

They left for sunny Florida, but died under ice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Susan Fusco worried about the weather and wondered whether the trip was worth it. It was just another teacher's conference, after all, with a brief vacation in Tampa thrown in.

Susan Fusco was afraid of flying, said her husband, Gene. "We had called Air Florida to see if we could get a refund on the ticket, but they said the fare was not refundable. So rather than lose the money my wife decided to go ahead."

Susan Fusco died.

While her husband was driving her to the airport, Air Florida Flight 90 was landing at Washington's venerable National, its intermediate stop enroute from White Plains, N.Y., to Tampa and Fort Lauderdale in Florida. The Boeing 737 was a flying link between bitter winter and warm sunshine. Flight 90 was one of the last planes to land at National before the airport was closed temporarily by the weather.

The runways were closed for snow removal and sanding at 1:38 p.m., making it obvious the Air Florida plane could not leave as scheduled at 2:15. At least twice, crews sprayed on a glycol bath to prevent ice from forming on its green, blue and white body.

At 2:53 p.m. National Airport reopened and planes flew northward out of the snow, over the Potomac River and the tri-span 14th Street bridge three-quarters of a mile off the end of Runway 36. The runway, the longest at National, is sized for the propeller age — 6,870 feet.

Flight 90 pulled away from the terminal at 3:40 p.m. to take its place on the runway. At 4 p.m. the tower told pilot Larry Wheaton "You're cleared for takeoff." With visibility only a half mile in a heavy snowfall, air controllers could not see the end of the runway.

For an airline whose fortune was built by providing low fares for people seeking the sun, Flight 90 might have been more crowded. As it was, there were 70 passengers who paid, three infants and an airline employee who didn't, and five crew members. Only five lived.

Two of them were boss and secretary, Joseph Stiley and Patricia Felch, enroute to Tampa on business. Their seats were in the smoking section, in the rear of the aircraft.

"I figured I had taken one airplane ride too many," said Stiley, a commercial pilot. "We were running out of runway. We did not have the takeoff speed. I know we did not have the speed. I've flown on 737s a lot. I knew when we were out of runway and I knew when we reached that point we weren't going to make it. I think the pilot tried to abort and realized he couldn't abort and he probably did the only thing he could which is try to get it off."

Kelly Duncan, a stewardess, also lived.

"The plane started to shake and the next thing I knew I was in the water," she said.

The pilot of the twin-engine aircraft had not had time to retract the wheels, normally the first procedure after becoming airborne. A tire imprint was left on the roof of one of five automobiles struck by the airborne battering ram as it struck the bridge, crowded with workers heading home early because of the snow. Forty feet of the bridge retaining wall disappeared into the water.

The Boeing 737 then slid into the water between the northbound and southbound bridge spans. Flight 90 became a crypt for three score and fourteen humans who had been enroute to the sun.

Dr. William D. Liddle Jr., often talked about death with his wife, Betty. She recalled that "he wanted to be cremated and wanted to have a memorial service with just friends and then wanted everybody to come back to the house. We planned this in a rather joking way."

At 4:04 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 13, 1982, Liddle was one of 74 people who died aboard Flight 90 in the first crash of a U.S. commercial airliner in 26 months, the first crash since the air controllers strike and firing, the first crash in the history of Air Florida, and the first crash at National Airport since 1949.

Incredibly, the death toll on the bridge was only four.

There were many heroes on the night of Jan. 13.

One was a passenger, bald, about 50 years old, one of those thrown clear. A U.S. Park Police helicopter, one of the first first to reach the scene, spotted him and threw a life line. The man passed it to Kelly Duncan, the stewardess. Helicopter pilot Donald Usher carried her to the Virginia shore, about 50 feet away, and returned to the group clinging to the wreckage.

Another line was thrown, the bald man gave it to Joseph Stiley and two women. The helicopter tried to drag them across the river's surface, but the women were knocked from Stiley's grasp by the ice. The chopper returned again for the women, successfully picking up one. The other, unable to grab the life ring, was saved by a bystander who dove in and pulled her to shore.

Still again Usher returned to the wreckage and this time the lifeline was handed by the bald man to Bert Hamilton.

Usher returned for a fifth time. Now the man was gone.

The paramedic aboard the helicopter, Gene Windsor, gave the eulogy for the unidentified hero: "That guy was amazing. I've never seen that kind of guts."

Lenny Skutnik was also a hero.

The 28-year-old Skutnik, a government errand runner, was drawn to the scene while driving home from work. Standing on the river bank he saw the drama of Usher's rescue mission. He watched the second woman clinging to Stiley slide into the water and then lie on a partially submerged cake of ice, feebly paddling for shore, apparently in shock. Just when she appeared to be drowning, Skutnik could stand it no longer.

"I felt so helpless," he said "She was screaming 'would somebody please help me.' It looked like she had passed out. I jerked off my boots and coat and jumped in the water."

Skutnik swam to the woman and pulled her to shore. Someone else jumped in and helped get her on the bank. The woman, Priscilla Tirado, lived. Her husband and baby died.

Philippinos strafe Jap tanker

TOKYO (AP) — The captain of a Japanese tanker carrying highly flammable methanol from Libya said his ship was strafed by two unidentified planes off the southern Philippines.

The ship's agent said Saturday the attack may have been prompted because of the tanker's khaki color, which he speculated may have prompted the attacking planes to believe it was carrying contraband and trying to elude aerial patrols.

The captain said the planes fired more than 100 bullets at the 5,307-ton tanker Hegg off the island of Mindanao on Friday, wounding his cook and putting seven holes above the ship's water line. The vessel was not disabled and continued its voyage toward South Korea.

Japan's Kyodo News Service said Japanese Defense Agency officials speculated that Philippine air force planes might have mistaken the tanker for a secret supply vessel for anti-government guerrillas because of its khaki color.

Kyodo said the officials reported the crew members said the planes were prop-driven, single-engine models, a description that fits the T-28D used by the Philippine air force.

Officials of the Defense Agency were not available for comment, and the Philippine navy said it would have no comment because it had not received a report of the alleged strafing.

Capt. Hideo Takakuwa, in communication with the ship's agent, Kita-Nihon Oi Kaiun Co., which chartered the tanker, reported that the fighter planes opened fire at the Hegg about 21 miles east of Mindanao island.

The captain was quoted as saying he radioed the Philippine coast guard for help but there was no response.

The agent quoted the captain as saying the planes were khaki-colored or greenish-gray with no insignia, that they fired several warning shots even though the Hegg was flying Japanese colors, and that two hours later — strafed the ship for 15 minutes.

The skipper said his South Korean cook, Hwan Seong Cheol, 30, suffered injuries about his legs, shoulder and stomach when the planes strafed the Hegg. The cook was reported in stable condition, the agent told The Associated Press.

He said there were seven holes in the hull above the waterline but it was able to continue its voyage northward. The Hegg is expected to reach Naha, Okinawa in southern Japan early Wednesday, the agent said.

Thirty bodies pulled from sunken plane, while divers try to recover flight recorders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Feeling their way past jagged debris and treacherous ice, divers pulled 30 bodies from the crumpled wreckage of an Air Florida jetliner Saturday and then turned to trying to find a way to raise the tail section that includes the flight recorders.

But after one try at lifting the tail section, which also included a large portion of the fuselage, the recovery team postponed further efforts. Another attempt was expected — but not certain — on Sunday after the arrival of a more powerful crane.

Throughout the day, the diving teams focused their search on the rear section since that part of the wreckage contained the cockpit voice and flight data recorders critical to the investigation of Wednesday's crash that killed 78 people.

The divers first emptied the rear section of bodies to bring the total number of bodies recovered from the plane to 47.

Then divers began to attach cables to the section, but quickly ran into trouble. When darkness and 22-mph winds made it impossible to attach the cables properly, the effort was abandoned for the night.

Meanwhile, some federal safety officials were concerned that salvage operations might be impossible Sunday because of forecast high temperatures only in the teens. They emphasized, however, that no decision had been made on what to do Sunday.

"We're taking everything on a slow, controlled basis," Coast Guard Cmdr. Mike Taylor, who heads the diving operation, told reporters.

Police inspector James Shugart

earlier suggested the salvage effort "may go as long as two to three weeks" because of visibility near zero underwater and danger to divers from sharp, moving pieces of wreckage and ice.

The Boeing 737 jet, bound for Florida, hit a busy commuter bridge spanning the Potomac River after taking off from National Airport. Seventy-eight people were killed, including four motorists caught on the bridge. Only five persons aboard the plane were rescued.

Federal investigators said the recorders, so-called "black boxes" housed in the tail section to provide a history of the final minutes before the plane crashed, are critical in determining why the plane failed to gain proper altitude.

"Getting this section is critical, we've got to know what was going on in the cockpit," said Francis McAdams, a member of the National Transportation Safety Board who is heading the investigation.

Danger from moving pieces of wreckage and ice as well as the poor visibility has slowed the salvage operation. "The diver is essentially moving along the bottom, encountering things, feeling it, and trying to figure out what it is," Navy Lt. Cmdr. Stephen Delaplane, a project coordinator, told reporters.

News media were kept several hundred feet from the recovery scene and not allowed to talk with the military divers.

Most of the bodies recovered so far in the wreckage were found still wearing their seatbelts, although many seats were dislodged from their anchors.

'Siberian Express' hits Midwest

By DAVID L. LANGFORD
Associated Press Writer

A surge of polar cold nicknamed the Siberian Express blew into the frozen Midwest with paralyzing blizzards Saturday, and the mercury sank to painful lows deep into the Sunbelt.

The frigid winds sent the chill factor to 80 degrees below zero in places and the death toll reached 251 in a wintry assault that began writing weather history last weekend.

"It is one of the most severe outbreaks of cold weather mid-America has seen since the 1800s," said meteorologist Nolan Duke of the National Weather Service in Kansas City.

While temperatures Saturday stopped shy of last weekend's records, such as the all-time low of 26 below in Chicago, readings were close to 30 degrees below zero across parts of Montana, North Dakota and Minnesota, with wind chills below zero as far south as San Antonio, Texas.

More than 120,000 people remained without power in Alabama, Georgia and North Carolina. Freezing rain closed many highways again in North Georgia and snow fell in the Texas Panhandle.

Snow was common from the Great Lakes across the Ohio Valley into the Northeast, where New York City got its third plastering in four days.

A blizzard with winds of 50 mph also closed highways and caused many traffic accidents across central and northern Indiana and western Michigan, where 11 inches of snow fell at Frankfort.

Blowing snow was causing headaches for the Ohio Department of Transportation, trying to keep open the state's 16,000 miles of highways.

"We can plow a highway and 15 minutes later, it'll be the same condition it was," said David V. Finley, a department spokesman.

Blowing snow also shut off many highways in South Dakota where the mercury dropped to 24 below at Rapid City, Murdo, Aberdeen and Milbank.

Temperatures dropped six degrees an hour in Michigan where the fierce winds and snow caused "white-outs" on the highways.

In South Bend, Ind., snowplows that tried to open the streets were called back by midday, and officials said they would not try again until 24 hours after the snow had died down.

Michigan officials declared a state of emergency in Charlevoix and urged everyone to stay off the roads. "The back roads are completely closed," said Earl Muma, the county's emergency services director. "The main trunk lines are completely closed."

"The snow is coming down in buckets," said Robert Sullivan, a dispatcher at the Benzie County sheriff's office.

Wind gusts of 30 mph with the temperature at minus 18 made the wind chill factor 74 below zero in Rockford, Ill. Chicago reported a wind chill of 67 below.

Icy roads caused a pileup of 20 to 30 cars on the Southfield Freeway in suburban Detroit. Police also reported about a dozen smashups on Interstate 94 on Detroit's east side.

In Atlanta, where thousands of cars were abandoned in a storm of freezing rain and snow on Tuesday, the slush partially melted Friday and froze over again during the night, touching off another round of accidents.

City holds hearing at site of new addition

The Tampa City Commission met at 11:30 a.m. Friday for a second public hearing, held on-site, for consideration of annexation and zoning for the Chaumont Addition, directly north of the Pampa Country Club.

Mayor Ray Thompson, Commissioners Clyde Carruth and Melvin Hammon, City Manager Mack Wofford, City Attorney Don Lane, City Engineer David Pullen and land owner Paul Coronis were present for the hearing.

The meeting was brief. Mayor Thompson asked for comments, and Pullen briefly described a plan for city services for the addition, required by House Bill 1952. The plan of service must be adopted by the city commission prior to passage of an ordinance annexing the area into the city.

The plan includes providing city services to the annexed area. Police and fire, water, sewer, refuse collection, streets, inspection services, planning and zoning, street lighting, recreation and the installation of street name signs are covered in the plan. The plan basically states that city services will be provided to the area upon its annexation into the city and states that additional police and fire personnel will be added to continue the present level of services throughout the city, as required. Coronis was asked if he understood the plan, and he said that he did.

The plan provides for annexation of a 500-foot strip of land from the existing city limits east to the Chaumont Addition, involving about 15 acres of land. The Chaumont Addition itself contains 20 acres of land.

This was the second of two public hearings conducted by the city commission to before the ordinance annexing the area is approved.

Mattox sets stage for AG race

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Rep. Jim Mattox of Dallas, rumored for several weeks as a likely candidate for Texas attorney general, has set the stage for such a race by formally designating a campaign treasurer, the Associated Press learned Saturday.

Mattox, 38, wrote a letter to Texas' secretary of state that designated Don Crowder of Dallas as treasurer for an "exploratory effort" for the job being vacated by Mark White.

Crowder, a former law partner, was treasurer for Mattox's previous campaigns.

Mattox has scheduled appearances for Houston, El Paso and Lubbock in the coming week to test the waters. He's still also considering the possibility of seeking reelection for a fourth term in Congress — from either his own Dallas district or an adjacent seat now held by Rep. Phil Gramm, D-College Station.

The Texas Election Code requires designation of a campaign treasurer before anyone can take any "affirmative action" toward an office. It does not constitute an official announcement for the job, however.

The determining factor likely will be whether a three-judge federal court in Austin rules — before the Feb. 1 filing deadline — on whether the Texas Legislature acted properly last year in the way it re-drew Texas congressional district lines.

"That's really going to dictate what we're going to do. I think there's about a 50-50 chance the thing will be overturned," Mattox told the AP in an interview.

"If we win it, I'm going to run for reelection, obviously. But if we don't, there's a big chance I'll get in the attorney general's race."

Mattox was elected to Congress in 1976, but last year's redistricting took away a large minority section of Dallas he has always carried easily and replaced it with the Republican-dominated Park Cities area of Dallas.

