Woman sentenced in Social Security case

A 54-year-old Pampa woman was sentenced to six months confinement and 2½ years adult probation for forging her deceased grandmother's name on 12 U.S. Treasury checks from the Social Security Administration.

Mrs. Freddie Jean Lowrance pleaded guilty Wednesday before U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson to one count of forging her grandmother's name to the checks. The plea to only one count was part of a plea bargaining arrangement.

Mrs. Lowrance's grandmother, Ora D. Scott, died Feb. 6, 1973, but the Social Security Administration was not notified of her death and continued to send to monthly checks until Sept. 3, 1981.

Mrs. Lowrance admitted in court that she knew it was wrong to forge her grandmother's name on the Social Security checks.

The one count to which Mrs. Lowrance pleaded guilty concerned 12 Social Security checks issued between July 3, 1980 and June 3, 1981.

The total amount of the checks cashed between 1973 and 1981 was about $14,000, according to a U.S. attorney.

Mrs. Lowrance could have received a maximum sentence of 10 years and a $1,000 fine.

U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson said she felt due to the seriousness of the offense, there must be a period of confinement.

"I am aware that you were under great economic pressure," Robinson said.

Mrs. Lowrance testified that she quit work when her grandmother became ill and took care of her until her death. She said that she had been raised by her grandmother.

She also told the judge that she could not make restitution as she worked for a dispatch service and only receives $4.80 per hour.

"I am truly sorry," Mrs. Lowrance said. "I know it was wrong and I am more than willing to do anything you want."

Crew apparently had time to abort takeoff

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite ice on the wings and a runway roll that was "not right," the crew of the Air Florida jet that crashed three weeks ago went ahead with the flight even though there apparently was time to abort it.

A transcript of cockpit conversations aboard Flight 90 as it was taking off from National Airport revealed Thursday that the crew's problems began almost immediately after receiving takeoff clearance.

Paul Turner of the National Transportation Safety Board said an electronic analysis of the engine noise from the tape indicated that the plane was getting only 80 percent to 84 percent of normal power during the takeoff run.

The crash Jan. 13 took the lives of 78 people, including four motorists on a bridge struck by the aircraft. Four passengers and a flight attendant were rescued.

The conversations between the pilot and co-pilot also reflected confusion as to whether the engine was providing enough thrust as it became apparent that the Boeing 737 was slow in gaining speed.

"That don't seem right does it... Aw that's not right." First Officer Alan Pettit exclaimed 12 seconds after the plane began its roll.

A half-minute later the aircraft had reached a speed and position on the runway — V-1 in aviation jargon — where the pilot had no choice but to continue the flight.

There was no explanation in the transcript as to why the pilot did not abort the flight out of concern over the plane's performance and the snowy, icy weather. The plane took off in a steady snowfall.

Investigators have raised the possibility that ice may have plugged probes that are supposed to measure engine thrust. If so, the crew could have gotten a false impression they were getting more power than the engines actually were providing. Ice on the forward edges of the wings also may have hampered the capability of the plane to lift.

The transcripts show that Pettit and pilot Larry Wheaton observed ice on their plane's wings about 12 minutes before takeoff.

They talked repeatedly about the ice and at one point apparently tried to get rid of some ice by using the hot exhaust

U.S., Argentina back paramilitary strategy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Argentina's military government, working in "coordination" with the Reagan administration, is engaging in paramilitary efforts to undermine Nicaragua's leftist government and choke off supplies to El Salvador's rebels, congressional sources say.

The sources said Argentina's intervention includes training Nicaraguan exiles seeking to overthrow the leftist Sandinista government.

They did not say how many Argentinians were involved or whether they have taken a direct combat role. The sources insisted that their names not be used.

Argentina's embassy in Washington denied Thursday that its military had intervened in Central America. In Buenos Aires, Foreign Ministry spokesman Hernan Massini Ezcurra said the reports were "completely false." He also labeled them "preposterous" and "fantasy."

Administration spokesmen refused comment, but cautioned that the response was neither a confirmation nor a denial. The congressional sources said it was unclear whether the Reagan administration encouraged Argentina, although the State Department for the past year has been weighing the possibility of involving the military of a third-party government in the effort to combat growing leftist influence in Central America.

The State Department denounced Nicaragua this week as "a base for the export of subversion and armed intervention throughout Central America."

And Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said the United States, in cooperation with its Latin American allies, would do "whatever is necessary" to block a victory by leftists in El Salvador. He refused to rule out sending U.S. combat troops to the war-torn country, but said such a step would be taken only "in extremis."

In New York, Nicaraguan Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto said his government has indications Argentina military officers and Venezuelan intelligence officers and diplomats have been involved in efforts to overthrow the 2½-year-old Sandinista regime.

D'Escoto said Nicaragua had "reports of very high-level military officers in the Argentine army providing cash for the military activity of the counter-revolutionary forces," which he said were operating out of neighboring Honduras and Costa Rica.

"We also know that a mission of Argentinians was supposed to have been established in Honduras about a month ago and that it was going to be in charge of all the logistical, economic and military type of support to the counter-revolutionaries that periodically launch invasions into our country," he said.

D'Escoto said he would not be surprised if the United States was involved in the activities, but added that he had no proof of a U.S. role.

Feared blizzard misses Pampa; temperatures dip below zero

Compiled from staff and Associated Press reports

Freezing rain and snow was reported in portions of North Texas, the Panhandle and as far south as the San Angelo area today as a cold front pushed its way southward.

Bitterly cold temperatures were being reported across the Panhandle, the South Plains and in extreme North Texas. Both Amarillo and Lubbock set records for the coldest Feb. 5 on record. It dropped to 3 at Lubbock at 2 a.m., breaking the previous record of 9 set in 1923. The mercury dipped to minus 5 degrees at Amarillo, breaking the previous record of 2 set in 1905.

But while the bitterly cold weather kept a grip on the Panhandle again today, the heavy snowfall predicted for Thursday night and today did not develop in the Pampa area.

Snow fell all around the Pampa area overnight, with blizzard conditions reported in Amarillo earlier today.

The mercury dropped to minus 3 degrees in Pampa early this morning, after an afternoon high Thursday of 5 degrees. The National Weather Service (NWS) at Amarillo predicted this afternoon's high would reach only 5 degrees.

Tonight's low is expected to once again drop below the zero mark with a predicted low of minus 2 degrees. But the record breaking cold snap should begin to end Saturday afternoon with temperatures expected to reach 25 degrees. After an overnight low in the teens Saturday night, the weathermen said Sunday should find temperatures climbing into the 30s with the warming trend continuing Monday and Tuesday. Tuesday's high temperature should be in the 50s, the forecasters said.

Although no additional measurable snow fell in Pampa Thursday night, the NWS forecasters said they expected light snow flurries to occur in the area today, tonight and Saturday morning.

The lack of additional snow brightened the faces of area residents, but ice remaining from snowfall earlier in the week continued to hamper travel this morning with law enforcement agencies continuing to urge motorists to travel in rural areas only for emergency trips.

A travelers advisory was in effect for much of North Texas and West Texas and the Hill Country today. A winter storm watch was posted for tonight for all of South Texas except the Lower Rio Grande Valley and the coastal plains.

Highs today were to range from near 5 in the Panhandle to the 20s and 30s in North Texas and Central Texas to the low 60s in extreme South Texas. Lows tonight will range from near 2 in the Panhandle to the single digits and 20s in North Texas to the 40s in far South Texas. Highs Saturday will be mostly in the 20s and 30s in the northern half of the state to the 30s and 40s in the southern half.

In addition to the freezing drizzle and snow in northern sections of the state, drizzle and fog was reported in South Texas. Elsewhere skies were mostly overcast except in far West Texas where skies were clear.

Fog was reported at Abilene, Alice, Corpus Christi, Del Rio, McAllen, Brownsville, San Antonio, Victoria and Waco. Abilene reported snow and freezing drizzle was reported at Dallas-Fort Worth, Midland, Wichita Falls and San Angelo.

Gift clothes is problem for First Lady

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nancy Reagan's project to donate her free haute couture ensembles to American museums was conceived by worried White House aides to minimize the public relations damage the issue could cause, informed sources say.

White House aides were taken by surprise when Mrs. Reagan told them a couple of months ago she had been getting the free clothes, according to an administration official.

Her revelation came during a general White House review of gift policy following disclosures that national security adviser Richard V. Allen had accepted wrist watches from Japanese friends. Allen resigned last month.

When approached on the subject, the first lady reportedly asked innocently whether the clothes she has been given by designers would be covered.

"I think it's fair to say that we saw it as a potential public relations problem," said the official, who spoke on the condition he not be identified.

