Reagan confident of victory in AWACS sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, confident that a suddenly shifting Senate will approve his AWACS sale to Saudi Arabia, stood at the crossroads today of a dramatic come-from-behind victory or defeat in his first major foreign policy battle in Congress.

Reagan still needed two or three votes before today's Senate showdown. But a leading opponent, Senate Democratic Whip Alan Cranston, who boasted of support to spare just a day before, said Tuesday: "The odds have shifted in favor of the White House. We may well lose."

At issue in what Reagan called a test of his command of American foreign policy was the biggest arms sale in U.S. history, an $8.5 billion package of five Airborne Warning and Control System planes plus 1.177 Sidewinder missiles and fuel pods and flying tankers to enhance the range and firepower of Saudi F-15 jets.

At stake, the president said, was Saudi cooperation in the Middle East peace process and his strategic defense plan for the oil-rich region.

A 50-50 tie was possible. That would be enough for Reagan since opponents needed a majority for a first-ever congressional veto of a U.S. arms sale. The House overwhelmingly rejected it earlier.

The president converted three opponents and six uncommitted senators in a flurry of lobbying Tuesday, whittling the lineup against him to 52-47 with only Louisiana Democrat Russell Long uncommitted, according to The Associated Press count.

Reagan, who cleared his calendar for one last push of presidential persuasion today, would only say "it looks good" on the eve of the vote.

His forces at the White House and on Capitol Hill were less restrained.

"It will pass by one vote, probably not more than that. That's the political reality," said a senior Republican senator close to the administration, who asked not to be identified. "We're planning a victory party."

Reagan waited until today to deliver a letter outlining terms of the sale, strongly opposed by the formidable Israeli lobby as a threat to the Jewish state.

Senate Republican leaders were confident that at least two opponents would switch to support Reagan.

They refused to name them, but speculation centered on Republicans Slade Gorton of Washington state and Mark Andrews of North Dakota.

Gorton, a prime target of administration lobbying, said he would answer no questions until he made a speech on the Senate floor today. Andrews refused to rule out voting for the sale and said "I'll take another look at it" today.

Their defection could leave Long with the decisive vote.

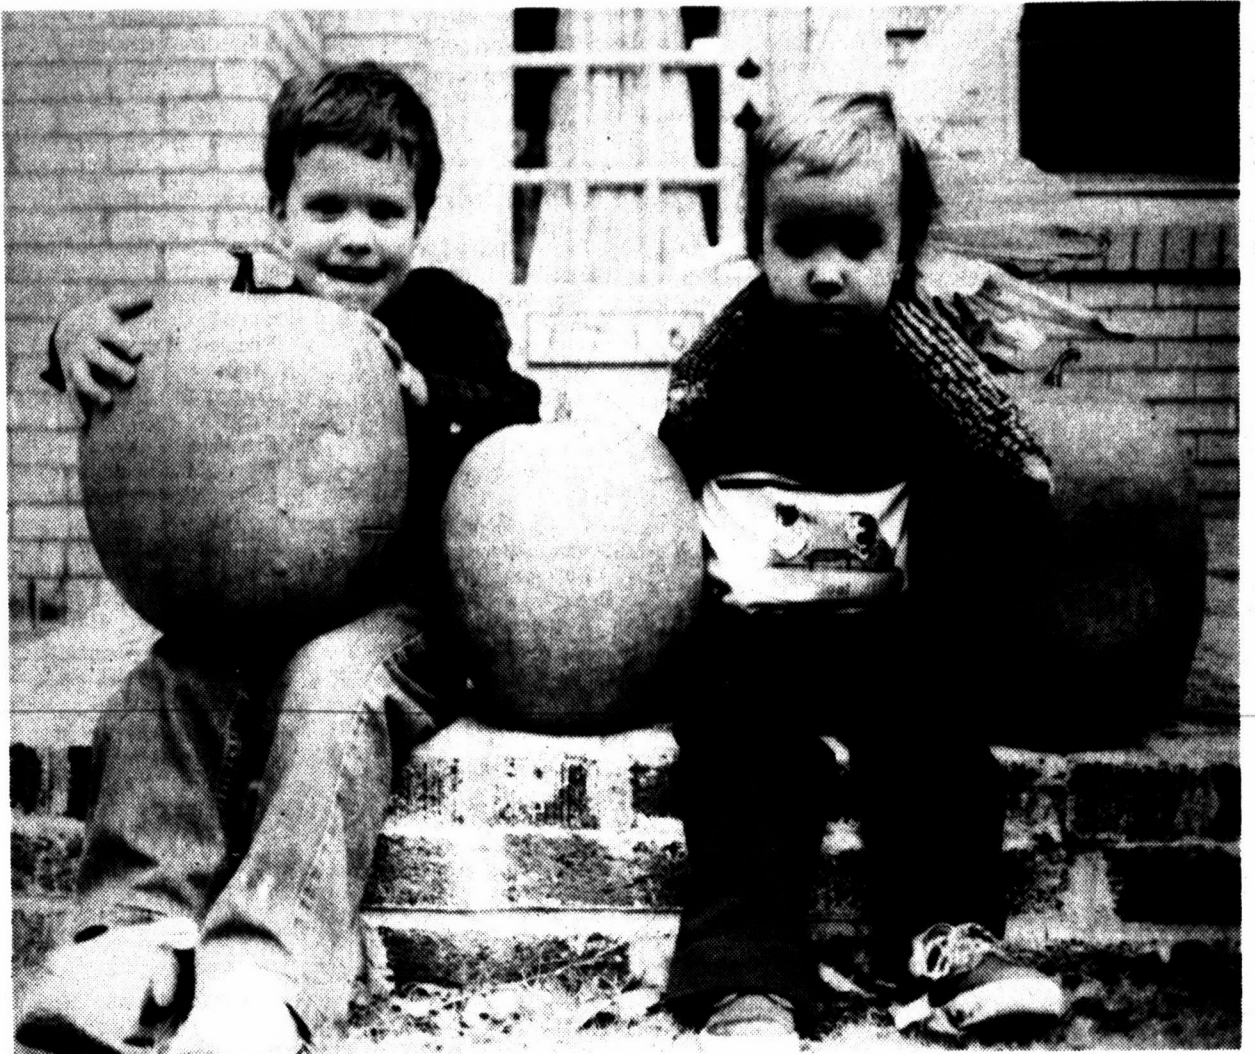

Most congressional sources have expected Long to vote for the sale, but he said Tuesday that he would wait until listening to today's debate before making a decision.

Switching in favor of the sale Tuesday were Sen. Roger W. Jepsen, R-Iowa, who had been a declared opponent, and Sens. Charles E. Grassley, R-Iowa, and J. James Exon, D-Neb., both of whom had been leaning against it.

Uncommitted senators who announced their support for the sale were John Melcher, D-Mont.; Bob Dole, R-Kan.; Harrison Schmitt, D-N.M.; Walter D. Huddleston, D-Ky.; David L. Boren, D-Okla.; and Frank H. Murkowski, R-Alaska.

At the White House, Reagan told reporters as he left for a political appearance in Richmond, Va., late Tuesday afternoon: "I think it looks good." He refused, however, to claim victory, saying only that he was "cautiously optimistic."

When a reporter said "you've won this one," Reagan replied: "I don't really know."

Accused kidnapper leads police to woman's body

LIVINGSTON, Ala. (AP) — Accused kidnapper Marion Albert Pruett has led searchers to the body of Peggy Lowe, a Jackson, Miss., savings and loan officer taken hostage in a robbery last month, authorities said today.

District Attorney Nathan Watkins of Livingston said Mrs. Lowe had been dead since Sept. 17, the day of the robbery at the Metrocenter branch of Unifirst Federal Savings and Loan in Jackson.

Watkins said Pruett led investigators to the body.

He said Mississippi law allows it to prosecute crimes committed in that state even if the crime culminates elsewhere and "that would not deprive them of jurisdiction and they can go for the capital case there."

He said a decision on prosecution would be made later.

Pruett, 32, of Gastonia, N.C., reportedly told federal officials in Amarillo, Texas, that he had dumped Mrs. Lowe's body along an interstate in Alabama.

FBI Agent Scott Hendricks, testified at a hearing that Pruett had hinted following his arrest that he had killed the woman.

But Pruett has not signed any statements or confessions in the Jackson robbery and abduction, officials say. He is wanted for violent crimes, including the murder of his wife, in seven other states.

Jackson Police Chief James Black said his detectives have questioned Pruett for several hours.

"We are talking with the guy, trying to determine where she is," Black said. "We have not confirmed" the location of the body.

Black said the questioning began Monday night shortly after U.S. marshals brought Pruett to Jackson from Texas, where he had been held since his arrest on Oct. 17.

Pruett told U.S. Magistrate John R. Countiss III during a brief hearing Tuesday that he wanted to represent himself in any legal proceedings on the federal robbery and kidnap charges.

When told that Countiss had appointed attorney R. Zeb Jones to represent him, Pruett told the magistrate: "I'm going to disappoint you. I'm going to represent myself."

However, he said he would need some legal help and access to a law library. He also said he wanted to talk to newsmen.

Jones met with Pruett for about three hours Tuesday.

"When we first met this morning, he didn't want a lawyer," Jones said. "He wanted an advisor. But his attitude changed a whole lot during the day. He kind of warmed up to me."

Jones described him as "very cordial, very friendly and very talkative."

Pruett avoided talking about sensitive things, Jones said.

"He talks about his travels around the country and being in the penitentiary, but not much about being in Jackson."

Jones said Pruett seemed competent to represent himself.

"He's very rational, has a good vocabulary and seems to be real intelligent. He's pretty learned with the law. He's been around and has picked up a lot. He's been sentenced in at least four federal courts and I don't know how many state courts. He's familiar with the rules of criminal procedure," Jones said.

Nevertheless, Jones said, "It's going to be a tough case, the way it's starting off."

It is starting amid rumors that he has confessed.

The Jackson Daily News quoted sources on Tuesday as saying that Pruett had said he shot Mrs. Lowe after she struggled with him and attempted to escape from his car.

Authorities had said last week that they were convinced Mrs. Lowe was killed shortly after the robbery. An intense search of the Jackson area last week failed to turn up any information concerning the whereabouts of the woman's body.

Assistant U.S. Attorney James Tucker said Pruett's case would be brought before a federal grand jury next week. Pruett is being held in the Jackson City Jail in lieu of $150,000 bond.

C.R. Daffern, who represented Pruett at the Amarillo extradition hearing, said Pruett had asked that his case be moved to the place of his arrest, Stratford, Texas, rather than be tried in Mississippi.

"For whatever reason, he has told me he fears for his life," Daffern said. "I don't know why he'd fear for his life more in Jackson than in Texas."

Pruett was paroled from prison in 1979 under the Federal Witness Protection Program after serving time for bank robbery and attempted escape in North Carolina.

Published reports have said he joined the program after testifying about the stabbing death of his cellmate in the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary.

Pruett was relocated to Albuquerque, where his identity was changed to Charles "Sonny" Pearson and where he was dropped from the program in 1980 because he had become self-sufficient, said William Dempsey of the U.S. Marshal's headquarters in Washington.

In June, Pruett was indicted for the March beating death of his wife, Michelle Lynn, whose charred body was found on a mesa north of Albuquerque.

Since then, Pruett has been charged with murder in Colorado, savings and loan robberies here, in Washington and in Pennsylvania and is wanted for questioning in Florida, Arkansas and Corpus Christi, Texas.

School okays tax rate, $8.7 million budget

BY DEBORAH BRIDGES

A property tax rate of 62 cents per $100 valuation and an $8.7 million 1981-1982 operating budget were unanimously approved by the board of trustees for the Pampa Independent School District in their meeting Tuesday evening.

Board member Darville Orr told the board that the budget committee had been meeting repeatedly since April. He said the 62-cent local maintenance tax would bring in $4.2 million in tax revenue, less than the total amount generated by taxes in 1981.

Orr said he was pleased with the budget since it has increased only 8.2 percent over the previous year and has managed to provide for "things of major concern." Orr listed a gifted and talented program for all grades, attention to teacher salaries, lowering the student-teacher ratio and providing additional reading and math supplies.

