Grim Picture Of Hitler Era Given Berlin

BERLIN — (AP) — The much-publicized "Battle for Berlin" turned out yesterday to be just another big Communist parade — not the threatened putsch. West had girded itself to meet the demonstration, which recalled days of Hitlerite goose-stepping, had its significant undertones, however. The West proved itself ready to meet any Red putsch and not be moved out of the city by Soviet threats. The East proved it had laid the groundwork for an automation state in East Germany, firmly in the Communist grip, by pouring out a half million youths to pay homage to Soviet Russia. Speakers for both sides were claiming victories. But there was none — only a deadlock until the next Berlin crisis. There was no Communist storming of the West sectors, as first threatened last February. Neither was the red outpouring in the East sector any flabby affair. Up the Wilhelmstrasse, past the rubble that marks the end of Hitler's reich, into Unter Den Linden where the Kaiser's legions and later the Nazi hordes used to march, came the blue-shirted youths by the tens of thousands. Hour after hour they marched through rain and sun, chanting hymns of hate against the West and praise for Communist Russia. Sandwiched in with the marching youngsters were 10,000 members of the East Zone police force which Western officials claim is the nucleus of an East German army. Tanned, rugged, and obviously army-disciplined in their dark blue uniforms and black jackboots, they looked much like the Wehrmacht forces of a few years ago. The marchers would burst into a frenzy of cheering as they passed the reviewing stand, where German and Russian Communist leaders stood. Their fathers and older brothers broke into similar frenzies 10 years ago near the same place. Most of them are dead now — following Hitler's ill-fated slip. Such memories seemed to occupy the thoughts of the few thousands of older people lining the Unter Den Linden to watch the march. The horror of war and the bitterness of defeat was still fresh in their minds. They looked chilled and apathetic as they watched the machine-like performance. It was difficult to tell about the youngsters. It was impossible to know how deeply they (See HITLER ERA, Page 2)

58 Pampa, Borger Boys Enter Derby

A total of 58 boys have been entered in the annual Soap Box Derby race to date. Thirty-seven of this number are Pampa boys with 21 contestants being entered from Borger. The entry date for the local race, which is scheduled for July 30, will soon be on hand. Entries are slated to close in early June. The race will again be sponsored in Pampa by the Culbertson Chevrolet, the Pampa Lions Club, The Pampa News, and the Chevrolet Division of General Motors. B. R. Nuckols is general chairman of this year's derby. The winner will receive a free trip to Akron, Ohio, for the National Soap Box Derby, escorted by a News employee. Boys who wish to enter this year's event may do so by signing entry blanks at the Culbertson Chevrolet building and picking up their rule books. It is expected that there will be several more boys entering now that school is out. And here is a tip about the weight of the car for the boys who are already starting to build. Design your racing car from the very outset with the maximum weight limit in mind. This was the advice given to young car-builders by officials of the All-American Soap Box Derby, who pointed out that the weight of the car and driver may not exceed 250 pounds. This rule continues unchanged from last year, and gives each boy an opportunity to build his car to complement his own weight. A heavy boy will own and build a lighter racer, while a light boy may want to build "cup" his racer to equalize his weight. (See PAMPA, Page 2)

Runoff Election in North Carolina Is Left to Runner-Up

RALEIGH, N. C. — (AP) — Another bitter battle between liberal Senator Frank P. Graham and Lawyer Willis Smith may face North Carolina Democrats. The answer lies with Smith, runner-up to Sen. Graham in Saturday's record-breaking primary balloting. Smith mulled over the question but wouldn't tell his plans. He has until June 12 to decide whether he wants a runoff. Two other senatorial candidates were eliminated and five U. S. representatives returned to office. Former Senator Robert R. Reynolds, wartime isolationist, failed in his comeback effort. The winner of the Democratic primary is assured of victory in the November general election. Graham, 63, former president of the University of North Carolina, had a 50,000 lead over Smith with most of the votes counted. But he was about 12,000 votes shy of a majority.

Trial of Texas Official Delayed

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Trial of the Texas and Georgia agriculture commissioners on charges of violating the federal lobbyist law has been postponed until June 19 in U. S. District Court here. It had been set for today. The commissioners are James E. McDonald of Texas and Tom Linder of Georgia. Others facing the same charges are Ralph W. Moore of Washington, Robert M. Harris of New York and the National Farm Committee. They are accused of lobbying in Congress for higher farm prices without registering as lobbyists as required by law. The committee is a Texas corporation, described by the government as a front for the individual defendants. This calm compared to the bloody elections of two years ago. Then some 800 were killed or wounded in the campaign. Another 100 casualties were added election day. The 1948 trouble was blamed on North Korean Communists — down from the Russian sponsored state in the north of the peninsula to disrupt formation of the republic, a United Nations sponsored state south of the 38th parallel. For half a century all of Korea was a part of imperial Japan. On the black tomorrow are the 210 seats in the National Assembly sought by 2,156 candidates. But if the assembly goes anti-Rhee there will be efforts to curb his constitutional authority. Police activity has been intense. Some 5,000 extra police have been ordered on duty tonight and tomorrow. This will be the young republic's first self-conducted national balloting. Solon Believes Move Vital to Atlantic Pact

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senator George (D-Ga.) said today that Western Germany's manpower will have to be used to build any adequate defense of Western Europe from possible Communist aggression. George, a veteran member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, made this observation in telling reporters he probably will support a Military Assistance Program (MAP) the administration is expected to present to Congress this week. On the other hand, Senator Taft (R-Ohio) criticized the re-arming of nations around Russia. He proposed instead that the United States, relying on its own strength alone, "tell the Russians that if they start aggression they're in war." "I would not arm Europe," Taft said in a television interview yesterday. "Let Europe work out its own solution. In my opinion there is only one thing that will deter Russia from war and that is a strong American air force, a strong American supply of atomic bombs." He said the whole effect of the Atlantic Pact program is to make war more probable, and added: "What I object to is undertaking by contract to arm about 20 nations all around the world, all around Russia, obviously an aggressive move." Last year when the Military Assistance Program came up in the Senate, George tried to cut its authorization from $1,000,000,000 to $500,000,000. Failing in that he voted against final passage of the bill. George said his attitude has changed largely because he believes some positive steps now are being taken to fuse Western Germany's industrial plant with that of the Atlantic Pact nations. "But we cannot rebuild adequate defenses for Western Europe without utilization of German manpower and I believe it is coming," George said. The State Department has avoided any such position in the face of its demand on Russia last week that the East Germany police force be disbanded because it has assumed the form of an army. Whooping Crane Is Feared Dead

AUSTWELL, Texas — (AP) — The first whooping crane ever born in captivity and one of only 38 in the world, had disappeared today and was presumed dead. Julian A. Howard, manager of the Audubon National Wildlife Refuge, said. Rusty was four days old. Howard said a thorough search of the entire area had revealed no trace of the bird and no clue to the cause of its disappearance. "Rusty may have fallen prey to some unknown predator which in the 150-acre enclosure cannot be completely eliminated," he said.

Six Deaths, Three Kidnappings, 500 Arrests Set Stage for Vital South Korea Elections

By O. H. P. KING SEOUL — (AP) — The little republic of Korea, born of the turmoil of World War II and a hot spot in the Asian cold war since, today wound up a quiet (for Korea) campaign for tomorrow's national elections. Six deaths, three kidnappings, 500 arrests have been reported. Among those clamped in jail were 42 candidates and 178 electioneers. The main charge was sympathy with communism. This calm compared to the bloody elections of two years ago. Then some 800 were killed or wounded in the campaign. Another 100 casualties were added election day. Memorial Rites Slated Tuesday At Cemetery

The Rev. H. H. Tyler, pastor of the First Christian Church, will be unable to speak at the Memorial services tomorrow, due to a conflicting engagement. Jones Setz, commander of the VFW stated this morning that another speaker will be secured by tomorrow, however. The services, which will be held tomorrow afternoon at Fairview Cemetery, will be sponsored by the Pampa Veterans of Foreign Wars post in cooperation with the Kerley-Crossman American Legion Post. All VFW and Legion members are requested to attend the services in service uniforms if possible. Setz said, if not, overseas caps of their organization should be worn, he added. Services will begin at 3 p. m. and will include a color guard, honor guard and bugler. R. Virgil Mott will sing several selections. Setz has requested that all business houses place their flags out in memory of the Americans who died for their country. Nearly all of the business houses will be closed, including the city offices and county court house.

Canadian Dam's Backers Meeting

Members of the Canadian River dam's steering committee, city officials from Borger, Pampa, Lubbock and Amarillo were meeting today in the Schneider Hotel with Congressman Ben H. Guill of Pampa, to get an inside track and learn definitely what Sen. Watkins' (R-Utah) objections are to construction of the dam and aqueduct. Sources close to committee members and officials reported that Guill had Watkins' objection down in "black and white" and that these would be studied before any further action would be taken.

MICHAEL LEE WILLIAM REMINGTON

O'Daniel Stays Out Of Governor's Race

FORT WORTH — (AP) — W. Lee O'Daniel says he won't enter the Texas governor's race this year — but he will devote time to telling the folks what he says is the "ul truth about their government." The ex-governor and senator, in a speech broadcast yesterday from Radio Station WBAP over the Lone Star Chain, implied he might jump back into politics in a couple of years. O'Daniel said he has gone so far in organizing his own insurance company "it would be a little embarrassing for me to announce for governor." Pappy's decision not to run leaves Casa March, ex-Baylor law professor, as the only announced candidate for the post. However, Gov. Allan Shivers is generally considered a sure bet to run. Governor Shivers, who listened to the speech at the mansion in Austin where Pappy once resided, had no comment. March took the decision as a good omen. "His failure to run will enable me to win because he would have gotten one-half the old peoples' vote," March said. "I charge that the Democrats are financing him and he's going to try to give me the works in this campaign." After the broadcast, a reporter asked O'Daniel about a rumor States Rights Democrats wanted him for governor. He answered quickly: "I'm a Democrat. If I was going to run for governor I wouldn't do it the hard way." O'Daniel said in his broadcast he has received hundreds of letters asking him to go back to the state capital. He said it would be a cinch, but that his duty is on the radio, as a private citizen, "shouting to others a warning against socialism and communism at home."

