Coyote captured

Animal Control officers trapped a wild coyote, running loose inside the Pampa city limits. Officer Sandy Burns used a noose on a pole to trap the animal. It was caught in the 300 block of South Finley. After placing the animal in the cage truck, officers said they would release the animal south of the city.

Canadian men arrested in Allsup's robbery by threat

BY JEFF FLANGLEY
Staff Writer

Two men are in custody today in connection with an alleged Thursday morning robbery attempt at Allsup's, 201 E. Brown.

Joseph Francis Rego, 26, Canadian, and Joseph Richard Benedict, 27, Canadian, are being held on charges of robbery by threat.

The female clerk on duty during the alleged robbery said two white men entered the store about 1:15 a.m. Thursday. She said both men were in their late 20s, dressed in leather jackets, Harley - Davidson tee shirts, one "with a naked woman on it," and blue jeans.

The clerk stated the first suspect attempted to purchase a six - pack of beer after hours, and when she refused, "He walked out of the store with it," the clerk said.

She said the other man walked to the check - out counter and said, "Open up the till and put all the money in a paper sack." She said she did not think the man was serious until he said, "You want me to go out to the car and get my gun?"

She said she then began filling a sack with the store's cash, and the suspect said, "Lift the drawer and get the bills." She said she began putting the register's change in the bag and the man said, "I don't want the damn change."

The clerk said when she placed the sack of money on the counter, the man looked inside the sack and started laughing. "Did you think I was serious?" the clerk reported he said. She said she replied, "I sure did."

She said the suspect then said, "If you tell the police a fat Mexican robbed you, I'll split it with you."

She said the man then went to the door and asked the other suspect to "bring back the beer." The clerk said the suspect returned two beers from the six - pack.

The clerk said other customers entered the store and the men went outside "and just sat there watching the store." She said she called the police, and when they arrived, "they spun out of there and headed toward Canadian."

The alleged robbery attempt was listed on the March 17 police blotter, a public summary of police activity during the past 24 hours, as "Allsup's, 201 E. Brown, reported a robbery. Loss unknown."

Newly appointed district attorney Guy Hardin of Shamrock said, "My investigator is working on it today." Hardin said he would be in Pampa today to investigate the matter.

Hemphill County Sheriff's Deputy Lloyd Osborn confirmed that two suspects were arrested and were being held in county jail in Canadian, but he refused to release the suspect's names. "You can contact Pampa. We are holding them for a Pampa investigation," Osborn said.

Chief J.J. Ryzman said today the men have been returned to Pampa and are awaiting arraignment and bond on the robbery by threat charges.

Shuttle landing equipment shipped by train to White Sands

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Pelted by rain and hail, crews worked through the night to load tons of equipment aboard 23 flatcars for today's train trip to New Mexico, where the gear will help the space shuttle land from its third mission March 29.

The recovery vehicles — a convoy of big trucks, vans and mobile stairways — have been tied down and taped shut for the 32-hour train ride to White Sands Missile Range, N.M., due to depart today.

During the shuttle's first two landings, the convoy equipment raced amid clouds of dust onto Rogers Dry Lake here moments after Columbia rolled to a stop on its Mojave Desert landing strip.

But the 44-square-mile lakebed, a barren expanse of normally rock-hard clay, is now spotted with long shallow ponds, some stretching a mile or more. Gusty winds make little waves ripple over the dry lake, where more than 1 1/4 inches of rain have fallen since Tuesday.

Officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration say it could be at least a month before the California lakebed dries.

Les Reinertson of NASA's Dryden Flight Research Center alongside the flooded lakebed said the train "will have adequate security, but I'm not going to tell you what it is." The train has priority along its route — other traffic will get out of the way, Reinertson said.

The shuttle train's itinerary called for arrival at the U.S. Army Missile Range at White Sands, N.M., on Saturday. The shuttle, which lifts off from Kennedy Space Center in Florida on Monday, will land in the desolate and still-dry New Mexico desert.

The loading operation began on a railroad spur near the lakebed Thursday afternoon. Flatcars were shifted around by two blue-and-yellow switch engines and accompanied by a pair of bright red cabooses as the weather went through dramatic shifts common in the high deserts. Bright sunlight alternated with light rain showers or hailstorms through much of the day.

The biggest of the recovery units, a 50-foot cooling truck and an even-longer purging unit, were among the first vehicles to roll up the concrete ramp and onto the flatcars bearing NASA's red logo.

Dutch newsmen slain by Salvadoran troops

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Four Dutch TV newsmen were killed when they went to cover the guerrilla side of El Salvador's war, and the Dutch government said today reports indicate Salvadoran troops murdered them.

At a news conference in The Hague, the Dutch capital, a reporter asked Foreign Minister Max van der Stoep whether he believed the shooting deaths were a case of "cold-blooded murder," and van der Stoep responded: "There are reports that indicate it was."

He said Salvadoran officials had told Dutch representatives the journalists were killed by bullets from government troops. "When people are shot in cold blood it is a very, very serious matter," van der Stoep said, adding that he had sent the Dutch ambassador in Mexico to San Salvador to investigate the killings.

In Washington, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the U.S. Embassy in San Salvador "is looking into the matter and has asked for details. They're looking into it on their own. We obviously deplore it, the loss of life there. It is an extremely volatile and dangerous situation."

The killings occurred Wednesday, the same day a right-wing Salvadoran group issued a death list for journalists whose views it opposed. The Dutch were not on the list.

San Salvador Defense Minister Jose Guillermo Garcia said an army patrol was unaware the journalists were with the guerrillas it said were operating 35 miles north of San Salvador in Chalatenango province, a leftist stronghold near the Honduran border.

Gen. Garcia said the Dutchmen were killed in a 40-minute gunfight Wednesday night after the rebels fired at the army patrol near the village of San Nicolas Piedras Gordas.

"The armed forces profoundly lament what happened and reiterate their request for the collaboration of Salvadoran and foreign journalists in not exposing themselves so imprudently by traveling to areas that could involve the danger of activities by subversives that international communism promotes in our country," he said.

The victims were identified as Jacobus Andries Koster, 46, producer; Jacobs Jan Willensen, 42, cameraman; Jan Cornelius Kuyper, 40, director, and Hans Lodewijk Ter Laag, soundman, age unknown.

"Their faces were so shot out that we could hardly recognize our friends," said one of two Dutch journalists who identified them.

Foreign Undersecretary Alejandro Gomez said police questioned the four March 11 after Koster's name, hotel room and telephone number were found on the body of a dead guerrilla. Gomez said the four denied knowing any rebels and were released after five hours.

"If there is any question about how they were killed, the army will conduct a thorough investigation," he said.

Colleagues said the four men left San Salvador by car Wednesday afternoon to rendezvous with a rebel group so they could report on the guerrilla struggle in the Central American nation.

Reporters who visited the scene of the killings said they found empty cartridges in one part of a rocky field, two piles of bloody clothes and drag marks for 100 yards. They said one shirt had a Dutch label, and bullet holes in some of the clothes indicated shots were fired from behind.

Four others in the guerrilla group also were killed, the Defense Ministry said. It said three were identified as guerrillas, and the fourth had "features not characteristic of a Salvadoran native, and it was unknown whether he was another foreign journalist or a mercenary."

The ministry gave this account: The 4th Army Brigade in El Paraiso, 35 miles north of San Salvador, dispatched a patrol Wednesday afternoon to check reports by residents that armed groups were soliciting food.

The patrol spotted a band of armed men and followed them until one of the band saw the soldiers and opened fire. After a 40-minute shootout, the guerrillas fled, leaving eight bodies. Four were identified by personal papers as the Dutch journalists and were brought to the capital.

The dead guerrillas were armed with an American M-16 rifle, a Belgian FAL and a 22-caliber pistol.

The killings came the same day as a right-wing group calling itself the Anti-Communist Alliance issued a "death list" with 34 names, including 20 journalists and the information officer of the U.S. Embassy. But the Dutch victims were not on it.

A government spokesman in the Netherlands said Dutch Foreign Minister Max van der Stoep as "deeply shocked" by the deaths. In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Anita Stockman said: "We regard it as a tragedy when the press, in pursuit of its profession, pays such a price."

The four were the first foreign journalists killed in El Salvador in more than a year.

Stock sales down from last year

The 38th Annual Top O' Texas Junior Livestock Show and Sale ended Wednesday with the sale of 371 animals. Total sales brought in $154,696.60, a decrease of $7,065.70 from the 1981 sale, with 37 fewer animals sold.

Average price of the 47 calves sold this year was $1,158.50, compared to $1,117.32 for the 60 sold in 1981. Average price per pound was $1.06, up slightly from $1.04 paid in 1981. Floor price was $61.50 per hundredweight in 1981 and $67 per hundredweight this year.

The 200 pigs sold at an average of $336.69 per pig, up from $283.90 per pig of the 237 sold last year. Average price per pound increased from $1.24 in 1981 to $1.46 in this year's sale, with floor price at $48.25 per hundredweight this year and $38.50 per hundredweight in 1981.

Sales of the 124 lambs averaged $265.29 per lamb as compared to $244.17 paid for 111 in 1981. This is an average price per pound increase of 20 cents over 1981; this year's average was $2.32 per pound, while the 1981 rate was $2.32. Floor price sales rose from $50 per hundredweight in 1981 to $55 per hundredweight this year.

Number of entries in 1982 was up in all categories over 1981. Calves were up from 84 in 1981 to 92 in 1982; pigs, up from 322 to 333; and lambs, up from 137 to 212.

Chamber of Commerce President Carl Kennedy complimented Agriculture Committee Chairman Kenny Smith, Show Superintendent Clyde Carruth, Assistant Superintendent Jim Greene and the many volunteers who worked on the show. He said the show was successful because all of these people gave their time, talents and efforts to help FFA and 4 - H youngsters in the seven - county area covered in the show.

"In addition to all of the workers on the show, I wish to thank all of the local merchants and businessmen who purchased animals. The people who purchase animals are the backbone of any sale, and without a successful sale, the show would not be as good."

