Kissinger, Tho Both In Russia; Talks Predicted

MOSCOW (AP) — Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho, North Vietnam's chief peace negotiator, were both in Moscow today, arousing speculation they may hold another of their secret talks on the Vietnam war.

Kissinger, President Nixon's adviser on national security, arrived Sunday. He told newsmen that "We are here to continue talks." An apparent reference to Nixon's meeting with the Russians in May.

But one of the five aides with Kissinger was John Negroponte, a former member of the Paris peace talks delegation who is fluent in Vietnamese.

Tho arrived in the Soviet capital Saturday on his way back to Paris. He is a member of the North Vietnamese Politburo and has met repeatedly with Kissinger in Paris.

The North Vietnamese would not comment on the possibility of meeting Kissinger here.

During the American's three-day stay, he is to meet with Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet Communist party boss. Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

U.S. officials said they would review Soviet-American relations, including European security, Vietnam, the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks and trade.

Kissinger stopped in West Germany en route and briefed Chancellor Willy Brandt. He also extended Nixon's condolences for the Arab attack last week on the Israeli Olympic team.

German sources said Brandt in turn briefed Kissinger on the talks between West and East Germany on normalizing relations.

Reds Issue New Peace Statement

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong issued a new peace statement today saying it is "prepared to accept a provisional government of national concord that shall be dominated by neither side."

U.S. sources in Saigon interpreted this as a concession that neither side can win the war militarily. But Viet Cong and North Vietnamese spokesmen have said repeatedly in the past—for public consumption, at least—that the coalition government they proposed would be a coalition of equals, with none of the factions dominating.

The Viet Cong termed the three-page declaration "an important statement on ending the war in Vietnam and restoring peace." But at first reading it appeared to be no more than a reiteration of previous Communist peace demands.

Once again it called on the United States to withdraw all its troops from Vietnam, to stop supporting the regime of President Nguyen Van Thieu, and to halt the bombing and mining of North Vietnam.

The Viet Cong also repeated its previous formula for the makeup of the government of national concord—a three-segment coalition composed of (1) members of the Provisional Revolutionary Government, (2) members of the Saigon administration excluding Thieu, and (3) representatives of other political forces in South Vietnam "including those who, for political reasons, have been compelled to live in exile."

These three segments of this government are on the same footing and equal," the statement said.

South Vietnam Suffers Heaviest Aircraft Loss

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. jets made some of the most devastating raids on the war against Hanoi and its suburbs Sunday, wrecking North Vietnam's biggest and most important bridge and smashing four military installations covering more than 300 acres, the U.S. Air Force announced today.

But the Air Force's report of heavy damage in North Vietnam was offset by a revised field report that explosions Sunday at a bomb storage dump at Bien Hoa Air Base, 15 miles northeast of Saigon, destroyed or damaged 70 South Vietnamese helicopters.

It was the worst aircraft loss of the war for the South Vietnamese and will severely restrict their operations at a critical time, when renewed North Vietnamese offensive action is expected.

On the political front, the Viet Cong issued a new peace statement saying it would agree to a coalition government dominated by neither the Communists nor the Saigon regime provided the United States gets out of Vietnam completely and takes President Nguyen Van Thieu with it. U.S. analysts were studying the statement to determine if it contained anything new.

A spokesman for the 7th Air Force said the U.S. air attack on the Paul Doumer Bridge at Hanoi, the biggest in North Vietnam, was "the most damage we've ever done to it in the war." The bridge across the Red River was repeatedly attacked in the 1965-68 bombing campaign and again last May 10-11, but it was repaired each time.

The four military installations were attacked for the first time in the war. They included anti-aircraft assembly and repair plants, storage and distribution depots for war materials, and barracks.

The U.S. Command announced the loss of one plane Sunday, a Navy A7 jet shot down by an anti-aircraft missile 14 miles southwest of Hanoi. It said the pilot is missing.

Hanoi claimed three U.S. planes were shot down Sunday.

The Saigon command announced earlier that the explosions at Bien Hoa were caused by enemy rockets, but today it said the cause was not known and was being investigated. Other sources said they believed saboteurs did the job, while others said it might have been an accident.

About 150 500-pound bombs went off and ripped through two hangars at the big U.S. South Vietnamese air base. Revised reports said two South Vietnamese were killed, 21 Vietnamese were wounded and 40 Americans were wounded.

In the ground war, fighting at Quang Tri and at Tien Phuoc, in the northern provinces, remained in a stalemate and continued to exact heavy casualties on both sides.

Grand Jury Action On Drugs Begins

By RAY BAXTER

A 31st District Court grand jury was convened this morning to begin hearings in the cases of 13 suspects taken Friday night and Saturday in a drug abuse crackdown by city and county officials.

District Attorney Guy Hardin said the quick action in securing indictments was taken for two reasons: to try to seriously injure any drug abuse in the county and because undercover personnel involved in the three months of investigation were needed in other areas where similar force will be exerted against narcotic traffic.

The district attorney told the News he had received a number of calls from attorneys representing clients who thought their names might be on the remaining warrants. Twenty warrants had been mentioned and only 13 suspects named.

Hardin said he felt grand jury action would take the better part of two days in spite of any marathon session that might develop.

Meanwhile, around the hard core of fact concerning the action over the weekend a number of rumors, and even rumored threats, have been circulated. Run to earth, these have all proved unfounded.

One had it that a former employee of The News was involved in the undercover work. This was scoffed by law officers and the district attorney while the electronic medium credited with story said it did not air such information.

Certain teenagers were telling their friends they were "busted" in the Friday night police action which was not true. Officers said they were trying to fulfill their desire for importance and noted that this alignment of young people, in their thinking, with those on the opposite side of the law graphically illustrates a part of the enforcement problem.

Three Americans Seen Serving With Vietcong

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — Three Americans have been seen serving with the Viet Cong for at least two years, military sources report. U.S. military intelligence knows them as Pork Chop, Salt and Pepper.

The men are believed to be deserters but could be prisoners of war who defected, the sources say.

Although seen from a distance by Americans and several times close at hand by Vietnamese villagers, they have eluded capture and have not been identified.

Salt and Pepper work together in Quang Ngai Province 70 to 90 miles south of Da Nang. Salt is white. Pepper black.

Pork Chop, a blond 6-footer, works a little farther south in Binh Dinh Province. He is said to have had burn scars on his face and wears bushy sideburns to obscure them.

They are members of small Viet Cong units, and as far as we can tell they enjoy no special privileges," one intelligence source said. "We are certain they do not command their units."

Investigators say Pork Chop appears the most active and daring of the three. Several times he has flagged down South Vietnamese military vehicles and hijacked them at gunpoint.

He also is credited with having made off with two American armored personnel carriers from a vehicle park, hitching one to the other.

All three of the men are reported to have spent "leaves" in Da Nang, hitching rides into the city virtually under the noses of U.S. and South Vietnamese military police. Two of them were said to have been spotted riding a motorbike in the city last Christmas.

Villagers say the Viet Cong display the Americans in remote villages and tell the people: "Look at these American comrades. We offer them only a life of hardship and struggle and yet they choose to fight at our side."

Ten Boeings To Be Sold To China

SEATTLE (AP) — The Boeing Co. has announced the signing of an agreement to sell 10 jetliners to mainland China, the largest sale of heavy equipment to the Chinese since trade barriers fell earlier this year.

The giant aerospace firm said the agreement for sale of the Boeing 707s, worth about $150 million, was signed in Peking Sunday after nearly five months of negotiations with Chinese officials.

A Boeing spokesman said details were being withheld pending the arrival in Washington Tuesday of Byron H. Miller, Boeing's international sales director and head of the team that negotiated the contract.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said he could not confirm or deny whether the deal had been made. But he added that, if it had, "it would not be unexpected."

Boeing's spokesman said the long-range, intercontinental jetliner, with a passenger capacity of about 180, sells for nearly $10 million. But, he said, with spare parts, training and other equipment, the Chinese sale probably would total $150 million.

An export license with a limit of $150 million was granted Boeing by the Commerce Department last July 5.

The largest previous single sale to China was $2.5 million worth of RCA communications equipment for a television station in Shanghai.

U.S. officials estimate Chinese sales to the United States this year will be between $40 million and $50 million.