Former Fire Chief Will Not Work for Lunsford in Race

Ex-Fire Chief Ben White, who stepped from the race for justice of the peace, Precinct 2, Place 2, yesterday said he wanted to make it clear his action did not mean active campaign support for G. L. "Nat" Lunsford, another candidate in the field. White said his action seemed to lead some people to believe he would actively campaign for Lunsford and said that was not the case. White told a reporter he had called on Lunsford and asked him if he was going to run, and being assured he would, White stepped out and withdrew his name from the political calendar of "The News." Two other candidates are running for the justice court post, C. M. Tucker and W. J. Conelson.

Three Fined on Traffic Charges

Three persons were fined Monday morning in Justice of the Peace D. R. Henry's court for traffic violations. One man was fined $200 for driving an overlength vehicle on the highways. Another was fined $10 for having no operator's license. A Pampa man was fined in police court for reckless driving Sunday after striking a tree at the corner of Duncan and Christmas.

Ouster Threat Brings Probe To New Boil

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Fast-breaking weekend developments brought to a new boil today the congressional furor over charges that Communists and Communist sympathizers are working for the government. In the center of the storm stood Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, whose requests for the resignation of two trade officials accused of being security risks — Michael E. Lee and William W. Remington — were flatly rejected by both men on grounds that they could not quit under fire. Sawyer said he was not questioning the loyalty of the two men. There were sharp new clashes, too, between Senate Republicans and the Truman administration over the Communist-in-government issue. The State Department fired a fresh blast at Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) yesterday, saying he is trying to divert attention from his charges that the department harbors Reds because he "has utterly failed to prove there is a single Communist or pro-Communist" in the agency. Senator Taft (R-Ohio) jumped into the fray yesterday with the comment that the Democratic-controlled Senate committee looking into McCarthy's charges hasn't done its job properly. At Omaha, Neb., Attorney General McGrath compared McCarthy's tactics to those of Hitler's Gestapo, in a speech striking out at "witch hunts and frantic name-calling." McCarthy retorted: "The American people should be disturbed by the fact that each time the Congress tries to dig out Communists, the Justice Department screams loudly." The Commerce Department move to oust Remington and Lee was announced Saturday, Sawyer said in a statement then that his action was not intended as any reflection on the loyalty of either employe — that it was taken "in the interest of good administration."

Shivers, Moody Receive Degrees

AUSTIN — (AP) — Gov. Allan Shivers and W. L. Moody III o Galveston yesterday were awarded honorary doctor of laws degrees by St. Edwards University. Shivers, in the commencement address for the 54 graduates urged them to make politics their business. "If you shy away from politics as 'dirty business,' you will shrink from one of your greatest responsibilities," the governor said. Shivers was awarded the degree in recognition of his "success in the world of politics, to honor the high office he holds and in appreciation of the personal integrity, tact, fairness to all groups." The award to Moody recognizes his "success in the business world, an example of possible accomplishment in a free society."

Walkout Faces Chrysler in Canada Plants

WINNIPEG, Ont. (AP) — Chrysler Corp. of Canada faces a strike shutdown within a week unless it grants pensions and other benefits to its 4,000 United Auto Workers employees.

Lawyer Fred J. ... representing some 3,000 workers at three Chrysler plants here, voted yesterday to walk out June 5 or 6, 1950, if a deadlock in negotiations continues.

The union and company resumed bargaining talks today. Chrysler has announced it will make a concession to a pension plan for workers.

The union is demanding a pension plan, a hospital-medical insurance plan and contract changes.

An Ontario arbitration board recommended several weeks ago that Chrysler pay $200,000 in pension and contribute to a host of other programs.

Army Mule Victim Of 'Machine Age'

WASHINGTON (AP) — "The Army mule is a marvelous animal," said the Army's chief of staff, "but I've never seen him do anything that a jeep or bulldozer can't do better."

This will follow his report to members of Congress at an informal session in the Library of Congress Wednesday on results of the London meeting of American-British-French foreign ministers.

Acheson had an appointment today to see President Truman. Easing telling the president of the results of meetings in London he presumably wanted to talk over his report to Congress.

Senator George's change of attitude toward the military aid proposal seemed to reflect likely acceptance by the Senate of any reasonable foreign arms aid proposed by the administration.

Taft told a reporter he probably will vote against the program, which he opposed last year, but won't lead any fight against it this year.

Some other Republicans are expected to oppose the principle of continued arms aid to other nations, but administration leaders remained confident they can obtain Senate approval without a major fight.

HITLER ERA

Soviet hate-the-West propaganda had sunk into their minds. Some looked as though they would have traded the whole affair for a couple of oranges or a stick of candy. They were wet, cold and probably would much rather have been at home, or sightseeing on their own.

Others had the attitude of fanatics. There was no doubt of one fact, however. All were automata firmly in the grip of their Communist leaders. They cheered when they were supposed to and did as they were told, without question, if not with enthusiasm.

Groups of folks police stood on certain corners, giving organized cheers for the marching youths.

The bareheaded youngsters, who swept 32 abreast up to the Lustgarten, carried banners blaring forth the prescribed jargon against the West.

The banners ridiculed everything from American chewing gum to American magazines. They attacked "Anglo-American heroes" in the Soviet zone uranium mines.

American culture was lampooned with a sketch of female wrestlers pulling hair.

In the Lustgarten itself Wilhelm Pieck, deputy prime minister and Communist strong man of East Germany, led off the oratory.

Hailing Stalin as "the greatest and best friend of the German people," Pieck told the shouting children that the "imperialist foreign ministers" had tried to "get Germany's youth for cannon fodder and use West Germany as a base for a new war."

AEC Employs Peak Number of Experts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission says its present team of scientists and engineers is the largest in the program's history.

The weight of every major part that makes up the car should be determined before the car is put together. The floorboard being the largest single piece, is important from a weight standpoint.

Wheels and springs take assembly, bearing assembly, body frame and covering are other major parts whose weight should be considered carefully.

A little extra in planning about the proper weight will save time in the end. When excess weight is discovered after the car is completed, you may find it difficult to bring the car's weight back to the proper limit.

Weight may be built into the Shop Box Derby racing cars if light styrofoam is used to approach the 250-pound total weight limit.

The new official Rule Book of the AAU American Soap Box Derby is available at this point.

Red River Levees To Be 60 Feet High

WASHINGTON (AP) — Red River backwater levees, under construction to protect three Louisiana parishes, will be 60 feet high instead of 45 feet.

The decision by army engineers to add the extra six feet was announced by Rep. Otis Passman (La.). He said this would cost several million dollars.

This is an extremely important decision for Concordia parish and parts of Catahoula and Franklin parishes. It will mean they will be completely sealed off from flood waters which cause a million dollars in damage every spring. It will give the areas complete protection," he added.

Shaking Paint Can Reduces Skinning

After a can of paint or enamel has once been opened, a "skin" sometimes forms on its surface. Skinning may be reduced by shaking the can after you have closed it. Never shake a can just before you re-open it, however.

Be sure to remove, first, any skin that may have formed during storage. To make sure that no particles of the skin remain to mar the smooth coating you will apply, strain the paint through a strainer you've obtained from your dealer — or through cheesecloth, fine wire screening or an old stocking.

Ingenuity in Design Makes Small House More Livable

Adapt Boy's Room To Fit His Wants

A boy of grammar-school age wants his room to be masculine. Before planning it, a knowing parent will consult the lad himself and get his own ideas as to colors and furnishings. He develops definite preferences very early. He wants his room to be simple, not fussy; grown-up, not babyish, with strong, not insipid, colors.

He'll like pickled oak, bleached or natural-finish wood furniture. A boy doesn't need many pieces, but what he does need should be practical — substantial chairs; a roomy desk or worktable; shelves for books, radio, model boats and planes.

Give him an easy chair covered in heavy beige cotton. Sturdy draperies and matching spread in rust, brown, yellow and turquoise stripes or plaid will be masculine and handsome.

To give the room a spacious look, make the walls beige. Woodwork can either match, or be stripped to its natural finish. In the matter of the floor, go all out with color. Cover the floor with asphalt tile in a large block pattern of alternating beige and brick-red.

FIRST CAPITOL

Greatest demand of home buyers today is for the small apartment-size house, because there are so many new small families. To make the small house livable, architects have contrived ingenious design ideas. Partitions between rooms are often eliminated, or thinner ones used. A 2" saving on each side of a partition may appear trivial, but the average small house has 66' of partition walls, and 2" saved on each side amount to 22 square feet.

By opening the front door into a small vestibule, or directly into the living-room, the hallway is eliminated. By placing windows carefully, greater space to accommodate furniture groupings is achieved. A single large picture-window requires less wall space than several small windows, and also creates an effect of spaciousness in a small room. Storage cabinets, dining area from living-room, a storage wall separates kitchen from dining area. This arrangement throws three rooms together into a single large open space, rather than three cramped ones.

Intelligent use of color also gives rooms a look of greater space. Color values are kept light to impart cheer and to avoid an oppressive sense of crowding. Pastels on walls and matching woodwork is the first step toward this end. Using a single color throughout a room for walls, draperies and furniture slipcovers is a device of interior designers to keep the small room uncluttered.

Designers and architects consider floor color an integral part of the room plan. The famous flooring authority, David E. Kennedy, has worked out hundreds of decorative floor patterns with asphalt tile. This material comes in such a wide range of marbled and plain colors that it can harmonize with the plan of any room. In small rooms, stripes worked out in light and dark shades of asphalt tile will give width to the room.