"I'm sure plans are already underway for making the 1983 show and sale even better," Kennedy said.

Trusty to succeed Phillips

At an emergency meeting Thursday, the Pampa school board unanimously approved the appointment of James Trusty, 48, 1927 Holly Lane, to replace Bob Phillips as School Superintendent.

The board discussed Trusty's appointment during a closed session Tuesday and voted on the job following a closed session Thursday evening.

Phillips earlier announced his resignation, effective January 15, 1982, to pursue political office. Trusty will replace Phillips on the effective date.

Phillips said no other person was ever considered for the job, and there was no advertisement for job applicants. "He was promoted," Phillips said.

Trusty is currently Deputy Superintendent. He has worked for the Pampa school district for 26 years, beginning in 1956 as a junior high math teacher. He moved up to assistant principal at the old Pampa Junior High School, and he later moved up through administrative ranks as assistant business manager, assistant superintendent and deputy superintendent.

Trusty and his wife Valta have one son, Phillip, a student at Texas Tech University.

Astronauts practice landing

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Although Columbia's two astronauts are experts at landing on an ill-equipped runway in New Mexico's desolate Tularosa Basin, they and space shuttle flight controllers decided to practice one more time in a rare, mid-countdown dress rehearsal.

Meanwhile, tons of equipment was loaded onto a train to make the trip to the New Mexico landing site from California, where furious rains washed out the primary landing site at Edwards Air Force Base.

The first trainloads were to leave this morning, and were to arrive before Monday's 10 a.m. EST launch.

GIRL SCOUT FASHIONS from 1919 to 1982 will be shown in style shows at 11:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday at the Pampa Mall for the Quivira Council's 70th anniversary celebration of Girl Scouting in the

Floodwaters begin receding, but more rainshowers expected

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — The floodwaters that have driven 10,000 people from their homes and mobilized armies of sandbag-toting volunteers inched back from near-record levels, but this city is still locked in a race against the weather.

"I feel if it doesn't rain, we're going to win," Mayor Winfield Moses Jr. said as hundreds of volunteers piled 50-pound sandbags to shore up muddy dikes in a threatened area along the Maumee River, one of three in Indiana's second-largest city.

There was an 80 percent chance of thunderstorms today.

Rivers engorged by thawing snow and nearly a week of rain continued to flood in southern Michigan and central Illinois.

Moses said the weather service told him that the rivers rise by 6 inches for every half-inch of rain that falls. Rain could send the river over the dikes or punch holes in them and flood part of the city, he said, leaving perhaps 25,000 people homeless.

Even without more rain, the network of dikes built after a record 1913 flood have been weakened seriously, and officials worried that some might not hold while the rivers slowly recede.

Terrell would not predict a rainfall amount for the saturated Fort Wayne area Thursday night, but did say severe thunderstorms sometimes dump up to 2 inches of rain.

The Maumee, which is joined by the St. Joseph and St. Mary's rivers in this city of 170,000 people, peaked at 25.93 feet at 1 a.m. EST Thursday and began to back off steadily. Flood stage for the river is 15 1/2 feet.

Moses estimated that 10,000 people had left their homes by Thursday night, up from a morning estimate of 8,500. Four emergency shelters held 210 people, down from 300 earlier Thursday, according to William Kerr of the American Red Cross.

Moses would not say the Maumee had crested because, he said, he had heard predictions before that never came true.

The river slipped from the 25.93 level at 1 a.m. to 25.33 feet at 6 p.m., according to city spokesman Dan Widner. The river hit a record 26.1 feet in 1913 when flooding killed 700 people in Indiana and neighboring states.

In Ohio on Thursday, a 3-year-old girl was killed when a car slid into a flood-swollen ditch and sank in 10 feet of water near Delphos, the sixth death in a week of flooding in the Midwest. Three people have died in Ohio, two in Michigan and one in Indiana.

Floodwaters were receding Thursday in northern Ohio, but the St. Joseph in southwestern Michigan rose into homes and businesses in some communities, forcing hundreds of evacuations. About 600 residents remained out of their homes in southern Michigan. The Illinois River at Peoria, Ill., climbed 7 feet above flood stage.

Torrents of rain that caused mudslides in San Bernardino, Calif., washed out plans to land the space shuttle Columbia at Edwards Air Force Base in the Mojave Desert 70 miles north of Los Angeles.

New Israel-PLO fighting averted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration appears to have succeeded in heading off a potential new outbreak of fighting between Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization, although officials caution that a ceasefire remains fragile.

Philip C. Habib, President Reagan's special Mideast negotiator, managed to strengthen the ceasefire between the PLO and Israel during a recently completed mission to the region, it was clear from the comments of several officials Thursday.

Habib told reporters following a meeting with Reagan that he doesn't think Israel will attack Palestinian forces in southern Lebanon.

"They will not attack. That's my understanding," Habib said. "What I received was a clear indication they wish to abide by the ceasefire," he added.

Habib said that although violations of the ceasefire have been "of minor significance compared with the situation that existed last spring... the situation should still be described as fragile."

The unwritten ceasefire originally went into effect in July following heavy fighting between the PLO and Israel. Already, it has lasted much longer than many people, including some well-placed U.S. officials, had expected.

One official said Habib's latest success clearly reinforces the ceasefire.

"It's another brick in the wall," he said. "The more often we say we are hopeful the ceasefire will last, the more trust we have it will not be broken." He asked not to be identified by name.

Seek to keep control of oil market

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The oil ministers of Indonesia and Iraq joined other OPEC leaders today in urging that the oil cartel hold its basic price at $34 a barrel and cut production to reverse a shrinking market.

Tayeh Abdul-Karim, the Iraqi minister, said delegates of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meeting at a Vienna hotel hoped to agree on reducing the production ceiling from 19 million to 18.5 million barrels a day. The lower level was unofficially agreed to earlier this month.

"We are ready to defend (the $34 price) until the end of the year," Abdul-Karim told reporters as the ministers gathered for an informal meeting.

"We will see how we can defend the price we agreed on in Abu Dhabi," said Indonesian Oil Minister Subroto, referring to the benchmark that was set last October at an OPEC meeting in the United Arab Emirates.

With a recession-spurred world industrial slowdown, an oil glut and production levels already at a 13-year-low, OPEC ministers have a hard choice. They can further trim production to restore balance between supply and demand or face new downward pressures on their prices.

The 13-member cartel's benchmark price of $34-a-barrel for Saudi Arabian light crude already is undercut by as much as $6 a barrel on spot markets, where oil is sold to the highest bidder.

George Strake working at unseating Hobby

The only Republican candidate entered in the Texas Lt. Governor's race made a campaign stop in Pampa Thursday, part of a whirlwind campaign swing through the Texas Panhandle.

Houston native George Strake, Jr., son of a pioneer Texas oil man, said his attempt to unseat Democrat Bill Hobby involves "getting up early and work, work, work."

The manager of Texas Governor Bill Clements's campaign in 1978 is making his first attempt at elected office. He was appointed Texas Secretary of State by Clements in January of 1979, and he served in that office until October of 1981, when he announced for the Lt. Governor's job.

Strake is a conservative who said he agrees with Clements's philosophy on issues "90 percent of the time." He said he supported Clements's "wire tap bill," crime package and War on Drugs.

Asked about the profile of Clements and the new crime package laws in the April edition of Playboy Magazine, Strake said, "Maybe he is doing some good if the national publications are starting to squeal."

The Playboy article outlines a possible threat to individual liberties from the Texas laws, but Strake disagrees. "I don't agree with their analysis on national issues, and I'm sure I don't agree with their analysis of Texas's drug problems," Strake said.

The Playboy article said the Texas Department of Public Safety can now tap anyone's telephone or enter a home to plant a bugging device, "virtually at will."

Strake disagrees, but said he has not read the article. "According to Col. Jim Adams, (former FBI man appointed to the top DPS job by Clements), the wire tap law has not been used in its pure form, and the pen register has only been used 18 times," Strake said.

A pen register is a phone tap that does not listen in on conversations but records each number dialed from a tapped phone.

"The law only is intended to catch the big drug dealers," Strake said.

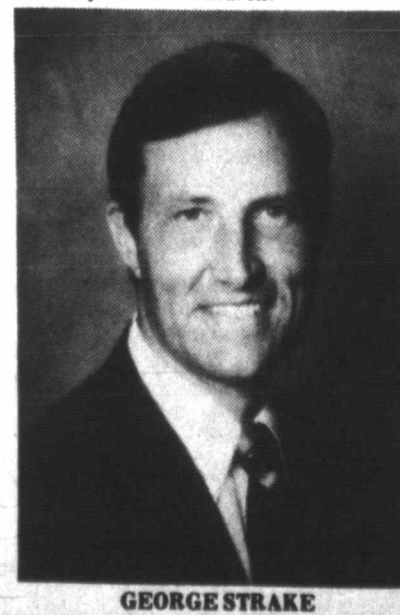

The candidate said it is time for a change in the Lt. Governor's office. "Hobby has been in for 10 years and is burned out. There is no leadership there. He has done nothing on the big problems of crime, water and the budget," he said.

Strake said as Secretary of State, he did not spend all of the money allotted for his office and said he cut the size of the agency's staff.

In addition to his oil interests, Strake is a member of the National Council, Boy Scouts of America, Navy League of the United States, Rotary Club of Houston, the Houston Jaycees and the Houston Chamber of Commerce.

He married Annette DeWalch in 1959, and they have six children.

Gen. Dozier being reassigned to Fort Knox

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier, held captive by Taliban-Red Brigades terrorists for 42 days, is being reassigned from his NATO post to become deputy commander of the U.S. Army's Armor Center at Fort Knox, Ky. Army officials said today. After he was freed by Italian police in late January, Dozier flew to Washington to meet with President Reagan and said then that he wanted to return to the post he held when he was kidnapped.

In that job, he has been the senior U.S. Army officer attached to Allied Land Forces Southern Europe at Vicenza, Italy. He has been deputy chief of staff for logistics and administration there.

