CUPID CASTS HIS MAGIC. These youngsters must have suffered the slings and arrows of Cupid's good fortune and young love. However, while going in for the smooch from Melinda Francis, left, 5, Gavin Porter, 6, appears to have missed the mark a bit. The kids were enjoying the Valentine's Day spirit of love at St. Matthew's Day Care Center.

Salvadoran adviser carrying M-16 to be sent home, ambassador says

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Deane R. Hinton said Saturday that an American lieutenant colonel has been relieved of his duties here and will be sent home for carrying an M-16 rifle in the field in violation of standing orders.

In another development, Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., on a two-day fact-finding tour, said he was dissatisfied with information provided by Salvador's defense minister. He said he and Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., had received a "canned presentation" of the situation here, where leftist guerrillas are battling to overthrow the U.S.-backed government.

Hinton told a news conference here that junior officers and other military advisers who also violated the regulation have been given an oral reprimand.

The incident caused controversy in Washington. President Reagan on Friday asked for a report, but said it was understandable the men were carrying the rifles.

Lt. Col. Harry Melander, a warrant officer and five men were part of a U.S. military team advising the Salvadoran armed forces on building a temporary bridge to replace one blown up earlier by leftist guerrillas.

Hinton did not say how many men beside Melander had violated the weapons rule.

Melander, described by embassy sources as an Army logistics and training specialist, was a supervising officer of the group working in southeastern Usulután Province, a guerrilla stronghold where heavy fighting between the leftist insurgents and the Salvadoran army is taking place.

The embassy sources refused to identify the men who received reprimands.

Some of the men were filmed by Cable News Network carrying M-16 rifles U.S.

military advisers in El Salvador are forbidden to engage in combat or carry any thing more than sidearms for their personal protection.

They are allowed to keep M-16 rifles in their quarters, but have instruction not to take them out with them on the job.

Asked why the men were carrying M-16s, Hinton said: "I wish I knew. I wish it hadn't happened this way. They wish it hadn't happened this way."

"I completed an investigation yesterday," he said. "We looked into the circumstances. I issued instructions that the senior American officer involved was to leave El Salvador in a week, and that the junior officer and men who committed this violation ... have been given firm oral reprimands."

He said "not all the officers and men in that group" violated the orders.

Reagan told reporters in Washington on Friday that "The only think I can asume is they were for personal protection and I think that's understandable. I'm asking for a full report and we'll have one from the Defense Department."

"The policy is," Reagan added, "that they do not engage in combat, nor were these gentlemen, as far as has been indicated, doing that at all."

Leahy told reporters Saturday that he had gotten on "very badly" with Defense Minister Gen. Jose Guillermo Garcia during a meeting Friday and that they had a "bit of an argument."

"I do not like coming all this way for a canned presentation on videotape that makes me think of the old training films they used to hand out to district attorneys so we'd know how dangerous marijuana was," he said.

Leahy and Pell are members of the Foreign Relations Committee.

In Washington another member of the committee, Sen. Larry Pressler, said Saturday that Reagan should make a major television address to explain the administration's policy toward El Salvador because, he said, it appears the United States is on the verge of getting involved militarily.

In an interview with CNN, the South Dakota Republican said the United States is "on the verge of being involved militarily" in El Salvador.

Also in El Salvador is a U.S. congressional delegation sent by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill "to get a first-hand report" on conditions in the country.

The congressional visits are linked to plans announced by the Reagan administration to increase military aid to the ruling military-civilian junta.

Salvadoran human rights groups estimate more than 32,000 people have been killed in political violence since the junta came to power in a coup in October 1979 that ousted a rightist military regime.

Ford, UAW reach tentative agreement

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers union reached tentative agreement Saturday on a contract intended to save the nation's No. 2 automaker millions of dollars while ensuring jobs for thousands of Ford workers, the union announced.

The new accord came after 13 consecutive days of emergency concession negotiations, including a marathon 16-hour session Friday and 11 hours' work Saturday.

"We believe the agreement represents a major achievement in terms of providing UAW members at Ford with greater job security," a UAW statement said.

The statement said, "The new agreement contains a number of provisions aimed at preserving jobs and insuring the stability of income for UAW-Ford workers."

A statement from Ford Chairman Philip Caldwell, who was in Hong Kong, was released at the firm's Dearborn headquarters announcing the "historic agreement."

"While we did not achieve everything we sought, the agreement augurs well for our employees, the union, the company and the nation," Caldwell's statement said. "I'm pleased Ford and the UAW have taken this important step."

Details were not immediately released.

The talks began Jan. 11 at both Ford and General Motors Corp. as the automakers sought to reduce labor costs to become more competitive with foreign carmakers. The talks at GM stalemated and collapsed two weeks ago and are not expected to resume.

The new agreement with Ford, which says it lost more than $1 billion in 1981 was viewed by the UAW executive board at a meeting Sunday in Detroit before going to the union's Ford council, which is scheduled to meet in Chicago on Wednesday.

The council will vote whether to recommend that Ford's 170,000 UAW-represented rank-and-file ratify the pact. Union officials say that such a vote likely would be completed in about two weeks. Some portions of the agreement were settled Thursday. Non-economic issues, such as plant closings and the company's practice of subcontracting work to non-union plants, were left for the final bargaining sessions on Friday and Saturday.

UAW president Douglas Fraser had announced late Friday that "we think we're going to settle ... we don't think it's anything insurmountable. We're confident."

Peter Pestillo, Ford's chief negotiator, said Friday he hoped to wrap up the odds and ends of contract language in a couple of hours Saturday. He said bargainers had spent a 16-hour session Friday "narrowing our differences."

According to Fraser, those differences included fine points on seniority, equality of sacrifice for blue- and white-collar workers and the practice of subcontracting work to non-union and overseas plants.

"The subcommittees are cleaning up their paperwork and giving us inventories of the problem areas," Fraser said. "Those issues they cannot resolve will be kicked to the big table and then we'll take a run at them there."

An agreement — if approved by union leaders and rank-and-filers — would replace the current three-year contract, set to expire Sept. 14. Any new contract would begin as soon as the union members can ratify it, probably within a month, and would expire Sept. 14, 1984.

Saturday was the 13th straight day for the negotiations at Ford's world head quarters in suburban Detroit. No deadline had been set in the negotiations, but both sides had said they hoped to be done by Saturday.

Bargainers at Ford worked on a company proposal that analysts estimated would save about $1 billion in the 31 months of the pact. The nation's No. 2 automaker says it lost more than $1 billion last year.

Ford has nearly 55,000 hourly workers on indefinite layoff and an additional 8,800 on temporary layoff.

Bondsman named to area board

A Pampa bail bondsman has been nominated to serve on the newly formed Panhandle Regional Independent Bail Bond Board.

Pampa bondsman Stonie Ferguson has been asked to sit on the panel which will coordinate bail bond practices in the Panhandle. Potter County Attorney John Tull is attempting to form the board made up of two prosecutors, three sheriffs, two judges, and Ferguson and another area bondsman.

Tull said the board will have no real power of the law but will act as an adviser to the Panhandle's 26 sheriffs. The proposed regional bond board will attempt to group counties in the formation of each entity's local board. The regional board would then give information and advice to the local groups.

The local bond groups will assume control of local bond firms and will require them to submit accurate records of bonding activities. The local boards will assume a responsibility now held by county sheriffs.

A new state law requires counties with a population of more than 110,000 to form the bail bond board, but it is optional for counties with a smaller population.

Other members of the proposed bail bond board are Tull and Ferguson, Deaf Smith County District Attorney Roland Saul, Potter County Sheriff T.L. Baker, Hall County Sheriff Albert Banks, Hutchinson County Sheriff Lon Blackmon, Moore County Judge Jack Powell, Administrative Judge E.E. "Gene" Jordan, and bondsman Elmore Rains of Hereford.

Pre-trial hearing scheduled

The false credentials trial of a former Sandra Corporation employee begins at 9:30 a.m. Monday in Gray County Court.

Joe Douglas Dunn, 39, of Bedford, is charged with violation of the Public Accountancy Act. Dunn allegedly falsified his credentials in application for employment as executive vice president and comptroller of the Sandra Corporation of Pampa. It is alleged that he represented himself as a Certified Public Accountant to company president Delmar Watkins.

Pre-trial motions will be heard Monday, and jury selection is scheduled to begin Wednesday.

Tax appraisal board to discuss receipt of grant

The Gray County Tax Appraisal District board will meet at 5 p.m. Monday at the Carver Educational Center, 321 W. Albert.

The new Tax Appraisal District Board is now responsible for pegging the value of all property, both commercial and residential, in Gray County. In the past, each taxing entity, School District, Hospital District, Gray County, etc. set a value for property under its jurisdiction.

Many times, the numerous property valuations resulted in several different values being placed on the same piece of property. The law passed by the Texas Legislature creating a single tax appraisal district was designed to eliminate this confusion.

However, each taxing entity will still set its own rate of taxation per $100 value, but the rates must now be based on 100 percent of the property's value, rather than a lower percentage sometimes used in the past.

The new Gray County Tax Appraisal Board will be formed with a grant of more than $29,000 received from the state. The board has received this money and will hear a report about it at Monday's meeting. The board also will consider granting a contract to an outside firm who will appraise the county's property.

Also listed on the board's agenda is consideration of hiring a lawyer, designating a post office box, payment of bills and the purchase of insurance.

Native of Pampa edits new book of Texas lists

By ELAINE W. LEDBETTER
Guest Writer

Anne Dingsus is the editor of a book recently released by the Texas Monthly Press entitled, "The Book of Texas Lists."

She is a 1971 graduate of Pampa High School and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G.W. Dingsus of 1821 Mary Ellen.

Ms. Dingsus is currently assistant editor of "Texas Monthly," a magazine published in Austin. With the help of readers of that magazine she compiled hundreds of lists of people, places and things—all Texan.

A few of the lists included in the book are: the worst disasters, the best-selling items in the 1980 Neiman-Marcus Christmas catalog, the worst street names in Dallas, the best-selling Baskin-Robbins ice cream flavors and nine everyday things first researched by NASA.

The lists range from the momentous to the trivial, but all make for delightful browsing. Some have a touch of humor. In the list of the worst street names in Dallas one finds "St. Landry Drive. Everyone knows that the Dallas Cowboys are blessed by someone above, but this is just too much."

As assistant editor of "Texas Monthly" since January of 1980, Ms.

Dingsus has a variety of duties. She edits the department news including books, health, churches, music and dining.

In addition to editing she has also written several articles for the publication. Among these are: the December 1979 cover story, "Tiny Texans" (all about little things in the state that Texans should be proud of); two articles on Santa Claus, December, 1980; "Champs" (eight winners in unusual fields), May, 1981, and "The Failures That Made Texas," October, 1981.

She also appeared on the cover of the magazine in January, 1980.

Ms. Dingsus commented on her selection as editor of the "lists" book, "Around the office I have a reputation for storing all sorts of odd information in my head. So when the idea for the book came up they thought I was the logical person to edit it."

She worked on a tight timeline. The idea was presented to her in June of 1980 and she had completed the assignment by March of 1981. She said that she considered this an invaluable experience for many reasons and added, "I would now feel at home in any library in the world for I have learned how and where to look for whatever information I want however obscure it may be."

Prior to becoming assistant editor, Ms. Dingsus was an editorial assistant. She said, "In that capacity I did mainly research work and during that time I researched literally everything from allergies to zoos."

Upon graduation from Pampa High School, she entered Rice University in Houston where she earned the B.A. degree in English literature in the spring of 1975. While there she studied under Max Apple, a well-known short story writer and novelist. She had several short stories published and did freelance work for several weeklies.

After receiving her degree she worked briefly for NASA as a technical editor. Regarding this experience she recalled, "The most exciting assignment I had during that period was to edit all the Apollo-Soyuz material."

During the year of 1976-77 she was a reporter for the "Oil Daily," an oil and gas publication. There she covered conferences and announced new products.

Ms. Dingsus said, "One of my goals had been to work on the staff of 'Texas Monthly' so in August of 1977 I moved to Austin and did graduate work in English literature. In January of 1978 I began my work with that magazine."

In March, 1980, she married Patrick Redman whom she had met at Rice. He is a prosecuting attorney for the Alcoholic Beverage Commission. They reside in Austin.

Concerning her name, she explained, "I plan to continue to use my maiden name professionally. I like the sound of it and I had already begun to establish my reputation as a writer under that name."

Her hobbies are indicative of the wide range of her talents and interests. She enjoys reading, she collects antiques, haunts garage sales, collects old childrens' books, is studying Spanish and plans to learn how to quilt. She also has ideas for several novels which she hopes to develop as time permits.

While in high school, Ms. Dingsus was active in the student council, Future Teachers of America, Junior Classical League, Quill and Scroll and the National Honor Society.

She served as coeditor of "The Little Harvester" during her senior year and graduated among the top ten in her class.

In view of her many achievements in a short period of time, she can undoubtedly look forward to a brilliant career.

Despite outcry, Congressmen concede budget cutting difficulty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans and Democrats who greeted President Reagan's budget with cries of horror are beginning to concede the difficulty of chopping the administration's record deficit forecasts for 1982 and 1983.

Congress could spend a rancorous election-year session debating defense spending, Social Security reductions and changes in the president's cherished three-year tax cut — only to see deficits that still approach $90 billion or $100 billion.

Several congressional aides say their bosses are likely to give up, go home for an election campaign and return afterwards for another try at passing a budget.

Almost everyone agrees the deficits are too big. House Republican Leader Bob Michel of Illinois said conservatives feel they've been "pole-axed."

The problem may be even worse. Republicans and Democrats alike say Reagan's official deficit forecasts of $98.6 billion in 1982 and $91.5 billion in 1983 are based on faulty assumptions about the economy.

One GOP senator estimates Reagan understated the deficits by $5 billion to $10 billion. Democrats say the gap is even bigger.

In addition, the president's figures assume Congress will approve $56 billion in spending cuts and other savings, some of which already have been rejected. Without Reagan's proposals, the deficit would be more than $150 billion next year.

