Shuttle engines pass test of cold endurance

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Columbia's crew was troubleshooting a radio today as the shuttle passed a major test of engine endurance in the bitter cold of space. A weather forecast for New Mexico called for adequate landing conditions next Monday, despite gusting winds.

There was a chance the radio problem could cut the flight short, or that New Mexico sandstorms could keep the ship aloft an extra day. But Flight Director Neil Hutchinson said he expected neither to happen, that Columbia would come home on Monday as scheduled.

Just after midnight, while astronauts Jack R. Lousma and pilot C. Gordon Fullerton slept, they sailed through the midpoint of their planned seven-day voyage. A forecast from White Sands Missile Range predicted Monday's landing conditions would be acceptable despite winds gusting to 20 miles an hour.

Mission Control said scientists were excited about the information they'd received from Columbia's experiments, and Lousma responded,

"We're pleased to hear it, that's what we came here to do."

When the astronauts awoke, they received "top of the morning" greetings from Mission Control along with teleprinted instruction on how to tackle a failure in the ship-to-shore radio system. Like in any office system, they encountered a glitch here — the printer was feeding wildly for a short time.

Thursday, the low-power section of one of two S-band communications transponders failed and officials said that if it cannot be fixed, they would consider terminating the flight early. The high-power side of the failed unit was operating when checks were made today.

Even with both transponders out, Columbia could land safely, the flight director said. He reported several ground stations can communicate with the spacecraft through UHF channels and that much of the reentry and landing is conducted through UHF.

Hutchinson raised the possibility of an extended mission, should high winds predicted at the White Sands Missile Range persist into Monday, blowing up the fine gypsum sand and reducing visibility.

He said that by conserving fuel and power, NASA expected to save enough of both to operate Columbia an extra day in orbit.

For two days, the shuttle's nose has faced the sun, leaving the tail section and its engines and fuel tanks in freezing shadow, exposed to temperatures as low as 215 degrees below zero.

NASA engineers don't believe the cold will affect the ability of the fuels or engines to function. Lousma and Fullerton were to find out today by firing two of the powerplants in one of the major thermal tests of Columbia's third shakedown cruise.

The first test went perfectly; if there were a problem with the second, early this evening, the astronauts would turn the tail to the sun and heat up the units — just as they did on Wednesday when exposure to the cold froze sealing material and prevented a tight closing of the cargo bay doors.

Also today, the astronauts executed another grab-and-lift test with the 50-foot robot arm and a 353-pound instrument package. Thursday's arm performance went equally well.

Rebels in Nicaragua, Cuba and El Salvador want to talk

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Nicaraguan leftist junta leader Daniel Ortega says his government will immediately seek reconciliation with the United States if the Reagan administration will "voice its commitment not to attack Nicaragua." Ortega made the offer Thursday at a special session of the 15-nation U.N. Security Council. The meeting was convened at his government's request to hear charges that U.S.-backed forces are planning an imminent attack on Nicaragua.

Ortega said Cuba and the leftist guerrillas fighting to topple the U.S.-backed junta in El Salvador also are willing to join in reconciliation talks "without preconditions."

U.S. officials have confirmed that former CIA Deputy Director Vernon Walters, now a key aide to Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., traveled to Havana last week for the first direct contact between a Reagan administration member and Cuban President Fidel Castro.

"We are willing to begin immediately direct and frank conversations with the government of the United States, even in a mutually agreeable third country, with the objective of reaching concrete results through such negotiations," Ortega said.

U.S. Ambassador Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, president of the council for March, called Ortega's invasion charges "as extravagant as they are baseless." She told reporters later she did not want to comment on Ortega's proposal for talks until she had time to study it.

Nicaragua's leftist government frequently has accused the Reagan administration of backing plans for an invasion of the Central American nation. The White House in turn claims Nicaragua is funneling Cuban arms to the guerrillas fighting in neighboring El Salvador.

Ortega demanded a halt to what he said was the Reagan administration's policy of financing and arming Nicaraguan exiles based in neighboring Honduras.

The Nicaraguan leader requested an "explicit pronouncement" from the Security Council that would support peaceful resolution of the conflicts in Central America, as well as "repudiation of any direct, indirect or covert intervention in Central America."

Mrs. Kirkpatrick said the Reagan administration "would be very much opposed to any action by the Security Council on the Nicaraguan question," which should be taken up by the Organization of American States.

Most OAS member governments are pro-American, whereas most U.N. members are not.

Secretary of State Haig recently sent Nicaragua a peace plan via Mexican Foreign Minister Jorge Castaneda. It calls for an OAS commitment of non-aggression and non-intervention in Central America, a regional ban on importing heavy offensive weapons, a halt to the activities of Nicaraguan exile groups in the United States and renewed U.S. aid if Nicaragua honors the other proposals.

Rehired controllers were harassed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some fired air traffic controllers are being rehired, but administration sources say the number probably will come to only "a couple of hundred" who can prove they were harassed or intimidated into striking.

Transportation Department and White House spokesmen insisted Thursday that the administration's policy against rehiring the fired controllers has not changed.

But the administration officials acknowledged that three fired controllers recently returned to controller jobs after convincing the Federal Aviation Administration that their dismissal was unjustified.

The agency also is reviewing about 1,000 other cases to determine whether those dismissals were warranted, FAA officials said.

The controllers launched an illegal strike Aug. 3, and President Reagan dismissed them two days later. The 11,400 former controllers have been barred from returning to work for the FAA.

Stinnett man burned in flash fire at oil well

A 22-year-old Stinnett man was burned in a flash fire Thursday at an oil well, 11 miles south of Bowers City.

Raymond Yates is in fair condition today at Coronado Community Hospital, after suffering first- and second-degree burns to his face and arms.

Authorities said Yates, an employee of Collins Well Service of Borger, lit a match and ignited the flash fire.

The accident occurred around 4:42 p.m. on Melton Lease Number 4.

The victim of a flash fire Monday, Jackie Curtis Jr., 24, of 2557 Aspen was released from the Parkland Hospital Burn Center in Dallas Wednesday and has returned to Pampa for recuperation.

Curtis received first- and second-degree burns on seven percent of his body in a fire at the Curtis Well Servicing Company yard on Price Road.

Curtis was treated at Coronado Community Hospital before his transfer to the Intensive Care Unit at Parkland.

Cause of that flash fire is undetermined.

County maintains old road that now leads to private home

BY JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

Precinct 3 Gray County Commissioner Jimmy McCracken authorized the use of county materials and county equipment and crews this week to maintain what appears to be a private drive to a new house, about 11 miles south of Pampa.

But McCracken said the drive is actually the original county road between Groom and Lefors that was heavily traveled for many years.

The house, listed at Star Route 2, Box 190, is owned by Howard Reed, and the land is owned by Elmer Milton, according to county records and McCracken.

According to Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy and the Texas Attorney General's Office, it is against the law to use county equipment and supplies on private property.

The private drive leads from FM 749, right up to the garage of the home.

A source told The Pampa News that two Precinct 3 county dump trucks and crews began dumping loads of caliche gravel on the drive about 3 p.m. Tuesday. The dumping continued for about eight hours Wednesday, and county road graders and crews leveled the road until about 1 p.m. Thursday. All told, county crews and equipment worked on the drive about 15 hours, and approximately 90 loads of caliche gravel were used on the drive.

Judge Kennedy said, "As a general rule, the county is not supposed to work on private roads — no grading, or anything. It is against state law. If somebody used (county) equipment on somebody's driveway, that is not supposed to be done."

However, Kennedy said if a school bus makes a stop at a country house, a drive might be considered a public road.

The Texas Attorney General's Office cited an opinion that made reference to the old Texas Penal Code, providing for a prison term for misapplication of county property and equipment.

Kennedy explained that each county precinct maintains its own county barn and road equipment and crews. The judge said each commissioner authorizes road work to be done in his precinct, and each submits a budget for the fiscal year's road and bridge work. The separate budgets are paid out of the county's total road and bridge fund. The road and bridge funds come from the county's property taxes and from the sale of license plates.

In addition to the dump trucks and blades, county pickups and rollers were used on the driveway, which winds about 200 yards from FM 749 to the house.

McCracken said he authorized the work. Asked if the driveway work ran all the way to the house's garage, McCracken said, "in that vicinity, yeah."

Asked if there were legal provisions for the county's performing the work, McCracken said, "That's really kind of an old road there that had been maintained for about 20 years. These people came in there and built a new home, so I was doing a little work rebuilding that old road there. You know, they couldn't get in or out."

Informed the road appeared to be a private drive, the commissioner said, "You could pretty near call it that, I guess. There was an old road there, and it had some caliche on it."

Asked how much each load of caliche cost the county, he replied, "I imagine that fella charges a dollar a load, I don't know. I'm probably going to let those people pay for the whole works there. I imagine I will let those people (Reed) pay for the dirt."

Asked if the county provided the equipment and crews, McCracken said, "Yeah, when we're caught up, we just kind of maintain the road there."

"Sometimes, it's kind of hard to tell what you call private and what's not when you get out here in the pasture," McCracken said.

The commissioner said every person who builds a new home in the county has a right to a road to the property, McCracken acknowledged that Reed's house sits smack on the road, but "there is nothing in writing about deeds and easements on any county road."

McCracken denied that the driveway the county surfaced joins with Reed's garage door. "We lack a little getting to their garage door. They have a stretch of red dirt hauled in there from their garage out to approximately where a street or road might be, and I imagine they will cement that eventually. You know, I wouldn't get up against their house — some motor grader operator might knock the corner off their house," McCracken said.

Reed said the road or drive to his house was already there when his house was built. He said an old house across the drive from his home was burned down. Reed said, "They just improved the road. Part of that road is where the school bus drives and where the electricity lines run, I don't know." He said the road extends past his house down to some oil wells.

Asked if the road ran next to his garage door, he said, "Yeah." Asked if the county was going to charge him for work on the drive, he said, "Well, I agreed to pay whatever Jim felt like was necessary, if he uses anything up to my driveway. So far, they have not taken anything up to my driveway."

Asked what the county did to the road, he said, "They just made it where we could drive on it. They came in and cleaned it up and smoothed it up and put some caliche on it."

McCracken said, "What I do is public and all above board. I believe in helping people. We do as good a job on these roads as anybody in the state."

McCracken is a farmer in Precinct 3 who has represented the district on the commissioner's court nearly 16 years. Reed is employed by a Pampa auto parts store.

Israeli armor rolls into West Bank

RAMALLAH, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Israel rolled armored personnel carriers into the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River in its strongest show of force in more than a week of Palestinian protests that have left seven Arabs and one Israeli dead.

The armored vehicles, carrying heavy machine guns, appeared in Nablus and Ramallah Thursday, shortly after the mayors of both cities were fired by Israeli authorities. The dismissal of another West Bank mayor last week triggered the Palestinian demonstrations.

Masked attackers hurled grenades at an Israeli army vehicle in the occupied

Gaza Strip Thursday, killing one soldier and wounding three others as well as three Arab bystanders. Sgt. Pinhas Grossmark, 30, was the first Israeli killed in the latest violence in the occupied territories. The military command said the ambushers escaped into a nearby orange grove.

In Beirut, the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine claimed responsibility for the attack. But the Palestine Liberation Organization, a grouping of eight separate guerrilla armies including the Democratic Front, denied the claim in a telephone call to The Associated Press.

The dismissals of Mayor Bassam Shakaa of Nablus and Kerim Khala of Ramallah came under sharp attack by Israel's opposition Labor Party which said the action was certain to worsen the Jewish state's relations with the Palestinians. The move also fueled one-hour sympathy strikes in Lebanon, Syria and Jordan.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Dean Fischer expressed the Reagan administration's "profound concern" over the deteriorating situation in the occupied territories, captured by Israel in the 1967 Middle East war. He cited the "tragic and needless deaths and injuries" to both sides and said the administration regrets Israel's decision to remove the elected Palestinians from office.

The Israeli government said Shakaa and Khalaf were fired for incitement, repeatedly disrupting public order and — alleged under PLO instructions — failing to cooperate with Israeli civilian authorities.

Murder victim lived in Pampa briefly

AMARILLO — Two Amarillo women were indicted Tuesday by an Amarillo grand jury in connection with the death of a 22-year-old woman, who briefly lived in Pampa a short time before her death.

