Wholesale prices drop for second month

WASHINGTON (AP) - Wholesale prices fell at an annual rate of 1.7 percent in March, matching February's decline and marking the first time since 1976 that prices have been down for two months running, the government said today

Pacing the March decline, which private economists say is largely the product of the stubborn recession, were falling prices for energy and food. The decline in energy prices was the sharpest in more than six years.

Today's report also bolstered economists' predictions that in the coming months inflation — at both the wholesale and retail levels - will be under last year's pace, which was 7 percent at wholesale and 8.9 percent at

In the new report, the Labor Department said its Producer Price Index for finished goods fell a seasonally adjusted 0.1 percent in March.

The last time the measure fell two months in a row was in January and

February of 1976, according to Labor Department data

Inflation at the wholesale level had risen 0.4 percent in January and 0.3 percent in December.

If prices fell for 12 straight months at March's 0.1 percent, the yearly decline would be 1.7 percent after seasonal adjustment. The annual rate reported by the Labor Department is based on a more precise calculation of monthly changes than the figure the department makes public.

Analysts both in and out of government had been predicting a 1982 inflation rate of 6 percent to 7 percent. but after the recent good news on inflation, some have lowered their projections to as little as 4.5 percent

Deputy presidential press secretary Larry Speakes called the new report "further evidence we are bringing down the rate of inflation.

Speakes, in Barbados, where Reagan is spending an extended Easter weekend, also said today's announcement "is a good sign and one that is bringing benefit to Americans across the board

The new report said that over the last year prices at the wholesale level rose a modest 4.1 percent, matching the increase from January 1976 to January

In March, energy prices fell 2.3 percent, the third straight monthly decline and the sharpest fall since the 2.9 percent of January 1976. Prices for gasoline and home heating oil fell more rapidly last month than in February.

But natural gas costs were up 2.4 percent last month after rising 2 percent in February.

Food prices, which had risen 0.5 percent in February, turned down 0.2 percent last month. Falling prices were reported for eggs, pork, dairy products. fresh fruits and vegetables, and shortening and cooking oils.

Prices were up for coffee, soft drinks. processed fruits and vegetables, fish, beef and yeal

Haig carries British stance to Argentina

LONDON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig flew to Buenos Aires today to tell the leaders of Argentina's military government Britain will not retreat from its demand that they withdraw their forces from the Falkland Islands.

Haig left for the Argentine capital after about six hours of talks with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and other top government leaders. They took a tough stand toward the growing crisis in the South Atlantic.

Argentina seized the bleak, treeless British colony 250 miles off its southern coast last Friday after years of disputing Britain's 150-year-old control of the islands and their 1.800 inhabitants, most of them of English and Scottish descent

After talking with Mrs. Thatcher, Foreign Secretary Francis Pym and Defense Minister John Nott. Haig told reporters it was "too early to say" whether he could avert a war.

Shortly before Hai; arrived in London Thursday. Nott warned in an TV interview that Royal Navy ships will fire on any Argentine vessel entering the 200-mile blockade zone around the islands that goes into effect at midnight Sunday Falklands time (11 p.m. EST).

'As far as we are concerned, we'll shoot first if any Argentine ships come in." said Nott. "We will sink them certainly within the 200-mile limit.

Britain on Monday dispatched a powerful armada to the South Atlantic to force the Argentines off the islands if diplomatic efforts to resolve the dispute failed. The fleet is not due there until April 20. but British submarines reportedly will be there by the weekend

British government sources, who requested anonymity, told reporters Mrs. Thatcher made two points clear to

First, the "depth of intense feeling in the United Kingdom, the country and Parliament," about the Falklands

Second, the issue "not only concerns the Falklands, which is serious enough. but also the question of aggression against a free people, which has enormous implications for the Western

Haig particularly pleased the British when he referred in an arrival statement to Britain being "the United States' closest ally and friend." Some officials had said privately they were miffed at statements from Washington indicating the Reagan administration considers relations with Argentina and Britain on an equal basis.

Workmen clearing debris from damaged gas plant

BY FRED PARKER City Editor

Workmen Thursday began the task of clearing debris from the compressor building at the Pampa Gas Processing Plant of Pioneer Gas Products Co., which was severely damaged by an explosion and fire Wednesday evening. The explosion in the plant, located 10 miles south of Pampa on Farm - to -Market Road 749, two miles east of Highway 70, occurred about 6:15 p.m. Wednesday.

Thursday, Pioneer officials determined the explosion was the result of rupture of a line inside the compressor building.

This resulted in natural gas escaping from a high pressure 16 - inch pipeline. following the explosion, and sending flames shooting about 200 feet into the air, accompanied by a loud roar which could be heard for several miles.

Jerry Searcy, a spokesman for Energas at Amarillo, said Thursday afternoon no figure had been placed on the amount of damages caused by the explosion and resulting fire which was not brought under control until about 10 p.m. Wednesday

Pioneer Gas Products Co. is a division of Energas which is headquartered in Amarillo. The damaged plant supplied the natural gas distributed by Energas to customers in Pampa and the surrounding area

Searcy reported examination of the processing plant Wednesday revealed that approximately 90 percent of the compressor station was destroyed by the Wednesday explosion and fire.

"Of five compressor units, only one unit can possibly be salvaged." Searcy

Searcy said it will take several days to determine the exact amount of damage. He noted, however, that the original cost of the processing plant, when it was constructed in 1959, was in excess of $1 million

The Energas spokesman said service to Pampa customers should not be affected while the plant is being rebuilt. explaining the firm will continue to obtain natural gas from other processing plants in the Panhandle to meet the local needs.

The intense flames from the ruptured line orginated in what had been the east end of the compressor building and were not controlled until about 8:10 p.m. Wednesday when workmen managed to turn off valves, reducing the flow of the natural gas

Wednesday night, while the flames were still roaring high into the sky at the processing plant. Energas personnel were busy switching the Pampa distribution system to other plants. There was no loss of service to Pampa customers, company officials

Pampans to be polled on feelings towards Pantex nuclear plant

BY JEFF LANGLEY

Staff Writer Dozens of Pampa residents should receive letters today or tomorrow in connection with a Panhandle survey of public attitudes about the Pantex nuclear weapons plant, according to the manager of the firm hired to conduct the survey

Larry Adcock, manager of Adcock and Associates Inc., an Albuquerque. N.M. public opinion research firm, said initial "contact letters" explaining the survey should be received by between 30 and 50 Pampans.

If the local contacts agree, the research firm will send a representative to the contact's home to ask several questions about the Pantex

But officials with both the Department of Energy and Adcock and Associates refused to divulge the contents of the predetermined questionnaire and what citizens will be asked remains a secret

The opinion survey is connected with an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) being prepared on the Pantex Plant, following an out - of - court settlement of a lawsuit filed in federal court by PEAC. Panhandle Environmental Awareness Committee.

