Argentina reports retaking of Falkland Islands from Britain

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Argentine forces seized the British-ruled Falkland Islands early today and appointed an Argentine military governor to administer the disputed South Atlantic territory, the Argentine junta said.

A source who requested anonymity said there could have been "some injuries" among the 84 British marine defenders, but there was no official report of casualties or confirmation of an invasion from the British.

An earlier Argentine communique spoke of "armed combat," but the official Telam news agency said there were "no armed encounters."

The independent Argentine news agency DYN quoted a military source as saying between 4,000 and 5,000 Argentine troops took part in the occupation of the islands, including 800 marines who landed on the island of San Pedro in the South Georgias.

In Washington, a White House spokesman said President Reagan telephoned Argentine President Leopoldo Galtieri several hours before the invasion to ask for restraint and express his "desire to see that hostilities be avoided."

In Buenos Aires, citizens went about their business as usual, but in the city of Bahia Blanca, 400 miles south of the capital, sirens sounded and church bells rang in celebration. Last weekend, Argentines in the capital and other cities demonstrated against the junta because of economic problems.

"The exercise of Argentine sovereignty over all the island territory and air and sea space has been assured," the Argentine government said in a communique today.

The Interior Ministry said Argentina's chief of army operations, Gen. Mario Benjamin Menendez, has been appointed governor of the Falkland Islands, South Georgia and South Sandwich Islands. It also said that Gen. Osvaldo Garcia has been appointed military commander on the islands.

The junta announced it would "guarantee the safety, lives property and rights of British citizens and English-speaking Argentines in the islands."

Argentine Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez told reporters the next step "will be to inform the United Nations of the events and explain the point of view of the Argentines."

Telam said Argentine marines were flown to Port Stanley from the mainland city of Rio Gallegos, about 250 miles west of the islands.

Problem with Ingersoll-Rand employees' social security solved

A problem with social security records of about 1,000 employees at Pampa's Ingersoll - Rand Oilfield Products Company has now been corrected, according to Industrial Relations Vice President Ray Hupp.

Hupp said employees' social security deductions for the entire year of 1978 had not been recorded in the government's computer files.

The deductions were made when the Ingersoll - Rand employees were a part of Cabot Corporation.

Hupp said the company was notified of the problem in September of 1981 and that spot tests of employee deductions with the agency did not show a record of the funds.

But Hupp said Ingersoll - Rand's records of the deductions have been resubmitted to the agency and should be properly recorded now or in the near future.

Harley Madison, operations supervisor of the Social Security Administration in Pampa, confirmed Hupp's information.

Madison said Cabot's tax manager had corrected the problem in time to beat the 3 year, 3 month and 15-day statute of limitations rule for changing wage records at the Social Security Bureau of Data Processing and Accounts in Baltimore.

Madison explained that computer tapes of all social security records in the country are stored at the Baltimore bureau.

He said Cabot alleged that the administration was responsible for the lost records.

A spokesman for the Social Security Administration in Boston said the records could have been lost in a number of ways.

He said a record of deductions can be lost during computer tape transfer, lost in the mail, or they can simply "fall out of the system."

Any employee who desires to see a record of his social security deductions can obtain a form from the local social security office.

Unemployment hits nine percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Widespread layoffs and plant closings pushed the unemployment rate to 9 percent last month, matching the postwar high, the Labor Department reported today.

Just under 9.9 million people were out of work in March. Since last July, about 2 million have lost their jobs.

March's employment losses, the product of the continuing recession, cut across the spectrum of the population, with joblessness among adult males, traditionally the family breadwinners, equalling December's high of 7.9 percent, the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

But rising unemployment, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said Thursday, does not mean the administration's forecast of an economic recovery this summer is wrong.

Until business is firmly on the upswing, he said, hiring does not pick up. Rather, he added, employers tend to assign longer hours to existing workers before hiring new ones.

"Unemployment is what we call a lagging indicator," he said in an appearance on public television's "MacNeil-Lehrer Report." "It lags behind a recovery."

Private analysts say the absence of any clear signs of an early business turnaround indicates there will be no new hiring any time soon of the magnitude needed to provide relief from rising joblessness.

For March, total employment was 99.5 million, about 100,000 less than the month before.

When unemployment last reached 9 percent, at the height of the Arab oil embargo, 8.4 million people were out of work, but the labor force was smaller then.

In 1938, 10.4 million people were out of work, the largest number ever, but the labor force was only 54.6 million. The highest unemployment rate recorded since data was first compiled in 1940 was the 1941 yearly average of 9.9 percent. Monthly statistics were first compiled in 1948.

Unemployment in 1940 was 14.6 percent. Some estimates say the rate was 25 percent in the worst of the Great Depression in the early 1930s.

The number of people who were forced to accept part-time work because of declining job opportunities grew by 150,000 in March, to a record of 5.7 million.

The Labor Department said the increase in joblessness from February was among job losers, "most of whom were permanently terminated."

It said the number of people on layoffs has accounted for nearly all of the increase in unemployment since this recession began late last summer, and in March comprised over 57 percent of the unemployed.

Joblessness among blacks last month reached 18 percent, a record.

The largest job losses took place in manufacturing, where employment fell by 130,000.

Joblessness among blue-collar workers reached 12.9 percent. The rate for white-collar employees was 4.9 percent, while unemployment among those working in the wholesale and retail trade industries rose from 9.0 percent to 10.3 percent.

Regan, asked Thursday how high he expects unemployment to go, answered:

"Just slightly higher than that. I'm positive they're not going to break 10. I don't think they'll go much higher than 9."

Murray E. Weidenbaum, the chairman of President Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers, has said the administration expects unemployment to average in the vicinity of 9 percent for 1982.

Weidenbaum said earlier this week the administration is "projecting a decline in the unemployment rate later this year with a fourth quarter level in the vicinity of 8.5 percent."

Golan Heights Arabs demonstrate

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli troops shot and wounded four Druse Arabs today while dispersing violent anti-Israel demonstrations in the recently annexed Golan Heights, the military said.

Arabs in Majdel Shams and Massadeh, the two largest Arab towns in the northern Golan, violated curfews and threw rocks at troops, slightly injuring six soldiers, military sources said.

About 150 demonstrators in each town ignored orders to disperse, and after firing warning shots in the air, the soldiers fired "several shots at the feet of the demonstrators," the sources said.

There was no information on the condition of the wounded Arabs.

The incident was the first in recent memory in which troops used gunfire on Golan Druse, who belong to a mystical sect of Islam. The Arabs have been on strike since Feb. 15 to protest Israel's annexation of the strategic plateau taken from Syria in the 1967 war.

The military blocked access to the Golan's four Druse towns on Feb. 25, preventing outsiders, including reporters, from reaching them and allowing only to Arabs who had Israeli civilian identity cards.

The Defense Ministry said the blockades would be lifted at midnight Wednesday, but then said they would be maintained indefinitely because of "outside incitement" against Israeli rule in the Golan.

On Thursday, the military started collecting identification cards issued by Israel's previous Golan military government, and civilian authorities issued regular identity cards to the Druse.

Defense Minister Ariel Sharon was quoted by the state radio as saying some 3,800 of Golan's 15,000 Druse received cards by today.

The Druse oppose accepting civilian identity papers because they fear they will be forced to become citizens and eventually serve in the military, as do Israeli Druse.

On Thursday, Israel Radio reported that 40 new military posts were planned in the hills of the West Bank of the Jordan River to strengthen its hold on the occupied Arab territory following two weeks of Palestinian riots.

Hoover was first president to tape conversations

HOUSTON (AP) — The late President Herbert Hoover ordered a White House stenographer to eavesdrop on two telephone conversations with his successor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and transcribe them for his files, a Rice University historian says.

"It was Herbert Hoover, who first clandestinely recorded two telephone conversations with President-elect Franklin Roosevelt, in November 1932 and January 1933," said Dr. Francis Loewenheim, a history professor who has done extensive research on modern American presidents.

Loewenheim said there is no evidence that Roosevelt knew his conversations were recorded.

Copies of the transcripts were obtained by Loewenheim from files at the Herbert Hoover Presidential Library in West Branch, Iowa. Loewenheim said historian Frank Freidel discovered the papers and in 1973 published the first and much of the second transcript in "The Launching of the New Deal," a biography of Roosevelt.

The biography was published just four months after the White House taping operation of President Richard Nixon was disclosed.

Loewenheim said Hoover was deeply suspicious and distrustful of his successor.

"The 1932 campaign had been unusually hard-fought, feelings between Hoover and Roosevelt increasingly bitter, hostile and suspicious," Loewenheim said in an essay printed in Thursday's Houston Chronicle.

On Nov. 17, 1932, nine days after his stunning victory, Roosevelt telephoned Hoover at the White House to arrange a meeting. The call was made in response to a telegram from Hoover suggesting they meet to discuss the foreign debt and "other important questions."

Loewenheim said Hoover: "I would like to bring in Ogdan Mills because I would like to give you an outline of what is going on abroad, and I wonder if there is someone you could bring along. I would like to have somebody on your side to start studying these questions as a matter of helpfulness to you, as I have a feeling that we have to put up national solidarity."

Roosevelt: "That is right."

The meeting took place at the White House five days later, but the session was a "strained and uncomfortable affair" that produced no concrete results, Loewenheim said.

On Jan. 6, 1933, Roosevelt telephoned Hoover again to discuss a less sensitive matter.

Roosevelt had briefly considered visiting Europe, where Adolf Hitler was only a few weeks from taking power in Berlin, he said.

Hoover, learning of the possible trip, offered his successor the use of an American vessel.

Voting Saturday on bingo and candidates

One issue, two school board races and two uncontested city commission seats will be decided by voters Saturday as polls open at 7 a. m. and close at 7 p. m.

Voters throughout the county will decide whether or not to allow legal, county-wide bingo games.

Two positions are open on the school board.

Incumbent Curt Beck is faced by Dr. H. Dwight Dow for the Place 5 position.

Place 4 incumbent Phil Vanderpool did not seek re-election. Running for that vacated seat are Dr. Robert Phillips, Mary Braswell and John Triplehorn.

Two candidates run unopposed for two places on the city commission.

Place 4 incumbent Clyde Carruth is up for re-election, and Calvin Watley runs unopposed for the Ward 2 seat, currently held by Coyle Ford.

However, under the name of each candidate on the city commission ballot, is a blank space for write-in candidates.

Polling places for the April 3 election are:

Bingo — Precinct 1, Lefors Community Center; Precinct 3, Grandview - Hopkins School; Precinct 4, Alanreed School; Precinct 5, McLean Senior Citizens Hall; Precincts 7 and 12, Horace Mann School; Precincts 8 and 9, Stephen F. Austin School; Precincts 2, 10 and 13, the county courthouse; Precincts 6, 11 and 14, Travis Elementary School.

School board — Music Room, Pampa High School.

City commission — Ward 1, City Hall; Ward 2, North Fire Sub - Station; Ward 3, Optimist Boy's Club; Ward 4, South Fire Sub - Station.

Poll: jobs more important than cutting deficit

NEW YORK (AP) — A majority of Americans believe finding jobs for people who are unemployed is more important than reducing the federal budget deficit, according to the latest Associated Press-NBC News poll.

The poll also said Americans are split over whether defense spending should be increased and whether the country's economic problems would be better or worse if President Reagan's economic program had not been adopted.

The poll of 1,603 adults telephoned Monday and Tuesday in a nationwide random scientific sampling said 65 percent think finding jobs for people who are unemployed is more important than reducing the federal budget deficit. Twenty-seven percent said reducing the deficit, which is expected to climb to more than $90 billion, is more important. The rest were undecided.

Meanwhile, the Labor Department reported today that widespread layoffs and plant closings pushed the nation's unemployment rate to 9 percent last month, matching a postwar high. Just under 9.9 million people were out of work in March.

Respondents split 45 percent to 42 percent in agreeing with the president's statements that the country's economic problems would be worse today if his economic program had not been adopted.

When a similar question was asked in an AP-NBC News poll in January, 54 percent agreed with the president and 37 percent disagreed.

Overall, Reagan's job ratings in the latest poll dipped to the lowest level since he took office.

Forty-three percent said they think Reagan is doing a good or excellent job as president, down from 47 percent in January and 63 percent in August.

Thirty-four percent said they think Reagan is doing a good or excellent job in handling the economy, down from 37 percent in January and 52 percent in August.

