FBI begins probe into sex-for-jobs charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charges of illicit sex between members of Congress and their teen-age pages are being investigated by federal authorities, according to the FBI and Justice Department.

CBS News on Wednesday reported that "several" congressmen were subjects of the investigation.

"I can confirm that there is an investigation, as reported by Larry Knisely, night supervisor of the FBI's District of Columbia office, said.

"It's at a very preliminary stage," said Justice Department spokesman John Russell. "A page came forward and had some allegations. I can't discuss them right now."

The Arkansas Gazette, in a copyright article in today's editions, quoted an unidentified Justice Department source as saying the department was looking into complaints that members coerced or bribed pages of both sexes to engage in homosexual or heterosexual activities with them.

The Little Rock newspaper said nine or 10 members of the House and one senator were under investigation. Homosexuality reportedly was not the issue in the investigation, but rather the promising of favors by members of Congress and sex with minors.

The network broadcast an interview with a former page supervisor who said he engaged in sex with a member of the House on three occasions, including once in the representative's office and once at an apartment in the Watergate complex.

Asked what compensation he received, the former page said he never saw money, but realized that on Capitol Hill, "one favor deserves another."

The former page was not identified and his face was kept in darkness during the interview.

There are about 70 House pages, ranging in age from 16 to 18, according to John T. Molloy, the House doorkeeper who has direct responsibility for them. He said their average stay on Capitol Hill is about a semester — some stay as briefly as two months and others as long as two years — during which they live in supervised housing near the Capitol, attend the Capitol Page School and must pay for their own uniforms, lodging and meals from paychecks somewhat above $600 a month.

Pre-form concrete plant opens its doors

By JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

A major manufacturer of pre-cast concrete panels and buildings has begun operations in Pampa.

Sawatzky Concrete Building poured the first panel at the plant Tuesday afternoon, and will employ 25 people when full operations begin in about 30 days, a company spokesman said.

Sales Manager Mike Hutcherson said the Pampa facility can manufacture panels as large as five feet wide, five inches thick and 15 feet tall.

The company does not sell panels to outside customers, and the firm uses its own production to construct a building for future sale.

Owner A. J. Sawatzky of Weatherford, Okla. is developer of a proposed, 55-acre industrial park, southwest of Pampa.

The area of the park is under consideration for annexation into the city.

Sawatzky's manufacturing facility, about one mile west of Pampa on the Borger highway, will provide materials for construction of offices at the proposed complex and other locations, according to Hutcherson.

He said the finished concrete panels are used by the company's building division to form the walls of their buildings.

Hutcherson said the panels of concrete and steel are welded into a concrete footing. Then, steel supports and a roof are put on the building. Finally, in a reversal of the usual construction process, the foundation is poured.

He said any type interior can be finished to a customer's demands and said "any size, shape or form" of glass can be built into the concrete building's exterior.

Sawatzky Concrete Building employee Mark Laubach supervises pouring of the manufacturing firm's first pre-cast panel at the Pampa plant Tuesday afternoon. The pre-cast panels are later used by the company's building division to construct many different types of buildings.

Pampa man charged in rape of 20-year-old

By DAVID CHRISTENSON
Staff Writer

Dwight David Rogers, 25, of 633 N. Banks, was arrested early this morning by officers of the Pampa Police Department and charged with the rape of a 20-year-old Pampa woman late last night.

Rogers was arraigned at about 11 a.m. today on the rape charge by Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge. Bond was set at $20,000.

According to her statement to police, the woman was at the Catalina Night Club, 1300 S. Barnes, when she first talked to the manager because of a glass barrier.

The woman also attempted to solicit the help of three men who were apparently staying at the motel, but they "refused to get involved," according to police.

The woman told police Rogers left the motel and ran a short distance away, but came back and told the woman he would give her wallet back if she got back on the motorcycle and allowed him to take her home.

The woman said Rogers drove her to a parking lot of a business on Tying

He took her five miles east of Pampa on Highway 60, stopped the motorcycle and took the woman's purse, she said. Rogers took her wallet out of the purse and gave the purse back, she said.

Driving the motorcycle back to Pampa, Rogers reportedly stopped at a local motel and went inside. The woman said she attempted to follow him into the manager's office and recover her wallet, but she could not

She said he then transported her to the Allsup's Convenience Store on the corner of Starkweather and Foster, where she was able to escape him and enter the open store.

Police said they received a call from the Allsup's store at about 2:50 a.m. A short time later, police arrested Rogers and transported him to the city jail.

Assistant District Attorney Joe Hendley authorized a complaint to be signed on Rogers this morning charging him with the crime.

Neighbors object to in-town power plant

By JEFF LANGLEY

Several Pampans protested plans to build a power sub-station near their homes during a public hearing Tuesday.

Southwestern Public Service Company has the option to purchase two lots at Harvester and Bradley Streets, where the power company plans to build the sub-station.

Mayor Ray Thompson told protesters who live near the proposed site that they should take initiative and locate another suitable site for the local power company.

location because it was the only suitable place the company could find for sale.

"Why can't you build this thing somewhere there aren't so many houses?" a local resident asked.

The company officials said they tried to purchase property elsewhere, but no one would sell them a suitable site.

"Nobody wants a station in his neighborhood, but all power comes from a sub-station on somebody's property," the engineer said.

"We know we get objections about location of a sub-station, but we will we experienced transformer heating," the SPS official said.

Elmer Yancy lives next door to the proposed site and he presented the protest petition.

Another item of consideration during the special city commission meeting and public hearing was Dr. Roy Braswell's request to construct a 100-foot television tower at 17th and Duncan.

Cloyd said 21 notices were mailed to nearby residents, but the city received only one complaint about the special use permit for the TV tower.

Also on the agenda for Tuesday's public hearing with city commissioners was a request for annexation of 152 Office and Industrial Park.

Former mayor E.C. Sidwell lambasted commissioners for their plan to construct a sewer line outside city limits, near the proposed industrial park.

The proposed park set for annexation into the city is south of Alcock (the Borger highway), north of the Santa Fe Railroad tracks, east of Price Road and west of Dwight Street.

Commissioners conducted the second, legally required public hearing on the 152 annexation proposal at the site Wednesday morning.

The citizen complaints about the power station were aired during a public meeting Tuesday on that project and 10 other zoning or annexation proposals.

City Manager Mack Wofford said the city met legal requirements and notified those property owners within 200 feet of the site about the SPS request for a special use permit.