Mattox was hurt more than any other Texas congressman by the redistricting plan, which was supported by Texas Gov. Bill Clements and Lieutenant Gov. Bill Hobby.

"I believe what we call the organized lobby is controlling Clements, Hobby; (House Speaker Bill) Clayton, and probably the House. The people need somebody who's going to watch all of them," Mattox said.

"If Bill Clements and Bill Hobby and their fat cat friends didn't like me in Washington, they're going to like me even less if I'm sitting in there watching them every single day to make sure they don't give away the Capitol," Mattox said.

White has announced as a Democratic candidate for governor.

The plan, supported by Texas Gov. Bill Clements, has been appealed to a three-judge federal court in Austin.

Murderer payoff to lead police to bodies stirs controversy

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) - The Mounties had trouble getting their man, the most brutal mass killer in provincial history. So they paid him $90,000 to lead them to the bodies of 11 youths.

That prompted a nationwide controversy. Calls for a federal investigation confront provincial authorities who approved the payment, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police who made it and federal officials who did nothing to stop it.

"To set up a kind of criminal entrepreneurship as a substitute for police investigation is something that cannot be tolerated," says Walter Baker, a Progressive Conservative member of Parliament.

Clifford Robert Olson, a 42-year-old construction worker from the Vancouver suburb of Coquitlam, was sentenced to life in prison last week after pleading guilty to a string of grisly slayings between November 1980 and last July.

Eleven youths, aged 9 to 18, were stabbed, bludgeoned or strangled and dumped in peat bogs and gravel pits in southwestern British Columbia.

No one has said why Olson proposed the deal that gave police the bones or decomposed remains they wanted as solid evidence in the case. But authorities have said Olson first asked to be placed in a mental hospital instead of a prison, and when that was rejected, sought $100,000 for the care of his wife and young son.

Olson's lawyer, Robert Shantz, called the payment morally and legally wrong and "politically insane." British Columbia Attorney General Allan Williams - who said the decision to authorize payment was the most difficult of his life - said he initially found the idea "revolting."

But Williams and the RCMP said that because they lacked enough evidence against Olson, there was no other choice.

Without payment, "there is strong doubt as to whether or not the crimes would ever have been solved," said L y m a n H e n s c h e l, RCMP superintendent in Vancouver.

Federal Solicitor General Robert Kaplan contended police had enough evidence to convict Olson without paying him to pinpoint the location of bodies. He said the RCMP told him of the deal, but that after federal lawyers confirmed its legality he let Williams proceed.

"There was no attempt to purchase a plea of guilty," Kaplan said. "What they were buying was peace of mind for those families who didn't know whether their children were dead or alive."
Some of the victims' families found little peace when they learned of the payoff.

Self-inflicted wound kills store owner

The longtime owner and operator of McCarley's Jewelry Store, 106 N. Cuyler, Philip Braxton McCarley, was found dead in the store Friday of what police say was a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford was called at 2:20 p.m. Friday, but the exact time of death has not been determined.

Police were called to unlock the store when customers reported no answer to their phone calls and no results to their efforts to enter the business.

The weapon was found at the scene.

Red Cross assists Polish, weather victims

WASHINGTON D.C. - Record breaking cold weather in the nation's midwestern, southeastern and northeastern states brought on shelter and feeding operations in thirteen Red Cross Divisions in ten states, as chapters worked to feed more than 6,000 stranded travelers, aged and other with problems caused by bitter cold.

In Iowa, 45 persons were being sheltered due to gas line problems in Des Moines. Shelters were open as a precautionary measure.

At Fayetteville, Ark., the chapter is on standby to meet the needs of 200 senior citizens affected by a power outage.

Low pressure in Atlanta, Ga. gas lines brought cooperative Red Cross municipal plans to open shelter in the city's northeastern section, the area primarily affected.

More than 1,500 stranded motorists were housed in 13 shelters in southern and western portions of Michigan.

In the wake of the storm, Red Cross Chapters in Northern Indiana sheltered 410 stranded motorists as weather conditions forcing closures of I-65 from Indianapolis to Chicago caused the governor to declare a state of emergency.

The same weather forced 630 motorists into Red Cross Shelters along Illinois I-57 in northern and central portions of the state. Grim weather in south central, northwestern and northeastern portions of Ohio brought more than 300 travelers and others into shelters in the vicinity of Cleveland, Toledo and Cincinnati. Cold weather-related fires brought further victims into shelters in Cleveland during the past 48 hours.

Red Cross fed 2,850 victims in 39 shelters in Buffalo, Catteragus, Olean and Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Erie, Pa., using four-wheel-drive vehicles to cope with more than two feet of snow.

In California, 120 Red Cross workers in service centers throughout the flood and mudslide areas, continued to meet the needs of victims in California counties. More than $150,000 has been spent to provide food, clothing and shelter. Painstaking ground surveys continue to contact areas cut off by road closures and mudslides in the rugged area around Santa Cruz.

American Red Cross has transmitted $150,000 to league of Red Cross societies in Geneva to aid Polish Red Cross in its continuing effort to provide for food, clothing and medical needs of 70,000 elderly, 20,000 children and 60,000 newborn during the winter months. The $150,000 forwarded brings to $250,000 the amount of funds earmarked for Polish relief.

1982 voter registration cards mailed

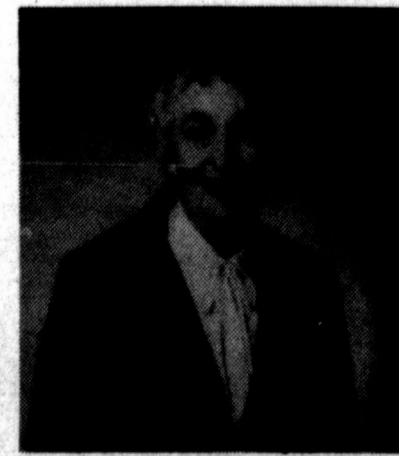

The Gray County Tax Office has mailed out 1982 voter registrations cards in a new color this year to get voters' attention.

All voters are urged to check their cards for the correct addresses and precinct numbers.

If residents have moved within the county and have not received their voter registration cards, they are urged to call or go by the Gray County Courthouse Tax Office.

The registration cards are necessary for voting in a local option election, the May primary and the November general election.

Deliberations resume in brutality trial

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — McAllen policeman Willie Forester says his nerves were shot after a high-speed freeway chase peppered with gunfire and attempts to run the officer off the road.

Early in the morning of Sept. 24, 1977, Forester followed the fleeing car off the expressway into an open field, pulled out his service revolver and ordered the driver out of his car.

The man emerged and Forester held him to the ground with his knee until two colleagues arrived.

What allegedly happened in the next 10 to 15 minutes landed Forester's ranking sergeant Roberto Ramos in a federal courtroom last week, charged with ordering subordinates to beat the prisoner, Rene Escamilla.

When called as a defense witness on Thursday, Forester said he did not see Ramos on the scene until after Escamilla was being placed in a patrol car.

But overnight, Forester said he had second thoughts about his testimony and wanted to add something.

"My honesty is at stake," he said under cross-examination as stunned defense lawyers listened. "My conscience was bothering me if I had told a lie."

He then told jurors he saw Ramos earlier during the incident.

"He (Ramos) said, 'You won't say anything will you?' I turned my back. I didn't know what was going to happen. I just turned around and walked to my car. I didn't want to see anything," he said.

Ramos is the first of five former McAllen policemen to be tried on brutality charges stemming from an eight-month investigation that led to federal grand jury indictments in November.

Jury deliberations resume Monday in the misdemeanor case. If convicted, Ramos faces up to one year in prison and a $1,000 fine.

Until Forester testified a second time, the only witness who related any statement from Ramos at the scene was a then-rookie San Juan policeman, Leonel Saldana.

He saw the flashing lights of several McAllen patrol cars zip off the freeway in a field in San Juan, five miles east of McAllen.

As he walked to where the subject had been stopped, he said he saw a confusing sight.

"They had a male. I imagine the driver of the car. They were beating him up," Saldana said.

Robert Ramos was standing a few feet away from where the incident was going on. I heard him yell out to the officers (in Spanish). 'Beat him up. I can't because I have too many lawsuits pending,'" said Saldana, now a police investigator in Pharr.

Several McAllen officers, including Ramos, had been named in civil police brutality suits.

Ramos took the stand and said he never ordered anyone to beat Escamilla, who later was charged with evading police and several traffic violations. Escamilla, a 36-year-old heavy equipment operator from Weslaco, said he tried to outrun police following a reported nightclub fracas in McAllen.

Ramos said Escamilla was being taken to one of the police units when he arrived. "I could not see myself saying that. I cannot recollect ever saying that. As far as I know, I did not say it," he said of the remark attributed to him by Saldana.

Defense lawyer John Lewis told jurors in closing arguments to remember that Saldana said the beating had started before Ramos arrived.

"You can't say Officer Ramos caused him to be beaten when it was already happening," Lewis said. "Who did this (beating)? Why aren't they being charged?"

Ramos is charged with ordering someone to be beaten, Lewis said.

He's not charged with having beaten Mr. Escamilla. He's not charged with not having stopped someone from beating Mr. Escamilla.

After deliberating one hour and 40 minutes, jurors passed a note Friday to U.S. District Judge Filemon Vela to have Forester's testimony read back to them.

Rapist enjoyed matching wits with police

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Jon Simonis, the confessed Ski Mask Rapist who terrorized women across a dozen states during a three-year spree of rape and robbery, said it was once his ambition to become a policeman.

Simonis also told a Baton Rouge newspaper he enjoyed matching wits with police and teasing investigators with tell-tale clues.

"I would have loved to have been a policeman as long as I didn't have to be on a street corner directing traffic or walking kids across the street," he said.

Simonis' remarks were made during a telephone interview from Angola State Prison published Saturday in a copyright article in the Baton Rouge Morning Advocate. The inmate said he offered the interview during the one phone call he is allowed each month.

Simonis, 31, was arrested last Nov. 27 near his Lake Charles home. He has since pleaded guilty to numerous sexual assaults across Louisiana, and is facing 21 life terms and 2,681 years in prison.

He said he has committed between 60 and 70 rapes and some 100 robberies in 11 other states since his first attack in November of 1978. He said 50 of those crimes were committed in Houston.

The dark-haired, mustachioed former cardio-vascular researcher said he was fascinated by crime well before he began committing it.

"I tried to be in the military police when I first got drafted, but they said I didn't have enough experience," he said.

"If I could have gone into the nitty gritty of it and actually got into the crime myself, I would have enjoyed that thoroughly. In order to catch a criminal you have to think like one. I'm probably as qualified at that as anybody."

Simonis said he was thrilled by the risk and danger of his life of crime, and felt compelled to tease police. He said he would deliberately use his gasoline credit card in towns where he was casing victims, then hang around town all day showing off his flashy red sports car.

"It got to be a big game with the police with me after awhile," he said. "I knew they were after me... It just got to be that much more exciting... Knowing that they were all looking for me and they couldn't catch me."

Simonis said he enlisted the aid of accomplices for about one third of his crimes. Police have arrested two suspected accomplices and are searching for a third. The two in custody, John Dickinson and Fred Boerman of Lake Charles, have pleaded innocent to a variety of charges and are awaiting trial in March.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Church and state defined

In an eminently sensible decision handed down recently, the U.S. Supreme Court better defined the constitutional distance between religion and the state, which has become indistinct through previous rulings.

By an eight-to-one vote, the court said state universities that permit student groups to use campus facilities for meetings must also let religious groups hold worship and study sessions in those facilities.

The case arose from prohibition by the University of Missouri, Kansas City, against use of university property for religious purposes. A student religious group sued, asserting its First Amendment rights of free speech and free exercise of religion had been violated.

A lower court held the university was correct in banning religious use of its facilities because of the constitutional ban on state establishment of religion. But the students prevailed when an appeals court overturned the lower court, ruling that the issue was not promulgation of religion by the state university but denial of a category of speech, namely religious speech.

In upholding the appeals court,

Justice Lewis Powell, writing for the majority, said university openness to religious groups was not a state advancement of religion. But Justice Byron White in his lone dissent asked this troublesome question: If all religious worship comes under the protection of free speech, what additional purpose is free exercise of religion? He said, if the majority opinion is correct, the court should review its ban on school prayers and the mandatory posting of the Ten Commandments in Kentucky's public schools.

The difficulty is that the court, in guarding against state religious entanglement under the Establishment Clause, has some times prohibited religion altogether.

The resulting confusion has led institutions and the judiciary such as the University of Missouri and a lower court to think that no religious groups could meet in a university facility, which was otherwise available to homosexuals, Communists, Democrats, and even Republicans.

Who can seriously believe the founding fathers entertained such an intention when they wrote the Constitution? It is heartening to see now that the Supreme Court does not think so.

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

How many times has a coach not let a boy play because he wants to win, instead of remembering at this age, he has good times in school or bad memories. At this tender age we make a man or woman, or we lose them. Maybe he isn't top on grades or crowds, but he still has a heart and soul.

Many a young person turns to drugs or drinks because life in school gives him nothing to look forward to. He or she never gets to play in any type of sports, because they are not with the crowd. Being No. 1. Tall or not being able to dress with the rest is no reason why every child should not be let have equal time in sports.

We had better forget about self and winning and think about our children we could help keep in school with letting everyone play equal time. Maybe grades and attitudes would change. You might see a change in every day living.

Think about this are you helping our children or losing them to the world. Winning is good but it is better than caring and helping to save a soul. What is five minutes to some children and young people could be the beginning of life.

Name on file

Dear Editor:

On Dec. 22, 1981, about 1 p.m., my daughter and I were in an accident south of Canadian on Highway 83 in a yellow '74 Monte Carlo. An evening tower crew coming from Pampa on their way to work stopped to help us. In the condition I was in, maybe the state of shock, I didn't ask for their names or thank them properly.

I want them to know how much it meant to us for the two of them who stayed with our car so no one would take our Christmas gifts we had in the car, and the other three who took us to the Canadian hospital.

Our family thanks each one of you. And we hope you had a very nice holiday.

Thank you, again,

Anita Boyd
and daughter Charlotte,
Arnett, Okla.

Dear Editor:

I was extremely disappointed to hear of Larry Gilbert's dismissal as our Head Football Coach.

Thanks to him and his fine coaches for a good job these past two years. I doubt that the revered Tom Tipps could have done better. He certainly deserved three years to show if his program could cut it.

As a native Pampa, I have long felt ours is a town with class. Our Board showed none in this matter.