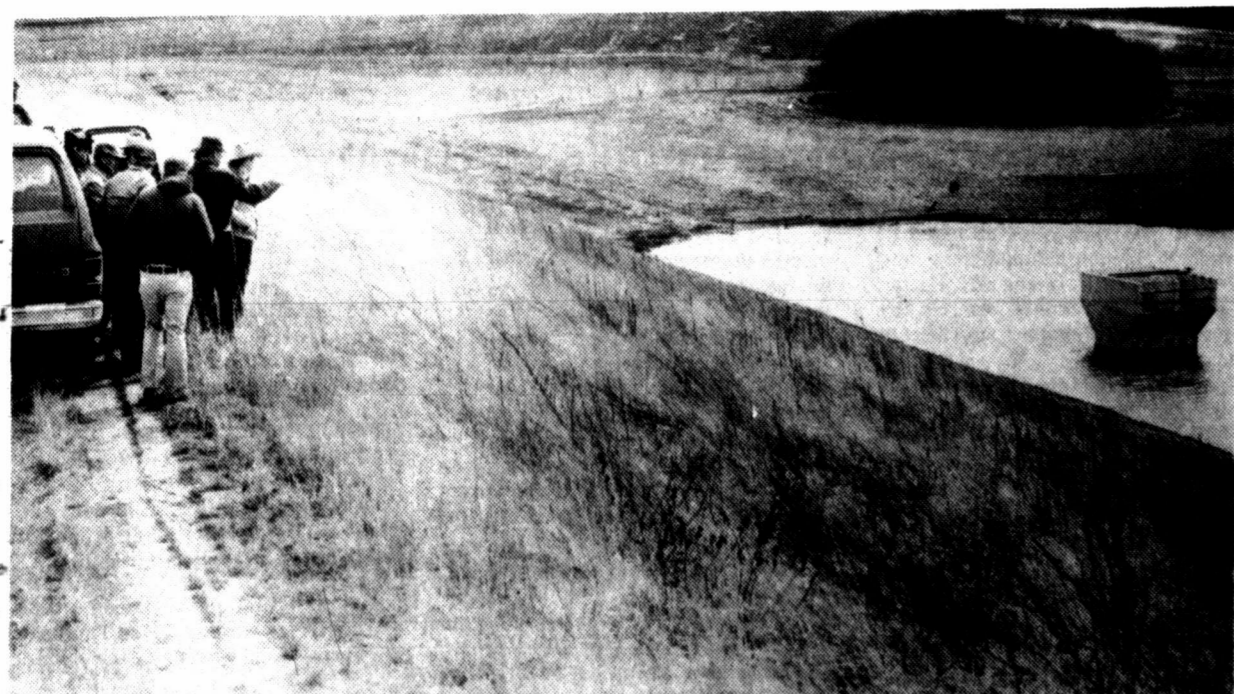

The decomposed body of Gladys Keijner was discovered by cowboys about 24 miles northeast of Amarillo in Potter County in July 1980.

According to Police Chief J.J. Ryzman, Keijner had lived in Pampa about three weeks before she was address of the victim was 1328 Coffee. Ryzman said his department has been assisting the Major Crimes Unit in Amarillo in connection with the death, but "at this time, there is no indication the murder occurred in our jurisdiction."

The indictment charges Melody Bartolo, 24, and Patricia Dones, 28, both of Amarillo, with the murder of Keijner.

Police said the suspects and victim had been dancers at an Amarillo

U.S. Attorney says he can't prosecute major CIA source

SAN DIEGO (AP) — U.S. Attorney William Kennedy says he has not been able to prosecute a former Mexican official in an $8 million stolen car case because the man is considered the CIA's "most important source in Mexico and Central America."

Kennedy said Miguel Nassar Haro, who headed Mexico's Federal Security Agency until January, has been implicated by U.S. investigators in a ring that has stolen $8.4 million in cars in San Diego and Orange counties and smuggled them into Mexico.

In an interview published today in the San Diego Union, Kennedy said prosecution of Nassar was recommended last November, but the Justice Department has not decided the matter yet, because of concerns expressed by the CIA and the FBI's legal attache in Mexico City, Gordon McGinley.

The paper said McGinley and a CIA agent identified only as Max were at a meeting in Mexico City last July 25 where Nassar was described as "absolutely indispensable." At that meeting, the paper said, U.S. Embassy and Justice Department officials were told, "If we lost him, it would be a disaster."

Kennedy said, "I realize this must be factored in, but I'm concerned about the victims — car owners or the insurance companies that have paid off claims.

"We repeatedly have voiced the view that prosecution must proceed," he said. "No one has said these indictments cannot be returned, but it is still a matter of concern and debate in Washington."

Kennedy said he was told a meeting was scheduled today in Washington, D.C., between the Justice Department and CIA officials to resolve the impasse.

However, the Union said it learned that the CIA lost interest in Nassar after he left his security directorship in Mexico and the agency says it is not responsible for delaying his prosecution.

GOP powers warn Reagan they may rewrite budget without him

WASHINGTON (AP) — Frustrated by President Reagan's intransigence on budget compromise, Republican leaders in Congress are telling him they're about ready to rewrite his red-ink budget with or without him.

"I can't wait forever," said Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee.

"Maybe I have to move on the shoulder and get around this stalled caravan," said House Republican Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois.

Reagan, speaking to reporters Thursday night at a state dinner for Italian President Sandro Pertini, said he "just can't retreat on the fundamentals" of his proposed budget.

But, he said, "I think we will find there's some talking room." Asked whether he meant a compromise, the president replied: "Not in the sense of abandoning the fundamentals of our programs."

Baker said the Senate Budget Committee probably will begin work on a 1983 spending outline next week unless there are indications of compromise from Reagan.

A Senate GOP source who asked not to be quoted by name said Baker's remarks were "a signal to the White House that we're running out of time."

Michel, meanwhile, said he has found in talks with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., and other Democrats, that "the hard positions on the Democratic side have been somewhat softened" regarding cuts in politically sensitive government benefit programs and other issues.

Michel said he hopes Reagan now will demonstrate a flexibility of his own by the time Congress begins an Easter recess next week.

"You've got to cross the Rubicon sometime," Michel said.

Majority Republicans in the Senate had hoped to delay work on drafting a budget outline until Reagan agreed to an alternative budget worked out in advance with Republicans and Democrats. But, so far, Reagan has made no specific concessions.

A Senate source said chairmen of the Senate's budget and tax-writing committees "can't hold their committees off much longer."

Members of both political parties have virtually agreed that reducing deficits will require a mix involving:

Jenkins wins seat in Parliament

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — Roy Jenkins, co-leader of the fledgling Social Democratic Party, won a special parliamentary election and gained a shot at becoming Britain's next prime minister.

resigning in 1977 to serve a four-year term as chief of the 10-nation European Commission in Brussels.

declared: "I shall walk home on air. We've got back into Parliament the man who will lead the alliance and will be prime minister in waiting."

Jenkins, a former Labor Party chancellor of the exchequer, polled 2,088 more votes than his Conservative opponent in Thursday's balloting, ending a 63-year Conservative hammerlock on Glasgow's Hillhead district.

Jenkins, 61, ran as a joint candidate of the SDP and the tiny Liberal Party, the alliance that has now posted three straight victories over Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservatives in six months.

Jenkins desperately needed the Hillhead victory to become alliance leader in the fall and take the centrist movement into the next general election due in 1984. Hillhead was his last foreseeable chance of returning to the House of Commons before fall.

"This election has shown we are seriously in the business of presenting a third alternative choice for the next general election of this country," said Jenkins, who also beat a Labor Party candidate.

"No seat in the country is now safe from the challenge of the alliance," Liberal Party leader David Steele declared.

Abscam probe panel is named by Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker is promising a "demonstrably impartial" Senate probe of the FBI's Abscam inquiry that led to the conviction of seven congressmen on criminal charges.

Baker said the Senate has approved $250,000 for the committee's expenses. The four Democrats on the panel are Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii, who was Williams' chief defender in recent Senate debate on whether to expel the New Jersey Democrat; Walter D. Huddleston of Kentucky; Dennis DeConcini of Arizona; and Patrick J. Leahy of Vermont.

Baker said he will probably name the four Republicans next week. He said he was reluctant to accept the idea of a special committee to conduct the investigation but was persuaded by colleagues that it was necessary to guarantee impartiality.

It's not a fishing expedition. It's not a witch hunt. It's not an attempt to hang or whitewash the FBI or the Justice Department," the Tennessee Republican said Thursday.

He made the statement as he announced formation of a bipartisan committee of eight senators to look into charges, made by former Sen. Harrison A. Williams and others, that the FBI abused its power with the undercover Abscam probe.

The special Senate committee will have until Dec. 15 — and longer, if necessary — to report.

U.S. envoy claims rebels to disrupt polling

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist guerrillas twice attacked El Salvador's election headquarters, and U.S. Ambassador Deane R. Hinton predicted the rebels would try "something spectacular" to disrupt Sunday's balloting.

Guerrillas raiders fired on the Central Elections Council building here for about 20 minutes Thursday afternoon until troops drove them off. A six-hour battle earlier in the day had brought the guerrillas to within a few hundred yards of the election headquarters.

Rebel bands also mounted sporadic attacks around the country, and continued to hold the town of Yoloiquin, the closest they have come to San Francisco Gotera, capital of Morazan province, army spokesmen said. The military said eight soldiers were killed when the town was overrun

Hinton claimed the leftists have received more arms in the past three months than ever before "and you will be seeing the result in the next few days."

The immediate aim was "something spectacular" to upset polling Sunday, Hinton said, but added the type of action planned was not known by the U.S. Embassy.

He repeated U.S. claims that some of the weapons were arriving from Nicaragua with the knowledge of that nation's leftist Sandinista government, a charge the Managua regime has consistently denied.

Asked about statements by Guillermo Ungo, head of the Democratic Revolutionary Front, a coalition of Salvadoran leftist political parties, that rebels would not try to disrupt the elections, Hinton replied: "We're seeing it now. Those attacks in San little attack on the Central Electoral Commission (sic). Who the hell is he kidding?"

The ambassador also said that ultra-rightist candidate Roberto D'Aubuisson is the leading contender in Sunday's balloting for Constituent Assembly seats. D'Aubuisson, a retired army major reportedly described by Hinton's predecessor as a "pathological killer," heads the Republic Nationalist Alliance Party. Hinton called him a dynamic leader.

Scattered firefights between troops and guerrillas were reported Thursday at several points between the capital and Usulután, 70 miles east of here. Large numbers of troops were out along the road to Usulután and heavy firing was heard to the southeast near La

Fire ants expected to continue march

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Ravenous and sometimes deadly fire ants probably cannot be eradicated and will continue their steady march toward the rich agricultural fields of the Pacific Coast, experts say.

Most insect specialists "agree that eradicating fire ants is no longer possible," Dr. Richard Lipsey of the Kenco Chemical and Manufacturing Corp. of Jacksonville, Fla., told a fire ant conference Thursday.

"Fire ants occupy over 230 million acres with no significant natural enemies to keep their populations in check," Lipsey said. He said the ants, which have decimated corn and soybean crops in the Southeast, are as far west as Texas and are advancing on California's rich citrus fields at the rate of 35 miles a year. "We must learn to live with fire ants, but at a distance," said Lipsey.

A physician told the conference a 34-year-old woman and a 43-year-old man allergic to the bite of the insects died recently in San Antonio after they were bitten on the feet by the ants.

"I have a feeling that there are more (deaths)," said Dr. Frank James Jr. of San Antonio.

And Terry Coghlan of Texas A&M University said some of the 2.5 million people stung each month by fire ants suffer "shock and severe hives." James displayed a map that showed how the South American ants, which arrived in Mobile, Ala., between 1933 and 1945, had advanced from the Southeast into Texas by 1956.

He predicted the ants would continue west and move up the Pacific Coast "as surely as night follows day."

W.A. Banks of the U.S. Department of Agriculture at Gulfport, Miss., said one experiment showed the ants reduced soybean production by 5.9 bushels an acre.

He said that would amount to a loss of $40 an acre or $340 million for the Southeast, where growers plant 8.5 million acres of soybeans each year.

"The fire ant is our enemy in the South, and I assure the people of the South we're going to whip him," said Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown, who organized the two-day conference.

FOOTPRINTS IN THE SAND. Experts from Southern Methodist University in Dallas work at removing a slab of sandstone rock which has footprints said to be those of a dinosaur. The prints, discovered near the shore of Grapevine Lake, are each about 15 inches long and are thought to be the first such tracks found in the Dallas area. The six tracks will be displayed in the Dallas Museum of Natural History.

Jury gets gas suit, lengthy deliberation seen

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — A federal court jury was to continue deliberation today whether the parent company of New Mexico's natural gas utility conspired to fix prices in violation of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

The six-member jury began deliberations about 10 a.m. Thursday.

Klan endorses Mark White for Governor

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Attorney General Mark White says he does not want the support of the Ku Klux Klan in his race for governor.

The Klan officially endorsed White on Thursday but a campaign spokesman repudiated the group's support, saying the KKK had no place in "legitimate politics."

"The KKK is attempting to make a mockery out of our political system," said White spokesman Dwayne Holman. "The Klan has no place in legitimate politics and there is no place anywhere for the organized hatred that the Klan wants to perpetuate."

White could not be reached for comment.

Klan spokesman James Stanfield of Houston said the organization is endorsing White because he "firmly stands in favor of law and order."

