montana, will do the placekicking, Akers said.

Akers said the "strength of the offense should be the offensive line." which averages 267 pounds and includes four-year starters Terry Tausch and Joe Shearin. Akers said Tausch, 6-foot-4 and 266 pounds, is even "more mobile" than Jerry Sizemore, a former Texas star who starts for the Philadelphia Eagles.

He described as "quite a blow" the apparent academic loss of second-team tight end Rick Hosto, who also was Texas' backup punter. Akers said he would know by Aug. 31 whether Hosto would be More experience in the secondary and at end, along with veteran linebackers Bruce Scholtz and Doug Shankle, "should make us a very competitive defensive team," Akers said.

He said Scholtz, 6-6 and 240, should be as good as anyone (in the nation).

Akers said Kenneth Sims, 6-6. 265-pound defensive tackle. "unquestionably is the best we've had around here in four years, and if he keeps improving he might be the best we've ever had around here. Really, I think he's the best lineman in the country.'

Akers said he hoped the No. 2 pre-season ranking by a national sports magazine "is accurate." but he noted Texas had been rated as low as fifth in its own conference. You can draw out of a hat' in the SWC among Texas, Baylor, Houston, Southern Methodist, Texas A&M and Arkansas to determine 'which is the toughest." he

We lack only three teams filling up every league," Vandenbrook said. "We had 1300 bowlers last year, including the kids, and we're

Fall flights of fancy

Fashions for fall 1981 are a blend of diverse tastes with just about everything available, ranging from the folkloric styles to Western wear to traditional offerings in suits and separates. One high - fashion choice is a puffed style, or "cocoon" dress. As if to imitate Nature, designers have also come out with the "natural" sequel to the cocoon dress — a swirly, ethereal look that resembles a butterfly.

Top center is a black bubble wedding gown presented in Paris as another preview of Saint Laurent's high fashion winter 1982 collection.

Country-western star doubles as dude ranch owner

Sitting around a kitchen table where wide windows give sweeping views down the hill to the broad fields where Mooney Lynn is busily piloting a huge tractor cutting hay, country music superstar Loretta Lynn seems happy to be simply the lady of the town came with the place when we bought it,' explains with a delightfully uninhibited laugh. "We were just out riding around one Sunday afternoon. I'd always wanted an old haunted looking house. We drove by this place and I said, 'That's the place I'm going to buy. We didn't even know if it was for sale and I sure didn't know that a town came with it, but since it did, I took it. We really didn't intend to start a dude ranch either, but I figured, why not? I love people and I love to have them come to my place. Most of them are pretty good about not coming right up to the house. Of course, if I go out there, that's something else."

The Loretta Lynn Dude Ranch began as a simple campground in 1975. Over the years a variety of special activities and attractions have been added to the 1,140 acres open to the public.

"There's only the house and the mill left from the original town, but we've added a restaurant a western store an arts and crafts shop and some other things to the town. The Hurricane Mills Post Office still operates, too, of course. Most of our visitors are still campers, but we do have a few cabins and trailers to rent. I guess we'll 'add some more one of these days. There are just all sorts of have riding stables, canoe rentals, paddleboats, mopeds, stagecoach and buggy rides, a miniature golf course, hayrides, cookouts, live campfire shows every night and lately we've started holding a rodeo three or four times a month with bull riding and all the other things that go with a rodeo," Loretta

One of the highlights for most visitors to the ranch is Loretta Lynn's personal museum which is housed in the old mill. It is a remarkable collection of memorabilia and very much a reflection of the remarkable lady who put it together.

"There's a little bit of everything in the museum. There's every award I've won since I've been in country music, the skirt I wore the first time I went to try out to sing with a little band in the state of Washington, my first letter to Doo (Mooney Lynn to the rest of the world) after I went on tour, the dress I wore the first time I was on the Grand Ole Opry. Doo didn't know I was keeping all this stuff, so every now and then when he says, 'Loretta, why don't you throw all that junk away?' I say, 'You called the museum junk one time, too. There are even a couple of costumes which belonged to Elvis Presley.

Each item in the museum is accompanied by an explanatory card in Loretta's own handwriting. There are costumes and mementos donated by many of her contemporaries in the country music world and a number of souvenirs collected by Loretta personally. One of the most intriguing is a single Kent cigarette. The accompanying card explains that it came from a pack of cigarettes spilled by Dean Martin during the taping of a Frank Sinatra television special in which she was a headliner pretty fast company for a coal miner's daughter from Butcher Holler, Kentucky.

"You know," she says gazing out the window toward the fields where Mooney is still happily cutting his hay, "I don't think I've ever been so proud as the night Sissy Spacek won the Academy Award for 'The Coal Miner's Daughter.' Some of the movie was filmed right here on the ranch and a lot of people want to see the places that were in the film." The delightful laugh bubbles up again as she adds, "You're liable to see most anything around here. We've got a lot of ducks and chickens and animals on the place. We've got one duck the other ducks won't have a thing to do with it - but one of our roosters is in love with that duck - follows it everywhere and when the duck goes swimming in the pont that rooster just goes crazy. I think he's learning to swim right now and won't that be something to see?"

Floor is part of successful decor

AP Newsfeatures

There is a tendency when decorating a room to spend most of the effort and budget on the objects inside the room without giving adequate consideration to the shell itself, namely the ceiling, walls and floor

Yet such background areas as the floor are as important as the other elements since they are the setting for whatever is placed in a room. There can be no truly successful room scheme that does not take into consideration the floor coverings.

Since floor coverings are expensive, it's a good idea to make decisions early and to budget for the kind of floor coverings to be used. One choice designers recommend for do - it yourself decorators is carpeting. It is a luxurious choice, yet easy to work with. And the use of carpet provides a unity that makes it easier to proceed with the rest of the decoration, says Catherine C. Crane, a designer and author of home - decorating books.

Carpeting provides a feeling of calmness and ease in a room. It is comfortable underfoot and conveys a sense of richness without necessarily costing more than other types of floor

Three design factors should be considered when purchasing carpet, says Ms. Crane - color, texture and weight.

Color, according to Marti Hill, a carpet designer, is usually the first consideration when consumers choose carpet. They should remember that light neutrals such as white, pale beige, yellow and pink make a room look larger. Bright colors, such as red and orange, warm a room while light, bright colors both warm a room and make it look larger.

Dark colors will make a room seem smaller and cosier. Medium - tone blues and greens will provide a restful background, but could result in a cold room. So, if these tones are chosen, bring in warm, earthy tones in wall coverings or upholstery to counteract any coldness.