School board president Buddy Epperson commented, "We've trimmed and trimmed. This budget has only a 8.2 percent increase, which is considerably lower than the cost of living index."

The school board Tuesday agreed on a standard fire and extended coverage property insurance policy, with the addition of a multi-risk endorsement which will cost an extra $1,465.

Warren Fatheree of Fatheree Insurance Agency told board members that the additional coverage will insure the school district against vandalism, wind damage and other occurrences not included in the fire policy. The deductible would be $5,000 per occurrence, Fatheree said.

The property insurance premiums for the year will be about $46,000, a decrease from previous years, Fatheree said. He said that a 30 percent increase in replacement cost was added in the policy.

Dr. Robert Lyle recommended in a committee report, that this be the last year for the annual Pampa High School bonfire for safety reasons.

Lyle also suggested that architects immediately begin working on a high school baseball field to be built west of the football stadium, south of the band's practice field.

Trial set Nov. 20 in child assault case

Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy Tuesday set Nov. 20 as the date for the child assault trial of Jim Means, assistant pastor of the Pampa Baptist Temple here.

Means, who was not present Tuesday, is accused of allegedly spanking a 13-month-old baby, causing bruises on the child's buttocks, lower back and thighs, while the child was in the care of the Pampa Baptist Temple's Pampa Christian Academy.

Pampa attorney John Warner said in county court docket call Tuesday afternoon that he had been asked by Pastor Jerry West of the Pampa Baptist Temple to be Means's attorney. He said that attorney David Holt had at first been retained as the attorney, but later withdrew from the case at the request of church officials.

Warner said that a policy of his firm was that he would not officially take over the defense in the child assault case until he was notified of the payment of Holt's fees and that all legal matters concerning the change of attorney were completed.

Judge Kennedy set the jury trial for 9:30 a.m. Friday, Nov. 20. He said if the defendant decided against a jury trial at that time, the jury could be dismissed.

Warren said Means was "very interested" in a jury trial. On Oct. 16, a restraining order temporarily closing the Pampa Baptist Temple's Pampa Christian Academy was lifted in a hearing in 223rd District Court here.

Judge Don Cain dissolved the restraining order and refused to rule on a Department of Human Resources motion to close the academy for operating without a license.

Cain gave both parties until late December to file briefs in the case.

About 150 persons attended the hearing, which included testimony about the child assault allegations against Means.

Tuesday, Warner predicted much of the same testimony heard in the hearing last Friday would also be heard in the child assault trial.

Other board members, after some discussion, agreed with Lyle about discontinuing the bonfire after this year.

Wallace Birkes said, "From a safety standpoint, I think the bonfire should be stopped. But that might not be fair to the students at this late date after they've already started preparations for it. I have mixed emotions on this."

District Superintendent Bob Phillips commented, "Why don't we, as an alternate, say they can continue with this year's bonfire, with help from the Pampa Fire Department. But, with the understanding that they won't be able to do it again."

The bonfire has been scheduled for Nov. 12, the Thursday before the Pampa Harvester game with Amarillo High School there. School officials added students have been working on it for two weeks.

The contract of Pritchard and Abbott for appraisal of commercial property in the school district was approved for 1981-1982.

Dr. Lyle wondered aloud if the contract would not be an overlapping of services since the Gray County tax office also hired someone to appraise commercial property.

City-School Tax Assessor-Collector Charles Rand told Lyle that it does overlap, but the school district also has commercial property in Roberts County. He said by 1983 when the central appraisal district is formed, it will be decided who the one commercial appraiser will be, but until that time, the tax entities will have the property appraised as before.

Dog that bit student is sought

Peter Nelson, a freshman at Pampa High School, was bitten by a dog Monday during physical education class that was being held behind the athletic building.

Rose Nelson, Peter's mother, asks that anyone knowing the whereabouts of this dog to please contact her at Baker Elementary 669-2792 or 669-9234 after 4 p.m.

The dog is a light brown great dane whose ears have been cropped. He was described as being well taken care of and very friendly.

"I was playing with the dog, when somebody pushed me into him. I guess

Louis, Mo. and for the choir to go to Nashville, Tenn. were approved Tuesday by the board.

Also, bids for 10 pieces of band equipment were okayed. The bids totaled $8,056 and will be taken from the $12,000 account for band equipment.

Board members approved a resolution continuing the state grant for funds to conduct an on-campus suspension program for Pampa High School. Phillips told the board the program has been so successful that the school district would like to continue it, with or without the state funds.

In final action, the board in open session agreed to accept the resignation of Mrs. Ramona Williams, third grade teacher for Lamar Elementary. Also four new teachers were hired by the school board in open session. The teachers include Robin M. Clark, music - Lamar; Shirley C. Ellis, English - Pampa Middle School; Judith B. Harris, English - Pampa Middle School; and Rosey Harper, third grade - Lamar.

Appraisal board sets first meeting

The Gray County Tax Appraisal Board will conduct an organizational meeting at noon Friday in Carver Educational Center, 321 W. Albert.

The agenda for the newly formed board's meeting lists organization of the members, application for a vendor number and discussion of ways to obtain needed information.

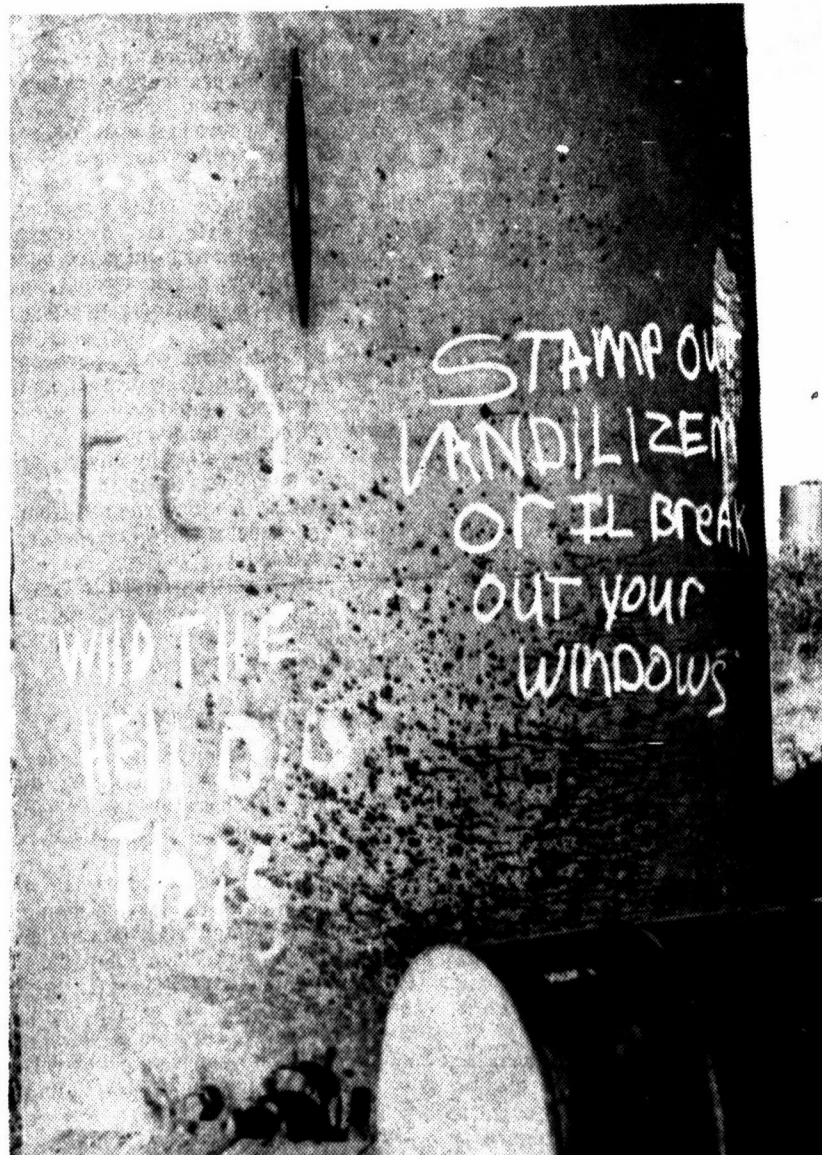

The board's members are William Gething, Lloyd Hunt, Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy, Dr. Robert Lyle and Jimmy Wilkerson.

it scared him, and he snapped at me, leaving just a puncture wound," Peter said.

Mrs. Nelson said that if the dog is not found, that Peter will have take a series of painful rabies shots.

If the dog's owner or someone recognizing the dog could get in touch with the Nelsons, these shots could be avoided.

"If the dog can be found with his rabies shots up to date or if they aren't the dog can be observed for a couple of weeks, then Peter won't have to undergo the painful shots," Mrs. Nelson said.

fire report

8:49 a.m. - A car fire in an unknown model Corvette at 201 E. Kingsmill was reported to the Pampa Fire Department. The auto is owned by Chris Chitwood and there was heavy damage reported to the engine of the car. The cause of the fire was attributed to a short in the wiring.

Polish workers defy authorities

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Millions of Polish workers defied Communist authorities with a one-hour, nationwide strike today and Solidarity union leader Lech Walesa said, "I want this to be the last strike of this kind." The protest, the first nationwide strike in seven months, ended at 1 p.m., and most workers returned to their jobs. But miners in southern Sosnowiec said they would remain on strike indefinitely after men in a car hurled four bottles of chemicals at a mine pit, hospitalizing 61 men, women and children with bleeding gums, vomiting, tearing eyes and giddiness, union officials said.

"We should find more effective protests which would help ourselves," Walesa said at a Warsaw light bulb factory where 4,500 joined others in the 9.5 million-member labor federation on strike. The party Central Committee was to meet later today. Party officials said it might shake up the party Politburo and the Cabinet in the aftermath of Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski's replacement of Stanislaw Kania as party chief two weeks ago. Walesa proposed that Solidarity change its tactics, launching "active strikes" that would involve workers taking control of distributing goods rather than halting work. Millions of workers donned red and white armbands and hoisted the Polish flag as they marched off the job. The strike today was the first nationwide work stoppage since a four-hour strike on March 27 to protest police brutality in the town of Bydgoszcz. Millions of workers participated in that action. Jozef Pawliczek of the Kasprzaka radio workers in Warsaw said he was "not sure if this action would change anything. But my mates are striking and so am I." The Communist Party mobilized a counter-propaganda campaign by the official unions controlled by it. The official news agency PAP distributed a statement from the hard-line Marxist-Leninist Forum in Walbrych, southwest Poland, which said: "Never have we been so close to shedding fraternal blood as today." The Soviet news agency Tass, in a Warsaw-dated commentary, accused counter-revolutionary forces of whipping up tension and said Solidarity leaders were resorting to "blackmail" by strikes. In Washington, the State Department announced a contract would be signed today to sell Poland $29 million in surplus dairy products for use in a pre-school program. The department said payment would be in Polish zlotys rather than in Poland's scant supply of dollars. It is the first American food shipment to Poland in the new fiscal year which began Oct. 1. The U.S. government supplied $741 million in food credit guarantees and assistance during the last fiscal year.

Senate urges Reagan drop plan for CIA domestic infiltration

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate Intelligence Committee is urging President Reagan to drop a plan to allow CIA infiltration of domestic groups and to make four or five other changes in proposed new rules for U.S. intelligence agencies. Committee Chairman Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., said the panel endorsed much of the draft presidential order Tuesday but called on Reagan to retain the Carter administration's rule that almost completely bars CIA penetration of U.S. groups. Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., said the committee agreed to recommend five or six changes in the Reagan draft, mostly to clarify sections "that, in lacking clarity, opened up the presumption of greater access to civil liberties violations by the CIA." He would not elaborate but added that the committee hoped to complete its review of the draft order this week. Meanwhile, a House Judiciary subcommittee on civil and constitutional rights planned the first public hearings on the Reagan draft order today. Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., the subcommittee chairman, said the hearing will focus on the draft's proposed elimination of rules on collecting intelligence information about U.S. citizens and on the dropping of standards guiding CIA domestic activities. Edwards said domestic intelligence should remain the responsibility of the FBI.