By a 48 percent to 36 percent plurality, respondents in the latest poll said they oppose postponing the 10 percent federal income tax cut scheduled for July 1983. Some congressmen and economists have proposed postponing the tax cut in order to help reduce the federal budget deficit.

And 48 percent said they think defense spending should not be cut in order to help reduce the federal budget deficit.

Sources report that secret budget talks are being held

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reagan administration officials and key congressmen are discussing tax hikes and cuts in Social Security cost-of-living increases as possible compromises for reducing the budget deficit, congressional sources say.

No decisions have been reported from the secret meetings, but sources said Thursday that the talks involved the first White House-Congress discussion of specific ways of reducing the deficit in President Reagan's fiscal 1983 budget.

White House Chief of Staff James A. Baker III and Kenneth M. Duberstein, the White House congressional liaison, reportedly have been meeting with key Republicans and Democrats from the House and Senate.

The discussions, being held away from the Capitol, were proceeding as White House aides privately conceded their earlier estimate of the 1983 budget deficit is too low.

Reagan's spending plan has little support in Congress, where Democrats and Republicans alike have said they are concerned that the high deficits may choke off economic recovery.

Elsewhere on the budget front Thursday, the House and Senate Armed Services committees announced they will ask Congress to approve a $50 billion boost in Pentagon spending authority for fiscal 1983, which begins Oct. 1.

Both panels said they approved some $180 billion for weapons purchases, maintenance and operation. The amount is about $3 billion below Reagan's request.

One agency that Reagan has proposed eliminating from the budget — the Department of Energy — probably won't be dismantled, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said.

Bentsen said he was told by administration sources that the White House is abandoning the proposal to abolish the four-year-old department and transfer some of its functions to other agencies.

In other congressional business Thursday:

—Samuel R. Pierce Jr., housing and urban development secretary, told the House Urban Affairs housing and community development subcommittee that it is unlikely Reagan will support any "deep subsidy program" for the nation's depressed housing industry.

—The Senate Finance Committee was told by John E. Chapoton, an assistant Treasury secretary, that the administration wants to keep the controversial tax-leasing provision for businesses but make sure that no profitable company can use it to avoid taxes entirely.

—The chairmen of the House and Senate committees on aging said they are ready to battle to the end against an administration plan they say would reduce food stamp benefits for 90 percent of the nation's elderly poor.

—The three Cabinet secretaries who serve as trustees of the Social Security system said they will put off making recommendations for the retirement program until next year, even though the system is in serious financial trouble.

Nuclear-superiority comment appears softened by officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials appear to be softening President Reagan's statement that "on balance, the Soviet Union does have a definite margin of superiority" in nuclear weapons.
When Reagan made the statement at his press conference Wednesday night to support his opposition to an immediate arms freeze, he was not saying that the Soviets have achieved actual superiority, State Department officials said Thursday.
Rather, the president was only emphasizing that the Soviets have developed a dangerous momentum that favors them over the long term, according to department spokesman Dean Fischer and Richard Burt, undersecretary for politico-military affairs.
The two men endorsed Reagan's statement that the Soviet Union is capable of absorbing a U.S. retaliatory strike on Soviet land-based missiles and then launching a second missile attack on U.S. targets.

Burt, who dropped the word "definite" when he talked of a "margin of superiority," said that Reagan was not changing U.S. assessments of relative U.S. Soviet nuclear strength.
"This is something I think presidents ... has been saying for several years now," Burt said. "That the Soviets have the momentum in the strategic arms competition and we are worried about the trends."
Fischer said Reagan was expressing concern "about the development of a large Soviet force of intermediate-range missiles, about the vulnerability of our land-based missile force and about the long-time momentum of Soviet nuclear weapons deployments."

"The president's (arms buildup) program is necessary not only to reverse these unfavorable trends but to provide incentives to the Soviet Union to negotiate seriously on significant and verifiable reductions to equal levels in the forces of both sides," Fischer said.
Burt and Fischer said that while the administration favors arms reductions, an immediate weapons freeze would halt the planned U.S. buildup they say is necessary to convince the Soviets to negotiate reductions seriously.
Meanwhile Thursday, Reagan was accused by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., of practicing "voodoo arms control" and pursuing policies that increase the chance of nuclear war.
Kennedy made the statement as he and Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., defended their resolution calling for an immediate weapons freeze.

Social Security in serious straits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reagan administration officials say they will put off making recommendations for the Social Security until next year, even though the system is in serious straits.
The three Reagan Cabinet members who serve as the system's trustees told Congress in their annual report Thursday that the Old Age and Survivors Trust Fund will be unable to pay benefits on time starting in July 1983 "without corrective legislation in the very near future."
The trustees said "the short-range financial status is significantly worse than was estimated last year," despite last year's cuts in student, survivor and minimum benefits.
"A series of economic downturns more severe than anticipated have led to the current financial crisis," said Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan, Labor Secretary Raymond J. Donovan and Health and Human Services Secretary Richard S. Schweiker.
But the trustees said, "Because the president has established the National Commission on Social Security Reform, the board has no legislative recommendations at this time and awaits the commission's report, which is due by Dec. 31."
The trustees also estimated that beneficiaries will get a 7.6 percent benefit increase this July based on the consumer price index.
Reagan was sharply attacked last year when he suggested cutbacks in early retirement, disability and other benefits. He eventually abandoned his proposals and set up the commission to seek bipartisan solutions.

Congress passed a stopgap measure last December to tide the old age fund over through 1982 by allowing it to borrow from the healthier disability and hospital reserves. But that borrowing authority lapses at the end of the year.
The combined old age and disability trust dropped by $1.9 billion in calendar 1981 to $24.5 billion, or enough to pay benefits for only two months, the trustees said. It was the seventh straight year of decline.
But the hospital, or Medicare, trust fund rose by $5 billion. Combined, the three funds took in $178.2 billion in payroll taxes while paying out $175.1 billion in benefits and medical bills for 36 million people.
"Under present law, and on the basis of any reasonable set of economic assumptions," the old age and survivors fund faces more red ink at least through 1986, the trustees said.
Social Security operates on a pay-as-you-go basis with the trust funds serving as a buffer or contingency reserve. If the old age fund were depleted, there would be delays in the system's ability to send out checks on the third of each month, the trustees said.
The old age fund stood at $21.5 billion last Dec. 31, the disability fund at $3 billion and the Medicare fund at $18.7 billion.

The old age fund is expected to lose $4.7 billion this year and $19.3 billion in 1983 under some of the trustees' intermediate assumptions.
Even if extended borrowing between the old age and disability funds were allowed, "both funds combined would become unable to pay all benefits on time sometime in the latter half of 1983," the trustees said.
If all three funds were combined, "they would fall short in 1984" under some intermediate assumptions "or as early as the end of 1983 under the pessimistic ... assumptions," the trustees said.
If the economy rebounds as Reagan's budget assumes, "the three combined trust funds would just barely be able to pay benefits on time through the 1980s, but there is no margin of safety to provide for even slightly less favorable economic conditions," the trustees said.
The Medicare fund is healthy now, but "is expected to drop rapidly" and could be depleted by 1986 under pessimistic conditions or in the early 1990s under an optimistic forecast.
Social Security Commissioner John A. Svahn said in an interview the old age fund will have to start borrowing from the other funds in October.

Flooding causes evacuations in California

By ANDY O'CONNELL
Associated Press Writer
Three hundred people fled a flooded trailer park and others piled sandbags to protect homes and a hospital from water rushing through San Jose's streets as California suffered today under a sixth straight day of rain.
The storms prompted the San Jose city manager to declare a state of emergency Thursday and brought more than 12 feet of new snow to the Sierra Nevada. A pair of avalanches Wednesday killed at least six people at the closed Alpine Meadows ski resort near Squaw Valley, Calif., authorities said. Three of the bodies were found Thursday.
A storm that brought Utah a chilling reminder of winter on the first day of April knocked down walls with 55 mph gusts, piled snow up to 5 inches deep in the Salt Lake Valley and caused "dozens and dozens" of highway accidents, in the words of Utah Highway Patrol dispatcher Mike Cadell.

"Everything's gone to total junk out there. That's the best way to put it," he said.
The storm was expected to hit Colorado with a foot of new snow.
In New Jersey, meanwhile, winds up to 50 mph ripped up a sheet-metal hangar at the Morristown Municipal Airport and sent piles of construction debris crashing to a Newark street.
"The wind picked the hangar up, took it off the foundation and twisted it up like a pretzel," said airport manager

Thomas Zenick.
A 19-year-old construction worker, Guy Marshall of Vincentown, N.J., was struck with a piece of plywood blown by the wind at Trenton State Prison and was knocked down an unfinished stairwell to the floor below, officials said. He was treated at a hospital and released.
The residents of Mobile Park West in San Jose, Calif., were evacuated from their mobile homes Thursday after rain-swollen Coyote Creek overflowed its banks. Two schools were being used to house the evacuees, whose number could reach 500 today, officials said.
Fire Capt. Dennis Madigan said the worst flooding affected about 500 of the 750 trailers in the park, where about 2,000 people live.

U.S. Attorney's resignation is requested

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — The chief of Honduras' armed forces says his little Central American country is threatened by the Soviet Union, Cuba and Nicaragua, and he hopes U.S. military intervention will save it.
"Our country is small and weak," Col. Gustavo Alvarez Martinez said Thursday in a radio interview. "Honduras now is confronting an armed aggression from the Soviet Union by way of Cuba. Because of that, if no other possibility exists to preserve peace, Honduras is in agreement that the United States, as a friendly country, should intervene military in Central America."
Alvarez Martinez added that his tight-wing military government is "tremendously worried" by the arms buildup in neighboring, leftist-ruled Nicaragua.
In Managua, the Nicaraguan capital, Sandinista junta member Sergio Ramirez Mercado called the colonel's statement "very serious." There have been scores of clashes along the Nicaraguan-Honduran border since the leftist Sandinistas overthrew dictator Anastasio Somoza in 1979 and thousands of Somoza's army took refuge in Honduras.

Alvarez Martinez claimed the Sandinista government has 4,000 civilian advisers and 2,000 military advisers from Cuba, 80 from East Germany, 30 from Bulgaria, 28 from North Korea, 20 from Vietnam and 10 from the Palestine Liberation Army.
"That situation is cause for worry, and not the presence in Honduras of 90 U.S. military advisers who help us defend democracy in country and region," he said.
Nicaraguan officials denied earlier U.S. charges that numerous foreign military advisers were stationed in their country. They claimed they had about a dozen Cuban advisers and none from the Soviet Union.
Honduran officials said Wednesday that their government and the United States were discussing American help to improve Honduran airfields for military purposes. The Reagan administration said last month that it wanted to improve airfields in Honduras and Colombia to extend its military reach in the Caribbean.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said three airports would be expanded to take care of C-130 transport and cargo jets.
Ramirez Mercado alleged that the United States is building a naval base in the Honduran port of Amapala, on the Gulf of Fonseca, and setting up military bases on the Caribbean coast at Lempira and Castilla. He also repeated a charge that 5,000 Nicaraguan exiles in Honduras were training for armed infiltration of their homeland.
The Nicaraguan government declared a state of emergency March 15, claiming that a U.S.-backed invasion was imminent, and began war preparations including a militia recruiting drive.

War games continue after fifth death

FORT IRWIN, Calif. (AP) — A fifth soldier has died of injuries from the jump of 2,300 paratroopers into the Mojave Desert as part of Gallant Eagle 82, a month-long test of the nation's rapid deployment force.
The exercise involving 40,000 soldiers was entering its attack-counterattack phase today.
On Thursday, a 82nd Airborne Division paratrooper who had been in critical condition since the jump Tuesday died of his injuries. He was identified as 1st Lt. Gregory Lynn Watson, 25, of Hot Springs, Ark.

In addition to the five dead, the jump left 87 soldiers hospitalized in Southern California and 22 hospitalized at Fort Bragg, N.C. — home of the 82nd.
Forty-two people were treated and released, for a total of 156 casualties.
An investigation into the jump continues.
"Whenever you do an investigation, if you find someone did do something wrong, they could be subject to court-martial," Maj. Gen. Elmer Pendleton, deputy director of Gallant Eagle 82, told reporters Thursday.
"I don't want to prejudice the investigation by saying too much," Pendleton said, adding he'd had no indication of wrongdoing or negligence in the incident.

