STAGE STRUCK. To the offensive linemen under his tutelage, Pampa assistant coach Ricky Palmer may seem so mean that he breathes fire. Their suspicions were first thought to be confirmed during last night's football-volleyball banquet, but actually it was just an illusion as entertainer Bunny Martin, right, uses a yo-yo to strike matches held in Palmer's teeth. Martin was the guest speaker and performer at the annual sports banquet, sponsored by the Pampa Harvesters Booster Club.

Former Sambo's officials indicted in alleged cattle fraud scheme

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Two former top officials of Sambo's Restaurants, Inc. and three other businessmen have been named in federal indictments charging them with participating in a cattle fraud scheme.

Former Sambo's president Karl V. Willig and former Sambo's executive vice president and chief executive officer William L. Wagner, both of Santa Barbara, Calif., were accused of defrauding the restaurant chain by participating in a scheme to falsify cattle sales records.

Also named in the 24-count indictment were businessmen James T. Harmon and D. Mark Olson of Amarillo and John F. Buchholz of Falls City, Neb.

The five were charged with mail fraud, wire fraud and failure to report material events to Sambo's and to the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The indictment alleged that on or about May 15, 1977, and continuously thereafter until Nov. 15, 1979, the defendants knowingly and willfully engaged in scheme and artifice to defraud Sambo's and its stockholders of money and property.

The indictment said Harmon served as an "order buyer" of cattle and manager of a cattle feeding program for the restaurant and received kickbacks from feed grain and cattle sales.

In return for a percentage of commissions from a commodities company, the indictment alleges, Harmon turned over to Wagner and Willig profits from cattle-feeding programs he managed.

Harmon also is accused of profiting from falsified cattle and corn purchase orders and of marking up the price of cattle purchased for the restaurant.

Harmon, a licensed commodities broker, owned Progressive Livestock Services, Inc. and with Buchholz owned the J.B. Cattle Co. in Falls City, Neb., the indictment says.

Olson was vice president and treasurer of Progressive Livestock and conducted business for J.B. Cattle. He was accused of lying to the grand jury and of falsifying various reports to Sambo's that said none of the companies were connected.

Buchholz, charged with conspiracy, also is accused of denying to Sambo's that J.B. Cattle and Progressive Livestock were related.

The 24-count indictments were the result of an 18-month investigation into white-collar crime in the Panhandle.

B-52s unload live ammo in exercise

WADI NATRUN, Egypt (AP) — Six giant B-52 bombers unloaded their 500-pound bombs today in a spectacular live ammunition demonstration as part of America's military exercises in the desert west of Cairo.

The bombers which refueled over the Atlantic during the 7,500-mile, 15-hour nonstop flight from Minot Air Force Base, North Dakota, dropped 27 bombs each from an altitude of 1,000 feet.

The demonstration of long-range air power was part of Operation Bright Star, a month-long test in Egypt, Sudan, Somalia and Oman of the U.S. Rapid Deployment Force.

The bombing was the culmination of a three-day battlefield exercise involving 4,000 U.S. troops. It began Sunday with a helicopter assault by 600 American paratroopers and 400 Egyptian soldiers on two hills in the desert near Cairo West Airbase, 18 miles west of Cairo.

Also taking part were Soviet-built Badger bombers and MiG jetfighters and French-made Mirage fighters from the Egyptian air force plus U.S. A-10 and F-16 jets.

Two American AWACS — airborne warning and control system — planes were assigned to provide radar warning of the bombers' approach and to serve as aerial command posts.

Banks, government offices to close for Thanksgiving

Through the Thanksgiving holiday weekend, banks and government offices will close to observe the holiday.

School students will get a two-day reprieve from classes for the holiday. Schools will dismiss students at 2 p.m. Wednesday and will close for the weekend Monday. Students will again hit the books until the Christmas vacation, scheduled Dec. 21 through Jan. 1.

All local banking institutions and savings and loan associations will close for the holiday on Thanksgiving Day only, reopening on Friday as usual.

City, county, and state offices will observe the holiday by closing both Thursday and Friday to allow employees a four-day weekend. Only federal employees will work

Friday, following Thanksgiving Day.

The Pampa News will not publish a newspaper on Thanksgiving Day, but will resume regular publication Friday on the normal schedule.

Employees of local law enforcement agencies will be working, and law enforcement offices will be open over the four-day holiday.

The annual area-wide Thanksgiving service, sponsored by the Pampa Ministerial Alliance, will be conducted at 7 p.m. tonight in Central Baptist Church. The Rev. Gene Allen, pastor of the Lamar Full Gospel Assembly, is the speaker for the special service this year. The public is invited to attend.

Weather

The forecast calls for partly cloudy conditions today with warm afternoons. The high for today will be in the low 70s with overnight lows in the upper 40s. The high for Wednesday will be in the upper 70s. Winds will be 15-20 mph today. The forecast for Thanksgiving Day includes colder temperatures and a chance of thundershowers.

Prime rate drops to lowest this year

NEW YORK (AP) — Reflecting other declining interest rates, several major banks today lowered their prime lending rate to the lowest level in a year.

Citibank, ranked second-largest among U.S. commercial banks, and First National of Chicago, the ninth largest, cut their prime rate to 16 percent from 16.5 percent. Chemical Bank, ranked sixth largest, followed suit.

Chase Manhattan Bank No. 3 went further, dropping its prime from 16.5 percent to 15.75 percent.

The lowest equivalent prime rate was in mid-November 1980 when the prime varied from 15.5 percent to 16.25 percent.

Chase today said it lowered its prime because interest rates have been declining and loan demand had slackened.

Feds get back to work; budget battle postponed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is back in business and President Reagan's running budget battle with Congress is on hold after approval of a revised emergency spending measure.

"Of course, we now must come back and do the work all over again in the Congress on a bill that can be signed," Reagan said Monday night after he signed the stopgap spending bill, which expires Dec. 15.

Shortly afterward, Reagan left the White House for his California ranch, a Thanksgiving vacation that had been delayed a day because of the budget impasse.

In a telephone call from Air Force One, Reagan told the Republican Governors Association meeting in New Orleans that the battle with Congress had been "a game of chicken, and someone just had to bring it to a halt."

Reagan's acceptance of the new measure ended a confrontation with Congress that led to the president's first veto and the layoffs of hundreds of thousands of federal employees.

The president's supporters in Congress said the episode was fresh evidence of Reagan's resolve to slash federal spending. But furious Democratic leaders said the skirmishing that left the government technically insolvent for nearly 67 hours was only "a charade."

Reagan believes "there is a lot more work to be done," said deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes. "He's looking forward to working with Congress when he returns."

On Monday morning, Reagan vetoed a $428 billion emergency spending bill, expiring July 15, that a bitterly divided Congress had sent him late Sunday night. The House then voted 367-26 for a Republican-drafted compromise that expires Dec. 15 — as Reagan had requested.

The measure Reagan signed simply extended the interim spending legislation that expired at midnight Friday.

Democrats had wanted to extend interim spending authority through Feb. 3, but the Republican plan was substituted on a vote of 221-176.

Then the measure sailed through the Republican-controlled Senate, 88-1, with only Democratic Whip Alan Cranston of Calif. the confrontation in his efforts to hold down spending.

Congressional officials said that on an annual basis, the measure Reagan signed calls for about $27.3 billion less in spending authority than the measure Reagan vetoed. But $25 billion of that would come from defense, where Reagan wants to spend more money, and only $2.3 billion from domestic accounts, where he wants to spend less.

And the bill will remain in effect only for about three weeks. With Reagan's signature, normal government operations were resumed.

Reagan said the measure he vetoed and his order to close "non-essential" offices and send an estimated 400,000 federal workers home were necessary because the bill was fiscally ruinous, paving "the way for higher interest rates and inflation, and a continued loss of investment, jobs and economic growth."

House Republican leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois said that from the president's viewpoint the issue was "how do I really make my point that I'm serious about this?" Democrats scoffed.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., a harsh critic of Reagan all year, leveled his most pointed remarks to date, accusing the president of sheer political showmanship.

"It's an absolute and utter disgrace," O'Neill said of the veto. "This is positively an act he is putting on. He had no idea what the budget is."

Even Republicans were unhappy with the president's veto of the measure that was hammered out during a weekend of nearly non-stop negotiations between House and Senate conferees.

"We're the laughing stock of the nation. Let's get it over with and let's go home," Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., told the House after Reagan's veto message was read aloud.

Democrats conceded in advance that they lacked the votes to override the veto and didn't bother to try.

The bill that Reagan vetoed would have provided funds for all executive branch agencies and the federal court system through July 15. A catch-all spending bill is necessary because the only regular appropriations bill Congress has passed and Reagan has signed this year provides for congressional operations.

Reagan said the measure he vetoed granted him only $2 billion in cuts in domestic programs out of the $8.5 billion he asked for in September. "A few days ago, I offered to meet Congress halfway," he said, but $2 billion fell short even of that.

Democrats said, however, that the measure also provided for more than $1 billion less in foreign aid than the president sought.

New questions in Allen probe arise over sale of consulting firm

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House national security adviser Richard V. Allen, already under investigation for receiving $1,000 from two Japanese journalists, is facing new questions about the sale of his international consulting firm.

Allen wrote in his government financial disclosure statement that he sold the firm, Potomac International Corp., in January 1978, but he now says the sale actually occurred in January 1981, according to White House counsel Fred Fielding.

In the disclosure statement, filed last February at the Government Ethics Office, Allen said he stopped being president of Potomac International in January 1978 and added in parentheses "Sold business."

Asked about the 1978 date, Fielding said Allen sent him a memo last week stating that he had put down the 1978 date by mistake and had meant to write 1981.

But Fielding could not explain why, if the sale of Potomac International had occurred in January 1981, there was no mention of either the sale or Allen's recent ownership of the firm under the income and assets section of the financial questionnaire.

Bob Flynn, an official of the Government Ethics Office, said that if Allen had made a capital gain on the sale of the firm, that amount should have been listed under income.

And Flynn said federal regulations require nominees to list on their disclosure statements any interest in a business held at the end of the preceding calendar year.

Peter Hannaford, owner of the Hannaford Corp., has said his firm acquired Potomac International on Jan. 18, 1981, two days before President Reagan's inauguration and three days before Allen received $1,000 in cash from two Japanese journalists who had interviewed first lady Nancy Reagan.

However, when asked from whom his company had bought the consulting firm, Hannaford said, "No comment. You could ask me 25 questions, but all you're going to get is no comment."

Other past and present officials of Hannaford Corp. also refused to discuss who had owned the firm before Hannaford bought it.

In another development in the Allen case, The New York Times reported in today's editions that Secretary of the Navy John Lehman said he has signed a statement supporting Allen's contention that he had intended to surrender the $1,000 he received from the Japanese.

Allen expressed "chagrin and amazement" that he had been given the cash and told Lehman he had "stuck it in a safe to turn over to security," the newspaper said. Lehman, a close friend of Allen's, said the conversation took place either on Jan. 21, the day Allen received the cash, or within the next several days.

On the financial disclosure statement, Allen said he had received a $75,000 salary from Potomac International in 1980 and had been president of the consulting firm from August 1972 to January 1978.

But Potomac International's corporate reports on file with the District of Columbia listed Allen as president of the firm through its latest annual report, dated March 13, 1980. Those records, however, do not state who owns stock in the firm.

Allen could not be reached for comment. His spokesman, Peter Dailey, referred calls to Fielding, who besides being White House counsel had represented Allen before the two men entered the administration.

Knowingly and willfully stating false information on a government financial disclosure statement is a felony punishable under federal law by up to a $10,000 fine and five years in prison, according to the ethics office.

10,000 man march challenges government

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) - In a major challenge to the British government, the Rev. Ian Paisley led 10,000 cudgel-carrying Protestant vigilantes in a show of strength against London's policies.

The burly preacher-politician, demanding Britain launch all-out war against the Roman Catholic guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army, marched his "Third Force" through the Protestant town of Newtownards Monday night in defiance of the government's warning that it would not tolerate private armies.

"We will start a great recruiting campaign because I want no less than 100,000 men in Ulster. Ulster, united and together, is on the march," said Paisley.

He claimed he fielded 20,000 men from all six of Northern Ireland's counties, but reporters on the scene estimated there were 10,000.

Many of the marchers wore hoods or masks.

The Cabinet minister for Northern Ireland, James Prior, declared last week that the government would use "the full force" at its command to counter any challenge to its authority.

But the police did not interfere as Paisley led his men through the streets to wild cheering from an estimated 30,000 supporters.

The march culminated a "day of action" ordered by Paisley to demonstrate Protestant wrath over an upsurge or IRA murders of Protestants and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's attempts to forge a political link between Northern Ireland, with its 2-to-1 Protestant majority, and the 95 percent Catholic Irish Republic.

"We shall fight the London-Dublin talks," Paisley bellowed. "There will never be a united Ireland. Over our dead bodies."
Paisley's protest began with a 12-hour general strike that business leaders said was 70 percent effective and caused widespread disruption.
Banks and department stores in Belfast remained open, and most buses and trains ran.

Brezhnev offers unilateral missile reduction

BONN, West Germany (AP) - Chancellor Helmut Schmidt sees no major changes in Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev's new offer on missile reductions in Europe, Schmidt's spokesman, Kurt Becker, said today.

Becker said at a news conference that Schmidt "has actually taken over the function of an interpreter" between his American allies and the Soviet Union.

The chancellor hopes that the secretary-general (Brezhnev) with greater trust meets the United States' willingness to negotiate," Becker said.

Soviet spokesman Leonid Zamyatin took sharp issue with the idea that the Soviet leadership lacked understanding of the United States.

"I don't know if the statement is Herr Becker's own opinion, but if he has formed such an opinion that the Soviet leadership doesn't correctly understand the intentions of the American administration, that is not right. That is a false opinion," Zamyatin said.