Carpet textures range from the unevenness of shag through the mixed ups and downs of carved patterns to the velvet smoothness found in plush and flat - weave carpeting. In general, according to Ms. Crane, uneven pile creates an informal mood while smooth pile that is carved or cut out is semiformal.

The thicker a carpet, the more luxurious it will feel and the better it will wear. However, one method of enchancing the heavy feeling is by using thick padding underneath it, says designer Hill.

Besides its warmth - giving qualities both in terms of insulation and psychological warmth — carpet unifies space visually and gives a comfortable 'furnished' look to a room.

"Carpet can be used to tie a group of rooms together," said Ms. Hill. "Of course this can get monotonous. But by using a border in a contrasting color in some rooms, an interesting decorative variation can be achieved.

One of the newer ideas to dress up carpeted areas is an 18 - inch border in a contrasting color or in the same color but a shade darker or lighter, she said. An idea borrowed from commercial installations is the use of patterned carpet in the home.

But then she just put her mind to it, as she puts her mind to making charley horses disappear, as she put her mind to being someone special when she was a shy child, one of nine siblings growing up impoverished in Erie, Pa., suffering lots of charley horses, she says, "probably because of a lack of calcium."

Captivated by magic, she moved to New York in her teens to learn the ropes. "I'd worked since I was 11, ironing for neighbors, washing dishes after school in restaurants, so I was a saver and I've always been independent. I knew if I was going to get something, I had to go get it."

She read books on magic, bought tricks, attended open meetings of all - male magicians' societies and, since "the best way to learn anything is to pay the person who does it best to teach you," she says, she paid Presto the magician $25 an hour

After a summer performing puppet and magic shows in parks, she moved to club dates, children's parties, industrial shows. "I changed the old product into the new." Then she moved to escapes because, logistically, they made sense.

"I could do a 20 - minute routine with a piece of rope instead of carting around an electric saw to cut people in half," she

There are sick people out there. Once, during a show at the Waldorf, two salesmen were buckling me into the straitjacket when one started twisting my arm. The other was standing there gaping and I was screaming at the emcee for help, but he couldn't hear me because the band was playing. Finally, I got the man off stage."

And a few weeks before the bullet catch in Pittsburgh, she paused and gave voice to this: "If there's someone in the audience who's slightly off and in possession of a gun, he could say, 'Here, catch this one.' "

By ELAINE HOUSTON County Extension Agent GARMENTS, TEXTILE HEIRLOOMS - HOW TO SAVE THEM

Store garments and other textile heirlooms for long periods of time without damage and deterioration. Follow these tips to maintain them for future generations.

Store textile items clean and as free of dust as possible. Dust and soils often contain materials that deteriorate fabric, especially during prolonged storage. Remove general surface dirt by brushing or vacuuming. Tumble dry nonfragile items alone on the air cycle of the dryer. Launder soiled items, and remove all stains if possible. Fold fragile items flat on a clean screen, and soak in the bathtub

Dry - clean solid nonwashables. Alert the dry cleaner of the item's age, fragile areas and intended storage for best results. For best storage, lay items flat without folds. Do not store with pins or other metal objects such as jewelry which permanent damage.

Choose as large a box as possible for flat storage. Line the box with laundered muslin or sheeting to prevent the box from adding to fabric deterioration. Pad any folds with the box lining fabric on padded hangers. However, avoid packing tightly in an

JEANS - HOW TO BUY Jeans vary greatly in price whether for guys or gals. With so many choices, how does the female consumer decide which jean to select? The following guidelines may

Price of jeans is influenced by the fabric, fabric finish, cut, detailing, brand and type store. To save money, compare fashionability, fabric quality and garment construction to intended use: select simple design details; choose brands you can trust and shop in the lowest priced store offering the quality and style desired.

Most jeans are made of denim, a twill woven fabric of cotton or a cotton blend. Look for firmly woven and durable fabric. All - cotton jeans tend to be more aborbent, softer and resist pilling better than blends. However, blends tend to resist shrinkage and wrinkle less than untreated cotton denim. To maintain a neat appearance and fit, select preshrunk and wrinkle less than untreated cotton denim Check the label for fiber content and finish information. Jeans should not shrink more than two percent. Buy a larger size if the label does not guarantee shrinkage control. The word "sanforized" guarantees fabric will not shrink more than one percent. A shrinkage control trademark commonly

For wrinkle - free finishes, look for permanent press or durable press information. Trademarks for these finishes will generally include the term "prest" or "press."

> Cut or styling will affect the price and fit of jeans, so select the right style for your figure. Some jeans are cut for the slender figure, while others are fuller through the hips and thighs. Also, some jeans are cut with flared legs to wear over western boots, a fashion cut with slim or tapered legs, or a full baggy' appearance. Fashion cuts tend to cost

Some jeans are sized like dresses (9, 11, 13), while others are sized by waist measurement and may provide a variety of leg variety of sizing and styling. trying on jeans in the store is essential to obtain proper fit. Since cotton denim tends to conform to the figure, select jeans that fit snugly when new for a close fit when wearing. Also, denim tends to contract when washed but expand with wearing. This may make freshly washed jeans uncomfortably tight when first put on.

Construction details can add to the quality of jeans and may affect price. Flat felled seams, generally used on jeans, leave no raw seam edges to ravel. These seams are characterized by a double row of stitching which totally encases the seam allowance. Seams not flat felled should be zig zagged or serged to prevent raveling. Check that seams are firmly stitched and neatly constructed.

Interfacing or double thickness at the waistband helps reduce stretching. Look lengths. Because of the for thread bar tacks or rivets at places of stress like pocket corners, belt loops and bottom of zipper placket. Also check for a quality, durable zipper which zips easily.

Special designs such as embroidery or geometric stitching on the pocket or other pant areas will add to the cost, especially when associated with a certain brand or designer.

In most cases, a designer trademark will add at least $10 to the price of the jeans. Jeans bought in specialty stores or fashion boutiques will cost more, but these stores generally offer the latest in fashion styling. Chain stores and discount stores buy in greater quantities, so the consumer usually pays less at these

Diabetes patients begin third year on insulin pump

Both Anderson and Snyder are patients of Dr. Philip Raskin, associate professor of internal medicine at The University of Texas Health Science Center at Dallas. A specialist in diabetes, Raskin said he would have 14 long term patients on insulin pumps by the end of July. (The physician defines "long - term" in this case as having been on the pump for a year or more.)

