'CHAINED' HERE WITH GABLE AND CRAWFORD

"FORGOTTEN MEN" TO BE SPONSORED SOON BY VETERANS

For an evening of good entertainment, go to the La Nora theatre, where Joan Crawford and Clark Gable's new co-starring vehicle is on view. It is titled "Chained" and was directed by Clarence Brown, who gave us "Sadie McKee," Joan's last.

Mounted in lavish Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer style, beautifully photographed and replete with a series of well-knit, fast-moving scenes, it is one of the best pictures to be offered in many a month.

Clark Gable plays the kind of role the public has been clamoring for, that of a young rancher in South America. And as a modern New York girl who falls in love on the boat that is to carry her away from despair, Joan Crawford gives one of the finest performances of her vivid career.

Written by Edgar Selwyn especially for the screen, and adapted by John Lee Mahin, "Chained" is a vibrant, powerful drama of modern manners and morals.

The supporting cast is equally good, with Otto Kruger as the gentlemanly Mr. Field, Marjorie Gateson as his wife, Stuart Erwin as Johnnie Gable's irreverent friend, and Una O'Connor as Amy, Joan Crawford's sympathetic companion.

CLASSIC OF WAR

No important battle in which the United States Doughboys participated in the world war is omitted in the official world war motion picture, "Forgotten Men."

"Forgotten Men" comes to the La Nora theatre for showing Wednesday, one day only, sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of Pampa.

"Forgotten Men" was compiled from 150,000 feet of film obtained from the archives of 14 participating nations.

Scenes of every division of the U. S. Troops are seen in actual action, attacking and lashing the famous Hindenburg line. A million Americans are seen in the drive of St. Mihiel and in the Battles of Belleau Wood, Soissons, Thiaucourt, Montfaucon, Meuse-Argonne and in the Argonne Forest.

Not only are Americans in action shown in "Forgotten Men" but the French of the Marne and elsewhere, England and her colonies driving the Germans from Mons, Ypres, Armentieres, Somme, Vimy Ridge and the Turks from Palestine, Russians, Italians, Belgians and all the other participating nations are seen as they battle in the bloodiest war in history.

Hundreds of cameramen died to make "Forgotten Men" possible. One of the most thrilling scenes in the picture showing a Russian officer crawling through No Man's Land with a wounded comrade on his back comes to a sudden termination because the cameraman was killed by flying shrapnel. Many of the scenes end in this manner, attesting to the bravery of those who died to preserve a visual record of the world war.

"HOWLING DOG" AT REX

A new type of murder mystery drama has been introduced to the screen by Warner Bros. in "The Case of the Howling Dog," which opens today at the Rex theatre with Warren William and Mary Astor in the stellar roles.

The plot is entirely different from the ordinary run of screen mysteries. There is a clear cut case of murder to start with, but to the police the case closes enshrouded with mystery.

The spectator is given a peep behind the scenes when a famous criminal lawyer, a brilliant investigator as well, reveals the facts after a sensational court trial in which he wins the freedom of his client, a beautiful and wealthy society woman, charged with slaying her husband.

Warren William has the role of the noted criminal lawyer and crime investigator, while Mary Astor plays the part of the society woman, accused of killing her husband.

Marian Gordon
By JAMES BOWMAN

Chapter One
COMPLICATED CASE

Marian Gordon stood at an open window of the Morning Dispatch editorial rooms, and looked out on the spring night. Looked down, to be exact. Had she looked out she would have seen tall buildings, inset with yellow oblongs that were windows, and above these the luminous glow of an evening sky. Looking down, however, she saw something far more pleasing.

On the near street corner, pooled within the circle of a park light, stood Tony Gazetti's flower stand. The stand was a blurred tier of many colors, gold of acacia, jonquil and tulip, deep pink of cyclamen and jayonia, purple of violet and hyacinth, and the inevitable splash of orange-red marigold.

Behind the stand was the triangular city square, before it, an imposing looking roadster, its smooth black surface enhanced with shining chromium-plated fixtures.

Marian saw neither the stand, the square, nor the automobile. She was watching two men who stood on the sidewalk.

