Phillips announces intentions to retire, run for public office

Pampa Independent School District Superintendent Bob Phillips announced his intentions to retire from the position in mid January 1983 and said he plans a second careers in privet business or Phillips presented his letter of resignation to the board at the meeting's end when the board usually goes into executive session. Tuesday night they didn't.

Phillips has served 30 years in the education profession, the last six as Pampa's school superintendent.

He said he intends to run for state senator from this area on the Republican Party ticket.

Phillips also told board members he and Athletic Director Loyd Waters should have five to six applicants for head football coach ready for formal interviews by the first week in March. The board plans two night sessions to interview the applicants.

The school's contract with the Gray County Tax Appraisal District and the appraisal district's $500,000 plus budget for 1982 was unanimously approved by the board, almost without question.

Phillips said, "I think we ought to approve this. The tax district approved this, and since they're the ones we have the contract with, I think we ought to." Phillips said the new tax district would cause a "very minor increase" in the school's budget. He said, "It's an increase which you all can live with." "We should be in good shape for another year, at least until the legislature meets again," Phillips The board also approved a five - year instructional plan for the school district. Assistant Superintendent John English said the plan primarily addresses reading, writing and mathematics. He said by the end of the year 1987, the administration hopes to see 85 percent of the fifth grade and 90 percent of the ninth grade master testing in the three areas.

Lewis Construction of Pampa won the bid for paving throughout the school district. With a low bid of $128,988.35. Lewis will pave the parking lot at Wilson, the student parking lot at Pampa High School and five elementary playground areas. Accepted with the bid was paving of the band practice field, at an addition cost of $19,576.50. While Lewis was low bidder, the time of completion was longest, 180 days. But board members said this would allow all paving to be completed before school starts next

The board also accepted the bid of $18,678 from Luper Fence Company of Pampa, sole bidder for fencing around the high school baseball field. School officials said the bid included backstop fencing also.

The board accepted recommendations for one - year contract extensions for Jane Steele and Tim Powers, high school assistant principals; Dick Crockett, middle school assistant principal; Charles Rand, tax assessor - collector and chief appraiser; Jerry Haralson, business manager; Arlene Gibson, reading coordinator for kindergarten through eighth grade; Betty Tom Graham. math coordinator for kindergarten through eighth grade: Jerry Pope. director of special education; Don Nelson, director of vocational education; Peggy Cunningham. coordinator of elementary libraries; and Lovd Waters, athletic coordinator

The board also adopted revised and new policies of the Texas Association of School Boards

Canada orders 2 probes of offshore rig sinking

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia (AP) — Two separate Canadian investigations have been ordered into the sinking of the world's largest oil rig in a North Atlantic storm that also sank a Soviet Between 116 and 121 people were believed dead in the two sinkings off Newfoundland Monday and Tuesday, and there appeared to be no possibility any more survivors would be found.

Supreme Court Justice T.A. Hickman was named to head a federal inquiry into the capsizing of the $120 million oil rig Ocean Ranger in which 84 crew members died about 240 miles east of St. John's, Newfoundland.

Newfoundland Premier Brian Peckford announced a commission would make a separate investigation. Some former workers on the Ocean had not been adequate, asnd questions about safety measures aboard were asked in the House of Commons in Ottawa. The U.S. Coast Guard said a routine safety inspection of therig was two months overdue, and inspectors were on their way to St. John's when the sinking occurred.

The rig was owned by a Louisiana company and operated by Mobil Oil Canada, and 15 of the men were Americans Newfoundland was hardest hit, with 54 men in the crew, and memorial services were planned in the province's major towns later in the week. Archbishop A.L. Penney scheduled a Mass in St. John's Roman Catholic Basilica Thursday night. All flags in the province were at half staff.

The 4,262-ton Soviet freighter about 65 miles east of the scene of the rig sinking. The Halifax Search and Rescue Center said 21 bodies were recovered, five survivors were rescued suffering from exposure, but there were 40-mile winds, 40-foot waves and

Officials said there was little or no hope any of the missing would be found

One report said the freighter's cargo shifted in the storm, causing a 45-degree list. A 440-ton Danish trawler answered the SOS and offered to take the crew off, but the Soviets said they would wait for the 3,162-ton Ivan Dvorsky, a factory ship for Soviet trawlers, that was on the way.

Electric company requests rate increase for coal conversion

Southwestern Public Service Company has announced it will request a 12.7 percent increase in the retail price of electricity in Texas, ranging from $5 to $10 per month more for the typical residential customer.

The proposed increase includes $19.2 million in rates within Texas city jurisdictions and $22.3 million in rural area rates, which are set by the Texas Public Utility Commission outside city

Bert Ballengee, the electric utility's president, said, "The increase is imperative later this calendar year because of the need to change to coal as the fuel in the Company's power plants, because of high money costs, and because of inflation.

Ballengee pointed out that "although inflation has totaled 23 percent since the last electricity rate adjustment two vears ago. SPS is able to hold its request to half that amount as a rate increase.

A significant portion of the new revenue request will help pay for the first unit of the Company's second coalfired power plant at Tolk Station, which is scheduled to go into service early this summer

"We must change our system from gas to coal because coal will save our customers money," Ballengee said.

Ballengee said that "even with a rate increase, the typical Southwestern Public Service residential customer in Texas will spend about $4 to $5 per month less than he would have, if the Company had not made the decision to move to coal and away from natural gas as boiler fuel in the new power plants. For all of the Company's customers, this amounts to a savings of about $106 million a year when the new Tolk Station is fully operating.

SPS managers in the 68 Texas cities and towns served by the utility and affected by the rate increase are now providing city officials with details of the Company's need for a rate increase.

Ballengee explained that extensive anavisis of all revenue data and customer electrical demands indicates a need to file for the increase with the Texas city commissions and the Public Utility Commission. When the new rate is approved, a $41.5 million annual revenue deficiency will be corrected.

The cost of electrical service represents about two percent of the average family residential budget - the same as it was five years ago, Ballengee said.

He added that the unit cost of electricity is now the same as it was in 1927, when most families used 500 units of energy each year. Now most families use about 7,000 units a year, Balengee "We don't expect our customers to like the prospects of higher electric bills - but we believe they will understand the importance of keeping the increases to a minimum while maintaining a reliable electric system," Ballengee said.

Southwestern Public Service primarily provides electric utility service to a population of more than one million in a 45,000 - square - mile area of the Panhandle and south plains of Texas, eastern and southeastern New Mexico, the Oklahoma Panhandle and southwestern Kansas

Appraisal budget adopted over Kennedy protest

Staff Writer

Over the objections of one of its members, the Gray County Tax Appraisal District board adopted Monday a $532,530 budget for tax appraisal services during 1982.

The budget was adopted by a three to - one vote during a meeting of the board which continued until 10 p.m. Monday. Voting in favor of the budget were Chairman R.D. Wilkerson, Lloyd Hunt and Bill Gething. Voting against adoption of the budget was Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy. Dr. Robert Lyle left the meeting early and did not vote.

State law adopted in 1979 required that the board be formed to take over responsibilty for appraisal of all county property. In the past, each taxing entity in a county was allowed to make its own separate appraisal. The law required that the single appraisal district be formed by 1982, and the Gray County board complied this year and will take over property appraisal for all 10 county taxing entities, beginning in 1983.

The board decided to sign an appraisal contract with the combined appraisal office of the city and Pampa Independent School District. The school district's appraisal office will evaluate all county property and will give the property valuations to each taxing entity. Each entity will still set its own tax rate, based on 100 percent valuation, and will collect its own

However, the board also had the option of hiring a private, independent appraisal firm. Asked why the board decided to contract with one of the taxing entity's own appraisal offices. rather than an outside independent firm, Wilkerson said, "We can't legally contract with an outside agency, and it was an economy measure.