The endorsement came despite White's recent participation in a law suit challenging the Klan's reported operation of three secret paramilitary camps in the state.

Stanfield noted that the Klan endorsed Harris County Sheriff Jack Heard, who lost to Kathy Whitmire in his bid to become Houston mayor.

It was expected to take the jury several days to reach a verdict. U.S. District Judge Howard Bratton gave the jury, which sat through seven weeks of testimony, 28 pages of instructions before it began deliberating.

Southern Union Co. of Dallas has been accused by a group of plaintiffs of conspiring in 1976 to raise prices in the San Juan Basin of northwest New Mexico to benefit gas production companies with which it had connections.

The gas prices are paid by consumers of Gas Company of New Mexico, a Southern Union division, through a direct pass-through approved by the state Public Service Commission in 1972.

Gas from the San Juan Basin region goes to consumers in an area including Albuquerque, Belen, Gallup, Farmington, Questa, Taos, Santa Fe and other communities.

Plaintiffs in the suit include a group of Clovis-area residents led by the Hecht Co. and Southern Union residential gas consumers as a class, led by Sheila Brewer of Gallup.

Other plaintiffs are the state government through 14 agencies and educational institutions, and Public Service Company of New Mexico, the state's major electric utility and a gas customer of Southern Union.

Southern Union faces total liability of as much as $400 million in the suit.

In the trial's first phase, the jury is to determine whether a conspiracy existed and whether the plaintiffs were harmed. The amount of damages, if any, would be determined in a separate proceeding.

In his instructions to the jury, Bratton outlined four essential elements to be proven in the case:

—That there was a conspiracy to fix the price for intrastate natural gas at the well-head in the San Juan Basin;

Woman discovers dinosaur prints

DALLAS (AP) — Julie Tyler wouldn't listen when officials at the Dallas Museum of Natural History told her the tracks she found while walking her dog couldn't be dinosaur prints.

The 22-year-old college student watched with pride and satisfaction Thursday as teams of engineers and scientists drilled into soft sandstone and removed six dinosaur prints from a Lake Grapevine gorge.

Mrs. Tyler, a geology student at Brookhaven College in Framer's Branch, said she found the tracks while walking her Labrador retriever near the lake. As her dog drank from a stream, she looked down and was convinced she was standing on dinosaur prints.

A call to the museum proved fruitless. "They told me that everyone who sees a bump in the rocks thinks they've found dinosaur tracks," she said.

Following her rebuff from the museum, she called several colleges and universities, finally managing to convince two Southern Methodist University professors to come out and take a look.

"It's a one in a million chance that something like this has ever been preserved, and chances are even smaller of it being discovered by someone who could tell what it is," said David Gillette of the Geological Sciences Department at SMU.

The six slight depressions Mrs. Tyler discovered are the marks left by a 4-ton, 25-foot long duck-billed dinosaur that roamed the area that now includes the Grapevine Municipal Golf Course, Gillette said.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Covering Commandment.

William's reward

Now that former Sen. Harrison Williams has been forced to resign from the Senate to avoid expulsion over his conviction on multiple felonies in the Abscam affair, it's a legitimate question to ask why he should qualify for a full pension of $45,000 per year.

The legal answer is simple enough. Federal law does not provide for any loss of pension rights for members of Congress convicted of corruption in office. Thus, in Harrison Williams' case, the law countenances the possibility that he may end up collecting his monthly pension checks at a federal penitentiary.

It can be argued, and not without merit, that Williams' 26 years of service in the House and Senate entitle him to some pension rights notwithstanding his recent fall from grace.

But surely conviction on multiple counts of bribery and conspiracy in the conduct of his official duties, and his subsequent forced resignation from the Senate, ought to entail some loss of pension benefits.

Argument covers civil defense steps

The other day a couple of editorial writers started talking about civil defense. A junior editorial writer was against it. A senior editorial writer was for it. The discussion went something like this:

Junior: Civil defense against a nuclear war, even a limited nuclear attack, is a myth. There is no protection. An A-bomb falling on this city would kill by incineration, blast, shock, firestorm, collapse of buildings and highways, radiation. There would be little warning, and people seeking safety would be burned to ash outside or vaporized in underground shelters. The myth of civil defense is dangerous because it gives people the false security that they can survive. They cannot. The only civil defense is to prevent nuclear war from ever breaking out. And that depends on people knowing that if we allow a nuclear exchange to happen, we will die.

Senior: Let's not talk in absolutes. Perhaps this city would be entirely destroyed, with all the people in it. But perhaps not. Some might survive; if not here, then elsewhere. We can't be sure, you take whatever measures you can. That is only sensible. It doesn't mean that you underestimate the kind of catastrophe a total nuclear war would cause; it simply means that you refuse to give up all hope of survival. Shelters might work in some circumstances. Evacuation might be possible for some people. You say we will die. I say I hope some can survive.

Junior: And I would be the first to try to evacuate my wife and baby. But where would they go? A nuclear attack would not only destroy people and buildings, it would cause a breakdown of our entire society and of the eco-system which supports life. You don't want to talk in absolutes, but the power of a nuclear bomb is so much beyond conventional weapons that to talk of it in any terms is to underestimate its threat. By seeking false safety for a few, you are endangering us all.

Senior: Evacuation would certainly be a part of any civil defense plan. If it only worked for a few, it would be worth planning. Who really knows what kind of a nuclear attack to expect? It might be total. It might be tactical. It might come from the Soviet Union. It might come from some other country. There are many possibilities and few certainties. We cannot afford to go naked simply because you think that is the only way we will be sufficiently afraid of nuclear war and work hard enough to prevent it.

Junior: Yes, evacuation plans should be made for nuclear accidents and terrorist attacks. A small terrorist A-bomb exploded near a nuclear reactor could cast radiation for 1,500 miles. The only civil defense against nuclear war should be an education program to teach children, parents and leaders what would happen once A-bombs fell. Our only protection is to prevent atomic war.

Senior: I have supported civil defense planning at least since the days of President John F. Kennedy. It is a part of our defense strategy. If we really wanted to reject entirely all possibility of nuclear war, we would have to give up bombs as well as bomb shelters. We must redouble our effort to prevent nuclear war yet recognize, sadly, that all efforts may fail.

By DON GRAFF
Someone had better speak to David Rockefeller.

And not only because some of the opinions he has delivered himself of on a tour of Africa are not the sort to increase his popularity in some circles back home.

He has, for example, dismissed Cuban troops and Soviet advisers in Angola, a back-burner crisis as far as the State Department is concerned, as no obstacle to the pursuit of American interests there.

True, he was speaking of business interests and specifically of his own business — banking. But he added a plug for normal political relations with an Angolan government that the administration has given every indication it would rather help remove from office. It is barred from doing so at present by congressional prohibition of U.S. aid to Angolan political factions.

Bad business in Africa

Rockefeller's larger interest, however, was Africa's Marxist-oriented regimes in general. Contrary to the way they have been represented in this country, he does not see them as adversaries.

"The more I've seen of countries which are allegedly Marxist in Africa," he observed, "the more I have a feeling it is more labels and trappings that reality."

As he sees it, the primary interest of their leaders is not ideology but economic advancement and improving "the log of their people." They are raising no political barriers to the outside aid essential to achieving their goals.

Well, possibly in Zimbabwe, where he was speaking. So far Prime Minister Robert Mugabe, who fought a guerrilla war for independence as an avowed Marxist, is maintaining a more or less pluralistic balance.

But you don't have to look far to find less encouraging examples. Only as far as neighboring Mozambique, addicted to a Maoist brand of Marxism. It has accepted non-Communist aid, including help from hated racist South Africa in the operation of essential port and transportation facilities, but out of desperation, not a political pragmatism.

The economy nevertheless remains in bad shape and is getting worse. It is not helped by the repressive ways of a regime that, if it has an interest in improving the lot of Mozambique's people, is certainly not letting it interfere with pursuit of political goals that include maintaining perhaps the harshest one-party dictatorship on the continent.

Tanzania, farther up the Indian Ocean coast, is not so badly off but perhaps a sadder example because it has had much more to work with. The colonial power was Britain, not Portugal, and it was granted independence rather than having had to win it in a resource-wasting war.

But potentially rich Tanzania is also an economic basket case. President Julius K. Nyerere, hailed abroad as one of Africa's great statesmen, remains determined to build his idealized version of socialism that is incompatible with the realities of the country. Ambitious state enterprises are crushing the economy before it can develop to the point where it is capable of sustaining them.

It would be unfair and inaccurate to indict only Africa's Marxist regimes. The situation on the other side of the ideological fence is, if anything, worse. President Mobutu Sese Seko runs an operation in Zaire — supported economically and, when the need arises, militarily by the West — that is not only one-party but one-man, and also the continent's most corrupt.

Ghana, which blew its great prospects at independence, is going through another coup. Neither civilian governments nor military juntas have so far shown that, if genuinely interested in improving the people's lot, they have any realistic notions of how to go about doing so.

To the right or to the left, it's difficult to find in Africa's regimes much of that dedication to the public good that David Rockefeller professes to see. That doesn't necessarily mean that there still isn't business to be done.

But considering the shortcomings of most of the governments that must be dealt with, what's good for business in Africa doesn't necessarily work to the good of Africa's peoples.

Today in history

Today is Friday, March 26, the 85th day of 1982. There are 280 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On March 26, 1799, the first Middle East peace treaty in modern history was signed in Washington between Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

On this date: In 1793, the Holy Roman Empire declared war on France.

In 1913, more than 1,400 people died in floods that swept through Ohio, Indiana and Texas.

In 1918, Marshal Ferdinand Foch of France was named Commander of the Allied Armies in World War I.

In 1980, India granted full recognition to the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Ten years ago: Britain and Malta signed an agreement keeping that Mediterranean fortress island within the Western defense system.

Five years ago: Communist China marked the 150th anniversary of Beethoven's death by lifting a ban on his music.

A story of enterprise

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Many people today tend to think of American business in terms of large, impersonal corporations. Business in the United States didn't begin this way, however, and many family enterprises continue to flourish and play an important role in preserving the spirit of enterprise.

One such company is the Mount Hope Finishing Co. of Butner, N.C. The Millikens of North Carolina and Massachusetts are the founding family of this enterprise.

Burke Davis, prize-winning historian and biographer, has chronicled the story of the company and family in a fascinating volume entitled A Fierce Personal Pride. Most company historians are dry as dust and fail to bring alive the character of the people who created and developed the business. This isn't the case with Burke Davis' book. It should have a permanent place in the library of books which describe the origins and workings of the American business system.

Our town (with apologies to Thornton Wilder)

News Item — The town of Kennesaw, Ga., has just passed an ordinance requiring the head of every household to own a gun and ammunition. The law was prompted by a recent ordinance passed in Morton Grove, Ill., banning the possession of handguns by all residents, except police officers and military personnel.

Stage Manager — "The name of the town is Kennesaw, Georgia. It's a nice town, y'know what I mean? Nobody remarkable ever came out of it s'far as we know. We're just plain simple folk her, we can't claim to be nothing more than just another town along Route 41."

"I better show you around a bit. That large yellow house with the funeral wreath in front of it belongs to the Kettermans. Two days ago Hodding Ketterman shot his son, Junior, who was trying to sneak in the window at three o'clock in the morning and Hodding thought he was a thief. The town feels terrible about it, but everyone says Junior should have known better."

"There's one of our leading citizens, Jeffrey Bean, on his way down to the Sear's Roebuck parking lot to have a shootout with Abel Grimstead. It seems Jeffrey's dog knocked over all of Abel's garbage, and this made Abel real mad and he took his Smith and Wesson and pumped the dog full of lead. Most folks in town think Abel overreacted, but Abel says that's what guns are for, and there's nothing on the books says you can't shoot a dog on your property."

The story begins with the founding in 1901 of a textile plant in an abandoned mill in the village of North Dighton, Mass. The mill became the largest textile finishing plant under one roof in the world.

The founders were descendants of people who settled in Massachusetts in the early 17th century. They were in the whaling trade, but envisioned new opportunities in an industrial era.

The ingredients of success were alertness to technological change, unflagging attention to business, and personal concern for employees. The company and the family poured both interest and dollars into North Dighton. Using profits from business in World War I, this family business created numerous amenities for the town and constructed 200 well-equipped homes for employees.

The happy era in North Dighton survived turbulent times and union strife which shattered other textile communities in Massachusetts. Drastic change in 1951, as half century after the company's founding, when, in the wake of distressed conditions in the industry, violence broke out in the town. Strikers smashed windows in the Mt. Hope plant. Stones were thrown, and workers' cars were kicked and scratched by strikers.

The company, experiencing losses, already had determined that a move south was imperative. Fed up with the violence and unabated union threats, the company shut down its plant in Massachusetts. A new corporation was formed in North Carolina, and, after a protracted struggle in the courts — the textile union having accused the company of being a "runaway" corporation — a new start was made at Butner, N.C.