She watched Tony Gazetti because he was waving his arms. That meant he was talking and she wondered what he could have to say to Lon Casard, that would call forth such gestures.

Once she had focused her attention on Casard, she forgot everything. Lon was waiting to take her to dinner. He had been waiting for the last hour while she wrote a story on the afternoon session of the William Brown bribery trial. He'd have to keep on waiting until her city editor reappeared from wherever he'd disappeared to and told her she was through for the night.

Tony, however, was benefitting by the wait, for the shelf behind the seat of the car was filled with car-nucopia shaped packages. Marian knew there would be violets. "To match your eyes," Lon would say.

That was foolish of him. Her eyes were that nondescript blue which obligingly took on the shade of the frock or hat she wore. And there would be marigolds, "to match your hair." An atrocious exaggeration—"to match my temper," she always countered, and he would laugh.

But then, he'd never seen a display of that temper. She must see that he didn't, or he wouldn't laugh and he wouldn't wait on street corners.

"Miss Gordon," a boyish voice interrupted, "the M. E. wants you in his office right away."

"Did you say something, Tommy?"

"Did I say something?" came the indignant rejoinder, "I did that. I said Bowen wanted you in his dug-out, pronto, savee?"

"Bowen?" she repeated in surprise, "is he back in town?"

"Well do you think he'd be wanting you in his office if he was still down in L. A.?"

"He might," returned Marian amiably.

She gave Tommy a pert salute and started towards Bowen's office, a tiny frown creasing her brow. Bowen was always brief, but he couldn't be brief enough this night. She was ravenously hungry and she was a mere woman. She could imagine how Lon must feel by this time.

Entering she stood before the big desk and smiled down at her managing editor. "Nice to have you back," she said sincerely.

"Thanks, Ian, sit down." He barked the words but his grin took away their harshness. "Hear you've been doing good work on this Brown trial. Sorry I had to be out of town with that going on. I'd like you to give me your impression of the whole affair from start to finish."

Marian looked at him in consternation. An impression of the whole affair—that meant a word etching of the political battle being constantly waged in their city.

As the eldest daughter of a former commissioner she had been reared in the political arena. When other girls were reading Gene Stratton Porter and Margaret Ward, she had been studying political economy. While her school companions attended theatres and dances, she attended pre-election get-togethers, making careful note of her father's speeches, and of his opponents.

Fortunately for her, her father's sister had intervened and instead of going to a co-educational college where she might have majored in her father's favorite subject, she attended a good girls' school and her interest had been diverted to literature.

However, her knowledge of political factors in her home city had made her of value to her editors when she eventually entered the newspaper field, and it seemed to her that she was used more for this type of work than for the special assignments she preferred.

Bowen had leaned back, lighted a cigar and now spoke from the corner of his mouth not occupied by the manila hemp. "I already know that William Brown, chief building inspector, was indicted by the Grand Jury on the charge of having bribed his way through a dollar bribe from the Maddern Construction company, soon after that company had won the contract for the East Brazos High school building."

"I know the faction backing this city commissioner has paid for his defense. I know this, but proving it's another thing. I know our faction is trying its level best to send him to the penitentiary. And, if they prove the money came from the Maddern people they'll send someone along from there to keep him company."

"I'm a little bit hazy on how this all started, but there were women mixed up in it . . . there usually are when a man comes that kind of a cropper. So begin at the beginning Ian, give me the whole story as though I knew nothing about it at all."

Marian gave a despairing glance in the general direction of Tony Gazetti's flower stand, drew a wad of copy paper from one pocket, a stubby pencil from another and began to talk and to draw round eyed Mickey Mouses, as she talked.

"This William Brown is handsome as a movie star, if you like that kind of looks, I don't. He was engaged to a girl by the name of Jenny Case. They were waiting to be married until he had saved enough money for a down payment on a home, furnishings and the necessary ring."

"Meanwhile Jenny was living in an apartment with Linda Carlton, Brown's secretary."

"One noon, while passing a fur-nature store. Jenny looked in and discovered Linda Carlton and William Brown looking at dining room suites. As their apartment had a built-in breakfast-nook and no place for said suite, she knew they weren't planning to buy it as a surprise for her. At least not the kind of a surprise she wanted.

