Polish diplomat tells Texans that Soviets plan to use Poland to war on Europe

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A former Polish ambassador says the Soviet Union is preparing for war against Western Europe as a prelude to a major world power struggle in which he believes his homeland will be pivotal.

Zdzislaw Rurarz, who defected to the United States from his post in Japan last December, said the Soviet-backed military crackdown in Poland and Polish reaction to it will help decide East-West relations.

"I am a bit pessimistic when it comes to the future — war or peace," Rurarz told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in a copyright story published Saturday.

Rurarz, who was visiting with friends here, said he believes the Soviets would launch the war against Western Europe with a conventional blitzkrieg across northern East Germany into West Germany, possibly within the next two or three years.

To win such a war, the Russians would have to rely on Poland's army, the third largest in eastern Europe. Resistance from the Polish populace and from the ranks of the Polish army has dealt the Russians a major setback, Rurarz said.

"The Soviets definitely would not strike against Western Europe without the Polish army," he said. "They would be unable to win."

Pointing to examples of continuing resistance, he cited an almost daily occurrence at the tomb of Polish folk hero Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski, where members of the army honor guard goose-step in salute as they pass an illegal memorial to miners who died during the early days of Poland's military rule.

"They are supposed not to do that," he said. "But they do."

The former ambassador predicted that many in the army and security police will balk at raising arms against their own people. He cited figures estimating 82 percent of the Polish population openly is hostile to the regime.

"It has no support — not even members of the Communist Party. People are now very much embittered," he said.

"The Communist Party in Poland is in total disarray."

Poland is quiet now because Solidarity and the Catholic Church are urging restraint to allow the military regime an opportunity to back down gracefully, he said. He said the church is distributing food while Solidarity continues to organize.

"It is only a question of time until the Poles explode," he said.

Rurarz commended the United States for its action after the imposition of martial law last year.

"The United States was the first to introduce economic sanctions," he said. "They were limited, but it was the only country that did something."

Condemning U.S. grain sales to Russia, Rurarz said: "Please don't build communism with your money

... There's a proverb that says that socialism is the longest way to capitalism. Quite simply, communism doesn't work. It will never work."

Rurarz's disenchantment with communism goes back to his earliest days of party membership, he said. He said he was unenthusiastic about communism when he joined the party, but decided to try to work within the system.

Rock star faces Texas drug laws

DALLAS (AP) — Rock musician David Crosby refused during a pretrial hearing to answer prosecutors' questions about his arrest on felony narcotics and gun possession charges.

Crosby, 40, took the stand Friday afternoon during a hearing on his request to suppress evidence he contends was seized illegally.

He was arrested April 13 during what Dallas police called a routine liquor violation inspection at a Northeast Dallas nightclub.

One of the arresting officers testified Friday that he found Crosby — one of the founding members of the group Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young — free-basing cocaine in the dressing-room area of Cardi's nightclub.

In response to a question from his attorney, Crosby contended he had given police no legally justifiable reason to search him. He pleaded the Fifth Amendment to prosecutors' questions.

State District Judge Pat McDowell adjourned the hearing until June 25.

If convicted, Crosby would face a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine each on the narcotics and gun charges.

Houston Oiler running back object of search

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers running back Tim Wilson has been missing since Thursday, police said Saturday.

"We have no reason to suspect foul play but we are concerned," said officer J.A. McClellan of the missing persons division.

The 27-year-old football player first was reported missing Friday by his wife, Valanda, said officer G.E. Dillon.

Mrs. Wilson called police Saturday to say an unidentified "friend of a friend" had seen her husband Thursday night, Dillon said. Wilson originally was believed to have been seen last Wednesday afternoon, when he left the Houston home of Cleveland Browns player Jim St. Clair.

McClellan said running back Earl Campbell also told police Wilson had missed three workouts the pair has regularly.

Wilson did not show up for a planned trip to Las Vegas, McClellan said.

Wilson, who is black, 6-foot-3 and 235 pounds, last was seen driving his 1981 black and silver Chevrolet Blazer and wearing jeans and a green striped shirt.

De Aun Taylor is not a women's libber, but she does a man's job.

In fact, it's the type of job most men wouldn't dream of tackling. She works on horse's hooves.

Not exactly a horseshoer, that's her husband Johnny's job, she does finishing work such as cutting off nails and bending them to keep shoes in place and rasping the rough edges. One thing that makes her indispensable to Johnny is that she can handle broncs.

"There are some people who hold horses that don't know what to do with a bronc. Johnny won't let most other people hold broncs because it's a safety measure for him to have someone who can keep the horse off of him," De Aun said.

The horseshoeing business is nothing new to De Aun whose parents, Sam and Ada Whatley, and grandfather, Dick Schaffer, were all in the business.

"We started shoeing horses as a joke because my father said Johnny was too little to handle those big horses," she laughed. "That was 16 years ago."

Johnny started shoeing horses full time when he began making more money on a part-time basis than he did working full time at Celanese.

"I remember the first time we made $100 in one day. It was the 3rd or 4th of July, and hot. We had gone to Liberal, Kansas, and had shod 10 horses at $10 apiece. I thought we were rich," De Aun said.

Prices have gone up in 16 years, but not much in comparison to the rest of the economy. What was once a $10 job now costs $20 to $25.

Manhandling a 1200 pound horse can get a little dangerous, if you're not careful.

"The worst injury I ever got was when a horse that had been injured came out from under the tranquilizer and lunged forward and pawed me on the cheek," De Aun said. "I've been kicked, but not bad. You learn to watch yourself. Experience prevents a lot of injury."

She and Johnny spend most of their time shoeing feedlot and working horses, but they do get to work on some rather famous hooves.

They have shod Easy Jet, the famous running quarter horse owned by Walter Merrick, as well as some top running paint horses.

"We were down at Walter's place shoeing some horses while they were training Easy Date and It's Easy. They were all wrapped up in It's Easy, thinking he would be the next All American Futurity (the million dollar race for 2-year-old Quarter horses) winner.

"Their trainer stayed right there with us while we shod It's Easy and when we got ready to go again he said, 'That old mare (Easy Date) over there, just shoe her anyway you want to... she won't run anyway.'"

"When we shod her you just wouldn't believe the heel Johnny cut off of her. Johnny said if they didn't care, then he would just shoe her like he wanted to."

"The next day they worked Easy Date against It's Easy and she outran him like he was standing still. They said she couldn't run. I don't believe they ever realized she needed corrective shoeing. Of course she won the All American Futurity the next year," De Aun laughed.

They have also shod Sir Prince Plaudit and Run For Blue, both national Appaloosa halter champions, for Dr. Harbord Cox.

"We also did some trimming for Mary Urshal as a fill in when one of her boys had to go away for a while," she said.

The Taylors spend a lot of time working with veterinarians correcting foot problems caused from bone disorders, founder or accidents.

Johnny is presently working with Dr. Jack Swain of Stratford, Texas, to mend a broken navicular bone (strategic bone in a horse's foot) in a performance horse. Johnny worked from the X-rays to design a special shoe that will act as a cast to allow the bone to mend.

"He (Johnny) is always trying something new. He likes the challenge. Some time ago we bought a good-looking gray horse who had a bad foot to see what we could do with him. Other people had looked at him and were afraid to buy him because of that foot. Six months after we got him our daughter, Jona, won Rookie of the Year on barrels on him. The horse had never even seen a barrel before we started working with him. Now Shaun, her cousin, is going to take him to the high school finals and rope off of him," De Aun said.

"We try to keep up on things in the business. We're members of the Farriers Association. It's a national organization with a quarterly newsletter with some good articles. We attend their conventions when they are close enough to go to. Last year it was in Albuquerque, New Mexico, so we attended. This year it's going to be up north somewhere so we will probably miss it," she said.

A horse started hanging and stomping outside and De Aun quietly excused herself to go to Johnny's aid. She is very protective.

De Aun has worked at other professions. Before she became Johnny's full-time assistant, she worked in the telephone office for about six years.

"I would just as soon do this as anything else, and I feel it's important to work and stay busy. Sure it's hard work, but I don't have to hurt myself to prove that I'm tough. I know a lot of women who feel they have to prove something by straining themselves, but I won't do it," she said.

De Aun uses leverage and stands for most of her work. The little woman is only about 5'6" tall and can't weigh over 120 pounds, but she is obviously in excellent shape.

The Taylors work a six-day week. Monday through Friday they travel to farms and ranches. Saturdays are spent on their ranch west of Pampa working on horses; people haul in to them.

"It doesn't pay to work on Sundays. We've tried it, and it doesn't work. I'm not sure why, but I think it has something to do with what it says in the Bible about resting on Sunday," De Aun said.

When the Taylors do get time off, they spend it working on their ranch or playing with their horses.

"We barrel race and attend playdays. Playdays consist of events on horseback. It's a cheap way to do something with your horse and have a good time.

"Jona is 19 now and this is her last year in 4H. She has done very well in the 4H events and I know she will miss it," she said.

"I really enjoy the time we work. There are some days that seem like a holiday even though we put in a full day's work. That's when we go to Dr. Cox's and a place in Stratford. We get to visit while we work and it makes the day a lot of fun.

"I believe hard work helps any problem... when you're so damn tired you don't have time to worry," De Aun Taylor said.

"Idle hands are bad. I've been there, and I've been hard at work, and I think I'm happier hard at work."

Cities Service raises offer to buy Mesa

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Cities Service Co., in a campaign to win control of Mesa Petroleum Co., has raised the cash price of its tender offer to $21 a share and has leveled new legal charges against Mesa.

Tulsa-based Cities Service said Friday it already had been tendered 45 percent of Mesa's stock.

Cities Service said it would pay $21 a share in cash for up to 37 million Mesa shares, 51 percent of the outstanding stock. Its previous tender offer had been $17 a share.

John F. Boros, Mesa's treasurer, said the company had no comment on the revised offer. Mesa is trying to fend off Cities Service and has made its own offer of $45 a share for 15 percent of Cities Service stock, or 12.1 million shares.