He criticized speculation that the jump, which officers said was made during safe wind conditions shortly after higher winds had abated, was carried out because a large group of reporters and photographers were at the edge of the fatal drop zone.
"You don't jump to impress the media or anyone else," he said. "You've got some pretty reliable people out there who've been with the airborne a long time."

U.S. may have to intervene in Honduras

WASHINGTON (AP) — William H. Kennedy, U.S. attorney in San Diego, Calif., reportedly has been asked to resign, but an associate of the prosecutor is quoted as saying Kennedy will fight to keep his job.
Justice Department sources who asked anonymity said Thursday night that Kennedy's resignation was sought because the prosecutor confirmed the identity of a CIA source.
The request was conveyed in a telephone call made to Kennedy late Wednesday night by Deputy Attorney General Edward Schmults, the sources said.
Meanwhile, Copley News Service quoted an unidentified associate of Kennedy's as saying "he isn't going to roll over and play dead. He's been treated shabbily."

In San Diego, Kennedy's wife, Patricia, declined to call her husband to the telephone Thursday night and said, "There's no comment."
Kennedy was called to Washington on Monday and given a dressing-down by superiors. Department sources said Wednesday they expected him to resign.
Last week, Kennedy was quoted in the San Diego Union as saying the CIA and top Justice Department officials had blocked the indictment of Miguel Nasser Haro, who headed Mexico's federal security agency until January, despite a recommendation from Kennedy that Nasser be prosecuted for alleged involvement in a ring that stole $8.4 million worth of cars in California and smuggled them into Mexico.

Kennedy was appointed by President Reagan and can be fired only by Reagan.
In its editions today, the San Diego Union published statements from local judges and lawyers about the situation.
"It is inconceivable to me that anybody would be forced from office for speaking the truth," said San Diego Superior Judge Ross Tharp, a friend of the Kennedy family.
Former San Diego U.S. attorney James Lorenz said: "It was a courageous act to follow his convictions in seeking the prosecution of Nasser."

Governor Clements unveils mansion renovation

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — With fanfare and ceremony, Gov. Bill Clements and wife Rita have reopened the newly-renovated Governor's Mansion, after a more than two-year project to restore it to its former "simple elegance."

The project cost $3.6 million — $1 million in state funds for structural repairs and the rest in private donations for interior decorating and furnishings.

Before ceremonially unlocking the front door Thursday, Clements said he felt only "dismay" when he and Mrs. Clements moved into the 126-year-old, deteriorating home in 1979. Former resident Dolph Briscoe warned them about falling plaster when they moved in, Clements said.

The Clements stayed in the mansion only seven months, moving into an apartment to make way for the renovation project.

Mrs. Clements said $3.1 million in money and gifts was raised by Friends of the Governor's Mansion, $500,000 of which will be put into an endowment to preserve the home.

The idea behind the project, Mrs. Clements said, was to "restore the home to the simple elegance that characterized the period in which it was built" — the mid-1800s.

Architects Burson, Hendricks and Walls of Dallas won the contract for structural renovation of the mansion. Jed Mace and Tom Sellman of Dallas donated their time as interior designers, Mrs. Clements said.

A nationwide search turned up enough American Empire and Duncan Phyfe china to almost completely furnish the house with authentic American antiques.

After a news conference on the front steps, reporters were taken on tours of the mansion. Public tours begin April 14.

After she and the governor posed for photos in the entry hall, Mrs. Clements led the way through the two-story, white brick house which sits on a large corner lot between the Capitol and the Travis County courthouse.

The redecoration features specially-commissioned rugs — including one with seals of the six flags of Texas and Texas wildflowers in its design — and all the drapery and upholstery fabrics were designed for the mansion, Mrs. Clements said.

In the entry hall is a large oil painting, "The Fall of the Alamo," signed in 1908 by artist Robert Onderdonk. It has been appraised at $450,000 and donated by two Houston families.

Two massive bookcases in the library are reproductions, Mrs. Clements said, because "we looked all over and couldn't find any." They were copied from pieces in the Dodge House in Oklahoma, she said.

A huge breakfront bookcase houses a collection of mementoes Jean Daniel assembled from previous residents of the governor's mansion when she lived there during husband Price Daniel's term.

Among them is James S. Hogg's hymn book and Hardin Runnels' pistol.

Upstairs, the two "official" bedrooms are unfinished, with two mattressless four-posters in the room that used to be the Sam Houston bedroom, which has one of the most unusual pieces in the home — a hammered sheet-metal floor clock that belonged to Gov. Pease.

GM decision to hurt border dealers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Executive director Gene Fondren of the Texas Automobile Dealers Association says a General Motors decision to cut Texas out of a rebate-lower interest rate program will hurt dealers along the state's borders the most.

"The dealers on the New Mexico, Oklahoma and Louisiana borders are probably going to be hurt substantially if this situation continues," Fondren said, because consumers will cross the borders to buy GM products.

Fondren held a briefing for the news media Thursday, following a decision by the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission to ban incentive programs that require financing by auto and truck dealers.

GM is now offering new car loans at 12.8 percent interest. However, it said it was excluding Texas from the program because of a state lawsuit against the automaker and because the program would require dealers to participate financially.

"This shows you what kind of bandits we're dealing with," Attorney General Mark White said on Wednesday.

White sued GM on Feb. 9 to stop the company from requiring Texas dealers to contribute 25 percent of the "cash bonuses" offered to consumers.

A temporary injunction was denied Feb. 25, but the motor vehicle commission voted on Wednesday to ban special incentives if dealers have to put up money. White has said he will pursue a hearing on the GM suit.

Buddy Temple, who opposes White in the Democratic primary for governor, said the attorney general "has put Texans wanting to purchase GM products at a disadvantage in the marketplace as sure as if he'd put his thumb on the scale at the meat counter in the supermarket."

"Texans will have to pay millions of dollars in additional finance charges," Temple added in a statement. "It's obvious that not all the lemons are on the car lots."

Fondren said the commission and automobile dealers association had tried unsuccessfully to get GM to make the rebate plan and special lower interest rates two separate issues.

The red-and-blue state dining room's 14-seat table is English, Mrs. Clements said, but added that decorators are still looking for an American table to replace it with.

One whole side of the downstairs is taken up with twin formal parlors decorated in yellow and green. At one end is an inlaid American Empire pianoforte dated 1830.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Appraisal Board

Here we go again. The Gray County Tax Appraisal board and the Pampa school board are apparently having problems with earwax, or maybe they just are not listening.

Maybe the members of the boards were asleep during the recent public outcry about the free-spending plan to form a central appraisal office, or do they just not care what the public thinks?

Sure, no vote or official poll has been taken about various plans to comply with the mandated county-wide appraisal district, but we think the taxpayers who stormed some of the open board meetings were a pretty good reflection of public sentiment about the issue.

The attempt by the city-school tax office to become king of the tax appraisal mountain, gouging and bleeding taxpayers in the process, suffered a setback. The public and county taxing entities vetoed the school's plan to take over the appraisal work, and the school board was forced to cancel the plan.

But the school board and its echoes on the appraisal board did not take defeat lying down. Now the boards are using tactics to get even for the defeat, and taxpayers should not underestimate the biggest bully on the block.

The only way a central appraisal office can work (and work it must — it's the law) is through the cooperation of the 10 county taxing entities. Delaying or punitive actions by any entity can threaten the very foundation of county tax collection, which is something the taxpayers never wanted.

Brush-back changeups are dangerous — but the Goose Gossage bean balls being thrown at taxpayers by the school and appraisal boards are outright murder.

After Charles Rand and the school tax office were defeated, the appraisal board asked the county to submit its plan; and when the county took them up on the offer, the appraisal board refused to approve the county's contract and budget.

Free the 183

At latest count, an estimated 927,000 young men between the ages of 18 and 22 have still failed to register for the draft, a fact that has made the Selective Service System more than a little miffed.

Thus it was that Selective Service this month gave the Justice Department the names of 183 unregistered men for possible prosecution. Clearly the thought was that while you can't imprison 927,000 men, you can make life miserable enough for 183 that the larger number might start to shrink.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., who is neither a fan of the draft nor the Pentagon, got to thinking about the 183 a few days ago and asked Selective Service for a breakdown of the names and how these scofflaws came to Selective Service's attention.

"We had been led to believe these were all flagrant violators," Aspin said Monday. "men who had thumbed their noses at the law and publicly declared that they would not register. This was true of some of these 183 men, but by no means all."

Aspin said the breakdown showed only 22 of the 183 had actually written back to Selective Service to declare their refusal to register, while 72 had received letters to sign up but had declined either to reply or register.

The remaining 89, said Aspin, were selected for possible prosecution despite the fact that 55 were sent letters that were undelivered and returned to Selective Service; one as sent a letter that simply disappeared

The board just nitpicked away, and then sent it back to the county, which was a stalling tactic if ever there was one.

Then the members of the school board clique rubbed a little more salt in the wound.

Gleefully, they told the county, "So you want the appraisal work, huh? All right, since we have the appraisal cards, we deal the hand."

The board wants to raise the price for use of its appraisal data from $7,000 to $71,000.

Only, terms like "school and county" are just synonymous for "taxpayers," and that suggestion would see some people paying twice for those appraisal records.

We wish the school and appraisal boards would stop this vindictive "crying over spilled milk" and get with the program.

The appraisal board has a valid county appraisal offer on the table, and that plan, or any other, requires the cooperation of the school board.

We would encourage local citizens to continue to attend the sessions of these boards and express their opinions. That seems to be the only course left, and the battle certainly is not over.

There's just one problem with that. Jimmy Wilkerson, chairman of the Gray County Tax Appraisal District board, has already warned that that board will only conduct emergency sessions. Wilkerson's excuse for the emergency sessions is to get tax appraisals to the entities on time. It's legal.

But it also will keep you, the taxpayers, from causing them so much pain in listening to your opinions.

We at The Pampa News would like to know when the appraisal board will meet next, prior to our deadline, so our readers could be informed.

But the last meeting saw the appraisal board scurry off to Amarillo without enough warning for citizens to attend.

We hope it does not happen again.

By CHARLES D. VAN EATON

"We believe we've got a problem which can't wait. We can't wait for four, five, or six months for something to happen to the economy; the economic indicators are down." With these words, uttered after a meeting with the president on March 1, Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., revealed — without knowing it — exactly why politics and politicians may be the force which puts the economy flat on its back for a long time.

The word is that when Congress came back after its recent break, they brought one message from home — "You had better do something to fix the economy." But how can they fix it when they don't understand what's wrong with it?

Over the past few weeks I've been on the phone with several Washington economists and congressional staff people; what I've heard from them hasn't helped me rest better at night.

One economist with whom I spoke told me that just the day before our conversation he had met with a number of conservative Republican congressmen to discuss what's happening in the economy. He said that they not only wouldn't listen — they couldn't listen; they were almost hysterical with fear about the President's budget, the projected deficit, interest rates, and their own chances for re-election. For these people, the idea that the deficit and high interest rates are a natural and short-run part of the transition from an inflation-fueled, no-growth world to a world of price stability and sustained real growth, was impossible to grasp.

Despite all the talk about the horror of deficits, Republicans and Democrats alike are still busy busting the President's budget. There is constant talk of a "compromise" — specifically a continuation of the old game of a step-up in money supply growth. But it should be obvious by now that the old "pump priming" methods cannot do the job. With the economy already "strung out on credit," to use Paul Craig Roberts' term, any move to continue inflation is not going to bring interest rates down or expand employment.

What have we had over the past two decades? Not just simple inflation — but accelerating inflation. From an annual average of 1.8 percent between 1950 and 1965 and 4.4 percent from 1965 to 1973, the average annual inflation rate jumped to 9.4 percent over the 1974 to 1979 period and topped 14 percent in 1980.

And accelerating inflation has not succeeded in reducing the unemployment rate. Contrary to the popular political notion that a judicious dose of inflation can paper over rising unemployment, what we've seen in recent years is a marked rise in both inflation and unemployment.

In October 1979 the Fed began a program of gradually reducing the growth rate of commercial bank reserves and, thereby, the capacity of the banking system to expand the money supply. Despite what the critics have said, the Fed has pretty well accomplished its goal: From the fourth quarter of 1979 to the fourth quarter of 1980, reserves grew at an annual rate of 5.7 percent; from the fourth quarter of 1980 to the fourth quarter of 1981, they grew at an annual rate of 2.2 percent. The result has been as one would predict — the inflation capacity of the economy has weakened. But it's taking time and, as many politicians are hearing, time is the enemy. People want something done right now.