But Associate Director of the State Property Tax Board in Austin Jim Robinson said that it is legal for an appraisal district to let the entire appraisal contract to an independent firm. He said figures in Austin on all counties in the state indicate that 32 percent of the counties are using a combination of in - house and outside firms; 32 percent are using a totally in house appraisal service; and 30 percent a using totally private and independent appraisal firm. Indeed, the budget approved for Grav County calls for a private firm to appraise the county's mineral and industrial properties. The newly designated Chief Appraiser Charles

Rand, 2217 Lynn, said an outside firm will also be paid to appraise 'anything else we can't get to. As Chief Appraiser, Rand submitted the budget and will be responsible for satisfying the appraisal contract between the appraisal district and the school district. Rand is currently called the Tax Assessor - Collector for the city and school district, and his employee of the school district. In setting the budget for the appraisal district, Rand also designated his own salary and the salaries of his assistants. He pegged his new total salary at $44,000, plus expenses, plus use of a new $11,000 car

Appraiser, he will remain an and gas. A portion of his salary, $30,800, will be paid by the appraisal district, the remainder, $13,200 will be paid by the school district for his continued collection work for Pampa

Kennedy cited Rand's salary as one reason he opposed the budget. During the budget discussion, the judge gave board members a sheet listing the salaries of other local public officials. According to Kennedy's information, Rand's new salary will be as much as the salary of Rand's boss, School Superintendent Bob Phillips, and it would be more than every other public official's salary, except the district

Other salaries listed on the sheet were, district attorney, $36,200; county judge, $32,868; county attorney, $21,324; sheriff, $21,360; city manager, $42,650; and chief of police, Wilkerson said, "I have no problem with the salary. I don't see why he would want to do it for $32,000, (Rand's present salary). I'm inclined to think he won't do it for that. It seems to me like it does not relate to other salaries. The job has different responsibilities, and you won't find anyone who would work for $32,000.

Kennedy countered, "This paper right here (a salary survey attached to the budget) shows the average chief appraiser's salary in neighboring counties is about $19,000. If we show the voters this kind of budget, we are going to hear about it, and they are not going to like it

Rand also set the salaries of his assistants. His present two appraisal assistants at the Pampa ISD will now be paid by funds from the appraisal district. Rand wants to hire another assistant and additional office staff. Included in the budget were pay hikes to his assistants. One would be raised from $24,000, plus mileage, to $27,000, plus expenses, plus a new truck and gas. The other assistant appraiser would be raised from $29,000, plus mileage, to $32,000, plus expenses, plus a new truck and gas. The assistant Rand wants to hire would receive a starting salary of $24,000 plus the same benefits.

In all. Rand wants to buy four sparkling new vehicles. He said the office needed the new vehicles because the present 20 cents per mile paid by the school district does not allow them to break even. And if they don't get the new vehicles, "They might not go look at a piece of property and cheat on their mileage. I feel like buying a new vehicle is cheapest. The vehicles will only be used for business, but they may be allowed to drive them home. However, that would be an administrative decision," Rand said.

Kennedy also objected to the budget's provision for housing Rand and his staff's office in an $80,000 remodeled building which the appraisal district does not own. "I'm concerned about the renovation since that's someone else's piece of property," he said. The budget would pay to house Rand in the vacant Sam Houston Elementary School Cafeteria, now leased by Clarendon College. Included in the budget is $80,000 for "lighting, ceiling fans, exhaust fans, carpet, electrical outlets, painting, new furniture and parking lot." Wilkerson said Rand could not do the job from his present office at the Pampa ISD.

The new appraisal board and its contract for appraisal services is paid for by the taxpayers through the taxing entities, in proportion to the amount of revenue each collects. The taxing entities under authority of the Gray County Tax Appraisal District are: the City of Pampa, Gray County, Pampa ISD, Alanreed ISD, Grandview - Hopkins, the City of Lefors, Lefors ISD, the City of McLean, McLean ISD and the Water District. The three entities which collect the most tax money in order are: the Pampa ISD, Gray County and the City of Pampa.

Based on revenue, the share of the $500,000 appraisal services budget that each entity will pay is: Pampa ISD. $227,656; Gray County $126,955; City of Pampa, $87,228. The state also gave the district $29,000 to help pay start - up costs.

Wilkerson disputes Rand salary

Gray County Tax Appraisal Board Chairman Jimmy Wilkerson told the Pampa News Monday that Chief Appraiser Charles Rand's salary is not $44,000. Wilkerson said he had been receiving numerous phone calls from irate people and wanted to clarify the salary question.

He said the tax appraisal district is paying him $30,800, and "I'm telling people we are paying him $30.800." However, Wilkerson agreed that with the school district's share of Rand's salary of $13,200, that put the total salary Rand will receive at

The way Rand figured his own salary in the appraisal service's budget, approved by the appraisal district Monday, is based on his own breakdown of time spent on various duties. Rand will remain an employee of the Pampa Independent School District, but as Chief Appraiser he estimates that 70 percent of his time will be spent on appraisal work, with 30 percent spent on tax collection work for the Pampa ISD. Since the newly created tax appraisal districts are not concerned with collection of taxes, Rand figured his appraisal work would be paid by appraisal district funds and his collection work would be paid by Pampa ISD funds. Rand will wear both hats out of the Families lose battle in wrongful deaths suit

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Two families who sought combined damages of $4.6 million in the separate deaths of their mothers lost the last round in the suit today when the Texas Supreme Court refused to reverse lower court rulings.

The children of Mary Wynell Miller and Geral Murrell had sued Tarrant County prosecutors, contending a policy of "non-intervention and on-arrest in situations of family violence" caused the two women's deaths.

Tarrant County District Attorney Tim Curry, one of the defendants, denied that charge and presented evidence at the trial that before their deaths, both women either dropped or refused to file charges against their

Mrs. Miller's three children said their estranged father shot their mother to death in December 1978 after she was denied protection by the Tarrant County district attorney's office. They sought $800,000 in loss of her income and "care, counsel and advice," and $1.5 million in punitive damages

Mrs. Miller, who was 25 at the time of her death, had filed for divorce from her husband, John. In her divorce papers she said her husband had a "violent, ungovernable temper and was unpredictable.

The court granted Mrs. Miller's request for a temporary restraining order prohibiting Miller from communicating with or going near her.

When her husband violated the order and began harassing her, she went to the Tarrant County district attorney, who "refused to take any action," the suit said.

On Dec. 6, 1978, the suit said, Miller approached his wife's car and threatened her. When she fled, he shot and killed her, then committed suicide.

Geral Murrell's four children said that in late 1979, their father, who was divorced from their mother, "instituted a course of terroristic activity" against Mrs. Murrell.

Repeated contacts with the Fort Worth police department resulted in no action, the suit alleged, and in 1980, Getzell Murrell accosted his 23-year-old wife, beat her and shot her to death.

The Murrell children also sought $800,000 in loss of their mother's income and care and $1.5 million in punitive damages

Curry responded that Mrs. Miller's death was a result of "her own actions and negligence" because she refused to swear out a complaint against Miller. Curry also contended Miller had moved to Oklahoma and returned to Texas on an invitation from Mrs. Miller.

Murrell, Curry said, was arrested after he broke a window in the home where Mrs. Murrell was staying and threatened her and a friend. But Mrs. Murrell on April 17, 1980, asked prosecutors to drop the charges, Curry

Haig: people's mood should not determine U.S. foreign policy

State Alexander M. Haig Jr. says the mood of the American people should not necessarily determine what course the United States follows in El Salvador

However, a Democratic senator says he has warned junta leaders in El Salvador that disenchantment among U.S. voters with the Central American country's human rights record could jeopardize continued aid from the United States.

"If we were to determine our foreign policy based on the lowest common denominator of the national mood. I think we would be on very fallacious ground," Haig said Tuesday on the Public Broadcasting Service's MacNeil-Lehrer report.

While Haig said domestic opposition should not necessarily be factor in whether U.S. troops are sent to El Salvador, he reiterated that there were no plans to send servicemen there. 'The president has already assured the American people repeatedly that there are no current plans underway for the deployment or utilization of American military forces in Central America," Haig said. "I think the majority of the American people would be appalled at the

Ford, UAW agreement faces test

DETROIT (AP) - On the eve of a vote by a United Auto Workers council on a tentative contract with Ford Motor Co., UAW President Douglas Fraser warned it would be "presumptuous to assume" the concessions agreement would be ratified.