28 more Leftists executed in Iran

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Iran's Parliament met secretly today to debate President Ali Khamenei's choice for prime minister, and firing squads executed 28 leftist insurgents, the government said.

Party on Tuesday. Last week Parliament rejected Khamenei's first choice, U.S.-trained pediatrician Ali-Akbar Velayati. Prime Minister Ayatollah Mohammad Reza

Khani resigned after Khamenei was sworn in Oct. 13 as Iran's third elected president since the downfall of the monarchy in February 1979.

There was no clue as to how the Majlis, Iran's Parliament, would vote on the nomination of Foreign Minister Mir Hossein Musavi. The required vote of confidence is scheduled in an open session Thursday. Khamenei nominated the 39-year-old Musavi, a hardline fundamentalist from the ruling Islamic Republican

City police have arrested two Pampa residents on felony charges of attempted rape, burglary and theft in connection with two unrelated incidents.

The woman was bleeding from the mouth and nose when she was rescued by police, Ryzman said. Bond for Wilson was set at $10,000 by Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford.

Shots disturb quiet at Lefors

The stillness of a small town country night was broken by the crack of shots Saturday, waking Lefors residents from their sleep. Calls of "shots fired" came in to Pampa law enforcement agencies and Gray County Sheriff's deputies were sent to investigate. Deputies reported to Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan that apparently a Lefors resident, William Jay Schaffer Jr., 23, hearing something on the roof of the house, proceeded to get his shotgun, go outside, and shoot towards the roof, Jordan said. Schaffer first said he fired only one shot, but decided later he fired twice, the sheriff said. Schaffer was taken into custody and charged with disorderly conduct. Bond was set by Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge.

Manuel Cordenas Wilson, 40, of 508 S. Ballard has been charged with allegedly attempting to rape a 22-year-old woman held hostage in her home Saturday night. Chief of Police J. J. Ryzman said today.

The appliance store had also been burglarized on Oct. 14, police said. A satellite antenna amplifier had been taken in the earlier burglary. After an investigation by city police detectives, Sewell was arrested. All the stolen items, with a total value of from $5,500 to $6,000, were recovered, Ryzman said today.

With the court-imposed stay lifted, the Federal Aviation Administration is expected within days to submit an economic package to Congress giving the working air controllers an 11.4 percent increase in wages and benefits. The unionized working controllers no longer will have PATCO dues taken from their paychecks and will be free to hold elections on a new union.

Ronald Gene Sewell, 17, of 2204 N. Sumner, has been charged with the alleged theft of about $5,500 worth of satellite antenna equipment taken in two separate burglaries of Bowden's Appliance, 2121 N. Hobart, Ryzman said.

Both men were transferred to Gray County Jail.

She told a House Banking subcommittee on domestic monetary policy that without the additional cuts, "even with the optimistic (economic) scenario, you're talking in the range of $120 billion (for the federal deficit) by 1984."

Wilson was arrested by city police following a report that a woman was being held in her apartment against her will, Ryzman said today. He said the officers responding to the call could hear a woman calling for help from inside the residence.

Police officers rescued the woman, put her in a safe place, then went back and forcibly removed the man from inside the apartment, the police chief added.

Reagan had promised a balanced budget by 1984, but his top economic advisers, including budget director David A. Stockman, have conceded the goal may be slipping out of reach. Lyle Gramley, a member of the Federal Reserve's board of governors, told the Banking subcommittee that "to achieve a balanced budget by 1984, we will probably need reductions in outlays in fiscal 1984 of somewhere in the neighborhood of $100 billion."

Police officers rescued the woman, put her in a safe place, then went back and forcibly removed the man from inside the apartment, the police chief added.

He added, "If cuts of that magnitude are not feasible, or are deemed by Congress to be unwise, the only alternative is to restore some of the cuts in revenues."

Health career opportunities will be included in tonight's Pampa High School Education Fair, according to Norman Knox, administrator of Coronado Community Hospital.

The hospital, along with the Texas Hospital Association, will sponsor a display to show students the several levels of education necessary in various health career fields.

The program will be from 6 to 8 p.m. tonight at Pampa High School. Knox said Coronado Community Hospital, in conjunction with Frank Phillips Junior College, provides area students with an opportunity to continue their education, while remaining here in Pampa.

"We have a continuing program for Licensed Vocational Nurse classes conducted at the hospital throughout the year," Knox said. "The program is set up so that graduates of this program can continue with related nursing education programs in Amarillo, while remaining in the community, earning a regular income."

Nurses at CCH today were honored with a reception in the private dining room and presented with flowers in recognition of their service, Knox said.

Knox commended the nurses for their dedication to quality patient care. Charlotte Cooper, Director of Nurses, said recognition was given to all levels of nursing personnel, including Degreed Nurses, Registered Nurses, Licensed Vocational Nurses and Nurse Aides.

"Without dedicated, caring employees like these," Knox said, "it would be impossible to provide first class patient care."

PATCO is put out of business

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, which defied President Reagan by launching an illegal strike and then saw 11,500 of its members fired, is out of business as a labor union. The U.S. Court of Appeals on Tuesday refused to extend an order that temporarily had kept the union alive while its lawyers prepared to appeal a decertification decree in the federal courts. The Reagan administration has refused to negotiate with the union since the controllers went on strike Aug. 3 and has fired all PATCO members who ignored his ultimatum to return to work.

workers, stripped PATCO of its right to represent air traffic controllers on Friday. The authority said the union "willfully and intentionally" ignored the law by calling an illegal strike against the government. Within hours the three-judge appeals court temporarily blocked the FLRA's edict. But after hearing arguments from the FAA and the labor authority's lawyers, the three judges ruled Tuesday that PATCO "has not made the showing required" for the temporary stay to be continued. "That means that PATCO is no longer certified as the exclusive bargaining agent of the air traffic controllers," said Richard Leighton, the union's general counsel. The union, which once represented 15,000 air traffic controllers, may appeal the actual decertification order, and the appeals court told both sides to move "as expeditiously as possible" on resolving the merits of the case. The three-judge panel that decided not to continue the stay consisted of U.S. Circuit Judges Abner Mikva, Patricia McGowan Wald and Harry T. Edwards. With the court-imposed stay lifted, the Federal Aviation Administration is expected within days to submit an economic package to Congress giving the working air controllers an 11.4 percent increase in wages and benefits. The unionized working controllers no longer will have PATCO dues taken from their paychecks and will be free to hold elections on a new union.

Michel says tax-cut package review possible

WASHINGTON (AP) - New tax breaks for the oil industry and other features added to the tax cut enacted by Congress last summer may be open for review as legislators try to control the federal deficit. House Republican leader Robert H. Michel says.

"When we campaigned (last fall), we campaigned on (personal) rate reductions and accelerated depreciation," Michel said. But he noted that other parts of the $748.8 billion bill that Reagan signed - about $32 billion in tax breaks for the oil industry, estate tax reductions and added incentives for Individual Retirement Accounts - were not part of the president's original proposal to Congress.

He spoke as the chief congressional economist predicted that federal spending will continue outstripping revenues by a wide margin for the next three years, even if Congress grants the additional budget cuts President Reagan wants by 1984.

However, Republicans in the House, where Democrats hold the majority, have made no commitment to push for tax cut of any given size. Michel, though, indicated in an interview Tuesday that he believes higher taxes are necessary to help reduce budget deficits. He stressed that he adamantly opposes tampering with the three-step reduction in individual income tax rates and speeded-up tax writeoffs for businesses.

"Even if the president does get through the Congress the cuts he's asked for, deficits will remain in the range of $65 billion in 1982, falling to $50 billion by 1984," Alice Rivlin, director of the Congressional Budget Office, said Tuesday. She told a House Banking subcommittee on domestic monetary policy that without the additional cuts, "even with the optimistic (economic) scenario, you're talking in the range of $120 billion (for the federal deficit) by 1984."

UFOs over Galveston for second night

HOUSTON (AP) — An eerie white glow with red and green lights flickered over Galveston Island for the second straight night Tuesday, and residents who spotted it besieged local officials with phone calls. "Each one said the same thing," said Suzanne Northcutt, a dispatcher at the Galveston Police Department. "They keep describing red and green lights on this thing." Ms. Northcutt decided to take a look for herself, and she told a telephone interviewer that she saw it, too.

"But when I saw it, it was white, glowing like it was being the evening star." She said she and other dispatchers went out to look for the unidentified flying object after calls began pouring in about 7 p.m. She said the department had received about 25 calls about the phenomenon by 8:30 p.m. from "people all over the island."

Deborah Brigman, another dispatcher, said Tuesday's glow was not the same as Monday's because it stayed in one place off the coast of Galveston. Another dispatcher said a patrol officer tried to follow the Monday light but it moved west and finally disappeared in a hazy sky. A Coast Guard helicopter pilot said his curiosity tempted him to fly to the area where some viewers reported seeing the UFO Tuesday. But his counterparts aboard the UFO, if any, were shy.

"We didn't see anything unusual," said Lt. Dave Marks, who said he was aboard a helicopter training flight over the Gulf of Mexico off Galveston. "It might be some lights reflecting." Petty Officer Martin Taylor at the Coast Guard's Galveston Operations office had a similarly prosaic explanation. "There's a gas rig out there, and they're burning off gas," Taylor said. "The glow is reflecting off the clouds. So that's my explanation for it."

anyway, since it's stationary. "I know when I was in the Navy, we could take our 24-inch carbon search lights and signal to people maybe 40, 60, 80 miles away" by bouncing the beams off clouds, he said. It was the second consecutive night the glow was visible on the southeast Texas coast. Officials said sightings Monday were reported in Winnie and LaPorte, more than 30 miles from Galveston.

Motion could nullify evidence

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Lawyers say a motion filed in Dallas federal court by Jo Ann Starr Harrelson's lawyers could nullify the bulk of evidence gathered in the investigation of the murder of U.S. District Judge John Wood Jr., according to a copyright article in the El Paso Times.

Antonio agent said the stock was found near an area east of Dallas outlined in the map seized from Chagra's home. U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders immediately sealed the suppression motion, prohibiting lawyers on both sides of the case from discussing its contents.

Dallas lawyer Fred Time, who now represents Mrs. Harrelson, would not comment on the motion after it was sealed Friday. Before filing the motion last week, he said it could attack the legality of almost all the evidence gathered by investigators in the Wood slaying.

He said conversations between Chagra and Harrelson, Chagra and Mrs. Harrelson, and Chagra and his brother while Jimmy Chagra was in Leavenworth prison, were taped by government wiretaps. The tapes, which the defense claims are illegal, constitute the bulk of the government's case, Time said.

Case nears conclusion

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — Without a word, and ignoring her lawyer's objections, Vickie Daniel admitted Tuesday she killed her husband, former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr.

charge of murdering former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. Mrs. Daniel completed her testimony in the trial at the Liberty County Court House in Liberty. (AP Laserphoto)

But the silent acknowledgement may or may not have enhanced the state's murder case against the attractive blonde defendant. Nearing the end of an unexpectedly swift and mild cross-examination, chief prosecutor Carroll Wilborn posed this question Tuesday: "Are you sorry you shot Price Daniel Jr.?" Lead defense lawyer Jack Zimmermann leaped to his feet, objecting.

On the witness stand, Mrs. Daniel, 34, her eyes clouded with tears, nodded but did not reply. Trial judge Leonard Giblin sustained the objection. Wilborn continued. "Really, Vickie, what it gets down to is, but for you getting that loaded gun and cocking it at least once, and firing twice, Price Daniel Jr. would be alive today, wouldn't he?"

Again she responded with a nod as Zimmermann lodged his second vigorous protest. Giblin again sustained it. But that did not prevent the jury from seeing her reaction nor prevent the court reporter from inserting the nods into the official court record.

And, he inquired, referring to her divorce lawyer, "Can you tell me, Mrs. Daniel, why you didn't tell him about the beatings, about how afraid you were or anything?" "I don't know what I was thinking," she replied. Following Wilborn's questions, the defense brought three witnesses who testified to seeing bruises on Mrs. Daniel's arms, back and face during her marriage to Daniel.