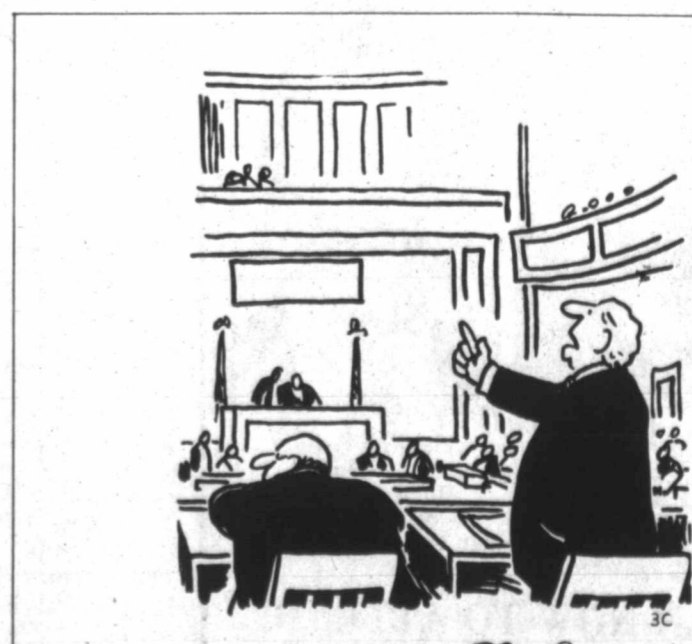

The adjustment involved in the establishment of the new plant was difficult for the Milliken family, and the core of loyal employees who moved south. The new plant was located in the North Carolina pine barrens. Employees lived for a time in an old army barracks. The new employees were former farm people with no experience operating machinery. Bob Milliken, who had a vision of a bright future in a new setting, wrote a new chapter in the founding family's success story. Employing technical advances, Mount Hope became an outstanding example of the region's overall post-war success as the nation's textile center.

Though "A Fierce Personal Pride" is a corporate history, it provides new perspective on how wealth is created over a period of decades. The Millikens of this country are the people who create jobs for their neighbors and add to the economic security of the United States. Americans can be thankful that there are many such families who are dedicated to hard work, concerned about their co-workers and determined to adjust to new conditions.

Shuttle brings tourist boom to New Mexico

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP) — The space shuttle isn't the only thing descending on New Mexico. So are thousands of people — bringing millions of dollars of revenues for local businesses.

Lucy Cacy, a clerk at the Alamogordo Holiday Inn, said all her rooms were reserved within 45 minutes after it was announced last week that Columbia would land at Northrup Strip instead of in California.

"It only took two hours to book the whole town," she said. "Can you imagine all those people in this little town?" Alamogordo, a city of 24,000, is about 40 miles east of White Sands Missile Range, a sprawling, desolate, top-secret base where the landing runways are situated.

The military at first said the public would not be allowed on the range to view next Monday's touchdown, but on Wednesday that decision was reversed. Plans call for permitting 19,000 cars to drive onto the base for the landing.

Deborah Giampietro of the city's Chamber of Commerce said 150,000 to 200,000 people are expected to come to the area for the landing.

Arcy Horcasitas, marketing specialist for the Convention and Visitors Bureau in Las Cruces, said the shuttle was "having a spectacular impact. It's a great thing for the retailers and the businessmen."

UFW leader heads four-day protest walk

PIRU, Calif. (AP) — United Farm Workers leader Cesar Chavez joined marchers on a 50-mile, four-day protest walk to publicize continuing UFW strikes against four companies targeted in contract disputes.

The march through Ventura County is the second this month for Chavez, 55, who frequently used the tactic in the 1960s and '70s. A 70-mile hike through Texas recently dramatized UFW calls for better enforcement of minimum wage laws there.

More than 1,450 UFW members have been striking West Foods Inc., a mushroom grower, since Nov. 19, and in the last three weeks walked out on three growers' associations: California Coastal Growers, Limoneira and L & O Growers. The associations supply workers for small citrus farmers.

A UFW spokesman, Chris Hartmire, said resurrecting the protest walks "was not a conscious decision" by the union. "In both cases, the workers decided they wanted the marches and asked Cesar if he would participate."

Between 500 and 600 chanting demonstrators stepped off Thursday in Piru for the westward walk slated to end Sunday in Oxnard. No incidents were reported as the hike began, sheriff's Deputy Dennis Blanchard said.

Hartmire said the key issue was proposed lengths of contracts. The UFW wants one-year pacts; growers are holding out for three-year agreements.

"Money is not the main issue," he said. "We still have differences on money, but they're not that great."

Single-year pacts are important to the union to deal with "the problem of disappearing growers," he said. Growers often sign one-year agreements with the associations to obtain labor, then quit after one season and are outside the union's reach.

The UFW wants union pacts of the same length as the growers' association agreements.

In Texas, the hike from Brownsville to San Juan was intended to publicize UFW demands that the U.S. Labor Department strengthen enforcement of wage laws. A union survey showed Texas farm workers were paid an average $2.45 an hour. The federal minimum wage is $3.35.

GOP leaders say Reagan running out of time for budget compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is being warned by Republican leaders in Congress that time is running out for White House participation in efforts to trim the record deficit in his fiscal 1983 budget.

"I can't wait forever," said Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., adding that the Senate Budget Committee would probably begin work on a spending outline next week unless there are indications of compromise from Reagan.

Baker, R-Tenn., joined with House GOP leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois in expressing impatience Thursday.

"Maybe I have to move on the shoulder and get around this stalled caravan," Michel said.

A Senate GOP source who asked anonymity said Baker's remarks were "a signal to the White House that we're running out of time."

Elsewhere on Capitol Hill Thursday, the House Social Security subcommittee approved a bill to continue disability benefits to people for up to six months after the government determines they should be removed from the rolls.

Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, the subcommittee chairman, said the proposal is designed "to slow down the harsh, if not in some instances, inhumane" way the Social Security Administration is conducting its accelerated review of disability recipients.

Meanwhile, several lawmakers pushed ahead with a move to repeal a 1981 law giving legislators a special deduction that will save the average congressman about $7,500 a year in federal income taxes.

A petition intended to force a House vote on a bill repealing the living-expense deduction was introduced by Reps. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., Tom Lantos, D-Calif., and Ray Kogovsek, D-Colo. The petition was signed by several other House members, including Republicans, but it will need 218 signatures — half the House plus one — to force the Ways and Means Committee to bring the bill to the floor.

In other congressional business: —An aide to Rep. Lyle Williams said the White House has agreed to consider the Ohio Republican's proposal to tax imports 3 percent to raise money to help retire the national debt.

—Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., said Congress is losing patience because of the failure of European allies and Japan to set new minimum interest rates for their government-supported export credits. Heinz is sponsoring a bill to give the Export-Import Bank $1 billion to subsidize U.S. exports with below-market loans.

Dispatcher arrested for murder

WILMER, Texas (AP) — A police dispatcher from a Houston suburb was held on $25,000 bond after being charged with murder in the shooting death of an Ellis County youth, authorities said Thursday.

Patrick Lee Schlotter, 22, a dispatcher with the Hedwig Village Police Department, was arrested Wednesday and charged with the June 1981 slaying of 17-year-old Charles Wayne Jackson, said Wilmer Police Chief John Cramer.

Justice of the Peace Fletcher Freedman set bond and ordered Schlotter held in Dallas County jail.

Cramer said the charge alleges Schlotter fired one shot at the victim's pickup truck as Jackson tried to drive away after an argument at a gasoline station.

The police chief said Jackson died instantly from a single gunshot wound in the head.

Millions can be made from scoring well in Oscars

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What is an Oscar worth?

The price the Dodge Trophy and Awards Co. charges for the statuettes the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences will hand out Monday night is a secret, but Hollywood legend has it that winning an Oscar can bring actors and movie companies millions of dollars.

While the legend may be accurate for some companies, it's not always so for actors.

Theater owners are apt to book and rebook the winning film, and viewers of the Oscar awards ceremony are drawn to theaters by the hoopla and by film clips of the winner, said Charles Powell, former publicity and advertising chief for MGM and Universal and now head of a film marketing firm.

"The best-picture award can mean a minimum of $6 million but closer to $10 million in ticket sales," said Powell. "That has been the experience over the past 10 years."

Sometimes the entire release pattern is built around the awards. Four years ago, Universal faced a problem with "The Deer Hunter," an expensive, unrelenting treatment of the Vietnam war. The company decided to release the film in Los Angeles just in time to qualify for the awards. A few more bookings were added in February, with the broad release scheduled to coincide with the Oscars.

The strategy worked. "The "Deer Hunter" was named best picture of the year, and a problem picture became a huge moneymaker. The rentals in the United States and Canada totaled $31 million, meaning more than twice that amount poured through box offices.

Does Oscar have the same golden touch for acting award winners?

"It certainly didn't help Luise Rainer, who won two years in a row and then dropped out of sight," says Billy Wilder, who directed the 1945 film and Oscar winner "The Lost Weekend."

"It certainly didn't help Ernest Borgnine," he said. And what about winners Louise Fletcher, Miyoshi Umeki and George Chakiris? "Individual winners don't mean as much for a box office gross," said Gordon

Armstrong, advertising and publicity head at Universal. "What counts is the best-picture award or multiple winners. Last year the Oscar for Sissy Spacek added little to the 'Coal Miner's Daughter' business. The picture had been released more than a year before, and it had already played out."

Armstrong is hoping for a big win Monday night for Universal's "On Golden Pond." The film, which was playing in 972 theaters, added another 200 this week. It has grossed $70 million so far.

"The public doesn't really care about individual winners," Powell said. "Ask almost anyone, 'Who won the supporting awards last year?' and I doubt if you'll get an answer."

MANDEL'S BACK. Former Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel, seated at the dais between his wife Jeanne and Baltimore Mayor William Donald Schaefer, made the presentation of an award to Schaefer this week. The Monday night event marked Mandel's re-emergence into public life after spending 18 months in a federal prison on a mail fraud and racketeering conviction. He's planning other public activities, including lecturing at the University of Maryland law school. (AP Laserphoto)

Convicted ex-governor Mandel returning to public spotlight

BALTIMORE (AP) — His friends do not expect Marvin Mandel to run for office again right away, but the former Maryland governor, convicted on federal mail fraud and racketeering charges, is easing back into public life.

"Somewhere along the way, people have to come back into the community," said a spokesman for a local men's group that asked Mandel to present an award to Baltimore Mayor William Donald Schaefer.

Audience response to Mandel's appearance Monday was warm. It was his first formal social function since being released from federal custody Dec. 18.

"What we're saying in effect is welcome home," said the toastmaster, Solomon Liss, a Mandel appointee to the state Court of Special Appeals.

Later this year Mandel will be a guest lecturer at the University of Maryland Law School; in May he will be the subject of a "roast" by a local chapter of the American Cancer Society.

The former governor, convicted in connection with a scheme to fix racetrack dates, agreed to speak to the law school students on bill-drafting and executive-legislative relations.

Bruce Bereano, who teaches the course, was at one time Mandel's attorney.

He said Mandel is one of many lecturers he has invited.

Cathy Sloman of the cancer group said Mandel was chosen because the society was looking for someone who could draw a large enough crowd to produce $40,000 in donations.

Mandel spent 19 months in prison at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida and several weeks at a Baltimore halfway house before being released in December. At that time Mandel told reporters "I have no intention of walking away from politics. It's been my life. I am not ruling out seeking political office."

But the 62-year-old former governor still faces problems resulting from his conviction. Disbarment proceedings against him began this month; his license to practice law has been suspended since his conviction.

The state Attorney Grievance Commission citation against Mandel refers to disciplinary rules against "conduct involving dishonesty, fraud, deceit or misrepresentation."

"All of those rules, we suggest, were violated," said the commission's Glen Grossman.

The Maryland Attorney General's office expects a trial date later this year for a civil suit against Mandel and his wife for the return of about $24,000 worth of items including furniture and liquor — taken when they left the governor's mansion in 1979.

The Mandels have countersued, claiming the items belonged to them, said assistant Attorney General James Shea.

"I'm sure he has his detractors out there, his haters," said Frank A. DeFilippo, Mandel's former chief of staff, but added, "I think a lot of people think Marvin... got a bum rap."

"But ask people on the street, 'Who was the best governor of Maryland?' They'll say Marvin Mandel every time," DeFilippo said.

Mandel came to the governorship at a troubled time in the state's history and showed "real leadership," DeFilippo said.

The legislature elected Mandel governor in 1969 when his predecessor, Spiro Agnew, resigned to become vice president.

"Agnew left a... deficit... riots," DeFilippo said, recalling the time when Mandel took over. "This is a guy who dealt with all of it..."

Mandel was elected by the voters to his first full term in 1970 and re-elected in 1974. He was indicted the next year but was not convicted until 1977 after lengthy legal proceedings.