The Soviet spokesman also reacted bitterly when Becker passed on the word that Schmidt, "since he himself was recently sick," was impressed with Brezhnev's vigor and his busy Schmidt underwent surgery last month to have a heart pacemaker implanted, and Brezhnev is also thought to have a pacemaker.

"That his physical condition is good and that he is capable of work, that all is evidenced by the talks...the number of the talks and the length of the talks he had yesterday," Zamyatin said.

Brezhnev spent some seven hours in meetings with West German leaders on Monday, he said, and listed Brezhnev's busy schedule today "to illustrate that the remarks of Herr Becker were not right."

Brezhnev on Monday night offered to reduce the number of Soviet medium-range nuclear weapons in Europe if the United States suspended its missile deployment plans while the two superpowers negotiate.

The offer, made in a speech during a dinner given by Schmidt, was a variation on a 1979 proposal rejected by the United States and its North Atlantic allies.

The 74-year-old Soviet leader offered to go a step further if the United States and NATO declared a moratorium on their plans to begin stationing 572 American Pershing 2 and cruise nuclear missiles in Western Europe in the fall of 1983.

"As a gesture of good will, we could unilaterally reduce a portion of our nuclear weapons of medium range in the European part of the U.S.S.R.," Brezhnev said.

He said this reduction would be "an advance on account, with the idea of moving toward a lower level upon which the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A. could concur" in the negotiations that begin Monday in Geneva.

"As far as our side is concerned," he said, "we would be ready to undertake the reduction not by dozens, but by hundreds."

Schmidt, during a three-hour session with Brezhnev earlier Monday, rejected the Soviet demand for a more of Soviet territory, and that the deployment of 572 more in Western Europe is an attempt to shift the balance of power in the United States' favor.

In Washington, the White House said it would have no immediate comment on Brezhnev's new offer.

DRIFTING RIG'S CREW RETURNS. The crew from the British oil rig "Transworld 58" emerge from a helicopter at Sole Airport near Stavenger after being evacuated from the rig which is adrift in the North Sea after losing four of her eight anchors. ## Crew from drifting oil rig rescued amidst galing winds, 40-foot waves

LONDON (AP) - Battling 40-foot waves on the North Sea and 90-mph winds, helicopters rescued seven seamen from a listing Norwegian freighter today and attempted to evacuate 70 people from a British oil rig adrift, officials said.

Residents along the Danish North Sea coast were evacuated from low-lying areas because officials said they feared high seas might break through dikes and cause tides up to 18 feet above normal.

It was the first time that section of coast was evacuated since a storm lashed West Jutland in January, 1976, authorities said.

One of the sailors aboard the Norwegian freighter Soerstrand was "lifeless" when pulled aboard the Danish helicopter, the Danish coast guard reported. It was unknown whether the man was revived.

The worst gales and tides in five years lashed the North German coast, disrupting ferry travel in the North Sea and flooding a wide area of the lowland plain.

A Royal Air Force spokesman said the British rig Transworld 58 broke free from eight of its anchors and was dragging the one remaining about 150 miles east of the Scottish oil port of Aberdeen, the British news agency Press Association reported.

The spokesman at the RAF Rescue and Coordination Center said two chartered helicopters had been sent to transfer 42 of the Transworld 58 crew to another rig 50 miles away, the Auk.

The Auk reported the other rig had drifted about half a mile to the southeast, the news agency said.

Press Association reported earlier that the Norwegian supply rig Phillips SS, with 112 men aboard, broke loose from its anchors 30 miles north of the British rig and was in danger of colliding with another rig with 82 men aboard until a tug got hold of it.

But in Oslo, the Norwegian capital, Phillips Petroleum Co. spokesman Sander Bull-Gjertsen said only one of the supply rig's eight anchors had broken loose, the rig was never adrift, and there was no danger of collision with the production rig Tor.

Chinese government boosts private enterprise, tells youth to find jobs

PEKING (AP) - In a major boost to private enterprise, China's Communist government called for a mixed economy, urged young people to find their own jobs and told the state no longer owes them a living.

The official press announced Monday that the Communist Party's Central Committee and the cabinet, or State Council, issued a directive to encourage more private and collectively run enterprises.

The decision constituted an official seal of approval for the growing private sector and a major political and ideological victory for Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping and other pragmatic reformers.

"While the socialist economy dominates and guides," the announcement said, "the coexistence of different forms of economic activity is one of the party's strategic decisions, not an expedient measure."
The announcement called for major reforms in the rigid management process and said regulations for private and collective enterprises must be relaxed.

During the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution all private enterprises were banned, and Maoists call the blossoming of private enterprise the return of "capitalist tails" that must be lopped off. But the announcement said although private enterprise is back and has expanded, it still does not meet the needs of the people and the economy.

It said each self-employed person now may hire two helpers and five apprentices. Previously they were restricted to using family members and one or two helpers or apprentices.

With unemployment estimated by foreign observers at 10 million or more in an urban labor force the government said totaled 105.25 million at the end of 1980, the directive said young people should organize cooperative businesses or become self-employed cooks, merchants, repairmen or tailors. It noted there was a shortage of workers in those occupations.

A front-page editorial in the People's Daily, the Communist Party newspaper, said the old system of giving every young person a job in a state-run enterprise didn't work.

And to counter low productivity hampering economic growth, the People's Daily suggested factory managers should be allowed to fire workers, ending a system of job security that protected shirkers and troublemakers as well as the productive.

The party organ said workers in some factories lack job skills, fail to put in a full day's work, steal state property and engage in fights.

The government urged creation of labor service companies to help young people find work, organize their own businesses and receive job training.

Pentagon creates new Caribbean command

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new U.S. military command for the Caribbean will have no permanently assigned forces, but will be authorized to call on naval units in the area and could utilize elements of the Army and Air Force if necessary.

The upgrading of what had been a small task force based in Key West, Fla., was announced Monday by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger. The task force was established two years ago by former President Carter in a largely symbolic response to the presence of a Soviet brigade in Cuba.

Monday's action apparently was intended to signal concern about increasing leftist strength and communist arms shipments in Central America.

Under the new arrangement, the Joint Chiefs of Staff could provide elements of the Army and Air Force for the new Caribbean command to supplement the naval units. Officers and other military personnel of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines will be assigned to the staff of the new command, the Pentagon said.

The announcement comes as senior Reagan administration officials are publicly expressing alarm at what Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. described Sunday as a "drift toward totalitarianism" in leftist-ruled Nicaragua and reported outside arms support for anti-government guerrillas in El Salvador.

Inflation increase least since 1980

WASHINGTON (AP) - Inflation rose just 0.4 percent in October, the least for any month since the summer of 1980, as housing costs flattened out after 15 months of rising steadily, the government reported today.

The Consumer Price Index has now risen at an annual rate of 9.6 percent for the first 10 months of this year, and analysts say they see no inflation shocks forthcoming in the next two months, particularly with the recession depressing demand for goods.

The report made it almost certain inflation for 1981 will be less than 10 percent, probably around 9.5 percent, and well below what economists call the "double-digit territory" of the last two years.

Housing costs pushed inflation, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, up at an annual rate of 10 percent or more for three straight months before October, including a 14.8 percent rate in September.

The Labor Department said October's CPI increase of 0.4 percent would amount to an annual rate of 4.4 percent if inflation continued at the same pace for 12 straight months.

That was the best showing since the 0.1 percent increase in July 1980, during a recession. And the current recession, with its severe effect on housing sales and construction, undoubtedly contributed to the report that housing costs increased not at all in October.

Costs of homeownership actually declined 0.3 percent, the new report said. That category included a 0.7 percent decrease in home prices and a decrease of 0.1 percent in financing costs.

Increases for rent, household furnishings and maintenance brought the overall housing component up to zero.

The housing category had increased 1 percent or more for five straight months before October, and it had shown increases every month since declining 0.7 percent in July 1980.

would have risen 0.7 percent in October, an annual rate of 8.4 percent, if a rental equivalent formula - to be implemented in 1983 - had been used.

Food and drink prices increased only a moderate 0.2 percent in October after a brisk 1 percent rise in September, the report said.

Prices at the grocery store rose an average of only 0.1 percent.

Clothing costs increased just 0.2 percent in October.

On the other hand, transportation costs rose 1.2 percent in October, paced by a 1.2 percent increase in gasoline prices and a 3.1 percent increase in used car prices. New car prices declined 0.3 percent, but that covered mostly 1981 models being sold off at the end of the model year with little or no profit. Medical care costs rose 1 percent, and entertainment costs 0.8 percent.

The figures are adjusted for normal seasonal variations in pricing. Before such adjustment, the CPI rose to 279.9 in October, meaning that goods that cost $10 in 1967 would have cost $27.99 last month.

Federal lawsuit seeks to close three military liquor stores

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A lawsuit filed by civilian liquor dealers asks a federal court to close three military liquor stores it claims are being operated illegally at Fort Sam Houston and Lackland and Randolph Air Force Bases.

The federal lawsuit, filed Monday on behalf of eight civilian liquor dealers and the San Antonio Package Store Association, charged that the military liquor stores were being operated in violation of Army, Air Force and Department of Defense regulations.

It further alleged that the military package stores are unfairly competing with civilian package stores and are not collecting hundreds of thousands of dollars in state, city and transit district sales taxes on millions of dollars in liquor taken off base, as required by state law.

Named as defendants were Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, Secretary of the Army John O. Marsh Jr., Secretary of the Air Force Verne Orr and Texas Comptroller Bob Bullock, who is in charge of collecting the state and local sales taxes.

The suit, filed by attorneys Gerald Goldstein and Stanley Eisenberg, alleged that current conditions "do not and would not warrant the establishment of such package liquor stores to unfairly compete with the private sector at a time when the Congress of the United States has conducted hearings determining alcohol abuse to be a demonstrable and significant factor crippling our military's ability to perform its primary function to protect and defend."

Public affairs spokesmen at the three bases said they would have no detailed comment until base commanders and attorneys have a chance to read the 19-page suit. But all three spokesmen denied the allegation that the base liquor stores were not in compliance with military regulations and laws.

"We followed regulations all the way down the line, precisely," said Marla Jones at Fort Sam Houston, where a package store was opened last July.

"We're not collecting taxes because we don't have to collect tax, because there's no requirement that we do so. We're not violating any laws."

"We complied with Air Force regulations in applying for permission to open the store. Other than that I can't comment on the litigation," added spokesman Joe McAnally at Lackland, which opened a package store last January.

"I can assure you we did follow the regulations to the crossing of the T's and dotting of the I's," said Doug Moore at Randolph, where a liquor store has operated since 1968.

Ms. Jones, McAnally and Moore all vehemently denied the suit's allegation that the base stores sell liquor on Sundays or at hours later than civilian stores.

Goldenstein charged at a news conference Monday that military personnel and retirees were buying "hordes" of liquor at the base stores at prices 10 percent below civilian stores and without paying the 5.5 percent sales tax, to the detriment of free enterprise.

Prison master denounces officials

HOUSTON (AP) — The court-appointed overseer of Texas prisons, blamed by state officials for a rash of inmate violence, has questioned Attorney General Mark White's failure to sign a statement urging convicts to avoid such actions.

White Sunday denounced the statement prepared by special master Vincent M. Nathan as "pabulum" and refused to sign it until stronger language is used.

"Maybe White doesn't agree with it," Nathan said. "It certainly reflects my position."

The statement was prepared by Nathan, U.S. Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds and William Bennett Turner, the San Francisco attorney representing the inmates.

It was forwarded to White's office Friday night.

Nathan denounced as "irresponsible and calculated to create more violence" accusations from White and Gov. Bill Clements that his office has provoked unrest among inmates in Texas Department of Corrections facilities.

Fifty prisoners were injured Friday during a two-hour riot at the Eastham Unit near Trinity. It was the third confrontation between inmates and guards in seven days.

Clements accused Nathan of "causing severe problems in the prison system ... causing the prisoners to get restless."

"The blame for the last two outbreaks lies directly on the master. He has to bear the responsibility," Clements said.

Nathan, a lawyer from Toledo, Ohio, was appointed special master by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler.

Following trial of a lawsuit filed by an inmate, Justice ordered sweeping reforms to ease overcrowding and to stop alleged abuse of inmates' constitutional rights. That ruling is still on appeal.

Since Nathan's appointment, several reports critical of the TDC's efforts to comply with Justice's orders have been filed in federal courts here.

Clements' allegations that Nathan's monitors were "invading the prison" are not true, Nathan said.

Attorney sued for missing a trial

DALLAS (AP) — Robert Mootz' divorce case has dissolved into arguments about lawyers' courtesies to each other and may be headed for a hearing before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Mootz, 54, is suing his attorney for not showing up at his divorce trial, where Mootz says a judge awarded most of his property to his wife.

But the lawyer, Brian A. Eberstein, claims the ex-wife's attorney told him the trial had been rescheduled. And Eberstein's former partner, W. J. "Bill" Morris, says lawyer courtesies were violated when a judgment was issued without Eberstein's presence.

Edmund Burke, the ex-wife's attorney, denies he misled Eberstein.

Meanwhile, Mootz' request for a retrial by the state district court has been turned down by the trial judge, Patrick Guillot, and the Court of Civil Appeals.

The Texas Supreme Court turned down the case, saying it does not hear appeals of divorce trials, and the U.S. Supreme Court has been asked to force the Texas court to hear it.

Eberstein says the suit, "as ridiculous as it is," could ruin him professionally. "It is one big headache, very disturbing, terribly unfair by Mootz, and you can't get something like this off your mind," he says.

Morris said divorce lawyers settle cases without the other side being present "all the time. But a lawyer will never get a default judgment when another lawyer is involved and can't make it to court. He'll just have the hearing reset. He won't make the judge rule. That's the code."

But Burke denied he ever mentioned a changed court date and says the whole problem is the result of a misunderstanding.

"We were down at the court a few days before the trial," Burke said. "Morris was there, and I told him we needed to reset a contempt motion regarding Mootz, who wasn't giving up some property he was ordered to. I said that motion was going to be set for the next week."