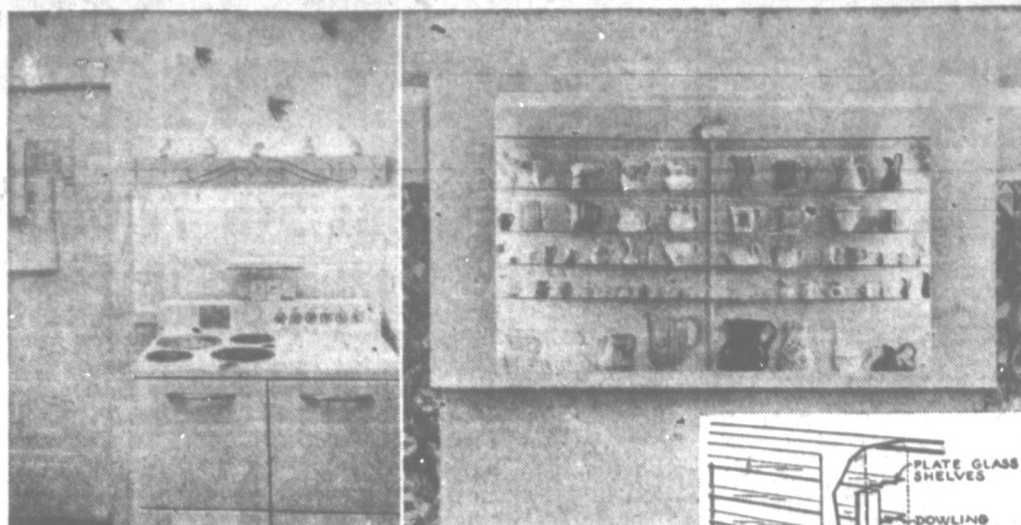

Another space-saver for small houses is the smaller-sized heating unit and the reduced size of radiators and using war-air grilles in walls; or hot-water coils embedded in the concrete floor, or steam baseboard radiators which circulate steam or hot water.

Kitchens are most compact. Their wall cupboards extend to the ceiling, with shelves placed at various levels so that bulky articles can be stored alongside of low stacks of dishes. Revolving shelves are placed in cabinets where they join at a corner. Cupboard doors slide instead of swinging out. All this saves space, steps, work and time and goes to make today's small house as comfortable to live in as a larger, more expensive one.

Epidemic Feared In Quake-Hit City

CUZCO, Peru — (AP) — Threat of a typhus epidemic hovers today over this ancient Andes capital, still reeling from the effect of last week's earthquake in which at least 83 persons were killed and another 200 injured. Already eight cases are being treated in Cuzco's only hospital. Pneumonia also is prevalent.

Thousands of persons, terrified by recurring minor tremors, have fled to the Andes Mountains. Others have been kneeling in the city square praying before the statue of the lord of earthquakes. The U.S. Caribbean Command announced it is flying 42,000 pounds of blankets and first aid supplies to the quake victims.

LIGHTED SHELF UNITS, MADE AT HOME, HELP BEAUTIFY ANY ROOM

If you're one of those many people who find themselves straining to see at the bathroom mirror, you can easily speed up shaving and make-up operations by making certain that your mirror is well lighted.

Long lines of fluorescent light at each side of the bathroom mirror can be added to even the most sited bathroom without too much rewiring or expense. One of the sleekest of these new fluorescent brackets, the 20-watt one, has highly polished endcaps and rectangular housing for its necessary auxiliary equipment. The trim design enables the bracket to lie flat against the wall, one of the features which people who do not prefer protruding light sources appreciate most.

When mounting these or any other fluorescent bracket General Electric home lighting specialists

Proper Lighting of Bathroom Mirrors Provides Comfort

Proof that many handsome and practical household built-ins can be lighted successfully with a little basement workshop "know-how" is evidenced by the lighted shelf-units pictured above.

As almost any household handyman will readily admit, many of the ideas and most of the incentive come from the home-maker still be in darkness and the homemaker would still be stirring her shadow into each pot and pan.

Following suggestions of General Electric residential lighting people, this handyman created a handy shelf with concealed, fluorescent lighting that serves as both a decorative and functional addition to the trim red and white kitchen.

The length of the shelf is, of course, determined by the size of the range. A fluorescent lamp, complete with wired channel strip, is mounted underneath the shelf itself. The top surface of the shelf is of frosted glass to allow soft upward lighting for decorative effect.

The lighted wall cabinet on the right above grew out of a desperate effort to confine a pitcher collection which one wife had scattered through several rooms.

As you can see by the drawing on the lower right, this built-in cabinet has plate glass shelves, supported by a clear plastic rod in the center. Two 20-watt fluorescent lamps, again in wired channels, were mounted vertically at each side of the cabinet. Notice how the shelf is designed to allow the lamps are completely hidden from view.

Not only does this compact wall cabinet provide a convenient and attractive storage area for the pitcher collection, but, it also dresses up an otherwise dull space between two dining room windows.

If you don't happen to have a handyman in your household and would like to adapt these ideas for your own home, why not clip out this story with its drawings and get a local carpenter to build your shelf or cabinet for you.

A neighborhood electrical shop will have the wired channel (which includes all of the necessary auxiliary equipment and sockets, cord and switch) and

Planning of Home Laundry Can Make Work Pleasanter

If the home laundry space is properly planned, the work is pleasanter and easier.

Since the average home laundry is in the basement, additional light is needed. Daylight fluorescent tubes make good basement lighting. Place the ironer beneath the window and other equipment as near it as possible. Straight-line arrangement of the equipment is the labor-saver. The washer comes first in line, the dryer next and then the ironer, so that clothes may be moved from one unit to the next with minimum effort.

Light-reflecting colors are a logical choice for basement walls. Sunny yellow, pastel green or blue, dusty pink or any other light shades are good light-reflectors. (Dark shades absorb light.) Pale green is cool and cheerful. With it as a wall color, try washable plastic curtains with a red design for contrast. Hang them on either side of the window, but not over it, and let them hang straight down.

To bring still more color into the laundry, the wall and curtain colors of pastel green and red can be carried out in the floor covering of Kente asphalt tile. The tiles may be laid in a pattern of red stripes running diagonally across the floor on a green ground. The asphalt tile pattern will make work easier because it is impervious to water dripping on it, wipes dry instantly with a mop, and will never fade. It will cut down foot-fatigue, because it is resilient and pleasant to walk upon.

While modernizing the laundry, take advantage of the opportunity to install wall storage cabinets. These can hold soaps, brushes, electric irons, extension cords, and other articles and supplies. Place the cabinets near the point where they are most used.

continue furnishing drugs, medical, surgical and dental care, with or without charges, to employees.

"That fire drills be held regularly."

Cavness said the buildings, which house mentally retarded children and aged men and women, are "all fire hazards (except the two doctor's homes built by the state)" because they are of frame construction and most of them have tar paper sides. Cavness commended the institution's clean kitchens and dining rooms and apparently plentiful, wholesome, well prepared food. He also found the beauty shop, ice and cold storage plant, and laundry well maintained.

The institution "is receiving excellent cooperation from citizens in the surrounding communities and this makes for more pleasant living conditions for students, patients and employees," he said.

State Auditor Gives State Institution Recommendations

AUSTIN — (AP) — Twenty-one recommendations for improved operation of the Meza State School and Home have been made by the state auditor. His report covered two fiscal years.

Suggestions offered by State Auditor C. H. Cavness to Gov. Allan Shivers, the Legislature, the State Board of Control, and the State Hospital Board included these:

1. "That more thought and attention be given in employing personnel."
2. "That each employee be assigned duties in accordance with his title."
3. "That the management pay more attention to encumbrances and expenditures of appropriations."
4. "That only employees under bond be allowed to receive and receipt for cash."

Correct Plan and Materials Reduce Home Building Costs

Keep the layout of a house simple and select materials that will save waste motions if you want to cut home building costs.

That's the advice of lumber dealers who list waste motion as one of the costliest phases of home building. Without sacrificing quality, larger or more interior can be built today, they say, if care is exercised in planning and selecting materials.

Keeping the plan and elevations as free of breaks as possible is the first step. The nearly square or rectangular plan is cheapest. A simple gable roof without dormers is least expensive, because every change in a roof line adds extra cutting, fitting, roofing and flashing.

Trussed rafter construction, spanning outer walls, permits the finishing of interior without waiting for partitions and framing. The use of trusses alone are reported to save as much as 5 percent.

Open planning of rooms and the use of dwarf partitions—walls that don't reach to the ceiling—and built-in storage compartments are methods used to minimize interior walls and costly closets. This also means a saving in time and materials required to trim and hang doors.

Double duty materials play an important part today in getting more for your building dollar. Insulating board sheathing, for example, is being widely used instead of ordinary sheathing because it insulates as it builds. Another product, insulating board lath, serves a dual purpose inside the house where it is used as a plaster base and added insulation.

The cost of roughing in plumbing for a small house can be cut in half if bathrooms, kitchen and laundry are centralized. Much economy in plumbing can be achieved merely by planning a kitchen and bathroom back-to-back, or in the case of a two-story house, by placing the bathroom directly above the kitchen.

Stairs that bend, wind or change direction with a landing cost more than a straight flight. Stock windows of simple design, bunched in twos and threes not only look better, but cost less.

The trend is to use materials that do not require regular decoration and expensive paints. Pre-decorated materials like insulating board tiles and planks are ideal wall coverings for dens and bedrooms because they build, insulate and decorate in one low-cost operation.

Let's Talk Things Over With Gabby Garrison

At the beginning of the current baseball campaign, various sports scribes around the country began picking the various teams in both major leagues, and some town writers got their two-bits in by picking favorites in the numerous minor leagues. But, at this point, it seems that most of the reporters almost missed the boat in the American League, in that the incredible Detroit Tigers and the patched-up New York Yankees are the two front running teams. Meanwhile, the favored Boston Red Sox are having a rough time of it. But still the sports columnist's cry that the two leaders will fall to pieces in the heat of the race. Well, maybe they will, but I doubt it.

Manager Red Rolfe has done a remarkable job with his Detroit Tigers, especially since he started the season with no right side of the infield, to speak of. But now, it seems that the only thing he lacks is hitting at first base and Dick Krynoski, a relatively new hand at the initial sack, is improving greatly. Then there is the outfield combination of Vic Wertz, Hoot Evers, and Johnny Groth who have pooled their talents in providing the Bengals with one of the most feared batting lineups in the American League. Wertz hits number four in Rolfe's batting order, and Evers is number five. An example of their punch is that on their recent trip to the East in which neither slugger went hitless in the eight game trip. In fact, they had identical 21 game hitting streaks when the Tigers dug in for their home stand. Wertz came through on single in the eighth inning, driving the winning run home that beat St. Louis, 1 to 0. It's things like that, that's going to keep the Tigers near the top all year.

