Reagan gives Congress room to slash deficits

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says he's willing to give Congress "running room" to pare the record deficits in his 1983 budget plan, but not by reducing defense spending or increasing taxes.

Top congressional Republicans told the president face-to-face Thursday that his $757.6 billion budget plan for fiscal 1983 won't get far on Capitol Hill as long as it projects a deficit approaching $100 billion.

House Republican leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois emerged from the White House meeting saying many conservatives — who had hoped Reagan would produce on his earlier promises to balance the budget — feel "pole-axed" by forecasts of a record flow of red ink for years to come.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee and Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., joined Michel in telling Reagan and key administration officials that, as Laxalt put it, "the name of the game is getting that interest rate down, and the way to get it down very frankly... is to reduce the size of the deficits."

Laxalt, Reagan's closest friend in the Senate and former chairman of his presidential campaign, said he asked Reagan for the "running room... to come up with some better results."

The president responded later in the day.

"I've sent a budget up that I believe in very much," he told reporters. "On the other hand there's been a suggestion now that even further cuts could be made, and I feel the Congress should have the running room to be able to talk about those and see what they're talking about."

However, Reagan ruled out compromise on his proposed 18 percent hike in military spending or trimming the administration-backed tax cuts Congress enacted last year.

White House spokesman David Gergen said it was too early to talk about compromise on details of the administration's program. "There is no plan here to compromise. We're not sending those kind of signals. That was not the spirit of the meeting here today."

Reagan, meanwhile, said he was not worried by the early adverse reaction to his budget "because I know they're (members of Congress) going home in a few days, and when they get home they're going to find out how much the people want what we have proposed."

Congress is in recess for the Washington-Lincoln holiday until Feb. 22.

The reaction to the budget recommendations Reagan made Monday has been in sharp contrast to last year when Congress gave him virtually everything he wanted in the way of tax and spending cuts.

"No budget is sacrosanct," Baker said Thursday.

But Baker, Laxalt and Michel all emphasized that they foresee no chance of Congress taking the budget away from Reagan and completing work on a spending plan by itself.

However, Michel added that the trio "made the point" to the president that he probably will have to fight hard to win support for his military spending plans even among "some of his own people."

"There's an awful lot of money involved there," said Michel.

Reagan's budget anticipates deficits of $98.6 billion this year, $91.5 billion in 1983 and $82 billion in 1984. Democrats and Republicans alike say the actual figures likely will be higher.

Michel said he intends to meet next week with Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, to talk about bipartisan changes in the president's spending plan.

"We've always had to have some Democratic support to make anything go (in the Democratic-controlled House) and while it may not take the same form that it did last year... it might have some variations," Michel said.

While Baker declined to be specific about possible changes that could be made in Reagan's budget, further evidence of Republican resistance to Reagan's budget surfaced in the Senate Thursday when Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., outlined an alternative plan for 1983 that called for $20 billion in higher taxes, $12 billion less for the defense budget and a $20 billion cut in benefit programs.

NEW PAMPA POSTCARDS do not depict Pampa's snowy look today, but better weather in the Panhandle city. The picture postcards, now available at the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, are displayed by chamber clerk Lori Rebarchik. The cards depict all the best aspects of the second largest city in the Panhandle and certainly better weather.

Human rights abuse intolerable in Salvador, ambassador says

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Dean R. Hinton says human rights abuses by El Salvador's ruling junta have come "dangerously close" to intolerable limits.

"If there is one issue that could force our Congress to withdraw or seriously reduce its support for El Salvador it is the issue of human rights," Hinton told local businessmen in a speech Thursday.

He said he did not know if reports of recent mass killings by government troops were accurate, "but I know that the impact has been tremendous in my country."

U.S. press reports last month claimed at least 733 civilians were killed by government troops in an anti-guerrilla sweep near a northern village in December. The U.S. Embassy disputed the figures and said its own investigation found no evidence of systematic killing.

An estimated 32,000 civilians have been reported killed here since October 1979, when the rightist government of President Carlos Humberto Romero fell in a military coup that produced the current U.S.-backed civilian-military junta and sparked the rebellion by leftist guerrillas bent on ousting it.

"Most citizens of the United States understand the need to suspend some constitutional rights during a period of national emergency," Hinton said.

"They also understand that a war against an aggressor who rejects all civilized conduct will provoke some abuses by those engaged in battle, but there is a limit, and at times this government has been dangerously close to that limit."

Hinton also welcomed the indictment of six former national guardsmen accused of killing four American women missionaries in December 1980, saying, "We look for justice to be done."

The judge handling the case said in an interview Thursday that if he doesn't throw out the charges against the six suspects, he won't decide whether they will be brought to trial for about three months.

Judge Bernardo Rauda Murcia of the penal court in Zacatecoluca has until noon Monday to decide whether to order the arraignment of the suspects on murder charges.

If he decides a prima facie case exists, the judge said, he would then act as a one-man grand jury, taking 90 days or more to determine if there is enough evidence to bring the suspects to trial for the murders.

An informant close to the case, who declined to be identified, said one of the six suspects confessed, implicating others, when threatened with a lie detector test.

Without a confession or testimony from a witness, it is difficult if not impossible to get a conviction in Salvadoran court, said a diplomat familiar with this Central American nation's complex legal system.

The suspects were dismissed from the national guard on Wednesday, the day they were indicted, so they could be tried by a civilian judge. They were flown to Zacatecoluca, the court nearest the scene of the slayings.

Attorney General gets injunction against GM for rebate claims

BY SHEILA ECCLES Staff Writer

It may have sounded like a great deal, buying a 1982 GM vehicle and receiving a rebate of $500 to $2,000, but an investigation into the rebates, sparked by Texas Auto Dealers, led Texas Attorney General Mark White to file a temporary restraining order against GM — and the "Let's Get Moving" Campaign.

The temporary restraining order was filed and issued Tuesday in the 201st District Court of Judge Jerry Dellana in Travis County.

"White filed suit against the General Motors Corporation for alleged violations of the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Consumer Protection Act. White asked the court for the temporary restraining order against GM to prevent GM from failing to live up to the advertised claims made to the public in the nationwide campaign to promote rebates to car buyers," a spokesman from the Texas Attorney General's office said Thursday.

"White said the court action was necessary to compel General Motors to keep its promises which the company repeatedly has made throughout Texas in television, radio, newspaper and periodical advertisements designed to sell automobiles and trucks to consumers," the spokesman said.

"The 'Let's Get Moving' Rebate or Bonus Program, General Motors promised consumers could take delivery of certain motor vehicles between Feb. 1, and March 31, 1982 and receive a $500, $750 or $2,000 bonus, depending upon the type of motor vehicle purchased," the spokesman said.

"However, the advertisements failed to disclose that 25 percent of the rebate is charged by General Motor's back to the dealers, which raises the cost of the auto to the dealer. In turn the dealer passes the additional cost on to the purchaser. This means that the buyer, instead of receiving the full bonus as promised, in effect, only receives 75 percent of the advertised rebate," the spokesman said.

"Such false advertising is intended to induce the consumer into a transaction which the consumer may not have entered if the full information had been disclosed," he said.

"White further alleges that General Motors has used coercive tactics to force dealer participation in the rebate program. General Motors was warned that such a proposed promotion violates the laws of the State of Texas," he said.

"In return General Motors has threatened to withdraw from the program without living up to its advertised claims to consumers who purchased cars under the bonus agreement," he said.

"White asked that GM be restrained from refusing to pay or honor any claim or any request for rebate or bonus offered as an inducement to the buying public; from collecting from dealers any rebate or bonus promised to the public; and from terminating any rebate or bonus program currently in effect in Texas before March 31, 1982."

White is also asking for civil penalties of $2,000 per violation up to a total of $10,000 for violations of the Texas Consumer Protection Act and for $1,000 for each act and each day of violation of the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission Act," he said.

Mary Hardesty, legal counsel in the Attorney General's Office, said Thursday that the phone has been ringing constantly with questions about the suit from other states.

"There had been negotiations between the Attorney General and GM for several weeks before the ad campaign for the rebates started. But GM refused to change their campaign and the suit was filed," she said.

The hearing for a temporary injunction will be conducted at 2 p.m. Feb. 19 in 201st District Court, Travis County.

County okays election to decide bingo question

Everything in the petition to call a local option election for the legalization of bingo looked proper today and the Gray County Commissioners chose to call for an election April 3 to decide whether bingo games can be legally operated in the county.

The petitions calling for the bingo election have circulated for the past month by several local organizations.

The petitions were returned this week to Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy, signatures were verified by County Clerk Wanda Carter and today the court made the go-ahead decision.

The state had set four election days during the year for the local option elections and local supporters of the bingo election were pushing to make the April date. The next date for an election would have been in August.

"This is our only real part in the election," Judge Kennedy said, after the commissioners set the date.

The next step for the county commissioners will be the decision to collect a percentage of the bingo game receipts, if the local option election passes.

The state collects a tax from the games and allows the individual county's to decide the same.

Polling places named for the April 3 election are for Precinct 1 - Lefors Community Center; Precinct 3 - Grandview School; Precinct 4 - Alanreed School; Precinct 5 - Senior Citizen Center; Precinct 7 - 12 - Horace Mann Elementary School; Precinct 8 - 9 - Stephen F. Austin School; Precincts 10 - 13 - Gray County Courthouse; Precincts 11 - 14 - M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Regents unconcerned by non-accredited degree

BY JEFF LANGLEY Staff Writer

Regents of Frank Phillips College in Borger say it is unimportant whether the college's president Andy Hicks has a valid doctoral degree and say the issue will have no effect on Hicks' employment or salary.

Hicks issued a news release last month which stated he had received a Doctor of Education degree from Western Colorado University. Hicks said he had been working on the doctoral degree for about four years and that he completed its requirements last November.

However, what Hicks failed to mention to his bosses, the board of regents, was that Western Colorado University is a non-accredited school in Grand Junction.

Regent Wade Gillespie said, "What difference would that make anyway, unless it's just something you guys want to blow up. I don't think he's recruiting for that university (Western Colorado). I guess there's one over there. I don't know anything about it. Why do we want to blow it up? What the hell's the use of that?"

"I'm not sure it's not accredited, but I'm not checking on it. I am not concerned about it. I know he got a degree there, that's all I know. What are you trying to do, just knock our school down? What do you want us to do, run him off and find somebody who has one?" Gillespie asked.

He said the non-accredited diploma would have no bearing on Hicks' employment at the accredited school which he administers.

"I don't give a damn. I don't understand why the news media wants to pick on everything that comes along. You don't need a Ph.D. to head one of these little schools. We're just giving little associate degrees here and I don't think that (Hicks's degree) would have any effect on it," Gillespie said.

Gillespie said Hicks never told him the doctoral degree is non-accredited, but "I didn't ask him."

"I think he got the education he was seeking," Gillespie added. He said Hicks's work as Frank Phillips President has been "great." Gillespie said he once knew of a medical doctor who had a non-accredited degree.