The former Dairy Queen waitress maintained from the outset she did not intentionally shoot her husband, that it was accidental, and that she did not remember firing the fatal shot. But prosecutors viewed as legally significant the fact that she acknowledged cocking the bolt-action rifle at least once.

They also told the jury that Daniel often drank excessively and, at least occasionally, smoked marijuana. Zimmermann said later he expected to wrap up the defense case today and, barring extensive rebuttal, that final arguments could be conducted Friday.

Panel agrees on Hobby's Senate redistricting plan

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It took about five hours of backroom dealing, but Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby finally won approval for his Senate redistricting map that protects two of his longtime allies.

of that growth was in the eastern half of the state," he said. "To attempt to protect the political interests of one state senator in West Texas sends a domino effect through the rest of the state."

Hobby on Tuesday fended off Comptroller Bob Bullock's plan to force Sens. Grant Jones of Abilene and Ray Farabee, a couple of powerful committee chairmen, to run against each other. The plan OK'd by five-member Legislative Redistricting Board, which must finish its work today, also sets up a Houston district that probably will elect a black, the Senate's first since Barbara Jordan.

The sharp-tongued Bullock then pinpointed a more personal attack. "We have spent entirely too much time talking about pairing ... an Abilene insurance man and a Wichita Falls lawyer," he said. "We cannot draw a map to protect the political hides of anybody, whether it's us on this board who must vote on these plans or the candidates who will run for these offices," said Bullock.

Despite the success on approving a Senate plan, the five-member board's work is not done. Efforts to draw a House map failed Tuesday. At midnight, Hobby told the board members to come back today for another try. Speaker Bill Clayton remained optimistic the board could adopt a House plan. Clayton and Bullock have offered differing House plans.

Hobby made some minor changes and one major change in the plan he first proposed Sunday. The big change gives Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, the district he wanted — Travis and Hays Counties.

"There are a lot of things in his plan I can accept. But in its entirety I'd vote no," he said. Bullock pushed hard for his Senate plan to pair Farabee and Jones. "I went to California to be detoxed. I wasn't dehorned," he said, referring to his recent stint in a hospital for treatment of alcoholism. Bullock's plan was put to a vote first. It died when it drew "no" votes from Attorney General Mark White, Speaker Bill Clayton and Hobby. The comptroller argued that West Texas, due to population growth elsewhere, had to lose a senator. "Statewide Texas' population has grown 27 percent, but the vast majority

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Lawyers say a motion filed in Dallas federal court by Jo Ann Starr Harrelson's lawyers could nullify the bulk of evidence gathered in the investigation of the murder of U.S. District Judge John Wood Jr., according to a copyright article in the El Paso Times.

The suppression motion challenges the legality of a Feb. 27 search of El Paso attorney Joe Chagra's home and wiretapped conversations between Chagra and several clients who have been linked to the May 1979 assassination in San Antonio. No one has been charged in the Wood slaying. Filed Friday and immediately sealed in U.S. District Court, the motion calls for the suppression of all evidence in Mrs. Harrelson's case, the Times reported. Mrs. Harrelson is the wife of convicted hit man Charles Harrelson, whom government officials have said is a prime target in the Wood slaying investigation.

She is awaiting trial on charges that she used a false name to buy a hunting rifle investigators believe is linked to Wood's slaying. Also described as a target of a federal grand jury investigating the slaying is convicted drug trafficker Jimmy Chagra, Joe Chagra's older brother. The motion claims the evidence against Mrs. Harrelson is protected by attorney-client privilege and is not admissible in court, prosecutors and defense attorneys confirmed Tuesday. The motion also alleges the February search of Joe Chagra's home was illegal because the search warrant was based on information from several taped conversations also protected by attorney-client privilege. Assistant U.S. Attorney LeRoy Jahn said Tuesday.

Joe Chagra has represented his brother and both Harrelsons. In the February search, federal agents found a map in Chagra's briefcase they believed showed the area where a weapon was discarded. In an Oct. 15 pretrial hearing for Mrs. Harrelson, FBI agent Ronald Iden testified the government recovered the stock of a rifle investigators believe is linked to the Wood killing. The San

Everyone may share big Three-Mile costs

About two months ago Gov. Dick Thornburgh of Pennsylvania outlined a $760 million proposal to clean up radioactive debris at the severely damaged Three Mile Island (TMI) nuclear reactor No. 2 near Middletown, Pa.

Thornburgh envisioned that various "contributions" toward cleanup would include $190 million from the federal government, $30 million from the State of Pennsylvania, $15 million from neighboring New Jersey, $90 million left over from TMI insurance coverage, $245 million from the utility consortium that owns TMI, and — here's the rub — $190 million from electrical users nationally via rate hikes.

The probability of that happening grew dramatically a short time ago when directors of the Edison Electric Institute gave its blessing to Thornburgh's cost-sharing plan with the proviso that state regulatory bodies grant special rate hikes to cover the $190 million industry share plus (apparently) the $245 million that TMI's owners cannot afford.

The institute endorsement is only advisory. But given that it represents 198 member companies which produce 80 percent of the nation's electricity, it can be expected that its endorsement will carry substantial weight.

Whether cleanup costs at TMI are rightfully a national responsibility — falling as heavily on Texans and Minnesotans as Pennsylvanians — can be argued from now to eternity.

The problem in arriving at a clear-cut yes or no is that nuclear power facilities, while operated by private utility companies, have been virtually nationalized by wholesale governmental intervention and regulations. Additionally, the power companies themselves have monopoly status from government and cannot be neatly categorized as fish or fowl.

In the normal situation when a private company goes belly up, the problem lies solely with the company itself and its stockholders. If the company's facility burns down, blows up or becomes liable for $1 million in damages (the overall expected cost of the TMI cleanup between now and 1987), it is not a burden that properly can be saddled on every American.

However, the government is so obviously a full partner in nuclear plant operations everywhere that it becomes difficult not to see some logic in Thornburgh's proposal. Like it or not, we expect rate hikes will be involved nationally to offset the TMI cleanup operation simply because there is no other obvious solution.

Even if it is argued that TMI's No. 2 reactor be paved over and forgotten for costs dramatically less than $760 million, the problem is that TMI's owners have waiting in the wings Unit No. 1, another multi-billion dollar operation undamaged by the 1979 blowout. And unless Unit 1 is permitted to begin operation, the owners of TMI cannot pay back their $245 million share of cleanup costs yet to come. (The company has already spent $240 million in cleanup costs to date.)

The problems that began two and a half years ago with a stuck valve are a long way from going away. One way or another it seems likely all of us will have a share of the bill.

Mixed money signals

Has the Federal Reserve Board been keeping too tight a lid on the money supply? Is that why interest rates are so high and why there are signs of a recession?

And, if this is the case, why doesn't the Fed simply relax its tight fist and lessen these problems?

Such questions are being asked these days in forums and financial circles across the country. And they deserve some straight answers.

But Washington's conflicting response has served mostly to compound the confusion about the direction of Washington monetary policy and to raise new questions about how tight the Federal Reserve's policy is or ought to be.

A few days ago in Dallas, Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan, in his strongest statement to date, said the Fed's monetary policy was too tight and that the nation's central bank would have to increase the growth rate of the money supply to avoid prolonging a recession. He pointed out the basic, narrowly defined money supply has been growing at only 1.7 percent for the 12 months ending in August, about half of the Fed's own minimum target of 3.5 percent. In Washington, however, David A. Stockman, the budget director, indicated the Fed should continue on its present course.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul A. Volcker lost no time in rejecting Secretary Regan's call for a loosening of the money supply. Within 24 hours, he told the American Bankers Association convention in San Francisco that "inflating the money supply now would only aggravate the situation." As for Regan's complaint that the Fed was lagging behind its own targets, Volcker said other broader measures of money supply, which include savings deposits and certificates of deposit, are running above their growth targets. Overall, he said, the Fed is on track.

Later, the administration rushed up reinforcements. Secretary Regan was given fresh, open backing at a conference of leading corporate executives at Hot Springs, Va., by Commerce

Secretary Malcolm Baldrige and presidential counselor Edwin Meese III. Baldrige warned of a recession and Meese said President Reagan feels the money supply can be gradually increased without risking a resurgence of inflation. But earlier, the President came out in support of the Fed chairman after he had complained to the White House about the public pressure.

To complete the confusion, Vice President George Bush told the National Press Club in Washington that the administration feels the Fed "is doing the right thing."

All of this understandably enough, moved Mr. Volcker to wonder aloud why the "unusual public communications from the secretary of the Treasury" had not been made directly to him during their weekly meetings in Washington.

Why not indeed? If the administration feels the Fed has helped to induce the money crunch and high interest rates by squeezing below its own targets, this would be a legitimate reason for in-house inquiry. But by applying public pressure to the independent Federal Reserve Board, the administration appears to have succumbed to the same temptation as its predecessors, which too often succeeded in turning on the inflationary money faucets.

Although the Fed's tight money policy has undoubtedly contributed to the high interest rates, the basic reason is the prevailing belief among money lenders that Washington doesn't really have the stomach for controlling inflation — that deflation is too painful politically to be sustained. Financial institutions are still convinced they must hedge against being repaid down the road with cheaper dollars by charging abnormally high interest for the money they lend.

Meanwhile, many of the nation's largest banks in recent days have lowered their prime rate a whole point, from 19 percent to 18 percent — the lowest level since May. Lending economists are predicting that the momentum for lower interest rates will now carry them down to the 16-17 percent level by the end of the year.

By CHARLES D. VAN EATON

Are current interest rates too high? I have argued that such a question cannot be answered because it is based on opinion — specifically the opinion that whatever the rate is it could and should be lower regardless of the present state of economic affairs.

But there are a lot of people who are convinced in their hearts that interest rates are higher than they should be and that something will have to be done about it. Implicit in their view is the notion that interest rates rise chiefly because "Eastern" bankers and the Federal Reserve conspire to make them rise. Conspiracy theories of economic phenomena have always existed but never more fitfully than in regard to interest rates.

Politicians thrive on feeding such conspiracy theories. Already the nation has heard the mindless mumbling of

Those interest rates again

Senator Howard Baker and Robert Michael warn that unless something is done to bring rates down in 90 days Congress might have to impose credit controls, tighten regulation of financial institutions, reorganize the Federal Reserve Banking System, impose a windfall profits tax on interest income, or impose general wage and price controls.

The only appropriate response to these politicians and their colleagues is that if they don't learn how to reason from A to C within 90 days, Congress will be recalled and only those persons with IQs over 80 will be allowed to run for office.

Of course, the level of interest rates is higher now than ever before. (I have examined data on the rate for prime commercial paper of four to six months maturity all the way back to 1890. Current rates are, indeed, higher than ever before.) But there is every reason why rates should be where they are: virtually every economic policy which has come out of Washington these past twenty years has fed those forces which put upward pressure on interest rates. When Sen. Baker and Rep. Michael wonder why rates are where they are and complain about it, they make about as much sense as a drunk who can't understand why he has a hangover and gripes about it.

It shouldn't be difficult to understand why interest rates rise and why they fall. The interest rate is price of credit. When the demand for credit rises relative to the supply of credit, the rate of interest rises. When the demand for credit falls relative to the supply of credit, the rate of interest falls. Is that too difficult for Sen. Baker to understand? When the folks in Tennessee get on his case about interest rates, can't he explain what's going on?

In the jargon of economic theory, the interest rate and the market for debt and credit out of which it emerges are fearful and wonderful things. Debt and credit are merely the same thing looked at from two different points of view — they are simultaneously an obligation to pay and a contractual right to receive money in the future.

Today in history

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 28, the 301st day of 1981. There are 64 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Oct. 28, 1962, Soviet premier Nikita Khrushchev announced he had ordered the withdrawal of Soviet missiles from Cuba.

On this date: In 1492, Christopher Columbus discovered Cuba on his first voyage to New World.