U.S.-China trade last year amounted to about $5 billion.

V.I. Gunmen Still At Large

CHRISTIANSTED, St. Croix, V.I. (AP) — Five men charged with murdering eight persons during a robbery at the Posh Fountain Valley Golf Course still are on the run as police keep a heavy guard on two others jailed in the killings.

Bench warrants for the five fugitives were issued late Sunday by Judge Warren H. Young of U.S. District Court, Atty. Gen. Ronald Tonkin said.

Biggest Defense Budget Since WWII Okayed By House Unit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The biggest defense bill since World War II was approved by the House Appropriations Committee today. $74.6 billion, including most of President Nixon's request for more Indochina war money.

The record bill was cut $4 billion from the President's requests, including a $450-million cut of his $2.8-billion funding request for increased U.S. war operations in Indochina.

The House is scheduled to vote on the bill Thursday.

The committee approved all $33.5 billion asked for more bombs and ammunition in the wake of Hanoi's invasion of South Vietnam and U.S. bombing and mining of North Vietnam—plus 139 jet fighters, 60 combat helicopters and other hardware.

But the committee rejected dozens of other planes and hundreds of tanks and trucks requested for the war, saying the military had not proved sufficient urgency.

The $2.8-billion request was to cover newly intensified U.S. war operations through Sept. 30. Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has told Congress the extra cost could go to $5 billion if U.S. operations continue at the present level through the end of the year.

In other major action on the bill, the committee:

—Scrubbed military plans to attract more volunteers by turning KP and other chores over to civilian employees. The committee rejected $125 million for the program and recommended it be phased out by next April 30 in all services.

—Granted President Nixon's request for full funding of the long-range missile-firing Trident submarine and advanced B1 bomber to keep U.S. nuclear-strike forces modernized while seeking further U.S.-Soviet arms limitation.

—Cut the Air Force request to buy 30 of its new swing-wing F15 jet fighters to 15 until questions about the weight and performance specifications of the engine are dispelled.

The committee attributed its $101-million cut from the $126.1-billion F15 request to caution, not lack of confidence in the plane.

—Rejected $190 million for three Boeing 747 jumbo jets to be turned into airborne command posts from which the president would operate in a nuclear war. The committee approved $33.2 million for one test jumbo jet, saying the present, smaller command-post jets are adequate until advanced communications are coordinated into the 747.

—Cut back the Navy's cost-overrun-plagued S3A enemy submarine-spotting plane to a contract minimum 23—and directed that not even that be spent until Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird reports continuation of the program is fully justified. The committee repeatedly in a 238-page report urged Congress' directives on spending money, and specifically wrote a ban into the bill against the Navy's spending Trident money on anything except Trident.

Firm Given Tentative Permission To Lay Water Pipeline In County

Members of the Gray County Commissioners Court hurried through the routine business of their usual first-of-the-month meeting, admittedly "saving their strength" for the open hearing on taxes tomorrow.

Tentative permission was granted the Kingsmill Community Water Supply Corp. to lay water pipelines in the rights-of-way of county roads. That non-profit corporation is seeking to supply residents of a came area with water after regulations halted the Cabot Corp. from selling water to these residents.

A part of the wording of the instrument of permission will be that the commissioner of that precinct be notified when work begins so he can ascertain that conditions are being met by the contractor.

The commissioners court then adjourned and convened as a board of equalization, a move demanded by law during the present taxing period. The one difference today was a recess in that capacity rather than an adjournment.

The panel will reconvene Tuesday at 9 a.m. in the county courtroom to consider any discussions of taxes that taxpayers on the local roads may have. After any open hearing a petitioner may want, the group will then repair the tax office, according to County Judge Don Cain, for a look at tax records involved.

"While the people have a right to speak their piece any person thinking angry argument tomorrow will automatically result in a readjustment of taxes will be disappointed," Judge Cain emphasized.

"There may be adjustments that are necessary," he noted. "But these will be made by a calm, rational and fair consideration of each individual case."

The judge noted that many property owners are still under the mistaken conviction that the county has doubled the value of their property. They have failed to grasp that only the taxable valuation has been doubled to bring equitable taxation to all entities within the county.

There will also be an evening meeting at 7:30 in the courtroom for those who cannot make a day hearing. Tax office personnel will be on hand at that time, too, to make any records available.

More Young Voters Support Nixon: Poll

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A survey of 221 young voters shows 61 per cent favoring President Nixon to 38 per cent for Sen. George McGovern, according to the latest Gallup Poll.

The poll — taken immediately after the Republican convention and released Sunday — showed markedly different results from a survey in early August that had McGovern leading Nixon among registered voters under 30 years old by 48 per cent to 41 per cent.

The McGovern campaign has counted heavily on picking up strong support among the under-30s, particularly the 18- to 21-year-olds voting for the first time.

McGovern promptly told a crowd in Espanola, N.M., "I don't believe the poll."

The Gallup organization noted that the sample of 221 persons was about one-sixth the size of the customary national sample.

The 221 were part of a group of 1,203 registered voters of all ages who were asked: "If the presidential election were being held today, which candidate would you vote for — Nixon the Republican or McGovern the Democrat?"

The survey found some respondents still undecided but registered other new gains for the incumbent.

Manual workers favored Nixon over McGovern 64 per cent to 28 per cent. In the previous Gallup Poll, Nixon led 49 to 35.

Nixon leads 62 to 29 per cent among Catholics, according to the latest poll. Previously he led 48 to 42.

Labor union members chose Nixon 61 to 30, compared with a 48 to 42 per cent edge in the previous poll.

American Veto Kills Mideast Resolution

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States cast its second veto in the history of the U.N. Security Council Sunday night. It killed a resolution demanding a halt to Israeli reprisal raids but making no mention of the Arab terrorism that provoked the raids.

The veto came after an all-day debate on the Palestinian guerrilla massacre of Israeli Olympic athletes in Munich Tuesday and Israeli air strikes Friday at reputed guerrilla positions in Syria and Lebanon.

China and the Soviet Union earlier had vetoed amendments that would have applied the resolution to terrorist activities as well as military operations.

U.S. Ambassador George Bush said their vetoes killed "a very important passage that could have made the resolution more acceptable."

Explaining his own veto, he said the resolution ignored realities and "looked to effect but not to cause." Its "silence on the disaster in Munich" invited more terrorism, he said.

"We seek and support a world in which athletes need not fear assassins and passengers on planes need not fear hijacking," Bush declared.

Bush got applause from the gallery for his veto. And Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah, absent because of the Jewish New Year, told newsmen by telephone that the U.S. vote would be "applauded by the people of Israel."

Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik spoke of "the distressing events which occurred in Munich" but said to put them on the same footing as the new Israeli raids would be "condoning the aggressive policy of the Israeli mania."

Chinese Ambassador Huang Hua, presiding over the council for the first time since Peking entered the world organization late last year, also referred to "the unfortunate incident" in Munich but then said that the Palestinians and other Arabs had been "compelled to take up arms...to recover their homelands" from Israel.

Ambassadors Haissam Kelani of Syria and Edouard Ghorra of Lebanon, who had asked for the meeting, registered dissatisfaction. Ghorra said he was "deeply disappointed" by the U.S. veto and could not let the matter rest. But both he and Kelani called the resolution that failed too weak.

The resolution, sponsored by Somalia, Guinea and Yugoslavia, noted "the deteriorating situation in the Middle East" and called on "the parties concerned to cease immediately all military operations and exercise the greatest restraint."

C-C Sends Out Ballots To Pick 7 Directors

Ballots containing the names of 14 nominees for directors of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce will be mailed to members tomorrow, according to Roy Sparkman, chamber president.

Seven directors will be elected to serve during the 1972-73 fiscal year.

The names on the ballot will include W.C. Bass, A.W. Bassett, Milo Carlson, Doug Coon, Henry Gruben, Robert E. Imel, Homer D. Johnson, Melvin Kunkel, David McDaniel, James McCoy, Don Nelson, Jewett Scarbrough, Gary Stevens and Richard Stowers.

Chamber members are asked to vote for only seven. Ballots will be counted in the chamber office at 10 a.m. Wednesday, Sept. 20.

E.O. Wedgeworth, chamber manager, said today the annual election of chamber officers will follow the directors election later this month.