There are an increasing number of economists who are convinced that the most painless way to end America's inflation, bring down interest rates, and get people back to work is to immediately shut the growth of bank reserves down to zero and keep them there for an extended period.

Germany ended its 1920 - 1923 hyperinflation in precisely that manner. At the height of that inflation prices were increasing at a rate of 300,000 percent a year, the money supply was expanding at a rate of 1,300 percent per month, and the interest rate on prime bank loans was 7,300 percent per year. In such an environment savings accounts and life insurance policies were worthless. The inflation was ended totally within weeks of a series of acts prescribed by the currency reform of Nov. 25, 1923. The authorities announced an absolute contraction of the money supply, a reduction in its further growth to zero, radical cuts in government spending, and an end to further bank-note financing of the treasury deficit. In less than a year the economy was back at full production with no inflation with a transition cost of less than 10 percent in total output.

The secret to Germany's success, and somewhat similar results in West Germany and Japan in the 1970s, was credibility. The authorities told the public what they were going to do, what its results would be, and then they did it and stuck to it.

What is lacking in American government today is credibility. There are so many Republican and Democratic critics who talk about the economy's being thrown into deep depression that they leave the impression to key wage, price and interest setters that government is about to back off. As Norman Robertson, chief economist of Pittsburgh's Mellon Bank, has argued, "If you could keep on a steady course, in the sense that everyone becomes aware of what you're doing and believes in it, gradualism would work."

That's fine if credibility exists. But it doesn't! Gradualism has a sorry record in this country. The government has a history of pursuing gradualism until it begins to hurt powerful interest groups, and then it turns around and moves in the opposite direction — and people know that.

Even though the right to run off at the mouth is a precious part of our freedom, it entails responsibility. Many of the big mouths in Washington have ceased to think historically — but haven't ceased talking. I hope their constituents will vote to let them do all the talking they want — but at home where it only hurts the people who have to listen to them — not in Washington where it unnecessarily prolongs the agony of the entire country.

(Charles D. Van Eaton teaches economics at Hillsdale College, Mich.)

Today in history

Today is Friday, April 2, the 92nd day of 1982. There are 273 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On April 2, 1917, President Woodrow Wilson called a special session of Congress to declare war on Germany.

On this date: In 1580, the Seventh War of Religion broke out in France.

In 1937, South Africa prohibited political activity by foreigners in Southwest Africa, now known as Namibia.

In 1947, the U.N. Security Council appointed the United States as trustee for the Pacific Islands formerly under Japanese mandate.

IQY 1/4—7, Iran's hardline Islamic Party scored a major victory in the first round of parliamentary elections.

Ten years ago: Illegal Easter parades were staged in Northern Ireland as the Roman Catholic primate appealed to the Irish Republican Army for an end to violence.

Five years ago: French President, Valéry Giscard d'Estaing warned there would be political consequences if the supersonic Concorde jetliner did not get a fair landing trial in New York.

One year ago: The FBI discovered that the would-be assassin's bullet removed from President Reagan's lung carried a hidden explosive charge.

Today's birthdays: British Actor Alec Guinness is 68. Television producer-actor Jack Webb is 62. Singer Marvin Gaye is 43.

Thought for today: Never trust a man who speaks well of everybody. — John Churton Collins, English literary critic (1848-1908).

Smoking and research

By ART BUCHWALD

Despite the overwhelming evidence that smoking can cause cancer, heart disease and other fatal illnesses, there are still some physicians in the United States who maintain that all the facts are not in, and the medical profession is overreacting. Most of these doctors are employed by the tobacco interests, and some people are skeptical about their research.

I don't happen to be one of them. I believe that just because a doctor is on the tobacco industry's payroll, doesn't mean he is not as objective about smoking as someone who isn't.

Take my friend Dr. Heinrich Applebaum, who gets $100,000 a year to defend the cigarette manufacturers' interests. He took me through his lab the other day.

There were hundreds of white rats in cages, jumping about and playing and munching on tobacco leaves.

"Have you ever seen happier rats in your life?" he asked me.

"Never," I admitted. "Do they all smoke?"

"A pack a day," he said proudly. "They don't get anything to eat unless they smoke first."

"And none of them contract cancer or heart disease?"

"They better not. If one of our rats get sick, we throw it out of the program."

"But how do you know if smoking was not the cause of its illness if you throw it away?"

"It's a question of priorities. When you're looking for scientific answers to medical problems, you don't waste your time on sick rats."

A lab assistant came up and showed Dr. Applebaum a rat that seemed to be expiring.

"What do you think, Doctor?"

"Get it out of here. I could have yellow fever."

"It doesn't appear to have yellow fever."
"Then maybe it's typhus."
"Should I do an autopsy on it?"
"Who do you think you are Dr. Noguchi? We're running a laboratory here, not a coroner's office."
The lab assistant disappeared.

Dr. Applebaum seemed upset. "I run into that all day long. Every time a rat comes down with something, some smart aleck tries to find out if it was caused by cigarettes. Nobody ever wants to leave well enough alone."

"Maybe they're just being thorough?" I suggested. "Haven't you ever found a rat that died from a smoking-related disease?"

"Not since I've been working for the tobacco industry. When I took this job, they gave me carte blanche to find out all the facts, plus a bonus of $25 for every rat I could prove died of natural causes. I also get $1,000 every time I go on television to attack the Surgeon General's Report on smoking. So I call them as I see them, because my scientific reputation is at stake."

"Then why is the entire medical establishment against you?"

"It's simple. If they blame smoking for somebody's heart attack they won't be sued for malpractice."

"Doctor, will you come over to cage 230? None of the rats seem to be moving," a lab assistant said.

We walked over. Dr. Applebaum said, "What have you been feeding them?"

"Milk and cheese," the assistant replied.

"Just as I suspected. Look for calcium kidney stones."

"Suppose I don't find any?"

"Then you can get yourself another job."

HARDING AND ATTORNEY ARRIVE AT COURT. State Treasurer Warren Harding, right, and his attorney Bob Smith arrive at district court in Austin Thursday where he made a brief appearance in connection with Harding's indictment on two felony counts of official misconduct.

(AP Laserphoto)

Indicted treasurer makes brief appearance in court

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Indicted State Treasurer Warren G. Harding says Texas voters will see through his official misconduct charges and renominate him in the May 1 Democratic primary.

Harding, 60, said Thursday the indictment represented a "miscarriage of justice" that he suspects is politically motivated. And he insisted the charges will not bring an end to his re-election campaign.

The treasurer made a brief appearance in court Thursday and his lawyer told State District Judge Tom Blackwell that Harding would plead innocent to two felony counts of misconduct.

"I never have quit — in 31 years I never have stopped. ... My life is open to the public, and certainly my office is open," said Harding.

Blackwell scheduled an April 14 pretrial hearing for Harding, who is accused of using state secretaries to work on his re-election campaign. Each count in Harding's March 23 indictment is a third-degree felony and carries a maximum sentence of two to 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

"I have great confidence in the people of the state of Texas. They're not a bunch of dummies.

Four other candidates filed for the Democratic nomination for state treasurer after news broke that the Travis County district attorney's Public Integrity Unit was investigating Harding.

"Absolutely, I will be the Democratic nominee," said Harding, adding he thought he could win without a runoff.

Harding's lawyer, former Travis County district attorney Robert Smith, told Blackwell he wanted to see material prosecutors had taken from Harding's office so he can file a motion to suppress the evidence.

Angry ratepayers try to thwart bank by withdrawing $1.4 million

SEATTLE (AP) — A bank's challenge to a law allowing voters to block financing of public nuclear power plants has made hundreds of depositors so mad they've withdrawn $1.4 million in a campaign to bleed the bank until it relents.

But the Seattle-First National Bank, the 19th-largest in the nation, says it won't give in, and Art Merrick, vice president for corporate communications, called the protest "misguided."

Fugitive kills child, self

NORTH CANTON, Ohio (AP) — A Bryan, Texas, man wanted by the FBI on a fugitive warrant killed his 4-year-old son and then turned the gun on himself, federal agents said.

Merrick said more than $300,000 was deposited by customers who said they support the bank's position. Sea-First, as the bank is known, has 172 branches and $8.2 billion in deposits.

FBI agent Jim Aschenbrener said Dr. Phillip Allen Linerode, a veterinarian, was charged by Texas authorities with interference of child custody laws for allegedly abducting the child Aug. 6, 1981.

The FBI issued a warrant for Linerode last December after receiving information that he was seen in the northern Ohio city.

The protest has its roots in the financial problems of the Washington Public Power Supply System, the construction arm of a number of Northwest public utilities. Its acronym, WPPSS, is commonly pronounced "whoops."

WPPSS was forced to terminate two of the five nuclear power plants it was building in Washington

Republicans rejoice about court ruling

DALLAS (AP) — Republicans are rejoicing over a Supreme Court ruling that three federal judges erred when they substituted their plan for congressional redistricting in four Dallas-area districts for one drawn by the Legislature.

The decision put the scheduled May 1 primary for the four districts in jeopardy, but it held out the possibility that the three-judge panel could implement the Republican-backed redistricting plan passed by the Legislature.

Approval of the Legislature's plan could give Republicans a chance to pick up another seat in Dallas County.

"I am delighted with the decision. The Supreme Court has vindicated my position that minorities (in the four districts) should be able to elect one of their own to congress," Gov. Bill Clements said Thursday.

"It will be interesting to see what those federal judges do. They have been wrong all along. Maybe they'll do something right for a change," said Clements.

The panel is composed of U.S. District Judges William Wayne Justice of Tyler, Robert Parker of Beaumont and Sam Johnson of Austin.

The high court left it up to the panel to decide whether to reinstate the plan approved by the Legislature for the districts or to proceed with the plan drawn by the panel.

governing the forthcoming congressional elections," the Supreme Court said, in an unsigned opinion.

The high court also said the panel will decide whether to delay the May 1 primary for the four districts.

The affected districts are a new "mid-cities" district between Dallas and Fort Worth, and the districts of incumbent U.S. Reps. Jim Mattox and Martin Frost, both Democrats, and Republican Rep. Jim Collins.

Mattox is running for Texas attorney general and Collins is running for the U.S. Senate.

Texas Democrats favored the plan imposed by the panel on Feb. 27. But the court agreed with Republicans who argued the judges improperly substituted their plan for the Legislature's.

"This is a tremendous victory not only for the people of Dallas but of the entire state of Texas. It is especially important in restoring a legislatively enacted plan which will provide an opportunity for fair representation of all Dallas County citizens," Republican State Chairman Chet Upham said in Austin.

"I am confident that the lower court will adopt a fair and reasonable calendar which will permit the primary election to be held on May 1 under the lines adopted by the Legislature," said Upham.

"Obviously, I'm elated," said Dallas County Republican Chairman Fred Meyer, adding Republicans will push for approval of the Legislature's plan in time for the May 1 primary.

"I understand that we're going right into the courts and suggest we go ahead with the primary May 1 as planned and that we open the filing," said Meyer. "If we open filing a couple of days next week, we could be in shape to hold the regular primary May 1."

Clements' war chest tops total of top three Democrat challengers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Republican Gov. Bill Clements has amassed a campaign war chest of almost $4 million in his quest for a second term as the state's chief executive.

The incumbent's total far surpasses the money raised by the three top Democratic challengers. Clements spent $7 million in 1978 to get the job.

State law required all candidates to file statements of campaign contributions, loans and expenditures by Thursday.

Clements' report showed contributions of $3.9 million, with expenditures of $2,337,949.

Attorney General Mark White was the leading Democratic fund-raiser, reporting $1.2 million raised.

White has spent just over $1 million, including $502,000 to repay a loan he made to his campaign.

White's largest contribution was $25,000 from Lucien Flournoy of Alice.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Buddy Temple, the son of a wealthy East Texas timberman, filed a report showing $593,510 raised and $557,884 spent.

Three loans from the United Bank of Texas here accounted for $420,000 of the money raised for Temple, a member of the Texas Railroad Commission.

The Temple family money showed up in $10,000 in contributions from Katherine Temple of Lufkin, the candidate's grandmother. Thompson Temple, Buddy Temple's cousin, donated $1,000.

Many of the donations to Temple came from the Lufkin-Diboll area, his home region. The Committee for Good Government of Temple-Eastex Inc., gave $5,000.

Temple-Eastex is the Temple family's Diboll-based timber company.

The largest single contribution was $10,000 from Charles Pettiette, a Palestine businessman.