Claude Gay, chief administrator with the Department of Energy (DOE) over Pantex, said an Environmental Impact Statement has never been prepared on the Pantex Plant, but the agency agreed to conduct the survey as a result of the PEAC lawsuit filed by Betty Wheeler, the group's Amarillo lawyer.

Gay explained that federal law requires an environmental impact statement to be prepared before a large government construction project can

Gay confimed that expansion is underway, and more construction is planned in the future at the country's only final assembly point for nuclear weapons, located just down the road from Pampa, just off State Highway 60, west of Panhandle.

Gay said the connection between the current opinion survey and the area's environment is in response to a request at a May 1981 public hearing. He said a citizen at that hearing asked that the opinion survey be conducted in connection with the EIS.

Adcock said he could not give out contents of the questionnaire because of his firm's agreement with the Los Alamos National Laboratory, the agency responsible for overall preparation of the EIS.

Los Alamos, Pantex, Sandia National Laboratory in Albuquerque and the Lawrence Livermore research facility in California are all some of the facilities connected with this country's production of nuclear weapons. Each facility is operated by a private contractor, under direct jurisdiction of Adcock said the opinion survey just began and should be completed by the end of this month. He said the survey will involve about 400 residents in Amarillo, Borger, Canyon, Pampa, Claude, Groom, Fritch, Panhandle, Skellytown and White Deer, plus "key informants - those people who have voiced an opinion about the plant and local community and governmental Adcock said, "Key informants will be indentified through past newspaper articles and other information.

Adcock said the other contacts will be made "through random sampling of telephone books and directories."

When he said the questions in the survey could not be divulged, he added. "We are not dealing with classified information, but we don't want people thinking ahead of time about the issue. or discussing it. We want an individual's true opinion, not the opinion of a group.

'We want to know what impact the plant has on cultural or social attitudes does it interfere with daily activities. and what impact the plant has on the community or quality of life," Adcock

Gay confirmed that "contents of the questionnaire are not available at this time, but they will be available when a draft of the EIS is released, sometime Gay said. "We are not getting good response," about the opinion survey. He said the information from the questionnaire will not be used by any other government agency, and the questionnaires "will be destroyed.

"The DOE will not even know the identity of the respondents. The records and names will be destroyed." Gay Steve Schroeder of Amarillo. spokesman for another anti - nuclear group, Northwest Texas Clergy and Laity Concerned, said today he believes citizen participation in the opinion survey is important, but "the problem is you have to be suspicious of its fairness because it is being conducted by an agency of the plant.

Schroeder said, "It wouldn't matter to me if the information is given to another agency, but the suspicion is in the back of my mind.

Schroeder said his group of the national organization conducts a prayer vigil each month at the plant. He said recent public attention given to the plant is good because "at least people are doing some thinking about nuclear

"For the last 30 years, no one even wanted to think about it." he said.

While most local residents have known for many years what is built at Pantex, until recently, very little national attention was focused on the

That basic anonymity ended with the formation of the local protest groups, and national attention has focused on the plant, following an anti - nuclear stance taken by Amarillo Catholic Bishop Leroy Matthiesen.

Matthiesen asked workers of the plant to consider the moral consequences of building nuclear weapons and asked them to walk off the job. The Bishop offered moral and financial support for protesting workers through Catholic Family Services.

That offer prompted protest and withdrawal of donations from some workers at Pantex from United Way. which partially funded Catholic Family Services programs

United Way then pulled its support of Catholic Family Services, and Matthieson organized fund raising to offset the lost revenue to the church's Matthiesen and an opposite thinking Baptist minister both appeared live this morning from Amarillo on the ABC program, "Good Morning America."

Matthiesen said on the program that the continued nuclear arms race is "suicide." He said the human race would be wiped out in a nuclear war.

The bishop said he supported a current official proposal to freeze production of nuclear weapons

The Baptist minister countered that the Russians are liars and cannot be trusted to obey a weapons ban treaty. The preacher said the Bible supports his position of nuclear weapons production and strength. The men continued with a broadcast debate of Bible interpretation. The preacher said the Bible calls on American military strength to protect its people, but Matthiesen said, "Jesus said. 'He who lives by the sword, dies by the sword

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R - Ore., Sen. Ted Kennedy and others are leading advocates of a nuclear weapons freeze.

President Reagan and Secretary of State Alexander Haig oppose a freeze on nuclear weapons. Reagan said at a recent news conference that the Russians have achieved nuclear superiority, and Haig has stated that freezing nuclear weapons at current levels "would reward a decade of unilateral Soviet buildup and penalize the United States for a decade of unilateral restraint glittering close. This year, two local patonage groups, the Community Concert Association and the Fine Arts Association vied for the concert goer's attention. Although Community Concert was the uncontested crowd pleaser, nothing quite equaled the audience electrification of the Schub piano recital.

The Wagner Chorale was a group of eighteen singers with piano and bass fiddle accompaniment.

The program's first half was almost exclusively sacred music. Opening with three Catholic hymns of the high renaissance, this section continued with compositions by Bach, Mozart and concluded with experts from Handel's Messiah. Although the renaissance hymns were presented a' capella in their original settings, the baroque contatas had to be rearranged to fit Wagner's equipment.

The second half was nearly all secular. It was dominated by Brahm's very swanky Liebeslieder Waltzes which were conceived as duets for choir and piano. Brahms was a great admirer of waltz king Johann Strauss. On his piano kept a volume entitled Waltzes by Johann Strauss undr which he penciled "unfortunately not by Johannes Brahms." Elsewhere in this part were the Habanera from Carmen, cowboy songs, folk songs and Negro sprituls, some of which displayed unrestrained hooting, clapping and stomping all to the audience's obvious exhileration. One of the encores was 'Polly Wolly Doodle'' done as an hilarious American gothic caricature. Each presentation by the chorale was chiseled like a fine piece of statuary. The serious works were moving and the light one humorous and beguiling. The program was very handsome and well worth the audience's undivided attention. The soloists sang with polished technic. Mr. Wagner's running commentary, however, was something

States, cities are trying to recover $14 million from federal railroad

WASHINGTON (AP) - One reason Amtrak was able to reduce spending and still keep running nationwide last winter was a little-known provision by which Congress allowed the railroad to hold back nearly $14 million in state and local taxes. Now the cities and states are pushing to have the taxes reinstated.

There is talk of possible court action, although most local officials acknowledge Congress has wide authority on such matters. More likely is a major effort to convince Congress to reinstate the taxes

Congress will be taking another look at the matter anyway since the tax provision is a one-year item and must be renewed or made permanent to continue into the fiscal year that begins next October. Amtrak President Alan S. Boyd told a congressional hearing recently that the railroad is counting on keeping the tax break in its fiscal 1983 budget.