Another regent John Moss said, "Andy was hired as president of the college before he received that degree, so it does not matter to me one way or the other." He said that he was unaware the degree was from a non-accredited school and that Hicks never told him. Moss said the doctorate has no bearing on Hicks' salary or employment. "I'm satisfied he's done a very good job for us."

Member Al Hahn said he was unaware the degree was not accredited and that Hicks never told him so. He said, "The first thing that went through my mind when I heard about it was, how many earned degrees did Eisenhower have when he was named president of Columbia University? If the guy's doing the job as president, that is all I ask of him. Does a man have to be an ex-drunk to counsel alcoholics?" Asked if he thought Hicks misled regents by not informing them about Western Colorado's non-accredited status, Hahn replied, "No."

Member Ed Lewis said he was not certain that Hicks' degree is from a non-accredited institution. Asked what steps he was taking to find out, he replied, "We are looking into that right now. We have a regents meeting Monday evening. There is a place on our agenda where the matter could possibly be discussed."

"I'm not going to assume anything, and I'm not going to say anything until I get the facts and talk to Andy," Lewis said.

Regent Mrs. Lou Cooley said, "He is doing a good job, and I give him a vote of confidence. I think he has the respect of the teachers." She said she was not aware of the status of Hicks' alma mater and that he had never mentioned it.

Regents Byron Hawks, David Spector and Board Chairman Bob Knight were not available for comment.

Michael Hensley, who identified himself as a faculty member at Western Colorado in Grand Junction, said the school is not accredited. "We are recognized by the National Association of Private Non-Traditional Schools and Colleges," Hensley said.

He said the school had no residency requirements and that all work toward degrees could be done at home. Hensley said that with a master's degree, a doctorate could be earned in one year, "depending on how much credit you could receive for work experience." He pegged the cost of the doctorate at about $3,000. Hensley is listed in the school's catalog as "Chairman, Division of Psychology."

An employee of the Colorado Department of Higher Education in Denver, Diane Rasmussen, said Western Colorado is not recognized by them. She also stated that a new amended Colorado law enacted in December will require all degree-granting institutions operating in Colorado to receive accreditation, or have evidence of efforts toward official accreditation, or the school will be closed by the state. She said that an initial letter sent in January from the agency seeking information on accreditation from Western Colorado had not been answered. Rasmussen said a second letter was mailed Thursday. She said the official accreditation organization for Colorado schools was the North Central Association of Schools and Colleges.

A catalog for Western Colorado says the school was founded in 1971. It states, "Degree requirements may be satisfied through off-campus, independent study, research, and examinations under the advisement of the full-time faculty, or approved adjunct professors. It is for this reason that the University is best described as an external degree-granting institution."

The catalog states that the school is controlled by a seven-member Board of Trustees, made up entirely of students or former students of Western Colorado University.

The catalog continues, "The university accepts no responsibility for outside recognition or acceptance of credits. The external degree is the newest form of certification and the exact opposite of the older form. The

Fighting reported spreading in Syrian cities

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — U.S. officials report indications that the 10-day-old Hama rebellion against Syrian President Hafez Assad is spreading to other cities.

The Americans said diplomatic and intelligence reports indicated trouble has broken out in Latakia, the coastal port that is Assad's power base, and other centers. But they did not say what other cities have been affected by the uprising that Western diplomats reported erupted Feb. 2 in Hama, Syria's third largest city and a center of Sunni Moslem opposition to Assad's Alawite sect.

The Syrian government admitted that the army had sealed off Hama, in northwest Syria 120 miles north of Damascus, and was rounding up "criminals" and weapons. But it continued to deny the reports of open rebellion and hard fighting in which many hundreds were dying and sections of the city were being destroyed.

One U.S. official said the "insurrection" in Hama, a city of 200,000, "was precipitated by some extremely rough treatment" by troops searching for opponents of the government and weapons.

Diplomats in Damascus, the Syrian capital, reported earlier that the fighting spread rapidly through the city, and the government mustered between 5,000 and 8,000 troops to cordon it off and attack it with tanks, planes and artillery.

The sources said by Wednesday the dead were estimated in the "high hundreds," and at least 360 government troops were killed in two days of the fighting this week.

Jordanian officials reported the Syrians were putting down the rebellion "in a very ruthless manner," the U.S. officials said.

Although 65 percent of the Syrian people are Sunni, Islam's majority sect, and only 11 percent are Alawites, the latter control the government and most of the economy. Assad is an Alawite.

Hama is also a stronghold of the Moslem Brotherhood, the outlawed fundamentalist movement that Assad and his 12-year-old regime accuse of trying to foment a revolution against them.

Wholesale inflation rises in January

WASHINGTON (AP) — The biggest one-month food price increase since the summer of 1980 pushed overall inflation at the wholesale level higher at an annual rate of 5.3 percent last month, the government reported today.

Analysts said sharp reductions in hog-breeding herds had cut the supply of pork, contributing to a big increase in meat prices and to a 1.1 percent rise in consumer food prices.

In addition, prices turned up sharply for eggs and accelerated somewhat for refined sugar, dairy products, fish, roasted coffee and a variety of other foods, the new report said.

It said the Labor Department's Producer Price Index for finished goods rose 0.4 percent in January alone, up slightly from December's 0.3 percent, but generally in line with figures for the past year which have been much improved over 1980.

Inflation for all of 1981 totaled 7 percent at the wholesale level, compared with 11.8 percent the previous year.

January's 5.3 percent annual rate means that if prices rose at the same 0.4 percent pace for 12 consecutive months, the overall increase would total 5.3 percent.

Wholesale prices climbed just 6.3 percent in the past 12 months, the lowest total since the 6.2 percent for the 12 months ended in April 1977.

The food price increase in January was the biggest since the 2.6 percent of August 1980, when the nation was suffering from a severe drought. Labor Department officials said.

However, the food rise was partly offset by a 0.9 percent decline in energy costs. That decline followed increases of more than 1 percent in both November and December.

Gasoline and natural gas prices decreased somewhat in January, but prices for home heating oil showed a small increase for the third straight month, the report said.

Prices for finished consumer goods other than food and energy rose 0.5 percent in January after showing no change in December.

Price increases were recorded for a wide variety of items, including newspapers and magazines, textile house furnishings, tires and tubes, prescription drugs, alcoholic beverages and cosmetics.

Car prices declined after rising in December.

All of the figures were adjusted to discount for normal seasonal variations in prices.

Before adjustment, the PPI stood at 277.4 in January, meaning that goods which cost $10 in the base year of 1967 would have cost $27.74 last month.

Analysts commenting in advance of today's report said meat prices played the major part in pushing up January food costs — and, therefore, overall wholesale prices.

"Sharp reductions in the breeding herds of hogs and some disruptions in slaughter caused by the weather have led to dramatic increases in meat prices at all stages of processing in January," reported Donald Ratajczak, director of the Georgia State University Economic Forecasting Project.

Jason Benderly of the Washington Analysis Corp. said big increases in poultry and hog prices, coupled with a lesser rise in cattle prices, would account for most of the increase in food costs.

"Fortunately, prices for consumer goods other than food continue to be restrained by recessionary pressures," Ratajczak said.

Both men said food prices would continue to surge for the next month or more. They laid part of the blame on heavy California rain and freezing Florida temperatures that damaged some vegetable crops.

The government's index for wholesale prices includes many consumer items one step before sale to the public, and thus is a good indicator of how store prices will move soon.

However, the index does not include costs of various services or of housing, a category that has heavy influence on the consumer price index that will be published later this month.

The CPI also declined last year, to 8.9 percent from the 12.4 percent of 1980.

university is located in temporary facilities consisting of administrative and faculty advisor offices, library and seminar rooms. It is anticipated that more permanent facilities for the university will become necessary within the next few years. It is possible for external students to carry on studies under the direction of a faculty advisor through taped instructions, written communication, telephone advisement and programmed instructional materials.

The catalog also states that a degree is not required for entrance into the "graduate program." The catalog states acceptance to graduate studies is possible through "demonstration of ability to do graduate work as evidenced by work experience, special talent, an informal educational background, etc., and - or satisfactory performance on the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) in the aptitude test and in the advanced test of the area in which one desires to undertake study."

The catalog says that work is done in the four - month trimesters, and "the university is operated on a continuous 12 - month calendar which permits students to register and begin their off - campus study at any time."

Also, part of the school's requirements toward a doctoral degree include a doctoral dissertation. Hicks's dissertation was entitled, "The Economic Impact of Frank Phillips College on Hutchinson County." In the dissertation Hicks lists his Graduate Committee as H. Earl Heusser, Michael Hensley and Jose Rabanal. All names are listed as faculty or advisors in the catalog of Western Colorado.

On the acknowledgements page of his dissertation, Hicks says, "Let me note my great indebtedness to Dr. Gary McDaniel, President, (no longer associated with the Borger school), of Frank Phillips College. He was one of those most instrumental in encouraging my pursuit of this research and my doctorate." Also in the paper, Hicks claims each student at Frank Phillips College is worth $9,689 to the local economy of Hutchinson County.

Dr. H.D. Yarbrough, new president at Amarillo College, explained some differences between an accredited and non - accredited degree. He said a non - accredited degree receives a negative reaction from most institutions of higher learning. He said accreditation associations were formed to insure credit for certain courses would be recognized by other institutions.

Dr. Richard Moseley, acting executive vice president at West Texas State University, said that state supported universities operate under the Texas College Coordinating Board in Austin. He explained accreditation for Texas institutions of higher learning is received from the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges. He said periodically the school must complete "voluminous" amounts of information about the school's programs which is forwarded to the association. He said an association committee of about 25 people then takes that information and conducts an on - site examination of the school's ability to meet accreditation. The university administrator said the rigorous process lasts about 18 months. He said, "If a school has not been through that rigorous accreditation process, then questions may be raised about the course work at that school. This is particularly true when a student tries to transfer to another school."

About an employer's acceptance of a non - accredited degree, Moseley said, "Any employer is going to take into account the credentials a person presents to him. When we (West Texas State) ask for a doctorate, we are asking for one from an accredited institution." However, he said, "Many non - accredited institutions are doing good work." Moseley cited Antioch College of Ohio as a good non - traditional school.

Andy Hicks said today, "I earned the degree (from Western Colorado) just like any other school, and I think that's all I need to say about it." Hicks said the non - accredited degree is a good degree and that Western Colorado is a good school. He said he was not sure if the Frank Phillips Board of Regents knew the degree was non - accredited.

Asked if he would recommend non - accredited courses at Western Colorado to students who receive accredited associate degrees at Frank Phillips, Hicks said, "I don't guess I will answer that, but that's an individual's choice."

Asked if Frank Phillips College would accept credits from Western Colorado, he said, "I think you could look in our catalog and see what we accept credits for." Hicks was asked repeatedly if Frank Phillips would accept Western Colorado's credits for transfer, or if he knew if the credits would transfer, and each time Hicks replied, "It is in our catalog." Asked if he would refer to a catalog for the answer, Hicks said he did not have one handy. Asked if there is anyone employed at Frank Phillips who could state whether or not the credits would transfer, Hicks said, "No, I don't imagine. You would have to get a catalog. If they met the requirements in the catalog for transferring credits, then they would." Asked if to his knowledge Western Colorado's credits met the catalog's requirements, Hicks replied, "What's your next question? I think you are just fishing for something, see, and I'm very cautious at this time."