But UAW Vice President Donald Ephlin, who helped negotiate the pact that was announced Saturday after 13 straight days of bargaining, predicted the tentative agreement would receive overwhelming support.

The agreement was being voted on today by the 225-member UAW Ford council at a meeting in Chicago.

If the Ford council accepts it or makes no recommendation, the agreement will be voted on by UAW rank-and-file over the next several

The 170,000 Ford autoworkers are being asked to defer cost-of-living allowances, forego wage increases and forfeit eight paid personal holidays through the life of the 31-month pact. The agreement offers guaranteed income for higher seniority workers and other job security arrangements. Analysts estimate the accord could save Ford about $1 billion. The tentative contract was unanimously approved Sunday by the union's 26-member executive board.

Fraser, in an address Tuesday to more than 900 delegates at the International Skilled Trades Conference in Detroit, said Ford workers are more receptive to concessions than their counterparts at General Motors Corp., where emergency contract talks broke off Jan. 28. The collapse was blamed largely on GM workers' opposition to granting concessions.

Fraser predicted the failure to reach agreement with GM would put the union in a worse bargaining position when the current contract expires in September

He said the auto industry's economic outlook probably will improve significantly by September 1983, improving the union's bargaining "We could go down to the same secenario in 1982. They (GM) could lay down the economics we could work under or go out on strike," he said.

Polish police arrest 3,500 people

Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Polish police detained 3,500 people in a two-day sweep, the official news agency announced today. It appeared to be the biggest security operation since martial was imposed Dec. 13.

The official PAP news agency said during "Operation Calm" 25.000 regular and volunteer policemen checked documents of 145,000 civilians, 51,000 shops, 60,000 vehicles and 3,500 hideouts for "criminal elements.

It said of those checked, 29,000 got "lectures," and 3,500 were detained or taken to police stations and fined varying amounts. It said 614 were sent PAP said among those caught were 252 suspected criminals, 126 drunk drivers and 359 people in the process of committing crimes.

Surgeons performed the operation Tuesday even though they could not locate the portal vein, which links the stomach and liver and is essential to healthy liver function.

And afterwards, as the girl lay breathing with the help of a respirator, doctors told Carolyn McPherson her child's chance for survival was slim. Dr. Thomas Starzl, head of the team of surgeons, said Cassie's condition was critial and warned her mother that no child in similar circumstances had survived. Only Cassie's will to live could save her life, Starzl saiad.

"Don't give up on her yet." responded Mrs. McPherson.

Even if the girl survives the next few days, doctors say they must operate again to complete the surgery.

Cassie's liver had malfunctioned because of a congenital disorder. The family of a 3-year-old New York City boy donated the liver transplanted into Cassie's body.

But since doctors could not find Cassie's portal vein, they used a smaller vein to complete the operation, "something we've never tried before;" Starzl said

Publication casualties of budget cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) - No longer will employees in the Bureau of Land Management office in Cheyenne, Wyo., see their pictures in a staff yearbook. Nor will the Agriculture Department publish a recipe book for poor people that tells how to stuff hard-boiled eggs with crabmeat.

For that matter, you won't be able to subscribe to Dimensions, the magazine published by the National Bureau of Standards, to learn what's new in the government's efforts to measure and weigh. The magazine doesn't exist anymore. All three publications are casualties of President Reagan's campaign to cut the bodget. When Reagan took office in January 1981, one of his first actions was to have the Office of Management and Budget order a halt to all new government films and publications, and a survey of

With the onslaught of Reagan's initial budget cuts. many government agencies responded in part by producing fewer newsletters and magazines

Figures from Uncle Sam's printer, the Government Printing Office, prove that fewer publications are being churned out. But no one seems to know exactly what is being printed.

Judith Morton of the GPO says the agency's current inventory is about 20,000 titles, including newsletters. Many publications are technical and have only limited appeal. About 80 percent of the GPO's customers are state and local governments and companies that do business with the federal government.

The four most popular publications among the public deal with child care. The best seller is "Infant Care." a Health and Human Services Department booklet that sells for $2.25 per copy.

Other popular titles are the three-volume "Backyard Mechanic," priced at $13.50; · · Dictionary Occupation Titles," at $13.50 a copy, and the Public Health Service's "Medicine at Sea"

The GPO also operates 27 bookstores around the country, most in federal office buildings, and wants to close all but four to save an estimated $1.2 million. A congressional committee moved last week to keep them open, at least until auditors can determine if they are losing or making money.

The GPO loses money on most of its publications because of over-printing and because they often sell for about two-thirds what a commercial publishing house would charge. Hoping to change that, the GPO has hired a marketing director to find ways to make more money.

Reagan's austerity campaign notwithstanding, the government is one of the world's busiest publishers. The Commerce Department alone produces an estimated 1,000 publications. So does the Department of Health and Human Services. The figure is-1,200 for the Interior Department. At the Pentagon, the total is still being added up.

Still. Reagan claims to have made some progress. In his State of the Union address has month, he said his effort to feduce federal regulation had resulted in nearly 23,000 tewer pages in the Federal Register, the daily publication of federal regulations and notices.

Ms. Morton reported that in the fiscal year which ended Octo1, the GPO used 103.7 million pounds of paper, nearly 6 million pounds fewer than in the previous 12 months. She predicted a similar decrease this year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — As
it looks to Agriculture

Department economists. farmers once again will get very little of whatever extra-money consumers will be forced to pay for food this

Even so, many people will be keeping an eye on what happens to food prices, particularly as a result of policy changes that will affect the supply of basic agricultural commodities. The Reagan administration is requiring farmers to reduce acreages of wheat, feed grains and cotton in order to qualify for price supports and other benefits on their 1982 crops.

When the government does this, consumer advocates and others watch to see whether there is any significant price impact at grocery stores.

Another reason food prices may get a bit more attention is the department's push to increase exports of farm commodities, particularly

The aim of the acreage programs and larger exports is to help reduce some of the commodity supply — and thus boost prices and improve farmers' income.

A new report by the department's Economic Research Service offers some updated observations about food prices and the farmer's role in them.

On the average, retail food prices rose 7.9 percent last year and are expected to rise about 7 percent in 1982. That would be the smallest annual increase since 1977, when it was 6.3 percent.

Looking at what happened in 1981, the report said. the farm share of the food dollar were the sole determinant, retail food prices would have risen only slightly more than 1

In other words, it said. farm prices accounted for only about one-sixth of last year's retail food price gain. The remainder was due to higher prices for transportation, processing, packaging, labor and merchandizing food products after they left the farm.

"For 1982, the farm value is expected to rise only 1 to 4 percent, largely due to last fall's huge harvest," the report said. "This slight increase will contribute little to the projected 7 percent rise in retail food prices this year."

As used by the department, farm value refers to the producer's share of what a shopper pays for an item in food stores.

The report, based on work done by economist Denis Dunham of the Econmic Research Service, put it another way:

"Food that on the average cost $1 in 1981 will cost $1.07 this year. And of that additional seven cents, less than a penny will go to farmers as higher gross returns.

The reason rises in farm value often play a small part in the retail price of food is that most of what consumers spend goes to pay the 'middlemen' costs of getting.

it from the farm to stores. Farmers got about 36 cents of each dollar spent on food last year. But the percentage varied widely from product to

For example, they got about 59 cents of each $1 spent. on choice beef, 47 cents for pork, 58 cents for milk, 60 cents for eggs, 40 cents for frozen orange juice, 32 cents for fresh vegetables, 20 cents for processed vegetables and 10 cents for all the farm ingredients in white bread.

WASHINGTON (AP) - An Agriculture Department scientist says small-soale; scientist says small-scale; food processing facilities could help turn small, part-time farmers into full-time operators.

Donald D. Bills of the department's Agricultural, Research Service says "processing and marketing for the small farmer has usually meant selling freely. usually meant selling fresh produce at seasonal roadside stands, farmers' markets and pick-your-own operations. The But Bills, who is chief of plant science at the agency's Eastern Regional Research Center at Philadelphia, says processed farm foods would have a much higher profit margin.

