

Feds face problem in proving Wood charges

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The long-promised indictments in the killing of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. have been delivered, but prosecutors may have trouble proving the sensational charges against five jailed defendants.

Defense lawyers expressed doubts the government can introduce much of the evidence, which they said was circumstantial and gleaned improperly through methods some of the defendants called "gestapo tactics."

The indictment accuses narcotics trafficker Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra of paying convicted hitman Charles V. Harrelson, 43, about $250,000 to assassinate Wood on May 29, 1979.

Grand jurors allege Chagra, 37, wanted Wood killed to keep the judge from giving him from presiding over Chagra's impending narcotics-related criminal enterprise trial.

Harrelson, 43, Chagra and his wife, Elizabeth, 28, and his attorney brother, Joseph Chagra, 35, were charged with helping plot Wood's death.

The Chagras, Harrelson, and his wife, Jo Ann, 41, also are accused of a bizarre conspiracy to obstruct justice by covering up Jimmy's and Harrelson's part in the killing, and plotting to break the two men out of jail.

Grand jurors also alleged Jimmy Chagra and Harrelson discussed killing witnesses and possible co-defendants, and that the Chagra brothers planned to finance escape attempts and bribe state officials with the profits of drug sales.

Attorneys say the one big break in the case — the one from which most of the other evidence reportedly evolved — was court-approved electronic eavesdropping on conversations between Jimmy Chagra and fellow Leavenworth, Kan., federal penitentiary inmate Jerry Ray James.

Gerald Goldstein, a constitutional expert instrumental in the acquittal of some Texas Brilab defendants, predicted the state's case would tumble like dominoes if the defense can keep those crucial tapes out of evidence.

"I think they (prosecutors) have a very real problem," said Goldstein, a San Antonio attorney.

Dallas lawyer Billy Ravkind, representing Joe Chagra, was the first to describe the government's dilemma with the James tapes as "the domino problem."

"By using that fellow James, that cellmate, to apparently get this thing off the ground, they may have violated the Supreme Court's mandate" in the Henry Case against cellmate testimony, Ravkind said.

However, prosecutors contend this case is different because James was not a plant, and instead approached prosecutors.

James later was granted conditional release from prison and placed in a federal witness protection program.

Defense attorneys say other major obstacles faced by prosecutors include:

- The admissibility of court-approved tapes of conversations between Joe Chagra and Harrelson at the Harris County Jail in Houston. The defense says approval of the recording was based on the James tapes. Also, Joe Chagra was Harrelson's attorney of record at the time, which the defense says raises client-attorney privilege questions.

- Whether prosecutors can use the co-conspirator charge to knock down the attorney-client privilege of Joe Chagra if the indictment stemmed from improperly obtained recordings. Which came first, the recordings or the conspiracy charge, defense attorneys can ask.

- The admissibility of recordings of conversations between the Chagra brothers because of client-attorney privilege.

- Whether husband-wife privilege protects any evidence based on conversations between Jimmy and Elizabeth Chagra, and Charles and Jo Ann Harrelson.

- The ability to overcome the lack of physical evidence or eyewitness to the killing. FBI Director William Webster admitted those were not available last week.

Investigators had little more to go on than Wood's body sprawled in the driveway of his townhouse, his vital organs destroyed by bullet fragments that exploded upward after tearing into his lower back.

The murder weapon has not been found, only a rifle stock found by two fishermen in a creek near Dallas and close to a spot marked on a pay Harrelson allegedly drew for Joe Chagra, sources said.

Admissibility of the map hinges on denial of client-attorney privilege for two alleged co-conspirators prior to a Feb. 27, 1981, raid on Chagra homes in El Paso, where the map reportedly was found.

Mrs. Harrelson was convicted last year and sentenced to three years in federal prison for using a fictitious name to buy a Weatherby rifle at a Dallas gun shop 12 days before Wood was slain.

One witness who reportedly placed Harrelson at the scene of Wood's killing the day the judge was shot made the identification only after being hypnotized, sources said.

Another problem with the James tapes that defense attorneys can bring out is the number of Wood conspiracy theories raised by other convicts hoping to gain release from jail with their testimony.

"FBI agents acknowledged that more than 100 inmates of various prisons have claimed to know who killed Wood, and another dozen men have confessed to the crime," the San Antonio Express reported last week.

Defense attorneys contend the government's case had stalled out until the James tapes were obtained.

James, 41, convicted of a $500,000 diamond jewelry robbery at Tatum, N.M. and given two life sentences, was transferred from the New Mexico State Penitentiary to Leavenworth, after the New Mexico prison riots on Feb. 2-3, 1980.

There he met Jimmy Chagra and sought out the government to record alleged boasts by Chagra that bought Wood's murder.

"It was the government's biggest brag in the Wood case," said Santa Fe, N.M., attorney Don Montoya, who represented James. The secretly taped recordings allegedly took place from August 1980 until Feb. 1, 1981, when Chagra was transferred to a

Haig continues Argentine talks

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. unexpectedly delayed his departure from Buenos Aires Saturday, indicating progress in his talks to avert war between Argentina and Britain over the Falkland Islands.

Haig spent 3½ hours in Government House, meeting with Argentina's president, Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri, other members of the ruling military junta and Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez.

He left with Costa Mendez for a private lunch at the foreign minister's residence and they returned and resumed the talks at Government House at 4 p.m. — 2 p.m. EST.

More than 20 generals met at army headquarters to discuss Haig's efforts to cool tensions growing out of Argentina's April 2 seizure of the British-administered Falklands.

After the first round of talks Saturday, government press secretary Rodolfo Baltierrez said: "They're searching for common grounds for agreement. There are some differences, but they're still working."

Participants refused comment, and State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said he was "neither optimistic nor pessimistic."

The surprise postponement of Haig's departure was taken as a positive sign that Haig's second visit to Buenos Aires in a week could ease tension in the South Atlantic, where a 40-ship British armada was steaming toward the disputed islands, defended by an estimated 6,000 to 9,000 Argentine troops.

U.S. Embassy personnel had been ordered to be at Eiza International Airport at 10 a.m. for Haig's departure and the U.S. delegation's baggage was loaded aboard the secretary's U.S. Air Force jet, which waited with turbines humming. But shortly after noon, the engines were cut and well-wishers and crew were ordered back to town.

An airport official, air force Lt. Col. Salvador Alaimo, said he was told the plane would not be leaving before Sunday. Haig arrived here Thursday.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher cut short her weekend at her country residence and returned to her office Saturday for talks with top ministers, a spokesman at her 10 Downing Street office said.

Government sources in Britain said indications were that Haig would not be flying directly to London from Buenos Aires as originally expected but would go to Washington first.

They said Mrs. Thatcher's return to London did not signify any major developments in Haig's efforts and that her meeting with the ministers was a matter of "stock-taking."

The British Broadcasting Corp. said Haig was pressing a plan for U.N. or other third-party administration of the islands, with a continuing Argentine presence and the return of expelled British officials, while an eventual solution was sought.

The key issue appeared to remain sovereignty over the islands, 250 miles from Argentina and 8,000 miles from Britain, and ruled by Britain for 149 years. Britain calls the islands the Falklands, while Argentina refers to them as the Malvinas.

The conservative Buenos Aires newspaper La Nacion listed five points Saturday which it said were included in Haig's plan:

- Withdrawal of Argentine troops and a call back of the British fleet.

- Formation of an island administration with participation by Argentina, Britain and the United States.

- Discussions, starting in December, over sovereignty.

- Determination of the desires of the islands' 1,800 residents, most of whom are of British descent.

- Continuation of Argentina's commercial airline flights between the mainland and the islands.

Reagan asks arms reduction to end 'threat of doomsday'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Saturday that the United States and the Soviet Union must negotiate a joint nuclear arms reduction to "end this threat of doomsday which hangs over the world."

Reagan told a nationwide radio audience he opposes nuclear war, but that the United States cannot unilaterally reduce its nuclear arms stockpile without similar action by the Soviets.

In the third of his weekly five-minute radio addresses to the nation, Reagan disputed accusations that he is a nuclear arms proponent. "Today, I know there are a great many people who are pointing to the unimaginable horror of nuclear war. I welcome that concern.

"Those who've governed America throughout the nuclear age and we who govern it today have had to recognize that a nuclear war cannot be won and must never be fought," Reagan said. "So, to those who protest against nuclear war, I can only say I'm with you. Like my predecessors, it is now my responsibility to do my utmost to prevent such a war. No one feels more than I the need for peace."

In a Democratic response, Rep. Toby Moffett of Connecticut said the Reagan speech was billed as a talk about arms control, but it wasn't.

"It was a discussion about our enemy, the Soviet Union," said Moffett. "We Democrats agree with him on Afghanistan and Poland, but we don't agree the Soviet Union is 10 feet tall. We don't believe they are stronger than America. And it serves no useful purpose for a president to keep suggesting they are."

Moffett said that during the presidential campaign, Reagan pledged to meet the Soviet Union at the negotiating table and do better than the SALT treaty.

"The sad fact, the sad truth, is that after 16 months in office, this president does not have a proposal," Moffett said.

Meanwhile, Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev rejected Reagan's proposal that the two meet in New York in June after a special United Nations session on arms control, and proposed instead a meeting in a neutral country, such as Switzerland or Finland, according to Tass, the official Soviet news agency.

Brezhnev says not now

MOSCOW (AP) — President Leonid I. Brezhnev on Saturday rejected President Reagan's offer to meet in New York during a special U.N. session in June, saying a superpower summit should not be incidental to another forum.

He proposed they meet instead in a neutral country in the fall.

At the White House, communications director David Gergen said, "We do not interpret his (Brezhnev's) remarks as a rejection of the president's expressed hopes that President Brezhnev would come to New York in June and meet with him" during a special U.N. session on arms reduction.

Stop-and-go replaces flashing light

Drivers should beware of a new traffic signal at the intersection of Price Road (Highway 282) and Alcock Street (Highway 152).

The Texas Highway Department has changed the flashing signal light to a stop-and-go light from both directions on both roads.

Previously, the light governing east and westbound traffic on 152, or the Borger highway, was only a flashing yellow, caution light. Now, that traffic must stop-and-go with the green and red signals.

The department placed the signal into stop-and-go operation at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. Since that time, officials said there have been several "near misses" at the intersection.

NINA SPOONEMORE

Spoonemore honored for Distinguished Service

CANYON — Nina Spoonemore of Pampa, recognized for her volunteer activities, has been selected as one of 10 recipients of the 1982 Texas Panhandle Distinguished Service Awards presented at West Texas State University.

Chosen from among 91 nominees, the recipients are selected for their contributions to volunteer activities, career and professional fields. Judges for the awards represent several Panhandle communities. Pampa individuals and organizations nominated eight persons for the awards.

Speaker for the April 17 luncheon, which each year is planned by the Returning Student Program and a university committee, was Mary Beth Rogers of Austin who created "Texas Women — A Celebration of History." The exhibit is touring the Texas museums and will be featured in June at the Panhandle - Plains Historical Museum on the WTSU campus.

Spoonemore was nominated by the Pampa Vairates Study Club, Helen Phelps and Mildred Wilkie.

She volunteers her time with the Coronado Community Hospital Auxiliary and Meals - On - Wheels. She helped organize and charter a chapter of the Top of Texas Republican Women's Club and served as organizing secretary of the Pampa Army Air Field Reunion Association which annually attracts more than 500 members. She is a charter member of the Pampa Genealogical and Historical Society and assists individuals with family research, coordinated the Pampa Jaycees' Free Dental Clinic, is a founding member of the Top of Texas Foundation, formed to build a non-profit nursing home, and was one of 24 team managers of a six-week drive to raise funds to build a Pampa community hotel.

Since 1956, Spoonemore has been recognized by Texas governors to participate as an appointed member of boards and commissions. As a charter member of the Texas Gerontological Society, she worked on the society's newsletter. The society merged to form a forerunner of the Governor's Conference on Aging to which she later was appointed as a delegate in 1960, 1965, 1969. She also has been a delegate to the Governor's Refugee Resettlement Committee as Gray County chairperson in 1956, to the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped in 1962, 1973 and to the President's Conference on the Employment of the Handicapped in 1973.

She is a past president of the 26-County Regional Chapter of the Texas Public Employees Association and has received a citation for community service from the Pampa Chamber of Commerce. She has been named as a Distinguished Citizen of the State of Texas, Outstanding American of the South and as the Pampa News's "Tip Top Texan."

Other recipients of the Texas Panhandle Distinguished Service Awards are Jeanne Bartlett of Amarillo, director of the National Spelling Bee Program for the Tri-State region; Edith Rust of Amarillo, a nurse who developed a program to examine and treat victims of rape and sexual abuse; Therese Abraham of Canadian, the city's first woman mayor; Olive Finch of Dalhart, whose philanthropic contributions have been experienced by numerous individuals and organizations; Dr. Matilda Guame of Canyon, a retired WTSU music faculty member who developed courses and organized the music library; Nelda Laney, Hale Center, recognized by state and national organizations for her leadership activities; Dixie Surratt, Panhandle, who developed a school volunteer program awarded by state education leaders; Nora Redmon, Tulia, known for her successful fund-raising abilities; and Lennie Sims, Wellington, WTSU's first woman regent and president of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs.

ROCKING FOR SPECIAL OLYMPICS. Members of Pampa High School's Office Education Association (OEA) took to the rocking chairs from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday in the parking lot of the First Baptist Church. A total of 21 members participated in the marathon rocking session, with a goal of $2,100 to be donated to Special Olympics. (Staff Photo by John Wolfe)

3,000 participate in 'March for Survival'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Nearly 3,000 men, women and children got a rousing send-off from former gubernatorial candidate Frances Farenthold and walked from the Capitol to a nearby park on Saturday in what organizers said was a "march for survival."

first woman in the party's history to be nominated for vice president. She garnered 420 votes before withdrawing in favor of Missouri Sen. Thomas Eagleton.

 maximum security prison at Marion, Ill., where he remains until brought here for an April 28 arraignment.