Earlier Friday, Cities Service amended the lawsuit it had filed seeking to block Mesa from gaining control of Cities Service. In its new charges, Cities Service said the collateral supporting $600 million of bank credit arranged to finance Mesa's tender offer for 15 percent of Cities Service stock is "improperly valued" and that the financing is inconsistent with "customary responsible banking practices."

T. Boone Pickens, the Mesa chairman and president, called the new charge an indication that "you're seeing desperation take over in the Cities Service camp." He added that the amended lawsuit is without merit and indicates "how far some managements will go to keep their jobs."

Cities Service said Friday morning that its bank agent estimated that 30 million Mesa shares, or 45 percent of Mesa's common stock, had been tendered under Cities Service's original tender offer as of midnight Thursday. That was the deadline for Mesa shareholders to submit their shares and be assured of payment under Cities Service's tender offer.

Trading in Mesa stock on the New York Stock Exchange was halted after Cities Service disclosed the number of shares tendered as of midnight Thursday. After trading resumed, the stock rose 50 cents to close at $18.50 a share. The revised tender offer was announced after the close of trading.

Cities Service stock dropped 12.5 cents a share, to $34.625 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Pickens said from the company's headquarters in Amarillo, Texas, that he was not surprised Mesa stockholders had tendered their shares despite Pickens' objections to Cities Service's effort to gain control of Mesa.

Pickens reiterated his charge that Cities Service's offer was "inadequate," and predicted that "many" of the Mesa shares tendered would be taken back before the withdrawal deadline of midnight, June 21.

Southland, owner of the 7-Eleven convenience store chain, declined to comment on Pickens' assertion.

Cities Service made its offer, valued at $629 million,

last week in anticipation of being courted by Mesa.

After Mesa management rejected the offer and launched its own takeover bid as expected, Cities Service made a separate offer to Mesa last week of $21 a share for up to 51 percent of Mesa's stock. That offer is contingent on Mesa management's approval. If Mesa agreed to it, Cities Service would acquire the remaining shares by exchanging Cities Service stock now worth about $16 a share. Mesa management has not responded to that offer.

The directors of Cities Service have rejected a pair of Mesa offers. One offer is $45 a share for 15 percent of Cities Service stock. The other is $50 a share for 51 percent of Cities Service's 77.9 million shares.

In a related development, Pickens said Southland Corp., previously mentioned as a prospective Mesa ally in the takeover fracas, has decided to stay out of the battle.

Southland, owner of the 7-Eleven convenience store chain, declined to comment on Pickens' assertion.

Cities Service made its offer, valued at $629 million,

last week in anticipation of being courted by Mesa.

Nucorp lays off workers

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Nucorp Supply Inc., an oil field equipment manufacturer which had 1,500 employees last summer, says it is down to 275 employees after laying off workers for the fourth time since mid-December.

Nucorp Executive Vice President Sid Waynick refused to say how many workers were laid off Friday but would say the company now has 275 employees.

Gerald Cook, director of the Abilene Chamber of Commerce Industrial Division, estimated Nucorp had 400 to 500 employees before Friday's layoffs.

Nucorp had about 500 workers after a layoff of nearly half of its work force in late April. In addition to the 400 worker laid off in April, the company laid off 230 employees in December and 50 in February.

Waynick said Friday's layoffs were two-week furloughs for employees on two coupling plants and three threading lines. However, he also said that Nucorp will reopen only one of the coupling plants and one thread line in two weeks and each will work only one eight-hour shift.

Nucorp, whose plant is near Tye west of Abilene, and its parent company Nucorp Energy Inc., of San Diego, Calif., have had financial problems since late last year.

Waynick said Friday's layoffs were two-week

Senator Bill Sarpalius

Send Your Opinion To Austin

Spending More And More
AUSTIN — It wasn't enough for some members of the Legislature who call themselves "conservatives" that we had to go to Austin for a pointless special session. It wasn't enough for them that the special session cost about $300,000. It wasn't enough to spend hundreds of millions on college construction and prisons.

Some people had to spend that money in the most inefficient way possible.

A good example of this was the opposition to our bill to set up work-release centers for non-violent felons. Under our plan, a small class of offenders could be sentenced to a work-release program under the direction of the county sheriff. They would spend all their free time in jail and work during the daytime. They would pay you, the taxpayer, room and board for the jail. They would pay you, the victim, what their crimes cost you. For example, if a criminal stole your car and wrecked it, he would buy you a new car. The criminals also would have to support their families.

There was only one thing wrong with this program. Except for a few duty-minded sheriffs like Travis McPherson of Deaf Smith County and T.L. Baker of Potter County, few sheriffs would want to go to the trouble of setting up the program.

For that reason, we put a bonus in the law. For every day a prisoner spent on the work-release program, the state would pay his county 75 percent of what it would have cost to keep that prisoner in prison.

The program had an appropriation of $250,000. Simple arithmetic tells us the program would have saved the state $62,500 the first year. This does not include savings to the taxpayers in the form of reduced welfare payments, or payments to victims.

Some people didn't seem to think $62,500 of your tax money was worth the bother. One Senator in particular, John Leedom of Dallas, worked extra hard to cost you money. Leedom calls himself a conservative.

In the Panhandle and the South Plains, we say conservatives try to save tax money, not spend all of it they can. The definition of conservative seems to change a little when you get inside Dallas County.

In the same session, Senator Leedom tried to add $3 million to the prison bill, even though the money wasn't even requested by the Texas Department of Corrections.

During the next session of the Legislature, when it will take more than the lack of time in a five-day session to kill good legislation, we will be back with bills to protect the victim's rights and cut down on the welfare rolls. There will be a few so-called "conservatives" trying to stop us, but we know we will have the support of the people and the sheriffs of this state. With that kind of help, we will be hard to stop.

We want to know how you feel about saving tax money. Should we try to save money, or should we just keep spending more and more? Please write to Senator Bill Sarpalius, P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

'Cash only' way of life giving IRS fits in El Paso

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Across the country, government officials and economists are bemoaning the "underground economy" — dealings done strictly in cash without the complications of income tax or proper records.

Probably nowhere is the problem as serious as along the U.S.-Mexico border, haven for illegal aliens and smugglers of all kinds.

"I suspect that here in El Paso is probably one of the worst places in the country in terms of unreported cash transactions," said El Paso marketing analyst Tom Lee.

Such transactions nationwide recently have captured the imagination of lawmakers in Washington, who see stiffer enforcement as a way to alleviate the government's budget problems.

Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Roscoe L. Egger Jr. told the House Ways and Means Committee in May that the "gap" between the amount of taxes that should be collected and the amount that actually is collected has tripled in the past eight years and still is growing.

The gap is divided into two parts — the so-called legal and illegal sectors. Violations in the legal sector include people who don't report to the IRS all or part of their income from jobs, tips and moonlighting. It also includes small businessmen and professionals who skim cash off their earnings before reporting them to the IRS.

The illegal sector is money from criminal activities such as gambling, smuggling, drug trafficking and prostitution.

Egger told the committee that the estimated tax loss in the legal sector rose from $29 billion in 1973 to $87 billion in 1981. That number is expected to rise to nearly $120 billion by 1985, he said.

The loss in the illegal sector rose from $2.5 billion in 1973 to $8 billion in 1981 and is expected to reach $13 billion by 1985, he said.

Those numbers all are estimates because not even the IRS knows how much money changes hands unrecorded and unreported.

"When you are depending on voluntary compliance, you're going to have some cheating," said Bob Branson, public affairs officer in the IRS' Austin office. "It does exist and the numbers are big."

Although the IRS doesn't know how big, there are indications that the cash economy may be bigger in Texas and along the Mexican border.

Lee said he sees more and more evidence of Texans taking cash payments for their services "rather than let inflation push them into another tax bracket."

"This is almost a foolproof way of cheating," he said. "The typical guy who is skimming a couple thousand dollars a year isn't likely to get caught."

Larry Meyer, the IRS director's representative in El Paso, agreed businessmen aren't likely to get caught unless they get carried away.

"In most cases, they go to the well and they don't get caught, so they go to the well again and again and eventually it becomes obvious to our examiners," he said.

The IRS tries to discourage that kind of cheating by examining random returns, but the number checked in Texas is less than 1.6 percent.

Meyer said the El Paso office is getting three new revenue agents and four new tax auditors soon in an attempt to beef up enforcement, but said Texas and other Sun Belt states are growing too fast for the IRS to match in staff increases.

Along with the rapid growth, the IRS is faced with the more invisible cash flows associated with the border — illegal aliens and crime.

"The cash flow economy is more prevalent here because of the illegal aliens and smuggling," said U.S. Border Patrol intelligence agent Joe Aubin.

Of the 150,000 illegal aliens apprehended in the El Paso sector in 1981, more than 17,000 held jobs on the U.S. side of the border ranging from maids to carpenters to concrete finishers, Aubin said.

"It happens all the time," he said. "Most of the illegal aliens that we apprehend get paid in cash."

"A guy says, 'Hey, I need some work done and I'll pay you 20 bucks a day,'" he said. "If the alien does a good job, he may work him an entire week. That guy has made $100 in a week and no taxes have been paid on it."

"He ends up working fulltime and getting paid a day rate and it's all in cash. It goes on constantly. It's a cash flow away from our taxes and Social Security and a direct shot in the arm for Mexico."

An economic study cited in an April Business Week magazine estimated that such off-the-books transactions with illegal aliens amounted to $20 billion in 1980.

Criminal activity thrives along the border, adding to the illegal sector tax gap.

"Nobody who's pushing drugs or smuggling illegal aliens is going to take a check or a credit card and they certainly aren't going to report their extra income to the IRS," Lee said.

The major loss is from smuggling illegal aliens and drugs into the United States and appliances and other consumer goods into Mexico.

"Because of its location, the El Paso area is a major demarcation point for smugglers," Aubin said. "And it's not just drugs. There's a multi-million dollar a year business in smuggling aliens into the country. It's not uncommon for someone from Central or South America to pay $1,200 to $3,000 to get into the United States."

"When you think about the hundreds of aliens that a major smuggling ring can bring into the country in a year and then realize there's several of these rings operating, you can see that we're talking about big bucks," he said.