Temple's expenditure report showed $400,000 given to Media Southwest of Abilene for advertising.

Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, also a Democratic gubernatorial contender, reported $285,784 spent and $349,706 raised. The money raised included $175,000 in loans.

Armstrong's report included a $25,000 contribution from singer Willie Nelson, a longtime Armstrong friend.

Curiously, Armstrong reported a $500 contribution from former State Rep. Luther Jones of El Paso. Jones is now Temple's campaign manager. The donation to Armstrong came in December, before Temple got in the race.

In the lieutenant governor's race, Democrat incumbent Bill Hobby and GOP challenger George Strake both showed healthy funds.

Hobby, who faces minor opposition in the primary, reported a total of $96,088 raised and $188,306 spent since Jan. 1. However, in earlier reports Hobby listed $531,955 in donations and $273,142 spent.

Adding the two reports shows a Hobby campaign fund of $628,083 and expenditures of $461,448.

Strake reported $567,672 spent and $579,961 raised. Strake has loaned his campaign $120,000. Strake's contributors include Fort Worth's Eddie "I'm Mad" Chiles, who sent $10,000.

In the race for the Democratic nomination for attorney general, U.S. Rep. Jim Mattox of Dallas

Strike shuts down Lubbock trucking company operations

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A freight company that operates 80 terminals in about 40 states has shut down operations and could be forced to sell its truck fleet after a strike by most of its employees.

Time-DC Inc., which failed in negotiations with the Teamsters union, ordered the shutdown Thursday after the strike was ordered for about 2,000 employees, officials said.

"If we are still on strike in two or three days, the traffic departments of customers will set up routings for the handling of their operations through other carriers," Hugh Shurtleff, president of the Lubbock-based company, said. "This is already beginning. And unless we get back in, it will be too late to save business."

Eugene Anderson, vice president of finance and treasurer, said the company will probably incur "substantial losses."

"TIME-DC and the Teamsters union failed to reach an agreement on a new labor contract prior to a March 31, 1982 expiration date of the contract," the company said in a prepared statement. "A Teamsters strike was instituted as of midnight, which resulted in a shutdown of operations."

PULLS OUT AVALANCHE VICTIM. Workers pull out the body of an unidentified dead girl from a 12-foot hole in the parking lot of the Alpine Meadows ski resort

Thursday afternoon after a killer avalanche killed six people at the resort Wednesday afternoon. (AP Laserphoto)

Avalanche death toll now six

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Rescue workers aided by dogs and emergency lights dug through snow more than two stories deep at a ski resort, searching for at least two more people believed buried by avalanches that killed six people.

Two bodies were found Thursday buried almost 25 feet deep and another was found 11 feet down in the snow from avalanches that a resort spokesman said were beyond "our wildest dreams."

The two known to be missing were "presumed perished," said Placer County Sheriff Donald Nunes. Scores of rescue workers worked under lights until about 9 p.m. They were to continue searching today.

"They have been on the line for 15 to 20 hours," said sheriff's Lt. Nick Mileur. "These people are just whipped, beat. They are just exhausted."

Three bodies were discovered shortly after 12 feet of new snow triggered the avalanches Wednesday afternoon at Alpine Meadows resort, about three miles south of Squaw Valley in the Sierra Nevada.

Four people were rescued from the snow slides Wednesday, including 74-year-old John Riley, who said avalanches "had come down many times in the past, but not as bad as this."

The morning before the McManus gets execution stay

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge has delayed the execution of Death Row inmate Vernon McManus, even though no execution has been set.

U.S. District Judge George Cire said in his order Thursday the application "would be construed as one of a general stay of state court proceedings."

McManus' lawyer, Stanley Schneider, said he was content with the ruling.

"This is like a tetanus shot," Schneider said. "They could get a date set, and then we'd have to ask for a stay of execution."

McManus is confined in the maximum security Ellis Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections.

disaster, avalanche crews fired explosives into the snow to reduce the avalanche danger, said Werner Schuster, vice president of marketing for the resort.

"The severity of the snow caused the snow to build up at such a rate that we simply could not stay on top of it," he said. "We knew that the avalanche danger was pretty extreme."

But he said the size of the avalanches "never could have been expected, not in our wildest dreams."

Alpine Meadows' 13 ski lifts were closed by heavy snow Wednesday and the main road to the resort was closed most of the day. But the cafeteria and main lodge, filled mainly with resort employees and members of the ski and avalanche patrols, were open.

One avalanche hissed down about 400 feet of the mountainside, leveling a 20-foot-wide swath of trees and burying the parking lot. The other rumbled down the mountain in a wall of snow 15 to 20 feet deep, slamming into an A-frame ski patrol building and ramming it into the wood-and-glass main lodge, causing at least $1 million in structural damage to the lodge.

New slides blocked the road to the resort as rescuers made their way in aboard snow tractors, then by foot and on skis, to a search area about the size of a football field.

The two missing were identified by the sheriff's department as resort employees Bernie Kingery, a 40-year-old avalanche expert, and Annie Conrad, 22.

Authorities identified two of the three found dead Thursday as Beth Morrow, 22, a resort employee, and 11-year-old Lauri Nelson, whose father also was killed.

Jury selection continues

DALLAS (AP) — Attorneys will attempt to seat the last juror today in the negligent homicide trial of three former Limestone County law enforcement officials.

Two more jurors, Dallas residents H.T. Dimmerman, 53, and Janet Johnson, 48, were picked during the fourth day of jury selection Thursday and join three others on the six-member panel.

The former officers are charged with misdemeanors in the June 19, 1981, deaths of three black teen-agers. The youths drowned when a 14-foot boat the officers used ferry them across Lake Mexia overturned. The officers swam to safety.

THE REV. AND MRS. W.W. BRYANT JR.

New pastor at Bethel Assembly of God

The Rev. W.W. Bryant Jr. is the newly elected pastor of Bethel Assembly of God Church, located at 1541 Hamilton. Rev. Bryant is a native Texan who, over the past 30 years, has pastored churches in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas. His last pastorate was at Trumann, Ark. He replaces the Rev. Paul DeWolfe, who served Bethel Assembly for the past eight years. The public is invited to attend services.

Annual homecoming at Church of God

The annual homecoming service conducted by the Church of God, located at the corner of Gwendolyn and Sumner Streets, will be held Sunday, April 4.

Special activities for this service include recognition of charter members, recognition of senior citizens, singing by a senior citizens choir, reading highlights of the church's history and singing by the Ruff quartet and the youth choir.

The Rev. O.C. Gilbert, pastor of the church from 1955 to 1957, will be guest speaker for both Sunday services.

A luncheon honoring senior citizens of the church is planned. Those to be recognized include Senior Lay Couple of the Year, Mr. and Mrs. Shelby J. Ruff; Senior Single, Mrs. Fannie West; and Senior Citizen (Ministerial), the Rev. H.M. Glover.

The first Church of God in the area was organized in 1922 at Union School, southwest of Mobeetie. The first church building was erected in 1924 west of Mobeetie, one mile south of Highway 152. In 1936, the church was moved to Old Mobeetie. When membership dropped, the church was disbanded and members began attending the Pampa church.

The Church of God in Pampa began in 1937, planned by a ladies' auxiliary. Revivals and prayer meetings were held in the city auditorium in City Hall, and in 1938 the church was organized with 11 members.

The first church services were in an old store building at 1300 W. Ripley St. The Rev. J.H. Morgan, now deceased, was the first pastor.

In 1942, lots were bought at Reid and Campbell Sts. and a building bought from Skelly Oil Co. was moved onto them. Pastor at this time was the Rev. B.A. Ratchford, now deceased.

In 1946, when the Rev. J.M. Carnes was pastor, a white stucco building was built at Reid and Campbell Sts. In 1963, lots were bought at Gwendolen and Sumner, during the pastorage of the Rev. W.L. Hopper.

The first service to be held at the church's present location, which was conducted by the Rev. O.E. Wright, was on Feb. 21, 1965. In 1968, the Rev. John B. Waller came as pastor. Sunday school rooms were added to the building and the parsonage was remodeled.

The Rev. J.W. Hill has been pastor of the church since 1979, replacing the Rev. Bertinetti who served from 1976 to 1979.

Sunday services begin with Sunday School at 9:45 a.m. The morning worship service follows at 11 a.m. Sunday night services begin at 6 p.m.

The public is invited to attend the special programs at the church on Sunday.

RALPH GREEN of St. Louis, Mo. will be special singing guest at First Assembly of God's "Monday Night Special," at 7:30 p.m. April 5. The public is invited to attend the musical presentation at the church, located at 800 S. Cuyler.

Religion in the News

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The new director of the decade-old National Farm Worker Ministry finds himself at the center of criticism that has buffeted the militant religious organization since its inception.

"But the Rev. Richard B. Cook, 36, insists the ministry will remain deeply involved in helping unionize farm laborers.

"You really can't distinguish clearly between the spiritual concerns of farm workers and their social needs, especially when their physical condition is sometimes so desperate," Cook says.

"To try to make that distinction is a false dichotomy." Cook is a Southern Baptist minister from Salinas, Calif. He has been involved with the NFWM for 10 years and says he was most struck "by the isolation of those who go from field to field to work."

Jack Angell, spokesman for the American Farm Bureau Federation, based in Park Ridge, Ill., is one of the ministry's most outspoken critics.

A closer walk with God gives you peace, love, and trust that cannot be equaled.

Attend church Sunday.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

The ways and means of Dan Rostenkowski

EDITOR'S NOTE — The Ways and Means Committee is one of the most powerful groups in Congress. It is especially so in an election year in which the economy provides the chief controversy. Here's a look at the man who heads the committee, Chicago ward boss Dan Rostenkowski.

By MIKE ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — One November morning, Democrats on the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee met on Capitol Hill to board a chartered bus for Baltimore. Seats were assigned according to seniority — with one glaring exception.

Exiled in the last row, behind a gaggle of fiscal experts and coauthors, sat Rep. Kent Hance of Texas, the Democrat who broke party ranks last year to co-sponsor President Reagan's tax bill.

As the bus rolled through the Maryland countryside, no one had to ask who was punishing Hance. It was obvious that the orders came straight from Ways and Means Chairman Dan Rostenkowski — a man who views party loyalty as something just short of a holy sacrament.

Rostenkowski, 54, a product of Mayor Richard J. Daley's Chicago Democratic machine and 24 years in the House, is a throwback, in spirit if not in fact, to the days when a few "old bulls" ran the show on Capitol Hill.

The husky chairman has adjusted his style to this less colorful, more complex era. But when aroused, he still wields the whip of party discipline.

Rostenkowski says he's trying to do his job, "and if I can't do it with the cooperation of people, then they should not expect any largesse from me."

Going into his second year as Ways and Means chairman, Rostenkowski has Republicans on the spot. A loser in last year's tax battle, mainly because Hance and other "boil weevil" conservatives jumped ship to side with Reagan, he now holds a stronger hand.

With the economy sagging, a $98-billion deficit looming and election day just eight months off, conservative Democrats no longer find Reaganomics so tantalizing. And Republicans are doing some soul searching, too.

Any move to bolster the economy by backing off from this year's increase tax cuts, Rostenkowski says, must start in the White House or the Republican-controlled Senate. "The whole idea," says one Republican aide, "is to let us stew in our own juice and eventually boil to death."

When and if such a plan is unveiled, chances are that Democrats will pounce with a rival version and Rostenkowski will lead the way, a task to which he seems well-fitted by experience, political skill and force of personality.

Questions remain. Can a man whose words sometimes come out in a Daley-like jumble and Damon Runyon syntax be the kind of high-profit spokesman Democrats might need to sway public opinion?

Will his reputation for toughness trip him up? Down deep, some of his peers say, he isn't really that way. Rep. Robert Matsui, D-Calif., low Democrat on the Ways and Means seniority totem pole, says he came on the committee unsure what to expect. "Actually," he says, "I've found him to be a rather kindhearted person."

But as Rostenkowski himself puts it: "I haven't got just friends around here."

"There's a fear factor," muses a lawmaker who has known Rostenkowski for years.

Continental has new chairman

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In a series of executive appointments, the board of directors of Continental Airlines has elected as its chairman Frank Lorenzo, an official in the company that is merging with the financially strapped airlines, Continental said.

Lorenzo, who was elected Wednesday, is president and chief executive officer of Texas Air Corp., parent company of Texas International Airlines, with which Continental is scheduled to merge. Lorenzo, 41, will maintain his titles at Texas Air, the company said.