Pontiff visits communist city of Leghorn

LEGHORN, Italy (AP) — The communist city of Leghorn rolled out a red carpet today for Pope John Paul II, paying a nostalgic visit to a cement plant owned by a company he worked for in a Polish quarry.

The 68-year-old pontiff was visiting the quarry 160 miles northwest of Rome on the feast day of St. Joseph, patron saint of workers, whose cause he has championed in his travels around the world.

In 1960, to escape deportation to Nazi Germany, Karol Wojtyla as he was known then went to work in a stone quarry in Cracow owned by the Belgian Solvay chemical company. For four years, the future pope shouldered buckets or sacks of lime on a wooden yoke and helped handle explosives.

In 1944, while going from his home to the quarry, he was hit by a truck and hospitalized, an event that he said shaped his spiritual life. After working briefly in the sodium bicarbonate section of the plant, he quit to study for the priesthood in an underground seminary.

John Paul has often referred to his working class origins, and when Leghorn's communist government invited him to visit the city and the 2,800-worker Solvay chemical factory, the pontiff accepted. He is the first pope in 125 years to visit the city.

The Solvay plant is a solid communist fiefdom to which the workers did not admit the bishop of Leghorn, Don Alberto Ablondi, until last year after 14 years of trying.

"There are no compromises on basic issues with the Communists here, as we were badly beaten during recent votes favoring divorce and abortion," Ablondi said. "But there is no anti-clericalism."

However, the invitation to the pope touched off a series of worker protests against his "triumphalism" and barbs in the local press.

One newspaper cartoon showed the pontiff telling a crowd of workers: "Dear brothers, I have worked in factories, too."

Public meeting on improvements

A state highway department plan to widen State Highway 70 in Pampa will be discussed at 10:30 a.m. Monday in commission chambers at City Hall.

Proposed improvements include widening the highway from two to four lanes, constructing curbs and gutters and creating a continuous left turn lane.

The improvements are proposed State Highway 70, from near 21st Avenue in Pampa, northeast to Loop 171.

The design engineer of the project, Jack Light, believes the construction will increase capacity and safety on the road. The meeting to discuss the project is open to the public.

Clements credits right-to-work for strong economy in Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says Texas is beginning to feel the effects of a sluggish national economy but remains "very strong," due in part to the "strongest right-to-work laws of any state in the nation."

Clements assessed the Texas economy at a news conference Thursday after he was asked if he thought the layoff of 2,700 employees by Texas Instruments was an isolated case.

"Well ... it might be termed an isolated case, but I think there is some softness in our Texas economy as compared with four or five months ago," Clements said.

"We have again talked a lot about the ripple effect of the national economy on us in Texas, and we're feeling that ripple effect. I don't think there's any question about it," said Clements. "There are a lot of ways to measure this — our rate of unemployment is up a little."

"When you start having the national economy in the doldrums as it is, we will feel it in Texas, but we won't feel it to the extent probably that most other states will," he said.

"Our economy in Texas is still very strong, probably the best of any state in the nation," he added.

Clements recalled "there has been talk" of putting right-to-work provisions in the Texas Constitution, "which I strongly support." Such laws prohibit a company and union from signing a contract that would require workers to be union members.

"I think that our right-to-work laws in the state of Texas are part of our quality of life. ... It has contributed to what we in Texas are all about," Clements said. "It's no accident that our industrial base and our economy is strong and that our economy is different from Michigan or Pennsylvania or some of those other states that are strong union states."

Clements was asked what he thought would be the impact in Texas of Braniff International Airlines "going out of business" and whether he expected that to happen.

"I'm very hopeful, and I'm also optimistic that they'll pull through," Clements said. "They're certainly having a difficult time right now."

Braniff has announced it will drop about 2,300 employees from its worldwide payroll and furlough another 700 domestic workers by summer.

Clements said he hoped the news media would offer an "expression of confidence in this firm that has served Texas so well," rather than acting like a "pack of hungry dogs after a piece of meat."

Clements also was asked about Texas police officers who have organized a "Cops Against Clements" political committee, and he responded that the "two people who apparently made the press release are union organizers ... They are for what I am absolutely opposed to and that is organizing our law enforcement people on a basis of right-to-strike."

President Ronald DeLord of the Combined Law Enforcement Associations of Texas — CLEAT — said Tuesday the organization had decided to endorse Democrat Buddy Temple for governor, and Clements said "it looks to me like he (Temple) is getting in bed with a grizzly bear."

No heat in Democratic debate

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A few questions into the program it became obvious there was not going to be much heated debate among the leading Democratic candidates for governor.

For Railroad Commissioner Buddy Temple, Attorney General Mark White and Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, the agreement starts with a common dislike for Republican Gov. Bill Clements.

"Mark White sitting here is not the best candidate for governor in the Democratic primary," said Temple, "but I will assure you he beats the hell out of Bill Clements."

The Democratic big three fielded questions from members of the Austin Democratic Forum, who met Thursday night at the plush Headliners Club.

Many of the answers to questions about law enforcement, education and other issues sounded like playbacks of the other candidates' answers.

The similarity did not escape the candidates themselves.

As Temple prepared to follow White with a response about raising the state welfare ceiling, Temple said, "I have a feeling this is going to be real boring."

Armstrong, who missed half the hour-long session because of a late flight from Texarkana, picked up quickly on the redundancy of some of the answers. He said he knew before arriving that there would be some apparent repetition.

"I thought on the way down here that on some of these issues I think the three of us are all almost subject to the same ventriloquist," said Armstrong, adding that it was because the three men share a common approach to many problems.

Temple fired the only near-nasty shot of the night when he tossed a one-liner at White.

Rep. Wilhelmina Delco, D-Austin, asked the candidates about funding Texas' black colleges. Mrs. Delco, a black, long has been awaiting an attorney general's opinion from White on the topic.

As Temple prepared to answer, White said, "Let her ask you for awhile."

Temple countered, "I'm going to give her an answer." He said he favored a permanent source of funds, but not a fund based on a state property tax.

On public education, Temple and White agreed teachers' salaries should be raised. Armstrong had not arrived when the question was asked.

Temple said, "All the problems we talk about would be alleviated dramatically if we did the kind of job we should do in public education."

Industry officials warn the oil glut will be short lived

DALLAS (AP) — Top officials of the nation's oil industry warned the Texas Railroad Commission petroleum prices may skyrocket if the current worldwide glut of crude oil ends soon.

Senior executives of Marathon Oil Co., Exxon Oil Co. USA and Texaco USA testified Thursday before the commission at its annual state of the industry meeting and said prices could jump if Saudi Arabi makes a significant cut in production.

The current glut is a "temporary and treacherous illusion," said one oil executive.

"Whether there is a so-called international glut of crude oil, it is a certainty that there is no glut of domestic crude oil," said Harold D. Hoopman, president and chief executive of Marathon.

"By neglecting the opportunity to aggressively continue our domestic programs, today's oversupply could very easily turn into tomorrow's shortages," he said.

E.J. Hess, an Exxon senior vice president, said, "Major world exporters continue to supply a large portion of U.S. oil demand through imports. Thus, any changes in production levels established by the governments of these nations could significantly affect future supply to this country."

The strongest warning against complacency about the oil glut came from the president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association.

L. Frank Pitts, whose group represents most of the state's small independent oil companies, told the commissioners, "This (the oil glut) is a temporary and treacherous illusion."

"A few months ago, there was near panic and hysteria about oil shortages. Nothing fundamental to the oil picture has been changed. By decreasing production, OPEC and particularly Saudi Arabia can bring about a dramatic change in world oil supplies and markets."

Pitts and other industry officials urged greater incentives for domestic oil and gas production, including lower taxes, accelerated decontrol of natural gas prices and a tariff on imported oil.

Two-day Wood grand jury session ends

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The federal grand jury has called another recess with no official word on when it will meet again in its investigation of U.S. District Judge John Wood's murder.

Assistant U.S. Attorney LeRoy Jahn said the grand jurors, who met Wednesday and Thursday, would not return this week, but she would not reveal when the next meeting would be.

Justice Department officials have refused to comment on reports that the nearly three-year-old investigation is nearing its end.

Former police officer accused of buying baby

CONROE, Texas (AP) — A former police officer, who was acquitted of killing a teen-ager, and his wife have been accused of buying a 3-month-old boy for $1,000 and a used pickup truck, authorities said.

Darwin Bryant, 42, and his wife, Sandra Bay, 29, were arrested Thursday morning at their home in east Montgomery County. The couple was released after each posted a $1,000 bond.

The little boy was placed in the custody of his grandmother, who lives in Houston, about 35 miles south of here.

The Bryants are accused of buying the baby on Feb. 28 or March 1, shortly before the child's natural parents fled to Arizona, said Montgomery County Sheriff's Lt. Art Collins.

Felony warrants have been issued for Donald Beatty and his wife, Mary, Collins said.

The Beattys moved to Texas from Tennessee about a month ago with their infant son and 2-year-old daughter.

Drug Enforcement agent Tom Poole, who was in charge of an El Paso civil case to confiscate attorney Joe Chagra's $60,000 automobile last month, appeared at the session. Some FBI agents also were seen at the federal courthouse.

A judge ruled that Chagra's auto had been used by Chagra to transport cocaine in ordering forfeited to the government.

Joe Chagra, his brother Jimmy Chagra, convicted hit man Charles Harrelson, Harrelson's wife, Jo Ann Starr harrelson, and her daughter, Teresa Starr Jasper, have been key figures in the investigation.

A sniper shot Wood in the back on May 29, 1979, outside his town home here at a time he was scheduled to preside at Jimmy Chagra's cocaine conspiracy trial.

Jimmy Chagra subsequently was convicted and sentenced to 30 years in prison, and Harrelson has been sentenced to prison terms totalling 80 years on unrelated state narcotics and weapons charges filed after Wood's death.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

OPINION PAGE

Registration: trouble

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., a member of the House Armed Services Committee and a perennial Pentagon critic, has given some thought to the potential problems that will arise from noncompliance with the draft registration law. The Reagan administration shows few signs of having thought about the magnitude of the problem, or the social dislocations that could occur if prosecutions begin any time soon.