PROGRAMS TO STRESS NEED FOR CAUTION

PRESIDENT POINTS TO NEED FOR MORE INTEREST

Pampa, a city of few fires in recent years, nevertheless will give several days' attention to fire prevention.

In the interest of the prosperity and well-being of the citizens of this country, President Roosevelt has proclaimed this as National Fire Prevention week.

Disastrous fires destroy each year property of many kinds to a total greater than the whole value of all property in the Nation in the days of our forefathers.

It is the simple obligation of every citizen to realize, knowing this, that a large proportion of these fires can be prevented by the exercise of proper care and by the use of proper fire prevention measures.

Local plans provide for an intensive educational campaign in which the press, churches, schools, chamber of commerce, fire department and others have been asked to cooperate.

The sagging Cardinal defense let in the fifth and decisive Tiger run in this frame.

LeFors Pirates Defeat Happy Jacks 29 to 0

The LeFors Pirates, clicking like a group of veterans, last night downed the Happy Jacks 29-0 under the lights at Shaw field in LeFors.

A blocked punt by Moore and Flynn was recovered by Happy behind the goal line and was grounded for three points soon after the game got under way.

manager with a drive to center and then tied the score in the fourth after Jo-Jo White made the circuit on a series of wild plays in the Tiger half of the same frame.

Frisch Criticized Second-guessing Frisch, after the accident, it was easy to criticize his judgment in risking the welfare of his most valuable pitching asset unnecessarily.

Auker retired the Cardinals without further damage to either side getting Jack Rothrock on fly to left and Martin on a force-play at second following Frisch's grounder.

Errors Pile Up Two more Cardinal errors, coupled with Walker's wildness and base hits by Rogell, Greenberg and Owen accounted for a cluster of five Tiger runs in the eighth.

Centenary Gents Are Beaten First Time In 3 Years

NORMAN, Okla., Oct. 6 (AP)—The University of Oklahoma's gridsters, aided and abetted by a last quarter inspiration of Jeff Coker, a wing-beeled junior right end, nosed out a 7 to 0 victory over the Gentlemen from Centenary here this afternoon.

A fast junior from Antlers, Okla., one Jack Harris, dashed from his end position early in the final quarter, got his body in the path of a punt off the toe of Neal Crowther, a Centenary quarterback substitute, and the bounding ball went to the end zone, out yards from the pile of entangled Gents and Sooners.

In hot pursuit was Coker, who is as fleet as Harris and patrols the opposite end. Jeff overtook the pigskin as it bounced shoulder high, slammed on the brakes and touched it down for the only score of the game.

Almost unbelievable to some older men, but nevertheless true is the statement that caliche has been placed on all of the Pampa-McLean highway which is not paved.

PORKERS BEAT FROGS IN UP HILL BATTLE

ARKANSAS SCORES 24 POINTS AGAINST 10 FOR TCU

BY BILL PARKER
 FORT WORTH, Oct. 6. (AP)—Arkansas University's powerful senior line and fleet backfield, uncrowned Southwest conference champions of 1933, fought a marvelous up hill battle today to start the 19th annual Southwest conference championship campaign with a 24 to 10 victory over Texas Christian before an estimated crowd of 6,000.

The Razorbacks' triumph was deserved due to their comeback in the final three periods that erased the Christians 10 to 0 lead. It was a sensational climb from their zero score to a touchdown in the second period, touchdown and field goal in the third, chapter and a touchdown in the final period.

The outstanding point of the game occurred in the second period with Texas Christian leading 10 to 7. Elvin Geiser, halfback, stepped back to the Frogs' 35-yard line and booted a field goal that tied the score 10-10. The ball barely cleared the cross bar, but it made its goal and its success was enough to melt much of the fighting starch out of the Christians.

4 Pampans Ride Denver's Zephyr

Mr. and Mrs. Julian Barrett and Mr. and Mrs. Gilmore N. Nunn yesterday inspected the Burlington's new streamlined train, The Zephyr, and rode on it from Amarillo to Memphis as guests of General John A. Hulen, vice-president of the Fort Worth & Denver.