Mandel was forced to leave office, but when the conviction was temporarily reversed at the first stage of appeals, he assumed office for two days before the inauguration of his successor in January 1979.

Neither Mandel nor Agnew — who resigned from the vice presidency after pleading no contest to tax evasion charges in 1973 — was invited to hear the new governor, Harry Hughes, say in his inaugural: "There is nothing to be gained by continuing under the shadow of collective guilt."

Later in 1979, when Baltimore school officials were preparing a list of notable graduates, Mandel and Agnew — both members of the class of 1937 at city high schools — were dropped.

Still, by the time Mandel returned from prison last December, some of the indignation had softened.

Democrats vote on rules changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic National Committee is voting on a new set of rules that would retain most of the reforms of the last two decades but bring some old-fashioned politics back to the party and its presidential conventions.

The committee was meeting today to formally adopt a series of changes, worked out in advance, that will untie the hands of convention delegates, lure Democratic officeholders back to the convention floor and shorten long presidential campaigns.

Most of the earlier rule revisions that have taken party business out of the back rooms of politics and the hands of "bosses" will be retained. Yet there will be room once more for horse trading at caucuses and conventions.

But most importantly, party leaders think the new combination of rules could make the party important again as a political force.

Here are the basic changes:

— Some 500 Democratic officeholders will be made automatic convention delegates without having to run for the seats. And they will be uncommitted delegates, not obligated to vote for any specific presidential candidate at the convention.

Demon rum bedeviling Reagan's Caribbean Basin economic package

WASHINGTON (AP) — The demon rum, long blamed by its critics for breaking up marriages and blighting careers, is now bedeviling President Reagan's $350 million package of aid to Caribbean Basin countries.

Jewelry and machine tools also are causing problems for the emergency economic assistance package, which calls for changes in U.S. laws to shore up flagging economies in countries of the Caribbean and Central America.

Specifically, Reagan proposes eliminating tariffs on Caribbean Basin products, except textiles, for 12 years. He also calls for tax incentives to encourage U.S. investment in the troubled region.

Of the $350 million in direct aid, $128 million, or about 36 percent, would go to El Salvador where the Reagan administration is backing a military-civilian junta against a leftist uprising.

At both House and Senate hearings Thursday, some Democrats said they thought this was a disproportionate amount and indicated they would try to rewrite the distribution formula.

Representatives of the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico, however, were more concerned about rum, a principal product of the two U.S. flag territories. Specifically, they were concerned about how the proposed changes would affect their treasuries.

Ron de Lugo, delegate to Congress from the Virgin Islands, told the committee that if the tariff of $1.62 per gallon on imported Caribbean rum is eliminated, imported rum will be "cheaper than our own rum and will therefore replace it."

While this might sound like good news to rum drinkers, de Lugo said it would be devastating to the Virgin Islands, which in 1980 received 18 percent of its government revenues from federal excise taxes on rum sold on the mainland.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, ranking Democrat on the Foreign Relations Committee, brought up jewelry and machine tools, which he said are leading industries in his home state of Rhode Island.

THE REV. AND MRS. J.W. HILL

Church of God sets Pastor Appreciation

Sunday has been named "Pastor Appreciation Day" at Pampa Church of God, located on the corner of Gwendolyn and Sumner Streets. Special activities including a luncheon in the church Fellowship Hall are planned for the day.

The Rev. and Mrs. J.W. Hill came to Pampa three years ago from Graham, where he had pastored for six years. Most of Rev. Hill's 26 years of pastoring in the Church of God has been spent in the Fort Worth area. He pastored the Arlington Heights Church of God on Camp Bowie Boulevard for almost 12 years.

Rev. Hill attended Brite Divinity School, a division of Texas Christian University; Amarillo College; Lee College of Cleveland, Tenn.; and Universal Bible Institute of Alamo, Tenn.

The couple have five children and six grandchildren who reside in the Fort Worth area.

Former members, friends and the public are invited to attend the special service.

Revival at First Baptist

The spring revival at First Baptist Church will begin Sunday with services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

A meal will be served at 11:30 a.m. in the Fellowship Hall, with a preaching service following at 12:20 p.m., weekdays through April 2. Evening services will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the sanctuary.

Bobby Moore, pastor of Broadway Baptist Church of Memphis, Tenn., will bring the message during the revival. Phil Smith, Milam County judge and son of the Rev. and Mrs. M.B. Smith of Pampa, will lead the music.

The church's 75th Anniversary Celebration will follow the revival on Sunday, April 4. The public is invited to attend.

If Moses hadn't tripped

In the Mel Brooks movie, "The History of the World," Moses is seen coming down Mt. Sinai with the Fifteen Commandments on stone tablets. He trips and drops five of the commandments which shatter at his feet.

"Oh well, we still have 10 left," says Moses as he proceeds down the mountain to deliver the remaining commandments to his people.

Just for the fun of it, let's say the story is true. What do you think were the five commandments which Moses dropped? Or, to put it another way, if you were to add five commandments to the present 10, what would they be?

How about, "Thou shalt not lie," as one of them?

It surprises a lot of people to be told there is no commandment against lying among the 10.

The Eighth Commandment probably comes closest: "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." The Living Bible renders this commandment, "You must not tell lies." But this is a paraphrase rather than a literal translation. What the commandment really is saying is, "You must not tell lies in court."

It was no minor matter in ancient times to be caught lying under oath, especially when it involves somebody else. One ancient code of laws — the Code of Hammurabi — specified that if you were called as a witness in defense of someone accused of murder, for example, and it was discovered you had lied in your testimony, you yourself would be sentenced for murder.

But there is nothing in the Ten Commandments about the kind of lying to each other which we do all the time. Nobody believes the person who lies all the time so he doesn't fool us. It is the person who lies only once in a while who makes us wonder whether we can believe him or not.

The early church drew up a list of Seven Deadly Sins which were not only serious moral offenses in themselves but which gave rise to other sins. This is what made them deadly.

They included pride, covetousness, lust, anger, gluttony, envy and sloth.

If I had to draw up a list of today's Deadly Sins, they would be:

- 1) Lying.
- 2) Violence and cruelty: Television certainly has to take much of the blame for this. Playwright Arthur Miller once said, "There is violence because we have daily honored violence. Any half-educated man in a good suit can make his fortune by concocting a TV show whose brutality is photographed in sufficiently monstrous detail."
- 3) Vulgarly: TV and the movies — under the guise of showing us "reality" — have lowered our appreciation of refinement and the esthetic side of life to near zero by getting us to dwell on the gross and the vulgar. Our speech and manners have become unspeakably uncouth.
- 4) Moral indifference: We could do something about sins 1 and 2. But we don't. We could do something about preserving the countryside and keeping our cities and towns in a fit state to be enjoyed. But we don't. We could do something about gun control. And about pornography and obscenity. We could do something about all those things. But we don't.
- 5) Gluttony: We eat and drink too much — with dire consequences for ourselves and for society. Instead of eating to live, we live to eat — and we eat "too expensively, too much, too eagerly and with too much of a fuss." While much of the world goes hungry. Drinking? It is responsible for more auto deaths and accidents than anything else.
- 6) Bigotry: This may be the hardest of all the sins to conquer. You can decide not to lie or decide to quit drinking. But how can you decide not to be prejudiced?
- 7) Sex: Novelist-theologian Frederick Buechner is right. "Contrary to Mrs. Grundy, sex is not sin. Contrary to Hugh Hefner, it is not salvation either." The sin in sex today is that we have publicized it, profaned it, vulgarized it.

Moses, the world hath need of thee now. If only you hadn't tripped.

Religion roundup

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — A U.S. Lutheran leader says a unilateral disarmament initiative by either the United States or the Soviet Union would make sense, despite justified distrust in "human goodness."

Presiding Bishop David W. Preus of the American Lutheran Church urged a nuclear moratorium or a 10 percent nuclear reduction by either "superpower" with the other challenged to follow suit.

Join Us In Worship

IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

NO LONGER Sewing

Once this home housed a family, was full of laughter, protected its members from the elements. Now it is an old abandoned home...decaying, and falling apart. No longer of any use to anyone.

A person away from God is like this old abandoned home, gradually decaying in spirit and serving no purpose in God's will. Return to a regular church worship with the Lord. Receive God's great love, and live a joyous full life.

"I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Trying to save sea turtle from extinction

MARUATA, MEXICO (AP) — On a faraway bay fringed with palms and frothing with Pacific surf, Kim Clifton is struggling almost single-handedly against the tide, fighting to save a lowly turtle from its appointment with oblivion.

With American money and a Mexican helping hand, the young conservationist from Arizona is working desperately to halt the decline in the population of the eastern Pacific green sea turtle, a much-hunted subspecies with only one major nesting area in the Northern Hemisphere, the broad white beaches flanking this Indian village 280 miles west of Mexico City.

The eastern Pacific type — commonly called the black turtle because of its dark coloring — is the most critically endangered of three green sea turtles.

Clifton's fight has been difficult, even perilous. He is not ready to give up, but he is realistic.

"If everything goes as it's going now, the turtles will be driven right up to extinction," he said in a recent interview.

Sea turtles are hunted for their meat and hides, for shells that are turned into jewelry, and for turtle oil used in cosmetics. Their eggs, laid in sandy holes on Maruata's beaches, are prized by some Mexican men as aphrodisiacs and can fetch up to 75 U.S. cents each in Mexico City.

For the past four years, with a combination of cash, persuasion and the occasional assistance of a five-man Mexican marine detachment stationed here, Clifton has tried to bring the trade in turtle flesh under control.

He has paid villagers about 3 cents for each of hundreds of thousands of eggs they have collected. He and his helpers have released swarms of hatchlings into the Pacific. And he has stood guard against poachers killing the 100-pound-plus adult turtles.

"The bottom line is still negative, as far as the population decline," said Thomas Lovejoy, vice president for science of the World Wildlife Fund in Washington, D.C. "But Clifton's effort is the most important for saving the turtle."

The Fund is Clifton's principal sponsor, providing $59,000 of the project's $94,000 annual budget. The rest comes from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the private Center for Environmental Education in Washington.

The 33-year-old Clifton, a muscular blond six-footer who has worked on environmental projects since the mid-1970s, first hiked into Maruata in 1976, before the Pan American Highway reached this primitive stretch of the Mexican coast.

He found the 200 or so Indians here systematically slaughtering the black turtles.

"I saw them pulling in 80 turtles a day, slashing them open, just taking the skin and throwing the rest into the water," he recalled.

He returned in 1978 with money for the egg-buying scheme, and since then has spent every mating-nesting season here.

The female black turtles range over a huge stretch of Pacific coast, feeding in submarine turtle-grass grounds from the Gulf of California south to Colombia. Each year one-third of the females return to breed in the waters off Maruata and nearby villages, where the males have remained year-round. Beginning in July and continuing into February, females lumber ashore to lay and bury their eggs.

In four seasons Clifton and his local helpers have gathered more than one million eggs and put them in protected hatchery areas. They have released almost 700,000 hatchlings into the sea.

But this may represent only 30 percent to 40 percent of the eggs laid, he said, and heavy poaching of adults continues.

"There's 40 miles of coast to worry about, and there's no way to stop it," he said.

Mexican authorities have imposed on-and-off moratoriums and quota systems for black turtle hunting, but Clifton complained the Mexicans do not back this up with the money and men to enforce the rules.

Mexico has not signed the international convention banning trade in endangered species. The United States, on the other hand, bans the sale of all sea turtle products.

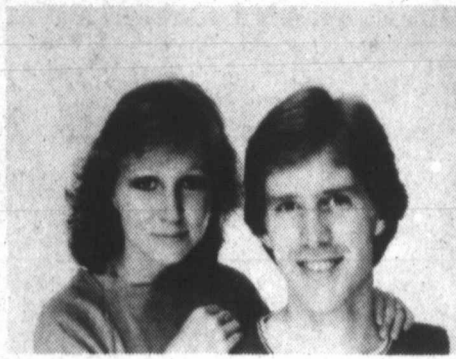

Naturally, the "gringo" conservationist has developed dangerous enemies in his crusade against the lucrative turtle trade. He has had some close calls while chasing poachers, and once someone fired on his house.

"I'm surprised I'm still in one piece," he said.

In the shade of his thatched-roof hut, Clifton said the simple life of Maruata can be rewarding. "And the animals are great," he said.

Carving state history in jade

CONOVER, N.C. (AP) — Richard Sipe is a stonemason who says he can do anything that can be done with a rock.

As proof of his boast, he is putting ther history of North Carolina on a 7,000-pound hunk of nephrite jade.

"The main reason I'm doing it is not to bring out my ability as a sculptor — even though I do have a good a good eye — but to bring out the beauty of the stone. And all I want is for it to be good enough for the critics to criticize."

Sipe is carving scenes from 200 years of state history into a mottled green boulder of nephrite jade he dug out of a North Carolina mountain 1972.