Marchers displayed the slogan "Bread not bombs" on signs, T-shirts and flags. Some booed and hissed when the names of President Ronald Reagan and Secretary of State Alexander Haig were mentioned.

"We have a built-in dependency in this country on a war economy," Ms. Farenthold said.

Harrelson, a fugitive on Houston narcotics and weapons charges, was captured on Sept. 1, 1980, at Van Horn, Texas, not long after the tape recordings began at Leavenworth.

Ms. Farenthold urged the demonstrators to investigate the role of defense contractors and "that superhawk, senior senator from Texas — John Tower."

"Stop it," shouted a spectator. Motorcycle police blocked off side streets as marchers — many of them with dogs on leashes — walked down Congress Avenue, the main downtown street, then cut over to a park near the county courthouse. Adults pushed infants in strollers and carried them on their backs and in their arms. One young boy rode in a car pulled by a large, white dog.

The FBI reportedly then used the James tapes to obtain court orders for tapping Jimmy Chagra's telephone calls and visiting room conversations at Leavenworth, including those with his attorney brother Joe. Tapes also were made of Joe Chagra's and Harrelson's talks at the Harris County Jail.

On July 16, 1981, amid elaborate FBI attempts to conceal his identity from gathering news reporters, James made a secret appearance before the grand jury which met on the fifth floor of the old post office building.

Under sunny skies and with winds gusting over 25 mph at their backs, the marchers chanted:

Days later, the head of a committee which offered a $100,000 reward for convictions in the Wood case, attorney Sam Millsap, announced a person or person had qualified for the reward. He would not say whether it was James.

Millsap, now running for state district attorney here, said he was convinced government methods have been successful and that the case will hold up in court.

"One, two, three, four — we don't want a nuclear war; five, six, seven, eight — we don't want to radiate."

"The FBI has spent a year making sure every 'i' was dotted and every 't' was crossed, and I believe the next step will be just as successful," Millsap said.

Teressa Starr Jasper, Jo Ann Harrelson's daughter, spent six months in jail last year for refusing to testify before the grand jury, but she relented, was released from jail and testified at another secret session last October.

But the defense likely will attempt to prevent her from testifying about receiving an alleged $250,000 payoff from Jimmy Chagra for her parents on grounds her testimony was illegally coerced.

Tax exemption deadline nears

The deadline for filing for three different exemptions from county property taxes is April 30. Gray County Tax Assessor - Collector Margie Gray has announced.

Anyone 65 or older as of Jan. 1, 1982 can qualify for the old age exemption.

People qualified for homestead, old age and disabled veteran's exemptions must beat the deadline to qualify for the tax breaks.

For the disabled veteran exemption, a person must bring a document stating the percentage of disability from the Veteran's Administration or a branch of the armed forces.

Gray said anyone who maintains a house as a principal place of residence can qualify for the $3,000 homestead exemption.

It is possible for a person to qualify for all three exemptions, Gray said. Anyone with questions about the exemptions should call the Gray County Tax Assessor - Collector's office.

Lane Denton, Democratic candidate for State Treasurer, visited Pampa Friday with the promise to "put integrity back into office."

Denton, a Waco businessman and former state representative, is seeking to unseat Democrat incumbent Warren G. Harding, who has been indicted on two felony counts of official misconduct. Harding is charged with using two state employees to perform campaign work on state time.

Denton entered the campaign just before the Feb. 1 deadline, after news broke of a grand jury investigation of Harding.

Denton said if elected, his first priority would be to "open lines of communication between bankers and farmers." He said the state treasurer is in a unique position to influence communication among those who handle financing in agribusiness.

He called on Governor Bill Clements to become more involved with the economic problems of farmers, who are faced with "the worst economic situation since the Depression."

"The number of bankruptcies and foreclosures on farms and ranches has increased dramatically over the past year, and farm income is down 36 percent and estimated to be no better next year," he said.

He said the state has $2.4 billion in accounts that he would like to see deposited in banks around the state, "not like Clements has it, in a few big banks in Dallas or Houston."

Denton also promised to "take political influence out of the treasurer's office" and to "restore confidence" in the office if elected.

Denton's opposition in the campaign includes three Democrats: Warren G. Harding; Ann Richards, an Austin businesswoman; and John Cutright, an Austin businessman. The only Republican in the race is Millard Neptune, an Austin businessman.

The campaign has been characterized by conflict between Harding and Richards. After his indictment, Harding has implied Richards may have had indirect influence in picking the grand jury that charged him, and former Travis County Commissioner David Samuelson has accused Richards of having "an alcohol problem."

Denton served three terms as a state representative. In his last term, he chaired the Social Services Committee. He authored the 1973 Open Records Law. He received the Distinguished Service Award of the Texas Farmers Union, the Commendation Award of the Texas Senior Citizens Association, and was named Outstanding Veteran Legislator in 1973.

The candidate operates a rural health program, owns two small businesses, and is a licensed real estate agent and insurance agent. He is married to Betty Denton and has a 12-year-old daughter, DeeAnn.

Law officers acquitted in Mexia drowning of youths

DALLAS (AP) — A jury Saturday acquitted three former Limestone County officers of negligently causing three teen-agers to drown when a boat carrying all six capsized on a Central Texas lake last June 19.

Deputy Kenny Elliott, reserve deputy Kenneth Archie and probation officer David Drummond were found innocent of criminally negligent homicide, a misdemeanor, in the deaths.

Each faced a maximum sentence of a year in jail and a $2,000 fine for each of three counts.

The 14-foot motorboat contained no life preservers or running lights as required by state law. A small plate posted to one of the seats specified a passenger weight limit of 400 pounds.

The black youths had been arrested for investigation of marijuana possession at an annual Lake Mexia celebration of Juneteenth, which marks the day in 1865 that Texas slaves received word of their freedom.

Drowned were Carl Baker, 19, Anthony Freeman, 18, both of Mexia, and Steven Booker, 19, of Dallas.

Elliott and Drummond, who are white, swam back to shore. Archie, a black, held on to the overturned craft until he was rescued.

Special prosecutor Larry W. Baraka said he did not know whether new charges would be brought against the trio.

Defense attorneys said Drummond and Archie would return to their Limestone County jobs and that Elliott, who now lives in Abilene, wanted to return to law enforcement elsewhere.

The defendants and jurors were hustled out of the courthouse immediately after the verdict. Kwesi Williams, spokesman for the Comanche Three Committee of blacks who fought for felony charges against the officers, said he was not surprised by the verdict. He said he would continue to push for a Justice Department investigation.

"We never expected this to yield any results," Williams said. "What else do you expect from an all-white jury?"

Evelyn Baker, mother of one of the victims, said she also expected an acquittal "because this is white folks."

Teen rescued from suicide meets family

EVERMAN, Texas (AP) — Michael Buchanan, who was rescued from suicide by a New York policeman who cared, has come home to a family that cared, too — though the teenager never knew it until now.

Until November, the 18-year-old youth didn't know his mother was alive. Until September, he hadn't known anyone cared.

"They treat me like I've been here a long time — just like I'm part of the family," Buchanan said at his new suburban Fort Worth home.

It was Sept. 1 that the lonely teenager sat on the roof of a seedy New York hotel and threatened to kill himself. A crowd gathered below urged him to jump.

But a policeman, William Fox, urged him to change his mind. "I'd be proud to have a son like you," Fox told him.

Fox succeeded and eventually adopted Buchanan. Now he's letting him go, though not happily. Buchanan has moved back to Texas to live with his natural family.

Iwo Jima original cast dedicated in Harlingen

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — As World War II vintage airplanes and replicas of Japanese zeros flew overhead, a Texas version of the famous U.S. Marine Corps War Memorial was unveiled here Friday.

Sculptor Felix de Weldon donated the original plaster mold used to cast the bronze Iwo Jima monument to the Marine Military Academy, a private prep school.

The original statue at Arlington National Cemetery was dedicated in 1954 by President Eisenhower. De Weldon fashioned it after the Associated Press photograph by Joe Rosenthal of the Feb. 23, 1945, flag raising atop Mount Suribachi on Iwo Jima.

More than 40 veterans of the fierce fighting on the Pacific island were among the estimated 7,000 who turned out on a windy, 90-degree day for the ceremony.

"The five Marines and one Navy corpsman who raised the flag on Mount Suribachi on Iwo Jima were young and strong," de Weldon said. "The youngest was 19, the oldest 25. They knowingly defied death and they, with other fighting men everywhere, won a victory against the greatest odds."

Pilots of the Confederate Air Force, a group dedicated preserving World War II aircraft, flew over the monument in American planes and replicas of the Japanese models.

The sculptor had kept the plaster cast, valued at $3.5 million, in his Newport, R.I., studio until last fall when it was cut into sections and brought here.

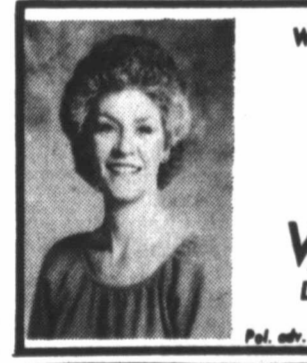

It was reinforced with steel, sealed with a bronze epoxy and then treated to turn green and resemble the Arlington monument. Because bronze shrinks after casting, the Texas version is 18 inches taller than the bronze statue.

Donations and in-kind gifts of steel, concrete and transportation have totaled $580,000 — $70,000 short of the cost of re-assembly.

Gov. Bill Clements contributed the initial $10,000 toward the project and was present at the ceremonies.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Pentagon policies hike weapons cost

The spending increases being cranked into the Pentagon's budget by the Reagan administration are undeniably substantial. But whether they will be sufficient to counter the Soviet Union's race for military superiority will depend in part on constraining the soaring costs of new ships, aircraft, tanks, and missiles.

Recently, the Pentagon disclosed that its 44 biggest weapons programs are expected to cost $144.5 billion more through the mid-1990s than was forecast just last year. Some of this 33 percent increase is accounted for by the larger numbers of weapons being ordered, and by inflation rates peculiar to the defense industry. But waste and cost overruns remain the hallmarks of many weapons procurement programs.

Volumes could be written about the budgetary horrors that seem to spring routinely from the Pentagon. Two current examples, the Navy's F A-18 fighter and the Army's M2 armored personnel carrier, are instructive.

In 1974, the Navy proposed development of a relatively inexpensive, carrier-based fighter to complement the costly, state-of-the-art F-14 Tomcat. Subsequently, the design was modified to permit the new fighter, dubbed the Hornet, to carry out attack missions as well.

Today, the Navy is stuck with an F A-18 that is markedly inferior to the F-14 but costs $38.4 million — only $1 million less than the Tomcat. Moreover, the F A-18's attack capabilities are little more than equal to those of the workhorse A-7E, a bargain-basement model available for $12 million per copy.

The trouble-plagued, increasingly expensive F A-18 program might have been canceled years ago but for the intervention of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill. These two perennial champions of cutting the defense budget nevertheless waged a fierce struggle to save the F A-18, no doubt because its jet engine was to be manufactured in Lynn, Mass.

The Army's 20-year effort to design a replacement for the 1950s-era M-113 armored personnel carrier is only slightly less appalling than the F A-18 scandal. The original specifications called for a low cost vehicle mounting improved armor and firepower. The production date was set for no later than 1965 at a unit cost of less than $200,000.

The M2 Bradley, which went into production only last year, now costs $1.5 million. And even that inflated price tag is expected to go to $1.8 million in current dollars by the time the production run ends in the late 1980s.

Although the Bradley is technologically light years ahead of the M-113, it carries fewer troops and mounts less firepower than the standard Soviet BMP carrier in production since 1966. Inexplicably, the Bradley is only now completing tests of its vulnerability to enemy fire. And, despite all the years of planning, the M2 ended up too wide to fit into the C-141 transport plane. Consequently, the Bradley's side armor must be laboriously removed before it can be airlifted.

Both the F A-18 and the M2 Bradley suffered from two Pentagon fetishes: Endless design changes and a seeming obsession with costly high technology. Every design change drives up costs. And weapons that are too sophisticated are not only expensive to build, but difficult to maintain and operate as well. Moreover, the high technology binges has made too many American weapons prone to chronic breakdowns.

When weapons costs soar, as they did for the F A-18 and the M2 Bradley, Congress typically reacts by reducing or stretching out production, which only boosts unit costs even more.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger arrived at the Pentagon last year with a well-deserved reputation as a government cost cutter and efficiency expert. Unless his tenure in office is to coincide with an acceleration of the current trend toward Soviet military superiority, Mr. Weinberger must find ways to produce more weapons, more quickly, and at lower costs than those indicated in the latest Pentagon projections.

He might start by pruning the Pentagon design bureaus, and by insisting on procurement policies that stress large quantities of simpler, cheaper weapons.

By ROBERT LEFEVRE

Despite the evidence of history and science, many persons calling themselves "libertarian" continue to believe that through some kind of political alchemy a free society can be brought into existence. It is an illusion. Human nature will assert itself, come what may.

There is no political party, no party platform, no noble statement and no method of organization which will turn maladroitness into a smoothly integrated, harmonious whole. It cannot be done.

Are libertarian principles, then, no more than self-deception? Is the entire thrust toward freedom a delusion and a waste of time?

As human beings we have been endowed with the ability to think and act as we will. Thus, efforts to create a "free society" out of units which are, in fact, born free invariably fall face down. It is because every such political effort begins with the denial that others are born as free as I. Thus, if I am politically active, my efforts are invariably aimed at correcting others, regulating others, preventing others from interfering with my freedom.

But others cannot and will not be regulated. Oh, I may find force, and line up the bayonets with which to bend them to my will (for the good of a free society, of course) but this process cannot be maintained within a framework of liberty. I will be engaged in oppressing others so they will not be oppressed by anyone but me. And being oppressed by me (runs the happy fantasy) is okay because I'm doing it for the good of "a free society."

Thus, as it works out, most persons who claim to be libertarian are nothing more than political interventionists.

No one can make you free egotistically imagining that if they had enough power they would see to it that no power structure such as an excessive government would ever appear. In so acting, they themselves become the progenitors of the very excessive government they say they wish to remove.