Salt company says it lost $219 million

NEW IBERIA, La. (AP) — The Diamond Crystal Salt Co. claims an oil company and the state of Louisiana owe Diamond Crystal $219 million for damages resulting from the collapse of its Jefferson Island salt mine.

A statement issued Monday by the Michigan-based firm said the first dollar estimate of damages was contained in an amendment to the lawsuits filed earlier in U.S. district court in Lafayette and in a state district court at Baton Rouge.

Diamond Crystal said Texaco Inc. was directly responsible when one of its drilling rigs pictured a salt mine shaft about 1,300 feet below the surface of Lake Peigneur on Nov. 20, 1980. It said the state of Louisiana was negligent in monitoring the Texaco drilling operations.

Massive underground salt formations were dissolved when water from the lake and nearby Delcambre Canal rushed into the mine, sucking more than 70 acres of land into the resulting crater.

Two drilling rigs, a tugboat and a string of barges also were sucked beneath the surface. A large portion of Live Oak Gardens botanical gardens also was destroyed. None of the 50 workers inside the mine were reported injured at the time, but two have since filed damage suits.

Nearly 300 miners were thrown out of work. So many lawsuits and countersuits have since been filed that the legal battles were expected to last for years.

The federal trial involving Diamond Salt, Texaco and Louisiana is scheduled to be heard next October at Lafayette.

A Texaco spokesman admitted last year that the drilling operations were related to the mine's collapse, but Texaco disavowed responsibility.

Pat Caffery, a New Iberia lawyer representing Texaco in the suit, said the oil company has not yet responded to the amended plea.

What happened to him should happen to you.

State gives banks a break

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The State Depository Board has given banks a break on interest that could reduce the state's income by about $70 million a year.

The three-man board met

Monday and chopped the interest rate banks must pay on time deposits of state funds from 14.5 percent to 11 percent.

State Treasurer Warren G. Harding, a member of the board, said the reduction was "necessary under the current money market."

He said banks, however, had not applied any pressure for a reduction in the rate.

If the 11 percent rate holds for a full year, the reduction in revenue to the state would be about $70 million, based on the current average of $2 billion in state time deposits.

Harding said the board could meet again at any time and change the rate again.

"We've had 10 meetings in two years. We try to stay up with the current market. If it goes up, we'll meet again," he said.

Mengden: Send nuke waste to El Salvador

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The U.S. should store its nuclear waste in El Salvador, State Sen. Walter Mengden said Monday.

Mengden, R-Houston, suggested sending nuclear waste to the Central American country at a news conference here, as he began a three-day swing through the Panhandle to promote his candidacy for U.S. Senate.

"We've marched all over the world for democracy, and there are other places in the world where it (nuclear waste) can be stored, if we don't want the communists — we might as well say it: the Russians, they're not Italians — coming through Cuba and then to El Salvador."

Mengden said. "If we secure El Salvador for that dictator, then we should store our nuclear waste there in east El Salvador, where no one lives," the Houston Republican said.

"We want something in return, and if the people in Swisher County don't want it (nuclear waste), and if they want to put it in El Salvador, then we should."

Canada is on a slow path

Compromise. Historians will tell you it's the glue that held the United States together for more than two hundred years. The one time the states could not compromise led to the Civil War, or the War between the States, which is exactly what it was.

Since 1867, when Britain gave Canada its present "constitution," the nation's provincial governments have been independent political forces, much opposed to strong rule from the central government in Ottawa. In recent years, French Canadians in Quebec neared the brink of secession. However, the spirit of compromise played heavily in cooling off hotter heads.

Now Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau has negotiated constitutional reform. Some of his proposals have been hotly contested, resulting in a year-long deadlock. However, Canadians are working out their differences.

The United States also had to struggle when it agreed upon a national constitution in the late 1700s. And it was through a series of compromises that it succeeded. The Canadians are in a similar confrontation, with Quebec the lone holdout.

From the United States' perspective, this is of concern. We know too well the tragedy that can befall a nation if it cannot give and take when regions differ on issues. A strong, unified Canada is in the best interest of Quebec — and this country.

Decertify the FAA

The process of decertifying PATCO, the air traffic controllers' union, appears to be complete. It has no legal standing. Now pressure is developing to hire back some of the fired controllers, as flight delays and government-mandated cutbacks have proved inconvenient and annoying to the airline industry, private pilots and the flying public. The episode offers the administration an opportunity to make fundamental changes in the air-traffic control system that could offer safer flying conditions while reducing the amount laid out by taxpayers for the safety services.

The immediate aftermath of the traffic controllers strike gave the cynics among us plenty of opportunity to believe that there was featherbedding in the system. Before the strike 19,000 controllers and supervisors handled air traffic in the U.S. After the strike, 9,000 — fewer than half — managed to handle 75 percent of the normal traffic, and some pilots went so far as to suggest that they felt more secure under the new conditions. In the ensuing months some problems have developed with the improvised system, leading to the delays now familiar to frequent travelers. But, evidence suggests that inefficiencies in the tower-control system are just the tip of the iceberg at the Federal Aviation Administration.

Further research indicates that the FAA has, at best, a spotty record with regard to air traffic control. Robert Poole, editor of REASON magazine, in his new book, "Instead of regulation," describes the FAA thus: "... a classic bureaucracy, unable to keep up with technological change, wasting resources, stumbling along from crisis to crisis, pressured by lobbyists, harassed by politicians, and seeking protection in the bowels of the civil service system." Poole claims that even other Washington agencies (few of them models of lean and - clean efficiency) view the FAA as "filled with incompetents who don't know how to manage."

For example, although improved radar technology was one of the key byproducts of World War II, the FAA's predecessor agency resisted the implementation of radar in the traffic control system until the middle 1950s, and then seemed to ungrade its radar capability only in response to disastrous crashes. The present system is several generations behind the state-of-the-art.

In 1975 a task force appointed by then Transportation Secretary Claude Brinegar (again in the wake of a disastrous crash) concluded that the FAA's headquarters operation was "large and unwieldy and may serve as a detriment to FAA's performance of its safety mission." The task force also said that the agency's rule-making process was "cumbersome and burdened with delays," here was a "scarcity of top flight talent" and that its technology program was having a lot of trouble coming to grips with long-range changes in the system.

The fundamental reason for all of these problems is not that the FAA is filled with uncaring incompetents who are incapable of acting except in the wake of disasters. The major cause is the nature of the institution — a bureaucracy with a mandated monopoly over its area of responsibility. As such the FAA is subject to a number of pressures — from politicians, lobbyists, airplane manufacturers and unions — that have little to do with, and may detract from, its primary mission.

The solution to this problem is to place responsibility for air traffic control in private hands and let it be financed by user fees. We have suggested this solution in the past, and we are not alone. In 1975 the FAA itself appointed the Special Air Safety Advisory Group to recommend changes and the group suggested converting the FAA into a private corporation. Even PATCO, the now-dismembered union, has advocated such a course off and on since 1969.

There are precedents for such a solution. In Switzerland, Radio-Schweiz A-G is a non profit corporation that provides all air traffic control services for that country. Though the company received some start-up money from the government, it is fully private and entirely funded now by user fees.

In the U.S. there is a non profit firm owned jointly by the airlines to provide certain kinds of communications services among different airlines on the ground and between airplanes in flight and ground stations, called Aeronautical Radio, Inc. (ARINC). ARINC was founded in 1929, and had events developed differently, it might be providing air traffic control services now. Today, in contrast to the FAA, ARINC is recognized as a world leader in aeronautical communications and in utilizing new technology.

Turning air traffic control over to the private sector should be a solution with great appeal to the Reagan administration. The trap to avoid is the sort of corporate-government hybrid (like the Postal Service or Amtrack) that usually manages to incorporate the worst features of both corporations and government. Private companies are usually more efficient than government because they are subject to the kinds of discipline — such as turning a profit and meeting competition — that tend to focus attention on the task at hand, not because they are always populated by a superior breed of people.

Government officials now estimate that it will take three years to build the air traffic control system back to its prestrike capacity. That's enough time to convert it to an entirely private system, even allowing for a period when two systems might overlap, until the new system has been "debugged." It's even conceivable that if the decision to privatize were made promptly, we could be back at full pre-strike capacity sooner than currently projected. If we've been forced by circumstances to rebuild the system from the ground up, why not put it on firmer ground?

By DON GRAFF
The usually well-mannered Washington press corps is accustomed to laughing with, not at, a president.

They forgot themselves the other day, however, when Ronald Reagan solemnly assured that "no bickering or backbiting" is going on in his "very happy" administration.

Under circumstances that should require no further explanation at this point, the newspeople can probably be forgiven the momentary breach of protocol. The president himself, however, is a different case.

In this and other statements at his most recent press conference, Reagan appeared to be embracing a by-now familiar attitude toward the press: that it is not only the bearer of bad news but often the creator.

He suggested that the press had made a big story where there really was none by exaggerating "out of all reality" the differences between his top foreign affairs and defense advisers. Reporters were admonished to consider the impact abroad of their reporting from Washington.

The capital, he observed at one point, reminded him of a "gigantic ear." The implication apparently being that Washington, and particularly that part of a uniquely specialized community that specializes in information, should refuse to hear anything that might be construed as bad news. At least so construed by the standards of the administration of the moment.

It is an attitude that is not unique to this president. It is the same one that skewed the press and public relations of most of his immediate predecessors. The obvious example is Richard Nixon's lengthy adversary relationship with the working press. But even John Kennedy, who enjoyed a generally good press if any recent president did, had his off moments, being moved at one point to delete the late and lamented New York Herald Tribune from the White House subscription list.

Further, it is an attitude that is usually acquired after Inauguration Day. A presidential hopeful can find a press critical — even a press savaging — of an incumbent exceedingly helpful to his own purposes.

But once in the Oval Office, it is understandable that a president can come to view an inquisitive and frequently critical press as an obstacle to his policies. The danger comes when a president goes a long step farther, taking the implied position that the press should actively assist in the pursuit of those policies.

The press sees the situation quite differently. It is not its function either to help or to hinder the public policies of the internal tensions of an administration, but to report them as accurately as possible. Its primary obligation is to the public.

Never mind that in the short run that public may sympathize more with a president, particularly a popular one, than with a press that feels may be too sharply critical — or may be telling it things it would rather not hear. In the long run an informed public, even against its desires, is more important to the political health of the nation than the specific programs of any administration.

As to what information reaches the public, it should be kept in mind that an ear — even a gigantic one — picks up nothing from the sound of silence. Something has first to be heard to be repeated, and in recent weeks plenty has been forthcoming from prominent members of the Reagan team.

It may be that the press has exaggerated the significance of the very real bickering and backbiting within the administration, but it has certainly been actively abetted in doing so.

The president has the authority and is certainly justified in seeking to put an end to the abetting. But putting an end to the reporting is something else again — and anything but a laughing matter. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

A college for every Christian and vice-versa

By D.R. SEGAL

Jerry Falwell, the fellow who coined the term Moral Majority, has founded a college somewhere in the East. Bob Jones, another electronic evangelist, has a considerable plant in Oklahoma, known, not surprisingly, as Bob Jones University. The more traditional sects are associated, in various terms, with colleges and universities ranging from Notre Dame to Pepperdine. Church-related colleges appear to be getting increasingly nervy about their sectarian associations and they go to considerable trouble to remark that you don't have to be Jewish to enjoy Levy's rye bread. You can, to be sure, hear almost any brand of philosophy expounded on the campus of Notre Dame, some of which, a few centuries ago, would have brought an Inquisitor on the first flight from Rome.

Colleges and universities aspiring or pretending to some sort of academic respectability content themselves with making the freshmen take a course in Religion or requiring them to go to weekly "chapel," which can't hurt anybody. The student bodies of these schools regard their church affiliation as an embarrassment and the faculty treats it rather like a cuckoo aunt who is locked up in the attic and howls on the full moon.

This is not so in the case of universities such as Bob Jones, and I presume Jerry Falwell's, where only Christians are welcome and they are encouraged to let everybody know they are Christians and, in face, Christianer than others and getting better all the time. I have no idea how Jerry Falwell's Christians regard Bob Jones's Christians, and the other way around, and I can't think how they rate the Christians at Notre Dame who are clearly superior to the others on crisp Saturday afternoons in the Fall.

This is as it should be — a university for every student and a student for every university. If it pleases some to say beads and others to dance a jig down the aisle, very likely an experienced and tolerant God will accept them both with equanimity and cause the sun to rise in the east and set in the west with its customary predictability.

I once took a few courses at an East Texas college devoted to the production of Baptist preachers. There is a place for such a college because it does its job with precision and economy, wasting no time on matters which have nothing to do with preaching the Baptist convictions. I cannot conceive of Stanford training preachers for small East Texas Baptist churches but there is as much need for these specialists as there is for the physicists and business managers who issue form Stanford to run a faster track which is no less circular than the one for the joggers and walkers.

Watch out, Kadafi

By ART BUCHWALD
As a reader of spy thrillers, I have been following the CIA - Libyan Connection with a great deal of interest. It appears there are these two ex-agents named Frank Terpil and Edward Wilson who have a contract with Col. Kadafi to train terrorists, organize assassinations, hire American pilots and ex-Green Beret types, and procure all sorts of lethal weapons which will help Kadafi knock off his enemies.

Now you may wonder why two Americans, who served their country, would go over to the other side to help a madman who runs one of the most heinous governments in the world.

Well, if you read thrillers the way I do, then you'll probably buy the answer. Wilson and Terpil really still work for the CIA. But in order not to blow their cover, they keep devising ways to knock off American diplomats.

"The Company" has known for a long time what the two men are up to, particularly when it comes to buying material in the United States to further the cause of world terrorism.

The two turncoats also have been permitted to recruit mercenaries in the United States while the U.S. has looked the other way, to convince Col. Kadafi that they are on his side.