Aspin plans to introduce legislation that would reduce the penalty for nonregistration to a misdemeanor, carrying a maximum fine of $200 and no jail term. Non-registration is now considered a felony, carrying maximum penalties of up to five years in prison and a fine of $10,000.

With the end of February, the so-called "grace period" for those who hadn't registered for Selective Service has expired, though the government indicates that those who show up for late registration in the near future are more likely to be welcomed than prosecuted. Reliable figures for compliance are not yet available, though Washington estimates that as of Feb. 23 compliance nationwide had risen from 71 percent to 79 percent.

When the dust settles, it is likely that a minimum of 500,000 young men will have declined to register for the presently non-existent military draft. Can half a million all be prosecuted? Will the government work up a few highly publicized "show trials" designed to intimidate more young men into signing up? If only a few are prosecuted, what implication does that hold for the concept of equal justice? How can a system that consciously prosecuted a few and let the majority off scot-free be justified or defended?

On the other hand, the prison system and the court system are now overloaded. How could they be expected to handle an additional 500,000 cases? How will the public react to prosecutions and prison sentences for young men who have failed to sign up for a non-existent draft while murderers and rapists often go free on technicalities? If, with the help of sophisticated lawyers, those prosecuted beat their raps instead, what effect will that have on respect for the law? Will non-registration increase if judges are reluctant to mete out the full penalties to non-registrants?

During the Vietnam war, anti-draft demonstrations and protests helped to create serious social unrest in the United States, threatening the fabric of consent that is a necessary component of order in a non-totalitarian society. Yet, in the last year, more young men declined to register for the draft than during any year at the height of anti-Vietnam war feeling. The potential for serious unrest and disaffection is there, even without a war on to provide an immediate threat to life.

Aspin's suggestion, to reduce penalties for non-registration as long as nobody is actually being drafted, at least indicates some recognition that serious problems will follow any serious effort to enforce the draft registration law. But it falls short of the ideal.

The right course is still available to President Reagan at the stroke of a pen. He could eliminate draft registration just by giving the word. Such a reversal of his unfortunate, Poland-influenced decision to continue registration would permit him to redeem one of his more important campaign positions and vitiate the threat of social unrest that now hangs over the country.

Navy budget cuts are hard to justify

Where the Navy is concerned, it is particularly hard to reduce defense spending to lessen the deficit in the federal budget. If Congress could also vote, say, to shrink the size of the globe it might be a different story.

The quandary facing our naval forces was described recently by Navy Secretary John Lehman in a speech. He was asked how the Navy could respond to the buildup of Soviet naval forces in the Caribbean, the delivery of new Soviet ships and aircraft to Cuba and the rising level of guerrilla warfare in Central America.

The threat to sea lanes leading to and from U.S. ports on the Gulf Coast could become great enough to warrant forming a new "Caribbean force" by the Navy, Lehman said, but to do so would be impossible without drawing down forces assigned under defense treaties to the Atlantic, Pacific and Indian oceans.

Future naval budgets will be strained to provide ships and weapons to offset the Soviet navy's new ability to operate anywhere on the globe. The Navy, said Lehman, cannot afford to offer a "fair share" of budget cuts because its budget is barely adequate to begin with.

Adm. James D. Watkins, the Pacific Fleet commander, put the Navy's problem in human terms. The talk in Congress of a military pay freeze as a budget strategy, he said, ignores the fact that military people only now are coming out of a period when their pay was well below the norm for comparable civilian employment.

Military salaries and benefits were held back in spite of inflation during the Carter administration. "We can't do it to our people again," said the admiral.

The new pay policy voted in 1980 has had a marked impact on Navy morale and the re-enlistment rate. It would be the height of folly to reverse those gains by signaling that the government will again take its budget problems out of the hides of sailors.

By D.R. SEGAL

Probably the only thing you get better at with age is reminiscing and recalling, with monumental inaccuracy, how good it used to be. It seems to me newspapering used to be better because it was more fun and we didn't take ourselves so seriously or care whether some public-opinion poll ranked us higher or lower than chiropractors in "credibility." A September Gallup Poll, according to the Columbia (University) Journalism Review, says newspaper reporters are ranked tenth in terms of "honesty" and "ethical standards," trailing—in order—ministers, pharmacists (pharmacists?), dentists, physicians, engineers, college teachers, policemen, bankers and TV commentators. Even worse off are funeral directors, lawyers, stockbrokers, senators, business executives, building contractors, congressmen, local politicians, realtors, union leaders, state officeholders, insurance salesmen, advertising people and auto salesmen. I would place the Columbia Journalism Review right after all the aforementioned, but I guess they are quoting the Gallup accurately.

Today's newspaper reporters are taking a bum rap. It's not so much that reporters are not credible as the fact that readers are incredulous. They don't believe much of anything, which is what reporters have done all along. There is also the classic tendency to blame the messenger for the message he's carrying, and God knows newspaper reporters carry enough dismal tidings to make them persona non grata with almost anyone. Along with intimidating me with their acuity and formal training, newspaper reporters earn my respect and affection because I think they are doing an extraordinary job under trying conditions—not the least of them being that Mr. Gallup's respondents find them to be less honest and ethical than television commentators, dentists and ministers. Of course, I do not know how one judges the "honesty" of a pharmacist (he doesn't switch your doctor's prescription?) or the ethical standards of an engineer (he doesn't put more steel in the bridge than it requires?) but I guess Mr. Gallup's respondents knew what they were voting for. Sure.

What I started to say was that if Mr. Gallup had added one more question—"Do you really think any of these people are very ethical or honest?"—he probably would have gotten a resounding No.

It is fashionable not to think highly of others, and perhaps with some justice. But I should say that newspaper reporters, by any reasonable measure, are the intellectual and ethical equals of any other professional group of men and women—even druggists. I wish they had more fun with what they do, though. They seem to look terribly serious and troubled, perhaps because they read those polls and take them to heart. When newspaper reporters take themselves and their trade as seriously as the people they write about, they begin to write long sentences with big words in them, which is a very real sin. Hey, you newsroom people, just make sure you get the facts right and don't worry about your credibility. Con men have a high level of credibility. Always have. And quit frowning!

Today in history

Today is Friday, March 19, the 78th day of 1982. There are 287 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: In 1920, the U.S. Senate for a second time rejected the Treaty of Versailles, which provided for a League of Nations.

On this date: In 1563, the Peace of Amboise ended the first War of Religion in France, with the Huguenots granted limited toleration to exercise their religion.

In 1796, freedom of the press was established in France.

In 1979, Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman predicted the Middle East peace treaty would be signed within a week.

Ten years ago: Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi returned to her country after signing a friendship treaty with Bangladesh, and said peace talks with Pakistan were planned.

Five years ago: President Marien Nguabi of the Congo was assassinated.

One year ago: A dress rehearsal for the space shuttle "Columbia" was marred when one worker was killed, a second mortally injured and four others nearly asphyxiated when they entered a compartment filled with nitrogen.

Today's birthdays: Lynda Bird Robb, wife of Virginia Governor Charles Robb and daughter of the late President Lyndon Johnson, is 38. Author Philip Roth is 49.

Thought for today: Woe unto them that are tired of everything, for everything will certainly be tired of them. — G.K. Chesterton, English writer (1874-1936).

Wage equality unrealistic

BY OSCAR COOLEY

When women do the same work as men, they should get the same rates, it is said. This seems only fair, however, wage rates are not determined by fairness but by the supply and demand for labor.

Once, women remained at home, keeping house, bearing children and nursing them, while men worked for wages. As women were emancipated from home work, they went out to get jobs. This greatly increased the supply of labor. Demand increasing less or not at all, the price (wage rate) declined from what it would have been. Supply and demand, not value as people judge it, determine price.

Feminine wage earners should not ape men, increasing the competition for existing jobs. Rather, they should fit themselves to do special jobs for which there is little or no competition. They should differentiate, not standardize around existing models.

For example, the computer industry is relatively new and growing fast. So is the electronics industry. No great physical strength is required in these areas, only knowledge and skill. Fortunate is the person who can find a specialty in either of these industries and fit herself to do it a little better than the few competitors.

The best training for a job is on-the-job training. One should learn the firms in the industry and apply to them for work at whatever wage they will pay. A green person is in no position to specify a wage rate. One should work and learn with the primary aim of being promoted. Pay no attention to what others, either men or women, get.

Why does a woman seek equality? She should seek superiority. seek to be in a class by herself. The best professional athletes are paid millions, not because it is the standard wage rate but because they as individual performers are above all standards.

This of course applies to men as well as women. The "going wage" is nothing to be sought; hundreds get the going wage, which means they just get by. Each should try to be outstanding. They will soon find themselves in administrative jobs.

Should women have equal "rights" with men? The answer is that all Americans are equal in rights—but wage rates are not rights. Everyone has a right to work and earn what he can honestly get. No one has a right to a certain, predetermined wage any more than a grocer has a right to get $1 for 4 cans of tomato soup. The grocer merely has a right to sell at whatever price he and the buyers can agree upon.

Everyone has a right to own and use property, but he must get it honestly and not use it in a way that will infringe the rights of others. No one has a right to take property from another against his will.

Most of a person's rights have to do with his relations to others. We are equal in this respect.

A woman has a right to receive a wage equal to that of a man if she can demonstrate to an employer that she is worth that much to him.

A woman has a right to receive a wage equal to that of a man if she can demonstrate to an employer that she is worth that much to him.

But what have you done for me lately?

BY PAUL HARVEY

Politicians facing re-election this year are acutely aware of this year's voter concerns. Voters don't just ask, "What have you done for me?" They demand to know, "What have you done for me lately?"

North Dakota's Senator Mark Andrews understands. He says nobody remembers the hero of last week's football game. Frequently Americans can't even remember what they were concerned about one week back.

But with his help I've compared now with one year ago and — well, you be the evaluator.

A year ago gasoline was selling for five cents a gallon more than now.

A year ago our American dollar was shrinking thirteen cents a year; today it's shrinking at an annual rate of nine cents.

Interest rates a year ago were more than 21 percent; today less than 16 percent.