"I have no problems with the quality of the education I received there, and the volume and amount of work I did was definitely there," he said.

Hicks has been with Frank Phillips College since 1973. He has worked as an instructor, vocational dean, dean of instruction and was named president this past July. During his tenure as president, the school has attempted to build on campus a $4 million Borger Community Activities Center. However, the project was temporarily shelved this week by the Board of Regents. The halt on the project followed a dispute from a general contractor who claimed the board had illegally awarded the bid for the center's construction to a higher bidder.

Hicks earned his bachelor's degree at West Texas State University and his master's degree at Southwestern State University.

Airline fare battle intensifies

DALLAS (AP) — Downtown workers abandoned jobs and travelers crafted cut-rate vacations to take advantage of an airfare slugfest between Braniff International Airways, American Airlines and Delta Air Lines.

The fare war intensified Thursday as American, embroiled in a dogfight with Braniff and Delta, expanded its two-for-one program to all U.S. mainland and Hawaiian ticket offices.

American originally had offered free second tickets, but only on flights out of Dallas-Fort Worth Airport.

Customers of both airlines must purchase the "twofer" tickets before midnight Friday and use them on flights from Feb. 18 through March 31.

Delta joined the fray with second tickets "for a buck" on flights out of D-FW, but only on routes that compete with Braniff and American and only to people who already have bought the first ticket.

None of the offers is refundable.

Texas International Airlines capitalized on the publicity Thursday by offering $99 fares to Los Angeles and Baltimore-Washington from across the United States beginning Feb. 11.

As the news spread through downtown Dallas Thursday morning, employees left work to queue up at local ticket offices, and tied up telephone reservation lines.

Steady lines of 15 to 20 prospective travelers kept ticket agents occupied at Braniff and American offices downtown during the lunch hour Thursday.

Accountant Paul Schuckman stood in line for an hour and a half to pick up tickets to Hawaii for himself and his wife. He said he spent 45 minutes trying to get through by phone to reserve his seats.

was displeased about what it labeled "a giveaway plan that can do nothing but decrease revenues and undermine the financial strength of the industry."

Braniff instigated the battle Wednesday with radio commercials offering second tickets for $1 to travelers purchasing tickets on any domestic flight, including Hawaii. The tickets must be purchased in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, however.

American offered to give away free second tickets, but only on flights out of Dallas-Fort Worth Airport.

Dennett says system didn't work

MCALLEN, Texas (AP) — Pedro Dennett leaned against a car at his auto body and paint shop, shaking his head about the acquittal of three former policemen accused of violating his civil rights.

"I know that the system didn't work this time," the 28-year-old said Thursday. "They're (the officers) laughing at me. Those three guys are just relaxing back and saying, 'We got away with it.'"

Dennett was hoisted by his belt and slammed against the booking desk twice. Officers twisted one of his arms behind his back and Dennett wailed a loud scream. He was put in a holding cell.

"There was a lot on the tape that the public didn't see," Foreman Dennis Ohe said Thursday. Portions of the tape aired on national newscasts following their viewing in a civil suit last spring. The lawsuit brought ordered reforms in the department's training and review policies.

"Basically the jury felt there was probably excessive force used but no willful intent (to violate civil rights)," Ohe said.

Jurors did not want to second-guess officers who were forced to decide quickly how to control the situation, Ohe said.

"If Mr. Carter had walked out of that room with a night stick or flashlight, any of the things they normally carry to protect themselves, and knocked him unconscious, nothing probably would have been heard about it," Ohe said.

On the first ballot, 10 jurors voted that the government failed to prove willful intent — a required element in criminal civil rights cases, Ohe said. Two jurors abstained but thirty minutes later made the verdict unanimous.

Dennett testified in the trial but said he knew he could not be present for the verdict.

"I was 75 percent sure it would be 'guilty.' But I knew if it were 'not guilty,' I might become a vicious person," he said.

After the trial, Carter said he thought the jury's decision was a vindication for all police officers in the country.

Dennett said he thought publicity over the trial and several civil suits against McAllen officers would deter policemen from similar incidents.

Clements says interest rate is too low on investments made by state

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says Texas should be earning more than the 11 percent interest it gets on the $2 billion it has deposited in about 1,400 banks.

have been reached.

Nevertheless, Clements was adamant that there's a better way to invest state money.

"I have consistently taken the position that we have not received and gotten the maximum yield," he said.

Clements said, if necessary, he would use his office's audit power to "dig into (the state treasurer's) records to establish a proper perspective as to what we've done in the past, what we are doing today and what we should be doing."

"This comes under the head of the state treasurer's office. This is his responsibility," said Clements.

But Weldon Horton, a division director in the treasurer's office, said the money is invested as well as it can be, considering the state law that requires the money be placed in banks.

"We're doing everything we possibly can do. Unless the statutes are changed, we can't change," said Horton.

At any time, the treasurer's office has 96 to 98 percent of the roughly $2 billion on hand invested in interest-bearing accounts, he added.

The governor, although dissatisfied with the return, said the state is earning a "significantly higher return" now than it did five years ago.

State Treasurer Warren Harding is cooperating with the task force by supplying records and data, said Clements.

The interest drawn on state money is set by the three-member State Depository Board. State Banking Commissioner

Robert Stewart, a member of the board, said any bank interested in being a depository, and willing to pay the set rate, is guaranteed by state law of getting at least $5,000.

Clements called the system "a silly way to run your cash management. It's just not good business practice."

The current rate demanded by the state is 11 percent. Stewart said the board set that rate on Nov. 23. Prior to that meeting, the rate was 14.5 percent, he said. Horton said the interest rate is determined by averaging several interest rates paid on other types of investments.

The board meets to review the rate whenever fluctuations in the economy demand a review. Stewart said. State Treasurer Warren Harding is chairman of the board. The third member is Dallas lawyer William Elliott, a Clements' appointee.

Some state officials in charge of depositing the state funds say there's nothing they can do to increase the return unless state laws are changed.

At his Thursday news conference, Clements said the state money is not drawing "the maximum rate of return that's available in the commercial market." The governor has a task force looking at investment of state funds.

Don Houseman of Dallas, task force chairman, said only preliminary work has been done and no conclusions have been reached.

Nevertheless, Clements was adamant that there's a better way to invest state money.

"I have consistently taken the position that we have not received and gotten the maximum yield," he said.

Inmates reportedly threatened

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — The wife of a prisoner slated to testify in the capital murder trial of an inmate accused of killing a warden says her husband's life has been threatened if he testifies for the defense.

"He told me that he had been threatened about his testimony and that he's on the fence, he doesn't know which way to go," Mary K. Lacy said Thursday of her husband Ben, one of 39 inmates scheduled to testify for Eroy Brown.

Brown, 31, is charged with murder in the drowning of Wallace Pack, warden of the maximum-security Ellis Unit, in a prison farm drainage ditch April 4, 1981.

Brown has testified that he killed Pack and prison farm manager Billy Max Moore in self defense after they handcuffed him and Pack pointed a gun at his head. His attorneys have contended he feared he would be tortured in an area of the farm known as "the bottoms."

On Thursday, attorney Bruce Fort was appointed by the court to represent Lacy, who is serving a nine-year term for aggravated robbery in the TDC's Ramsey Unit.

Fort also was appointed to represent 13 other inmates who are prospective witnesses and who allegedly have been threatened.

"I believe there is very real danger to these men," Fort told state District Judge Henry Dalehite, who met in his chambers with prosecutors and defense attorneys for two hours Wednesday and an hour Thursday.

Mrs. Lacy said Thursday that she spoke to her husband on the telephone Wednesday night and he told her that "if he testified in this trial the guards would get him... If he didn't testify, the inmates would get him."

Prison spokesman James Byrd denied the charges.

"We don't operate like that here," he said.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Covering Commandment.

OPINION PAGE

Experts revitalized

The AFL-CIO is bringing up one of the silliest of the old New Deal nostrums for yet another go-round, dressed up in a few trendy terms to make it seem relevant.

In a speech to the Consumer Federation of America, AFL-CIO secretary-treasurer Thomas Donahue suggested the creation of a tripartite National Reindustrial Board — including representatives of labor, business and government, which would develop a balanced program to ensure revitalization of the nation's sick industries and decaying communities, while at the same time encouraging the development of new industries with promise for the future. Donahue also wants the proposed board to direct a financing agency patterned after the old Reconstruction Finance Corp. of the 1930s, but only to make loans, of course.

The resiliency of the idea of central economic planning by some body of (presumably) superwise, omniscient and prescient paragons of virtue and knowledge is difficult to understand. Part of the appeal lies in the extraordinary power such a body would have, of course. Plenty of people would love to be able to exercise such power. But part of the appeal may lie in the fact that the present economy is so large, so unwieldy and so complex that it's difficult to get a handle on it, to understand and comprehend it. If we just had central governing body, maybe they could impose some order on that unruly thing we call the economy so we wouldn't feel so ignorant and helpless when we consider it.

For whatever reason people support the idea of central economic planning (and that's really what Donahue and other advocates of national reindustrialization, like New York investment banker Felix Rohatyn, are talking about), the idea is obviously loose again, and it may be important to recite some of the reasons it's such an unsound one.

For starters, the composition of this latest incarnation of the idea would practically assure that it would accomplish little of value. A board composed of representatives of labor, management and government would find people jockeying for position and others criticizing those on the board, with the result being a play-it-safe attitude. Can you imagine such a committee deciding, in 1950, that resources ought to be devoted to those upstart computer companies? If you can, your imagination is probably most inventive and not very closely connected to reality.

Presumably an entity devoted to lending money would have to tap taxpayer funds. If it did so, the decisions about who would get the loans would be based on political considerations rather than economic calculations, since some political body would have to assume responsibility for the disbursements. In practice, this would probably mean that organizations with the most effective lobbyists would get most of the money. It might not be impertinent to suggest that industries with the largest number of current employees (or potential voting blocs) would wield the most clout. That would probably mean more taxpayer money sunk into inefficient industrial dinosaurs.

The only way central planning board could avoid this dilemma of political clout would be to constitute itself as a dictatorial body with no accountability to the people. Even then, however, it would be susceptible to the influence of big money and big power. The opportunities for overt and covert corruption would be manifold. The truth is that the complexity of our current economy is one of the reasons it is still relatively dynamic. If the economy is to have genuine growth, it needs the flexibility to permit the occasional person with the wild idea that just might pan out to try it and see if it works. Such innovation can't be imposed from the top; it thrives on freedom and tolerance for new ideas.

The U.S. economy is not a machine that can be monitored by a group of wise seers who have been endowed with an infallible perception of the public interest, even if such people could be found. The abstraction we call "the economy" is a shorthand term for the millions of people trying to get by or excel, to make it or grab the brass ring, to find a way to live a life that is fulfilling to them. You can't predict what all those people will do, and if you try to control all their activities, to "guide" them along socially approved paths, the result will be stagnation.