While law enforcement agencies keep busy trying to halt the illegal trade, the burden of keeping the government afloat falls on the shoulders of taxpayers who don't cheat. Lee said the danger of the underground economy is that it can spread.

"That loss of revenue has to be made up somehow and they make it up by raising tax rates," he said. "You have a snowball effect because the higher rates mean more people will cheat."

"You try to be honest and you see all these other people getting away with it and you say, 'God, I'm getting soaked here.' My worry is that more and more people will say, 'This is nonsense,' and stop paying their taxes."

TORNADO CLEAN-UP

After a slow start on volunteer help, interest and volunteers picked up last week - end. We fairly well completed the clean - up on the fields of four farms that needed some assistance. There may be other farms, but we were not informed about others needing help in getting their fields cleaned - up.

The four farmers expressed to me a big "Thanks" to all of the workers involved. In fact, all farmers that got hit with tornado damage are very grateful for all of their friends and neighbors who pitched in and gave a helping hand. When there was such wide - spread destruction (over 20 different farms affected) the clean - up had to take a community effort.

Of course when we say clean - up fairly well completed - we mean only in the fields. It will take several years for some farmers to get their farmsteads cleaned - up and half - way organized again. After walking many miles back and forth across several fields, I have come to the conclusion that this was a tremendous storm system possibly up to a mile or more wide with additional tornadoes off to the side of it - 2 to 3 miles away.

Back on the subject of "Thanks" for helping with the clean - up effort, it is impossible for me to know of everyone who helped with the clean - up. A lot of folks put in a lot more effort than I did and did not expect or care if their names got printed as clean - up helpers. Rather than leave out many names, I think it best to say that if you helped you can rest assured your efforts were most appreciated by those farmers that you helped. Many of them simply did not know how they could ever get some of that mess cleaned - up.

GREENBUGS AND SORGHUM
We have had reports through Dr. Carl Patrick that seedling sorghum is experiencing greenbug damage. Farmers need to check newly emerged sorghum as it is very susceptible to greenbug damage. Damage symptoms on newly emerged sorghum with greenbugs present is considered the economic threshold.

MOLD DUST ALLERGY
Farmers and elevator operators should be cautious anytime they are working in or around moldy grain or other soiled agricultural products.

Inhalation of mold contaminated dust can result in extreme allergic reactions. Mold reactions frequently cause flu - like symptoms of fever, nausea, and headaches. Sensitive individuals may experience a massive fluid seeping from the lung surfaces, resulting in rapid and acute breathing problems.

Wear a simple dust filter mask when working around heavy mold contamination. The paper - type simple surgical masks are usually sufficient.

V - BELT CARE

With the approach of wheat harvest season, this is a good time to look at a few helpful points on V - belt drives. V - belts are the most common belt drive today. We see them on most types of agricultural machinery.

Many producers keep extra sets of belts in their shops in order to cut down the amount of time it takes to get a machine back in the field when a belt breaks. So let's take a look at a few tips for V - belt storage.

- 1) Store belts in a clean, cool, dry place. Shrinkage or deterioration may occur if belts are piled on damp floors or stored near radiators.
- 2) Keep belts away from heat and direct sunlight.
- 3) Do not place in bins for long periods which might distort the shape of the belt.
- 4) Do not hang belts on small pegs or nails. Heavy belts can be weakened due to distortion. To prevent this, hang belts across two pegs.

5) Do not break matched sets, keep them in tack.

Common V - belts range from 1/4 to 1 1/2 inch widths. But you will rarely find these fractions in a belt. Markings usually show the width, duty type and length in a simple code, but the code varies among manufacturers.

In a typical marking such as 3L405, for example, the 3 stands for 3/4 inch nominal width, the L for light duty, and the next three digits for belt length in inches, the last one in tenths of an inch. Thus the 3L405 belt is 40 and 1/2 inches long.

Each type of belt comes in a wide range of lengths. When replacing a belt try to use the figures on the old belt. If they are not legible, don't measure the belt, it will have stretched. Pull a steel tape around the outside of the two pulleys, first slackening off the tension adjustment to one - quarter of its take up distance. You'll need the

An air conditioner can improve the performance of your furnace.

An air conditioner?

A very special air conditioner called the add-on heat pump. It cools in summer and heats in winter. And it works with whatever kind of furnace you have. The add-on heat pump will improve the performance of your furnace by keeping it off completely during a good portion of the winter. The add-on heat pump can satisfy your home's heating requirements more economically when temperatures are above 30° or so. That's about 80% of our area's normal heating season. Then, when summer comes, the heat pump becomes a cool pump, efficiently air conditioning the home. So, when you're in the market for air conditioning, look into the add-on heat pump.

Challenger Gerry Cooney sags to the canvas for the last time in Friday night's title bout in Las Vegas, as referee Mills Lane keeps champion Larry Holmes at bay. Cooney's manager stopped the fight in the 13th for a Holmes TKO victory.

Efficient Holmes wins

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Neither fancy nor flamboyant, boisterous nor boastful, Larry Holmes is merely efficient and workmanlike. That's why, after 13 grueling rounds against a game Gerry Cooney on Friday night, he's still the World Boxing Council heavyweight champion. Maybe now, after four years battling the legend of Muhammad Ali, the 32-year-old Holmes will get some respect to go with his championship belt. "Once again, I've done it again," Holmes said. "It seems everytime I fight I've got to prove myself. I'm sorry, I can't be Muhammad Ali or Joe Louis or Leon Spinks. But I wasn't born to be them. I was born to be myself — Larry Holmes."

referee Mills Lane to stop the fight with eight seconds remaining in the 13th round. Holmes cut Cooney's left eyelid badly enough to send him to Valley Hospital for a post-fight examination, and did a workmanlike job in this $50 million extravaganza, the richest bout in boxing history. The champion was ahead on the scorecards of all three judges when the fight ended. But on two cards his lead was only two points, despite the fact that Cooney had lost three points because of low blows. Without the penalties, Cooney would have been ahead. The Associated Press had Holmes ahead 116-109. Cooney lost two points in the ninth round when Holmes doubled up in pain from a low punch and the fight was delayed about a minute to give the champ time to recover. "I never got hit with a low blow that hurt me like that one did," Holmes said. In the 11th, Lane took away another point from Cooney, who was warned throughout the fight to keep his punches up. "The blows were ricocheting off his arms and hitting him low," Cooney said. By the 13th, Holmes had taken charge of the fight and was battering Cooney. He had the challenger on the ropes and had landed about a half-dozen unanswered punches. Cooney sagged, half-standing, half-supported by the ropes. Lane moved in to start a count when Valle bolted up the steps of Cooney's corner, into the ring. "What can I do when I see my man and his guard is down?" said Valle. "I didn't want my boy to get hit anymore." There was irony in the ending because Holmes' trainer is Eddie Futch, the man who refused to let a battered Joe Frazier answer the bell for the 15th round against Muhammad Ali in Manila in 1975. Cooney was unhappy at the ending. "I was aware of what was happening all the time. I didn't want to stop," he said. "I wasn't getting hurt. But what's the sense talking about it. What happened, happened." For a brief moment, it seemed that this fight would end much sooner than it eventually did. In the second round, Holmes decked Cooney with a thundering right to the chin that put the challenger on the canvas for the first time in his career. But Cooney got up and fought back gamely, winning the next two rounds on the cards of all three officials. By then, Holmes knew he was in for a fight with the 25-year-old challenger who stood 4 inches taller and, at 225 1/2, outweighed the champ by 13 pounds. "I have to compliment Gerry Cooney," the champion said. "He's a great fighter. I think he has nothing to be ashamed of."

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Ray Floyd isn't quite ready to claim the winner's share of the $400,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Classic, but after leading for two rounds he admits he's comfortable out front. The 39-year-old North Carolina native fired a 4-under-par 68 Friday to put him 3 strokes ahead of young Mark Lye at 9-under 135. His finish would have been better but for a bogey on No. 17 and birdie putt that missed the 18th hole by inches. "I prefer being in the lead," Floyd said in the clubhouse. "I'm very comfortable up front. When I have my confidence, I'm very difficult to beat."

Floyd and Lye were followed by Jim Nelford, who shot a 63 Friday, and Mike Holland, Tom Purtzer and Hal Sutton, who were at 5-under 139. Four-time winner Dave Hill, who had rounds of 71-70, was within striking distance, 6 strokes back. Among those who failed to make the 36-hole cut of 147 were three-time winner Lee Trevino, with a 78 Friday for 150; defending champion Jerry Pate, whose disastrous 79 Thursday left him at 150; and British Open champion Bill Rogers, who had rounds of 75-73.

After his first round 67, Floyd was cautious. A first-round lead, he said, was like the first inning in a nine-inning baseball game. On Friday, having edged away from the hot-putting Lye, he admitted that he would be tough to beat. "I'm playing well...I don't have an aspect of my game that's weak. I have no strong points. I just have nothing that's weak," he said. Lye, who matched the seasoned veteran on the first round, played an admittedly shaky second round over the 7,249-yard Colonial Country Club course. "I had trouble getting the ball close to the hole...I wasn't swinging too well," Lye said of his 1-under-par round Friday.

Funeral rites set for Satchel Paige

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Funeral services were scheduled Saturday for Leroy "Satchel" Paige, a legendary pitcher in the old Negro leagues and the major leagues.

The service for Paige, who died following a heart attack at his Kansas City home Tuesday, was to be at the Watkins Brush Creek Chapel. Burial for Paige, one of the first blacks enshrined in the Baseball Hall of Fame, was planned in Forest Hill Cemetery. Paige never would give his age, but he was believed to be about 75 when he died.

Paige's family asked that no flowers be sent to the funeral and suggested contributions instead to the restoration fund of Satchel Paige Stadium, a youth baseball stadium in Kansas City dedicated to Paige just three days before his death.

