Ex-Cop's Joke Has Backfire

"There's been a suicide. There's a man hanging from the water tower," said the voice on the phone calling the police station. But the desk sergeant recognized the voice as that of Jay Nichols, a former member of the police department and knew the prankster was referring to the Halloween dummy hanging from the tower near Woodrow Wilson School. But he dispatched a squad car to cut it down.

Time marches on. It's midnight. There is a pounding on the Nichols' front door. The sleepy Jay dummies' body lying on his front porch. Jay is no longer sleepy. In front of the house his ex-mate from with laughter.

"Take him away," yells Jay. "You can bury him in the morning." Jay is the relief.

But Jay at least got something for his efforts. The dummy's shoes are the right size.

Oldsters Get Break as War Draws Off Younger Men

NEW YORK — (AP) — The oldest is getting a break. It seems there's a labor shortage developing into the armed forces or defense production jobs.

Companies who thought a man was washed up at 60 — some could be unshirable after 40 — are suddenly discovering that the older man has virtues of skill, experience and executive talent. "Don't apologize for growing old — many persons are denied this privilege," the Controllers Institute reminds its members who are looking for a job once more.

The 40-Plus Club of Connecticut, engaged in finding its members new jobs, says that since the Korean war many companies are turning to hiring older men, since they fear loss of younger key personnel to the armed forces or to defense jobs.

A government arsenal at Frankford, Pa., which had a 62 age limit for machinists, too, die and gauge makers, has raised it to 70.

The office of Defense Manpower says a labor shortage is developing and the labor department is planning a training program for industrial plants to get the skill needed for arms production.

The older age brackets, however, offer a large reservoir of already trained ability. The Census Bureau reports that 12.3 percent of the men and 13 percent of the women in the country are over 55. There are 11.5 million persons over 65 — one out of every 13 in the country — and both the number and the percentage is growing. There may be 20 million in that age group by 1960.

A bumper crop of the very young is coming along. But the age groups on which the military draw, and to which industry normally looks for replacements — the 15 to 35 range — have been growing very little, if at all. In fact, there are two million less in the 15 to 19 group than 10 years ago (that was the depression's short crop of babies.)

One active campaigner against early retirements is Elmer H. Bobst, president of Warner-Hudnut, Inc. He advocates putting persons over 65 on half-time, rather than retiring them. He says they will live longer when they have an interest in life.

PRESIDENT

 in "critical, very serious" condition with chest and stomach wounds.

In another hospital room, the wounded Collazo was sullen. "Oh, just political," he said when asked why he came here from New York two days ago to make the attack.

Secret Service Chief T. E. Baughman told reporters there was no previous record on either Collazo or Torresola. And Washington's police chief discounted a report that a third Puerto Rican was to be picked up.

"We are going to investigate very carefully before doing any picking up," he said.

But in New York, police ransacked the tenement blocks in the Bronx area where Collazo and his wife — described as a "quiet couple" by their neighbors — lived. They found nothing to shed light on the Washington shooting, but the stout, 42-year-old Mrs. Collazo talked freely about her husband, who polishes pocketbook frames for a living. She said Collazo told her, before departing on Tuesday, that he was "going to Puerto Rico," and added "I may be free. We can no longer be slaves of the United States."

Baughman said the Blair House detail is being strengthened. The Secret Service evidently intended to comb the report of section in front of the presidential residence for evidence. The metropolitan police assigned extra men to White House duty.

And the Secret Service, always worried over Mr. Truman's casual habits, loaded an open car with agents carrying sub-machine guns to escort the President to Arlington Cemetery for a memorial ceremony.

It was evidently true that the President was "the calmest man in the place" when, awakened by the shots, he peered out a window and saw dead and wounded police and attackers before the yellow-truck official residence.

"Get back, get back," a policeman shouted. Mr. Truman did, but Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, who hastened over from the White House across the street and half a block away, said he was cool and undisturbed.

He kept his date at Arlington half an hour later. His face was ghly drawn as he told a group gathered to honor the late Sir John Dill, British field marshal: "It is important to the peace of the world that peoples understand each other and have full faith in each other's sincerity."

 tioned the attempted assassination.

At one point, the President greeted Associated Press photographer Henry L. Griffin with a broad smile and then remarked that Griffin wouldn't have to worry about falling off a plane on this trip. Griffin was injured when he fell from the open door of a plane at the Kansas City airport last year while accompanying the President on one of his frequent trips.

Griffin retorted that "we can wait until this weekend for that," referring to the President's proposed flight to St. Louis for a political speech on Saturday.

The walk to the monument and back covered more than a mile of traffic-filled streets and parkways. It ended at the west entrance of the White House where the President stopped to tell newsmen goodbye before hurrying on to his office.

The sidewalk in front of the Blair House had been roped off since the gun battle in which one of the attackers was killed and the other wounded. Uniformed policemen stood at intervals along the rope. Newsmen were admitted to the enclosure by a secret serviceman who checked their credentials.

The party, including the President, ducked under the rope barrier at the east end of the block to start the walk.

Credit Controls Give Auto Dealers Big Selling Jobs

By DAVID J. WILKIE, AP Automotive Editor

DETROIT — (AP) — A stable selling job lies ahead of the motorcar retailers — especially those handling medium priced makes. That's the view of many industry analysts attempting to appraise the effect of the newest credit control. As they view the dealers' problems created by tighter credit a lot of buying that normally goes to the medium priced market will be transferred to the lower brackets because of the monthly payment stipulation.

One of the biggest crusades in automobile industry history is shaping up right now in the effort of dealer organizations to have the federal reserve board rescind or modify its most recent order. This cuts to 15 months the period in which car buyers must complete installment payments on their autos. Before the order was issued a couple of weeks ago payments were spread over 21 months.

Dealers everywhere have protested the restrictions as threatening to put them out of business. At the same time they have expressed little hope of early liberalization. The Federal Reserve Board has held the stricter limitation necessary to halt inflation.

So far the automobile manufacturers have made little or no comment for publication. However, they know that in the long run anything that affects sales also will affect production.

Cutting six months from the maturity payment period jumps the monthly installment on an average priced car from around $80 to more than $100 a month, plus carrying charges. Auto dealers say it will take thousands of potential car buyers out of the market.

Certainly for the dealers in the medium priced field it will mean greater competition for business in that car class.

It long has been agreed in automotive circles that anything affecting car prices affects a motorist's choice of car quality. In other words when a medium priced vehicle is difficult to get — or to pay for — there usually is a shift to lower priced vehicles.

But it also is true that many buyers in the lower priced field can be forced entirely out of the new car market by the same factors. The majority of car buyers, regardless of what price class they are in, usually buy the best quality vehicle they can afford.

Texas' Gen. Paul H. Streit Heads Washington Hospital

By TEK EASLEY

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Army's big medical center here, which includes Walter Reed Hospital, is headed by a Texan.

Maj. Gen. Paul H. Streit, born March 18, 1891 in Seguin, in addition to heading the medical center sometimes serves as acting surgeon general of the army. He is likely successor to that post, now held by Maj. Gen. R. W. Bliss. The latter now has reached the retirement age of 62, although he may remain on duty as he has served only about a year of the three-year tour usual to the assignment.

Streit started in the University of Texas in 1910 and finished at the university's medical school in Galveston in 1916. An eye-ear-nose-and-throat specialist, he took special training at the University of Bordeaux in France at the end of World War I, in which he had served as a lieutenant in the Army Medical Corps.

During the years between the two world wars he served at numerous military posts in this country and in the Philippines. From 1943 to 1945 he was the chief surgeon for the Central Pacific Base Command, and in 1946 was in charge of Brooke General Hospital at San Antonio.

Walter Reed Hospital, where he has been director since Jan. 15, 1949, is named after the Army general who conquered yellow fever during the Spanish-American war.

The 3000-bed hospital is eight miles from the downtown business district of the District of Columbia, and comprises 149 buildings, predominantly of red-brick colonial architecture. It is like a city, with library, bank, post office, radio station, greenhouses, gymnasium, barber shops, food store, weekly newspaper and other enterprises.

There you can see wounded and disabled of all ages. General John J. Pershing lived in a private suite of rooms there for ten years before his death. Recently a veteran of the Indian campaigns in the West died there at 98. There are quite a few World War I soldiers still being hospitalized, and of course hundreds from World War II. Within days of the outbreak of fighting in Korea, wounded from that conflict were being flown back here to receive the best treatment to be had anywhere in the world.

Lodge Declares U.S. Paying Major Portion of UN's Bill

By The Associated Press
Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, a member of the American delegation to the United Nations, puts his finger on a warm issue in challenging the inequality of membership dues in the UN under which the United States pays more than one-third the entire budget.

That is a subject which concerns the pocketbook of every citizen — and increasingly so. "Right now," said the senator in a radio broadcast, "the U. S. pays 40 percent of the UN budget, England pays 11.2 percent and Russia pays only 7 percent."

Mr. Lodge calls this a "judicious position" and he wants to see it changed. He says the original agreement was based on the ability of each country to pay, with war damages taken into account. But he points out that "the Soviet leaders have completely repaired the damages of war in their country" and so, he figures, they should pay a bigger share in the UN.

This rather spot-lights the recent report in UN circles about the huge cost America was likely to have to bear for Korean rehabilitation. The U. S. delegation was reported to have said Korean relief and rehabilitation would run to about $240,000,000 a year, according to revised estimates. (South Korean authorities put the annual amount at $500,000,000).

Some delegations are said to be concerned over the size of this figure. They say the program might run three years, and Uncle Sam might have to foot the entire bill.

That's an idea calculated to irk the American taxpayer considerably. He is patient and, we hope, fairly generous. Still, he has bills to meet at home, and sees no reason why he should pick up all the checks all the time.

The Soviets have built the world's biggest army — 4,000,000 men — and have equipped it with the most modern weapons. They have created a powerful submarine force. They are carrying on costly operations in many satellite countries. And they are waging a "cold" but expensive global war against the democracies.