In 1866, the Statue of Liberty was dedicated in New York City harbor. In 1922, Benito Mussolini marched on Rome.

And in 1977, the U.N. General Assembly censured Israel for establishing settlements in occupied Arab territories, calling the action illegal and damaging to peace efforts.

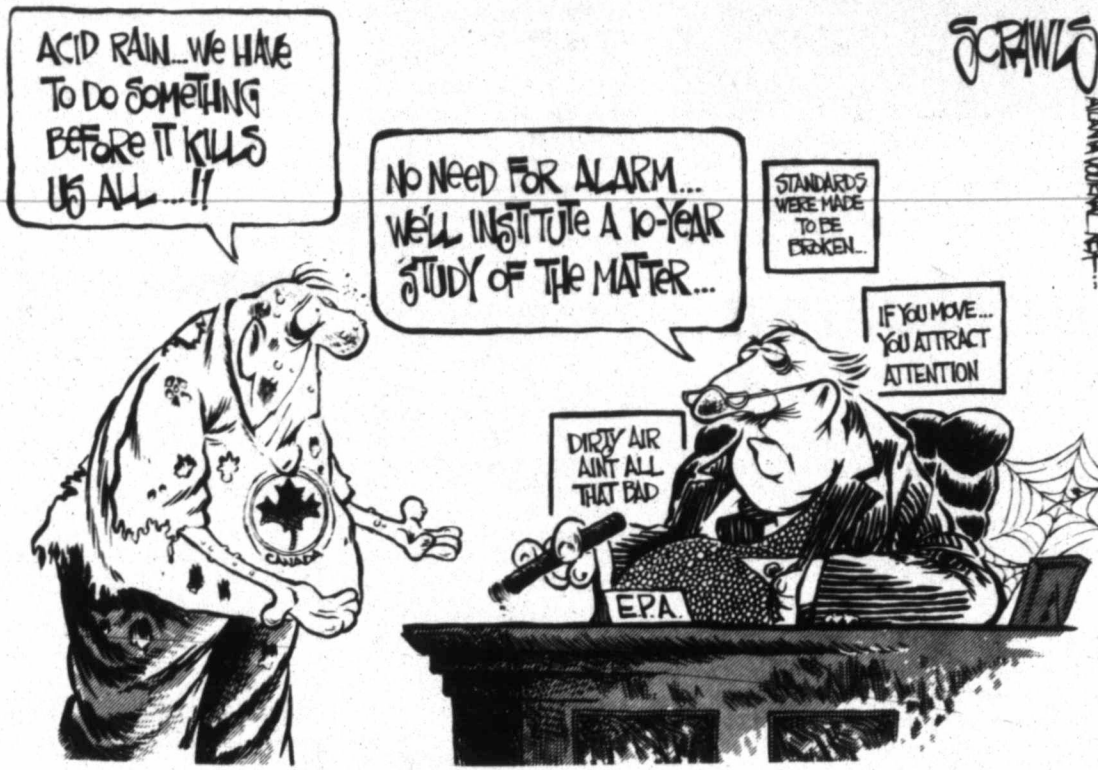

Ten years ago: By a three-vote margin, the Senate rejected a proposed measure that said the president could not use funds in Indochina except to withdraw all American forces.

Five years ago: President Ford approved the sale to China of a computer system capable of military as well as industrial uses.

One year ago: An Associated Press-NBC poll said Americans' growing anticipation that Iran would free the U.S. hostages had not raised public opinion of President Carter's handling of the crisis.

Today's birthdays: Jonas Salk, the inventor of the Salk vaccine against polio, is 67. Track star Jim Beatty is 47. Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn is 57. And British-born actress Elsa Lanchester is 79.

Thought for today: He that riseth late must trot all day. — Benjamin Franklin, American statesman, inventor and author (1706-1790).

What to do about crime

By OSCAR COOLEY

No one has a solution to the problem of crime. Britain had a burst of crime in the 16th century. Her solution was to ship her excess convicts overseas. Many were sent to the American colonies; the ancestors of some of our best families wore chains.

Mandatory sentences — that is, laws that specify the penalty for each wrong doing, leaving less to the discretion of the judge — are urged by some. But this would force more incarceration, say other, and our prisons are already crowded. Build more prisons is the answer. No! scream the already hard pressed taxpayers.

I am no pernelologist, but since the debate among professionals seems to lack a conclusion, I make this off-the-cuff suggestion.

Treat the offenders as parents treat their children. When one persists in knowingly breaking the rules, hurt him. Inflict physical pain on him, as the parent does on the child by spanking. Purpose: to dissuade him or her from misbehaving again.

The real problem is the repeat offender, the habitual criminal. A recent FBI study of 78,143 convicted offenders found that 64 percent of those arrested for murder had previously been arrested on criminal charges. Seventy-three percent of those taken for rape had prior arrests and convictions.

By PAUL HARVEY

Easy money a narcotic

Easy money is a narcotic. There's no such thing as "enough." Too much is fatal. Withdrawal is agonizingly painful.

Some people would rather die. History's cruel paradox is the apparent inevitability of its cycles. Wherever you have a good government, it bears bountiful fruit. On its fruits the people prosper — then get fat.

Then they get lazy and elect to turn over to government to do them chores which they have been performing for themselves.

In order to perform the additional services, government has to get bigger. In order to support its increasing size it has to tax the individual more. In order to collect the additional taxes, it has to hire more tax collectors.

So the government gets bigger until it is overtaking the people.

Historically, overtaxed people start a revolution.

Hopefully, it is possible for our more enlightened people to moderate their appetites so their tax burden can be reduced — their nation's economic solvency restored.

But as I say, easy money is a narcotic. Withdrawal is agonizingly painful. Some would rather die.

For more than a generation, Americans have been living on borrowed money.

The criminal thinks (to the extent he celebrates at all) that he will not be caught the next time, and that if he is — well, a free bed and eats in the pen are not so bad. But to such a person, physical pain is a real evil, and the more severe it is and the longer it lasts, the more it is to be avoided.

This is not to propose that offender again be burned at the stake. That is not only painful but fatal. It is capital punishment. If a person's life is to be taken, it should be done quickly and painlessly, for its object is to eliminate the offender, not remake him. Conversion, or permanent pacification, is the only legitimate aim of the great majority of penalties.

Nor should the punishment permanently disable the convicted, person, for this would make him resentful and probably alienate him for life. It also might impose a burden on others to support him.

Precisely what should be done in each case I do not pretend to know. Physiologists should be consulted to ascertain what will cause the degree of pain desired, and without lasting ill effects. The answer might be flogging. Then the number of lashes should vary with the crime, and they should be administered under supervision to insure that the one wielding the whip does not indulge in sadism.

The spreading sense of humanity and mutuality has caused painful punishments to be largely discontinued in the western world. In fact, we have swung to the opposite extreme. People sent to modern prisons often find themselves eating tastier food and sleeping on softer beds than they are used to in freedom. This is one reason we have so many recidivists.

Another suggestion, and a pleasanter one, is that we find more ways to put convicts to work. Work is a tonic. It is far more healthful to a well person than is idleness. An idle person in prison broods on his condition, tries to justify himself and blames others, even plots what he will do to get back at society after he is released.

In the past, convict labor has been condemned and even legislated against in some states, because it was so cheap. It produced goods at very low cost and these could be sold at such low prices they crowded other goods off the market. In short, convict labor was condemned not because it hurt the convict but because it hurt free, wage-earning labor. The unions were against it.

For the sake of the convict, he should work, not loaf. It could be provided by law that his labor receive a competitive wage, which should be paid to him, wholly or in part, or to the state. Important from the viewpoint of law enforcement is that he be kept at work. The devil finds mischief for idle hands.

Philadelphia teachers end strike after 50 days

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Public school teachers ended a 50-day strike today, averting a one-day general walkout called by sympathetic unions, after a panel of judges ordered the city to rehire about 3,500 teachers.

The head of the teachers' union was elated Tuesday night when the group's executive board voted unanimously to end the strike. But the superintendent of schools said the ruling meant the system would end the year in the red.

Teachers planned to be back at school today, although it will be a day or two before all of the 200,000 students affected by the strike go back to classes.

About 17,000 students have going to class for several weeks as about 1,000 teachers crossed picket lines.

The settlement, which also canceled a raise strikers said they had been promised, led to the cancellation of a one-day general strike planned for today as a show of support from other unions.

The three-judge Commonwealth Court panel said both the school board and the Philadelphia Federation of Teachers mistakenly believed last year that somehow enough money would appear to pay for 10 percent raises this year and the retention of the 3,500 teachers.

The panel's order that the laid-off teachers must be rehired means "obviously there would be a deficit this year." Schools Superintendent Michael Marcuse said.

Even with shortened vacations, pupils will finish the year with less than 180 days of school this year, but there was no indication the strike would prevent students from earning enough credit to graduate.

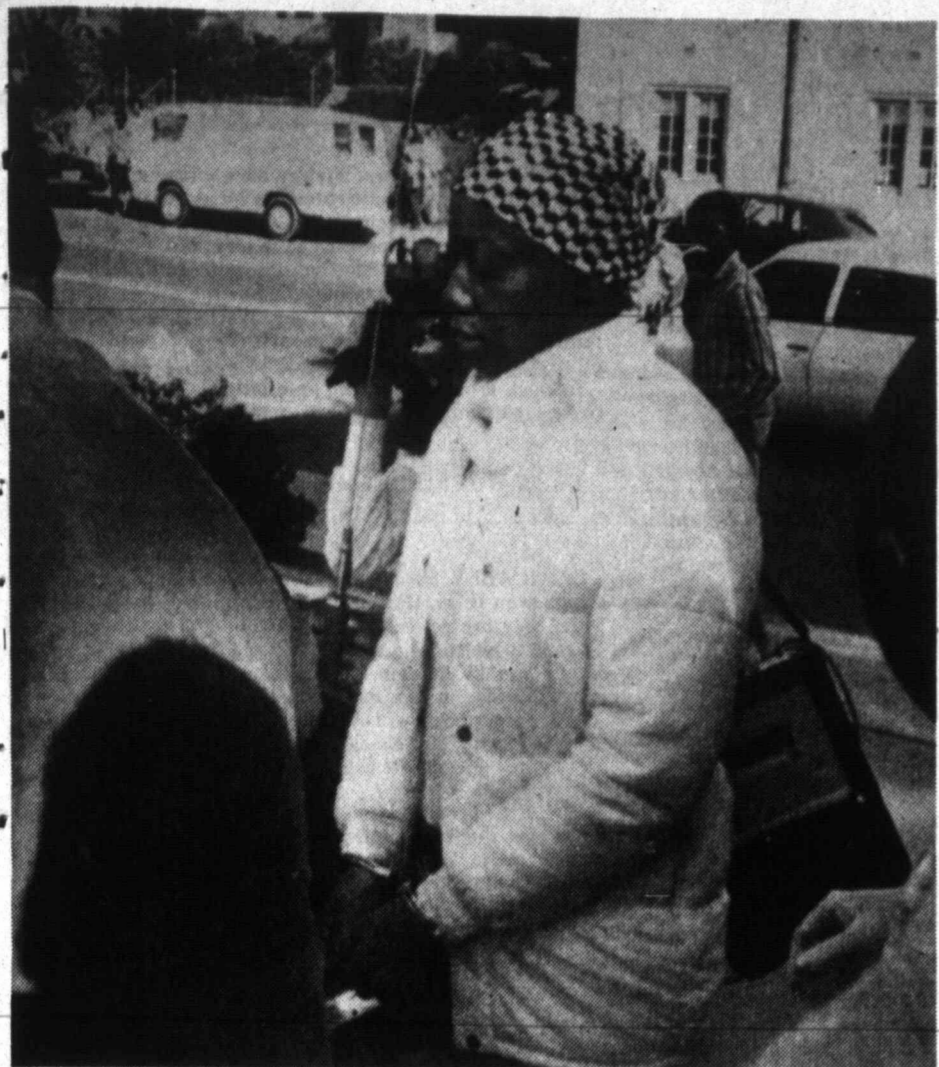

"I'm glad it's come to an end," PFT President John Murray said of the city's sixth school strike in a decade. "Unfortunately, it took a court to put the children back in the classrooms."