At 6-foot-2 and 225 pounds, with narrow, alert eyes, high, slanting cheekbones and a powerful jaw, Rostenkowski looks rugged. Once a letterman in four high school sports, he now confines himself to golf, carrying his clubs along on a political circuit that leads to such select spots as San Juan, Palm Springs and Las Vegas.

Once a member of the "Tuesday-Thursday Club" of congressmen who spend four-day weekends in their hometowns, and better known for political flair than doing homework, Rostenkowski has been staying in Washington more and cracking the books since becoming chairman.

Friends say his idea of a good time in Washington after sundown is still a secluded party in the Jockey Club of the Fairfax Hotel, surrounded by ranking Democrats, old-time Ways and Means members and selected lobbyists — mainly those who, like himself, have been political insiders.

Daniel David Rostenkowski was born Jan. 2, 1928, the son of Chicago Alderman Joseph Rostenkowski and the grandson of a Polish immigrant who became a state senator. More to the point, both were members of the Cook County Democratic Central Committee, "ward bosses" in the ancient parlance of politics. So is the congressman; the House Ways and Means chairman is a Chicago ward boss.

Fresh from college, Rostenkowski was offered a tryout with the American League's old Philadelphia Athletics. But with his family running the ward, he quickly abandoned baseball for politics.

In 1958, he came to Capitol Hill and took a seat on the Commerce Committee. He became known as Daley's man in Washington and developed a prowess for dishing up choice cuts from the pork barrel, notably money for Chicago's Crosstown Expressway, a project later cancelled by local pols who are now using the money for mass transit and road repair.

Rostenkowski moved to Ways and Means in 1964 at a time when its members held the power of making committee assignments for other House Democrats. "My argument, was, if this is the political structure of the Congress and it's part of the leadership, I'd want to get there," he says.

Fortified with Ways and Means power, Rostenkowski became Democratic Caucus chairman. He lost the post in 1970 in political infighting with origins in the uproar over Vietnam at the 1968 party convention.

As the mood of the streets spread to the hall, President Lyndon B. Johnson, watching on TV, phoned Rostenkowski on the stand and commanded him to subdue the delegates by taking the gavel from Rep. Carl Albert, D-Okla. This he did. Two years later, Albert became House Speaker.

On election night 1980, Majority Whip John Brademas and Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman went down to defeat. Rostenkowski was in line for either job — not both — and after considerable agonizing chose the committee.

With his record as a not-overly-liberal pragmatist, to say nothing of his clout, the new administration was soon taking extraordinary steps to court Rostenkowski as a potential ally, or at least, someone who might help engineer a deal that would put Reagan's three-year tax cut proposal through the Democrat-controlled House.

The night after Reagan was shot, Vice President Bush had been sent to speak at a Rostenkowski fund-raiser in Chicago. He made the speech by phone, instead. When New Right conservatives threatened to unleash an anti-Rostenkowski telephone and mail campaign, senior Republicans quickly squelched the plan.

Administration officials bartered for weeks with Rostenkowski. But compromise wasn't in the cards, and Rostenkowski set about to fashion a rival bill that would appease the liberals while keeping conservatives from bolting to Reagan's side.

This he did in three ways. He brought liberals, who had held out for a one-year tax cut, around to a bill that matched Reagan's three-year plan, except that the third year's cut would be "triggered" only if the economy performed up to White House predictions.

His bill also was transformed into a "Christmas tree," to match the Republican version, with ample tax breaks for oil men, commodity traders and selected corporations. Rostenkowski said he had pangs about this but told the Washington Post that his choice was between "losing courageously or winning. I want to win."

Finally, Rostenkowski created a mood within the committee. "It was almost like a family with him," says one Ways and Means Democrat. "He demands total loyalty and he will give total loyalty ... He got me to decrease the windfall profits tax. I wouldn't do that under usual circumstances ... It got to be almost like a cheering section in there."

Then there was the thought of what might happen to defectors. When Rostenkowski suspected Hance of leaking Democratic caucus proceedings to the White House, he kicked the Texas lawmaker out of the caucus.

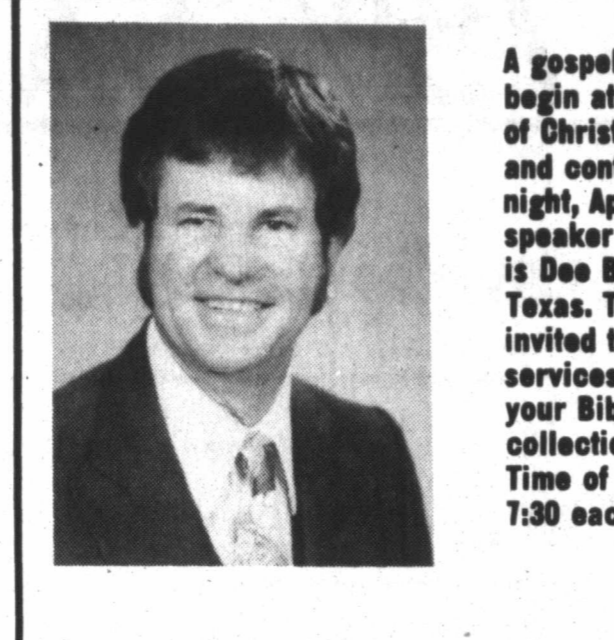

And he is still on Hance's case.

At a recent Washington Press Club dinner, Rostenkowski told the Texas congressman there were no hard feelings and handed him a gift. Hance unwrapped the package. It was cement boots.

Rostenkowski showed a gentler side the day Rep. Michael C. Myers, D-Pa., convicted in the Abscam affair, pleaded with his fellow lawmakers not to expel him from Congress. Myers sat alone while speaker after speaker called for his expulsion. Rostenkowski walked into the chamber, sat down next to Myers and threw his arm around him. "I felt sorry for him," he says. "He didn't have a friend in the place."

Like most congressmen, Rostenkowski scoffs at the idea that he would be swayed by campaign contributors.

A gospel meeting is to begin at Central Church of Christ on Sunday April 4, and continue through Friday night, April 9th. The guest speaker for this occasion is Dee Bowman of Pasadena, Texas. The public is cordially invited to attend all services. Come and bring your Bible, please. No collections will be taken. Time of services is at 7:30 each evening.

Dear Abby

Ungrateful mother is also negligent mother

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Recently I flew 1,000 miles to visit my only daughter, whom I had not seen in a year. When I arrived at 10 a.m., she wasn't home, but I found her 9-year-old daughter taking care of her 15-month-old baby brother. My daughter came home at 4:30 p.m., saying she had been to her bridge club. She pulled some food out of the freezer and put it in the microwave oven. (It was still frozen in the middle when she served it!)

At 7:30 p.m. she left me and went to another bridge party. I was in bed when she came home. The next evening she opened a can of chicken soup for five people and called it "supper." She gave me half a cup Saturday morning and her husband left for the weekend while I baby-sat.

Monday afternoon she went shopping with her husband. They had dinner out and brought some pizza home for the children and me.

Tuesday she had some women over for bridge while I ironed. (I ironed 12 shirts, six blouses and six pair of trousers.) That night she served some leftover chili from the freezer. Abby, when she was growing up we always had linen tablecloths and napkins. She doesn't even have paper napkins; she tears one sheet of paper toweling in half for two people.

I had planned to stay for two weeks, but one week was long enough considering the way she treated me, so I gave her $20 to drive me to the airport.

When she was 16, I was widowed, so I went back to teaching school in order to send her to college. What do you think of this rude and ungrateful daughter, Abby?

HAD ENOUGH

DEAR HAD: Your daughter's rudeness is the least of it; leaving a 9-year-old to look after a 15-month-old child is child abuse. Add to that her failure to feed the children properly. Since your son-in-law witnessed all this and went along with it, he is also an unfit parent. Out of concern for your grandchildren, please don't ignore that sad situation, even if you have to notify the child protective services in the city where your daughter lives!

DEAR ABBY: I am a sophomore in high school (a boy) and I am an A-B student. I am active in sports and in quite a few extracurricular activities.

My problem is my parents. They can't stand to see me do anything except study. The minute I get home from school my mother is on my back. "Go and do your homework!" Then she says, "I never had to tell your brother to do his homework."

My brother is three years older than I, was a straight-A student, a real brain and a bookworm. He never did anything but study.

Abby, I am not my brother. Most parents would be tickled to death if their sons brought home the kind of grades I do. But mine are never satisfied. Not only that, but I'm beginning to work up a real hate for my brother.

I feel better just getting this off my chest. I hope you print it for my parents to see.

NO. 2 IN OAK PARK

DEAR NO. 2: Parents can't be faulted for encouraging their children to work up to their potential, but never should one child be compared with a sibling. Unfortunately, most parents aren't aware of how damaging such comparisons can be until it's too late.

Dr. Lamb

Cellulite is simply fat

DEAR DR. LAMB — I hope you have an answer to my problem and thousands of other women. For years I have tried to get rid of cellulite problems and it only gets worse and worse. I have read everything I can get my hands on and written to experts but they won't answer.

I'm considering going to a new figure salon for passive exercise. They claim an hour on their roller table is equivalent to three-and-a-half hours of exercise and I've heard that massaging, rubbing and rolling the cellulite area is very important. My waist is only 26 but so are my thighs.

DEAR READER — The problem is with the word

"passive." Those kinds of exercise do not eliminate fat. And cellulite is just fat, nothing more and nothing magical. It has been biopsied and studied in detail. Women tend to deposit fat on the thighs and men are more likely to develop a large abdomen. The dimpling is just dimpled fat so don't be misled.

Ronald McDonald Houses, much like the proposed facility for Amarillo, did not spring - up all over the country overnight. They started with the illness of a little girl who had many caring friends.

In 1973, Kim Hill, the seven year - old daughter of Philadelphia Eagles football player Fred Hill, was being treated for leukemia at Children's Hospital in Philadelphia. Hill and his Eagles teammates became determined to do something to benefit families using Children's Hospital.

They approached Kim's physician, Dr. Audrey Evans, head hematologist - oncologist at Children's and indicated their desire to help. Dr. Evans expressed the serious need for a "home away from home" facility near the hospital and a search for a suitable home began. Ultimately this led to a joint fund - raising effort on the part of the Eagles and Philadelphia area McDonald's restaurant owners to support the purchase and renovation of an older home near the hospital with seven bedrooms, a living room, kitchen and laundry.

The House opened in 1974, and was named Ronald McDonald House, not just because of McDonald's fund-raising support from restaurants, but for the positive, hopeful and fun - loving feeling this well - known clown character could inspire with children.

In 1975, Dr. Edward Baum, a physician at Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago, and Charles Marino, a parent of a child with leukemia, learned of the Philadelphia House, and decided to create a similar facility in Chicago.

Local McDonald's support was obtained, a not - for - profit corporation of parents and other volunteers was formed, and in 1977, a restored 18 bedroom Victorian home was opened as the second Ronald McDonald House. This second house proved that the concept would work in various areas, so an organization was formed to share information and assist people throughout the country who also saw the need for such facilities. This organization is called, the National Advisory Board of Children's Oncology Services, Inc.

By 1979, results of local volunteer groups throughout the country started to become evident. Ten more Ronald McDonald House facilities opened during the year: Denver, Atlanta, San Francisco (Palo Alto), Birmingham, Pittsburgh, Boston, Cleveland, Minneapolis, Detroit and New York City.

More than a dozen other Houses opened in 1980 and another 20 local groups now have programs under active development, including Toronto, Montreal, Sydney, Australia and Amarillo.

The most important to this area is the new Amarillo facility. David Fatheree is gathering support in the Pampa area for the new $1 million Ronald McDonald House.

The new House will give temporary homes to 10 families when completed. The families work in cooperation with other visiting families in caring for their own rooms and other living areas shared by all residents.

Although the House is designed to serve families visiting the Amarillo area, over $260,000 has been raised by the people of Amarillo. The Herrington Foundation donated $400,000 and the balance must be raised by surrounding Panhandle citizens.

For more information about the Ronald McDonald House, contact David Fatheree at 665 - 8413 or write: The Ronald McDonald House of Amarillo, P. O. Box 12011, Amarillo, Texas 79101.

Buyer beware of the work-at-home scheme

A costly scheme of deceptive mail - order plant companies is the work - at - home "opportunity." The typical offer promises quick profits for growing plants at home and selling them back to the company.