The city sent out 15 letters about the SPS proposal, and received back seven written complaints from adjacent property owners, according to Assistant City Engineer Forrest Cloyd.

Two property owners complained in person about the sub-station during the public hearing Tuesday, and they presented a petition with signatures of 31 nearby residents, protesting planned construction.

During his presentation at the hearing, SPS Pampa Area Manager Joe Gidden said a sub-station at the central-east location is needed due to growth in the Pampa area.

"We need it, so people can continue to watch TV or run their air conditioners, if they so desire," Gidden said.

Two SPS engineers continued the company presentation on the need for a power station inside the city limits.

"We need this site on line by next summer, or we are going to have problems," an SPS engineer told commissioners and the hearing participants.

The engineers said the company chose the Bradley and Harvester make it as attractive as we can," he said.

He said toward making the site attractive, SPS will build the station partially underground.

Other beauty treatments include high masonry, or chain-link and redwood fences, fewer power poles away from the site, through use of steel poles, and weed control.

The station would be called Lyons Sub-Station and would serve downtown and east Pampa, reducing electrical load on the city's two existing sub-stations, Kite and McCullough stations.

"We already have had some problems with peak demand. Last summer, Kite station overloaded and Another zoning request discussed at the hearing Tuesday was presented by Bill Askins, 2204 Coffee.

Askins and a group of nearby home owners want the city to change their properties' zoning from residential to commercial, so they can sell and move.

The properties face Perryton Parkway and the residents complain the area is a bad location for a home and is difficult to sell as a residential property.

Four of the property owners want to sell out as one block of land to a commercial developer.

They say a commercial developer could make use of the property, but traffic on Perryton Parkway makes the location a poor place to live.

"Since the mall and hospital opened, the traffic comes and goes all day long. You can't even open the door to let a breeze through the house," Askins said.

Man-bites-dog tale

Fisherman tells the truth

ANDERSON, S.C. (AP) — Don Hughes has violated the unwritten code of the fisherman — he told the truth about a whopper.

It seems that Hughes, of Cleveland, Tenn., came back from a day on Lake Harwell lugging a 38-pound striped bass.

But instead of regaling his friends with an epic tale of a battle royale between man and fish, he was honest.

Hughes admitted to his buddies that he stumbled across the big bass struggling to breathe in shallow water. Hughes tossed aside his pole, waded into the water and snagged his catch with a pair of pliers.

"To tell you the truth, I would have lied if I was him," said Mark Dickerson, owner of the small grocery store where Hughes took his Leviathan to be weighed Monday.

"I would probably have made up something better than saying I caught it with a pair of pliers. But that's how he did it," Dickerson said.

Three to be sentenced today in oil theft case

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — Three people convicted of engaging in organized crime by stealing thousands of gallons of crude oil from East Texas storage tanks could be sentenced today to life in prison.

Jurors deliberated four hours Wednesday before convicting the trio and acquitting two others in the case that stemmed from a Texas Railroad Commission investigation that began in 1979.

Jean Brown of Sapulpa, Okla., W.S. "Bull" Barber, and his son, Buddy Barber, both of Kilgore, were convicted.

Jurors acquitted Bob Cunningham of Sand Springs, Okla., and Wade Navarre of Lafayette, La.

John Wilcox of Sapulpa, Okla., and James Breaux of Lafayette, La. — two of the original seven defendants in the eight-day trial — were acquitted Tuesday after the prosecution and defense rested their cases.

Judge Marcus Vasocu ruled prosecutors had not presented sufficient evidence to convict the two men and granted a defense motion for instructed verdicts of acquittal.

Rex Houston, the attorney for the Barbers, said he was surprised at the jury's verdict Wednesday and would appeal the convictions.

Ten people were originally indicted by a grand jury, but three were separated into individual cases that will come to trial at a later date.

The prosecution rested its case Tuesday without the testimony of a key witness who was granted immunity from prosecution in exchange for his testimony.

Special Prosecutor Chuck Campbell had said that the state could not prove its case without the testimony of Garvin Richardson, who refused to testify and was jailed last week by Vasocu.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ordered Richardson released Friday, and then on Monday delayed a ruling on Richardson's case until July 7.

Prosecutors relied on the testimony of two men offered money to aid the string of thefts from storage tanks.

Board drops property insurance rates in state

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas property owners will pay an average of 16.3 percent less for insurance beginning Sept. 1, but renters may see a rise in the cost of their coverage.

The Texas Board of Insurance adopted the new rates Wednesday.

Property owners got another bonus from the board, which agreed to give a five-percent credit on premiums for installing certain kinds of theft-prevention devices, including solid wood doors, dead bolts and certain kind of window locks.

No credit is given for burglar alarms or burglar bars. The credit goes into effect 60-75 days after being published in the Texas Register.

After adopting the security devices credit, board Chairman William P. Daves and Commissioner Lyndon Olson Jr. approved the board's staff proposal on rates, rejecting industry recommendations of a smaller decrease. The third board member, Durwood Manford, was absent.

The Board said although property owners will see an average decrease of 16.3 percent, the decline will average 20 percent for homeowners and 17.5 percent for farm and ranch owners. Rates for extended coverage policies will drop an average of 15.1 percent.

But, theoretically at least, the staff recommendation said, tenants' insurance should rise 22.3 percent. The rates may not go up that much, though, because they are calculated based on fire insurance rates, which will go down an average of 25 percent.

At its hearing on June 2, the board heard industry representatives complain that the staff based the new rates on unrealistic loss projections.

Staff actuary Gaylon Daniel said one reason the board heard industry representatives complain that the staff based the new rates on unrealistic loss projections was because there have been no "catastrophic" loss situations in Texas, such as hurricanes or major tornadoes, in the last 10 years.

The good luck won't hold, warned Sam Winters, representing the Texas Insurance Advisory Association. He urged the board to always include a "catastrophic loss" in any calculation of past losses for the purposes of projecting future costs to the industry.

But at Wednesday's hearing, Daves said, "The rate-setting method we are using has produced a healthy insurance climate in Texas."

He called the approved rates, "reasonable and fair."

Continental settles shareholder suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Continental Airlines said it tentatively has settled a shareholder suit challenging its merger with Texas Air Corp. under terms that allow public stockholders partial credit on airline tickets.