They found the stainless steel wonder to be swift, very quiet, and comfortable. They could not hear the whistle, neither could they hear an airplane which flew alongside the train part of the way. The train is notable for the absence of rattles, smoke, hissing of steam, and shrill whistle which are expected of ordinary trains.

At Amarillo, 8,372 persons passed through the train. The local residents rode back to Amarillo on the company's No. 1 from Memphis.

WOMEN OF the nation are the leading buyers. They are also the leading bargain hunters. There is a vast relationship in these two statements. Bargain hunting has done as much as anything else to perpetuate sweat shops in the textile and other industries.

The committee in charge of the campaign is headed by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, and includes leaders of most of the big national organizations. Governor Ferguson, in her appeal to Texas women, said, "I think all women naturally have an aversion to sweatshops because they know their products, their very existence, is based upon the labor of women and little children who work for a mere pittance under the worst possible conditions."

The Hon. Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, who is an ardent advocate of the label, points out that in the last analysis the success of the anti-sweatshop campaign must lie with the consumer. "The safety of our industrial standards rests with an informed public opinion," said Miss Perkins.

In the months immediately preceding it, both workers and manufacturers had learned something from the devastating fight for markets and jobs that marked the fierce competition of the depression. Manufacturers with a will to be fair to their employees were finding themselves unable to compete with ruthless price cutting.

The NRA label was devised to defeat these common enemies. It is a badge of honor on all clothes made under the decent conditions of hours, wages and sanitation laid down by the various needlework codes.

The label is issued only to those who sign a certificate of compliance. Men familiar with the needlework industry investigate factories and payrolls and are alert for the slightest semblance of violation. When a violation is discovered in any given factory, the supply of labels is stopped until the manufacturer has made full restitution to the workers for any shortage in wages.

Women who are interesting themselves in the campaign include representatives of the National Council of Women, and many other groups devoting themselves to human betterment. Pampa clubs could well follow their example.

IT WOULD be fine if the government could restrict its activities and let its citizens work out their own destinies. Unfortunately, the government expresses the mass will and what the people will is carried out.

The Morro Castle disaster recently meant little to Pampa, but it pointed out to every reader how the trend for more federal control grows from year to year. The first of the wrecks that started this trend was that of La Bourgoyne, on July 4, 1898. Bound from New York to France with 725 passengers and crew, she collided with a sailing ship in a fog and sank in forty minutes.

Recipe for New Cheese Loaf Is Given H. D. Club

Cottage cheese has a mild flavor and combines well with a number of fruits and vegetables. This makes it very useful for salads and open face sandwiches. Miss Ruby Adams, county home demonstration agent, said at a meeting of Laketon club at the home of Mrs. Lawton Hoffer Thursday.

The cheese can be used in other ways also. Miss Adams made cottage cheese and nut loaf and served it with tomato sauce to make a delicious and nourishing dish.

Her recipe follows: 2 cups cottage cheese, 1 cup chopped nuts, 1/2 cup roasted peanuts and 2 tablespoons peanut butter, 1 cup dry bread or cracker crumbs, 1 cup leftover cereal, 2 tablespoons chopped onion, 1 tablespoon fat salt and pepper, 1-3 teaspoon soda if desired. Make into a loaf and bake 20 or 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve immediately with any highly seasoned tomato sauce or plain tomato sauce.

Good, clean, pleasant flavored rubber-milk requires about 30 hours to develop for cottage cheese at 75 degrees temperature, while the rennet method requires a very short time and makes a finer texture, more desirable flavor, and uniform product.

The liquid form of rennet requires three drops to 10 pints of pounds of milk, and the tablet requires 10 drops to 30 pints of milk.

Cottage cheese combines well with pineapple, prunes, baked apples, berries, tomatoes, raisins, dates; or celery, vegetable jellied salad, bell pepper, pimiento, onion, or parsley. Miss Adams showed with pictures.

It has the same food value as skim milk and can be used to advantage in children's school lunches as well as for fancy, dainty open sandwiches, on cookies or graham crackers.

