Canadian Dam Compromise To Be Sought

That was the result of a three and one-half hour meeting yesterday between the Canadian River dam officials and Congressman Ben Guill at the Schneider Hotel. The meeting was one of the main reasons that Guill returned to the Panhandle during the 10-day Memorial weekend recess of the House.

Senator Watkins (R-Utah) appears to be the only stumbling block in the way of the passage of the bill. His objections are that he wants the money loaned for the bill to be paid back by set time at a set rate.

The committees that met yes terday, the federal legislative and the executive, agreed to try to effect a comprimise with the • Utah Republican and allow him to tack on amendments to the bill as long as the new measures incorporate only the basic laws already in effect. The dam ofwant no new legislation passed to pertain especially to their project.

The meeting felt that the compromise was the most agreeable way to work out the confusion that might arise from Senator Watkins' trying to defeat the bill in Washington.

The legislative committee has decided to select one man to represent the dam group in Washington. He will go to the na-tion's capital as soon as he is notified by Guill that an audience has been arranged for him with Auto Wreck Claims

IN MEMORIAM-Today America pasuses to remember those who gave their lives that we, the citizens of Pampa, of Texas, and of the U. S. A., might be free to worship whatever our gods may be, and be free to live as our conscience might dictate. In observance of Memorial Day, the American Legion Auxiliary arranged the above display at Behrman's, women's shop on N. Cuyler. The display depicts an average plot of ground which is the resting place of American war dead. In the rear near the "Let's Keep America Remem-bering" sign, is a cross on which there is a star. This star represents the war dead of the Jewish fulth. At the right are two American flags and on the left, a reproduction of the famous poem of World War I, "In Flanders Field." Decoration and layout was done by Mrs. Mike F. Roche, assisted by Miss Fay Smart. The crosses are of lightweight seatoam. B. M. Behrman, proprietor of the store, said "they (the Auxiliary) were going to put the display in some store window in town and'I decided it might as well be mine." (News Photo and Engraving)

The Millers contend in their suit filed yesterday that they have complied with all "reasonable" demands the city made of them, after a judge ordered them to raze the structure last February.

They say, however, that they still have not been permitted full use of certain single family units on their property.

Reen. Are they all perjurers? In Several weeks ago, by a vote is probable that representatives of eight to six, the Joint Congressional Committee on the President's Economic Report recommended that, in the future, steel price increases permitted only after pub-lic notice and public hearings.

See.1 Perhaps this action was taken because the majority of the Committee members wished to use governmental control of steel prices merely as an entering wedge leading to federal control of prices in general. Ostensibly, however, their recommendation was based upon the premise that the steel industry is non-competitive, and hence that governmental action is necessary in order to protect the public against extortion.

The strenuous efforts of the New Dealers and the Fair Dealers to extend the O.P.A. and continue rent control testify to their faith in the theory that, for price regulating purpose, legislators and commissions are superior to competition. But superabundant world-wide experience shows how fallacious this idea is, for, in reality, free and untrammeled competition supplies the only means yet discovered for arriving at exactly the right price for every service or material good. figures: In fact, the intricacy and efficiency of the competitive mechanism is like the human nervous system, almost beyond belief. Thus, under free competition, the purchase of a single lead pencil generates through a maze of pressures orders to produce a little more tin in Bolivia. And the price set by free competition is the only one which, in the case of any article, makes the supply of it equal to the demand for it. So, when competition is free, surpluses or shortages are practically unknown. To propose substituting for this marvellous mechanism the crude, bungling actions of price-fixing bodies is obviously like trying to repair a watch by using a sledgehammer. How it works in practice is illustrated by the shortages which the O.P.A. inflicted upon us for years, by the surpluses brought about by our agricultural price supports, and by the worldwide, partial paralysis of production and trade being currently generated by governmental price fixers and regulators. It follows that governmental interference with the price of steel, or of any other useful commodity, cannot be justified unless it can be demonstrated that steel. steel products, or both, are mon- Israel Pledges opolized, and that the monopoly has forced up prices to unreasonable heights and thus seriously inspiracy is proven by the fact that all the companies charge calmost identical prices for the same grade of steel at the same location. Granted that this is true. Does this prove collusion?