A year ago American were saving less than five percent per year; today it's half that.

Waste and fraud in government is two billion dollars less than a year ago and 8,500 dead people are no longer collecting Social Security.

Before Reagan, federal taxes had quadrupled in fifteen years.

Since Reagan, federal taxes are down.

This administration has not corrected all the excesses of twenty years in one year, but it has made a good start.

If there is still too much unemployment, 8 1/4 percent, it is worse almost everywhere.

In Italy, 9.9 percent.

In Britain, 11.8 percent.

Ireland 12 percent.

Belgium more than 13 percent.

And despite our nation's unemployment, total person income of all Americans last month increased two-tenths!

Democrats consider reporting budget to floor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats on the House Budget Committee are considering embarrassing Republicans by reporting President Reagan's budget to the floor exactly as he has submitted it.

"We know — and they (Republicans) admit — they are not going to vote for it because it's got the largest deficit in American history," Rep. Jim Mattox, D-Texas, said Thursday.

Mattox prepared and distributed a "Dear Colleague" letter, advising the House's 435 members of the plan, at the request of Budget Committee chairman Jim Jones, D-Okla.

"We've been getting whipsawed. The president, and Republicans, have been attempting to criticize Democrats for not doing anything on his budget. That's pure demagoguery, because he knows he doesn't have the votes for it," said Mattox, a member of the House Budget Committee.

If the committee goes through with the strategy, it would deliver Reagan's bill to the floor with the recommendation that it not pass, and then let Republicans suffer the embarrassment of voting for it or suggesting changes.

Republicans have de facto control by virtue of having a GOP president, a majority in the Senate and a coalition with conservative Democrats that has given them a majority in the House, Mattox said.

By reporting the president's budget, as it is, the Democrats will be putting the ball back in the Republicans' court, he said. However, he suggested that Republicans may have trouble keeping their edge.

Mattox noted that several conservative southern Democrats — who supported the president's economic program last year — attacked Reagan Thursday for lack of concern about the plight of farmers.

"The Boll Weevils are trying to separate themselves from the Reagan administration. Reagan made a lot of promises to get that first budget through that are not now being kept, and they realize it now," said Mattox, predicting most of them will vote with the Democratic leadership of future key votes.

"I've been all across Texas in recent weeks," said Mattox, who is giving up his House seat to run for attorney general in Texas.

"All those people who defected the Democratic Party last year may still feel that Reagan is a nice guy, but they are definitely back in the party now and don't know why they left. Particularly the farmers."

Democratic members of the committee met Wednesday and Thursday to discuss options, and if Reagan's budget is submitted, it probably will hit the floor just before or just after Easter, Mattox said.

Democrats ask Reagan to support farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than a dozen House Democrats — including several of President Reagan's key supporters last year — have called on him to give a higher priority to problems facing the nation's farmers.

The president has refused at least two requests by more than 40 congressmen, mostly from farm states, who have asked for a meeting at the White House to discuss the crisis brought about by three straight years of low commodity prices.

The president has not addressed the arm situation "because they represent only about 3 percent of the population, and it is not politically feasible for him to tackle the problem," Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, said Thursday.

Hance, who co-sponsored Reagan's tax cut bill last year, accused the president of playing politics at the expense of the nation's interest.

Hance and 12 other Democrats called on the Reagan administration to take immediate steps to alleviate the financial hardships facing American farmers.

"The American farmer is not experiencing a recession, he's experiencing a depression," said Hance, noting that for the first time in history farm prices dropped for 12 consecutive months.

Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, chairman of a conservative Democratic group known as the Boll Weevils, said the White House and Agriculture Secretary

John R. Block have measures available they could take to alleviate the problem, but haven't done so.

"We do not sense a true willingness for a true bipartisan effort from the White House on the farm problem. We have to break that impasse. We have to move in some way to achieve such an effort, but we haven't seen that yet," Stenholm said.

"It's obvious it's a political reason why he's not meeting with us," Stenholm added.

More than 25 Boll Weevils voted with Republicans last year to give Reagan victories on both his budget and tax cut bills.

Hance and Stenholm were among 13 Democrat representatives who met with newsmen Thursday to announce formation of a "Farm Crisis Group" to focus attention on crisis conditions American farmers are facing.

Also participating in the press conference were Rep. Tom Daschle of South Dakota, Byron Dorgan of North Dakota, Ed Jones of Tennessee, Berkeley Bedell of Iowa, Glenn English of Oklahoma, Don Albosta of Michigan, Leon Panetta of California, Marvin Leah of Texas, Dan Glickman of Kansas and Jack Hightower of Texas.

The congressmen said they are asking Reagan to convene a White House Conference on Agriculture.

School district faces cutoff because of discrimination

NEW AUGUSTA, Miss. (AP) — A county official claims the school system can't comply with a federal order in a racial discrimination case, so it will have to accept the Reagan administration's cutoff of nearly $200,000.

The decision to halt federal education funds to the school district, which has been found guilty of racial discrimination, is the first time in nearly 10 years such a step has been taken.

Perry County Public School District attorney T. Jack Riley said the cutoff would mean the loss of 15 to 20 teachers in the district. But he said the district is stuck between the order of a federal administrative law judge and a ruling by the state Supreme Court.

The case began with the firing of two basketball coaches, one black and one white. The New Augusta Attendance Center coaches were fired after the school board heard complaints that not enough whites were allowed to play basketball during the 1976-77 season.

The coaches filed suit, and in 1981 the Mississippi Supreme Court agreed that the coaches were guilty of insubordination and should have been fired, and that there was no discrimination involved.

But in March 1981, a federal administrative law judge ruled that the school board was guilty of discrimination against the coaches and the black players, in violation of Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

The judge recommended that the Perry County School Board settle the matter with the coaches, and the school district did not appeal.

However, since the case was not settled, a discrimination complaint was filed with the Department of Education, which resulted in the cutoff.

"This is the first time in 9½ years that such a step has been taken," Education Department Undersecretary William C. Clohan Jr. said. He said the school district had been told March 5 that it would lose its federal aid in 30 days.

The money that will be cut off is federal aid aimed at helping disadvantaged pupils. About half the 1,400 students in the district are black, as are 75 percent of the disadvantaged students.

Administration farm program will be attacked by Demos

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate Democrats, accusing President Reagan of ignoring the depressed farm economy, are attacking the administration's agricultural policy in a drive to force major changes in price supports and credit.

"If the president's party will not take the lead, it's up to our party to do it," Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., said Thursday.

"Current agricultural policy simply is not responsive to the worsening situation for farmers," said Sen. Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., ranking Democrat on the Senate Agriculture Committee. "Action can and must be taken at once."

Both claim Reagan's attitude is forcing farmers into bankruptcy after years of providing American consumers with the lowest cost food of any country in the world. Americans spend an average of 14 percent of their disposable income on food.

But Agriculture Secretary John Block, who has resisted any suggestion of change in the farm program he pushed through Congress in December, says it's the administration that's leading the fight to solve farm problems by demanding adherence to Reagan's recovery plan for the entire economy.

"Certainly, there will be casualties; there always are," Block told the Agriculture Council of America during a National Agriculture Day speech Thursday.

"But I am convinced that there will be far less if we take the initiative, if we take the offensive," he said. "That's why the entire economic recovery program has to be allowed to continue."

At almost the same time, however, farm-state Democrats in the House formed what they call a "farm crisis group" to begin drafting amendments to the farm law next week. And Senate Democrats introduced a non-binding resolution calling for major policy changes. If Reagan fails to take action quickly, they said they will join the House in drafting formal legislation.

Anthem for our time

By George R. Plagenz

Following a nuclear attack on the United States, the Postal Service has plans to distribute emergency change-of-address cards. This is not a sick joke. It is just sick — because it is true. It is no joke.

It is only one example of what the country is doing to make a nuclear war seem like a nuisance and an inconvenience rather than the cosmic horror it will be. You will find it all in the current Esquire magazine in a story entitled "How Would The U.S. Survive A Nuclear War? Don't Worry Our Leaders Have A Swell Plan."

A publication of the Federal Emergency Management Agency says, "Everyone agrees that a nuclear war could be an unparalleled disaster, but," it adds comfortingly, "it need not be an unmitigated disaster."

In equally consoling terms the publication says, "Yes, 130 million Americans might be dead and another 32 million might be injured in a nuclear attack. But the remaining 61 million healthy survivors can rebuild the country and live long, productive lives if they use common sense and follow government guidelines."

There are several things scary about all this — chief of which is the admission by our government leaders that a nuclear war is a real and present possibility while these same leaders are dismissing the anti-nuclear protesters as frightened alarmists.

It is also chilling to contemplate that our leaders would pass off 130 million dead Americans in such cavalier fashion and would use a euphemism like "injured" to describe the grisly fate which awaits the survivors in a nuclear war — as if we will be dealing with broken legs and fractured ribs.

Cleveland columnist Don Robertson was far more honest when he wrote that unless we stop talking in "goody-goody abstractions," our world will cease to exist.

"One fine morning there will be a loud and final sound, and your eyeballs will melt, and your brains will explode, and not God, not mercy, not benevolence, not the United Way, not all the Welcome Wagons in the world will be of any help."

Like Don Robertson, I am concerned about religious people who say that "prayer and Jesus Christ" will save us from destruction, so not to worry.

There are times when we need God. There are also times when God needs us. This is such a time.

I like this picture which someone has given us of God — "a smile shining through his tears because he was happy with his dream — sad only for what men kept doing to it."

What does it mean to us that we are one other hope, one other chance God has of seeing his dream for humanity come true?

There is of course a limit to how much our psyches can take of these vivid descriptions of the coming holocaust. But there is something else our churches can do in this moment of high danger which will not shatter our emotional equilibrium.

For several years one church I am acquainted with has ended its worship services by singing "America." I suggest that in all our churches we conclude each service with the congregation singing, "For the beauty of the earth," to remind us of what we stand to lose if a nuclear war should come.

For the beauty of the earth, of the sea and of the skies. For the love which from our birth over and around us lies. For the beauty of each hour, of the day and of the night, hill and vale and tree and flower, sun and moon and stars of light.