Murray said the union was prepared to go back to work and "negotiate the particulars" of its conflicts with the school board.

Sharon Cohen, a mathematics teacher at Grantz High School, said she was happy to be returning to work.

"It's been too long," she said. "I hope my kids remember me."

The 22,000-member union, including 13,000 teachers, struck Sept. 8 in part because 3,511 teachers had been laid off in June in an effort to wipe

BRINK'S SUSPECT. Cynthia Priscilla Boston, 33, of New Orleans, gets into a car to go back to jail in Jackson, Miss., after a hearing in federal court. A magistrate set her bond at $500,000. She was arrested at dawn Tuesday when an estimated 100 FBI agents and local police raided a house in rural Copiah County, Miss. She is charged in connection with a robbery of a Brink's armored truck in New York last week. (AP Laserphoto)

Two women arrested in continuing Brink's probe

NEW YORK (AP) — The arrest of a woman in a Mississippi farmhouse has tied another radical terrorist group to an attack on a Brink's truck and officers said a man wanted in the cold-blooded killing of a policeman has been linked to the holdup by witnesses.

The arrest of Cynthia Priscilla Boston in Gallman, Miss., was one of two in the case on Tuesday. In addition, a federal complaint was unsealed that identified two others wanted in the robbery in suburban Nanuet, in which a Brink's guard and two police officers were killed.

Before dawn Tuesday, 100 FBI agents and police officers with armored personnel carriers, helicopters and camouflage outfits surrounded a tin-roofed farmhouse in Gallman and apprehended Ms. Boston, 33.

Miss Boston, described in a federal complaint as "the minister of information for the Republic of New Africa, a terrorist organization," was held on a charge of conspiracy to commit armed bank robbery.

On Tuesday afternoon, police arrested Eva Rosahn at a New York City apartment and she was arraigned in Rockland County on a charge of criminal facilitation of the robbery. Her car was used as a getaway vehicle in the heist, police said.

The arrests brought to six the number of suspects seized since the robbery Oct. 20.

Among the four suspects arrested after the shootout were Katherine Boudin and two others identified as members of the terrorist Weather Underground.

Federal authorities also disclosed they were searching for two men who were seen just after the Brink's robbery emptying a Mount Vernon, N.Y., apartment used as a hideout by the robbery gang. The van that was being loaded outside the apartment was traced to the Mississippi farmhouse, officials said.

The two men being sought are William Johnson, also known as Baili Sunni-Ali and described as Ms. Boston's common-law husband, and Donald Weems, an escapee from a New Jersey prison. Both are believed to be members of the Black Liberation Army.

But in a case of mistaken identity Tuesday, a police helicopter and more than 50 officers, acting on a tip that BLA member Joanne Chesimard had been spotted, surrounded a house in Garden City, N.Y. Officers seized four people — a crew of surprised house cleaners.

The four had nothing to do with the Brink's robbery, officers said.

Police also are seeking Marilyn Buck, 34, described as the only white member of the BLA. Authorities said she rented "safehouses" used by the robbery gang.

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M University's band wasn't trying to mimic Rice's MOB when the usually-precise marching unit fell into disarray during last weekend's halftime show, a school official says. They just fell out of step.

Many spectators at Saturday's A&M-Rice game thought the Aggies were spoofing Rice's irreverent band, the MOB, while attempting to form the traditional "blocked T." But A&M spokesman Lane Stephenson said it was a real mistake.

"Four men made their turn five yards too soon and because of the intricacies of the drill, the mistake was impossible to correct," Stephenson said. "The exercise ended a melee."

In 1973 the MOB mocked A&M's drills by goose-stepping around the field and angered students and alumni. In an effort to salve ruffled feelings,

Dr. Lamb

Training the wrong way

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 27-year-old male, 6 feet 5 and weigh 190 pounds. I have been working out with heavy weights for some time in an attempt to add bulk and substantially increase the size of my muscles. Although my strength has increased substantially, I have not been able to add any weight or bulk. I have more than doubled my protein intake since I started weight training.

I have heard that taking steroids will increase muscle size and that they are used for bodybuilding. Are they harmful? I would appreciate any advice you can give me.

DEAR READER — It may be that your inherited normal characteristics are to be slender. That is not bad and it may be best for your health. Also, as you have gained strength you may have been adding muscle fiber growth while losing fat stored in your muscles. So don't be so sure you have not grown some muscle tissue.

The most important aspect of building muscles is the way you train. Of course you do need a balanced adequate diet, but that won't help if you use the wrong training techniques. It has been shown that you can reach your maximum growth rate with a small number of contractions against an adequate load as frequently as three times a week, allowing a day between work outs.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-4, Weight Training for Energy and Weight Control. It will explain this to you.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Good adequate muscles use energy at rest and even help people from gaining unwanted fat deposits, such as the middle-aged spread.

I don't approve of taking steroids to build muscles. They certainly can be harmful. Better see if you are doing too much exercise or doing your training in the wrong way for the best results.

And I see you have been brain-washed on protein. You only need to retain about 100 grams of protein above your usual requirements for each pound of actual muscle you grow. Any extra protein not used is simply used as calories or may even be converted to fat in the person consuming too many calories.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I stopped smoking four years ago. I just got fed up with the whole stinking filthy mess. Now the smoking of my husband and his friends drives me up the wall. I can hardly stay in the same room. My house still smells and I can hardly breathe.

Is boiling water and Purex on the stove dangerous? I do this to take out the smell. I also have vinegar and ammonia around in bowls. I know this second-hand smoke is almost as harmful to me as if I were smoking but I can't very well ask my spouse to stop smoking in his own home.

DEAR READER — Ask him. If he quits it will do wonders for his health.

As long as you don't use large amounts of Purex it is not likely to be harmful but I'm not enthusiastic about the presence of ammonia in the room, too. Be sure not to mix the two.

But none of these measures will really get rid of the tobacco fumes in the house. You'll be better off to have good ventilation, which means open windows, provided you don't live in a polluted area. Open windows and fresh air is a hard combination to beat.

Texans compete in chili cookoff

Texans know more about chili than anyone else. And three Texans — two from Houston, one from Odessa — will be out to prove it November 1 at Hollywood Park Race Track in Los Angeles, site of the International Chili Society's 1981 World Championship Chili Cookoff.

Susan Airhart and Gus Pietch of Houston and Kelly Womack of Odessa, will also be after their share of Budweiser's $40,000 purse — including a $20,000 first prize and "King of Beers, King of Chili" trophy. The field will total more than 60 current state, regional and international cookoff winners and former world champions.

Airhart and Womack are relative newcomers to chili cooking, while Pietch is a seasoned veteran. Airhart is a supervising technician in the genetics lab at the Baylor College of Medicine and a firm believer in the inherent superiority of Texans when it comes to making chili. She will represent Hawaii in this cookoff.

"Texans are the only ones who really know how to cook chili. Too many northerners try it and wind up with more of a weird stew than anything. Some of them actually use sausage in their chili," she sniffs.

Pietch is a nine-year veteran of cookoffs. He is a champion bean, bargeque, stew and gumbo chef as well as a first-rate cooker. Southwest Distributing Company, the Houston-area Budweiser distributor, sponsors Pietch, who will represent the Gulf Coast.

Womack, who stirs up his brew in a nickle-plated laundry kettle, is the Texas representative. He entered the Texas cookoff in Odessa at the last minute and had to qualify in a preliminary round in order to compete in the finals.

The World Championship Chili Cookoff, sponsored by Budweiser and the International Chili Society is an outgrowth of the Great Chili Wars of the late 1960s.

It all started when some Texas chili cooks challenged humorist-writer H. Allen Smith to a cooking duel after Smith wrote a tongue-in-cheek article titled, "Nobody Knows More About Chili Than I Do."

One of the Texans involved was car designer Carroll Shelby, co-owner of a Texas ranch which included a western ghost town called Terlingua, site of the first eight World Championships. The first world chili war ended in a tie between Smith and Wick Fowler, an Austin newspaperman.

As more and more contestants entered through a series of local, state and regional elimination cookoffs, the World Championship event grew and moved to California in 1975.

The most consumed food in U.S.: fluid milk and cream.

Dear Abby

U.S. criminal system deserves no parole

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am the father of a fine 12-year-old boy who has a paper route. He's an honor student and is saving his money for college. I haven't been sleeping very well since Benjamin Lee Breneman, the good-looking 12-year-old newspaper carrier in California, was murdered by a sex deviate not long ago.

Abby, that child was killed by a known child molester who had been paroled four times for sex crimes involving little boys. He is obviously a degenerate, a pervert and a very sick man. But he is also a criminal, and should never have been paroled with a record like his. I think it's fair to say that rehabilitation in his case was impossible. So why wasn't he locked up to protect innocent children? Why was he paroled for the fourth time to be sent out to prey on young children? Where in God's name is the justification for paroling this man?

Something is drastically wrong with our criminal system. Please print this. Maybe someone has an answer. I haven't.
TOMMY'S FATHER IN CLEVELAND

DEAR FATHER: I have no answer either. But when the accused comes to trial, I think the members of the parole board who set him free to murder this child should be in the dock with the murderer, and they should get the same penalty as the murderer.

DEAR ABBY: My brother-in-law and I have a disagreement. My father was born in Italy, which makes him Italian. My mother was American born, with no Italian blood in her, so that makes me half-Italian and half-American, right?

My husband and I were both born in America. His ancestors were French, English and I'm not sure what else, but no Italians. The question is, what percentage Italian are my children?

I say they are one-quarter, my brother-in-law says they are one-eighth. Who is right? If my brother-in-law is right, please explain to me how my children can be one-eighth Italian, when I am one-half. I know in math one-half reduces next to one-fourth. Sign me...
BORN IN ILLINOIS

DEAR BORN: Technically, your children are 100 percent American, having been born in the U.S.A. But the percentage of "Italian blood" in the veins of your children is one-quarter!

DEAR ABBY: I am a Korean-born girl who will be an American citizen this September. I am in love with a Korean-born young man whom I have known since I was 15 in Korea. We are planning to marry, but my father is against it on the grounds that according to Korean law a person cannot marry anyone who has the same last name. That is our problem, Dear Abby. We have the same last name, but it is only a coincidence. We are not related to each other.

Is there a law in the U.S. prohibiting marriage between two people with the same last name?
WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: There is no such law in the U.S.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this for well-meaning houseguests who think they're being helpful to their hostesses when they are actually making more work for them.

I refer to guests who, after sleeping in the guest room, very carefully make up the bed — spread and all. I have to tear it apart in order to change the linen anyway.

Also, some guests will use towels, then fold them so neatly I can't tell which towels have been used and which haven't. I wish they'd leave the used towels rumpled so I will know they're soiled.

Also, some people's idea of "washing" dishes is to run hot water over them. I'd prefer to have dirty dishes left in the sink for me to wash my way. Rush this into your column, Abby. I'm expecting some more "helpful" houseguests on the weekend. Thanks.

I don't know about you, but I find a great deal of comfort in knowing there is a wife and mother on the Supreme Court of this land.

It gives us that edge and we need it the way things are progressing. I suspect it will be only a matter of years before this judicial body is faced with a monumental decision regarding the American family: Does a bedroom occupied by a child give the child ownership and jurisdiction for the rest of his life? Or does it legally belong to the parents to make available at their terms?

It's a question that has been argued between mother and child for as long as I can remember...usually with a door locked between them.

With the coming and going these days of grown children, parents are confused. When do you take a bedroom off the market and convert it to something else? Are there house rules on who occupies the bedroom and how many? What about their marriage status? Who enforces health standards? Is a locked door a right or a challenge?

Knowing how slowly the wheels of justice move, I would like to introduce the 28th amendment to the Constitution: the Bedroom Rights Amendment (BRA).

I only hope this is written obscurely enough to be taken seriously: "THE LAW SHALL DECLARE THAT AS LONG AS PARENTS OCCUPY A DOMICILE, THE BEDROOM IS A PART OF THAT DOMICILE AND THE RULES ACCORDED THE ROOM ARE WITHIN THE JURISDICTION OF THE PARENTS."