It is contemptible that he should be fired without the prior knowledge of himself, his Athletic Director, or the Superintendent; and without a chance to defend his program to the Board face to face.

More important than the hard work and dedication Gilbert has shown in the outstanding, positive influence he has had on our youth. He has walked tall and as a true Christian.

I am sorry for the ignominy (ours, not his) with which his tenure ended.

Romans 8:28.

Sincerely,
Jerry C. Wilson

If Watt 'opened' Camp David

By ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) — How would President Reagan react if Interior Secretary James G. Watt suggested that motorcycles, jeeps and snowmobiles be allowed access to Camp David, the presidential retreat in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains?

What would Reagan do if Watt proposed that the president open his secluded ranch in California's Santa Ynez Mountains to oil and gas drilling rigs as well as hardrock mining for copper, zinc, gold and assorted other minerals?

Because Reagan is a dedicated outdoorsman who clearly cherishes the grandeur and splendor of an unspoiled natural setting the answer to both of those rhetorical questions is obvious: Watt would be hustled out of his job before he even had time to clean out his desk.

On six separate occasions since he was sworn in as president, Reagan has fled this city and flown to the West to seek the spiritual and physical renewal offered by his 688-acre Rancho del Cielo in high chaparral country. On almost every weekend when he has remained in the East, Reagan has abandoned this city in favor of Camp David, which is, in effect, a small national park maintained for the exclusive use of the country's president.

Yet Reagan has allowed Watt to proceed with a destructive policy that would deny millions of citizens (who don't rate a private park and can't afford a sprawling ranch overlooking the Pacific) a more modest opportunity to enjoy the pristine beauty of the more than 760 million acres of land under the Interior Department's stewardship.

"Watt has done more to dismantle longstanding conservation law and to repudiate sound public policy toward the nation's natural resources than any other person to ever hold his office," says the Wilderness Society.

That widely respected organization has produced an extraordinary catalog documenting Watt's systematic efforts to promote the commercialization, natural resources.

"The Watt Book" compiled by the Wilderness Society consists of a pair of red loose-leaf binders filled with newspaper accounts of Watt's activities, text of his speeches and copies of Interior Department memos.

For those who missed his speech last fall to a group of California farmers, "The Watt Book" faithfully records his disgraceful attempt to question his critics' patriotism: "I don't speak of Republicans and Democrats any more; I speak of liberals and Americans."

He has moved to allow airboats in Everglades National Park, snowmobiles in Yosemite National Park, widely expanded use of motor-power craft in the Grand Canyon and increased access for dune buggies at national seashores.

He has imposed a total moratorium on the acquisition of additional national parkland, sought to abandon his department's responsibility for parks in urban areas and proposed that commercial operators assume the functions of park rangers.

He has rejected policies and traditions established by distinguished predecessors of both parties, claiming instead that his mission is "to charge 40 to 50 years of bad government" — which includes the Republican administrations of Presidents Eisenhower, Nixon and Ford.

He has encouraged strip mining of coal near a national park in Utah, oil and gas exploration adjacent to a wilderness area in New Mexico and various forms of mineral or fuel exploitation on public lands in Montana, Wyoming, Arkansas and California.

He has sought to eviscerate federal law governing strip mining and attempted to offer virtually the entire Outer Continental Shelf for oil and gas leasing at an accelerated rate that even the petroleum industry opposed.

Meanwhile, back at the Reagan ranch, the president is so determined to maintain the character of his mountain hideaway that he has imposed strict limitations on a small cluster of temporary buildings necessary for security, military, communications and other support personnel.

How can the president be so sensitive to the importance of living in harmony with nature yet allow Watt to grossly mismanage the public's land and natural resources? (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Ghosts of scuffles past

By D.R. SEGAL

I read in my favorite newspaper that the fellow who plays Tiny Tim in the South Coast Repertory theater's production of "A Christmas Carol" paid a surprise visit on Peter Kremer, president of the Irvine Co., and I wonder if it didn't scare the poor devil half to death. I mean if I were president of the Irvine Co. and the principal target of a committee of 4,000 disgruntled tenants. I think I'd dive under the desk if the door opened and there stood a guy brandishing a crutch. A lady almost beamed me with an umbrella years ago in Marysville, and every since then I have been wary of visitors who carry umbrellas.

crutches, paving bricks and ceremonial swords.

I have met Mr. Kremer and he seems a pleasant enough fellow but I do not think he is the pin-up boy for the folks down along the coast who rent their property from the Irvine Co. and look forward to having their rents increased by 9,000 percent or so. And then there are the two or three little merchants who are going to be aced out of the Irvine shopping center when it is remodeled — definitely not to be confused with the magi bearing gifts, no, sir.

I'd always thought editors ought to be able to take a tax deduction for hiring a food-taster and I think maybe the same should be said for the president of the Irvine Co. and Sen. Schmitz. All the bulldozes in the world are sore at Sen. Schmitz, especially the Jewish ones, and he is another person who should be wary of visitors carrying pointy objects or anything that could be used as a projectile. He should be especially leery of anyone named Tiny Tim, for gosh sake, because you can't tell about those people either and some of them are pretty extreme cases.

The reason Tiny Tim went to see Peter Kremer was to thank the Irvine Co. for underwriting the theater's production of "A Christmas Carol." I thought I ought to establish that in case you missed the story and wondered why T.T. was messing around with the Irvine Co. or figured the Irvine Co. had bought the rights to "A Christmas Carol" and was about to increase the royalty fees a jillion percent.

Aside from the lady who threatened me with her umbrella, my years as an editor were devoid of serious threat of bodily harm. I was almost scared out of my wits when two highland bagpipers marched into my office one day, dressed for the part, and skirled (isn't that what you do?) their pipes something awful. They were advertising a gathering of the clan which occurs annually in the mountains of North Carolina but I didn't know it at the time and I thought they were a couple of my in-laws come to take my bride back to Loch Lomond. No harm done except I had to go home and discuss it with my old friend Jack Daniels, who is a comfort.

The Sources in the White House

By ART BUCHWALD

The media keep getting blamed for all sorts of crimes committed against the government, but very little is mentioned about how many times the press is used by the government to do its dirty work.

Take the recent firing of the President's national security stablehand who, when it came to Mr. Reagan's horseback riding, was considered one of his closest advisers.

The stablehand, Horatio Bridle, had irked high members of the White House staff with an interview he had given to Sports Illustrated saying the President kept slipping off his saddle. Since this was privileged information, the White House aides decided Bridle was not a team player and had to go. But no one had the nerve to break the news to the President's stablehand.

So one of the aides called up his good friend Sam Dunderdy of the ANC Evening News and said, "Ask me a question about Horatio Bridle."

Sam said, "What's going on with the President's stablehand?"

"I can't tell you," the aide replied and hung up.

This was enough for Sam. He went on the air that night and said, "White House sources hinted today that there could be a big shakeup with the constant bickering going on between his national security stablehand adviser and the grooms at Quantico, where his horse is kept."

The next morning, crews from all the major networks were staked out at Bridle's house. When he left for work, cameras were shoved in his face, and he was asked if he was on his way out?

"No one has spoken to me about it," Bridle said. "The President has told me I could have the stablehand job as long as I wanted it."

That afternoon, Lilly Sta, the CBT

White House correspondent was having lunch with a Reagan insider. He said, "Ask me if Charlton Dancer is being considered as a replacement for Horatio Bridle as the President's national security stablehand."

Lilly said, "Is Charlton Dancer being considered to replace Bridle in the White House?"

"There is no truth to the story whatsoever."

Lilly rushed back to her place in front of the White House and reported to the TV audience, "despite denials from the President, it has now been decided to replace Horatio Bridle with Charlton Dancer, who was stablehand to Mr. Reagan when the President was governor of California."

By this time Bridle was becoming frantic. He went to the White House aides and asked to see the President, so that he could be assured once and for all that his job was in jeopardy.

The President agreed to see Bridle, and afterwards said, "Horatio is the best stablehand I've ever had."

A White House aide standing next to Jackie Woodley of NBZ whispered to her, "Ask me if this is the last time the President will ever see Bridle again."

"Is this the last time the President will see Bridle?"

"The White House man said, "No comment."

Jackie went on the air that night and said, "NBZ has learned today that despite the meeting between President Reagan and Horatio Bridle the President will announce the appointment of the new national security stablehand tomorrow. White House aides said the vicious attacks and innuendoes by the media on Bridle now make it impossible for him to do this job."

Large quake predicted for New England

WESTON, Mass. (AP) — The earthquakes that shook homes from Canada to Connecticut earlier this month confirmed that the New England may suffer a potentially dangerous quake within the next 80 years, a geophysicist says.

"We can expect one between now and 2060," said Valdimir Vudler of Boston College's Weston Observatory. "You might have something as big as this one or larger, most likely offshore."

The first quake, centered in New Brunswick, struck early Jan. 9 and registered at 5.8 on the Richter scale of ground motion. At least two aftershocks, nearly as strong, followed.

For scientists, the quakes were a delight, providing a bonanza of new information about the earth's crust.

"This was an ideal opportunity to study large earthquakes," said Vudler. "This is the first large earthquake we have been able to monitor with so many instruments."

When the first quake began, an array of 38 automatic recording stations throughout New England fed the observatory a stream of new information about the earth's crust.

Vudler said the observatory records about 40 slight quakes each year, adding scientists believe the mini-quakes are caused by the "rebound mechanism." That geological theory holds that the Earth's surface is still springing back from the weight of a 2-mile-thick sheet of ice deposited over New England in an ice age 12,000 years ago.

"It's like pushing your hand on a beach ball,"

Vudler explained. "When you remove it, the surface of the ball springs up."

Scientists believe that major earthquakes are caused by the shifting of land "plates." Current theory holds that continents and ocean floors are gigantic plates that float on the molten rock that makes up earth's core.

New England and the rest of the East Coast are spared the frequent, violent quakes experienced in California because the nearest plate comes together in the mid-Atlantic.

Vudler says last week's quakes were something else. Scientists interpreting the seismic readings believe the earthquake occurred six miles beneath the earth's surface.

Congress votes itself $75-a-day tax deduction

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taxpayers who are collecting their receipts and check stubs for their 1981 tax returns could be forgiven for dreaming of a seat in Congress. There, they could claim a $75-per-day tax deduction without any proof at all.

Acting under orders from Congress, the Internal Revenue Service has announced that, retroactive to 1981, a Senate or House member may write off $75 a day for expenses of living in Washington without showing any substantiation.

Tax experts say that under some extreme circumstances, some lawmakers may be able to escape taxes altogether. But if that happens, it will be because Congress voted itself unlimited deductions last year, not because of the new

IRS regulation.

"I would be very surprised if any member was able to 'zero-out' because of this," said one expert, who asked not to be named.

But even though most lawmakers will continue to pay some tax, the new law will provide them an extraordinary benefit that, in a typical year, will result in a tax deduction of around $20,000. That is one-third their $60,662 salary.

Under ordinary circumstances, the IRS can demand that a taxpayer prove he or she is entitled to a certain deduction. (An exception is state and local sales taxes, an average amount of which are deductible without proof.)

But the new law allows lawmakers the $20,000 deduction for the asking.

If a member wants to substantiate a higher deduction, he or she may. And in some cases, the new provision could be worth several times $20,000 a year.

For tax purposes, a lawmaker's home is considered his district or home state. Thus, when a member goes to Washington, he or she is treated like any businessman on out-of-town business; such business costs as food, lodging and entertainment are deductible. The difference was that until this year, a member of Congress was limited to a $3,000 deduction.

Late last year, Congress wiped out that limit and made sure that the cost of maintaining a second home in Washington, could be deducted. To avoid voting for a dollar figure that could be interpreted as a pay raise, the lawmakers ordered IRS to set an amount that a member of Congress could deduct for all Washington expenses without having to keep records.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

Reports

AUSTIN — On January 1, the new law we sponsored to give a tax break for Texas gasohol became a reality. Events in the world of agriculture this year show the law could not have come at a better time.

In a year of tremendous grain harvests, the price makes farming seem like it's just not worth it. We hope the gasohol industry will create a new market for grain products, and in turn stabilize the price of grain and allow farmers to make a profit for a change.

The gasohol bill gives gasohol a five cent a gallon tax credit. This should make gasohol competitive with unleaded gasoline, and entice people to buy it. Gasohol will be marketed under other names, such as super unleaded, in many markets.

Three gasohol plants for Texas already are on the drawing board. These plants will cost a total of $200 million. Two are planned for the Panhandle with one in Dumas and one in Muleshoe. These are just the major plants. Many smaller plants are planned, and some already are operating. When we consider the added benefits of new investment, these two plants should be worth about $600 million to the Panhandle's economy.

This money will come in the form of supply contracts for construction, construction jobs for workers and engineers and jobs for people to run the plants.

In addition, there should be new markets for grain. The gasohol bill specifies that the gasohol be made from renewable resources. Now, that means grain, although other sources undoubtedly will appear in the future.

This bill puts Texas on an even basis with other states. Every state that surrounds Texas already had an exemption for gasohol — now we have joined them.

Now the decision of where to put a gasohol plant in the Southwest United States will be made on the basis of merit, not on the basis of where the tax credits are.

Texans never have needed an unfair advantage. All we need is a fighting chance, and that's what the bill gives to the Texas gasohol industry — a fighting chance.

We need your help in supporting the gasohol industry in this state. Buy gasohol. It's good for your cars and trucks, and good for the Texas farmer. As food becomes more and more important, we need to make sure our farmers stay in business long enough to see them through the bad times they have had recently.

Millionaire's trial seems like Hollywood movie

TYLER, Texas (AP) — It's cast with characters a Hollywood screen writer might dream up — a flashy, high-rolling Texas millionaire, a skinny ranch foreman called "Muscles", an ambitious prosecutor and the best legal help money can buy.

The plot is complex and intriguing — a Texas-sized story that unfolds in a federal courtroom here, where a silver-haired rancher is on trial for allegedly masterminding one of the biggest marijuana smuggling rings in the state's history.

Rex Cauble, whose drug smuggling conspiracy and embezzlement trial got underway last week, is accused of financing a group credited with smuggling hundreds of tons of marijuana from Colombia into Texas during 1977 and 1978.

The smuggling operation — dubbed the "Cowboy Mafia" — has netted prosecutors 26 convictions since officials arrested a crew of cowboys in November 1978 as they unloaded 22 tons of the illegal weed from a shrimp boat docked at Port Arthur into trucks allegedly bound for Cauble ranches.

But prosecutors contend Cauble, whose fortune is estimated at between $55 million and $80 million, represents the biggest catch of all.