Besides the June anniversaries of the salesman and the college student, two more of the researcher's patients celebrated two years on the pump during the month of July. One of them is Snyder's little sister, Susie, who just graduated from high school. The other is 41 - year - old Jim Bell, also of Dallas.

Currently Raskin has a dozen long - term patients receiving treatment for diabetes mellitus by continuous subcutaneous insulin infusion, as use of the small battery - operated insulin pump is called in "doctor talk." This number is a large patient load for physicians working with pump patients on an individual basis. In fact, the reason that Raskin is able to work with so many at once, since the experimental process takes so much time, is the team approach. Raskin's team includes other physician - résearchers, a research nurse and a dietician. The team is currently seeing a total of 20 pump patients.

The small pumps, which are attached to the patients' belts or hidden in pockets of full skirts, are connected to slender nylon tubes attached to needles inserted under the patients' skin near the waistline. The insulin flows in individually programmed pulses throughout the day or night, mimicking the body's own distribution of the protein hormone, necessary for the regulation of carbohydrate, lipid and amino acid metabolism. In addition, there is a button to push for a needed "boost" of insulin, such as before a meal or when the patient realizes it is needed by the results of a self - administered blood test experiencing symptoms, such as weakness or dizziness. This type of insulin distribution is in contrast to the conventional treatment in which the patient receives the hormone by injection one or more

It is Raskin's hope that the. normalization of the blood glucose level in the diabetic patient with the pump will halt the continuing damage these patients suffer from the disease - or even reverse some of the destruction. These problems, which can be most severe, include kidney problems; atherosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries in the arterial wall of the heart; thickening in the major capillaries in areas such as the legs and abdominal walls, pancreas and heart; and injury to nerves, also characterized by thickening of the tissue. This thickening may lead to severe sight problems - even blindness - or circulation problems which may result in amputation of the hands r feet. However, at present, says Raskin, we do not know if the vascular complications of diabetes are related to the elevated levels of blood sugar most patients with diabetes

"That's really why I'm doing this research - we hope our work with the pump will give us these answers.

Because this is such an important question, the National Institutes of Health is getting ready to start a nation - wide multi - center study of patients on the pump. The purpose will be to determine the relationship between blood glucose levels and diabetes.

It is difficult in a small patient population over a short period of time to determine scientifically if the pump is making the patient gains that are hoped for. However, so far the researcher believes he can see signs for use of the pump over more traditional treatment of insulin by reported by Raskin; Angel Pietri, who works with him in patient care as well as research; Fredrick L. Dunn and Albert Ehle show the pump patients in far better metabolic control than patients on conventional treatment or a comparison of the same patients on both treatments. In addition, Dunn reported on the team's new research on the beneficial effect on plasma of lipid control with patients on the pump at the annual American Diabetes Association meeting in June, where Raskin and research nurse Marilyn Alford gave a 'how to' session for physicians interested in working with pump patients. Research by Raskin and his associates goes on as once each six months his patients on research protocols come into the health science center's General Clinical Research Center, one of 75 GCRCs established by the National Institutes of Health around the country.

The pumps are quite expensive, costing over $1,000 each. However, some insurance companies will paypart of the cost, and a recent gift from Dallas'

Southwestern Medical Foundation just paid for nine new pumps. Pumps are loaned without cost to patients who are willing to participate in research studies in diabetes. And, Raskin says, many want to.

"They realize that anything that will help us find new information about the disease may help them," he said.

With all the optimism with which Raskin views the pumps, the scientist in him forces him to view this new treatment regimen with some detachment.

"It's still an experimental tool as far as I'm concerned,' he said. "I know there're a lot of doctors who are talking about it like it's the way to go but what they really mean is that's their hope

"But we've still got a lot of proving to do.'

On the other hand, the researcher's patients all report feeling better since they have been on the pump than they ever did on conventional treatment.

"I think that's great," he says. "But you can't forget the placebo effect," which means that doing anything for the patient may make the patient feel better diabetes since he was 16, says that he feels "just terrific. My health has improved 100 percent (on the pump).'

He has been able to lose weight, and he reports that the discipline of the research protocol helps him stick to his diet. He also says that his total appearance has improved. Also, he believes that the pump is helping him because ''my nerve conduction tests have improved and my triglycerides and cholesterol levels have gone down.'

In fact, Raskin says that he has seen physiological signs of improvement, which have shown up in testing in all his patients other than Patrice Snyder. And she had suffered quite a bit of damage before she went on the pump.

This young woman, who has known she has had diabetes since she was 8, was Raskin's first patient to go home with the pump. A popular visitor to the GCRC. Snyder looks on her GCRC stay as a visit with friends, such as Raskin and Alford, who call the nutrition major "our favorite patient." Snyder also reports that the pump makes a great deal of difference in the way she

"I wouldn't give it up for anything," she said.

However, it wasn't like that in the beginning. At first she didn't. want to come to see Raskin. Her mother, a nurse. brought her to be fitted with the pump. But it didn't take. It was embarrassing for a teen - ager to go around with a strange device attached to her side. And it was embarrassing to have to explain what it was - and why she was "different."

"So I stopped wearing it all the time," she said.

It didn't take long for the student to "go out of control." "I had to go back to see Dr. Raskin," she said. "He talked, to me and really straightened me out. He made me see that I was really hurting myself. And he made me know he really cared about me as a person. Anderson, too, said there are some drawbacks to the pump, but he agrees with Snyder that feeling better makes living with the disadvantages more than worthwhile. Sticking a needle in and out of yourself may be just as bad as having to give yourself shots. Also, the pump has to be removed for baths, showers and swimming.

"I just forget swimming parties and hot tubs," he said 'They're just too much of a hassle. It takes me twice as long as anybody else to get dressed after a simple thing like taking a shower.' Contact sports are out, too, although that doesn't bother Anderson, whose hobbies are knitting and calligraphy. Although the researcher is the first to agree that "the pump certainly isn't for everyone," there isn't too much his patients can't do while wearing the device. In fact, a hospital chaplain raised eyebrows last year when he delivered a paper at a Dallas GCRC seminar on 'Sex and the Pump.'

"My goal is to see that my patients lead as normal a life as possible," said Raskin. And he has a bunch of satisfied natients who are achieving this goal in their individual lives. They

LUBBOCK FIELD DAY FEATURES GRAPES Results of 10 years of research here on grapes, a crop receiving increasing interest from commercial growers and homeowners on the High Plains, will be exhibited during the 72nd annual field day of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES) at Lubbock Halfway.