The investment can be between $3,000 and $6,000 for the greenhouse, equipment, starter plants, soil and fertilizer, but the profits are usually non - existent.

This scheme has preyed upon the retired and elderly, who could use the promised income and can ill - afford the loss. While the promoter may sign a contract agreeing to buy back the plants, the transaction is usually subject to the promoter's approval of the grown plants. It is easy for the unscrupulous company to reject them and keep the total investment. These deceptive mail - order firms generally rely on their sales income for the money to buy back plants. Better Business Bureau records show that more than one such company has gone bankrupt after selling the supplies around the country, leaving investors in the lurch.

SPEAKING OF SOAPS

by Mary Ann Cooper

For MacKensie Allen soap stardom came in a rush. There he was trying to decide what would be the best project for him to try next when both CBS and ABC came knocking on his door. It was a Thursday when CBS decided they wanted to him to screen test for the part of Tom Bergman on "Search For Tomorrow" but ABC slipped a contract offer to him on that Friday for the part of Jim Speed on "Ryan's Hope." Although the character of Jim Speed has not been written in that heavily for some weeks, in the next few weeks Jim will resurface in the storyline as the character of Joe is put in a sticky predicament by crim boss Vartova.

Despite his recent inactivity, MacKensie is an enthusiastic soap actor. "Soap acting is fabulous if you can work under pressure," he says. "I think that if you can work successfully in soaps you can work anywhere. It's a great training ground."

the bottom line is that show business is very much a business."

As for what's ahead MacKensie is content with soap work and would perhaps like to do film and stage work in the future. Until then let's hope we see more of Jim Speed as he searches out the more unsavory element on Ryan's Hope.

Now a look at what's been happening and what will happen on all afternoon dramas.

ANOTHER WORLD - Willie has a shoot out with Larry and Bob and Willie is killed. Ann tells Cecile she must compromise in marriage but Sandy kicks Cecile out anyway. Henrietta tells Bob she will fight for him no matter what. Mac is going to run for mayor. Jason and Milo want Julia to play the part of Virginia in the movie version of Jamie's book. Cecile tells mayor Stein about Sandy's relationship with Blaine.

THIS WEEK: Mac moves to stop Jamie. Cecile fights back.

THE DOCTORS - Nola tells Billy she's pregnant and he's the father of the baby. Luke and Natalie secretly marry. Billy wants to use Greta's relationship with Theo against her but later decides to drop the custody suit. Greta however doesn't believe him and stops seeing Theo. Billy volunteers to marry Nola. THIS WEEK: Luke still wonders what happened to the $15,000. Nola plans her wedding.

TEXAS - Brett suffers a snake bite. Reena discovers Gretchen may have killed Myles. Ashley warns Hannibal to stay away from Alicia. Gretchen holds a gun on Mark. Ryan blames Ginny for the fire compass trouble. Joe is in a hospital in Houston.

THIS WEEK: Judith arrives in Houston. Gretchen holds Brett hostage.

THE EDGE OF NIGHT - Valerie meets the real Sky Whitney. Raven is in jail and will face a mock court trial. Jinx takes ill but is determined to marry Derek anyway. Cliff defends Raven at the mock trial.

THIS WEEK: Raven is put through the ringer. Jinx has a change of plans.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS - Patty spends the day looking for a job, but has no luck. Jack sends roses to Chris and Patty. Snapper will donate his kidney to Chuckie. Sally tells Chris not to upset Snapper. Paul returns and finds out Nikki is pregnant and trying to rid herself of the baby. Jack tries to get Patty back but is interrupted by Chris.

THIS WEEK: Nikki and Victor have a heart to heart talk. Greg lends Chris a helping hand.

GENERAL HOSPITAL - Luke finds Laura T. but as he walks along the dock with her he is hit over the head and falls into the water. Scorpio finds Luke but Luke refuses medical help. Ann enlists Joe's help to fight Bradshaw and Heather is furious. Luke thinks the Whittagers can identify David but they can't.

THIS WEEK: Ann searches for more evidence against Bradshaw. What happened when the lights went out?

DAYS OF OUR LIVES - Jake finds out that the secret panel leads to the wine cellar and that he can get in and out without being discovered. Jake tries to strangle Renee but she is saved by Tony. Jake, however, gets away. Melissa rejects Linda. Mike is going to medical school.

THIS WEEK: Jessica is confused. Jake stalks his next victim.

RYAN'S HOPE - Delia is furious about Roger marrying Jane and plans a surprise for his bachelor party. Ox gets drunk and must be sobered up by Charlie. A couple of foreign hit men track Ox to Ryan's but Maeve gets rid of them. Vartova dies before Joe can tell him he wants no part of his businesses. Ox goes into hiding.

THIS WEEK: Jill gets involved in real estate. Jack does some investigative journalism.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE - Tony and Pat meet in her living room and they embrace. Pat is disappointed when Tony will not tell her he loves her. Bo and Mimi are being held captive by those who want to stop the development of Solarmite. Dorian poses as a call girl to get a date with one of the kidnapers. Ivan programs Larry to steal. Georgina has a brother come to live with her which reminds Pat of her own child.

THIS WEEK: Pat wonders what happened to Pamela. Dorian gets into hot water. ALL MY CHILDREN - Erica is with Kent in Milan. Sarah comforts Brandon who is nursing a broken heart. Rick shows up at the wedding and tells everyone the wedding is off by mutual agreement. Betsy thinks she will return to Massachusetts. Benny gambles again and is $3,000 in debt. Erica calls Brandon and wants to reconcile but he says no dice.

THIS WEEK: Nina is into high finance. Donna is in for a big surprise.

SEARCH FOR TOMORROW - Liza and Travis enjoy a vacation in St. Kitts unaware that danger lurks nearby. Joe and Stu decide to refloat the boat and remodel it.

THE GUIDING LIGHT - Hope and Amanda have a strange encounter. Carrie has more lapses of memory. Morgan is blossoming as a fashion model.

AS THE WORLD TURNS -

James is concerned about Barbara's mental stability. Ariel has another chance encounter with John. Margo takes her police training very seriously.

PRIME TIME CORNER DALLAS - Detectives Howard and White question Bobby regarding his association with the late Jeff Farraday. Fearful that the truth about Christopher might be exposed, Bobby claims Farraday was a friend of his sister-in-law and asked to borrow money from him. When asked if he went to Farraday's apartment, Bobby denies it. Bobby and Pam go to Roger's studio and while they are questioning Roger, Lucy manages to knock over a chair catching Bobby's and Pam's attention. Bobby knocks Roger aside and finds Lucy unconscious on the floor. The police tell Bobby that he is their prime suspect for Farraday's murder. Cliff's broker tells him he has a buyer for Barnes - Wentworth if Cliff will lower the price from $7 million to 3 million. The buyer turns out to be JR and when they are alone, JR ups the offer to 4 million. Desperately needing the money to pay back Wentworth, Cliff has no other choice but to agree to the offer even though it still leaves him in the hole for 1/2 million of his own money.

KNOTS LANDING - Karen faces a moral dilemma when Larry asks her to spend the weekend with him. Abby sets out to sway a politician who can help her business, and Joe receives an enticing proposal. Karen is very attracted to Larry, but she does not quite yet consider herself an unmarried woman and deeply ponders the propriety of going away with him for the weekend. Abby, on the other hand, has no qualms about how best to persuade a state senator to assist her and Gary with legislation benefiting their methanol business. And when Joe's girlfriend, Lorraine, visits from New York, she puts an offer to him he finds almost irresistible.

Soap star demands a proper murder

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) - Fernando Valenzuela decided not to pitch until the Los Angeles Dodgers paid him a big salary. Pro football players have sat out entire seasons to get their salary demands. Suzanne Somers left "Three's Company" because of a salary dispute. But all those hold-outs pale by comparison to what Melinda O. Fee recently accomplished. She staged a polite little strike until "Days of Our Lives" agreed to kill her decently. Melinda O. Fee is a sensational looking redhead who had been playing the character of Mary Anderson on the NBC soap opera for a year or so. In her past career, she has been on other soap operas and been written out - that's the nature of the beast.

But then she heard that the writing team who conducts the story lines for "Days of Our Lives" had a grim fate in store for Mary Anderson. "I was at a party," Melinda says, "and Pat Falkensmith (the show's head writer) said to me, 'Sorry, you're going to be killed.'"

'It ain't over 'til it's over,' Berra's son learns hard way

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer
"It ain't over 'til it's over," Yogi Berra, baseball's philosopher-in-residence, once proclaimed. His son, Dale, now knows just how right dad was.
He committed two of Pittsburgh's three ninth-inning errors Thursday as the St. Louis Cardinals rallied from a 4-3 deficit and downed the Pirates 7-4.
As if that loss wasn't bad enough, the Pirates lost another game, too. The other half of the split squad was clobbered 10-0 by the Chicago White Sox.
The Pirates have committed 28 errors in 24 games this spring, with Berra making seven of them.
The New York Mets beat Philadelphia 6-3 as George Foster drove in three runs with a sacrifice fly and his fourth homer of the spring, a fifth-inning shot off reliever Tug McGraw.
Foster's arrival made outfielder Lee Mazzilli expendable, and on Thursday he was traded to Texas for a pair of minor league pitchers, one of them Ron Darling, the Rangers' No. 1 choice (out of Yale) in the 1981 free-agent amateur draft.

Another ex-Met, Doug Flynn, paced Texas to a 5-3 victory over Kansas City. Flynn had three hits, including a run-scoring single in a three-run fourth inning. Lee May homered for the Royals.
Atlanta's LaFry Whisenton hit a three-run, game-tying homer in the third inning and Brett Butler broke the tie with an RBI-single in the fifth as the Braves defeated Montreal. Al Oliver, acquired Wednesday from Texas, hit a two-run double in his first at-bat for the Expos.
Seattle outlasted San Francisco 18-16 with Richie Zisk and Jim Maler each hitting three-run homers and Lenny Randle and Manny Castillo also driving in three runs apiece. Jim Wohlford drove in five runs, three with a homer, for the Giants.
Lou Piniella, who went to high school and college in Tampa, drove in New York's winning run with a pinch-single in the 11th inning as the Yankees edged Cincinnati 3-2. "You like to deliver, especially in front of the home folks," he said.

Mike Torres' six two-hit innings and Mark Clear's three hitless innings carried Boston past Houston 6-0. Gary Allenson and Dave Stapleton drove in two runs each as the Red Sox rocked Nolan Ryan for all of their runs and 11 of their 12 hits in seven innings.
Dave Rozema limited Toronto to three hits for eight innings and Lou Whitaker drove in two runs as Detroit trimmed Toronto 4-3. Barry Bonnell of the Blue Jays hit a three-run homer off Dave Tobik in the ninth inning.
Bill Buckner hit a wind-blown triple in the ninth inning and came home when rookie Ryne Sandberg chopped a single past the Oakland's drawn-in infield to give the Chicago Cubs a 2-1 victory over the A's.
Danny Ford and Cal Ripken doubled and Bob Bonner's singled Ripken home in the seventh inning to propel Baltimore past Minnesota 4-2. Cecil Cooper homered as Milwaukee topped Cleveland 4-3 in a game called after 5 1/2 innings because of gusty winds.

Fergus, Edwards share Greensboro lead

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The mental side of the game got a workout in the first round of the $300,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.
Keith Fergus had a share of the lead with a 66 and attributed his best showing of the year in Thursday's first round to "concentration and attitude, a big part of any good round."

He was tied with Danny Edwards, a former winner here, who said he'd been too serious about the game and decided to "just go out and play and try to enjoy it."
And a couple of Texans three strokes back saw some positive things in their rounds of 69.
"I haven't been playing that well, but I haven't been playing that bad," said 1981 Player of the Year Bill Rogers. "I just haven't quite got it in the groove. I'm just not quite there. I just don't yet have that confidence I need, the confidence to go ahead and play aggressively."
"This helps."
It was an even bigger boost for Ben Crenshaw, who had an incredible 87 in his last previous competitive effort, the final round last Sunday in the Heritage Classic.
"That just put in perspective where my game was," said Crenshaw, who has been fighting a variety of playing problems for almost two years.
"I've just been struggling, struggling to make the cut, all year."
"I've just been playing uptight, putting pressure on myself, trying to make things happen. I haven't been at peace with myself."
"This is a very fragile game. You have to be in the right mental frame to be able to play."