The 14 names on the ballot were submitted by the nominating committee consisting of past presidents Don R. Lane, E.E. Shelhamer and Fred Thompson.

Terms of those elected will run for three years each.

Rest Of 20th Century To Get Colder: Expert

NORWICH, England (AP)—A new Ice Age is creeping over the Northern Hemisphere, and the rest of this century will grow colder and colder, a British expert on climate has claimed.

Prof. Hubert Lamb, director of climate research at the University of East Anglia, had a few comforting thoughts in an interview Sunday.

The full impact of the new Ice Age will not be upon us for another 10,000 years and even then it will not be as severe as the last great glacial period.

"We are past the best of the interglacial period which happened between 7,000 and 3,000 years ago," he continued. "Ever since then we have been on a downhill float regarding temperature. There may be a few upward fluctuations from time to time but these are more than offset by the general downward trend."

Lamb said temperatures had been slowly dipping for the past 20 years.

"We are on a definite downhill course for the next two centuries," he declared. "The last 20 years of this century will be progressively colder. After that the climate may warm up again but only for a short period of decades."

Lamb said climate changes come in cycles determined by astronomical and physical factors. He said one main cause is the amount of radiation received from the sun.

"We know that the behavior of the sun changes at intervals and these changes have their effect," he said. "The distance between the earth and the sun also varies through the ages as the earth's orbit increases or decreases its elliptical path. The tilting of the earth as it rotates round its own axis also makes the polar ice cap grow, and this affects the air masses round it."

The last great ice age took place about 60,000 years ago and was the sixth over a period of about a million years.

Trio Arrested After Brawl

Police broke up a fight in the 500 block of Tignor early Sunday morning and arrested three persons for drunkenness, two of them facing possible charges of assault.

When officers arrived on the scene, one man had just kicked another down and was knocking him in the face while their wives were down in the street fighting.

The couple that had been beaten were allowed to seek medical aid. The others were taken to jail.

Lake Water Rising Because Of Heavy Rain
Heavy rains over the weekend in the Conchas Dam, N.M., area and parts of the Panhandle have caused Lake Meredith to reach a depth of over 100 feet for the first time.

Sunday afternoon the markers showed a depth of 100.01 feet, a new record level. The lake was still rising Sunday night about .02 feet an hour.

Parts of the shoreline were changed as the water reached upwards and several islands were completely covered by the water. Warnings were issued to boaters to be careful of the submerged land.

Many campers were moved back from the lake and the boat marinas were altered to meet the rising water.

Preparations began early last week to meet the expected rise in water level from various rains in the Panhandle area and in New Mexico, which began about two weeks ago.

A total rainfall of three inches was reported in the Conchas Dam area over the weekend.

TEXAS, JAPAN Hold Trade Conference
TOKYO (AP)—The second Japan-Texas Conference began a two-day session in Tokyo today to discuss ways to expand Japanese investments in Texas and boost trade between Japan and the southern United States.

The 31-member U.S. delegation to the conference is led by John Lawrence, chairman of the Texas-Japan Association and board chairman of Dresser Industries. Masashi Isano, board chairman of Kawasaki Heavy Industries, Ltd., heads the 37-member Japanese team.

U.S. officials said Texas is interested in increasing exports of agricultural products to Japan, particularly grapefruit.

They said Texas also would like to supply oil field equipment, agricultural machinery and other industrial products to Japan. Texas will welcome Japanese investments to help develop industries in Texas, the officials said.

Japanese officials said the Japanese and U.S. businessmen will discuss a "wide range of subjects." These will include Japan's policy for foreign investments and the promotion of U.S.-Japanese relationship.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Indiana Atty. Gen. Theodore L. Sendak has called for a federal grand jury investigation to determine whether organized crime has an interest in large rock music festivals.

Sendak said large rock gatherings give the criminal drug pusher a "supermarket operation set up for his benefit and the longer the orgy lasts the more he sells."

The father of a 12 year old Pampa boy brought a cellophane bag the lad had found to the police station. He suspected the substance in the bag was marijuana and authorities agreed.

The man said the boy found the bag in the alley of the 800 block between Finch and N. Somerville streets.

The bag was tagged for investigation.

McGovern Aide Acknowledges Tension Within Organization

WASHINGTON (AP)—When political campaign organizations are functioning smoothly, they don't show. And Sen. George McGovern's has been showing.

That is why the McGovern headquarters is drawing so much attention, despite the insistence of the Democratic presidential nominee and his lieutenants that matters of staff and organization don't interest the voters.

His has been a troubled command post since shortly after he won the nomination.

McGovern himself once reprimanded his staff, and announced that he had done so, because an unidentified aide asserted that campaign Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien would be only a figurehead with no real responsibilities.

McGovern said organizational problems are of little interest to anyone but political writers. "For months they talked about how brilliant our organization was," he said. "Now they're saying how clumsy we are."

In the days of his uphill climb through the presidential primaries to the nomination, McGovern's organization did perform brilliantly. It also performed quietly.

That has not been the case of late. Disputes within the McGovern political shop have been breaking out in public.

O'Brien himself hinted he might quit as campaign chairman unless something was done to improve what he considered poor coordination, communication and control.

He has since pronounced himself satisfied with the organization and theme of the campaign.

But soon after that problem was resolved, Rep. Frank Thompson of New Jersey resigned as director of the campaign voter-registration drive after a dispute with campaign Manager Gary Hart over control and finances.

But a presidential campaign is part of the process that shapes not only elections, but administrations. The men around a candidate during his campaign are, presumably, men who would play key roles in his administration.

One top McGovern aide acknowledged there is tension within the organization, and sensitivity on the part of early McGovern men as Democratic politicians who earlier had sided with other candidates move into the campaign.

George McGovern, his presidential campaign about to get some fresh glamour in the form of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, said today that "Fifth Avenue farmers" are taking over American agriculture.

"Unless we act quickly,"

McGovern said, "the names on the mailboxes of rural America in 1980 will no longer be Smith and Jones. They will be Teneco and Ralston-Purina and Dow Chemical," firms heavily involved in agriculture.

The Democratic presidential candidate said in a speech for the annual Farmfest Day here that the Nixon administration "has thrown in the towel in the battle to save independent farming. They have nothing left for the small and medium-sized farmer except lip service."

Repeating his often-stated assertions that top policymakers in the Agriculture Department are partial to huge agribusiness concerns at the expense of small farmers, McGovern called for passage of legislation to "prohibit giant nonfarm corporations from engaging in farming, directly or indirectly."

Attorney quite pleased with the divorce rate

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Regarding marriages between Baptists and Catholics: I am a practicing attorney, and I handle many divorce cases.

For the past 10 years I have kept a record of the number of divorces between couples of mixed religions, and my records show that 6 out of 10 marriages between Baptists and Catholics end in divorce. I don't know the reason, but thought you'd be interested in the statistics.

Being a small-town lawyer, I would appreciate your keeping my identity confidential as I would not want to lose all the good divorce trade between Baptists and Catholics. Best wishes from,

A GALVESTON, TEX. ATTORNEY

DEAR ATTORNEY: Altho your mini survey on Baptist-Catholic divorces is hardly representative of the nation, if 4 out of 10 marriages make it in Galveston, you're doing better than the state of California, where I'm told they had more divorces last year than marriages!

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for stating that a return address on a sympathy card was indeed proper. It is also very helpful to the elderly who must acknowledge a stack of condolence messages, which is not an easy task with tear-filled eyes. How well I know.
IOWA GRANNY

DEAR ABBY: A female requested opinions from male readers regarding how they feel about women with false teeth. Abby, you gave her the most intelligent advice I ever read: "Keep your mouth shut."

But you failed to explain why. The reason being, "Many false words are spoken thru false teeth."

Sincerely,
A LUCKY DEAF MALE

DEAR LUCKY: And many true words are spoken thru false teeth. And many false words are spoken thru real teeth. So what have teeth to do with the veracity of one's words?

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion on the hassle some merchants give their customers about their personal checks.

My husband tells me that I feel offended by them because I grew up in a small mid-western town (10,000 population) where everyone knew everyone else.

I can understand why they ask for proper identification, and refuse checks on distant banks, but I become irate when a salesman starts to sweat and turn pale the minute I reach for my checkbook. You would think I had pulled a gun on him!