"He (Reagan) can't create these kinds of budget cuts with this type of Congress," Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., conceded last week in a speech in Chicago.

"I find that only one-fifth of the president's proposals are realistically obtainable from this Congress," said Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., a dedicated budget balancer.

Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., last week issued his own budget proposal forecasting a $90 billion deficit next year, only $1.5 billion less than the president's.

But Boschwitz would hold spending growth to 3 percent a year in the future and increase tax collections by $20 billion to $25 billion over what Reagan projects for the future to produce a small surplus in 1986, when Reagan forecasts a $66 billion deficit.

A variation of Boschwitz' plan eventually may prove attractive to members of Congress who feel they need to show the financial markets and the country that they at least have a plan for balancing the budget.

Hollings' big-reduction proposals to eliminate next July's tax cut and Social Security cost-of-living increases for a year, defer the 1983 tax cut and freeze the defense budget are tempting, but appear unattainable.

Eliminating one year's cost-of-living increase for Social Security would cut the 1983 deficit by $15 billion to $17 billion. But the proposal seems so far-fetched that the Congressional Budget Office didn't even mention it in its book of several hundred pages on budget-cutting options.

Reagan doesn't want to change Social Security while a commission studies it and Republicans are unlikely to make such a move without the president's help. Most Democrats feel they have Reagan on the defensive with his earlier proposal for cuts in Social Security.

Canceling the 10 percent cut in personal income taxes scheduled for July would reduce the deficit by about $40 billion. But so far, Hollings is the only member of Congress to propose such a step — no Republican has even remotely suggested it — and the White House rejected it immediately.

Some members of both parties favor just the opposite approach. They want to accelerate the tax cut to help the economy recover from the recession. Skeptics say that would increase the deficit, not shrink it.

Deferring the 1983 tax cut would trim the deficit by an estimated $8.5 billion. Democrats almost certainly will try to force Reagan to accept a change in the 1983 tax cut as a price for their help in spending cuts. But even so, it would leave the deficit above the level acceptable to many members of Congress.

Freezing the defense budget at the 1982 level is probably impractical, given the nature of Pentagon contracts. GOP and Democratic staff aides agree that any large savings would take several years to realize and that cuts in major weapons system do little for the deficit in the immediate future.

Eliminating the controversial B1 bomber, for example, would cut the deficit in 1983 by only half a billion dollars.

Eventually, of course, the savings would be billions of dollars. But as is the case with so many ideas, that wouldn't do much good to a politician worried about the deficit in his 1982 re-election campaign.

Pontiff preaches compassion on former Nigerian battlefield

ONITSHA, Nigeria (AP) — Preaching "unity, compassion and forgiveness," Pope John Paul II celebrated Mass Saturday on a former battlefield of the Nigerian civil war, the 1967-70 conflict with breakaway Biafra that claimed the lives of 1 million Ibo tribesmen.

On the second day of an eight-day tour of Africa, his first foreign trip since last May's attempt on his life, the pontiff arrived by helicopter at an open field recently cleared from the tropical rain forest.

Radio Nigeria estimated 2 million people were waiting to greet him, though church officials put the number at closer to 1 million.

"God bless all of you," the pope said in the language of the predominantly Roman Catholic Ibo. He was answered by loud cheering from the faithful, many of whom waved yellow-and-white papal flags.

In his sermon, the pontiff called for "unity, compassion and forgiveness" among Nigeria's 90 million people, 30 million of whom are Moslem. Of the nation's 18 million Christians, 5 million to 6 million are Roman Catholic. Many Nigerians practice various forms of spirit and ancestor worship.

John Paul also spoke in favor of family values and against polygamy — a practice still prevalent in Nigeria, even among Roman Catholic men who sometimes take one wife in the church and others in traditional rites.

He also attacked the more "modern enemies of the family, the disturbing degradation of some fundamental values — divorce, contraception and abortion — (which) have not spared your country."

But the pope's homily, delivered in English, also pleaded for greater understanding for those who do not have children. Nigerians who die childless often are consigned to separate burial grounds, and a woman's barrenness can be grounds for divorce.

At one point during the Mass, mounted police with whips rode into the throng to control the crowd. There were no injuries, and the crowd that heard John Paul was on the whole a devout one — swelled by a number of local Moslems who were warned over the public address system not to take Holy Communion.

The pope showed no signs of pain or tiredness from the gunshot wounds he suffered May 13th when Turkish terrorist Mehmet Ali Agca opened fire on him in the Vatican's St. Peter's Square.

Onitsha, 234 miles east of Lagos and the site of the open-air service, once boasted western Africa's largest market. But it was devastated by the civil war in which the Ibo population sought to break away from northern Moslem-dominated Nigeria and establish a separate state, Biafra.

The rebellion was put down by the central Nigerian government with the help of a food blockade. One million Ibo are believed to have died, many of them children.

ROAST HONOREE. Brownwood funeral plate dinner benefitting Howard Payne director Groner Pitts, with wife Johnnie University and honoring Pitts for his Beth. wafes to well wishers at a $100-a-

Pitts bar-b-cued at Howard Payne benefit

(EDITOR'S NOTE — From Washington, Austin and around the state they came, not to bury, but to barbecue a Brownwood undertaker. Some joked that they came less out of friendship than fear.)

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
BROWNWOOD, Texas (AP) — First, you must believe there really is a crazed Brownwood undertaker named Groner Pitts. Uh-huh. Groner Pitts. Knowing Groner is the "pits," friends insist, sometimes jokingly.

And if you can believe he's the kind who would throw a cocktail party for a bull, then the rest is easy.

Fort Worth columnist George Dolan, who knows Groner too well, figured in an incident that reveals what we're dealing with here.

Under cover of darkness, Groner and a crony staked a beribboned pig on Dolan's doorstep, rang the doorbell and hid in the shrubs.

One of Dolan's youngsters opened the door, spotted the porker and sighed: "Mother, Groner Pitts is here."

Stuck with the pig, Dolan said he put the animal in the bathtub overnight, unaware it had been "trained to turn on a water tap."

The resultant flooding, he grumbled, cost him $1,700.

Pitts, 57 going on 17, is a prankster out of control, a feisty, tireless, semi-lovable promoter-preacher-patriot and the spiritual leader of a mob called the Brownwood Mafia.

The Mafia is a group that performs noble civic deeds when it's not making life miserable for some unsuspecting target. Groner Pitts was born to lead the Mafia.

"Well," conceded Ben Barnes, the former Texas House speaker and lieutenant governor. "Groner is unique."

Groner's friend Charlie Trigg agreed. Said he: "Groner's got a strange and weird perception of things."

Barnes and Trigg and some 1,500 of Groner's closest enemies assembled in this Central Texas city of 20,000 last week to "roast" Pitts.

Someone wondered aloud if you'd call it a barbecued Pitts or a Pitts barbecue.

Whatever, a fish-and-chips crowd paid $10 to $100 a plate for something billed as the "Groner Pitts You're a Great American Day," which not only was grammatically grotesque but also inaccurate.

It was a "night," not a "day," yet it did raise $100,000 for the Groner Pitts chair of political science at Brownwood's Howard Payne University.

Groner went there a long time ago.

Dr. Joe Rushing, a Fort Worth educator, set the tone for the evening. He told the gathering that Groner's reading interests now are limited to National Geographic and Playboy.

"He likes to look at pictures of places he'll never visit," said Rushing.

Another roaster, John Connally, the former Texas governor, said he was introduced to Pitts in 1961 by the late newspaper publisher C.P. Woodson.

"I've got you an undertaker as your campaign chairman," Connally said Woodson told him gravely.

After one memorably terrible day in Austin, Connally recalled, Groner surfaced with the announced intention of cheering up the governor.

"He took me to an embalmer's convention," Connally said. "He even showed me how they did it."

Barnes remembered Groner's attempt to boost his spirits after a devastating loss in a governor's race a decade ago.

Returning to Brownwood, Barnes was stunned by a greeting of fireworks and fire trucks, a marching band, National Guard tanks and a parade.

The mayor spoke Groner showered the day's honoring with gifts, then invited everyone to Barnes' home for hot dogs and refreshments.

That same evening, he presented Barnes with a bill for the whole shebang, including the gifts.

Air twofers increase travel but not revenue

DALLAS (AP) — The two-for-one airline ticket stampede may have provided overtime dollars for employees and extra vacations for travelers, but the promotion won't generate much revenue for the three participating airlines, some spokesmen say.

Braniff International Airways, American Airlines and Delta Air Lines competed for passengers between 12:01 a.m. Thursday and 11:59 p.m. Friday by offering second tickets for $1 or nothing to those who bought a round-trip ticket.

Hordes of would-be passengers queued up outside ticket offices and travel agencies and forced the carriers to put telephone reservationists on overtime.

"We pay time-and-a-half for overtime, but some of our people worked so long they were into double-time overtime pay," said Jack Westmann, Delta's Dallas marketing manager.

Braniff vice president Sam Coats said one Dallas-Fort Worth Airport ticket counter did the same volume of business Thursday as the airline's four ticket counters usually do in a day.

"One of our smaller city ticket offices in the Dallas-Fort Worth area that normally does about $7,000 worth of business in a day did $75,000 on Thursday," he added.

Delta business "increased 500 percent," said ticket sales director Lawrence Carlan.

But American spokesman Paul Haney declined to release any estimates Saturday. "Ticketing that normally would be done over a longer period of time was done in a 48-hour period, so any numbers or percentages we could give would be misleading or illusory," he said.

Although Coats called the sale "wonderful" for Braniff, spokesmen for the other two airlines said the giveaway was certain to decrease revenues.

"We probably will lose lots of money. But we would have lost more if we had not matched Braniff's offer," said American spokesman Dave Frailey.

"We think (Braniff's promotion) was a very irresponsible thing to do." Delta's Carlan said the promotion was "unnecessary and unneeded. We hope we don't have to do it again."

Braniff sales manager Tom Fucaloro, however, said the airline probably will offer the promotion again this fall when ticket sales are low.

Braniff instigated the three-way battle when it announced round-trip buyers could purchase a second round-trip ticket of equal value for $1.

American and Delta, which both have major operations at Dallas-Fort Worth Airport, moved to best the offer by giving away the second tickets.

No smoking allowed

For some air travelers, the end of the line has been reached in Texas. Carrying the separation of smokers and non-smokers as far as it will go, a local airline has banned the former entirely...

There's also the conviction of the line's president that there's no middle ground on smoking. 'When you put smokers and non-smokers in an aluminum tube at 30,000 feet, there is no room for reasonable discussion.'

Possibly, but certainly nowhere else to go for those who don't like the setup.

The deliverance of Gen. Dozier

The dramatic deliverance of Brig. Gen. James Dozier from his terrorist kidnappers by a special Italian police unit Thursday was news of a rare distinction. It was gloriously good because so little hope was held out that the general would escape the torture and death meted out to other Red Brigades' victims...

abatement of the terrorist threat. The "organization of Communist combat," of which the Red Brigades boasted soon after Gen. Dozier's abduction, embraces parallel Marxist groups in other European nations...

So Americans, who had been drawn together again in common concern for another U.S. hostage held abroad during six agonizing weeks, celebrated in millions of little, individual ways. 'Viva Italia,' as a spontaneous Pentagon sign proclaimed.

All the more remarkable, Gen. Dozier is the first victim of the Red Brigades ever to be rescued alive during the 11 blood-stained years of terrorism in Italy. The kidnap-murder of former Italian Prime Minister Aldo Moro in 1978 was the most notorious of crimes acknowledged by the Red Brigades.

U.S. auto workers facing bleak days

These are bleak days for members of the United Auto Workers union. Some 300,000 of them are on temporary or indefinite layoffs as the American automobile industry slumps to the production levels of 20 years ago.

Worse yet, no UAW member currently manning an auto assembly line can be assured that his job will still be there six months from now, let alone a year or two hence.

More precisely, a General Motors relaying predominantly on American labor may be living on borrowed time. Those UAW members still employed continue to be among the highest-paid production workers in the United States...

That helps account for the fact that the Japanese continue to sell cars in the United States for roughly $1,700 less than comparable American models. It also is one reason why relatively few Americans these days seem inclined, or able, to purchase Detroit's new models at prices averaging almost $10,000.

Not surprisingly, U.S. automakers are reacting to these grim market realities by mapping plans to move more and more of their production abroad where labor costs are lower. The UAW, and many other Americans, may regard this as unpatriotic, but what choice does Ford, GM and Chrysler have?

The leadership and rank and file of the United Auto Workers are not without means to affect their own fate. Existing labor contracts with the automakers expire in September...

The choice confronting the UAW is clear: Cooperate with automakers in lowering unit labor costs or suffer yet more job losses as production is cut further, and, ultimately, moved abroad.

We don't minimize the impact of high interest rates, the current recession and past management mistakes in assessing blame for the domestic auto industry's present plight. But even without these compounding difficulties, the industry would still be facing a crisis.

No one will have more to say about whether this crisis is surmounted than the United Auto Workers leadership.

By ROBERT LEFEVRE The subject of abortion gives no evidence of diminishing in interest. Since it is now clear to me that the anti-abortionists wish to talk about the "rights" of the unborn, I wish to continue my discussion in this area.

Earlier, I wrote about the extremely hypothetical point in time at which human rights begin. The anti-abortionists, largely taking emphasis from their particular Biblical interpretation, have tried to prove that the moment of conception is also the instant when human rights are bestowed upon individuals.

Thus, if I understand them correctly, they believe that the fertilized ovum (zygote) has all the rights of any human being since it, too, is a human being, and is entitled to full protection of the law under the Constitution of the United States.

In a previous column, I showed some of the difficulties with this view. Since the present legal definition of death requires the absence of a brain wave as well as the cessation of the heartbeat, an attempt to legally define life as beginning without either a brain wave or a heartbeat throws prior definitions out the window.

If the first cell around which a human being may be structured is a human being, then so long as any cell of any human being remains alive, that person remains alive.

Were this view to be taken; and at the same time, should it work out that biochemical engineers working on cloning know what they are talking about, it would appear that the ruling would apply to any living human cell, whether the cell is one taken from the brain, the heart, bone marrow or cuticle.