On that basis it is to be presumed that Russia could and should pay a larger assessment in the UN. So should a lot of other members.

In Spite of Curbs, Earnings Rolling in at Record Peaks

stream of good news pours from business today as a flood of restrictions heads toward it.

Industrial production climbs to its all-time peak. But from Washington comes another flood of new controls, a further tightening of the brakes to slow down the business bandwagon, and a hint of worse to come.

But many in industry seem to feel that the President's support of an excess profits tax, and his mobilization agencies' clamping of more far-reaching curbs on some forms of civilian production, and further requisitioning of more war-essential raw materials, indicate a slowing down of business temporarily before the defense production spurt can start its booming again.

Here are the brakes Washington is applying, and here are the reports of the prosperity on which they are being applied:

The National Production Authority Friday night banned construction of any new buildings intended for amusement or recreation.

But home builders rushed to get loan requests in before the Oct. 12 deadline for exemption from higher down payments. Some look for a fall pick-up in building, which would push the 1950 total 40 percent ahead of 1949.

NPA is tightening steel regulations.

NPA is ready to cut back, by 20 to 30 percent, civilian use of copper, aluminum and nickel, and put cobalt on a for-defense-use-only basis. Television and radio set makers will be hard hit. So will makers of refrigerators, washers, vacuum cleaners.

The Office of Rubber Reserve wants alcohol for making synthetic rubber. The distillers are offering 10 million gallons by Jan. 1, and wondering how they'll rearrange their whiskey product.

On the bright side are these items — all very bright:

The Federal Reserve Board estimates that industrial production this month will beat even September's record. The board's index went to 211 last month. The previous peak had been 195 in the fall of 1948. The board sets the 1935-39 industrial production average at 100.

General Motors' sales and earnings hit new peaks. In the first nine months of the year, the motor giant cleared $7.89 a share, against $5.60 a year ago.

Bethlehem steel reports record earnings for the first nine months at $5.94 a share, compared with the previous record last year of $5.14.

Big profit statements continue to pour in from numerous other companies. And the list of extra dividends, increased dividends and stock split-ups runs to record proportions.

INVENTOR
Berliner patented the revolutionary phonograph which featured disc records in 1895, and invented the modern low-cost method of pressing large quantities of discs from matrices.

New Instrument Warns Pilot When Oxygen Getting Low

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD
Associated Press Staff
Randolph Field, San Antonio, has developed a device which uses a high-altitude pilot's ear to give warning when his body is running out of oxygen.

It's called the photoelectric hypoxia warning device and works on the principle that a change in the oxygen content of your blood changes the color of the blood.

Unconsciousness or death from lack of oxygen is a treacherous danger that always rides with the high altitude pilot. The body itself gives no warning. Let something go wrong with oxygen equipment, and the unfortunate pilot slips off into a blackout.

Here's how the device works: A photoelectric cell is built into the pilot's helmet, and is attached to the translucent shell of his ear. The cell is also connected with a red light on the instrument panel of the aircraft. So long as the pilot obtains sufficient oxygen his blood remains bright red through which light passes easily. But when his oxygen supply is reduced—either through excessive altitude or by failure of oxygen equipment, his blood changes to dark red through which less light passes. The photoelectric cell detects the change and the red light flashes on the instrument panel.

The warning comes in time to allow the flyer to take corrective measures.

Even a reduction in oxygen slight enough not to be really dangerous can greatly impair a pilot's efficiency. The device can warn of such slight reductions, too.

Dr. Kurt Kramer, a research physiologist at Randolph's School of Aviation Medicine, perfected the new instrument. He returned to Germany a few months ago to take the chair of physiology at the University of Marburg.

Chief States No Place for Vice in Pampa

Prostitutes will not have a place to stay in Pampa, according to Chief John Wilkinson, of the Pampa Police Dept.

"We only have two or three places in town where prostitutes can stay, and we have given the management of these places proper and full warning that if they will not be tolerated," said Wilkinson.

The statement was a direct result of Amarillo's recent vice purge, where Amarillo police were responsible for the closing of several "houses" of ill repute.

Officers thought that the women would continue their trade in outlying towns in the Panhandle, including Pampa and Borger, until the heat was off in Amarillo.

According to underworld sources, illicit women will be unable to "operate" in Amarillo for about two weeks.

The Pampa Police Dept. has no intention of letting the women land in this city, however, as the Chief made it clear that such women will be dealt with harshly.

In Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA)—Behind the screen: Sidney Blackmer, back before the cameras in Columbia's "The Hero," tells about the time he played Josephus Daniels in Fox's production of "Wilson."

The late cabinet member was a personal friend of Sidney's and prided himself on a stomach as flat as Gary Cooper's.

When Blackmer reported to the studio as a trim Josephus Daniels, Darryl Zanuck threw up his hands and issued orders that the celluloid Josephus would have to sport a bay window. Padding was placed around Blackmer's middle and the cameras began to roll.

The same evening Blackmer sent this message to Daniels: "When you see yourself in 'Wilson,' please remember that the stomach is neither yours nor mine."

WHO'S UP FRONT
It happened in the U. I. publicity unit room when word reached the press agent that Bill Mauldin, whose "Up Front with Mauldin" had been purchased by the studio, was turning actor in MGM's "Red Badge of Courage."

"You know," said one of the press agents, "this Mauldin fellow might turn out to be a great actor. What happens to the studio's plans to star Audie Murphy in 'Up Front with Mauldin'?"

"Let's change the whole thing around," said another publicity man. "Let's call it 'Bill Mauldin in 'Up Front with Audie Murphy.'"

As a fur designer's annual "look-a-like" show in Hollywood, Elio Jensen, the pretty studio designer, was telling a group of fashion reporters her ideas of next year's fashions for movie queens.

"I think," said Elio, "that skirts will be higher and that movie stars will have legs again. I also think that hair will be longer."

"Holy Toledo!" screamed Joan Davis. "You mean we're going to have longer hair on movie stars' legs?"

Alan Dale, one-time film actor and now proprietor of Hollywood's picturesque Villa Nova, recalls the time that the late John Barrymore accompanied him to a restaurant and two maids, throwing the restaurant chefs and waiters into a tizzy.

Pampa Student Has Solo in Choir Show

Heleen Blocker, Pampa, will be featured as soprano soloist when the Frank Phillips College A Cappella Choir of Borger sings here Nov. 15.

Miss Blocker was graduated from Pampa High School last spring, where she was a member of the high school choir and set, the Theatopian Society and the Tri-Hi-Y.

For about eight months last year, Miss Blocker had a 15-minute program on radio station KPDN.

Parent-Teacher Unit Is Added

With more units being added to the Parent-Teacher Assn. City Council, the organization has changed its name to Gray County Area Council of P.T.A.

The council was to meet in the junior high school auditorium today at 2 p.m.

Students of Horace Mann Elementary School were to have charge of the program, including a musical selection by six members of the school chorus directed by Mrs. John Branham.

Speaker of the afternoon was to be Miss Josephine Thomas, principal of Horace Mann, with "Teamwork Between Parents and Teachers" as her subject.

Glass-Eating Cook Feeds Brave Group

CAMP COOKE, Calif. — Brave soldiers, indeed, are those of the 40th Infantry Division at Camp Cooke.

They eat Sgt. Clifford G. Sargent's cooking. In truth and justice to Sgt. Sargent it must be said that he hasn't lost a soldier yet.

But none of the sergeant's culinary clientele has been served his favorite diet—electric light globes and razor blades.

That's what Sgt. Sargent used to eat when he was a "human ostrich" with a carnival show. He says he started out on the tankard trail in Clovis, N. M., 12 years ago, and that he got into condition for his digestive feats by working as a wild man, a fire eater, and by sleeping under a 250-pound weight on a bed of nails.

"Shucks, 'twain't nuthin' any-red-blooded wild man wouldn't do," the sergeant says. "Eating fire is easy, if you know how. But there isn't any trickery in my eating razor blades and glass."

Sargent chewed his way around the South Pacific in the last war, eating Army and Navy chandeliers, "but of course I got in some orthodox cooking in the Navy, too."

Mustard is related to cabbage, cauliflower and turnip.

Nominating Body Set by API in Meeting Tuesday

The American Petroleum Institute held a board of director's meeting at the Schneider Hotel Tuesday.

A nominating committee was named to select officers for the coming year, and plans were made for the annual installation dinner to be held at the Bunavista Catereria Dec. 5.

Member of the nominating committee will be Dallas Bowsher, Dan Gribbon, and Ralph O'Neil.

Tickets to the installation dinner will be available to members of the API from members of the advisory board.

Plans were also made for the next fall meeting to be held in the Palm Room Nov. 21.

It was proposed that Curtis Douglas give a talk on the "tidal-lands" issue, and it was agreed.

Max Harbison, chairman of the board, presided at the meeting.

PETRIFIED TREES
Some of the marble-hard logs in the petrified forest of northeastern Arizona are 250 feet in length. The forest contains thousands of acres of petrified trees strewn over the ground.

20-30 Club Shown Football Picture

Highlight of the weekly meeting of the Pampa 20-30 Club Tuesday night, was a movie, "Football Parade of 1949," which was presented by Joe Tooley, local pharmacist. He presented two other films, Abbott and Costello and a cartoon.

Ross Buzzard, president, urged members to cooperate fully in the current membership drive. The objective is for each member to bring in one new member for each week of the drive.

The club will send representatives to the annual meeting of the 20-30 Club in Dallas, Texas, Dec. 1-3.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

Don't Forget Your Partner

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

Like almost every one else on Canasta, I am a self-confessed loner. This concentration on myself has become greatly increased because there is a large frozen discard pile.

In this case the average canasta player is so busy worrying about how he can play safe and winning about how he can get the discard pile that he forgets entirely about the fact that his partner gives away the pile it will cost him just as much as if he gives it away himself.

In actual play when a big pack is given away the chances are that the partner of the man giving it away is partly to blame and maybe entirely to blame.

For instance, here's a case where I blame the partner completely.