"I needed to see a round like this, a good solid round, at this time, to get my confidence back. I need to see a number of rounds like this to get my head back in order, to get my thinking straightened out."
A single stroke back of co-leaders Fergus and Danny Edwards were 6-foot-5 Peter Oosterhuis, the current Canadian Open champion, and George Cadle, who birdied his last three holes.

SHARING THE LEAD. Golfer Keith Fergus of Sugarland, Texas, covers his face after making a birdie putt on the 18th green during Thursday's first round of the Greater Greensboro Open being played at the Forest Oaks Country Club near Greensboro, N.C. # Pampa golf schedule released

- The Pampa Country Club's spring and summer golf tournament schedule gets underway May 26 with the annual Texas Tech Red Raider Day.
Besides the usual scrambles for members only, there are nine tournaments scheduled this year.
The popular Tri-State Seniors Tournament comes back to Pampa after a year's absence. The tournament was held last year at Amarillo Country Club.
Pampa Country Club officials extended an invitation to have the Tri-State here for at least the next four years, according to tournament secretary Otis Nace.
The tournament is limited to 160 players, who must have turned 55 years of age within the year.
"Invitations have already been sent out and we should start getting some back soon," Nace said.
J. Rowland Ferguson of Dallas won last year's tournament while S. Tom Morris of Amarillo was the Colonel Bogey winner.
- Otis N. Garner of Amarillo is this year's Tri-State president.
Pampa Golf Schedule

Cold hinders LPGA play

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Bundled-up more like downhill skiers than pro golfers, Lori Garbacz and Kyle O'Brien overcame chilly rains and wind to share the first-round lead in the $310,000 Nabisco-Dinah Shore Invitational.
Garbacz and O'Brien, considered to be rising young stars on the Ladies Professional Golf Association circuit, matched 1-under-par 71s in Thursday's opening round of the tour's richest event.
They were the only sub-par rounds turned in on a day marked by constant rain, temperatures that dipped below 50, and frequently gusting winds.
"It was really cold on the back nine," said Garbacz, dressed in winter clothing and wearing a stocking cap. "But I listened to the weather report and dressed for it."
"It's probably the toughest round I've ever played," said O'Brien. "It was brutal. The scores will prove it. It's so mental when you play in conditions like this. You have to try to block them out of your mind."
"But it's hard sometimes; I lost an umbrella when I got it turned wrong into the wind."

Blazers hold down Gervin for 109-105 victory over Spurs

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Jim Paxson made the key points at the end, but Bob Gross' defensive job on George Gervin had a lot to do with Portland's 109-105 victory over the San Antonio Spurs Thursday night.

Gervin, averaging 33.2 points per game, was held to 16 points. Gervin made seven of 22 shots and hit both of his free throws.

Gervin had scored 47 points against the Blazers earlier this season in San Antonio.

It was Portland's second straight National Basketball Association victory and helped keep the Blazers' slim playoff hopes alive. The Blazers are 37-35, compared with 40-32 for Phoenix and 40-33 for Golden State.

Portland, Phoenix and Golden State are vying for the sixth and final playoff spot from the Western Conference.

Portland, with 10 games left, plays at Denver tonight. San Antonio, 44-29 and 1½ games ahead of Denver in the Midwest Division, plays at Seattle tonight.

Paxson stole a pass by Gervin and scored as he fouled by Mike Bratz as he scored on a layup.

Portland's Calvin Natt, who finished with 22 points, stripped the ball from San Antonio's Mike Mitchell, and the ball went off Mitchell's foot and out of bounds.

Natt took the inbounds pass from Mychal Thompson and scored to make it 107-103.

The Spurs began shooting three-point attempts in the last 50 seconds and one of those, a miss by Gervin, resulted in a stuff shot by Paxson on a fast break.

Mitchell led the Spurs with 29 points.

Thompson led Portland with 28 points and 12 rebounds. Natt added 13 rebounds to enable the Blazers to stay relatively close to the bigger and taller Spurs in rebounding. San Antonio had a 45-43 rebounding edge.

Portland broke out to a 34-26 first-quarter lead on 73 percent (17-for-23) shooting. But San Antonio closed the gap to 58-56 at halftime on the strength of Gene Banks' 12 second-quarter points.

Portland led by four after three quarters.

San Antonio coach Stan Albeck credited Portland's defense in the last two minutes.

"Clearly Ice (Gervin) did not have his rhythm, but Gross played him well with help and did well to shade the passing lanes to Ice," Albeck said.

"Bob Gross' job on George Gervin tonight you will not see often in the NBA," said Portland coach Jack Ramsay. "It was a terrific job. As a result, we're still in the hunt and we will still keep fighting."

Albeck believes the Blazers will not make the playoffs.

"The Blazers played very well, but to be honest I don't think they can make it," Albeck said. "All the teams ahead of them are playing so well right now."

"It's not like last year when Kansas City, Houston and Golden State were all losing at the end of the regular season as if none of them wanted into the playoffs."

Guard replacement for Bucks scores 30, in late point surge

By The Associated Press

The Milwaukee Bucks, down to just two experienced guards after season-ending injuries to Junior Bridgeman and Quinn Buckner, planned to play Marques Johnson in the backcourt for only a few minutes. Coach Don Nelson had to change his plans, but you won't find him complaining.

Johnson, a former National Basketball Association All-Star forward who has been fighting a season-long slump, broke loose with 30 points Thursday night. He scored 22 of them while playing guard and teamed with Bob Lanier to spark a late surge as the Bucks defeated the Atlanta Hawks 117-113.

Nelson made the move early after Johnson picked up three fouls at forward midway through the first quarter.

"We put Marques at guard and posted him low whenever we could," Nelson said. "It was very successful in the second quarter (when Johnson scored 15 points), and we wanted to go back to it if we could."

In other NBA games Thursday, the Houston Rockets shaded the Golden State Warriors 104-101, the Dallas Mavericks nipped the Detroit Pistons 121-120, the Portland Trail Blazers turned back the San Antonio Spurs 109-105, the Los Angeles Lakers trimmed the San Diego Clippers 117-100 and the New York Knicks edged the Cleveland Cavaliers 111-110.

The Bucks started their winning surge when Lanier scored on a follow-up shot to put them ahead 101-100 with 7:35 to play. Johnson scored on an offensive rebound and converted a three-point play, while Lanier sank a jump shot and a free throw for a 109-102 lead with four minutes left.

Johnson said he had defensive problems at guard, especially when matched against Atlanta's Eddie Johnson.

"But those were extraordinary circumstances," he said. "Eddie is one of the quickest guys in the league, and by the time he blew by me, he was by everybody else trying to help out in our defensive concept."

"But offensively, it wasn't that difficult for me when we had a ball-handling guard in the game. Sidney Moncrief and I get easier shots at guard. We post up and outjump shorter guys and get a lot of loose balls and garbage shots. I must have had 10 or 12 points on garbage."

"In some ways, it's easier playing guard for me because I have a nose for the ball and I can match up better when I go inside than when I play forward against Danny Roundfield or somebody else my own size."

Rockets 104, Warriors 101

Moses Malone scored 35 points and grabbed 14 rebounds to lead Houston. The Rockets led 97-87 with 5:35 remaining, but Golden State scored six straight points. Elvin Hayes, who finished with 18 points, scored a layup and Tom Henderson hit a free throw to give Houston a 100-93 advantage. The victory moved Houston within three games of Midwest Division leader San Antonio.

Mavericks 121, Pistons 120

Rolando Blackman's 10-foot jumper with three seconds left climaxed a fourth-period Dallas comeback. The Pistons were leading 120-119 with 11 seconds remaining but failed to get the ball inbounds despite two timeouts and lost it on a five-second violation. Dallas capitalized on the turnover with Blackman's winning shot.

The Mavericks trailed 102-89 entering the final period but rallied behind rookies Blackman, Mark Aguirre and Jay Vincent. Vincent, a former Michigan State player, led all scorers in his first appearance as a professional in his home state, tossing in 37 points.

Kelly Tripucka topped the Pistons with 25, boosting his season total to 1,609 and becoming the all-time Detroit rookie scoring king, surpassing the mark of 1,601 by Dave Bing in 1966-67.

Trail Blazers 109, Spurs 105

Jim Paxson scored seven points in the last two minutes as Portland came from behind and kept their slim playoff hopes alive. Paxson and Calvin Natt fueled the late comeback by executing two steals and combining for Portland's last nine points. Paxson, who scored 25 points, connected on two free throws and then converted a three-point play with 1:22 remaining to give the Blazers a 105-103 lead. Natt, who finished with 22, stole the ball a few seconds later from Mike Mitchell and made a layup.

San Antonio's George Gervin, averaging 33.2 points a game, was held to 16, mostly due to the defense of Bob Gross.

Lakers 117, Clippers 100

Jamaal Wilkes scored 25 points to lead a balanced Los Angeles attack as the Lakers became the first Western Conference team to clinch a playoff berth. Norm Nixon and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar added 20 and 16 points, respectively, for the Lakers, who have won their last three games. The loss was the 12th in a row for the Clippers, tying a franchise record. Earvin "Magic" Johnson had only seven points for the Lakers, but was credited with 17 assists.

Knicks 110, Cavaliers 100

Michael Ray Richardson's three-point basket, steal and layup in the closing 1:22 enabled New York to wipe out what remained of Cleveland's 26-point lead. The Cavaliers were on top 107-92 with 6½ minutes remaining but were outscored 19-3 the rest of the way, failing to score a field goal in that stretch, and lost their ninth consecutive game.

News in Briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The full Senate will get a rare closed-door briefing on Soviet Union military strength if Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., grants a request from his colleagues.

Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, said Thursday that he and Sens. John Glenn, D-Ohio, Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., David L. Boren, D-Okl., and Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, have asked Baker to arrange the briefing.

"We agreed it would benefit the other members if they also had the opportunity receive...material and assess the offensive and defensive capabilities of the Soviet Union," Symms said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General William French Smith says the Justice Department plans to replace "obsolete" guidelines used by department lawyers to help decide whether to challenge corporate mergers.

Smith told a meeting of the American Bar Association's antitrust lawyers Thursday that new guidelines would deemphasize the market shares held by firms wanting to merge.

In deciding whether a proposed merger violates antitrust laws, "bigness is not necessarily badness," the attorney general said.

Names in the News

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Edward Koch declared it "Banned Book Read-Out Day" and authors and actors gathered outside the city's public library to read aloud from books forbidden on shelves.

They included "The Diary of Anne Frank," banned in Montello, Wis., and "Huckleberry Finn," found obscene at a junior high school in Warrington, Pa.

"It's a sign of a certain social viciousness and I feel it should be fought," said author Isaac Asimov, whose "Treasury of Humor" was banned in a small Tennessee school, district for a joke on the "uselessness" of that familiar four-letter word.

"It is with reluctance that the Boston Symphony has decided that due to causes and circumstances beyond its reasonable control the all-Stravinsky program has been canceled," director Thomas W. Morris said in a statement.

The Globe reported Thursday the BSO switchboard has received many telephone calls complaining about Ms. Redgrave, an Academy Award winner.

The Moebete Independent School District is accepting bids on the former Community Church Building and lots located on Lots 14 and 15, Block 118, in New Moebete, Texas. The building contains approximately 2700 square feet and could easily be converted into a place of business or redeveloped into living space. Bids will be accepted which include or exclude the furnishings. Inspection of the property and bids can be made by contacting Bob Mickey, Superintendent, Moebete ISD, P.O. SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The policewoman who appeared nude in Playboy magazine's May issue still doesn't know if she'll be fired, and she says she's been riding an emotional roller coaster since the issue came out.

"One minute they're saying it's sickening and terrible, and the next someone's running up and saying, 'Can I have your autograph?'" she said.

Barbara Schantz, who called in sick the first two days after the issue was released.

In an article accompanying the Playboy spread, Ms. Schantz, 25, said Police Chief Winston Stultz "read the riot act" when she told him about the photos.

"The chance is there that I might be fired, even though being in Playboy doesn't have anything to do with being a good police officer," she said in the article.

City Manager Thomas Bay said Thursday that Stultz was beginning an internal inquiry to determine if any disciplinary action would be taken against Ms. Schantz.

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Symphony Orchestra, citing circumstances beyond its control, has canceled a performance featuring British actress Vanessa Redgrave.

The decision, announced Thursday, came after the Boston Globe reported that the orchestra received threats and complaints over Ms. Redgrave's support of the Palestine Liberation Organization.