The settlement, which must be approved by the courts, would give shareholders vouchers worth either 25 cents or 50 cents for each share of Continental stock they own. The amount of the voucher depends on when the airline stock was purchased.

Continental spokesman Bruce Plowman said about 7.5 million shares are affected by the tentative settlement, which was agreed on in a suit brought by a New York couple, Nicholas and Dorothy Maris, who had claimed the terms of the merger were unfair.

Texas Air Corp., parent company of Texas International Airlines, acquired 51 percent of Continental's stock last year and subsequently proposed a plan to merge the two companies. Shareholder votes on the proposed merger are to be counted July 13 at Texas Air's annual meeting and at a special Continental meeting at the Airport Marriott Hotel in Los Angeles.

PUC examiner recommends $49.1 million GTE rate hike

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Public Utility Commission hearing examiner "shocked" by customers' stories of poor service, has recommended General Telephone receive less than half its requested $110.6 million rate increase.

Jacqueline Holmes filed a report Wednesday recommending a $49.1 million increase that would leave most GTE customers with rates similar to the temporary rates now in effect.

The three-member PUC will consider the report at a July 14 meeting.

Ms. Holmes said GTE still has "many problems" in providing good service. Company officials seem "sincere" about improving service, but they offered "many convenient explanations for continuing problems," she said.

"The examiner, frankly, was shocked by some of the stories of substandard service quality still being experienced by customers of General," she said in her report.

GTE filed for the increase on Jan. 29. On June 4 the company put into effect bonded rates as allowed by commission rules. The company would have to make refunds if the rates approved by PUC are below the bonded rates.

Rick Hainline, PUC spokesman, said the rates recommended by the examiner probably would mean refunds of five or 10 cents to most GTE customers.

The San Angelo-based company serves 1.3 million Texas customers, including service to major Dallas and Houston suburbs.

In Garland, the largest city served by GTE, one-party residential service would be $16.90 per month, if the examiner's report is approved by the commission. GTE wanted to charge $17.05 per month. Garland customers, under the bonded, temporary rates now in effect, are paying $16.80.

Prior to the initiation of the bonded rates, Garland customers were paying $11.15.

Ms. Holmes, concerned about service quality, cautioned the commission to "take appropriate steps should it determine progress is unsatisfactory."

A previous rate hike request from GTE ended in an order that included a $6 million penalty for poor service.

GTE had asked for $44 million in 1981. An Austin trial court and the Austin Court of Appeals both denied GTE's appeal of the increase.

The $2 million increase meant no price hike for most GTE customers.

Waste is dumped in wrong place

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Employees of a Texas City, Texas, firm dumped a black mixture of water, rust and residue from a fuel storage tank at the wrong place, a company official says.

The petroleum-based substance was dumped at a fill site instead of at the Conway landfill. The mixture came from a Sun Pipe Line Co. bulk storage plant in the southern part of the city.

Keith Gossett, manager of the tank cleaning division of Coastal Environmental Services Inc., said Wednesday that the company would do whatever necessary to straighten up the matter.

"We certainly didn't intend to dump waste products on private property," Gossett said. He said the company had a good reputation in the Houston area.

The mixture was unloaded on property belonging to Anthony Halter of Conway. The land is on Arkansas Highway 286, about a half-mile north of the confluence of a ditch and Stone Dam Creek.

Halter had opened the site for disposal of rocks and soil. The petroleum-based substance covered an area 30 to 40 yards long and several yards wide.

Gossett said the firm originally intended to take the load to Texas, but had to change plans because there was more of the mixture than they thought.

In such cases, he said, the firm that generated the waste is responsible for directing the company to a disposal site approved by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Gossett said Coastal employees were given sketchy directions and ended up at Halter's property instead of the landfill.

"This is not the way it should be done, but that's the way it ended up," Gossett said.

Mock air attack shatters Beirut quiet

By The Associated Press

Low-flying Israeli jets roared over Beirut early today, dropping flares and smoke canisters and shattering the sound-barrier in a thunderous mock air attack that sent thousands of panicky inhabitants rushing to basements and bomb shelters.

The 20-minute foray which began at midnight appeared designed to tell Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas that Israel's patience was running out over negotiations to evacuate them peacefully from the western Moslem half of the Lebanese capital ringed by Israeli forces.

Flares illuminated beachside resorts and shantytowns along the southern flank of the capital as nerve-shattering sonic booms shook the west Beirut PLO hideouts where Arafat and his 8,000 guerrillas are bottled up.

The Israeli invaders have threatened to overrun west Beirut unless the guerrillas surrender their heavy weapons and leave Lebanon.

No bombs were reported dropped during the raid. The U.S.-arranged cease-fire in and around west Beirut went into its sixth day virtually intact as American and Lebanese mediators sought to arrange intricate mechanics of the PLO evacuation operation.

A key Lebanese intermediary said Wednesday night that despite the PLO's defiant calls to fight to the death, the guerrillas were ready to leave their 10-square-mile enclave because they did not want a showdown with Israeli forces. But he said details of evacuating them remained unclear.

"It is not easy to say how armed people will leave Lebanon," the intermediary, former Prime Minister Saeb Salam, told reporters. "This is an intricate procedure and cannot be done overnight."

No official confirmation was immediately available from PLO leaders on how the armed guerrillas would be evacuated or where they will go.

Salam, Lebanon's 77-year-old Sunni Moslem elder statesman, has been playing a key role in indirect mediation efforts between Arafat's PLO and U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib to solve the crisis. Habib arranged the cease-fire between the PLO and Israeli forces.

In Washington, President Reagan told a news conference Wednesday night that the United States had no advance knowledge of the Israeli invasion and was pressing for a peaceful solution. But he did not otherwise rebuke Israel's actions.

Publicly the PLO persists in proclaiming it will resist leaving Lebanon unless the Israelis grant several concessions, which include an Israeli pullback from around Beirut and allowing the guerrillas to maintain a token military and political presence in the country. Israel has rejected those demands.

Acting Lebanese Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan, fresh from a meeting with Habib late Wednesday, said the negotiations were progressing but gave no details. The two met again today at the Israeli-encircled Lebanese presidential palace in Baabda outside Beirut.

Palace sources said the mediators were trying to find a country willing to grant asylum to the guerrillas.

Hijacker wins demands, frees hostages

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A Sri Lankan hijacker who "looked like a hippie" and was said to be "very high on drugs" freed more than 100 hostages today in return for $300,000 and a guarantee of safe conduct to his homeland. He walked off the Alitalia jumbo jet with his estranged Italian wife, his arms thrust into the air and his fists clenched in a victory salute.