Both sides needed fifty and the pack was frozen from the start. Nobody had melded at all and during the course of the play player A had discarded five sevens. Player B sitting to A's right held two of the three remaining sevens but also had plenty of other safe discards so he was holding on to his pair of sevens like a cat to its life. He thought the last seven might be thrown to him.

This was a vain hope. A partner who was discarding to B had discarded a couple of tens after the hand was well along and it was a cinch to figure out that he still had two or maybe even three tens left in his hand. His last couple of discards had been a black three and a wild card and it was evident that he was under no pressure at all. Hence player B should have realized that he had no chance to get the pack and should have tried to discard to help out his partner.

He had a particularly simple way to help his partner. He should have discarded one of his sevens. This discard would have been completely safe. But, of course, it never occurred to B. He had other safe discards and wanted to save his sevens as a chance to get the discard pile.

Now let us see what finally happened. Player B's unfortunate partner had to make his last discard. He held one seven and could have discarded it on the theory that five sevens had already been thrown and that the odds were against the man in back of him holding both remaining sevens.

However, he knew that the man in front of him did not hold any sevens. The play had developed in such fashion that if the man discarded to him still held a seven he would have thrown it. Therefore the two remaining sevens were almost surely marked with the man to his left and with his partner.

He decided against throwing the seven and instead chose to throw one of the four kinds that he held. It was a good try but the man to his left held two kings and a wild card. Bingo.

Identified by the picture, the 16-year-old boy was arrested while serving as "altar boy" in another wedding.

Nation Begins Process of Smoking Out Its Communists

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The government machinery to smoke out Communists — under the new anti-Communist law — is grinding away.

But some of it is going to have to grind pretty slowly. And it will be some time before the smoke gets very thick.

Under one part of the law the government is supposed to round up Communists who are alien and deport them. That's been started.

But the slow part of the law covers a different point: making Communist action and Communist-front outfits register with the government.

Congress passed the law before it went home in September. And the law said Communist action and front organizations would have to register as such within 30 days after the law went into effect.

Those 30 days were up last week. No one seriously expected the two groups to register and for a simple reason. The law says:

A Communist action outfit is run by Moscow and secretly plots the overthrow of this government while a Communist front is simply a tool of a Communist action organization.

It seemed hardly likely that the Communist Party, for instance, would voluntarily step up and admit it was a Communist-action organization, under the meaning of the law.

And a Communist front could hardly be expected to admit it was one, since the purpose of a front is to do the Communist Party's work while concealing that purpose.

The government would have to do the proving. Knowing that after the 30 days were up and neither kind of outfit had registered, the attorney general had to take the next step:

He'd have to file a complaint with a brand new government agency — the Subversive Activities Control Board — that such an organization was a Communist action or front group.

President Truman created this five-man board last week, with Seth W. Richardson, a Republican, as chairman. Richardson had been chairman of the government's Loyalty Review Board, which passed on the loyalty of government workers.

It's the job of the board to take up the attorney general's complaint. But this amounts to what is practically a court trial: witnesses, evidence, cross examination of witnesses.

Say the board held the Communist Party to be an action group. The party then could appeal through the U.S. courts all the way up to the U.S. Supreme Court to overthrow the board's ruling.

All this will take time, much time, maybe two to four years before the Supreme Court finally hands down a decision. So far, Attorney General McGrath has made no complaint to the board.

There hasn't been time for that yet. Besides, in its haste to get out of town after passing the law, Congress neglected to vote any money for the board.

So at this moment the board has no office, no definite staff, and no money. It will be able to find office space but Richardson said in a statement issued over the weekend:

"Proper approvals from the Bureau of the Budget, followed by congressional approval, and the passage of the proper appropriation (money) will be necessary in order to permit the board to function under the act."

Congress won't be back till mid-November, at the earliest. Meanwhile, to avoid delay where it can, the board will meet Wednesday. After that the attorney general can start making his complaints.

When the board finally gets bedded down, the probably long-drawn out Communist action group trials can start.

Canadian Writers Need More Emotion

WINNIPEG — (AP) — Canadian authors do not express enough emotion in their stories, says Mrs. Margaret Lee, herself a writer and secretary of the Manitoba branch of the Canadian Authors Association.

Mrs. Lee, who writes under the pen-name Madge Ford, attributes this failing to a tendency toward the English style.

"Most Canadians sell their good manuscripts to American markets and they should write accordingly. Americans have a freer manner of expression," she says.

YOU CAN'T EAT DOLLARS

By THURMAN HENNING—Director of Research Southern States Industrial Council, Nashville, Tennessee.

Herd Building Said Cause for Shortage

WASHINGTON — (AP) — U. S. prosperity still produces a strong demand for beef. But the supply has not kept up with the demand, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Main cause, the department says, is the fact that it takes a long time to build up a breeding herd to produce more beef. Many growers are now building up their herds. To do they must hold back calves that might be sold for beef to add to those herds. Thus, their attempts to get more beef actually reduce the supply.

The department thinks it will be many months before supplies in the United States are adequate.

Inflation is an insidious disease. It slowly eats into the vitals of a nation and, usually, by the time the nation realizes it is inflicted it is too late to effect a cure.

Inflation is all the more insidious because in its early stages it is pleasant and stimulating. It makes money more plentiful—and the average person feels prosperous in proportion to the number of dollars he has in his pocket; he gives very little thought to what the dollars will buy. That comes later.

There is another fact about inflation we should take note of—and that is that inflation is a fault of leadership. Inflation is not demanded by the people; inflation is permitted by the leaders. The people may accept it without much question, may even accept it gladly, but it is only prompted and allowed by unprincipled leaders whose real responsibility in their position as leaders is to prevent it.

And there is one thing certain about inflation—it destroys the system which permits it. There have been numerous examples throughout history. We can even point to recent examples. Inflation in Germany wound up in dictatorship; inflation in China wound up in Communism.

Now, this is not an abstract discussion unrelated to life in these United States. We are facing inflation right here in our own country. It has proceeded and will perhaps proceed more slowly; here than it ordinarily would due to the great accumulated resources of our country and due to our enormous productive capacity. But if we continue the trend we have been following we can be just as certain as death and taxes that inflation will destroy our own economy. And we can be quite sure that when our economy is destroyed, our traditional form of government will go along with it.

All this has come about because the leadership of this nation in recent years has not measured up to its responsibility. Nor is this a question of politics; it is much bigger than politics. It so happens that this condition has developed under a Democratic administration. It would have been just as bad under a Republican administration. In fact, the leadership of the Republican Party cannot deny a measure of responsibility for the present situation; this leadership has at least committed the sin of omission in not more actively defending the principles which make for a sound economy. It has been too easy for politicians in both parties in recent years to advocate the "tax and tax and spend and spend and promise and promise" policy. They have found it

Protective Vaccine Against Gas Gangrene Is Disclosed

By FRANK CAREY ST. LOUIS (AP) — Hope has been offered for the development of a protective vaccine against gas gangrene, an always-feared complication of war wounds.

Gas gangrene is a wound infection caused by germs that live in soil. Armies fear it because of the possibility of the wounded being contaminated where they fall.

A Canadian doctor told the American Public Health Association that statistics for World War II show that no marked progress has been achieved since 1918 in the specific treatment of gas gangrene in war wounds despite the use of such drugs as the sulfas and penicillin.

And, said Dr. Victorien Frestre of the University of Montreal, "All less has been accomplished in the way of preventive immunization."

But he declared "new hope" for a vaccine is offered by a substance recently found in cultures of "clostridium perfringens" — the principal germ involved in gas gangrene.

He calls it the "bursting factor" because he believes it to be the activating agent that causes toxin, or poison, from the germ to produce infection.

And yet, said the doctor, this separate factor in itself does not have the poisonous properties of toxin. Also, it appears to set up immunity to the germ's action when it is injected into experimental animals.

In tests with guinea pigs, he related, vaccinated animals all survived "challenge" doses of gas gangrene germs.

In contrast, 80 percent of one group of unvaccinated animals were killed, and 88 percent of another group.

In another report, Dr. A. F. Woodburne, Denver, Colo., skin specialist, told of a new wart treatment.

It involves use of liquid nitrogen, which "boils" when it is placed on the wart — producing a temperature of 180 degrees below zero as it changes from a liquid to a gas.

Thus, said Dr. Woodburne, the wart is frozen, and falls off in from one to two weeks.

The doctor said the nitrogen treatment "doesn't leave a scar or a raw open area, as is usually the case with such treatments as X-ray, dry ice, acetic acid and other acids."

Texas Turkeys on Way; No Higher Prices Expected

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD
Associated Press Staff
Thanksgiving turkeys are on their way to Texas markets and you'll probably pay no more for yours than last year. The state's turkey crop this year will be almost as big as the 1948 record year. Texas housewives will pay 60 to 80 cents per pound for small dressed hens, an official of the southwestern branch of the Department of Agriculture estimated. "Big chain stores will set the actual price-pace," he added. "They always do."

Larger turkeys will be 10 cents per pound cheaper than the hens and will go mainly to hotels and restaurants. Comparatively few housewives want 20 to 25-pound birds. Matter of fact, half-turkeys and cut-up pieces of turkey are getting increasingly popular.

The estimated turkey crop this year is 4,478,000. The national estimate is a record: 44,550,000 birds. Last year's Texas production was 4,225,000 turkeys and average yearly production (1937-1948) was 4,031,000. In 1945 Texas established a record with 4,701,000.

Every Texas county raises turkeys. Production is really big in Southwest Texas; Central Texas, Northeast Texas; and West Texas — as far north as the Lubbock and Plainview areas.

At big turkey markets, Dallas and Fort Worth, prices to raisers are now quoted at from 25 to 27 cents per pound for young toms and from 35 to 37 cents per pound for young hens.

C. M. Evans, southwestern marketing specialist for the Commodity Credit Corp. and a big turkey raiser himself, told us: "These prices don't always hold when a farmer delivers his birds. Farmers are too inclined to bring their turkeys to market and say: 'I've got some turkeys here — what'll you give for 'em?' So he sometimes loses by taking that attitude instead of coming right out and stating the price he will take for them."