Our current economic dilemma is more the result of too much central direction, than too little. Ideas like Mr. Donahue's have a certain superficial appeal. They offer the promise of a "quick fix" by turning over the responsibility for recovery to an elite group. But the promise cannot be kept.

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN
Almost everywhere in the world, the root problem is that expectations exceed resources.

In times past few countries expected to enjoy prosperity, let alone riches. Nowadays, the poor countries of the world expect to have a high living standard — as high or almost as high as that enjoyed by the United States. Americans, themselves, have come to imagine that they have a virtual right to boom times.

These expectations are bound to be crushed in the remaining years to this century. The prosperity that much of the world enjoyed in the 1960s and early 1970s — before the oil shock — was an extraordinary condition, a temporary thing.

The impact of superhigh oil prices, of course, has had a devastating effect on many countries. The United States is fortunate in that it has oil, gas and coal in great abundance. Western Europe, however, is without adequate energy resources. The imports of oil and gas have extracted billions from the European economies and slowed their growth. The anti-nuclear movement is in the process of stripping Western Europe of the alternative energy source that it desperately needs.

It is worthwhile noting, in a historical context, that Europe is paying for the loss of colonial empires and protectorates. Prior to the 1960s, Britain, France, Belgium and Portugal had ready access to energy and minerals from their overseas territories.

The ease of borrowing from the World Bank and other international financial institutions, plus an abundance of foreign aid from the United States, has led many nations to believe that there is a permanent Santa Claus. Foreign countries, like millions of Americans, are living on borrowed money. The funds continue to be pumped out. India has just received a $6 billion loan from the International Monetary Fund — over objections of the Reagan administration.

The West European countries, notably West Germany, have loaned vast sums to the Soviet Bloc. These loans make it difficult for Western Europe to stand up to the Soviets. The West is faced with bad debts on a colossal scale, as in the case of Poland.

Where trade is concerned, both the United States and the West European countries are the targets of Japanese economic offensives, and are suffering as a result. Japan stands apart from other nations as a huge economic success. This success, however, is achieved by a uniquely monolithic, disciplined society. Moreover, it is only a matter of time before other nations will call a halt to the Japanese economic incursions.

The mounting economic difficulty in all parts of the world signals a global recession. It's more than that, however; it is a sign that much of the world attempted to climb too high too fast. Expectations have to be reduced. But, it's as hard for a nation to reduce its expectations as it is for a family to reconcile itself to lower income. Still, the world today has no other choice.

Today in history

Today is Friday, Feb. 12, the 43rd day of 1982. There are 322 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Feb. 12, 1809, Abraham Lincoln was born in what was then Hardin County, Kentucky.

On this date:
In 1689, the Declaration of Rights was signed in England, proclaiming William and Mary King and Queen for life.

In 1912, the Manchu Dynasty abdicated in China, making way for the establishment of a provincial republic.

In 1974, Soviet Nobel Prize-winning writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn was arrested at his Moscow apartment.

And in 1975, Britain's Queen Elizabeth asked for a $1 million increase in her living allowance because of rising expenses.

Ten years ago: It was disclosed that a national commission on drug abuse would recommend that all criminal penalties for the private use of marijuana be eliminated.

Five years ago: President Makarios of Cyprus and local Turkish leaders announced that negotiations on the future of the divided island would resume in March.

One year ago: Poland's new prime minister, General Wojciech Jaruzelski, appealed for a 90-day moratorium on strikes to give his government time to deal with the nation's worsening economic crisis.

Today's birthdays: Actor Lorne Greene is 67. Sportscaster Joe Garagiola is 56.

Thought For Today: I claim not to have controlled events, but confess plainly that events have controlled me. — Abraham Lincoln, U.S. president (1809-1865).

Update the sex-party explosion

By D.R. SEGAL

Purely as a matter of information — and newspapers are supposed to inform their readers — I remarked recently on the proliferation of "adult" parties for women. Most writers do their best work discussing subjects on which they are profoundly ignorant and I am no exception. Knowing nothing whatever about adult parties for women, I did a neat 500 words of speculation and made some throw-away observations which I wasn't sure would get into this newspaper at all, being as how we are intensely family-oriented except in the sex-ad department of our classified section where we encourage free enterprise, yes, siree, Ron.

What was I saying? Oh, yes, about those adult parties for ladies. Well, I wrote that column, which my boss said was evidence of my lasciviousness, and now I have a letter to put on the wall, three phone calls and a Mailgram from persons who put on these "erotic" affairs. (I was advised, in each of these communications, that the parties are neither pornographic nor dirty but properly, or improperly, "erotic.") The ladies in my office have framed and hung some of the more entertaining letters I have received — none of them, I might add, are the sort one would put in a job application — and now they have another one to hang up. It is from a woman who says she will, for my edification and enjoyment, put on an "erotic" party including the services of male strippers. She misreads my orientation by 180 degrees but the point is she is willing to make an exception to what I thought was a ladies-only policy.

Another entrepreneur from Mission Viejo who said her mother reads my column (I am ages with the 80- and upwards group) called and said she is the Cadillac of exotic party-givers and she said her productions are "erotic" but not hard-core porn. She said she does carry along a few sex "devices" but she does not emphasize the mechanical aspects of erotica as some of her competitors do. She further said that she gives special parties for couples, bringing her husband along for these coeducational events.

"I wear an old-fashioned corset and net stockings," she said. I told her I felt the aging bod might not be able to stand up to such erotica and she asked if maybe the people in my neighborhood might not like to have an erotic block party. I said I couldn't speak for the others but if I were a housewife I would think it would beat the Dickens out of a Tupperware Party or visit from the Avon lady.

I found out, also, that a legal secretary does this sort of thing as a sideline, it being a welcome relief from dragging people through every court in the land. Another offer came from Los Angeles where "erotic" parties for the ladies can include "47 separate devices of interest to women."

If I were 40 years younger, this might appeal. But if I were 40 years younger, who'd need it?

We got shortchanged

By ART BUCHWALD

Did you know as an American citizen you own some of the most valuable oil and gas properties in the United States? They are located on public lands and are held in trust for you by the Department of Interior.

Did you also know that the oil companies you leased the lands to, shafted you out of an estimated $650 million dollars in oil royalties for 1981, and probably billions of dollars in previous years by underreporting how much of your oil they took out of the ground?

Were you also aware that anywhere from 2 to 6 percent of all your gas and oil was just stolen from the oil fields and tank farms, and no one has done a thing about it?

I didn't know about it until I read a recent report by a Reagan Commission which investigated fraud and mismanagement of the country's oil and gas reserves.

"What happened to my royalties?" you may be asking.

No one rightly knows, and if he or she does they're not making a big deal of it. This apparently is how the system worked. Every once in a while when someone at the Interior Department had nothing better to do, he would call up one of the oil companies which had a lease on public land and say, "What's up?"

The oil company executive would say angrily, "What are you doing, checking up on us?"

"Of course not. I was just curious how much oil and gas you were taking out of the ground?"

"We're lucky to get three cups a day," the oil company executive would reply. "It's really tough drilling on public land. You never know when you are going to hit a rock."

The Secretary was wondering if you could give him any idea how much royalties we can expect from your operation this year?"

"You mean to tell me with all the government has to do, you're bugging me for a few lousy royalty bucks? We'll tell you at the end of the year. The way things are going you could owe us money."

"Don't you have any idea how much oil and gas you hope to take out of the ground?"

"Look, when we signed your lease, you put us on the 'honor system' and made each of us responsible for our own reporting. When we know how much oil and gas we took out, we'll tell you."

"Don't get mad. We're not questioning your figures. But Congress says we're supposed to keep tabs on you people, and any figure you could give us is acceptable."

"I should hope so. The honor system is as sacred to the oil industry as it is to West Point."

"Just for my own information, how do you know how much oil and gas you take out a well?"

"It's a very complicated procedure. We have a guy who sits on a stool next to the well and he counts how much oil or gas comes out, with a pocket calculator. Then he turns those figures over to the foreman who subtracts any oil that spilled into the ground. The foreman sends these figures to the home office for verification."

"And what happens to them then?"

"The home office decides how much we should report to the government."

"That seems a fair way to do it. Are we allowed to audit your figures?"

"Sure you are, but that would mean you didn't trust us, and then the whole honor system would break down. Is that what you people want?"

"Of course not. We wouldn't be doing business with you guys if we didn't think you were honest."

"You got any questions you want to ask?"

"No, you've satisfied me. Is there anything I can do for you?"

Berry's World

Private judgement is better than that of government, report states

WASHINGTON (AP) — Years ago, a businessman joined the Cabinet and stirred an uproar by saying he'd always thought what was good for the country was good for General Motors Corp. and vice versa.

That remains the best-known utterance of Charles E. Wilson, the General Motors boss who became secretary of defense in 1953, although he often is misquoted as having put the corporation first.

President Reagan's advisers are more cautious, more scholarly and less colorful in describing the philosophy behind administration economic programs. Boiled down, it is that individuals and businesses, left alone by government in most areas, will, collectively, make decisions that are good for the country.

In an effective free market, the President's Council of Economic Advisers suggests, self-interest will lead consumers and producers to decisions that will serve the national interest.

That is broader and more refined than the remark Wilson tossed off in Senate testimony 29 years ago. But the principle is similar, and Reagan's advisers say it will work.

In its annual report to Congress, the Council of Economic Advisers cites government regulation of the marketplace as a case in point. "The best solution is to respect the judgment of the private market whenever it is available," they say.

For example, Reagan's economists say, private insurance could prove more effective in promoting job safety than government regulations. "Many government programs, such as detailed safety regulations or the provision of specific goods to the poor are best described as paternalistic," the report says.

"This administration rejects paternalism as a basis for policy. There is no reason to think that commands from government can do a better job of increasing an individual's economic welfare than the individual can by making choices himself."

The council says the most efficient form of transferring resources to the poor is in cash, rather than in food stamps, housing or medical care.

'Reds' and 'On Golden Pond' head list of Oscar hopefuls

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences is holding out second, third and even fifth chances this year to performers who have never won an Oscar, though they've come close.

Warren Beatty produced, directed, co-authored and starred in "Reds," the movie that headed the list of 1981 Academy Award hopefuls with a dozen nominations Thursday.

Beatty, whose latest role is an American journalist in revolutionary Russia, was nominated in the same four categories for the 1979 film "Heaven Can Wait." He won nothing that year.

Henry Fonda, the 76-year-old star of another best-picture nominee, "On Golden Pond," fell short of triumph in 1940 when he was nominated as best actor in "The Grapes of Wrath." The academy gave Fonda a special award last year for his 45-year Hollywood tenure.

Paul Newman's best-actor nomination for "Absence of Malice," in which he portrays a businessman victimized by the media, gives him his fifth chance for an acting Oscar. A best-picture award eluded him in 1968, when he produced "Rachel, Rachel."

Some nominees could be bolstering a collection of Oscars during the March 29 presentations at Los Angeles' Music Center — most notably Katharine Hepburn. She was recommended for best-actress honors as Fonda's wife in "On Golden Pond," which tallied 10 nominations.

