Postal Rates Will Not Change July 6

The United States Postal service has announced that increases in certain postal rates, scheduled for July 6, 1973, will be postponed.

The service has decided not to seek an exception to the presidential price freeze. Increases had been scheduled for magazines, newspapers, nonprofit organization material, books and records.

The existing postal rate schedule calls for rates for certain classes of mail to be increased on July 6 of each year over a five or ten year period until "full" rates are achieved.

The July 6, 1972 rates for these classes of mail will remain in effect until furthur no-

From a simple beginning, it has grown into an expensive project for almost 100 boys and leaders. intensive reasearch has been made into the folklore of the American Indian by visiting contemporary Indian ceremonials and reading about those of the past. Elaborate dances and staging equipment have been developed. While no boy or leader receives any pay, Kwahadi performances are of professional quality, reproducing the folk art of the Indian in all of excitement and color as well as its romantic and sometimes tragic legendary history. The Kwahadis have sought to do more than simply reproduce an as he did them. They have endeavored to capture the tradition and meaning of the dance and adapt it to modern audiences. Following the example of such professional groups as the Ballet de Folklorico of Mexico City, the Kwahadi performance recreates the pageantry of the past with precision dancing. Dances from tribal groups all over North and Central America are protrayed, from the inspiring Flag Dance of the Plains to the ancient and unique Aztec Dance of the Sun from southern Mexico. Those who have seen a Kwahadi performance remember the beautiful costumes. A dancer spends many hours tying feathers and beading under careful supervision, usually requiring a year or more to produce his own costume and becoming a proficient dancer. ## Farmers Facing Decision To Follow Behind Wheat Harvest what crops to follow behind one of the best wheat harvests in several years can rely on information in past research reports at the High Plains Research Foundation.

Dr. Doug Owen, senior agronomist and soybean breeder for the High Plains Research Founlation, advises farmers interested in late planted soybeans following wheat to choose varieties that are best adapted to their area.

He said that earlier maturng varieties such as Patterson and Clark 63 have produced higher yields and matured earleri than the Hill, York, Hood and Lee 68 varieties when planted June 20 or later at Half-

Genuine Indian article have been acquired where possible to add to the enjoyment of the performance. In other cases, needed costuming has been carefully reproduced from authenic originals. Various tribal dances and costumes make the Kwahadi performance entertaining and educational.

The Kwahadis have presented hundreds of show for virtually all types of organizations and occasions. They have danced for youth groups, garden clubs, civic organizations, unions, celebrations, service and social clubs, and many state and regional conventions. In 1969, the Kwahadis presented 32 performances before a total audi-

They are thrilled by the colorful pageantry, brought to laughter by the Indian clowns and often shed a tear as they share a moment of sadness in the Indians' past.

Forage Hybrids: Friend Or Foe

grass hybrids provide an excellent source of high quality forage during the summer months. But they also can be a prolific source of weedy pests which may take several years to eliminate if they are not utilized properly.

So says Dr. James R. Supak, area agronomist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Lubbock. "A seed sompany representative recently described the sorghum sudangrass hybrids as the farmer-stockman's ace inthe-hole,' Supak recalls, "He has a good point. No other forage plant will produce as much digestive forage in the same time period as the sorghum sudangrass hybrids."

These hybrids are frequently ready for grazing within 25-30 days after planting and often produce 25-40 tons of green matter per acre. The agronomist points out. A single crop can be utilized in a number ing, green chop, hay or silage. In contrast to these features, the sorghum sudangrass hybrids are contributing to, if not creating, some serious weed problems in many areas. These hybrids are generally planted on cultivated land and utilized as summer pasture or harvested for hay. The following year this land is generally planted to a row crop. If these forage type hybrids were not u tilized properly- that is, if they were allowed to mature a grain crop, the seed produced will probably constitute a serious volunteer problem the following year.

Supak emphasizes that by al lowing the forage sorghum to reach maturity, the producer actually is losing out in two ways. First, the protein levels and total digestible nutrients of the forage hybrids decline rapidly after they reach the bloom stage. Second, these hybrids are prolific producers of seed which can lead to heavy infestation of weedy sorghums for several years. The plants resulting from this unwanted seed crop may be quite variable in appearance, but a large per-centage of the volunteer will be tall, grassy types which til. ler freely and produce abundant amounts of seed on a loose, open head. The best way to avoida weedy sorghum problem next year, the Extension specialist advises, is to prevent the sorghum sugangrass hybrids from maturing a seed crop.