I might note in passing that our current president, Ronald Reagan, is libertarian enough to be suffering from precisely this same malady. He intones against large government; seeks to reduce the size of the federal apparatus; moves to reduce taxes; wants to balance the budget, while at the same moment trying to guarantee that welfare recipients will be looked after with taxpayers' money and that we initiate a new arms race that will tower over whatever efforts the Russians may undertake.

It cannot be done. The president is a charming, well-meaning, charismatic leader with the wrong answer. Government will grow during Reagan's term of office, even as state government grew in California when he lived in Sacramento. And during the growth and the general increase in taxes and regulations both at state and federal levels, we will hear a constant litany of less while the politicians gobble more.

"Reaganomics," "The Reagan revolution" (so-called) and all the rest of the media rhetoric are nothing but icing on a cardboard cake. I am left to conclude that Mr. Reagan is either (1) ignorant, (2) a hypocrite, or (3) intellectually dishonest.

But Mr. Reagan isn't our problem. The problem facing Americans is one rooted in a faulty philosophy to which those who participate politically invariably subscribe. So long as they believe that a free society can be molded by a process which restrains, taxes, regulates, inhibits and takes vengeance (and always only against those who deserve it) so long will we befool our own nests and fall short of the desired result.

If what I have set forth is true, then is every effort toward freedom doomed to failure? No, it is not. It is only foredoomed when it follows the political method of taking freedom away from all while apparently guaranteeing it to some.

There is one act you can take which will contribute toward a free society. You can be free. You do not have the ability or the capacity to make others free. You might be able to inhibit or to injure or kill others. But when it comes to freedom, you achieve it by the simple process of not preventing it. In short, you stop worrying about a free society, and become a free person, thus contributing yourself to the society you long to see.

How does one become a free person? The answer is surprisingly simple. Control yourself. That's it. Do nothing which violates the boundaries of other persons. Mind your own business; pay your own bills; associate with those who attract you; stay away from those who don't.

Bear in mind: If you do not control yourself, you may be sure that others will seek to control you and they will impose those controls. Indeed, that's the big stumbling block. We are all expert in noting failure of others. We imagine that our own failures have escaped notice.

If I control myself, will that prevent others from trying to take advantage of me? If I mind my own business, will government let me alone? You know better. Of course not. We live in a world where interfering with others is a way of life. But when (and if) you resolve to refrain from interfering with others in their lives, affairs and property, you take away from them any justification for their continued aggression against you. Of course, they'll continue to aggress. They don't know any better. But if you know better, you can stop doing it.

You really have only two choices, neither of which relate to the question of your own victimization. Make up your mind to it. You will be victimized! It is an ongoing fact of modern life.

Your choices relate to self-evaluation. You can live by participating in and justifying acts of aggression against others. Or, you can lie by refusing to impose on others. If you feel a "need" to injure others because you have been injured, then politics is for you. But if you evaluate yourself so that you have no such "need," then and then only are you ready for and capable of freedom.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Sunday, April 18, the 108th day of 1982. There are 257 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On April 18, 1906, an earthquake shattered San Francisco, touching off fires that almost destroyed the city. About 700 people died.

On this date: In 1663, the Turks declared war against Holy Roman Emperor Leopold I.

In 1942, U.S. bombers led by Lt. Gen. Jimmy Doolittle attacked Tokyo and other Japanese cities in World War II.

In 1949, the Republic of Eire was formally proclaimed in Dublin.

And in 1954, General Gamal Abdel Nasser became premier and military governor of Egypt.

Ten years ago: During the Vietnam war, the United States halted air strikes against Hanoi and Haiphong, hoping for a favorable reaction from North Vietnam.

Five years ago: Writer Alex Haley won a Pulitzer Prize for his best-seller, "Roots," which traced his origins back seven generations to Africa.

One year ago: White House officials said President Reagan was carrying a four- to five-hour daily workload, less than three weeks after being shot in the chest by a would-be assassin.

Today's birthdays: Actor-producer Robert Hooks is 45 years old. Major league catcher Gary Carter is 28.

Supreme Court decides: 'family first'

The U.S. Supreme Court split 5-4 on a decision defining the power of the states to take children away from their natural parents. The majority of the justices came down on the right side of what was obviously a difficult and divisive issue.

In a case appealed from New York, the court ruled that parents can be stripped of their parental rights only if there is "clear and convincing evidence" that they are guilty of neglect, abuse, or other unfitness.

More than 30 states already apply that rule in cases of abuse or neglect serious enough to warrant a permanent termination of parental rights. It is in New York and th remaining states that laws are less strict in limiting the power of the state to break up a family. Most of them require only a "preponderance of evidence" that parents are unfit.

The Supreme Court majority invokes the 14th Amendment to find that parents would be denied due process of law if their children were taken away on the basis of anything but clear-cut evidence of unfitness. This leads Justice William Rehnquist, speaking for the minority, to express concern about the "federalization" of family law which otherwise has been left to the states.

His objection misses the point. What the court majority wants to do is strengthen the protection of the family unit against intrusion by the courts or agencies of the state. There should be no gray areas in laws permitting the state to break the tie between parent and child. Only the most compelling circumstances should lead to that step. If the U.S. Constitution must be cited to enforce that principle, so be it.

Goal line stand

Over my shoulder a backward glance.
Dallas, Texas.

Braniff Airline, after 50 years of ups and downs, is way down this time. Crushed between inflated costs and recession-reduced traffic, Braniff flew backward last year 160 million dollars.

But like Dallas' Cowboys — when backed all the way back to the one-yard line — the men and women of Braniff are making a goal-line stand that is inspiring to behold.

If they can hold off hard-charging creditors until summertime's increased vacation travel, nose down on the turns they have a chance. And they will.

Or they will die trying. Most of a year ago Braniff, running out of altitude, lightened the load with a 10 percent pay cut for everybody. Yes, including the boss man.

But since then, and with personnel pared to bare bones, would you look at what else:

- Workers working for half-pay...
- Or extra hours at no extra pay...
- Or furloughed employees willing to keep working anyway — for no pay!
- Not in the history of American industry has anyone seen anything like this. Pilots' wives volunteering 12-hour days answering phones. Furloughed stewards selling tickets — office to office — in booths at shopping malls — wherever.
- Big-D is a Christmas tree of billboards shouting, "Go Braniff! Fly Braniff!"

Newspaper editorials salute the sacrificers; trade unions volunteer help. Cab drivers pass the hat. Merchants offer discounts to Braniff families.

And phone callers from all over; full-time workers offering spare time to do anything. They mean anything — sweep floors, do windows, scrub toilets. Braniff President Putnam returns from a trip seeking help which he did not get — yet hundreds of employees were at the airport to cheer him up!

Employees schedule early morning meetings for prayer — then go from there to sell T-shirts emblazoned: BUY NOW, FLY LATER.

Tom Landry who is not for sale to anybody is on TV for free selling tickets.

And many Dallas, Texans are paying for tickets they will never use.

Recently at a Dallas-Fort Worth rally for 10,000 Texans of assorted occupations — at any mention of beleaguered Braniff they were on their feet cheering.

Cowboy Stadium never heard a greater outpouring of support than for this gallant goal-line stand.

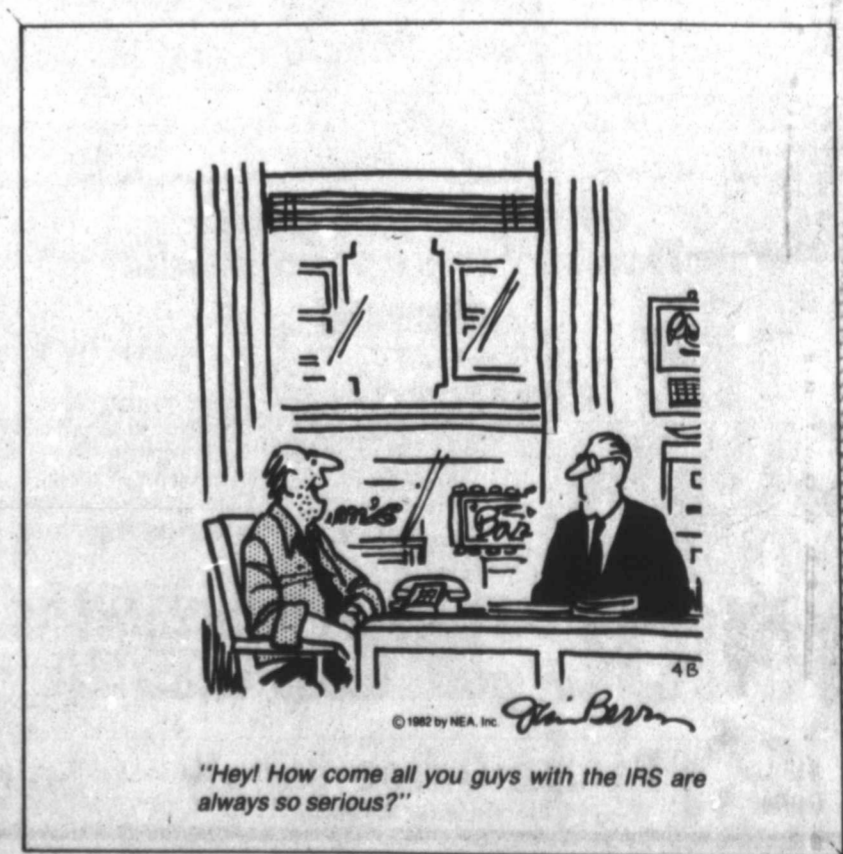

I don't know... Maybe an all-wide Almighty allows cyclical recessions as a shakeout for the undeserving.

And maybe what I see happening to rally the troops in Texas could not happen elsewhere.

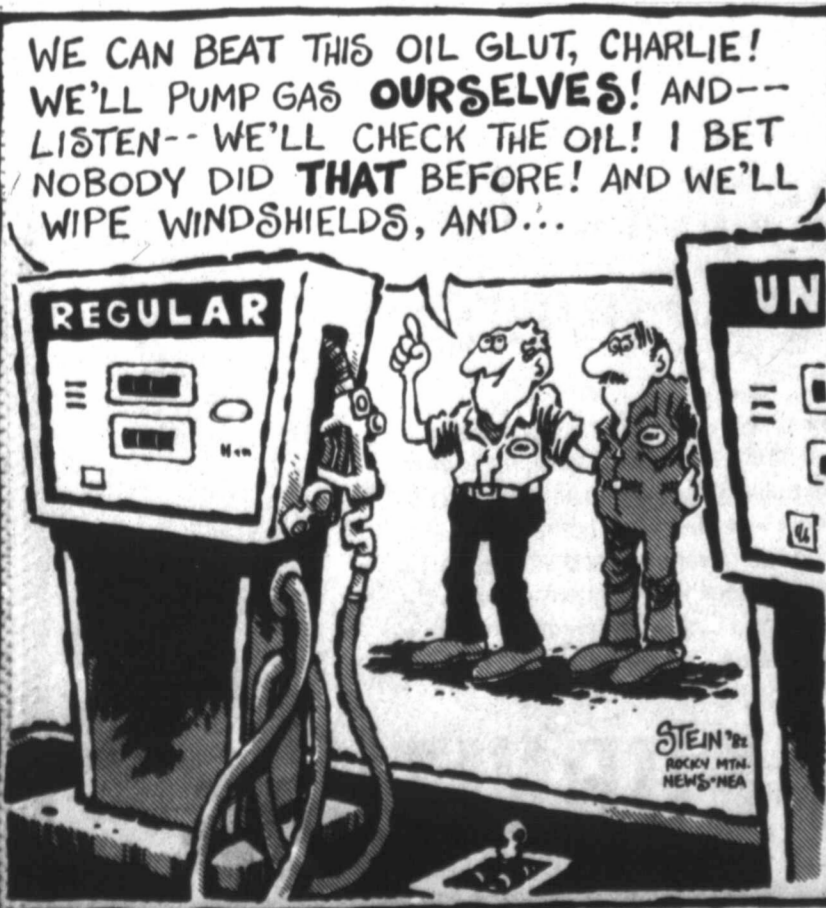

But maybe it could. Maybe all the rest of us need is a worthy example, a star to steer by. It's fourth down and one, Cowboys — Go for it!

Queen says constitution 'truly Canadian'

OTTAWA (AP) — Elizabeth II, queen of Canada, proclaimed a new constitution Saturday in the largest and most diverse nation of her realm, saying the document is "truly Canadian at last."

About 30,000 people crowded between the gothic edifices of Parliament Hill to watch the British monarch sign the proclamation, ending a legal anachronism whereby all changes in Canada's constitution had to be made by Britain's Parliament.

Threatening clouds unleashed a downpour just as the queen began addressing the nation. "It is one of the quirks of history that over a century should have passed before Canada obtained her own constitution, formulated by Canadians and approved by her own Parliament," she said. "But the years have not been wasted and a great nation has grown up in this magnificent land."

As the queen spoke, Quebec Premier Rene

Levesque led about 12,000 marchers through Montreal, waving blue-and-white Quebec flags instead of the red Canadian Maple Leaf, shouting "Non au Canada Bill."

The French separatist government in Quebec rejected the constitutional compromise and boycotted the Ottawa celebrations as part of its campaign for independence.

"Although we regret the absence of the premier of Quebec, it is right to associate the people of Quebec with this celebration because, without them, Canada would not be what it is today," Queen Elizabeth said.

She expressed pleasure that a new charter of rights and freedoms attached to the constitution explicitly protects the rights of women, the disabled and native peoples.

Until now, the Canadian constitution had been the British North America Act of 1867, although Canada became a fully independent member of the Commonwealth in 1931.

Although Britain was willing to transfer constitutional authority, Canadian politicians were unable until now to agree on procedures for making amendments and on the wording of a bill of rights.

Last November Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau struck a bargain with provincial premiers of the nine English-speaking provinces:

"For more than half a century, Canadians have resembled young adults who leave home to build a life of their own, but are not quite confident enough to take along all their belongings," Trudeau told the crowd at Saturday's ceremony.