Thai Communications Minister Amorn Sirigaya confirmed the Thai government agreed to the demands of 33-year-old Sepala Ekanayaka. He said the hijacker, along with his 29-year-old wife Anna Aldovrandi and their 3½-year-old son Free, would depart for Colombo, the Sri Lanka capital, later today.

Ekanayaka appeared more concerned about obtaining custody of his son than he was about his estranged wife, Thai officials said.

"I think it is the love for the little boy that led to the hijacking," Amorn said.

The Sri Lankan government has agreed to allow the trio to stay in the country for two weeks, the minister said.

Amorn said the Thais would not arrest the hijacker and that the Sri Lankan Ambassador, Mrs. Manel Abeysekera, had also promised that he would not be harmed. It was not known what the hijacker would do after his stay in Sri Lanka.

Ekanayaka was not under armed guard as he and his wife joined their son on a vehicle that picked them up at planeside. Amorn, who was in the vehicle, said the father hugged the child, who then sat on his lap and held his hand.

More than 100 passengers and crew members filed off the Italian airline's Boeing 747, ending an ordeal that began 32-hours earlier when Ekanayaka seized the jetliner after it took off from New Delhi en route to Bangkok and Tokyo. The freed hostages were taken in four buses to the military sector of Bangkok's Don Muang International airport.

White wants high court direction

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Attorney General Mark White says he wants direction from the U.S. Supreme Court before he interprets a ruling that could force some elected officials seeking higher office to give up their posts.

The high court last week upheld a requirement in the Texas Constitution that certain locally elected officials must resign if they run for another office.

White must determine which officials officials are required to resign.

"We could have a decision hopefully by this week, but it may be early next week," White told the South Texas Judges and Commissioners Association on Wednesday.

"We're trying to get further direction from the court."

Supreme Court gives guidance to states on desegregation busing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Busing foes in Los Angeles and pro-busing forces in Seattle are Supreme Court winners, but the national struggle over busing children to desegregate schools likely will not be affected much by their victories.

In a pair of decisions Wednesday, the nation's highest court gave states more guidance on what they can, and cannot, do to curb the use of busing to end racial discrimination in public schools.

In the California case, the justices ruled that voters properly limited the power of state courts with an initiative that said courts could order busing only in cases of intentional discrimination against minority children by state or local officials.

The decision upheld a California anti-busing initiative that last year ended forced busing in Los Angeles, the nation's second-largest school district.

But the justices then ruled that Washington state voters went too far when they approved an initiative that prohibited local school districts from voluntarily adopting desegregation plans that include busing.

The decision means Seattle and two other Washington cities, Tacoma and Pasco, can keep the desegregation plans they now have in effect.

"I don't think either decision is of particular significance on a national scale," said William Taylor of the Washington-based Center for National Policy Review, a civil rights advocacy group.

He said the practical importance of the decisions is blunted by the fact that "the federal courts, not state courts, play the key role in desegregating purposefully segregated schools."

The decisions in no way affect school districts currently under federal court desegregation orders.

Nor do they affect the power of federal judges to order forced busing as part of a plan to desegregate a school district found to have intentionally discriminated, a topic under study in Congress.

An elated state Sen. Alan Robbins, the California initiative's sponsor, said after the Supreme Court ruled: "I think I can now safely make the statement that mandatory busing in Los Angeles is over."

But Joseph Duff, a spokesman for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, noted that his organization has sued Los Angeles school officials in federal court in an attempt to reinstate forced busing for racial balance.

Evidence suppressed, charges to be dropped

DALLAS (AP) — Drug charges against a couple who say suburban police broke into their home, killed their dog and brutalized them will probably be dropped, a district attorney's office official said.

The official, who asked not to be identified, said the case probably would be dismissed within a couple of weeks after County Criminal Court Judge Robert Moss ruled Wednesday that the search warrant used by Balch Springs police was constitutionally insufficient.

As a result, Moss granted a motion to suppress evidence seized in the March 27, 1981 raid on the couple's home.

Lawrence and Judy Watson filed a $2.9 million lawsuit in April against the suburban police department. The couple claimed 10 officers illegally broke into their home, forced Mrs. Watson to stand nude for a prolonged period, and then ransacked their home causing about $5,000 in damage.

The Watson's suit also claimed that several of Watson's toes were broken when an officer stomped them.

The Watson's, who since have moved from Balch Springs to another home in the Dallas area, were charged with a misdemeanor — possession of a controlled substance, Lidocaine, which sometimes is used to "cut" or dilute cocaine, police said.

Moss ruled Wednesday that the warrant contained insufficient grounds for the search. He noted the affidavit accompanying the warrant did not specify on what information the search was based.

The judge said the affidavit said officers searched a man who went into the couple's house and that he did not have drugs before going in but did when he came out. But the affidavit did not say officers observed the man's actions, the judge said.

After the Watsons filed their suit, Balch Springs Police Chief Tom McGee said he had reviewed the arrest file and "could not find anything out of line." McGee was not with the department at the time of the arrest.

Johnny McKeel, who was among the Americans taken hostage in Iran, accompanied the officers during the search of the Watson home but was not named in the suit.

PALMDALE, Calif. (AP) — The shiny new space shuttle Challenger makes its first journey today — a snail's-pace voyage along city streets and desert flatlands.

The second working shuttle was being towed 38 miles through the desert towns of Palmdale and Lancaster and on to Edwards Air Force Base. During the 12 hours it's on the road, Columbia will circle the Earth eight times.

Once at Edwards, Challenger will become part of a multi-shuttle extravaganza on the Fourth of July, when President Reagan will watch Columbia land.

"This whole nation, and in fact the whole world, is going to see Columbia return from space and Challenger become airborne (atop a jumbo jetliner for a piggyback ride to its Florida launch site)," said Joe Engle, commander of the second shuttle mission last November.

"That's some kind of birthday present for America," he said Wednesday at Challenger's coming-out ceremonies in front of Rockwell International's assembly hangar near here.

The new shuttle was towed slowly around the corner of the giant hangar as some 1,200 workers and dignitaries applauded and craned their necks. Its nose appeared as a Marine Corps band played the themes from "Star Trek," "Star Wars" and "Superman."