The 67-year-old rancher has earned a reputation befitting the state he lives in — big and with a lot of flash.

His empire, built in part with oil and banking interests, includes six Texas ranches and two chic Western wear stores named after his champion palomino, "Cutter Bill."

Cauble was born the son of a cotton farmer and worked as an oilfield roughneck at the age of 17. The self-made tycoon says he loves gambling, horses and flash Western clothes. He swears he doesn't own a regular pair of shoes, instead preferring to wear cowboy boots.

He's rubbed elbows with the Texas elite and counts among his friends former Texas Gov. John Connally and Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton.

The prosecutors have said the Cauble case began with a $250-a-week ranch foreman named Charles Foster.

Foster, a skinny ex-rodeo cowboy with the nickname "Muscles," met Cauble at a horse show in 1960. Cauble's attorneys say the rancher noticed Foster's knack at selling and trading horses and cattle and hired the cowboy to work for him.

But Foster had problems with women and money — and usually the two went hand-in-hand. His friends testified during his 1980 trial that Foster couldn't keep cash in his pocket when he was around a beautiful woman.

When the women left — as they often did — Foster would become depressed and morose, his friends said. He often slipped away and disappeared for weeks at a time, they said.

When he returned from one of his extended absences, Cauble would always welcome him back with open arms, the rancher's attorney, Roy Minton, said.

It was this trusting, father-son relationship that got the rancher into trouble, Minton said during opening remarks last week.

Foster was targeted as the ringleader in the smuggling operation. Federal authorities contend Cauble loaned him hundreds of thousands of dollars to finance the alleged scheme.

Foster was eventually indicted. Up until Foster's trial in the summer of 1980, Assistant U.S. Attorney David Baugh had been highly successful in winning convictions against members of the smuggling ring.

But Foster was acquitted after jurors in Marshall agreed with an insanity defense used by his court-appointed attorney, G. Brockett Irwin.

Irwin, who once dubbed himself the "Albino Pigmy" because of his small stature and fair complexion, was the only defense attorney sympathetic to Cauble during a trial.

Lawyers for other members of the ring had tried to foist the blame on Cauble, who they called the "big fish."

But instead, Irwin attacked Baugh. In opening remarks in Foster's trial, he said the burly prosecutor had "great ambition" and wanted to nail Cauble in the scheme.

Baugh contends Irwin was one of few defense attorneys who have defeated him in a courtroom over the past several years.

After the Foster trial, Irwin became Cauble's attorney. But when the trial got underway Monday, it was Minton, an Austin lawyer who successfully defended Clayton on Brilab charges, who took the floor.

Minton brought with him a private investigator and his law partner, Charles Burton.

"It's well known that if you've got money or if you're a politician and you get in trouble, you go to Minton and Burton," said John Sutton, a Travis County employee who has known the two for years.

Tyler man sentenced in gold scheme

DALLAS (AP) — A Tyler businessman has been sentenced to 10 years in prison following his guilty plea to charges of defrauding three investors in a phony gold scheme.

William Chester Carr, 49, was sentenced Friday by U.S. District Judge Robert Hill, who previously handed prison terms to three co-defendants in the case.

Carr, one of four men indicted in the conspiracy, was the mastermind of the scheme, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Stephens.

The 13-count indictment charged Carr, Walter M. Heffington, Russell P. White Jr. and Anthony F. Giella with conspiring to defraud Texas investors of money paid toward the purchase of 81,000 troy ounces of gold.

The non-existent gold supposedly was stored in a Florida warehouse, the indictment alleged.

FARM LEASES

This time of year the subject of farm leases gets brought up. It seems each year lately the irrigated farm renter needs something different in the way of income and expenses to keep afloat.

The term equitable crop-share leases has been discussed the last 3 to 4 years. Some of our Extension Economists have worked on determining what constitutes a fairly equitable lease for both the tenant and the land owner.

The inequitable part of most traditional rent shares is the lack of sharing expenses. On irrigated farm situations that Ray Sammons, Extension Economist, Amarillo, worked through, he found that for a quick, easy solution to equitable farm leases we can use the "one-third share 5" concept. This assumes the land owner owns the wells, pumps and distribution system while the tenant owns the motors.

The "one-third share 5" rental agreement is reasonably equitable if they share the following five items on a one-third, two-thirds basis: 1 seed; 2 fertilizer; 3 all chemicals; 4 irrigation fuel; and 5 harvest.

This may not fit every situation, but it is a move towards helping obtain maximum net income for everyone concerned. The old traditional crop-share leases do not take into account certain irrigation type expenses that benefit the landowner a lot more than the tenant. I have heard of some farms going back to a dryland operation because of the lack of profit in the old traditional leases. This new type of lease arrangement will possibly allow tenants to operate irrigated farms.

If you have questions, give me a call, 669-7429, or come by the office.

PLANNING FOR PROFITS IN 1982

With farm and ranch income sagging and production costs continuing to rise, producers must study and analyze all possible options in production, financing and marketing if they are to remain in business in 1982.

To enable producers to sharpen their survival skills, a conference "Profitable Decision-Making" has been scheduled January 27 for Amarillo, Texas.

The conference is designed to provide the latest information to assist producers with decisions and aid them in looking realistically at financial and production situations. Farm policy implications, production information, financial strategies and marketing alternatives will be discussed.

The conference will start at 9:30 a.m. at the TAMU Agricultural Research and Extension Center, 6500 Amarillo Blvd., West, Wheat, grain sorghum and corn will be the major commodities to be discussed.

A team of state Extension economists will be on hand to provide outlook and update information. Members will include Dr. Ron Knutson, Dr. Roland Smith, and Dr. Wayne A. Hayenga. Producers are encouraged to attend this conference.

CROP SEMINAR

We have scheduled a Crop Seminar for Gray County on Tuesday, February 9 in Pampa at the Courthouse Annex. Tentative plans call for the program to begin at 10 a.m. and adjourn around 4 p.m. with a noon lunch break.

The program presently calls for discussions relating to fertilization, efficient irrigations, insect control, disease control, weed control, guar, soybean and cotton production practices.

Speakers include Dale Pennington, Leon New, Carl Patrick, Robert Berry, Frank Petr and James Supak. Additional topics may be added.

CATTLE GRADING DEMONSTRATION

Cattlemen have the opportunity to see first-hand what's involved in delivering cattle on a futures contract. The National Cattlemen's Association has a pre-convention Cattle Grading Demonstration on Sunday, January 31, 1982, at the Joe Freeman Coliseum complex (horse arena), San Antonio from 4 to 7 p.m.

Cattlemen desiring to attend just the grading demonstration do not have to register for the overall convention.

$100 million a year stolen in Texas oil patch

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Thieves take an estimated $100 million a year in crude oil and equipment from the Texas oil patch and state officials say about it is not much they can do about it.

"We are woefully understaffed to handle the problem with the remote location of our oil fields," Floyd Hacker, the Department of Public Safety chief of criminal law enforcement, told a legislative subcommittee Wednesday.

"We know we can't handle the problem. We want to admit that up front," said Hacker.

"We have no jurisdiction over any form of theft," added Bob Harris, the director of the Railroad Commission's oil and gas division.

The two state officials were among a dozen witnesses, including Attorney General Mark White, who appeared Wednesday during a daylong hearing by the Oilfield Theft Subcommittee of the House Intergovernmental Affairs Committee into possible legislation to head-off burgeoning thefts in the oil patch.

White told the legislators that public school children, university students and taxpayers of Texas all were losers in the increasing thefts in the state's far-flung oil industry.

He said one fourth of all state revenues come from oil and gas severance taxes and that one of every 16 Texans works in the industry.

"The fact is stealing is stealing. It's just as wrong for a man in a tan truck to steal $75 to $100 worth of oil as for a man to break into your home and steal your TV set," the attorney general said.

Rep. Tommy Adkisson, D-San Antonio, chaired the subcommittee hearing and said later legislation based on testimony could be introduced when the January 1983 Legislature convenes.

Hacker said the DPS and Texas Rangers had become more aware of stealing of oil and equipment over recent years, but lacked manpower and expertise to deal with it.

Harris said the Railroad Commission, with only 100 field investigators to handle all phases of booming oil industry, also was understaffed and — in addition to that — was not empowered to investigate thefts.

The best the Railroad

Commission can do, he said, is lend expertise to law enforcement agencies.

Tom Haywood, executive vice president of the North Texas Oil and Gas Association, said county sheriffs and district attorneys also were overburdened and lacked time and expertise to spend on oilfield theft cases.

That is why his organization is offering rewards and funding special prosecutors and investigators, Haywood said.

"Theft cases are not followed up with any vigor, either investigative or prosecutorial," Haywood said.

Haywood said an oilfield theft "hotline" opened at his organization's Wichita Falls office six months ago had revealed the enormity of the problem.

Robert Vinson, president of the Texas Independent Producers Legal Action Committee, announced at Wednesday's hearing that a $50,000 fund had been established to aid local sheriffs and district attorneys in investigating and prosecuting oilfield thieves.

Vinson said that Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Weatherford, a member of the subcommittee panel, had agreed to screen applications from localities for assistance.

Wright said that more than 10 industry organizations in Texas already have pledged to support a separate statewide organization to deal solely with oilfield thefts in conjunction with law enforcement agencies. He said the unnamed organization would be finalized on Jan. 27.

"As a matter of fact, it has been noted that the average oilfield theft operation nets, the thief more than the average bank robbery," Wright told the legislators.

"The petroleum industry is willing to do its part in fighting the theft problem," Wright said. "We do not expect our representatives in Austin to solve the problem for us."

"But the oil and gas industry paid almost $2.2 billion in Texas severance taxes last fiscal year. These and other taxes paid by the petroleum industry account for over a third of the state's tax base. So we are not shy about asking for help when we need it."

He said specific measures TIPRO might suggest to the next Texas Legislature are tighter control of salt water haulers, authorizing police in inspect rolling equipment, better funding of anti-theft efforts, and improved monitoring to ensure that stolen crude oil does not reenter legitimate channels.

"There is just not a well-defined investigative agency available," White said.

He suggested that the Legislature might give the Railroad Commission more authority to deal with thefts.

Clinton to host oil and gas show

The Second Annual Anadarko Basin Oil and Gas Show will be conducted in Clinton, Okla. April 1-3, according to Clinton Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Brent Thompson.

This year's show will feature exhibitors from all over the nation and 70 percent of the exhibition booths have been sold. It has been expanded to a full three days and is expected to draw some 40,000 interested onlookers, making it one of the largest oil and gas trade shows in the United States.

KCLI — FM Radio and the Clinton Chamber of Commerce as well as many other Clinton merchants and businessmen will sponsor the event.

According to Thompson, "The oil and gas trade show is designed strictly as a buyer's show. There will be no seminars or conferences. The market is still wide open in the Anadarko Basin area, and we hope we can serve as a successful tool for the oil and gas industry."

In the first year of its existence, the show attracted some 150 exhibitors, most of which are returning this year, as well as approximately 15,000 people. Interest in the continuation of this and other trade shows has sparked city fathers and the local chamber to initiate conversation concerning a convention center — exhibit hall facility here.

Those wishing to participate as exhibitors should contact Kay Igo at KCLI - FM Radio, (405) 323-6555, or Brent Thompson at the Clinton Chamber of Commerce, (405) 323-2222, for details.

Harvesters cruise by Monterey

By L.D. STRATE
Pampa News Sports Writer

Lubbock Monterey pleaded nolo contendere and the Pampa Harvesters passed a swift judgement Friday night in Harvester Fieldhouse.

Pampa forced Lubbock Monterey out of its slowdown offense early in the game with aggressive play and cruised to a 77-48 win. Pampa's defense created 23 Monterey turnovers, resulting in numerous fast-break baskets.

Harvester head coach Garland Nichols was surprised at the easy victory.

"Monterey wasn't as strong as I thought they'd be," he said. "I expected a much tougher game."

"We did some things we wouldn't ordinarily do under other circumstances. We gave them some easy baskets I felt like we could have stopped if we hadn't tried to rush them into speeding up the game."

Pampa's lopsided verdict also erased a long losing spell against Lubbock Monterey teams. It was the ninth consecutive victory for the Harvesters, who are now 17-3 overall. It was the first time a Nichols coached team in three previous meetings had beaten Monterey.

The Plainsmen dropped to 6-15 on the season.

Pampa shot 50 percent (28 of 56) from the floor and outrebounded the Plainsmen by a whopping 30-12 margin. Pampa controlled the boards so effectively that the Plainsmen had only two rebounds the first quarter and none the fourth quarter.

The Harvesters led by 11, (33-22), at halftime, but had built up as much as a 17-point advantage in the first half. Pampa led by as much as 22 points before the third quarter ended.

"The kids did a good job on the fast break and handling their press," Nichols added.

Charles Nelson (21 points, 7 rebounds), Mike Nelson (20 points, 6 rebounds) and Terry Faggins (11 points, 7 rebounds) did the heaviest damage for the Harvesters.

Monterey's hopes were dashed early when leading scorer Mark Lambert (13.9 ppg) suffered a knee injury in a collision under the basket with just two minutes gone in the first quarter. Lambert, who had scored Monterey's first basket, never returned to action.

Harold Andrews and Bryan Lester led the losers with 10 points apiece.

Also scoring for Pampa were Coyle Winborn and Jimmy Barker, six points apiece; Meryl Dowdy, five; Terry Ferguson and Phil Jeffrey, three points apiece, and Craig Chapin, two.

"The only thing I wasn't pleased with was our in-bounds plays," Nichols said. "We're going to work on that this week and also go through our overall game plan."

"We need to just keep improving every game since district is almost here."

Pampa opens District 3-5A play Friday, Jan. 22 against Amarillo Caprock in Harvester Fieldhouse.

Pampa's final non-district game is Tuesday night against Liberal, Kans. in Harvester Fieldhouse.

Pampa Shockers fell to Lubbock Monterey JVs, 57-55, in overtime in the junior varsity game.

In girls' action, Pampa opened District 3-5A competition on an unhappy note Friday night with a 77-25 setback at the hands of Amarillo High.

Carmen Wynn led the winners with 25 points. Keva Richardson led Pampa with eight points while Debi Young had five.

Pampa also lost the junior varsity game, 60-25.

Lori Bolk scored 14 points for Amarillo and Kerri Richardson scored nine for Pampa.

Warmups

Warming up is one of the debatable points of exercise. If you warm up too long, fatigue sets in before the activity; or if you warm up too little, an injury may occur. Should the warmup relate to the sport activity you will be participating in, or something else? A 15 to 20-minute warmup is, however, a very small investment in injury insurance.