He said the museum project "was a way to minimize any PR problem because it was a way to devote those clothes to a bonafide or beneficial sort of public use."

While it is unclear whether President Reagan and his wife will have to declare the value of the clothes as income on their tax return, this official said, "If it is taxable, of course they'll pay taxes on it."

Truman joins growing list of presidents who taped conversations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Now it turns out even Harry Truman may have recorded some of his Oval Office conversations. That lengthens the known list of presidential tapers to Franklin D. Roosevelt, Truman, Dwight D. Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, Lyndon B. Johnson and, of course, Richard M. Nixon.

Aides to Gerald R. Ford and Jimmy Carter said conversations weren't taped during their presidents' tenure. Spokesman David R. Gergen said President Reagan is recording only his interviews with reporters and not his private conversations.

Although the fact that Kennedy taped some of his conversations was well known, The Washington Post on Thursday told of the logs that showed which conversations Kennedy taped. That list added to an already imposing body of knowledge that Nixon wasn't alone in bugging his office, although he surpassed the others in scope and volume.

Dr. Benedict Zobrist, director of the Truman Library in Independence, Mo., said there are 10 tapes that "we think were made in the Oval Office" during Truman's time but not necessarily with Truman's consent.

"They are really unintelligible," he said. "You can hear somebody walking across the floor, hear a word here or there. But you can't tell what was said at all."

The Mugs were not among Truman's papers but were sent to Independence in the mid-70s by the Roosevelt Library in Hyde Park, N.Y.

"Some of the old timers told us that as soon as he learned about this (the taping) he had the system pulled," said

Zobrist. "We are not even certain it's Truman (on the tape)."

Not much remains, either, of Dwight Eisenhower's recorded Oval Office conversations.

"We don't have any tapes, but we have about 47 pages of transcriptions taken off some kind of device, whether a Dictabelt or tape recorder," said John Wickman, director of the Eisenhower Library in Abilene, Kan. "Throughout the collection, there are scattered transcriptions of monitored telephone calls, which was the way it was done."

A man who worked in the Eisenhower White House said an Ampex tape recorder was in a cabinet in the office of secretary Ann Whitman, a machine modified so it could record for three hours.

from a New York Air jetliner just ahead.

But the banter, interspersed with laughter, indicated little concern about a possible need to return to the hangar for a de-icing, which would have removed Flight 90 from its place in the takeoff line.

"Boy, this is a losing battle here on trying to deice those things. It (gives) you a false feeling of security, that's all it does," Pettit remarked as the plane inched closer to the New York Air jet.

"That, ah, satisfies the Feds," Wheaton replied.

Shortly afterward, they suggested it would be helpful to have a de-icing truck along the taxiway and "taxi through kinda like a car wash."

NTSB investigators refused to elaborate on the transcript. Board member Francis McAdams, who is overseeing the investigation, said no analysis would be provided until public hearings are completed in early March.

Despite its apparent difficulty in gaining speed, Air Florida Flight 90 was able to lift off. But six seconds later, according to the transcripts, the plane began to stall and never flew higher than 337 feet.

At 4:01 p.m., the Boeing 737 struck the commuter-filled 14th Street Bridge less than a half mile from the airport and slammed into the ice-filled Potomac River. Investigators said the plane should have been 1,000 feet above the bridge.

Pettit, 31, and Wheaton, 34, were killed instantly in the crash, medical examiners have said. A split second before, there was a final exchange on the cockpit tape:

Pettit: "Larry, we're going down, Larry."

Wheaton: "I know it."

Then all that was heard was the impact as the aircraft clipped the bridge and plunged into the water. The aircraft had been airborne about 28 seconds, according to the transcript.

During that time pilot Wheaton tried desperately to keep the plane aloft.

William's friend claims a split personality led him to killing

ATLANTA (AP) - The 118th and last witness called by the prosecution wrapped up the murder case against Wayne B. Williams by testifying she believes he has a split personality that turned him into a killer.

Sharon Blakely, a black woman who described herself as a friend and business associate of Williams, also said Thursday that she believed Williams killed somebody and that she once asked him to confess to authorities before he "got hurt."

Defense lawyers are expected to call more than 100 witnesses beginning today in their effort to show Williams is innocent of the murders of Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21.

The two were among 28 young blacks whose deaths during a 22-month period sparked one of the most intense police investigations in U.S. history. No charges have been filed in the 26 other killings.

Judge Clarence Cooper denied defense motions Thursday asking for a directed verdict of acquittal on the two murder charges.

Defense lawyers are expected to call Williams in an effort to discredit prosecution witnesses who helped build circumstantial evidence against the 23-year-old black free-lance photographer and aspiring talent scout.

Mrs. Blakely provided a dramatic finale for the prosecution's case, testifying in rapid-fire sentences Thursday about her last conversation with Williams, shortly after he was stopped by police near a bridge over the Chattahoochee River.

"I asked him, you tell me why you were on that bridge," Mrs. Blakely said. "He said he was throwing garbage off the bridge. He said he could throw garbage anywhere he wanted to..."

"I asked him, Wayne, before you get hurt... if they get enough evidence on you, will you confess? And Wayne Williams said, 'Yes,'" she said.

Williams first came to police attention in the pre-dawn hours of May 22, when a police stakeout team stopped his car near a bridge after one officer heard a loud splash in the river. Two days later, Cater's body was found in the river about a mile downstream from the bridge.

Mrs. Blakely was asked by defense lawyer Alvin Binder if she felt any anger toward Williams.

President wants elderly to pay more of their own hospital bills

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan will try to squeeze more than $5.1 billion from Medicare and Medicaid next year by making the elderly pay more of their hospital bills, allowing liens on the homes of Medicaid patients in nursing homes and imposing a host of other economy measures, budget documents show.

"When people find the health programs cut, they're going to find big holes in the safety net," said Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., who disclosed cuts in Medicare and the Public Health Service.

At the same time, House Democrats charged Thursday that Reagan's budget also could leave the Environmental Protection Agency without enough funds to police hazardous chemicals and clean up dangerous spills, spell the demise of Amtrak everywhere except the Northeast corridor and tilt the nation's energy policy toward nuclear power.

The Democrats said administration sources had leaked copies of the budget. They acknowledged that Reagan could make some changes before he sends the budget to Congress on Monday, but said they would be slight.

In addition to $2.96 billion in Medicare savings and $2.16 billion in Medicaid, they said Reagan will try to cut $562 million from the Public Health Service's $8.3 billion budget.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., said Reagan's proposals would force states to deny thousands of mothers or children health care or food due to a 25 percent cutback in the $348 million Maternal and Child Health Block Grant and the Agriculture Department's $934 million special nutritional program for Women, Infants and Children, which would be lumped together.

Medicaid cuts will force hundreds of thousands of aged, blind and disabled poor people to "lose some or all of their health care coverage for such optional services as prescription drugs, eyeglasses, hearing aids and dental care," he said.

Budget documents from the Health Care Financing Administration, which runs Medicare and Medicaid, indicate Reagan will seek a 2 percent across-the-board reduction in Medicare reimbursement of hospitals to save $650 million in fiscal 1983, which starts Oct. 1.

Most Medicare and Medicaid cuts would be in the form of lower payments to hospitals, institutions, physicians, state agencies and other providers.

Medicare and Medicaid, which now cost $70 billion a year, provide health insurance for 52 million elderly, disabled and poor Americans. By next year, 53 million are expected to be covered.

Medicare, which provides health care for elderly people regardless of their income, would be cut by requiring patients to pay part of the cost - possibly 10 percent - for the first 60 days of hospitalization up to $2,500. After that, new catastrophic coverage would provide unlimited free hospitalization. The program now pays for days 2 through 60.

While this catastrophic coverage would save the elderly $59 million in fiscal 1984, budget documents indicate the cost-sharing provision would cost them $1.44 billion.

Reagan also will ask Congress to approve Medicare vouchers, which would allow the elderly to enroll in private health plans.

Another Reagan proposal would allow states to place liens against the homes or other real property of Medicaid recipients in nursing homes. States could sell the property to recover Medicaid costs after the patient died and when the property was "no longer needed by the recipient, spouse or minor children," according to the HCFR document.

This provision, plus an initiative to allow states to make adult children of Medicaid nursing home patients contribute to their parents' care, would save $212 million.

Dingell was joined at a news conference by Democratic Reps. Richard Ottinger of New York, Henry Waxman of California, James Florio of New Jersey and Timothy Wirth of Colorado.

Ottinger said Reagan plans to put 87 percent of the energy technologies budget into nuclear energy, virtually eliminating spending on conservation, solar energy and other renewable resources.