This year's program will be from 1 to 5 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 8, at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center, just north of the Lubbock International Airport. The center is on FM 1294 just east of I - 27 at the Shallowater exit.

The report on grapes will be one of five major stops during tours of the research plots and facilities at the center.

At the Center's research vineyard, Dr. William Lipe, TAES associate professor of horticulture and a specialist in viticulture, will discuss research on more than 300 varieties of grapes. The decade of research activities has resulted in recommendations for 10 varieties best suited to the High Plains. These varieties include both wine and table grapes and have been selected because of good production and excellent juice quality, in addition to their adaptability to the area. Cold hardiness is a primary concern in adaptability.

The grape research being conducted by scientists at the Lubbock station includes studies of root stocks for nematodes, and studies of irrigation requirements and water use efficiency. TAES, a unit of the Texas A&M University System, also is cooperating with the University of Arkansas in a study of table grape varieties.

T.L.C. FOR HOUSEPLANTS

Probably more home plant failures are caused by improper watering techniques than any other factor. This is especially true during the winter months when plant growth is very slow because of the low light intensities.

Indoor gardeners frequently get impatient and apply additional water and fertilizer, hoping to make the plant grow large and healthy. Actually, during period of low light intensity, the plant leaves are producing very little food and as a consequence the plant cannot grow rapidly.

The worst thing that can be done is to overwater during periods of slow growth. Plant roots must have air as well as water. If the soil is kept saturated with water, little or no oxygen can reach the roots. This results in loss of the small , feeder roots and eventually death of the plant.

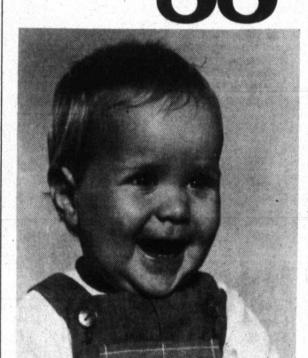

Never water plants by rule of thumb such as every other day or twice a week. Once the soil is thoroughly moistened, water them only when they need it. In watering houseplants, supply sufficient water so that it runs through the potting soil into the pan below. Always discard the excess water that drains through the pot. This aids in preventing the accumulation of soluble salts in the potting soil. In Pampa, use rain water for house plants. Do not use regular water from a

With a little experience, you can determine the moisture content of the soil from its color and feel. Plants in a cold room need less water than those in a warm, dry atmosphere. Flowering plants and those with much foliage require more water than those without blooms or with very little foliage.

If your houseplants are not growing properly, it is probably due to low light intensity rather than from lack of water or lack of fertilizer.

Italians have wide variety of ways to prepare eggs

AP Wine and Food Writer In ancient Rome, cooks used to whip up a batter of eggs, flour and grated cheese and toss the lot into a boiling broth. The mixture formed flakes when it hit the brew called it Stracciatella or "little rags.

Italians have always had a talent for preparing eggs, whether it be the simple act of dropping one into a glass of wine as a bracer when setting out on a journey or the delectable omelet called frittata so popular in that Italians have had a

In Padua today, omelets are served flavored with fine herbs, and in Florence beaten eggs are poured over artichoke hearts and the mixture baked in the oven.

But Italy's egg dishes aren't limited to omelets. In Genoa, a favorite is delightful tart filled with hard boiled eggs and spinach mixed with a soft cheese made from milk curd.

Parents' fire loss may awaken others

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this letter with a very heavy heart in hopes that it will wake up some parents.

Last Memorial Day our house caught fire. Our three daughters were asleep upstairs and my husband and I were asleep in the downstairs bedroom. The fire spread so fast and the smoke was so thick we weren't able to get to the children. Melinda, 5, was dead on the scene; Suzanne, 2, was dead on arrival at the hospital; and Tonya, 7, was in a come for two days. She died without coming out of it.

My husband and I still can't believe our little girls are gone. Maybe if we had had a smoke alarm we would still have our children.

While Tonya was in a coma, we were expecting the worst, so we willed her kidneys to the organ bank so that two children who need a kidney could have them. That gave us some comfort.

Please print this. It's too late for us, but it may save some other parents from having to go through what we went

STILL GRIEVING IN DAYTON

DEAR STILL: Thank you for writing. Too bad you'll never know how many parents your letter will awaken, or how many children it will save. Bless you.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 22-year-old woman with a problem I don't know how to handle. When I was 8 I had an incestuous relationship with my father. (He's my real father, not a stepfather.) I told my mother, but she wouldn't believe me. It stopped for a while, then he started again and used all kinds of threats and promises to get me to do things. It went on until I was 18. Finally I couldn't take it anymore so I told my mother. This time she believed me, but accused me of encouraging him.

I left home and joined the Navy. In the meantime my mother divorced my father because he was having an affair with a 38-year-old woman he worked with. (My father has a master's degree and an important job.) He is now married to this woman. She has a 9-year-old girl. My younger brother (age 19) went to live with my dad. My brother caught Dad in bed with his 9-year-old stepdaughter, they had a fight and Dad kicked my brother out of the house I feel so sorry for that little girl and hate to have her go through what I went through. I asked my mother what to do, and she said, "Nothing. Eventually the girl's mother will find out about it and I hope she shoots the rat." I'm not speaking to my father and I've never even met his wife. I know something should be done about this, but don't know how to go about it. Please help.

NO NAMES, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAMES: Start speaking with your dad. For openers tell him that you know about his be-havior with his 9-year-old stepdaughter and he has exactly one week to provide you with proof that he is seeing a therapist in a serious effort to cure this evil sickness. (It is a sickness.) His wife should be informed at once.

If your father refuses to get treatment, report him to the agency in your community that protects children. Your local Child Welfare Association can help you. Contact it immediately.

Director of Animal Control Sandy Burns and Animal Control Officers Glenda Laughlin and Kenny Stallings have added inside cages. outside runs, a puppy run and two outside cages for night drops. On some days, the animal shelter resembles a downtown dog show, with each lost and frightened animal vying for the attention of the infrequent visitors. A red Irish setter, a black Great Dane, a labrador retriever, a bird dog and a Pekingese all look forlornly out of their cages at the green grass of the Hobart Street Park. A black cocker spaniel, complete with the saddest brown eyes, roams the Animal Shelter office taking turns sitting on each available lap.