Begin the warmup with a gentle, all-body activity (walking, jumping rope, stationary bike riding, swimming, running, calisthenics) for 5 to 10 minutes, slowly increasing your speed until a comfortable pace is reached. This warms up the soft tissues, gets the blood flowing to the muscles, and gently invigorates the whole body. While you are still warm, stretch with long, gentle stretches just reaching a mild tension and hold for 30 to 90 seconds. Concentrate on tight areas. Then work on a specific skill related to the sport you will be participating in. For example, shooting baskets before a basketball game.

The warmup should be an integral part of your workout. Not taking the time to warm up could cause a serious injury that will take more time to heal than the 15 to 20 minutes that could have been invested to prevent it.

Tennis League Entries

Entry blanks for the tennis league are available at the Fitness Center or at Vance Hall Sporting Goods. The winners will have a choice between a trophy or a gift certificate. Entry fees are five dollars for members and $25 for non-members for each event entered. The entry deadline is Jan. 23 and the entry fee must accompany the entry form.

Runner's Club Plaque

The 1000 Mile Runner's Club plaque is up and ready for the finishers' names to be engraved. The entry fee is five dollars, which also includes a t-shirt. More information is available at the Fitness Center desk.

Aerobic Dance

Enroll today in an Aerobic Dance class that will begin tomorrow, Jan. 18. The class will be held Monday and Wednesday mornings at 9 a.m., and will continue for six weeks. The cost is $30 for members and $35 for non-members, and babysitting is also available. Aerobic dance is a fun way to exercise, so call the Youth Center at 665-0748.

Open For Everyone

The Pampa Youth and Community Center is for any person in the Pampa area. If you have any questions about fitness or the Center's programs, call the new phone number, 665-0748, or come by 1005 West Harvester.

Trustees to review coaches' resumes

Candidates for the Pampa High head football coaching job have been instructed to forward their resumes to the Superintendent's Office for further review. Athletic Director Loyd Waters said Friday.

"We have received several phone calls from coaches interested in the job, but we haven't started interviewing at this point," Waters added.

The head coaches' job was left vacant when Larry Gilbert's contract was not renewed by the Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees during their executive session last Tuesday night.

Only one assistant so far has resigned from the Harvester coaching staff. Defensive line coach Ron Pinckard resigned to take the head coaches' job at Booker High School.

Meyer's dream becomes reality

DALLAS (AP) — You would have expected more rancor. After all, a National Football League team had just raided one of its player farmclubs again for a head football coach.

Not so at Southern Methodist University which lost its messiah to the New England Patriots.

But why no open bitterness after the school has just earned its first Southwest Conference title in over a decade and posted its finest record since 1935?

Probably because Ron Meyer put his cards on the table when he came here six years ago.

He said he hoped to finish his collegiate career at SMU, which he did, but if the pros ever came along, adios SWC and hello NFL.

Meyer's dream of coaching in the NFL outweighed his love for SMU when the crunch came.

Meyer got the NFL bug when he was a scout with the Dallas Cowboys in 1971 and 1972 and has a Super Bowl ring to prove it.

The pro game fascinated him and he often talked long hours about it, reshaping offenses and personnel.

Meyer became head coach at Nevada-Las Vegas in 1973 and came to SMU in 1976. His offenses were imaginative and more importantly, he won. He coached the offense and hired somebody to take over the defense.

It doesn't matter to him that he was the third pick at New England behind Southern California's John Robinson, and Penn State's Joe Paterno.

"I've been a lot lower than No. 3," Meyer joked.

Has he ever. He earned a scholarship at Purdue as a walkon and likes to tell the story of how he used to sneak into Ohio State games as a kid.

Walkons always had a chance at SMU which should be encouraging to any free agent trying to make the New England team.

With this background, it was little wonder that Athletic Director Bob Hitch gave Meyer his blessing although he had many years to run on his contract.

"Why would you keep him from what he has always wanted to do?" deduced Hitch.

The NFL hasn't been exactly getting a free lunch at SMU. Why do you think SMU plays at Texas Stadium, home of the Dallas Cowboys?

NEW ENGLAND BOUND. Ron Meyer, Southern Methodist University head football coach, gestures at a press conference in Dallas where he announced he was taking the top coaching position for the New England Patriots. Meyer replaces Ron Erhardt, who was fired after a 2-14 season. Meyer, 38, coached SMU to a 33-33-1 record in six seasons. (AP Laserphoto)

South wins Senior Bowl

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — John Fourcade of Mississippi scored two touchdowns on 1-yard runs and Alabama's Benny Perrin returned an interception 84 yards for another score as the South downed the North 27-10 in the 33rd Senior Bowl college football game Saturday.

Fourcade's two scoring plunges gave the South a 14-0 lead early in the second quarter. Perrin's interception return then put the Rebels in control for good, with a 24-7 lead just 5½ minutes into the third quarter.

Perrin's interception was one of three against All-American quarterback Jim McMahon of Brigham Young. The Rebels also intercepted another off Robin Gabriel of New Mexico.

Barry Redden of Richmond also played a major role in the South attack, running for 101 yards on 12 carries.

The South's victory ended a two-game winning string by the North in the series and lifted the Rebels' advantage to 16-14-3.

Eddie Garcia of Southern Methodist accounted for the other South points, scoring on field goals of 38 and 55 yards. The latter broke the Senior Bowl record of 52 yards set by Russell Exlebeen of Texas in 1979.

The North's scoring came on a 21-yard pass from Gabriel to Gerald Luceur of Temple in the final minute of the first half and on a 24-yard field goal by Morten Andersen of Michigan State early in the fourth quarter.

Fourcade was named the most valuable player in the game, and tackle Steve Clark of Utah was selected the outstanding defensive performer.

California cowboys take lead in rodeo

DENVER (AP) — Defending world champion calf ropers Doyle Gellerman and Walt Woodard roped their steer in 5.8 seconds Saturday to take over first place in team roping's first go-round at the National Western Stock Show Rodeo.

Gellerman is from Oakdale, Calif., and Woodard is from Stockton, Calif.

Rick Marron of Hollister, Calif., and Romana Figueroa of Sonita, Ariz., held second in team calf roping with a time of 6.0.

Gary Ledford of Comanche, Okla., posted the fastest calf-roping time of the rodeo, 8.2 seconds, to take the lead in that event's second go-round.

In bareback bronc riding, riders out of the collegiate and prep ranks held down three of the top four places.

Monk Dishman of Kountze, Texas, a two-time national high school champion, led the bareback first go-round with 82 points.

Reigning intercollegiate bareback champion Larry Peabody of Bozeman, Mont., and national intercollegiate finalist Gordon Griffith of Loveland, Colo., posted identical scores of 80 points to tie for third.

Tar Heels down Duke

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Senior guard Jimmy Black's ball-hawking defense opened the door for an 18-4 spurt as top-ranked North Carolina cruised to a 73-63 victory over Duke in Atlantic Coast Conference basketball Saturday night.

Black had three steals to disrupt Duke's offense and scored 14 points. Michael Jordan led North Carolina with 19 points and James Worthy had 17 as the 13-0 Tar Heels overcame a one-point halftime deficit to take a 56-42 lead midway through the second half.

Duke tried to get back into the game but the accurate Tar Heel shooting put them further into a hole until, with 2:44 remaining, the Blue Devils trailed 71-50.

North Carolina coach Dean Smith then emptied his bench, allowing Duke to close to the final margin.

Duke's Vinee Taylor scored a game-high 22 points as the Blue Devils dropped to 4-9, 0-4 in the ACC. Doug McNeely scored 14 and Chip Engelland added 10.

The Tar Heels lead the ACC with a 4-0 conference mark.

Baylor wins squeaker

WACO, Texas (AP) — Joe Copeland snapped the Baylor Bears out of hibernation just in time Saturday, breaking a tie game with a nine-foot jump shot that propelled Baylor to a narrow win over Rice.

But Baylor coach Jim Haller admitted the 55-53 victory could just as easily have gone the other way.

"This is the way it has been in the Southwest Conference all year," said Haller, whose team had to score at the buzzer for a two-point win over Southern Methodist earlier in the week.

"The games are so close because the teams are so evenly matched. Today it came down to the end and we were lucky enough to be the team that got hot."

The Owls were in position for a comeback try, but coach Tommy Suits said his club waited too long to rally.

"We got too far behind. You have to do too many things right to catch up and we just ran out of time," said Suits. "We had a mental breakdown at the finish."

Copeland paced the Bears with 17 points.

Schlichter paces Gold Bowl win

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Quarterback Art Schlichter passed for two first-quarter touchdowns and running back David Tolouma scored twice, leading Team National to a 30-21 victory over Team American in the first Olympia Gold Bowl Saturday.

Team American, after trailing 23-7 going into the fourth quarter, narrowed the gap to 23-21 with 7:22 remaining. But Idaho State quarterback Mike Machurek tossed a 19-yard scoring pass to Tolouma with 2:54 to play to seal the victory.

Schlichter left the game midway in the second quarter to meet a prior commitment in Washington, D.C., but the Ohio State star made the most of his brief appearance here. He threw scoring strikes of 6 yards to UCLA tight end Tim Wrightman and 15 yards to Tulane tight end Rod Holman.

Iowa State fullback Dwayne Crutchfield scored all three touchdowns for Team American on runs of 1, 1 and 2 yards.

Schlichter completed his first eight passes, wound up with completions of nine of 12 attempts for 129 yards and was named the game's Most Valuable Offensive Player.

Team National Linebacker Clayton Weishuhn of Angelo State in Texas was voted the Most Valuable Defensive Player.

Schlichter was replaced by Matt Kofler of San Diego State, who promptly directed two scoring drives to put Team National ahead 23-7 early in the third quarter. Tolouma's first TD came on a 5-yard run early in the second quarter. Idaho State kicker Case de Brujin added a 27-yard field goal.

State agencies getting bigger

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Politicians preach smaller government but Homer Foerster still spends lots of time trying to find office space for the ever-expanding state agencies.

More than half of state government doesn't fit into the 1.5 million square feet of state-owned office space, most of it in a cluster of pink granite buildings that make up the Capitol Complex.

Foerster, executive director of the State Purchasing and General Services Commission, said there's a waiting list for state office space.

The overflow agencies are housed in 1.8 million square feet of leased office space, which costs the state $11.1 million a year.

Some of it is inconvenient and, Foerster says, most of it wastes state money.

"Our view is it would be better for state to have ownership of its offices. You don't have to pay taxes or profit," he said.

"In today's economy, with the projected escalation of rental costs, it would be more cost efficient to consider building more state-owned space, perhaps outside the Capitol Complex," he said.

Austin used to be a renter's market, but Foerster said rent has doubled in the past five years.

"Five years ago in Austin office space was a soft market; a lot of buildings were vacant," he said.

Not so today. Austin has a 96 percent occupancy rate in office space, he added.

The 142 leases the state has here are spread throughout the city. The Public Utility Commission is about six miles north of the Capitol. The Department of Human Resources is about an equal distance south of the Capitol. The Texas Education Agency, now across the Colorado River from the Capitol, will move to new leased space in August.

That should be TEA's last move before it goes into a $42 million state office building scheduled for completion in 1985. The 12-story building will be across from the LBJ Building. It will be the William B. Travis State Office Building, and the first new state office building since the Stephen F. Austin Building was finished in 1973 at a cost of $12 million.

Foerster said TEA and the Texas Railroad Commission will be the prime occupants of the Travis Building. TEA now pays $1.1 million for its leased space. The Railroad Commission space costs $900,000 a year.

The Department of Human Resources will get its own $42 million building, but outside the Capitol Complex. It's to be built on a site — a former dairy farm — about three miles north of the Capitol. The site is now a "community garden" with plots available to anyone who wants to garden.

It's cheaper to build outside the Capitol Complex, said Foerster. The Travis Building will cost about $75 per square foot. The Human Services Building will cost about $65 per square foot. One of the differences is pink granite — there won't be any on the Human Services Building. But the Travis Building, because it's in the cluster with other pink granite buildings, including the Capitol, will have the granite facade.

The new buildings won't bring all state agencies in from the leased space. Bob Jenkins, director of the building and property services division under Foerster, has a list of agencies which want more space.

"We do have a backlog of those from time to time. Some go for quite awhile," he said.

TEA has asked for more space since 1975. The Board of Pardons and Paroles, State Treasurer's office, Comptroller's Office (already the largest space-holder), and the State Library are among the agencies seeking more space.

Bill Dyess, director of records for the State Library, said his record-storage facility is 90 percent full. The department is supposed to store for 10 years the inactive files of state agencies.

The space crunch has forced him to limit the old paperwork his department can store. That means some agencies must store their own records, and Dyess said that costs five times as much as filing them with the State Library.

PAMPA MALL 2545 Perryton Parkway

PROJECT: PAMPA

PAMPA TIME LINE. Working on a time line of Pampa's history and discussing historical events of the city are (standing, from left)

Mcers, Tony Musgrave and Judson Eddins, Pampa's history dates back to 1888, when the railroad was built in Pampa.

It's a tradition with third grade teacher Priscilla Alexander, and every year, first thing after the holidays, she and her students at Austin Elementary School complete a week's study of the history of Pampa, which, for all newcomers to our community, dates back to 1888. Before the holidays, she assigns her students to complete a project on something about Pampa — an essay, an interview, a model, or a poster — anything to make them think, look and learn about their home city.

This year was a huge success, and her students look like they may become future Chamber of Commerce representatives, writers, photographers, artists and maybe even architects.

After completing an initial study of Pampa's history, the class toured the White Deer Land Museum, where one student, Judson Eddins, found a 1947 photo of his great grandfather Rufe Thompson, seated at the Peacevale stage coach stop. Peacevale was located where the Morrison Ranch is now, between Adobe Walls and Fort Elliott, the only military fort in the Panhandle. The community at one time had not only the stage stop but a post office and school.

Kelly Nall entitled her poster "Pampa — A Town with a Lot to Offer," suitable for a Chamber of Commerce brochure.

The poster shows photos of those necessary elements of a community — schools, the Pampa Mall, the Santa Fe Railway depot, the police station, Coronado Center, Clarendon College, White Deer Land Museum, Coronado Community Hospital, the fire station, the post office, 54 churches, Keyes Pharmacy and the public library.

Under climate, Kelly wrote: "Always changing," and concluded her information with, "Pampa is a nice town to grow up in."