Florio said Reagan wants to cut the EPA's budget from the $1.3 billion it received in fiscal year 1981 to $975 million.

City commission candidates file

It was announced today by the office of City Secretary that Calvin Whatley has filed for Ward II commissioner and Clyde Carruth has filed for re-election to the Ward IV position he now holds.

The city election to name a commissioner for Wards II and IV will be held Saturday, April 3.

Coyle Ford, who is now serving his second term as Commissioner of Ward II, has announced that he does not plan to seek re-election.

The filing deadline for the city election is March 4.

and broadcast stations for public distribution.

For more than a month, this operation has been erratic. The news media often have not received the data in time to meet deadlines and have been forced to print incomplete and sometimes out-of-date information.

Problems of moving outdated data occurred Thursday, for example, because workers at the center didn't know they had computer trouble until it was too late to send out correct information by alternative means, Friday said.

Military courts sentence Gdansk strikers

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Military courts sentenced 17 workers to prison terms ranging up to seven years and 101 young demonstrators to jail terms of one to three months for rioting last weekend in Gdansk.

The stiffest of the sentences, and some of the most severe given under martial law, went to nine coal miners convicted of leading a 12-day sit-in strike by 1,000 miners at the Ziemowit coal mine in the Silesian fields.

The miners stayed in the mine after the imposition of martial law Dec. 13. They came out on Christmas Eve. PAP, the official news agency, said one of the convicted men was sentenced to seven years, another to five, one got 4 1/2 years and six received three-year terms.

Radio Warsaw reported another military court in Slupsk, a Baltic port, sentenced eight members of Solidarity, the suspended independent trade union, to prison terms ranging from one to 4 1/2 years for forming strike committees and printing anti-government leaflets. They also were fined an average of a month's pay.

The student demonstrators in Gdansk, the birthplace of Solidarity, were given speedy trials and were sentenced Thursday in an apparent effort to head off further protests against martial law.

Fifty-one youths got three months' detention, 17 two months and 33 one month, PAP said. Thirty-three others were fined between $25 and $62.

Government officials said as many as 3,000 people were involved in the disturbances in Gdansk last Saturday, and 205 had been reported arrested. The PAP report of the convictions made no mention of the other 71, but it said the authorities were still investigating "organizers and inspirers" of the clashes.

It was the most serious outbreak of

Don't blame weatherman, it's the computer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Those curious about the weather across the country have been getting sometimes confused and inaccurate information lately from the National Weather Service.

And the weather service said Thursday that the problems, caused by computer and code mixups, may continue for a while.

Joe Friday, deputy director of the service, said that problems with late and incomplete data tables may keep coming up as the agency overcomes technical difficulties with new codes and computers.

"We are not 100 percent certain when the problems will be resolved," Friday said in an interview, "but we hope it's soon. We've had a lot of complaints."

The biggest problems have come in compiling and transmitting daily tables summarizing conditions, such as high and low temperatures, in U.S. cities.

This information normally goes from computers at the National Meteorological Center near Washington to local weather bureaus. This data then goes to national news services, which relay it to newspapers

Reagan submits draft arms treaty to Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Reagan administration, striving to counter Soviet charges that it is "footdragging" on arms control, has submitted a formal draft treaty to Moscow on reducing medium-range nuclear weapons targeted on Europe.

President Reagan announced the proposal Thursday and called it "a major contribution to security, stability and peace."

The Soviet Union had no immediate response to the draft treaty, which was submitted Tuesday in Geneva to Soviet arms control negotiators.

The draft treaty mirrors Reagan's Nov. 18 plan to sharply reduce or eliminate medium-range nuclear weapons in Europe and was made public on the heels of complaints by Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev that the United States is avoiding serious negotiations on the issue.

White House spokesman David Gergen rejected Brezhnev's allegations that the United States is using "various arms control pretexts" to delay arms negotiations.

"I think we wanted to make it clear that there is no basis for that complaint," said a well-placed U.S. official who asked not to be identified.

Brezhnev proposed a two-thirds cut in U.S. and Soviet medium-range nuclear weapons in Europe by 1990, but U.S. officials rejected that suggestion.

January unemployment rate down

WASHINGTON (AP) - The unemployment rate unexpectedly dipped slightly last month, possibly a reflection of fewer post-holiday layoffs in an economy already hit by recession, the Labor Department said today.

The national jobless rate declined at an annual rate of three-tenths of a percentage point - from 8.8 percent to 8.5 percent - as the number of people out of work fell by 270,000.

Overall, 9.2 million Americans were out of work in January as the labor force shrank by 300,000.

An analyst with the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics indicated the reversal of recent sharp rises in unemployment may have resulted from the declining business activity.

Many of the industries that typically lay people off were so depressed they had no extra people to lay off," said

Deborah Klein.

She noted that traditional rising joblessness following the Christmas holiday shopping season was reversed this year because many retail stores had not brought extra people onto the payroll.

"Because firms didn't hire as many people as they usually do in December, they didn't lay off as many," Ms. Klein said.

The department's figures for January were adjusted to take into account, for the first time, population statistics from the 1980 census and the regular year-end readjustment of unemployment figures for seasonal factors.

The department revised figures for all of 1981 to reflect new seasonal patterns, dropping the previously reported unemployment rate for December from 8.9 percent to 8.8 percent.

January unemployment rate down

WASHINGTON (AP) - The unemployment rate unexpectedly dipped slightly last month, possibly a reflection of fewer post-holiday layoffs in an economy already hit by recession, the Labor Department said today.

The national jobless rate declined at an annual rate of three-tenths of a percentage point - from 8.8 percent to 8.5 percent - as the number of people out of work fell by 270,000.

Overall, 9.2 million Americans were out of work in January as the labor force shrank by 300,000.

An analyst with the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics indicated the reversal of recent sharp rises in unemployment may have resulted from the declining business activity.

Many of the industries that typically lay people off were so depressed they had no extra people to lay off," said

Deborah Klein.

State employees ignoring order

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Legislative orders to erase "bureaucratic gobbledegook" apparently are being ignored by state employees who like legalese. The 1981 Legislature unanimously adopted a resolution directing agencies to "adopt plain language policies that will encourage the use of clear, concise, nontechnical language..."

"You want to be a nice guy but how do we find the agencies?" asked Rep. Gerald Geistweid, R-Mason, of the Subcommittee on Plain Language Policy. "Look through the (Texas) Register," which prints proposed agency rules, said Ms. Scroggins, who is director of the Texas Register Division.

Asked what the Legislature might do to eliminate bureaucratic language, Ms. Scroggins said lawmakers had only directed agencies to adopt policies that would "encourage" the use of plain language. "I'd like to see a stronger push — 'encourage' is good but not quite strong enough," she said.

She said it would be an "enormous burden" for the Texas Register staff to rewrite rules for 120 agencies and added, "The agencies will have to clean it up themselves." "Readability is a priority of the insurance industry as well as the board," she said. "The concept of readability is catching on."

On Thursday, however, a House subcommittee heard Charlotte Scroggins of the Secretary of State's office testify that "Some (agencies) are not giving (it) as much priority as others." As examples of agencies that are trying to write in plain English, Ms. Scroggins named the Department of Human Resources, State Insurance Board and Plumbing Examiners Board. Evelyn Ireland, director of information services for the insurance board, said, "We were surprised to find out that we were one of only a few agencies that seem to be actively interested in this area."

Ms. Scroggins declined to name the agencies who are less than enthusiastic about giving up bureaucratic jargon.

Judge's action threatens primaries

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County officials are seeking postponement of the May 1 primary to May 29, saying delayed filing deadlines and legislative redistricting leave too little time to print ballots and establish polling places. An official of the company that prints ballots for about 100 of the state's 254 counties, including Harris, the largest, said the problem is shared by counties across the state. "I can assure you it is a statewide problem," David Hart, vice president of Hart Graphics in Austin, said Thursday.

discriminatory and changed the filing deadline for legislative candidates from Feb. 1 to March 19 to give them time to compose a new districting plan for the May 1 primary and the general election. Local party chairmen and the county clerk told Harris County commissioners that postponement of the filing deadline makes it impossible for the county to hold legal primaries on May 1. The commissioners voted unanimously Thursday to join with local political parties and ask permission to intervene in the three-judge panel's review of the redistricting. Austin Bray, an attorney with elections division of the Texas Secretary of State's office in Austin, said Thursday that since the redistricting question is before the federal court, only the judges have the power to postpone the May 1 primary date. Jerry Eades, a Hart Graphics representative, said the new filing deadlines mean the ballots must be certified and sent to the printer by March 30 instead of the original date of Feb. 11. That leaves 312 hours until absentee balloting is scheduled to begin April 12, Eades said. "It's a very complicated process to set the ballot," Hart said. "It's difficult, especially when you get into things like punch card ballots." The time crunch may leave some counties stranded, Hart said. "We've never failed to make an election deadline," he said. "We'll just turn down the work. They're going to have to look for alternatives." The loss of six weeks' time to print and distribute ballots will be crucial to Harris County, said Anne Greene, county Democratic party chairwoman. "Our printer told me that with the current deadlines, there would be no way we could have absentee voting," Ms. Greene said. "Not only that, but he would not guarantee me that we would have ballots for the May 1 general election."