The veteran actress, 74, won for acting with "Morning Glory" (1933); "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner?" (1967) and "The Lion in Winter" (1968). None of the other best-actress nominees was alive when Miss Hepburn won her first Academy Award.

Also in the best actress category are Diane Keaton for "Reds," Marsha Mason for "Only When I Laugh," Susan Sarandon for "Atlantic City" and Meryl Streep for "The French Lieutenant's Woman."

Ms. Keaton won in 1977 for "Annie Hall," while Ms. Streep took supporting actress honors for 1980's "Kramer vs. Kramer." Ms. Mason, meanwhile, is hoping her fourth nomination will be the winning one.

The other best picture nominees were "Atlantic City," in which Burt Lancaster is up for his second acting award as an aging small-time gangster, "Chariots of Fire" and "Raiders of the Lost Ark."

Another veteran, Sir John Gielgud, was nominated as best supporting actor for "Arthur," in which he played the fatherly butler to Dudley Moore's likeable if spoiled rich kid. Moore rounded out the best actor nominations.

Besides Gielgud, the supporting actor nominees are Jack Nicholson for

"Reds"; James Coco, "Only When I Laugh"; Ian Holm, "Chariots of Fire"; and Howard Rollins, "Ragtime."

Winters hospitalized

DALLAS (AP) — Shelley Winters was expected to perform at a local dinner theater tonight, after canceling Thursday night's performance and checking into Presbyterian Hospital, the theater's owner and producer says.

Nancy Debrowski, in the hospital's admissions department, confirmed that Miss Winters had checked in for "exhaustion" Thursday, but declined to release any other information.

Miss Winters, 60, a two-time Oscar winner, was starring in a five-week run of Neil Simon's "The Gingerbread Lady" at Granny's Dinner Playhouse.

The theater's producer and owner, John Wall, said Miss Winters was expected to perform tonight.

New board chairman for Freedom group

SANTA ANA, Calif. — Robert C. Hardie, publisher of the Marysville (Calif.) Appeal - Democrat, has been elected chairman of the board of directors of Freedom Newspapers Inc.

He replaces C. H. Hoiles, who died Dec. 31 after a long career with the family owned corporation, which nationwide has 31 daily newspapers, eight weekly newspapers, a shopping newspaper and a television station.

The Pampa News is one of the daily newspapers in the Freedom group.

Hardie is the son-in-law of R.C. Hoiles, the founder of Freedom Newspapers. He is married to Mary Jane Hoiles Hardie.

He also will continue as chairman of the Freedom Newspapers executive committee, a three-member group which serves as the office of the chief executive of the company.

Nondenominational Bible services are being continued in the classroom of the Pampa College of Hairdressing, 613 N. Hobart.

The hour long classes are held at 4:30 p.m. Sunday and at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday.

The public is invited to attend.

Showing a teen the door

By George R. Plagenz

Sam Levenson used to tell the story of the wayward adolescent whose parents finally got fed up with him. The boy came home from school one day and discovered his parents had moved.

That is a funny story. What is not so funny is that the story is also real. It happens — in countless homes across the country.

Not in the way Levenson told it in his story. But the result is the same: Children are ejected from home by their parents and are told not to return — at least not until they have given up their destructive lifestyle.

What shall we think of such parents?

Judging from a story (and the feedback from it) in U.S. Catholic magazine, we should think well of these parents.

Almost 85 percent of those who were polled after reading the article checked "agree" to the statement, "I think there are times when parents should throw a child out of the house."

Asked whether they agree or disagree with the statement, "I would rather evict a child with a disruptive lifestyle than risk spreading that lifestyle to other children in the family," nearly 80 percent said they agree.

These people were reacting to an article by Tom Blackburn in U.S. Catholic.

"You don't throw the rebellious child out... while patience and understanding still have a chance," says Blackburn. "Eviction should come when, day after day, there are explosions caused by the offender... and the chain reactions take toll on everyone in the family. They weaken the bond between husband and wife and begin to affect other children in the family."

"It is not that everyone is angry at everyone else but that everyone is too frustrated and worn down by the offender to maintain family intimacy."

As I have pointed out, most people responding to Blackburn's article lined up on his side. But some readers were not so sure Blackburn is right.

One woman from Holland, Mich., looking back on her own troublesome teen-age years, said, "My relatives told my parents to throw me out. They didn't. Throwing a teen-ager out will not lessen his desire for drugs and alcohol. It may make him more bitter than before."

A Baltimore mother said, "Even though I agree that parents shouldn't feel guilty about asking a child to leave, I don't know if I could really do it. I feel that as long as they come at night, at least for that period of time I know they are all right."

Blackburn says that an ejected child should not be rejected — that the door must always be left open for the young person to return when he changes his ways.

But one father said, "Even if a child later straightens up his act, he may find the path home blocked by his feeling of unjust rejection."

I was surprised to see how many people are in favor of evicting a child who is disrupting the family life. No doubt they would all say, with Blackburn, that the step should be taken only when "patience and understanding" no longer have a chance of resolving the problem. But who knows when that point has been reached?

It is of course the same with the decision of whether or not to get divorced. A marriage counselor told me once that some rocky marriages are intolerable and should be dissolved. Others are not intolerable and could be saved. The trick is to know the difference.

Most parents of rebellious teen-agers have known the feeling at times of "wanting to show them the door." Others have reached the point where they opened the door and boot-ed them out.

It would be instructive to know whether these parents 10 or 15 years later, believe they did the right thing. It would also be instructive to know how the ejected children feel 10 or 15 years later. Did it shock them into making a change in their lifestyle? Did they later reconcile with their family? Or did they go from bad to worse?

I am inclined to agree with the plant foreman who read the Blackburn article and then responded by saying, "We hire a lot of teens, mostly around 16 years old. I am amazed at how many have been kicked out of the home. It does more damage than good."

Religion roundup

NEW YORK (AP) — The head of the Greek Orthodox Church in the Americas says that a federal judge's recent prohibition of teaching "creation science" in public schools is a "form of censorship that enslaves Americans."

Archbishop Iakovos says the decision of Judge William Overton in Arkansas threatens to prevent "free citizens from studying all possible theories and ideas on the origin of life and the development of life in our universe."

"Academic freedom cannot be curtailed to exclude any single theory on the origin of life. Discussion and debate on this vital topic in the classrooms of our country should be the right of every American citizen."

Calling the ruling "another veiled attack against religion and a distorted understanding of the separation of church and state," he says "you can experience the same thing in the Soviet Union."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher postage rates recently imposed on non-profit mail "threatens the stability and very existence" of religious and other non-profit publishers, says the general secretary of the U.S. Catholic Conference.

Archbishop Thomas C. Kelly says "the practical effect of these huge new postage increases is to deliver a major blow to the religious press in the United States to speak its mind and message."

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A noted Bible scholar, the Rev. Roy Lee Honeycutt, has been elected president of Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, the denomination's flagship ministerial training center, replacing the Rev. Duke K. McCall, who has retired after 30 years service to the institution.

CHEVY CHASE, Md. (AP) — About 250 participants in a National Council of Churches consultation on immigrants and refugees has called for asylum for Salvadoran refugees and an end to U.S. military and economic aid to the ruling junta there.

The meeting also asked "immediate cessation" of U.S. interception of boats of refugees from Haiti on the high seas and urged that Haitian "boat people" be given permission to stay and work pending legislation providing for it.

NEW YORK (AP) — The head of the National Council of Young Israel, an Orthodox Jewish organization, has assailed a decision by Reform Judaism to seek converts, but not among those already religiously affiliated.

Harold N. Jacobs says Jews who have embraced other faiths are "our brethren in bondage" who have "strayed out of ignorance" and "we must attempt to win them back for their own sakes as well as ours."

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A new hymnal of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, called "Lutheran Worship," has been issued, with a first printing of 200,000, about 100,000 of them already shipped to congregations placing orders.

The book is the result of a 1979 church decision to publish its own hymnal because of doctrinal objections to a recently produced inter-Lutheran hymnal, "The Lutheran Book of Worship."

IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

Against the Sea

Have you ever wandered idly along a sandy ocean beach or the rocky shore of a lake and come upon the battered hull of an old boat? Perhaps the bottom has been smashed in or the sides leak so badly that probably the repairs would cost far more than the old boat is worth. So it is left to rot; abandoned to the merciless pounding of the wind whipped surf and the constant destruction of the surging water. Let us consider for a moment how many people of our acquaintance have, through their own choice, made their lives very much like this old boat. They have let the destructive waters of malice and greed eat away at their hearts and minds until their lives have become as worthless as this rotting hull. And yet, God in His Infinite Mercy will not let man be abandoned. There is no measure of His forgiveness if we but acknowledge that He is our Father and we are His children. There is no life that He considers worthless or beyond repair. Begin now to attend the church of your choice regularly... for through the church you will know of everlasting life.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Business inventories too high

By The Associated Press
Businesses gained ground in their struggle to reduce stocks of unsold goods in December, the Commerce Department reports. But private economists said inventories were still too high for the depressed level of sales.

monetary policy, pressed Congress to reduce Reagan's proposed deficits by billions or face the prospect of an aborted economic recovery.

administration's estimate of a $91.5 billion deficit for 1983 "will be significantly surpassed."

And on Wall Street much the same sentiment could be heard. Salomon Brothers, an investment firm, said in a report Thursday that the

Despite the criticism, Reagan has vowed to stick with the budget he formally submitted to Congress this week.

The department said inventories fell 0.4 percent from the previous month, the first such decline since the recession year of 1975. But sales also fell, by 0.6 percent. That left the ratio of inventories to sales at 1.49, meaning it would take about 1 1/2 months to sell the current inventory backlog at December's sales rate.

The inventory decline "was good in that it means the correction was under way," said Otto Eckstein, president of Data Resources Inc., an economic research firm in Lexington, Mass. "But the decline wasn't anywhere near enough to straighten out the situation. It's got quite a way to go."

The recession, in addition to squeezing businesses, is complicating the Reagan administration's efforts to reduce the size of the budget deficit.

Republican leaders told President Reagan on Thursday of lagging support in Congress for his budget proposal that includes huge deficits through 1984.

Republican leaders, including Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, told Reagan his $757 billion spending plan for the fiscal year that starts Oct. 1 simply won't fly so long as it includes deficits approaching $100 billion.

Criticism of the deficits has come from many corners. On Thursday, Paul Volcker, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board that implements the nation's

HAUTE COUTURE BY PER SPOOK. In a preview of Norwegian fashion designer Per Spook's 1982 spring - summer collection, two models display his outfits in Paris Monday. At left is a woolen design - a black short jacket with a square neckline worn over a white skirt with knife pleats at the side on large squares, along with a black flax blouse with a square neckline and a Panama hat. At right is a sweater outfit in printed silk, three-quarter length sleeves and crew neck, worn over black flax pants. (AP Laserphoto)

Dear Abby

Grandpa builds bridge over generation gap

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My son at age 21 got a young girl pregnant and wanted no part of marriage. A baby boy was born (I'll call him Andy). Because I myself had been an abandoned child, I didn't want Andy going through life looking for a father as I had done, so since I was a widower I took the young unmarried girl and Andy into my home to live with me.