"On the other hand, you have the farmer who'll bring undeveloped turkeys with pinfeathers to market and expect to get full price for them."

Evans also feels that too few farmers keep up with actual turkey quotations. "They go to the nearest processor who sometimes says: 'I already have more turkeys than I can handle but I'll do you the favor of taking them off your hands for 18 cents a pound.'"

Your Thanksgiving turkey, which'll reach processors this month, probably was hatched in May. Your Christmas turkey came along in June. No major outbreak of turkey diseases have plagued Texas growers this year, Evans said. Weather has been fine, too. Happy eating.

YOU and the SERVICE

By DOUGLAS L. BROWN
NEA Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) —
Q. I was in the Navy during World War II. Since getting out I have been with the Army organized reserve. If I get a call to active duty can I go into the Navy? What do you suggest that I do?
A. If you get a call to active duty you'll go in the Army, period. The Army does not maintain its organized reserve corps to supply men to the Navy. I suggest that when you finish your active duty again, you make up your mind what service you would like to get into in case of another emergency, and join its reserve corps.
Q. My family and teachers have always said I was the nervous delicate type. I haven't had a draft notice yet but I expect one soon. Suppose the doctors ignore my condition and I have to go into the service. Who will take care of me in case I am threatened with a collapse?
A. They have great big sergeants in the Army just to look after the nervous delicate types. You can locate him immediately by asking for the "top kick."

HE CAME TO KILL

by ADELINE McELFRESH
Copyright 1950 by MFA Series, Inc.

THE STORY: After announcing that she is changing her will, which calls on her nephews Peter and Jasper who were to share the estate, Aunt Maggie Thorne tells her grandniece Leona that she is afraid. She entrusts the will, as yet unsigned, to Leona and sends her for the sheriff. As Leona starts down the stairs, someone seizes her from behind and chokes her into unconsciousness. When she is revived, she finds Peter and Jasper. Jasper's wife, Maggie, tells her they fell down the stairs, and someone here they have just discovered slain. "You must have found it very easy to smother a helpless old woman," Peter says.

LOOKING at Peter and Sondra, Leona wondered if they were in this thing alone, or if Jasper also knew. Or if Jasper had killed Miss Maggie and his wife and his brother were covering up for him. . . . But it was Peter whom Miss Maggie had feared most. It was Peter against whom Miss Agatha had wanted her door locked.

"Is Miss Agatha all right?" "Certainly," Sondra snatched. "It wasn't her will."

No, Leona thought. Also it wasn't Miss Agatha who had all the money, whom they all hated because she had plans of her own for her disposal. Agatha lived on her sister's generosity and a small annuity; it was Miss Maggie, the eldest, who kept the Thorne family purse strings tied in a hard knot. Leona had thought her pretty well insured to insults after seven months in the same household with Jasper and Sondra, but even their bitterness had not prepared her for being accused of murder. Even at their worst they had not looked at her as Peter looked at her now—daring her to prove herself innocent.

Leona, he said—"Mart remembered his status; he continued officially. "What goes, M is s Thorne!"

"Thanks, we'll leave it—for the time being," he added hastily. "I never trust snap judgment, especially when it's somebody else's."

JASPER THORNE started for the stairs. Zimbransky and his aide were at his heels. The sheriff trudged off, too. Sondra followed him.

After the first few steps, though, she paused, looked back. "Peter! Her voice shook. "Peter, I—I'm faint."

Peter Thorne was at her side in a flash—too swiftly, Leona told herself, for mere brotherly interest. She looked up at Mart Preston.

"I suppose you're to question me?" Mart's grin was crooked, worried, far from confident as he took his eyes reluctantly from the pair going slowly up the wide stairs. Peter's arm was around Sondra, and she was leaning on him. "Just one," he said. "Or maybe two. First—did you?"

the car in which Jasper had gone for help.

"Jasper found it when he started after Clem," Mart Preston explained. "He left it right there—didn't even touch it. He added hopefully, "Of course there won't be fingerprints."

It was a straw. Leona snatched at it.

"Then you don't think I'm lying to you?"

Deputy Preston shook his head. "I don't," he said. "But Clem, now—"

The silence was sudden and terrible. "Anyone could have packed it," Leona half-whispered, referring to the pigskin bag that had been her father's going-away gift. "Why, they didn't get nearly all my things and—"

"There was no time for that!" Preston cut in. "Besides, if he—or she—wanted to make you look guilty, he wouldn't dare take all your things. He would have taken only a few, so your suggested flight would not be discovered until enough time had passed to make you look more guilty than ever."

Leona shivered. He made it sound so right. "Don't you see," Mart stopped, as though he realized that his hands on her shoulders, his eyes looking deep into hers, were not the proper officer-suspect relationship. His hands dropped to his sides, and became fists. "Somebody is trying to frame you!"

LEONA was surprised that she could smile and even more astounded that the cold lump in the pit of her stomach was giving way to warmth.

"Mart?" "You think it's Peter, don't you?"

Leona ignored him. "Mart," she said again, "if Peter and Sondra were in the living room together, then that makes it Jasper, doesn't it?"

"Does it?" came the hard, dry voice from behind them.

Leona felt her heart cut up in her breast as Jasper Thorne came out of the darkness toward them.

The suitcase was hers. Sick with fear, Leona turned away from

DOG NOTES

by PETER BOGGS

THIS DOG SWIM?

I was sitting on the beach with a friend of mine this past summer making arrangements to breed his Chesapeake Bay retriever with one of mine. He told me about how his son had his dog out sword-fishing that day and I remarked that it seemed to me it was blowing too hard for any good fishing. That night my breeding plans were changed. A phone call informed me my friend's dog had fallen overboard and was lost about ten miles off Martha's Vineyard.

Four days later my friend called me again and said his dog had just walked into his house. What had happened no one knew exactly; one could only guess. This much we did know: the dog had fallen overboard at least ten miles from the nearest shore. Did he first swim to the island of Martha's Vineyard and rest there and then swim to the mainland? Or was the animal picked up by the swam in the choppy seas by a passing fishing boat and brought to shore. I doubt the latter as he was wearing a collar with his owner's name and telephone number on it, and a rescuing fisherman would surely have phoned the animal's owner of his rescue.

The more I checked into this episode, the more convinced I was that this dog swam at least ten miles through choppy seas, perhaps to the island of Martha's Vineyard, but I even doubt that since no record of anyone seeing such a dog there was reported. My guess is that the tidal currents carried him around the island and that the dog came ashore on the mainland before making his way back home.

CARROT JUICE

There seems to be a fad of sprinkling grated raw carrots in dog's food dishes. Of late I have had a number of letters telling me of good results, etc. from this practice. Some dog owners even go so far as to press the juice from carrots and then pour the liquid into their dog's food. All this is nothing new. For years thousands of dog men have been mixing carrots with their dog's food. Carrots, like all vegetables that grow underground (with the exception of potatoes), are an excellent addition to any dog's diet. In fact, several kinds of vegetables, green and otherwise, mixed with regular rations, are an ideal addition to a

"Somehow This Dog Swam Over 10 Miles to Shore."

WHEN EARS NEED CLEANING

If your dog scratches at his ears or keeps shaking his head it doesn't necessarily mean that he has cancer of the ear. Yet these are the usual symptoms of this ear disease. Dirt in a dog's ear will often make the animal act in this manner. I certainly don't recommend continual probing in your dog's ears but if you do notice these symptoms you may find they need only to be cleaned to correct the discomfort he is suffering. But remember that unless dirt has accumulated in the ears, it is wise to leave them alone. An inexperienced person can cause permanent injury to the animal.

If you think it necessary to clean dirt from your pet's ears, make a swab of sterilized cotton and moisten it with medicated alcohol. Use this to clean the outer ear canal. Be careful not to probe deeply. After a thorough cleaning, put a pinch or two of dry boric acid in each ear.

FINES WERE PAID IN DOGS

Reading through some old English law books I ran across an interesting procedure that was commonplace in the courts of England many years ago. In the days of Henry II a high value was placed on dogs in England and any Englishman who ran

EATING HABITS

Are you worried because your dog gulps down his food? If so, don't because it is possible for a dog to gulp his food down in almost one mouthful without serious effects. A dog's digestive system is such that food can be taken into its stomach quickly and in large amounts without ill effects. Many such eating habits go back to when the dog was a puppy in a pen with his sisters and brothers and the one who could eat the fastest got the most to eat.

Naturally it is better to have your dog eat slowly. Here is a suggestion to slow down a fast eater. Give the animal a hard, dry dog biscuit just before his main meal. This will take off, as it were, the edge of his appetite and so, when his regular meal is given, it will be consumed more moderately. However, again, let me assure you not to worry

New Officer Brings Police Total to 21

THE QUESTION BOX

Question: Does it harm our seven-week-old collie pup to give it a bath every week?—R. F.

Answer: I don't advise giving any dog a bath oftener than once every month or two. A daily brushing will make a bath necessary only two or three times yearly.

Question: Which do you consider the easiest to train for bird work—a setter or a Pointer?—F. G. B.

Answer: Maybe I am partial but I have found over the years that a Pointer is easier. Yet once taught a setter seldom forgets his lessons.

Refinery Workers Are Paid High Sept. Checks

AUSTIN — (AP) — Refinery workers averaged $79.57 a week in September to earn the highest checks in Texas industry. Their average jumped $9.61 per week over August, largely because of overtime pay, the Texas Employment Commission reported.

The refinery workers labored an average of 41.8 hours per week, 4.7 hours more than the previous month's level.

Factory workers earned $1.90 per week more, receiving checks for $59.38. However, five industries in the factory group suffered reductions. Pay of fabricated metal products employes dropped an average of $1.05 per week from the August level to $59.99.

Workers manufacturing machinery (except electrical) received an average $66.64 per week, down $1.04. Small cuts were sustained by transportation equipment, textile mill products, and printing and publishing workers.