There's a larger ramifications to this legal argument. For many years our government has employed the term "rights" when it was engaged in granting or withholding some privilege.

Thus, the term "right to vote" is a political grant passed from the government over to those groups of persons the government deems qualified to vote for whatever reason. The "right" is created by the government and does not exist in nature. At the moment, persons below the age of 18, those judged mentally deranged, those convicted of a felony, etc., cannot vote.

The government has been engaged in broadening the voting franchise with the passing of time as mounting evidence established that voting has the single predictable result of encouraging those who gain power through its exercise. Thus, as more and more persons become informed and stop voting, more and more of the younger and less sophisticated groups have been granted "voting rights."

For years we've heard of the "right" of an elderly person to Social Security money, while others have a "right" to welfare, education, a job, hospital care, and so on. Each of these so-called "rights" is nothing but a government grant of privilege to some person or group of persons. Such a right does not exist in nature. It is a grant or privilege to some at the expense of others.

This is the kind of "right" the anti-abortionists seek to establish. Since nature has not established that the beginning of a human individual occurs at conception, the anti-abortionists want the government to pass legislation to this effect. Note, that I did not say that the beginning of life has not been established; I underscore that nature has not established conception as the beginning of the human individual.

As with any other government bestowed "right" it can only occur at the expense of others. Thus, if the government declares that the human individual is endowed with all legal rights at conception, then the rights of the mother are abrogated at once. Curiously, when the mother was conceived, she would have been endowed with all legal rights. But when she becomes pregnant, some of her rights (those dealing with the control of her own mind and body) vanish in favor of the fertilized ovum within her.

This provides a legal contradiction which in all probability reduces discussion of abortion and anti-abortion to a hung jury. Indeed, if anti-abortion legislation were enacted, to protect her own legal status as an individual, the pregnant woman would have an additional motive for an abortion. So long as the pregnancy continues, the life in her womb has greater rights than she does and can supersede her own wishes.

However, the anti-abortionists insist that this is "God's will." This is, as I have commented, a matter of theological interpretation which can run in any direction. So the anti-abortionists are not willing to let God handle it. They can find no evidence that every pregnancy is the result of love, divine intervention and an omen of perfect bliss. While it would be marvelous if that were the case, the evidence shows that pregnancies occur as a result of rape or incest and that in many cases, the birth of a new infant in the circumstances which would surround it would be nothing less than an on-going tragedy.

Curiously, the anti-abortionists will in the same breath argue that few pregnancies occur from rape because the victim goes to the hospital and is "taken care of" (which means that the uterine passages are sterilized - technically an abortion) so we don't have to worry about that.

What finally unfolds as the anti-abortionists' position is the Victorian view: That women should be virtuous and virginal until married. So, the anti-abortionists don't want to trust women with the responsibility which nature or nature's God bestowed on them.

And since nature won't back them in this position, they seek to get the government into the act to bring about a condition which is clearly contrary to nature.

It is contrary to nature as the "right" to Social Security, welfare, education, hospitalization and all the rest of the government-invoked privileges.

Today is Sunday, Feb. 14, Valentine's Day and the 45th day of 1982. There are 320 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Feb. 14, 1929, what came to be known as the "Valentine's Day Massacre" occurred when seven rivals of the Al Capone gang were murdered in Chicago.

On this date: In 1859, Oregon became the 33rd state of the Union.

In 1893, Hawaii was annexed by treaty to the United States.

In 1912, Arizona became the 48th state.

And in 1979, U.S. Ambassador to Afghanistan Adolph Dubs was kidnapped in Kabul by Moslem terrorists and killed in a shootout between his abductors and police.

Ten years ago, several hundred thousand British industrial jobs were temporarily suspended due to a power cutoff prompted by that nation's 35-day-old coal strike.

Five years ago, a suspended moving company employee shot and killed five people at the firm's suburban New York office, then killed himself.

By ART BUCHWALD

BY ART BUCHWALD

A few weeks ago President Reagan, in response to a reporter's question on unemployment, replied that he had picked up the Sunday Washington Post and read 24 pages of "Help Wanted" ads. He said "What we need to do is make more people qualified to go and apply for these jobs."

I happened to remember this when Frederico, a chauffeur, who had been laid off by the government, came to see me to complain he couldn't find a job.

"Why don't you look in the 'Help Wanted' pages of the Washington Post?" I said angrily. "I can't afford to buy the Post."

"Here," I said, throwing the 'Help Wanted' section at him. "Now you have no excuse."

Frederico started studying the pages. "This sounds good," he said. "Some company wants a cellular immunologist."

"Well, there you are," I told him. "Why don't you apply for it?" "What's a cellular immunologist?" "I don't have the slightest idea. But I'm sure you can fake it until you learn the ropes."

He circled it, and kept reading. "Do you know what a psychiatric nurse is supposed to do?"

"I would assume he or she must take care of mentally sick people, counsel them, provide them with drugs, and look after their physical needs."

"I did that when I was a chauffeur in the government," Frederico said brightly. "Most of the people I drove were crazy or they wouldn't be entitled to a chauffeured car."

I encouraged him. "All it takes to be a psychiatric nurse is common sense. You'd be perfect for the job."

Frederico circled that one. "Here's one that sounds interesting. 'Wanted: Nuclear Energy Safety Inspector for Breeder Reactor Facility.' I wonder what would be required of me." "It's a snap. All you have to do is walk around the plant and if you see a water pipe leaking or a red light blinking, report it to the janitor."

"Is it safe?" "Of course it's safe. They give you a white badge to wear, and if it turns a motley green, that means the reactor is giving off more radioactivity than the human body can absorb."

"What do I do then?" "You clear everyone out of the building until the public relations people announce it's safe to go back in again."

"Well, it's a job," Frederico said, circling it. "Listen to this one. 'If you are unhappy in your present Data Systems Position, we are looking for you. The position we have open requires a Computer Programmer who can evaluate stress factors on aerospace high-tension materials, and devise new methods of factoring mathematical blueprint formulae with heat intensities of 8,000 degree Fahrenheit. Starting salary $40,000 a year and medical benefits.' That's more money than I can make as a psychiatric nurse."

"And the work is probably more fulfilling too," I said. "I wouldn't be surprised if you were put to work on the B-1 bomber."

"The ad says people will be interviewed tomorrow at the Holiday Inn in Bethesda."

"You can stop off there after your interview with the Breeder Reactor plant," I said.

Frederico said, "Hey, look, Saudi Arabia is advertising for a neurosurgeon, and they provide housing and servants with the job. What do you think?"

"Better talk it over with your wife. You'll be busy operating all day long, but she might get bored there with nothing to do. Do you see anything else that appeals to you?"

"Can I take the pages home with me and study them at my leisure with a dictionary?"

"Be my guest." "Thanks a million. I didn't know there were so many jobs going begging these days."

"Neither did I. Thank God, President Reagan reads The Washington Post." (c) 1982, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Jurors view bridge in Atlanta slayings trial

ATLANTA (AP) — Wayne B. Williams' murder trial jury climbed through brambles and peered into the murky waters of the Chattahoochee River Saturday on a 19-minute visit to the bridge from which prosecutors say he threw the bodies of two young blacks.

Helicopter carrying police officers and reporters clattered overhead as the 12 jurors and four alternates — under judge's orders not to talk during the inspection — walked slowly up and down the two-lane steel-and-concrete span. One of Williams' lawyer was at the scene but Williams remained in jail. Sheriff's deputies blocked traffic and curious spectators from getting near.

Jurors were given a free run of the quarter-mile-long bridge and spent some of the time limbing through the brambles where members of a police stakeout team were stationed last May, when Williams was stopped near the bridge.

"They're doing a good job. This indicates they did follow the testimony," said presiding Judge Clarence Cooper of Superior Court, as jurors walked to several of the key positions mentioned during the sensational trial.

Williams, who is black, has pleaded innocent to murdering Nathaniel Cater, 2, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 2, two of the 28 young blacks slain during a 22-month period here. No arrests have been made in the 26 other cases but prosecutors have introduced evidence they say connects Williams with 10 additional slayings.

The bodies of Cater and Payne were found in the same area of the river about a month apart last spring, and prosecutors contend both were thrown from the same bridge.

The jury, which has been sequestered at a suburban motel since the trial began Dec. 28, was taken to the bridge in a white Fulton County jail bus, its windows covered with iron grillwork.

After receiving instructions from Cooper, jurors filed out of the bus and immediately headed to where the bridge crosses the river. They spent most of their time on the south edge of the bridge, where witnesses testified Williams' car was spotted moving slowly close to the railing.

The jurors walked up and down the bridge while court personnel and the reporters waited at one end. The jurors peered over the edge at the brown river water and the railroad tracks that pass underneath.

Before boarding the bus for the return trip to their hotel, jurors also examined the liquor store parking lot at one end of the bridge where police said Williams turned around before they stopped him.

The prosecution had attempted to bring the bridge into the courtroom, using a $15,000 scale model and hundreds of color photographs to depict the concrete and steel span where Williams first came to police attention. But defense lawyers had requested the jury be taken to the bridge to see the scene for themselves because of its importance in the trial.

Besides Cooper, the jurors were accompanied by defense lawyer Mary Welcome, Assistant District Attorney Joe Drolet, dozens of sheriff's deputies, two sketch artists and court personnel. Media coverage was limited to one reporter from The Associated Press and one from United Press International.

Court reporter Susan Northington set her stenograph machine at one end of the bridge, its paper flapping in the frigid wind. No testimony was taken while the jury was at the bridge.

Ms. Welcome said a gag order issued by Cooper barred her from saying what she hoped the jurors would see. But she added, "you can assume what I hope they'll see."

Williams, who remained at the Fulton County jail Saturday, was stopped at the two-lane bridge at 2:50 a.m.

But none of the officers saw Williams' car approach or stop on the bridge, and the officer underneath did not see what made the splash. Williams claims he threw nothing from the bridge, but a friend of his testified he told her he threw garbage in the water.

Cater's body was found about a mile downstream, two days after Williams was stopped and questioned at the bridge, which is known locally as the Jackson Parkway bridge.

What happened at the bridge, one of dozens connecting Atlanta with suburban counties, has dominated testimony at the trial, which enters its eighth week on Monday.

Defense lawyers began presenting their arguments last week, calling witnesses who claimed the decomposed state of Cater's body indicated it must have been thrown into the river long before Williams was stopped; that a body thrown from the Jackson Parkway bridge could not have surfaced where Cater's or Payne's bodies were found; and that the stakeout team officers were incompetent.

Labor leaders plot anti-Reagan strategy

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP) — AFL-CIO leaders are converging on this sunny resort city for a policymaking meeting that almost certainly will send fresh storm signals to the Reagan administration.

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland and the federation's executive council will mount a rhetorical assault against President Reagan's domestic and foreign policies while fine-tuning a political master plan aimed at electing union allies to Congress in the fall.

Threatening an apparent improvement in relations between the 15 million-member federation and the administration is what Kirkland's aides describe as his growing impatience with Reagan's response to the imposition of martial law in Poland.

When the 35-member executive council convened for its mid-winter meeting here a year ago, the AFL-CIO's differences with the new administration focused on Reagan's tax and spending policies. Now there are indications of a widening rift over foreign policy.

Following Reagan's most recent peacemaking session with Kirkland on Feb. 5, the AFL-CIO chief reiterated that he has "fundamental, principled differences" with Reagan's handling of the economy.

Asked if the disagreement over U.S. policy toward Poland was nearing that point, Kirkland responded, "I hope not. The administration has still not closed the door on taking those additional measures they have indicated they might take" if martial law is not lifted.

Relations between the White House and the AFL-CIO plummeted last summer following the chief executive's firing of 11,500 striking air traffic controllers, who walked off the job despite having signed no-strike oaths.

State getting tough on unsafe school buildings

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State Board of Education members indicated Saturday they want to get tough on school districts that operate in unsafe buildings that could be a danger to students.

The comments came as the board heard a report on school districts that have been warned their accreditation — and state money — could be stripped if facilities are not improved. The state never has yanked the accreditation of a district that depended on state money.

Board member William Kemp of Houston noted that a 1978 report on the Morton Independent School District in Cochran County said "certain buildings were unsafe and should be demolished."

"If they were so poor they couldn't be repaired in 1978, I wonder about the safety of the children now," Kemp said.

The board voted to change the Morton ISD's status from accredited to "accredited, warned," the last step before a district becomes unaccredited.

An Oct. 12, 1981 inspection of the Morton facilities showed "inadequate and unsafe physical facilities."

"Unsafe conditions were observed in the elementary gymnasium, including broken windows, old electrical wiring and limited emergency exits. The elementary building is old, poorly maintained and potentially unsafe for students," the recent report said.

Morton school officials' lack of action "could be regarded as negligence," the report said.

Several board members wanted to know why — if there is a potential hazard to students — the state accreditation and money was not immediately revoked.

"It appears the children's lives might be endangered," said Mary Ann Leveridge of East Bernard.

"We saw in one of our neighboring states a terrible disaster on a campus," she said, referring to a recent Oklahoma school explosion. Seven elementary school students died and 34 were injured when a water heater exploded at Star Elementary School in Spencer Jan. 19.

Raymon Bynum, commissioner of education, said the Morton ISD is on a "short fuse" that could result in loss of accreditation if the problems are not corrected. He said the district is "in somewhat of a turmoil" because of personnel problems. The district now is without a superintendent, he said.

Chisholm says minority gains ending

HOUSTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is "destroying the quality of life for America," particularly for the poor, ethnic minorities and women, U.S. Rep. Shirley Chisholm says.

"Many of the things we (blacks and women) have gained in the last 15 years are on the legislative or executive assault," Chisholm said at a meeting sponsored by the Congressional Black Caucus and the Minority Women's Association.

The caucus also sponsored a march on Houston City Hall Saturday, where about 200 people protested federal budget cuts.

Chisholm, at a Friday news conference, stopped short of calling President Reagan a racist but said his actions "lead me to think there are some racial overtones."