Although the girl was only 18 and I was 42, our love grew, and we have lived together as a family ever since. She has been a wonderful mother to my grandchild, who is 9 now and thinks I am his father. The girl has been as faithful as a wife to me although we never married.

My son is very irresponsible and has no interest in Andy, who thinks his father is his "brother." Abby, should I tell Andy the truth about who he is? His mother doesn't want him to know because she's afraid it might upset him. I'm thinking about marrying Andy's mother and adopting the boy so he will be my legitimate son even though a marriage now would be awkward because everybody (friends and neighbors) thinks we're married. Thank you for any advice you can give me.

WITHHOLD MY NAME

DEAR WITHHOLD: If you and Andy's mother love each other, a quiet wedding would seem appropriate. Adopt Andy, and at a later date when he can handle the story of "who he is," tell him.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been divorced for a year. When we started having problems, we went to a marriage counselor in an effort to save our marriage for the sake of our children.

During this time I told my parents what was going on, and I told my husband to tell his parents. He refused to tell them, so they heard it from strangers and now they are blaming me.

His parents say that had they known we were considering divorce and needed counseling, they could have talked some sense into our heads and saved our marriage. I don't happen to agree with them, do you?

I still think it was my husband's place to tell his parents, and under no circumstances should we have turned to them for counseling. I would appreciate your views.

IRRECONCILABLE DIFFERENCES

DEAR DIFFERENCES: I agree. It was your husband's place to tell his parents. And regardless of how well-meaning parents are, they lack the objectivity required to mediate the domestic differences of their children.

DEAR ABBY: Most people, upon being introduced to someone, will say, "I am very pleased to meet you," or words to that effect. When parting, these same individuals will probably say, "I hope we meet again."

I realize these statements are merely a part of our social ritual and make us feel more comfortable than enduring total silence.

However, these statements are usually phony, hypocritical and even downright lies.

Do you have some recommended replacements?
A MEETER OF PEOPLE

DEAR MEETER: If your commitment to total integrity does not permit you to utter anything that is not absolutely sincere, upon being introduced to someone whom you are not particularly pleased to meet, simply say "Hello."

And when you depart, with no desire to see that person again, say "Goodbye."

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

At Wit's End

As a native Midwesterner, I am always amused by the ads for winter styles that appear in slick magazines.

I saw one the other day that pictured a young woman with 35 pounds of hair in flight. Her coat flapped open to reveal a matching skirt that reached mid-calf and accentuated her crushed velour boots. Her cute driving gloves dangled from her pockets. She was smiling. The headline over the picture read, "MEET WINTER HEAD-ON! THINK CRUISE!"

There was no doubt in my mind the entire ad agency shot this after a five-martini lunch.

Let's talk winter.

To begin with, no one in his right mind smiles in the winter. If God had wanted us to smile when the chill factor reaches 45 below, He would have given us lips long enough to cover our gums.

As for "THINK CRUISE," the reason the people on the Love Boat are able to sustain themselves during the Alaska trip is because of their overactive sex lives.

The winter styles in the Midwest, to my knowledge, have never been photographed. Hairs that freeze in your nose and drip are not a pretty sight.

Imagine, if you will, that the temperature is nine degrees below zero. The car has gone into deep sleep and will not awaken until spring. The milk freezes between the time the milkman takes it from the truck and puts it in your hands. The windows are covered with frost. The dog, who has kidneys the size of lentils, refuses to go out and pretends he is dead. And for the first time in 15 years everyone stays in the kitchen at the end of the meal.

Let's talk winter fashions.

For Bedtime: The layered look. Pajama bottoms from the Goodwill bag, topped by a long-sleeved flannel gown and cardigan sweater without buttons. Purple and gold knee socks with hot-water-bottle soles.

Costume for Taking Garbage Cans: White boots with Muppets pictured on side, army fatigue jacket from hall closet, afghan worn casually over head and face and two mismatched socks form wear worn on hands.

For those Special At-Home Evenings by the Fire: Thermal underwear, topped by jeans, turtleneck sweater and windbreaker, set off by fleece-lined balls of the feet and a dog on the lap. All of this is topped off by a ski mask and a body sack zipped to the chin.

Now we're talking winter!

Dental Health

Oral hygiene for the disabled

This is the third in a series of articles on dental health published in observance of National Children's Dental Health Month.

Our son has cerebral palsy. Where can take him to have his teeth checked?

Because of other pressing health care needs, the oral health care of the disabled is often sadly neglected. For some, dental problems may be related to their disability; for all, neglect of oral hygiene intensifies the problems of social acceptance, self-esteem, and overall health.

Today, programs are springing up all across the country to make dental care more accessible to disabled persons to teach dentists to treat them. In looking for a dentist for your son, check first with your own dentist. Many (20 - 25 percent) are willing and equipped to treat disabled patients, and often their offices are accessible to wheelchair patients. You also can contact your local and state dental societies. Many societies list area dentists who care for hospital clinics specializing in treatment of the disabled. Other sources of information include the dental schools in your state, the American Dental Association, the Dental Guidance Council for Cerebral Palsy, the National Foundation of Dentistry for the Handicapped, and the Academy of Dentistry for the Handicapped.

As your dentist will tell you, the health of your son's teeth will ultimately depend on the care he received at home.

Fluoride, sound nutrition and regular cleaning are the cornerstone of care. Even simple techniques like brushing and flossing can be difficult for the handicapped person. And electric toothbrush may be easier for you to use to handle or a regular toothbrush can be adapted for easier use in one of the following ways:

- Enlarged the handle with a sponge, rubber ball, bike handle grip or similar item.
- Attach the brush to the hand with a wide elastic or velcro band or with a fingernail brush handle bonded to the toothbrush.
- Bend the brush handle after warming it under hot tap water for a minute.
- Lengthen the handle with a piece of wood or plastic to aid those with limited shoulder movement.

Manipulating dental floss is a difficult skill even for the non-handicapped. A commercial floss holder can be a valuable aid for the disabled or anyone with limited manual dexterity.

Dr. Lamb

Misunderstood blood types

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband and I have O positive blood. We just found out our son has O negative blood. All were under the impression that this could not happen. He has been checked twice in the service — no mistake.

The grandparents have O negative blood. I need your answer. I am getting a lot of questions around here that I don't like and they are completely unfounded. He was born in a foreign hospital and there was not much chance of a mistake in babies.

DEAR READER — Relax! Of course it can happen and does. This is not the first time I have been told of family problems arising from misunderstanding blood types.

You can understand this better when you remember that there are two genes for most of our body traits. That includes whether you are Rh negative or Rh positive. One gene is dominant and determines which characteristic will be dominant. When you say you and your husband are Rh positive that means only that each of you have one dominant gene that is responsible for your being Rh positive. The weaker gene in both of you is undoubtedly Rh negative. With that combination you both check out as Rh positive.

Your son inherited one gene from each of you — evidently the weaker gene for Rh factor but it gives him two genes that give him the blood type Rh negative. This explains how two Rh positive parents can have an Rh negative offspring.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-4, Blood Type, Rh Factor and Transfusions. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Many teen-agers feel pressured by their friends and schoolmates to "go on the pill and go all the way." I feel sick about it but can only ask for your professional advice. Please outline the risks these girls are taking and how such medication can affect them, aside from the moral aspects.

DEAR READER — From the standpoint of biological risk, one of the greatest risks is not from the pill but the sexual freedom that the pill encourages. None of the pills prevent venereal disease. None will prevent herpes simplex, sometimes called genital herpes, a virus disease. Herpes simplex is spread by physical contact. The rate is already very high in our society. A woman with herpes may have problems with any future pregnancies, by that I mean the baby may be damaged.

The male does not escape either as he may develop recurring genital herpes.

Gonorrhea may cause permanent sterility in the female from inflammation and scarring of the delicate tubes that must transmit the ovum for pregnancy.

Finally, there is the long list of things that can happen, but are not that frequent, as a complication of the pill. These include blood clots, migraine headaches, weight gain, strokes, a minor increased risk of heart attacks and perhaps as yet poorly understood disturbances in hormone balance and high blood pressure.

The more people a person has sex with the more likely he or she is to develop sexually transmitted diseases. It is not just how often but with how many.

You are likely to be more adventurous and daring this coming year than you have ever been in the past. Exciting times are ahead in which you'll feel impelled to explore new horizons.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If things don't start off too well early in the day, ask yourself if it's because you're repeating unproductive procedures. Don't duplicate old mistakes. Predictions of what's in store for you in each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your new Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 469, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone of whom you're quite fond could do something today which may hurt your feelings. Rather than dwell on it, be the one who forgives even though it wasn't your fault.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your initial tendency today may be to dodge difficult decisions, but when you meet situations head-on, you'll find adequate solutions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Coworkers may be a trifle difficult to get along with today, but if you keep in mind your collective goals the rough spots can be smoothed over.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your loved one may not live up to your expectations today. Rather than making an issue of what occurs, strive to be understanding and forgiving.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You and your mate may not see eye-to-eye on several important issues today. Should a rift occur, try to patch things up later with a little peace offering.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Even though you will be able to see others' frailties today, try to overlook their shortcomings. Praise them in terms designed to awaken their better qualities.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try to be very discerning today regarding how you spend your money. If possible, eliminate all nonessentials. Buy only what is necessary.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In involvements with outsiders today, you'll do all the right things to win their approval. When dealing with family members, you may not exude the same warmth.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Early in the day you could restrict your progress because you may have predetermined that what you've planned won't work out. Later, your attitude will brighten.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There's a possibility you'll permit your hopes to be overshadowed by pessimism today in areas relating to your security. Don't. You can withstand adversity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Important goals are achievable today, but they may not come about as you first plan. You'll find ways to accomplish your purpose despite setbacks.

SPEAKING OF SOAPS

by Mary Ann Cooper

"As the World Turns," once featured actor JAMES NOBLE, currently seen as Governor Galling on "Benson."

There's been so much written lately about people who used to be in soaps it almost seems that every prominent performer has had a sudsy past. Two prime time stars, that have extensive backgrounds in soaps, are James Noble who plays the governor in "Benson," and Franklin Cover who plays Tom Willis on "The Jeffersons." Noble's face has become so well known and loved that when he did a commercial recently for the L.A. County Animal Shelter, requests for placement of pets have doubled. James remembers well the days of live soap opera and though he can laugh now at the horrifying experiences of those days, he still prefers his theater and taped television work.

Franklin Cover, likewise, is a seasoned veteran of many soaps including "Edge of Night," "Love of Life," "The Doctors," "The Secret Storm," and "All My Children." He was recently seen as President Herbert Hoover in NBC's movie, "The Day the Bubble Burst." Later, in the spring, he'll be seen portraying Hubert Humphrey in "A Woman Named Golda," for Prime Time. For the role, Cover traveled to Israel. Cover is no stranger to political roles, he once played Franklin Roosevelt on stage in "Sunrise at Campobello." Despite the fact that Cover studied Humphrey's style and turned in an uncanny performance, Cover's own mother was very unimpressed. It seems after playing Roosevelt, she thought playing Humphrey was a step down for his career.