Lynn Hunter Managing Editor Letting ourselves become inhuman

By BUTLER D. SHAFFER

A rather grisly news story out of the San Francisco Bay area has many people shaking their heads and wondering, "What's going wrong with our world?" The story involves a high school girl who was murdered, and her body dumped in a ravine. In and of itself, there is nothing so unusual about that. Murders have become so commonplace that most of them fail to receive more than a squibbed reporting on the back pages of metropolitan newspapers - usually under the latest soybean quotations. Not even television news is able to keep us enertained with murders anymore - unless, of course, the crime involves a well - known person or is particularly gruesome in

What makes this story so unsettling is that the victim's alleged killer, a fellow student, reportedly bragged about the murder to his friends, and even took a number of them with him to view the body. In the words of one student, "all the kids wanted to go up and see her." At least a dozen of the victim's classmates - perhaps bored by sitcom reruns and Space Invader games at the local arcade - went out to see the dead girl. One student even helped to cover up the body, while two others reportedly threw rocks at it. About the highest virtue expressed by any of these teen - agers was a statement to the effect "it's hard to tell on your friend." Some students went home and watched television, others partied, but most apparently enjoyed a good night's sleep. One of the students did notify the police. Every barber - shop social philosopher will drag out his or her dogeared opinion as to the cause of such calloused irresponsibility on the part of most of these students. Some will cluck about an alleged "permissiveness" in society, and will demand tougher laws, with tougher judges, brutalizing cops, and even more jails to enforce those laws. Others will point to a decline in "morality," and will insist upon a return to a hard - nosed religious indoctrination (with long skirts and short haircuts). Then there will be those who will proffer explanations ranging from pornography, drugs, sexual freedom, gay liberation, divorce, the ERA, the communist menace, the oil crisis, and even a decline in popular support for a strong national defense system.

The truth, I believe, is to be found elsewhere than in such knee - jerk conclusions. As I have suggested before, much of the cause for the violence in which our world is enmeshed is to be found in the highly structured, institutionalized ways in which we have been willing to live our lives. It is the nature of life to be mous and self - fulfilling, and yet we permitted ourselves to be taken over and directed by a hierarchy of political, economic, religious, educational, and ideological institutions. The imposition of order produces, I am convinced, disorder. The agencies to which we have looked for the establishment of order in society are, unfortunately, tearing human society apart and fostering widespread conflict throughout the world.

But that fails to explain the calloused disregard for human life that is reflected in the seeming indifference of so many teen - agers to the murder of a classmate. Perhaps, as others have suggested, we have become little more than passive observers of life, and fail to see our own relevance in the world about us. There is no doubt but that television has helped to foster this attitude, providing us with a two -dimensional view of the world devoid of the depth of perspective afforded by our own involvement. We have become not unlike the character Chauncey Gardener in the movie "Being There. Our minds - or, perhaps I should say our senses - have been bombarded with an ever - escalating quantity of "facts," and believing ourselves to be little more than spectators to be entertained by a world - wide stage of bigger - than - life actors - is the election of a former motion picture star as President really not symptomatic of this? — we simply sit back and "watch," taking in what amuses us and switching to another channel when we are displeased. (We even liken our own emotions to an electronic device, speaking of our being "turned on" or "turned off" by people or events, like Chauncey Gardener desperately pressing a channel selector to rid himself of the threat of street

It isn't clear why we - and our children - have become what we are? And is it not clear that nothing short of a total sense of awareness on our parts will effect a change? If we are unwilling to make that change for ourselves, then let us not be so quick to chastise these out - of - focus teen - agers who have only acted out the logical consequences of what we have ourselves become.

'Poor' lobbies

Ever since President Reagan announced his proposed budget cuts last February, the doomsayers have been proclaiming calamity for the nation's poor. Almost daily accounts in the media have detailed how millions of underprivileged are being lacerated by a heartless administration, which is made up, we are often reminded, mostly of millionaires. Numerous interviews with poor persons have reflected awful hardships to come, even starvation.

The time has come to leaven these fears with some facts.

First, the American people should realize that the multi - billion - dollar federal assistance programs have generated a powerful lobby to resist any and all reductions. The Food Research and Action Center (FRAC), the National Anti - Hunger Coalition, and six other national groups lobby for food stamps. Another potent lobby, a Low -Income Housing Coalition of church, labor, civil rights, and tenant groups pushes for public housing; the National Gray Panthers for Medicaid, and so on down a long list of activists for the poor.

Poverty programs have developed a powerful, subterranean politics of their own. The General Accounting Office last year charged FRAC h illegally used government money to lobby against a federal "workfare" project. In March, the government funded Community Services Administration (CSA) was found to have been involved in a massive mailing of fliers declaring "Reagan Says 'No' to Human Needs . . urging citizens to lobby legislators against the administration's proposed budget cuts.

And the politics of poverty have scattered federal goodies year after year over so many millions of recipients that any sort of discipline has become politically unpalatable. The Census Bureau calculated that 27.2 million households - one - third of all U.S. households - receive at least one federal in - kind benefit. Federal spending in 1980 for food stamps, school lunches, public housing and medical care for the poor was $45.3 billion, nearly three times the $17.3 billion spent on cash transfer programs for the poor.

Actually, millions of Americans receiving federal assistance are in the middle - class category and not at the poverty level. The Census Bureau reports that almost 40 percent of food stamp recipients had incomes exceeding the government's poverty level. More than 50 percent of those receiving subsidies under Medicaid, housing and school lunch programs were above the federal poverty level as were more than 80 percent of those in the Medicare program. The project on Food Assistance and Poverty estimated that 85 percent of their recipients have income above the poverty level. Nevertheless, the subsidy programs have kept on expanding along with

The truly needy, it is worth remembering, are not to be found in one out of every three U.S. households. In his book, Welfare, Martin C. Anderson, President Reagan's chief domestic adviser, argues that the last 20 years have virtually eliminated poverty in the United States." And Morton Paglin, Portland State University economist and authority on the subject, has concluded that only three percent of the population are poor, about eight million persons. To be sure, these low figures are vigorously contested in some quarters, but they suggest the case for welfare reform is even stronger than the administration had been arguing.

Despite this public outcry, the welfare cutbacks proposed by President Reagan are not actual reductions from 1981 programs but, more often, mere reductions in the increases in subsidies scheduled by the Carter administration. We forgot that, even after cutting about $37 billion from the bloated Carter budget for fiscal 1982, the Reagan administration will still be spending about $40 billion more than was spent in 1981. This includes substantial increases over last year's welfare outlays - $1.6 billion more in the Medicaid program alone, for

During his recent press conference, the president once more sought to calm the spreading alarm about hurting the poor. He promised that "nothing will happen" to those who truly require federal assistance. Almost in the same breath he made clear his broader goal of picking up the welfare slack with 13 million new jobs. Thus the Reagan revolution boldly proposes to liberate millions of Americans who are enslaved on the federal plantation, bound by bureaucratic order and handouts. This should be a cause for hope, not

Sentenced, senator won't resig

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) - Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr. says he'll fight to stay in the Senate despite a three-year prison sentence for agreeing to play a part in a $12.6 million bribery

The Senate begins debate Feb. 23 on whether to expel Williams, the only U.S. senator charged in the Abscam political corruption inquiry.

The 23-year senate veteran, a New Jersey Democrat, was sentenced Tuesday for bribery and conspiracy convictions stemming from the FBI investigation, which came to light in February 1980. He could have been sentenced to 15 years on the bribery charge.

U.S. District Judge George C. Pratt also fined Williams $50,000, the highest fine yet in the Abscam cases. The sentence was stayed pending appeal.

Williams was convicted May 1, 1981, on charges that he agreed to sell his influence to an undercover FBI agent posing as a favor-seeking Arab sheik in return for a profit on a mining venture. The evidence consisted primarily of video and audio tapes. The jury convicted him on all nine counts.