The congresswoman, who in 1968 became the first black woman to win election to the U.S. House, announced last week she would not seek another term. Mrs. Chisholm indicated her future activities would include organization work for female political candidates, but she declined to specify.

"This is not my funeral," she said.

Mrs. Chisholm, who ran for president in 1972, said there was a bloodless "revolution" taking place in Washington.

"The restructuring of the federal government under the guise of the New Federalism concept is actually destroying the quality of life for America," she said.

She also called the president's federalism program "another name for a return to state's rights" and blasted the administration-sponsored tax cuts as "fraud and deception being perpetrated on the American people."

The Republican administration has embarked on a military spending program that could result in federal expenditures of $1 trillion, almost 60 percent of the budget, on defense by 1985 to the further detriment of social programs, Mrs. Chisholm said.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

Clayton Hangs Up His Spurs

AUSTIN — Sometimes this page is too short to tell you all the things we want to say. When we decided to talk about the man who has been the Speaker of the House for the last eight years, we knew this would be one of those times.

Bill Clayton is one of the finest public servants this state has ever had, or ever will have. He came to the Legislature 20 years ago, armed with only native intelligence, a sense of fair play and a desire to serve, not take from, the state.

He quickly learned the ropes of his new job. His colleagues in the House saw the potential he held and elected him their leader four times, which is more than any other person in the history of this state.

Bill Clayton got the respect and attention of those 149 other House members because he promised to be, and was, fair to all. He promised to listen, and he did listen.

Bill Clayton, the farmer from Springlake, appointed the first black, the first woman and the first Republican House committee chairmen in this century. He did this out of fairness.

House members, and everyone else who knows him, knows you don't need a written contract when you deal with Bill Clayton. His word is his bond and it is worth its weight in gold. Our speaker for eight years has the rare talent of being interested in issues, knowing those issues backward and forward, but knowing that the people behind those issues are most important. Those who know him also know that if he lacks a position, it is for the right reasons — fairness and honesty.

Bill Clayton has announced his retirement from the House. He will be missed by everyone in that body who is interested in the future of Texas. He also has announced he will not run for office in 1982. We regret that, because the people of this great state need great people to lead them. We need people like Billy Wayne Clayton. We hope he is just hanging up his spurs until the next roundup and not forever. He still has a lot to offer for his state, and what he has to offer is not found in just anybody.

But whether he decides to take up the yoke of public service again or not, Bill Clayton can rest with a clear conscience. He has served us all; he has served us well; he has served us selflessly.

We know you are all interested in the leadership of this state. Please share your interest with us. Write to Senator Bill Sarpalius, P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

Odessa man on trial for murder of Lordsburg man

TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES, N.M. (AP) — The prosecution has rested its case in the trial of an Odessa, Texas, man charged with the March 8, 1981, shooting death of a Lordsburg man.

The trial of Charles Ralph Cobb, 30, is scheduled to resume Monday before District Judge Robert Doughty.

Cobb is charged with capital murder, attempted first-degree murder, armed robbery and auto theft in the slaying of Richard Bejarano and the wounding of his wife, Karen Bejarano, during a robbery at the couple's fast-food restaurant in Lordsburg.

Shane Lasiter, who was 16 at the time of the killing, pleaded guilty to the four charges in connection with the case after he was declared an adult. Lasiter, now 17, was sentenced to life in prison.

Walter Scott Fennell, 22, was convicted of the four counts last October and was sentenced to death.

Mrs. Bejarano testified Friday during Cobb's trial.

"My God, they shot us," Mrs. Bejarano shouted as she testified how Lasiter and Fennell had fired at her and her husband.

She said she and her husband were robbed and then taken into a storage room and shot.

"They shot us! They shot us! They killed my husband! Do you know how it feels to wake up with bullets in you and your husband's body on top of you? I couldn't believe it! They shot us," Mrs. Bejarano said.

She testified she had seen a third man standing by the door of the restaurant and later thought she saw the man follow the Bejaranos toward the room where they were shot.

Mrs. Bejarano said three men entered the restaurant and she had not paid much attention to the men until she heard her husband ask how much money they wanted.

She said she looked up and saw a man with a pistol walking around the counter into the kitchen. Mrs. Bejarano identified the two gunmen as Lasiter and Fennell.

But Mrs. Bejarano said she never got a good look at the third man. She testified that she saw the third man walk beside the counter as she and her husband were being ushered toward the storeroom.

Mrs. Bejarano said she remembered seeing the third man walk away from the door, but she could not identify the man because she saw him out of the corner of her eye.

Mike Stout of Roswell, Cobb's attorney, contends Cobb is innocent and had nothing to do with the robbery or the shooting.

Cobb tried to talk Fennell and Lasiter out of robbing the restaurant, Stout said.

Once Cobb realized there might be violence, he left the restaurant, Stout said. Cobb was in the parking lot when he heard a series of gunshots from inside the cafe, the attorney said.

Lasiter testified Friday he asked for more money, ripped the receiver out of the telephone and took the Bejaranos to the storeroom because he "wanted to please" Cobb and "wanted to save my own skin."

AMARILLO CROP SYMPOSIUM

J.B. Wheeler, chairman of the Board of Hale County State Bank in Plainview, will be the keynote speaker at the Annual Crop Symposium at the Texas A & M Center, 6500 Amarillo Blvd. West, Amarillo, on Thursday, February 18, starting at 9:30 a.m. Wheeler's topic is "How Bad is the Farm Crisis."

In addition to Wheeler, Dr. Milton Holloway, director, Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council will discuss the impact of natural gas deregulation on crop production. Wesley Masters, president of Center Plains Industries in Amarillo will tell symposium participants about the impact of natural gas deregulation on fertilizer production.

The nuts and bolts of crop budgets and cash flow analysis will be discussed by Dr. Wyatt Harman and Ray Sammons, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station Research Economics and Texas Agricultural Extension Service farm management specialist from Amarillo.

Other topics being discussed by Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and USDA Researchers from Bushland and Amarillo are "Management of Center Pivot Systems" by Dr. Dan Undersander, and "Water Conservation in Irrigated Crop Production", by Jack Musick. Dr. Paul Unger will discuss "Water Conservation in Dryland Crops", and Dr. Steve Winter will present his research on cropping systems. The program will be rounded out by Randy Underwood, Conservation Agronomist with the USDA Soil Conservation Service from Amarillo telling people about "Limited Tillage in Action on the Farm."

The symposium is sponsored by the USDA Conservation and Production Research Laboratory at Bushland, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Texas Agricultural Extension Service and Panhandle Economic Program.

Everyone interested in management techniques and new research to combat high costs and low prices will benefit from this symposium.

OATS FOR HAY AND GRAIN

Many producers are considering planting oats for hay or grain. As oats are not very winterhardy the best time for planting the winter types is February. According to test information obtained over a period of years at Bushland the more productive hay varieties are Cimarron, Bronco, and Cheota. Nora and Norwin are preferred for grain because they produce high yields of large plump kernels. Walken is a good oat to plant when the main objective is late spring grazing. Spring varieties of oats are sometimes grown in the Panhandle. They have a tendency to produce large coarse stems. There is a moderate risk of freeze damage if spring varieties are planted in February. Planting in March or later delays heading and grain development which increases the risk of reduced yields due to hot dry winds. The seeding rate suggested for oats is 2 to 3 bushels per acre. The standard test weight for oats is 32 pounds per bushel.

BARLEY

Both barley and oats are good alternative crops to replace some wheat acreage. Fall planting of barley is associated with a high risk of winterkill. Planting later in the fall and keeping top growth down will minimize loss of stand. Barley can be planted in January or February to further reduce risk of freeze damage, while still maintaining good tillering and yield potential. Varieties suggested and generally available for use in the Panhandle are Will, Post, Tambar 401, Era and Rogers. Of these varieties, Post has the shortest and stiffest straw plus a very good yield potential. Will and Post are resistant to greenbugs which may save one or two insecticide applications compared to susceptible wheat and barley varieties. Barley generally develops and matures more rapidly than wheat, consequently it may be possible to save an irrigation at comparable yield levels.

CALFHOOD VACCINATION OF HEIFERS IMPORTANT

Important changes in the Texas brucellosis program have been proposed and should have an important impact on the control of the disease.

Public comments are now being sought by the Texas Animal Health Commission on regulation proposals to require calfhood vaccination of heifer calves for brucellosis control under certain conditions. Amendments to the Texas program now proposed would require calfhood vaccination of all heifers born after Jan. 1, 1982 for movement into the state or when changing ownership. Exceptions would be heifers consigned to a quarantined feedlot or pasture, those consigned to slaughter, or those S branded and consigned to a special regulated pasture.

Reduced dosage of Strain 19 vaccine, which has been available for the past year, is almost as effective as the higher dosage used in the past. With the old strength, Strain 19 was sometimes blamed for causing female animals to be diagnosed as having brucellosis, when, in fact, it was a reaction of the vaccine itself.

Reduced dosage is expected to help eliminate confusion over levels of antibodies in the blood of vaccinated heifers. Some females in the past developed persisting residual blood titers after vaccination with the old strength of the vaccine. The titers are measurements of antibodies resulting from vaccination or brucellosis infection.

Titers induced by the vaccination using the reduced dose are lower and recede rapidly although the degree of immunity is practically equal to that produced by the higher dosage.

Vaccination ages for eligible heifer calves are now four to 12 months for all breeds. Being able to vaccinate animals up to 12 months of age with less worry about false reaction to blood tests is another advantage.

The vaccine must be administered by certified veterinarians or personnel approved by the Texas Animal Health Commission, since the vaccine is fragile and must be handled under controlled conditions to establish good immunity.

Brazil weather helps U.S. export prospects

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dry weather last month in Brazil has helped improve U.S. export prospects, says the Agriculture Department.

But the news will not mean much price improvement, if any, for farmers who have held on to their last year's soybeans, according to figures released Thursday.

Last year's bumper crops of soybeans, wheat and corn have helped depress prices this season. That is why farmers, traders and government experts watch developments in other countries.

"The slight reduction in soybeans available to world markets, coupled with the good pace of U.S. exports, suggests 1981-82 U.S. soybean exports will be a little larger than the January forecast and well above the 1980-81 levels," the report said.

U.S. soybean exports now are projected at 850 million bushels, up 10 million bushels from indications on Jan. 26, the report said. Exports in 1980-81 totaled 724 million bushels.

The reduced crop in Brazil "is the principal basis for the improvement in U.S. export movement," the report said, although there are other factors.

"Reductions in production forecasts for other oilseed crops — particularly Soviet sunflowerseed and India peanut output — also are likely to contribute to improved demand for U.S. soybeans and products," it said. "However, some strengthening in the U.S. dollar in recent weeks could dampen demand."

The U.S. soybean supply is large, and the analysis said an inventory of 350 million bushels can be expected when the marketing year ends on July 31, compared to 318 million bushels on hand when the current year began last Aug. 1.

Consequently, there is no appreciable improvement in the farm prices of soybeans in the works, according to the latest report. It said farm prices may average $6.25 a bushel, give or take 50 cents. That was unchanged from the price outlook last month. Soybean prices averaged $7.57 a bushel in 1980-81. Looking at the corn situation, the report said "larger prospective exportable supplies" in Argentina and weaker import demand in some major foreign markets have squeezed U.S. corn exports still further.

The latest projection puts corn exports at less than 2.18 billion bushels, down 75 million from indications last month and 8 percent below the 1980-81 export level of 2.25 billion bushels.

FRUIT TREES ARE CLONES

The fruit tree you purchase in the nursery is an identical clone of a variety or type of tree which has been identified, tested and selected for possessing one or several desirable characteristics. A clone is a group of plants all of whose members are directly descended from a single individual. Cloning insures that all offspring are identical and possess the desired characteristics of the parent.

Trees are cloned by taking a bud or some form of vegetation from the desirable parent tree and transferring it to a seedling (grown from a seed) tree. Desirable parent plants of some types can be reproduced by rooting vegetative parts. Cloning insures that all new plants will be the same as the desirable parent.

Is sex involved? Absolutely not! The sexual part of a tree is its seed. Trees are extremely hybridized and have many different characteristic potentials. This is apparent when one considers the different characteristics of seedling ash trees sold in Texas. Look at ash trees around your neighborhood — some are tall with sparse foliage, while others are short with thick foliage, and some lose leaves in October while others keep their leaves until frost.

Cloning and vegetative reproduction eliminate the variability involved with the sexual reproduction by using seed. This is why seeds of good-tasting apples, peaches, pears or pecans should never be planted in hopes of growing a tree which will produce the same fruit. The odds of growing a tree from a seed which will produce the same characteristics of the fruit which produced the seed are 10 million to one. A grafted or budded tree is a sure-fire winner.

One advantage to cloning rather than using the seedling procedure is that the buyer gets two trees for the price of one. The rootstock or bottom portion of the tree also can lend certain desirable characteristics to the tree's overall performance. For instance, in selecting peaches and plums, homeowners should be aware of the rootstock on which the variety is budded. The rootstock on all peach and plum varieties grown in the home planting should be grafted on "Menaguard" rootstock. The rootstock is resistant to root knot nematodes, which are a major problem on peaches and plums.

The county Extension office has a list of the fruit varieties recommended for the area. For reliable results, select well-adapted fruit and nut trees with superior rootstocks.

TRAINING YOUNG FRUIT TREES

Probably the most difficult thing for the gardener to grasp when dealing with young fruit trees is that half of the top growth should be removed before planting. Many nurseries provide this service to customers.

Why must a tree be topped? When a tree is dug at the nursery, about half of its root system is lost. So, an equal amount of top growth must be removed to bring top and bottom into balance again (the root-shoot ratio) and to begin the main branches in the right places. If this balance is not maintained, the tree will grow feebly, if at all, and branches may die back anyway.

Pruning does not mean "whack off the top half." Initial pruning removes branches that total about half of the top growth starting with weak and poorly placed ones. This should produce a tree with three to five strong, well-distributed scaffold branches from which new growth will come soon. If you choose good branches now, you can avoid barren branches and poorly shaped trees later.