It was clearly a day for back-slapping pride and patriotism. And several Rockwell officials used the occasion to make a strong pitch for a fifth shuttle, one more than currently funded. They hope Reagan may come out in favor of it in a speech Sunday.

Meanwhile, Paul J. Weitz, who will command

Challenger on its maiden voyage early next year, accepted from Rockwell a "symbolic key" — a replica of the tool that opens the shuttle's hatch.

Engineers, trainmen threaten strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Contract negotiations between the railroad industry and unions representing workers who run the trains have soured to the point where labor leaders are threatening a nationwide strike as early as July 10.

"We presently are contemplating a strike on a national basis," G.R. Bichsel, vice president of the 40,000-member Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said in a telephone interview from the union's headquarters in Cleveland. "We're preparing for one. But it could change." President Reagan, however, could invoke his emergency authority under the Railway Labor Act to forestall any national walkout for up to 60 days.

The National Railway Labor Conference, management bargaining arm for virtually all of the some 110 rail carriers except Amtrak and Conrail, has achieved contract settlements with 11 of its 13 unions.

But the locomotive engineers rejected the board's offer of voluntary arbitration last month, and an initial 30-day cooling-off period required under provisions of the Railway Labor Act will expire at midnight July 10.

The United Transportation Union, largest of the labor organizations and representing some 85,000 trainmen, on Wednesday rejected voluntary arbitration by the National Mediation Board and said it also plans a strike within 30 days.

DELIVERY DELAYED. Employees of a West German firm look over one of 42 giant gas turbines, ordered from General Electric, that were to be delivered to the Soviet Union for use on the natural gas pipeline under construction by the Soviet Union. Western Europeans have criticized the United States for trying to delay the pipeline that offers three things Europeans want — more jobs, more trade with the Soviet Union and more natural gas. (AP Laserphoto)

Why Western Europe wants the Soviet natural gas pipeline

By SUSAN J. SMITH
Associated Press Writer
BONN, West Germany (AP) — For more than a week, Western Europe has criticized the United States for still trying to delay construction of a Soviet pipeline that offers three things Europeans want — more jobs, more trade with the Soviet Union and more natural gas.

The way Europeans see it, American efforts to delay the pipeline to Western Europe won't hurt the Soviets but could throw thousands of people in Italy, West Germany and Great Britain out of work.

European officials say that if they respect the American equipment and technology embargo, they could wreck future trade relationships with the Soviets.

"What there should not be and what there will not be ... is a trade war with the Soviet Union with which a new epoch of the Cold War could be introduced," Chancellor Helmut Schmidt said last week in reiterating that Europe will proceed with the project.

Schmidt spoke after President Reagan announced he was extending a ban on U.S. technology for the planned pipeline, which is expected to deliver some 21 billion cubic meters of gas to Western Europe when it begins operation in 1984. The American embargo was originally imposed to protest the Soviet-backed declaration of martial law in Poland last December.

The 3,400-mile pipeline will start in western Siberia and go through the Ukraine and Czechoslovakia and end at the West German-Czech border where it will feed into an existing pipeline network.

West Germany, France, Austria and Switzerland have contracted to buy the gas, and the Dutch and Italians are negotiating.

The Reagan administration has criticized the pipeline deal on the grounds that it would make Western Europe too dependent on Soviet energy resources and give the Russians more hard currency to purchase western technology.

The Soviets say that despite Reagan's embargo, the pipeline will be built. They say that western Europeans may lose, however, are other benefits that go with delivering pipeline parts to the Russians — jobs and good trade relations.

Reagan defended the ban at his press conference Wednesday, saying "we did what we thought should have been done to release the oppression of the people of Poland." He added, "We think there is a risk that they (western Europeans) become dependent on the Soviet Union for energy."

In Italy alone, 6,000 to 7,000 jobs are affected. The Italian firm of NuovoPignone, a unit of the state energy conglomerate Nazionale Idrocarburi, has the largest contract in Europe for construction on the pipeline.

The company, which gets its parts from the American giant General Electric, will lose a $470 million contract to assemble 59 gas turbines if it goes along with the U.S. embargo. A decision has not yet been made.

"The company has other contracts. But without a doubt, this one is a very big one and there's some concern," a company spokesman said.

In West Germany, Reagan's decision has hurt AEG Telefunken, which has been asking the government for help to ward off bankruptcy.

The firm's turbine-making subsidiary, AEG-Kanis, had a $270 million contract to supply 47 turbines to the Soviets, but the company's chief executive, Heiny Duerr, said last week that the deal would not go ahead because of Reagan's embargo.

Duerr said the existence of AEG-Kanis and its 1,200 employees were threatened by the embargo because the turbines contract had been about half of the company's current orders.

British companies hold contracts worth about $344 million for the pipeline. A spokesman for John Brown Engineering Ltd. in London said the company has a $178 million order to provide 21 gas turbines and other parts for the pipeline.

"The contract was providing 'life blood' for the firm and hundreds of jobs would be at risk if it was canceled, he said.

Like the Italian company, AEG-Kanis and John Brown contracted to supply turbines that are made with parts supplied by General Electric.

In the current issue of the West German magazine Stern, U.S. Assistant Secretary of Defense Fred C. Ikle said Europeans should be looking to buy gas from partners in the NATO alliance, not the Soviet Union.

"There are plenty of opportunities to get natural gas from countries in the alliance," such as Norway or Great Britain, Ikle said, instead of.

To the Europeans, however, and particularly the West Germans, who look over their back fence at Soviet military might in East Germany, amicable trade with the Russians can foster better relations between East and West.

Investigation continues into copter crash

FORT HOOD, Texas (AP) — The crash of a U.S. Army helicopter June 23 has claimed its third victim while officials are still sifting through clues to determine the cause of the accident.

Pvt. Barry J. Chatwin, 20, of Concord, Calif., died from his injuries at Scott and White Memorial Hospital in Temple Wednesday morning, said Fort Hood spokesman Maj. Tony Geishauser.

The 1st Cavalry UH-1 helicopter was carrying nine men when it crashed six miles from Lemons Fishing Camp on the Colorado River in San Saba County.

The cause of the helicopter accident, which occurred during a routine training mission, is still under investigation, Geishauser said.

Warrant Officer John H. Butler, 35, of Fort Cobb, Okla., and Sgt. William R. Hogan, 25, of Antioch, Ill. also died after the crash.