He noted the present provision "merely defers our liability." If it is not made permanent, he said, Amtrak may not only have to pay back taxes but could be subject to $3.8 million in penalties and interest. The maneuver granting the exemption barely was noticed during negotiation on Amtrak's final appropriations bill last December. Many city officials found out about it only when an Amtrak letter informed them in January that the tax money was being withheld.

The provision that allowed Amtrak to escape local tax payments, at least for year, was a product of the give-and-take - what one lobbyist calls the "backroom compromises" - that mark much of the activity on Capitol "It was something that kind of hit us-

transportation specialist for the National Conference of Mayors. "It affects just about every community that has significant Amtrak facilities. We're deeply concerned."

Mayor Vincent A. Cianci of Providence, R.I., was more blunt.

Amtrak is "supposed to be run in a businesslike manner" and like other businesses it should pay its taxes, he complained. Amtrak, the national passenger railroad, had been paying taxes in every state through which its trains

The second blast of a double-barreled cold snap that has killed at least 54 people hurtled eastward today after adding 3 inches to the Midwest's snow cover and shattering cold-weather records from Montana to Maryland.

A tornado and 90 mph winds Thursday tossed a tractor-trailer on top of three cars and brought out looters in Sanford, Fla. An inch of snow fell on Black Rock Mountain State Park in Georgia.

The second storm approached the Northeast as residents were still digging out from a blizzard Tuesday that closed down schools and iced highways from Pennsylvania to New Hampshire.

What good is a crusade?

The Reagan administration continues to be ambivalent about whether it really wants to reduce the size, power and intrusiveness of the federal government.

While the president is assailed from all sides by interest groups beset by hysterical (and often premature) fears that some portion of federal largesse will be reduced. the First Lady is calling for yet another federal crusade, this time against drug abuse. The stated goals of the president's drug adviser, Carlton Turner, almost demand increased size, power, intrusiveness and spending by the federal government.

Turner, having assissted in briefing the First Lady on the dangers of marijuana and other drugs, announced that the administration's goals were to reduce daily drug use by high school students 30 percent by 1984; to establish parent anti - drug groups in every high school by 1984, and to disseminate anti - drug literature in libraries and doctors' offices. This may be an admirable set of goals. but have those who set them given any thought to the amount of federal intrusiveness that would be necessary to reach them?

For starters, estimates of how many high school students use drugs are just that - estimates. Some estimates are more reliable then others, perhaps, but it amounts to guesswork. What would it take to get genuinely reliable figures, so as to calculate a decline in use? It's difficult to imagine. Federal agents checking high school washrooms or a network of informers? Perhaps arrest figures would be accepted. unreliable measures though they Parent groups in every high school? No doubt the administration hopes that parents, once apprised of the danger, will rise up with no further prodding from the feds. But what if they don't? Will the federal government deploy paid organizers to travel the high - school circit. leaving behind them legacies of organization and information?

Where will truth emerge in all this crusading? Scientific opinion on marijuana, for example, is quite divided. It is psychologically addictive, physiologically addictive, neither or both? Does its use lead inevitably, sometimes or hardly ever to the use of "harder" drugs? You can find government reports, not to mention studies by private scientists, to buttress whatever opinion you care to hold. But if government is involved in a 'crusade' against drugs, how reliable or independent are its paid scientists likely to be? A repeat of the absurd "reefer madness" propaganda campaign of the 30s seems unlikely, but objective judgment is likely to be one casualty of any new crusade.

We would not suggest that the use of drugs by teenagers is advisable, or that drug abuse is not a serious problem for some individuals.

Blank check for the CIA?

The bill passed by the Senate to make it a crime for journalists to identify covert U.S. intelligence agents in public even if the information was developed from open, unclassified records, is troubling, to say the least.

The targets of the legislation were a group of pretty sleazy operators, some of them disillusioned ex - CIA officials, who have made a career of naming the names of U.S. intelligence operatives. The Covert Action Information Bulletin, for one, until recently made clear its intention to expose U.S. operatives. Former CIA man Phillip Agee seems to have changed sides in the global competition, and has made a career of ferreting out and discrediting CIA men around the world.

There are those who believe that at teast one CIA operative was killed as a direct result of the efforts of such exposure. So we're dealing with a fairly serious problem here

However, to see the problem of a few publications whose motives are obviously to destroy the CIA and pass a law that affects every organ of journalism in the country is, to be charitable, a case of overkill

The legislation passed by the Senate would permit prosecution of *editors who have "reason to believe" that publishing agents' names would disrupt U.S. intelligence operations. That's an elastic phrase, placing an inordinate burden of interpretation on the shoulders of editors. Editors are paid to make judgments of that nature, or course, but the last time we checked the CIA wasn't signing many of their paychecks. There's a big difference between exercising Judgment and facing the possibility of prosecution if your judgment differs from that of a law enforcement agency

There's another problem, of course. Agencies that operate under a cloak of secrecy do not always serve what many people consider the true interests of the public that pays the taxes. One of the roles of the press in a free society is to inform people about what government is doing, with a special eye to questionable activities. The CIA's record in this respect is hardly unblemished. One may argue endlessly about the need for a secret intelligence agnecy in a dangerous world, or about the degree of secrecy needed to undertake covert activities, or about the genuine necessity of covert activities. It is almost certain, however, that if there is secrecy there will be abuses of power. Some may argue that occasional abuses should be tolerated for the sake of national security, but few would deny the need for some kind of accountability. It may be possible to investigate abuses without naming names; indeed most authorities agree that the "legitimate" press for the most part has been responsible in undertaking investigative stories without unnecessarily endangering the lives of people who sincerely believe they are serving the interests of their country. But there can be little doubt that the bill passed by the Senate will dampen investigative

Doubtless many will applaud such a yoke being placed on the press. In England the press is much more restricted in areas defined by the government as relating to national security than it is in the United States. Many people believe the 'prestige' media have dabbled in an irresponsible campaign against the CIA and other intelligence agencies, and that it's high time the arrogant media were slapped down for the sake of the country

It's not hard to understand that sentiment. But Congress would do well to consider all the ramifications carefully before placing such restrictions on the freedom of the press. The First Amendment doesn't permit the government to make distinctions between "legitimate" and "illegitimate," or "responsible" "irresponsible" media. The founders knew that any public official with that kind of power would be tempted to abuse it. The Constitution and Bill of Rights were framed to define and limit government power.

That constitutional system, while it may not be perfect, has served this country well for almost 200 years. The limitations the founders tried to place on government have been threatened as its power has grown and sophisticated apologists have tried to say that the Constitution didn't really mean what it said. This new law might not be an inordinate disaster in and of itself. But it would represent one more step in the process of erosion of liberty that seems to be the constant challenge of any free society.

Is Reagan sensitive to jobless?

By ROBERT WALTERS

MIAMI (NEA) - When the Postal Service announced recently that it was searching for people to fill 700 jobs that will become vacant through attrition here in the next two years, agency officials expected a flood of job seekers.