After planting and pruning the nursery tree, water it thoroughly. Remember that the newly established tree is operating on a limited root zone and cannot "reach" for additional soil moisture during times of stress. To retain moisture and control competing weeds, spread mulches 2 or 3 inches deep around the trunk. This early care keeps new roots actively growing and insures a vigorous, well-established tree with a potential for earlier quality and quantity production.

Once the newly planted tree has established a substantial root system, use a systematic cultural program which involves watering, pruning, thinning fruit, and controlling insects and diseases. Since these cultural requirements vary for different fruits, contact the county Extension office for specific recommendations.

With proper selection and care, a fruit tree or grape vine can be a real asset to the home gardener. By the same token, the poorly adapted, improperly cared for fruit tree will be a lasting liability.

PARENT LEADERS MEETING
A Gray County 4-H Parent

Leader meeting is scheduled for February 16, at 7 p.m. at the County Annex in Pampa. All parents and leaders need to plan to attend this meeting and take part in making these decisions which affect your 4-H organization.

The agenda of the meeting will be to discuss the structure of the 4-H Leaders and Parents Organization, committee reports, bidder's breakfast and 4-H dates.

4-H'ERS SPEAK UP FOR BETTER COMMUNICATION

More effective communication may be one solution to closing, or at least narrowing, the generation gap.

4-H young people from 9 to 19 in the 4-H public speaking program are working to establish better rapport with adults — and with peers.

Through learn-by-doing activities, these 4-H'ers become skilled and confident in presenting their ideas formally to an audience. As a result, they are better able to get their message across clearly and convincingly in informal, everyday situations.

If you are interested in a 4-H public speaking project, contact the County Extension Office today at 669-7429.

Most people are very careful about writing their will. But many forget that funeral planning should be part of their will.

IS YOUR WILL FORGETTING SOMETHING?

Specific funeral plans should also be filed with your funeral director to protect your family from having to make many decisions at a time when decisions can be confusing and difficult. Pre-planning is important.

We can insure that your wishes are registered with a copy kept on file for your family. A little foresight now can save a lot of confusion later.

Tascosa edges Pampa on basket at final buzzer

AMARILLO—Tascosa's James Dawn spoiled Pampa's hopes of an unbeaten District 3-5A season by sinking an 18-foot jumper at the buzzer to edge the Harvesters, 67-65, Friday night before an overflow crowd in the Rebels' gym.

Pampa, the first-half district champions, are 1-1 in second-half loop play and 23-4 overall. Pampa hosts Palo Duro Tuesday night and Amarillo High Friday night to wrap up the regular season. Should the Harvesters fail to win or tie for the second-half crown, they would still be assured of a playoff for the overall district title.

Tascosa is now 2-0 in the second-half district standings and 20-6 in all games.

If the fans felt like they were in a breadbox, the players didn't allow themselves much breathing room either. Neither team could gain more than a seven-point advantage throughout the game.

The lead switched back and forth eight times in the first quarter before the Rebels found some daylight on the deadeye outside shooting of Reggie Lee to take a three-point lead into the dressing room at halftime.

With leading scorer Mike Nelson on the bench with four fouls most of the second half, the Rebels opened up a seven-point lead in the third quarter.

Trailing by four, 53-49, going into the final quarter, the Harvesters went on a scoring surge and went ahead by six, 63-57, with 2:54 to go on two baskets by Charles Nelson and one by Phil Jeffrey.

But the Rebels, led by Dawn, started the comeback that would eventually win the game.

David Reinbold hit the front end of a one and one, then Reggie Martin put back in his miss on the next try, and Dawn completed a three-point play to knot the score, 63-all, with two minutes showing on the clock.

After Mike Nelson worked the lane for two points to give the Harvesters a 65-63 lead, the Rebels tied things again on Martin's goal.

After Charles Nelson missed a foul shot, the Rebels gained possession and stalled for the final shot in the closing seconds. Tascosa's strategy was to go to the 5-8 Lee.

However, the Harvesters had Lee covered like a blanket and the ball ended up in the hands of Dawn, who sent Pampa home with its first defeat in 15 games.

Mike Nelson and Coyle Winborn paced the Harvesters with 16 points apiece. Winborn, a 6-6 sophomore, hit five of seven shots from the floor while the 6-3 Nelson was seven of twelve, hitting his last four shots. Terry Faggins and Charles Nelson added 12 and 11 points respectively. Meryl Dowdy and Phil Jeffrey had four points apiece while Jimmy Barker had two.

For Tascosa, Lee and Dawn combined for 46 points. Lee scored 16 of his 25 points in the first half while Dawn tossed in 13 of his 21 markers in the second half.

Pampa coach Garland Nichols looks for his Harvesters to be involved in a playoff with Tascosa for the district championship.

"These next two games for us could be meaningless," Nichols added. "I'm looking for a playoff with Tascosa because I don't think Amarillo High can beat them."

Nichols said the Rebels just had the better team Friday night.

"We had our chance to win, but our kids just didn't perform like they had in the past," Nichols said. "Tascosa just took advantage of our mistakes and they just beat us. Nelson (Mike) sitting on the bench with four fouls hurt us. With him out we just didn't handle the situation like we should have."

Pampa tennis teams open with wins over Plainview

Pampa High tennis squads opened the season with victories over Plainview Saturday at the Pampa Youth Center courts.

Both Pampa boys and girls posted 5-4 victories.

The Harvesters dropped all three doubles matches, but bounced back to win four of six singles contests for the team victory.

"I was real pleased with that," Pampa coach Stacey Foster said.

Top-seeded Mike Spence dropped the opening set to Richie Havenhill, 4-6, but came back to win the next two, 6-1, 6-3.

No. 2 seeded Greg Trollinger notched a 6-3 win over Ricky Butler in the first set, then dropped the second set, 5-7, before winning the third set, 6-3.

In the girls' division, Pampa's Leslie Eddins downed Christy Bentley, 6-4, 6-1, in the battle of top-seeded players.

"Leslie played well," Foster added. "Bentley was the winner of the Amarillo Tournament last year."

Pampa enters the San Angelo Invitational Feb. 27-28.

Fitness First!

By Tim McGaughey
Youth Center Director
Exercise Requires Discipline

The other day a fellow came to the Youth Center who was overweight and 40 with a family history of heart disease. After taking a stress test, his doctor recommended that he start exercising, dieting, losing fat and getting back into shape. The problem is multifaceted, but can be expressed in one word, "How?"

Basically all of the problems can be condensed into one solution. It takes discipline to make life giving activity a priority. But considering the alternative, isn't it time to put a little discipline into your life?

Three conditions must be met in order to satisfy the things necessary to good cardiovascular fitness. Twelve to fifteen minutes of all body activity three times a week on alternate days, with a heart rate around 70 percent of maximum virtually guarantees a healthy heart and lungs. Most people cannot start out at this level, but it does not take long to work up to and beyond that point. Come by the Center and get set up on a program, we'll be glad to help.

Volleyball Meeting Tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the Youth Center is the volleyball meeting for the spring. Separate nights for women, mixed and men, fees, tournament and entry information will be discussed. Only captains or one team representative need be present.

Girls' Basketball

An organizational meeting for seventh-grade girls' basketball will be held this Tuesday night at 8 p.m. in the Youth Center Office. If you are interested in coaching, refereeing or donating your time to help out, please come. For you girls who are interested in playing, we'll be taking names starting Wednesday to be placed on a team. To participate, you must be currently enrolled in the seventh grade and be a member of the Youth Center.

The Pampa Youth and Community Center is located at 1005 West Harvester just north of the Coronado Shopping Center. The Center's new phone number is 665-0748.

Optimist basketball roundup

By BOB DIXON
Pampa News Correspondent

Friday night saw the Bullets outlasting the Celtics by a 36-35 count in Optimist Club basketball action. It was a game where the Bullets did everything to put the game out of reach, but the Celtics refused to die and came back time and again until the final buzzer which saw them fall one point shy.

The Bullets jumped off to a six point lead in the first period, leading 12-6, but the Celtics came back in the second period and cut the lead to two, trailing 18-16 at intermission.

In the third period, the Bullets jumped out to a 7-point lead with three minutes remaining in the quarter. The Celtics then came storming back, scoring four quick baskets to take a one-point lead with 1:30 left.

Troy Owens then scored a field goal and a foul shot in the fading seconds to give the Bullets a four-point lead (30-26) going into the final stanza.

It was nip and tuck in the final period with the Celtics outscoring the victors 9-6 which left them one point short as the game came to its exciting conclusion.

Owens had 17 points for the Bullets, followed by Dustin Miller with 11, also for the Bullets.

Kevin Bunton had 13 for the losing Celtics. Kerry Brown hit for 10 for the Celtics.

In the late game, the previously winless Lakers stopped the 76ers, 37-23. Leading the way for the winners was Del Ryan who tossed in 20 points. Chris Kirkham had 12 for the Sixers, while his brother Kirk had eight.

The regular season will conclude this week, with games on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday nights. Feature game Monday will be the Bullets tangling with the Spurs for the lead in the second half with each standing at 1-0. The Spurs won the first half with a 4-0 ledger.

Oklahoma stood third with a team total of 278, followed by Brigham Young and Texas at 582. Oral Roberts was sixth with 583, ahead of Stanford's 588, Texas A&M at 589, Lamar with 590 and TCU with 597.

Florida State's Steve Kepler was third in the individual standings with a two-round total of 139. Rick Despite a severe case of near-sightedness, Margaret Murdock of the United States won a silver medal in rifle-shooting at the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

Fehr of Brigham Young carded a 142 and Greg Aune of Texas was at 143 along with Danny Briggs of Texas A&M.

Pan American University of Edinburg, Texas, sponsors the tournament at Club Campestre de Monterrey. More than 20 college golf teams have entered this year's event.

Spinks retains light heavyweight title

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Michael Spinks retained his World Boxing Association light heavyweight title Saturday, stopping Mustafa Wasajja of Uganda at 1:36 in the sixth round of their scheduled 15-round bout.

Spinks, now 19-0, jolted Wasajja in the fourth and fifth rounds with solid right hooks to the face, creating a welt under his opponent's left eye, before referee Tony Perez halted the bout.

Wasajja, 24-1-1, showed good hand speed and aggressiveness until the sixth. But he had a four-inch reach disadvantage and could not land any blows that appeared to hurt the 6-foot-2 champion.

Spinks said before the fight with the No. 1 contender. "I know nothing about him except his name and that he is left-handed."

Sugar Ray meets Finch in Monday night match

RENO, Nev. (AP) — The memory of fighting Bruce Finch as an amateur nine years ago is a vague one for Sugar Ray Leonard, who will defend the undisputed welterweight championship against Finch Monday night.
 "I remember beating him in the amateurs," Leonard said Friday. "I can't remember whether it was a decision or a knockout."
 The 27-year-old Finch remembers.
 "He just beat me," he said. "He won a decision. The better man won. But I'm a much better fighter than I was when I was an amateur."
 "I can't rate him yet," said Leonard. "I can't knock him yet. I just think he's a guy who deserves a title shot. I like to give everybody an opportunity for the title."
 "I am aware of what can take place if you take someone for granted," said the 25-year-old champion, who recalled his fight against Larry Bonds at Syracuse last March 28 when he still only held the World Boxing Council's share of the welterweight title.

Bonds was expected by many observers to give Leonard little opposition, but the left-hander, who isn't power puncher, gave Leonard some problems before being stopped in the 10th round.
 Leonard appears to be in top physical shape for the fight, but while he says he isn't taking Finch for granted, he is already lined up to fight Roger Stafford, who last year upset Pipino Cuevas, the former World Boxing Association champion.
 And he is talking about at least three, maybe a total of four defenses this year of the undisputed title he won by stopping Thomas Hearns in the 14th round last Sept. 16 at Las Vegas.
 Another possible opponent is Alexis Arguelo, the WBC lightweight champion and one of only six men to win titles in three divisions.
 Leonard will take a record of 31-1, with 22 knockouts — the loss was to Roberto Duran, which was avenged — into his first defense of the undisputed title, which will be carried live on cable television by Home Box Office at about 7 p.m. PST. The site of Reno's first title fight since Jack Johnson knocked out Jim Jeffries in the 15th round in defense of the heavyweight championship July 4, 1910, will be the 6,700-seat Centennial Coliseum, and promoter Dan Duva of Main Event Productions, Inc., of New Jersey, said the event is a sellout.

 Leonard is an overwhelming favorite, and when asked if he might carry his opponent, he stared at the questioner, then said: "I don't carry anybody. If I hurt a guy in the first round, I'm going to try to take him out in the first round."
 Finch, a native of Milwaukee now fighting out of Las Vegas, has a 30-3-1 record, with 24 knockouts. He has won 11 straight fights since being knocked out in the second round by Thomas Hearns Sept. 7, 1978, when he was handling his own career.
 His last eight victories have been under the management of Keith Gallier, a Las Vegas attorney, and Bernie Dommermuth, owner of the Orbit Inn, a Las Vegas hotel-casino for which Finch works as a greeter.

LSU head basketball coach to speak at Harvester banquet

Dale Brown, Louisiana State University head coach, will be the featured speaker at the annual Pampa High Basketball Banquet April 20 in M.K. Brown Auditorium.
 Brown was named National Coach of the Year after he led his team to the NCAA final four in 1980-81. Brown's Tigers compiled a 31-5 record last season.

UTEP scores upset

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Senior guard Virgil Kennedy made a three-point play with just 18 seconds left to lead the University of Texas-El Paso a 43-37 upset of Western Athletic Conference leader Wyoming in college basketball Saturday.
 Kennedy's three-point play came with the Miners leading 38-37 in a hard-fought regionally televised game in which they had come from behind by scoring 10 straight points in the second half.
 The loss spoiled Wyoming's last appearance in War Memorial Fieldhouse and ended their record home victory streak at 26 games. It also threatened to drop Wyoming out of first place in the conference, depending on the results of Saturday night games.
 The Cowboys now are 10-2 in conference play and 18-6 overall, while the Miners brought their record to 7-4 in the conference and 16-7 overall.