Unbeknownst to the CIA, Terpil and Wilson were photographed by the KGB in a compromising situation in a Tripoli hotel room, and the Soviets turned them around so they would work for them. The Russians don't trust Kadafi any more than the Americans, and threatened to release photographs of the two men to the "National Enquirer" unless they became double agents, which both men agreed to do.

What the KGB doesn't know is that the real Terpil and Wilson were spirited off to Israel, and replaced with two Israeli intelligence agents pretending to be Terpil and Wilson, but actually reporting on Kadafi's activities to Tel Aviv through a Swiss company that "Mossad" has set up.

The French found out about this and that's how they managed to get the Libyans to pull out of Chad. Terpil and Wilson advised Kadafi to give up in Chad, because they said they couldn't supply him with any more planes from the United States.

British intelligence, which is not sure what game the CIA is playing, has planted a beautiful Italian countess on Terpil, who will do anything to avenge the murder of her father by Kadafi.

Egyptian agents have offered Wilson one million dollars in an American tax-free All-Savers account, if he will push Kadafi out of an airplane at 35,000 feet.

In order to prove his loyalty to Kadafi, Wilson reported the offer to the colonel, which has made Kadafi believe more in Wilson and Terpil than he ever did.

The biggest problem Terpil and Wilson have at the moment is to keep Libya from building an atomic bomb in Pakistan.

The CIA has supplied the two men with blueprints of the Three Mile Island nuclear plant, and if the Pakistanis follow the plans, the bomb will blow up in their faces.

Now I know there are a few people out there who believe that this scenario is farfetched, but it's the only one that makes any sense.

Otherwise, you have to ask yourself why would the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, which has terminated many of its enemies for far less, permit two of its ex-agents to organize a worldwide terrorist network, and supply them with weapons and American pilots and ex-Green Berets.

I'm sticking with my theory until a better one comes along. If I were in Kadafi's place, I would bury both Frank Terpil and Edward Wilson in hot sand up to their necks, and let red ants have a go at them until they tell the real reason why they're so anxious to help Libya become the terrorist capital of the world.

Today in history

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 24, the 328th day of 1981. There are 37 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Nov. 24, 1963, the accused assassin of President John F. Kennedy, Lee Harvey Oswald, was shot to death by Jack Ruby in Dallas.

On this date:

In 1867, barbed wire was patented by American inventor Joseph Glidden.

In 1942, German troops suffered heavy losses in the Battle of Stalingrad in World War II.

In 1961, the U.N. Security Council called on members of the world body to make all of Africa a zone free of nuclear weapons.

And in 1974, at a meeting in Vladivostok, Soviet Union, President Gerald Ford and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev reached tentative agreement to limit the number of offensive strategic nuclear weapons.

Ten years ago, Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin unveiled his government's new five-year plan, calling on the United States "give up its attempts to discriminate against the Soviet Union" in trade matters.

Five years ago, George Bush announced his resignation as head of the Central Intelligence Agency.

One year ago: A federal appeals court in New York dismissed a multi-billion-dollar damage suit filed on behalf of hundreds of Vietnam War veterans exposed to the defoliant Agent Orange.

Today's birthdays: former New York City Mayor John Lindsay is 60, columnist William Buckley is 56.

Paddlings on increase in Dade County schools

MIAMI (AP) — Dade County schoolchildren in increasing numbers are making the acquaintance of "Mr. Understanding" and similar wooden paddles that translate school officials' new get-tough attitude into something the students can feel.

Paddlings in county schools jumped 27 percent last year, with 16,750 cases of corporal punishment reported by principals, according to statistics kept by the 224,500-student school district.

James Hunt, principal of Booker T. Washington Junior High School, rests Mr. Understanding on top of his desk in full view of students who are sent to his office.

"It takes all the anxiety out of their visits," said Hunt, a big man with a wide grin.

Last year, as principal of Lake Stevens Junior High School, Hunt administered 874 paddlings — the record for the school system.

Hunt said the use of corporal punishment is up because there is a new, get-tough attitude in the schools toward unruly students.

Dade school principals and teachers who use the paddle — only 48 of 261 schools reported no paddlings last year — are under longstanding orders to follow procedures set by the school board. Rules specify that:

- The paddle must be wooden and no larger than 2 feet long, 1/2-inch thick and 4 inches wide. It can be used only on the buttocks.
- Elementary students can be struck only twice, junior high school students three times and high school students four times.
- Another principal or teacher must witness the paddling, and no other students may be present to contribute to "ridicule or shame."
- A principal must notify parents that their child was paddled and keep a record of the paddling. The record is forwarded to superiors.

Hunt told The Miami News in an interview published Monday that he thinks there were more paddlings than were reported last year. Some principals don't report them at all, he said.

Not everyone is happy with the trend toward more paddling. School board member Janet McAiley is opposed to corporal punishment and has formed a committee of 30 principals, teachers and students to study its effectiveness.

Ten-hut! For an ageless drill team

RENTON, Wash. (AP) — A dozen or so senior-citizen cheerleaders had nothing to do when the softball season ended, so they hired two Marine drill sergeants and fell in line as the Renton Senior Center Drill Team.

"Heads back, stomachs in, right face!" the drill instructors bark for an hour every Friday afternoon, and obeying the orders are women who range in age from 63 to 81.

"It's fun," Jeanette Riggie, 72, who helped organize the squad, said Monday. "It's good mental work, strong discipline and quick thinking."

"I think they do about like they would with new Marine recruits. They snap it to you — straighten up! Shoulders back! They put us through the paces."

Annie Kuharic, 81, the oldest member, said that after an hour of marching, she goes to folk dance class. The result of her labors?

"I stay young," she said.

Marching, Mrs. Kuharic said, is "good for the posture and good mentally. I'm a little slow mentally, my thinking is a little slow, but I'm trying awfully hard. You really have to concentrate."

The drill team was organized in the fall when the women, then known as the Late Bloomers cheering squad, saw the softball season end. The women attend the center, which organizes activities for senior citizens.

Mrs. Riggie asked Sgt. Ray Wagner of the Marine recruiting office in Renton to help, so he and Sgt. Dan Garrett of the Federal Way recruiting office share drill duty.

No decision on Fonda

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The family of veteran actor Henry Fonda was hoping he could be home for Thanksgiving, but a hospital spokeswoman says doctors have not made a determination.

"His doctor hasn't made any decision about it yet," said Virginia Bohannon at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, where Fonda has been since Nov. 17. She described his condition Monday as "the same. He's OK. He's still here having his (heart) medication monitored."

There was no change in his condition early today, officials said.

A spokesman for the 76-year-old star described him Monday as "very ill" and also expressed concerns that he might not be able to go home for the holiday.

"He's very ill but he's been this ill for a long time. Then he gets a little stronger, then he slips back. I think he's getting a little stronger," Fonda spokesman John Springer said by telephone from his New York office.

"He has indicated that he wants to be home at Thanksgiving. Whether he'll be able to or not, I don't know," Springer added.

'The Bear' goes home

WASHINGTON (AP) — His doctors say he is not home free, but at least White House press secretary James S. Brady is home — eight months after he was shot in the brain during an assassination attempt on President Reagan.

"I am here to say, 'The Bear is back,'" Brady, nicknamed the Bear, said in a statement issued as he left the hospital Monday afternoon. "We rejoin our friends and neighbors with a true spirit of optimism for the future."

After the short ride in a specially equipped van from George Washington University Hospital to his suburban Virginia home, Brady was greeted with a kiss on the cheek from his 2 1/2-year-old son, Scott.

The Bradys' two-story brick house was decked out with a banner declaring: "Welcome Home Bear!"

Friends and neighbors who had gathered for the homecoming cheered as Brady, flashing the thumbs-up sign from his wheelchair, left the van. He was preceded by his wife, Sarah, carrying a bottle of champagne in one hand and her husband's elbow crutch in the other.

Brady, who had only left

County employees back on job

GROESBECK, Texas (AP) — Limestone County employees whose work-week was cut to three days earlier this month in a budget move will resume 40-hour work-weeks Dec. 1, county commissioners announced Monday.

At their Monday meeting, the commissioners hiked the county tax rate by 44 percent despite protests from about 80 county residents.

County Judge Calvin Hardison said a Nov. 4 halt on county purchases will continue, though he added that tax receipts of $140,000 will allow the county to resume full work schedules for county employees.

Limestone County Sheriff Dennis Walker said some of his deputies had taken part-time ranching jobs during the cut-back, and said he had been on call 24 hours a day to cover for the absence of personnel.

"I'm tickled," Walker said after the announcement. "Maybe I can get some sleep now."

NUMB ARMS, LEGS Danger Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others.

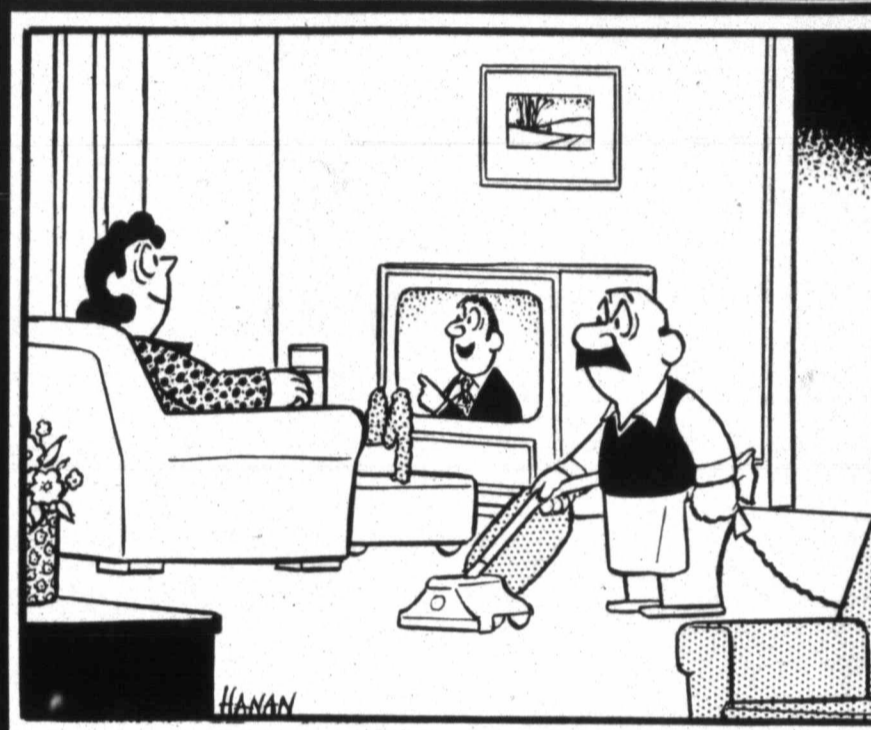

Here are nine critical symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations which are usually the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these usually spells back trouble.

- (1) Paresthesias (see above)
- (2) Headaches
- (3) Painful joints
- (4) Numbness in the arms or hands
- (5) Loss of sleep
- (6) Stiffness in the neck
- (7) Pain between the shoulders
- (8) Stiffness of pain in lower back
- (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals indicate that your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these danger signals...call for in depth consultation in Layman's terms.

Polish Pierogi a tasty treat

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
DEAR CECILY: My grandmother used to fix pierogi for us. But we never thought of getting her recipe and no one I know here in the South has even heard of them. I believe pierogi were originally a Polish dish, although my grandmother was Ukrainian. We grandchildren really miss this treat and wonder whether you can help us out with a recipe. — KENTUCKY COOK

DEAR KENTUCKY COOK: There's a great recipe for pierogi in "Christmas Helps," a soft-cover publication put out by Family Circle and available now in supermarkets through Dec. 26. The recipe was contributed by Jen Borkoski, a restaurateur and caterer in Southampton, N.Y. Jen uses her mother's Polish recipe so her pierogi (cheese-filled dumplings) are authentic. I, for one, love them — just as I love such starchy goodies as homemade ravioli. One bit of advice: The dough is elastic and, like that for pizza, constantly springs back when you are rolling it out. It takes a lot of perseverance to roll this dough as thin as it should be — but the results are worth it. — C.B.

JEN BORKOSKI'S
PIEROGI
3½ cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup warm water
1 package (1 pound) farmer's cheese
2 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon chopped chives (optional)
2 cups heavy cream
½ cup (1 stick) butter or margarine

Sift flour, baking powder and salt into a large bowl; make a well. Add 2 beaten eggs and water and stir to make a soft dough.

Turn out onto lightly floured surface and knead until quite elastic. Cover with bowl and allow to rest 10 minutes.

Break farmer's cheese into a medium bowl; blend in 2 beaten eggs, salt and chives, if used, to make a smooth mixture.

Roll out dough to a 1-16th inch thickness on a lightly floured surface; cut into 4-inch squares. Place a rounded tablespoonful of cheese mixture in center of squares; fold over to form a triangle; turn edges under to seal.

PIEROGI. These Polish specialties are often made for holiday Polish-American feasts.

Bring a kettle of salted water to boiling; add pastries, part at a time; cook until pastries rise to the top; remove with slotted spoon to 10-cup shallow casserole. (This much can be done ahead of time. Cover and chill.)

One hour before serving, remove casserole from refrigerator and let stand at room temperature 30 minutes. Pour cream over pastries and dot with butter or margarine.

Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 minutes or until pastries are golden. Makes 12 servings.

Dear Abby

Sweet smell eludes woman

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You are the only person I know who can help me. I have a problem that didn't just start. I've had it all my life, but lately it's really been getting to me. I stink. You know, body odor. I suppose I should try to find a doctor who deals with this sort of thing, but because of my embarrassment and inability to talk openly about it, I've gotten nowhere.

Abby, I'm a clean person. I bathe twice a day and sometimes three times. I use an anti-perspirant as frequently as I bathe, and I change undergarments as well as outergarments every day without fail. I'm almost a fanatic about dental hygiene. I brush my teeth and use a mouth-wash several times a day.