Pfc. Joseph L. Gebhart, 21, of Anaheim, Calif., was listed in satisfactory condition Wednesday at Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio, Geishauser said.

Capt. Russell Struble, 25, of Newtown, Pa., and Warrant Officer Michael A. Thomas, 23, of Paxton, Fla., were listed in good condition Wednesday at Darnall Army Community Hospital, as was a third soldier who asked that his name not be released.

Gardening by Moon Signs

Wet weather brings flowers and lots of weeds

By LOIS BOYNTON

The Moon will be Increasing: 1 - 5; 21 - 31. The Moon will be Decreasing: 6 - 20.
The Fruitful Signs are: 1 (Scorpio); 10 - 11 (Pisces); 19 - 20 (Cancer); 28th through 29th until 4:00 p.m. (Scorpio).
The Semi-Fruitful Signs are: 5 through 7 until 11:00 a.m. (Capricorn); from 2:00 p.m. 14th until 5:00 p.m. 16th (Taurus); 25 - 26 (Libra).

The Barren Signs are: 2 - 4 (Sagittarius); From 11:00 a.m. 8th through 9th (Aquarius); 12 - through 2:00 p.m. 14 (Aries); 17 - 18 (Gemini); 21 - 22 (Leo); 23 - 24 (Virgo); From 4:00 p.m. 29th through 31st (Sagittarius).

Perhaps you have noted that the Moon grows progressively larger and smaller in a period of approximately 29 1/2 days. This circuit from New Moon, when the surface of the Moon is completely dark, to Full Moon when it is total light, and back again is called the "lunation Cycle." It is the results of the relationship between the Sun and Moon as viewed from the Earth during the year. The Moon will make thirteen trips around the Earth.

With the excessive rain and cool weather of June the weeds are out in full force, so that much time will be spent in weeding the beds and vegetable garden.

So many have admired our columbines. On packet of columbine seed will bring you great rewards. Fill a 6 inch pot with good potting soil to one inch of the top. Water the soil, allow it to soak in well. Then scatter the seed carefully over the soil, cover very lightly with milled sphagnum moss, this helps in preventing damping-off.

Cover the pot with clear plastic, place in a warm sheltered spot. When the seeds begin to sprout remove plastic. As the true leaves appear, water with a light fertilizer solution every two weeks. As the plants grow the pot can be moved to full sun, keep well watered in late September the plants can be transplanted to their permanent place in the beds, they grow quite tall so they should be planted toward the back of the beds. They will freeze back to the ground in the winter but come back again in the spring to bloom for you in May.

Make hardwood and rose cuttings the 19th and 20th.

Ever bearing strawberries can be planted now. Gem or Ogallala, which is our favorite, is of good size and very sweet. They will start flowering in a few weeks and these flowers can remain. Fruit will form for a September crop. With plants that are not the every bearing variety they should not be allowed to flower the first year, the flowers should all be removed, to allow full development of the plants. Somehow the ever bearing varieties seem to grasp hold faster and even though they are planted this late, fruit can be allowed to develop, with out energy to the plants.

To keep mockorange looking neat and trim, cut the oldest cones to the ground.

Lift and divide iris and oriental poppies.

As you plant your columbine seed plant a pot of pansy seed too, this you should do the 27th and 28th.

Check dahlias, see that they are well tied to their stakes. Cut away dead blooms.

July is generally hot and dry, following a wet June as we have had, watering can be very critical. Soak the ground deeply when you do water.

Spring planted evergreens are particularly likely to suffer if they are permitted to get too dry, this is true with all newly planted shrubs and trees. It will be well to keep the beds well mulched, this will conserve moisture and keep the weeds down.

Gather all waste vegetable matter and make it into a compost pile. A compost pile is a valuable asset, a real conservation measure and a garden economy. Weeds as well as leaves grass clippings and waste from the vegetable and flower garden, make good compost. It is better not to put woody branches or leaves if evergreens on the compost heap.

Now is the time to order bulbs, getting your orders in early. Order some hybrid lilies they are beautiful in our gardens now. If you have planted your Easter lilies in the past they should be blooming now.

Do not pinch the shoots of hardy chrysanthemums after the middle of this month. These plants should be making good growth now.

There will be a Sick Plant Clinic, Thursday July 1, in the Pampa Mall. The hours are from 2:00 p.m. to 6:30 p.m., it is free.

Bring your problems or questions, sick plant specimens or insects someone will help you. There will be four Texas Agricultural Extension Service Specialists on hand to assist and counsel with you. This clinic is sponsored by the Gray County Horticultural and Crops Extension Committees in cooperation with the Gray County Extension Service. So take advantage of this opportunity.

June seemed to break all records for rain and lack of sun. The mosquito population seems worse than ever before. Your first thought is spraying, which only lessens the nuisance of mosquitoes, it does not eliminate the problem, mosquitoes thrive wherever there is water or vegetation, and they always will. What's more those that survive the spray develop a new tolerance and pass it on to their offsprings, so that the spraying attack must become stronger.

Perhaps you should try using harmless mosquito repellents on your arms and legs. What actually is needed is a much better educational program on the control and eradication of the areas where mosquitoes breed, which can even be a saucer forgotten among your flower pots with a little water left in it.

Nature is a matter of balance and every living thing plays a specific part in maintaining this delicate equilibrium. We must learn to share the living world, not try to dominate it or twist it to our personal ends. If we do not learn this soon, we run the risk of handing on a deprived environment to those who come after us.

One of the secrets of continuing summertime blooming from roses is pruning to prevent the plants from setting seeds. When a blossom begins to fade, cut it off the plant. The important thing here is to look down the stem for the first leaf with 5 leaflets on it, and then cut about 1/4 inch above that leaf.

July is the month to observe the progress of the tomatoes you have planted. When the first one ripens it is a time of celebration. We grow ours in cages when they grow through the cages we cut them off to keep them in bounds.

Summer sun can be less than fun

Don't fall for the Madison Avenue pitch that deep, dark tans make people young, healthy and vigorous. Not so, says a Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine dermatologist.

"We live in a sun worshiping society, where deeply tanned people are admired and regarded as healthy," said Stephen Kessler, D. O. "In reality, deep tans wrinkle and age the skin before its time and present the threat of skin cancer."

And, of course, sun can burn. Dr. Kessler's advice is to wear sunscreen lotion (the best available is marked SPF 15) if the skin hasn't been exposed to sun for a while. Continue to wear the sunscreen over a period of weeks until the skin tans. Then the tan will be a protection from normal summer sun exposure.