The oil from the seeds of black mustard is more pungent than that from the white variety.

DRESS FOR A WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Friend:
I haven't had much experience with weddings. As a matter of fact I have only attended one in my life and that was a very simple one.

Now I have been asked by a friend of my mother to assist at the wedding reception of her daughter. I don't know the girl very well but our mothers were good friends long ago and they seem to want me to take part in the wedding.

Mother says to write you and ask you to discuss what would be correct for me to wear. I don't have any evening clothes and as we are pretty poor I hate to buy something just good for the one occasion. On the other hand I probably will need a good wool dress this winter and I wonder if that would be suitable for the wedding. I really don't have the money to buy a dress.

What should I do?
Sincerely,
Grace Friend

Usually the choice of costume for those who assist at wedding receptions is determined by the bride.

A wool dress could be all right if the wedding is most informal and the bride is wearing a suit for example.

On the other hand if she and her attendants are in long dresses she might want those who assist to dress in the same way.

The best thing for you to do is to consult the bride-elect as to what she wants you to wear.

Every Writer Should Have Quaint Parents; Basis for Best Seller

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Anyone who wants to be an author of books these days better see to it that he has funny, endearing and slightly muddled parents. I have been making a survey of the publishers' lists, and I find that there are only about three types of books being published, and that it is much easier to be an author if you first make your mark as any thing but a professional writer.

There are, of course, the "I-did-it" books written by general readers who met FDR more than once. These are rather thoughtless, most of them, written by people who lived stimulating lives in the middle of important events.

I would love to write a book, but I have written my own life and find that General Schmeck never confided in me about his plan for invading the Dardanelles; that never got to Moscow, and the only time I ever saw Mr. Roosevelt he was riding down the Bronx River Parkway in a motor car and I was chilly.

There are the historical novels, that is a crowded field, because all the professional writers want to get their books published are forced into it. They used to just invent heroes and heroines for historical novels, pick a period of history like the days of Queen Elizabeth, and make up a story. Nowadays, however, they are picking historical characters, doing research on people and periods and taking just a few discreet liberties in order to make a plot and brighten up a page with some dialogue. Otherwise you couldn't tell a historical novel from a history book. This takes a lot of work. I know one author who spent three years just studying before he sat down at his typewriter.

The easiest way to become an author, provided you're blessed with considerate parents, is to write a memoir of your own childhood. There must have been a time, around 1900 to 1912, when all parents were characters. Father was pompous and always got himself into unbelievable messes which gay, scatter-brained mother pulled him out of. The narrator, if a boy, is mischievous. If a girl, she is scrawny, unattractive and left-footed according to her own modest writings but there are indications she's really pretty cute at that.

Few professional writers were blessed with these pattern-type parents. It's these writing amateurs, and many of them are lucky enough to get perfect memoir-type sisters and brothers, too.

This isn't going to help me a bit, because I'm an only child, and my parents never did anything very amusing. Thought for awhile I had the basis of a good book in a great-uncle. There was a family story about how she attended the Pan-American Exposition in her bed-room slippers. I tracked this story down, however, and found out that she had gotten hives from eating lobster and that her feet had swollen so she couldn't get her shoes on. Obviously, you can't build a whole memoir on a story like that. All I can remember of my own childhood that was out of the ordinary was a perpetual series of head-colds.

I suppose, under the current literary set-up, the people I read by should be pitying are the be-nighted book critics. They are a hired, presumably, for their ability to weigh literary content, judge

Jo Ann Rountree Becomes Bride of Bill Dean Janes

SAMFORDWOOD — (Special) — Miss Jo Ann Rountree, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rountree of Lurie, became the bride of Bill Dean Janes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dodson Janes of Wellington, on Oct. 15.

Wedding vows were exchanged as the couple stood before an improvised altar with a background of white gladiolus and candelabra in the home of the bride's parents, with the Rev. Clarence W. Harrison of Altus, Okla., reading the double-ring ceremony.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Pete Melton, sister of the bride. Her dress was of pink wool jersey and she wore a white carnation corsage.

Misses Betty Lewis and Anna Jane Griffiths of Sweetwater were bridesmaids, and Earl Janes of Wellington served his brother as best man. The candle-lighters were Billy Higgins and Gene Harrison, and Jo Lynn Melton and Janice Rountree, niece and sister of the bride, were flower girls.

Miss Rountree was given in marriage by her father and was dressed in a street length royal blue velvet with matching accessories and carried a bouquet of tulle and roses.

Miss Helen Ann Payne of Farwell furnished music. A reception followed. A tiered wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and groom, centered the serving table, which was covered with a pale green cloth with streamers of white and yellow chrysanthemums extending to the corners. The table also bore an arrangement of white and yellow chrysanthemums flanked by tall tapers tied with clusters of wedding bells.

The reception was presided over by Miss Griffiths and Mrs. Donald Decker, and Miss Betty Price of Canyon received the names of the guests.

But when all these people come along telling the real, inside dope of great historical episodes, critic can fool around with split infinitives and story lines. He has to bustle out and bone up on tactics of Alexander the Great, Marxian philosophy of world conquest, or various versions of the story of Mr. Roosevelt and how he picked Truman for a running mate.

Ship Quick Saucepan Cookies

QUICK SAUCEPAN COOKIES will cheer up boys in the service or away at college. They are easy to make and easy to ship.

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Easy to make, easy to ship, these cookies are ideal for sending to the children at college or the boys in the service.

Only one saucepan is needed to mix all the ingredients. The cookies are the old-fashioned kind studded with whole morsels of semi-sweet chocolate and nuts.

They are baked in one large shallow pan, can be cut in to squares exactly the size to fit the box chosen for mailing. As a variation, they can be cut into finger-size strips to serve at tea-time to the folks at home.

To pack cookies for mailing, cut a long strip of cardboard to make a divider the length of the box. Then pack one stack of cookies and cut a small piece of cardboard to divide that stack from the adjoining one. These cookies will ship well both because of their texture and the tight, efficient fashion in which they are packed.

Two and three-quarter cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup shortening, 2-4 cups (1 pound) brown sugar, 3 eggs, 1 cup chopped nuts, 1 package semi-sweet chocolate.

Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Melt shortening in a large saucepan (2 1/2 to 3 quarts). Stir in the brown sugar and allow to cool slightly. Beat in eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add flour mixture, chopped nuts and semi-sweet chocolate. Blend well.

Turn into greased pan (10 1/2 inches by 15 1/2 inches by 2 1/2 inches). Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 25 to 30 minutes. When almost cool, cut into desired size squares or strips.

DEMOCRATS Your Vote Will Be Counted for BEN GUILL FOR CONGRESS

Don't believe anybody who tells you that if you participated in the Democratic primaries you can't vote to re-elect Ben Guill. Your Ballot for Ben Guill will NOT be thrown out. It cannot legally be thrown out.

The Supreme Court of the State of Texas has repeatedly held that the so-called Democratic pledge is not binding in any way. Here is what the Supreme Court has said:

"One who has taken the statutory pledge is legally free to vote as he chooses in the General Election."

—16 Tex. Jur., "Elections," Sec. 57

"In Key v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 383, 218 SW 479, 221 SW 880, it was declared that the qualified elector who participated in a primary and took the statutory pledge was free to vote as he chose in the General Election."

—Love v. Wilcox, Supreme Court of Tex., 28 SW (2d) 515.

That is the legal status of the pledge. These decisions mean you can vote for the man of your choice in the General Election on Tuesday, Nov. 7

What Do Democratic Party Leaders Say?

What do Democratic Party leaders say? Only last July the Chairman of the DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE said officially that every man has the right to vote for the candidate of his choice regardless of party labels.

BEN GUILL Says

"It's about time the political parties started pledging THEIR support to the people, instead of demanding that the people sign pledges that they will support THEM.

"In times like these we should not ask a man if he is a Republican or a Democrat — we should ask only if he is a GOOD AMERICAN. We have no place now for partisan politics or even bi-partisan politics. We have a place only for NON-PARTISAN AMERICANISM."

Mustangs, Longhorns Grid Camps Confident of Victory Saturday

PAGE 14 PAMPA NEWS, THURSDAY NOV. 2, 1950

SPECK SPECULATES

By SPECK REYNOLDS

The Fighting Harvesters put their seven non-conference victories in the closet and got down to some rough work Wednesday afternoon. Coach Tom Tippa gave the boys a two-day rest, and the gridsters got down to serious business in Wednesday's drills.

Pampa will start playing for blue chips a week from Saturday. The Fighting Harvesters will tangle with the Amarillo Sandies, who have dropped four of seven games this year. The Sandies have been an up and down ball club this season, and they should be primed for the Pampans Saturday Nov. 11, in Amarillo Stadium.

If you could believe what you read, the Harvesters will take the District I-AA Conference, nail the Coyotes in bi-district and then lose to Odessa. Buddy that's cutting the corners sharp. Everyone in the conference will be laying for the Harvesters, and they'll have to be at their best when they go up against the Sandies.

Football fans want to see some good games this week, they can watch the Lefors-Wellington game at Lefors Friday night, or travel over to Shamrock and see the McLean-Shamrock contest. Both games should satisfy any football fan.

The Bauer sisters, Alice and Marlene, will meet Morris Willhams, Jr., and Pat Gardner in a golf match at the Plainview Country Club course Sunday.

Minor leagues blame radio for the 8,000,000 decline in baseball attendance in 1950. Could be that fans aren't satisfied with the performance of the minor clubs. They'd better do some more checking, probably end up blaming themselves for the poor attendance.

I'm still sticking with the Texas Aggies to take the Southwest Conference, but A&M students better stop molesting mascots.

Fans are split in their predictions on the outcome of the SMU-Texas game Saturday at Austin. I'll take the Mustangs in this one, 34-20.

Mustang Backs Fill Air With Passes in Practice

By WILBUR MARTIN
Associated Press Staff

Confidence oozed from the camps of Southern Methodist University and the University of Texas today as supporters of both whipped themselves into a frenzy over the "big game" Saturday.