The Pampa Animal Control officers patrol the city in two white Animal Control trucks. The old truck was recently renovated and a new truck was purchased in 1980

The three officers are quick to point out that all the extra facilities were constructed from cast off pipe, old chain link and cinderblocks from the city dump

The new 10 by 10 office, situated at the animal shelter, was built by Robert Herring of city maintenance. The rest was constructed by the three officers, using skills not usually called upon for animal control

The city of Pampa provided the monies for the roof, doors and windows of the new office. Hours at the Animal Shelter Office are Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturday and Sunday 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

One Animal Control officer remains on call each 24 - hours and can be reached by telephoning 669 - 6149. When officers are unavailable, a recorder can take messages During the evening hours, a message may be recorded for service the next day.

"In case of emergencies, dog bites or injured animals, persons are instructed to call the Pampa Police Department and an Aminal Control officer will respond as soon as possible," Sandy Burns said.

The statistics kept at the shelter are surprising, 419 animals were picked up in July 1981 and 33 citations were issued. In the same period in 1980, 233 animals were picked up and 7 citations were issued. In July 1981 the officers picked up 102 dead animals from the streets.

"After receiving a call at the shelter, we log the call and dispatch the truck to the address given. On a complaint, the officers handle the situation in one of three ways: 1) we can pick up the animal, 2) issue a warning, or a court summons to the dog owner, or 3) take the strays and try to locate the owner." Burns said.

'According to City Ordinance 648, animals must be restrained to the property at all times either by a rope, chain, or a proper fence," Burns said.

'Also all dogs must be vaccinated for rabies and must wear vaccination tags," she added. "The tags not only let us know the animal has been vaccinated, but enables us to located the owners much easier. One of the main problems in Pampa has been owners turning dogs loose, either during the day or through the night hours, the Animal Control staff said.

"These animals can be picked up for running loose and brought to the shelter," "To reclaim a dog from the shelter, the owner will be asked to pay a shelter fee. A citation or warning may be issued, and a rabies vaccine is required," Burns said. 'The rabies shots are paid for at the elter, and a voucher for t the dog owner from any of the four local veterinarians," Burns said.

The dogs in the shelter must stay for the 72. hour waiting period before they are eligible for adoption.

As soon as an animal is brought to the shelter, he is logged into a book and given a file number

"Every dog gets a card and a tag is placed around the dog's neck. All the available information about the dog is logged under the tag number — when it was picked up or brought in, from what part of town, breed. color and sex of the animal," Burns said.

"If anyone comes or calls about a certain animal, we can just look in the book and know if he has been in the shelter," she said.

"If people just would call us as soon as an animal is lost, we would have a chance to look for the animal or at least return it if it is in the shelter. So many people wait weeks before they notify us about a missing animal," she

CITATIONS ARE ISSUED to any animal owner in violation of an ordinance. A court citation, or summons, can result in a fine from $1 to $200. Each citation is accompanied by a card that indicates the number of tickets or warnings that have been issued to each dog owner for violations

TAKE ME HOME — PLEASE! The Animal Shelter will arrange adoptions for any animal in need of a home. But the shelter can only accommodate a limited number, and after 72 - hours, many of the unclaimed animals have to be put to sleep. Owners are urged to have their pets spayed so that the number of unwanted animals in the city can be decreased.

IN NEED OF TENDER LOVING CARE, animals in the shelter may be homeless and forgotten, but they still respond to loving care. This lonesome animal participated in a play session with Animal Control Officer Glenda Laughlin and showed that he was a well - trained animal who enjoys raising his paw and shaking hands with each visitor to the shelter.

PART OF THE ANIMAL SHELTER duties include removing dead animals from the streets. Officer Kenny Stallings is shown bagging a dead cat. During the month of July, the animal shelter officers picked up 102 dead owners. The rabies tags that must be worn by all dogs let others know the dog has been vaccinated and where it belongs.

By JAMES R. KING Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - Natural gas resources in the United States were once thought nearly depleted. During the early days of the Carter administration it was feared we had only enough of the clean-burning fuel to last to the year 2000.

Coversions to coal and other fuel were ordered. Toda: natural gas is so abundant that two companies are racing to be first with a gigantic gas pipeline skirting the Texas Gulf Coast, and scientists are saying we have enough gas to last America well into the late 2000s.

'It was just a misunderstanding of the resource," said geology Prof. Harry Kent of the Colorado School of Mines.

Kent, an officer of the Potential Gas Committee, which tries to estimate gas reserves, said predictions by Carter administration policy makers that the nation's gas supplies would dry up by the end of the century were based on estimates of 200 trillion cubic feet of proven reserves.

The problem with that estimate, he said, was that it did not take into account unproven reserves - gas pockets yet to be discovered, and several big finds have been uncovered since

'Our committee has just completed an analysis, and the best estimate we have is on the order of 913 trillion cubic feet still to be found in addition to the present proven reserves of 190 to 195 trillion cubic feet." Kent said

That's more than five times the earlier estimates - and 'certainly enough to last us well into the second half of the 21st century," said Kent. Annual production of natural gas has held steady at about 19 to 20 trillion cubic feet since peaking at 22.6 trillion cubic feet

Kent said as gas is used up, it will be harder to produce the remaining reserves, but David Foster, president of the Natural Gas Supply Association, said by then we may have come up with some alternate sources of energy.

"That will take time, and natural gas will give us that time," Foster said.

Along the Texas coast, two companies who have faith that gas will be around for a long time have won government approval to build natural gas pipelines 2 feet in diameter stretching from near Brownsville to Galveston and staying within the 10-mile territorial limit of Texas.

What we are trying to do is connect companies that have producing wells out in the Gulf of Mexico along the route of the line to our major pipeline and deliver gas to purchasers on shore, such as a utility company," said Mike Cassidy of the Seagull Pipeline Corp. of Houston.

Seagull won U.S. Army Corps of Engineers approval for its proposed 258-mile-long pipeline last week but said it is waiting for commitments from the offshore gas producers before it goes ahead with construction.

"It's just too big a project to attempt to undertake without having the commitment of gas reserves there first," Cassidy

In the meantime, another company, Corpus Christi Oil and Gas Co., has also won permission to build a gas pipeline along the same general route. Officials of the Corpus Christi company declined to comment on their proposed pipeline. But Cassidy acknowledged that the two companies were

"There is a legitimate competition going on between the two companies right now. They're looking at exactly the same things we're looking at. The route of that sustem is almost identical to ours.

Whether there's enough gas down there to justify a project of that magnitude for two companies remains to be seen,'

How much gas is left is a question Kent said scientists simply cannot answer precisely.