Players oppose drug tests

By BOB SANSEVERE
Associated Press Writer
NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The National Football League Players' Association says testing football players for drugs may be a violation of its collective bargaining agreement with the league and the subject of a labor complaint.
The NFL said Friday it knew that nine top collegiate prospects had been found to have traces of cocaine or other illegal drugs in their bloodstreams, but took no action. All nine were later drafted by NFL teams, one on the first round.
Denver Coach Dan Reeves has said that all 146 players expected to report to Broncos' training camp this summer will have to submit to urinalysis.
Those revelations come on the heels of published claims by former NFL veteran Dan Reese that cocaine use is widespread in professional football. The Orlando (Fla.) Sentinel reported Friday that urinalysis tests were administered to 150 college prospects at a tryout camp in January.

League officials and other players have denied Reese's accusation that the NFL turns its back on drug problems and say his claims are exaggerated.
NFL Director of Public Relations Jim Heffernan said Friday that the league had received a report with the players' names and test results after the January training camp conducted under the auspices of the 16-team United Football Scouting combine.
"We kept abreast of it," Heffernan said from NFL headquarters in New York. "Physicals have been going on for years. I don't know if they were looking for drugs. Maybe they were. Obviously, they look for a lot of things."
Dick Berthelsen, an attorney for the NFLPA, said the urine tests may have violated the collective bargaining agreement. He said the NFLPA is considering filing unfair labor practice complaints against the teams involved.
Complaints to the National Labor Relations Board also could be expanded to include the NFL and its bargaining unit, the NFL Management Council, he said.

NFLPA Executive Director Ed Garvey said he will explore a similar complaint against the Broncos.
"We had an understanding with management not to do that and if the Broncos are doing it...we would file charges immediately against them," Garvey said.
Reeves said his team initiated the testing last year and that all his players were "100 percent clean."
Berthelsen said the collective bargaining agreement allows teams to administer urine tests if they are checking for health problems — such as diabetes — but not for drugs.
"Unless there is a prior agreement with the clubs, spot urine tests are not to be done," Berthelsen said, adding that the union has steadfastly opposed such testing. "It could be the drugs were properly administered and the clubs may even be giving drugs to players."

Cooper tallest at Wimbledon

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer

LONDON (AP) — Chip Cooper, preparing for his first Wimbledon, refused to predict how he would do, but two things were certain — he will be one of the tallest players ever at the All-England Club and his service will be one of the fastest.

The fans were following the lanky American around at London's Queen's Club, eager to see what has lifted him from 235th place to 25th in the world computer rankings in six months.

Hooper gave them some idea of his talents Thursday when he hammered Paul McNamee of Australia 6-4, 6-2 to reach the quarterfinals of the $172,000 Stella Artois Championships.

Friday he was tilting at John McEnroe, who is tuning up for the defense of his Wimbledon title in two weeks.

"I'm described as anything between 6 feet, 8 inches and 6 feet, 5 inches," Hooper said. "In fact it's somewhere in between. I'm slightly shorter than Vic Amaya, and he's supposed to be 6-7."

"As for my service, it's been estimated at 135 miles per hour, but I don't think the speed matters. I would say it's as fast as any around at the moment."

McEnroe, favorite for the Queen's Club title, defeated John Sadri 6-3, 6-2 to reach the quarterfinals.

Jimmy Connors, the No. 2 seed, beat Hank Pfister 7-6, 6-4. Neither McEnroe nor Connors has dropped a set in the tournament.

Cotton Bowl group names new president

DALLAS (AP) — Banker J.L. Huffines Jr. is the new president of the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association, succeeding John Scovell who steps up to board chairman.

Jim Ray Smith, former Baylor football player and all-Pro lineman for the Cleveland Browns, has been named first vice-president.

Dan Petty, a former guard and kicking specialist for the University of Texas, is second vice-president. John Thompson, retiring board chairman, becomes and executive director of the association.

Huffines is a Texas A&M graduate, a former president of the Aggie Club and currently on the club's board of directors. He serves as board chairman of the Bank of Dallas, Citizens National Bank in Greenville and the North Texas Bank in Lewisville.

Football always in Breunig's life

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Bob Breunig's autumns have been filled with football every since he can remember.

In grade school...in high school...in Arizona State. Breunig played because he (A), loved the game. There was no (B).

When he joined the Dallas Cowboys in 1975, he found reason B — football was also an excellent living.

With the retirement of D.D. Lewis, Breunig at 29, is suddenly the old man of the Cowboys' linebacking corps with eight years experience in the middle of Coach Tom Landry's complicated flex defense.

Now, he is worried that he will miss a National Football League season in the prime of his career. He's not certain he could walk away from his team if the National Football League Player's Association calls a strike this summer.

"I'm not sure I could strike...I'd have to see what the issues have come down to," said Breunig. "Both sides have a lot of points — right and wrong. The players need to be protected and the owners have their system within the NFL industry."

Breunig, who works in the off-season for a group of real estate developers which includes Roger Staubach, said he feels there is the strong possibility of a strike.

"It wouldn't surprise me," he said. "It's too bad that somebody doesn't do an expose on the issues on both sides."

Breunig is already at odds with the NFLPA over what he calls its "name calling."

"I'm not in total agreement with the leadership and some of the tactics," he said.

Recently, Breunig's good friend, Staubach, said "the players don't seem to be solidly behind (NFLPA Executive Director) Ed Garvey 100 per cent and that makes it difficult for Garvey. I feel the NFLPA made a mistake in going after a percentage of the (NFL's) gross profits."

The NFLPA is asking 55 per cent of the gross profits.

Recently wide receiver Butch Johnson of the Cowboys said his teammates were too divided to strike.

"The only time the Dallas Cowboys are ever unified is on the football field," said Johnson.

At a team meeting some 35 per cent of the 23 players present voted to honor a strike.

Missing from the meeting were such players as quarterback Danny White, and wide receiver Drew Pearson, who was the Cowboys' union representative until he became disgruntled.

Breunig is not saying he won't strike. What he is saying is that the cause must be just before he misses his first football season since he was a teenager.

"There's a lot brewing," said Breunig. "And a lot at stake. There is a lot of room for collective bargaining."

SUMMERTIME

Summer movies a must

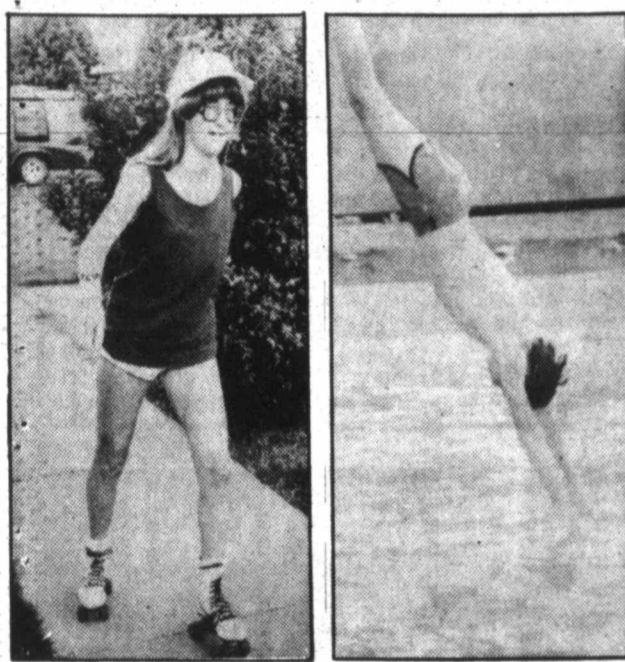

Twentieth Century Forum Study Club's second annual "Summer Movie Spectacular" season begins July 12 at 7:00 p.m. in M. K. Brown's Heritage Room. Four family-oriented movies will be offered this summer on the second and fourth Tuesdays of July and August.

Discount ticket booklets for all four films are being sold by members of the Study Club and will be sold at the Coronado Inn July 8, 9, and 10th from 10:00 a.m. until 1:00 p.m. discount booklets cost $8.50 for adult admission and 4.50 for children 12 and under. Free children's discount booklets of tickets will be given away by local radio stations. Listen to KGRO beginning June 14th and to KPND beginning June 21 for a chance to win admission for your child.

Proceeds from the ticket sales will be applied to a college scholarship awarded each spring to a graduating senior. The current recipient of Forum's scholarship is Miss Treicia Kennedy.

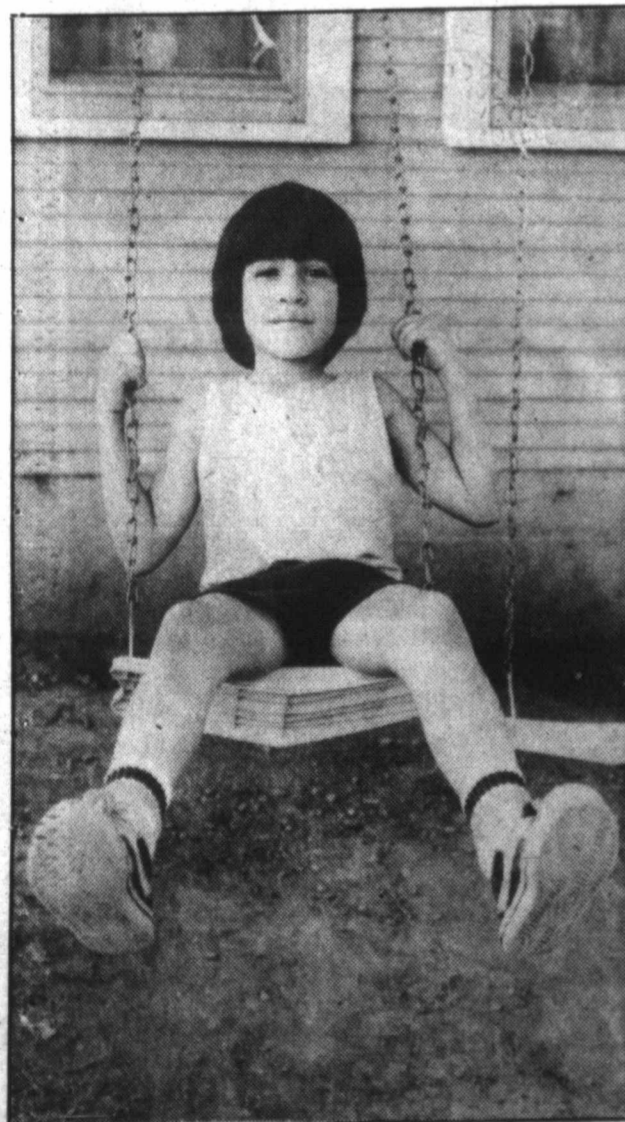

The "Summer Movie Spectacular" promises to be four excellent evenings of entertainment to share with your family. Tickets may be purchased at the door at a cost of $3.00 per adult and 1.50 per child. For additional information, tickets, and a schedule of movies, please, call 669-6026.