Finally, coming up this fall is a prime time special entitled "Salute to Daytime Drama." It promises to be the "That's Entertainment" of soap opera utilizing clips collected from 30 years of television soap operas. There'll be clips of such prime time notables as Larry Hagman, Warren Beatty, Dustin Hoffman and Ellen Burstyn.

Now a look at what's been happening and what will happen on all afternoon dramas.

AS THE WORLD TURNS — Tom and Margot are pursuing Mr. Big. Lila makes up her mind about Bob but he's not so sure about her. Stan and James work out a new game plan. Carol won't listen to reason and wants to go ahead with the divorce.

THE GUIDING LIGHT — Nola's back at the mansion with Leslie Ann at her side. Kelly reprimands Morgan for being immature. Katie advises Hillary to keep her mind on Derek and forget about Kelly.

Mike continues his search for Rita. Josh flirts with Morgan while Tim waits in the wings.

SEARCH FOR TOMORROW — The Hong Kong Killer stalks the Sentells. Peter uses Stephanie to advance his information about the project and its people. Stephanie tries to convince Wendy not to live on her own.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS — Greg can't hide his feelings for Chris. Snapper is too wrapped up in Sally and Chuckie to realize how lonely and unhappy Chris is. Lance is beginning to have his doubts about his relationship with Lorie. Liz lectures Greg about his feelings for Chris.

RYAN'S HOPE — Jane goes to New Jersey and meets Charlie, a man from her past. Charlie asks about Ox and she tells him that she left him because he was running around. Joe and Yvonne get friendlier and Delia gets jealous. Roger asks Jane to marry him. Jane is shocked when she sees a mystery man at Charlie's. Faith is slipped a mickey to make it look like the curse is at work.

THIS WEEK: Jill investigates her past. Delia strikes back. ALL MY CHILDREN — In Switzerland, Palmer schemes to show Donna that Chuck is having a good time with another woman. Brooke walks out on Tom and seeks advice from a priest. Opal and Jenny return and Greg is very happy. Opal tells Jenny that Jenny is responsible for supporting the family now that she's lost her job.

THIS WEEK: Tom becomes harder to live with. Phoebe gives Brooke some advice. ONE LIFE TO LIVE — Tony tells Viki that he must have the land to mine a precious mineral that will help ease the energy crisis. Ivan observes Larry after he alters his personality by accentuating his evil nature and suppressing his finer points. Marco realizes that Brad stole Sam's diamond and agrees to keep quiet if Brad keeps his mouth shut about the baby switch.

THIS WEEK: Will pressures Brad. Viki considers Tony's plan. GENERAL HOSPITAL — Ann suspects the Bradshaw made a mistake when operating on Rudy. Noah disagrees but asks Bradshaw to slow down a bit. Jessie suggests that Audrey call Steve. When he comes home they kiss and make up. Monica is concerned about Alan's mental health. Scorpio and Jackie discover that Laura T. had been dating Mel. During a chase scene Jackie slips off a bridge and is hanging by her fingers. Heather sneaks into Steve's office to look at Dr. Katz's files.

THIS WEEK: Ann makes some waves and risks her own reputation. Luke plays the hero.

ANOTHER WORLD — Di and Peter decide to elope. Sam Egan, Max's rival, agrees to publish Jamie's novel. Rick and Mary Ann leave Bay City. Melissa gets angry at Jason and plans to leave town. Bob Horgan is shot in the arm and chest, but calls Quinn to come to the hospital instead of his wife.

THIS WEEK: Julia starts her job at Corey Publishing. Cecile is not through with Sandy yet. EDGE OF NIGHT — At Sky's funeral a mysterious woman shows up to pay her condolences. Miles finds out that Nicole told Derek that Jinx is terminally ill. Jinx is in bed with a bottle of empty sleeping pills close at hand. Raven refuses to believe that Sky was about to murder her.

THIS WEEK: Miles rushes to save Jinx. Spencer worries about what Nora may know. THE DOCTORS — Billy receives threatening notes demanding that he leave town. Phillip promises Mona he will get Billy a good job at the bank. Alpha tells Billy he should stop seeing Lee Ann because he upsets her so much. Natalie's apartment has been ransacked.

THIS WEEK: Carolee accepts the job as head nurse. MJ and Mike renew their relationship. TEXAS — Mr. H threatens Ashley that he will harm Gregory if she takes any of her inheritance money out of his business. Mr. H gets Myles out of jail hoping Myles will lead him to the fire compass. Lurlene starts copying down the inscriptions on the fire compass. A body is found and Brett is worried it may be Myles.

THIS WEEK: Alicia tries to get closer to Rikki. Paige wonders what's going on between Ashley and Mr. H. DAYS OF OUR LIVES — Lee worries that Renee is getting too attached to the Count. Stefano wants Doug's Place but Doug refuses to let it go. At the custody hearing Mickey and Maggie are made to look like irresponsible parents. Lee tells Marlena that she is Renee's mother. Julie finds Stewart's ledger which contains all his nasty dealings and she turns it over to Don. THIS WEEK: The Count pressures Lee to tell him what she is hiding. Mickey and Maggie fight back.

PRIME TIME CORNER

Let's take a peek at what happened last week on Two prime time soaps. DALLAS — J.R. tries to convince Donna the only way to save her marriage is to persuade Ray to give his ten voting shares to J.R., thereby severing his ties to the Ewings. Ray arrives home and panics when he thinks Donna has left him because some of her clothes are missing. He discovers a note saying she's out of town researching the book.

FLAMINGO ROAD — Michael Tyrone, with the aid of Sheriff Semple, arranges a devastating explosion at the Clarion Office when Skipper persists in writing editorials not favorable to gambling interests. The flip side of Michael Tyrone — romantic and charming — surfaces as he courts Lute-Mae, influencing her with his wealth and power; and Lane and Sam make plans to marry.

Harvesters visit Tascosa tonight

Pampa is hoping Tascosa will be a gracious host Friday night.

Gracious enough to give the Harvesters a win that put them halfway there for the overall District 3-5A title.

Pampa coach Garland Nichols knows it won't be a give-away.

"It's going to be a tough ballgame," Nichols said. "If the kids don't play well they're going to get beat. We're just going to go out and play our type of ballgame."

Both clubs enter the contest with 1-0 second-half marks. Pampa, which won the first-half crown, is 23-3 overall while Tascosa is 19-6.

Pampa ended Tascosa's nine-game winning streak in the first meeting with a 79-72 victory in Harvester Fieldhouse.

The Harvesters led by as much as 16 points the first half and then had to hold off Rebel rallies in the second half.

Mike Nelson, Charles Nelson and Terry Faggins accounted for 70 of Pampa's points. Charles tossed in 28 points while Mike and Faggins had 22 and 20 points respectively.

James Dawn, a 6-3 forward, and Reggie Lee, a 5-8 guard, were a formidable 1-2 scoring punch against the Harvesters. Dawn tossed in 25 points while Lee hit for 23.

Pampa opened the second-half of district play Tuesday night with a 64-37 win over Caprock.

Tascosa outlasted Palo Duro, 66-62, Tuesday night with Dawn scoring 25 points.

Amarillo High hosts Caprock in the other district game Friday night.

Pampa's junior varsity squad is 13-8 overall and 0-1 in second-half district play. They finished the first district play with a 3-1 record, second to Amarillo High junior varsity's 4-0 mark.

In junior varsity action Tuesday night, Caprock handed Pampa a 69-64 setback.

Tony Morgan and Galon Faggins led the Shockers with 11 and 10 points respectively.

Pampa High golf team entered in tournament

ODESSA—Pampa opened the golf season Thursday in the Odessa Invitational, placing 14th after the first 18 holes of the 23-team meet.

Pampa shot a 352, only one stroke behind Tascosa. Dennis Mashburn led the Harvesters with an 84, followed by Paul McIntire 89, Cliff Baker 88, and Derik Dalton 91.

Ablene Cooper grabbed a 5-stroke lead with a 315.

The tournament concludes today as play for the final 18 holes started at 9 a.m.

Second-half rally falls short for Pampa girls

Hampered by a poor first half, Pampa's Lady Harvesters dropped a 36-31 decision to Tascosa Thursday night in a District 3-5A girls' game.

Pampa's record is 4-24 overall and 0-3 in second-half district play.

Pampa fell behind 35-9 at halftime.

"We just couldn't get anything going either offensively or defensively," Pampa coach Jerry Johnson said.

Pampa turned things around the second half, outscoring Tascosa, 22-13, but time ran out on the Lady Harvesters.

"We came out the second half and were more aggressive on both the offensive and defensive boards," Johnson said.

Pampa used a sagging defense to limit Tascosa's high-scoring Nettie Gilbreath to only seven points, including only one field goal. Gilbreath was averaging 22 points per game in district games.

Keva Richardson and Debi Young had 10 points apiece for the Lady Harvesters while Trecea George had five, Melissa Reed and Whitney Kidwell, three points apiece.

Richardson pulled down 14 rebounds while Young had 10.

The Lady Harvesters close out their season Tuesday night at Palo Duro.

Decker is star attraction at Millrose Games

NEW YORK (AP) — Most track and field athletes in tonight's 75th Wanamaker Millrose Games at Madison Square Garden will be shooting to break one record. Mary Decker will be trying for two — in the same race.

The 23-year-old Decker burst into world-class prominence nine years ago as a pig-tailed 14-year-old by winning a 1,000-yard race with a world indoor best time at Los Angeles after being told by a meet official she was too young to compete.

Now, she holds most women's indoor distance records, including three she has set this season — 4 minutes, 24.6 seconds for the mile, 5:53.4 for 2,000 meters and 8:47.3 for 3,000 meters.

Tonight, she is entered in the women's mile, a race in which she also will be timed for 1,500 meters.

In 1980, Decker, cheered by a capacity crowd of about 18,000, set the world indoor best of 4:00.8 for the 1,500 in the Millrose Games.

"The crowd support throughout the race and the reaction to the record proved to me that it was not impossible for a women's race to be taken seriously," said Decker, a strong proponent of women's athletics.

"Friday...I expect the crowd will react just as well or better."

The 1,500 has been changed to the mile strictly because of Decker.

"She asked for it (the switch) early," explained meet director Howard Schmertz.

Schmertz also said, when he was asked if the 1982 Millrose Games would be better than last year's meet, "Yes, because Mary Decker will be back."

Decker missed last year's meet because of shin splints, which required surgery. This year, she has been healthy, and "chasing what I did in 1980, chasing the times I ran then."

Reggie still has selling power

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

The shift from Yankee pinstripes to an Angel halo hasn't blunted the selling power of Reggie Jackson.

Reggie can still sell Reggie.

Home run slugger, actor, sportscaster, car collector, TV commercial shill and notorious "straw which stirs the drink," this rugged, forceful personality remains baseball's most marketable commodity.

Reggie swept through New York Thursday en route from his Carmel, Calif., auto ranch to Key Biscayne, Fla., for a network broadcasting assignment, taking time out only to launch a unique ancillary career.