'A lot of people think that we have some magic way of knowing and we don't. So much of this must be based on interpretation and evaluation of rather skimpy data," he said.

Clarendon gearing up for petroleum courses production and well completion methods. These are suggested courses, but the list is incomplete. This is what we must discuss with the companies,' Balcom said.

> "For a degree, the student must also take required subjects such as English and government," Balcom added.

> 'Another area we are looking into right now is a program in instrumentation. It is relative to almost any gas and oil company that uses pressure gauges," Balcom said.

> We are planning on offering some short courses in instrumentation this year. After these classes, students might be interested in DC - AC electronics, semi - conductor and digital electronics," Balcom

"Some of the companies interested in the courses on instrumentation are Getty and Dorchester, Balcom said

'Some of the courses we would like to offer, but can't because of finances, are welding and machine shop. Unfortunately, the cost of equipment makes this prohibitive. There are many local companies who can't find machinist because there are no local schools. This means they must go to other areas to recruit employees where the training is available, Balcom said

"What we are trying to do is provide a service at a small cost to the citizens of Pampa. Enrollment has increased every year. Last year we had 1,100 students. We want to keep filling the needs of the community and surrounding area," Balcom said.

DALLAS - The Texas petroleum industry paid an estimated $941.3 million in property taxes last year, an increase of 31 percent over the $719.7 million paid in 1979, according to a property tax survey by the Texas Mid -Continent Oil and Gas Association.

These payments to all of the state's taxing jurisdictions including counties, school districts, and others - once again make the industry the state's largest property tax payer. Last year, for example the petroleum industry contributed Hoppe's report, prepared to aid in the formulation of new farm legislation pending in Congress, has been given only limited circulation among researchers.

The Associated Press obtained a copy Thursday.

'This decline, with an accompanying erosion of farmers' political power. nonetheless introduces economic opportunities for both farmers and their rural communities," it said.

'The growth in non-farm business gives farmers a chance to supplement their income with a job off the farm. And rural economies may become more 'recession-proof' now that they have a more balanced mix of income sources, including farming.'

Four time periods were involved in the study: 1950, 1959, 1969-71 and 1975-77.

"This would be the sixth time in the last seven years that food prices have risen less than prices for non-food goods and services," Lesher

Department economists initially expected food prices to go up 10 percent to 15 percent this year but revised their forecasts downward after the effects of last winter's mild weather, huge supplies of meat, reduced consumer demand and the general economic situation.

Lesher said three-fourths of the department is sticking to this year's food price rise will

"Major food marketing costs in the first half of the year have risen about 12 percent, compared to year-earlier levels, led by 21 percent higher energy prices, 19 percent higher transportation prices and 11 percent higher labor costs,"

Looking at the July situation, the department's analysis showed meat prices rose 2 percent from June and averaged 6.7 percent above a year earlier. That included a 2.1 percent gain during the month for beef and veal, which left them only 2.5 percent above year-earlier

Retail pork prices gained 4.7 percent from June to July. averaging 15.6 percent higher than in July of last year.

"The higher meat prices reflected lower livestock slaughter in June and July which led to some improvement in farm-level livestock prices," Lesher

Poultry prices averaged 2.4 percent higher than in June and 9 percent more than in July 1980. But egg prices dropped 3.3 percent from June, although averaging 13 percent more than a year

Fruits and vegetables showed a 2.3 percent gain in July, leaving their price index 12 percent above a year

"Declining supplies of apples from cold storage and lower California orange production pushed retail fresh fruit prices up 4.7 percent," the report said.

Sharply higher prices for lettuce offset a decline for tomatoes, carrots and green beans, resulting in a 1.6 percent gain from June in resh vegetable prices. The report said some recovery in world sugar production this year 'continued to put downward pressure" on retail prices of sugar and sugar products, which declined 0.4 percent from June to July.

There may be: there are always those who know more about handling the public than the so-called experts who advise on what ties to wear, and how to modulate a voice and control an angry,

Nationwide teacher shortage seen

DALLAS (AP) — A nationwide teacher shortage expected to begin in 1985 will be so severe it could change the fabric of America's educational system, some researchers say.

A steadily rising birthrate, combined with declining numbers of gradating teachers, already have caused shortages in the Southwest, Midwest and parts of the far West.

And the dearth of teachers has forced some south Texas school districts to hire teachers with fewer than 90 hours of college credit, a University of Texas at Dallas researcher reports.

Dr. Clifton Harris, director of UTD's Office of Teacher Education, said the districts have hired uncertified teachers under deficiency plans and have curtailed courses such as advanced math and science, languages and industrial arts.

He cited studies by his colleagues that show shortages in Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Wyoming, Utah and Nevada - particularly in rural areas and smaller towns.

The National Education Association predicts the supply of teachers, which has declined since 1972, will cross the line of increasing demand

According to the National Center for Education Statistics, the supply of graduates declined from 317,000 in 1972 to about 180,000 in 1980 and is expected to fall to 159,000 in 1985. At the same time, the demand for new teachers is projected to jump to 165,000 in 1985

The NEA said the number of graduating college seniors who could be certified to teach had dropped from 35 percent in 1969 to 17.3 percent in 1979.

"By 1985, it my well be that less than 15 percent of college graduates will be prepared to teach," Harris said in an analysis of national enrollment figures. Harris, who surveyed 57 of Texas' 63 schools that graduate teachers, said 88 percent perceiveed a teacher shortage in the state.

"The preponderance of In Texas, the birth rate opinion is that the shortage will be severe and that it is imminent," said Harris, who does not expect supply and demand to be equal again until 2000.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

AUSTIN — The people spoke last November. In a statewide election, they said they wanted bingo in certain

During the special session, we had a chance to vote on the legislation that would make certain bingo games legal, and put the wishes of the people into operation. It was a hard choice for me because, like many people in our district, I really don't approve of gambling in any form.

Yet I voted for the bill. Here's what we voted for: We approved a bill to legalize bingo games by well - established charitable organizations, which will use the bingo revenue for fund - raising purposes. The county in which the games are authorized may impose a tax of two percent of the gross receipts on the game.

This is a local - option bill, like the liquor by the drink. For bingo to be legal in a county, city or justice precinct, it must be approved by a majority of the voters in that area. No bingo games may be conducted until the people petition for an election and win that election. The petition to call the election must be signed by at least ten percent of the qualified voters in Under our form of government, we all must sometimes make compromises. This was the case with the bingo bill. But we believe the bill will do a lot of good for many charities, including veteran's organizations and churches.