To cope with the expected onslaught of requests from unemployed South Florida workers seeking a new source of income, farsighted Postal Service managers were prepared to distribute 40,000 job applications.

But that wasn't nearly enough to meet the demand.

When the sign - up period for prospective mail clerks and letter carriers had closed, the Postal Service had dispensed more than 140,000 job applications.

That's 200 applicants for every job and it's distressingly typical of a pattern that has developed throughout the country at a time when one out of every 11 members of the nation's work force is unemployed.

In New York City, the Postal Service received more than 225,000 employment applications after it advertised the availability of 2,500 jobs. In Kansas City, Mo., 18,000 people applied for 60 Postal Service jobs

By PAUL HARVEY There is an alternative to President

Reagan's proposed budget. The alternative to Reaganomics is called "public welfare.

The trouble with the alternative is that it's been tried for 20 years and it didn't work. It resulted in decreased

CPA sues federal government to prove he's not a criminal

HOUSTON (AP) - Douglas Sims has repeatedly tried and failed to convince FBI agents, customs agents and a U.S. marshal he's a law-abiding certified public accountant and not the fugitive marijuana smuggler they think he is.

So Sim filed suit in federal court Thursday against U.S. Marshal B.S. Baker, asking for $150,000 in damages and a permanent injunction ordering federal agents "to get their records straight" and stop harrassing him.

Baker was named in the suit because his deputies execute federal warrants. Federal officials refused to comment on the suit.

Sims, 34, contends numerous interviews with FBI agents and a letter to the U.S. attorney general failed to prevent shotgun-toting law enforcement officers from storming his quiet west Houston home last August and dragging him off to jail as his wife and neighbors watched.

COLUMBUS, Miss. (AP) - Marion Albert Pruett, convicted of murder, showed no emotion as a Lowdnes County jury sentenced him to die in the gas chamber for the execution-style shooting of Peggy Lowe.

The jury, which earlier Thursday had reached guilty verdict in only 35 minutes, began weighing Pruett's fate about 8 p.m. and reached a unanimous decision about two hours later.

Capital murder cases are tried in two parts; phase one to determine guilt and phase two to determine whether the sentence should be life in prison or death, the only two options under Mississippi law.

When the sentence was read, the Lowe family began to cry and hug one another. A May 20 execution date was set, but the case will be reviewed on automatic appeal to the state Supreme Court. 'I guess you could say I was surprised.' District Attorney Ed Peters said afterwards.

One of the 12 jurors had stated that he could not vote for the death penalty, but Circuit Judge William Coleman denied prosecution motions to replace that juror with an alternate, or to seat a new jury for the sentencing phase of the trial.

Prosecutors, arguing for the death penalty, presented about an hour of testimony including Pruett's previous record, which includes convictions for bank robbery, armed bank robbery and attempted escape. and a videotape of an Oct. 28 television

The videotape, edited to omit references to other crimes. was shown in court. During the interview. Pruett admitted killing Mrs. Lowe and said he wanted to get the death penalty:

Courtroom spectators, including reporters and law enforcement officers, wept as Pruett described from the witness stand how he killed Mrs. Lowe. Pruett said Mrs. Lowe prayed and begged for her life as he drove her to Sumter County, Ala., where she was shot to death on the same day he kidnapped her from a Unifirst Savings and Loan branch, where she worked as a loan officer.

He said he said he ordered her to partially disrobe so she would not follow him. He said he told her not to move for 30

It was then, he testified, he knew he had to kill her. Pruett said he led her back to the same area and made her get on the ground. He said she was face down, giving him her husband's telephone number, when he fired one shot into her head.

Pruett testified that he had become a Christian during his stay in jail since his arrest in Texas on Oct. 18, 1981

"The Lord has forgiven me in his spirit." he said Pruett also said he did not "care what the people do to me." Peters asked if that meant he didn't care if he got the death penalty, and Pruett snapped "I didn't say that." For the most part, the cross-examination by Peters drew calm answers, but Pruett became agitated several times, and at one point, said "You're not going to get me mad.

After the trial Peters said. "His behavior on the stand was second only to his behavior before the camera.

Reagan not only talks like a true believer in his policies. he really acts like one. Again and again, he has rejected calls from political allies to alter his policies. He has stood firm in his belief that 'supply-side' tax cuts, less government involvement in the marketplace and slow growth in the nation's stock of money will restore an era of strong economic expansion and stable prices. Reagan acknowledges the housing industry may be in its worst slump in a half century. but unhesitantly rejects pleas for government help as

"budget-busting bailouts" that will produce higher, not lower, interest rates. The federal budget faces record deficits, but Reagan rejects calls from congressional Republicans to raise taxes and cut military spending Interest rates are the highest ever during a recession, but Reagan spurns business cries for easier credit policies from the independent Federal

If there is a hallmark to the Reagan presidency, it is its steadfast adherence to one economic program without flinching when things go sour. By contrast, Jimmy Carter had, by some counts, seven economic policies in four years, with each program reacting to bad economic devlopments and subsequent clamoring for change.

Reserve Board

While supporters see Reagan as a forceful leader detemined to see his program succeed, political opponents see a stubborn man who is too blinded by his convictions to see potential economic disaster.

The big question now is not whether Reaganomics will succeed in the long run but whether the president can convert the disbelievers who are threatening to stop the program dead in its tracks before an ultimate verdict can be rendered.

Religion in the News

NEW YORK (AP) - Out of the suffering came powerful renewal. Out of the darkness came light.

This is the keynote both of the Jewish Passover and the Christian Easter, whose observances were under way this Holy Week

Although often held in separate periods because of differences in religious calendars, the two observances coincided this time, as was the case in the origins of Christianity.

Their concurrence pointed up the similarities in meaning each in distinctive ways.

Both "express one of humankind's deepest longings deliverance," says John Barry Ryan, a Roman Catholic and associate professor of religious studies at Manhattan College.

For Christians, that deliverance was signaled for humanity by Christ's resurrection from execution on the cross, a conquest over life's deepest affliction, death itself

"Death is swallowed up in victory," Scripture puts it. For Jews. God's redeeming love was manifested in the saving of their people from ancient slavery in Egypt, an event regarded as mirrored timelessly through history and into the Church services Friday centered on the hours of Jesus' suffering on the cross, an agony considered borne by God himself as one with humanity in paying for its sin to extend forgiveness for it.

"For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son ... that the world might be saved through him," Scripture says.

His resurrection, seen as foretokening that ultimate future for the humankind he shared, is celebrated in Easter vigils leading up to Saturday midnight, in dawn services outdoors and indoors, and in churches Sunday morning around the

Religion roundup

NEW YORK (AP) - Looking toward the United Nation's forthcoming special session on disarmament, 35 leaders of the world's major religions have urged governments to "freeze and reverse the arms race. They said "the survival of humanity is threatened by the possibility of nuclear extermination" and appealed to the nations to develop a specific timetable for "abolition of nuclear weapons" and general disarmament.