Not at all. One of the principles enunciated in economics text books is: "One price in one market." This rule is found to be applicable in markets for wheat or corn or cotton or stocks-markets where there are thousands of competitors-just as it is in the case of steel. Uniform price is, therefore, no proof of monopoly. The best evidence of the existence of an effective monopoly in a good is the fact that its price is pushed up to unreasonable levels. Have steel prices, during the last decade, been advanced to such a degree as to justify governmental intervention on behalf of steel users? How do steel-price increases since 1939 compare with the advances in other prices ? Let us look at the official government

The above figures indicate that, if the steel magnates have been plotting, the purpose of their conspiracy must have been to reduce prices to the consumer! Keeping the price down to 66 per cent is a great tribute to steel industry efficiency.

In view of the facts as they exist, is it not evident that the Joint Committee on the Economic Report has been influenced. probably unwittingly, by collectivists who detest big business, hate success in private undertakings, and wish to see all industry nationalized? the principal not to wear a sun dress, went to school yesterday with a sun dress on — but she wore a jacket over the dress. Her mother, Mrs. V. S. Rogers, said the principal, Mrs. W. T. Archer, telephoned her after the Chronicle published a story Saturday quoting Mrs. Rogers as saying "no public school person is going to dictate and embarrass a child of mine," and asking "what right Mrs. Archer has to tell her daughter what she may wear."

Mrs. Rogers said Mrs. Archer told her Sandra Marie could wear the sun dress if she wanted to, but it would simply make the youngster stand out, and would draw attention to her. So yesterday, Mrs. Rogers took daughter to school with a sun dress on, but with a jacket over the dress. "If it takes a jacket to get an education for my daughter then she'll wear a jacket," Mrs. Rogers said, adding that she and Mrs. Archer had come to an understanding.

On this Memorial Day the nation turns once more in solema remembrance to the quiet places of the earth, where those who gave their lives for America lie at rest. There the fallen soldiers of democracy sleep in peace. We honor them in our ceremonies and in our hearts . . . yet, only as we match their faith and their sacrifice in our striving to preserve the freedom for which they died, can we truly honor them. To us, the living, it means work and great devotion. God grant that it be enough!

Footsteps pounding down the corridor stopped at their door, and someone banged upon the panel. demanding peremptorily, "Open up, you!" "It's that illiterate cop!" Gloria jittered. Miltiades shut the waiter door finally and leaned against it, pant- ing as if he had been running, wiping beads of sweet from his forehead. "Someone screamed in there! I heard it!" the cop's voice said and the door began to creak ominously. Miltiades strode to the door which opened so suddenly the big policeman almost scrawled inside	it carefully. It was a knife, a sharp-looking knife, and when she saw the red handle, Gloria caught her breath, pressed warningly with her shoulder against Milti- ades arm. It was the "Mr." knife of her set. She must have forgot- ten it yesterday when she gath- ered up her cooking junk. But now the handle wasn't the only thing that was red; there was an ugly brownish-red stain upon the sharp steel blade. ### Letter May Prove Generals Are Made-Not Born Vital in Solving Bugsy Siegel Death

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. --(P)-A three-year-old letter has popped up as a possible clue to the 1947 gangland slaying of Ben-jamin (Bugsy) Siegel.

Police Chief Clinton H. Anderson said the letter, uncovered by Archie Wells, chief of police in Las Vegas, Nev. apparently was written 48 days after Siegel was killed in the home of wealthy Virginia Hill on June 20, 1947. Anderson said the letter men-tioned Miss Hill, a man and another woman. He declined to give their name.

In Las Vegas, Chief Wells also declined to give names or details, but quoted a portion of it: "When we had a meeting out