"It is my deepest hope that Canada will match its new legal maturity with that degree of political maturity which will allow us all to make a total commitment to the Canadian ideal."

Dallas is best buy for middle income family

WASHINGTON (AP) — For a family of four with a moderate standard of living, it was most economical to live in Dallas, Atlanta, Houston, St. Louis and Kansas City in the fall of 1981, according to government statistics.

The mostly costly cities for the same family were Honolulu, Anchorage, New York City, Boston and Washington, D.C., said the report released Friday by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

In the final in a series of comparative studies of living costs in the nation's 25 largest cities, the bureau compared expenses in the autumn of 1981 with the same period the year before for a "typical" family of four.

That family consists of a 38-year-old working husband, a non-working wife and two children, ages 13 and 8.

The comparisons were made at three standard of living levels — lower, intermediate, or moderate, and high.

At the so-called "intermediate" level, the survey showed that it was easiest to make ends meet in Dallas, $22,678; Atlanta, $23,273; Houston, $23,601; St. Louis, $24,498, and Kansas City, $24,528.

The study also showed that it cost the typical family of four $31,893 to maintain that moderate standard of living in Honolulu. That same family needed $31,890 in Anchorage, Alaska, $29,540 in the New York City and the northeastern New Jersey area, $29,213 in Boston and $27,352 in the District of Columbia, the nation's capital.

The household dollar went further in metropolitan areas of the South and central states.

On average, the survey estimated that a typical American family of four, with only the husband working, needed $25,407 — based on last fall's prices — to maintain the hypothetical "intermediate" standard of living. That was up 9.8 percent from the average $23,134 needed in the fall of 1980.

The average family budget needed to maintain the "lower" standard of living was $15,323 a year, up 9.1 percent from the $14,044 of the previous year, and the figure for the "higher" standard of living was $38,060, an increase of 10.6 percent from the $34,409 during the autumn of 1980. The survey included costs for food, housing — either home ownership or rental expenses — transportation, health care, tax payments, clothing, personal care and Social Security payments.

Annual family budgets needed for a "higher" standard of living were led by Honolulu, at $50,317, followed by New York-northeastern New Jersey, $47,230; Anchorage, $45,119; Boston, $44,821, and Washington, D.C., $41,137. Dallas required the smallest family budget, at $33,769; Atlanta, $34,623; Houston, $34,728; St. Louis, $35,965, and Cincinnati, $36,599.

Send Your Opinion To Austin

AUSTIN — Recently in Austin we announced a new plan to get drunk drivers off the road. Many people have tried to accomplish the same thing in the past, but we think this plan is different.

Drunk driver prevention is a complicated problem. For one thing, a drunk driver's chances of being detected are small. For another thing, drunk driving is a crime, which means the defendant is entitled to all the protections our society offers people accused of crimes.

For now, we are concentrating on what happens to the drunk driver after he is arrested. In other words, we are not making a big effort to make police arrest more drunk drivers, although we think this will happen also.

We want to concentrate on the repeat offender. That means the first offender will have to be convicted. That is not happening now. Too many times, the first offender is given deferred adjudication. Then he is arrested again and is a first offender again, because deferred adjudication wiped the record clean.

Police and prosecutors are frustrated because it is so hard to get the evidence needed to convict a drunk driver. A drunk driver can refuse to take a breath test or a blood test. Most of the time he won't lose his license if he refused these tests. To top it off, the prosecutor can't even tell the jury why such a test wasn't performed. It's inadmissible evidence.

We want to change that. We plan to require one test at the time of arrest and another test an hour later.

If the defendant refuses, we'll take away his license and tell the jury he refused to be tested. Also, we plan to have video cameras in police stations in larger counties, so the jury can see for themselves how the defendant looked when he was arrested.

Every criminal defendant in Texas is entitled to a jury trial, if he wants one. We don't plan to change that, but we do plan to help prosecutors have cases so airtight that nobody who is guilty will want a trial. We also plan penalties that are strict, but not so excessive that defendants won't plead guilty. Our courts are crowded enough already. If we make the penalties any stricter, our courts and jails will overflow with first offenders demanding jury trials.

Our plan for a new DWI bill is just one of a package of bills we want to introduce next session. Space prevents us from telling you everything about the bills in this column. One bill will require those who have a suspended driver's license to display a sticker on their cars so police will know who they are. Another will outlaw open alcohol containers in cars.

Drunk drivers are a problem, but they are a problem we can do something about if we all work together. We need your support. Please write Senator Bill Sarpalius, P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas, 78711, and tell us how you feel about the problem of drinking and driving.

Record world grain supplies

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world is heading into the 1982-83 marketing year with record stockpiles of grain which may mean continued problems for American farmers, says the Agriculture Department.

A new analysis issued Thursday by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said the grain outlook for the new year that begins July 1 is "still heavily influenced by the current abundance of supplies, depressed prices and sluggish trade" which have characterized 1981-82.

"The fears of possible tight grain supplies that prevailed at this time a year ago have been completely reversed," the report said. For example, world production of wheat and coarse grains such as corn, sorghum, oats and barley totaled a record of more than 1.22 billion metric tons in 1981-82, about 55 million more than last year.

After deducting consumption — domestic use and exports — the global reserve on July 1, the beginning of the next marketing year, is expected to be around 189.6 million metric tons. That would be the largest mid-year world grain inventory since 1979 and a boost of 22 percent from 155.6 million tons on hand last July 1, according to the department's figures. Of the July 1 total inventory, an estimated 94.5 million tons will be in the United States, an increase of more than 53 percent from 61.6 million in the U.S. reserve last July 1.

The reason for the big growth in U.S. grain stocks were record harvests of wheat and feed grains last year following the drought-stricken crops of 1980.

Looking at some of the factors affecting the outlook for 1982-83, the report noted:

—World wheat stocks are larger than a year ago but still "are well below" the average ratio of stocks-to-consumption of the 1976-77 and 1978-79 periods. Wheat consumption outside the Soviet Union in 1982-83 is expected to increase, though probably not at the rate during the late 1970s.

—Wheat acreage in competitor countries of Canada, Australia and Argentina "is expected to increase further as prices for wheat remain relatively favorable compared with alternative crops in these countries."

For Horticulture

We had a very outstanding program for our Garden and Landscape Seminar recently. Home owners with questions about the landscape garden or turfgrasses need to come out to the Gray County Extension Office and browse through the many publications. These are free and they contain the recommended practices, varieties and etc. that are suited for our area.

PATIO PLANNING
Spring and early summer days are ideal for out-of-door enjoyment on the patio. . . or for planning and constructing the patio, an important element of outdoor living.

Have a complete and well thought-out plan on paper before beginning work on the new patio, or on the patio addition. By planning, less mistakes will occur, new ideas will be generated and the area will surely be more beautiful and functional. Consult a professional landscape architect for professional planning and ideas.

Plan to locate the patio where it will be most useful and enjoyable. Have the outdoor area relate to indoors, to the kitchen, and indoor living areas. Take advantage of existing shade trees, or plan for overhead structure for protection from summer rain and sun.

Be certain that the patio location is so placed to take advantage of the prevailing summer breezes, or in a south-southwest exposure. Often, outdoor areas which are on the west, east, north, or one that is protected by walls and fences are unusable in the summer due to the lack of air movement. The patio, too, should be located and planned for privacy and unity to the overall garden design and home. Do not isolate it to itself, but allow it to be a part of the total design.

Make the design simple. Too many angles and complicated shapes and different structural materials will destroy the clean, crisp beauty of the design and may call for extra maintenance and extra cost. A complicated design is usually less functional than a simple one.

Design the patio area with a minimum of maintenance in mind. Consider the drainage, choice of materials, surfacing, edging, and the complications of plantings in regard to upkeep and care. Know the plants you choose and their growth requirements. Plan for plantings when you design the patio. Allow open planting pockets in key locations on and near the patio to create a relief from the often harsh structural surfaces and to allow for interest and beauty.

Be sure raised planters have adequate drainage for good plant growth. Patios which integrate indoor-outdoor living lose their outdoor appeal when void of plants. Detailed and accent plantings are offered a key location on or near the patio.

Make the patio design large enough for your family's usage and enjoyment based on your individual family needs. Because functional landscapes are based on individual family needs, it is unadvisable to attempt copying garden or patio designs from popular gardening books and magazines. What worked for the family in California will not necessarily adapt for one in Texas. It is, however, good to glean ideas from well designed gardens and adapt them to your own location and landscape needs.

Careful and thoughtful planning of the patio now will pay off in rich dividends of pleasure and beauty for a long time to come.

The early blooms of Carolina yellow jessamine, wisteria, and red honeysuckle greet the spring. Early summer, star or confederate jasmine perfume the air, to be followed by the summer blooms of morning glory, hyacinth bean, cypress vine, and the vivid pink blooms of Rosa de Montana, or Coral vine. Autumn clematis cloaks its support with white come fall, in an effort to out do the vivid red color of the native and abundant Virginia creeper.

Due to their quick growth and seasonal attractiveness, vines are often used for quick shade over sunny patios or at poolside. When a vine is selected for shading purposes, use on that will lose its foliage in winter to allow the welcome winter sun. Popular East Texas vines for overhead structures are arborescences include wisteria muscadine grapes, morning glory and rosa de Montana. Vines such as wisteria are lovely as they are, are often unwelcome in the garden due to their persistence and rapid growth. Vines with fast growth often demand fast and routine control to keep them in their place.

Some large twining vine such as wisteria may injure tree by actually shocking the tree or cutting off the flow of food from the root area or trunk.

COMMUNICATING WITH YOUR LENDER

Currently depressed agricultural market prices, increasing production costs and the high cost of credit translate into an uncomfortable financial situation for farmers and ranchers. So time spent on managing the financial aspects of the farm or ranch is extremely important, perhaps crucial, to the business.

Such tight financial situations bring a heightened need for better communications between the farmer or rancher and his lender. This communication must be based on a thorough understanding of what is happening to the financial position of the business. Financial information about the farm business is generally conveyed by net worth and net income statements.

The net worth statement is taken on a specific date and thus provides a one-day picture of the farm business. Assets show the value of the business while liabilities show the claim of creditors to the business. Net worth (or equity) shows the owner's claim to the business. A series of net worth statements for a business must be examined to determine if the business is showing financial progress.

The net income or profit and loss statement shows the production or income value to the business over an operating period (generally a year), costs incurred during that period, and the profit (or loss) from operating the farm or ranch business.

A third piece of financial information has become increasingly important in communicating with lenders. Cash flows and the timing of these cash flows in the business need to be monitored. The manager continually needs to be aware of the cash position of his operations.

This means considerably more than just being aware of the checking account balance — cash flow planning is needed.

A monthly cash flow plan or projection anticipates the cash position of the business and provides a plan the manager and his lender can discuss. The anticipated flow of cash income and cash requirements provides a plan from which to make needed adjustments. Cash requirements include the operating expenses as well as family living expenses and principal payments on notes and mortgages. Cash flow planning takes on added importance for the manager during tight financial times.

Communication between farmers and ranchers and their lenders is always important. Use of net worth statements, net income statements and cash flow projections help both producers and lenders to see total financial picture of the farm or ranch business.

CATTLE PRICE PROSPECTS

From the Western Livestock Round-up which is published cooperatively with the USDA and the Extension Services of Western and Great Plains states, comes the following price predictions. Prices for all classes of cattle are expected to remain firm to slightly higher over the next several weeks. Combined production of beef and pork will continue running significantly below last year's level in the near term. Relatively low corn prices and optimism by cattle feeders will continue to support feeder cattle prices.

However, prices for all classes of cattle are expected to peak between now and summer, and these prices likely will be the highest cattle prices for the year. By the last half of the year, beef production will increase significantly from current levels.

How much cattle prices may decline from the second quarter highs will mostly be contingent on the level of pork and poultry production. Regardless of the level of meat production, it appears that total supplies will be adequate relative to the effective demand for meat throughout the latter part of 1982.

INTERNATIONAL LIVESTOCK SYMPOSIUM
Plans are moving ahead for the second International Livestock Symposium to be staged in the El Paso Civic Center May 20-21.

The educational activity is designed to emphasize the economical production of livestock and efficient use of natural resources in arid lands.

Based on the success of the initial symposium in 1981, the program this spring is being expanded to include not only the Beef Cattle Symposium, but a Horseman's Symposium and Training Clinic, a Dairy Seminar and a Livestock Trade Show as well.

Ranchers have pre-registered from Mexico, New Mexico, Arizona and California, and officials emphasize there's still ample time to register. Joining the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Texas A&M University System in sponsoring the event is New Mexico State University and the Cooperative Extension Service of New Mexico.

Theme for the beef section will be "Meeting Nutritional Needs of Range Cattle." Discussions also will include a comparison of supplemental feed types and native feedstuffs to meet beef cattle requirements. Other talks will key on developing replacement heifers, nutrition and bull productivity, management, grazing strategies, cost-benefits of grazing management systems, weed and brush control, and coping with drought.

Topics for the horse section will include nutrition, horse health, feeding the broodmare and show horse, and foaling the mare. A special training clinic will be an added feature.

Dairy producers will have an opportunity to learn about new developments in computerized dairy records, feeding dairy cattle and automation of estrus detection.

Persons desiring more information should contact Dr. Nelson Adams at Box 1298, Fort Stockton, Texas 79735 or Dorline Wonicar at the El Paso County Extension office.

An air conditioner can improve the performance of your furnace.

An air conditioner?

A very special air conditioner called the add-on heat pump. It cools in summer and heats in winter. And it works with whatever kind of furnace you have.

The add-on heat pump will improve the performance of your furnace by keeping it off completely during a good portion of the winter. The add-on heat pump can satisfy your home's heating requirements more economically when temperatures are above 30° or so. That's about 80% of our area's normal heating season.

Then, when summer comes, the heat pump becomes a cool pump, efficiently air conditioning the home. So, when you're in the market for air conditioning, look into the add-on heat pump.

Call us to see what your savings could be.