If a customer were to ask for a written guarantee that the $30 dress she bought would not fall apart in the washer, the store manager would probably throw her out. I say that the merchant is offering a service to the public when he opens his doors for business, and he should show the customer some respect at the check cashing counter.

You could hand most clerks a $20 bill with a picture of George Washington on it, and they would smile, accept it, and say, "Come back again." But when you try to pay with a perfectly good check, you are made to feel like a criminal. Why?
IRATE IN OXNARD

DEAR IRATE: If you had been stuck with as many bad checks as some merchants, you wouldn't ask why.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90009 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Polly's Pointers

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I have help for Denise who wants to clean her fake leopard fur sofa and chair. For either fur or a synthetic I suggest that she beat the fur rather vigorously with a smooth stick to bring the dust to the surface. (Polly's note—A rubber kitchen spatula would be good for this.) Moisten sufficient sawdust with a cleaning solvent (not gasoline) and thoroughly rub the surface with the vacuum. Beat a bit as you vacuum to remove any stubborn sawdust.—JESS, a retired furrier

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY—I would like to know how to restore ice-cube trays to their original condition. The ice does not come out easily any more. I have read how to re-treat these trays but do not remember what the procedure was.—LYNNE

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is with the manufacturers of sewing notions. Hooks and eyes come on cards with one third eyes, one third metal bar loop and just one third hooks. Since the hooks and eyes are interchangeable, to say nothing of many people preferring to make their own thread loops, their proportionate number of hooks is all wrong. I suggest they change to one-sixth loops, one-sixth eyes and two-thirds hooks.—M.H.

DEAR POLLY—To keep your napkin from slipping off your lap onto the floor while dining in a restaurant keep a large pin stuck in the lining of your purse. Use this pin to secure the napkin to your lap while eating. It is a simple and effective remedy for an embarrassment that can

Your Horoscope

TUESDAY, SEPT. 12

Your birthday today: Games, transactions have to be left out of relationships if they are to continue—live life honestly, as you really are. Today's natives are much interested in health, diets, natural laws and their subtle workings.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: The balance tips, questions find ready provisional or tentative answers and you can get your week's campaign under way.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Reconcile without recrimination, go on for long-term goals. Expect emotional involvement to distract you from studies.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Gemini is favored, particularly second opinions. Job-seeking, bids for promotion, and the like are open to development.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: If you can take the day off easily, do so. If you must work, hit the high spots and go on as quickly as you can.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: A gathering of the clan is in order, with endless discussions of progress. Excitement, cheerful news keep everybody stirring.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Project your most determined wish as if it were only a matter of a short time before all good things will come true.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Activity is up, likewise expenses, but well worth the increase in results. Secret competition is brought to light and reduced.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Get an early start, progress while the going is good, as people seem determined to get past recent hindrances and stalemates.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Now is the time to come to terms with long-range obligations; renounce if need be, redeem them altogether where you can.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Question everybody you can concerning the workings of the special enterprises you're studying. A new technology is likely.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Efficient management is today's goal. Adjustments needed may be slight, should be tried at minimum levels. Being precise is satisfying.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Intellectual interests offer broad new worlds to explore, little for immediate practical application. Get your work done.

Oswald: "Declarer started with a rush. He cashed dummy's ace and king of diamonds to discard a club loser. Then he played ace-king and six of spades."

Jim: "Looks like a pretty good start."

Oswald: "It was a pretty good start but it wasn't quite good enough. West ruffed with the eight of hearts and declarer had to use dummy's 10 to overruff."

"A trump from dummy produced the three from East, the jack from South and the ace from West. West cashed his ace of clubs and led a low diamond. East ruffed with the king and led his last spade, whereupon West set the hand by ruffing with his nine of trumps."

Jim: "A brilliant series of defensive plays. I can't really blame South for his line of play. East and West just came up with some real razzle-dazzle defense."

Responsibility Outweighs Risks

MD Coordinator Thanks Workers For Services

Mrs. Horace Henley, coordinator of the Pampa Muscular Dystrophy telethon, and treasurer of the Greater Plains MDA chapter, has issued a statement thanking those who donated time, talent, goods and services to make the telethon a success.

The telethon netted $3,573, which will go for research and patient services to Pampans and other communities in the Greater Plains chapter area.

Mrs. Henley thanked businesses and organizations assisting with the telethon, including Pampa Cable TV and its staff; Kimbell's Grocery; Hawkins-Eddins Appliance; Johnson Radio and TV; Armstrong Coffee Service of Skellytown, Texas; Furniture, Coney Island; Fern's Flowers; McConnell Equipment; Epsilon Sigma Alpha and VIA chapters.

Mrs. Henley reported about 50 people appeared in the talent show, with 25 teenagers manning the telephones. She thanked these and the "younger citizens" who handled the bucket brigade and the house-to-house campaign.

Arts Group Will Hold Annual Fair

The Pampa Fine Arts Association will hold its annual Arts and Crafts Fair Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 11 and 12. Mrs. Homer Johnson, president, has announced.

Site of the Fair will be the Heritage Room of the M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Individuals, groups, Scout troops and other organizations who plan to enter exhibits or crafts may contact Mrs. Johnson, or Mrs. Dewey Painter, chairman, or Mrs. Gordon Lyons, co-chairman.

A gourmet booth featuring unusual foods prepared by Association members or other interested persons is planned. Mrs. Harvey Lewis will be chairman, with Mrs. Delmar Watkins as co-chairman.

stead, there is just thick, swirling, greying hair, stylishly but conservatively cut.

And Ellsberg sits quietly insisting, in effect, that it is no big thing to make the classified Pentagon Papers public, to label all the American presidents from Truman through Nixon as "liars," to be compared to everybody from Benedict Arnold to Nathan Hale, inclusive.

"People like to make me out as some kind of nut or fanatic or a knocker who can't find anything right with America," Ellsberg says. "It makes it easier for them to dismiss what I say that way."

What he says is that U.S. involvement in the war in Vietnam is criminal and should be stopped, and he has been saying it with increasing frequency since last summer, when he admitted that it was he who had given to the New York Times the top secret Pentagon Papers, a government study of American participation in the war originally commissioned by Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara.

Until last year, Ellsberg had been just another bureaucrat, a Harvard graduate with a doctorate in economics, a former Marine officer, an enthusiastic supporter of the Vietnam war while working for the Defense and State Departments as a consultant during the build-up of the American presence from 1964 to 1968.

Since the Pentagon Papers controversy, he has become a celebrity of the antiwar movement, publicly accusing himself of being a war criminal because of his participation in the planning of the war, literally shouting "mea culpa" and figuratively wearing a hair sweatshirt that has "You're guilty, too" stenciled on the front.

He is being tried in Los Angeles on federal charges of espionage and theft of government property but that trial has been recessed at least until October, pending a U.S. Supreme Court decision on the legality of government wiretapping of one of Ellsberg's attorneys.

Meanwhile, the passion with which he has thrown himself into the peace crusade has aroused criticism of his motives.

Conservative commentator William F. Buckley Jr.—

whose magazine, National Review, chided Ellsberg for touring "the radical chic circuit"—accused Ellsberg of acting with "extraordinary abandon" and indulging himself in a holler-than-thou attitude when Ellsberg appeared on Buckley's "Firing Line" television program.

"I happen to believe," Buckley said, "that there is no warrant for us to proceed on the assumption that everybody who has been involved in government with the exception of you and your friends is ignoble and that you are noble."

Even the far more sympathetic Murray Kempton wrote, in reviewing Ellsberg's new book, "Papers on the War": "That we have overlooked Ellsberg, the analyst, may to a degree be a fault of Ellsberg, the wandering evangelist."

Ellsberg's book is in fact an impersonal study of the origins of the war that is only secondarily concerned with his own conversion, which dates back to 1969 (when he first began trying to publicize the Papers, which he had worked on, through Congress). Its main thesis is that the United States has not become involuntarily bogged down in the war—as the traditional "quagmire" analogy would have it. Rather, Ellsberg argues, each American president from Truman on has, because of short term political considerations, taken steps he knew would involve us more deeply in the war without accomplishing anything while he mouthed platitudes about making South Vietnam safe for democracy.