For the joy of ear and eye, for the heart and mind's delight, for the mystic harmony linking sense to sound and sight.

For the joy of human love — brother, sister, parent, child, friends on earth and friends above — for all gentle thoughts and mind.

Are we willing to risk all of this? For what?

Religion in the News

NEW YORK (AP) — The late soldier-statesman, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, once said that people someday are going to want peace so much that governments are going to have to give it to them.

That insistence is building up in religious organizations these days, catalyzed by nuclear weapons and their potential horror. A couple of events are adding impetus to the trend.

One is a cross-country tour, starting this weekend and sponsored by U.S. religious groups, of European peace leaders. The other was a groundswell of church backing for a "nuclear weapons freeze" resolution introduced last week in both houses of Congress.

It was quickly endorsed by more than 125 religious leaders and organizations, ranging from evangelist Billy Graham to the president of the National Council of Churches, United Methodist Bishop James Armstrong.

He says such a moratorium on nuclear weapons development is desperately needed to help insure a "future for humankind" and to avoid a "holocaust that would incinerate the globe."

The Rev. Timothy Healy, president of Georgetown University, says there is a "growing consensus in the Roman Catholic community" opposing "the threatened use of atomic weapons."

That surge of Catholic concern has involved individual statements by more than 30 Catholic bishops, with a review currently going on of church teachings on war in the light of nuclear weaponry, with some bishops challenging past "just war" theories.

"People are increasingly concerned about the danger," says the Rev. John Collins, executive director of Clergy and Laity Concerned, a national interreligious group. He says "saber rattling" in the Reagan administration has "made many people nervous."

There's also a growing convergence of the European and American peace movements, bypassing government, an internationalization of the effort," adds Collins, a Methodist.

A manifestation of that convergence comes in the scheduled U.S. tour by a group of 10 peace leaders from Great Britain, the Netherlands, West Germany, Italy and Denmark.

Arriving Saturday, they were to split up into five two-member teams, visiting 52 U.S. cities in the next two weeks, speaking to city councils, at churches, universities and evening public gatherings.

Terry Provance of Philadelphia, coordinator of disarmament programs for the American Friends Service Committee (Quakers), a co-sponsor of the tour, says it aims to "strengthen the ties" between European and U.S. peace movements.

"There is a real upsurge of disarmament activity in the United States," he says, attributing it in part to "fear created" by Reagan administration policies, and to the impact of massive peace demonstrations in Europe last fall.

The European peace leaders have scheduled meetings with members of Congress in Washington April 4-5 at the close of their tour, which also is co-sponsored by the interreligious Clergy-Laity organization.

The "nuclear freeze" resolution, parallel to an idea percolating in religious groups for two years, calls on both superpowers to stop production and further deployment of nuclear weapons, followed by "major, mutual and verifiable reductions" in them.

Commending it, Rabbi Alexander M. Schindler, president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, calls present nuclear proliferation "morally abhorrent, adding, "It is ghoulish to imagine a limited nuclear war or to call some weapons 'clean'."

IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

HEY BUDDY!

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

Is something wrong with your life—an inner restless dissatisfaction? The answer to every human problem comes only from God our Maker. He alone can forgive and reassure.
Through the church God has commited the provision and proclamation of His forgiveness and redemption. Without a church relation no one is securely related to God.
Everyone should be in the Church and the Church in everyone!

Hey Buddy, I just wanted to borrow a match — but I might have been opportunity, good fortune, or death. How would you greet me if I were any one of these, especially the last? No matter how unprepared you are any one of these may come to your house today.

There is a way that you can be ready for whatever may come. That way is the one described in the Bible as trusting in God, knowing that He is good. Ah, but who is God that we may trust Him? He is the power who sends opportunity, good fortune and death. To know Him and trust Him is to know life and be freed from all anxiety over death or life. Do you want to know Him? Then seek Him where He may be found, among His people in the Church, and in His witness in the Bible.

Selling tax credits controversy

By JAMES PELTZ
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — General Electric Co., which likes to say it "brings good things to life," has brought itself and some other companies high-voltage criticism over the buying and selling of tax credits.

GE says it qualifies for a 1981 income tax refund of between $90 million and $100 million, even though the company earned $1.65 billion last year. A key reason is that GE bought tax credits from other companies under a provision of the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981.

Supporters of the provision say it allows companies that are losing money to take advantage of tax breaks designed to encourage investment in new equipment. If a company is losing money, it has no tax liability against which to write off credits, effectively making the equipment more expensive — unless it can sell the credit to a company that can use it.

Critics counter that it smacks of corporate welfare, especially when record federal deficits are projected.

The law allows a company to buy new equipment, then sell it and the associated tax credit to another concern. The first company then leases the equipment from the second company.

The seller gets cash from the sale and use of the equipment. The buyer gets an immediate investment credit and more credits later through depreciation on the equipment. When the lease expires, the first company gets the equipment back.

Besides GE, major buyers of tax credits included International Business Machines Corp.; Batus Inc., a British-owned company with U.S. interests in tobacco, retailing and paper; and Marsh & McLennan Cos., an insurance and management firm. Sellers included Ford Motor Co., Chrysler Corp., Eastern Airlines, Continental Airlines, RCA Corp. and Amtrak, the federally subsidized passenger railroad.

Under the law, GE was not able to use all the tax benefits it bought and generated itself in 1981, leaving it with a tax bill of $50 million. But GE was able to apply the excess credits to past years, which resulted in a refund of $150 million. The net result is that GE will get between $90 million and $100 million back from the government.

Overall, the provision cost the Treasury roughly $3 billion last year. Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., a New York bank, estimates.

One key critic, Sen. Robert Dole, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, already has brought tax-lease sales to a crawl by threatening to alter or repeal the law retroactive to Feb. 19. His threat has left companies unsure whether they should enter into new agreements.

Since then a variety of bills to alter the law have been introduced. Dole, who supported the original provision, said in a telephone interview that his understanding of tax-lease sales was that they would help money-losing older companies and newly formed firms, but not that they would enable other firms that were making money to avoid taxes completely.

"Maybe we weren't fully informed that some of these companies, profitable companies, could in effect zero out their taxes with this leasing provision," the Kansas Republican said.

"I don't think we're going to repeal (the provision)," he conceded, "but it ought to be modified."

As GE came under fire, other companies argued GE's publicity was masking the main benefit of the law, namely that marginally profitable concerns could still justify buying new equipment, since they could generate cash through credit sales.

That in turn would help modernize plants, boost the nation's productivity and increase employment, especially during the recession, they said.

Other supporters said the provision, often called "safe-harbor leasing," distributed benefits that otherwise would not be used.

Changing the law now would "almost certainly" result in "cancellation or deferral of a major part" of modernization programs of steel companies, Bethlehem Steel Corp. Chairman Donald H. Trautlein told Dole's committee on Thursday.

Carl Munson, a vice president of Boeing Co., the large aircraft manufacturer, said the provision was "of critical importance" because airlines are losing money and could not generate the earnings needed for buying new planes. Using the "safe-harbor" concept, the airlines can buy the planes, sell them and still use them.

Eastern Airlines Chairman Frank Borman went to Washington Thursday to say Dole's pledge to repeal the law back to Feb. 19 seriously jeopardized Eastern's plan to buy $900 million worth of Boeing jets.

Presidential nomination idea by reformers: lets make it fair

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reformers proposing an overhaul of the presidential nominating system have come up with a unique idea: they want to make it fair.

That's always a worthy goal, and it might even be possible — so long as there are no candidates to win or to lose. In politics, fairness is in the eye of the victor. The losers always figure they were fouled in one way or another.

Last campaign, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy contended that openness and fairness required the release of Democratic delegates pledged by primary election and caucus instructions to renominate Jimmy Carter.

And Carter argued that it wasn't fair to change the rules after he'd won the contest for a delegate majority. The convention upheld him.

A succession of reform panels has labored for years trying to streamline, simplify and shorten the process by which the major parties choose nominees for the White House.

The latest attempt is sponsored by a public affairs center at the University of Virginia. But they skipped one goal, the central one for the people directly concerned with the process, and that is to win. Fairness, and the wishes of people who do not bother to participate, may be of concern in the laboratory, but they don't count when the campaign begins and people start choosing up sides.

The University of Virginia panel, headed by former Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird and former Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, notes that the current process grew without guidelines or deliberate design into something cumbersome, complicated and confusing. That happened in large part because of the work of earlier reformers who set out to broaden participation in the Democratic Party's nominating system.

The Laird-Stevenson commission recommended that the number of primaries be cut from 37 to no more than 16. That isn't going to happen.

Somebody would have to rule on which 21 states have to drop out of the primary business. Congress wouldn't touch that task.

The panel wants primaries held between the first week in March and the first week in June, with Congress scheduling regional primary dates, grouped by time zones, and the sequence established by lottery. That won't work either.

The odds are better for adoption of commission recommendations that would include office-holders and party leaders as uncommitted delegates to national nominating conventions.

Remaining son in cancer-stricken family is student body president

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP)

— The last living son in a family decimated and deformed by cancer has fulfilled the wishes of his dying father and brother by winning the presidency of the University of Florida student body.

Steve Southerland, who campaigned on crutches because he lost a leg to cancer, was voted student body president Thursday. He received 2,210 votes to Brian Ballard Sr.'s 1,998.

Cancer has struck every generation of his family but one since 1840, and killed his father and two brothers.

Southerland said his brother, Michael, and father, Ray, had asked him to run for himself and for them. Both died last year.

Ray, 43, died of a brain tumor and Michael, 14, succumbed to a rare spinal cord cancer. Brother Jeffrey, 4, died of leukemia in 1967.

"I had planned to run for student body president last spring, but felt, with Mike and Dad being so sick, that other things were more important," Southerland said.

The tall, 21-year-old senior, who is studying history, wore out two sets of crutch tips in the last 10 days of his grueling campaign.

His right leg was amputated in 1974 when doctors discovered bone cancer. He spent a year undergoing chemotherapy, and the cancer is considered in remission.