Other developments have also encouraged Tiger partisans. Just when it seemed that Virgil Trucks had lost his finishing touch after being knocked out of the box in four straight games, the big Alabamian tossed his 11 - inning shut out of the Browns. Freddy Hutchinson and Ted Gray, two newcomers, are also delivering in very promising fashion. Art Houtteman, is easily the number one hurler, but Hal Newhouse may return to the top spot once his shoulder gets back in shape. The shoulder was injured in spring practice, and has not completely healed yet, although Hal started his first game on May 14. He was pounded out in three innings, on that occasion and decided to rest awhile before trying again. He has, since then, turned in one creditable performance.

Rolfe has made a running club out of the Tigers, something they haven't been for years. He didn't spend all those years under Joe McCarthy for nothing, although, unlike many standout players who failed as managers, he does not expect the help to do everything as well as he could. All he asks is their best, and if the Tigers give Red Rolfe that, he'll take them a long way. So don't lose any money. Those Tigers are not to be counted out.

Then there's the New York Yankees. Probably one of the most surprising teams in major league history, Casey Stengel's Yanks will probably not be mistaken twice in the same error, although some writers are already saying that "it can't happen again." After all, Stengel only has such stars as Joe Di Maggio, Tom Henrich, Cliff Mapee, Gene Woodling, Phil Rizzuto, Yogi Berra, Bobby Brown, and many more too numerous to mention. He only has such hurriers as Vic Raschi, Joe Page, Tommy Byrne, Ed Lopat, Al Reynolds and Bob Porterfield. But, still, it's said, they can't win, when the season gets older. A year ago today, the Yanks had a 23-11 record. Yesterday, it was 22-9 and they had just lost their first game since May 14.

Last year may have been the closest race in history, but along about August 30, when all the cards are on the table, you can certainly bet on the New York Yankees and the Detroit Tigers holding a full house, loaded with talent, and the cards will not be stacked either.

Stoney Jackson was on second, Freddie Lindstrom on first when I hit a ball down the left field foul line at the Polo Grounds.

As I rounded first base, I saw Jackson scoring, and I took off for second and slid into the bag.

There, to my utter amazement, I found Lindstrom.

"You made a great slide," he said, "but one of us is out."

If I could have dug a hole and jumped into it instead of returning to the dugout, I would have done so.

Rogers Hornsby was running the club during the illness of John McGraw, which is why I know this happened in 1927, my second season with the Giants.

That is the only year Hornsby was with us.

Whatever Hornsby told me it wasn't half as much or as bad as what McGraw would have said.

Longhorn Defense Of Baseball Title Starts With Cats

AUSTIN — (AP) — Texas starts defense of its National Collegiate Baseball title June 5, 6, and 7 with a district playoff series with Arizona's potent Wildcats.

The Longhorns, champions of the Southwest Conference, are host for the three game series to determine district six's representative in the National Collegiate Athletic Association Baseball Tournament.

Because the series will be played here on Clark Field's diamond, Big Falb's Longhorns will be favored. But there's really not much difference in the records of the two teams.

Arizona has won 27 games, lost two and tied one; Texas has won 20 and lost four.

Patty Berg at Playing Best In Tournament

NEWTON, Mass. — (AP) — Patty Berg of Chicago, who spent January and February recovering from a physical and nervous breakdown, today described her victory in the Women's Eastern Open Golf Tournament as "the best three rounds of golf I can remember playing."

Patty, 32-year-old former Marjory, had been bemoaning her golf play until she pocketed $750, her share of the $3,000 prize money in the tournament which ended yesterday at Woodland Golf Club.

Patty shot a one over men's par 72 yesterday for a 54 hole total of 217, one stroke better than runnerup Babe Didrikson Zaharias who won the first Eastern Tournament last year.

"My driving was poor and I couldn't putt at all," Patty said. "I was quite discouraged until, suddenly, I got it back."

"Those are the best three rounds I've had in the ten years I've been a pro," added the 1938 National Amateur Champion and National Open Titleist of 1946.

Mrs. Zaharias went out in 34 yesterday, two under men's par and had a two stroke lead over Miss Berg after 48 holes.

But the Babe could do no better than par on the tenth, losing a stroke of her advantage. She fell back even with Patty on the 14th where her drive hooked to a hill and she carded a five to Miss Berg's four.

Babe's drive on the narrow sixteenth hit a spectator and stayed in the woods. The needed safety shot resulted in a one over par five and that's where the title actually changed hands.

Louise Buggs of Atlanta, who held the lead after the first day, and who was fourth after the second round with a 148 total, carded a 76 yesterday to finish fifth.

Alice, the elder of the pretty Bauer sisters from Midland, Texas, equalled Miss Jameson's 76 and finished one shot ahead of her with a 223 score.

Marlene, 16-year-old Bauer gal, registered a deuce eagle on the 300 yard first hole and finished the closing round with a 75 as she finished sixth with a 54-hole score of 230.

Sweeney Winner In Clovis Tourney

CLOVIS — (AP) — Wilson Sweeney, former Clovis City Golf Champion, won the title again yesterday afternoon by trimming Zade Watkins, the medalist, 2 and 1. Sweeney went into the finals by defeating Paul Jones, the defending champion, 3 and 2.

Bob Sween won the championship consolation with a 6 and 7 win over Johnnie Mack Goodman.

Jim Burns took the first flight championship with a 3 and 2 win over Dale Campbell, and Paul Meador won the consolation without picking up a club. He was counted out in championship play by default, went into the consolation, and won the title when all his opponents defaulted too.

Technical Nonsense Makes Golf Seem More Difficult Than It Is

By GENE SARAZEN
Winner of Them All

Golf has been made to seem much more difficult than it is. This has been — and is — most harmful.

When the average golfer hears or reads about "the lateral movement of the hips" or "the shifting of the preponderate weight to the left side and left heel," and other technical nonsense, he becomes discouraged and bewildered.

Written instruction can be very helpful when it sticks to fundamentals which apply to all. Few instruction books do this.

The expert, infatuated with an action shot showing some phase of the swing, points out to the student that the reader will notice that as his club descends there is a sudden pulling down of the left shoulder and a pronounced straightening of the right forearm, while the toe of the right foot gradually curves away toward Mecca.

The expert doesn't think of these things when he is hitting the ball or he wouldn't be an expert long.

I believe that the fundamentals which apply to all can be told simply and understandably.

Anyway, this is what I am setting out to do.

Albuquerque Routs Clovis, 11-6, 13-5

CLOVIS — (AP) — The Albuquerque Dukes routed the Clovis Pioneers 11-6 and 13-5 in a double bill here Sunday afternoon to sweep a three-game series.

Jordan Pitta relieved Steve Lagomarsino in the fourth inning of the initial contest and received credit for the victory. Pitta and Lagomarsino were wild, issuing nine walks between them.

The latter was yanked after passing Jess Rogerson and committing two consecutive balks.

Don Canell coasted to an easy victory in the nightcap after the Dukes went on a rampage with an 11-run second inning. The Dukes battered Ed Garrett and Ken Motley for 10 hits and 13 runs in the first two frames and then were held off the score sheet for the remainder of the game by leftfielder Don Gerey who took over Pioneer mound duties in the third.

Four home runs were smashed. Rogerson and Paul Flores poled roundtrippers for the Pioneers in the first game, George hitting one for the Dukes. Al Carr clouted for the circuit for the Dukes in the last affair.

Field Rated Close Tomorrow For Indianapolis Speed Race

By DALE BUGGESS

INDIANAPOLIS — (AP) — Nobody is likely to run away from the field — as Jules Goux did in 1913 — in tomorrow's 500-mile automobile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. The cars are too much alike.

Time trials that ended yesterday produced the best-balanced, fastest lineup of the 34 Memorial Day sweepstakes. The 33 cars averaged 131.045 miles an hour, compared with last year's previous record of 128.361.

The field matches 17 veteran speedway drivers against 10 first-time starters and six who were initiated to the grid last year.

The death of the lineup is Mauri Rose of South Bend, Ind., starting for the 14th time and hoping to become the first four-time winner.

The youngest is Jerry Hoyt, of Indianapolis, 21 years old and dreaming of becoming a not a better sensation like Louis Meyer in 1928, Jimmy Murphy in 1922 or Frank Lockhart in 1926.

Mechanically, the contest will send 32 four-cylinder cars against a lone six-cylinder diesel to be driven by Jimmy Jackson of Dearborn, Mich., Calif. All will be conventional rear-drive racers except Rose's Howard Keck special and the Blue Crown specials to be driven by Bill Holland of Reading, Pa., the 1949 winner, and Tony Bettenhausen of Tinley Park, Ill.

The out-numbered newcomers yielded nothing to the old timers in three weekends of time trials. Walt Faulkner of North Long Beach, Calif., set a 10-mile qualification record of 134.848 miles an hour in the Grants Piston Ring special.

Cecil Green of Houston, Texas, had the second fastest time trial of 132.910 miles an hour in the John Zink special. Fred Agabashian of Albany, Calif., qualified for his third "500" with the third fastest time, 132.792.

Bill Schindler of Freeport, L.I., 41-year-old veteran of the dirt tracks but a speedway novice, was the sensation of the last qualifying weekend. An artificial leg didn't keep him from qualifying the Auto Shippers special at 132.791 miles an hour, fourth-best of the field.

Apart from Faulkner's phenomenal 10-mile qualifying run, the spread of the field ranged only from Green's 132.910 to Jackson's 129.209.

Jackson's Cummins Diesel special is the first diesel in the field since 1934, when the top speed for that type of engine was 105 miles an hour. The big green car was rated a distinct threat to win on durability, proven in more than 860 miles of test runs on the speedway.

Bettenhausen Established as Darkhorse in Annual Classic

By CHET HAGAN
NEA Special Correspondent

INDIANAPOLIS — (NEA) — If you're looking for a dark-horse winner in the Indianapolis Speedway 500-mile race, May 30, pick the fellow with the fine German name of Bettenhausen — Tommy Bettenhausen.