Another student, Laura Hamilton, who had lived here earlier, moved to Houston and returned, wrote, "When I lived here three years ago, a lot of things were different from now. For example, the Highland General Hospital was still open; the Worley Hospital was still open; (since it closed in the mid 70s) and the only shopping mall was the Coronado Center. Fir, Evergreen, Chestnut, and Dogwood were just wheat fields and Fites grocery store was still open. I'm not sure what the population was then, but I'm sure it wasn't as much as now. So, in general the town of Pampa has grown quite a lot since the 70s when I used to live here." She continues, "When I came back from Houston on our first vacation everything was the same, when I came back on our second vacation everything was the same, when I came back for our third vacation, that's when things really started changing."

"When we came back to look for a house, almost everything was different. There was another shopping mall. There was a new Hospital. There were several new sections of streets. Cabot had sold out to I.R., and the population had grown so much I couldn't believe it! Fites grocery store was still open but it was fixing to sell out to the Mexican food restaurant. Now lots of people are still coming to Pampa and Pampa is still growing."

Know Mr. Thomas Lane?

Well, these students do. They will tell you he was the first Santa Fe foreman in Pampa in 1888, when Santa Fe Railway was built. A boxcar was used for the open station.

Does the year 1892 ring a bell with you? That was the year the first frame building was built in Pampa. It was used at first for the railroad station but later became the Schneider Hotel.

What about 1905? That was the year the country was first settled with farmers and Mr. C. P. Buckler and Mr. M. K. Brown sold land for $10 and $15 an acre to farmers who came through.

Tony Musgrave interviewed his next door neighbor, Dean Spoonemore, a 46-year resident of Pampa. Spoonemore, speaking from his knowledge of Pampa in 1935, recalled there were four theaters in Pampa, the State Theater, the Rex Theater, the Crown Theater and the Lanore Theater. Here's just a teaser:

Q — Do you remember where was the biggest house in Pampa?

A — The best I can remember, the largest home in Pampa in '35, was the Hobart home, which was at the corner of Hobart Street and the Borger highway.

Q — What do you remember about Pampa during World War II?

A — I remember during World War II, things were real scarce. A bunch of things were rationed. You had to have cards and coupons to get coffee, sugar, tea, meat. You had to have gas coupons to buy gasoline. You could buy no chewing gum, very little candy, and cigarettes — you could just hardly find cigarettes at all.

Q — How much did it cost to see a movie?

A — It cost nine cents to get in.

Q — How much did it cost to get candy?

A — Well, Tony, your candy bars, you had your nickel candy bars. You could get your large candy bars for a nickel. But for a penny you could get suckers, you could get — they were called kisses — for a penny. You could get four kisses per package. There were several penny candies you could get.

Mark Brown interviewed his grandparents Elmer and Loraine Fite, which accounts for the students' interest in Fite Food Market.

"I remember when the Indian laid the brick paved streets in our main downtown part of town. They let us out of school to watch him lay those bricks, and it was a day I'll never forget," Mrs. Fite said.

Tamara Lane interviewed long-time Pampa teacher, Mrs. Ruby Trusty, who turned out to be Mrs. Alexander's seventh grade teacher.

Mrs. Trusty, who has lived here since 1945, taught seventh grade in the old Pampa Junior High, which was downtown, and then at what is now Pampa Middle School. It was first called Lee Junior High.

Q — What was your favorite subject?

A — Math and history.

Q — What is your favorite hobby?

A — Fishing and gardening. Those two.

Brad Hoover drew and illustrated with magazine clippings the five areas of our community: recreational, commercial, rural, residential and industrial.

Cassandra Crockett made a model of Austin Elementary School.

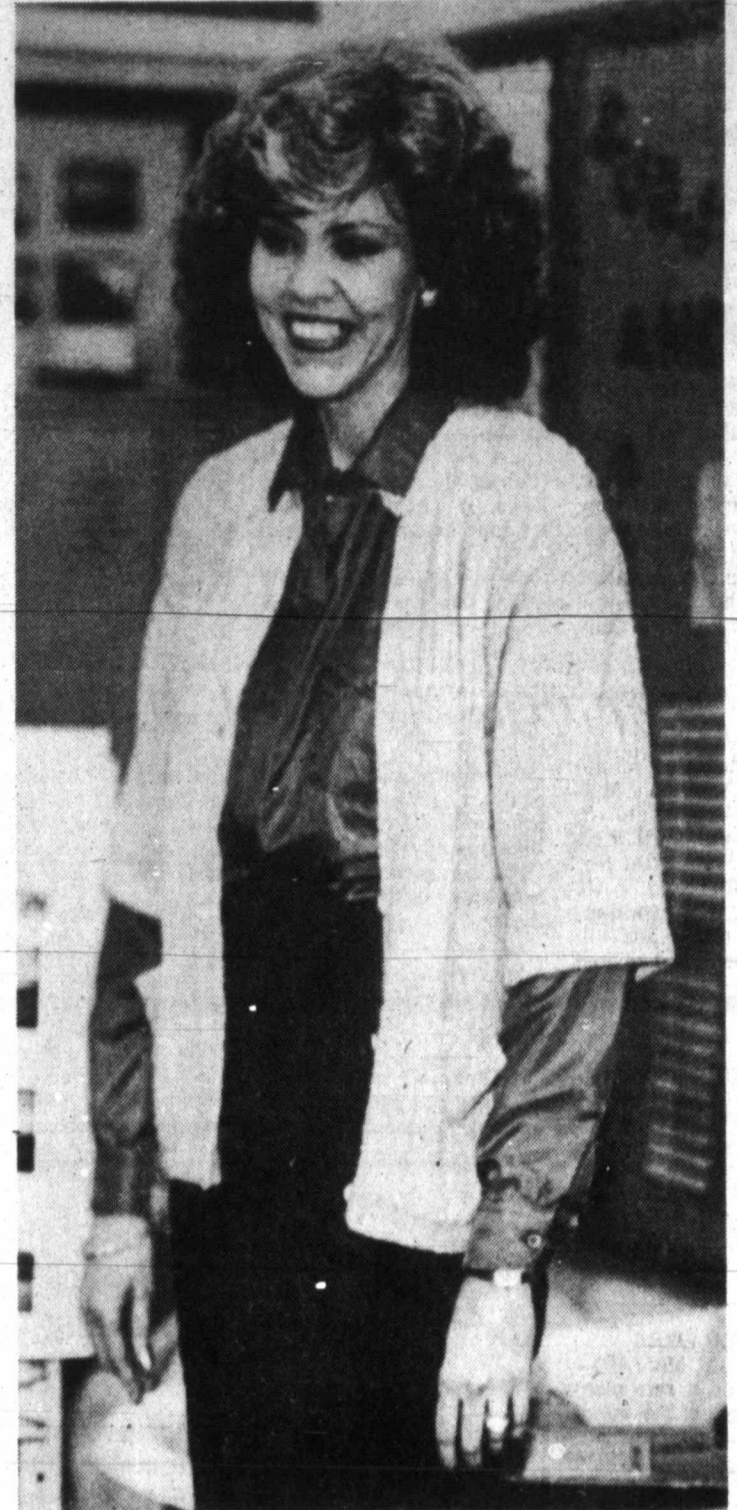

Rebecca Budd's poster showed a child's favorite — the Clydesdale horses in Pampa.

Shannon Simons and Kandy Johnson both completed posters marking how Pampa has changed. Jody Peirce's poster showed four Pampa buildings, the old Schneider Hotel, the Hughes Building, the courthouse and city hall.

Shannon Schorn made a model of Pampa, in a box with a handle, showing houses all in a row, the Pampa Mall, a church and school and a tiny truck.

Other students who deserve recognition include Jason Lemons, Spencer Neff, Ginger Mears, Stephanie Porter, Christa West and Denise Jenkins.

"They did the best of all my classes," Mrs. Alexander said. "I'm really proud of them."

Teacher Priscilla Alexander

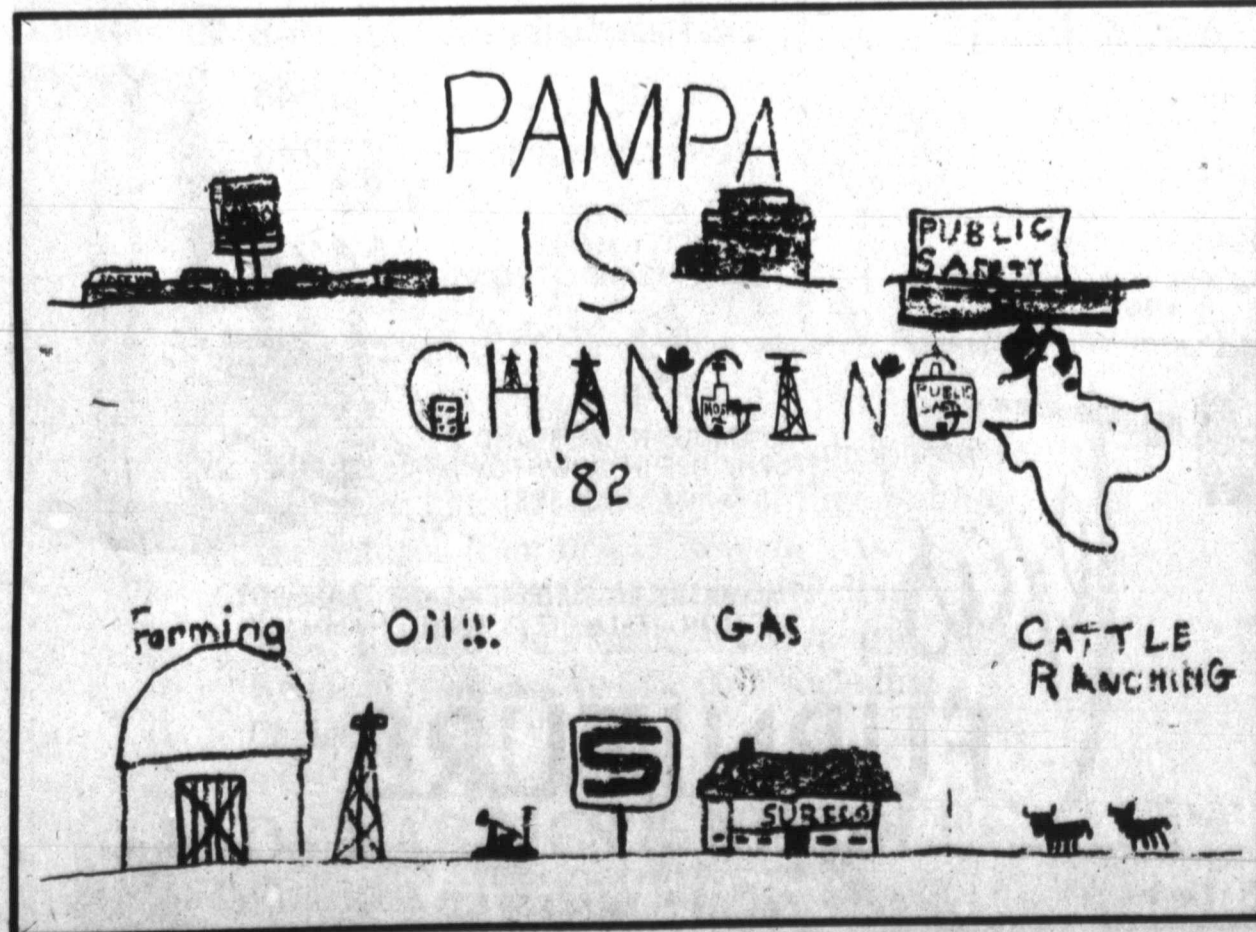

MODELS OF CITY. Examining models of Pampa are (from left) Denise Jenkins, Rebecca Budd, Jason Lemons and Shannon Schorn. Jason constructed the model of Gray County Courthouse, and Shannon constructed the model of the city, showing homes, the Pampa Mall, a school and a church.

PAMPA IS CHANGING, by Jason Lemons. This drawing illustrates the diversity of Pampa from a third grader's point of view. Shown in drawings across the top are the Pampa Mall, the new Coronado Community Hospital and the new Department of Public Safety building. In the letter "C" of the word changing, Jason drew the burning Brunow Building. The new hospital is shown in the letter "G" and the public safety office in the last "G." Across the bottom, he illustrates farming, Oil!!!, Gas with the Big "S" of "Surfco" and cattle ranching.

LISTENING TO INTERVIEWS with long-time Pampa residents are (from left) Brad Hoover, Mark Brown, Spoonemore, Elmer and Loraine Fite and long-time Pampa teacher Ruby Trusty. Three students interviewed Pampans Dean Spoonemore, Elmer and Loraine Fite and long-time Pampa teacher Ruby Trusty.

'Queen of Sales' to hold workshop

Rena Tarbet, the recently crowned Queen of Sales for the Mary Kay Cosmetic Company will be in Pampa Jan. 22 for a two day workshop for Mary Kay consultants.

Ms. Tarbet received her crown, which was actually a diamond tiara, on Jan. 8th in Dallas during an international seminar which recognized outstanding salespersons for the Dallas based company with pink Cadillacs, diamonds and furs.

In addition to her diamond tiara, Ms. Tarbet received a full length white mink coat, a $5000 shopping spree in Neiman-Marcus, a diamond ring, a queens crown ring, a 21 diamond queen bee pin and a trip to Hawaii.

Ms. Tarbet is a 15 year veteran with the 18 year old company. Naturally, she drives a pink Cadillac which is synonymous for success in the company. She travels extensively in the United States to recruit and encourage her sales representatives which have collectively sold over a million dollars worth of the much acclaimed Mary Kay Cosmetics for two years in a row.

Norma Tarbet of Pampa, Rena's sister-in-law, received a diamond ring for being the top salesperson in her unit.

Rena Tarbet said, "I started with Mary Kay when my children were little and the biggest thrill in my life was decoupageing toilet seats."

Norma Tarbet said, "Even though we are related, I stand in awe of her (Rena). She has been fighting a five year battle with cancer and her doctors are so amazed they say, 'Most people are dying of cancer, Rena is living with it.' She lives with pain but it does not reflect on her face or her attitude." The Mary Kay Cosmetic Company is based upon the Golden Rule. Mary Kay stresses to her sales consultants, "God first, family second and business third."

Dear Abby

Where there's a Will there's a way

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: If you want to do something nice for your family, get your affairs in order. I came across this gem in The Survivor, a splendid magazine for widowed people. I obtained permission from the author, Judge Sam Harrod III of Eureka, Ill., to reprint it:

IF YOU DON'T HAVE A WILL, YOUR STATE HAS ONE FOR YOU.

The Statutory "Will" of John Doe
I, John Doe, make this my "will," by failing to have a will of my own choice prepared by my attorney.