Ms. Greene said one-sixth of the state's registered voters live in Harris County.

Actress' claim on estate denied

HOUSTON (AP) — Terry Moore, a 52-year-old actress who says she is Howard Hughes' widow, has been rebuffed a second time in her efforts to lay claim to the late billionaire's estate. The Texas 14th Court of Civil Appeals upheld a probate judge's ruling Thursday and refused to order a jury trial to test the validity of Ms. Moore's challenge. Last July, Probate Judge Pat Gregory threw out Ms. Moore's claim to the estate because she failed to produce a marriage license or other documents proving she is Hughes' widow. Ms. Moore will have 15 days to ask for a re-hearing and 45 days to appeal her case to the Texas Supreme Court.

ship sailing from California to Mexico and never divorced him. The marriage was kept secret because she and Hughes did not want to damage her screen image as an innocent, naive girl, she said. But the three-justice panel considering the appeal noted Ms. Moore married and divorced three different men in the 30 year following her purported marriage to Hughes. Hughes also was married to actress Jean Peters from 1957 until 1971. In a 1972 divorce proceeding in California, Ms. Moore swore she had married her third husband, Stewart Cramer, the justices said in the opinion. When the marriage was dissolved, she was awarded custody of their two children and given child support, alimony and community property, the panel said. Her statements in the divorce proceeding were "clearly inconsistent with her sworn statements in these proceedings that she was married to Hughes at the time," the opinion said.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Psst....

It took about a year in office before President Reagan, like every president in recent memory, decided that it was time to make the obligatory statement deploring all those leaks from lower level bureaucrats to the news media. Why do they waste their time worrying about such a minor issue? And what is it about government service that prods people to begin to see secrecy as virtue?

The case for government secrecy, especially to the extent that it is practiced, is weak. The government operates by taking our money from us with or without our permission, and it derives whatever legitimacy it may possess from the claim that it is acting on behalf of the people. If that is the case, if it is really the people's government, there is little excuse for keeping the government's activities secret from the people. A reasonable interpretation of the occasional need for secrecy would dictate that only a very few of the most extremely sensitive documents or activities would be kept from the people and the news media.

The reality is far different from the ideal. Millions of government documents are classified into different categories of secrecy, restraining access or preventing the people who are paying the bills from knowing what the government is doing with their money and their trust. Many of these documents are classified for reasons that most people would support, but some are classified to conceal mistakes or bad judgement, and many are classified just because, if there's any doubt at all, most government employees would rather classify a document than not.

In that respect, most bureaucracies differ little from most private companies. Few executives make it a point to trumpet their mistakes or poor judgement to the press, and many would prefer to operate in virtually complete privacy. There's a difference between a government and a private company, however. Governments operate on tax money extracted by force and claim to be about the people's business. An obsession with government secrecy breeds suspicion (often warranted) and a breach of that atmosphere of trust without which democratic governments cannot operate.

Partially because many government officials prefer to operate out of the spotlight (and partially because some use leaks as weapons in bureaucratic warfare, or to help their friends and hurt their enemies, and for a number of other reasons, some noble and some downright despicable) Washington is a town that operates on leaks. It's a complex subculture. Extracting reliable information for the government is always a difficult chore. Some reporters are content with the official handouts; others search for the story behind the story; some seek sensational revelations or scandalous cover-ups even when such treatment is not warranted.

The government and the media feed on one another, of course, each providing the other a little of what they think they need. The game gets fuzzy at times. One man's highly placed source is another man's self-interested leaker. The same situation will be interpreted differently by different players and by different observers.

So long as the government continues to feel the need to keep some of its operations a secret, the game of leaking and probing will continue. No president can stop it, and it's difficult to understand why any of them even try.

On balance, the potential dangers of too much secrecy far outweigh the potential dangers of too much openness. A government that really wants to reduce leaks would be well advised to reduce drastically the amount of information it tries to keep secret. The signals coming from this administration, both in the recent statement from the president and the continuing efforts to make the Freedom of Information Act more restrictive, are not encouraging.

Computer to the rescue

The Immigration and Naturalization Service has thrown up its hands and admitted it doesn't know the whereabouts of foreign visitors who came to this country in the last four years. It doesn't know who came in, who left and who are still here.

The problem is that INS personnel are overwhelmed with a backlog of entry forms that have yet to be placed in its computer. INS officials assume most visitors return to their homelands when visas expired, but they are not certain.

Those who apply for extensions of their temporary visas also are a headache to the INS because there's no way of matching the applications with original arrival forms, which are yet to be filed.

The INS computer system is outmoded. It cannot begin to keep track of some 10 million visitors each year. Plainly, what is needed is a sophisticated computer that can handle the task, and the INS soon will be asking Congress to approve a new system.

Congress should look with favor on such a request.

Stifling the competition

By ROBERT WALTERS
WASHINGTON (NEA) — What ever happened to those "heroes you meet across a counter" whose virtues were extolled by President Reagan in his inaugural address one year ago?

If those "entrepreneurs with faith in themselves" were foolish enough to trust Reagan's Justice Department to provide protection against the most pernicious forms of anti-competitive business behavior, they long ago were devoured by multinational conglomerate corporations.

Notwithstanding the president's purported philosophical commitment to a free enterprise economy, his administration had adopted a laissez faire attitude toward the danger of excessively concentrated economic power in the marketplace.

The Justice Department's recent decision to abandon its antitrust litigation against the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and the International Business Machines Corp. is only the most recent manifestation of that disturbing trend.

Throughout the past year, the Justice Department and the Federal Trade Commission have actively undermined the federal government's longstanding commitment to the protection of unfettered competition. Some examples:

— The Justice Department is in the process of weakening antitrust enforcement guidelines that specify, for instance, that the market for a product is highly concentrated if four companies control 75 percent of an industry's sales.

— The department has dropped an antitrust suit that alleged that Mack Trucks Inc. and an industry trade association conspired to raise and fix the prices that truck owners, operators and dealers were charged for truck parts.

— The FTC shut down its five-year-long investigation of the auto industry — one of the nation's largest and most concentrated industries — without ascertaining whether the dominant firms engaged in illegal anti-competitive practices.

— After eight years of litigation, the FTC has, in effect, scrapped its antitrust suit designed to force divestiture of the country's eight largest oil companies — Exxon, Gulf, Texaco, Mobil, Shell, Atlantic Richfield, Standard of California and Standard of Indiana.

The Justice Department's settlement of the AT & T antitrust case on terms highly favorable to the company was an extraordinary action, especially because William Baxter, the assistant attorney general in charge of the department's antitrust division, was publicly committed to "litigate it (the civil suit) to the eyeballs."

When the government finished presenting its case in the now-truncated trial, the presiding judge offered a hint of his likely decision when he concluded that the evidence showed the "Bell System has violated the antitrust laws in a number of ways over a lengthy period of time."

When the federal government initiated its antitrust case against IBM 13 years ago, that company controlled about 70 percent of all domestic sales of mainframe computers, the massive central data processing systems frequently purchased by the country's largest corporations.

IBM still controls about 60 percent to 70 percent of that market, with the remaining sales fragmented among approximately a dozen competitors, none of which accounts for more than 10 percent of domestic sales.

Says Michael Pertschuk, a member and former chairman of the FTC: "The fear is that huge private enterprises, which are among the most tightly controlled organizations in our society, will increase their power at the expense of smaller and less organized groups and individuals."

Pertschuk is a Democrat, but a number of thoughtful Republicans share his views. Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., has criticized "a pattern of indifference about the enforcement of antitrust laws" by the Reagan administration.

"Free and open competition is at the heart of Republican philosophy," adds Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo. "The Reagan administration, in my view, has demonstrated a singular lack of interest in the enforcement of antitrust laws."

The president and his policy makers, however, apparently are determined to ensure that the "free marketplace" is dominated by the nation's largest corporations.

Is back to normalcy possible?

By OSCAR COOLEY
The U.S. economy is on the road back to normalcy. Will it get there? This is by no means sure.