The 54-year-old Sipe has been a stonemason 32 years. He's also an avid rock hound.

"I like rock. I work in it for a living but I like it on top of that," he said.

It took Sipe four years to find the stone he is sculpting, four more to decide to sculpt it and five years to learn how.

"I was two years in working out the polishing process," he said, adding that is at least another two years from completion.

Sipe has invested several thousand hours of time already in his rock. He points out the shapes of sheep and lions in its veined surface.

"The rock dictates to me," he said. "I kind of go as the spirit moves me."

This is the first art object Sipe has attempted with rock, but he says he has always had the creative bug.

Sipe's historical boulder will show scenes of Catawba Indians, pioneers and the Civil War in relief carvings. A "tree of life" with a cloud, a dove and a child beside it will be carved on the rock to symbolize Sipe's and the state's Christian faith. He calls his work "Two Hundred Years on the Road."

Bell names marketing manager

Southwestern Bell announces the appointment of Scott Watson, Marketing Manager - West Texas, as part of the company's realignment program for the entire West Texas Sales Management team.

Headquartered in Lubbock, Watson will direct telecommunications sales for all business and industry customers in cities throughout West Texas including: Midland, Odessa, Amarillo, Abilene, Pampa, and Fort Stockton.

According to L.H. (Hank) Hudson, general manager - sales in San Antonio, Watson's appointment is further example of Southwestern Bell's continual commitment as a leader in the telecommunications industry to serve the constantly changing needs of the business community.

"The realignment program will bring the resources of Southwestern Bell closer to its customers, while emphasizing the importance of West Texas as a viable part of the state's financial strength," Hudson said.

Hudson said there has been need for a manager at Watson's level in West Texas to coordinate sales activities for all segments of the market. "By fulfilling this need," he said, "we will increase our understanding of our customers' problems and communications needs and be able to better plan and facilitate provision of services where needed and when needed."

Prior to his new assignment, Watson served as manager - industry in San Antonio, and has held various marketing assignments at the company's general headquarters in St. Louis.

Watson is a native of San Angelo and holds an associate arts degree in business from San Antonio College and a BBA in marketing management from Maryville College in St. Louis.

Dr. Lamb
This little piggy stayed home for a pedicure

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read an article in the paper about a solution or salve to use on your toenails to soften them so you could get rid of ingrown toenails or soften the hard material under the nails. There wasn't any name for it and I can't find it. Can you tell me what it is and where I can get it?

DEAR READER — I am not sure what you read but many people do have problems caring for their toenails. You can help solve such problems by being sure the shoes you wear really fit you. That means you should be able to wiggle your toes inside the shoes. If you can't, they are too short or too narrow or both.

The second point is to keep your nails properly trimmed. Use a regular toenail clipper that is straight across the end and not curved. Trim the nails straight across. Sometimes if there are sharp corners that stick out and dig into the adjacent toe you will need to round these. In general, rounded nails contribute to ingrown toenails.

If you have a corner that is turned under after you have softened it by soaking your feet, carefully lift it up and slip a small wedge of cotton under the corner. That will help to train the nail so it doesn't turn under.

Almost all toenails will soften if you soak them long enough in warm water. Immediately after you dry them you can cover the nail with Vaseline. The Vaseline acts like a moisturizer; it's one of the best.

For problem nails and toes you can cover the nails and toes with Vaseline and put on heavy socks to sleep overnight. If you do this once or twice a week and lubricate your toes and nails after each shower or bath you will soon see evidence of softening your nails.

Don't expect to cure advanced ingrown toenails this way. They may require surgical excision. Don't try to treat an infected ingrown toenail yourself either.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 11-8, Your Feet and How to Care for Them. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I was surprised about the lady who wrote that her friend was not being fed in a nursing home. We didn't have that problem in the nursing home where I worked. The food we served was the same that the nurses and aides ate. We took the time to feed the older people who couldn't feed themselves.

If her friend is losing weight, it is probably because she won't eat her food. The older people would complain and when we would try to feed them they would either knock our hands away or spit in our faces. If she doesn't like the way her friend is being cared for, she should volunteer to feed her.

DEAR READER — There are good and bad nursing homes. There are good doctors and bad doctors, good nurses and bad nurses, good aides and bad aides. That is the way the world is. Your own letter, though, establishes the point that being sure people in nursing homes get fed properly is not always a simple matter. That is why I think the family and relatives should be sure their loved one is getting proper care. The daily living pattern in nursing homes is very important, particularly nutrition (not just serving the right food but being sure it is eaten) and physical activity to the extent the person can be active.

Texas, the musical drama, to open June 16 in Palo Duro Canyon

"TEXAS," the musical drama of the Panhandle Plains and the Palo Duro Canyon, will open June 16, 1982 and run through August 21, Mondays through Saturdays, and Sunday, July 4th.

For the seventeenth summer season, travelers will drive across the flat plains near Amarillo and Canyon, Texas till the great gash of the Palo Duro Canyon opens at their feet.

For the seventeenth season, they will follow the paved road down into the great abyss at it leads to the theatre nestled in the curve of the cliff.

For the seventeenth summer they will prepare for the show by exploring the Canyon which is 1000 feet deep and a hundred miles long, by riding horses, seeing the formations up close from the Sad Monkey Railroad and by eating barbeque dinner at the theatre.

For the seventeenth summer they will see the story of the Panhandle start in daylight with the festive overture of singing and dancing. Then as the shadows lengthen and the colors change on the magnificent cliffs surrounding the theatre, they will see the lights begin to glow and finally see the great Indian Chief, Quannah Parker, revealed on a rock high above the stage, bathed in radiance, the unexpected guest at a party.

The scenes of the conflicts and struggles between man and man and man and weather, mixed with their hopes and joys, play out against the tall background. Finally the massive lights bring it to blazing color at the end and six horses race by with the flags which have flown over Texas.

When he wrote the script of "TEXAS" in the early 1960's, the author, Paul Green, gave the Canyon a voice, and it has welcomed audiences with this voice ever since.

For tickets and information write "TEXAS," Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015. Prices range from $4 through $7 and there are half price tickets for children in most sections. It is well to make reservations in advance by writing or calling 806-665-2181. Show time is 8:30 PM.

Dear Abby Family affair creates an unexpected issue

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I can't talk to anybody about. My husband had an affair with my 17-year-old niece, and now she's pregnant. The only ones who know about it are my husband, the girl, the doctor who confirmed it, and now me.

My husband has always been a decent family man, and my niece is a nice, quiet girl who never even had a steady boyfriend. Nobody would ever believe this could happen to us. We are all respectable, churchgoing people.

My niece is in her third month, and soon everyone will know she's pregnant. This is a small town, and I don't want my family split up over this. We have three fine children. My husband has been walking around like a zombie for the last six weeks. He finally broke down and told me what was wrong. He says he loves me very much and must have been crazy. Meanwhile my niece says she "loves" my husband and wants to have his baby so he will have to marry her. (He's old enough to be her father.) I still love him and will stand by him regardless. Please help me, Abby.

OUT OF MY MIND

DEAR OUT: Since you are a churchgoing family, I urge you to talk to your clergyman. All of you involved desperately need his advice and counsel. Your husband should also see a lawyer. Because the girl is a minor, he could be charged with statutory rape. No man can be forced to marry a girl if he doesn't want to. I commend you for standing by your husband. Hang in there and good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 19-year-old unmarried woman, and my problem has almost become an obsession with me. I have sagging breasts like a woman who has nursed six kids! The rest of me is well-proportioned, but every time I look at my body in the mirror I get depressed. I tried toning up my chest muscles by weight-lifting, but all I got were big arms.

I know how I got this way, Abby. I developed early (age 12) and I never owned a support bra, so I bounced around a lot, and now I am paying for it. I look OK in an uplift bra, but I look terrible in a bathing suit.

If I didn't have this problem I would have a really nice-looking figure. Would plastic surgery help? I'm saving up for a fur coat, but I'd trade it for an operation. Thanks.

SAGGING IN SANDUSKY

DEAR SAGGING: Yes, plastic surgery can help. If you don't know a board-certified plastic surgeon, ask your family physician to recommend several. Talk to two or three, then make your own selection.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who has been seeing a guy who's been married, divorced and has five kids. She's so wrapped up in him that sometimes she doesn't see her family for weeks. Recently she told me that she loves this guy and he wants to marry her, but first he wants her to prove that she loves him by living with him for a year, doing all the cooking, laundry and taking care of his kids. (Their mama ran off and left them.)

She's 19 and he's 33. Do you think this guy is just using her? And how can I help her?

HER FRIEND IN ALABAMA

DEAR FRIEND: You can help her by being her friend. Whether I think she's being used is not important. Only if (and when) she concludes that she's being used will she do something about it. People "in love" are deaf, dumb, blind.

Do you have questions about sex, love, drugs and the pain of growing up? Get Abby's new booklet: "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know." Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Erma Bombeck's At Wit's End

I saw an old movie on television the other night. Well, actually it wasn't THAT old. "The Snows Of Killimanjaro" was made in 1952, and starred Gregory Peck, Susan Hayward and Ava Gardner.

It's been a long time since I've worked so hard watching a movie. I knew when Gregory first met Ava they would go to bed, but they never really said so in so many words and we never saw them "do" anything. I had to use my imagination.

After they were living together, Ava developed a drinking problem and became quite coarse and abusive. I had to sit through the "darns" and "Your're self-centered and stuffy" to create my own profane dialogue, but I got there.

The baby scene was one of my best efforts. Ava was carrying Gregory's baby and she thought he didn't want it so when she was standing at the top of a long flight of stairs, I had to figure out she was going to throw herself down the stairs and lose the baby. They didn't give me a lot of help here, but I got a great scene in my mind out of it.

Even the movie was rated G, with Gregory standing up to his commanding officer and deserting even though he was shot in the leg for it. They didn't show the torn-off leg, mind you, but I used the one I had seen sticking up in the Atlanta scene from "Gone with the Wind."

Outlook good for victims of Lupus

ATLANTA (AP) — Lupus was once considered a fatal disease, but advances in diagnosis and treatment have almost doubled the life expectancy of its victims, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

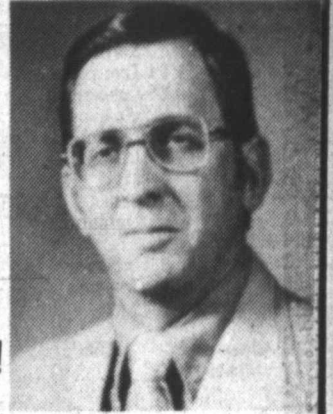

"The reason lupus was fatal in four out of five cases was the difficulty in diagnosing the disease at an early stage — its symptoms imitated those of other diseases," says Dr. Frederick C. McDuffie of the foundation. "Now with better diagnostic techniques, treatment can be started at its most advantageous time."

The sometimes confusing symptoms are pain, fever, fatigue, rash, joint pain and inflammation. Lupus, one of more than 100 forms of arthritis, can affect the skin, kidneys, central nervous system, joints and muscles.

Attract a feathered friend

By BRUCE E. HODGMAN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — When the weather is cold, and the ground is hard, birds need all the shelter and food they can get.

If you've never tried attracting some feathered friends, here are some suggestions on how to do it:

You don't have to spend a lot of money on bird houses and food. An open tray on a windowsill is better than nothing.

If you start looking into commercial feeders, you'll find they get pretty elaborate. But, mainly, you just want a place where the food can be kept dry and won't blow away and where the birds can dine in comfort — where it's not too windy and where they won't get attacked by a cat.

Some of the best houses are those that bird-watchers make themselves.

Depending on the type of birds you want to attract, you can take some of the food right from your table. Besides, there are plenty of bird foods on the market.

— Chickadees like cake.
— Robins go for bits of apple.
— Cardinals prefer sunflower seeds.
— Woodpeckers like suet puddings.

The mixes you buy in a store are apt to contain cracked corn and grains, and remember, birds like peanuts, too. When you find what the birds you like like, mix up your own combinations. They'll be glad to get whatever you give them.