A lineman at Southern Methodist yesterday asked head Coach H. N. (Rusty) Russell to let him scrimmage some more against a certain Texas player.

Senior linemen at Texas took charge of the big men up front and held a series of sprints—designed probably to improve wind and speed.

While both coaches worked at offense and defense, Russell yesterday took the wraps off his legion of deadly passers and Texas' Blair Cherry emphasized defense against the wild assortment of SMU plays.

Fred Benners, Rusty Russell, Jr., Kyle Rote, Johnny Champion, Benton Musselwhite and others were throwing them long, short and medium in SMU's practice session. Latest NCAB statistics show the Mustangs still the passingest team in the country, having gained an average of 234.2 yards in each of their five games this way.

Other Southwest conference coaches sent squads ripping through midweek workouts. Most seemed pleased.

Rice lost its regular left end, Frank Allen, when he fractured a bone in his left leg in practice.

Arkansas, which meets A&M Saturday, scrimmaged heavily against its freshmen team, while A&M romped through another long workout, polishing running and defensive plays.

Texas Christian, Baylor's opponent Saturday, got good news when first string Gilbert Barlow was able to rejoin the squad.

He hurt his leg in the Aggie game of Oct. 28.

Baylor stressed defense in practice yesterday and head Coach George Sauer reported the physical condition of his squad was good.

Taylor may be the underdog when it goes against the past-happy TCU eleven, but it packs into the game the fourth best record on pass defense in major college football.

The Bears have yielded just 359 yards in six games, an average of 59.8 per game.

Baylor is also sixth in punting with an average of 41.8 yards per kick. Larry Isbell, who does most of the Bears' kicking, is eighth in punting in the nation with an average of 42 yards for 37 kicks.

Southern Methodist rates third in total offense with 2,296 yards in an average of 447.2 yards a game. SMU's kicking is eighth in the nation with an average of 38.5 yards per game. A&M is also seventh in rushing offense with 1,716 yards.

Bob Smith of A&M is fifth in rushing with his 694 yards on 106 carries, while Texas' Byron Townsend is No. 18 on 504 yards in 81 carries.

Fred Benners of SMU is 19th in forward passing. He's connected on 50 of 84 attempts for 962 yards and six touchdowns.

Finishing the others in a hurry: Southwest: Arizona (Tempe) State over San Diego State, 40-14; Arizona over New Mexico, Rice over Texas Tech, Texas Christian over Baylor, Texas Western over West Texas State.

Ohio State Has Best Defensive Line in Country

NEW YORK — (AP) — Ohio State, which on the record has the best defensive line in the country, emerged today as one of college football's best attacking teams, as well.

As a result of their 83-21 rout of Iowa last Saturday, Wes Fesler's Buckeyes moved up with the leaders in several offensive statistical departments.

The latest batch of figures from the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau show Ohio State:

1. First among major college teams in scoring points.
2. Ninth in total offense.
3. Ninth in forward passing.
4. First in the number of scoring passes thrown.

The Buckeyes for most of the season have had the nation's best record in rushing defense. Ohio State now has scored 225 points in five games, an average of 46.3. Wyoming follows with 239 points in six games, an average of 39.8.

Then follow Arizona State at Tempe with 39.3 average, Texas A&M, 37.3; Southern Methodist, 36.8; Princeton, 36.2; Loyola (Calif.), 36.2; Army 35.8; College of the Pacific, 34.8; and Oklahoma, 30.8.

The altar and the wall behind it in the chapel of the Alcazar, famous Spanish palace, are decorated with clay tile paintings of Biblical scenes, which have been in place more than 400 years.

Extra Point Specialist Gets Small Credit for Victories

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
(AP) Sports Editor

In these days of all-out offensive football when touchdowns are cheaper than hot dogs, there would appear little reason to worry about the extra point.

The point after touchdown has had less significance than ever before in the Southwest Conference. But here are a couple of facts quite important to Texas and Arkansas:

A missed extra point means that the game at Austin Saturday, when Southern Methodist and Texas battle for the conference leadership, will not have two undefeated teams. Texas lost to Oklahoma 14-13—its only defeat of the season—because the kick for a conversion was wide.

Arkansas last Saturday was beaten by Vanderbilt 14-13. It lost after putting on a thrilling uphill fight that evened the thing as to touchdowns. But an extra point was missed and Arkansas has lost four games — a poor season.

The best record in the conference in booting the extra point is held by Billy Wright of Rice, who has made 13 out of 14 tries. Wright wasn't even considered the man for the job this year when practice started. Imagine the embarrassment of the publicity director when he found that he had a picture made of Billy Burkhalter and Lee Stone, street doing the kicking but that neither kicked a lick during the season. Wright, who wasn't photographed, booted them all. Wright has played only one down.

Bill Sullivan, the extra point specialist at Southern Methodist, has a record for accuracy that is sensational. He has kicked 18 extra points in a row. For the season to date, in which he has gotten in 23 minutes actual playing time, Bill has 22 out of 27.

Sullivan worked last summer as a "roughneck" on an oil rig drilling 65 miles off the Louisiana Coast in the Gulf of Mexico.

The boys would work a week, then take a week off on the mainland. During that week of rest Sullivan practiced kicking extra points at Morgan City, La.

Hank Dickerson of Baylor has been kicking the extra points for three years and this season to date. He played very little last season but his record is 66 out of 85 tries and he has kicked three field goals. That's more points than most halfbacks make in going after touchdowns. This season he has 11 out of 14.

Dickerson practices four nights a week. He does it after the regular workout so he'll be tired — as in a game.

In his three and one-half seasons at Baylor he has played less than 40 minutes altogether. He scored the only touchdown of his college career this season—he fell on a blocked punt.

Homer Luster, who does the extra point kicking for Texas Christian, hasn't played a single down officially in three years. He does nothing except try for the extra points, field goals and does the kicking off. This season he has kicked nine out of twelve extra point tries.

George Thomason of Arkansas has been in 13 of 24 quarters this season but has never played a single minute of a game—officially. Time is automatically out when he kicks for the extra point. He has booted 12 out of 17 this year.

Billy Porter was the extra point specialist for Texas for four games in which he fired 14 and made 10. Last week Ben Tompkins took over the chore and booted five out of five. But Porter usually gets in eight or nine minutes per game as he does the punting as well as trying for extra points and is credited with a minute every time he goes in.

Darrow Hooper at Texas A&M, playing his first varsity season, is in seventh place in conference scoring through his extra point kicking. He has booted 26. And the Aggies have made 33 touchdowns. But Hooper doesn't confine his activity only to kicking extra points. He's also a quarterback and gets in considerable actual playing time.

The life of the extra point specialist may be the easiest on a football squad but there's none that carries more tension when the chips are down. He can get plenty of blame when a game is lost but did you ever see one get much credit when a game is won by the extra point?

Applying Named Manager of Memphis Chicks

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — (AP) — Luke Applying, the Chicago White Sox's durable shortstop, starts a new career next spring as manager of the Memphis Chicks.

Applying, at 41 affectionately known to his teammates as "Old Aches and Pains," accepted the helm of the Class AA Southern Association club yesterday. Memphis is one of the Sox's farm clubs.

His decision ended a 20-year record-breaking career as a big league shortstop in which he played the most games (2,218) and led the American League twice in hitting — .388 in 1936 and .342 in 1942.

He succeeds Al Todd, who resigned this fall after managing the Chicks two years.

Irishmen Hold 8 Opponents To 34 Points

SHAMROCK — (Special) — Shamrock's Irishmen have the best defensive record in Pampa Class A football, judging by the thirty four points eight opponents have scored against them this season.

Other high ranking Class A teams have permitted more scoring. Littlefield, defending state champs, have 77 against them, Phillips 64, Post 54 and Loveland 50.

Only two teams have managed to score twice against the Irish—Phillips Blackhawk with 18 points and Memphis with 14. Dalhart managed 7 against the Irish reserves.

Not since October 6 has an opponent crossed the Irish goal. That night the Memphis Cyclone registered two touchdowns in the first half, but dropped an 18-14 battle as the Irish roared back.

Shamrock defeated Lockney 12-0, Dalhart 31-7, Perryton 27-0, Memphis 18-14, Lefors 19-0, Clarendon 22-0, and Wheeler 20-0, in addition to the Phillips' tie.

If Shamrock can rope the McLean Tigers this weekend and fizzle out the Wellington Sky-rockets next week, they will reign as District 2-A champions. They are in undisputed possession of the district's lead now.

Shamrock has faced three of the top 15 in Class A competition this season. McLean and Wellington are two other titans in the field.

Fair trophy, Col. Llewellyn, second in the event, had won the International inaugural on opening day Tuesday. Lieut. E. Valdes, woman rider on the Mexican army team, took the other event held to date.

The superb riders and horses from below the Rio Grande, captained by Col. Humberto Mariles, won the lions share of honors at the 1948 games in London. For the last three years Mexico has dominated the national show held at Madison Square Garden.

"The Olympics are the whole idea for us coming over here," said Lieut. Col. Harry M. Llewellyn of the British Equestrian team, which is giving Mexico its stiffest competition in the eight-day national show.

"This was a sort of reconnaissance in force, to study the Mexican form," the British team captain added.

Mariles, champion in the last Olympics, looks for a strong challenge from England at Helsinki.

"Col. Llewellyn is without any question one of the best riders in Europe, and Fox Hunter is the best horse over there," said Mariles, who is not riding here this year in deference to training young Mexican horsemen and giving them some international experience.

Mexico won the second of three International events here last night when Lieut. Joaquin D. Harcourt took the Royal Winter

SMU vs. TEXAS. The fur will fly in this wide open struggle for the conference lead. The Longhorns played their best game of the season against Rice and are in top shape for this one. Rusty Russell's all-conquering Mustangs spearheaded by Rote and Benners should top the Texans by at least a touchdown.

ARMY vs. PENNSYLVANIA—This should be a thriller from the opening gun. Coach Munger's Quakers always manage to give the Cadets plenty of trouble and may pull the upset of the year, if Army's soft schedule backsfire at this point, we'll go down with 'em.