We are beset by three outstanding evils: Inflation, super-high interest rates, and unemployment. Can we overcome them?

Inflation is a fall in the value, that is, purchasing power, of the dollar. It is due to excessive dollars having been produced. It is not a mere average price rise, due to raising of this price and that price. To see this, one has to know how dollars are created.

In today's economy, dollars are created by borrowing from commercial banks or other institutions that allow checking. When one borrows $1,000, the bank credits him with $1,000 deposited in a checking account. He now draws checks on this deposit and pays his bills. The recipients redeposit the checks and so do the same. New money has been created and gone into circulation.

If the borrower wishes, he can withdraw all or part of that $1,000 in the form of paper currency and coins, or "cash." The bank holds enough cash to meet such demands, but the cash while lying in the bank's vault is not money. It becomes money only when it is withdrawn and spent. Thus the government does not create — produce — U.S. money. Banks create it.

When borrowing from banks becomes excessive, too much money is created. People spend freely, bidding up prices. Result: inflation. For every loan, the bank makes a charge: interest. This keeps ordinary folks and firms from borrowing unless they can make productive use of the money. But the biggest borrower of all, the federal government in recent years has borrowed a vast amount. The more Congress votes to spend, the more the Treasury has had to borrow to meet the cost. It is this huge government borrowing that has caused the money supply to rise, inflating prices.

Interest restrains the ordinary borrower, but it does not restrain the government, because government can always get more money through taxing. So Treasury borrowing has grown and grown.

During a recession, people demand more and more government aids and subsidies, and Congress — always ready to please folks, this being good politics — votes these aids. Even a conservative like Reagan cannot stop it. Did you note that a few months ago he talked of the year's deficit being some $43 billion, but now he admits it will be over $100 billion?

Heavy government borrowing has another evil result: it bids up interest rates. Interest is a price for the use of money, and as the demand for money increases, the price inevitably rises.

Thus, the first two of our triumvirate of economic evils, inflation and interest rate, rise together. The third, unemployment, also has risen this winter. Employers have laid off workers because higher prices of goods and services have caused consumers to buy less. Further, the employers' costs have not fallen much, partly because the interest rates on the money they borrow are very high, and also because workers resist having wage rates cut. Only now, in midwinter, have some union officers begun to admit that wage rates must come down or more will lose their jobs.

The more unemployment, the more demand for welfare. This increases government spending (and borrowing). And so the vicious cycle continues: borrowing — inflation — interest rise — unemployment. The chain must be broken by Washington ceasing to escalate its spending, which means shrinking, not expanding, government. Reagan perceives this. Will the people support him?

BY PAUL HARVEY

Another way to play football

By PAUL HARVEY
College football should perhaps be called "semi-pro football."

Consider the generous scholarships allowed college athletes, the studies they don't have to work at, the "jobs" they don't have to work at, the alumni subsidies, the subliminal indoctrination to "kill" their adversaries.

The enormity of the coaching staff in colleges now rivals the pro's: the year-round torture training, the acceptable proliferation of practice injuries.

There is another way to play college football — and win.

At St. John's University in Collegeville, Minn., a football coach named John Gagliardi is considered "unique" because he coaches as coaches coached before college ball became big business.

At St. John's no athletic scholarships and no big staff, no coordinators and no secretary. No player is considered too small and no player is cut. No athlete is pampered.

They don't "count tackles"; players get no special diet; no spring timing; no practice in rain, mud or wind and no practice at all on Sundays and Mondays.

When St. John's players play they play — no spearing, no cheap shots, no foul play, no cheerleaders.

And the "Johnnies" have no between-season practice, no compulsory weight program, no recruiting and no tutoring.

There are no staff meetings, no player meetings, no practice apparatus, no blocking sleds, no lengthy causthetics.

No plays are called from the bench, no game plans, no precision huddles and no computer analysis.

Now, let's examine the results.

The Johnnies have been Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference champions 13 times in the last 26 years.

They were nationally ranked 16 times in the last 19 years.

And they were National Champions in 3 of those years.

The Johnnies of St. John's have the best bowl and post-season record in all college football — eight and one — outscoring their opponents 316 to 89.

And no St. John's player has ever failed to graduate.

There have been and are no discipline problems.

And in addition to its players' athletic and academic excellence, St. John's also leads "in fewest injuries."

How do you explain it?

Coach Bud Grant of Minnesota's professional football Vikings has become a close friend and admirer of coach Gagliardi. Grant's son attended St. John's, was a tight-end punter for four years, is now coaching. He says he tries to emulate the Gagliardi precision but does not know how to define it.

Gagliardi has been national coach of the year twice, the winningest coach in small college football — and in all college football, with 202 victories, he ranks third behind Bear Bryant and Eddie Robinson.

Of course he's had opportunities to coach the pros, has declined.

John Gagliardi likes doing what he's doing — coaching football the way it was played 30 years ago — for fun.

And, incidentally, winning.

Nature lovers being urged to help political campaigns when walking

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nature lovers are being urged to supplement their wilderness hiking with more mundane jaunts this year — door-to-door treks carrying campaign literature.

It's all part of an effort by conservation organizations, horrified by Reagan administration policies to get the country's estimated 15 million hard-core environmentalists to put down their back packs and get into the nitty-gritty of politics.

Loan guarantees of FHA are to be expanded soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a move to bolster the sagging housing industry, the Reagan administration plans to propose expanding popular FHA home loan guarantees to cover variable rate and other non-conventional mortgages.

The proposal to amend the Housing Act of 1934 will be disclosed as part of President Reagan's 1983 budget plan, Department of Housing and Urban Development officials said Thursday.

But the budget plan, to be unveiled Monday, will not include any direct measures to reduce the record mortgage rates, which about things and are willing to invest time than any other social movement in America today," said J. Michael McCloskey, executive director of the Sierra Club.

Historically, most environmental groups have shied away from large-scale involvement in elections, fearing that such efforts would be divisive in groups that draw their memberships from both Democratic and Republican ranks.

But the policies of the Reagan administration and Interior Secretary James Watt have created a sense of urgency in the environmental community not seen since the late 1960s when millions of Americans marched against dirty air and polluted rivers.

The Sierra Club reports its membership has grown by 45 percent in the last year, to a new high of 275,000. Other groups report similar large jumps.

McCloskey said that for the first time this year the Sierra Club plans to make endorsements in some congressional races. In addition, it's political arm plans to raise $200,000 and get out volunteers for precinct work in about 30 congressional races.

The League of Conservation Voters expects to raise a war chest of more than $1 million which it will use in about 60 congressional races.

The money both groups are talking about is no match for the large donations corporate political action committees raise. But the environmentalists say they will substitute shoe leather for money.

Friends of the Earth paid $28,000 recently for a full-page ad in The New York Times which blasted President Reagan for appointing regulators the group accused of thinking "the environment is something you dig up, cut down, take apart or pave."

The Solar Lobby is running television spots featuring actor Jack Klugman talking about government indifference to alternative energy sources.

Gulf contract may have trouble

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — An agreement between Gulf Oil Co. and 2,400 members of the Oil Chemical and Atomic Workers union may be in trouble, a union official says.

A ratification vote for the union's main plant group, representing refinery workers, has been set for Saturday.

But the union's chief negotiator, Kenneth Wigham said Thursday, "We could have some problems Saturday. We have quite a few controversial issues we agreed to."

A group of about 150 office workers represented by OCAW approved a two-year contract Thursday calling for a nine percent salary increase this year and 90 cents per hour in 1983 plus improved benefits, a spokesman said.

The proposed contract for refinery workers requires employees to work an extra day a month and receive benefits based on a 42-hour work week. In exchange, Gulf agreed to a no-layoff provision.

The extra day would be paid at overtime rates, with benefits calculated on an average 42-hour week.

Increasingly, lenders are demanding mortgage arrangements that allow for periodic interest rate adjustments.

One HUD official, who asked not to be identified, said the administration's legislative proposal is designed to place more emphasis on helping first-time homebuyers secure mortgages.

Because of record interest rates, most would-be buyers have been unable to qualify for a mortgage, and the housing industry has been in its worst slump since World War II.

By insuring mortgages that lenders might otherwise be unwilling to extend, the Federal Housing Administration has enabled millions of Americans to buy their own homes.

But under current law, FHA insures only fixed-rate mortgages, which have set interest rates and either fixed monthly payments, usually for 30 years, or a graduated payment schedule with lower initial payments to aid first-time homebuyers.

Fewer and fewer lending institutions are providing fixed-rate mortgages because of volatile interest rates.