Kendall assembles coaching staff for '82 football season

By L.D. STRATE
Pampa News Sports Editor

Pampa High's new football coach John Kendall is massing his troops for the 1982 campaign.

Kendall has named seven assistants to his coaching staff, and he hopes to add two more in the near future.

Retained from the present staff are Gary Lehnen, linebackers and defensive ends; defensive secondary coach Frank Belcher and George Harper, offensive backfield and defensive secondary.

Ninth-grade head coach Bill Butler moves up to the high school varsity as defensive line coach.

"We're all going to coaching the ninth grade together and then when the season starts I'll pick someone as the head coach," Kendall said. "It will be the same way for the junior varsity."

Kendall has lured two of his assistants from Liberal (Kans.) High where he was head coach the past six years.

Gary Cornelson, who was Kendall's top assistant for six years, will be offensive line coach; Ron Keeler, who coached at Liberal four years, will be in charge of the wide receivers.

Jett Wilson, who was at Jacksboro last season, will be the quarterback coach and also help with the offensive backfield.

Kendall, 36, replaced Larry Gilbert, whose contract was not renewed last January. Gilbert, who was head coach of the Harvesters for two years, is now the director of the Clarendon College-Pampa Center.

Kendall, a Bethany, Okla. native, compiled a 44-12 record at Liberal and guided the Redskins to the Kansas 5A state title in 1980.

In 1979, Liberal reached the state finals before bowing out.

Kendall's teams registered 16 shutouts while averaging 19 points a game and giving up eight per contest.

Pampa drops from Class 5A into Class 4A and an eight-team district next season that includes Borger, Brownfield, Canyon, Dumas, Levelland, Lubbock Estacado and Lubbock Dunbar.

"This bunch will be just as tough as District 3-5A," (Amarillo High, Caprock, Tascosa and Palo Duro) and maybe even tougher," Kendall said. "Borger can play with anybody and the Lubbock schools should have good teams."

Kendall doesn't look for much relief in the non-district games.

Pampa opens Sept. 3 at Hereford, which went into the post season playoffs undefeated. Then defending New Mexico state champion Clovis comes to town Sept. 10. Pampa's final non-district game is at Perryton Sept. 24.

"Perryton is expected to have an outstanding team this season," Kendall added.

The 1-4A District schedule is as follows: Oct. 1-Levelland, there; Oct. 9-Lubbock Estacado, there; Oct. 15-Dumas, home; Oct. 22-Brownfield, home; Oct. 29-Canyon, home; Nov. 5-Lubbock Dunbar, there; Nov. 12-Borger, home.

Practice starts Aug. 1.

The annual Green-Gold game will not be held this year since the UIL (University Interscholastic League) permits only Class 5A schools to have the spring games.

"I would sure be in favor of having it because I'd like to see what some of these players can do, but the UIL says no," Kendall added.

Red Raiders fall

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M's Bobby Taylor held Texas Tech to one hit in the first game as the Aggies rolled to a doubleheader sweep over the Red Raiders Saturday in Southwest Conference baseball.

Billy Cannon's sacrifice fly in the fourth inning scored Clint Heard as the Aggies won the opener 1-0.

Rangers topple Brewers, 5-3

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Lamar Johnson belted a two-run homer in the sixth inning, leading the Texas Rangers to a 5-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Saturday.

Frank Tanana, 1-1, yielded five hits before he was relieved with two out in the sixth by Steve Comer.

Comer pitched perfect relief until the ninth, when he loaded the bases on a walk and singles to Gorman Thomas and Mark Brouhard. One run scored on Robin Yount's double-play grounder, and Comer got the final out when pinch hitter Don Money lined to third.

The Rangers erased a 2-1 deficit in the sixth when Leon Roberts reached on a throwing error by third baseman Paul Molitor and Johnson slammed his first homer of the year off Bob McClure, 1-1.

Texas scored two insurance runs with two out in the ninth. Doug Flynn singled and scored on a triple by George Wright. Lee Mazzilli's bunt single scored Wright.

The Rangers took a 1-0 second-inning lead when Johnson doubled and scored when Jim Sundberg lined an apparent double to the left field corner. The Brewers appealed Sundberg's hit and won when first base umpire Darryl Cousins called Sundberg out for having missed first base.

BEST LONG JUMP. Tina Greenway of the Pampa girls' track team broke her personal best record by a foot in the long jump when she cleared 17-6 1/4 Friday at the Liberal Relays. Miss Greenway placed second in the event. (Staff Photo)

Clerc gains finals of WCT tournament

HOUSTON (AP)—Second-seeded Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina rallied Saturday to defeat Peter McNamara of Australia 5-7, 6-2, 6-3, and gain the finals of the $300,000 World Championship Tennis Tournament.

Top-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia met Andres Gomez of Ecuador in another semifinals match Saturday at the River Oaks Country Club.

Clerc connected on only 18 of 39 first serves in losing the first set to McNamara, who needed to win the tournament to qualify for the WCT Championship tournament in Dallas.

Clerc hit only nine of 25 first serves in the final set and finished at 42 per cent for the entire match.

"I was nervous when I was serving, I've been having trouble serving all week," Clerc said. "But today in the third set it felt better. I got more balls in the court."

McNamara's served was also inconsistent but he managed to break Clerc in the seventh game and again in the 12th game with a backhand passing shot at the first set point.

But Clerc, the No. 5 ranked player in the world, although not serving any better, played his ground strokes more consistently at the start of the second set when he broke McNamara in the third, fifth and seventh games to take the upper hand in the match.

McNamara, ranked No. 9 in the world, fell behind in the first game of the decisive set, losing his serve on the second break point on a forehand error.

Clerc broke McNamara again in the ninth game and won the match on the third match point with McNamara's forehand error.

"I knew I needed to hit the ball better and I also felt he was getting tired," Clerc said of the third set.

Clerc earned the first match point when McNamara's backhand was wide after Clerc drove a backhand to the corner. McNamara avoided the second match point on Clerc's forehand error.

Cards shut down Phillies

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Joaquin Andujar pitched a three-hit shutout and St. Louis tagged Steve Carlton for five early runs as the Cardinals defeated Philadelphia 6-0 Saturday for their seventh straight victory.

Andujar, 2-1, permitted a triple to Dick Davis in the second and a single to Pete Rose in the third, then set down 10 straight batters before Gary Matthews doubled in the seventh.

Carlton allowed five runs in the first two innings as he lost his third straight game.

The Cardinals pulled off two double steals in their two-run first. Lonnie Smith led off with a double and Tom Herr walked. The two then advanced on steals. George Hendrick lofted a sacrifice fly, and after Gene Tenace walked, Herr broke for home. Catcher Bo Diaz threw to second baseman Manny Trillo, but Trillo dropped the ball, allowing Herr to score and Tenace to take second.

Darrell Porter, Ozzie Smith and Andujar singled in the second to load the bases. Carlton walked Lonnie Smith, forcing in a run, Herr's fielder's choice scored another and Hendrick added an RBI single.

The Cardinals got their final run off of Ron Reed in the seventh.

Wadkins pulls away in T of C

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Lanny Wadkins scorched the back with six birdies in nine holes, finishing off a 4-under-par 68, to post a 2-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $350,000 MONY-Tournament of Champions.

Wadkins pulled away from the elite field, comprised only of winners of PGA Tour events during the last year, with a 32 on his back nine and, at one point, appeared poised to make a rout of it.

He birdied five of his first six holes on the homeward side of the 6,911-yard La Costa Country Club course, then bogeyed two of the last three.

"I just kind of got it rolling," Wadkins said, "and then I started knocking the flag down."

He completed 54 holes with a 207 total, nine shots under par.

Tom Watson, who won this event two years in a row before being interrupted by Lee Trevino last season, matched par 72 in the mild, breezy weather and was second at 209.

"I got off to a poor start and just didn't do anything particularly well," said Watson, who won four consecutive Player of the Year awards before the streak was broken in 1981.

"Lanny is playing very well," Watson said. "It will take a supreme effort from me tomorrow for me to catch him."

Ron Streck was another shot back at 210 after a 68. Tom Kite, last year's leading money winner, had a 65 that ranked as the best round of the tournament and closed up

Pampa track teams look sharp in Liberal Relays

LIBERAL—Pampa High's track teams took a giant step forward Friday with the girls' placing third and boys taking fifth in the Liberal, Kans. Relays.

What made the Pampa girls' performance so outstanding is that coach Frank Belcher made the trip with only 16 thinclads, all sophomore and juniors. For the boys, it was their best outing as a team in several meets.

In the girls' division, Pampa's 440-relay team (Leslie Albus, Joan Burns, Sheila Grays and Tina Bunton) zipped to a first-place finish with a 51.5 clocking.

Probably Pampa's best performer of the day was Tina Greenway, even though she finished second in the long jump. Greenway leaped 17-6 1/4 on her second attempt to set a new personal record by a foot.

"Her jump was the highlight of the meet for us," Belcher said. "These girls that competed today are the future of our track program. They really did good as a team even though we had only 16."

Pampa didn't have a first-place finisher in the boys' division, but there were still some outstanding performances.

Randy Slaybaugh placed second in the shot put, but set a personal best of 54.5. His 167-10 toss in the discus also gave him second.

Pampa's 400-meter relay team of Wes Stevens, Gary Dabbs, Randy Slaybaugh and Brad Voyles placed second with a 44.4.

"That's the highest a Pampa 440-meter relay team has finished in two or three years," Harvester assistant coach Gary Lehnen said.

"Stevens ran an outstanding 51.9 in his leg and he's just a freshman."

Pampa's 1600-meter relay team (Wes Stevens, Gary Dabbs, Brad Voyles and Steve Thurman) finished second with a 3:32, only a half-second behind Perryton, which qualified for the state meet in the 1600 relay last year. All the members of that state qualifying relay team returned.

"I feel like our relay teams have a good chance of qualifying for regionals," Lehnen said.

Times poll favors NFL strike

NEW YORK (AP) — There is strong support for a strike among the 758 National Football League players who responded to a controversial poll asking their opinions on the union's stance in contract negotiations with the league.

The telephone poll was conducted by The New York Times, which was given the phone numbers of 1,500 players by the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining unit.

The existence of the poll became public last Tuesday when the Players Association filed an unfair labor practice complaint with the National Labor Relations Board against the council and the newspaper.

The union is seeking a departure from previous team sport contracts by demanding for wages a percentage of the gross earned by the NFL, a position which the owners have so far rejected. The union figure most often given is 55 percent.

According to the union plan, all players, regardless of position, would receive a fixed salary based strictly on years of service.

Will Rangers nosedive again?

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer
ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The success-starved Texas Rangers weren't even bold enough to have their own motto in the American League this year. In 1981, it was "Coming Alive" which proved to be a blatant case of false advertising in their ensuing annual August dive. After three consecutive games this season in which their pitching was pounded by Cleveland and the New York Yankees, press box pundits were suggesting "Staying Alive" as a theme. Burt Hawkins, the Rangers' media relations director, has agonized for a franchise winner since 1937, first at Washington, and now at Arlington, pleading for just one pennant. The Senators never earned one when Hawkins was a sports writer and in the 12 years he was traveling secretary. Since the franchise moved to Texas in 1972, the closest the Rangers have come is five games back. Hawkins has suffered through disgrace after disgrace and it doesn't bolster his confidence when he sees a balk, hit batsmen, dropped fly balls, mediocre pitching and sloppy baserunning which were on display during the Rangers' first home stand. "Buddy boy, (Hawkins calls everybody 'Buddy boy') it could be a long season if we keep doing that, but you've got to remember the team we have out there hasn't played together very long," said Hawkins. Indeed, Ranger Vice President Eddie Robinson had only two returning 1981 starters in the lineup opening day.

Manager Don Zimmer said, "It will take them a month to get things together. It had better not take them to July, though." Robinson has received a clear mandate to produce or else from the Ranger Board of Directors, who are demanding a competitive team. Zimmer is a Robinson man. The implications of another Ranger fade out are clear: It could mean the necks of Zimmer and Robinson. Robinson has traded away second baseman Bump Wills and lifetime .300 hitter Al Oliver for the likes of Lee Mazzilli, Larry Parrish, and Doug Flynn. The three newest Rangers have some weaknesses. Mazzilli, playing left field, has not been overwhelming with his arm; Parrish, moving from third base to right field, has already dropped one fly ball; and Flynn's bat has been silent. To win, the Rangers' pitching must be dynamite. Texas can't afford Frank Tanana, Doc Medich and Rick Honeycutt getting bombed, which they did recently. The Rangers hope, just once, to shake their reputation as malcontents and losers so they can get out of the shadow of the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League. "Whitey" White, who is a longtime handyman for Texas, said several years ago the Rangers should be so ashamed of the way they play that they "ought to back up to the pay window."

Youth Center Director
Summer Goals

This is the time to set goals for summer. Before it's too late to do anything about it, take the time now to evaluate where you should be physically at the end of the summer. Set realistic goals. If you can only lift 10 pounds now, don't expect to be able to lift 1,000 pounds by the end of the summer. If it has taken 10 years to put on 50 extra pounds and get as badly out of condition as you presently are, be realistic. Go on a diet and exercise program with the idea of losing one or two pounds per week and work walking two miles into running one and walking one. By the end of the summer you'll be able to say, "look what I've accomplished," and not lament over what you should have done.

High School Dance

There will be a dance for the high school students Friday, April 23 in the old gym of the Youth Center. Three dollars for singles and five dollars per couple is all it will cost to dance to the music of some of the top tunes spun by Mike Duncan. Make plans to attend the dance from 8 p.m. until 12 midnight and bring a date. This is the first dance of summer, so come and enjoy.

Basketball League

Three one three basketball league entry forms are available at the Youth Center. There will be four separate leagues offered—men's competitive, men over 30, men's non-competitive and women. Cost for the league is $50 except in the case of men's competitive, which will cost $100. There will be a limit on the number of teams that can participate, so get the entry in as soon as possible. Play will begin on June 7 after the May 31st deadline.

Busy Summer

This summer promises to be one of the busiest the Youth Center has ever had. Of course there will be the usual swimming and free time activities, but this summer there will be a whole new range of activities, including camps, leagues, and individual instructional opportunities.