The first rule of presidential decision making since 1949, Ellsberg contends, has been: "Do not lose South Vietnam to Communist control—or appear likely to do so—before the next election."

His argument is documented and reasoned well enough to make it at least worth examining and it is no way pro-Viet Cong or North Vietnam. Yet Ellsberg has had to spend more time defending his personality and loyalty than he has his ideas, and he has had enough practice at it that he now defends with a counterattack.

"People sometimes ask me who elected me to make the Pentagon Papers public," he says. "Well, whoever said presidents could lie to the American people about murder being committed in Asia?"

"When I finally understood what was happening, I decided to use what I had learned in helping to fight the war to help get us out. I realized that there were risks involved—the prospect of having to go to jail and be separated from my wife is something I thought about for a long time—but I had been willing to take the risk of

Worry Clinic

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

Cathy had learned the primary secret for winning boy friends. Yet many of my brilliant, Phi Beta Kappa Northwestern University coed students still were ignorant of it. So I had to teach them the repartee strategy outlined below.

CASE U-585: Cathy H., aged 12, is a clever practical psychologist.

Her grandparents were recently visiting Cathy in Florida.

"Grandpa," she began, "I am the fastest runner in my room at school."

"For I can beat all the boys as well as the girls."

"But I found that the boys don't like me if I win."

"So now I stay ahead of them till we are halfway through the race."

"Then I slow down a little to let the boys pass me."

"And the boys now like me!"

FEMININE STRATEGY

Alas, many of my brilliant coed students at Northwestern University still hadn't learned that important rule of psychology which Cathy discovered in the 7th grade.

It is based on the universal law that everybody bears this invisible tattoo across the chest:

"I WANT TO FEEL IMPORTANT."

So it is very deflating to the male ego to be bested by any female, especially in athletics.

"But Dr. Crane," many jilted coeds would tearfully protest in my faculty office, "don't we girls also want to feel important?"

Yes, indeed! But the popular coeds have being killed for my country when I was in the Marines and when I went to Vietnam for the Defense Department. It didn't strike me as an extraordinary thing to take these risks now."

Medicare, health insurance for the aged, became official on July 1, 1966.

Wage Bills Held Up In Congress

WASHINGTON (AP)— Legislation that would increase the minimum wage for millions of U.S. workers is being held up in Congress by Republican efforts to force a vital change in House procedures.

The Republicans are blocking efforts to reach a compromise between House and Senate minimum wage bills by demanding a voice in selecting the Democratic House members who will take part in the compromise conference.

Q And A On Social Security

QUESTION: My mother is over 65 and she has the Medicare insurance. Due to her age, she can no longer live alone. Her doctor recommends that she be placed in a nursing home as the nursing home is best equipped to take care of her. If she does go to a nursing home, can Medicare help pay for her room and board?

ANSWER: If your mother needs custodial care in a nursing home, these services are not covered by Medicare.

Medicare could pay for some extended care services for your mother only if the following conditions were met: (1) Her medical needs require continuing skilled nursing care; (2) A doctor determines that she needs extended care and orders such care for her; (3) She has been in a hospital for at least 3 days in a row before her admission to the nursing home; (4) She is admitted within 14 days after she leaves the hospital; and (5) She is admitted for further treatment of a condition for which she was treated in the hospital. The extended care facility, of course, must be approved by Medicare.

Peking Seen Projecting An Image Of 'Two Chinas' On Mainland

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — You still hear the phrase "two Chinas" around here. But this year there's a difference—a big difference. In advance of the General Assembly's 27th session, the phrase is suggestive of remarkable changes that have taken place in Communist China's image and attitudes during its freshman year as a member of the United Nations.

It suggests that Peking has undergone something of a shock. The shock is one of discovery that China, despite its disclaimers, must act like a superpower, even to belying the image it seems to build of itself as member and friend of what it calls "the third world." A year ago the United States was insisting that both the Taiwan-based Nationalist Chinese and the Peking regime could be

U.N. members. A vote expelling Chiang Kai-shek abruptly disposed of that notion. Today, the "two Chinas" some delegates profess to see are in fact on the mainland. For example: One is a China whose propaganda sounds harsh and pugnacious; the other a China behind scenes, prudent and cautious, feeling its way. One is a China claiming to champion weak nations; the other a China often finding itself in opposition to those same nations. One is a China publicly scorning superpower rank; the other a China with no choice but to engage in superpower politics with Russia and the United States. One is a China with state pretensions to a world revolutionary view; the other a China with an old-fashioned balance of power psychology, acting within the confines of narrow national interests. One China seems to project an image of not giving offense to any nation except, perhaps, to the despised "deviationists" of the Moscow bloc; the other China's world position forces it on occasion to give offense. The 27th Assembly opens Sept. 18. Some here feel that

Chinese activities will reflect a China of Premier Chou En-lai as distinct from that of Mao Tse-tung and his cult of interminable revolution. In China these days, Chou's influence and authority seem decisive, now that Lin Biao, once Mao's No. 2, has been purged. Revolutionary violence has subsided, and under Chou the policy has a look of practicality, indicating a will to attend to China's many physical needs; thus the moderate posture here. Steering Chou's U.N. policy is 61-year-old Huang Hua, who has made a strongly favorable impression on many delegates. Colleagues find him tough but unquestionably able, courteous but capable of bruising language in debate, a cultured maff and a redoubtable diplomat. His staff, too, has made an impression.

Its hard-working members stay to themselves, but while they are unobtrusive "you know they're there," as one diplomat put it. For 20 years the United States labored to keep Red China out of the United Nations. All those years, at least on the record, the Russians labored to get Red China in. Now the Americans find it far easier to live with Peking in the U.N. than do the Russians.

On the first big issue to face the Chinese, they found themselves arrayed with the Americans in debate provoked by the India-Pakistan war and its consequences, and involved in a battle of words with the Russians.

Premier Chou has said many times that China would stand with "third world" nations against "aggression, subversion, control, interference and bullying by the big powers." China, he said, would never be a superpower.

Yet China is one of five permanent, privileged Security Council members. China is the most populous nation on earth, a nuclear power. Whether or not China calls herself superpower, she is involved in superpower politics.

The anomaly of Peking's position became abundantly clear when China, not yet a year in the world organization, cast her first veto to prevent Bangladesh from becoming a member. Bangladesh is one of that "third world" China professes to support and aspires to lead.

The membership application of the new nation, eighth most populous in the world, was supported last month by 86 countries including almost all the less-developed nations. But big power politics, not ideology, motivated China.

On the whole, many U.N. members seem relieved that China in her freshman year, though rough on the Russians, was much easier on the others than had been expected. Before Peking became a member, the Red Chinese had called the United Nations simply an arena for Soviet-American plotting and collaboration and had been demanding radical restructuring.

There was no sign of a disruptive Chinese intention during the 26th Assembly session.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Monday, Sept. 11, the 255th day of 1972. There are 111 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1609, the English explorer, Henry Hudson, discovered the Island of Manhattan.

On this date: In 1777, the British defeated Colonial forces in the Revolutionary War Battle of Brandywine, near Wilmington, Del.

In 1814, U.S. ships defeated a British fleet in the Battle of Lake Champlain.

In 1914, during World War I, an Australian force captured German New Guinea.

In 1941, construction began on the Pentagon in Washington.

In 1945, former Japanese Premier Hideki Tojo tried to kill himself. He recovered and later was executed as a war criminal.

In 1963, segregation ended at the University of South Carolina as three Negroes were enrolled at the school in Columbia without incident.

Ten years ago: The Soviet Union warned that any U.S. attack on Cuba or upon Soviet ships bound for Cuba would mean war.

Basketball Team Outraged, Relay, Shorter Are Elated

MUNICH (AP) — "They've been trying to rook the Americans in the Olympics and they've finally done it!" United States basketball star Kevin Joyce fumed.

Whether the word "rooked" is exactly proper is up for grabs—about as much, it seems as the we-won, they-won basketball game against the Soviet Union which, as far as the United States is concerned, will somehow symbolize these 20th Summer Games.

Technically, although the Russians had already been awarded the gold medal, the outcome of the basketball game—which we won 50-49, then they won 51-50—was still in doubt this morning as the International Olympic Committee reviewed a U.S. protest, only hours before the closing ceremonies commenced.