I've given up using perfumes or colognes because even though I could smell the fragrance, other people would smell the offensive odor I was trying to cover up, and they'd make nasty comments like, "Soap and water are cheaper and would do you more good."

Abby, if you think I should see a doctor, at least please tell me what kind of doctor I should see.

SMELLS BAD IN KENTUCKY

DEAR SMELLS: See your family physician for a thorough checkup and tell him exactly what you've told me. If there is actually an offensive odor, he will determine the source and prescribe a remedy. If there is none — if you're only imagining it — you have another problem, which can be relieved by treatment. Don't despair. In any case, it's nothing to be ashamed of and you can be helped.

DEAR ABBY: Over the years I have had the problem of telephoning a friend's home, asking for the friend by name, and being asked, "Who is calling, please?" I was even told recently by the wife of a friend that it is common courtesy to identify myself before asking to speak to her husband!

Am I wrong to assume that a conversation is private and privileged communication between two adults and need not be censored by anyone else? Frequently a small child will answer the phone and persistently ask, "Who is this?" Please let me know what is common courtesy between two adults.

PAYSON PETE IN ARIZONA

DEAR PETE: The most courteous callers start off with, "This is John Jones calling. Is Mr. Smith available?" Mr. Smith has a right to know who is calling him before he picks up the telephone. Most busy mothers instruct their youngsters to ask who's calling, so don't blame the child for carrying out mother's instructions.

DEAR ABBY: If you have ever addressed yourself to my problem, I've missed it, so here's hoping you'll comment again.

I'm middle-aged and happily married, but for a year now I've had a terrific crush on a man who attends the same church my family and I do. I try to justify it by telling myself that no one is being hurt since I'm the only one who knows it, and it has made my middle years easier to bear as a result of the excitement and anticipation I experience when I know I'm going to see him or talk to him.

It has not interfered with the strong, happy relationship I have with my husband and I don't expect that it will. In a way it has made me feel like a schoolgirl again — very nice. Can it really be wrong?

GOT A CRUSH IN BIRMINGHAM

DEAR GOT: No harm in fantasizing. Dream on. But don't try to make your dreams come true.

Build it yourself and save $$$

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Could one of the answers to the high cost of buying a house be to build it yourself?

Not necessarily building every step of the way. Not even as much as 50 percent of it. But some of it, because the more perspiration the owner-builder puts into the project, the more money he will save. Even assuming that no actual physical work is performed, a considerable cost reduction can be achieved by taking over the planning, management and control of the construction.

At least one authority feels that building a house — in this case, actually contributing "sweat equity" — is not a task limited to a privileged caste of talented craftspeople. Jack McLaughlin says in his book,

"The Housebuilding Experience," that those who build their own houses are for the most part, quite ordinary citizens from all occupations, from all economic classes, with the same diversity of interests and backgrounds found in any cross-section of the population.

A teacher at Clemson University in South Carolina, McLaughlin not only built his own house from foundation to rooftop, he interviewed hundreds of owner-builders from every section of the country about their experiences. Out of his accumulated knowledge came a term to describe this kind of behavior. He calls it "terpitecture," a word derived from the Indo-European root, "terp," meaning to "please oneself," since the muse Terpsichore danced for sheer delight, and the Greek "tekonikos," meaning "a good builder."

Thus, a terptect builds his or her own shelter for pleasure.

Is it really practical to "build" your own house? For most people, probably no. But if you get the notion to do so and think you have enough skill and stick-to-it-iveness to attempt it, listen to this advice from McLaughlin:

"Don't build houses that are too complex. An owner-builder's design objective might well be to weigh the value of increased space and complexity of building systems against what can realistically be completed in a reasonable amount of time and at a comfortable cost. Follow the Optimum Value Engineering, System developed by the National Association of Home

Builders' Research Foundation in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, a system that says to design a rectangular house, if at all possible. This shape provides for the most economical use of floor and wall areas, limits the plan to four straight walls and simple roof structures, and still allows design flexibility."

And this warning: "Most owner-builders' houses cost much more than they are aware of — partly because of poor recordkeeping and partly because of unrecognized hidden costs."

(Home handymen or women will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1.50 to Box 5, Teaneck, N. J. 07666.)

Dr. Lamb

Know your state of health

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In one of your columns your advice to a 45-year-old man was never, absolutely never to jog or run so fast that he would be out of breath or tired. I am 44 years old, 5 feet 5 and work in an office. I spend much of my spare time doing vigorous exercises, running as much as five miles in 38 minutes, tennis, yard work and carrying my golf bag, all of which help keep my weight at 140 to 145.

In my effort to get vigorous exercise I frequently push myself until I'm short of breath and tired. For the last five or six years I've felt these procedures have kept me in good physical condition.

In view of your statement, could you give me further advice regarding vigorous exercise for me for now and for later years?

DEAR READER — Most American males are not trained to the level you are and would not be able to do the same things you do without harming themselves. A person who is well trained and has no underlying medical problems may safely do that much.

The key is knowing that you are in an adequate state of good health to do it. That requires a good medical examination.

As you get older there are usually some changes in the arteries. It becomes even more important that you have a low cholesterol and a normal or low normal blood pressure if you want to exercise near the level of your tolerance. Despite your ability to exercise safely now at that level, I believe you should know what your risk factors really are. If your blood pressure or cholesterol is high you should slow down. While exercise is valuable in controlling weight, so is diet.

And for weight control you don't need to run or jog fast. A steady slow jog that covers the same distance is just as effective. These points are covered in The Health Letter number 15-12, Exercise Wise, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Most people who get in trouble with exercise do so because they overdo it or because they have high risk factors.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am writing for my brother and myself. We are male twins and we are often asked if we are identical twins. I thought that if both twins were male or both female they were identical while twins of the opposite sex were fraternal twins. How do you know if you are identical twins or not? I know identical twins come from one ovum but is there one sperm cell or two?

DEAR READER — Identical twins occur because the fertilized egg (ovum) splits in half, forming two new fertilized ovum. The split does not occur until after the single ovum has been fertilized by one sperm cell. The fertilized ovum has all the genes for future development. When it splits the two split ovum have identical genes. So identical twins are of the same sex. But if two ova were fertilized they might result in two males, two females or one male and one female and these would not be identical twins.

At Wit's End By Erma Bombeck

A manufacturer of foods came out with a full-page ad last week bannered, "Let's get cooking again, America." It was a pitch to start women cooking at home. The gist of the ad was if you sent in labels from all the products listed, they would send you $5 in cash.

You don't suppose you could make it $10, could you? Like four out of five families in America, I too have succumbed to the roar of the crowds and the smell of the grease.

In fact, the last time the light on my stove was on was when I inadvertently set a bucket of chicken on it. I don't know how to get families back into the kitchen again, but I do know what killed the family meal.

Apathy. You can lead a kid to asparagus, but you can't make him swallow it. I served more meals to a squatting ovation than I care to remember. One wouldn't eat onions, one got nauseous at the sight of white sauce, one had a catsup deficiency and the other lived by bread alone.

The I-had-it-for-lunch chant sent home cooks running out of the kitchen in packs. You could serve Chicken Necks Wellington and you could count on half of the family having it for lunch that day and the other half still sick from having it yesterday.

Getting the family together for a meal became as impossible as everyone coming down with measles on the same day. Besides, the family that ate together began to hate together. Life at the dinner table wasn't the warm, shared feast everyone thought it would be. Past sins were marched out, punishments assigned and in general food was thrown...not eaten.

When economics forced a lot of women into the labor market, they saw their chance for escape and took it. And left in the wake are shelves of staples that no longer have meaning. Take baking soda. No one uses it for baking, anymore - they bathe in it.

At some time, women will return to the home, but we've learned a lesson from all this. If you don't put it in a bag with a pickle and a napkin, it doesn't stand a chance.

As for the $5 bonus for cooking at home...I have my price. And that isn't it.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

November 25, 1981

From time to time this coming year you could get some very strong hunches regarding investments or business matters. Don't treat them lightly. They could be quite good and worthy of further exploration.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Associates know that if you're told something in confidence you're not likely to give away their secrets. You could be privy to information today others won't hear of. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you're involved in a group activity today, don't single out one friend for special attention. Converse equally and openly with all.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Aquarians can be very single-minded when necessity requires it, and may do so today. You'll be able to focus on a single issue, regardless of distractions.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Seek activities today which will enable you to use your imagination and creativeness. You could come up with some ideas of which you'll be very proud.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Because you are not likely to take things at face value today, you won't easily be deceived. You'll know others' real motives as well as they do.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There is an important decision which you've been ducking lately because you've felt it's been a bit too tough to make. You'll have the courage today to do it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Pay attention to details today. They'll be equally as important as major factors. Each small part will be necessary to complete the big picture.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Seek the companionship today of those who are young in spirit, rather than of serious types. The young in mind will help make you feel young at heart.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your protective and cherishing feelings for those you love are very strong today, but you must be careful not to try to hold them with too tight a reign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your perceptions are unusually keen today. It will be easy for you to spot the flaws in associates. A word of caution: Keep your observations to yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) One of your major virtues is your willingness to share, but there is a possibility that, today, you won't give anything away unless you get more in return.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Others will sense your presence and charisma today, as well as your obvious leadership qualities. When you issue a directive, it's not apt to be challenged.

Savings & loans, banks at odds over decision on IRA accounts

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A victory for the public, said Llewellyn Jenkins, representing commercial bankers. "Arrogant and irresponsible," said William O'Connell, speaking for savings and loan associations.

Despite their differences, the two gentlemen say they are thinking of your interests, which of course is the way one builds support for his cause. But in this instance the rhetoric really does involve you.

A bit of background: The comments followed a decision to eliminate interest rate ceilings on individual retirement savings accounts opened after Nov. 30. Banks had sought a free market; S&Ls wanted limitations.

The S&Ls are fuming. They say the Depository Institutions Deregulatory Committee is biased toward banks, that it ignored the mortgage needs of homebuyers, that the decision chops another leg from under the S&Ls, already in trouble because of high interest rates and bank competition.

Thrifty have a particular interest in home mortgage loans, such loans having made up the bulk of their business in years gone by.

Because the nation had a commitment to housing, and because thrifths were chartered to lend to homebuyers, regulators limited the interest they paid on small savings accounts. In turn, this allowed them to make home mortgage loans at correspondingly low interest rates.

Deregulation has been removing those protections. Now the S&Ls see themselves being pitched into an unfair battle for savings with the commercial banks, which generally are far bigger and more powerful.

Leonard Shane, vice chairman of the U.S. League and president of Mercury Savings & Loan Association, Huntington Beach, Calif., presented the case in an interview prior to the latest decision.

"During the past four or five years this country has not assumed its commitment to housing," he said. "It used to be a national priority, a socio-economic priority, but lately we've slipped into assuming it remains when it really doesn't. It has been eroded by neglect."

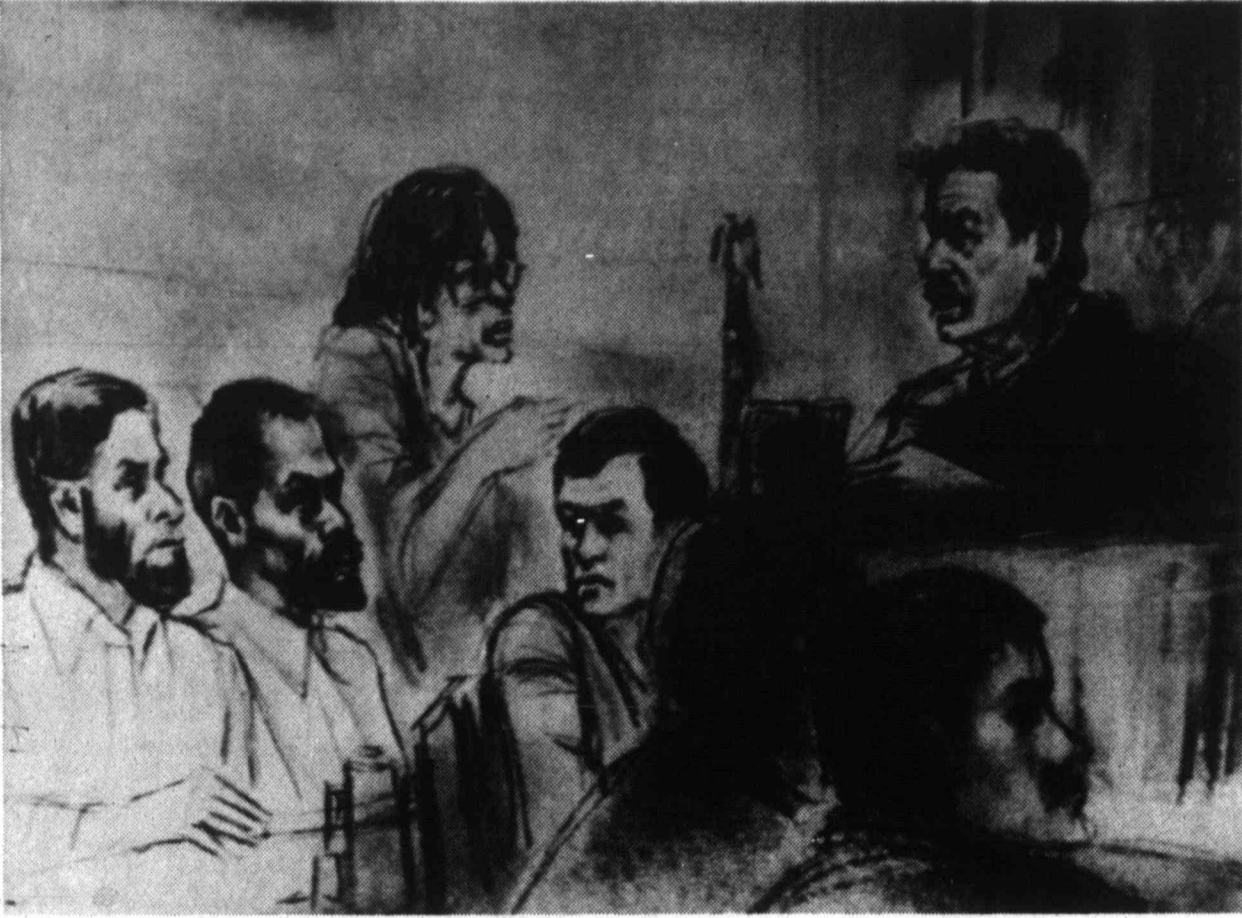

"There is no way we can have housing and a level economic playing field, that is, total deregulation in the credit markets. We didn't get to where we are in housing by competing with steels, cosmetics and the U.S. government. We had de facto credit regulation."