Long regarded as one of the finest drivers of big cars on the nation's dirt tracks, Bettenhausen of Tinley Park, Ill., has never had an Indianapolis car to match his ability as a chauffeur.

This year he's behind the wheel of one of Lou Moore's superb Blue Crown Specials — the same car driven to victories in 1947-48 by Mauri Rose.

With that powerhouse under him, Tony is a distinct threat to win.

Rose has left the Moore stable, as Bettenhausen will team with Bill Holland, the 1949 winner, and George Connor, the veteran speedster from Los Angeles.

HOLLAND'S CAR FASTER
Moore had his drivers qualify the Blue Crown Specials on the first day of time trials on the two-and-a-half mile brick track. All three turned the 10-mile test at an average speed of better than 130 miles per hour.

Holland, who finished second to Rose in '47-48, said his car was faster than it was when he set a new mark of 121.327 miles an hour over the entire 500 miles last year. If that's so, then it's reasonable to assume that Moore has all of his cars ready to go with more power than last year, thereby increasing Bettenhausen's chances.

There's little doubt that Holland and Rose will be the favorites on Memorial Day.

Rose has hooked onto another fast car, the Howard Keck Special from Los Angeles. In the first day of time trials he wheeled the big powerhouse around the famous oval at an average of 132.319 miles an hour for the 10 miles, faster than any of the qualifying times of the Moore cars.

But time trials aren't truly indicative of what's in store.

A newcomer to Indianapolis, Walt Faulkner of North Long Beach, Calif., set a new time trial record of 134.343 miles per hour in his Grant Piston Ring Special.

The odds are against a recit-winning, however, for experience is every bit as important as a fast car in the tricky endurance test.

Walt Faulkner may have the speed, but Tony Bettenhausen has both speed and experience

Bell HD Club Holds Various Spring Functions

Mrs. David Collis was hostess to the Bell Home Demonstration Club in regular meeting on May 24. Six month reports were given by all committee chairmen.

During the social period a pink and blue shower was given for Mrs. Henry Urbanczyk, Mrs. Nolan Cole and Mrs. Charles Warminski.

Refreshments were served to Meses. T. H. Kelly, Carl Smith, Roland Daler, T. D. Anderwald, Walter Noel, D. W. Swain, Emmett Osborne, H. C. Duesterhaus, Lloyd Collis, Grayce Morris, David Collis, the honorees and guests, D. A. Rife, Irvin Cole, and F. L. Heiduk of White Deer.

The annual Mothers Day tea was held recently in the David Collis home in Pampa by the Bell Home Demonstration Club.

The tea table was laid in crystal and centered with a bouquet of white daisies. Green and yellow mints, white cake and tiny May baskets filled with nuts were served and Mrs. Emmett Osborne poured punch.

Mrs. David Collis sang "Mother Machree" and "Ave Maria." Mrs. Charles Warminski discussed the Madonna Mother, and Mrs. L. G. Seitz and Mrs. M. Manas were honored as the mothers present having the most children.

Guests were Mrs. L. G. Seitz, Mrs. M. Manas, Mrs. Lilla Parry, and Mrs. J. B. Jones and members, Mrs. Roland Daler, Grayce Morris, D. Swain, Walter Noel, Carl Smith, David Collis, Charles Warminski and Emmett Osborne.

Handwork and hat making were studied recently when the Bell HD Club met in the home of Mrs. Tom Anderwald. The club president, Mrs. Emmett Osborne, brought the meeting to order with the members reciting the club prayer. Bell call was answered with "Hints in Good Grooming."

The most used decorative stitch is the simple running stitch," said Mrs. T. H. Kelley as she began her 20-minute demonstration on handwork. "Designs may be stamped by the worker, or commercial designs can be purchased. Oftentimes one may bring out beauty and harmony in garments that would otherwise remain dull, severe, or just plain, by using simple decorative stitches." Mrs. Kelly made and demonstrated all different types of stitches for the club members to see.

Mrs. T. D. Anderwald said, "Men want prettiness combined with style in a hat. Hats even change the silhouette, and they frame the face and introduce contrasting or harmonizing colors close to the eyes, hair, or skin. Hats also confine hair to give well groomed appearance as express personality. They complete and add character to many different kinds of clothes." She added, "Always wear a design that looks well with your figure." The points on decorating hats are: first, use nylon net and have the band in proportion to the hat. Second, consider the flowers carefully and above all don't use huge clusters of flowers but take them apart and arrange them properly.

Mrs. Charles Warminski showed a hat which she had completed in about an hour. It was made with one yard of material and one and one-half inch milliner's cord to fit the individual head size. She said, "Just ask a clerk to fit you in a hat to suit your personality, and see how amusing the results will be."

Refreshments were served to the Mesdames: Ernest McKnight, Walter Noel, Nolan Cole, Joe Keel, Carl Smith, Roland Daler, Emmett Osborne, Lloyd Collis, H. C. Duesterhaus, Henry Urbanczyk, David Collins, D. W. Swain, Charles Warminski and Anderwald.

Thirteen members and three guests attended the program given at recreational park on freezing and preparing food for the home or commercial lockers. Frozen meats and vegetables were cooked and served to the group by the International Harvester Company. The company working with the home demonstration agent gave these demonstrations which were open to the public.

LT. COL. HAROLD P. MADSEN, "spiritual special" for The Salvation Army Southern Territory, will be in Pampa to conduct a week of revival meetings beginning May 30 and running through June 4. Col. Madsen has conducted spiritual campaigns in almost every city of the 15 states that make up the Southern Territory. These meetings have been arranged in order to meet the spiritual needs that are so evident today, and are open to the public.

TEEN-TALK

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newfeatures

So you think you are in love? Well, maybe you only think so. According to Ralph G. Eckert, author of a piece on the subject in a Public Affairs Pamphlet, very few people know true love—even when they stumble over it.

It seems that most of us have got the wrong idea of love. We develop a romantic pattern from love songs, novels and motion pictures. "First-sight love" is a Hollywood gives us a pretty unrealistic picture of true love.

People do not "fall into love." They grow into love, contends the pamphlet. A girl who is just beginning to date is impressed by a boy who says nice things to her. He makes her feel so wonderful, she thinks she's in love. Actually he has just made her love herself a little bit more.

But if she is nice to him, and they continue to make each other feel respected and admired, and decide they enjoy each other in many kinds of situations, this can gradually grow into love, says Mr. Eckert.

Physical affection such as dancing, necking or petting is a fooler when it comes to telling whether you're in love. A good test is the test of separation. If you feel the same way about a person after you have been separated from him for weeks or months, that would be a good indication.

Another test is the test of companionship. Do you find that you have a lot in common? If you enjoy doing things as friends, that is a good sign.

One girl put her boyfriend to this test before becoming engaged: She invited him to her home every night for a few weeks and had him help her with the dishes. Then they settled down to an evening at the radio and reading papers — to see if they could "take it."

Another cause of confusion is the romantic belief that "when the right person comes along, you'll know it." One girl who received a proposal from a boy who was overseas during the war said, "Why, we're more like brother and sister." They had gone through school together, lived next door to each other and played together "but it just never occurred to us to have a date," said the girl.

However, the boy had done some pretty heavy thinking, had decided she was wonderful, and he'd like to marry her, so "he popped the question."

The girl said: "Mel's a wonderful fellow, but could you really love anyone you know that well? Mr. Eckert says, "You can't love anyone until you do know him that well."

Ann Francis, 19-year-old-television star, has decided acting in pictures can be dangerous. Anne won a featured role in a picture, "So Young, So Bad." Then her troubles began. In one scene taken on a Long Island farm, she suffered sun stroke. In another Paul Henreid was supposed to rescue her as she lay half submerged in a pool of water. Henreid tried to pick her up but couldn't. Then he discovered she was standing on her hand. Anne had remained silent for fear of ruining the take.

In a scene where she was supposed to play softball, she hit one ball right into the camera lens and smashed it. As she walked off the field, she was hit on the head by another batter. Anne is happy to be back on television again, and trying to forget that her picture colleagues remember her as Calamity Jane.

Marlene Medjuck, of Brooklyn, N.Y., passes on this date idea to other young people:

"Recently when we had slack attendance at our school dances, we decided to investigate. In questioning some of the kids we discovered it was shyness that kept them from going. So we decided to form a date bureau for dances. We are having a second, third and fourth term interperson and already the date bureau box is filled with applications handed in by both sexes. The application consists of name, address, phone number, age, term, height and any preferences of our idea and its success, and pass it on to other high school students."

Ships in Bottles Interesting Hobby

LONG BEACH, Calif. — (AP) — Gauss Loper has a full rigged ship mounted inside a five-gallon water bottle. He has another in a one-eighth-ounce bottle so tiny his wife wears it as a pin. He has more than a score of miniature brigades, barques, brigantines, brigantines and schooners mounted in bottles of intermediate sizes.

Loper both makes and collects models of famed sailing ships, all in bottles. He plans to create a fleet of the various types of sailing craft. "They'll last a thousand years," he says. "That's one of the gratifying things about this work."

Truman Water Body Is Invited to Texas

AUSTIN — (AP) — The president's water resources policy committee was invited yesterday to hold a hearing in Austin.

The invitation was issued by Senator Rogers Kelley, chairman of the Texas Water Code Committee. It was authorized by the committee at a meeting earlier last week.

The president's commission will hold several sectional meetings. Kelley said the nature of Texas' water problems were such that a special hearing in this state is indicated.

Town Doesn't Know How Far It Goes

SOCORRO, N.M. — (AP) — Census Chief Orlando Aragon for Socorro County says he's having a bit of trouble with this town's census.

It seems nobody knows where the city limits are.

Aragon says this is the first case to come to his attention in which a community did not know where it left off. He hopes to find a map said to have existed years ago.

The census taker predicts Socorro may reach 5,000 after the limits are determined.

'The Body' Bequeathing Opportunity to Marie McDonald

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — "I wish they would bury 'The Body' and leave Marie McDonald," sighed beautiful, blonde Marie.