Also, bingo should pay for itself. The kinds of organizations which will be eligible for bingo licenses generally are composed of people who are law - abiding. In fact, the organization must have been in existence for at least three years (ten vear for churches) before it is eligible for a bingo icense. Therefore, we do not expect bingo to cost counties more than the tax it will generate.

Bingo was one of the hard choices we faced, but it was a good illustration of our government at work the way it is supposed to work. The people now have a greater choice than they had before, both at the state and the local level. They can vote to llow taxed and regulated bingo games to help churches and charities, or they can vote to keep it out.

We know many of you have strong feelings for or against bingo games, and we would like to hear from you.

Please write to Senator Bill Sarpalius, P. O. Box 12068, out of the hospital in 48 hours. And in his role as the Arthurian sorcerer Merlin he apparently was able to conjure a little magic. 'Whatever lucid moments I had," he says, "they seemed to have captured on film." His spell also worked on CBS, because they bought the comedy for the fall schedule.

Instead of the wizard's cape he sported around Camelot, Max Merlin now wears greasy overalls and runs a seedy garage in San Francisco. But his powers · haven't diminished, and, with the aid of a few special effects, he and his new apprentice, played by Clark Brandon, are still able to pass a few miracles.

"Our aim isn't to turn it into a special effects show," says Hughes, who won a Tony as the Irish father in "Da" and an Emmy as a senile judge on "Lou Grant" in the same year. "I personally would like to see more line comedy.

"Merlin is not going to be very far afield from the persona I've already established. Good naturedly crotchety. A bit of a curmudgeon. I suppose in private life I'm a little like that. "I played Father Majeski in several episodes. He had a salty tongue and he put down Archie pretty good. There was even some talk of my doing a Father Majeski series. He was a priest who didn't suffer fools easily. I guess I've been playing him ever since, in and out of Roman collars."

Cathleen Nesbitt on Broadway at 92

AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Cathleen Nesbitt was born in England in 1888 — a year Queen Victoria was ruling England, Grover Cleveland was running the United States and George Bernard Shaw was toiling as a music critic.

August 18, 1981, was opening night for Broadway's revival of Lerner and Loewe's "My Fair Lady," based on Shaw's "Pygmalion." Rex Harrison again heads the cast. In the cast is frail, white-haired Cathleen Nesbitt.

At 92, she's again playing the mother of Harrison's Henry Higgins. She originated the role in 1956 when "My Fair Lady" first opened on Broadway and lasted 2,717 performances. She was

"They say I'm now the oldest active actress anywhere - I don't know if that's a compliment." she muses. Then she apologetically warns her visitor to speak up, she's a bit hard of hearing.

She laughs heartily, this lady with the gnarled hands and slow, hesitant walk, this actress who's been acting 75 years, the last year touring in "My Fair Lady" before its 12-month run here.

She's doing eight shows a week. And a batch of interviews here pegged to the fact one doesn't often see a 92-year-old actress on Broadway. She concedes all that takes a bit of energy. "I confess I don't always have it," she says. "But I hope I have it on the stage. Today I'm feeling quite exhausted and I don't know why, because I've had practically three weeks off." That, by her standards, almost makes her a layabout. "I've been lucky, continuously working for over 70 years," she says. Her stage, film and TV roles are in the hundreds. She has no exact figure to

"I really can't say," she sighs. "I must say I was staggered when I looked through a 'Who's Who in Theatre' recently and saw several closely printed pages about things I've done."

She began in 1906, in an amateur production in Belfast. As a pro a few years later, she made her London debut in "The Winter's Tale." She first played New York in 1911 with the Irish Players in The Playboy of the Western World.

She portrayed a peasant girl who runs across the stage bearing a porkchop. "On opening night I dropped it," she remembers.

'I picked it up, wiped it on my dirty apron and carried on. It got an enormous laugh and they ght I must be a good actress. They never realized the whole thing was an accident."

From her middle years onward, much of her stage. TV and film work has been as a mother, her mum's role in "My Fair Lady" the latest. She's also been the mother of John Mills, Richard Burton, Emlyn Williams, Alec Guinness, and Marlon Brando.

She's a real mother, has a son, now an advertising executive, and a daughter, a psychiatrist who, like her, call London home. They were born of her only marriage, that one to Cecil Ramage, a politician who was an actor when they met shortly after World War I.

Before the marriage, though, there was a great romance with soldier-poet Rupert Brooke, whom she met before the war. He wasn't shy in love. calling her "inordinately, devastatingly immortally, calamitously, heartbreakingly adorably beautiful."

They might even have married but for the war she says. Brooke died of blood poisoning while serving overseas in 1915. But 66 years later, the memory lingers and so do all the letters he wrote

She plans to donate them eventually to some library or university in England, she says.

Don't construe this uncertainty as a lack of aggressiveness or ambition. CBS correspondent Mike Wallace is his father, and the genes are there. He's also been influenced by his stepfather, Bill Leonard, president of CBS News.

"From my father, I gained a sense of energy, a striving to do the best you can. From my stepfather, I got a sense of the long haul, that it's not a 100-yard dash; it's a marathon, and what counts most is the general quality of your work.

AN UNMARRIED WOMAN

Jill Clayburgh stars as a woman who suddenly finds herself left alone with her daughter (Lisa Lucas) when her husband leaves her in "An Unmarried Woman," the hit comedy-drama airing as an encore presentation on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," SUNDAY, AUGUST 30.

Ms. Clayburgh stars as Erica, whose life seems settled and secure with her stockbroker husband, her bright teenaged daughter and their fashionable New York luxury apartment. Michael Murphy is Martin, who shatters that security when he announces to her that he is leaving her and their daughter for a younger woman.

to the consolation of her friends proves to be cold comfort, and casual dates provide more discomfort than delight, but a chance encounter with a free-spirited painter (Alan Bates) blossoms into a new relationship.

ONE LAST RIDE

Ronny Cox (left) and David Hollander co-star in "One Last Ride," a five-part mini-series focusing on a father-son relationship, to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Afternoon Playhouse," MONDAY, AUGUST 31 through Friday, September 4.

When Tracy Gibbs (Cox) receives word that the wife he deserted soon after they married has died, he must claim and provide for the 10-year-old son he has never known. But Tracy, a hard-drinking itinerant rodeo performer, is hardly prepared for the responsibility. Once an All-Around rodeo champion, he's now a has-been who earns his keep as a rodeo clown. The last thing he wants or needs is a 10-year-old sidekick. Similarly, the last thing his son Ben (Hollander) wants is to live with a father he's never known.