Housing was the beneficiary of regulation, which allowed

S&Ls, which made most of the home mortgage loans, to pay one-quarter of one percent more than commercial banks on passbook savings. That differential is disappearing. Increasingly, thrifths must compete with others for money.

"They (deregulators) sincerely believe it is more important to deregulate for the sake of deregulation than it is to retain any form of regulation to obtain national goals," said Shane.

"I'm suggesting that housing is a unique issue, not just another credit use. They miss understanding the social issues, the impact on life styles, the uniqueness of it. ... Every other user of credit can pass the cost along as inflation or high prices or taxes or deficits. The homebuyer cannot."

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Assassination, about 100 students at Sam Houston State University have discovered, is profitable and a great way to meet people.

And although the "killers," participants in a game called "Killing As Organized Sport," have drawn criticism from a campus religious group, their guns fire nothing more potent than rubber-tipped darts and their victims' deaths are only make-believe.

"We're not advocating killing, but we wanted to let the campus know about Phi Mu Alpha and raise some money and we've sure gotten a lot of free publicity," said Robert Stanton, a 19-year-old sophomore from Conroe who is one of the game's coordinators.

The Sam Houston State version of the game, generally known by its acronym, KAOS, began Nov. 9 after members of the school's professional music fraternity heard about a competition at the University of Texas.

Participants willing to pay the $3.50 entry fee receive a dart gun, a dart, the name and a picture of their victim and a "death certificate." The participants also have their pictures taken and become potential victims.

Trophies are offered for the most bloodthirsty agent, the most dramatic kill and the most elusive victim.

"We expected a lot more criticism than we've gotten," Stanton said. "Some woman did get the idea we were really killing people and called up upset, but that's about it."

"We've gotten a lot of cooperation. The campus newspaper is running the victims' obituaries and so is the radio station. It's all for fun and it's a great way to meet people."

Stanton said Phi Mu Alpha doesn't have a lot of money and garage sales, car washes have been tried unsuccessfully.

The fraternity hopes to raise between $350 and $500, "but we're not going to spend it on beer or parties. We'd like to build a display case for music department trophies and other projects," Stanton said.

Despite the group's intentions, the director of the Baptist Student Union wants to have the game cancelled.

"I think it's appalling," said Director Don Coleman. "We've got enough problems with people killing one another without this. Some twisted mind could get in on that and carry it out."

The Rev. Ron Petty, a Bible instructor at the college, said he also opposes the game "because it just promotes the idea of violence."

And the fraternity's faculty adviser, David Marks, said the group "just sort of sprang it on me. I didn't know they'd started it. My initial reaction was dismay, but even if I had known before they started it, I doubt I would have stopped it."

But others have met the game with enthusiasm.

Oklahoma plant to make A-body cars

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — General Motors is likely to retrofit its assembly plant here for production of a new series of front-end-drive cars rather than using a plant in Texas, a union official said.

"The official word won't be made until the first or second week in December," Keith Campbell, president of United Auto Workers Local 1999 in Oklahoma City, said Monday. "But it looks real good, 90 percent probable."

The GM facility in Arlington, Texas, had been designated one of several sites for production of the A-body series of cars. The plant now produces rear-wheel-drive family cars in the Oldsmobile Cutlass class.

White will appeal 'Blue Law' overturn

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court will be asked once again to reinstate Texas' "blue law," which prohibits sale of certain items on both Saturday and Sunday.

The court has upheld the 1961 law on three occasions, most recently in 1978.

A spokesman for Attorney General Mark White said Monday that White plans to appeal a Dallas judge's decision the law is unconstitutional.

The spokesman, Larry McGinty, said White also would ask the Texas Supreme Court to grant an expedited appeal in the case.

In handing down his ruling Friday, State District Court Judge Dee Brown Walker said the law is unenforceable, inequitable and doesn't serve its purpose — to guarantee workers a day of rest.

The law prohibits the sale of 42 categories of merchandise on consecutive Saturdays and Sundays.

Mickey Moore, executive vice president of the Texas Retailers Association, said it was "a sad day for working retail people in the state" when Walker held the law was unconstitutional.

Originally, department stores lobbied for the law to combat the popularity of discount stores open seven days a week.

Moore said his talks with retailers from states without blue laws convinced him that opening stores on Sundays creates extra costs without bringing in extra sales.

'Crime of the century' files opened

EWING TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — The kidnapping and murder of the Lindbergh baby gripped the nation 49 years ago. Now, the evidence that led to the execution of a man for the crime is being released, little by little.

For years, lawyer Robert Bryan has been trying to get the files opened. On Monday a judge allowed two of his researchers and a pool of three news reporters to begin sifting through the evidence that led to the electrocution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

Anna Hauptmann, 83, the widow of the convicted killer, is suing the state for $100 million in damages, claiming her husband is innocent. Bryan, on her behalf, demanded the files be opened.

In a separate case, Bryan also represents a man who claims to be the Lindbergh child.

Rummaging through the 90,000 pages of reports and a huge volume of physical evidence by just five people is expected to take several weeks. Bryan would not say what he and his researchers are seeking.

One of the things Bryan wants to determine is what evidence still exists.

The first child of aviation pioneer Charles Lindbergh and Anne Morrow Lindbergh disappeared from his

Reagan reassures Republican governors

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — President Reagan says troubled Republican officeholders who are taking the heat over his economic programs will be rewarded by the voters next year.

"I think the people voted for a change in 1980," Reagan said. "And I think they'll be voting for much the same thing if we stay with this plan — and that's just what we're going to do — in the congressional and state elections across the country ..."

The words of comfort were spoken to the nation's Republican governors at their annual convention in New Orleans Monday night over a radio-telephone hookup from Air Force One as Reagan flew to a Thanksgiving holiday in California.

The reassurances were timely because most of the discussion at the Republican Governors' Association meeting had centered on the problems governors face because of Reagan's economic policies and the recession.

Reagan said that with 36 governorships up for grabs next year — 16 of which are now held by the GOP — "a lot is at stake ... and I hope that I can be of help to you."

"Right now, of course, I think that means standing firm against those people ... who really are the ones who took us down the path that has led to the trillion-dollar deficit," he said.

The president said he was talking about big-spending Democrats and said he had set the example for worried politicians Monday when he vetoed an emergency spending bill he said was too free with federal dollars.

The governors adopted a resolution backing Reagan in the budget fight and blaming Democrats for the country's financial woes. They pledged to support Reagan, even if it hurts them, accepting his view that the public will thank them later.

Man surrenders on gunrunning charges

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston man voluntarily surrendered to face charges he and a suspected Canadian gunrunner conspired to sell 337 tons of military arms to undercover agents posing as revolutionaries plotting to overthrow a Central American government.

Joe Collins, 57, ended a four-day search by U.S. Treasury agents Monday when he appeared before U.S. Magistrate Calvin Botley. Bond was set at $50,000.

Prosecutors said Collins, an independent oil and gas land broker from Midland, Texas, and Ronald Mertens, 31, of Ottawa, Canada, offered to sell agents about $3 million worth of military hardware loaded on a ship off the Central American coast.

Mertens, who was arrested last Thursday outside a Houston motel, remained jailed in lieu of $1 million bond.

Collins' attorney, Percy Foreman, argued his client was trying to sell helicopters for a legitimate client when an undercover agent approached him in a federal "sting" operation.

"He was asked if he could get some guns."

Bring out your best.

We have all felt the challenge. The will to excel, to bring out the best in whatever we do.

At Anheuser-Busch, our challenge was mighty:

Brew a premium light beer, low in calories, and bring to it great taste worthy of the King of Beers.

Budweiser Light lives up to that challenge.