If a parent grants rights to live in said bedroom then the bedroomee must sign the following document of consent:

Anything that dies in the room must be buried before the sun sets on it.

In the event of missing towels, glassware, food and silverware, a parent has the right to search and seizure.

Parents have the right to break down the door when it is too quiet.

Boxes and luggage upon returning from an apartment - trip - marriage will be left in the garage for 30 days of debugging before being allowed in the house.

No stereo system will be permitted on the premises without headphones.

Parents are not only allowed to accept payment for room...but will insist upon it.

Persons left in the room longer than 60 days should be forwarded.

After age 18, a child's bedroom becomes a part of the house again with beds made daily, linen changed weekly and an air of wholesomeness. At least once a week, a returning child should say, "Thank you for letting me stay here."

The BRA would take 35 states to ratify or 15 mothers...whichever comes first.

Don't rely on drugs to lose weight

Remember the way your stomach growled during your last diet? And that uneasy feeling you had about diet pills?

It doesn't have to be that way.

Developing sensible eating habits can remove weight effectively. More important, learning new habits will allow you to keep those pounds off. This technique is called "behavior modification therapy."

"It can, in fact, allow you to be the master of your own fate," says Dr. Linda Craighead, assistant professor of counselling at Pennsylvania State University.

That's also the view of Drs. Albert Stunkard, professor of psychiatry at the University of Pennsylvania, and Richard O'Brien, associate professor at Hofstra University, based on an 18-month study of 104 women.

The most important thing they learned, Dr. Craighead told the Health Insurance Association of America, is that "people don't have to rely on drugs to lose weight. In fact, they should not."

In their study the professors divided dieters into three groups.

All were put on the same 1,200 calorie diet. The first group managed with prescription diet drugs, the second on a combination of the drugs and behavior therapy, the third on behavior therapy alone.

At the end of six months those on the combined therapy - drug program lost an average of 34 pounds; those on the drugs, 32; and those on behavior therapy, 24 pounds.

But the results do not end there.

When the dieters were checked a year later, the combination group had gained back an average of 24 pounds, the drug group, 18 - the behavior therapy group only an average of four pounds.

"It proves that if you want to lose weight," says Dr. Craighead, "you are better off in the long run relying on changing your eating habits." But she warned:

"While behavior modification therapy clearly works well for moderate obesity, it will not work for the extremely obese."

Cooking for two

Chicken Broth Plus Cookies
Fruit Salad
CHICKEN BROTH
As you buy and use chickens, accumulate the "extras" in your freezer for making broth. For this batch, use the wing tips, necks, gizzards and hearts from 8 chickens plus one whole chicken back. Place these in a solid-bottom top part of a steamer. Add a small onion (peeled and quartered), a medium carrot (pared and sliced), a small white inner celery rib (sliced) and several peppercorns. Do not add water. Cover tightly. Bring water in the steamer bottom to a boil and keep boiling to steam the chicken and vegetables for 45 minutes to produce the broth. Strain, pressing the liquid from chicken and vegetables. Chill broth; remove all or most of the fat from the top. There should be about 1 1/2 cups jellied broth. Heat, adding cooked rice or noodles and salt and pepper to taste. (The meat picked from the cooked chicken "extras" may be ground and used as a sandwich spread.)

Meatballs Plus Rice
Tofu and Sprout Salad
Fresh Fruit Beverage
MEATBALLS PLUS
1-3rd cup fine fresh breadcrumbs
2 tablespoons warm water
Bottled teriyaki sauce
1/2 pound ground lean beef
1 tablespoon peanut oil
2 large ribs celery, thinly sliced
1 medium green pepper, seeded and cut in thin strips
2 large scallions, thinly sliced
1 medium clove garlic, minced
1 tablespoon medium sherry

Mix together well the bread crumbs, water and 1 teaspoon teriyaki sauce; thoroughly mix in the beef. Using 1 tablespoon for each, shape into 16 balls. In a 10-inch skillet in the hot oil, brown the meatballs and cook them through. Add the celery, green pepper, scallions, garlic, 1 tablespoon teriyaki sauce and the sherry; stir-fry until the vegetables are as cooked as you like. Makes 2 large servings.

Halloween hilarity hides hazards

Seen any witches or goblins lately?

They'll be coming at you, as usual, disguised as little boys and girls this Halloween.

And, you'd better watch out, especially if you're a parent, says the Health Insurance Association of America, because some of those disguises can be dangerous.

Halloween masks, for example, can reduce a child's field of vision, block out traffic, stairs, curbs and other hazards.

The National Safety Council strongly advises against using them. Instead, it suggests you put a scary face on your child with make-up.

costumes catch fire more easily than you think.

Don't let your youngsters carry knives or other sharp instruments on Halloween eve, even make believe ones. It's too easy for them to hurt someone - or themselves if they fall.

Be sure children are instructed to bring home candy collected from strangers. It's not likely, but here have been cases of demented people planting razors and LSD in apples.

Pampa High cagers ranked No. 5 in state by coaches' magazine

By L.D. STRATE
Pampa News Sports Writer
The Pampa Harvesters have been picked as the No. 5 high school team in the state by the Texas 5A Basketball Preview, published by the Texas Basketball Coaches Association.

The magazine, authored by Mike Smith of Victoria, is expected to be on the newsstands next week. The Harvesters are also picked to win the Region I title and advance to the state tournament.

"It's nice to be rated, but words don't get you there," said Pampa High coach Garland Nichols, when hearing about the pre-season ranking.

Houston Yates is ranked No. 1 among the highest classification of schools, followed by Dallas Roosevelt, Tyler and Angleton.

All three returning starters—6-3 junior Mike Nelson, 6-4 senior Charles Nelson, 6-4 senior Terry Faggins—were named to the All-Region I team.

Mike Nelson, the district newcomer of the year two seasons ago, was named Player of the Year on the Amarillo Globe-News Super Team last season after averaging 13.3 points and 8.8 rebounds per game. Nelson, who missed the last four games of the regular season due to an injured thumb, also handed out 4.6 assists per game.

Charles Nelson, who shot 53 percent from the floor led the Pampa's 23-12 club scoring (15.2 ppg) while pulling down 7.6 rebounds per game.

Faggins, who was particularly effective in the crucial district games, averaged 9.5 points and 5.4 rebounds.

"We're going to have some outstanding shooters, but we're not going to have much height in the middle," Nichols added. "A good, big man is going to hurt us."

Coyle Winborn, a 6-5 sophomore and a returning letterman, is the tallest.

Two returning parttime starters are 6-3 senior Jimmy Barker (2.5 ppg) and 6-0 senior Meryl Dowdy (2.6 ppg).

The Harvesters have won two District 3-5A titles in a row, advancing to the Regionals last year after defeating Plainview, 53-52, for the Bi-District championship.

El Paso Eastwood edged Pampa, 62-61, in the opening round of the Regional Tournament at Midland.

Pampa opens the season Nov. 20 against Canyon in Harvester Fieldhouse.

Dolphins place third

AMARILLO—The Pampa Dolphin Swim Club claimed the third-place team point trophy last weekend at the Class ABC Autumn Invitational, hosted by the Amarillo Aquatic Club.

There were 180 members from 12 teams representing Texas, New Mexico and Kansas. Trophies were awarded to the top three teams—Amarillo, Midland and Pampa.

The Dolphins sent 39 swimmers, who edged out Santa Fe, 407-401.

Ribbons were awarded to the first through eighth places for each class, and points were awarded to teams for the top eight finishes in an event regardless of class.

Coach Jackie Stephens was very pleased with the team's performance and said capturing third place was a total team effort as both relays and individual events were scored.

The Dolphins have added many new members to the team this year.

Swimmers entering their first meet to establish a time were Candy Winton, Jennifer Forman, Carol Trusty, Jeff Snider, Cory Stephens, Josh McKinney, Bobby Martinez, Ken Wagoner, and Shannon Griffith.

The Dolphins will host a Class B and C meet at the Pampa Youth and Community Center Nov. 14-15. Spectators are welcome.

World Series postponed by rain

NEW YORK (AP) — It rained on Tommy Lasorda's World Series parade, and now the Los Angeles Dodger manager will try again tonight to nail down the championship which has eluded the California team for 16 years.

Day-long showers, fog and wet grounds forced postponement Tuesday of the sixth game of the 1981 Series between the Dodgers and the New York Yankees. That delayed the confrontation between former teammates Burt Hooton of the Dodgers and Tommy John of the Yankees, the scheduled starting pitchers.

John beat Hooton 5-3 in Game 2 of the Series, the last contest the Yankees won. Los Angeles has taken the next three in the best-of-seven Series and is anxious to nail down its first world championship since 1965. Lasorda wasn't thrilled about being placed on hold for 24 hours at this point.

"It does disappoint me," said Lasorda after Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ordered the game called off at about 4 p.m. EST Tuesday. "No player or manager likes to hang around and wait. But unfortunately, we have no control over the weather."

Bill Murray, Kuhn's administrator, and umpires Dick Stello and Larry Barnett spent the day under leaden skies at Yankee Stadium, inspecting the soaked field.

Cowboys meet Eagles in crucial matchup

DALLAS (AP) — In their Thousand Oaks, Calif., training camp in July, all the Dallas Cowboys could talk about was a debt owed the Philadelphia Eagles.

The Cowboys felt Philadelphia Coach Dick Vermeil had tried to hoodwink them in the National Conference Eastern Division title game won 20-7 by the Eagles.

On Tuesday, Vermeil said the Cowboys had him all wrong.

He told the Dallas-Fort Worth media in a telephone hookup: "A lot said last year was totally distorted by the news media. I just told them (the Eagles) in meetings that Dallas was a better team because they had beaten the teams at the end of the year that had beaten us."

"I told them that because of that the Cowboys might not be coming to Philadelphia respecting us and we should try to take advantage of it."

Vermeil cast some light on why he thinks the Eagles and their fans despise the Cowboys so much.

"A lot of our fans are blue collar workers while most of the Cowboys are the uppercrust...some of our fans feel they are looked down upon by the sophisticated Cowboys and their fans," said Vermeil. "I'm out of a blue collar environment and I'm proud of it."

Vermeil said he felt a lot of Eagles fans "were jealous" of the success Dallas has had down through the years.

"There is something special about playing Dallas."

Harvesters regroup for 'spoiler' role

By L.D. STRATE
Pampa News Sports Writer

Pampa hopes to play a "spoiler" role in District 3-5A after last week's 26-0 loss to Tascosa, while head coach Larry Gilbert will be making plans for the 1982 season.

"There's nothing we'd like better than to throw the district race into a turmoil," Pampa head coach Larry Gilbert said. "The only thing to do right now is to get over our loss and win one. That's our goal right now."

Pampa's loss to Tascosa virtually knocked the Harvesters (2-6 overall and 0-2 in loop play) out of the district race. The Harvesters have the week off before hosting Palo Duro Nov. 6 and traveling to Amarillo High Nov. 13 to close out the season. Both the Rebels and Sandies are unbeaten in district play at this point. That will change when the two clubs meet this Thursday night.

"It's sure not going to get any easier for us," Gilbert said. "Amarillo High has a sound defense and Palo Duro has the two best running backs in the district." Gilbert feels the Harvesters will rise out of the valley and climb the mountain next season.

"You might say we're in a valley right now, but these kids are getting the experience now and they're going to come back with a vengeance," Gilbert added. "We'd sure like to win the next two and get some momentum going into next season."

Going back to the Pampa-Tascosa game, Gilbert said the Harvesters looked much better than he first thought after grading the film.

"We really didn't play that bad. We couldn't get any offense going, but the first half we played as good a defense as we played all year," Gilbert added.

Tascosa, however, did all its scoring the second half. "We made some critical turnovers in our kicking game the second half and we just never had any field position," Gilbert said. "I'm not disappointed in our effort. Tascosa has a good team and they just outplayed us." Rebel quarterback Jay Cleveland drew raves from Gilbert.