The Southerland family has been studied by the National Institutes of Health for several years because of its medical history.

"In the last 140 years, every generation of the family but one has had cancer in it," Steve said. "It's unprecedented. The NIH is studying why the genetic inheritance is taking place.

"When I got sick, it was the first time in medical history that three brothers in the same family had gotten different kinds of cancer."

Steve, who delights in being the only "one-legged quarterback" around, still plays touch football on campus without his crutches.

"I'm very proud of my son," said his mother, Jane, 42, who lives and works in Miami.

Senate opponent predicts spy bill will be declared unconstitutional

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Legislation to prohibit publication of the names of undercover intelligence agents is nearing enactment in Congress, but a leading opponent predicts it will be struck down by the courts.

"It is going to be declared unconstitutional," Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., said Thursday after the Senate approved the Intelligence Identities Protection Act on a 90-6 roll call.

A number of groups, including the American Civil Liberties Union, have indicated they will ask the courts to declare that the proposal abridges free-press rights granted by the First Amendment.

The bill now goes to a House-Senate negotiating committee, which will attempt to resolve differences between the Senate version and a similar but slightly tougher measure passed by the House last September.

Both bills, strongly supported by the Reagan administration, would make it illegal for government officials, journalists and authors to identify U.S. agents — even if the agents have first been named in public documents.

The Senate bill calls for maximum penalties of 10 years in prison and a $50,000 fine for government officials and three years and a $15,000 fine for journalists.

The principal difference between the two bills is that the House version would protect agents from exposure for five years after they leave foreign assignments.

Critics say this likely would make it a crime for the media to identify such people as former CIA agent Frank Terpil, who set up a private arms sale and military training program for Libya.

Supporters say the legislation is necessary to protect U.S. agents from reprisals after being identified by publications such as the Covert Action Information Bulletin, which has regularly printed names of CIA agents around the world.

In other floor action Thursday, the Senate voted 94-0 to endorse President Reagan's decision to stop buying Libyan oil while the House, on a 379-1 vote, passed a bill raising the maximum fine for obstructing the Secret Service from $300 to $1,000.

The bill, which moved to the Senate, also would establish "zones of protection" for temporary residences and offices of persons guarded by the Secret Service. The president already is covered by such zones.

Dear Abby

Virginity in question, readers respond

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I liked your advice to the guy who never messed with "nice" girls but hoped to marry one, though he was no virgin himself.

When I was a young man, a girl I liked a lot told me she wanted to remain a virgin, but she wanted her husband to be "experienced."

If all the girls are supposed to stay pure and all the men are supposed to be "experienced," where are the men supposed to get experience?

RUPERT

DEAR RUPERT: Probably from those girls who were "pure" until they met up with a guy who was looking for experience.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to your reply to "A. in W.Va." At last! Someone actually says that because a girl isn't a virgin doesn't mean that she should be branded with a scarlet letter forevermore! And even more astonishing, someone has also come right out and said that if a boy wants a virgin he should remain one himself. I couldn't agree more with you on both counts, as that has been my opinion for a good many years now.

All these jerks like "A. in W.Va." who believe in practicing the double standard of sexual "morality" should read your answer. You are 1,000 percent correct. It is about time — in fact, long since past time — that boys realized that if the girls they go to bed with are not "nice," just because the girls go to bed with them, then what are these boys? They are certainly no better. Keep sockin' it to 'em, Abby!

DELIGHTED IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR ABBY: This is regarding the guy who never messed with "nice" girls but hoped to marry one.

I'm reminded of the conversation that took place between me and the father of a girl I wanted to marry. I was 20 and she was 17. Her father asked me if I had ever "been with" a woman. "No, sir," I lied.

"Well, you'd better get out and get some experience before you marry my daughter," he said. "I don't want no clumsy guy who doesn't know what he's doing practicing on my little girl!"

DEAR ABBY: Your statement, "If a guy wants a virgin for a wife, he himself should remain one," was excellent!

I, for one, am tired of the double standard. No one is saying that it is easy, that it takes no control, that it takes no self-discipline. Self-control, rather than hindering, actually adds to one's enjoyment of the sex act. We are no different than animals if the sexual act is performed without commitment and trust.

It is beautiful when two people can enter into a marriage knowing that neither one has experienced this intimacy with someone else.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 20-year-old male and I'm still a virgin. I just want to say that when I marry it will be because I love the girl, and I won't judge her on whether she's a virgin or not. I think it's childish to judge a girl for what she's done in the past. I've known virgin brides who ended up having affairs afterward. And I've known girls who have slept around, got married and turned out to be faithful wives and caring mothers.

There's no such thing as a "bad" girl or a "nice" girl. They're just human like us guys. For every unwed mother there's an unwed father.

A GENTLEMAN

DEAR GENTLEMAN: Lucky for you you didn't sign your name. The girls would be standing in line to date you.

...

DEAR ABBY: I work in an office where there is a high percentage of women. Every morning they come in with all these dirty jokes that would put a platoon of Marines to shame.

Is this normal? I was always told that it was the men who had the "dirty mouths."

I would like an answer as soon as possible because this is ruining my clean upbringing.

AN ADMIRING FAN

DEAR FAN: Dirty mouths are non-discriminating. A dirty mouth doesn't care which sex its owner is.

Sounds of South Texas

The yellow-breasted chat is the largest warbler in the United States. It's seldom seen, but its song betrays its presence. The chat is just one of several birds and animals Witte Museum visitors can see and hear when "Sounds of South Texas" opens there on March 21st.

This permanent installation features 20 different types of birds, and animals and insects, accompanied by a sound track of their natural noises. The exhibit is designed to teach museum visitors to recognize birds by their songs as well as by their looks and coloration.

In the three-dimensional nature setting, cardinals and chickadees hide among the foliage with larger birds such as the Harris hawk and the golden-fronted woodpecker. In addition, frogs, crickets and cicadas can be heard in the underbrush and visitors will see a mechanical rock squirrel emerge from its burrow while a rattlesnake shakes its tail in warning.

Visitors participate in "Sounds of South Texas" by pressing a button, activating a 15 minute sound track of bird and animal calls. Visitors hear the call, then have a moment to guess which bird is singing. A spotlight shines on the bird, followed by a brief narrative description.

"Sounds of South Texas" was made possible through funding from the Robert and Helen Kleberg Foundation and the help of numerous individuals and organizations. The background cliffs in the diorama were donated by the San Antonio Zoo.

In an adjacent gallery are 37 wildflower paintings by Abilene artist Mary Motz Wills. This exhibit of watercolors is sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Martin and the Grey Moss Inn, and will be on display through November. Live wildflowers will also grow in this gallery, tended by museum personnel.

A third gallery will have photographs of South Texas wildlife, taken by Texas artists.

A family oriented lecture series enhances "Sounds of South Texas," covering topics such as building a bird house, attracting and feeding birds in your yard, bird banding and ecology. The series begins at the Witte on Sunday, April 4, and continues for the next two Sundays.

Carroll Abbott, the state's only full-time wildflower seed and plant collector will speak on April 4; David McKelvey, an expert on bird calls will speak on April 11; and Dr. Douglas Slack, from Texas A & M will speak on April 18. All lectures will be held at the Witte Museum at 3 p.m.

"Sounds of South Texas," located on the first floor of the Witte Museum, is open to the public during regular museum hours. The Witte Museum, 3801 Broadway, is open Wednesday through Sunday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children under 12. The museum is free on Saturdays until noon.

A surprise for mom

By Judy Love

Mother's Day is on the way! Surprise mom on May 9 with something other than the traditional flowers and candy.

If you knit, here's your chance to give that special lady something she'll cherish for years to come.

Mom is sure to love the versatility of a sweater — it can be paired beautifully with a dress, skirt or pants. And it can be worn under a coat for added warmth or used as a coverup on those chilly spring days.

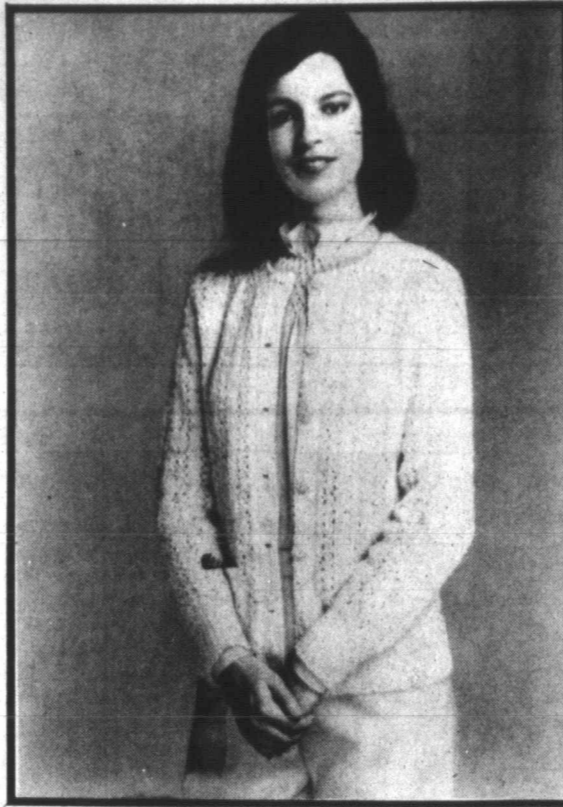

This cardigan features two pockets, convenient for holding loose change or car keys. And, to really give this sweater that personal touch — choose the yarn in mom's favorite color.

Instructions call for seven to eight balls of Bernat Fleurette, a delicate year-round yarn. You'll also need one pair each of Nos. 4 and 5 knitting needles and seven buttons. The sweater is sized small (8-10), medium (12-14) and large (16-18).

To order your instructions, send 50 cents to Stitchin' Time, P.O. Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Ask for leaflet $600 and don't forget to include your name, address and zip code.