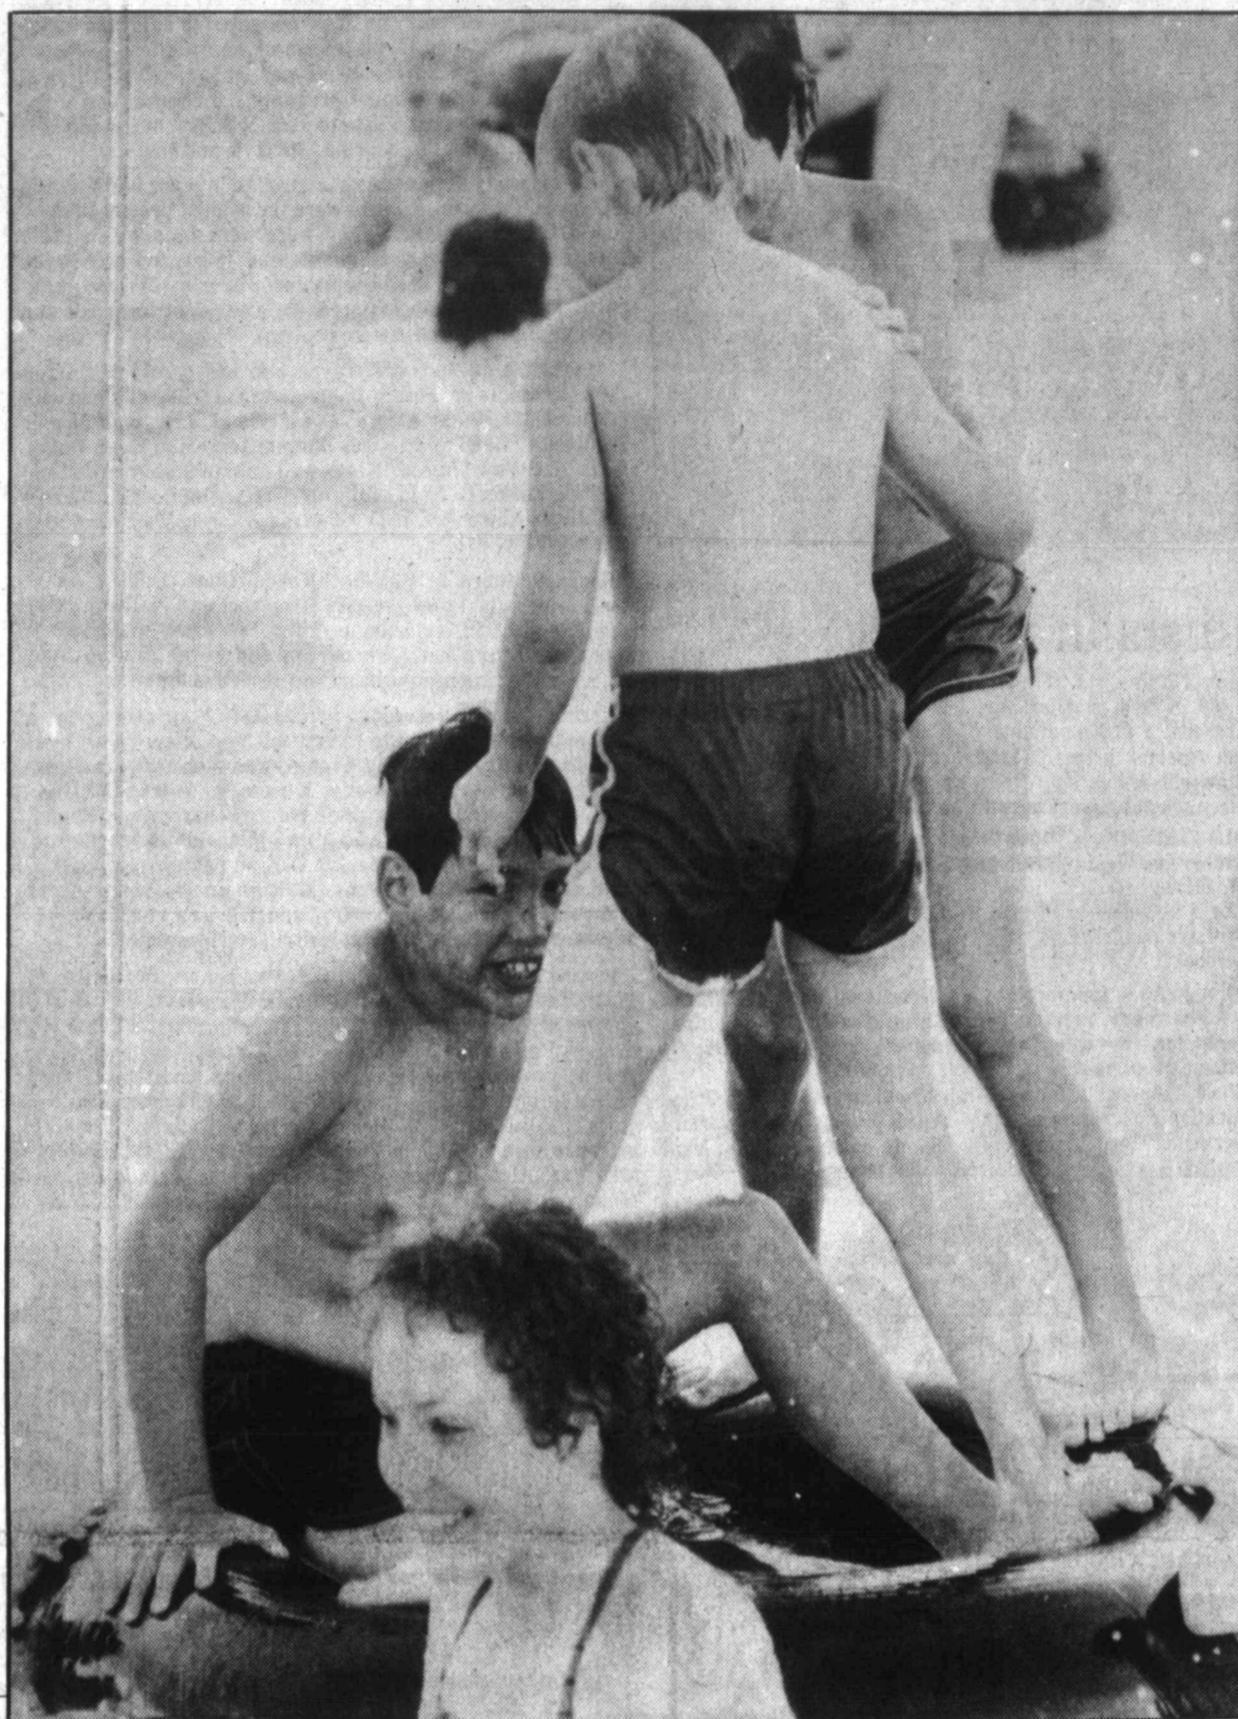

LISH RADCLIFF, 13, rolls through the summer on a pair of skates. The unidentified swimmer, right, isn't afraid to dive right in to summer activities.

IF YOU'RE NOT CUTTING IT, you're watering it. Jon Clark, 8, doesn't seem to mind getting his tennis shoes wet to keep the grass green.

JUST HANGING AROUND. Ivan Gutierrez, 6, takes life easy in the back yard swing.

MAKE A BIG SPLASH. Jeremy Teakell, 9, Duane Darnell, 9, standing. Shawn Blackman, 9, sitting, and Amy Bichsel, 12, front and center, know how to take the summer heat. Just play it cool in a pool.

Cure the "Summertime Blues"

If you are from 12 to 18 years of age, the SOS Employment Agency can offer you a cure for the "Summertime Blues". Judi Sims and Terri Vinson have found a new definition for SUMMERTIME. Students Using Minds Muscles Energy Rather Than Idling Means Earnings.

As mothers, both Judi and Terri are familiar with the age-old saying, "I don't have anything to do." Knowing how slim the job market is for teenagers during the summer months, they have combined efforts to develop a summertime program for kids from the 7th grade through the 12th grade.

The program consists of five Saturday money making projects for the teens to work on while they develop a summer stock theater to be presented the last Saturday of the program. The projects are set up on an every-other-Saturday basis. The $10 registration fee will cover the cost of advertising and having tickets printed for the theater.