Signers were listed both from the East and West. They included among others: Archbishop John R. Roach, president of U.S. Catholic bishops; Russian Orthodox Patriarch Pimen of Moscow; Buddhism's Dalai Lama from Tibet; Rabbi Walter S. Wurzburger, president of the Synagogue Council of America; United Methodist Bishop James Armtrong, president of the National Council of Churches of the U.S., and Inamullah Khan, secretary-general of the World Moslim Congress. The petition, circulated by an interreligious task force, Mobilization for Survival, says the arms race also attacks the poor by consuming "the very resources - $500 bilion annually - which should feed, clothe, house and heal the world's people.

WASHINGTON (AP) - A wide coalition of Christian and Jewish leaders says that the growing needs of America's poor cannot be supplied by charity, but require governmental action.

"The stark reality is that the available resources of the churches and synagogues, or of the entire private sector, simply will not be sufficient to replace federal human needs programs," the religious leaders say.

Their statement was issued after a broadly interfaith consultation co-sponsored by the U.S. Catholic Conference, the National Council of Churches, the Synagogue Council of America, the Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission and Evangelicals for Social Action.

Their representatives said that the "charity of the religious community can only ease the burden of last year's budget cuts on the poor" but 'cannot resolve it," adding:

Join Us In Worship

The breath of spring is in the air, and flowers, trees, and fields are bursting forth into a new life. It is truly wonderful to behold all the beauties of nature.

However, the glory of the resurrection blooms more beautiful than springtime on earth. Attend church this Easter.

> The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by laving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

shot Jesse James? Bob Ford killed him, in the back, the dirty rat. One hundred years after James' death, folks still recall the stories about the outlaw antihero. Now there's been an organization created to promote scholarly research on his life.

By MARK PETERSON Associated Press Writer

KEARNEY, Mo. (AP) -After robbing a Chicago and Alton train at Blue Cut, Mo., in September 1881, Jesse James shook the conductor's hand and said, "You'll never hear from me again."

Jesse apparently planned to abandon his life of crime

Nebraska with his wife and two children. 1He never made it. He was dead at age 34. Unarmed and with his back turned. James was shot to death on the morning of April 3, 1882, by Bob Ford, a trusted confederate and new recruit to the James gang.

Ford had struck an agreement with authorities: $10,000 for the capture of Jesse James and his brother.

Stories about the murder of Missouri's most notorious native jumped off the front page of newspapers across America. Editorials, too.

A story in a Washington paper: "The death of Jesse James and the breaking up of his gang of criminals added $10 an acre to every farm in Missouri. It was the beginning of a new and better day that marked the death of what might be termed Old Missouri and the beginning of a New Missouri.

In any case, the legend of Jesse James was well on its way; his explôits have become mythical in the 100 years since he was cut down.

To mark the centennial of his death, an organization has been created to promote scholarly research of his life. and to help renovate the Kearney, Mo., farm on which he was born and raised. It's called the Friends of the James Farm.

A James family reunion also is planned for June 19. "We're hoping to round up everyone who really is a relative, and even those who wish they were," says historian Milt Perry, curator of the James Farm, which consists of a white frame house and log cabin in the rolling hills of northwest Missouri.

One man who hopes to be there is 79-year-old Lawrence

"He's my grandfather, but for a long time I didn't talk about it," explains Barr, the son of Jesse's daughter. Mary. "I was believing a lot of the stuff they were writing about him, and I was ashamed. People would say, 'You've just got to live with it.' But just how do you live with that?"

A few years ago, Barr set out to learn the truth. But that wasn't easy. Many of the more than 400 books and dozens of movies about the James gang are untouched by

If Jesse James had not existed. he probably would have been invented.

"He wasn't your common variety outlaw," says Perry. "He had unmatched style and he came along at the right time.

James was well thought of by many people because he attacked railroads and banks. institutions disliked in the late 1800s because they were seen as land and money gluttons with little concern for common folks.

"Here was this little man striking out against these despised institutions." Perry says. "Some people actually were proud to be robbed by Jesse During one train robbery. he stole a professor's clothes. Perry says. "The professor was quoted as saying he was glad, if he had to be robbed. that it was done by a 'first class' robber, one of national reputation.

"Because there were so many stories about him. Perry adds, "he may have believed what the newspapers were saying, and tried to live up to the image being perpetuated. He just made good copy.

He made good copy all right, literally.

"He'd write news releases about some robbery and then send them out to the papers.

Struggle for foreign markets

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department appears to be in a perpetual struggle to open foreign markets for U.S. farm commodities, including two of the most lucrative - Europe and Japan.

One of the most recent examples was a declaration this week by Agriculture Secretary John R. Block that the United States is "considering all appropriate steps" if the European Common Market decides to restrict imports of U.S. corn gluten, a protein derivative used in feed.

The Common Market countries in 1980-81 accounted for $8.8 billion of the total $43.8 billion worth of U.S. agricultural commodities shipped to foreign buyers.

Japan, traditionally the largest single-country customer of American farmers, took $6.7 billion worth of food and farm commodities in the fiscal year which ended last Sept. 30.

The threat posed by possible duties or other curbs on U.S. corn gluten sold to Common Market countries - sales worth nearly $500 million last year - is contrary to the free-trade policies favored by the United

In the case of Japan, which enjoys a huge trade advantage with the United States. critics in Congress and elsewhere are heating up their demands for improved access to the Japanese market.

For years, the United States has been trying to get Japan to take more American products, including meat and citrus products which are restricted by import quotas.

L.B. Tennison. Asian director of operations for the U.S. Meat Export Federation. recently described an example of how non-tariff barriers are used to restrict Japanese imports of automobiles.

Tennison, whose federation office is in Tokyo, said Japan last year imported 45,000 automobiles - compared to about 40.000 Japanese cars the United States imports each

Of the 45,000 cars, only 10,000 came from the United States, 20,000 from West Germany and the remaining 15,000 from England.

Italy France and Australia "Japanese importers pay a 17.5 percent to 22.5 percent commodity tax on all foreign cars, depending on engine displacement. Tennison said. "This is not a trade barrier per se, since the tax is applied to all domestically produced autos."

But what "could be construed" as trade barriers show up in other ways, he said.

"A 'model approval' must be secured from the Ministryof Transportation, which is relatively simple if the importer brings in more than 1,200 of the same model during the year." Tennison said. "If the number is less than 1,200, an approval must be secured for each vehicle.

The official model approval includes checking each car's exhaust emission which 'are much more severe' than U.S. standards, he said. The test costs $450. A mandatory noise test adds another $350; and a safety check. $1.300 to $1.750, depending on what kind of modifications and adjustment are necessary.