The U.S. loss of the basketball game—the first in 64 contests since the American-born sport was introduced to the Olympics in the 1936 Berlin Games—was the ultimate blow to the U.S. spirit which had taken a roller coaster ride since these Games began here Aug. 26.

There were, of course, moments of incredible elation. The magnificent Mark Spitz with his seven gold medals led the way as America's aquaduct dominated the swimming.

And there was Sunday's final track-and-field competition, when Larry Black, Robert Taylor, Gerald Tinker, and Eddie Hart blazed America to victory in the 400-meter relays and when Frank Shorter, a Munich-born Yale graduate, became the first U.S. winner of the marathon in 64 years.

But as the thoughts of glory fade away, names like Rick DeMont, Vince Matthews and Wayne Collett will linger, along with other distasteful memories.

It was DeMont, a 16-year-old swimmer from San Rafael, Calif., who took a medication containing Ephedrine to combat his asthma—and was deprived of the gold medal he'd won in the 400-meter freestyle because U.S. team officials neglected to tell him to change medications since Ephedrine was banned by the IOC.

It was Matthews and Collett, gold and silver medalists in the 400-meter dash, who breached Olympic decorum on the victory stand, chatting and relaxing during the playing of the national anthem, an action which brought out the wrath of the IOC, which barred them from the rest of the Games—and thus kayoed America's entry in the 1,600-meter relays.

There were lesser controversies, too. Some, particularly U.S. boxing Coach Bobby Lewis, felt America's poor showing in the ring—just one gold and three bronzes—was the result of judges who voted not on what they saw but on how their politics ran.

And when Hart and Rey Robinson showed up too late for their qualifying heats in the 100-meter dash, some felt it was the result of incompetence on the part of U.S. track officials and schedule mishandling by Olympic organizers.

But it all ends up as one rather large moot point. What stands out, among other things, is that, after Sunday's competition, the medals race went to the Soviet Union, with a total of 99, including 50 golds. The United States came in second with 33 golds, 30 silvers and 30 bronzes for 93 medals. East Germany was next with 66 medals, 20 of them gold.

The basketball game had all the intrigue and confusion of a Russian-American spy encounter. The United States, trailing the entire game, seemed to have it won when Illinois State's Doug Collins sank two free throws with three seconds remaining.

Russia tossed the ball in, called time out with one second left, then tried a desperation shot that never came close. It was jubilation time for Coach Hank Iba and his kids.

Or was it? Some official—some say it was a referee, others claim it was Dr. R. William Jones, the British secretary-general of the International Amateur Basketball Federation—ruled that, because of the confusion, Russia still had three seconds left.

So the Russians tossed the ball in again, time a length-of-the-floor pass to Aleksander Belov, who nudged two Yanks under the Soviet basket and flipped the ball in at the horn for the deciding points. "We of the United States," said team manager Herb Mols as the protest was filed, "would like to commend the Russians for their play for 39 minutes and 57 seconds. We have never heard, however, of a game being played for 40 minutes and three seconds."

Joyce, a University of South Carolina senior, provided a glimpse of what was to come. "We voted quickly and unambiguously," he said right after the game, "not to take the silver medal since we legally and morally won the gold."

The Yanks stood by their own vote. They boycotted the medal ceremonies. And although the Russians got a few boos and derisive whistles along with their cheers, America was booed loud and long by the spectators when the silvers were "presented" to the vacant U.S. victory stand.

The American relay aces and Shorter took their medals gleefully. "We are the four fastest humans in the world!" exulted Taylor after he and his teammates had equalled the world and Olympic 400-meter relay record of 38.19 seconds.

Shorter couldn't have been happier about the end of the 26-mile, 385-yard marathon—not only because he'd won it but that it was, in fact, over.

The University of Florida law student covered the distance in 2 hours, 12 minutes, 19.7 seconds—then was "beaten" by a West German boy who fooled guards—and a lot of spectators—by trotting into the stadium and around the track.

Shorter made one unscheduled stop along the way, a brief detour at the first refreshment stop. Some Ethiopian grabbed my soda pop and I had to go for another," he explained.

Finland's Lasse Virin, who had won the 10,000 meters earlier, became a double-gold medalist by winning the 5,000 meters. And another Finn, Pekka Vasala, deprived Kip Keino of a repeat winner in the 1,500 meters, beating the Kenyan by a stride. Steve Prefontaine of Coos Bay, Ore., the leader with barely a lap to go, faded to fourth.

The lone boxing gold medalist was light-welterweight Ray

Seales, a 20-year-old Tacoma, Wash., southpaw who got plenty of encouragement from his mother, Belencita, en route to his split-decision victory against Bulgarian Anghel Anghelov.

"Hit him, hit him!" his mother shouted from her ringside seat in a voice that carried over the cheers of the spectators. "That's it... do it again!"

Seales jabbed well in the first two rounds and decked Anghelov with a speedy combination 30 seconds from the end of the second, then the Bulgarian retaliated—but not quite enough—with strong in-fighting in the third round. Seales got the votes of British, Panamanian and Korean judges while judges from Poland and Cuba gave the nod to Anghelov.

The three bronzes went to Indianapolis middleweight Marvin Johnson, New York bantamweight Ricardo Carreras and Houston welterweight Jesse Valdez, who had been eliminated in Friday's semifinals.

The last time archery was an Olympic sport was 1920.

OPEN TENNIS CHAMPION Ilie Nastase of Rumania shows the form with which he beat American Arthur Ashe, right, in the finals of the 1972 open singles competition yesterday. Nastase was seeded fourth in the tourney and Ashe was seeded sixth.

Calvin Hill Is Back, Staubach Is On His Way

DALLAS (AP) — Calvin Hill is back and Roger Staubach is on his way. That spells trouble for any Dallas Cowboy opponent who think the World Champions may have slipped a peg.

Hill, who sat on the bench for two weeks while a broken vessel in his elbow healed, knocked Oakland Raiders aside like corn stalks Saturday night as the Cowboys concluded the exhibition season with a 16-10 victory.

The 6-foot-4, 225-pound Hill rumbled for 108 yards on 20 carries against the Raiders. "I wish I could have saved some for next week," smiled Hill. "I was the leading ground gainer in pre-season last year, but nobody knows about it."

The Cowboys open with Philadelphia this week and you can bet the Eagle scouts got a good eye full.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said "Calvin looked good and you have to consider that this is his first real game of the year."

Hill has shared duty with Mike Montgomery, obtained in a trade with San Diego. The Cowboys got some good news in Staubach, who quarterbacked the club to the National Football League title in 1971 but suffered a shoulder separation Aug. 13.

A pin was removed from Staubach's shoulder and he can start throwing lightly in about 10 days.

The Cowboy pass offense has been spotty under Craig Morton, who took over the No. 1 job. Dallas finished the pre-season with a 6-1 mark while Oakland slipped to 4-2 record.

The Cowboy defense was at its best in smothering Oakland quarterbacks Ken Stabler and Daryl Lamonica. Veteran George Blanda did not play.

"We're definitely ready defensively to go into the season," Landry said. "We're playing pretty good football. Offensively, the running game is coming back. We've got some work to do on the passing game."

UCLA, USC Threaten To Become The Big 2

By Associated Press
Has the Pacific-8 Conference earned the right to call itself The Big Eight?

At the very least, the Pac-8 can claim college football's big two following a dramatic opening weekend which saw unheralded UCLA upset top-ranked Nebraska's two-time national champions 20-17 and eighth-ranked Southern California demolish fourth-ranked Arkansas 31-10.

The Big Eight made a big show last season when Nebraska, Oklahoma and Colorado rolled to an unprecedented 1-2-3 sweep in the final Associated Press rankings—including bumper stickers reading "1 plus 2 plus 3 equals Big Eight"—but there's little doubt the spotlight is on the West Coast for the time being.

Six other members of the pre-season Top Twenty—the others weren't scheduled—came through their openers unscathed, but some had to struggle. Second-ranked Colorado fought off stubborn California 20-10. No. 7 Alabama pulled away from Duke in the second half 35-12. Ninth-ranked Washington needed a late touchdown to nose out Pacific 13-6. No. 15 Tennessee blitzed Georgia Tech 34-3 and No. 19 Florida State used two long bombs to defeat Pitt 17-7.