1. I give one-half of all my property, both personal and real estate, to my CHILDREN, and the remaining one-half to my WIFE.

2. I appoint my WIFE as Guardian of my children, if she survives me; but as a safeguard, I require that:

a. my WIFE make written account every year to Probate Court, explaining how and why she spent money necessary for proper care of our children;

b. my WIFE file a performance BOND, with sureties, to be approved by Probate Court, to guarantee she will properly handle our children's money;

c. when our children become adults, my WIFE must file a complete, itemized, written account of everything she has done with our children's money;

d. when our son and daughter become age 18, they can do whatever they please with their share of my estate;

e. no one, including my WIFE, shall have the right to question how our children spend their shares.

3. If my WIFE does not survive me, or dies while any of our children are minors, I do not nominate a Guardian of our children, but hope relatives and friends may mutually agree on the one, and if they cannot agree, the Probate Court can appoint any Guardian it likes, including a stranger.

4. I do not appoint an Executor of my estate, and hope the Probate Court appoints someone I would approve.

5. If my WIFE remarries, the next husband:

a. shall receive one-third of all my WIFE'S property;

b. need not spend any of his share on our children, even if they need support; and

c. can give his share to anyone he chooses, without giving a penny to our children.

6. I do not care to learn whether there are ways to lower my death taxes, and know as much as possible will go to the government, instead of my WIFE and our CHILDREN.

In witness whereof, I have completely failed to make a different will of my own choice with the advice of my attorney, because I really did not care to go to all that bother, and I adopt this, by default, as my "will." — (no signature required) John Doe

DEAR ABBY: I think "Big D." is a big "A." I love your reruns. Most of them are worth reading more than once. Many times I was glad to see an item repeated because I had intended to clip it, but didn't. Or I'd clipped it and misplaced it. Keep those golden oldies comin'.

MIKE IN MODESTO

DEAR MIKE: Thanks, pal. My mail is running about 10-to-1 in favor of the reruns. And the votes from Alaska and Hawaii aren't counted yet!

GROUP FITNESS
BRISBANE, Australia (AP) — In two weeks, a healthy young person doing exercises, such as chin-ups and push-ups, for 20 minutes a day can improve his strength by 30 percent.

Stamina can be increased 25 percent, reports Dr. John Peam in the British Medical Journal.

The doctor tested a group of 50 students in a formal physical-fitness program of 10 standard exercises. He also discovered that with group support, a person doesn't need self-motivation to do exercises.

Couple plan February wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle W. Doggett of 1601 N. Faulkner, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Jeannette Lee to Charles Miller.

Miller is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Miller of 2336 Aspen.

The couple plan to be wed on Feb. 20 in the First Baptist Church of Pampa.

The bride-elect is a graduate of West Texas State University. She is employed as a coach and teacher for the Pampa Middle School.

The prospective bridegroom is a graduate of Pampa High School. He is presently employed by Thurmond-McGlothlin, Inc.

JEANNETTE DOGGETT & CHARLES MILLER

Peeking at Pampa

Want to start with a quotation I heard some years ago. Need to pass it on in case I misspell some of your names or get a detail wrong. The great Flo Ziegfeld once said, "There is no such thing as bad publicity." Getting into the news at all gives you coverage. And we all treasure that.

Lovely party was given for Jack and Gladys Morrison last Sunday. This popular couple will be moving to Bartlesville, Ok soon and will be greatly missed here. Both have been active in church work and civic clubs. Gladys is a past president of Varietas Study Club. Jack has been president of two Rotary clubs, one in Oklahoma and, more recently, the Pampa Rotary Club. Maybe he'll take on the job a third time, in his new location.

The Morrison party was given in the home of Leo and Mary Lea Garrett, with co-hosts Elbert and Jewel Walker, Ted and Babe Mastin, Bob and Mike Keagy, Jack and Bernice Hodges, Frank and Lottie Hall, Dora Meech and Senie Coley. The Win - Some Sunday School Class of First Methodist Church were guests.

Understand other guests were there too.

Loved the News picture of attractive Freda LeMond getting her gold watch from personable Floyd Imel at the party given for Freda in honor of her 40th year with the Citizens Bank & Trust Co. Thought it was a fun touch that somebody had slipped a Mickey Mouse watch into the package without Floyd's knowledge - and he was as surprised as Freda when she unwrapped it. Later, of course she was presented a beautiful diamond Concord watch. Freda and her husband, Guy, are among our most popular Pampans. Almost everybody in town knows and loves them both.

So many wedding announcements lately - and such attractive couples. Especially noticed the one about Layne Clark and Mary Ann Miller because several people said they thought she looked a lot like Phyllis George. TV personality and wife of the Governor of Kentucky. She's a beauty for sure.

Understand the wedding of Melanie Jill Louvier and Allen Ebenkamp in St. Vincent De Paul Church on Dec. 26 was a lovely ceremony. She's the daughter of Max and Cora Louvier and he's the son of Lawrence and Mary Ebenkamp. Susan Ringl and Pam Rutledge were bridesmaids and the groom was attended by Ron Ebenkamp and Richard Thompson. Mark Ebenkamp and Terry Neslage served as ushers. Guests said the bridal couple were handsome.

Feel sure most of you know that Pampa has two TV commentators - weather men on TV in Amarillo. Pat Casey is the son of George and Jean Casey, and David Chambliss is the son of Bill and Bonnie Chambliss. Both young men do an excellent job on Channel VII and we are proud of them, enjoy listening to them.

Been hearing about the power-driven sweeper that a few ladies in Pampa have purchased. Agnes Hall says it takes all the labor out of cleaning. Just turn it on and guide it around. Wouldn't we all like to have one?

Dr. Harbord Cox and wife, Dolores, just returned from Arizona where they went to see one of their appaloosa show horses take honors. It's interesting to see a hobby turn into a very successful business for one of our local doctors. Heard that the Coxs have many horses on the show circuit all taking top honors in their divisions.

We're sorry to be losing our splendid Salvation Army couple, Cherry and David Cradduck, who will be moving to Victoria on Feb. 6. Several people say they have elevated the respect and admiration for the Army in Pampa far above normal during their stay with us.

And their talents are numerous. It is said Cherry is a wonderful cook, can take a stove, salt, pepper and a can of vegetables - and concoct a delicious meal.

The Cradducks give a free dinner each month for the Golden Agers, followed by games. They also provide food all the time for the needy and follow a new method of giving it. They send menus along with the donations - and thus make the food stretch to four meals instead of one. Cherry and David have been active in community and civic enterprises. Cherry has a lovely speaking voice and perfect diction. She has been active in Altrusa. Both the Cradducks will be missed when they leave.

Pat Marcum recently returned from Hawaii, where she visited her son who is in the military service there. The two of them toured the Islands for a week.

Don't freeze your feet!

JURY'S IRISH CABARET features the musical talents of the Crowley Sisters. From left, Sheila, Mary, Patricia and Margaret, from the village of Inch. The Crowley Sisters are expert exponents of traditional Irish music on the banjo, accordion, bodhran and the whistle. Jury's Irish Cabaret, sponsored by Community Concert will appear at the M. K. Brown Auditorium on Sunday, Jan. 24 at 1:30 p.m.

Irish Cabaret to perform Jan. 24

The internationally acclaimed Jury's Irish Cabaret of Dublin will appear in Pampa Sunday, Jan. 24 at 1:30 p.m. at the M. K. Brown Auditorium.

This outstanding group is sponsored by the Community Concert which has the reputation for bringing tremendous talent into Pampa.

Jane Steele, Vice President of Community Concert said, "We want everyone to note the time change for this Sunday's event. Normally we begin at 2:30, but this concert shall begin at 1:30. We want the public to be aware of this one hour difference so they won't miss a single minute of this exciting group."

Audiences from Sydney to Amsterdam, from Paris to Tokyo, have cheered the world-famous members of Jury's Irish Cabaret of Dublin. In 1982 this extravaganza of Irish music, dance and "blarney" returns to the United States for the third time.

Jury's Irish Cabaret was formed in 1964 at the old Jury's Hotel and quickly established itself as the premier event in Dublin's night life. Currently this famous entertainment can be seen at the new Jury's in Ballsbridge.

As its fame spread abroad, the Company began its series of foreign tours, demonstrating its great skill and obvious delight in presenting aspects of traditional Irish culture to enthusiastic audiences throughout Europe, North America and Asia.

For the 1982 United States tour, Jury's Irish Cabaret of Dublin features such favorite performers as the Seannachai or storyteller, Chris Curran, tenor Michael O'Dea, sopranos Theresa O'Dwyer and Jacqueline Whelan, actor and singer Martin Dempsey, piper Roy Galvin, the Crowley Sisters, Jury's Singers and Harpists and the award-winning Inis Ealga Dancers. With that line-up wonderful performance is guaranteed. So, in the words of Jury's director, Jim Potter, "We simply ask you to come in, sit down, order your favorite potition, let your lugs back, and enjoy!"

Mending Mature Marriage

Helping rear grandchildren

By LOUISE PIERCE

"DEAR LOUISE: We're over 65 but we're raising a second family, our grandchildren. Their folks were killed in a plane crash a year ago, so we took the four kids. They're 9, 10, 12, and 14. They're a handful.

"I try to put down rules and make them mind. But my wife says the kids are still so cut up about losing their folks that we shouldn't cross them in any way.

"She babies them something awful. Takes cookies and sandwiches, and even breakfast, to their rooms, never makes them pick up anything, lets them go and come whenever and however they want to, day or night.

"We fuss about it all the time, and the quarreling is getting on both our nerves. I think we ought to make the kids behave, wait on themselves and things like that. If you think so too, say so in your column. My wife reads it and think you know what you write about. What will the kids be like when they get out in the world, if Grandma keeps on spoiling them rotten like she is doing now? K.S."

DEAR K.S.: They'll be sponges, soaking up everything deserved or undeserved, giving back nothing. They'll have no friends, no probability of successful jobs, no satisfaction of happy accomplishment. When they marry, they'll be lousy mates, demanding, selfish, ungrateful — and those kinds of marriages seldom last.

Don't let your disagreements over the kids drive you and your wife apart. If she refuses to stop spoiling them, talk to the children separately yourself. Tell them the world will not wait on them the way Grandma does — and they'd better start preparing to face life. Also tell them they're causing you and Grandma to quarrel bitterly. I think even the worst spoiled kids wouldn't want that to continue.

"DEAR LOUISE: Our daughter just got a divorce and brought herself and her two little girls to live with us while she works. She's got a good job and will share expenses. My husband, T, and I have post-retirement jobs so we don't have much time with the girls either. We don't have to work but have jobs we like and love our work.

"The girls are 8 and 10. They're good youngsters but they're bewildered about the divorce and the move and all. Their daddy remarried right away, the woman he left our daughter and the girls for. He lives in the other end of the country now, so they never see him.

"They're such sad little girls. What can we do to help them adjust to this abnormal way of living? R.O."

DEAR R.O.: Start at once make life as normal as you can for the girls, for your daughter and for yourselves. One authority, psychologist Judith Wallerstein, has studied the effect of divorce on children and she says, "Being sensitive to and absolutely essential to protect a child's psychological health."

Work out plans with your daughter to spend time with the girls. Surley each of the three of you can give them a few hours a day. You could even put your hours into shorter time, in order to have more time at home, since you say you don't have to work. Your grandchildren mean more to you than a job that is not a need.

Or, if your income is great enough that your daughter does not need to work, let her stay at home with the girls while you and your husband keep your jobs. Somebody needs to see the girls off to school and meet them when they come home, give them the feeling of a real home with those who love them. And a mother is usually closer to children than grandparents.

Wallerstein says children of divorce tend to feel abandoned, unworthy of love.

So make the little girls feel loved and wanted. Attend their school functions. Teach them to cook and sew. Give them little parties. Ask their opinion on meals and clothes; provide them a better home than the one they lost — because yours can be filled with genuine love.

Stay in control, don't over-spoil them — but try to have your love and care make up for what they lost.

Americans 'Energy Addicted'

By DONNA BRAUCHI
COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

Do you consider the energy situation serious? Have you changed your lifestyle because of it?

Many Americans people consider energy as a serious problem, but a lot of people also believe technology will solve the problem before major lifestyles changes are necessary.

In some ways Americans have become a part of an "energy addicted" society. Beliefs and behaviors focus on getting and using more.

Planning for an energy-short lifestyle begins with defining personal values about energy use. It should include probable limits on the family's use and limits that Americans and other countries may face.

In clarifying values, rank them and notice if they get "lip service." Here are some questions to ask about energy use:

- 1) What are the priorities for energy use in the family?
- 2) Which are essentials, and which are luxuries?
- 3) Which could be given up, if necessary?
- 4) What substitutes and compromises are available?
- 5) What would happen if we changed some of the ways we use energy now?

Once values are evaluated, new energy lifestyle decisions can be made. Families may decide to do more with less. Ways may be determined to use solar and human energy instead of fossil-fuel energy. Families may develop ways to adjust schedules and routines to make the most of energy. Perhaps consumers will be more selective about buying goods and services to save energy on the production line and at home. Finally, families may keep up with reliable information on the energy situation and act upon these concerns.

SAVING ENERGY IN THE LAUNDRY ROOM

Energy conservation in the laundry room starts with lower water temperatures for the washer, but don't switch to cooler temperatures until you know how to use them.

In water below 60 degrees F., detergents become ineffective. Also, lower water temperatures affect a granular detergent's ability to dissolve. Use a liquid detergent or predissolve a granular one if you want to use lower water temperatures. Cool water temperatures do not always have the best cleaning effect. For removing certain soils, such as oily or greasy stains, hot water at about 140 degrees F. is a must. Otherwise, heavily soiled laundry may become gray and dingy. Another laundry tactic sometimes used to "save energy" is putting too many clothes in the washer and dryer. Clothes need "elbow room" so enough wash water and dry air can reach them. If they are crowded, clothes won't wash clean, and some may not dry enough.

Dr. Lamb

Help is available

DEAR DR. LAMB — Your advice to look in the phone books under Mental Health doesn't help thousands of us living in the boonies. Our phone book, 96 pages thick for three towns, doesn't list Mental Health. We are unable to drive the miles to the nearest big city — fellow, we just suffer. So don't be so glib for us who are worried and scared out of our poor old skulls. And don't pull a Landers or Brothers and suggest the clergy. They're too busy raising money to run a church. There is just one answer — don't become depressed — don't get ill and don't get old — unless you live in the city or have lots of money. Now you look in the Yellow Pages for sick-of-it old lady in tennis shoes.