Houston slips by Razorbacks

HOUSTON (AP) — Junior guard Rob Williams got his long-awaited revenge Saturday as the Houston Cougars stopped a last-minute comeback by eighth-ranked Arkansas.

"This one finally takes away a lot of the bitterness left over from our earlier game," Williams said of the Cougars' 55-53 Southwest Conference basketball victory.

couldn't get the ball in the hole. We didn't exercise our spread very well. We missed a couple of easy shots and turned the ball over a couple of times."

The victory boosted Houston's SWC record to 7-5 in the conference and 16-6 overall and left five teams with chances to capture the conference title in the next two weeks.

"We control our own destiny. If we win out, we're still the champions. But it won't be easy," Sutton said.

Arkansas, 8-4 in the conference and 17-5 overall, holds a one-game lead over rival Texas A&M, which was to play Saturday night against Rice. Houston is tied with Baylor and Texas Christian two games behind the Razorbacks.

The downfall of pro basketball David Halberstam blames NBA owners

NEW YORK (NEA) — Three seasons before, they had been the best. But in the 1979-80 season, the season that Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist — and die-hard fan — David Halberstam spent with them, the Portland Trail Blazers were no longer the champs of the National Basketball Association. Their star center, Bill Walton, had traded himself to another team. They were losing as many games as they were winning, they were being torn apart by injury and disharmony. They were, Halberstam recalls, "A team afflicted by all of the illnesses of the NBA."

He has written a book about the Trail Blazers, called "The Breaks of the Game." It is a very different sort of sports book. On the surface, it is a conventional look at a sports franchise, at personalities and egos. We meet Jack Ramsey, the Blazers' demanding coach; Bill Walton, the fragile and complicated young giant; Mo Lucas, the on-court enforcer; Kermit Washington, a gentle black man haunted by the nearly fatal punch he threw at a white player; Billy Ray Bates, a sharecropper's son who nearly saved the season.

But "The Breaks of the Game" isn't a book about the game of basketball. It's a disturbing inside look at the business of the game of basketball. A business that's in trouble.

Basketball used to be considered the most beautiful pro sport in existence, a blend of speed, skill, grace and power no other game could touch. Now many fans find it listless, artless. Arenas are half-empty. "It's a game of contradictions right now," says Halberstam. "The salaries are going higher and higher while attendance and TV ratings go down. The game has been cheapened, diminished, diluted. I wanted to reveal the commercialization behind it, use basketball to reflect American society."

Halberstam, the burly, celebrated author of "The Best and the Brightest" and "The Powers that Be," points his finger at the owners. "They've allowed for an ever-expanding league and schedule. The number of teams doubled in the last decade, and now they're even talking about adding a team in Minneapolis. There's more but there's less — they've ruined a very delicate game. Rivalries have been diminished, the talent bank is spread thin. An awful lot of the teams just aren't any good. And an awful lot of the games don't mean anything. There's a bone-crushing season of 82 games yet teams with losing records can make the playoffs. That's a fraud on the consumer and on the players. That's junk. But the number of NBA owners who actually care about the game is tiny. They're more concerned with marketing and tax benefits than they are with the product."

TV revenues allowed the NBA to expand faster than was healthy, says Halberstam. "The impulse that changed the league is the American commercial instinct, the marriage of Madison Avenue to TV. What happened was shaving cream commercials. TV changes everything. It makes the game a reflection of entertainment values rather than those of sports. Magic Johnson's lifetime $25-million contract with the L.A. Lakers isn't a sports contract. That's a Madison Avenue shaving cream contract. It's designed to make him a star. What is the effect of such a contract? It puts the other players' noses out of joint, reduces his incentive to work as hard. It makes him un-tradable, which reduces the coach's discipline leverage."

Reduces it indeed — Laker coach Paul Westhead was ousted by owner Jerry Buss because Johnson was dissatisfied with him. "The no-cut contract," says Halberstam, "has undermined the political power base of the coach."

Get a disillusioned white basketball fan talking and the racial issue comes up as a reason for the decline in hustle, strategy, team play, defense. Some white fans feel that the black player — 70 percent of the players in the NBA are black — can't or won't adjust his game to the finer points of team play. Halberstam acknowledges the racial argument as a complaint of white fans, but he thinks it's a misconception. "White fans were amazed by the speed and agility of the black players when they came into the league. Now the white fans tend to take it for granted. They also tend to identify with the scrappy white players of limited skill who dive after loose balls — so do white coaches and the white press. The black player cares just as much as the scrappy white one does — often more — it's just that his passion for the game is more carefully concealed."

Halberstam's season on the road and in the locker room with the Blazers did dash some of the boyhood mystique basketball held for him. "The little boy in you still lives in that world," he admits. "What I did takes some of the pleasure out. But when I see a great game it's still marvelous."

He remains optimistic about basketball's future. "The game will survive in some form, whether it's good or not. A lot of the teams are talking about cable-television right now. Cable is the new magic wand. It may help certain franchises — the good ones — but the games will still have to compete with what else is available on TV. If the product is no good people won't watch it. The people know."

Tigers hold off Cowboys

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Senior forward Marvin McCrary scored five of Missouri's last 11 points as the Tigers held off a late rally to beat Oklahoma State 89-82 in Big Eight basketball Saturday.

The fourth-ranked Tigers led 72-57 with eight minutes left when the Cowboys went on a 15-point scoring spree to narrow the gap to 76-72. But Missouri held onto the lead by connecting on seven of eight free throws in the final two minutes.

Thirteen of McCrary's game-high 25 points were made at the free throw line. He missed only one free throw and hit six of eight baskets from the field. Junior guard Jon Sundvold and senior forward Ricky Frazier also notched double figures for Missouri with 24 and 18 points, respectively.

Junior Leroy Combs was high scorer for Oklahoma State with 21 points and 10 rebounds. Lorenza Andrews and Joe Atkinson were the only other Cowboys in double figures with 15 and 10 points, respectively.

Missouri is now 21-1 overall and 10-1 in conference play. Oklahoma State is now 13-9 overall and 5-5 in the Big Eight.

Babe Didrikson Zaharias, a star at anything she attempted, was voted the top woman athlete of the first half of the 20th century.

WINNER of the 1981 Van Cliburn International Quadrennial piano competition, Andre - Michel Schub will perform at M. K. Brown Auditorium at 8 p.m., Monday, Feb. 15. The performance is sponsored by the Pampa Fine Arts Association.

Van Cliburn winner to perform Monday night

Andre - Michel Schub, winner of the 1981 Van Cliburn International piano competition in May, will perform at M. K. Brown Auditorium, Monday, February 15, at 8 p.m. Sponsored by the Fine Arts Association, Schub has made headlines since his Fort Worth win over 39 selected contestants from 17 countries and his national televised performances.

Since then his managers have been busy scheduling his performances, both solo and with symphony orchestras, from coast to coast, in Europe and Far East. Highlights of this season will include 2 performances at Carnegie Hall, one with the American Symphony Orchestra and the other in a March recital. He will perform some of his selection for the Pampa recital in Carnegie Hall.

His first recording for Vox Cum Laude was released recently. It includes Brahms - Handle Variations, Liszt's Dante Fantasia, and two of the Liszt - Paganini Etudes, all of which he played in the Cliburn competition.

Immediately after the Cliburn win, Schub was honored by the mayor of New York City in a ceremony at the New York City Hall. He was invited by President Reagan to play at the state dinner honoring Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Schub has "lived" music since his mother, a pianist began to teach him when was 4 years old. He didn't know much about television in the 60's he confesses, for as an adolescent he spent his free time practicing.

While a student at the Curtis Institute of Music for 3 years, he used to hear Van Cliburn often. "He has given me a lot of support and encouragement," said Schub. From his teacher Rudolf Serkin he "learns integrity, and how to dig under the notes for a deeper message. I love music; it's the thing I can express myself with," said the artist.

Schub had over 100 appearances last year. The

Inventory your home

By DONNA BRAUCHI, County Extension Agent
Because home possessions accumulate over the years, it's easy to forget exactly what and how much you own. Knowing what you have is important. It can help make you aware, first, so you can be sure your insurance protection covers the full value of your possessions. Then later, if you suffer a loss and have to file a claim, you'll know exactly what was lost and the value of each item.

Most people cannot remember all of their home's contents following a loss from fire, tornado, etc. The result is a potential loss that could amount to thousands of dollars.

The full amount of the "contents" insurance you may have as a part of a homewoners or tenants policy is not automatically paid. The homeowner or tenant must provide a detailed list of all items stolen or destroyed.

To prove to yourself how important a list can be, just take ten minutes for a simple exercise. Sit down and itemize from memory everything in one room. Then compare your list against what's actually there. Most people find they have forgotten several things.

STARTING A HOME INVENTORY

To have a complete home inventory, systematically go through every room listing each piece of furniture and clothing. Also indicate, as accurately as possible, the date of purchase and the price. Keep your inventory current by adding all new purchases and gifts. An excellent method of describing the items listed in the inventory is to take color photos of everything, including the inside of closets and drawers.

WHERE TO STORE HOUSEHOLD INVENTORY

It is important NOT to keep the inventory list and photographs in your home. They would be destroyed along with everything else in the event of fire, or possibly stolen if burglarized. Make a copy of the inventory for your use, but keep the originals in a safe deposit box.

The few hours it takes to complete your inventory could save you thousands of dollars, and will definitely save you time and aggravation, in the event of a major fire or theft. The County Extension Office has household inventory forms called Setting Your Household in Order. Just call our office or come by and pick up a set of the forms.

NEW PUBLICATIONS

Peeking at Pampa

In spite of the snow and ice, there was a good turnout for the Royal Canadians' marvelous music and show on Wednesday night, the 3rd, in the Heritage room. Almost 200 people braved the storm and enjoyed the fine dancing, dining and fellowship. Dancers said the music sounded exactly as it did when Guy Lombardo was alive, and the floor was gacked throughout the evening. Teddy Phillips, director, displayed his versatility by playing several instruments, by urging the audience to sing along, and by presenting a special show that delighted the crowd.

Teddy gave a humorous talk and then called up four people from the audience for special inclusion in the show. Each was given a new, small-sized horn and hummed into it with the orchestra. Understand that Darlene Toland put on a great show — and that Bill Gablemann brought down the house with his performance on the miniature trombone. Norma Maguire and J. D. Paris weren't bad either. The show included renditions of the music of different countries.

Chef G. F. Baker had a splendid array of food, served all evening. The ladies' gowns were lovely. Lora barber was exquisite in a black formal with puff sleeves and white - and - gold accessories. Betty Coffee was stunning in her white pants suit. Out of towners who attended included Joyce and Joel Lackey of Gruver, Delia and Willis Clark of Miami. It was a magnificent evening, everybody said.

Heard that Sheriff Rufe Jordan and wife, Viola, were honored at a dinner party on their 48th wedding anniversary on Feb. 5. Both looked wonderful and completely happy with each other. Besides Rufe's career as our long - time law enforcer, he's an excellent speaker and appears on various programs; he sings too, sometimes does solos for the Lions' Shows. Viola is a gifted speaker, possessed of excellent stage presence, a fine speaking voice and the ability to memorize and present long readings.

Rufe told friends that they have a daughter, several grandchildren and one great-grandchild. They must have married young indeed. Present at the party were Judge and Betty Ann Cain, Texas Ranger Bill Baten and wife, Mary; Fred and Clotilde Thompson.

Understand the "Babes in Arms" was a huge success, presented by the P. H. S. choir under the direction of Billy Talley and choreographed by Jeanne Willingham. One of the loveliest compliments I heard about it was, "The members of the cast were so good that they all seemed to be playing the leading roles."

Many people thought the icy highways would prevent Dick Morton and his orchestra's coming to Pampa for his scheduled dance last week. But he was here with his group, Tommy and Bill and Sparky. They make such heavenly music. People who don't dance, love to listen and pat their feet. Sparky Thurman's piano playing is terrific and he always sings some of the numbers too.

The crowd was much larger than expected. The two nee - Cambren girls were there, beautiful young women, Joyce Scott's daughters. Cindy and her husband, Rick Harris (Have you ever heard him sing? He's professional quality); Sharon and her souse, David Martindale; J. C. and Jonie Daniels, and Doug and Georgia Coon came too. All such charming people. Doug is always so courteous, and considerate.

Saw Mike and Bob Keagy, Dathleen and Ralph Hipkins and D. L. Hale Jr. and wife dining out. Never saw people having more fun. Wouldn't we all like to be that good - natured?

Mérlé King has been hobbling about with a sprained ankle, tending to business as usual but sitting down as much as possible. Hasn't lost his sense of humor though.

It's a special treat to have a celebrity in our midst from New York City's cultural center! Pampa Fine Arts members are making big plans for the concert by Andre - Michel Schub Monday night, Feb. 15 at the M. K.

Brown Auditorium. Schub won the prestigious Van Cliburn piano competition in Fort Worth in May. We hear he'll even be playing selections from the concert he is to perform at Carnegie Hall next month. He performs with many of the outstanding orchestras in the U. S. and abroad, and we're fortunate it is a Pampa organization which is bringing him to the Panhandle.

Joel Derington, of Pampa, and his fiancé, Teresa Cargill were honored at dinner party at the Lubbock Club. Hosting the party were Mr. and Mrs. Perry Bear of Brownfield. Miss Cargill and Mr. Derington plan to be wed on March 6th. Also guests at the party were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Derington, Joel's parents.

Heard that Thelma Paris, (Mrs. Leo), celebrated her 82nd birthday in the Coronado Community hospital with her children, Betty Sloan and J. D. Paris, while recovering from surgery. Thelma said, "I'm a new model every year." She always finds the humor in each situation.

Also heard that Paul Carmichael celebrated his 81st birthday. Congratulations Paul.

Glad to find out that Billie McGill has relocated, her Originals a block west of the building where everything burned. Billie's busy as ever and philosophical about the loss. A smiling, soft - spoken, attractive lady with such lovely eyes.

Carl and Ann Deckman are delightful people. They used to do a lot of square dancing and are a popular couple. Ann is a writer, a member of Panhandle Pen Women.