"He's without a doubt the best quarterback in the district and the best I've seen in three years. We hounded him all night and he always kept his cool. He's definitely a college prospect."

Senior linebacker John Kadingo received the "Hit of the Week" award from the Pampa coaching staff despite suffering a foot injury against the Rebels.

"John has a small bone broken in his foot and there's some tissue damage, but the bone doesn't support very much weight. He's assured me he's going to be ready to play against Palo Duro, but we're going to keep him off of it this week."

Kadingo will probably play in a flexible cast, Gilbert said.

"We're going to wait until the swelling goes down before we put it on," Gilbert said. Kadingo was credited with 15 tackles against Palo Duro. "One tackle he made was just beautiful," Gilbert added.

Other defensive standouts were noseguard Harold Landers, who had 16 tackles and two quarterback sacks; defensive end Cliff Baker, who had three sacks and a fumble recovery; Kirk Rawls, 12 tackles; Dennis Dougherty, two sacks; and Kenneth Jackson, who knocked down two passes in the defensive secondary.

"Wade Barker looked good in the offensive line," Gilbert added. "In spots we weren't that bad. Their noseguard (Kirk) Folkner just destroyed us. Their tackles didn't hurt us any, but Folkner was messing up a lot of our plays."

The Harvesters will go back to fundamentals during the off week.

"You can never work too much on the fundamentals," Gilbert said. "We'll also work extremely hard on our passing game."

Clendenen making a name for himself

HOUSTON (AP) — Things are finally starting to break right for University of Houston freshman walk-on kicker Mike Clendenen. They're even spelling his name right on the program these days.

That's C-l-e-n-e-n-e-n. Got it? Prior to last Saturday, when his 17-yard field goal with 5:16 to play gave UH a 20-17 victory over Arkansas, Clendenen was just another wide-eyed first year student on his way to philosophy 101.

But with one quick swing of his leg, Clendenen silenced 54,618 Arkansas Razorback fans to become an instant hero and revive Cougar hopes in a wild Southwest Conference title race.

Now, Coach Bill Yeoman hopes

Clendenen is the answer to the Cougars' season-long kicking problem. Going into Saturday's game, three UH kickers had hit only one of eight field goal tries, figuring directly in two UH losses.

Clendenen booted a 30-yarder earlier in the game for his first collegiate three-pointer. "All I needed was to get that first one," Clendenen said. "After that one went through, I was okay."

Although Clendenen's field goal was from chip shot range, it was a tribute to the his perseverance that he was available to make the kick. Until Saturday, Clendenen's only luck was bad.

During a tragic senior year of high school, Clendenen lost his mother and his step-mother suffered a stroke. When he got around to kicking, he pulled a muscle that impeded his progress further.

Clendenen decided to walk on at UH but three other UH kickers got a shot at the kicking chores ahead of him. Clendenen missed his first collegiate attempt against Southern Methodist two weeks ago but he was ready for the Razorbacks.

"Last year, I had so much on my mind that it kind of hurt my kicking," Clendenen said. "But everything seems to be falling in place now and my mind is clear. I'm thinking of only one thing—kicking a football."

Pampa falls to Tascosa in volleyball action

AMARILLO—Pampa's hopes for a District 3-5A volleyball title were dashed Tuesday night when Tascosa posted a 15-13, 11-15, 15-4 victory.

The Harvesters dropped to 1-3 in loop action and 17-9 overall. Tascosa had earlier defeated the Harvesters, 6-15, 12-15, in first-half district play.

"We played a good defensive game, but we just couldn't hit on them very much," Pampa coach Lynn Wolfe said. "We were ahead of them that first game by about three points until right near the end."

Paula Fulton had a perfect serving night (10-10) for the Harvesters.

Tascosa, the first-half district winner, improved its record to 1-1 and 24-2 overall.

"Tascosa had to have this game to stay in the running for district," coach Wolfe said. "They had their band and cheerleaders there and I was afraid it would distract our girls, but I was really proud of the way they played."

Pampa closes district action Saturday against Amarillo High in Harvester Fieldhouse. Matches get underway at 6:30 p.m.

Oiler defense concerns Biles

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler Coach Ed Biles peered over his rose-colored glasses long enough to admit his defense has some problems.

"I am concerned about the big plays that the defense is giving up," Biles said. "I'm not happy with the pass rush that we've been getting either but it's something that we're going to get worked out."

But then, Biles returned to the posture he has taken throughout a frustration, error-filled eight games that has netted the Oilers a 4-4 record.

"In the big poker game that we are playing right now, the chips are still on the table," Biles said, painting the brightest picture possible following Monday's 26-13 loss to the Steelers. "The big loss doesn't come until you are eliminated from the division race."

Biles also gave some of the blame for Houston's uncharacteristic defensive lapse to rules changes.

"I think you're going to see some changes in the defensive stats all around the league this year," Biles said. "All the rules are favoring the offense and scoring points."

While acknowledging the problems, Biles said he wasn't ready to throw in the towel. "If we continue to give the effort we've been getting, we'll have a chance," he said. "You win championships in November and December."

Pittsburgh, which moved into a tie for the division lead with the Cincinnati Bengals, held Earl Campbell to 56 rushing yards while the offense picked the Oilers clean in key situations.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

In the year following your birthday you'll begin to assert yourself in areas where you may have been a bit reticent in the past. Somehow you'll sense that conditions have changed favorably in your behalf.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's not wrong today to take charge of any situation where you see others are faltering. In fact, they'll probably welcome your lead. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There comes a time when you need a little solitude in order to recharge your energies and regroup your forces. Today beckons you to do so.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There is a good chance friends may lean on you a bit more than usual today. I don't think you'll mind assuming some of their burdens.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) First place is within your reach today, so if you end up in second position it will most likely be because you didn't apply what you have to offer.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You have a wealth of background and experience to draw upon. Today is a good day to make a concerted effort to use this knowledge and eliminate a bad habit.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An associate will show loyalty to you today by supporting the position you take against another. With this person's aid, you gain strength.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's not difficult to make up your mind about what you feel is right today. You'll spare little time in letting others know your decisions are firm.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This is an excellent day to accomplish necessary tasks. You have a reservoir of strength, and you won't easily be sidetracked.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Those whom you love will be grateful for the concern and interest you take in their affairs today. What you do now draws you even closer to their hearts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Once you sense your basic inner strength, you'll be able to handle any situations that may confront you today. You'll let others know you're no push-over.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Intellectual challenges stimulate you and bring out the best in your today. If you're put to a test, you'll score high.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Once you decide you want something today you'll put all your efforts and know-how to work to attain it. Chances are you'll get it, with this kind of positive push.

What has been return of space age investment?

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's space age is nearly a quarter century — and $125 billion — old. What return has there been from that investment? Plenty.

Americans, 73 of them, have logged a total of more than 2½ years in space, and they have walked on the moon. Unmanned marvels have landed on Mars, penetrated the clouds of Venus, dashed through the rings of Saturn and are probing the outer reaches of the solar system.

Military strategies have changed dramatically as a result of Apollo and other programs. There has been vast enrichment of scientific knowledge and technology from new weapon systems to home appliances. An ever-growing multi-billion-dollar market for hardware and service has mushroomed. And the space age has spurred hundreds of thousands of jobs.

Space exploration has revolutionized many things, "but it has not, so far, revolutionized our lives," says Alex Roland, a historian with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

"To date, the space age has had a less profound impact than the atomic age that preceded it," he said.

Space spinoffs are too numerous to list here, but the story of Echo is a good example of how this research filters into the commercial world.

Echo was America's first experimental communications satellite, a large balloon, 100 feet in diameter.

In developing Echo, NASA needed a special material for the balloon's skin. It had to be highly reflective to "bounce" radio signals and it had to be lightweight and extremely thin so it could be folded into a beachball-sized container for delivery to orbit, where it would automatically inflate.

The material selected was mylar polyester coated with a reflective layer of thin aluminum particles so fine that Echo's skin had a thickness about half that of the cellophane on a cigarette package.

This process of coating the polyester with a super-fine mist of vacuum-vaporized aluminum was called metallization — and Echo became the catalyst that transformed a small-scale operation into a flourishing industry.

Echo's requirements triggered extensive research and development of metallization techniques for many space uses, mostly to insulate spacecraft, manned and unmanned, from heat and radiation.

The research resulted in a still-growing line of commercial metallized products — insulated outdoor garments, packaging materials for frozen foods, wall coverings, aircraft covers, bedwarmers, window shades, labels, candy wrappers, reflective blankets and photographic reflectors.

Of all the promises of the early space era, the communications satellite is the most fully realized. In 1963, private stockholders and companies like AT&T, ITT and GTE joined to form Comsat, the Communications Satellite Corporation. A year later, Intelsat, the International Telecommunications Satellite Organization, was created, with Comsat as a major partner.

Intelsat has grown from 19 to 106 member nations, with more than 200 ground stations. Private firms and foreign governments also have commissioned launches of their own communications satellites, which are drawing the world closer together.

Telephones and television sets are sprouting — from the Arctic Circle to remote jungle islands. Hundreds of millions of people can simultaneously watch live a single event, such as the Olympics, a royal wedding or men walking on the moon.

News briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the number of lawyers in the United States is increasing, they probably will be able to find work, predicts the president of the American Bar Association — but many may be earning less pay. David R. Brink, head of the nation's largest lawyers' group, said Tuesday he believes the basic rules of "supply and demand" will prevail in the legal marketplace. But Brink said "it's possible" that lawyers will increasingly be divided into two distinct groups — one a relatively small group of attorneys with prestigious law firms where starting salaries now go as high as $43,000, and the other made up of the rest of the nation's lawyers earning far lower pay. It is now estimated that there are more than a half million lawyers in the United States.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anne Gorsuch, head of the Environmental Protection Agency, should resign, says the chairman of a key House subcommittee. Rep. James Florio charged Tuesday that Mrs. Gorsuch "already has effectively resigned from the performance of the duties of her office." The New Jersey Democrat chairs a House Energy and Commerce subcommittee that has jurisdiction over several major EPA programs. Florio said an analysis by his panel of EPA performance describes "a comprehensive accounting of the willful failures of Mrs. Gorsuch to uphold the laws protecting the nation's environment, as she had sworn to do."

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Unless his health improves, reputed New England crime boss Raymond L.S. Patriarca won't stand trial on charges of ordering the death of a small-time hoodlum, a Superior Court judge says. Judge Francis Kiely on Tuesday said forcing Patriarca, 73, to stand trial in his present condition "would be unjustified, and unwarranted if not inhuman." Kiely let stand the murder conspiracy indictment against Patriarca and told lawyers to file an updated report on his health by June 7. Doctors testified that Patriarca suffers from diabetes and heart and artery disease and said the stress of a trial could be fatal.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation is pending in Congress that would create

RYE, N.Y. (AP) — Deng Xiaoping has a new title to add to his credentials as vice chairman of the People's Republic of China — he's been given the Charles Goren award as bridge personality of the year. A citation issued Tuesday at the world team bridge championship said Deng "has long been an enthusiast for the great intellectual game of bridge."

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A street sign marking "American Bandstand Boulevard" went up at the corner of 15th and Market streets, just a hop, twist and a jerk away from the studios where "American Bandstand" was born 30 years ago. Dick Clark, who is still the host of the television dance party after three decades, was on hand Tuesday for the ceremony marking the honorary naming of the street near City Hall.

NEW YORK (AP) — Raquel Welch, who hasn't appeared in a play since her school days, says her selection as Lauren Bacall's vacation replacement in "Woman of the Year" on Broadway "came out of left field." "I couldn't believe it," said Miss Welch, who made her reputation in films. "But then I said to myself, 'Why not?' I'm elated. I've always had a dread of the New York critics, but this way they can't close me because I'm closing in two weeks anyway." Miss Welch will arrive in New York on Sunday for a month of rehearsals.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Princess Grace of Monaco is miffed at plans by American producers to make a television biography of her life and career, starring former "Charlie's Angel" Cheryl Ladd. "It has been brought to our attention that an American TV production company is proposing to make a TV program based on the life and career of Her Serene Highness.