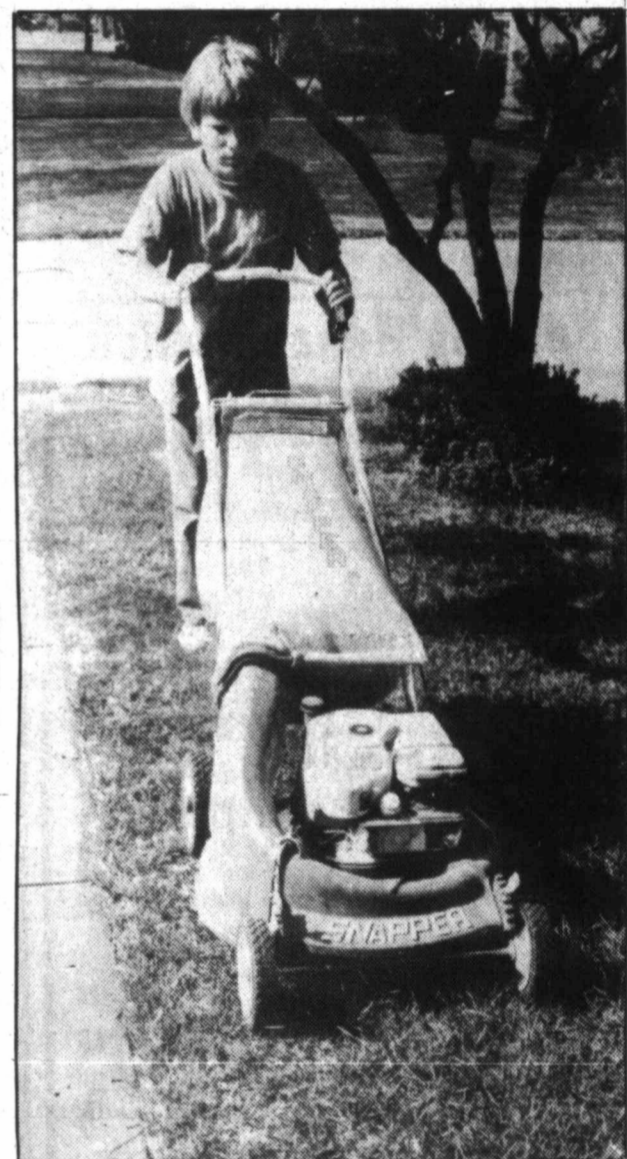

The first Saturday project will be a Dog Wash (including a flea bath) to be held June 19. On July 3rd there will be a Child Care project for shoppers at the Pampa Mall. A Car Wash will be held July 17 at the Coronado Center. On July 31 the kids will be on the move mowing Pampa lawns. A window wash will be held on August 7.

The last Saturday project will be the Summer Stock Theater cast and produced by the participating teenagers.

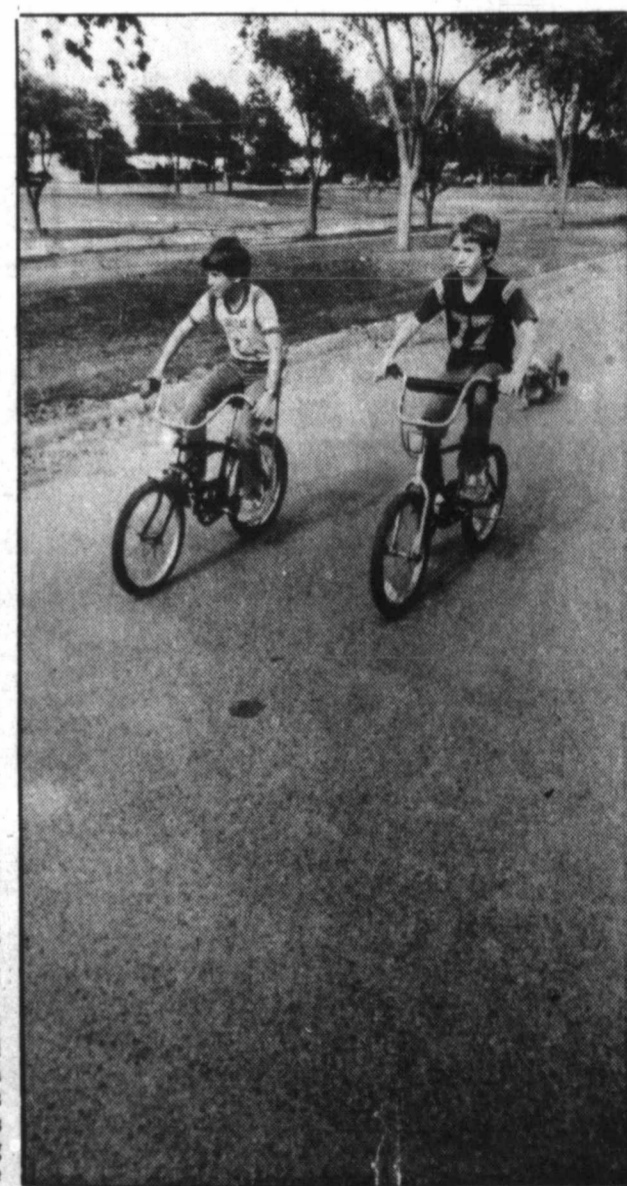

Rehearsals for the theater performance will be scheduled during the week.

"This program is set up to let the kids do all the work and decision making with adult supervision on hand at all times," Terri Vinson said. "And they will make all the money."

Interested teens and their parents are invited to come to Room 100 of the Pampa High School Monday, June 14 at 10 a.m. At that time they may sign up for the program or obtain further information.

SUMMER SUN IS FUN but it also makes the grass grow. Barry Osborne, 11, manages to cut right through summer chores.

ON THE MOVE. Bobby Thompson, 13 and Jeff Carruth, 11, don't have any trouble getting around when the weather is nice.

CARLEEN MOYER

SANDY JONES

Pampa teens selected as finalists in pageant

Carleen Moyer, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Moyer of 1518 N. Nelson, and Sandy Jones, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Jones Jr. have been selected for competition in the 1982 Teenworld State Finals to be held at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Fort Worth at 7:30 p. m. on July 3.

Teenworld has selected outstanding young women from all over the state to participate in the three days of activities. The program is designed to recognize young women, 14 to 18, who excel in scholastic achievement and community involvement. Contestants are judged on poise, personality, grooming, and a speech or talent presentation, as well as scholastic and civic achievements. Entrants must have a "B" or better cumulative grade average and document at least ten hours of volunteer service to a community or charitable organization.

Carleen Moyer's and Sandy Jones' acceptance was announced by Executive Director Carol Conery from the Teenworld National Office, 4550 W. 109 St., no. 300, Overland Park, Kansas, 66211, phone 913-341-5588.

The competition is the official state preliminary for the Teenworld National Finals to be held in December of 1982.

Teenworld finalists from all fifty states will compete for over $56,000 in cash scholarships and tuition grants; a queen's wardrobe; a $2,000 personal appearance contract; and many other special prizes. Throughout the year, the National Teenworld Scholarship Program will award over $500,000 in college scholarships across the nation.

Miss Moyer is sponsored by First National Bank, Tumbleweed Welding, Heritage Ford, B & L Tank Trucks, and I. W. Tinney.

She is a student at Pampa High School and is active in The Harvester publications. She was editor of the 1982 Harvester Yearbook.

Miss Jones is sponsored by First National Bank of Pampa; Hood Pharmacy, Pampa; Texas Furniture Company, Pampa; Dyer's Bar - B - Que, Pampa; and W - B Pump and Supply Company, Pampa.

She is a student at Pampa High School and is active in Office Education Association (OEA), Track, and is also a varsity cheerleader for Pampa High. Sandy takes dancing from Madeline Graves, and is presently Miss Dance 1982.

Peeking at Pampa

One of the cleverest party invitations I've heard of lately was the one sent out by W. D. and Mary Mitchell. It was a brown paper boot, decorated with laces and fancy patterns and high heels, that said "Howdy!" on the outside and opened to say to guests, "Come kick up your heels at our barn dance!"

Understand that's exactly what the overflow crowd did. They came in all sizes and ages, delighted to enjoy the lavish buffet and to dance to the music of an excellent country-western band. With the band was an adorable little girl (maybe three, maybe four) probably the child of one of the entertainers, dressed up in blue jeans with bright top and hair ribbon, beating her tambourine with style and gusto.

Lots of guests were appropriately clad in jeans and overalls and boots. Especially flashy were the many "prairie skirts". New this year, I think. They were dark blue with ruffled hemlines and worn with bright blouses, lovely to watch in the dancing. Must have been couple dozen or more of them at the party. Must be growing summer style. Belts or turquoise and silver or white leather were popular.

Among the guests were Wayne and Loretta Robinson and their handsome grandson; Bodie and Eunice Bohot along with her daughter, Patsy Moore, and husband, Lee (both former Pampans); Dean and Donna Burger, Jolyn and Keith Davis, C. B. and Faye Reece, Ralph and Lillian Esson, Ellis and Georgia Locke, Del and Lilly and Yvonne Del Bosque, George and Jessie Newberry, and ever so many more. Must have been a great event.

Congratulations to Bill McGill's daughter, Delissa Anne. She's to be a finalist in the 1982 Miss Northern National Pre-Teen Pageant in Amarillo in July. She likes motor cycle riding, collecting dolls, swimming and roller skating. And she's so sweet and pretty she should do well in the show.

Aren't family reunions wonderful? You renew your acquaintance with family members and meet your new arrivals. Hear that the Denson family had such a get-together not long ago, down at Possum Kingdom. Wayne and Gale Denson and their two sons came from Richardson, J. B. and Gloria and her mother arrived from Abilene. Both Wayne and J. B. grew up in Pampa. Beulah Denson came from Wichita Falls and the Pampa Densons (Malcom an Ivo) were there. The event honored Mother's Day and Wayne's birthday. The day was spent boating, fishing, visiting and feasting.

Ivo and Malcom are justly proud of the honors awarded to J. B. by the Abilene Chamber of Commerce. He's with Radio Station KEAN there. He was top salesman for the Chamber this year, as he has been for four of the last five years. This year he was also one of 20 salesmen in the nation to win awards for the largest volume of sales of Chamber memberships for cities of 100,000 to 200,000. Because of his selling ability, he was picked to head the Abilene Chamber's marketing committee for 1982 - 83. Also he presented a seminar on selling for the Chamber.

Both Jeanne Willingham and Madeline Graves presented their dance students in recitals the first week in June. Jeanne on the 1st and Madeline on the 5th. From tots to teens, they all performed admirably. Such beautiful, sparkling costumes, so many proud parents. You could look at the faces in the audience and tell whose child was on the stage.

The young singing group called Genesis are on their summer trip to the World's Fair in Knoxville, Tenn. and other points of interest. Chuck Weatherford is their director. While on their trip the youthful choir will make a record album for which Lloyd Harvey designed the jacket, proclaiming, "Genesis - New Beginnings".

Lloyd and his wife, Kay, are active in many local projects. They're multi-talented, always efficient and pleasant. Kay has such a warm smile that lights up her face as she talks to you.