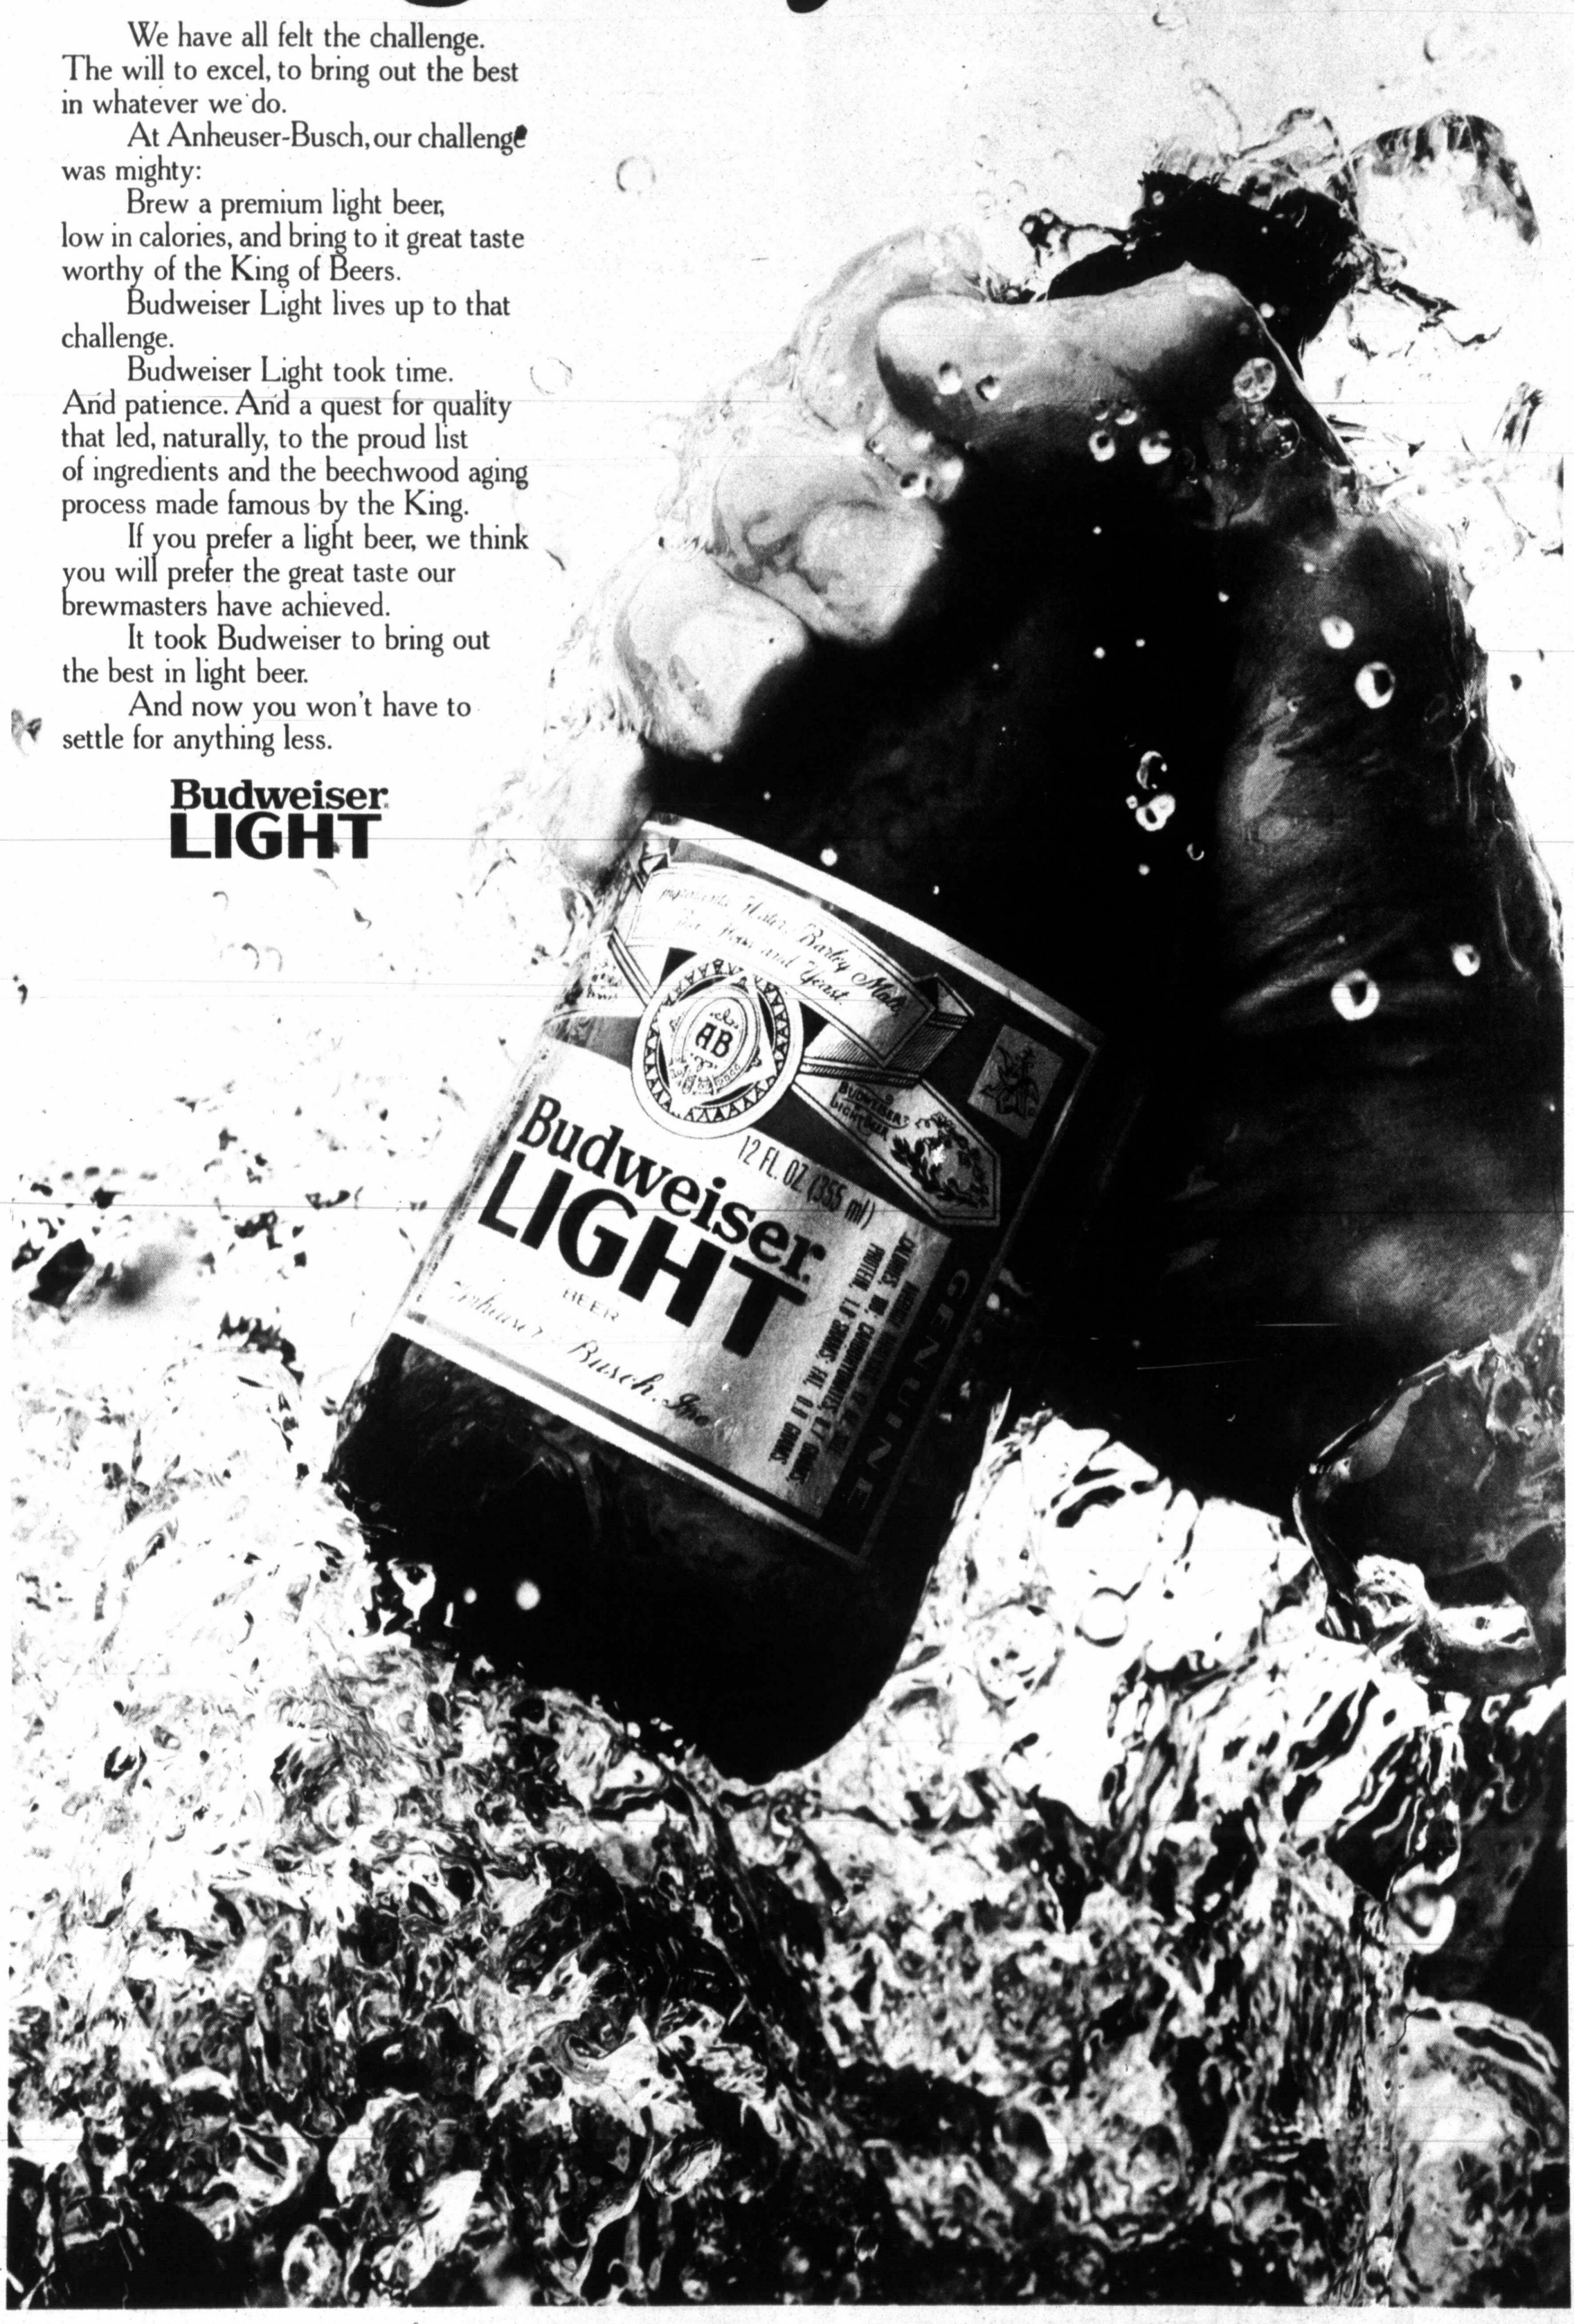

Budweiser Light took time. And patience. And a quest for quality that led, naturally, to the proud list of ingredients and the beechwood aging process made famous by the King.

If you prefer a light beer, we think you will prefer the great taste our brewmasters have achieved.

It took Budweiser to bring out the best in light beer.

And now you won't have to settle for anything less.

Poole receives "Fighting Heart" award at booster club banquet

By L.D. STRATE
Pampa News Sports Editor

Senior linebacker Jeff Poole received the prestigious "Fighting Heart" award at the Pampa Harvesters football-volleyball banquet Monday night in M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Harvester head coach Larry Gilbert presented Poole with the plaque, which goes annually to the athlete who displays the qualities of outstanding attitude, courage, determination and leadership during the season.

"The coaching staff begins evaluating athletes for the Fighting Heart award during the off-season," Gilbert said. "Game after game, practice after practice, Jeff was always leading us."

Gilbert pointed out memorable moments throughout the 1981 season.

"I'll never forget when we scored our first touchdown against Borger," he recalled. "You would have thought we had just won the Super Bowl there was so much jubilation on the sidelines."

"I'll never forget presenting the game ball to Odus Mitchell (former Pampa coach) after our win against Lubbock Monterey."

Gilbert said he would never forget the 13 seniors on the club.

"This was one of the best groups I've ever been around," Gilbert said. "They played with the odds against them and they don't have anything to hold their heads down about."

The 13 seniors include Poole, Mark Hagerman, Rob Hammer, Richie James, John Kadingo, Harold Landers, Robert McCoy, Kirk Rawls, Mark Royce, Joe Ryzman, Skyler Smith and Brian Welborn. Kadingo, Landers, Ryzman, Rawls and junior Wade Barker were named to the All-District 3-5A team.

"We had a lot of juniors and seniors that gained a lot of experience this season," Gilbert said. "They're going to reap the benefits."

They include Barker, Ricky Baird, Cliff Baker, Bryan Bowen, Ted Cain, Darryl Caldwell, Bill Carter, Dennis Dougherty, Kenneth Jackson, Devin Mason, Todd Mitchell, Randy Skaggs, Steve Thurman, Maury Wills, Brad Voyles, L.J. Brown, Robert Knight, Dennis Kuempel, David Parr, Danny Sebastian and Ricky Stout.

The Shockers (junior varsity team) consisted mainly of sophomores. They include Swasey Brainard, Greg Brown, Darren Bryant, Deven Cross, Cleve Deason, Richard Dills, Bobby Easterling, Harold Ellison, Bobby Evans, Richard Farrah, Jeff Franks, Bill Fritz, Wade Gardner, Terry Gray, Gregory Greenwood, Robert Hornback, Lane Howard, Kip Hutto, Daryl Montgomery, Jimmy Ontiveros, Randy Parsley, Ricky Poole, Kurt Pounds, Steve Seely, Ricky Smith and Robert Yearwood.

Laura Adcock was selected as the 1981 Pampa High football queen. Other candidates were Amy Beyer and Chandy Fellers.

The Pampa girls' volleyball team compiled a 17-10 record while the JV squad went 19-2.

"We were really proud of our players this year," coach Lynn Wolfe said. "I want to thank all the parents. It means a lot to the kids when they see their parents sitting in the stands."

"Volleyball's highest award—Most Valuable Player—went to all-district pick Alisha Brewer."

"Alisha was a friend to all the girls," coach Wolfe said. "She was a conscientious, humble player."

Lisa Sims won the award for the player who had the highest serving record during the season.

Leslie Albus was also named to the all-district team for the second year in a row. She was sophomore of the year in 1980.

Members of the varsity team were Amy Beyer, Paula Fulton, Sharolyn Salisbury, Lisa Sims, Lena Young, Leslie Albus, Alisha Brewer, Joan Burns, Teresa Glover, Gaye Hurst, Keva Richardson, Carla Rogers and Sweet Simmons.

Members of the junior varsity were Stacey Brown, Tina Bunton, Tina Greenway, Liz Neslage, Cynthia Powell, Gwen Simpson and Lori Stephens.

Brad Gibson was selected as volleyball sweetheart. Other candidates were Phillip Jeffries and John Kadingo.

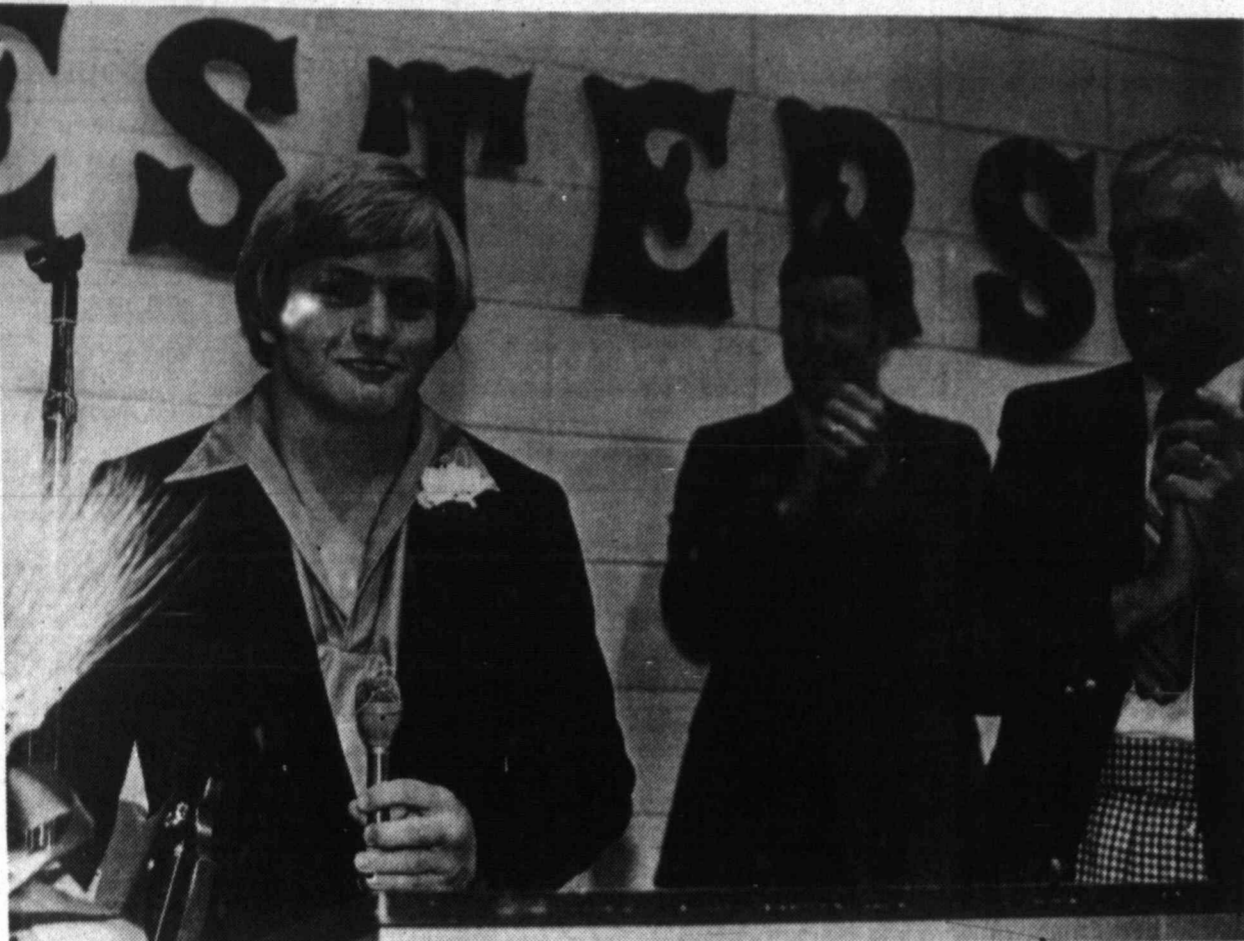

The banquet's guest speaker was Bunny Martin who had the audience either spellbound or in stitches with a variety of magic tricks mingled with humor.