Swimming Sign-up

Swimming lesson sign-up will be May 6 at 1 p.m. If you cannot be here to sign up with your child, you can register later with the Youth Center receptionist.

Members can take the first session free, with additional sessions costing two dollars. Non-members can take the lessons for seven dollars per session. Memberships start as low as $10 for a six-month individual membership or $25 for any size family.

Summer Camps

There will be several new camps offered this summer. Basketball with Garland Nichols, tennis with Stacey Foster, volleyball with Roxie Johnson and day camp with Bill Banks are the camps the Center will offer this summer. Camps are for any school age child up to the eighth grade, and will cost $35 per session. For more information call the Center at 665-0748.

Racquetball League

Racquetball leagues for summer will start registration May 1. There will be a variety of divisions offered for every level of player, including beginners. The cost this year will be $20 and includes a t-shirt and trophies for the winners.

Memberships

Memberships to the Fitness Center start at $85 for six months, and rember, all students and teachers may take advantage of our summer rates, beginning at $45 for a three month membership which includes everything except tennis. Be sure and let your college-age child (who will be home this summer) in on the secret.

For more information on the programs of the Youth Center or to take a look at the facilities offered, come by 1005 West Harvester just north of the Coronado Shopping Center or call 665-0748.

Braves win again at expense of Houston

HOUSTON (AP)—Atlanta Manager Joe Torre's spring training speech won the Braves another game Friday night and brought them within two games of the National League record book. "He got us together in spring training and told us to go out and have fun," said centerfielder Brett Butler, whose two-run single in a five-run sixth inning sparked the Braves to a 5-3 victory over Houston. "He told us to do our best and if we won he'd be with us and if we made a mistake, he'd give us constructive criticism."

The Braves, who have startled the NL's Western Division by jumping to a 9-0 record, weren't having much fun until their big sixth inning. lead on a two-run double by Alan Ashby and a single by Art Howe off starter Rick Mahler. The old Braves might have folded at that point. Instead, they consulted a few passages from Torre's spring training thoughts and peppered Astros starter Nolan Ryan, 0-3, with all five runs in the sixth. In addition to Butler's clout, Bob Horner's double scored Dale Murphy from first base. Horner scored on relief pitcher Dave Smith's throwing error and Butler scored on Houston starter Nolan Ryan's wild pitch. "Torre has been the biggest plus for us," Butler said. "He has given us a positive attitude and that's what we needed."

What makes Pampa greener and more fun?

The Pampa Environmental Beautification Foundation

A membership drive is underway by the Pampa Environmental Beautification Foundation, founded in 1973 "to create a vehicle for the beautification of parks, streets, and public places in the City of Pampa and its environs."

The annual membership meeting will be Monday, May 17, at 7 p.m. in the Citizens Bank Hospitality Room. The election of officers and trustees will be held at that time. Mike Fraser, landscape architect, will present a program on "Landscaping Pampa" at the meeting.

"We have a membership of about 50 individuals and organization," said W.A. Morgan, president. "We are hoping through the drive to increase this so that we can have more interest in improving the parks and public areas in Pampa and more input toward the disbursement of funds from our Foundation."

Dues of $6 per year may be mailed to Roy Sparkman, treasurer, P.O. Box 2379, Pampa. These dues plus gifts, memorials, and funds from the M.K. Brown and Gray - Pampa Foundations are dispersed for beautification projects. In its 9 years of existence, PEBF has spent $33,387 on projects to help improve Pampa.

The first project of the foundation was to provide the design and landscaping of M.K. Brown auditorium. Projects at Pampa schools have included the partial financing of outdoor labs at the Pampa Middle School and Baker Elementary School. Landscaping was done also at Lamar Elementary School.

Flowers have been provided for the parks and Post office annually, and a sprinkler system and trees were donated to the Santa Fe - Girl Scout Park at Atchison and Cuyler Streets. The Foundation provided the landscape design and plantings for the small park.

At Browning and Cuyler Streets, across from the First National Bank drive - in. They donated a metal sculpture and erected the Cuyler Park sign.

PEBF contributed money for the expansion bridge on the hike and bike trail between Harvester and Kentucky Streets and made a contribution of $1,000 for trees in the area. They purchased playground equipment for Houston and Inez Carter parks and were instrumental in the erection of a soccer field across from the Pampa Youth and Community Center at the Carter park. They provided $4,000 for a basketball court for the Marcus Sanders park. Money was given for plantings and playground equipment at the Evergreen and 16th park, begun last year.

The projects for 1982 include a purchase of equipment and signs for $3,000 to erect a fun and fitness trail in the park area east of Hobart to Cook Streets. PEBF hopes to serve as a catalyst in encouraging other groups to construct or donate equipment to complete the fitness trail project, under the direction of Jiggs Cooke, Public Works Director.

The Pampa Community Day Care Center was awarded $750 for trees for their current landscaping project. The Lovett Library landscaping project was awarded $3,000.

In addition to landscaping, the Foundation sponsored a clean-up drive for the alleys one spring and researched areas where there were abandoned buildings or junk yards to promote a clean-up effort.

"We do not normally provide maintenance," said Mr. Morgan. "However, we do request that any plant purchases with PEBF money be properly cared for."

The plans for a sculpture contest and garden and an amphitheatre approved by the city commission were postponed because of lack of funds.

The PEBF was organized by William Jarrel Smith and chartered by Thelma Bray, Jo Malone and Darlene Birkes with a funding started by the M.K. Brown and Gray - Pampa Foundations. Contributions to the PEBF are tax exempt.

Present officers include W.A. Morgan, president; E.L. Green Jr., vice president; Mildred Laycock, secretary; Harvey Nestiel, treasurer; and Roy Sparkman, assistant treasurer.

her gardens for many years. The Girl Scouts plant a tree annually at the Santa Fe - Girl Scout Park at Atchison and Cuyler Streets. PEBF has provided trees and an underground sprinkler system for this downtown park.

CHILDREN PLAY in Evergreen Park where 30 trees of pine, mulberry and cottonwood were planted by neighbors last year. The PEBF contributed $2,050 toward the trees and playground equipment for this area. PEBF board members, Mr. and Mrs. David Miller, helped organize this project and continue to be responsible for the watering of the trees.

Lifestyles past -- gone but not forgotten

THE WAY WE WERE. Ten - thousand negatives from the collection of Julius Born, Canadian, Texas photographer around the turn of the century, capture life as it was in the Panhandle from 1900 through 1920. The remarkable change in markets is obvious in the photo of the street meat market (notice the fact that there are no USDA approved stamps on the meat). The only thing missing from the cowboy's attire of chaps and vest are designer jeans. The Panhandle - Plains Historical Museum is developing 800 of these negatives to be on display by the beginning of this summer. (Complimentary Photos of The Panhandle - Plains Museum)

At the turn of the century, Julius Born, a photographer, opened his own studio in Candadian, Texas. Born took thousands of pictures, mostly portraits, with a high quality camera using glass plate negatives. His camera was thought to be a stereoscopic but no one knows for sure.

The negatives were saved down through the years and eventually given to the Hemphill County Library.

Bobby Weaver, Curator of Ethnology at the Panhandle - Plains Historical Museum, is developing about 800 of the 10,000 negatives which he and Byron Price, Curator of History at the museum, sorted through and borrowed from the Hemphill Library.

Each negative has two prints that help give a three dimensional look for use with a stereoscope. Thus 800 of the negatives have been informative and useful to the museum for several reasons.

One important find Weaver discovered was that nearly 150 separate photos are of Hispanics dating from 1900 through 1920 a time period when the Hispanic population was not recorded as being very numerous here. "Apparently these individuals worked on the repair crews for the railroad and were headquartered at the Canadian offices owned by Santa Fe," Weaver said. Canadian was a terminal point for the Santa Fe Railroad. "Little is known about this particular aspect of ethnicity in this region," Weaver said.

Weaver added that "there are approximately 100 photos of women illustrating styles from 1900 through 1920. This helps us illustrate the textiles collection. There are several hundred pictures of cowboys in various dress styles and the photos help to illustrate what clothing paraphernalia and details of cowboy gear was actually used in this era and helps to point out certain brands or styles."

Weaver said a number of pictures of children and toys were taken as well as several pictures of World War I activities, soldiers in uniforms, the Red Cross in action and more.

Several prints, Weaver said, were of sports such as baseball, basketball and football which are good illustration materials for this area. Born also took photos of towns, street scenes and different buildings.

"Because this collection illustrates a lifestyle in this region and the photography is of high quality, these photos are ideally suited for the museum's exhibition purposes," Weaver said.

"Within the next couple of months the collection will be fully processed and available for public use," he said. "The negatives will make a significant photographic collection which will be displayed in the ranching exhibit." The ranching exhibit will be open to public viewing by this summer.

Booksale to be held April 24

The Friends of the Pampa Library's annual secondhand book sale will be held Sunday, April 25, 1982, at Lovett Memorial Library, 111 N. Houston, in Pampa. It will open at 1:00 p.m. and will close at 5:00 p.m.

Hundreds of hardbacks, paperbacks, children's books, fiction and nonfiction will be available at bargain basement prices. Specialty magazines, such as Gourmet and Antiques, 3 1/2 records, and even sheet music will be included.

The money raised from this sale will be used to provide library equipment and special library programs and services. Past sales have provided movie and slide projectors, cassette tape players and have underwritten the cost of the summer reading program and the pre-school story hour.

Local artist chosen for Texas Arts Fair

KERRVILLE - The eleventh annual Texas State Arts and Crafts Fair will be celebrated the weekends of May 29 - 30 and June 5 - 6 in Kerrville. Held on the tree-shaded campus of Schreiner College, the works of 235 very carefully selected artists and craftspeople will be exhibited. Peggy Palmitier is among those chosen for this event.

Peggy specializes in copper enamel, and her work won for her the coveted "Award of Excellence" which gives her an automatic invitation back to this year's Fair. She went on the artists Ambassadors tour to Israel in September, 1981 which was sponsored by the Texas Arts and Crafts Educational Foundation. Her enamels were on exhibit at the Maskit gallery in Tel Aviv and drew much attention. Peggy is a participant in several art shows and has won many awards. She was proclaimed "Artist of the year" 1978 at the Pampa Fine Arts Association - Gallery Show.

Top entertainment is scheduled for both stages of the fairgrounds. Spotlited on May 29 - 30 are the Dallas Black Dance theatre, Mariachi Los Parientes of San Antonio, and local Kerrville favorites, the Poverty Playboys, a bluegrass band which will appear both weekends. The second stage will feature Jules Caplan, magician and Don Sanders, children's song and story entertainer.

June 5 - 6 Houston's Theatre on wheels - a Punch and Judy show, and Sunshine, a country western duet appearing for their third consecutive year. Caplan and Sanders will be performing. An added attraction will be a puppet workshop presented by the theatre on wheels group. These are only a few of the attractions planned for the Fair.

The country fair atmosphere is enhanced by huge colorful striped tents, clowns meandering around the area, and the tempting aromas of over 30 different food concessions. Free parking is available on an attended lot, with free air conditioned shuttle bus service to the main gate. For a free color brochure and accommodations information please write: TACP, P.O. Box 1527, Kerrville, Texas 78028 or call 512-896-5711.

Learning disabled benefit from video games

FREMONT, Calif (AP) - A teacher of children with learning disabilities has found home video games to be one of his best educational tools.

Regarded by most as entertainment, some of the games are an integral part of a Mission Valley Elementary School clinical program to develop children's hand-eye coordination, says its director, Michael Schoop. Video games selected for the clinic must be non-threatening to children with a learning handicap, must have a system of measuring player improvement and should be colorful and entertaining, Schoop says.

After favorable response to a skiing game by his students, Schoop contacted the company that developed it, asking to purchase additional game cartridges. The company, Activision, has since donated 3 each of its games to the clinic, and has also asked for feedback on the children's progress, reactions to the games, and suggestions for their improvement.

Dear Abby

Shut-ins visitors cause more pain than pleasure

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am in my 89th year and in poor health. I live alone and seldom get out, so friends keep wanting to come visit me. I don't want to seem ungrateful, but Abby, it is such a burden I would rather they didn't come.

Let me explain. A hostess is expected to offer her guest a cup of tea and perhaps a sandwich or some sweets. This imposes a hardship on me because I am badly crippled with arthritis and can barely prepare my own meals. I also have diabetes and never have sweets or bakery goods on hand.

I would be interested in hearing how other elderly and disabled people feel about having company.

NO COMPANY. THANK YOU

DEAR NO COMPANY: I know a person who handles visiting an elderly or disabled person this way: She calls and says, "I will come on one condition — that you do not lift a finger! I will bring the refreshments."

Then she arrives with a picnic basket containing a thermos of tea, an assortment of refreshments, cups, saucers, linen placemats and napkins. All the hostess has to do is open the door and enjoy the company. Now wouldn't that kind of company be a pleasure?

DEAR ABBY: I am a 29-year-old divorced woman. When I was 22, I had a short affair with a very mature boy who was only 15. After that I discovered that I really got turned on by boys between the ages of 15 and 20.

Some older guys still turn me on, but most teen-agers are more manly than men in their 30s.

I would like to know if this is normal for a woman my age, or do I need to see a shrink?

CRADLE ROBBER

DEAR ROBBER: According to the most authoritative studies on sexual behavior, the male reaches his sexual peak in his teen years. And from then on, it's downhill.

DEAR ABBY: We have a precious new daughter-in-law. She and our son are head over heels in love. She has many fine qualities, but, Abby, her grammar is atrocious! For example, she says, "We seen," instead of, "We saw." And, "Him and me went," instead of, "He and I went."

I would like to correct her in a loving way, not for my sake, but for hers. She is barely 21, and if I could find a gentle way to correct her, I'm sure it would save my son a lot of embarrassment later on, because he surely must notice how bad her grammar is.

I don't want to mention it to my son because I don't want him to think I am finding fault with his wife. I have always had a wonderful relationship with him and don't want to do anything to alienate him or offend his wife. My husband feels as I do, and suggested I write to you.