"It was wonderful," she recalled. "I became famous overnight. It was right after Frank Sinatra was dubbed 'The Voice' and then there was a whole cycle of tags. I didn't realize that it would later turn into a hand-cup."

"Like so many publicity ideas, this one boomeranged. Now I'm stuck with 'The Body' and Marie McDonald was lost in the shuffle."

The glamor girl complained that she isn't the type to fit her unwanted handle. "The Body" is a seductive femme fatale, the other woman," she declared. "It's contrary to my real personality."

"I don't mind their publicizing my figure. And I wouldn't mind 'The Body' so much if they would add a work like 'heavenly' to it. After all, Betty Grable hasn't done so badly on 'The Legs.' But Betty is always the sweet heroine, despite the sexy publicity."

"Marie McDonald is a light-hearted, happy-go-lucky character." She lamented that producers always cast her as the other woman. She really wants to do light comedies and musicals, such as her current one, "Hit Parade of 1951." But she realizes she'll still have trouble escaping "The Body."

"It was wonderful," she recalled. "I became famous overnight. It was right after Frank Sinatra was dubbed 'The Voice' and then there was a whole cycle of tags. I didn't realize that it would later turn into a hand-cup."

Former Queen Is Made Saint By Pope Pius

VATICAN CITY — (AP) — Jeanne de Valois, ousted as queen of France by a royal husband who despised her deformity, was raised to sainthood yesterday by Pope Pius XII.

While 11 cardinals and 75 bishops looked on in St. Peter's basilica, the pontiff elevated the deformed wife of King Louis XII to the rank of saint. She met public humiliation with gentle fortitude and devoted her life to good works four centuries ago.

Some 40,000 Holy Year pilgrims, including 25,000 from France and French Africa, gathered in the Basilica for the canonization — fourth of the Holy Year.

Born partly deformed, Jeanne was banished to a distant castle by her father, Louis XI, who loathed her. Later for political ends, he forced his daughter to marry Louis, duke of Orleans, his second cousin, who later became king.

Her husband met Jeanne's affection with public insults and soon after he gained the throne he had the marriage annulled. Jeanne then founded the order of Annonciades and took the vows of a nun toward the end of her life.

The pope appealed to men "to learn that virtue, and not earthly grace, is the sweetest and most profitable way to bring them happiness." The pontiff fixed Feb. 4 anniversary of her death in 1505 — as her saint's day.

CAIRO, Egypt — (AP) — An Egyptian medical student went berserk during an exam yesterday and attacked three professors — two of them British — with a pistol.

Police said the assailant, Tamer El Nafrawi, shot British Professor Richard Wheeler Haines in the arm and Mahmoud El Barrowy, Egyptian lecturer, in the hand. He then clubbed Dr. Douglas E. Derry, 70-year-old Egyptologist, with the pistol butt. Derry was one of the archaeologists who discovered the famed tomb of king Tut-Ankh-Amen in 1922.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

Discard Meldable Cards

By OSWALD JACOBE
Written for NEA Service

"I watched a very good player the other night," relates a Cincinnati reader, "and noticed that she habitually discarded cards that matched her closed canastas. For example, she would have a canasta of Kings and would pick up an extra king. Instead of melding it, she would discard it as quickly as she could."

"I didn't like to ask questions for fear of seeming ignorant. However, maybe you will be good enough to tell me why she did this and whether or not it was a good idea." It will be a pleasure to oblige. First, however, let me assure you that any good player loves to answer an occasional intelligent question. Just wait until the hand is over and pop your question. The person you ask will feel flattered that you came to her (or him) for advice.

Now for the question itself. Suppose you have a canasta of kings, including five kings and two wild cards. There are only three kings left in the whole deck. It isn't very likely that either opponent has two of those three kings in his hand, particularly if you have the third one yourself.

In other words, when you pick up an extra king, you can discard it with great confidence that it will not get picked up by the next player. If you melded the king (by adding it to your canasta), you would score ten points. It may cost you as much as 20 points to discard the king instead of melding it. Wouldn't you gladly pay 20 points each turn to be assured of a safe discard? Safety is actually worth a great deal more.

That's not all, however. Suppose you discard you king safely enough but that your next discard is picked up. Now your opponent has a king that he doesn't know what to do with. He can't meld it. If he keeps it in his hand, he has to make room for it by throwing a more useful card. If he discards it, your partner can pick it up — together with any other cards there may be in the discard pile.

In short, when you discard a card that matches one of your closed canastas, you are putting into the discard pile a card that your opponent cannot use immediately and that will be a thorn in his flesh if he gets it later on.

Q — We were playing two-hand Canasta. I made an insufficient meld. Can I just put the cards back in my hand without penalty, or is there a penalty as there is in four-hand Canasta? — There is no penalty. You may put the cards back in your hand and continue the hand as though nothing had happened. In the two-hand game you haven't helped a partner by showing your cards. If anything, you have helped your opponent. Hence there is no need to penalize you.

Q — In a three-hand game, the winner collects from both opponents. Does the second-best player collect from the last man? — Both methods are used. In some games, only the winner collects. In other games the man in the middle wins from the bottom man as well. When playing with a new group, it's wise to agree beforehand which method you will use. If you forget to ask what they do, you must abide by the custom of the players.

Never Satisfied

An article in a magazine published by one of the leading oil companies tells of a new technique for locating leaks in pipelines. Until fairly recently pipeline patrol was exclusively a job of rugged men, packing 70 pounds of gear on their backs, who made their inspections by foot-power. Often it took them half a day to report trouble to headquarters, and by then a small leak might have developed into a serious loss of oil.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Morris L. Cooke, chairman of President Truman's Water Resources Policy Commission, owns a little farm in Bucks County, Pa. It is in the Hunting Owl Creek "water-erashed" to give it a fancy name.

Cooke flows into the Delaware River. The creek watershed covers about 1,000 acres, in which are less than a dozen farms.

About 12 years ago the farmer with the lowest land in the watershed came to see Mr. Cooke. He said he was getting kind of tired having his land flooded every spring, its fences swept away and a lot of driftwood and rubble piled in his meadow. He wondered if something couldn't be done about it.

Mr. Cooke asked the Department of Agriculture, and found its soil conservation experts were looking for a place to put on a demonstration. They got agreement from the 12 farmers in the Hunting Owl Creek watershed. Terraces were put in to stop gullying. Fences were taken out and the land was laid out for contour plowing, right at a cross property lines. The whole idea, as Mr. Cooke puts it, was "to keep the raindrop where it falls."

Multiplying Morris Cooke's Hunting Owl Creek watershed problem by about 2,500,000 and you have some idea of the problem before his present Water Resources Policy Commission. This seven-man commission was named by the president last Jan-

Senator Sheridan Downey of California went to Washington as a man in a hurry, beholden to the prevailing lunacy of 1948, which was a combination of Adolf Hitler, Karl Marx, and F. D. Roosevelt.

Excusing his membership in the Democratic Party, Mr. Boddy is a good American with a record of reasonable opinion, discounted, of course, by the ordinary idiocies of democratic policy in California, these days, the public gets a bargain when a Democrat is anti-Communist and regards the goofy Gooey letters as the prattle of a fool.

Whereas Miss Gahagan supported Henry Wallace for vice president in 1944, which would have made him president at Potsdam and Stalin our emperor by now, Mr. Boddy can point the finger of scorn at her for that. He also has the indorsement of Senator Downey, the retiring and repentant undercover Republican.

Success Secrets

By ELMER WHEELER

Everytime you buy a piece of Kraft Cheese you are paying tribute to the persistence, faith and ability of a man who worked as a clerk to help pay off the mortgage on his parents' home.

When at the age of 28, he had that job done, he went to Chicago and started in business for himself peddling cheese with $65, all the money he had in the world.

He started work at 3 a.m. and worked until dark, but at the end of the first year James L. Kraft found himself $3,000 in debt.

Then something happened that started Kraft on the road to phenomenal success. He was thinking about praying for his business to get better, since everything else had apparently failed. But as he thought about prayer, he suddenly realized that all his prayers in the past had consisted mostly of talking—and not much listening. But from that moment Kraft adopted a "listening" attitude—not only in prayer but toward life in general. Ideas began to come to him. He felt a guidance where before he had the feeling of "not knowing which way to turn." He adopted a "listening" attitude toward cheese itself and set about to see what cheese could teach him. In his basement he conducted experiments in pasteurization to improve cheese. He adopted a "listening" attitude toward people and learned what they needed and how he could supply their needs.

Make it a habit to "listen." Get away from the noise and the tumult regularly, quiet your mind, stop your mind from "talking" and just let it "listen." Such a simple habit may make you successful. It did James L. Kraft, and many others who have tried it.

In the last issue I was quoting from an article written by Robert M. Hutchins, Chancellor of the University of Chicago in the new magazine "Messura," a critical journal, published quarterly. In this article Dr. Hutchins makes such astounding statements as: "It (universal free compulsory education) has promoted the enslavement rather than the liberation of mankind."

That is an astounding statement for a great educator to be making since probably 95% of the people believe that the majority by way of the state can really educate the youth of the land.

In the last article I quoted Dr. Hutchins as saying that it was disputation that was the characteristic intellectual apparatus of the medieval university. Then Dr. Hutchins goes on to say: "If it is these features of the medieval university, rather than its specifically vocational interests, that helped the University of Paris to fashion the mind of the Middle Ages, we can understand why no universities since the Middle Ages have been able to duplicate the accomplishments of those which existed then."

In the essay that he wrote for the Harvard tercentenary, Etienne Gilson pointed out that the scholars of the Middle Ages wanted to universalize the faith. They had a strong belief in the universal character of rational truth. "Since faith could not possibly be proved by reason," Mr. Gilson says, "the only hope of universalizing it was to make it acceptable to reason."

The Spence measure, which has been reported favorably by the House Banking and Currency Committee but still faces a floor fight, is the key issue. It does not meet White House demands for semi-permanent controls. It relates rent ceilings until June, 1951, for cities and states which ask for them, but it lets them die next Dec. 31 for the rest of the country. In any event, they cannot be continued beyond June 30, 1951.