HIGH SCORER. Pampa junior Mike Nelson led all scorers with 19 points as the Harvester claimed the first-half District 3-5A title Thursday night with a 60-57 win over Amarillo High.

Pampa rallies in third quarter to claim first-half championship

AMARILLO—After trailing most the game, Pampa claimed the lead late in the third quarter and clung precariously to it for a 60-57 over Amarillo High Thursday night to capture the first-half District 3-5A championship.

Pampa, ranked No. 7 in recent Class 5A state basketball polls, boosted its record to 22-3 overall and 4-0 in district play. Amarillo High, ranked No. 20 in the same poll, fell to 2-1 in first-half play and 17-6 overall.

"The kids hung in there," Pampa coach Garland Nichols said. "They played tough when they had to. I knew it would be an extremely tough game. The Sandies are a very good ballteam and they're taller than what was listed in the papers. I can assure you of that."

AHS led by as much as eight points in the first half while Pampa gained one-point leads twice in the second quarter. The Sandies led by two, 27-25, at halftime.

Long-range bombs by Tony Gilbreath and Lance Simpson plus a rugged defense helped keep the Sandies on top.

However, AHS went through a cooling-off period late in the third quarter and the Harvesters starting their move while trailing by five, 38-33, at the 3:42 mark.

The Harvesters ran off a dozen unanswered points, four apiece by Mike Nelson and Charles Nelson, to take a 45-38 lead. Pampa never trailed again, but the Sandies drew within a point once and two points three times in the final quarter.

"We hustled and fought them tooth and nail," Nichols added. "We're experienced at being in tight situations and we just pulled out of it."

Mike Nelson led all scorers with 19 points, including 12 in the second half. Charles Nelson tossed in 16 points while Terry Faggins had 14.

Also scoring for the Harvesters were Meryl Dowdy and Coyle Winborn with four points apiece, Phil Jeffrey two and Jim Barker one.

Gilbreath paced the Sandies with 18 points while Graham Thompson had 13 and Simpson 10.

Pampa got good mileage out of 31 trips to the foul line, outscoring AHS, 22-9, from there.

Pampa hit 19 of 37 shots from the floor for 51.3 percent while Amarillo High downed 24 of 52 attempts for 46.1 percent.

NicholW tooks at Pampa's first-place possession as both a blessing and a curse.

"We've got the pressure on the other district teams," Nichols said. "They can't afford lose another game. If we lose only one game and tie for the second-half we'll win the championship outright. But sometimes that can have an adverse affect. Sometimes a team will play a little tougher when they're backed into a corner and sometimes a team that's on top will tend to take things a little easy. I just hope we don't take that kind of an attitude. I just hope we can go out, play loose ball and get after it."

Pampa tangles with Tascosa at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday night in the Longhorns' gym.

Pampa dropped the junior varsity contest, 79-57.

Chris Kutumas led the Shockers with 12 points while Dan Dome paced Amarillo High JVs with 12 points also.

In girls' action, District 3-5A first-half champions Amarillo High remained unbeaten Thursday night with a 60-41 decision over Pampa in Harvester Fieldhouse.

Trio ties for Crosby lead

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Jerry Pate used a golf ball colored a bright orange to score a hole-in-one on probably the most famous par-3 in America.

HPbrother-in-law, Bruce Lietzke, used one of a lime-green shade to compose a 6-under-par 66 and noted, "it's a good day for the colored balls."

Forrest Fezler used the old, standard white to tie Lietzke for the first round lead Thursday in the 41st Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, a storied old event that seemed to revolve around the new, colored golf balls that are appearing on the pro tour.

"In five years, it might be hard to find a white golf ball," said Jack Nicklaus, who put himself inT good position, only three strokes off the lead, with a 69.

Nicklaus, the most successful performer the game has ever known, said he hasn't yet used a colored ball, but wouldn't hesitate to do so.

"I'm just waiting for the right color," Nicklaus said. "I'm red-green color-blind. There are a lot of people with that condition. The orange ball has so much red in it, it's hard for me to see against the green grass."

Mark Lye and George Burns were a single stroke off the lead at 67. Burns, who won this event in 1980, didn't make a bogey and didn't have a "5" on his card in his effort at Pebble Beach. Lye played at Spyglass Hill.

It was two strokes back to Nicklaus, Tom Watson, Ben Crenshaw, Chip Beck and Scott Simpson tied at 69.

Gervin scores 39 as Spurs outlast Suns

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — It took four tries and a hot hand from the "Iceman," but the San Antonio Spurs finally managed to defeat the Phoenix Suns.

George Gervin scored 39 points and teammate Mike Mitchell tossed in 27 Thursday night to lead the Spurs to a 118-112 National Basketball Association victory over the Suns.

"We've had difficulty beating them. It was really good to finally get one. But they are a different team without 'Truck,'" said Spurs center George Johnson, referring to the Suns injured forward Len "Truck" Robinson.

"We needed other players to pick up the slack without 'Truck' in the middle," said Suns coach John McLeod, who watched his team drop its fourth consecutive game.

In the only other NBA game Thursday night, the Indiana Pacers defeated the Denver Nuggets 131-114.

Gervin and Mitchell combined for 13 points to trigger a late third-quarter rally that saw the Spurs outscore the Suns 15-6 to take an 88-85 advantage at the end of the period.

"I think Mitchell will be a big contributor the second part of the season," said Spurs coach Stan Albeck. Since he joined San Antonio from Cleveland, Mitchell has become the Spurs' No. 2 scorer, averaging 17 points a game. Mitchell said he and Gervin were open throughout the game because the Spurs ran their offense properly.

"I think we went to what was working during the whole game. We've got a team that can do that," he said.

The Suns rallied early in the fourth period behind Alvan Adams and Rich Kelley to narrow the score to 96-95. But four free throws by Mark Olberding gave the Spurs a 100-95 advantage and the Suns could draw no closer than four points the rest of the way.

"Gervin, Mitchell and Olberding played very well for the Spurs, give them a lot of credit," said McLeod.

The Spurs, with a six-point outburst by Gervin, outscored Phoenix 12-2 at the end of the first half to turn a 59-50 deficit into a 62-61 San Antonio halftime advantage.

Adams led the Suns with 23 points, rookie Larry Nance had 20 and Kelley scored 16.

"The difference was that the Spurs apparently really wanted this one because we had beaten them three times earlier this year," said Adams.

Pacers 131, Nuggets 114
Billy Knight and Tom Owens scored 19 points apiece and led six other Indiana players who reached double figures in the Pacers' victory over Denver.

Killer frogs no fluke

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Halfway through the Southwest Conference regular season, there's quite a logjam at the top of the standings.

Arkansas is in first by half a game, and three teams are tied for second — Texas A&M, Texas and Texas Christian.

You mean the Horned Frogs?

The team that hasn't had a winning season in nine years? That averaged only seven wins a season during that span? That went through three coaches in just four seasons?

Well, are they a fluke? "TCU is a solid basketball team," said Rice coach Tommy Suits after the Wednesday game. "People just rated them low because they were losing on the road to good teams early in the season."

Nursed slowly back to health by coach Jim Killingsworth, an expert at reviving wounded college basketball programs, TCU became ambulatory in last year's SWC post-season tournament.

"Are you here to find out how we're doing all this?" grinned basketball publicity man Charlie Dierker as he greeted a visiting sports writer. "Well, if you figure it out, let me know, will you? I think we're under some kind of divine guidance or something."

But there's nothing divine, Killer says, about the way he guided his basketball team back to respectability.

"I don't think it's so much what I did as that we were really fortunate to get some winners to come into the program," he said. "We were lucky to get some kids who were great competitors."

"Here are kids ... who really weren't recruited that hard, not that well-known, but they're competitors and they want to win. They do what they have to do to win."

That includes junior guard Darrell Browder, who led the team in scoring last year. This season, however, Browder is passing and playing defense, turning the scoring over to board-thin, 6-9 forward Doug Arnold, a junior transfer student from Duquesne averaging 20 points a game.

"No question about it," Killingsworth said. "Browder is really sacrificing himself. Last year, if Browder wasn't taking 20 shots a game we probably didn't have much chance to win. This year there are times when he'll take no shots at all. For the good of the team."

But the foundation for this season's success was laid by last year's club, which learned the price of victory.

"Last year we had a great attitude, even when we were losing. We started out so badly but those kids kept working hard every day, every day, and at the end of the year we were a pretty good basketball team. We've got all those guys back except three ... and they know if we go out there and play together, they can win because we did it last year with less talent."

They moved into a second-place tie with their 58-57, last-ditch Wednesday

The Frogs, next-to-last and left for dead during the regular season, upset A&M in the first round and surprised Baylor in the second before falling to Houston in the semifinals.