"Graze or harvest the crop for hay before viable seed are set," he says. "Next year, rotate to a broadleaf crop such as cotton or soybeans which will permit the use of herbicides for controlling grasses. Above all, grain sorghum should not be planted in the field until the volunteer problem is eliminated,' he concludes.

Earthquake warning technique found promising.

"That I may come unto you with joy by the will of God, and may with you be refreshed."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

WASHINGTON REPORT BY Lloyd Bentsen,

United States Senator

I have asked the Senate Rules Committee, which is considering proposals for electoral reform, to recommend a limit on political contributions as well as on total campaign expenditures.

How can you justify a $1 million or $200,000 contribution from one man to a presidential candidate?

I strongly support legislation already proposed that would set a ceiling on spending in campaigns for Federal elective office. But this is not enough. We must also address ourselves to the problem of political contributions.

Let me emphasize that I am not making a categorical condemnation of those who make campaign contributions. In the vast majority of cases, persons who make financial contributions to a candidate do so because they agree with the stands the candidate has taken on key issues or because they have a strong sense of public responsibility.

This is not a partisanissure. No political party or political candidate has a monopoly on morality or virtue. The issue, rather, is the confidence of the American people in our political system.

ENFORCE EXISTING LAWS We must insist on rigid, unflinching enforcement of laws already on the books and we must also provide additional legislation to tighten present limits on both campaign spending and financing.

Everyone is familiar with the continuing, astronomical increases in the cost of political campaigns. Spending in the late 60's was double that of the mid 1950's and the costs will continue to skyrocket if we do not do something about

A proposed law that is now before the Senate would place limits on total expenditures in all campaigns for Federal elective office and this is a significant step toward holding escalating campaign

But if we are concerned with the eroding confidence of the people in their institutions of government, we must also address ourselves to the problem of campaign contributions. When 90% of the political contributions come from 1% of the population, a potentially dangerous situation exists, Politics in the United States should be less a game of big contributions and more an art of talent, ideas and dedication.

The people of this country should not be forced to choose among competing financial interests, but should be permit ted to have a free choice of men, ideologies and ideas.

I have recommended an absolute contribution limitation of $3,000 to any candidate for

The American people are quite legitimately concerned about the influence that money can wield on candidates for political office.

It has been said too often that our political system is the best that money can buy and I don't think money should be a requirement for public office.

Governor Declares Safe Boating Week

AUSTIN, June 15 -- Governor Dolph Briscoe has proclaimed July 1-7 Safe Boating Week in Texas, joining with the Texas Safety Association in urging all boaters in the state to observe safe boating practices.

"Each year an increasing number of Texans are spending more and more time in recreational boating in Texas waterways," said the Governor, noting that the number of boats now registered in Texas approaches 400,000.

"Our state is fortunate in having an abundance of lakes, rivers and streams and the Gulf Coast where Texans can enjoy the pleasures of boating," Governor Briscoe said.

However, he continued to say that this increase in recreational crafts, "greatly intensifies the water safety problem." 'It is imperative that all boatmen observe the basic rules of boating safety if we are going to keep the loss of life and property damage at a mini mum, 'he said.

"The Congress of the United States, in recognition of the importance of such safe boating practices, has requested by joint resolution that the President proclaim annually the week that includes the 4th of July as National Safe Boating Week. The governors of the states the Commonwealth of Pureto Rico and other areas subject to the jurisdiction of the United States also have been requested to join in the observance," read the proclaimation. The Governor closed the proclaimation of July 1-7 as Safe Boating Week in Texas by urging all persons, organizations and governmental agencies interested in safety afloat to publicize and observe safe boating week.

The Texas Safety Association, in keeping with the theme of the "Safe Boating Is No Accident" -- says that planning and study of safety rules are necessary to avoid boating mis-

While each boatman will encounter specialized safety requirements for his particular boat and the way he uses it. TSA suggests a group of basics that make up the 'Golden Rules of Boating'

1. Know your boat. Don't overload.

3. Keep a good lookout. 4. Operate at safe speeds.

5. Respect the weather

6. Take sufficient fuel. Keep your boat in shape, carry necessary equipment. 9. Secure your boat properly.

Wealth must not be permitted to become the yardstick for political talent. We must restore public confidence in our democratic process and that will be hard to do so long as individual condidates are re ceiving many thousands of dollars from a single source. It is contrary to the responsibilities of public office as well as to our political tradition to see candidates spend excessive amounts of time raising money rather than issues, seeking financing rather than solutions to pressing problems.

And these proposed limitations -- on both expenditures and contritutions -- will permit candidates to devote more time to the issues, and the

Burglars Hold "Open House"

COLLEGE STATION --- Some doors and windows invite burglars to "open house."