Astro-Graph by bernice bede osol

This coming year you will shed many unrealistic or adolescent patterns you may have established in the past. When you do your world will quickly change to a more profitable and happier one.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you're overly assertive today you could come on quite strong. However, when you sense you've been too pushy, you'll make up to others with small sacrifices. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in each of the seasons following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The day may begin with you feeling as if you have the burdens of the whole world on your shoulders. Once you start moving, however, you'll actually enjoy the responsibility.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The quirks of an old friend may surface today, but chances are you'll take this conduct with a grain of salt. The annoyance will quickly pass.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A family member may do something today which you'll feel is out of line. Through kindness and love you can show this person the error of his or her ways.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Matters you may personally deem most serious might not have the same gravity to others. Listen to what they have to say. This will lighten your burden.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Push self-oriented desires to the background for the time being. Today you may be called upon to assist another. You'll be glad you did.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be aware of the interests of your companions today and go along with their wishes. You'll be pleasantly surprised at how much you'll enjoy yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Even though there is nothing in it for you, don't be reluctant to do a family member a favor. What you do now will have a long-term favorable effect.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's not like you to be standoffish or snobbish, so don't begin today. You'll win the friendship of important people if you're cordial to all.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you remain loyal today, even when you think all is against you, a quite-wonderful opportunity will be presented to you from one who is observing your behavior.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Discuss serious matters as little as possible today. You already know what must be done. Diverse opinions will only confuse you and delay correct action.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't give up the ship prematurely today. Keep searching. The answer to your prayers is already earmarked for you. It's just waiting to be found.

by Mary Ann Cooper

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS — The investigation into Cash's death continues. Chris is under Jack's spell. Sally steps up her efforts to win back Snapper. Lorie is rebuffed by Lance again.
SEARCH FOR TOMORROW — Travis is in the islands and Liza has followed him against his wishes. The Hong Kong Killer arrives as well and sets up Travis to be killed. Peter puts the squeeze on Martin because of his gambling problems. Stu works on his renovation project.
RYAN'S HOPE — Patrick dates Kim even though he knows her true nature. Rae agrees to help Patrick with his clinic. Ox almost gets caught by the police when he tries to sell Jane's pearls to a jewelry store. Maeve tries to convince Siobhan that Joe has changed but he doesn't believe her. Kim agrees to the divorce only if Seneca gives her a million dollars.
THIS WEEK: Ox causes Jane some embarrassment. Delia tries to get Pat's attention.
ONE LIFE TO LIVE — Pamela goes to see Ivan but when she tries to leave he stops her. Later she tells Pat and Ed that she must leave town for a few days. Instead of leaving town she goes to Ivan's house and he turns her into a zombie. Asa is in Washington and wangles an invitation for himself and Dorian to a big Washington party with lots of V.I.P.s. Mimi and Bo think they're being followed.
THIS WEEK: Just why did Pamela scream? And, who is following Bo and Mimi?
ALL MY CHILDREN — Erica breaks her engagement to Brandon and flirts with Kent. Pamela plays cupid and leaves Sarah and Brandon alone in her dorm room alone. Betsy excitedly prepares for her wedding day. Rick sleeps Liza and Travis (played by Sherry Mathis and Rod Arrants are thrown into another dangerous situation as the serial Search For Tomorrow premieres on NBC after 32 years on CBS.

On March 29, CBS will say goodbye to Search For Tomorrow after 32 years to usher in the drama and intrigue that surrounds the political arena in a new serial about Washington life called "Capitol." This new daytime drama under the leadership of the "Young and the Restless's" former producer John Conboy will take the unprecedented step of premiering during a special prime time presentation this evening before its official daytime premiere Monday. Being billed privately as the flagship CBS soap, "Capitol" will star Caroline Jones, Constance Towers, and Rory Calhoun.

In a related development, unlike "Love of Life" which was exiled to oblivion when CBS cancelled it after nearly 3 decades on the network, "Search For Tomorrow" will move to NBC when it leaves the CBS stable at the end of the month to make room for "Capitol." NBC began to negotiate with Procter and Gamble, the owner of 5ET, when news of the show's eminent demise leaked to the NY Post.

GENERAL HOSPITAL — Luke thinks that Laura is headed for Nepal and boards a plane to stop her. Laura sneaks out of the hotel hoping to find her sister Jackie but runs into Scotty instead. Ann is convinced that Frances was given an anti-coagulant drug after she died but Noah thinks Ann is crazy. Alan is told that he will have a better chance of winning custody if he has a place of his own. Luke parachutes out of the plane when he realizes that Laura is not on the plane.
THIS WEEK: Monica makes Alan jealous. Bradshaw confronts Ann about her suspicions.
THE GUIDING LIGHT — The police continue their investigation into the break-in at Carrie's apartment. Vanessa schemes to break up the new relationship that Amanda has formed with Hope and Alan. Bea is concerned about the secret nature of Nola's London stay.
AS THE WORD TURNS — Lisa infuriates John with her attacks in print under the byline, Dolly Valentine. Ariel dates John. Jeff comes down hard on Annie for an error in judgement. Barbara is bothered by her visions of a man living centuries ago.

Sharks are still 'in'
By Dick Kleiner
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — It looks like it never will be safe to go back in the water. Not if Ed Montoro has his way.
Montoro is a producer and he's taking over where "Jaws" left off. He has made another picture about a great white shark popping out of the water to gobble up unsuspecting swimmers, boaters and others who go too near the water.
His film is called "Great White" and he says it has three stars — Vic Morrow, James Franciscus and a 30-foot great white shark. Morrow and Franciscus may be good, but Montoro obviously thinks the shark is the one who is going to bring people into the theaters.
"I think sharks are in," says Ed Montoro. "People love sharks. When they went to see 'Jaws,' the public loved the shark — he was a friendly menace."
"This kind of film is a jeopardy film. It isn't horror and it isn't terror.

with another woman and is cited by Benny. The wedding day arrives and Betsy is upset when there is no sign of Rick.
THIS WEEK: Erica finds that Kent is no push over. Paul prepares to leave Pine Valley.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES — Jake finds the secret panel at the DiMera house and gets trapped inside. Stefano meets with a crime boss and is warned to stay away from his turf. Phyllis and Melissa get control of Anderson. Renee is close to remembering the identity of the strangler through therapy with Marlena. Jake terrorizes Marlena with more threatening phone calls and the police trace the calls to Marlena's office.
THIS WEEK: Renee chooses the wrong person to confide in. Marlena makes a significant breakthrough.
TEXAS — Mr. H contacts Allison and gives her money. Ruby, Rikki, Brett, and Mark begin to explore the cave but the two women become lost. The couples are reunited and begin to use the fire compass to find their way through the cave. Justin throws a party at the Top of the World and Reena and Grant show up.
THIS WEEK: Paige asks TJ if he is holding anything from her. Hunt will appear on Billy Joe's show.
ANOTHER WORLD — Steve helps Rachel get Matthew back and saves them from a certain death. RJ is brought into the station on suspicion of arson. RJ gets a suspended sentence. Willie gets involved in liquor store hold ups. Cecile's efforts to save her marriage are not worth it.
THIS WEEK: Liz has a crush on Milo. Clarice befriends Henrietta.
THE EDGE OF NIGHT — Raven is tricked into believing that she shot Jinx. Jinx's illness may make this seem more true. Jody's mother dies before she can get a chance to talk to her. Raven is brought in for questioning at a phony police station. Jody bumps into a mysterious man outside of her mother's room.

THIS WEEK: Raven plays right into Cliff's hands. Jody is shocked by her mother's lifestyle.
THE DOCTORS — The Medicine Man has his grand opening after Luke spends much money renovating it. Greta leans on Theo for support when she has another flare up with Billy. Luke has another falling out with Natalie over money.
THIS WEEK: Billy puts more pressure on Natalie. Theo has a confrontation with Billy.

PRIME TIME CORNER DALLAS — Bobby Ewing's worst fears are realized when Farrisday is murdered, but a much worse blackmailer takes his place, his brother, J.R. With copies of Christopher's adoption records in his possession, J.R. realizes that he is probably the real father and now he can force Bobby to do his will so that Pam will never find out. J.R. also believes he will soon have a clear field to get Sue Ellen back with Clayton Farlow leaving town and Cliff Barnes well on the road to ruin. Lucy fails to return to Southfork and the police are called in to find her. Donna faces Miss Ellie with her findings on Jack's early career and a deep rift is created between the two women. And, the police want to know about Bobby's acquaintance with Jeff Farrisday.
DYNASTY — Test results prove that Blake is the father of Fallon, after all. Blake plans to meet with Rhinewood face to face so he can make a deal with him. Claudia is destroyed when the burned wreckage of Lindsay's plane is found with all its occupants obviously burned with it. Krystle struggles with Claudia for a gun that Claudia plans to use on Cecil. The gun goes off hitting Krystle in the head.

Klaus Kinski: the 'venom' villian

By Richard Rothenstein

NEW YORK (NEA) — Klaus Kinski is probably the only actor to have turned down roles in two of the past year's biggest films, "Raiders of the Lost Ark" and "Ragtime."
Instead, he chose to play a villain who snakes his way through "Venom," a horror movie that is scaring audiences and scoring at the box office.
"It's great to have that power," Kinski says. He may be best known in America as the father of "Tess" actress Nastassia Kinski, but Klaus Kinski has been a top European star for decades.
In "Venom," he plays an international criminal named Jacmel, who masterminds the kidnapping of a 10-year-old boy with a reptile menagerie. When plans go haywire, Kinski, Oliver Reed, Lance Holcomb and Sarah Miles are trapped in a London townhouse with a slithering black mamba — one of the deadliest snakes in the world.
Being a villain is nothing new to Kinski, who has starred in more than 175 films, playing Nazis, hoodlums ("For a Few Dollars More"), killers ("Schizoid"), anarchists ("Dr. Zhivago") and vampires ("Nosferatu").
On screen, he is hypnotically evil, sputtering staccato orders and wearing dark, dramatic costumes. Off screen, he's hyper, uninhibited, laughs often and favors pale beige.
"Everyone asks me, 'Why are you always a villain?'" he sighs, grasping for words in his heavy accent. "When I started in the theater, German papers introduced me as 'a young new comic talent.' Now they call me 'killer.'"
"I'm romantic, too, even though on talk shows they tell me I have alarming face. If you see someone on the screen killing someone, it's alarming. But if you see them — how you say? — making love, it's not alarming. It's the moment."
During the past four months, Kinski has been seen in three new films, and one was a surprising departure. In Billy Wilder's comedy "Buddy Buddy," he played a sex-clinic doctor who runs off with Jack Lemmon's wife (Paula Prentiss).

"Buddy Buddy" found no buddies at the box office, but Kinski was glad to work with Wilder, the Oscar-winning director of such films as "The Lost Weekend" and "The Apartment."
"As a kid, I was cheering in my seat at 'Lost Weekend,'" says Kinski. "I wanted to do any movie with Billy."
He made his American film debut in the critically panned "Love and Money," as an obsessed board chairman. "It wasn't the movie I was running after," admits Kinski, whose attitude in the past has often been to take the money and run. "I just wanted to do a movie here."
The film was shot in Los Angeles, where Kinski now has a house and a Japanese cook.
He has no regrets about films he turned down, including Arthur Penn's "Four Friends," which he couldn't fit into his schedule.
"Everyone tells me 'Raiders' is an exciting film, it's entertainment, no?" Kinski says. "I ran into Steven Spielberg in Hollywood. He asks, 'Why you no make my movie?' I say, 'Script don't excite me at all.' But I see it makes money. I tell him, 'You and me do serious movie, better script.' Spielberg's a genius, but he's done more important things."
Miles Forman asked me to do 'Ragtime,' and when I heard it had 150 speaking Kinski has no absence of malice toward the German press, because they write "hateful trash" about him and Nastassia. He is proud of his daughter's work, her independence.

"When I saw big poster of Nastassia at the Cannes Film Festival, I stop, amazed," he says. "After I see 'Tess,' I call Roman Polanski at 1 o'clock in the morning. It was a great film, I wanted to tell him. It was so important for him to express all his feelings... the press has typecast him, too."

The Polish-born Kinski is not worried about conventions ("They say I'm a German actor, but I don't care; you could say I had an operation, I'm an Eskimo girl!") or age (he is 54, "but every day is a birthday, no?").

Celtics take second in Amarillo Tournament

The Pampa Celtics advanced to the finals of the second annual Jim Foran Memorial Sixth Grade Boys' Basketball Tournament in Amarillo before falling to Amarillo Hamlet-Scott, 42-24.

The Celtics, coached by head coach James Lee and assisted by Artis Betts and Gerald Smith, won three games in the 16-team double-elimination tournament to reach the finals. Lee has coached in the Optimist Boys' basketball program for 24 years. Smith is an 11-year coaching veteran while Betts just finished his first year as a coach.

In the opening game, the Celtics downed Amarillo South George Marsh, 28-16. Kevin Bunton tossed in 10 points to lead the Celtics.

Bunton poured in 18 points as the Celtics rolled past the Pampa Lakers, 52-17, in the quarterfinals. Kyle Clark led the Lakers with eight points.

With three players scoring in double figures, the Celtics walloped Panhandle, 38-20, in the semifinals. Bunton, Troy Owens and Dustin Miller had 10 points apiece for the Celtics.

Pampa had problems coping with the height of the taller Hamlet-Scott team in the finals. Owens topped Pampa in scoring with eight points while N. Sraffer paced the winners with 24 points.

Others playing for the Celtics were Chris Porter, Shawn Harris, Kerry Brown and Jason Farmer.

The Celtics, which won the Optimist Club City Tournament this year, had members of the league runnerup Lakers on the team.