THE FAMILY MAN

Edward Asner and Meredith Baxter Birney star as a happily married man and the young woman with whom he unexpectedly falls in love, in "The Family Man," a drama special to be rebroadcast TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 1 on CBS-TV.

Asner portrays Eddie Madden, a family man, contented with his loving wife, Maggie (Anne Jackson), ecstatic that his daughter (Mary-Joan Negro) has made him a grandfather, and concerned about the efforts of his young son (Paul Clemens) to establish his independence.

son (Paul Clemens) to establish his independence.

Madden owns a parking garage in Manhattan, and one day his tranquility is upset by a customer, Mercedes (Miss Baxter Birney), an attractive young woman. Mercedes is having problems with a violent-tempered former boyfriend (Luke Reilly), and Ed-

AP Newsfeatures Writer NEW YORK (AP) - The raised bronze letters above the entrance neither praise famous men nor salute glorious truths. As stark and plainly wrapped as a 12-to-25 in Sing Sing they read:

"District Attorney "New York County Fair enough. Neither fear

nor favor. For through these portals - two revolving, one hinged - comes a ceaseless column of humanity in quest of what no high words graven in marble can define for all men in all times: justice. Justice for the slayer of John Lennon, of the Metropolitan Opera violinist. of the woman upstairs. Justice for the rapist, the pusher, the whore, the cutpurse, the retiree on Social Security palming an extra tin of tuna, the Wall Street programmer rigging a computer, the stranger accused in a language he knows not. Justice for them. Justice for their victims. Justice for those for whom the district attorney of New York County speaks: the people.

The district attorney's office is not a temple of justice. It is a field hospital for society's maimed and maimers. It prescribes nuance, uncommon sense, law, perseverance

The boss, 61-year-old Robert Morgenthau, is fighting a losing battle to keep alive the terminal inch of his first of three cigars for the day. For clarity he removes the sodden stump:

"Our role is to protect the public, to see that justice is done in every case. Every case?

"I'm an optimist. This is no place to wear a belt and suspenders."

New York County is Manhattan, where 80,000 people were arrested last year for unauthorized nibbles and gouges ranging from a machine gun attack on gays

Mr. Merlin turns magic to comedy

By JERRY BUCK AP Television Writer

LQS ANGELES (AP)-Barnard Hughe recalls that he was petrified at the first screening of his pilot, "Mr.

He had trouble focusing his eyes. His temperature rose and fell abruptly. He was in and out of the hospital, but the doctors couldn't pin it down. Finally, it was diagnosed as a type of pneumonia and with appropriate treatment he was out of the hospital in 48 hours.

And in his role as the Arthurian sorcerer Merlin he apparently was able to conjure a little magic. Whatever lucid moments had," he says. "they seemed to have been captured on film." His spell also worked on CBS, because they bought the comedy for the fall schedule.

Instead of the wizard's cape he sported around Camelot, Max Merlin now wears greasy overalls and runs a seedy garage in San Francisco. But his powers haven't diminished, and, with the aid of a few special effects, he and his new apprentice, played by Clark Brandon, are still able to pass a few miracles.

"Our aim isn't to turn it into a special effects show." says Hughes, who won a Tony as the Irish father in "Da" and an Emmy as a senile judge on "Lou Grant" in the same year. "I personally would like to see more line comedy. "Merlin is not going to be very far afield from the persona I've already established. Good naturedly crotchety. A bit of a curmudgeon. I suppose in private life I'm a little like that. But it's only one facet of my personality that I exploit. I don't think in my private life it takes over quite as much as it does in my professional

But statistics are not

Nor, at first, second or third look is the Criminal Courts Building near Chinatown, Little Italy and the Brooklyn Bridge where Morgenthau and his 260 lawyers work and would see justice done. Mothers and lovers weep as their men are led away. Cops in uniform, narcs in street garb, judges in robes, assistant district attorneys pushing grocery carts of trial files, arthritic courtroom buffs, loved ones, hated ones all mingle, stride, shuffle, loiter, glower, sit, squirm, read newspapers, doze in jury boxes in this 15-story hive, this art deco warren of courtrooms, prisoner "pens," offices and corridors.

"It's like being an intern in a big city hospital," says Jessica de Grazia up on the eighth floor. "The suffering is bad, but you're doing something about it."

And somehow things get done. How? Begin a typical day with Jessica. She's in charge of hiring the junior assistants out of law school. Thirty were taken from the class of '80 out of 2,000 applicants. Most come for the trial experience, not the pay of $21,000 to start, half what name firms offer. But after a year of training, they'll be trying small cases, after five homicides. A rookie with a name firm may still be confined to the library by Bill Hoyt has had the duty today as supervisor in the complaint room. Crime here is as fresh as country sausage, no more than 18 hours old. It is delivered by arresting policemen along with witnesses or corroborating affidavits. There are about 200 complaints on an average day, less when there's been a blizzard or Monday Night Football or on Christmas

Hoyt, 38, has convicted a man named Bobby Negron for two cold-blooded murders despite Negron's disclaimer that he had "never killed a woman, child or anyone who worked 9 to 5." Today's complaints are more mundane: 21 felonies, 10 or 15 prostitutes, 50 misdemeanors.

Hoyt and his crew of 10 or so assistants assess the cases: will a beaten wife stay mad long enough at her husband to make it to trial (usually not); will a witness be too embarrassed about involvement in a drug case to testify; will he simply drop from sight; does a case need more police work, or should it be dropped right now for insufficient evidence?

A cop, particularly if he's been slugged by an accused, may think he has a stronger case than Hoyt's crew does. Voices may rise. Plea bargaining at an elemental level. This day 15 of the 21 felonies are sent right to the grand jury. Three are dismissed outright, the rest downgraded to misdemeanors. It is a quasi-judicial judgment by the junior assistant. The cases they decide to prosecute will be the responsibility of the assistant who first took it off the top of the incoming pile until it completes its journey through the Cuisinart of justice, a

has cut the time from crime to disposition from as long as two years to six months.

"You need a sense of judgment," says Hoyt. "We don't want to convict a wrong man or let a criminal go free. When I find someone falsely accused, I'm in a position to do something about it, and I have. If I take a case to trial, it's because I think the person is guilty. A defense lawyer may ask acquittal for someone he thinks is guilty. That would trouble me as a way of life."