Chief Abscam prosecutor Thomas Puccio told the crowded courtroom just before the 62-year-old legislator was sentenced that Williams acted in a "confident and brazen manner" at seven undercover meetings during which "he put his office up for sale."

But Williams refused to say die. In an unusual move, he addressed the judge directly after his attorney, George Koelzer, made an appeal for leniency and a non-prison sentence.

"I leave this court knowing, feeling and knowing, that I'm innocent of the crimes charged and that I now stand convicted of," Williams told Pratt.

Williams noted that Koelzer had suggested he had been destroyed in career and financial stability.

"But I must say," the senator we on, "that this tragic episode has n destroyed the one thing that is mo important to me - myself. I feel i personal destruction."

He lashed out at the FBI's taction during the undercover investigation : a "sordid, manufactured attempt to g me to commit crime."

"I will fight my case in the United States Senate because I'm innocent an I know I didn't do anything wrong, Williams said.

His sentencing was postponed twice after an emergency hernia operation Pratt nevertheless kept his Jan. 2 appointment with the senator' co-defendant, Cherry Hill, N.J. attorney Alexander Feinberg, who was sentenced to three years and fined

The multibillion dollar myth

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - You might call this the story of a multibillion dollar myth, because there is certainly that much involved if you add up all the claims that have been made by various parties over the years.

It involves municipalities, and corporations to a lesser extent, and Professor Lee Wakeman, a finance scholar and economist at the University of Rochester, a man who knows much about bonds and market efficiency.

It involves bond rating services too, those independent agencies that for a fee rate the financial condition of institutional borrowers on a scale from triple A, which pays the least for money, down to C or D.

The assumption and the accusation, and the myth according to Wakeman, is that when an agency lowers a borrower's bond rating it forces the borrower to pay higher interest costs to borrow funds.

Wakeman says it isn't so, even if it might appear to be that way, and despite outraged protests from elected officials over the years.

A former Delaware governor, for example, sought to prevent raters from lowering his state's letters, contending it was an unfair penalty. New York City officials had a different complaint: they said in 1972 that tardiness in raising the city's rating may have cost it $40 million Businesses react in the same manner. A Pacific Telephone executive estimated in 1978 that a downgrading of its rating by Moody's Investors Service raised its interest costs by $35 million.

Wakeman studied the evidence, and now he has come up with what he says is the fact: a change in an organization's bond rating has no impact on interest rates. To believe so.

he says, is to mix cause and effect. A borrower's financial condition, not its rating, determines its credit-worthiness, he says. A rating, he declares, is merely the after-the-fact report card.

Pampa High's next football coach will be expected to lay the foundation for a successful program, something school board trustees apparently felt ousted head coach Larry Gilbert

Trustees earlier eliminated a selection committee made up of fellow board members and gave Superintendent Bob Phillips and Pampa High Athletic Director Loyd Waters the task of finding a new coach.

Guidelines set by the trustees in finding a new coach are broken down as follows: 1. Experience as a high school head coach. 2. Successful record of building football progams from middle school through high school varsity. 3. He must be a coach who can attract more students to the football program. 4. He must be able to work cooperatively with other sports programs within the school system. 5. He must be a coach who can attract and produce two or three year lettermen.

Trustees would also like to see athletes participate in more than one sport, which would truly break the mold of a typical Class 5A or 4A sports program. Three-sport lettermen are becoming extinct in larger school systems.

"We want to get more utilization out of an athlete and get away from specialization in just one sport or another," Waters

Of 39 applicants for the coaching job, Waters and Phillips have narrowed the field to ten.

'We've invited several people in for interviews," Waters said. "Hopefully by March 1, we'll have our screening process over with and be able to make our recommendations to the Faggins, the older brother of Harvester cager Terry Faggins, is currently averaging 12 points and nine rebounds per game for the Rebels, who are 20-8 overall and 8-5 in the (TJCAC) Texas Junior College Athletic Conference.

Faggins, a 6-5 sophomore, is the tallest player on the squad. He was instrumental in Lee's 101-97 upset of powerful San Jancito with a 30-point, 12-rebound performance last month. San Jancito is currently 25-2 and has clinched the TJCAC title. Their only other loss was to Henderson County, ranked No. 3 among the nation's junior colleges.

For the Rebels, it was only their sixth win over San Jancito in the past 12 years.

Faggins, who led the Harvesters to a district title in 1979-80, their first in three years, is fourth in the conference in rebounding and 17th in scoring.

Tuesday, the Bears played Texas in Austin's unfriendly Super Drum, Teagle got only 16 points - well below his average and missed the front end of two one-and-one free-throw chances late in the game.

But Jay Shakir made up the difference, Baylor took a narrow 62-59 win over the Longhorns and the Bears think being able to win without a standout performance from Teagle marks a significant change.

We have the right chemistry going for us now. We've got five people who want to play as a team," said Shakir, who finished with 17 points that helped Baylor to its sixth win in a row and best conference record, 9-5, since

"We're playing as a true team now," Teagle chimed in. "This isn't a one-man show at all. We're not as nervous as we were at the first of the year and the defense is carrying

The Bears are alone in second place, a half-game behind 9-4 Arkansas.

"It was the biggest win of the year for us," said Baylor coach Jim Haller.

ESSEX, Md. (AP) - Earl Weaver, manager of the Baltimore Orioles, was fined $1,065 for drunk driving and warned he could face a year in jail if convicted of any traffic offenses in the next 18 months.

Baltimore County Judge Gerard Wittstadt also revoked Weaver's Maryland driver's license for an indefinite period Tuesday and placed him on 18 months probation. Weaver flew to Baltimore for the sentencing from Miami where the Orioles open spring training In other SWC games Tuesday, Houston moved into a third-place tie with Texas A&M by whipping Texas Christian 74-65 in Houston and Rice clubbed hapless, helpless Southern Methodist 70-48 in Dallas.

Shakir's unlikely heroics included a 9-of-10 performance at the free-throw line where he was a shaky 58-percent performer entering the game. On the other hand, Teagle - whose career free-throw average is better than .75 percent - was 0-for-3 at the line. The irony was not lost on Texas coach Abe Lemons

"Baylor is about eighth in the league in free-throw shooting," Lemons groused Their best guy was missing them at the eird and their worst guys were making them I guess that's what happens to you when things

Lemons watched his club lose its sixth game in eight tries since losing forward Mike Wacker to a knee injury at Baylor Jan. 26.

In Houston, Cougar center Akeem Olajuwon set a SWC mark with eight blocked shots as Houston ran away - literally - from TCU, using its team speed to score on break

And in Dallas, Rice turned Ricky Pierce loose on defenseless SMU. Pierce responded with 25 points and the Owls flew to their best season record in 11 years.

Weaver fined for drunk driving

"Eight blocks caused all these problems," said Weaver, who was arrested last Aug. 31 while driving home from a restaurant. A police officer said Weaver twice steered his car into the opposite lane of traffic. After the officer pulled him over to the side of the road. Weaver parked his car on the sidewalk and refused to sign a citation, according to police.

"I had a talk with myself, and it will never happen again," Weaver said. "I have prayed for forgiveness for the wrong I've done behind the wheel of a car," Weaver said.

Police novelist would take chief's job

HOUSTON (AP) - Joseph Wambaugh, ex-cop. filmmaker and best-selling author of gritty police novels, says he'd be happy to run the police department in the nation's fifth-largest city even though he never applied for the job.

"After having read Thomas Thompson's 'Blood and Money,' I've learned that in Houston one either gets murdered or gets rich," the author of "The Blue Knight" Wambaugh said in a statement released Tuesday in Los Angeles.

"I've been so bored lately I'm ready for either. Therefore, I enthusiastically accept. Have gun, will travel.

Wambaugh is one of 11 current or former law enforcement officers being considered for the post of police chief by Mayor Kathy Whitmire. Seven of the candidates applied for the job, and the other four, including Wambaugh, were recommended by various people. The mayor's office would not say who had recommended Wambaugh.

When Mrs. Whitmire saw Wambaugh's name on the list of candidates, "her only question was 'Who's Joseph Wambaugh?'" said mayoral spokesman Raul Reyes.