The TCOM faculty member urged the use of common sense when out in the sun. People who don't tan well should avoid mid-day sun (10 a.m. - 2 p.m.), when the ultraviolet radiation is the highest. "If you must be out then, wear a sunscreen and clothing and hats to cover the skin." And don't be fooled by a cloudy day, Dr. Kessler added. The skin's burning ultraviolet rays come through the cloud cover.

A sunburn can be severe enough to require medical attention. "If the burn does not respond to home care," he said, "consult a physician."

Summer handbags are now in leather

By Florence De Santis

NEW YORK (NEA) — Having become a material for fashion, leather now appears in summer handbags along with traditional straws and fabrics. Designers are using newly soft leathers, in a wide range of light colors and pearlized finishes.

The pink pearlized finish used by Victor Carranza brightens the gunmetal color of his seashell-shaped bag or a braided silk cord. Bottega Veneta's V-bottomed soft shoulderbag is in pearlized raspberry leather. St. Thomas softens the tailored clutch with pearlized violet color and a decorative flap of pearlized pink.

purple and black snakeskin.

Soft white leather is a summer natural. Carlos Falchi bands a white leather drawing bag in white snakeskin. Furst & Mooney accent a white leather shoulderbag pouch with a fan of snakeskin stripes in gold, burgundy, purple and navy.

White leather often gets glitter trims, such as the gold top band on Barbara Bolan's softly gathered pouch. Enny brings from Italy its roomy drawing bag on a wide shoulder strap, with navy piping outlining the white of the french calf. Joan and David use gold borders to accent their white leather pouch on double string straps.

Some handbags come in mixed materials, such as Barbara Bolan's use of turquoise straw insets on a white leather circular drawing bag. Borelli's entire collection is in beige canvas rimmed, accented and handled in luggage leather. Ronora's celadon and tan leather satchels have multi-color ribbon bands.

Opinions made on the shades

NEW YORK (AP) — Men and women see eye-to-eye on many issues these days but seldom when selecting sunglasses, according to a 16-city study covering the nation's Northeast, South, Midwest and Western regions.

The disagreement starts at the frames, the Corning Sunglass survey indicates, with 77 percent of the women queried having chosen sunglasses with plastic frames and 56 percent of the men preferring metal frames.

When it comes to lens sizes, men are more partial to smaller ones and women to larger lenses, the study shows. Some 56 percent of the men had "aviator"-shaped lenses as compared with the 22 percent of women wearing this style. The most popular shape among women is called "square, small hump on bottom," with 25 percent of the women's glasses having this basic-shape lens.

Men are more likely to own sunglasses with polarized lenses, according to the report — 39 percent of the men compared with 28 percent of the women.

In shopping for sunglasses, women in the survey were found to be more particular than men. Before making their final decision, women tried on an average of 11 pairs; men, no more than seven. Style also plays a much bigger role for women in the purchase of sunglasses, with 43 percent replacing their old glasses to buy a new style and 75 percent basing their ultimate decision on the style factor.

Only minor differences in terms of usage are revealed by the study:

A slightly greater number of men wear sunglasses year-round — 86 percent versus 82 percent of the women.

Women wear sunglasses more as a fashion accessory — 30 percent to 28 percent of the men.

Of the men, 20 percent said they bought sunglasses because they had "sensitive eyes" while only 17 percent of the women gave this as a reason for buying.

In only one area — frame colors — does the study show that both sexes are pretty much in accord. For both men and women, gold is the most popular metal frame color while tortoise is the most popular plastic frame color. However, more men favor black sunglasses frames and a significant number of women fancy red frames.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

A snake was sighted in our front yard two days ago by a sober person who has no wish to make a name for himself nor a reason to lie.

He described the snake as "harmless, non-aggressive, and good to have around." He believed that.

He is fooling no one. The snake is 13 feet long, has fangs that drip human blood, is pregnant, and has the capacity to open doors with a pass key.

The trick is not to overreact to news of this sort, which is why I put some distance (15 minutes) between the time I was told about the snake and when I actually contacted my realtor with orders to "Sell!"

It must be apparent that I am terrified of snakes. There is possibly only one thing that strikes more fear in my heart and that is being in a room alone with a person who defends them.

You just know they are people with one ear out of the water when they say things like, "Snakes are good to have around. They get rid of all the unwanted animals."

Think about that for a moment. That's like asking the Boston strangler to come sit with you because you're afraid to be alone at night.

"Snakes make good pets" is another indication you've got a real wacko on your hands. A pet indeed. Pets bark and chase sticks. Pets sit on the TV set and lick their feet. Pets lick your hand when a piece of meat drops from your sandwich onto the floor. When the day comes when Barbara Woodhouse slips a chain around a snake's neck and shouts, "Walkies!" I'll consider it a pet.

The person who really sends me out the door is the serpent lover who says, "They fear you more than you fear them."

Did you ever see a snake spot a human being and run on water to get away from him? Did you ever see a snake hearing the words, "is that a person in the grass?" hyperventilate and sink into a coma?

The last person who said to me, "you can overcome your fear if you touch them," is still standing there, holding a snake... in the home where he belongs.

Dear Abby
Words for living,
 not for dying

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you published something that helped me tremendously when I learned that I had cancer. Please, please run it again. It's advice to patients on how to live with a terminal illness.
 I showed it to my doctor, and he thought so much of it, he had copies run off to give to some of his patients. Thank you.
 D.J. IN IOWA

DEAR D.J.: It's "How to Live With Illness" by Orville Kelly:
 1. Talk about the illness. If it's cancer, call it cancer. You can't make life normal again by trying to hide what is wrong.
 2. Accept death as a part of life. It is!
 3. Consider each day as another day of life, a gift from God to be enjoyed as fully as possible.
 4. Realize that life is never going to be perfect. It wasn't before, and it won't be now.
 5. Pray! It isn't a sign of weakness, it's a sign of strength.
 6. Learn to live with your illness instead of considering yourself dying from it. We are all dying in some manner.
 7. Put your friends and relatives at ease. If you don't want pity, don't ask for it.

8. Make all practical arrangements for funerals, wills, etc., and make certain your family understands them.
 9. Set new goals; realize your limitations. Sometimes the simple things of life become the most enjoyable.
 10. Discuss your problems with your family. Include the children if possible. After all, your problem is not an individual one.
 Have a good day... make it count.