Chuck and Doris Ekleberry have the most adorable daughter, Margie. Their younger son, Dan, is also at home this year, working in Pampa. The old boy, Chuck Jr., is in college in El Paso and has won numerous honors there, including Man of the Year. The Ekleberrys are a charming family, all busy, busy.

Virginia and Gene Green are personable and popular, another busy couple. He's on so many boards and foundations since he retired that he has no time to loaf, I'm sure. She's full of smiles for everybody.

Isn't it marvelous about Mary Jane Rose Johnson's honors as a professional singer: Know that her folks, Maxine and Rex, are mighty proud of her ability and accomplishments.

See you next week!

Dr. Lamb

Weak vein walls at fault?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Our son injured his knee when he was playing high school football. A varicose vein developed. Now he is 31, works at a job requiring him to stand on his feet all day — mostly in a small area. He has developed more varicose veins.

He is not one to go to a doctor for small things so I would like to know if having a kitchen step-up ladder to sit on and also to rest one leg at a time would be of help. Also, would stepping up and down on the steps of the ladder help the circulation and prevent his getting more varicose veins? Should he have surgery on the few faulty veins now? Would you recommend he wear support hose? He is large-boned but he is a bit overweight. Any advice about diet for varicose veins?

DEAR READER — I don't know that he developed varicose veins because of his injury. Many people, including men, do develop varicose veins spontaneously. These people are often born with weak vein walls and for any number of reasons the pressure of blood inside the veins is increased, causing overstretching and finally permanently dilated varicose veins. Pregnancy is a common cause of increased pressure in women.

Standing still is the worst possible thing to do for varicose veins. If you walk or exercise in any manner that causes the leg muscles to contract, the muscles will "pump" the blood out of the venous system and decrease the pressure inside the veins. External compression devices help prevent the buildup of blood inside the leg veins, hence support hose. Your son can and should wear some external pressure garment, whether it is a pressurized stocking or a properly applied elastic bandage. It will help prevent or at least slow down the progression of varicose veins. Losing weight is a help but otherwise there is no diet to help prevent varicose veins. He would need an examination to see if he needs or would benefit from surgery.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-8, Varicose Veins, which will help him. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY

Benefit Oriental Rug Show and Sale to be held here

The Heritage Room of the M. K. Brown auditorium will be filled with magic Friday, Feb. 26. Magic carpets, that is. Khoury's House of Carpets of Amarillo will present a Benefit Oriental Rug Show and Sale with the proceeds going to the Junior Service League, according to Mrs. Pernie Simon, ways and means chairman. Khoury's will bring all hand woven Chinese, Persian and the newest on the market, Albanian rugs. The prices will range from modest to expensive. The show and sale will begin at 7:30 p.m. with a gala wine and cheese reception. Co-chairman for the event will be Mrs. Faustina Curry and Mrs. Susan Heare. Following the reception, Mr. A. E. Khoury will present a short film and demonstration on investment value, color, weave and style of oriental rugs. The Junior Service League supports the Community Day Care Center, Satalite School, The Amarillo Speech and Hearing Center, Meals on Wheels, Coronado Community Hospital and the Pampa Public Schools reading program with more than 1500 hours of volunteer service and annual contributions. Tickets for the Oriental Rug Show and Sale will be $6 per person and may be purchased from any league member or by telephoning 669-2863 or 669-9695. Although the rugs will represent a variety of colors and sizes, Mr. Khoury said anyone who has a special request for an unusual size may call ahead of the sale to insure it will be available.

EXPENSIVE LOOK
PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — An interior decorator here believes anyone can get an expensive look in a home even with a limited budget.

Her tips are "use classic styling, such as wing chairs. Color coordination is a must. Most important, wait and buy fewer good pieces, rather than a lot of cheap things to fill up the rooms in the beginning," says Eta Wright of Inside Design.

Dear Abby

A caring minister is always ready to talk

DEAR ABBY: In the last year I have been arrested twice for drugs. I'm 15. About four weeks ago, the minister from our church stopped me and asked if we could sit down and talk. I was scared and made up some excuse, so he said he would call me sometime in case I changed my mind. He is super nice and seems so understanding.

I've changed my mind and think I should talk with him. I've been in trouble off and on since I was 12. I even attempted suicide.

The problem is I am scared to walk up to him, or even send him a note asking for help, since he never called. I can't talk to my parents because they are one of my big problems. We can never have a discussion without ending up yelling at each other.

I'm sorry now that I didn't talk with my minister when I had the chance. Now I don't have the nerve to approach him. What would I say? Do you think he really wants to talk to me, or was he just being nice?

DEAR NO NAME: I know your minister really wants to talk to you. Please go to the phone right now and call him. Tell him you are sorry you didn't accept his offer to talk, but you'd very much like to take him up on it now. Ask him when it would be convenient to see you. I promise you he will be delighted to hear from you. Good luck and God bless.

DEAR ABBY: I know I did a dumb thing, but I need advice, not a lecture. For the last 2 1/2 years I've been having an on-again, off-again affair with my husband's brother. (He's married too.) Nobody suspects a thing.

I have a baby who's nearly a year old and I have a funny feeling he's my brother-in-law's child. I'm not going by looks because my husband and his brother look a lot alike. It's just this funny feeling I have.

I am going crazy wondering if my feelings are right. Is there any way to tell for sure?

DEAR NEEDS: Keep that "funny feeling" to yourself and assume the baby is your husband's. Attempting to confirm your feelings could wreck two marriages and still leave the father's identity in doubt. You've been lucky so far. Don't press your luck.

DEAR ABBY: Please comment on people who allow their dogs to run free, leaving their deposits on everyone's lawns but their owners.

This problem is not restricted to any "class" of neighborhood. I just recently moved to one of the more desirable areas of our city, and it's no better here.

Abby, please let these ignorant people know how inconsiderate and unlawful this practice is. Just as bad — if not worse — are the people who walk their dogs and stand watching while their dogs foul their neighbor's lawn, just as they have been trained to do! Sign me...

DEAR DISGUSTED: The "dog walkers" know how inconsiderate and unlawful they are, but they don't care. Confront them in the act and demand they either get a "pooper scooper" and use it, or be reported to the animal control authorities. A stiff fine will clean up their act in a hurry.

Herb Butter

HERB BUTTER
With an electric beater at moderately low speed, beat 1/2 pint (regular or ultra-pasteurized) heavy cream until it begins to thicken; increase speed to high and beat until the cream forms a ball of butter and separates from the liquid — 10 minutes or so. Turn the butter into a strainer to drain. Discard the liquid or use as you like. Mix the butter with minced fresh herbs (chives, parsley or rosemary for example) to taste. With your hands, shape into a ball; cover tightly and chill. Makes 1/2 scant cup. Utterly delicious as a saltless spread for homemade bread.

Mending Mature Marriage

The right time for the right things

BY LOUISE PIERCE

"DEAR LOUISE: My husband and I are 69 and retired. We didn't want to go to seed so we started taking on little jobs and offices and favors for people, thinking none of them would take much time. We wanted to take trips and kind of take life easy."

"Well, we're into almost everything that goes on in our little town. We're so busy we hardly have time to speak to each other. And that's not how we want it."

"We do church work that takes a lot of time, like getting people to make pledges. We work on Red Cross, the United Fund, and three building funds that are starting. We babysit with our grandchildren several nights a week, while their parents go to parties or even go out of town for a night or so."

"We used to love watching TV together or taking little jaunts or playing honeymoon bridge. Not any more. We're so tired at the end of the day that we're hardly pleasant to each other. I don't know when we've kissed goodnight. One of us is usually asleep when the other comes to bed. And that's no way to be happy in retirement, not when you've been married 48 years."

"We don't want to stop all our outside things because then we'd be bored with living. And we feel responsible for all the projects we've let ourselves get into. What would you do in our situation? C. C."

DEAR C. C.: I'd drop some of the activities, the less needy and less draining ones, enough of them that a happy personal life is possible again. Nothing is more important to a retired couple than maintaining a happy togetherness. When you reach the point of not kissing goodnight, it's time to rework your schedules.

Of course you can't leave any of the jobs in the lurch. You must first find substitutes — or set deadlines for the termination of your responsibilities, so that the people in charge can get your vacancies filled. Everything you are doing seems worthy, but nobody should exhaust himself by taking on more jobs than he can do effectively and without loss of temper or health or home life.

You might make the decision on the basis of which job appreciates you the most and begs the loudest for your services. There is an old saying that the squeaky wheel gets the grease — and deserves it.

I have let unimportant tasks wait, all my life. I like to take down Christmas decorations Dec. 26. But this year I had more pressing things to do and let the holly and mistletoe hang until the middle of January.

We have friends in another state whom we visited in November. Their outside lights were in place, and Otis said, "You're all ready for Christmas." The wife said, "Oh, no. Those are last year's lights. We never had time to take them down!"

Sort out what you like best and what will do the most good. Jobs were filled before you took them and will continue after you resign. Above all, keep your marriage in kissing condition.

"DEAR LOUISE: My husband just retired and follows me around with constant instructions. He was an efficiency expert and keeps telling me how to save time in cleaning, cooking, buying groceries and all the rest of it. I get nervous just listening to him wanting to be with me and improve everything I do. Shall I tell him to leave me alone? S. A."

DEAR S. A.: Certainly not. He evidently wants to be with you. And he does what he knows best, trying to improve whatever is near him, meaning your housework now. I'd welcome the suggestions and invite him to help me with whatever I was doing, performing each job the way he wants to, at least at first. If he's wrong, he will realize it and change to your way.

Then I'd ask him to help me plan what to do with all the time we were saving. I'd ask for movies, trips, parties for friends, dinners out. I'd enjoy getting to do all the things I couldn't do when I worked more slowly.

Write DEAR LOUISE, Box 616, Pampa, Texas 79065.

Astro-Graph by bernice bede osol

This coming year your progress may not initially be as rapid as you'd like in reaching goals you set for yourself. This should not dismay you. You'll pick up considerable momentum as you move along.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
There's a possibility you could be too easily distracted today from pursuing goals to which you should give your full attention. Concentrate on your target. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in each of the seasons following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Don't pretend today to know more about subjects in which you merely have cursory knowledge. This could cause you to argue foolishly if challenged.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Don't use anything belonging to a friend today unless you have his or her permission. If something happens to it, bad feelings could result.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Your mate or companions might find it hard today to figure out what it takes to please you. If anything is disturbing you, bring it out into the open.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Make haste slowly if you're working on a project you expect will eventually be rewarding. Patience and persistence, not speed, should be your allies.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Continue to be extremely watchful about joint ventures, especially if the decision-making is in the hands of another.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
It won't be the large issues which could disrupt the harmony of your household today. It could be the insignificant factors that create turmoil.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Weigh your words carefully before speaking today. There's a chance you could say something which might unintentionally offend another.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
When shopping today, your mind could be on other things. You might fail to count your change or get necessary receipts. These details are important. Don't overlook them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Normally you're very good at finishing what you start, but today there's a chance you could leave loose ends because your interests may suddenly wane.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)

Leonard Nimoy corrupt in 'Marco Polo'

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Leonard Nimoy, the inscrutable Mr. Spock of "Star Trek," is the thoroughly corrupt Achmed in "Marco Polo."

In the new "Star Trek" movie, the fate of Mr. Spock is left to the audience to determine, but there's no doubt as to that of Achmed in "Marco Polo," the eight-hour NBC miniseries. Achmed, a regent to Kublai Khan, dies for his venality.

"The regent was a Turk and evidently a brilliant administrator, tax collector and financier," says Nimoy. "He was also corrupt. His corruption took many forms, but the worst was his collection of women. He had 30 or 40 wives and and 300 concubines. He was assassinated, and his assassination was planned as the start of a revolution that didn't come off."

Marco Polo, the 13th century Venetian traveler, wrote that Achmed recruited women for his harem either by kidnapping or by forcing parents to turn over their daughters. It is one such abduction — the girl hangs herself — that triggers Achmed's assassination.

The miniseries, set for May, follows the travels of Marco Polo and his exploration of China in 1271-95. Ken Marshall plays the title role, and the other stars include Anne Bancroft, Denholm Elliott, John Gielgud, John Houseman, Burt Lancaster, Tony Lo

Bianco, Ian McShane, Sada Thompson, Tony Vogel and Joseph Wiseman. Ying Ruo-cheng, one of the leading actors of the People's Republic of China, plays Kublai Khan.

The show got off to a rocky start in Italy more than a year ago. Three actors were hired to play Marco Polo before they finally settled on Marshall. The cost soared past the budgeted $12 million as the film crew moved from Italy to Africa to Mongolia to China.

Nimoy spent five weeks in Peking filming his role as Achmed. He had just flown in from Israel, where he had completed his role as the husband of Golda Meir in

"Golda" for Operation Prime Time.

"It was all quite an adventure," he says. "I had spent a month in Israel. I didn't think my role in 'Marco Polo' was going to work out.

It looked like it was going to be a crunch between 'Golda' and 'Star Trek.' But the people for 'Golda,' 'Marco Polo' and 'Star Trek' all got together and worked out my schedule.

Jews' resistance told in 'The Wall' Tuesday

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rachel Apt, on her way to becoming a spinster school teacher, hardly seemed the type who would lead a resistance movement against the Nazis in World War II.

But she was one of 650 Jews who rose up against the Germans in the Warsaw Ghetto in April 1943 and fended off 3,000 heavily armed soldiers for several weeks. Their story is told in "The Wall," a three-hour movie on CBS Tuesday night. "When we meet Rachel, we don't believe she has the stuff to survive," said Lisa Eichorn, who plays the teacher. "She is demure, but she evolves in an interesting way. At the beginning, no one would ever think Rachel Apt could lead the resistance. But when the times got hard enough, Rachel, the old maid school teacher, came through. "When things got tough and the Nazis were rounding up Jews for the death camps, Rachel became a person the Jews could depend on and trust. There were so many people the Jews couldn't trust. She became a positive example of someone who just helped."

"The Wall," based on John Hersey's novel and on Millard Lampell's Broadway dramatization, was filmed on location in Poland. Tom Conti, Gerald Hiken, Philip Sterling, Eli Wallach and the late Rachel Roberts star.