CARING MOTHER-IN-LAW

DEAR CARING: Don't offer your new daughter-in-law any well-meaning help by correcting her grammar. If your son is satisfied with his wife, and apparently he is, that's all that matters.

DEAR ABBY: Tell "Save the Fish" to cheer up. Next time her husband brings home a fish, let her think of all the smaller fish that would have been eaten later if her husband hadn't caught it, and of all the smaller fish that fish had already eaten.

In his autobiography, Benjamin Franklin relates how he resolved to be a vegetarian because he didn't believe living creatures should die so he could eat. Then he realized that fish eat each other regularly. He continued to eat fish.

Stuffed Peppers — Brown Rice

Salad Rolls

Brownies Beverage

STUFFED PEPPERS

Contributed by my sister

Francis.

Tomato Sauce, recipe follows

5 large (2 pounds, scant) green peppers, with few convolutions

1 pound ground chuck beef

1 large egg

3/4 cup soft bread crumbs

1 small onion, minced (1/4 cup)

3/4 teaspoon salt

1/2 teaspoon pepper

1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce

1/2 cup water

Reserve 1/2 cup of the Tomato

Sauce; pour the remaining

Sauce into a 13 by 9 by 2-inch baking pan. With a swivel-blade peeler, remove as much of the pepper skin as you can; cut each pepper in half lengthwise and remove seeds. Mix together the beef, egg, crumbs, onion, salt, pepper, Worcestershire sauce and water; stuff into pepper halves; spoon the reserved Tomato Sauce over them. Bake, uncovered, in a preheated 350-degree oven until the peppers are tender — about 1 hour; baste with the sauce. Makes 5 servings.

Tomato Sauce: Break up the tomatoes from a 16-ounce can of whole tomatoes with puree; stir in the tomato paste from a 6-ounce can, 1/2 cup water, 1 or 2 tablespoons dark brown sugar and 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce.

Peeking at Pampa

Several dedicated dancing couples in town have been talking about a new family (Isn't two years' residence still sort of new?) in our area, meaning rural Pampa. They're Jerry Daniels (son of J.C. and Joni), his wife, Jeri (How's that for soundalike names for spouses?) and their daughter, Dana. They farm and have cattle and horses. 11-year-old Dana is an accomplished equestrienne. Jerry works for J.C.

All three are full of charm, good looks - and the ability to dance so well that others pause to watch them. Everybody is captivated by Dana's nimble feet, in perfect time with her daddy's steps, and her obvious joy in dancing. Added note: She's a mighty pretty girl too.

Another much-appreciated group of young dancers entertained the Pampa Rotary Club when they had lunch at Stephen F. Austin School not long ago. Heard the second graders did country-western, ballroom, couples dancing and other kinds. One visitor said, "They were excellent in all of them. But I liked the Cotton-Eyed Joe the best of all."

A talented and attractive lady named Else Stigerwald of Bad Kreuzwald, Germany, has been visiting Nina Sponemore. The two of them have been friends ever since they met during one of Nina's visits to Germany, and this was Else's second visit to Pampa. She speaks several languages and is in Communication with the U.S. Army in her homeland.

Nina gave a coffee on Saturday morning to honor her guest. And when the Rotary Travel Film on Germany was presented, Gary Stevens introduced Else, announcing that she had come especially to assist the narrator of the film describe her country. (Not true, of course, but a pleasurable supposition.)

Hope you saw the beautiful butterfly display in the Mall, the week before Easter. Enormous, bright-hued wings were hung from the ceiling in all the corridors. The Mall supplied the paper butterflies and Pampa school children colored them. Each was inscribed with a pupil's name. No two looked alike as they waved in the air.

Heard that the six Australian men who have been visiting in Pampa made a big hit with their hosts and other new friends. One of the special events was the evening dessert hosted by the Mike Ruffs and the Gary Lockwoods. Pampa guests brought favorite desserts and loved the enthusiasm and charm of the men from "down under". The visitors were taken on tours of the area. Next year a group of Panhandle men plan to visit Australia.

Friends of Curt and Dr. Wil Beck are pleased to learn that their daughter, Anne, has been accepted as a medical student at Baylor University. Anne is now at home with her folks. She's tall, vivacious, attractive and popular with all who know her.

Seems everybody is pleased to welcome our new assistant manager at the Chamber of Commerce to his new work. He's Brad Mink and he was chosen from 15 applicants for the job. His wife is Jacque and their six-month-old son is Riker. Brad has an impressive background, having been in radio and TV since 1971. He was graduated from Boise University in Communications and was an honors graduate from the Defense Information School at Fort Benjamin Harrison in Indiana. He won the Idaho Broadcasters Association Award for Sportscaster of the Year in 1976 and 1977.

He came to Pampa in 1979 and has been Assistant Manager and Account Executive for KGRO - KOMX for the past three years. He has already served our community well on many civic projects and is well liked. He and Jacque say they love Pampa. And we all wish them every happiness. Floyd Sackett, our Chamber manager, has already put Brad to work, we're sure.

Been hearing a lot of people congratulating Mary Braswell on her election to our school board, the first time a woman ever won that honor. Those Braswells are real achievers, aren't they?

Pot pourri: The young religious singers called Genesis, taking trips about the Panhandle, including a retreat at Ceta Canyon, planning a later trip to the World's Fair in Nashville, Tenn. The eagerness of older golfers to enroll early for the Tri-State Senior Tournament to be held here in July, delighted to be coming back to our town, saying they always get a heartier welcome here than any place else. The plans being made by the Lions Club for their Cadillac Ball, to be held April 24, which is almost here. The early risers in the Toastmasters Club, getting up at daybreak to attend their 6:45 meetings. Whew!

Happy gardening! PAM.

Spring time is good time to paint house

BY DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent

"Paint up - fix up" is the theme for many families during April. If your household is one of those homes to benefit from a paint job here are some tips.

PREPARE TO PAINT

Once paint colors have been selected, it's time to prepare for the painting project. Assemble all the items necessary to complete the job. They should include the following: stepladder; enough paint to complete the job; applicators (rollers, brushes, pads); dropcloths (old sheets work well and can be laundered for reuse); screwdriver to remove door knobs, switchplates, and wall hooks; masking tape to edge molding, window panes, and any other areas you don't want to paint; paint thinner or turpentine for cleaning up when using oil-based paint; and protective cream to apply on hands and arms for easier paint removal.

Before painting, walls should be carefully cleaned. Paint does not adhere well to a dirty surface. It is recommended that walls be washed with an all-purpose detergent starting from the BOTTOM up. While the natural tendency is to start at the top and work down, this sequence allows water to dribble down over soil, creating stubborn and difficult-to-remove streaks. Dribbles are much easier to remove from areas still damp from washing. Surfaces should then be completely rinsed and allowed to dry before painting.

Any cracks and nail holes should be patched with spackling before walls are painted. Glossy surfaces need to be dulled since it is difficult to achieve good adhesion over old enamel coatings. A surface can be dulled by sanding or applying a deglosser otherwise known as "liquid sandpaper."

STORE PAINTING SUPPLIES PROPERLY - SAVE MONEY
Countless dollars are spent on brushes, rollers, paints, and other supplies which must be discarded after only one use because of improper cleaning and storage. Many paint items should give long-lasting results over several years with proper care.

Whether painting projects are scheduled once a month or only several times a year, here are a few tips on cleaning and storage to assure tools and supplies in "ready-to-paint" condition.

1. SEAL IT UP - Tightly sealed paint containers will keep contents fresh. Store leftover paints by selecting a small container that will be filled to the brim with the remaining paint. Secure a piece of plastic wrap around the rim with a rubber band. Then secure the lid on tightly over the wrap. This will keep a skin from developing on the paint surfaces. If a skin has developed because of improper storage, cut it away from the surface with a knife and lift it off in one piece, otherwise leftover particles will give paint an uneven finish. Be sure to store all paints away from heat, freezing temperatures and curious children.

2. PRESERVE AND PROTECT - Be sure to thoroughly clean all paint off of brushes after use. If a latex paint was used, clean the brush with warm water and detergent. Be sure to rinse all detergent from the brush. If a solvent thinned paint or varnish was used, clean the brush with a recommended solvent or paint thinner. Then wash in warm water and detergent. After the brush has dried, comb the bristles straight out and carefully wrap the brush in heavy paper or plastic. Either lay brushes flat or hang them from hooks to store.

Wash paint rollers as you do brushes, but be sure to remove excess paint from the roller before you clean it by rolling it back and forth over newspaper or paper towels. Once the roller is clean and dry, place it in a plastic bag and hang it to store.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Willpower is the ability, after you have used ¾ of a can of paint and finished the job, to close the can and clean the brush, instead of painting something else that doesn't need it.

Dr. Lamb

Faulty weight-loss program

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am trying to stay healthy by eating and exercising correctly. I'm 50 years old, 5-foot-3 and weigh 134 pounds. I want to lose 12 pounds in the next three months. Do you think that would be too much, too little or about right?

Each day I eat one-third cup of dry skim milk powder diluted with water, four ounces of meat, fish or chicken, two starchy foods like bread, two raw vegetables and two fruits without sugar. Should I eat more, less or is this about right? I also take a daily vitamin with iron (I'm still menstruating).

My other problem is exercise. I don't care about golf, swimming, jogging and I don't like to take walks by myself. No one is interested in walking with me.

For exercise about 12 minutes each day I walk up and down the basement steps, holding my upper and lower abdomen, tightening my upper arms and trying to touch my nose with my tongue (for flabby neck) all at the same time. Is this enough exercise? What could I do to improve it?

DEAR READER - I think you need something better than walking up and down the basement steps sticking your tongue in and out.

Plans were made to take a bus to see "Texas" at Palo Duro Canyon in July.

Sue Workman of Pampa Hardware was elected to membership in the club.

The next meeting will be April 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the Energas Room.

JEEPERS CREEPERS

SAN FRANCISCO — The reptiles and insects in "Raiders of the Lost Ark" were considered almost as valuable as the stars of the movie.

The actors emerged unscathed, and so did all of the creepy creatures, to the relief of Fireman's Fund Insurance Companies here, which provided Paramount Pictures with a "creepers-and-crawlers" policy on some 2,000 snakes, 150 tarantulas and 36 beetles.

The snakes and bugs were insured as props against loss or damage, according to Edward E. Hamby, in charge of the companies' entertainment industry division.

TIMOTHY WELLS & DEBRA BRYAN
Bryan-Wells
 Mr. and Mrs. Arnel L. Bryan of Pampa announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Debra Diane to Timothy Charles Wells. Wells is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby C. Wells of Kelton. The couple plan to exchange vows on May 14 in the Grace Baptist Church of Pampa. The bride-elect is employed by Clements Flowers. The prospective bridegroom is employed by B & B Solvent.

MRS. DOUGLAS WARMINSKI
Langston-Warminski wed

Dala D'Nee Langston and Douglas Edward Warminski were united in marriage on April 17 at 7 p.m. in the First United Methodist Church in White Deer with Rev. Kenny Kirk officiating, assisted by Father Francis J. Hynes of Pampa. The couple will make their home in White Deer. The bride is a 1981 graduate of White Deer High School and is employed by First Bank and Trust of White Deer. The groom is a 1979 graduate of White Deer High School and is employed by Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America. The groom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at the community center in White Deer.

BRIAN TENNEY & AMANDA SMITH
Smith-Tenney

Mr. and Mrs. John Horace Smith of Miami announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Amanda to Brian Tenney of Winnemucca, Nevada. Endowments will be given and wedding vows exchanged in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints Temple in Salt Lake City Utah on May 7. The bride elect is a 1979 graduate of Miami High School and is presently attending Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Tenney. He is

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M.L. Langston of White Deer. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Warminski of White Deer. Attendants for the bride were Tracy Webb and Amy Germany. Monica Langston was flower girl. Michael Langston was ring bearer. Attending the groom were Ricky Clifton and Ricky Swaney. Candlelighters were Jason and Jeff Long. Playing traditional wedding music was Mrs. Tom Terry. A reception and dance was held in the Parish Hall. Serving as hostesses were Andrea Dorkendorf and Donece Chancey.

Add a new twist to the traditional bridal shower

NEW YORK (AP) — For the estimated 278,000 couples who will wed this June, bridal showers can combine practicality with romanticism, says Katherine Orr, who deals with romance in books. Luxurious treats such as caviar, truffles, exotic teas (try ginseng for the health-conscious), and hard-to-find spices will add zest and romance. Try serving a few gourmet delights at the party itself.

"The best part of my job is keeping up-to-date on romance," says Ms. Orr, consumer relations director for Harlequin Books, a publisher of romance fiction. "And one of the nicest new twists on an old tradition is the theme bridal shower."

"We've come a long way since the days of the kitchen shower, when the bride received pots, pans and measuring spoons. Now, showers can really reflect the interests of the couple being married," she adds, offering these tips: —Make any shower more romantic by making it more personal. Keep in mind the personality and lifestyle of the bride and consider the groom; too, when choosing gifts.

—An old-standby, the ordinary kitchen shower, can be enlivened with a "theme" — a couple interested in haute cuisine will appreciate a gourmet shower. Gifts could include appliances — pasta-maker, espresso machine, spice or coffee grinder — and gourmet or regional cookbooks.

A cordon-bleu course, a wine-tasting class at a local university, or a subscription to a gourmet magazine are also appropriate.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Astro-Graph by bernice bede osol

Alliances and partnerships will be very meaningful to you this coming year. Through a team effort you'll be able to accomplish much that you'd not be able to achieve alone.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Keep your involvement on a social level today. Try not to let business or financial matters sneak into the conversation. Make this a play day. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your Astro-Graph, Mat $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to include birth date.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today, take with a grain of salt suggestions from persons who aren't too familiar with your field of endeavor. Make your decisions yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It may take a little prodding to get you moving today. Don't succumb to the easy chair. Participate in activities which stimulate you mentally and physically.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Though others may be unable to rectify complicated matters today, this doesn't mean you can't. Don't be impressed by their failures. You can find solutions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're very adroit today at negotiating matters on a one-to-one basis. You'll get the best of the bargain, but the other guy will still do OK.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may have to make a choice today between spending your time leisurely, or in doing something which will benefit you materially. Choose the latter.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'd be wise to avoid situations today where you have to take a risk or gamble. If you must take a chance, do so only in areas which you control.