KNIT-KNACKS

Dear Judy Love: I recently finished crocheting a jacket, and although I was careful in measuring my stitches, it was too small. Could you please advise me as to any rule to follow in measuring for my next jacket? — G.C., Idaho

Dear G.C.: This happens to almost everyone at one time or another. In the future, remember the following (this applies to cardigans, jackets and coats): Using basic measurements to start with, between two and five inches should be allowed for extra width of body and sleeves, and an extra 1 1/2 to three inches for armhole depth. Using these measurements you will always have that extra room for clothing worn under the jacket. Happy knitting! Judy Love

Dr. Lamb

Physical fatigue takes its toll

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 27-year-old mother of a school age child and two very active pre-schoolers. I am concerned about my constant tiredness, especially in the morning. I cannot seem to climb out of bed, with a lot of effort, until 10:30 or 11 a.m. I could take a three-hour afternoon nap if the children would also nap. By 9:30 p.m. I finally sit down with my husband and I find he falls asleep and I can stay up to midnight.

Could this be caused by lack of certain vitamins? Or do I have a typical night-owl metabolism? Other mothers of young children seem to have the same complaint.

I do need an explanation as I hate late rising, especially on weekends when my husband kindly takes over so "poor Mommy can sleep."

DEAR READER — The reason so many young mothers have this complaint is because raising small children isn't easy. You need more physical and mental rest than you are getting, particularly mental rest. When the children are up and active you are constantly on "red alert" and that takes its psychic toll. Fatigue really is nature's way of telling you something is wrong. Usually it is psychic fatigue (80 percent of the cases). You should have a medical checkup to be sure you have no medical problems.

The sleep cycle is to a large extent a habit pattern that people form. One likely reason you can't sleep until midnight is that you have not relaxed yet. At 9:30 p.m. the day may be nearly over disease, even in association with diabetes or even in areas of recent injury. It is not harmful. Sometimes it is difficult to restore normal pigmentation. Light sensitizing (photosensitizing) medicines such as Oxoralen and Trisoralen in conjunction with sun light or ultraviolet light are used with some success by some dermatologists. Treatment usually takes a long time if successful.

Easier life for wearer of braces

NEW YORK (AP) — Life with braces will be made easier for youngsters who need to wear them, thanks to a new device developed by two Columbia University orthodontists.

Instead of the traditional rubber bands to move teeth and can cut the average treatment time in half, according to Drs. Abraham Blechman and Harry Smiley, inventors of the device. Four small magnets are placed at the rear of the mouth and exert a steady force along the usual wires secured to the teeth. No patient cooperation is needed, which, say the dentists, is a major advantage over the current method of straightening teeth.

Over-all conditions look extremely promising for you this coming year, if you seek knowledge and equip yourself well before embarking on any new enterprise. Don't go off ill-prepared.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Rather than going along with the crowd today, investigate your individual alternatives. Chances are you'll find a road paved with potential that everyone else missed. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in each of the seasons following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The less visible you make yourself today, the better your chances are for peace and quiet. Someone looking for a scapegoat will choose you, if you happen to be around him!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you're too stubborn today, you may turn a deaf ear to good advice and continue trying to hammer square pegs into round holes.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Worthwhile opportunities are around you today. Unfortunately, however, you go after the quick and easy "blue sky" promotions, thus gaining nothing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An old but abrasive domestic issue should not be resurrected today. It'll only cause turmoil on the home front.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Normally you're extremely courteous in dealing with people from all walks of life. Today, however, you may treat those not in your inner circle with disdain.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You know all the right things to say to bring about opportunity for yourself today, but chances are you'll go after the same thing that incurred losses in the past.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Consideration, diplomacy and tact are your traditional tools, yet today you may forget this, and fail by using hard-nosed tactics.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Even if someone wrongs you, your greatest weapon today against the affront is to turn the other cheek. You'll be amazed how everyone will side with you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Quit knocking your head against a brick wall. If something is not bringing in the promised returns, look elsewhere for better results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't attempt to champion unpopular causes today, no matter how dedicated you are to them. Your acceptance lies in going along with the majority.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something may be wrong with your judgment if you continually come up empty. Try today to change directions and have faith in your decisions.

Linda Gray, as Sue Ellen, and Howard Keel, as Clayton Farlow on "Dallas."

When he's not before the cameras in his continuing co-starring role of Clayton Farlow in Lorimar's hit series, "Dallas," Howard Keel usually can be found one of two places; on a golf course or on a legitimate stage performing or rehearsing.

Keel's career until very recently was focused chiefly on stage productions of such classics as "Man of La Mancha," "Camelot," "Kismet" and "Shenandoah." But, following a guesting on "Love Boat," he was set by "Dallas" producer Leonard Katzman for the role of Clayton Farlow, the wealthy father of Dusty Farlow (Jared Martin), one of Sue Ellen Ewing's (Linda Gray) lovers.

Following two appearances in the 1980-81 season, Keel was signed for multiple appearances in the current "Dallas" season.

Subsequently, he was signed by Metro-Goldwyn Mayer to a long-term contract and he starred in some of their biggest musicals, including "Rose Marie," "Showboat," "Kiss Me Kate," "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" and "Kismet."

'On the Road' is still magical

By Judy Randall

"I wasn't on the flatboard before the truck roared off, I lurched, a rider grabbed me, and I sat down. Somebody passed a bottle of rotgut... I took a big swig in the wild.

lyrical, drizzling air of Nebraska." — Jack Kerouac, "On the Road."

It has been 25 years since the publication of Jack Kerouac's "On the Road," a rambling but highly charged narrative of life on the road in America.

This modern-day classic is a romantic, appealing tale of the exploits of Kerouac and his friend, Neal Cassady, as they crisscross the country. It is a testament to young people alone and adrift in America — in search of life, in search of answers, in search of themselves.

The reader follows Kerouac, as Sal Paradise, and Cassady, as Dean Moriarty, on the run, in small towns and big cities, through a maze of drugs, alcohol and sex — but free, free, free.

It was Kerouac's struggle to write "On the Road" and to have it published that epitomized his life.

The author was born March 12, 1922, in Lowell, Mass., to French-Canadian parents. He was a high school track and football star, a dropout from Columbia University, a merchant seaman, cotton picker, novelist, poet and acknowledged King of the Beat Generation.

His biographer, Ann Charters, in her 1973 book, "Kerouac," wrote that "he was a man whose life was directed by what he felt under his skin, not inside his head."

Liberal coach takes over Pampa football fortunes

Pampa school board members named Liberal, Kans. head coach John Kendall as the new Harvester head football coach during a specially-called meeting Thursday night at Pampa Independent School District headquarters.

Kendall, 36, has been the head coach at Liberal High for the past six years where he compiled a 44-12 record. His 1980 team went unbeaten (11-0) and won the Kansas 5A state grid crown with a 20-10 win over Fort Scott in the championship finals. Liberal went 10-1 in 1979 and was state runner-up.

Kendall's teams held opponents scoreless 16 times while averaging 19 points per contest and allowing eight points a game in his six years as a head coach.

Kendall coached 14 all-stars and had 20 players go on to play college football. He was an assistant coach at Liberal five years before moving up to the head position. He has been coaching 16 years.

Kendall plans to return to Pampa for a couple of days to visit with the Harvester football team.

"I want to explain my philosophy to the players and explain what I expect out of them," Kendall said.

"I've seen a couple of films on Pampa's games and I know who's coming back," Kendall said. "It will be a rebuilding year and I think the kids realize this." Prior to his interview, Kendall went on a sightseeing tour of Pampa. He had doubts about making it back to the school board.

"I got lost five times, but I did find the golf course," laughed Kendall. "I also talked football with a few people and they do want a good football program here."

Kendall said he was impressed with the attitude of the school board and Pampa Athletic Director Bill Balcom.

"They were very intense in their questioning and they seemed really sincere about wanting to build a good football program," Balcom said.

Kendall replaces Larry Gilbert, whose coaching contract was not renewed in early January.

John Kendall

Pampa, which has not won a district championship in 11 years, posted a 2-8 record a year ago and failed to win a district game. However, the Harvesters were small and lacked experience.

Balcom said Kendall's salary would be around $30,000.

"It's comparable to what coaches in the surrounding area are making," Balcom added.

Balcom, who earlier this month replaced Loyd Waters as the new Pampa Athletic Director, said Kendall would be an asset to the community.

"People I've talked to in Liberal and coaches who know him said he fits in very well and is respected by everybody," Kendall said. "He's lived in Liberal 11 years. That in itself speaks highly of him."

Kendall graduated from Bethany High School in Oklahoma City and Southwestern Oklahoma State University in Weatherford, Okla. Kendall and his wife, Brenda, have one son, Tyler Shane, six.

Kendall is expected to assume official duties here next month.

Balcom said at least three assistant coaching positions will need to be filled and Kendall may be bringing some of his staff with him.

Those staff announcements will be made at a later date," Balcom said.

Henderson moves to semifinals of JUCO basketball tournament

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — Led by Stan Cloudy's 22 points, Henderson of Texas beat Volunteer State of Tennessee 102-88 Thursday night in the quarterfinals of the National Men's Junior College Basketball Tournament.

In an earlier quarterfinal match, top-ranked Miami Dade North of Florida defeated Moberly of Missouri 58-55. Miami Dade will play Henderson Friday in a tournament semifinal. The other semifinal match will pit Vincennes of Indiana against Midland of Texas.

In consolation games Thursday, Dixie of Utah defeated Tunnix of Connecticut 86-82; Jamestown of New York defeated Southern Idaho 67-66; Mercer County of New Jersey beat Westark of Arkansas 66-57; and Calhoun of Alabama beat Allegany of Maryland 67-64.

Henderson, 33-2, blew the game open with 11 unanswered points to go ahead 56-45 just five minutes into the second half. Thomas Mullins' 22 points were not enough to help Volunteer State, 23-5.

Tracy Stringer hit all of his four free throws in the last 23 seconds to send top-ranked Miami Dade North to its victory. Emery Atkinson's 16 points led Miami Dade, 32-0.

Jerome Clayton's 17 points led Moberly, 31-6. Moberly will play Volunteer State Friday, with the winner playing Dixie Saturday for fifth place in the tournament.

Tom Roberts' two free throws with 18 seconds left in overtime gave Dixie its victory over Tunnix.