"We're all sorry to have the streak broken," said Coach Bob Devaney, whose Nebraska team had won two consecutive national titles while winning 23 straight games and going unbeaten in 32, but UCLA played a fine game against us. We didn't play as well as UCLA, but we can't dwell on a loss."

Although the Bruins had leads of 10-0 and 17-0, they needed Mexican-born Efren Herrera's 30-yard field goal with 22 seconds left to produce the triumph.

Nebraska's offense, directed by sophomore quarterback David Humm, coughed up three fumbles and Humm had two passes intercepted. Southern Cal, bouncing back from a couple of off-years, thrashed highly touted Arkansas with Mike Rae completing 18 of 24 passes for 269 yards. Rod McNeill rushing for 117 and two touchdowns and super soph linebacker Richard Wood leading a defense that kept Arkansas passing whiz Joe Ferguson under control.

"If they don't go unbeaten, then something's wrong," said Ferguson Coach John McKay of Southern Cal just might agree with him.

"This team is not void of talent," he understated. "I think this team has more talent than the Pete Beathard-Willie Brown group back in the early '60s." Colorado's defense was guilty of sloppy tackling against California and let sophomore quarterback Steve Bartkowski complete 24 of 49 passes for 261 yards. But a Colorado rookie, linebacker Ed Shoen, came up with a big play in the third period, returning an intercepted pass 48 yards for the touch down that gave the Buffs a 17-3 lead.

Record-breaking runner Charlie Davis gained 151 yards and tallied Colorado's first TD on a one-yard run.

Curtain Falls On The Good Yesterday

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
CHICAGO (NEA)—It's the moving season, and moving can be a chore. For me, helping here to close a family home held more than half a century, it is not so much a labor as a painful leave-taking from an era of warm, bright living.

The era slips away as books acquired in the early 1900s are pulled from the shelves, as letters from 1890 are found in dresser drawers, as hundreds of photographs tumble out of envelopes, as I find the ticket stub from my first football game ages ago, and my father's grades on a scholarship test, and my mother's notes about the night we came to this house in October, 1919.

SEPTEMBER MORN

Capital Gains, Dirty?

Is capital gain dirty? Sen. George McGovern would have us believe that it is because the government doesn't take as many dollars away from the capital gain recipient as it does from the wage earner or the profit earner.

In fact, however, this is not true at all. It does make for good campaign oratory because it feeds the notion that the big businessman and industrialist is the enemy of the wage earner.

Let us try to understand what capital gain really is and how and why the so-called tax break was established. The operation of a free economy is based upon the willingness of those with cash or other assets to invest in new business ventures.

When new businesses are started and successfully operated, new jobs are created and new products or services are made available. This is good for the economy of the nation because jobs which didn't exist before are available to those without jobs or for those who might be able to get a better one.

Investors who made the new enterprise possible might at a future date wish to sell out. If they made original investment of $1,000 and sell after six months for $2,000, they have a capital gain of $1,000, and half of this is taxed as if it were ordinary income the other half is not taxed. It is as simple as that in theory, and the reason the program was established by the politicians controlling the taxing apparatus was to encourage investment in new business ventures.

Many Gray County people have capital gains and capital losses every year. All are not "big bad" business tycoons or corporations. Most are ordinary wage earners who have managed to put money aside from time to time and have invested in new business ventures. They are encouraged to so gamble on the "future" because if they experience a capital gain they will be permitted to keep half of it without being taxed.

If Sen. McGovern's program destroys the incentive to invest in further expansion of the business and industry community there will be fewer jobs and less new income for the governments to tax.

So McGovern's promise of new billions in taxes from those who are "escaping" through the loopholes will not necessarily materialize. It seems more likely that fewer investors will be willing to take the risks always faced in such cases.

A point to understand in the system as it now stands is that the investment in capital which creates new businesses and new jobs actually provides more taxable income than the government would realize if the capital realized from previous investment were taxed like regular income.

When the millions of individual American investors realize what the McGovern plan would do, we suspect a reassessment will be quickly forthcoming.

To suggest that McGovern will change his stance on this proposal is simply a result of observing the quick-change artistry of the politician.

The Wall Street Journal reported that reaction of investors has been mild because no one expects McGovern's program to be implemented anyway.

In editorial comment, the Journal reported that as recently as last May, a McGovern campaign promise was made that "no drastic change could be made in the taxation of capital gains."

But where the New Tax philosophy really faces an obstacle is the suggestion that municipal bonds no longer be tax-free. That's the most commendable suggestion the desperate senator has come up with because it will make those bonds undesirable, and just wait 'til the local politicians realize the consequences of that bombshell.

We are tearing all these things from their accustomed places, and packing up, because my mother died a little while ago. She was 89 and had outlived my father by 21 years.

As we thrust the past into paperboard boxes, as we plant shipping labels on sofas and chairs and tables we know as we do our own faces, what are we leaving?

First, a huge brick house with a red-tiled roof, a handsome bay window, broad, high-ceilinged rooms, a spacious yard more richly green by far than when we came 53 years ago.

It is truly a family fortress, a great rock unscarred by the battering tides of recent times. It is the visible proof that we had a stable setting in which to grow and get ready for the world.

I look at a corner of the oak-paneled dining room and remember that for 52 unbroken years enormous Christmas trees stood there, loaded down with hundreds and hundreds of ornaments.

The tree, lasting sometimes for six weeks, was the centerpiece in a long ceremony which was, for us, an annual celebration of life. Relatives, neighbors and friends trooped in to gaze at it.

In this large family who returned year after year to sustain this ceremony with our fullest energies could be charged, I suppose, with trying to reclaim the past, with taking refuge in the old citadel safe from the chaos of this age.

True, perhaps, in a measure. But here the past was also the present. We never allowed the skin to be broken. We came not because it was safe but because life here was still warm and good.

Looking at the long dining room table, I can call up memories easily, of my father, hard-charging lawyer, teasing my sisters, of my sensitive mother trying to balance half a dozen diets and keep a show of order amid the banter and laughter.

Not just at Christmas but at birthdays and other special times, that table was a festive thing to see—brightened by flowers, well-appointed with distinctive coffee urns and other table pieces, laden with food.

What went on here at such times was not lavish. It was just great good fun, which few who came ever forgot.

I'm sitting now in my father's upstairs study, where built-in shelves once held hundreds of law books. On the floor, ready to be moved, are many piles of old 78 RPM phonograph records—reminders of the nearly continuous jazz festivals that enlivened the place in earlier times.

This house was not just the family rock; it was for long years a gathering place for young and old, attracted by its warmth, its gaiety, its curious, free-style originality. It was a center for songfest and talkfest, a place where living never was dull.

This stage, where our lives unfolded in cheerful competition and zestful celebration, will soon be dark. Its era is really over now. The loss is not just ours, but the world's.

RAY CROMLEY How One City Cuts Youth Delinquency

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Something of a miracle has taken place in the city of Pacifica, Calif., these past two years.

Juvenile delinquency dropped 15 per cent in 1970 and 32 per cent more in 1971.

At the same time, delinquency was steadily increasing nationwide—in many localities at a rate of 5 to 10 per cent every 12 months, year after year.

The outlook was not always bright in Pacifica, population 37,000, located near San Francisco. In 1969, juvenile arrests rose 35 per cent in these statistics compiled by the California Youth Authority.

Now it might be argued that the 1970 and 1971 declines were merely a return to normal from the major bulge in 1969, when arrests jumped from 821 to 1,130. But this theory doesn't explain away the 1971 figure, down to 742 arrests, almost 10 per cent below 1968.

Your Health

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Pacemaker Keeps People Alive

Dear Dr. Lamb—What are the dangers of living without a pacemaker when you have a heart block? My father has had a pacemaker for two years and is wondering what would happen if he had it removed when the batteries wear out. In the past month it has changed position and is punching through the skin causing a large protrusion. His doctor said he'd never seen that happen before, but it is not dangerous.

Also, could he have his heart condition treated with vitamin E? My father takes an anticoagulant to keep his blood thin. Do you think vitamin E would help this?