ALL'S WELL WITH SEWELL—A big reason for improvement in the University of Texas defense has been the playing of Harley Sewell at left guard. ## Mustangs Lead Longhorns In Victory Column, 14-12

AUSTIN — (Special) — Texas' most troublesome football rival—Southern Methodist University—looms as a greater menace than ever as the two schools prepare for their 30th meeting here in Memorial Stadium on Nov. 4. The SMU Mustangs, the only Southwest Conference rival that holds an edge over the Texas Longhorns in the all-time standings, currently are billed the No. 1 team in the nation, and they'll come here well-rested for a game that may determine the eventual league champion.

Since the rivalry between the two schools began in 1916, SMU has won 14 games, Texas 12 and three others have resulted in ties. Success in the Mustangs has run in streaks. The Longhorns won the first three, then played six before winning another.

After five years of calm rivalry, SMU put together six in a row. Texas followed with six of its own before the Mustangs started their current string of three.

The Longhorn-Mustang meeting is expected to be the key game in the conference pennant race for the fourth time in six seasons. The winner in this series went on to league championships in 1945, '47 and '48, and both principals went a-bowling after the '47 and '48 battles.

Despite the warning of an inexperienced quarterback and backfield, Texas was rated ahead of SMU in pre-season estimates. The evaluation has been reversed, however, because Rusty Russell's Methodists have proved themselves with uninterrupted success against Georgia Tech, Ohio State, Missouri, Oklahoma A&M and Rice.

Saturday while the Longhorns were busy with the Rice Owls, the Mustangs were taking the day off in order to have two weeks to prepare for the all-important meeting with Texas. The Steers hope to avenge last

Bufs Polish Ground Attack For Western

CANYON — (Special) — Coach Frank Kimbrough gave the West Texas State Bufs' vaunted ground attack a thorough going over Wednesday as the Thundering Herd prepped for their important Border loop struggle with Texas Western this Saturday in El Paso.

Although all four of Kimbrough's fearsome foursome are nursing injuries, they were on the drill fields going through the paces with emphasis being placed on ball handling and deception. Bill Cross, Charlie Wright and Eddie Conner, are favoring leg bruises while Gene Mayfield, passer and quarterback, is battling a cold.

E. C. Seifert, flashy Levelland junior who has been out of action with a twisted knee since Sept. 23, has reported back for full practice and will be ready for the Miners in the circuit's first-place battle. Seifert was a standout in spring and early fall drills and his return should strengthen the Buff attack greatly.

Passers and punters went through long and careful sessions in an attempt to erase the hazardous methods which cost so heavily against Trinity University last week. In that tilt, four WR passes were intercepted and one punt was blocked. The blocked kick went for a Trinity touchdown and an interception gave the Tigers the ball late in the game and allowed them to score the winning TD in the last 35 seconds.

West Texas stayed among the offensive leaders of the nation despite their 27-20 upset by Trinity. The Herd's offensive per game offering dropped to 455.5 yards but still kept them well up in the rankings. Bill Cross maintained a 10.9 yards per carry average and Gene Mayfield kept his passing antics over the .500 percent mark and retained his offensive lead in the Border Conference with 1087 yards gained.

Coach Odie Crowell has extensive line work designed this week for his stalwart forwards. Contact play will consume most of the time with an actual scrimmage session on tap for Thursday.

Pass defense, still a big headache in the Buff machine, will receive another extensive airing in an effort to put a stopper in the Herd aerial lanes. It was through the air that Trinity struck for their game-winning TD last Saturday in San Antonio.

Cotton Bowl Is Flooded by Mail

DALLAS — (AP) — The Cotton Bowl's going to be a sellout again this New Year's Day. Enough ticket applications have been received already to insure this.

The public sale opened yesterday. The first mail brought around 10,000 letters, meaning between 37,000 and 38,000 tickets are being sought. Each applicant is limited to four tickets.

P. C. Cobb, ticket manager, expects applications for about 125,000 tickets during the four days they will be accepted. He's only got 25,000 for sale. The two schools — and as yet the opponents are not known — get 30,000 tickets and 20,000 go to stadium bond holders.

Just who will get the tickets from those applying? Shucks, Cobb doesn't know. They hold a public drawing and it is strictly up to luck.

White, black and Indian, of juncea, are the best known varieties of mustard cultivated for the Steers hope to avenge last

Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK — (AP) — Story from Chicago is that Mrs. Grace Comiskey, the White Sox president, isn't happy about the phone bills incurred in transacting business with General Manager Frank Lane in St. Petersburg, Fla., and Field Manager Paul Richards at home in Waxahachie, Texas.

She should try the Giants' set up with Eddie Brannick in Miami and Prexy Horace Stoneham and Carl Hubbell on a duck shooting expedition on Long Island.

Colgate's footballers propose a statute of limitations on penalties. Seems center Bob McCall protested a call against him for illegal use of hands in a recent game, arguing "I didn't hold on that one."

The official just stepped off 15 yards, saying: "You did it the one before."

A recent moan from a minor league baseball operator: "Major league players are overdoing the all-star racket. When small towns are called upon to see Jackie Robinson's team, Connie Ryan's team, Dixie Walker's team and several others, we are asking too much of the baseball public."

Vito de Vito, assistant trainer for the Arnold College football team, is a better-than-air semi-baseball player. And naturally he likes to talk about that game.

That's just what he was doing for hours on a recent road trip while the athletes were waiting for bed-time.

Coach Ray Stovick, an old ball player himself, rose wearily and remarked: "Vito, if you keep that up, the players will go out there on the field tomorrow and wait for a hit or take sign."

PIGSKIN PICKINS:
Georgetown vs. Miami (Friday)
Miami's Hackett will think it's a racket.

Ohio State vs. Northwestern
Ohio's the pick, with Janowick, Vic.

Florida vs. Kentucky
Florida's Gators will suffer pain because their loss is Kentucky's gain.

Army vs. Penn
They'll yell for Bagnell until he's collared by Pollard.

Southern Methodist vs. Texas
The Methodists of Rusty Russell will match the Texas beef with hustle.

Doug Weaver, the Michigan State defensive center who did a mighty job against Notre Dame, played his freshman football at Yale but returned to the Midwest because he wanted to play against "real tough competition."

Casey Stengel is reported on Mickey Mantle, the Western Association batting champ with Joplin, Mo., and likely will try him out at shortstop.

Byron Townsend of Texas and Kyle Rote, the SMU star, will clash for the second time Saturday. They first met when Townsend led his Odessa High team to a 21-14 victory over Rote and Thomas Jefferson of San Antonio for the 1946 state championship.

When the lights went out in Rocky Graziano's dressing room after last Friday's fight, the Rock bellowed: "Watch my pants. My dough's in 'em and I got friends here."

Coast League To Get Relief

CINCINNATI — (AP) — It has been almost five years since the Pacific Coast League made its first big demand to be recognized as a major league. Now it looks as if the coast leaguers are making some progress.

Yesterday baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler said it had been decided to "give relief to the coast league as the facts justify." He explained that might mean placing the league in a new 4-A classification among the minors.

Five years ago the Pacific Coast League asked flatly to be recognized as a major league. Since then, the request has been tempered to a plea that its players be exempt from the major league draft.

That request was considered yesterday by the major-minor league executive committee.

Just what is to be done probably won't be decided until the major-minor meeting in St. Petersburg, Fla., in December.

There was no decision at the meeting about the broadcasting of major league games in minor league territory or any change in the disposition of $875,000 received from the radio and television rights for the last World Series.

Some of the players have been asking that a part of that money be dumped into the fund in which first division clubs of the two major leagues share.

Originally, it was intended that most or all of the money go into the players' pension fund.

Slamming Sammy Trails in N-S Golf Tournament

PINEHURST, N. C. — (AP) — Slamming Sam Snead has his work cut out for him if he is to retain his North and South open title and add to the biggest bankroll professional golf for the last two years.

Some tough cookies were way tie for fourth place. Springs, W. Va., hot rock as he started today's third round four strokes off the pace in a four-hole opening 67, was Jim Ferrier, from San Francisco.

His fine 70 gave him 135, nine under par for the 6,502-yard No. 2 country club course, and a one-stroke lead.

On his heels with a 69 after an opening 67, was Jim Ferrier, from San Francisco.

Along with 137 for third place was veteran Mike Turnesa, White Plains, N. Y. His 67 was the best second round score. Then came Klein, San Antonio; George Fazio, Washington, and Frank Stranahan, Toledo, Ohio, amateur.

Interscholastic Advisory Council to Meet Saturday

AUSTIN — (AP) — The advisory council of the Texas Interscholastic League will meet here Saturday with the most important topics of discussion being the question of admitting parochial schools to membership and control of junior high school athletics.

The council also is due to hear the league's plan for changing its classification set-up to create a Triple A Conference that probably will, if enacted, include all schools of 750 enrollment or more.

The league opposes admitting parochial schools because the students of these schools come from everywhere and do not have eligibility rules like the Interscholastic League.

The league advocates that it have control of junior high school athletics because there now are no eligibility rules in the junior high schools and also because it wants to stop bowl games for boys of that age now springing up over the state. The league feels these boys are too young for football competition of that type and also that organizations are using their athletic ability for commercial purposes.

The new classification set-up is being worked out by the league officials in an effort to meet objections to the City Conference, which includes only schools of the four larger cities of Texas and does not provide for a play-off between the City Conference and Class AA state champions so a bona fide state champion may be determined. Under the new set-up many of the present Class AA schools would be in the same division as the city schools.

"The Road Ahead" A Pastor's View of Our Peril

(Ed. Note. The text on this page is a verbatim report of a notable sermon, delivered by a Protestant minister early this year. It is notable not only for its clarity and its detailed indictment of the country's drift toward socialism, but because it was given from a pulpit in a conservative church in a southern city. The minister was Dr. Walter R. Courtenay, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Nashville, Tenn., and he gave this sermon on Lincoln's birthday this year, February 12. The text has been widely reprinted since then, and is cited here with special permission of Mr. Courtenay.)