While publisher Bob Guccione and one of his centerfold models looked on, Reggie signed a contract to become Automotive Editor for Penthouse. Guccione's international girlie magazine.

Jackson will author approximately half-a-dozen times over a year's period.

The contract reportedly hit six figures. Reggie becomes a DH for grand prix ace Sterling Moss.

When reporters at a midday news conference tried to move Jackson into some baseball talk, Reggie brought them up short with the admonition:

"I'm here to talk cars. When I'm through, maybe I can answer your other questions, if you can find me."

While in high school in Wyncote, Pa., outside Philadelphia, Reggie said many of the kids had cars which he envied.

"I couldn't afford a car, but they let me work on them," he said. "I could take them apart and put them together again. I could rebuild transmissions."

"Some day, maybe when my baseball career is over, I will race as a hobby like Paul Newman."

Reggie said the first car he ever owned was a 1955 Chevy which he still has and nurtures as he would a son.

Every two years he gives it a complete facelift.

He rarely bought cars. He traded for them. In 1971, he swapped a color TV and $300 for a 1940 Chevrolet.

Over the years, his motorized stable has expanded until he now owns 47 cars, many of them rare antiques with a value of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Templeton traded to Cardinals for Smith

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Putting his problems at St. Louis behind him, Garry Templeton has set three goals for his first season with the San Diego Padres.

"I'm looking forward to winning the batting title and to stealing 60 bases. I also want to make the All-Star team," Templeton said Thursday when introduced to the San Diego media.

Templeton, 25, said he welcomed the trade that sent Ozzie Smith, a slick-fielding, but light-hitting shortstop, to St. Louis.

"It's like starting over," said Templeton, who was strapped with personal and on-the-field problems in recent years at St. Louis.

In response to questioning,

Templeton blamed his erratic behavior with the Cardinals on a chemical imbalance that has been corrected by medical treatment.

"All of that is behind me. I'm looking to some great years in San Diego," he said.

With a clean start, he's confident he can form a new following in San Diego.

"The Cardinals are getting a hell of a player in Ozzie. I know how popular he was here.

West Virginia rallies for win

By The Associated Press

West Virginia pressed — and cleaned — Duquesne Thursday night while Tulsa and Baylor faced overtime pressure, with opposite results.

The 11th-ranked Mountaineers found themselves in the unaccustomed position of trailing in the first half, down by seven points, when Coach Gale Catlett ordered a full-court press. It flattened the Dukes' offense as West Virginia outscored them 32-10 and cruised to a 90-75 victory and the Eastern Eight Conference championship.

Phil Spradling's 20 points — six in overtime — helped seventh-ranked Tulsa turn back Illinois State 78-67 in the Missouri Valley Conference, while Terry Teagle's 36 points — four in overtime — and James Stern's block of a Ricky Norton shot with three seconds to go in the extra period gave Baylor a 56-55 Southwest Conference upset of eighth-ranked Arkansas.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 2 North Carolina edged Maryland 59-56, fifth-ranked Iowa whipped Northwestern 62-49, ninth-ranked Minnesota downed Wisconsin 71-60, No. 17 San Francisco nipped St. Mary's 78-77, and 18th-ranked Fresno State beat Long Beach State 54-45.

"I think the key to our game was our full-court press. After we got it going, things really went our way," Catlett said after the Mountaineers, 20-1 with 18 consecutive victories, gave their coach his 200th career win.

The press clearly gave the Dukes fits. They turned the ball over 27 times. "They got some steals and the momentum went with them," said Duquesne Coach Mike Rice. "They were able to change the complexion of the game completely with the press. They're good enough to change, to do what's needed to win. That's what makes a great team."

Greg Jones scored 14 of his 19 points in the first half. Russel Todd, Lester Rowe and Michael King each scored 15. Bruce Atkins had 18 for Duquesne.

The Top Ten

North Carolina's Matt Doherty scored a team-high 18 points, the final two on foul shots with three seconds to play that short-circuited Maryland's bid for an Atlantic Coast Conference upset of the Tar Heels.

James Worthy had four points — the first two thanks to a goaltending call against the Terrapins with 34 seconds remaining, the next two on free throws with 13 seconds left — to keep the Tar Heels in front of Maryland.

And after Terrapin scoring leader Adrian Branch got the final two of his 20 points with seven seconds left, Doherty wrapped up the victory that put North Carolina's record at 19-2.

Kenny Arnold, whose layup in the closing seconds beat Northwestern three weeks ago, halted a Northwestern rally with six points — a field goal and four free throws — midway in the second half and sparked Iowa to its victory. Arnold and Michael Payne scored 14 points each for the Hawkeyes, 18-2.

After Tulsa and Illinois State wound up regulation play at 60-60, Spradling's two long-range baskets gave the Hurricane an overtime lead they never relinquished. Greg Stewart, who had 17 points, hit four straight free throws and Tulsa, 17-3, scored 10 points in the final minute to win.

No player had ever scored 36 points against an Eddie Sutton-coached Arkansas team until Teagle did it. "It was a sensational performance... just unbelievable," said Sutton.

"We tried to deny him the ball but we just couldn't do it. He's a money player. He hit everything," Darrell Walker led Arkansas with 15 points, but Razorbacks failed to win when he missed a short jumper with two seconds to go in regulation.

Bears edge Arkansas in overtime

WACO, Texas (AP) — That good ole Baylor haunted basketball house — the Heart 'O Texas Coliseum — brought down another Top 10 team Thursday night.

With senior Terry Teagle dazzling three pro scouts, a crowd of 9,600 fans, and Eddie Sutton himself, the Bears bounced the No. 8 ranked Razorbacks 56-55 in overtime.

Arkansas shouldn't feel bad. It happened to Texas when the Longhorns were No. 5-ranked. They lost the game and forward Mike Wacker for the year with an injury.

Texas A&M, leading the Southwest Conference at the time, had to sit through a two-hour power-failure delay and tumbled.

Teagle, hitting 17 of 23 points including 8 in a row at one stretch, scored 36 points against the Razorbacks.

It was the most points allowed by a Sutton-coached Razorback team since Texas Tech's Rick Bullock hit 44 against the 'Hogs in the 1976 SWC post-season tournament.

"It was a sensational performance by Teagle," said Sutton. "He is not only one of the great players in this conference but in the country."

"In the first half, he was hitting some unbelievable shots. He just hit everything he threw up. We were trying to deny him the ball but didn't do a good job."

The loss dropped the SWC-leading Razorbacks to 17-4 for the year and 8-3 in the league, a game ahead of Texas A&M.

Baylor jumped to 14-8 and 7-5 for the season, good for a third place tie with Texas Christian.

Bear Coach Jim Haller said "This was as fantastic a game as I've ever been a part of. Teagle was fantastic. He has been all year."

Haller said the Bears beat an Arkansas team that was better than last year's conference championship team.

"It's not even close... Arkansas is so much better," said Haller. "This was simply the best defensive effort I've ever seen my team play."

Arkansas was led by Darrell Walker, who scored 15 points, and Scott Hastings, who had 14 before he fouled out early in overtime.

Freshman James Stern of Waxahachie blocked a last-second shot by guard Ricky Norton that could have given the Razorbacks the victory.

"I had to do something," said Stern. "I missed two one-and-one front end attempts... real bricks. I had to help."

Sutton said "We knew it was going to be tough coming in here."

Hurricanes win in overtime

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Guard Phil Spradling scored 20 points, including six in overtime, as No. 7 Tulsa survived Illinois State 78-67 in Missouri Valley Conference basketball Thursday night.

Spradling hit two shots from long range to stake the Hurricane to a 64-62 advantage early in overtime, and Tulsa never trailed again. Regulation ended in a 60-60 tie.

Center Greg Stewart, who added 17 for Tulsa, sank four straight free throws and Tulsa scored 10 points in the final minute to win its 29th consecutive game at home.

Mike Anderson added 16 points and Bruce Vanley 12 to give Tulsa a 17-3 record, 9-2 in the Valley.

Illinois State, led by Dwayne Tyus with 18 points, fell to 12-9, 7-5 in the conference. The Redbirds got 15 points and 13 rebounds from center Rick Lamb and 14 points and 13 rebounds from forward Hank Cornley.

Tulsa had a chance to win in regulation but Anderson missed a 40-foot shot as time expired.

Illinois State clawed back from a 20-13 deficit late in the first half to tie it at intermission, 28-28. Neither team was able to gain a big lead in the second half.

The shorter Redbirds outbounded the Hurricane 43-28. But Tulsa hit 22 of 32 free throws, while Illinois State went 9 for 17 from the line.

SWC to investigate fight at Texas-Arkansas game

HOUSTON (AP) — A fight that erupted during last week's Texas-Arkansas Southwest Conference basketball game was more than an isolated incident and may spark wide-reaching recommendations, says the chairman of the SWC committee investigating the outburst.

SWC faculty representative Dr. James Castaneda of Rice, interviewed on a Houston radio station Thursday, said his committee will make its recommendations to the full conference during a meeting Sunday in Dallas.

Castaneda said four player interviews to be conducted today — two with Arkansas players and two with Longhorn players — would complete the fact-finding portion of the investigation. Razorback Darrell Walker was ejected from the Saturday contest at Fayetteville after he hit Texas player Ray Harper.

The dispute spread to other players. Longhorn coach Abe Lemons, assistant Texas sports information director Doug Smith and several Arkansas fans before quiet was restored.

Lemons later said Walker should be expelled from the conference and blasted the lack of crowd control at Barnhill Arena.

Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton responded by saying Walker was merely protecting another Arkansas player Harper had elbowed and said Lemons had instigated the crowd through his actions.

"I think the people making comments to the media may have a lot of emotion behind what they're saying and this is one of the items the conference is looking at," Castaneda said during the interview on station KENR. "We hope the Southwest Conference is a class operation on and off the court and I think off-court behavior is something we're going to be looking at."

"In the past we were able to defuse these things, really, before they erupted," he said. "I think it behooves all of the coaches to realize that they are there to be a stabilizing influence on the fans. So I think there's much more to this case than an isolated incident that happened on the (basketball) court."

Banks resigns at UTEP

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Ted Banks, who built a track dynasty at the University of Texas at El Paso, is leaving the school Feb. 21 to take a job with Converse Shoe Co.

Banks announced his departure Thursday, saying that cuts in the school's athletic budget had triggered the decision to leave coaching.

UTEP's athletic budget is troubled, mostly because the school has had trouble selling tickets to its football games — normally the biggest moneymaker. UTEP's football program has been ranked as one of the worst in the country with a 1-10 record last season.

Banks said he was told that as much as $56,000 could be cut from the track team's $250,000 budget.

"The travel budget would be hurt," Banks said. "You can't get all the people around for that."

"I had a meeting with the administration and I told them that if they couldn't guarantee me more money than that, then we couldn't win and the program would suffer," he said. "I didn't want to be here when that happens."

UTEP athletic director Ed Swartz said Banks' assistant, John Wedel, would take over the coaching duties until summer, when a new coach will be named.

"I will have to open the job up," Swartz said, "but John will be a very, very strong candidate."