That's when sports writers, seizing on Killingsworth's lifelong nickname of "Killer," tabbed his team "The Killer Frogs."

ROBERT KRIST

Lamar Assembly speaker

Rev. Robert Krist will be speaking at the Lamar Assembly on Sunday at 7 p.m. Reverend Krist is a graduate of Central Bible College in Springfield, Mo., where he received his B.A. degree in Bible. Before becoming a foreign missionary with the Assemblies of God, he pastored churches for eight years in Michigan. In 1964 Reverend Krist began his missionary career in Columbia, South America, where he served as National Director of Evangelism and conducted evangelistic campaigns in many of the countries of Central and South America. Since 1970 Reverend Krist has lived in Madrid, Spain, and has been working as a missionary evangelist throughout Europe. Presently he is serving as the European Director of Evangelism and Church Ministries and also as a member of the European Ministries Administrative Committee.

Jackie Peck Quartette at First Pentecostal Holiness

The Jackie Peck Quartette will be singing at the First Pentecostal Holiness Church, 1700 Alcock, on Sunday, at 7 p.m. The quartette is composed of two talented young couples, Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Peck and Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Thomas of Borger. The group has been singing in area churches for the past several years. Pastor Albert Maggard and the congregation extend a welcome for everyone to attend and enjoy this inspiring evening of Gospel song.

By George R. Plagenz

They don't drink, dance, swear, go to movies (unless rated G) or engage in pre-marital sex. So what do born-again Christian singles do for fun?

Today's permissive moral climate is making it harder for the born-again Christian to have fun. Almost all movies have some dirty language in them — even a funny movie like "9 to 5" (rated PG). Many TV shows use sexual innuendos, which put them out of bounds for Christian singles.

A rule-of-thumb used by many Christian singles when deciding on what entertainment is proper to watch is, "Would you be willing to have Jesus sitting there with you?" That eliminates much of today's entertainment.

Something else that limits Christian singles' opportunities for having a good time these days is that there are fewer acceptable "dates."

"Things we consider wrong or improper most people considered wrong or improper a generation or less ago. No longer," says one woman, a born-again Christian single. "Even many church people today find nothing wrong with profanity or off-color stories — even nudity. We can't go out with such people."

But if the life of Christian singles is sometimes lonely for these reasons, they do have fun and they wouldn't trade their life for any other.

This comes out of a Scripps-Howard survey of members of various Christian singles groups.

Some of the activities these singles say they can still enjoy are sports, Christian parties, going out to dinner, snowball fights, roller skating, visiting friends, church activities such as picnics, concerts and Bible study and bus tours to museums and historical landmarks and sights.

Several of these singles said they take classes in ceramics, cooking, painting and swimming. Some are enrolled in adult-education courses.

"We like to sing, laugh, tell jokes (clean ones) and get together with friends," said one Christian singles member.

One woman who gave up the bar scene "after becoming a Christian" said she "never has had such fun" as she has now.

"I laugh more now than I ever did before," she said, "and when I laugh it's a sincere laugh. Before I laughed because I thought the people around me expected me to."

Another said, "People shouldn't knock our way of having fun until they try it and find out what a joy it is."

One woman said, "We take pleasure in babysitting for friends and taking people shopping when their car breaks down. We try to be a good listener if you are troubled or have a problem. We will lend a helping hand whenever we can — even when it's not convenient."

While Christian singles most enjoy the company of other born-again Christians, they have to live and work in the "real world" with people who don't share their moral views. How do they react when their co-workers or people around them swear or tell dirty jokes?

Most say they try to be tactful — either by pretending they don't hear the remarks or by "finding a reason to get up and leave the room."

Some, however, say they tell the offending person, "I don't care for dirty jokes," without being rude or making the other person feel embarrassed.

One man said, "It's often best to say nothing, especially if you are around fellow workers or your boss. If you make an issue of it, you may lose your job."

Religion in the News

NEW YORK (AP) — Church scholars see a new agreement by representatives of all the world's major Christian traditions on long-disputed doctrinal issues as a watershed in the quest for Christian unity.

The agreement, variously called the "convergence document" or "Lima test," was reached at a meeting in Lima, Peru, of representatives of Roman Catholicism, Eastern Orthodoxy and the various branches of Protestantism.

The accord is "an ecumenical achievement of historical significance," says United Methodist theologian John Deschner of Dallas.

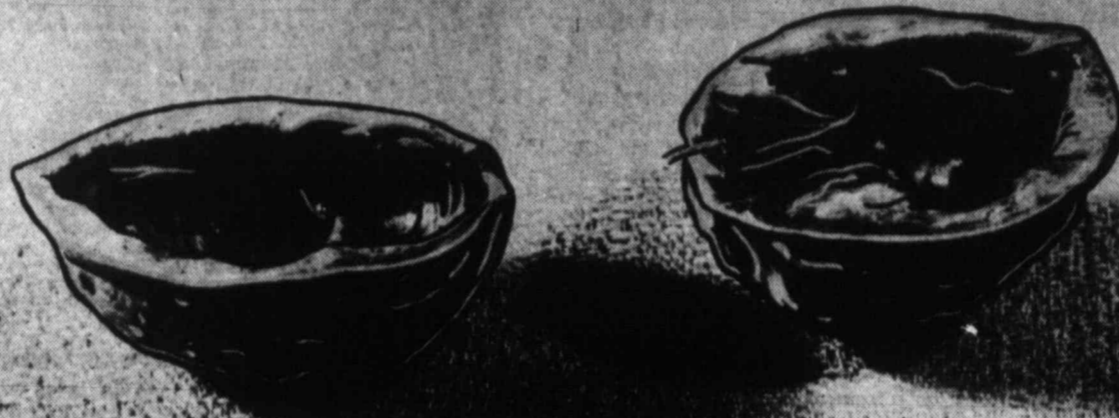

Roman Catholic theologian Jean Tillard of Canada called it a "framework for church union" and "proof that the Holy Spirit is at work."

The 16,000-word document, developed through years of interconfessional dialogue, offers broad agreement on three of the thorniest issues dividing Christianity — baptism, the eucharist and the ministry.

The consensus reached calls for acceptance of varying approaches to these practices and asks the churches to make official responses to the agreement at the "highest appropriate levels of authority."

A Hollow Shell

What a profound symbol of emptiness, a hollow shell from which the life kernel has been removed.

Its purpose for existence is gone; it is fit only to be cast on the rubbish heap.

Sometimes life is like that — an empty shell from which the life force has been removed. It has no meaning and no purpose; it seems to have no conceivable end but the grave. This is a picture of life without God, a shell from which the kernel of meaning has been removed.

God has made us for Himself and we are empty until filled with His presence. Only God can make human life meaningful. God's gift to lead us to this meaning is His Church. Go to Church Sunday and open your life to the One who will fill it with significance.

Dear Abby

Matrimonial bonds may cut ties of friendship

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were invited to dinner by a childhood friend of mine. We wanted our husbands to meet. The invitation was extended after I had called and invited them to our home for dinner. She insisted that we come to their home first, saying they would come to ours next time.

Abby, the evening was a total disaster! Immediately following dinner, her husband picked up a magazine, read a little, then promptly fell asleep in our faces.

My friend kept making excuses. ("He's tired.") The three of us carried on a conversation as best we could. It was very embarrassing. My friend and I talked about "old times," while my husband just listened. I felt sorry for him.

As soon as it was proper for us to depart, we said our goodbyes, and our hostess woke up her husband to see us to the door. He never once apologized for his rude behavior. I felt sorry for my friend, who had gone to a lot of trouble preparing a delicious dinner.

Naturally my husband and I were appalled by this incident. Do you think we did the right thing by staying while the host slept? Or should we have departed as soon as he fell asleep?

Should we invite this couple to our home? My main concern is preserving the friendship that my friend and I have maintained for 27 years.

PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: There is a possibility that your friend's husband has a health problem. Ask her. In any case, do not subject yourselves (or them) to another such evening. If you want to preserve the friendship, do both husbands a favor and meet your friend for lunch.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 44-year-old divorced father of a daughter, 18, and a son, 19. We live together in a three-bedroom apartment and share expenses equally.

I feel uncomfortable when my daughter has her boyfriend sleep with her, which is practically every night.

I have explained my feelings to her, but she says since she is paying her share of the rent, she will do as she pleases, and if I don't like it, I can look the other way.

I love my daughter, but I think she and her boyfriend should find another place to live if living together is their thing.

Is my thinking old-fashioned for the 1980s?

ALLENTOWN PAPA

DEAR PAPA: No. Don't look the other way — look for another apartment. Or tell your daughter to.

...