"Home burglaries are increasing as part of the general increase in the nation's crime rate," Patricia A. Bradshaw, housing and home furnishings specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, noted this week.

'Suburbs are being hit hard, and the more affluent naturally take the brunt." Tough door locks are one

"key" to protection, the specialist said. "A dead bolt lock is the very minimum protection for the "Dead bolt locks often snap into a locked position automatically when the door is closed.

They shouldn't require double locking from the outside. "These locks can't be forced open readily and can't be jimmied or pried open, but it's possible to saw through a dead bolt unless it has a built-in hardened-steel rod. "Segal-type locks have two dead bolts that move vertically into metal hasps--they are far superior to the standard snap lock or even the dead bolt lock,' Miss Bradshaw explained.

She also cited chain locks for providing good protection.

"Some chain locks are key operated -- a key from the outside releases the chain. These are handy for those who lock up as they leave and for families with members who wish to retire and lock up before arrival home of other members who can use a key".

"Key-operated locks can be picked by an ex-

But in another case, involving a similar accident, the house was much nearer to completion.

Bailey County Journal, Sunday, July 1, 1973, Page 7 There was already a door at the foot of the steps that could easily have been locked—but wasn't. When preventing accidents was so simple, said the court, the builder should indeed bear responsibility for what happened.

Another factor is the age of the child. In most successful claims, the victim has been under 12, relatively inexperienced in coping with danger. The older the child, the lighter the burden on the builder. Thus:

A 13-year-old boy fell from a scaffolding left overnight by a construction crew. Was the builder liable? A court said no, because this kind of accident was too improbable to have been foreseen. The judge said that as a rule, a child old enough to climb scaffolding is also old enough to recognize the risk of

No fifths this Fourth.

There used to be a saving at Fourth of July picnics that fireworks and firewater don't mix. Well, neighborhood fireworks are pretty much a thing of the past. So this year let's keep in mind that driving, drinking and speeding don't mix either.

That's what we mean by "No fifths this Fourth." All it takes is a little driving, a little drinking and a little speeding-and you've got the ingredients for big trouble.

This Fourth if you want to drink, get somebody else to drive. And take your time. That's DRIVING FRIENDLY.

Holiday Traffic Accidents Will Take 19 Lives

AUSTIN--Colonel Wilson E, Speir, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, today estimated that traffic accidents in Texas over the July 4th holiday will claim 19 lives. Speir said the toll should be less than that recorded on previous July 4th holidays because this year's observance falls in mid-week. The official DPS count of fatalities will begin at 6 p.m Tuesday, July 3, and run through midnight Wednesday, July 4, Speir said all available De partment of Public Safety patrolmen will be on duty during the holiday period in an effort to reduce accidents. He said they would be especially watchful for hazardous traffic violations including speeding and driving while intoxicated. In adition to stepped-up highway patrols, Speir said the DPS would conduct its special "Operation Motorcide" program in cooperation with local law enforcement agencies throughout the state. Fatal accident summaries will be released three times July 4 to help focus public attention on the traffic situation. The DPS director urged motorists to make the holiday safe by obeying all traffic laws, avoiding fatigue, and by not drinking if driving. He also noted that drivers can reduce the severity of accidents and conserve gasoline supplies by reducing their speed under maximum limits.

When this republic observes the bicentennial of its birth, three years from now, there should be proper recognition of an idea that was the result of the 100th birthday in 1876-the Statue of Liberty, a symbol of "Merty enlightening the world." The exuberance of the still young nation observing its first centennial was to be linked that day with an older country, though younger republic, France. But the resulting gift from the people of France to America, the Statue of Liberty, has been literally a beacon of hope to the oppressed people of the world.

As the official program noted on that July 4th, 1886, when the statue was dedicated, "... in it we see a great republic whose strength lies in her love of arts and peace, impersonated by a gracefully formed woman. Older nations, whose history is blurred and blotted by beads of blood, appropriately adorn their streets and squares with statuary swordsman. No amazon, armed with sword and spear, mounted on fiery steed could represent the American republic . .

Frederick Auguste Bartholdi's statue called on the world to give the young nation "its huddled masses." While immigrants today do not arrive in the great numbers that swarmed here in the latter part of the 19th century, the message of hope to the world and to citizens of the U.S.A. still is clear.

When we HONOR AMERICA on July Fourth, the 197th birthday anniversary, we should give a respectful nod to the lady that is the great masterpiece in New York harbor symbolizing "liberty enlightening