More than 600 people paid $200 each last week to be served by black-tie waiters and to rub shoulders with a galaxy of television and movie stars at the kickoff of Hayden's campaign for a seat in the state Assembly.

The scene was a ballroom in Los Angeles' posh Century Plaza Hotel, the same room that every president since Lyndon Johnson has used to court the monied elite of California. The Tom Hayden of 1982 is seeking acceptance as part of the political economic plans. Hayden, who in 1969 shouted outside the walls of Folsom Prison to "free the leadership of the revolution" from prison, in 1982 is talking about the need to put more police on the street to fight the "crisis in crime.

"We must help citizens with the immediate shadows that are stalking their lives. I am referring to crime," Hayden said. "I will support state assistance for community-based crime prevention programs combining more police on the streets with more citizen

And with the Hollywood connections of his wife, actress Jane Fonda, Hayden has far more ability than his rivals to raise campaign funds.

His announcement dinner netted more than $100,000. raising his total to $250,000, a vast sum even in 1982 for so early in a legislative campaign.

The dinner was a good example of Hayden's new political standing.

The chairman of the Los Angeles County Democratic committee and the president of the Los Angeles City Council topped a list two dozen or more party and local officials attending Hayden's

Hayden has spent most of his time writing newspaper and magazine articles and directing one of the the most successful grassroots political organizations in California. the Campaign for Economic Democracy, which has its political base in Santa Monica in the Assembly district

Pesticides a problem in third world

EDITOR'S NOTE Pesticides are most necessary in Third World nations trying to increase their food production. But careless handling, misuse and overuse, and a lack of government control are combining to cause major problems - and tragedy.

By DAVID L. LANGFORD Associated Press Writer GUAMO, Colombia (AP) -The birds are only tourists here in the farmlands of the Magdalena Valley, visitors from the green slopes of the surrounding Andes Mountains where the crop dusters don't fly. 'You must go to Guamo and see what has happened," Dr. Jesus Hidrobo,a worried watcher of his country's environment, had said back in Bogota at the National University of Colombia.

The road to Guamo climbs two miles high and then drops and twists on a harrowing three-hour run. Peasants coax laden burros along the roadside. Brightly-painted buses jammed with people race into the blind curves side by side with tank trucks marked "Peligro." Danger. On the lower slopes, banana trees begin to appear, shading the coffee trees that provide Colombia's chief export, $2.36 billion a year. At Giradot, the highway crosses the Magdalena River and straightens out across broad, open fields of cotton and rice, 75,000 acres of each that produce two crops a year in this tropical climate where the seasons don't change. At first glance, it could be the Mississippi Delta or South Florida. It is flat, hot and still. The air smells of bug

"If you see a bird, it is a tourist bird," Hidrobo had said. "If it stays around long it will be dead like the others.

Gildardo Vega, 32, a farm worker, confirms what the professor had said. He remembers a happier valley, before the planes arrived.

"Twenty years ago, people could live off the land," Vega says. "There were monkeys, deer, quail, caiman, armadillos and rabbits. You could go down and throw a net in the river and get a dozen fish. Now it is empty. I could wake up and hear the song of a bird. Now I hear an airplane.

In the struggle for survival against pestilence, man invented pesticides. In the Magdalena Valley and elsewhere in the Third World, he is still trying to learn to use

As bugs begat "super bugs" resistant to the known pesticides, more potent chemicals came on the market following World War II, up to 1,000, many evolving from the nerve toxins developed by the Nazis. Some were found to cause cancer, birth defects, nerve disorders or sterility and are banned or strictly regulated in the United States.

But the United States and other industrialized nations still export banned or restricted pesticides to the Third World countries which have little means of controlling their use. Exports accounted for one-fourth of the $4.7 billion in pesticide sales reported by 34 U.S. companies last year.

And in developing nations, where authorities say farmers often apply up to 30 times as much pesticide as they need, the toxic powders and liquids are peddled and handled like so much sugar and honey. Gildardo Vega and his friend Carlos Ballestro, 38, a mechanic who repairs pesticide spraying equipment, tell of a wedding in a village near Guamo where the guests drank rainwater caught in a

In Bangkok, Thailand, last summer, 300 schoolgirls were hospitalized after they drank fruit drinks made with sugar packed in a DDT sack.

In the Chaco province of northern Argentina, agriculture officials say, Catalino Alfonso sprayed his cotton field just before a rain came. The insecticide washed into a sluiceway his family used to collectdrinking water. His two daughters, Ester and Mabel, died.

The World Health Organization estimates that at least 500,000 people around the world get sick from exposure to pesticides each year, resulting in 5,000 deaths, mostly the result of careless handling of the toxins by farm workers.

pesticides are necessary in a world where, according to most estimates. 500 million people don't get enough to eat, strains of insects and mites that have developed resistance to poison doubled from 182 in 1962 to 364 in 1977 and malaria and other insect-borne diseases are on the rebound.

The crop dusters were quick to take to the air with malathion when the Mediterranean fruit fly returned to California and Florida last summer. And in the Guanacaste region of Costa Rica, farmers are mixing lethal pesticide "cocktails" of DDT, toxaphene, endrin and parathion and spraying their crops 10 times as often as they did just five years ago, government officials sav.

Long history of Liqueurs is romantic

By TOM HOGE AP Wine and Food Writer There's a romance about liqueurs that is unmatched elsewhere in the world of spirits, a romance based on their origins and the colorful figures with whom many are linked.

Some of these elixirs were born in the cellars of monasteries in the Middle Ages and were used at first to treat ailments. Dear Abby

Shades of gray tarnish case of missing silver

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter from a hostess who said that two pieces of her sterling dinnerware were missing immediately following a dinner party. She said she'd looked everywhere but couldn't find them, and concluded that one of the guests must have stolen them. Both she and her husband agreed to say nothing. She wrote and asked you if she had done the right thing, and you said, "Yes. To have announced that the silver was missing would have created more humiliation than the silver was worth." In other words, they were right to remain silent.

It seems to me that today too many people are getting away with this sort of thing because nobody wants to create

I don't know how it could have been handled diplomatically, but remaining silent wasn't the answer either. I would hope that in other situations of this kind you might come up with an answer that could be a shade more responsible.

Thank you for allowing me to disagree.
WARD D. PIERCE, METHODIST MINISTER

DEAR MR. PIERCE: You are, of course, right. Remaining silent isn't the answer, but consider the alternative: announcing to the guests that some silverware was missing, and would the thief please "fess" up? (P.S. If anybody out there knows of a diplomatic way of making that accusation, I'd like to hear it.)

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter was recently married. She had a church wedding and reception. We did not send invitations to any out-of-state relatives because we knew they wouldn't come, and we thought our invitation might be interpreted as a hint to send a gift.

Now, one of these out-of-state relatives is getting married for the second time, and we received an invitation. She lives in Colorado and no one here has seen her for 20 years. We have no intention of going, which I'm sure will be no

DEAR ABBY: Concerning "Out of Ideas," who didn't know what to give her wealthy mother-in-law for special occasions: Your advice was perfect. You told her not to worry about gifts for special occasions - to write letters regularly and enclose pictures.

I work in one of the finest retirement nursing homes in the country, and we do everything we can to make our residents happy. But nothing we do equals the pleasure they get when a letter from "the family" arrives. And when pictures are enclosed, there's a celebration! They're circulated throughout the home to be shared with everyone here.

But there's nothing sadder than seeing a resident look for mail every day and be disappointed.

Please emphasize again and again that the best thing a family can do for someone in a nursing home is to write regularly and send pictures. Even those who can no longer read but must have letters read to them enjoy holding those letters and feeling them. There is something magical about the touch of something from the family.

Real concern over cholesterol

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 30 years old and have just been told that my cholester-ol level is extremely high. According to the lab results I am more prone to have a heart attack than the average man by five to one. I have been placed on a very strict diet containing no cholesterol cholesterol.

Most products found in the local markets do not list cholesterol levels. How can you determine if a product is low or contains no cholesterol? How long do you think it will take to reduce my level of cholesterol? I'm very concerned since my father died of a heart attack at age 54.