The Nazi occupation of Warsaw and the persecution of the Jews in the Ghetto was a time that crushed the human spirit, and it brought out the best and worst in people. It transformed Rachel, but it reduced her father (Wallach) to a jellyfish who deserted his family to save his own skin.

"I didn't think of Rachel as a heroine," Miss Eichorn said on a rainy afternoon in the apartment in the Hollywood Hills she shares with her husband, makeup man Ben Nye Jr. Their two-month-daughter, Emily, played on the floor nearby.

"I thought of her as a survivor. I think even if people feel she was heroic because she survived, it's difficult for an actor to play a hero. As soon as you do, the audience loses empathy for the character. I tried not to be heroic. She was a girl who grew a long distance in three years."

Spectators wait in line to watch trial

WORTH THE WAIT? Maureen Fish, left and Pegi Breckel, both from Danielson, Ct., have some hot coffee while waiting to let into the Newport County Courthouse

where Claus von Bulow is on trial for the twice attempted murder of his millionaire wife Martha "Sunny" von Bulow. (AP Laserphoto)

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Sarah Hart and her sister Susan were among the first shivering spectators to line up for a seat to Claus von Bulow's attempted murder trial one day last week.

The sky over Newport's steeples was still streaked with red, and the warm county courthouse wouldn't open for two hours. But that didn't discourage the growing line of people who waited Friday to see for themselves the socialite accused of trying to murder his millionaire wife, Martha "Sunny" von Bulow, with insulin injections.

"It's like a soap opera, better even because it's real life," said Miss Hart, a 17-year-old high school student from Boston who was out of school for the Lincoln's birthday holiday.

Her 23-year-old sister, a New York City bank employee, scanned the faces around her: "It's the money that fascinates people."

Every day, the curious, many of them women, wait in line for a glimpse of the trial that is laying bare the lives of some of Newport's moneyed elite. Chuck Connor, the deputy sheriff who has guarded the courthouse door since the trial began, said the second-floor courtroom has 42 seats for the public.

"We've turned away probably 20 or 30 people every day," he said. During the first two weeks of testimony, the crowd was swelled or shrunk depending on who the prosecution called in its effort to prove von Bulow tried to twice try to kill his wife during Christmas visits to their Millionaires Row mansion.

"When we had the maid, that's when we got the most people," he said, referring to the testimony of Maria Schrahlhammer, Mrs. von Bulow's maid of 23 years.

Miss Schrahlhammer testified she found a black bag in von Bulow's closet containing hypodermic needles, insulin and drugs. She also said von Bulow waited until his wife was "barely breathing" before summoning a doctor on Dec. 27, 1979.

The state alleges that was the day von Bulow first tried to kill his wife with insulin shots. She fell into a brief coma.

The next December, the state alleges, the Danish-born financial consultant sent his wife into a lasting coma by injecting her with insulin to aggravate a low blood sugar condition. Mrs. von Bulow, hospitalized in New York City, is not expected to recover.

Defense lawyer Herald P. Fahringer argues Mrs. von Bulow caused her own coma by overindulging in alcohol, drugs and sugar.

Drugs, sex flourished in coed prison, tapes say

SOMERVILLE, Mass. (AP) — Before a police raid, Framingham State Prison was a hotbed of sex, drugs and gambling, where inmates took bets and ordered drugs over telephones in an office used for a computer training program, according to wiretap transcripts.

"This isn't prison, it's Paradise Island," inmate Eugene Davidson was quoted as saying in a 1,500-page transcript of police wiretaps on prison telephones.

The wiretaps of hundreds of telephone conversations were ordered in early November and continued until a Jan. 6 state police raid on the coed prison.

The transcripts, contained in affidavits filed with the court, came to light after five people were indicted this week on drug charges in connection with the prison investigation. None of the five were inmates, but authorities said the investigation was continuing.

The wiretaps detailed life inside the prison, where drugs were readily available and, according to informants, where certain guards shared liquor and drugs and even brought snacks for influential inmates.

According to the transcripts, an inmate identified only as Karen said, "They smuggled joints into prison and ... rolled them in Tampax papers..."

In another conversation, Karen said: "We got a bottle of rum that had been thrown over the fence, and a correction officer drank it with them in her room and smoked two joints with them."

Some female inmates described having sex with other women in the prison poolroom and one male inmate told of women inmates soliciting their male counterparts.

Inmate Davidson said there was frequent sexual contact between the 180 female and 10 male inmates.

Many of the conversations monitored by state police dealt with logistics of securing drugs and arranging for their delivery to inmates. Payments were discussed, and inmates gave instructions on how to smuggle the drugs past guards.

A major target of the raid was the office housing Con'puter, an inmate-run computer service that grew out of a training program sponsored by Honeywell Corp.

Investigators claim that three inmates made an average of $24,000 a year without paying state income taxes and allegedly used computer room phones to run the gambling operation.

The operation had a variety of private and government clients, including the state Department of Public Health, the Massachusetts Hospital Association and Hendrie's Ice Cream.

Allen items found in Giddings

BISBEE, Ariz. (AP) — A man who authorities say told them where to locate a saddle stolen Dec. 27 from a Willcox display of cowboy singer Rex Allen Sr. memorabilia has been indicted on burglary and theft charges.

Leon Crosley, formerly of Bakersfield, Calif., was indicted Friday on one count of burglary and theft.

Crosley will be arraigned Feb. 22 and will enter a plea at that time, said Deputy County Attorney Pat Elliston.

Willcox police, meanwhile, said silver spurs, a bride and a martingale also stolen from the display of Allen memorabilia at a Willcox visitors center have been recovered from a Giddings, Texas pawn shop.

"They were pawned for $50," said police investigator Ron Hazlewood.

A pearl-handled .45-caliber revolver remained missing, Hazlewood said.

A $30,000 saddle, with silver trim and gold inlay, was returned to Willcox earlier this week by Hazlewood and Police Chief Bill Morales after it was found in a Temple, Texas motel.

Hazlewood said police have information that two men entered the visitors' center and stole the items, but that they split up after an argument in Texas.

Longtime movie bad guy dies of apparent heart attack

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Victor Jory, veteran movie bad-guy whose successful stage career spanned 60 years, has died at age 79 of an apparent heart attack, his family reported.

Jory, who played Oberon in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and Injun Joe in "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," was found dead Friday in his Santa Monica apartment by the apartment manager, Jory's son, Jon. Jory, who had a history of heart disease, had last been seen by friends on Monday, his son said from The Actors Theater of Louisville, Ky., where he is producing director.

His screen credits, which date back to 1932, include "Gone With the Wind," "The Kansan" and "The Miracle Worker." On TV he co-starred in 1959 with Patrick McVey in the syndicated series, "Manhunt," playing a San Diego police officer.

"Needless to say his passing leaves a void of friendship in my life because over the years we have been very dear and very close friends ever since having done 'A Midsummer Night's Dream' together," said actor Mickey Rooney in New York.

"He not only was a good actor but a good human being. I loved him very much," Rooney added.

The Alaska-born actor had been scheduled to direct "The Oldest Living Graduate" at the Louisville theater next month, his son said. Jory directed "On Golden Pond" there last year, and had starred in "The Time of Your Life" and "The Last Meeting of the Knights of the White Magnolia."

He was born Nov. 23, 1902, in Dawson City, Alaska — then a gold rush camp. When he was a teen-ager, his family moved to Pasadena, Calif., where he made his professional stage debut in 1918 in "Master of Shadows" at the Pasadena Community Playhouse. His family moved to Vancouver, B.C., where he attended high school and won an amateur light-heavyweight boxing championship.

After a brief stint at college at the University of California, Berkeley, he took up acting again and went to New York in 1930. He made his Broadway debut in "Berkeley Square" and in 1927 married actress Jean Inness, who appeared with him on stage over the years.

Major testifies in property settlement battle with Fawcett

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A courtroom on the arm of a female friend.

"She knows it's finally over, and it's a very emotional time," her attorney, Jerome Goldberg, told reporters.

Earlier, Goldberg asked Superior Court Judge Harry Shafer to award the house to Miss Fawcett, 35, who has been living in it since the couple separated.

"She's got her blood, sweat and tears in it," the attorney said, adding that she would pay Majors adequate compensation for the money he put into the purchase and renovation of the property.

Goldberg showed the judge pictures of the residence, noting Miss Fawcett was responsible for its decoration. "This house is a feminine home," Goldberg said. "The colors, the wallpaper, the carpets. This house is Farrah Fawcett."

Majors, 41, had described how he gave up hope of saving the couple's marriage in January 1980 and moved to a hotel, leaving her a standing invitation for dinner if she wanted to try a reconciliation.

During his brief testimony, the star of ABC-TV's "The Fall Guy" spoke so softly that the judge asked, "How come you talk so quietly and you take such manly parts?"

The remark drew laughter from spectators and from Miss Fawcett, who turned around, tossed her hair and laughed back at the audience.

Majors said he paid $198,000 for the house before the marriage when he and Miss Fawcett were living together.

Names in the News

BOSTON (AP) — Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, recovering from open-heart surgery, has been moved out of intensive care and his condition has been upgraded from stable to satisfactory, hospital officials say.

"He continues to do well," Martin Bander, spokesman for Massachusetts General Hospital, said Friday. "Nancy (Kissinger's wife) has been his constant visitor, around him much of the day."

No date for Kissinger's release has been set, Bander said, although the diplomat's request that he be discharged Feb. 20 remains "a ballpark figure."

The 58-year-old Nobel Peace Prize winner underwent a 4½-hour triple bypass operation Wednesday to relieve clogged heart arteries.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Former President Jimmy Carter made a brief appearance at country singer Tom T. Hall's home to plug fellow Democrat Jim Sasser's bid for re-election to the U.S. Senate from Tennessee.

Friday night's reception was followed by a $125 per-person Valentine's Day dinner-dance at the Opryland Hotel.

Carter, his wife, Rosalynn, and Tennessee's Democratic leaders joined Hall and his wife, Dixie, in greeting more than 1,000 people at the $500-per-couple reception for Sasser.

Carter made no formal remarks, but told a reporter that Democrats "will get our strength back" in the fall elections.

BOSTON (AP) — Mildred F. Jefferson, an anti-abortion activist, says she will run for the U.S. Senate seat held by Sen. Edward Kennedy.

She is the second Republican to announce for Kennedy's seat. Businessman Raymond Shamie entered the race several months ago.

Speaking to about 100 people at a Faneuil Hall rally Friday, she asked the crowd to work together "to build for the kind of America that President Reagan dreams of, that I dream of and we all dream of."

More than 200 people apply for job at the top

By OLE DUUS
Associated Press Writer
COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — The apartment that goes with the job has a delightful view of Copenhagen, but there are drawbacks.

You must learn to ignore thousands of people clomping about on your roof. And some might find it less than appealing that a dash to the corner grocery entails a 600-foot jaunt down and up a spiral rampway.

But more than 200 applicants are eager to move in and become resident janitor at Copenhagen's 340-year-old Round Tower — Rundetaarn in Danish — rising 100 feet over the heart of the city and one of its major tourist attractions.

At 69, Poul Soerensen has given notice that after 14 years he and his wife Grethe are retiring at the end of March.

From then on somebody else will have to sell tickets to 240,000 visitors a year, wash and sweep the 15-foot-wide brick spiral rampway once a week and fight a running battle against graffiti on the whitewashed walls.

The reward is a unique, rent-free four-room apartment high above the street, from where on a clear day you can see as far as Sweden across the Oeresund Strait. There is also an annual salary of 120,000 kroner ($15,800).

Even so, the board of the Round Tower — a self-governing institution — was surprised when 234 people of all ages and many professions applied for the job as guardian of the extraordinary building erected in 1642 by King Christian IV. The number is three times as many as applied when Soerensen was chosen in 1968.

Board chairman Inge Reimer Jensen attributed the overwhelming interest to "the general economic squeeze, the housing shortage and excitement at the idea of living up there, high above the rest of us."

Christian IV, a great builder and warrior, designed the tower as an astronomical observatory adjacent to Trinity Church, completed a few years later.

Thanks to Christian's merger of science and faith, the organ player and members of the Trinity Church choir still have to climb part of the Round Tower spiral to reach their loft through a connecting door.

Soerensen testified that the apartment, just below the observatory and a public observation balcony ringing the dome, is a wonderful place. His first act every morning for 14 years, he said, has been to tour its six large windows set in 5-foot-thick walls, each commanding a spectacular view.

But he also had some warnings for his successor.

"It's not easy to furnish rooms with a floor-to-ceiling height of 13 feet and with nothing but curving walls," he said. "I'll never forget the sweat of the men who came to fit wall-to-wall carpeting."

"It's also rather noisy with all those people on the platform over your head. And you can't forget those who because of some obscure urge try to force open our front door just because it's there."

The dome once was the observatory of Ole Roemer, the Danish astronomer who in 1676 was the first to measure the speed of light. Stargazers still are welcome during the winter season to scan the evening sky through the telescopes of the old observatory.

But everyone has to make it by foot, precluding a repeat of a performance by Czar Peter the Great of Russia during a visit to Denmark in 1716. Fascinated by the rampway, Peter won a wager that he could make it all the way up and down on horseback. He was followed by the czarina in a carriage pulled by six horses.

According to Soerensen's calculations, the shortest way — the inside track — up or down the rampway is 274 feet. The longest, against the outer wall, is 690 feet.

"I can still make it up the longest way in 5 or 6 minutes," he said.

Soerensen devised his own tactic in the never-ending battle against graffiti. Right after closing time every day, he trots up the ramp at a distance of about one yard from the outer wall. A steel brush in his outstretched hand, he erases the drawings with hardly a stop along the way.

His method is much admired. For many years, Soerensen said, he has been rejecting repeated job offers from a gentleman purportedly representing the Vatican.

"It seems they have a serious problem of graffiti on a spiral staircase in St. Peter's Basilica, but it's not certain my method would work there," Soerensen said. "Anyway, I understand that no apartment goes with that job."