During the period when Hitler was making his bid for power, the German church talked of theology and ignored the social dangers rising all about it, and thus through indifference and carelessness, added to Hitler's strength, and the world's eventual ruin.

I have no apology for taking this position. I shall hold this day. It is time that church leaders who believe in democracy and the free enterprise system stand up and say so. Others are speaking of the tide of socialism is too strong to be halted, and that we must go with the tide. This I do not believe. Today I speak in defense of the traditional American system of government and economics, and I speak against all leaders in all fields who are doing all in their power to wreck our national structure, and lead us in socialism.

Let us examine the rise of the Socialist power in England and thereby be warned. It began in 1885 when a group of intellectual visionaries, attracted by the theories of Karl Marx, formed what they called the Fabian Society, naming their group after Quintus Fabius, the Roman general who defeated Hannibal by biting off a segment of his army at a time, thus destroying it piece by piece.

Here is the program they proposed:

1. Establish a school for the training of Socialist leaders, writers, speakers, and so forth.
2. Never call an idea or program socialist. Talk about pensions, compensations, health insurance, welfare, but not socialism.
3. Launch the program a bit at a time. Do not frighten people by showing them the whole program at once.
4. Assure the common people that their rights will be protected. Tell them that whatever is done will be done for the further well-being of the average man, "the little fellow."
5. Capture the labor unions, and through them destroy the Liberal Party.
6. Use the Liberal Party to get things going, and then cast it aside.
7. Work through schools, churches and clubs. Never miss a chance to implant the seeds of dissatisfaction with the old system and a love for the new.

of wasteful spending. The result was the death of the nation. Well, America's Solomon is dead and Rehoboam is in the White House. Our modern Rehoboam has turned his back on the elders of America and has listened to the young men who know all the answers, and who are thoroughly sold on the program of tax and spend. If the present policies are continued another five years I see no hope for the continuance of the American way of life.

With these thoughts in mind I call your attention to John Flynn's startling book, "The Road Ahead!" An abridged copy of it appears in the Reader's Digest for February. While I am not saying that Mr. Flynn is infallible, I do say that what he has to say is worth hearing, and his book ought to be read by every American, and certainly by every Christian.

The "sickness of the twentieth century" is socialism. Under the theory of offering something superior to our free enterprise system, this sickness rits away the structure of our nation. Fortunately it is no longer just an exciting theory. We can see what it has done in Russia and the neighboring lands. We can see its results in Britain. It ought to be clear to all who read and think that socialism is a mirage that drives men mad.

By 1914 the Labor Party had representatives in Parliament. By 1923 they placed Ramsay MacDonald, the Fabian fair-haired boy, in office as Prime Minister. In 1945 they took over completely and have socialized in a most unsocial manner. The only thing they lack is the British version of the Iron Curtain.

Think of it! In 1905, when the Fabians got their program under way in earnest, Britain was the strongest nation in the world. She had everything. In forty years, the Fabian Society, which never listed more than 14,000 members, became the master of England. The two great wars, plus the Fabian weakening processes within, have made a mighty England a land of tears and fears.

expenses. Labor was delighted. The deal had been paid off. The Fabians were more than delighted. The camel's head was now inside the free enterprise, democratic tent. Their final victory was merely a matter of time.

government is a restless, confused, unhappy land. The people are worse off now than they were during the war. Their leaders know the bottom is in sight. Spirituality is low, and distrust is rampant. Never has England known such depths. Yet, in the present general election campaign, the Fabians find excuses for the blunders and waste, and offer more golden promises.

It is startling to realize that we spent only $147 billion to run the American government in all the years from Washington through Mr. Roosevelt's first term in office. Mr. Truman has spent $184 billion in three years.

Card of Thanks

In My Father's House Are Many Mansions; If It Were Not So I Would Have Told You, I Go To Prepare A Place For You, And If I Go And Prepare A Place For You, I Will Come Again, and Receive You Unto Myself. John 14:1-4.

He has gone from earth to heaven He has left us all alone But some day we'll meet our dear one For our time has not yet come Life is like a pretty flower Just to bloom and fade away But will bloom again in heaven On that bright eternal day.

When our we think of him so dear This loved one who has gone His spirit will linger with us here And give us courage to press on So let us all press upward And toward with a smile Onward and upward with a smile On that bright and happy shore 'Tis the only life worth while. I won't be long to see you going Back from that heaven of rest When we know he is among the angels In the land of the pure and blest. It won't be long to see you going To that bright and happy shore We'll think of that, although we're weary For there our troubles will be over When our weary days are o'er 'Though someone has gone that we love We'll remember they are waiting For us in that home above. So while we sit alone in silence Close our eyes and meditate Close our eyes and forget the sorrow And see who is waiting at Heaven's gate.

ROBERT "BOB" CROCKETT
We wish to express our sincere thanks and heartfelt appreciation to our many friends, neighbors, and relatives for their kindness and messages of sympathy extended us at the time of our recent bereavement in the loss of our beloved husband, father, son, and brother Robert "Bob" Crockett. Especially to our dear mother, Mrs. M. E. Crockett, our dear sisters, Mrs. M. E. Crockett and Mrs. G. M. Sandel for their kind acts and comforting words. Also, we thank the singers, those who brought food, the donors of beautiful floral tributes, those whose cars were used, the Duesenberg-Carlson Funeral Home, the palbearers, and all those who helped lighten our burden in any way.

Be on the Lookout For Likely Danger

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"Here's a complicated one for you," writes a San Francisco correspondent. "When this hand was played, declarer took the opening spade lead in dummy, led to the ace of hearts, and then thought for several seconds. "After this short huddle, he cashed the king of hearts. This left East with two trump tricks, so the contract was set. "North claimed that it was a mistake to take the king of hearts at the third trick. If South had led a low heart towards the ten, West's failure to follow suit would have revealed the trump situation. Later on, South could finesse the king-nine. "South said he had considered this play but had rejected it. He said he was afraid to lead a low trump at the third trick because West might have three trumps and only two spades. In that case the defenders would win the second round of trumps and continue the spades. On the third spade, West would make his remaining trump. "South said he could guard against this over-ruff or against the four-one trump break—but not against both. He insists that he guarded against the more likely danger, but was unlucky enough to find that in the actual hand the real threat was the unlikely danger.

Henry Offers Good Target For Wife's Painting Troubles

By HENRY McLEMORE

Somewhere in New York there is a painter who is shopping for a blunderbuss with the express intention of letting my wife, Jeanie, have it right between the eyes.

As much as I hate wearing widower's weeds, I'll have to admit that the painter has a point. Yesterday afternoon we paid a visit to the apartment we are going to occupy this fall and winter. The painters were there, and unless you have tried to get painters in New York you can't know how lucky we were.

The head painter (the one who is shopping for the blunderbuss as I write this) asked Jean what colors she wanted in the various rooms.

He produces a color chart that had on it all the colors known to man and a few that aren't. She started off very brisk and businesslike, as women always do when they're selecting colors of paint. She told him, right off the bat, what she wanted for the living room. A soft green, a mossy sort of green. Something, she said, that will go with the drapes we're having sent up from Florida, just as if the painter had visited us for months, and knew all about our drapes.

He started showing her greens. Dozens of greens. She didn't like a single one of them. Finally he said, "That's all the greens I have. That is all the greens paint companies make."

So she suggested he start mixing new greens.

He mixed for about an hour before Jean exclaimed, "That's the one I want. That's the exact shade."

With a sigh that rocked the building, he said, "Mrs. McLemore that's the second green I showed you."

And to prove it, he got out his sample chart and showed it to her. It was a moss green. The one she had spurned one hour ago.

This went on in every single room in the apartment. The man, and his assistants, must have mixed around three or four hundred gallons of paint.

And in every room it turned out that she could have picked it from the color chart shown her at the beginning.

The head painter didn't get a wild look in his eyes until we reached the dining room and Jean said she wanted a color that would harmonize with the dining room rug we have.

She kept saying things like this.

"You know, that dining room rug has a real blue in it. You know, that little love seat that we've had under the window is a little faded. . . ."

"Mrs. McLemore," he said with a patience that would have done Gandhi credit, "Mrs. McLemore, I was never in your house in Florida, and your descriptions are so vague that I am getting no better idea as we go along."

I don't know if you have ever been a husband in this sort of situation, but if you have you'll understand what prompted me to yell, "Paint the whole darn thing coal black and let's get out and let the men get to painting."

Wish I hadn't said that to the painter.

It caused Jeanie to turn on me and whisper one of those wisps that remove half of the earlobe. "This is going to be your home, and if you don't care enough what we want, then I don't care either."

That made me the sinner. That made me the thoughtless one. That made me the attacker of the painter.

Women, ain't they wonderful! (Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Knights of Pythias Working For Local-Cast Show Nov. 6-7

"It's a Date," a community show, featuring local talent, will be presented Monday and Tuesday nights at the junior high school auditorium.

The comedy will benefit the polo fund and the Pythian Home. It is sponsored by the Knights of Pythias and the Pythian Sisters, and directed by Miss Jean West, St. Paul, Minn.

Playing leading roles are June Johnson and Ronald Johnson. They are the typical boy and girl in love that are unable to decide on a wedding date.

Various months are discussed by the couple, thus introducing the ten scenes including a wide variety of musical and comical entertainment.

Bunny Shultz will impersonate Eddie Cantor, serving as master of ceremonies on the "Take It Or Leave It" show. In this scene, members of the audience will participate and choose the categories they will use when they compete for valuable prizes.

The "Labor Daze" scene includes an all-male chorus. The men will be dressed as women and will satirize the duties and hardships met by the typical housewife.

Impersonating characters in this scene will be Cal Stone, Pinky Shultz, Roy Bennett, Tony Smith, Reggie Mayo and John McFall. They will conclude the scene with a special dance routine to the accompaniment of washboards and pot and kettle lids.