A markup of 35 percent to 40 percent is added, raising the sticker price of a $10,000 car in San Francisco to "upwards of $25,000" in Tokyo, Tennison said.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Farmers have signed up to reduce 1982 crop plantings on 101.3 million acres, nearly 45 percent of the nation's base acreage of feed grain, rice, upland cotton and wheat, says the Agriculture Department.

That compared with 73.5 million acres enrolled in the program a week ago, officials said Wednesday. Signup continues through April 16.

To be eligible for price supports and related benefits on the crops: farmers must reduce plantings from their base acreages

Travel like the Reagans with a package vacation

Wouldn't it be nice if we could all travel like the

Just think how nice it would be to take a vacation where someone else has done all your planning and taken care of the arrangements for you. Well, you can have your cake and eat it too by taking a package vacation. A package vacation is literally one which combines a number of different ingredients into one

It may be as basic as getting you from your destination airport to your hotel and providing you with room accommodations for a set number of days, or as comprehensive as a fully inclusive tour which takes care of you from the minute you check in at the airport all the way through your arrival

Package tours offer several advantages. Convenience, of course, is a major one.

In doing it on your own, you or your travel agent will have to make airline reservations and write or phone ahead, sometimes to several hotels at each destination, before finding suitable accommodations.

Arriving at your destination, you'll have to find a cab or public bus transportation, check into the hotel on your own, arrange your own sightseeing and find out which restaurants to go to.

What does a package do? It takes care of this "detail work." freeing you to more fully enjoy your vacation

Secondly, you, the traveler, benefit from the expertise of companies highly experienced in facilitating local travel arrangements. These companies have alredy secured room accommodations at preferential rates. pre arranged local excursions and precision details such as porterage and transfers, well before you arrive on the spot.

Vacation packages generally fall into three categories: basic packages, independent tours and escorted tours.

The Basic Package is generally a "stay - in place" vacation. A minimum package usually involves a set number of days at a hotel or resort (sometimes at reduced rates), along with airport to hotel transfers.

More inclusive packages may add a select number of meals, sightseeing excursions and perhaps free use of the hotes's facilities.

Independent Tours provide you with a basic structure - accommodations (often at lower rates than you'd pay on your own), introductory sight seeing, transfers and transportation between destinations. The rest is up to you.

Such tours carry a variety of names, depending on the company packaging them. American Express, for instance, calls their independent tours "Freelance.

Particularly recomended for repeat travelers or those who like to be on their own, these tours do not provide an escort.

Instead, a local host or hostess meets you at the airport and is available in your hotel at set hours each day to help you make arrangements for optional tours and car rental, as well as to answer your questions and give advice on where to shop and eat, and what to see.

Depending on the package, you may be entirely on your own for virtually all meals, or you may have a set number of meals included.

A variation of the independent tour is the partially escorted version, which provides a tour manager who travels with you for part of the

Another variation is the Fly - Drive Vacation. Usually available in conjunction with air fare, this type of package provides hotel accommodations and rental car Escorted Tours are usually comprehensive package vacations. Most group tours have a daily itinerary, as well as a professional escort who guides you throughout the entire tour.

Ideal for first - time travelers, escorted tours are also an excellent way to acquaint you with new destinations

A great feature of an escorted tour is the security of traveling with a group and enjoying the benefits of reduced group rates.

Escorts are often knowledgeable about the countries being visited and can make arrangements for special dinners or optional sightseeing, as well as fill you in on the history and tradition of each locale visited.

Other advantages? You get the benefit of seeing sights you might otherwise miss, plus the opportunity to make new friends.

Most escorted tours allow enough free time for shopping and dining on your own, so you needn't worry about a regimented routine.

As with any vacation package, prices and features vary. American Express, for example, offers three price categories for their escorted programs, with a wide enough range to suit most budgets. There are three different levels of escorted tours, representing a variety of price

I had a friend who was one of seven children. As one of a crowd, she led a special kind of life. Her mother always called her by six names before she got it right. Since her mother sewed to save money, she always wore dresses that matched a shower curtain. She never got a car window in her lifetime.

She fantasized about a 'room of her own," Heaven to her was a quiet little corner with a ceiling of blue sky and

Glomerulonephritis - an unusual disease

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB - My 3-year-old granddaughter started running a fever and the next day we took her to our doctor. He said she had a sore throat and some nasal congestion. Then her urine was admitted to the hospital with glomerulonephritis. She responded very well to her treatment of fluid restriclow sodium diet, antibiotics and prednisone She is home now but we have some questions. The prednisone makes her hungry all the time. The pediatrician said to let her eat because they don't want her getting upset and causing her blood pressure to go up. The other concern is a kidney biopsy. The two kidney specialists and the pediatrician say they may have to do a biopsy to determine if her-case is chronic.

The swelling from her eyes and legs and feet is gone and her chest is com-pletely clear. We would appreciate any information you have on this disease.

DEAR READER - It is not a common disease anymore. It often follows a streptococcal throat infection, just as rheumatic fever does. That is probably why your granddaughter got antibiotics.

The inflammation in the kidney is a complication and allows albumin to leak out of the filtered blood. Sometimes it also allows blood cells to leak, causing bloody or dark urine. The loss of albumin is why the swelling

Normally the blood proteins, particularly albu-min, helps to draw fluid back out of the tissues into the circulation. When the albumin is too low the fluid stays in the tissues. That caused the swelling of the entire body including the face around the eyes.

A kidney biopsy is often necessary to establish exactly the nature of the kidney damage and plan future treatment. Prednisone is commonly used in the acute stage and helps to cool down the inflammation in the

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have heard so much against sugar from health fanatics that I would like to hear your views. What are the effects of sugar on digestion? Does it interfere with the digestion and absorption of protein, vitamins and erals when taken with foods that contain these nutrients? Can you become addicted to sugar? Besides obesity from too many calories will it cause other problems (excluding dental caries) DEAR READER - Carbohydrate foods are an essential part of a balanced diet and include fresh fruits vegetables and cereals. The energy part of all these basic foods comes from their content of glucose and fructose. These are the same two single sugars, combined nary sugar. Table sugar is digested carbohydrate foods. The process, however, strips the food source of vitamins, minerals and, of course, bulk. It is what sugar doesn't have that is harmful.

Sugar is rapidly absorbed because it is predigested carbohydrate. That is often harmful in diabetics and those with reactive hypogly-cemia. That plus being a problem. It is not addictive.

DEAR DR. LAMB - How important is it to drink plain water? I do not like the taste of it at all and am sorry to say I never drink it and haven't for about 15 years. I usually drink hot tea or cold tea. What effect does this have on my kidneys? I'm 31 years old.