Been hearing a lot about Clint Deeds, greenskeeper at the only golf course in Pampa, the one at the Country Club. Seems he's been involved in golf, one way or another, all his life. He was one of three sons of golf pro Gene Deed of Canyon.

While still in his 20's, Clint designed and built the golf course for Western College in Snyder, Texas.

Newsmakers caught our eye recently when it was announced that Jess Hagemann had graduated from Clarendon College in Pampa. Jess is not just an every day graduate. A 1951 graduate of Pampa High School, he started his college work in 1956. He is a disabled veteran having contracted MS while in Korea. His education has been a struggle for him, perhaps that is why his 3 children are all Clarendon College students. A special accolade should go to his wife, the former Lovita Day, for keeping the home going and giving the encouragement.

Always nice to visit with Buster Ivory when he has a spare moment. He has been in Colorado Springs helping to finalize plans with the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association Rodeo held in Oklahoma City each December. Interesting to note that this organization was chartered in Boston, Mass. in 1936.

If you missed the "Goodbye Party" for Father Hynes last Sunday you missed a good time. Father Hynes was his typical jovial smiling self. The ladies from the church had done an outstanding job on this reception.

Pot Pourri...Debbie Stokes back to work after the birth of a new son "Casey". Casey joins a sister Kelli...Pat Youngs, beautiful smile when you enter Citizens Bank...Cleo Worley busy with Altrusa work...Ken Neal, Pampa Police detective, excitedly telling about his new son...Lucille Earhart, always perfectly groomed and such beautiful white hair...Joe Gordon, the proud grandfather of Janet Tepera. Joe recently attended Janet's graduation from Allen High School, north of Dallas where she graduated as salutatorian. Another granddaughter, Nancy Tepera, is doing receptionist work for grandfather this summer.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

While standing in the checkout line last week, I noted that everything in my basket had a Stalk of wheat on the package and was stamped "100 percent natural."

Every box, every can, every package contained a disclaimer: NO SALT! SUGAR - FREE! LOW FAT! NO ADDITIVES! LITE! POSITIVELY NO PRESERVATIVES! NO SUBSTITUTES!

Never have I been so paranoid about what goes into my body. Was it only eight or ten years ago when we used to kid around about the late Euell Gibbons coming for lunch and grazing on the front lawn? Now I don't care what cereal tastes like just as long as it has a log cabin with smoke coming out of the chimney on the package and the words, "CONTAINS NATURAL FIBER." It makes me feel virtuous even though I haven't the slightest idea what natural fiber is.

Something very weird has happened to my buying habits. When the kids were growing up I threatened to buy a trough with an entry starting at the stove. It would snake around the kitchen table and return at the kitchen sink. It was my plan to pour the spaghetti, baked beans and chili from the stove to the table and what they didn't eat, hose into the sink. They were meals of convenience. I never squeezed a tomato, looked for brown spots on bananas or put a cantaloupe to my ear to see what month of development it was in.

I bought anything that was stamped 100 percent sugar, vitamin enriched, made with pure cream, real butter, no skimping, artificial coloring added. It was the American dream to eat natural foods that had been improved upon.

Then everyone got on a health kick and word began to trickle down that all the research rats were living longer eating natural. (Or it seemed longer.) The first time I discovered apples didn't grow in cans swimming in heavy syrup was a big day in my life.

The kids don't want to come home anymore. They complain there's nothing to eat.

I told them, "Of course there are things to eat, it's all just natural."

They said, "You call blue milk, ice cream without sugar, peanuts without salt and bread so thin you can read a newspaper through it natural?"

Maybe it's just the shock of seeing all of them in that trough side by side.

Dear Abby Whooping Cough vaccine saves thousands of lives

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Thousands of parents are frightened and confused because of recent TV publicity emphasizing some extreme side effects of pertussis (whooping cough) vaccine. Many are asking if they should avoid having their children immunized. "That would be unwise," says the American Public Health Association.

Whooping cough can cause brain damage or permanent disabilities, and death! Forty years ago the U.S. averaged 265,000 whooping cough cases with about 7,000 deaths per year. Thanks to routine immunizations, we now average only 3,000 cases annually with five to 20 deaths.

True, in rare cases vaccines can cause some of the same damage as the diseases they seek to prevent. Pertussis vaccine commonly produces irritability, drowsiness or fever in about four out of 10 children. One in 300 might develop high fever. One in 7,000 might have a seizure. One in about 100,000 might suffer permanent nerve or brain damage.

But the benefits still vastly outweigh the risks. In Great Britain, sensational publicity about vaccine side effects has caused the immunization rate to drop from 80 percent to about 40 percent. Now the British are again suffering whooping cough epidemics — 100,000 cases in the last three years, with 6,000 hospitalizations and 60 deaths. Equivalent contagion rates in the U.S. would produce 500,000 cases instead of the 3,000 we now have!

The American Public Health Association strongly urges all parents to continue whooping cough immunization for their children. After each shot the child should be carefully watched. If side effects appear, the family physician or clinic should be consulted so consideration can be given to discontinuing the vaccine series, and to not vaccinating younger children in the same family. But to avoid immunization is to ask for trouble rather than avoid it.

STANLEY J. MATEK,
AMERICAN PUBLIC HEALTH ASSOCIATION

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine told me that in Denmark, the girls don't have to worry if they've lost their virginity because they do an operation over there that makes virgins out of non-virgins. This friend told me that there is no way for a man to know for sure if the girl is a true virgin or not because this operation is so perfect.

Is this true?

JUST CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: It is possible to restore a woman to her virginal state surgically, and it can be done in any country where sophisticated plastic (and gynecological) surgery is performed.

However, my experts tell me that in some cases this could be a very complicated and costly procedure, and is sure to hurt more than the truth.

DEAR ABBY: Something has been bothering me for a long time, and I want to get it off my chest. We recently saw the movie "On Golden Pond." The acting was superb, the scenery was beautiful, the story was touching and very entertaining, but the language was foul!

Some of us in the audience missed so much because of the time lost recovering from the vulgar language.

This movie was rated "P.G." and there were people of all ages in the audience. How do parents stand a chance of convincing their children that profanity and filthy language are not OK?

"On Golden Pond" was such a lovely story; it would easily have been a hit without all that objectionable language. How do you feel about it?

PAT IN PUEBLO

CowBelles say "Beef for Father's Day"

Beef for Father's Day is more than just a tradition — it's an institution.

Over 70 years ago, Mrs. John Dodd of Spokane, Wash. expressed a desire to set aside a day for honoring fathers. And in 1953, Mrs. Thomas C. Currier of Grand Junction, Colo. urged her local CowBelle chapter (the women's auxiliary of the National Cattlemen's Assn.) to begin promoting beef as an ideal Father's Day dish.

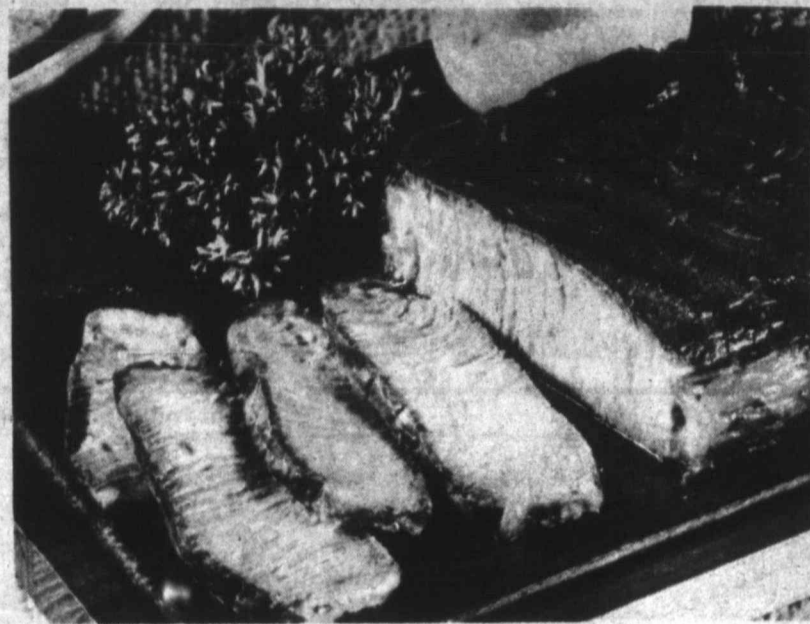

Together, these women have created an institution — Beef for Father's Day.

While attempts had often been made to secure recognition for fathers, it wasn't until 1924 that Father's Day emerged as a national holiday as the result of a recommendation presented by Calvin Coolidge. Its position among national holidays was confirmed by the signing of a Father's Day bill by Richard M. Nixon in 1972.

In 1955, the CowBelles extended their Beef for Father's Day program nationally and in 1962 joined efforts with the National Live Stock and Meat Board's Beef Industry Council.

The two groups work with retailers and various national and local cattlemen's organizations to establish good-tasting, nutritious beef as the food to serve dad on his special day. In fact, beef has been endorsed as the official Father's Day entree by the Father's Day Council.

According to Mrs. Sarah Childs of Lake Placid, Fla., this year's chairman of the CowBelles' Beef for Father's Day campaign, serving beef on special occasions is a natural. "Fathers and families want something special to celebrate this special day," says Childs. "We've found that nothing satisfies like beef — especially on Father's Day. When it comes to serving something special for Father's Day, beef more than fills the bill."

The Top O' Texas CowBelles offer this beef suggestion for Father's Day:

BEEF BRISKET
8-12 lb. brisket
1 bottle liquid smoke
1 tsp. celery salt
1 tsp. onion salt
1 tsp. garlic salt

Mix salts together and rub both sides of meat. Cover meat with liquid smoke and marinate overnight in the refrigerator.

Cook in 300 degree oven for 5 hours in a covered pan.

Watch for the Top O' Texas CowBelles Wednesday and Thursday in local grocery stores offering samples of their Father's Day Beef Brisket.

New view of Meat Loaf

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Recently I looked over the dozens of recipes for that good old basic, meat loaf, I had tried over the years. I was struck by a fact I had never before noticed: every one of the recipes called for milk or a tomato product as the liquid.