Martin, a widely-traveled entertainer, closed on a serious note.

"It's not what's on the scoreboard that makes a winner," Martin said. "It's how much you give that counts. People who expect to lose will find a way to do it. People who expect to win will find a way to do that also."

Martin, who speaks often at Fellowship of Christian Athletes banquets, said an athlete who is a Christian is a better all-around person.

"Being a Christian won't necessarily make you a better athlete, but it could," Warren Hasse was master of ceremonies.

of ceremonies, Warren Hasse. Gilbert, who presented Poole with the plaque, described the 165-pound senior linebacker as a leader in both practice and games. Jeff is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Poole. The banquet was sponsored by the Pampa Harvester Booster Club. (Staff Photo by John Wolfe)

Bryant: Footprints of the legendary Bear

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

EDITOR'S NOTE — Herschel Nissenon, the AP college football editor, has followed Paul "Bear" Bryant and his Alabama team for nine years. In a two-part series, the Bear talks about his background and others talk about the kind of teacher, coach and man he is.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — The growl, the mumble and the drawl are trademarks. Like the houndstooth hat atop his head, they're part of his image, part of the mask he uses to keep you on guard.

Bear Bryant has been on a special stage this year. This year writers have wanted to talk to him about his pursuit of Amos Alonzo Stagg's record of 314 coaching victories.

But Bryant deflects talk of Stagg and the record. He does it by talking about his childhood days, his early career, the next game, anything but the record he is soon to break.

Bryant tied Stagg's record when Alabama beat Penn State 31-16 on Nov. 14. He could break it against Auburn in Birmingham Saturday. And now that record-breaking time is just around the corner, Bryant is even less inclined to talk about it than he was back in September, as he started his 37th year as a head coach and 24th at Alabama.

"I want to talk about Fordyce, Ark.," he said firmly. There was no argument. When the 68-year-old Bryant wants to reminisce — about his boyhood in the Arkansas bottomland, about football, about his coaching career, about anything — there are few things more pleasurable than listening.

"Fordyce is one of the greatest towns in the world.

The greatest football players I ever saw lived there — the Jordan twins. They were the greatest leaders, but I didn't know it. I didn't know what leadership was then. I followed them around like a little puppy. I did everything they told me.

"It was seven miles by foot from Moro Bottom, where I lived, to Fordyce. I walked it many a time. There was a one-room schoolhouse in Moro Bottom with a stage and a big pot-bellied stove. If you walked through the fields and the woods it was about a mile and a half."

Bryant's father, a farmer, became ill and the Bear — he didn't have the legendary nickname yet — and his mother sold vegetables from a mule-drawn wagon.

"The thing I used to dislike so much — and I wouldn't take anything for it now — was living out on that farm. My mother had more class than anybody I know, and I wouldn't have known that if I'd lived in some city, running here, running there."

Paul William Bryant became "Bear" Bryant at the age of 12 when he wrestled a bear in a carnival to make a dollar or two. The bear's owner skipped town without paying him.

It wasn't often you could try to make a buck by wrestling a bear, and there wasn't much else to do in Fordyce. Like most strapping young men — Bryant stands in the neighborhood of 6-foot-4 — he eventually turned to football. A cobbler put cleats on his only pair of street shoes, turning them into football boots.

"There was no pep talk at halftime. We didn't do anything different," said Steve Bartkowski, who threw three touchdown passes and set up Mick Luckhurst's 32-yard field goal with his passing.

"We were our own worst enemy in the first half with the turnovers as we were fortunate to still be in the game," said Bartkowski, who hit on 21 of 32 passes for 213 yards and ran his TD total to 27 for the season.

Kramer had scoring passes of 6 and 42 yards to Ahmad Rashad, 3 yards to Bob Bruer and the 16-yarder to Senser while Ted Brown had 108 yards in 16 rushing attempts for the Vikings, the first running back to go over 100 yards this season against the Falcons.

Rashad was Kramer's favorite target, catching 9 passes for 151 yards.

The Falcons, who accumulated 342 yards, got 91 yards out of Andrews in 22 attempts and 67 from Lynn Cain in 11 tries while Jenkins had 5 catches for 65 yards to break the club record for single-season receiving yardage with 1,047. He held the previous mark with 1,025.

Falcons outlast Vikings, 31-30

ATLANTA (AP) — The game just ended and they were ahead." That was the way Minnesota Coach Bud Grant described the Atlanta Falcons victory over the Vikings in a weird, turnover-plagued National Football League game.

The Falcons, who outlasted the Vikings 31-30, apparently had Monday night's nationally televised slugfest wrapped up after linebacker Buddy Curry intercepted a Tommy Kramer pass and returned it 35 yards for a touchdown and a 31-21 lead with just 4:06 remaining.

But the Falcons gave up an intentional safety after failing to move the ball inside their own 6-yard line with 1:54 left. Just 44 seconds later it was 31-30 when Kramer hit Joe Senser with a 16-yard TD strike.

The Falcons' Reggie Smith, however, recovered the Vikings' onside kick after it bounced out of the grasp of two other Falcons players on Atlanta's 43. Atlanta ran out the clock for the victory, snapping a two-game losing streak and keeping its wild card playoff hopes alive with a 6-6 record.

"We almost got a chance to win at the end when the onside kick broke loose up the middle," said Grant. "If we would have recovered, we were only 15 seconds away from a field goal."

The Vikings, who pounced out 460 yards, were hindered by five turnovers, including four interceptions of Kramer, who passed for 330 yards and four touchdowns. Meanwhile, the Falcons had three lost fumbles, all in the opening half and all by William Andrews, helping Minnesota to a 21-7 halftime edge.

The loss left the Vikings with a 7-5 record, one game ahead of Detroit and Tampa Bay in the NFC Central Division race.

"There was no pep talk at halftime. We didn't do anything different," said Steve Bartkowski, who threw three touchdown passes and set up Mick Luckhurst's 32-yard field goal with his passing.

"We were our own worst enemy in the first half with the turnovers as we were fortunate to still be in the game," said Bartkowski, who hit on 21 of 32 passes for 213 yards and ran his TD total to 27 for the season.

Kramer had scoring passes of 6 and 42 yards to Ahmad Rashad, 3 yards to Bob Bruer and the 16-yarder to Senser while Ted Brown had 108 yards in 16 rushing attempts for the Vikings, the first running back to go over 100 yards this season against the Falcons.

Rashad was Kramer's favorite target, catching 9 passes for 151 yards.

The Falcons, who accumulated 342 yards, got 91 yards out of Andrews in 22 attempts and 67 from Lynn Cain in 11 tries while Jenkins had 5 catches for 65 yards to break the club record for single-season receiving yardage with 1,047. He held the previous mark with 1,025.

Pampa's hosts Clovis tonight

Pampa will try for its second win of the season, taking on Clovis, New Mexico at 7:30 p.m. tonight in Harvester Fieldhouse.

Harvester head coach Garland Nichols promises a shootout.

"It's going to be exciting for the fans, but hard on the coaches," Nichols added. "Clovis runs and runs and we've decided to run with them."

"We're going to come out early and press them on defense. Clovis is going to be the quickest team we face all season, so if that doesn't work we'll have to drop back and play more conservative."

Jimmy Barker will start at center for Harvesters. Charles Nelson and Terry Faggins will be at forwards while Mike Nelson and Meryl Dowdy will go at guards.

Mike Nelson's 25 points fueled Pampa to a 76-46 win over Canyon last Friday night.

There will be girls' varsity game between Pampa and Hereford, starting at 6 p.m. in the high school fieldhouse.

BOB HARMON PRO FORECAST

Thursday, November 26
** DALLAS 23 CHICAGO 10

NFC East show-down between Eagles and Cowboys just two weeks away. Recent overtime loss to Lions jolted Dallas' title hopes, so win over Eagles a must. Bears down 13 here.

** DETROIT 26 KANSAS CITY 24

Countering what we said last week, Lions still very much in NFC Central race, but loss to KC could be fatal. However, Detroit, tough at home, may just pluck Chiefs' feathers.

Sunday, November 29
ATLANTA 24 ** HOUSTON 14

Oilers, prior to hosting Saints, had lost four of five. Face monstrous task in final games with four straight toughies. Falcons play three of 4 on road - rough assignment.

** BUFFALO 23 WASHINGTON 21

Bills another club that has taken nose-dive recently, losing 3 of 5. Playing final home game before 3 straight on road. Hot Red-skins won 5 of 6 before meeting Cowboys last week.

CINCINNATI 28 ** CLEVELAND 20

Browns nipped Bengals 20-17 late in September, but sizzling division-leading Cincy favored by 8 on road. Bengals and Chargers had highest offensive total in AFC - 292 points in 11.

DENVER 24 ** SAN DIEGO 20

All-important contest in AFC West where four teams still very much in battle for title. Broncos dumped Chargers 42-24 in Denver in September. S.D. home for 3 of last four.

** MINNESOTA 26 GREEN BAY 20

NFC Central-leading Vikings face first of three straight division rivals. Packers won three in a row before meeting Buccaneers last week. Vikes at home, favored by six points.

** NEW ENGLAND 27 ST. LOUIS 21

Pats closing out poorest season since 1975 when they finished 3-11. Cards have shocked three top teams, but are underdogs on road. Teams have met just three times since 1970.

** NEW YORK JETS 30 BALTIMORE 13

'1980's basement-finishing Jets, finally in midst of AFC East championship race, will be in favorites' role for remainder of season. Colts have given up 377 points thru 11 games.

OAKLAND 27 ** SEATTLE 20

Raiders - still battling for play-off spot - jumped all over Dolphins two weeks ago. Hosted Chargers last week. Seahawks lost earlier to Oakland 20-10. 3 of final 4 at home.

** PITTSBURGH 20 LOS ANGELES 17

Steelers and Rams coming off key division games with Browns, 49ers respectively. These two met last in Super Bowl XIV in Pasadena in 1979. Pitt winning 31-19. Steelers win here too.

** SAN FRANCISCO 20 N.Y. GIANTS 16

Including last week vs Eagles, Giants facing murderers' row in final five games. Browns brought 49ers back down to earth two weeks ago breaking S.F. seven-game win streak.

TAMPA BAY 21 ** NEW ORLEANS 20

Saints, with three games at home out of final four, could pick up a win here. Bucs had lost four of last five until last week vs Packers. Tampa Bay by single point on road.

Monday, November 30
PHILADELPHIA 31 ** MIAMI 20

Possible play-off preview in this outstanding Monday niter. Strong Eagle defense, giving up just 152 points thru 11 games, will get severe test. Dolphins home for three of last four.

Modern Thanksgiving might give Pilgrims a major surprise

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — The Pilgrims and Indians who celebrated the first Thanksgiving 360 years ago might be shocked to see how the holiday is celebrated in modern America.

For one thing, the original event likely took place in October — not November. And the main dish was probably venison, not turkey.

"The Pilgrims would have been horrified to hear it called Thanksgiving," said Jim Baker, research librarian for Plimoth Plantation, an exhibit depicting Pilgrim life in the 1600s.

"A Thanksgiving was one of three allowable church holidays in the calendar, a very specifically defined event. It was a declared holiday to go to church all day. It was like a sabbath, with no games or recreation.

"The whole thing (today) would have struck them as kind of odd," Baker said. "First you can't have a harvest in New England in late November. Second, it's a secular event."

Laurence Pizer, director of the Pilgrim Society here, says the first celebration apparently took place in mid-October of 1621.

When 102 passengers of the Mayflower landed in Plymouth — originally spelled Plimoth — on Dec. 21, 1620, they didn't realize how tough it would be to establish the first successful colony in the New World.

Half of them died during the first terrible winter, but in the spring they met Squanto, the last surviving member of the Patuxet Indian tribe, which had been wiped out by a plague. They learned to plant corn, catch herring for fertilizer and tap maple trees for sap.

The colony thrived during the first summer. Grateful for a plentiful harvest, Gov. William Bradford called for a celebration.

The 50 Pilgrims invited the Wampanoag Indians to join them, and Chief Massasoit brought 90 braves and five deer with him. The festival lasted until the food ran out — at least three days.

Besides venison, they feasted on turkey, cod, sea bass, wild fowl, pumpkin, squash, Jerusalem artichoke, beach plums, beans and corn.

Despite the success of the first festival, the Pilgrims and Indians were not back for a harvest bash the next year.

"The next year they had a flop, a bad harvest," Baker said. "The Fortune, the second ship, arrived next year without adequate provisions."

The Thanksgiving custom spread from Plymouth to other New England colonies, but for many years there was no regular national Thanksgiving Day in the United States.

President Lincoln proclaimed the last Thursday in November 1863 as a Thanksgiving day.

Former nurse booked on 12 murder counts

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — A man who worked as a nurse at several hospitals where patients died of drug overdoses was arrested Monday night and booked for investigation on 12 charges of murder, authorities said.

Robert R. Diaz, 44, was arrested on a warrant in Apple Valley by the district attorney and coroner's investigators, said Sgt. Renee Shoemaker, a spokeswoman for the Riverside County Sheriff's Department.

Assistant Riverside County District Attorney Thomas Hollenhorst, said prosecutors will seek the death penalty in the case.

Diaz was arrested for investigation in the deaths of 11 patients at Community Hospital of the Valleys in Perris and another patient at San Geronio Pass Hospital in Banning between March 30 and April 25. The patients allegedly died from massive overdoses of the heart drug Lidocaine.

Hollenhorst said prosecutors also will introduce evidence at Diaz's trial allegedly implicating him in the death of another man who died at Chino Community Hospital on March 25. That case will not be prosecuted by Riverside authorities, but Hollenhorst said evidence will be used to show a "common plan and design" in all of the deaths. Diaz's arrest came six months after Riverside authorities launched an investigation into the string of autopsies, scores of mysterious deaths at Community Hospital. It culminated an investigation that included toxicological tests on samples of victims' tissues.