DEAR READER — You are right to be concerned. If

DEAR READER — You are right to be concerned. If a person has a family history-of members having heart attacks early in life it does increase the chances he will have a problem. In most instances if there is an increased chance of having a problem it will be manifested by a high cholesterol or high blood pressure. If you have a persistent high cholesterol level it may be an inherited trait.

The first rule is to have more than one cholesterol determination as it is sometimes elevated with stress or temporary conditions. If it remains high then you should restrict your calories add increase your physical activity enough to eliminate any significant excess fat deposits you have under the skin. Get rid of it all, not just a part of it. Most dietary efforts do not help much to lower cholesterol unless the person also eliminates excess body fat through general calorie restriction.

2 teaspoons lemon juice
4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
2 cup Grade B maple syrup

Cook the butt in water according to wrapper directions; drain. Insert the cloves, about an inch apart, over top and sides of butt; place in a foil-lined pan (11 by 7 by 1½ finches). Stir the lemon juice and nutmeg into the maple syrup; pour over the butt. Bake, uncovered, in a 350-degree oven for about 20 minutes. Baste a few times with the syrup mixture and serve hot.

And you will need to limit your total fat intake, especially your saturated fat as well as your cholesterol. Your own body will produce cholesterol if you consume too many calories and too much saturated fat.

There are only a few foods that are high in cholesterol—egg yolks, organ meats such as brains and liver and processed cheeses. Plant foods contain no cholesterol (cereals, vegetables, fruit). Most animal foods contain some.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My six-month-old baby died a short time ago. I don't understand fully why. He had a throat infection first and then I guess the infection spread through his system. The death certificate said septic shock and some sort of meningitis, not spinal though. Is there any way a disease can strike a baby like that and kill him? The certificate also mentioned a viral infection. He only lived nine hours after he got sick. Any information you can give me would be greatly appreciated.

DEAR READER — Most infectious diseases cause illness by releasing toxins. These toxins can go throughout the body in the circulation. Stated another way, the germs release a poison.

Septic shock means shock or circulatory failure induced by sepsis (an infection). Many infections can be rapidly fatal. And many different viral infections can involve the nervous system. Unfortunately, we do not have good antiviral agents available similar to the antibiotics to combat bacteria. But we will have some day.

Pope continuing African tour

COTONOU, Benin (AP) - Pope John Paul arrived in this Marxist-ruled African country today after delivering a special airport farewell message of love to "the Nigerian child" in Lagos,

The 61-year-old pontiff flew the 60-mile trip from Lagos to Benin, the former French colony of Dahomey. In the afternoon his Alitalia Airbus was taking him 610 miles southeast across the gulf to Gabon, another former French colony, for a two-day stay.

The pope will also visit Equatorial Guinea, a former Spanish colony in which 90 percent of the 350,000 people are Catholics, before returning to the Vatican on Friday. "My final word," the pope said in his airport farewell, "is to a very special person, the Nigerian child. It is to each boy and girls of this great country that I avoided the moral and political subject leave my message of brotherhood, friendship and love.'

He told children among the crowd seeing him off at Murtala Muhammed Airport they should "treat others the way you would have them threat you."

"By acting this way, you will have more power than all the nuclear power stations in the world because you have the power to bring peace and happiness to the world," he said as traditional drummers beat on hollow logs and the crowd waved Vatican and Nigerian He then called forward the child of a

Nigerian official, hugged the youngster, turned and waved to the crowd and boarded his Alitalia Airbus for the flight to Benin - ending his five-day visit to Black Africa's most populous nation.

During his visit to Nigeria, John Paul drew the expected huge crowds and of greatest interest to Black Africa, the racial policy in white-ruled South

John Paul in his homilies at the papal Masses in Lagos, Onitsha, Kaduna and Ibadan spoke of Africa's need to resist the temptations of materialism and to bolster traditional values and family life. But he made no mention of racism or South Africa's apartheid policy of racial separation, subjects which were prominent in his address to the diplomatic community in Nairobi, Kenya, on his 1980 visit.

Greeting the pope on his arrival last Friday, Nigerian President Shehu Shagari told him Africa needed to be rid of "the racist regime" in South Africa. He also called for black-majority rule in Namibia, or South-West Africa, which South Africa continues to rule in defiance of the United Nations. But the pope ignored these issues, then and

Fear U.S. heading into another Vietnam

LONDON (AP) - Concern is growing in Western Europe that President Reagan's policy on El Salvador may be taking the United States on the same road that led to Vietnam.

Few commentators feel the elections March 28 for a constitutent assembly in the Central American nation will fairly resolve the issues while violence on the left and right continues.

NATO ally Norway told U.S. Ambassador Mark Austad it would not accept the invitation from President Jose Napoleon Duarte's junta to send observers to the election. Deputy Foreign Minister Eivinn Berg said a credible election is not possible.

Leo Tindemans of Belgium, the current chairman of the 10-nation Common Market's council of foreign ministers, told reporters the United States has not convinced the European public it is doing enough to stop violence by the junta's forces.

Tindemans, who will discuss El Salvador among other issues when he visits Washington this week, said European public opinion feels the United States is not "strong enough"

The Dutch Parliament by an overwhelming vote adopted a resolution Tuesday opposing U.S. military intervention "in whatever form," proposing a U.N. peacekeeping force to stop the fighting and calling for a dialogue between the junta and the leftist guerrillas.

"Things are going badly." the independent Times of London wrote, ... and there are grounds for fearing that by becoming more involved, the United States may be repeating the mistakes made in Vietnam.

"It is simply not possible to present a regime with such a murderous record as democratic," the Times said. "And next month's elections will not alter that fact, because it is not possible to hold fair and open elections in an atmosphere of repression like that in El Salvador today.'

The conservative London Evening Standard said: "It makes no sense for the U.S. Administration to talk about Soviet-inspired repression in Poland so long as it involves itself so heavily in the equally violent conflict in El

Mayor objects to police hiring a gay instructor

HOUSTON (AP) - Mayor Kathy Whitmire says she favors teaching police cadets about homosexual lifestyles, but doesn't think the president of Houston's Gay Political Caucus should be their instructor.

"I think whenever we see a group like the police department go out and hire political activists to try to meet some kind of educational need like this we are really talking about tokenism," Mrs.

Whitmire said Tuesday. Capt. Leroy Michna, head of the police academy, announced plans

Monday to hire Lee Harrington, 39, and Bill Scott, 33, to teach the four-hour class, which will begin March 22.

Harrington is president of the 2,100-member Gay Political Caucus. Scott is founder of a counseling center for homosexuals.

Mrs. Whitmire, said Harrington is a friend, but said she was afraid the course might focus more on his political activism than on the city's gay community.

Acting Police Chief John Bales said he would confer with Dr. John Matthews, the academy's psychologist, before officially announcing any instructors for the course.

News in Brief

WASHINGTON (AP) -Because the Pentagon has disregarded "good business practice," millions of dollars are being paid each year by American taxpayers to subsidize foreign military sales, says the General Accounting Office.

The losses also are occurring, said the congressional fact-finding agency, because the Pentagon isn't following the generally accepted accounting principle" that overhead is part of the cost of a transaction.

In a report to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, GAO auditors recommended on Tuesday that the Defense Security Assistance Agency be required to revise its rules to provide for recovering the full administrative costs of arms sales to other nations.

The report said the exact amount by which $15 billion worth of foreign military sales were subsidized by the taxpayers in 1980 could not be determined, but "we know it to be in the millions of dollars."

WASHINGTON (AP) -Yields on short-term Treasury securities this week are at their highest level in five months after rising for the sixth straight week. About $5 billion in six-month bills were sold at an average discount rate of 14.36 percent in Tuesday's auctions, up from the 13.933 percent of Feb. 8.

The government also sold about $5 billion in three-month bills at an average rate of 14.74 percent, up from the 14.099 percent of last week. The yields were the highest since the Sept. 30, 1981, level of 14.932 percent for six-month bills and the Sept. 4 level of 15.611 percent for three-month bills. TULSA, Okla, (AP) -

Inflation and licensing problems contributed to the decision to cancel the Black Fox nuclear power plant, the project's owners say.