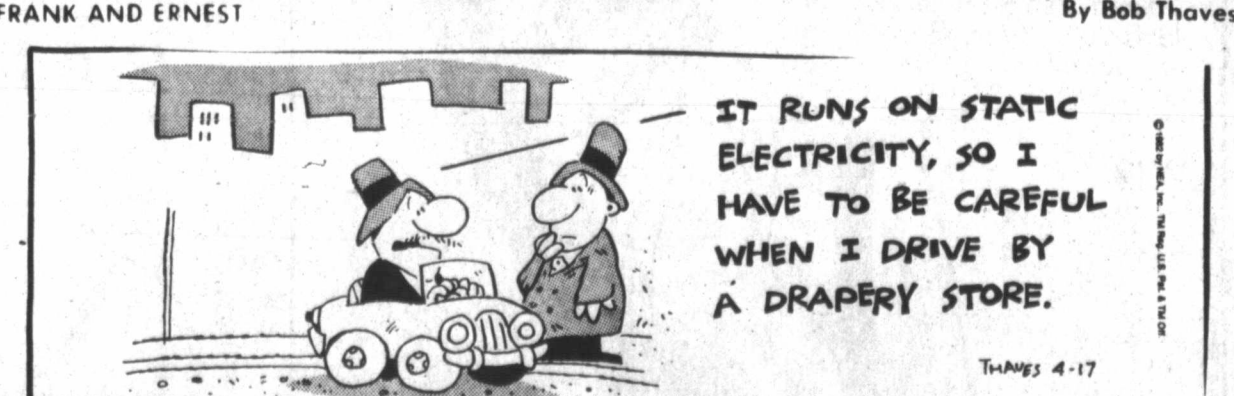

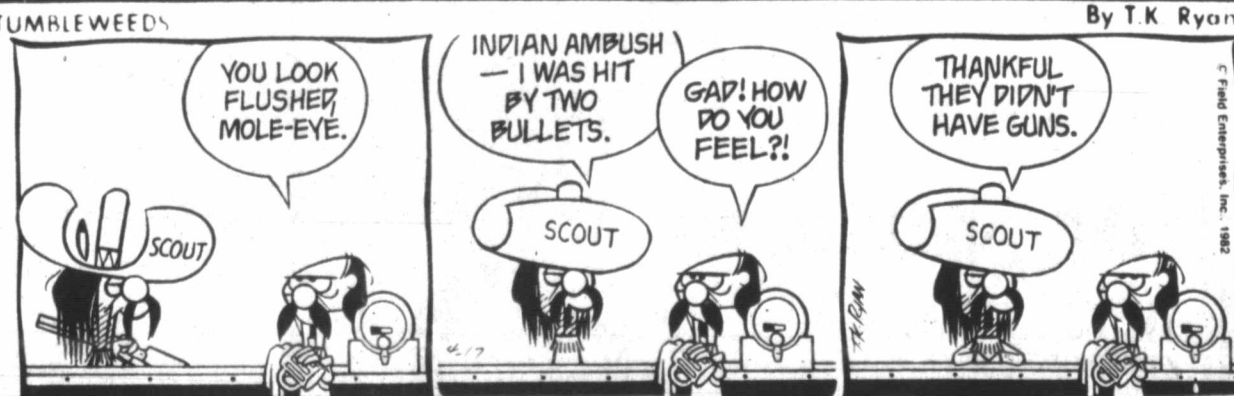

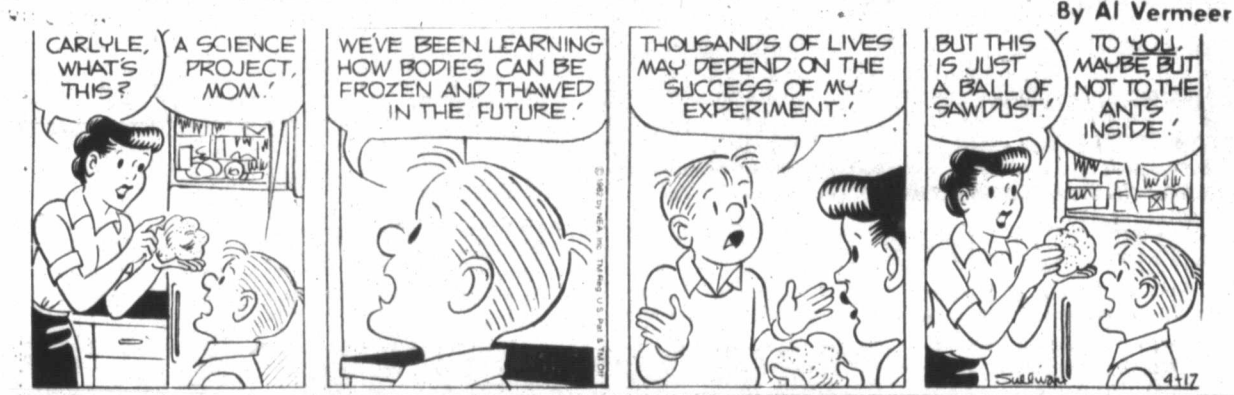

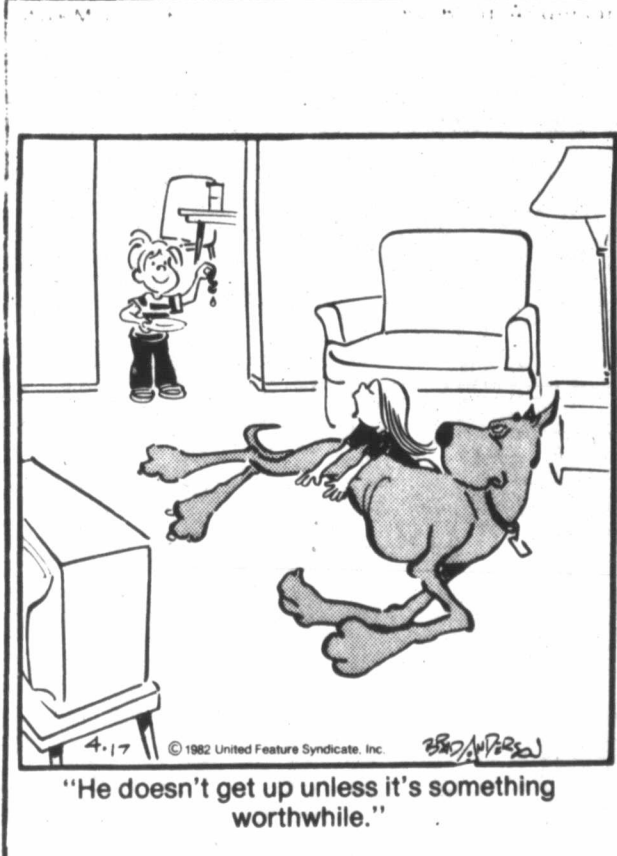

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Others may make promises today and fail to follow through. However, once you make a commitment you'll honor it regardless of the inconvenience it may cause you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Even your pals want to say some unfavorable things about one who isn't present, don't join in. You'll look good, they won't.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may not be too lucky in certain areas today, but you should be quite fortunate in material matters. Stick to business.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Success won't come your way today if you bank too heavily on Lady Luck, but you will succeed if you rely upon your logic and hard work.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Greater good is likely to come your way today from joint ventures than from what you strive to do independently. Focus your efforts where you'll get the best results.

Dynasty slowly elbowing way to the top

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Blake Carrington of "Dynasty," a smooth and sophisticated oil man, is beset by so many problems, surrounded by so many sycophants, stalked by so many predators that the crisis-laden prime-time ABC soap opera is slowly elbowing its way to the top of the ratings.

Playing the role is John Forsythe, white-haired, handsome and virile at 64. The actor smiles and says, "I never thought I'd be listening to people wax glorious about the ratings, but I figure if you're going to be in TV, be in a hit. Being in a flop only gives you heart burn."

Forsythe has known ratings success before, but usually as affable, avuncular characters in bland sitcoms in the days before television comedy discovered its bite.

"We had a big talk at the beginning of the series about what Blake Carrington was," says Forsythe.

"I wrote down my thoughts and gave them to the writers. We had some differences of opinion which have been resolved."

"One was over whether he was a self-made man, as I insisted. There's a vast difference between inheriting money and making it, and making it takes its toll. It makes him more interesting. He has the confidence of having done it himself. On the minus side, he's ruthless and manipulative. So we had a talk about that."

"I envisioned him as rough and domineering in the marketplace. On the other hand, he doesn't lie, he deeply loves his wife and children and he cares about his friends. He's the closest thing to a mob lord I can figure out."

Forsythe wants you to know, however, that Carrington is no J.R. Ewing. He says, "The miracle of 'Dallas' is that Larry Hagman made that character attractive. I never wanted to be J.R., and I told them that in the beginning. That's not my bag."

Whenever I play a character I always look for the blacks and the whites. When you play a villain you look for the goodness in him, and when you play comedy you look for the dark side."

As the judge in "And Justice for All," he infused his character with his own warm personality and good-guy image. Then, when the judge turned out to be evil and corrupt, it had surprise, impact and believability.

Forsythe believes the show has grown and gained more depth since its debut in January 1981 as the creation of Richard and Esther Shapiro. Talking about his wife, Krystle, played by Linda Evans, he says, "In the first year Krystle was a simpering lady. No guts, no fiber. Now they've made her stronger. She can stand up to Joan Collins (who plays his ex-wife) or anyone else."

"And on my part my character has more to give the audience to care about. When a character has as much to do as I do you can't totally hate him."

GRACE OF HILLS STREET. Actress Barbara Babcock, who portrays the character Grace Gardner on NBC's "Hill Street Blues," leads as interesting a life off screen as she does on. Miss Babcock has worked as an assistant on scientific expeditions and recently was awarded a patent for a shampoo she and a friend developed.

Tim Matheson starring in 'A Little Sex'

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After 22 years as an actor, Tim Matheson finds himself in his first starring role, and he figures it's about time.

"Actually I began in the business when I was eight," says the handsome, strongly built actor, who is now 34. "But I was a slow starter. I really didn't get going until I was 12 and appeared in 'My Three Sons.'"

Matheson was one of Hollywood's busiest boy actors, appearing in "Leave It to Beaver," "Bonanza" and other series on television, as well as such features as "Yours, Mine and Ours" and "Magnum Force."

As an adult he scored as the libidinous Otter in "National Lampoon's Animal House."

Still, the status of stardom eluded him.

"A Little Sex" may change that. He appears throughout the new Universal release as a TV commercial director with an irresistible appeal for beautiful young women. So what's his problem? He wants to marry his roommate, film newcomer Kate Capshaw, and he fears he won't be faithful. His fears are realized, and that provides the drama and the surprisingly moral message of the otherwise light comedy.

"A Little Sex" is the first feature film venture of MTM Enterprises, the firm that produced "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and "Hill Street Blues."

Matheson admitted he won consideration for the lead through his acquaintance with Bruce Paltrow, who makes his feature debut as director.

"Universal was resistant to me in the role," said Matheson. "I was a little hurt, because I had been under contract there from the ages of 19 to 24 and had made 'Animal House' and '1941' for Universal."

"They said I was too young, too collegiate and too much of a comedic actor. Think of that! 'Animal House' was the first comedy I had done."

before that I had been considered a dramatic actor," he said.

"I felt rejected, but I realized it was a business decision," Matheson said.

"Universal presented a list of names that were bigger box office than me. Bruce considered them, but he decided he wanted me."

Barbara Babcock is as intriguing as her portrayal of Grace Gardner

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — On NBC's "Hill Street Blues" Barbara Babcock plays television's most outrageous femme fatale, Grace Gardner, who's into leather sheets and hot oil massages.

The Emmy Award-winning actress might be just as intriguing as the character she plays, but she's anything but a vamp. The comely blue-eyed, red-haired Miss Babcock travels to remote areas of the world as an assistant on scientific expeditions. And she recently was awarded a patent for a shampoo she and another actress developed.

On "Hill Street Blues" Grace Gardner is in amorous pursuit of Sgt. Phil Esterhaus, played by Michael Conrad. They both won Emmys in September for their portrayals. Her humorous modus operandi includes leather sheets, hot oils and lotions warmed in her microwave, and nude horseback riding.

"The trick of playing a character like that, who's outrageous and larger than life, is that she must be believable," Miss Babcock said. "She must believe that her life is normal. I think the core of Grace is that she's an intensely obsessive woman. She just feels and does everything in a heightened way."

"I've become comfortable with her," she said. "It's hard now as an actress for me to think of her as outrageous. It makes good sense. I'm really fond of her. I've never known anyone like her, but I think there is a bit of Grace in all of us yearning to get out."

Miss Babcock came to her role as Grace Gardner by means of many other roles for the producers at MTM Enterprises, makers of "Hill Street Blues." She played a lesbian in the pilot of "Paris" and was the only woman in the cast of the MTM pilot "Operating Room."

"It was really the first time in my career that a group of producers or a studio had accepted me as a character actress, which is the way I see myself," she said. "Before that I had been seen as a leading lady. It was a box I couldn't get out of."

Miss Babcock was born in the United States, but was raised in Japan and Europe. Her father served in the Army and the State Department. She attended the University of Lausanne in Switzerland and the University of Milan in Italy, and completed her education in the United States.

The shampoo was developed by Miss Babcock and Susan Bjurman over a five-year period. "The idea came to us one day and we didn't know how to develop it," she said. "So I studied chemistry and Susan studied marketing. Finally, we hired a chemist and he made samples following our instructions."

They also hired a patent attorney and were recently granted a patent. The shampoo is not yet on the market, but they are negotiating with several companies.

In her time away from acting and developing shampoo, she has hunted rock paintings in Kenya and studied animal habits along the Amazon River with scientists.