Mr. Boyle has tried to organize a coalition movement to defeat Representative Vito Marcantonio, the lone American Labor member in the House. He would like to destroy the incumbent Wallace revolt by knocking off the former Cabinet member's 1948 manager in the Empire State. He has already roped in Senator Glen Taylor of Idaho, Henry's running mate.

Naturally, Mr. Marcantonio is resentful and confident. He predicts that he can win over any coalition candidate. Moreover, he does not expect his Republican friends to agree to the Boyle scheme.

Why should we try to defeat Wallace? He is a prominent House Republican. "We might get a Truman rubber stamp in his place. I'd rather have Marc, who needles both of us."

DEFEAT — Chairman Marcantonio moves a Boyle amendment to the Democratic candidates for governor and U. S. senator in New York next November. Here is why: The scrappy A. L. politician is now so infuriated that he will enter his own men in both contests. Their minimum statewide vote should be at least 250,000, possibly 300,000, and most of them would be drawn from the Democrats. In a tight race, the Marcantonio ticket could easily mean the defeat of the Administration in the state.

Since President Truman's pet obsession is the defeat of Governor Dewey, assuming that he runs again, the Boyle heckling of Mr. Marcantonio can be classed as another "Missouri bull."

BATTLES — Both Senators Lucas and Myers face hard battles for reelection next November. Both represent states in which there are many large cities that demand extension of rent control. Both led the White House struggle to obtain cloture for consideration of the FEPC proposal.

Although the Illinois and Pennsylvania are well liked by the Democrats feel that they should rise above friendship in this matter. It is doubtful if they want to insure the two seats. Dr. Hutchins would like to throw a good scare into them with HARASSMENT — Even enactment of the FEPC proposal.

novel "Magister Ludii" calls this the "Age of the Digest." This is the period of the fragmentary, the topical, the diverting, the period of the uncomprehended trifle. It is a period of propaganda and publicity. It is no longer assumed that the people can think. It is known that they can be pleased or put under pressure. The education that was the hope of all democrats since the earliest times has not been enough to produce a race of thinkers; it has enabled the owners of the means of mass communication and the propagandists to sell their wares. It has not enabled the purchaser to tell shoddy goods from the genuine article. And certainly it has not enabled him to engage in any intelligent conversation with his neighbors. "Universal free compulsory education has therefore failed in a much more serious sense than merely failing to produce the results expected of it. It has produced results exactly opposite to those hoped for. It has promoted the enslavement rather than the liberation of mankind."

Cows' milk is one of the best foods for human consumption.

Such questions as the following are, therefore, highly intelligent: Q—I use certified raw milk and wonder if I were taking the risk of exposing my family to diseases like undulant fever and tuberculosis. I have been led to believe that heating milk by pasteurization destroys much of the food value. L.V.S.

A—Certified milk comes from cows which have been carefully inspected for disease and which has been collected, bottled, and distributed with the greatest possible care. Assuming that the inspection services have been good and are carried out frequently enough, such milk must be considered as relatively safe. Heating milk as is done in pasteurization does not destroy much of the food value nor does it change the taste very much. It does kill germs which may be present and it does decrease the vitamin content slightly. From the safety standpoint pasteurized milk is better; from the taste standpoint and vitamin content, certified milk is the superior.

Q—I have bronchial asthma and I am using ultraviolet blood irradiation for treatment. What do you think of this? P.W.

A—This method of treatment has been used for a long time but has not been favorably considered by most of those who have studied it impartially.

Q—Will leukoplakia in the mouth cause cancer? E.H.

A—If leukoplakia of the mouth is long-continued cancer often develops at the same point.

Q—Would you please tell me if beer and tobacco are harmful to the heart and kidneys? Mrs. R.L.

A—Beer places an extra burden on the kidneys and because of the extra pumping involved, on the heart as well. There is a doubt as to the direct effect of tobacco on the heart, but I do not know of any reason why it should be considered harmful to the kidneys.

Q—Is it true that the continual use of hair dye will cause one's hair to thin and fall off? T.R.

A—Most effective hair dyes contain chemicals to which a few people are sensitive even though most are not. It is therefore possible that a hair dye would cause loss of hair in a person who was sensitive to one of the chemical ingredients.

Q—What are the chances for a person with a dilated stomach to live a long and normal life? J.N.

A—They are good. The stomach is an elastic organ and if the cause of the dilatation can be discovered and corrected, it would have no effect on expectation of life.

Q—Is mineral oil taken for a spastic colon harmful? A.G.

A—Mineral oil is not generally advised for spastic colon. It may make the condition worse and there are reasons to believe that it interferes with the absorption of certain vitamins.

The Nation's Press

THE COMPETING REVENUES (Omaha World Herald)

The collapse of the economy drive in the House and Senate has been a shock to many Americans who believed that this time the Congress would rise to its responsibilities.

Congress has not done so. The scheme to combine the spending measures into one big bill has not brought about economy.

The section of the Congressional Reorganization Law which called for a legislative budget estimate has been ignored.

Nothing seems to have worked and, by comparison, even the profligate Mr. Truman seems less a spender than the people's representatives. The plain truth is that the Federal Government's budget system is in a state of complete chaos. There are no limits, no restraints upon the spenders and no faint disposition to relate outgo to revenues.

Even Socialist Britain, propped up by Marshall Plan dollars as a balanced budget. The Chancellor of the Exchequer is responsible, his party stands or falls on the spending and tax programs simultaneously submitted to Parliament. And while Parliament can reject the budget, it cannot change it.

Henry Hazlitt, the Newweek columnist, argues that similar responsibility must be established under our system. He suggests a Constitutional amendment depriving Congress of the right to vote any expenditure not recommended by the President. Under this plan, Congress could scale down an expenditure or reject it, but it could not initiate it or increase it.

Arguing for his proposal, Mr. Hazlitt says: "Congress can never be expected properly to exercise the vital function of guardian of the people's purse as long as it is permitted to stick its own hand in that purse. If the President did not fear to be outbid by Congress, he would propose small spending in the first place. But as long as three branches of government—President, House and Senate—are all free to compete with each other in offering handouts to pressure groups with the taxpayers' money, the taxpayers' prospects are not bright. Somewhere there must be a restraining hand. And it is most likely to act as such when it has no other power than the power to restrain."

There is at least one formidable barrier to the adoption of such a program and one serious question about the advisability of it. The barrier is that Congress would have to initiate and approve Constitutional amendment depriving it of one of its basic powers. And the Congress is not likely to make such a surrender to the Executive.

The doubt is that the President would "propose smaller spending in the first place." We are thinking, at the moment, of the incumbent.

Surely, there are other ways to achieve budget responsibility without making over the Constitution and increasing the power of the Executive.

The present slap-happy spending enthusiasm on the part of the Congress may be due to a faulty interpretation of what the public wants. It is easy for Congressmen to conclude that the public is not concerned about spending and taxes, or is "too damned dumb to understand."

Nevertheless, it does not take too much imagination to envision a cold November morning in which the free-spending members of Congress might find themselves out of office. That would be one sure way of chilling the spenders, and returning a sense of financial responsibility to the Congress. Insignificant voters cast by enlightened electors might work better than a Constitutional amendment.

With Failing Hands They Cast Back the Torch of Liberty, For Us to Catch and Carry On!

On this Memorial Day the nation turns once more in solemn remembrance to the quiet places of the earth, where those who gave their lives for America lie at rest. There the fallen soldiers of democracy sleep in peace. We honor them in our ceremonies and in our hearts . . . knowing full well that nothing we can do, nothing we can say will give complete expression to our gratitude and our love. Only as we match their faith and their sacrifice in our striving to preserve the freedom for which they laid down their lives, can we truly honor them. To us, the living, it means work and great devotion. God grant that it be enough.

We Pay Our MEMORIAL DAY TRIBUTE To America's Valiant Dead.

MEMORIAL DAY SERVICES WILL BE HELD AT FAIRVIEW CEMETERY, TUESDAY AT 3 P.M.

SERVICES WILL BE CONDUCTED BY THE VETERANS' ORGANIZATIONS AND THEIR AUXILIARIES WITH REV. H. H. TYLER AS SPEAKER AND R. VIRGIL MOTT AS SOLOIST.

Gaston-Johnson No-Roach Is Good Insect Pest Repellent

Many have been the claims of miracle working-solutions, designed to eradicate the common household pests that drive the modern housewife to distraction. Like her sister before her, she has to be engaged in almost endless battle against roaches, ants, spiders and a variety of crawling insects ever invading the sanitary sanctity of the kitchen. Comes word, now, of a drug to end all of this.

When you're plagued with roaches, there's nothing worse for your morale than meeting folks who claim they've never seen the pesky things. Well, everybody has had roaches at one time or another — practically everybody. They may be known by a variety of names — they may be considered in different degrees of pestilence — but they all add up to one thing — they are definitely carriers of dirt and filth.

Gaston-Johnson Corporation worked for many a month to perfect a solution designed to eliminate the housekeeper's worry over the most common of household pests. Don't look the other way and say "me, have roaches?" It's no sin to having roaches. There's no stigma attached to belonging to the group. But there is cause for eyebrow lifting if you don't do something about your pest troubles.

With the introduction of Johnson's NO-ROACH to the Pampa market, there's no excuse for having a buggy house. The venerable Cretny house has the solution in economical and convenient sizes.

Johnson's NO-ROACH is really a sensational product. It is a colorless coating of liquid, which is simply brushed on surfaces frequented by household pests. It is invisible, stainless, odorless and sanitary. This colorless coating kills crawling insects, and remains effective for months to kill the strays that wander in over it.

Next thing about Johnson's NO-ROACH is the fact that the name, as it would seem to imply, doesn't limit the use of the fluid for the killing of roaches. NO-ROACH works just as effectively on waterbugs, ants, spiders, even the deadly black widow spider.

Much sensational testimony has been published regarding this Pampa News advertising is an investment, not a cost.

"miracle" kills of the household pests. From Tucson, Arizona, comes word that the black widow fell victim to the relentlessness of NO-ROACH. Communications from all over the country give startling testimony that the liquid does everything it is claimed to do.