When I told a friend about this, she was astonished because she had always used water as the liquid in the many meat loaves she had baked. And she had stayed with a basic formula, one that satisfied her husband and her two children — now of college age. Cooks who want to cut out a few calories or need to make a meat loaf for a youngster who is allergic to milk, may be interested in my friend's recipe.

Another point: during our discussion, I said I usually packed the meat mixture into a loaf pan and then turned it out into a shallow baking pan because this way the loaf was uniformly thick. My friend had never heard of this procedure and said she would try it. Indeed she did: she sent me part of two meat loaves. One had been shaped as I suggested. The other had been shaped by hand into a similar-size loaf. The first had a firmer, closer texture than the latter. Although I liked both loaves, my friend opted for the hand-shaped one. Take your choice.

BASIC MEAT LOAF
2 large eggs
½ cup water
4 slices firm-textured white bread, finely crumbed (2 cups)

1 large onion, finely chopped (about 1 cup)
1 garlic clove, crushed

BASIC MEAT LOAF — liquid.

1½ teaspoons salt
¾ teaspoons dried thyme, crushed
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
2 pounds ground chuck

In a bowl beat the eggs with the water until blended. Stir in the bread crumbs, onion, garlic, salt, thyme and Worcestershire sauce. Add the meat and work in with a fork or your hands. In a shallow baking pan shape into a loaf (about 9 by 5 inches).

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until browned — about 1 hour. Let stand 10 minutes before slicing.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Dr. Lamb Doctor says healthy woman needs gallbladder removed

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like some information about gallbladder disorders. I'm female, age 64, and in good health as far as aches and pains are concerned. I stay busy and am on the go quite a bit, so I feel kind of draggy sometimes.

Nearly four years ago I had what my doctor diagnosed as a gallbladder attack. He said a stone had lodged in the common bile duct. The night before I had eaten quite a bit of fried shrimp and was quite sick the next day. I stayed in the hospital eight days and haven't had any problem since. I can eat anything and never have any discomfort.

Each time I go for a checkup my doctor says I'm doing fine but "You need your gallbladder out."

I would like to know what happened to the stone. I have had three operations and am not anxious to have another.

DEAR READER — If you had a stone in your common duct it passed through the duct into your intestine and out. You might also have had a spasm of the bile duct which can occur during a gallbladder attack. That can cause symptoms and be painful.

Since you have gone so long without symptoms you would be regarded as an individual with asymptomatic gallbladder disease — provided you really do have stones in your gallbladder. I would certainly want to know whether or not there are now any stones in your gallbladder before having surgery. This can be determined by X-ray studies. Such studies will also tell if your bladder is functioning or not. If it is functioning and you have no stones you certainly do not need an operation.

Opinions vary on the advisability of removing a gallbladder full of stones if there are no symptoms. It depends somewhat on what kind of stone you have. Because new medicines that dissolve stones are under intensive study, some stones may be treated with medicines. Many patients, however, may not be a candidate for such medicines for a variety of reasons.

If you have to have surgery the ability and experience of your surgeon is important, as is your general health. To give you more information I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-9, Gall Stones and Gall Bladder Disease. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I believe a person's heart is the main part of his body and that this has been proved. I've been told this isn't so. If a person had high blood pressure, a dead gallbladder, a bad spleen plus cirrhosis of the liver — and a very bad case I must add — would not this cause a person's death due to weakening of his heart? The person is in his 40s.

DEAR READER — The beating of the heart is one of the vital signs. The most common method of determining death is by noting when the heart stops beating. That means that the last event in any number of fatal illnesses or accidents is the stopping of the heart. If a person has pneumonia and death occurs, the death occurs when the heart stops.

So any combination of serious illnesses that cause death will eventually stop the heart. More recently, because of available life-support techniques and the transplant age, brain death is being used as the point of death. The brain may be dead and the heart and lungs continue to function, particularly with a life-support program.

by bernice bede osol

You're a kind person and this year those nice things you do for others will be so appreciated that they'll take it upon themselves to work in your behalf and could be instrumental in helping you achieve your goals.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Dan Cupid tends to favor you today in romantic situations which have elements of competition. Expect to come out best and you will. Predictions of what's in store for you for each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Look for opportunities today to bolster a friend's ego which might be slightly sagging. Praise from you will really count for something.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There could be some rather surprising developments today when you discover someone to whom you are attracted is equally as interested in you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you haven't been as affectionate and attentive to your mate lately as you feel you should have been, today is the time to make amends. Do something nice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't idle away your hours today. Do enjoyable things which are also productive and creative. You could produce something worthwhile.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Should you attend a social gathering today, circulate and enjoy yourself, but also make it a point to be particularly attentive to the person with whom you came.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is a good day to instigate something impromptu to bring a small circle of your friends over to your place. Schedule it for early afternoon.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Pry yourself out of the easy chair today. Don't be a stay-at-home. Get out and move around, even if it's only to take a drive to the country.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your material and financial aspects continue to look favorable today. You could receive something of value through a loved one.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your wit and charm are your two greatest assets today. Your winning ways will favorably impress all you encounter. Smile and be yourself!

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Good deeds you do today will make a lasting impression and not be readily forgotten, especially charitable acts where you're helpful materially.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you are going to attend a social function today, take a little extra time primping. There's a strong possibility you'll meet someone you'll wish to impress.

Part tailored for Michael Conrad

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In late 1979 Michael Conrad got a call from a producer friend who asked him to keep the following March clear for a show called "Hill Street Station."
The call came from Steven Bochco, who had created and produced another police series, "Deltacchio," in which Conrad had a starring role.
"We had good chemistry and we laughed a lot," says Conrad. "So I asked him what kind of a part it was. He just said to the effect he was a police sergeant who'd been out on the street too many years and was burned out. Everybody knows he's burned out, but they value his expertise. But he never goes out on the street. He gets edgy if he even thinks about it."

When March rolled around, he took the role of Sgt. Phil Esterhaus in what was now called "Hill Street Blues," co-created by Bochco and Michael Kozoll. The character was tailored for Conrad. Last September when the NBC series won an unprecedented eight Emmys, one of them went to Conrad as best supporting actor in a drama series.
Esterhaus is usually an island of serenity amidst the chaos that grips the Hill Street station. The policemen are trying to cope with the crime in the blighted ghetto area surrounding the station — and going just a little bit crazy because it's an impossible job. Esterhaus has not been totally out of action, however, and has been carrying on a sizzling affair with Grace Gardner (Barbara Babcock).
"His private life is strictly from the fantasies of the writers," says Conrad, a 6-foot-4 actor who spent most of his career playing what he calls "physical roles."

"Of course, I have a wife 25 years younger and they know I've done all right with the ladies. But I'd never played a ladies man before so they kind of played around with that. It can be a bit much. The pilot said Phil Esterhaus was a man 48 years old with a 17-year-old girlfriend named Cindy. It's highly improbable, but possible."

The episode that won him the Emmy was the one that nearly took him to the altar with Cindy. Grace broke up the wedding-to-be right in the church, and since then it's been nude horseback riding, leather sheets and hot oil rubs.

Lucy Simon hatching a Broadway musical

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Lucy Simon, sister of Carly, daughter of a publisher, niece of a veteran jazz critic, sits at the piano in her sunny high-above Central Park apartment, noodling with some chords.
"This is like my first child, like having a baby," she says, smiling. "And I'm still very pregnant. When I give birth to it, it'll be 'Wow!'"
Translation: She's hatching a Broadway musical, her first both as a composer and a co-producer. She's written 20 songs for it so far, and it all goes well the show will open here in March 1983.
The show is "Prairie," a family musical set in the 1880s. It's based on the Laura Ingalls Wilder pioneer-life novels that gave NBC and America the long-running "Little House on the Prairie" series.

"I've always been attracted to family things," says Miss Simon, raised in a family of books and music, with her older sister, Joanna, going into opera, and the youngest, Carly, the family superstar in pop music.

"When we were kids," Lucy says, "we all went to Broadway musicals, grew up listening to the great show tunes, listening to Rodgers and Hammerstein, seeing 'South Pacific' and 'Carousel.'"

"A great way to grow up. And I think it's very important that there be things both children and their parents can be attracted to at the same time. Things that combine an experience for them."

"Well, that's what I'm hoping will happen with 'Prairie.' That it becomes that kind of family experience in the theater."

Miss Simon, an attractive, sandy-haired woman with a direct, pleasant manner, has her own family, a son, a daughter and a husband, David Levine, a psychiatrist and a "Prairie" producer.

Before her marriage, she first tried show business in the 60s, when she and Carly played Greenwich Village clubs as the folk-singing Simon Sisters.

Carly, going solo, hit gold and stardom in 1971 with "That's the Way I've Always Heard It Should Be." Lucy's success was more modest with a couple of soft-rock albums.

Drug scam yields film for two former users

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)

Movies come from many different sources. Books, plays, the original concepts of writers. But this may be the first one to come out of a con game.

Well, not a true con game, but pretty close. To understand the origin of an upcoming movie called "Outlaws: The Last Legend," you have to first meet and understand two men named Craig Glazer and Don Woodbeck.

Woodbeck first. He is from Phoenix, Ariz. originally. He was a Vietnam vet who came back to Phoenix after the war and didn't have much of anything to do. He says he got involved with a bunch of guys who did have something to do: they were smuggling drugs up from Mexico.

Woodbeck says it was fun for a while because he thought it was just penny ante stuff. But then he came to understand that it was a big and nasty business, so he asked out.

They said sure, just one more job. During the course of that last job, they jumped him and a couple of his friends, and there were guns to their heads. Three men were killed that night. Somehow, in the confusion, Woodbeck and one of his pals escaped.

We come now to Craig Glazer, a different sort. He's a Jewish kid from a middle-class Kansas City family, who went to Arizona State. He had a football scholarship for a while, but when Arizona State went big time, they decided they had no budget for a 145-pound running back.

So, to earn the money he lost when the scholarship was taken away, he got involved in selling drugs on campus.