DEAR ABBY: You're supposed to know everything, so maybe you can tell me why nobody wants to use those pretty little guest towels people have in their homes.

I have had the same half-dozen guest towels displayed in my powder room for months on end, and I have had many guests, but not one guest towel has been used. Instead guests choose to dry their hands with Kleenex, toilet paper, the bath towel, the bathmat and even the curtains, while the guest towels remain untouched. Why?

PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: It probably has something to do with your guests' early training. ("Save the guest towels for 'company'!")

Dr. Lamb

Serious depression requires professional help

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have an 18-year-old son who goes through very deep depressions and he doesn't know exactly why. He tries to explain that he can't control his brain and it scares him. He has a definite personality change. He is basically happy and when he goes through this change he cries, he's nervous, doesn't eat and sometimes hears things. The unusual thing about this is that his father gets the same way. We are no longer together, but he was the same.

I wonder if this is hereditary. It scares me to think my son goes through these same strange periods. It's a nightmare like Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. I need to know where I can go for help and what type of doctor to see. He has seen a psychiatrist and I never heard anything from the doctor.

DEAR READER — Your son may be subject to depressions. He will need a professional evaluation to determine how serious they are. All of us have mood swings but as these become more and more severe we finally reach a point where they must be classified as significant depressions requiring help.

And help means professional help, not the well-meaning input from family, parents or friends. Serious depressions are not something for an amateur to try to handle. It was right for your son to see a psychiatrist and the best course is to have him return to see him again. You could talk to the psychiatrist yourself to get a clear picture of what he thinks is best for your son.

As I discussed in The Health Letter number 10-10, Depression: The Ups and Downs of Life, depression is often caused by changes in life and adolescence is a time of great change. Your son may be just having an exaggerated reaction, but don't guess. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — A guy I really like asked me out but he told me that he kissed a girl with a sore on her mouth and got herpes when he was 12 years old. He said he only had a slight case and the only way I could get it is if he had an open sore on his mouth. I really like this guy but I'm afraid if we got too serious I would get it. DEAR READER — You may already have the disease. From 30 to 90 percent of young adults have antibodies for herpes simplex type 1, proving they have already had the disease.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

It's important this coming year that you set larger goals for yourself where your work or career is concerned. Aim high. Even if you fall short, you'll still be a winner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Under most conditions we all welcome assistance, but you are apt to perform better today unaided by coworkers. They could be more of a hindrance than a help. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in each of the seasons following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you are anticipating doing something today which you know will be fun, don't let one who always changes everybody's plans around disrupt your schedule.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You will be rather adept today at managing complex situations for others, provided there's no one looking over your shoulder, dictating what you should do.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try to treat everyone equally today, not just those you deem to be your peers. Behaving in a superior manner will cause problems.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your possibilities for profitable returns are promising today in areas where you offer service or goods. Speculative ventures, however, could incur losses.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Situations you personally initiate should turn out rather lucky for you today, unless you get too pushy or assertive. Tone down your directives.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Subdue tendencies today to make things harder for yourself than they should be. All will run quite smoothly if you don't rock the boat.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Enjoy your friends for what they are today, not for what they have to offer. They, in turn, will find much to admire in you. Don't mix business with pleasure.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your possibilities for personal gain are strong today, but you must be very careful not to be selfish in attempting to fulfill your desires.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The secret for success today is to treat whatever occurs philosophically. If you let yourself get too uptight, it will distort your judgment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone to whom you once were kind will want to reciprocate today, but the situation could get complicated when one who shouldn't butts in.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There's a chance you might be part of a successful team effort today, yet you might end up feeling disgruntled because your co-participant wants all the bows.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS -- Robert is very taken with Lorie and Lance is beginning to feel left out. Snapper argues with Chris about her trip to Hawaii with Jack for a modeling assignment. Andy demands a divorce from Karen but she hasn't given up the fight yet. Victor works to kick Lance out.

ANOTHER LIFE -- Ben's office and medical equipment were destroyed in the fire that also killed an old man. Charles begins to worry when an arson expert begins to ask questions. Russ pampers Becky after she nearly miscarries. Becky goes against doctors orders and plans a trip to New York to cut a demo. When Russ argues with her about it she miscarries.

THIS WEEK: Nancy sets her sights on Charles.

The investigator begins to piece together the facts. DAYS OF OUR LIVES -- Roman is reinstated on the job after his suspension. Renee can talk and she is going to stay at the townhouse because of the threat of the strangler. Marlena is rescued by the suspected strangler. David turns down a job offer from the count because he wants to make it on his own. Valerie is cleared of all charges.

THIS WEEK: Lee looks after Renee. Roman takes Marlena under his wing. RYAN'S HOPE -- Maeve gets blood poisoning and it is feared that she may die. When she thinks she's going to die she has to tell Jill a secret. The secret is that Jill's mother is an Australian woman named Bess. Yvonne is coming on to Joe and Delia is jealous. THIS WEEK: Ari hides a shield from the tomb. Jill is confused and upset. ALL MY CHILDREN -- Someone bought out Sensuelle and it's discovered that it is Kent Bogard. Erica tries to return the fur Kent gave her, unaware that he is the new owner of Sensuelle. Opal is fired from the boutique for borrowing a cocktail dress. # Defense will start case today

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Defense attorneys in the capital murder trial of a Texas Department of Corrections inmate who is charged with the drowning death of the Ellis Unit warden will present their case in state district court today.

After a lengthy discussion out of the presence of the jury Thursday, Judge Henry Dalehite agreed to enter some pictures from the autopsies of Warden Wallace C. Peck and farm manager Billy Max Moore into evidence in the trial of Froy Edward Brown, 31, of Waco.

Defense attorney Craig Washington tearfully said the state was entering the photographs "in an attempt to get a conviction on the basis of the nature of the pictures rather than on hard evidence. They don't have a case, your honor."

Chief Prosecutor Mike Hinton, who described some of the pictures as "gross", withdrew some of the photographs and Dalehite admitted the rest into evidence.

Brown has only been charged in Peck's death but prosecutors have said they may try him later in the shooting death of Moore. But defense attorneys contend Brown acted in self defense.

The judge also issued 34 bench warrants for inmates the defense has called to testify in behalf of Brown.

In testimony Thursday Dr. Joseph Jachinczyk, chief medical examiner of Harris County, said Peck died from asphyxiation due to drowning. Peck's body was discovered by being face down in a drainage ditch by Assistant Warden James Williamson.

Two TDC inmates had testified they saw Brown shoot Ellis farm manager Billy Max Moore to death. Jachinczyk testified Moore died from a gun shot wound to the head.

News in Brief

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission, saying it needs more time to review material, has postponed from next Monday to Feb. 22 a vote on whether to ban urea formaldehyde insulation.

The insulation, already in use in half a million U.S. homes, has been blamed for producing flu-like symptoms in humans. Formaldehyde has also been found to cause cancer in laboratory rats.

The National Insulation Certification Institute, an industry group, has accused the CPSC staff of providing misleading data. The staff says evidence to support a ban is greater now than last year when it was first proposed by the CPSC.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., says he found it "unbelievable" that the Justice Department didn't consult with Congress, the Pentagon and regulatory agencies before settling its antitrust case against the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

The consent decree seems to have totally ignored concerns of Congress, particularly the Senate, and the Federal Communications Commission and the Defense Department, he said Thursday as William Baxter, assistant attorney general for antitrust, appeared before the Senate Commerce Committee.

"This was an antitrust case and our problem primarily was to resolve antitrust concerns," Baxter replied. The alternative was "to continue spurious litigation while waiting for Congress to consider legislation affecting AT&T."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The controversial Vietnam Veterans Memorial, its design modified by the addition of a flagpole and the statue of a U.S. serviceman, has been approved by Interior Secretary James Watt, the head of the memorial fund says.

Jan Scruggs said Thursday that the decision means ground for the $6 million to $7 million memorial will be broken early next month on the Mall, northeast of the Lincoln Memorial.

Scruggs said the additions satisfied critics, who have attacked the V-shaped design of the privately funded black-granite structure as reminiscent of the peace sign used by Vietnam War protesters.

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Two members of the Soviet trade mission here have been ordered to leave because of activities incompatible with their status, the Foreign Ministry announced today.

Informed sources said the two officials were asked to leave because of attempted industrial espionage directed against Norwegian firms producing components for F-16 jet fighters.

Geir Grung, the Foreign Ministry's press spokesman, said the Soviet charge d'affaire in Norway had been informed Thursday about the government's decision to expel Oleg D. Dokudovsky, the trade mission's assistant manager, and one of his aides, Evgeny K. Vopulovsky.