DEAR ABBY: I am a nice-looking, 28-year-old divorced woman. I have no trouble getting dates, but my problem is that every man I date runs to the nearest exit when I tell him I have three kids.
 I do not hide the fact that I have three children. My oldest is 9 and my youngest is 2. They are well-behaved and well-mannered and I am not ashamed of them. In fact, I am proud of them.
 The last four men I dated seemed interested in me — until I told them I had three children. After that I never heard from them again. I haven't dated anyone in nine months because I don't want to be hurt again.
 What can a mother who loves her children do?
 NOT DATING

DEAR NOT DATING: Look into 'Parents Without Partners.' You will meet other single parents who also love their children. Don't waste your time worrying about those who ran for the nearest exit when they learned you had three kids. Too bad they weren't aware that some of the best deals are "package deals." It's their loss.

DEAR ABBY: I am a new mother this year, and what did I get? Nothing! I have a beautiful baby girl — she's 6 months old — but my husband evidently doesn't consider me a "mother."
 I expected some flowers or a card. Even a "Happy Mother's Day" would have been nice, but the day came and went with no mention that I was a mother, too.
 I felt so bad, I mentioned it before we went to sleep, and he said, "You aren't my mother."
 Well, I'm his daughter's mother, and she's too young to shop. Should I get him something for Father's Day?
 HURT

DEAR HURT: Yes. A course in sensitivity training would be appropriate.

CONFIDENTIAL TO CHARLIE IN WILMINGTON, DEL.: Samuel Johnson said, "Every animal revenges his pains upon those who happen to be near." Man is no exception.

BLOCK OUT STARCH CALORIES!
 EAT BREAD, POTATOES, PASTA!
 with amazing, incredible, new

STARCH BLOCK™

STARCH BLOCK™ IS:
 • A revolutionary new concept in natural weight control.
 • A natural product that blocks excess starch digestion.
 • So effective we back it with a complete money-back guarantee.
STARCH BLOCK™ IS NOT:
 • A chemically synthesized drug.
 • A stimulant.
 • Another appetite suppressant.
 Almost half the average American's calories come from carbohydrates.
 Starch is a major dietary complex carbohydrate. If enzymes did not break down the starch to simpler sugars, those calories would not be absorbed to add to total calorie intake.
 Scientists have spent years studying and reporting on naturally occurring protein in legumes (beans) that blocks alpha-amylase, a major body enzyme that breaks down starch to absorbable forms. It was decided that if this protein could prevent or inhibit alpha-amylase from breaking down starch in test tubes, maybe it could do the same in people.
 The idea was tested in human diet study and it worked! The test group given the inhibitor lost more weight than the control group not given it. No undesirable side effects were reported. These exciting results were put to use in the development of STARCH BLOCK™. Now you can put STARCH BLOCK™ to work for you!

One STARCH BLOCK™ Tablet can block the conversion of 150 grams of starch to absorbable calories—that's 600 calories! Simply take one tablet at the beginning of each meal or two tablets at the beginning of a large starch meal.
 STARCH BLOCK™ contains no sugar, no starch, no artificial colors, no artificial flavors or preservatives—only the natural help you may have needed to get rid of those excess pounds and keep them off!

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

Take pains to develop a better rapport with influential persons you meet socially this coming year. Not only will you build solid friendships, but they'll be helpful in other ways as well.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) At a gathering today others may seek the spotlight, but they'll not find it. The entire time it will be focused on you, whether you want it or not. Predictions of what's in store for you for each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your AstroGraph, Mail, $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be able to distinguish today between being protective of those you love or of merely being too possessive. It's a fine line you mustn't overstep.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Most people will go along with your ideas today, but a few may not. Be grateful for those who do. Don't make a big thing over those who don't.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Matters which could add to your resources or enhance your future security should be at the top of your agenda today. They're your luckiest listings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Of course being first has its compensations, but don't make it so important today that you brush others aside racing to reach the tape. Be a good sport.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't discount your logical evaluations, but also give equal credence to your hunches and flashes of inspiration. Both are in tune today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today you may have to put yourself out a bit more for them than your friends will extend themselves for you. Do so with a smile. Everything will even out later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Regardless of the hand that is dealt to you today, where your career is concerned you'll know how to play your cards to the hilt in order to win the pot.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This is a good day to review plans which have an effect upon your future. You can come up with revisions to make the road ahead easier.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Proceed cautiously in commercial dealings today. Be sure you know exactly what you're getting into before responding to any proposals.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may have to contend with someone today who holds strong views not in accord with your own. Handle this person with extreme tact.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Perform your work today as if the boss is watching your every move. Who knows? He or she might be doing just that.

Americans, Soviets take different paths into space

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Soviets have a space station and want a space shuttle. America has a shuttle and wants a station. The Soviets probably won't get what they want soon. America hasn't decided yet.

America's space agency used its considerable innovative talent to build the world's most sophisticated and versatile spacecraft. The space shuttle is a sleek craft, capable of carrying a crew of seven and a 60,000-pound payload. It lands like a plane and can be reused.

But it is a luxury spacecruiser in search of a destination. Without a space station, the shuttle has no port on the ocean of space.

The Soviet space community, never strong on technical innovation, found a spacecraft that worked almost 10 years ago and has used the same design since. The Soviet's top-of-the-line craft is the Soyuz T, a cramped, three-man can that lands by parachute and is not reused.

The Soyuz T, however, does have a destination in space. The Soviets have orbited several Salyut space stations. Four Soviets and a French "guest" cosmonaut are now aboard Salyut 7.

Cosmonaut crews have twice spent 185 days aboard Salyut stations. Missions of 75 days have become common. The Soviets' announced goal of keeping an astronaut in orbit 365 days a year may not be far off.

Western experts have received reports that the Soviets are moving toward development of a reusable spacecraft. James Oberg, an analyst of the Soviet space program, reported in a magazine article evidence that the Soviets had tested a "lifting body," a vehicle with an aerodynamic shape that would be able to glide to Earth from space.

"Aviation Week and Space Technology," a weekly U.S. magazine, also reported a possible test of a Soviet space shuttle concept.

In public statements, however, Soviet space officials have stated strongly there is no Soviet space shuttle in the near future.

Western experts believe the Soviets have created an economy of production scale with the Soyuz, making it less practical to invest heavily in a shuttle. More than 40 have been flown with cosmonauts.