Public Service Co. of Oklahoma and two partners announced Tuesday that the project's licensing application is being withdrawn. Nine years of work on what would have been Oklahoma's only nuclear power plant had cost about $233 million. Customers will pay about $177 million dollars through rate increases and the rest will be absorbed by investors, utility

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) - A man upset because his former wife was not raising his two daughters according to the tenets of Orthodox Judaism has won custody rights from New York's Court officials said.

In a unanimous decision. the court ruled Tuesday that Elliott Friederwitzer, and not his former wife, Sharon, should have custody of the children - even though he signed away his custody rights in a 1979 separation agreement. Friederwitzer claimed his children were confused in their religious beliefs because his ex-wife permitted a male friend to stay overnight and seldom took the children to sabbath worship services.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) -The level of violence at the Washington State Penitientiary, where eight inmates and two guards have been killed within a two-year period, amounts to cruel and unusual punishment, the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Tuesday's ruling upheld an earlier decision from U.S. District Judge Jack Tanner. But the appeals court decided that Tanner erred by citing guard recruitment and training programs without considering the effect of overcrowding on violence at the prison.

The court agreed guards should be ordered to refrain from using brutal force and asked Tanner to determine if an inmate grievance procedure had been set up.

SELMA, Texas (AP) -Mark Industries, a manufacturer of hydraulically operated aerial work platforms, broke ground Tuesday for the first phase of its 500,000-square foot manufacturing facility in this San Antonio suburb.

The three-phase building program is expected to take three to five years on a 102-acre site, according to Mark president and chief executive officer Rallie Rallis.

Employment is projected to reach 1,000 persons by the end of the building program in 1985. Rallis said Mark Industries is headquartered in Carson, Calif., and manufacturers a variety of lift and reach equipment.

Shuttle arrives at its launch pad

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - With the space shuttle sitting securely on its launch pad after a 31/2-mile journey, engineers prepared for dress rehearsals of the Columbia's third launch, which may be moved up.

Top space agency officials were considering plans to begin Columbia's next mission two or three days earlier than the March 22 target date. But chances for such a change appeared slim, even if everything goes smoothly.

The space shuttle program has been dogged by delays throughout its history, and NASA officials at Cape Canaveral noted that no manned launch has ever gone off ahead of schedule in U.S. space history.

"Don't make too big an issue of it. I just don't want to rule out the possibility." Shuttle Operations Director George Page said of the possible schedule change.

Page said Gen. James Abrahamson, associate administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, had discussed the possible change with Kennedy Space Center Director Richard Smith. "No decision has been made," and none is possible until the completion of fuel loading in early March, Page said.

But preparations for the third voyage of the world's first reusable spacecraft have gone so well that technicians are now five days ahead of the timetable. And more time is expected to be gained during a series of tests at the launch site, scheduled to begin today.

The 184-foot-tall shuttle assembly completed the six-hour trip from the huge Vehicle Assembly Building to the seaside aunch pad Tuesday.

After its journey, workers began connecting the transportable launch platform and the spacecraft to the various systems. This will be followed by two days of checks on all equipment.

On Friday, astronauts Jack Lousma and Gordon Fullerton are to simulate all launch day activities. They will get up at the same time as they would on launch day, eat the traditional pre-launch breakfast, suit up, and ride to the launch pad. They will climb into the crew compartment for a "dry countdown

Kubiak against state property tax for schools

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - State Rep. Dan Kubiak, a candidate for land commissioner, says Texans should not be forced to pay a state property tax to finance higher education. Kubiak, D-Rockdale, said Tuesday he favors a fund, set up by the Legislature, to pay the way for universities that do not get a portion of the Permanent University Fund. The PUF, based on oil and gas revenues, is shared by schools in the University of Texas and Texas A&M systems. Sen. Pete Snelson, D-Midland and a land commissioner candidate, has supported a three-cent state property tax to finance non-PUF schools. Kubiak said it's a bad idea.

"The state should stay out of the property tax business because people are already infuriated with skyrocketing local taxes," he said at a news conference.

"We need to have a new fund for these colleges and universities without having to tap the PUF which is needed by the University of Texas and the Texas A&M systems," said Kubiak

BOSTON (AP) - Henry Kissinger's recovery from heart surgery is "right on target," says Massachusetts General Hospital spokesman Martin Bander.

Surgeons performed a triple bypass operation a week ago to improve circulation in the 58-year-old Nobel Peace Prize winner's heart.

Bander said Tuesday that Kissinger has gotten out of bed and done some walking. Dr. W. Gerald Austen, a surgeon, said his patient would recover fully from the operation, and estimated that the former secretary of state would be able to leave the hospital by the end of the month.

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) - Great Britain's heir to the throne and his young wife, Diana, have arrived here for their first vacation together since last year's month-long honeymoon on ? British naval Prince Charles and the princess arrived Tuesday evening aboard a British Airways jetliner for a sun-drenched, 10-day vacation.

After their plane touched down, the two visitors were whisked away under tight security in a limousine to a VIP lounge at Nassau International Airport, where they were met by the Gov. Gen. Sir Gerald Cash, his wife, Lady Dorothy and the British High Commissioner Archilles Papadoupolos.

After the formal greeting, Charles and his pregnant wife hopped aboard a private jet and flew to Governor's Harbor, where they will be staying at Lord and Lady Braeourne's vacation home on Windemere Island.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) -Eileen Fulton has found a soap box for women's rights in the world of soap operas.

Miss Fulton, the blond star of "As the World Turns," says she believes the soaps are reflecting changes in women's roles. For example, she said, there are more female doctors, lawyers and other professionals on television.

Viewers can thank Miss Fulton that Lisa, the woman she portrays, has a profession.

"I said, 'Can't Lisa do something besides chase men?' So they let her go into fashion and use a little brain. She's now a businesswoman and doing rather well," Miss Fulton said.

Miss Fulton says the change has been applauded

"They used to hate her (Lisa)," Miss Fulton said. 'They don't hate her any more. They like her because she is spunky. I get a lot more mail from men too. I guess they like spunky women too."

Israelis work at communal living

Kibbutz comes from a Hebrew word, "kvutza," meaning "group." It has meant a way of life for many Israeli settlers. The writer spent two months on a kibbutz Jewish immigrants into to sample this modern

Associated Press Writer RAMAT HAKOVESH, Israel (AP) - When a kibbutznik comes home after a day at work, he no longer sits in crowded quarters discussing Zionist ideals. He plops down in front of the television, goes to pottery classes, plays a game of tennis.

"You do not have to suffer to be a Zionist." says Kelly Solomon of kibbutz Ramat Hakovesh. "By being there and working the land, we are still accomplishing one of those Zionist ideals.

Ramat Hakovesh, a quiet settlement of some 650 people, lies 15 miles northeast of Tel Aviv. Its rolling hills produce cotton, citrus fruits. potatoes, peanuts, bananas and avocados. Today's kibbutzniks still work cooperatively, own property collectively and govern democratically. Like their parents and grandparents, they have turned swamps and deserts into orchards and cotton fields.

But the profits earned from the growth of the settlements and kibbutz industry have given kibbutzniks a higher standard of living than some city-dwellers — and charges of elitism from their critics.

In September, Prime Minister Menachem Begin described them as "arrogant millionaires" lounging in their swimming pools, ignoring those around them.

The Begin blast met criticism of its own. Shimon Peres, leader of the opposition Labor Party which includes the kibbutz movement, said Begin was the only world leader who didn't respect the kibbutzim and their achievements. Angry kibbutzniks sent telegrams to Begin's office. At Ramat Hakovesh, it was dismissed as party politics. "There's no way to fight against it, because we are all brothers," Solomon says. "We don't take it seriously.

"Although we are only 3 percent of the country, we are 40 percent of the army officers. We are the only part of society with goals working to build the country." Solomon adds, citing the kibbutzim's border defenses. absorption of immigrants and contributions to Israeli