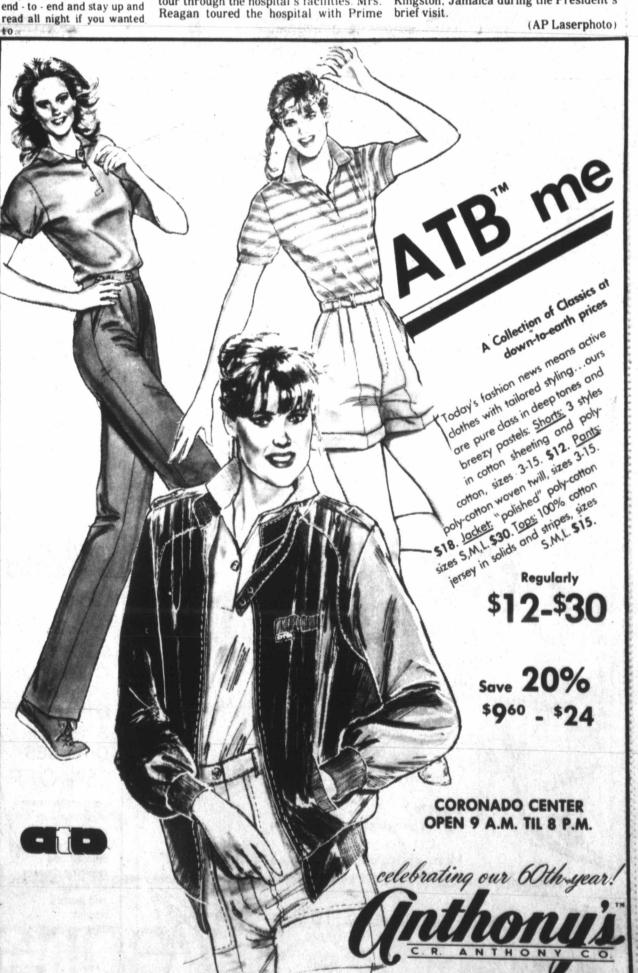

DEAR READER - Water is water whether you get it in fruit juice, such as your morning glass of orange juice, in milk or any number of beverages. The important point is to get enough fluids from whatever source to promote a good normal elimination of urine each day — an average of at least a quart of urine.

The other point is that the fluid should not contain something that is harmful to the body, such as alcohol in beer. My concern is not your lack of water but how much tea you are using. The caffeine and other drugs in tea can be harmful.

If you are not getting much water, pure or in beverages, your kidneys will have to concentrate your urine, which may predispose you to kidney stones and perhaps urinary tract infections. And it can lead to dehydration of the body which can predispose

Dear Abby

Older man wants to pep up his performance

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 65 and my wife is 67. We have been married 45 years and have always had a good sex life, but lately I have not been able to perform worth a darn.

I have been to our family doctor and he wants to send me to a specialist, but it would be embarrassing to tell our kids and neighbors what I was going for.

Abby, how about these old men who marry young movie stars? They must take something to give them extra pep. Do you know what they take and where I can buy some? Money is no problem.

I'm sure there are a lot of other men my age with this problem, so put your answer in the paper, but please don't that would give you the extra pep you're looking for. Furthermore, most of these "old men" who marry young movie stars don't have any more pep than you Take your doctor's advice and see a specialist. It's nobody's business what you're going for, so keep it to vourself.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 14-year-old girl with an enormous problem — my rear end. I know I weigh more than I should, but I'm not really fat. I'm built just like my mother, and you should see her rear end!

I'm trying to stay away from sweets and fried foods, but once I start I can't get enough of them. (You wouldn't believe what I can put away in 30 minutes!)

I've asked my mother to send me to a doctor, but she said, "I am not laying out any money for a doctor. You're not sick you're just a big pig. All you need is a little willpower!

my girlfriends have boys call them up and walk them home after school and I don't have anybody, and if I don't do something about the way I look, I'll never have anybody. Please give me some advice.

MISERABLE IN MINNESOTA
DEAR MISERABLE: If you weigh more than you should there's only one sensible way to attain your ideal weight - a combination of diet and exercise. However, you could have a medical problem that causes you to crave sweets and fat foods, so you should see a doctor for a physical examination and a sensible diet. The rest is up to you.

If your mother won't pay for it, earn your own money by baby-sitting or doing chores, but do see a doctor. And please write again in six months and let me know how you're doing. I care.

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor who works with my husband used to come here every morning at 7:25 to ride to work with my husband. It was working out fine, then he started to come a little earlier every day, until now he is having breakfast with us!

Mornings are a madhouse around here, as we have children to get off to school. Also, sometimes there are personal family matters I would like to talk to my husband about at breakfast, and there is no privacy with this man

How can this be handled? I'm afraid if we ask him not to come so early we might hurt his feelings. NO PRIVACY AT 7 A.M.

DEAR NO PRIVACY: Since he's a neighbor, why not suggest that your husband pick him up? If that's not convenient, simply be honest and ask him to please not come before 7:25.

Andy Hamilton plays Rikki on Texas and also hosts Kids Are People Too. Randy Hamilton is a very busy performer these days pulling double-duty hosting "Kids Are People Too" while maintaining the continuing role of Rikki on "Texas." Yet, Randy has no complaints about the extra work. Probably it's because Hamilton came onto the New York scene with a rich background in television before he even stepped in front of the camera as Rikki, the young exdeputy sheriff, stock car racer, singer and bodyguard. Randy came to 'Kids Are People Too" as its host shortly afterwards with considerable experience as a talk show host. In 1979 he served as host of a popular cable television teenage talk and variety show, "America Goes Bananaz," emenating from Columbus, Ohio, and aired in 200 markets. Earlier he had gone from choir boy to nightclub singer at 18, and then to television as a singer and occasional co-host of the 'Bob Braun Show" in Cincinnati. While there he met Dick Clark, and acce ded an offer from Clark to host an afterschool television dance program in Los Angeles, in the course of which he did occasional TV commercials, some nightclub singing and studied acting at the Sal Dano Workshop. Then it was back to the Buckeye state for his cable television show.

Reeve laughs ao the nonstant interruptions. "I know it sounds a little crazy," he said. "But there's a school just down the street and it happens all the time."

The 29-year-old Reeve, tall and classically handsome, is more like a mild-mannered reporter than Superman, especially when he uses his Superman persona to talk to "Friends of mine who have trouble with their kids and can't talk to them will use me as an intermediary." Reeve said. "A lot of kids who're having trouble talking to parents will talk to me," he said. "I have a certain trust, through Superman, and I can open things up. It's a safe territory.'

Reeve might not have time to go out and play with his tiny fans, but he's intent on changing the Superman image. He says he tries to play up Superman as a gentleman, rather than 'machismo bullet stopping wall."

"I show them that Superman is modest and not full of himself." he said. "I try to emphasize his Sir Walter Raleigh side. It's all part of teaching them what makes a good person. Superman is good because he reaches out for people rather than hanging back. He's not cool either. He cares about Superman has been a major boost to Reeve's career, he says. The role helped him avoid 10 years of artistic struggle.