Following the short business session refreshments were served to five guests. Mmes. Tackett, Tom Breeding, R. L. Shelton, T. Kheeny, and Sam Arnett; Miss Adams, and nine members, Mmes. Leo Paris, Clyde Gray, Chess Terry, M. L. Roberts, Edgar Gray, H. I. Gillispie, Nettie Atlaway, C. V. Talley, and the hostess.

Texas Heroes Are Studied by Pupils At Woodrow Wilson

In keeping with Texas Centennial enthusiasm, pupils of one sixth grade division at Woodrow Wilson school have made booklets on Texas Heroes as their first project this year.

The books are decorated according to individual taste, with Texas map outlines and Lone Star flags as favorites. Every book contained sketches of Sam Houston and Stephen F. Austin, but many of the lesser-known Texas heroes received attention.

Another division of the sixth grade has completed notebooks on Panhandle trees and native plants, containing pressed specimens and data about a variety of plants.

Teachers Offer Scholarships to Superior Pupils

Samuel Pendleton, piano teacher, and Verlon Twaddell, instructor in voice in Pampa conservatory, have announced that they will give to any of their pupils receiving a rating of highly superior in the Panhandle or Tri-State music festivals next spring, a full scholarship for the summer term beginning June 1.

The annual musical contests have stimulated interest in fine music in this section. Mr. Pendleton, who had two highly superior entries last spring, and Mr. Twaddell believe that pupils who plan their work with this competition in view will show more enthusiastically and show greater progress.

Further information regarding the scholarship offer may be secured from either of the teachers.

Films to Teach Alanreed Pupils

ALANREED, Oct. 6.—Visual education for students of Alanreed schools will be under way soon with the showing of reels of educational films. It has been announced.

A demonstration film shown for the faculty-trustee banquet guests Tuesday night drew applause from State Deputy Supervisor Bryan Dickson, with Gray County Supt. John B. Hessey and Supt. O. B. Miller of Wheeler county, was an honor guest.

"Children remember what they see," said Supt. Dillard in commenting on plans to show an educational picture each week during the remainder of the term. "Visual impressions are easier, more swiftly, and more clearly recalled by the student than others. The selective emphasis of pictures takes the fuzziest out of a student's ideas and gives him a definite conception."

Visual education is a plan having endorsement of leading educational psychologists, and seldom is found in any but the largest of schools, educators say.

Recipients of the Disastrous Effect of the Dissipation of Energy Occasioned by the Prolonged Waste of Gas in the Vicinity of our West Schafer Lease, a Part of our Schafer Ranch Holdings in Carson County, Texas, as Reflected by the Recent Completion of Oil Wells on that Property.

As requested by you and Mr. Dickinson, I shall endeavor to give you a brief though definite impression of the disastrous effect of the dissipation of energy occasioned by the prolonged waste of gas in the vicinity of our West Schafer lease, a part of our Schafer Ranch holdings in Carson County, Texas, as reflected by the recent completion of oil wells on that property.

If you will refer to a map of this area, you will find that we have drilled twelve wells on a portion of the South Half of Section 87, and eight wells in the Northeast portion of Section 68, immediately adjoining No. 87 on the South, and five wells in the Southeast Quarter of Section 88 to the East. All of these wells, except Nos. 29, 30, 31, and 32, were drilled prior to approximately a year ago, and the earliest ones approximately four years ago. These wells, that is, those drilled prior to a year ago, varied in productivity but averaged approximately 375 to 400 barrels each, with some of them exceeding 500 and even 600 barrels.

Within the last few months, we have completed wells Nos. 29, 30, 31, and 32, constituting the north line of the wells in the South Half of Section 87, and we were so confident, judging by previous development, that these particular locations would be profitably productive that we drilled all four of these wells and No. 33, one location north of this row of wells, and in the Southeast Quarter of the Northwest Quarter of Section 87, simultaneously. Imagine our surprise and disappointment when, upon drilling the producing formation, which was, incidentally, found at the depth anticipated, we found it to be so depleted of its energy that, whereas previous wells had filled up with oil approximately 1200 to 1400 feet, these wells would fill up no more than approximately half that amount. Upon taking shut-in-bottom-hole pressure readings, as has been our practice for several years in completing wells, we found that in the case of one well, the pressure was so depleted that it failed to record at all with our instrument, that must have at least 135 pounds' pressure to record. Consequently, we do not know what the pressure of this well is, but do know that it is less than 135 pounds. The other wells ranged from 180 to 268 pounds' pressure. One of these wells will not produce in excess of 10 barrels, another well made 26 barrels, another well made 38 barrels, another made 42 barrels, while the two remaining wells have not yet been tested, but we estimate their productive capacity at not to exceed 25 barrels daily.