Lee-coached teams have made a habit of winning league and city tournament championships. In the past seven years while coached by Lee, the Celtics have won the four league titles and five tournament championships. When the Pampa Spurs defeated the Celtics last month in Optimist Club, it ended a 45-game winning streak that started three years ago.

Sampson named AP Player of the Year

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Ralph Sampson, 7-foot-4 Virginia center, has been voted recipient of the Adolph F. Rupp Trophy as The Associated Press' college basketball player of the year for the second straight year, the AP announced today.

Sampson, a junior, received 39 of a possible 60 votes cast by sports writers and broadcasters nationwide in earning the honor, which is sponsored by the Commonwealth Athletic Club of Kentucky.

Presentation of the trophy was scheduled today.

Forward Terry Cummings of DePaul was second in balloting with 11 votes. James Worthy of North Carolina was third with nine votes and Paul Pressey of Tulsa received one vote.

Sampson, who beat out Mark Aguirre of DePaul and Danny Ainge of Brigham Young to win last year's award, has scored 1,599 points in his career. During his three seasons, the Cavaliers have posted an 83-18 record and have gone to the NCAA tournament the past two years.

Last year, Sampson led Virginia into the Final Four, where the Cavaliers lost to Atlantic Coast Conference rival North Carolina, 78-65, in the semifinals. The Cavaliers were upset by Alabama-Birmingham, 68-66, in the Midwest semifinals of this year's tournament but finished the season with a 30-4 record.

Sampson, a two-time All-American, averaged 15.8 points and 11.4 rebounds per game this season while blocking 99 shots and slamming home 67 dunks.

Sampson may be the best center in the college ranks since Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Los Angeles Lakers was learning his trade at UCLA, and Abdul-Jabbar was a boyhood idol of Sampson.

If Lakers' owner Jerry Buss can get a lock on the first pick in the National Basketball Association draft before the May 15 hardship deadline, Sampson may turn pro this year.

Lady Seminoles advance to NWIT semifinals

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Leading scorers Sue Galkantas and Lisa Foglio were sidelined with injuries but the Florida State Lady Seminoles still raced into the semifinals of the college basketball National Women's Invitational Tournament.

Galkantas was on crutches with a sprained ankle and Foglio has a broken arm, but teammates Glenda Stokes and LeeVayn Oliver look up the slack with 15 points each in Thursday's easy 76-63 quarterfinal win over Pepperdine.

"We shot really well," said Seminoles coach Janice Dykehouse. "I was a little concerned playing without our top two scorers but I was glad to see some of our other players scored a little more than they have in the past."

The Seminoles play Brigham Young, a 72-69 winner over DePaul, in tonight's late semifinal game.

"We'll have to play better than we did tonight (Thursday) to beat BYU," Dykehouse said. "We got a little sloppy in the second half and we can't do that against BYU because they are a well-disciplined team."

Oregon State plays Illinois State in tonight's first semifinal contest.

Brigham Young ran away — literally — from DePaul on Thursday, getting its fast-break in gear early and beating the Lady Blue Demons 72-69. The loss snapped a 10-game DePaul winning string.

The Demons were hampered when season scoring leader Debra Robinson fouled out with nine minutes to play. Sophomore Barbara Atsaves led the Demons with 23 points while senior guard Jeannette Weston got 33 points — most of them on fast-break layups — to lead the Cougars, now 21-12.

Sophomore forward Dawn Hallett hit 18 points as Illinois State rallied from a 12-point deficit for its 74-69 win over Temple in the quarterfinals. The Red Birds, 19-13, caught up by intermission and never trailed in the second period. Debbie Benak backed Hallett with 15 points. Marilyn Stephens led the Owls with 19.

The outside shooting of Judy Spoelstra and the inside work of Cheryl Cady paced Oregon State's 71-65 win over pesky Southern Mississippi. Spoelstra hit for 16 points from long range for the Beavers, 17-8, while Cady led the team with 18. Junior Wilhelmina Smith led Southern Mississippi with 22 points.

Temple plays Southern Mississippi while Pepperdine goes against DePaul in today's consolation games.

Pampa hosts Monterrey

Pampa hosts defending Class 5A champions Lubbock Monterrey in a non-district doubleheader at 1 p.m. Saturday in Optimist Park.

Harvester coach Gary Haynes plans to start junior lefthander Brian Bowen (1-0) on the mound in the opener.

Pampa has a 1-5 record.

Tryouts slated for Babe Ruth baseball

Tryouts for boys 13-18 years of age wanting to play Babe Ruth baseball this summer will be held at the Optimist Club building, 601 Craven, March 30-31 and April 1, beginning at 5:30 p.m.

Boys 13-15 must make two of the three tryout dates. Boys 16-18 must sign up, but will start playing at a later date. If unable to attend because of sickness or out of town these days, call league president James Davis at 665-4160.

"The Optimist Club hopes for a good turnout of boys so that we may continue the 13-year-old Prep League we started last year," Davis said.

Pistons making run for NBA playoff berth

By The Associated Press

Coach Scotty Robertson of the Detroit Pistons isn't thinking about the National Basketball Association playoffs just yet ... but try him in a week or so.

The Pistons won for the sixth time in seven games Thursday night, edging the Philadelphia 76ers 100-98 on Terry Tyler's short jump shot with two seconds left, and moved within one-half game of idle Atlanta for the sixth and last Eastern Conference playoff berth.

The victory was a big one as the Pistons set out on a road trip to Boston, New Jersey, Washington and Indiana before returning home next Thursday to play seven of their last nine games in the Pontiac Silverdome.

In other NBA games, the Golden State Warriors nipped the Utah Jazz 107-105, the Denver Nuggets trounced the San Diego Clippers 129-117 and the Houston Rockets downed the Portland Trail Blazers 108-95.

With a crowd of 21,114, third largest in the club's 25-year history in Detroit, cheering them on, the Pistons fought back from a 71-56 deficit with 4:27 remaining in the third period. A jumper by John Long ignited a 16-4 uprising that cut the gap to 75-72 by the end of the period, with Long scoring four baskets the spurt.

Long scored 15 of his 28 points in the third period and Isiah Thomas added 21. Philadelphia's Julius Erving had 31 as the 76ers suffered their third straight defeat.

The once-lowly Pistons have a respectable 33-36 record. "As a team, Detroit has come a long way," said Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham. "Before, in the big games, they did not know how to win. They were poised in this one and under control and hit the boards well. They did what was necessary to win." Warriors 107, Jazz 105.

World Free scored 34 points as Golden State handed Utah its 16th consecutive setback, four short of the NBA record set by the 76ers in 1973. Free scored 17 points in the first quarter as Golden State jumped out to an early lead, shooting 73 percent during the period. Adrian Dantley led the Jazz with 28 points. Nuggets 129, Clippers 117.

Kiki Vandeweghe scored 32 points and Alex English added 29 as Denver notched its eighth consecutive victory and handed San Diego its eighth straight loss. The Clippers, who have lost 23 of their last 25 games, kept it close until late in the game. They trailed 111-109 with 4:51 remaining, but Dan Issel, who wound up with 26 points, reeled off nine points as Denver boosted its lead to 120-111. Michael Brooks led the Clippers with 29 points and Tom Chambers added 27. Rockets 108, Trail Blazers 95.

Moses Malone scored 41 points and hauled down 18 rebounds to lead Houston. Malone, who scored 49 points when the Rockets beat Portland 11 days ago, scored 23 points in the first half and the Rockets went on to take a 2½-game lead over Portland in the Western Conference playoff race. Houston led by as many as 18 points in the fourth quarter. Mychal Thompson led Portland with 23 points.

Lamar wins volleyball title

Lamar K clinched the church league volleyball championship Thursday night with a 15-10, 13-15 and 10-8 win over First Baptist at the Pampa Youth Center.

Second and third place in the final league standings will be decided in a playoff.

Miller named AP Coach of the Year

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Ralph Miller, who led Oregon State to its third straight Pacific 10 Conference title this season, has been named The Associated Press' 1981 college coach of the year for the second consecutive season, the AP announced today.

Despite losing three of last season's starters, all of whom are playing in the National Basketball Association, Miller guided the Beavers to a 25-5 record this year. The Beavers made it to the championship game of the NCAA West Regional before losing to Georgetown, 69-45, last Saturday at Provo, Utah.

In a closely contested race for the honor, Miller polled 16 of a possible 60 votes of a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Dean Smith of North Carolina was second with 12 votes, and DePaul's Ray Meyer took third with nine. John Thompson of Georgetown and Don Monson of Idaho had four votes apiece.

Oregon State, which was ranked fourth nationally in the final AP poll, lost starting guards Ray Blume and Mark Radford and center Steve Johnson to graduation after last season, when the Beavers went 26-2. Many regarded Oregon State lightly this year because of its heavy losses, but, under Miller's tutelage, the Beavers compiled their third straight 20-win season.

Miller has built his team around a passing game that he learned as a student-athlete at Kansas. The 63-year-old coach, who has spent 12 years at Oregon State, believes the theory of the game has changed little since then.

"Most of the ingredients — the offensive theories, the defensive theories — of playing basketball, and most of the methods for teaching ballplayers were invented before 1940," he has said.

Ma Perkins is a folk-art painter

EDITOR'S NOTE — Until recently, Ruth Perkins' works were seen only in her antique shop and there didn't seem to be much interest in them. Then, she was "discovered." At 70 years of age, she's now enjoying her commercial success as a folk-art painter.

By EARL BOHN
Associated Press Writer

TRANSFER, Pa. (AP) — Ruth Perkins claims she understands more about what makes a good roast-beef dinner than a good painting.

She hasn't sold any $650 roast-beef dinners lately, but her oils on canvas fetch as much only a few years after customers in her antique shop passed them over at $5 and $10 apiece.

The 70-year-old, white-haired woman, who has been painting as a diversion most of her life, is baffled by her sudden commercial success, wondering just what it is that art buyers like in her work.

"People ask us why hers sell when good paintings don't," says her husband, Clarence.

"I just don't know," she says. "I go into art shops and see so many good paintings that aren't selling. To me it's a pity."

She is one of many Americans who paint without the benefit of formal training, and, as it did for some of the very good ones, recognition came virtually overnight for Mrs. Perkins.

It happened one day when a man was browsing through the antique shop the couple used to have beside Pennsylvania Highway 18 in the low, open hills of the Shenango Valley, about 20 miles northeast of Youngstown, Ohio.

"The chap came up with a painting, a self-portrait she did 20, 30 years ago, and he said, 'You don't know who did this, do you?'" says Perkins.

"He wanted pictures just as fast as she could get them done. That's where it all started," he says.

Mrs. Perkins says that happened three years ago. "Probably five the way time flies," says Perkins, 75, a husky man with small hands and a calm, pink face.

The browsing stranger was "an old client and friend of mine," says Jay Johnson, agent for Mrs. Perkins and some 50 other folk artists.

"One day he said to me, 'Oh my ... you've got to see these paintings.' That was her first sale," says Johnson, who operates the America's Folk Heritage Gallery in New York City.

Until then, Mrs. Perkins was known mostly for her work in the kitchen of Ma Perkins' Fried Chicken Restaurant.

Since then, the antique shop has become a studio where Mrs. Perkins has painted nearly 50 pictures. She's not making a fortune, but a lot more than she ever expected to from painting. Johnson says her works have been shown in his gallery and others in several states.

Europeans are also getting a look at the paintings of Mrs. Perkins and other American folk artists in a traveling show sponsored by the John Judkyn Memorial Gallery of England, he says.

Mrs. Perkins is mentioned in Robert Bishop's "Folk Paintings of America," and two authors plan to include her in a forthcoming book about religious themes in folk art, Johnson says.

She remains impressed by her pictures.

"I don't like them that well. I paint them because apparently someone else likes them," Mrs. Perkins says. "I like them, but I wouldn't tell her that," Perkins whispers with a slight smile while she is in the kitchen checking a beef roast cooking in her old gas stove.

Mrs. Perkins paints from memory. "Grandma's attic, Granxement, fruit room and different things." She also paints from old photographs. Her colorful, simple "Family Gathering At Christmas," which was reproduced on Christmas cards, is a scene remembered from the big, old house they had in Kinsman, Ohio.

"Her use of perspective is, I think, unique," says art book author Bishop. "In some pieces, she uses four perspectives, each side of the picture representing one reality, and they all come together in the center."

The style was born more of necessity than artistry, says Mrs. Perkins, her eyes soft and friendly under curly silver hair. "I wanted to get more in the picture than just what you could see facing you."

In her pictures of family life, "you're immediately drawn in to what she's trying to show," says Johnson. "They're just simple, straightforward pictures."

Most folk art is that way, Johnson adds. "Basically, folk art is done by the common people for the common people. They're self-taught artists and have a natural sense of design and color. The academic rules of painting are unimportant to them."

"Folk art is just plain, ordinary, dumb art. A cow doesn't look much like a cow. You know what it is but that's about all."