"I would not be doing a 'Deathtrap' or a 'Monsignore' without the credibility that Superman gave me." he admitted. In fact. Superman fans are in for a big surprise when they see Reeve in the thriller "Deathtrap" - his newest film. He plays a young writer who becomes entangled in a fiendish plot with a burned-out playwright, who'd do anything for a hit even kill.

In "Monsignore." Reeve plays a priest. Still, he insists that the parts he now has "are no different than the parts I played before Superman.

scripts, recording an album and doing concerts. "I'm greedy," she said as she sipped a diet cola in her

"I want everything; I want to work on the road, do TV and movies.' She was a relatively unknown singer until the show, which has been shifted from 8 p.m. EST Saturday to 10 p.m. EST

Tuesdays, gave her extraordinary exposure for someone so obscure. "I can tell a difference in myself between the first and second season," she said. "I'm still growing and learning. I've learned so much from watching Barbara; I felt like I was going to college and learning from her.' Barbara Mandrell, who has decided the showistrained her too much physically to do another season, has said she will now concentrate on her recording career and probably do a television special or two. She has been voted the prestigious entertainer of the year the past two years by the Country Music Association.

The third Mandrell sister, Irlene, remained in California and hopes to do more television work.

Louise, who used to play bass guitar in Barbara's band, is studying movie scripts with an eye to a comedy role. It would be her first experience in a motion picture. "I'm being very careful. I want a role that fits me."

Pampa entered in Amarillo Relays

Pampa High golf and track teams are entered in the Amarillo Relays this weekend in Dick Bivins Stadium.

In track, the running prelims in the two varsity and B-team divisions and field events for all three brackets are scheduled to begin at 2:30 p.m. today. Running finals are slated to begin at 1 p.m. Saturday. Most of Pampa's track squad will compete in the junior varsity division, but last year's state qualifier, Randy Slaybaugh, will make a strong bid for a first-place medal in both the shot put and discus in the varsity division.

Tascosa is defending Class 5A champion, but Palo Duro is favored to win the 10-school meet.

In golf action, Pampa finished second in last season's consolation event after failing to make the first-round cut.

Pampa's low-round golfer this spring has been Dennis Mashburn. Other team members are Paul McIntire, Cliff Baker, David Fatheree and Derick

Belcher unhappy with operation of District 3-5A girls' track meet

Pampa High girls' coach Frank Belcher had mixed emotions about the District 3-5A track meet held Wednesday.

Belcher was happy that two of his charges (Kristi Hughes, high jump and Jessica Marcum, discus) qualified for the Class 5A regional meet April 23-24 in Lubbock

Belcher wasn't happy with the way the meet was operated in Amarillo's Dick Bivins Stadium.

"I felt that the meet was not ran in a professional way and may have hurt our chances of placing third," he said. Pampa finished fourth with 83 points, one point behind third-place Palo Duro.

Belcher listed a few examples. "There were junior high people running off the shot put and discus competition. No photos were taken of finishes in the sprints. There were no curve judges for the 400 and 200

Belcher said he didn't want to sound like a sore loser, but he felt like a meet of such importance shouldn't have been handled in such a lax manner.

like the district meet should have had professional people at key spots,' Belcher added

"If it had been any other meet I wouldn't have said anything, but I felt

Belcher had high praise for Hughes, a freshman, and Marcum, a senior. "I think both of them have an excellent chance of qualifying for state." he added. "Kristi's jump of 5-6 will probably be one of the best in the state. Jessica is just now starting to attack in the discus Although Miss Hughes tied Amarillo

High's Lori Bolk for clearance in the high jump, Miss Bolk had fewer misses to claim the first-place medal. Both set new meet records with their 5-6 leap. The old record was 5-4, set by Marianne Mathers of Tascosa in 1980.

Marcum will make her second consecutive bid for a state qualifying berth after placing second in the discus event at district with a 118-3 heave.

"I think by the time regionals roll around, they both should be ready to make the Austin trip," Belcher said. The state meet is scheduled for May 7-8.

Pampa finished third in the district's junior varsity competition with 75 points. Palo Duro won with 174 points while Amarillo High was second with

Kuhn answers weather critics

NEW YORK (AP) - Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn says those April showers — rain or snow — simply make it too unpredictable to tinker around with the schedule every year.

"Who's to say where the good weather is?" Kuhn said in an interview Thursday. "It's one of the vagaries of the season. The weather was perfect for baseball the week before, so do we open the season a week earlier?

A freak snowstorm Tuesday over the Midwest and Northeast that dumped up to 20 inches of snow in some areas caused the postponements of 17 games in the first week of the season. The American League was especially hard hit, with 14 games having to be rescheduled

Baseball's schedule makers came under harsh criticism because of openers that had several cold-weather teams playing each other - including the Seattle Mariners and Minnesota Twins, both of whom have domed stadiums.

But Kuhn said that scheduling is much more than meets the eye.

"Obviously, the interest is if you can do something in warm-weather cities and domed stadiums," he said. "It's a perfectly legitimate goal but not completely achievable. "There's pressure from cities who want to open at home regardless of the weather.' Lee Elia, manager of the Chicago Cubs. believes part of the problem could be solved by letting teams in warm climates carry the bulk of the home games in April.

"It seems to me they could solve it with a little better scheduling," he said. "Early in the season you should start on the West Coast and take advantage of the weather there.'

Although the National League keyed its openers to warm-weather stadiums. it proved to be counterproductive. The NL had Atlanta playing in San Diego and San Francisco at Los Angeles.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) - Tri Cee Farm's Sandbagger came from dead last to win Oaklawn Park's $65,400 Count Fleet Handicap on Thursday by three-quarters length. Blue Water Line was second and Lockjaw third.

Ridden by Darrell Haire, the winner charged between horses in the final 70 yards to pay $12.60, $5 and $3.80 as part of $3.20 for a second place finish in the six-furlong contest for older horses. Lockjaw, ridden by Sam Maple, returned $5.80 to show. Composer Burt Bacharach's No No, the 7-5 favorite, was distance in 1:12.

Pamela Kuehne's Skate and Gallant Serenade showed first out of the gate along with Amadevil. Amadevil slipped through along the rail to open up a small lead going into the turn. Blue Water Line began moving up on the outside. Sandbagger was last in the field of 10 then.

Blue Water Line took the lead away from Amadevil as the horses headed for home. By the eighth pole, Sandbagger had moved up to fourth in the middle of the track. Blue Water Line finished off Amadevil, but by that time Sandbagger was aiming at the winner. He drew away in the final few yards.

The race was similar to one Sandbagger won in the Feb. 20 Arkansas Traveler Handicap. In his next race, Sandbagger was ninth going a mile and 70 yards. On March 19, he finished eighth after having to be reshoed shortly before the start off Thursday's victory earned $39,240 for Tri Cee Farm Ltd. It was Sandbagger's 10th win in 22 starts.

Others in the field in order of finish were Amadevil, No No. Burns, Expeditious, Skate, Gallant Serenade and Mr.