Dear Reader—The kind of heart block you're talking about is associated with a very slow heart rate unless a heart pacemaker is used. The lower chambers normally beat very slowly unless they are stimulated by the upper chambers. Since the lower chambers are responsible for pumping the blood out through the body, when this happens the pulse is very slow. If it's too slow, there won't be enough blood to the brain, and this can cause fainting, convulsions or the heart can even go into a form of standstill or abnormal rhythm. This can be dangerous and can even cause death.

The purpose of the pacemaker is to provide a constant stimulus to the lower chambers of the heart so that the heart rate will be fast enough to pump enough blood for the whole body. Put simply, if the heart pacemaker stops working the heart will become very slow again, which can cause any of the things I mentioned above, including convulsions and death.

Literally, that heart pacemaker is saving your father's life. Removing it would be the same thing as pulling the plug on life itself. There is no way that vitamin E will replace the function of his electrical pacemaker. It's the same thing as asking if vitamin E could replace a burnt-out fuse in an electric circuit.

Your father will probably do very well as long as his pacemaker functions. There are hundreds of people who use these and they have literally saved these individuals' lives. It is no secret, so I don't mind mentioning that Justice William O. Douglas of the United States Supreme Court has worn a pacemaker for a number of years. This has been mentioned repeatedly in the news and it serves to point out that individuals with the pacemaker can fill an important function and live a full life with the aid of such a device. Let me caution you again, though, under no circumstances encourage your father to think that he can get along without his pacemaker. This could be a life-and-death decision.

I have never killed a man, but I have read many obituaries with a lot of pleasure. — Clarence Darrow

On Ending the Draft

President Nixon now says he will discontinue the drafting of young men for military service when the present law expires.

This comes at an appropriate time—just before election, and no doubt will be greeted with cheers from the draft-age men and their families.

To his credit as a master of politics, Mr. Nixon managed the draft situation with his usual skill. During the time of the Vietnam war, the rejection of forced military service became widespread among America's young men. It was obvious that continued service of great numbers of men in Vietnam would lead to political chaos for office holders.

Former President Lyndon Johnson saw it coming and chose not to run again. The voters of the 1968 period blamed him for the Vietnam war. The war divided the country and divided even the political party responsible for the war.

So Mr. Johnson bowed out undefeated and Mr. Nixon promised to wind down the war.

He also wound down the draft, and established new procedures which eliminated much of the uncertainty which was so destructive to the peace of mind for young men who would never know when or if they might be called into military service.

The lottery system eliminated most of them a year ahead of the age of vulnerability. Then, too, during the first years of Nixon's term of office the draft call was trimmed from about 300,000 men annually to 50,000.

Thus, the military draft remained little more than a symbol of the number of young men called to service had become rather insignificant prior to the announcement that the draft would be ended next July.

This groundwork in advance testifies to the shrewdness of Mr. Nixon. Those who will claim the end of the draft was merely to woo votes will face the argument that the President had already moved in this direction long before the election year.

So, in fairness, Mr. Nixon cannot be faulted for his moves in eliminating forced military service—except and unless one considers the moral principle which the military conscription law violates.

Mr. Nixon did not elect to end the compulsory military service law because it violates individual freedom; he merely acknowledged that it is now feasible to maintain a military establishment without forced participation.

What magnificent blow for freedom he could have struck had he announced: "This nation was founded on the principles that its people have a right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and the military draft law violates all three. Therefore it is immoral, illegal and is hereby abolished."

But don't hold your breath waiting for some politician to say that.

Question Box

Question: What makes you think that private enterprise could handle public services more efficiently and for less cost to the citizens than, say, municipal government?

Answer: Because the customer in private enterprise is the boss and he need not buy any service he does not want. There is a guide as to what is wanted—what people are willing to pay for. Under municipal or state or federal government that is based on the government unit having the power to initiate force to make people pay for something they do not want, we do not give the consumer his right to say "no," his right to refuse to buy. This breeds inefficiency. Under private enterprise the man who is trying to render a service must always consider the customer. He must always try to keep his costs down and give as much for the money as possible in order to increase his sales, and thus increase his profit.

Under private enterprise, wages can be set more nearly in proportion to what a man produces. Under government business, wages are set by law—that is, by initiated force and not on a voluntary basis.

In short, private enterprise is more efficient because it is based on voluntary exchanges while government business is based on initiated force. That prime example of the enforcer, Napoleon Bonaparte, once said, "Do you know what amazes me more than anything else? The impotence of force to organize anything. There are only two powers in the world—the spirit and the sword. In the long run the sword will always be conquered by the spirit." To the degree that the spirit of freedom, with all people able to interact freely with each other, prevails, to that degree do people prosper and develop and gain understanding and knowledge and wisdom and goodwill.

Higher Criticism

Some clerics and laymen are given to "higher criticism"—that's modernist dialogue for agnosticism—saying that our Bible, like our Constitution and our moral values, are all out of date and unsuitable for our times.

The modernists rely not on the Bible or the eternal verities to get a "consensus" on such things as evolution to decide whether we are a monkey's brother or a brother's monkey.

Inside Washington McGovern's Strange Braintrust Not Even on His Side

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The pro-McGovern foreign policy braintrust unveiled Aug. 24 by Sen. George McGovern is studded with professors who not only disagree with McGovern's international policies and have no present intention of voting for him but were amazed to find themselves listed.

Statements by Prof. Abram Chayes of Harvard Law School, coordinating the McGovern braintrust, indicated the 100 foreign policy experts support McGovern and generally endorse his foreign policy.

Their commitments are ample testimony to the depth of support which Sen. McGovern commands within the foreign policy community," said Chayes's prepared statement.

He then told a press conference that "obviously they wouldn't have signed up" if they disagreed with McGovern.

A spot check of the panels tells a different story. Several members were sizzling that they were put in the apparent position of endorsing McGovern when, in fact, they are neutral or even hostile. Several gave no authorization for public use of their names.

underlined when McGovern's carefully orchestrated offer for Mills to become his Secretary of the Treasury nearly backfired.

Despite veiled hostility in pre-convention maneuverings, McGovern's advisers badly need Mills' immense respect within the business community. Consequently, one McGovern idea man concocted the dramatic scheme of having McGovern offer the Treasury post in his Aug. 29 Wall Street speech. He stressed that McGovern should warn Mills and get his approval so as to avoid a boomerang.

Thus, after visiting Lyndon Johnson Aug. 22, McGovern telephoned Searcy, Ark., to tell Mills about his speech. McGovern carefully mentioned the Treasury offer and thought Mills understood.

But once again, communications broke down: "I thought he was just joshing me," Mills later told a friend. More important, he regarded McGovern's call as personal and off-the-record. So, when contacted by the press after McGovern's speech, Mills said the Treasury offer was news to him.

Smelling a double-cross, McGovern's campaign staff went into orbit. After a frantic McGovern aide telephoned Searcy, Mills changed his public statement to say he did not recall talking to McGovern about the Treasury. But the initial damage was done.

A footnote: McGovern incorporated some of Mills' own suggestions in his speech. And Mills, in turn, generally approves—both economically and politically—McGovern's tax reform proposals.

The most prominent of these is Prof. Zbigniew Brzezinski of Columbia, a one-time Johnson administration policy planner named to McGovern's general advisory panel. He did agree to serve in order to give his views. But he supports neither McGovern nor President Nixon and disagrees with McGovern's neo-isolationist positions.

The Middle East panel is packed with academics who fundamentally disagree with McGovern and agreed to supply only their opinions—not their support—when recruited by Martin Peretz, the millionaire left-wing Harvard don.

Prof. Ben Halperin of Brandeis told us that, when asked by Peretz's assistant, "I explained to her that I'm not going to vote for McGovern and I'm not going to vote for Nixon, and if it was okay, I would serve on that basis."

Prof. Marie Syrkin of Brandeis told us she is "ambivalent" about McGovern with "certain misgivings" about his policies and does not now support him. She expressed "no opposition" when asked to serve but feels she should have been shown a copy of the press release.

Prof. Gil Carl Alroy of Hunter College told us he informed Peretz he would work with a panel if "it did not entail any support for McGovern," adding to us: "I don't particularly care for either McGovern or Nixon." A friend described him as upset.

A fourth member of the Mideast panel, Prof. Michael Curtis of Rutgers, was described by associates as not supporting either McGovern's candidacy or his Middle East policies.