In view of the fact that these particular wells were drilled in the definitely proven trend, and, in fact, along the most prolific portion of the proven trend, we anticipated an initial productive capacity for each of the wells of at least ten times what we secured. We can think of no possible explanation for this deplorable state of affairs other than that disclosed by the bottom-hole pressure readings, indicating an abnormally low pressure, which in turn could have been caused only by waste of gas.

I would not, as much, as I dislike the operation, lay all of the blame for this on the stripping plant of the Cargray Corporation immediately south of the area under consideration, as the process of wasteful depletion of pressure had been going on for several years before this plant was ever placed in operation. However, I am thoroughly convinced that the tremendous withdrawal of gas from the relatively few wells in the relatively small area upon which they are located, that are connected to this plant, are responsible more than any other single thing for the very abrupt drop in pressure that we have experienced on our West Schafer lease during the last year.

Prior to the disappointing experience above recited, we had estimated that we would have approximately fifty to sixty more wells to drill on our West Schafer property. In view of the above recent experience, we now seriously doubt whether we will drill any more wells or not, despite the fact that nothing has occurred to indicate that there are any fewer acres of oil producing territory under this lease than we formerly estimated. The trouble is an obvious one—we simply do not see how we can afford to drill wells 3200 feet deep that do not have an initial productive capacity greater than those above referred to, most recently completed.

If we assume fifty wells that would normally have been drilled, and assume 100,000 barrels per well as a normal expectancy of producing capacity for each well, we arrive at a total of 5,000,000 barrels of oil, that two years ago I would have been extremely confident of our producing from this property over and above what I now feel will be a reasonable expectation.

This is but one shining, although glaring, example of the disastrous effects of the waste of gas in the Panhandle of Texas oil and gas field, regardless of whether such waste is being permitted by the oil producers, the gas producers, stripping plant operators, or the dry gas pipe line. The disastrous results are the same, regardless of who is responsible for them.

The experience of ours that I have briefly touched upon herein is a concrete example of the waste, oil-production-wise, that was predicted at the hearing of the Texas State Senate Investigating Committee in Amarillo last April, when competent and uncontradicted testimony was introduced to the effect that if the waste of gas continued (and it has not only continued, but increased), probably one-half of the normal expectancy of recoverable oil in that area, some 800,000,000 barrels, would be lost by being left in the ground unrecoverable. That is precisely what is going to happen, only the percentage will be more than 50%—it will be nearly 75% in the case of our West Schafer lease.

Your very truly,
(Signed) H. M. STALCUP

PAMPA ELECTRIC RATES REDUCED 60% DURING 9 YEAR PERIOD

When this company purchased the Electric System at Pampa in 1925 the top lighting rate was 20c. The new low rates bring this figure down to 8c which is a reduction of 60%. The average price per kWh on all electricity used shows a reduction which is even more startling, being 76%.

Few who use electric service realize how much they depend upon it—how much more of it they use each year—and how much more electric service a dollar will buy than in previous years. The "Light Bill" you receive each month is more properly an "electric living bill." In a few short years, hundreds of Pampa homes have turned to Electric Refrigeration. Every home has an electric iron and most homes have vacuum cleaners, percolators and the many other wonderful electric servants.

An array of electrical devices giving greater comfort, convenience, safety and economy are available at Pampa stores. Each operates TO REDUCE THE COST OF YOUR ELECTRIC SERVICE—for the more kilowatt-hours you use, the less each costs.

Under the new low rates, you can, with proper lighting and the general use of modern electric appliances, make your home attractive, comfortable and thoroughly enjoyable at a surprisingly low cost.