DEAR SICK-OF-IT — You have a point. But you must not fall into the trap of refusing to find a solution. Some people do not want their problems solved — for psychological reasons. But you could have the local phone company let you look in the Yellow Pages of the city directory and call them. Through a social worker with such organizations they might have a solution that fits your local needs.

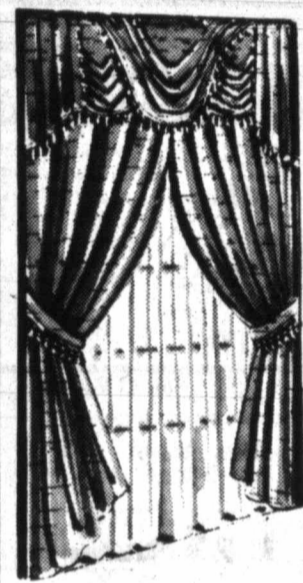

PAMPA NURSING CENTER presented "People Pleaser" windbreakers to five community leaders in Pampa on Tuesday, Jan. 12. Melba Marcum, administrator, said the awards were made to recognize the contributions the people had made to the community. Those receiving jackets are, from left, Robert Phillips, D. In the year ahead large undertakings are favored more than little ones, so if you make a concerted effort to elevate the level of your goals and ambitions your successes could be quite substantial.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is a fine day for any involvements you have with groups or corporations. Don't let their reputation or size intimidate you or make you feel inferior. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Instead of dealing with underlings you'll have more luck today going right to the top. These are the people you'll want to meet eyeball to eyeball.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be afraid to think in expansive terms today. You're apt to be more fortunate with grand ideas than with small ones.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Joint ventures should prove lucky for you today, but there's a possibility you may not recognize opportunity (or you just might not do anything about it).

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Making promises could come quite easily for you today. Even though you'll be sincere, you may be unable to comply later.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be willing to be helpful today if your services are requested. You will derive pleasure from doing so. You may also be rewarded.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A friend who is well-connected socially may invite you to do something with him or her today. The invitation could broaden your range of contacts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Keep in mind today: It's more important how situations end, rather than how they begin. You get luckier as time draws things out.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) All the answers you need are in your own imagination today. Get that bright head of yours working extra early. It's you who makes the breaks.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your possibilities for gain are exceptionally good today. Be on the alert for opportunities which could mean something to you materially.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Keep a firm hand on the tiller today. Lady Luck tends to favor you in situations that you personally control. Together, you're a winning combination.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If there is something big you're involved in, it's best to keep it to yourself for a while longer, even though you are eager to share what's happening. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

GARNER AND THE COACH. Former University of Texas coach Darryl Royal will appear with actor James Garner in the upcoming NBC television movie, "The Long Summer of George Adams." Garner

Garner as 'George Adams'

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — James Garner says he's been waiting 10 years to make "The Long Summer of George Adams," an NBC movie to be broadcast Monday night.

"It's the first TV movie I've ever done that wasn't a pilot," said Garner, who previously starred in pilots for "The Rockford Files" and "Young Maverick." He currently stars in the new NBC series "Bret Maverick."

Garner plays an Oklahoma railroad man whose job, family and future are jeopardized when the railroad announces plans to replace its steam engine locomotives with diesels. That means trains will no longer need to stop in the town for fuel and water.

The ambling and amiable movie, set in 1952, also stars Joan Hackett, Alex Harvey, Juanin Clay, David Graf and Anjanette Comer.

John Gay adapted the screenplay from the book by Weldon Hill, and Stuart Margolin, Garner's close friend and co-star in three series, directed the film. It was produced by Garner's company in association with Warner Bros. Television.

"I'd always avoided TV movies before," said Garner. "When I made my series deal with NBC it called for two movies of the week. NBC wanted two movies."

"So it was in the back of my mind that if we did the two movies and we couldn't come up with one we liked as a pilot, I could always give 'Maverick' a shot. It'd never been done before, to come back that late and re-do a show. So we had four scripts written and I just didn't like any of them."

In the meantime, both NBC and Garner decided to revive his character of Bret Maverick from the ABC series of the late 1950s. "Maverick." Prior to that, he had appeared as Maverick in the ABC pilot-for "Young Maverick" and in the opening episode of the series for CBS.

"You see," said Garner. "'George Adams' was written almost 20 years ago as a book. Bob Mitchum bought it. We had to buy the rights from Bob Mitchum, at a good price, and I'm glad because he had the good sense to buy it. We tried to do it 10 years ago as a theatrical. Nobody would touch it. Nobody even thought it was good enough for a movie of the week."

'Waltz of the Stork' reported funny

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Waltz of the Stork" is a kind of city "Don Quixote" and a kind of modern "Tom Jones," with a saxophone as its muse, says Melvin Van Peebles.

And it's funny, adds the man who wrote the show which opened at Broadway's Century Theater Jan. 5. Van Peebles also wrote 11 of its 13 songs, directed it, produced it and stars as Edward Aloysius Younger.

Van Peebles says, "As a kid, if he goes to the movies on Saturday, he gets beat up by bigger boys and they steal his popcorn dime. Being of a pseudopractical nature, he goes to the library instead and reads away the afternoon."

"He falls in love with the idea of the holy grail, Shangri-La and Xanadu. He sniffs around the south side of Chicago and sees no storks dancing. So he slips off to see the world. With the usual results."

After a recent preview, Van Peebles said, "I thought I already had the show fixed up perfect. Then people came back after the show last night. A woman said, 'I loved it but it was a little long in the beginning.' She had blue hair; I figured it was her age. Then this bebop kid said, 'It's OK once you get into it.'"

"That made my rationalization doubly hard. So I went over the show till 3 in the morning. I find that thrilling and fun. The whole birth process of a show is interesting."

Last summer, Van Peebles directed a play at the off-off-Broadway Intar Theater. "They had a space available. I thought, 'Gee, golly, wow. It's a nice space. It'd be great doing a show in here.' So he wrote "Waltz of the Stork."

He says, "I don't know what the inspiration was. Usually, when I finally do something, various forms of it have been bopping around in my head. Then it happens."

Asked how much of the show's main character is himself, he says he doesn't know. "I don't go around intimidating myself with larger, mirrored questions."

Van Peebles was born in Chicago in 1932, lived in Mexico and Holland before moving to Paris, where he wrote and directed his first feature film, "The Story of a Three-Day Pass," in 1967.

'Brideshead Revisited' benefited from strike

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Work on the TV adaptation of Evelyn Waugh's "Brideshead Revisited" was held up in the summer of 1979 by an industry-wide strike in England. Derek Granger, the producer, says, "As weeks turned into months, I thought we were done for."

In fact, "Brideshead Revisited" may actually have benefited from the three-month strike, complicated by the intermittent loss to the series' producers of Jeremy Irons, the star, to concurrent production of "The French Lieutenant's Woman."

"It's all very accidental," Granger says. "You never know when your luck is running. In a funny way, the film turned out the way it did because of the strike, and because of Jeremy. It wouldn't be quite the same if those things hadn't happened."

The long delay gave Granger the opportunity to reconsider certain aspects of the production, and when work resumed early last November, Charles Sturridge had replaced Michael Lindsay-Hogg as director.

"Sturridge was a protege of mine; I'd run a training course for Granada," Granger says. "It was our extraordinary good fortune that he was there when Michael had to leave because of another commitment."

"And we had another stretch of good luck," Granger says. "Several people who weren't available earlier — Laurence Olivier, John Gielgud, Stephane Audran, Claire Bloom — just happened to be there when we got started again."

The 11-part dramatization of Waugh's 1945 novel of manners and morals in England between the two wars comes to American television Monday, Jan. 18, a presentation of public TV's "Great Performances" series.

"Brideshead Revisited" was produced by Britain's Granada Television, with help from WNET, the Public Broadcasting Service station in New York.

It was four years in the making, shot on location in England and Venice and on the islands of Malta and Gozo. Castle Howard, built in the last year of the 18th century in Yorkshire, is the Brideshead Castle of Waugh's imagination.

The series stars Irons as Charles Ryder, a painter whose life is unalterably affected by the wealthy, aristocratic Marchmains. Anthony Andrews is Lord Sebastian Flyte, Lord Marchmain's elder son, and Diana Quick is his sister, Lady Julia Flyte.

Olivier plays Lord Marchmain, Miss Bloom is his estranged wife, Lady Marchmain, and Gielgud plays Edward Ryder, Charles' eccentric father.

The story begins in 1944 with Ryder's return to Brideshead, now a bleak military headquarters. The setting stirs memories for Ryder of his years at Oxford in the early '20s, his friendship with Sebastian and his introduction to aristocracy through that relationship.

At the movies: 'Four Friends'

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

FOUR FRIENDS is an idiosyncratic view of the American 1960s as seen by writer Steve Tesich ("Breaking Away") and director Arthur Penn ("Bonnie and Clyde"). Like Tesich, Danilo Prozor (Craig Wasson) is a Yugoslav immigrant who grows up in a Midwestern steel town. Danilo's closest friends are a jock (Jim Metzler) and a fat boy (Michael Huddleston), and all are in love with an uninhibited girl (Jodi Thelen). The story carries them through high school and into an unsettling era of assassinations, protests and disillusion. Tesich wisely skirts dogma to focus on the human stories, which are funny, touching and unpredictable. Penn deserves high marks for drawing remarkable performances from the unseasoned cast.

Mailer protege says slaying was accident

NEW YORK (AP) — The father-in-law of a slain waiter jumped to his feet and yelled "You scum!" at jailhouse author Jack Henry Abbott, who had wept in court as he testified that he stabbed the waiter in a misunderstanding.

Abbott said he didn't realize until later that 22-year-old Richard Adan, an aspiring actor and playwright, had wanted to help him, not fight him, when the two men stepped outside a New York City restaurant one early morning last summer.

The defense moved to have a mistrial declared after the outburst Friday by Henry Howard, and acting state Supreme Court Justice Irving Lang said he would rule on the motion Monday.

Adan's relatives, who had been weeping during Abbott's testimony, were barred from the packed courtroom after the outburst.

Abbott, a protege of writer Norman Mailer and author of "In The Belly of The Beast," a critically acclaimed collection of letters from prison, said his victim had "a presence" that would have made him "a fine actor."

He is accused of stabbing Adan in the heart July 18 outside the Bini-Bon restaurant in lower Manhattan. Abbott said he never intended to kill him.

Prosecutor James Fogel, who is scheduled to cross-examine Abbott on Monday, has charged that Abbott is guilty of intentional murder, which carries a maximum prison sentence of 25 years to life.

Defense lawyer Ivan Fisher has said the slaying was "an accident" motivated by self-defense. Lang has indicated he will permit the jury to consider lesser charges of manslaughter.

The defendant has spent 24 years of his 37 years behind bars on a variety of charges. At the time of the slaying, he had been out of prison for about six weeks on a work-release program, living in a halfway house in the East Village.

He said he was carrying a "paring knife" to protect himself against violence in the neighborhood when he went out for a night of drinking and dancing with two women friends, he testified. The three ended up at the Bini-Bon for breakfast shortly after 5 a.m.

Abbott said he thought the waiter was talking about him and "baiting me." Abbott said he walked up to Adan and asked, "Have I done something? What have I done to you?"

Abbott testified that at the time he thought Adan wanted to fight and he thought Adan had stepped outside to continue the argument. He began to weep as he said he now believes that when Adan asked him if he wanted to "go outside," it was because he thought Abbott wanted to urinate. Abbott said he believes Adan accompanied him because "he took it that I was concerned about my privacy and he was sensitive enough to go out and ensure it."

According to court testimony, it was the restaurant's policy to have male customers urinate outside rather than in the restaurant's bathroom.

Abbott said the incident was a "tragic" misunderstanding. Once outside, Abbott said, Adan lunged at him with what he thought was a weapon. Abbott said his own knife was already out because he thought the waiter had been planning to attack him.

The men struggled and Adan was stabbed. "I said, 'You want some more?' I screamed at him," Abbott continued. "That's when I saw there was nothing in his hand, and he said, 'You didn't have to kill me.'"

Abbott fled and, after a nationwide manhunt, was arrested several months later in Louisiana. He was testifying that he hadn't robbed anyone while on the run, when Howard leapt from his seat.

"You intended it, you scum!" Howard cried before court officers hustled him from the courtroom.

Abbott has testified that his prison years, beginning at age 12, included about 14 years in solitary confinement, and that guards beat and starved him. Abbott's lawyer says he elicited the testimony to make the jury aware of how prison shaped Abbott's reactions.

Abbott testified he always had a knife in prison because they kill each other in prison for nothing.

Smaller GI Joe doll re-enters toy market

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (AP) — GI Joe, the soldier-boy doll that vanished from toy shelves in the wake of the Vietnam War, is re-entering as an anti-terrorist leading a team that includes minorities and women.

"We believe kids are ready to get off of Star Wars and onto something fresh and different," said Stephen Schwartz, Hasbro Industries' vice president for marketing. "It appears this is going to be our No. 1 sales category in 1982."

The effort to make GI Joe a top seller begins in April and the company said it will mount the biggest television advertising blitz it has ever put behind one toy.

The GI Joe team is being patterned after the U.S.' Rapid Deployment Force and will come complete with a set of enemies: the international terrorist squad Cobra Command.

The teams represent a mix of the United States population, including whites, blacks, Hispanics and a woman counter-intelligence agent.

"In the old days, GI Joe was one person, but today he is a mobile strike force. This is the team sent out to protect democracy and justice around the world," Schwartz said.

Radio directors study UPI takeover

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A report on United Press International shows it is a "losing enterprise," but National Public Radio has decided to give further consideration to a UPI takeover anyway, NPR Chairman Maurice Mitchell said.

NPR and the E.W. Scripps Co., 95 percent owners of UPI, are discussing the possibility of Scripps "donating" the wire service to NPR, a non-profit organization funded by federal and private money.

Scripps would claim the donation as a tax deduction, and NPR would depend on foundation and corporate support to offset the multi-million dollar annual losses. Frank Mankiewicz, NPR's president, said Friday.

Mankiewicz said NPR would make a decision within two months.

NPR board members voted 7-6 in a closed session Thursday night to continue talks with Scripps.

The UPI situation was discussed only briefly at a board meeting Friday. Mitchell said the board decided to "continue the discussions and explorations of a possible relationship between NPR and UPI."

Mitchell, from Santa Barbara, Calif., told reporters the NPR-commissioned management report on UPI was "not a cheerful, enthusiastic" document. "It points out that this is a losing enterprise... (needing) extensive and expensive changes," he said.