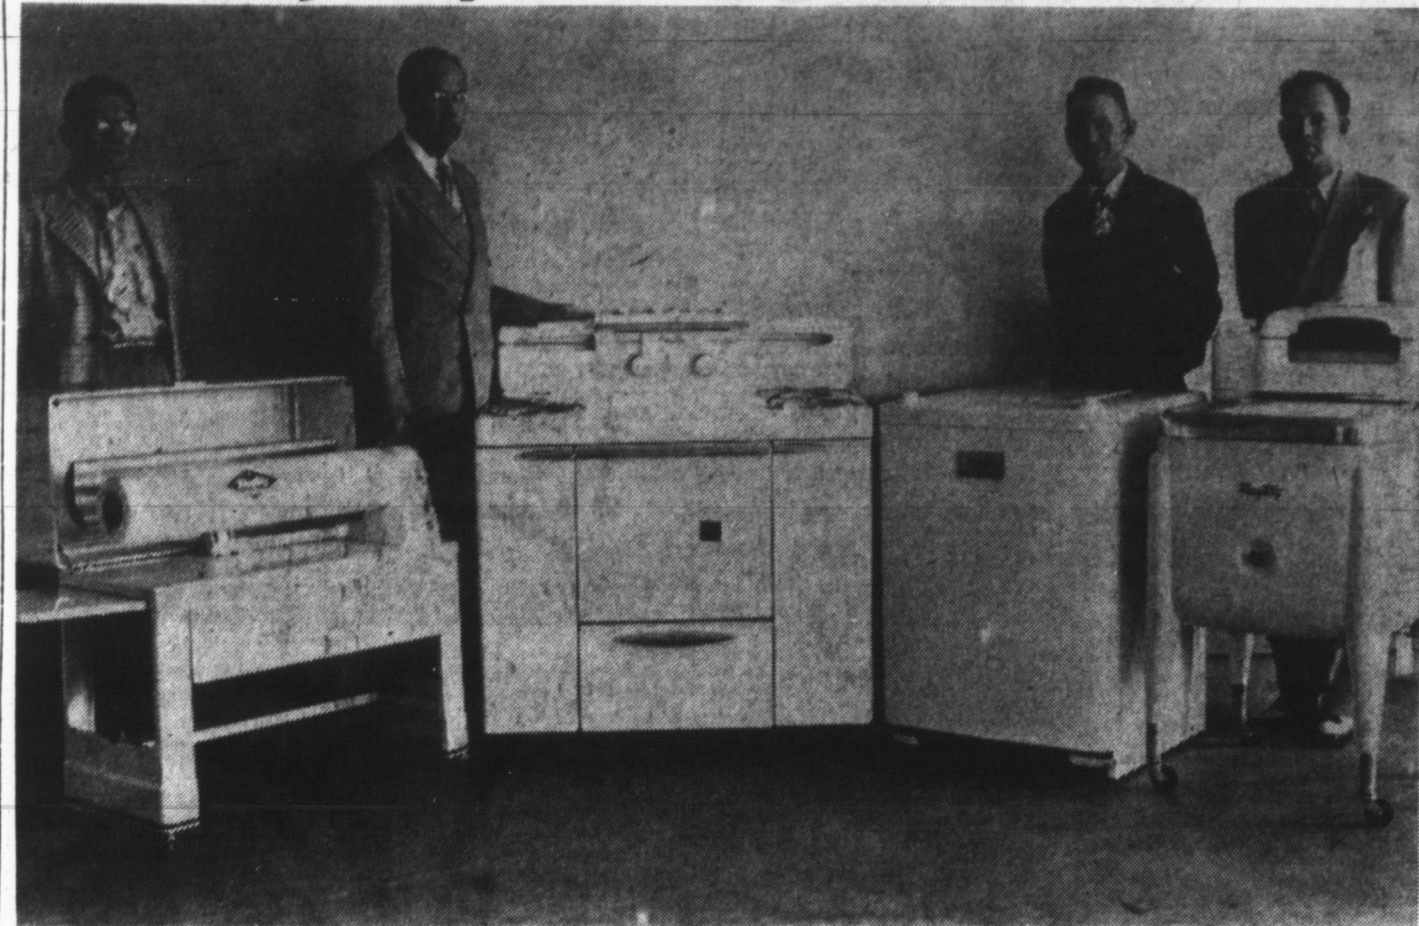

KoolVent Rides The Glory Road On Spring Sales

Just because you've had a few days of reminder that the north pole isn't so darned far away as you had begun to think is no sign that we aren't due for a lot of that Panhandle summer weather. The KoolVent boys aren't letting any grass grow under their feet while King Winter threatens to scorch us back in to red flannels.

A joy-ride around Pampa will disclose a number of homes sporting the new innovation in awning structure.

In so far as the Panhandle is concerned, KoolVent is just a business youngster. But the firm has gone about its business quietly, efficiently and with a will to establish themselves that is hard to equal. Even Peg o' Pampa is curious about the new business located next to Homer Sprinkle's Corner Drug Store.

Industrial Engineering Triumph Brought To Pampa by Dosier-Rinehart Combo

PAMPA MAYTAG personnel, E. K. Billington, Bishop Ricketts, owners Harold Rinehart and Price Dosier, Jr., invite you to inspect the new Maytag Dutch Oven Range, and the venerable Maytag Washer and Ironer now on display at Pampa Maytag, 112 E. Francis. (News Photo and Engraving)

For a long time the officials and representatives of the Maytag Company of Newton, Iowa, have hinted there was a big surprise in store for the American housewife. Like a good football coach, the management indulged in secret practice for complete perfection of the idea, for several weeks. Even Pampa Maytag Company was completely "MUM"

Instead of letting the American housewife off with a gentle, single-purpose surprise, the Maytag Company let it go with both barrels. In a very short space of time they announced the introduction for sale of the new Maytag Dutch Oven Gas Range. Surprise enough, in itself, that the venerable manufacturer of washing machines (over 6,000,000 are now in use) should suddenly put its talents to the manufacture of a new departure in cooking equipment. But that wasn't enough; concurrently, with the announcement of the new stove, Maytag passed out a tremendous saving to Mr. and Mrs. America in the way of a substantial, nationwide price-reduction on the Maytag line.

The new Maytag Dutch Oven Gas Range in itself is quite a marvel of modern industrial research. This gleaming white and chrome trimmed Maytag Dutch Oven Gas range, purportedly, actually does the cooking for you. You all know that planning and preparing three meals a day is no easy job.

Every homemaker looks for ways and means to reduce this portion of home work. Maytag claims a substantial reduction in meal-time effort has been made available through use of the Dutch Oven automatic control system of cooking. It seems to be as simple as the old ABC. Put the family meal in the oven and let Maytag do the rest. The oven is automatic, turns off the gas at a pre-set time, goes right on cooking until your meal is done. When you're ready, there's your dinner — hot and ready to serve. Another of the new features of the Maytag Dutch Oven range is the Sizzle-Serve broiler. There are not hot, awkward racks to wrestle with, just an easy adjustment that raises and lowers the broiling tray with childlike ease. The broiler itself is a polished, chrome-finished serving tray with removable handles.

One of the bugaboos of the homemaker has been the danger to children encountered in easy-to-reach controls. Maytag has made a large contribution to the elimination of this accident hazard in the perfection of certain safe, visual-height lever controls. The burners, with positive simmer-set and precision flame adjustments are controlled with lever action situated at the back of the control panel, safely out of reach of inquisitive little hands.

Oswalt Continues to Brighten Corner of Foster and Cuyler

If you ever find yourself a bit down-in-the-mouth and in need of a cheering word or two, you could do a lot worse than paying a visit to Clyde's Pharmacy at the corner of Cuyler and Foster. On the surface you'll find it to be a no-more-than-ordinary house for the dispensation of chemical concoctions and the million-and-one sundries so characteristic of Twentieth Century drug establishments. But, come on inside.

Inside of Clyde's Pharmacy, you'll find one of the most congenial drug-house crews in existence. Take 'em from front to back: Betty, the fascinating fountain girl, will whip up a sweet-meat beyond description. She makes a cup of coffee you can't say "no" to. Name your fountain pleasure, Betty will mix it for you. Mrs. Osborne will do a fair-to-middlin' job of suggesting everything you need in the 'everything there is' line. Emma, when she isn't conyalecing, is 'tops' in the cosmetics field. She'll do just about anything you can ask in the way of supplying you with your particular cosmetics. In the southwest corner of the establishment is a quiet sort of chap named Lander. Frank, to friend and neighbor, is the pharmacist of the establishment. Whether it's pills or potions you want, there isn't much you can't ask for that Frank can't supply you in a surprisingly short time. The most important part of this piece, however, is the sage of Foster and Cuyler — the man who mans the cash register and keep the place on even keel. Clyde Oswalt has been around Pampa, active in Panhandle drug circles for more years than he cares to mention. In years, the man is pretty young. In experience, he has the wisdom and compassion of the ages. Like every druggist who bridges the gap from the age of the apothecary to the day of the modern, streamlined house of a million family items, Clyde believes in giving plenty of good cheer to everyone who enters his store, whether he sells an item or not. He'll give of his time to anyone who asks it.

Pampa Lube Has New Color Job

Audrey Evans has done it again. The progressive entrepreneur of the Pampa Lubratorium, at Francis and Ballard, hit the clean-up, paint-up, fix-up campaign right in the middle. As a result, he came up with a brand new paint job covering his entire establishment.

If you haven't been around in the vicinity of Francis and Ballard, lately, you would do well for yourself and your car if you'd attend to that little detail without further delay. Not only will you get a surprise at the transformation rendered to Audrey Evans's Gulf Oil station, you'll get a chance to fill your car with one of the finest motor fuels yet offered to the public.

The Pampa Lubratorium crew is highly skilled, efficient, and ready to demonstrate some pretty smooth service to the old family bus. Pampa Lube, of course, specializes in wax and polish jobs. What could be better than to leave your car with them while you do your shopping. You'll get a fine service job, tank full of top-grade gasoline, a wash and polish job that shines like a new mirror, and a lot of those 'free' services you used to hear about before the little skirmish of AD 1941.
